VINET, Alexandre Rodolphe, Swiss theologian; b. at Ouchy, near Lausanne, Switzerland, June 17, 1797; d. at Claren, on the Lake of Geneva, May 4, 1847. He was educated at Lausanne. From 1817 to 1837 he was teacher of the French language and literature in the gymnasium and pädagogium at Basel, then extraordinary professor of the same in the university, and finally (1835) ordinary professor. In 1818 he was ordained; but it was not until 1823 that he came under the influence of those deeply spiritual views inculcated by César Malan. It was, indeed, the persecution of the Momiers (see art.) which aroused Vinet's attention to the subject of freedom of conscience, and led him to write for the Paris Société de la morale chrétienne his prize essay, Mémoire en faveur de la liberté des cultes, Paris, 1826. This book established his reputation as a thinker and writer. Not content with philosophizing, he took a prominent part in efforts to secure religious freedom in Switzerland, in consequence of which he was tried (1829), and condemned to pay a fine of eighty francs, and be suspended from his ministerial functions for a year. But of course such persecution had no effect upon his efforts or influence, except to increase both. He received, meanwhile, flattering calls elsewhere; but these he steadily declined, greatly to the delight of the Baselers, who showed their appreciation of his ability and devotion as preacher, professor, and pamphleteer, by giving him the freedom of the city (1829), and in 1835 creating for him a chair of French language and literature in their university, thus giving him the position of ordinary professor. In 1837, however, he received a call which he could not resist, and went to Lausanne as professor of practical theology. As a parting tribute of respect and regard, Basel gave him that year the degree of doctor of theology. Out of modesty, Vinet made no public use of it; and therefore Berlin, in 1846, bestowed the same degree upon him. The second part of Vinet's career was destined to be shorter, for he suffered much from ill health. Immediately on his coming to Lausanne, he was involved in the struggle against State interference in ecclesiastical affairs, incident to a re-organization of the church in the canton; and, being unable to accept the abject position of the church before the law as determined by the new order of things, he withdrew from the Vaudois canton association of clergy (1840), but not—and this had been laid to against him as an inconsistency—from the National Church, because he was on principle opposed to separation from existent churches. He exercised great caution in his professorial teaching, and did not obtrude his peculiar views upon the students. Life was moving on quietly and beneficently when the Vaudois revolution of Feb. 14, 1845, broke out,—an uprising of the masses against "superstition," a blind effort to do away with the "fanatics," as the "dissenters," and those of the National Church who taught "evangelical views," and favored "evangelical" and "reformed" men. Vinet endeavored, unsuccessfully, to utilize the occasion to induce the authorities to grant religious freedom; and, since this came not, he resigned his professorship, May, 1845. A few weeks later he...
VIRGILIUS.

2462

became professor of French literature in the Lausanne Academy. In December, 1845, the Free Church of the canton of Vaud was organized; and, after some hesitancy, Vinet joined it. In November, 1846, the teachers in schools in the canton, of all grades, were required to submit to the new church law referred to above, and therefore Vinet was forced to withdraw. He welcomed the leisure; and, full of plans concerning unfinished and projected works, he would fain retire for a couple of years into its country, but his plans could not be carried out. His students besought him to continue his lectures; and so, although sadly needing rest, he labored on. On Jan. 28, 1817, he gave his last lecture in theology. On April 19 he was carried to Clarens, and there he died.

