NOTE.

In making up the following catalogue of the literature of Universalism it has been the aim of the compiler to furnish as complete a list as lay in his power of all that has been published in America either for or against the doctrine of Universal Salvation. Had the list included all that has been written by professed believers in Universalism, or even by its preachers, on the reforms of the age, or on other subjects of general interest, the catalogue would have been at least double its present size.

In a few instances titles of books published abroad are given, either because the authors were Americans or their themes bore directly on American Universalism. Articles from the various denominational reviews bearing on the subject of Universalism are noted; but contributions to Universalist magazines are not indicated, except where they are replies to attacks on Universalism, have been suggested by the modifications of so-called Orthodoxy, are of historic significance, or are especially notable presentations of some phases of Universalist belief.

The periodical literature of Universalism embraces many titles; but as much of it was ephemeral the list is probably incomplete. Pamphlet literature has been numerous, but not a little of it was probably local both in its circulation and fame; and while unwearyed efforts have been made to obtain information concerning all, doubtless some is unmentioned.

For the most part titles are given in full, and, where abbreviated, care has been taken to omit nothing necessary to an apprehension of the scope of the author's effort. So far as it has been possible to make a personal examination of books, pamphlets, or periodicals, titles are given with literal exactness. In some cases the compiler's only knowledge of a publication has been from its advertisement or other notice in a periodical. Many valuable suggestions have been received from Dr. Ezra Abbot's "Literature of the Doctrine of a Future Life," published as an appendix to Rev. W. R. Alger's "Critical History of the Doctrine of a Future Life," and from the "Collections toward a Bibliography of Congregationalism," appended to Rev. Dr. Henry Martyn Dexter's "Congregationalism as seen in its Literature." Grateful acknowledgment of indebtedness to these sources, as also to personal friends and to librarians generally, is here made.

The order of arranging the collection is chronological as to years, but not as to lesser divisions of time. Under each year the arrangement is alpha-
NOTE.

The sometimes incurs disadvantage and seeming awkwardness where a criticism or review of a work is mentioned before the work itself is brought to notice, but the case with which a title under any given year can thus be found is believed to be a more than counterbalancing advantage. Where a date is placed in brackets it indicates that no date of publication is assigned on the titlepage, but that the date given is probably the correct one. An author's name enclosed in brackets indicates that no authorship is acknowledged on the titlepage, but that there are supposed to be good reasons for the authorship designated. The abbreviations employed will, it is believed, be generally understood; but it may be well to state that n. d. signifies no date given, n. i. no imprint, n. p. not paged, v. p. variously paged.

It is hoped that the publication of this bibliography will serve the double purpose of informing the public what our literature is, and of inciting to such additions and corrections as will make future catalogues more accurate and complete.