Vinet won fame in the two departments of theology and literary criticism. The latter does not properly come up here. His theology has to be determined from scattered statements in sermons, etc., for he wrote no formal theological treatise. He held the "evangelical" views respecting the necessity of repentance, and salvation by faith. Christ was the centre of his teaching. He made much of individuality, and dwelt upon the fitness of the gospel to the deepest needs of the heart, as proof of its divine origin. This theology was the staple of his preaching. As his teachers, he acknowledged Pascal and Kant. In practical theology there are several posthumous works derived from his notes and reports of students: Théologie pastorale, ou théorie du ministère évangélique, Paris, 1850; Homicilique, ou théorie de la predicacion, 1853; and Histoire de la predicacion parmi les réformés de France au dix-septième siècle, 1860. In the first, Vinet shows his fitness to have the care of souls, but takes radical ground; for he teaches that the ministerial office sprang out of the needs of the congregation, and had no formal, divine introduction. The minister, therefore, has no especial priestly character whereby he is separated from other believers; he is simply a Christian who does habitually what all Christians should do occasionally and in their way, but he does these things with that measure of authority which knowledge and practice give. In his Homiletica, Vinet defines a sermon as an address incorporated in public worship, and intended either to lead into Christian truth those ignorant of it, or to apply Christian truth to those familiar with it, or both. He dwells much upon the artistic construction of the sermon. The theme should be chosen first. The text is of much less consequence, as it is not essential to a discourse; yet one should be chosen out of reverence for the word of God. The strong points of the book are its emphasis upon the necessity of laborious preparation of discourses, upon the man behind the sermon, and its Christian warmth and enthusiasm. [It has been extensively used as a text-book and book of reference in American theological seminaries.] Vinet's History of Preaching is an excellent book upon a brief but important period in the history of French preaching. And of his teaching Vinet himself was a fine example. He never was a pastor; yet he preached frequently, on invitation, in the French Church at Basel and in the Free Church of the Vaud canton. Five volumes of these sermons and homilies have been published. He was greatly admired, and very influential. In short, he was a genius, full of ideas, glowing with Christian light, kindling enthusiasm in others, yet cautious, sensitive, learned, and aesthetic.

[Vinet was a fine example. He never was a pastor; yet he preached frequently, on invitation, in the French Church at Basel and in the Free Church of the Vaud canton. Five volumes of these sermons and homilies have been published. He was greatly admired, and very influential. In short, he was a genius, full of ideas, glowing with Christian light, kindling enthusiasm in others, yet cautious, sensitive, learned, and aesthetic.

[The following works of Vinet have appeared in English: Latitude recommended to the Christian Minister, London, 1841; An Essay on the Profession of Personal Religious Conviction, and upon the Separation of Church and State, considered with reference to the Fulfilment of that Duty, 1843; Christian Evangelical Philosophy, 1846; and, in the same volume, Gospel Studies, 1851; Selected Sermons, 1849; Pastoral Theology, 1852; Homiletics, 1853, again in 1858; History of French Literature in the Eighteenth Century, 1854; Evangelical Meditations, 1856; Studies in Pascal, 1859; Outlines of Philosophy and Literature, 1865; Outlines of Theology.]

VINCENT, Francis, D.D., Episcopalian divine; b. at Providence, R.I., Aug. 28, 1800; d. in Brooklyn, L.I., Sept. 29, 1872. He was graduated at West Point, 1830; admitted to the bar at Portsmouth, N.H., 1830; left the army, 1836; took holy orders in New York, 1838; was assistant minister at Trinity Church in that city, 1855-69. From 1869 till his death he was professor of ecclesiastical law and polity in the General Theological Seminary, New-York City. His principal works are, Lectures on the Evidences of Christianity, New York, 1865, and Manual Commentary on the General Canon Law of the Protestant-Episcopal Church in the United States, 1870. The latter is a standard work.

VIRET, Pierre, b. at Orbe, in the canton of Vaud, Switzerland, May 4, 1511; d. at Orthez, Navarre, April 4, 1571. He studied theology in Paris, but embraced the Reformation, and was ordained a priest by Farel in 1561. Very active for the establishment of the Reformation in the French part of Switzerland, he worked for thirty years in Lausanne and Geneva. In 1561 he was called to Nismes, and shortly after to Lyons. Aug. 10, 1563, he presided over the fourth national synod of France. In 1565 he was compelled to leave Lyons; but in the following year he was appointed professor of the newly established academy of Orthez. He was a prolific writer. His principal work is his Instruction christienne en la doctrine de la foi et de l'Evangile, Geneva, 1564, 3 vols. fol., written, like most of his works, in the form of dialogue, and containing a complete system of morals and politics. His works, however, are literary rarities. C. Schmidt.

VIRGILIUS, St., noticed in church history as the opponent of Boniface. He was an Irishman by birth; joined Pepin at Chiersy in 743, and was by him recommended to Duke Odilo of Bavaria for the see of Salzburg, which he occupied from 744 or 745 to his death, Nov. 27, 784. Used to the freer forms of the church of his native coun-
VITALIAN. Po (657—672), tried in vain to come into opposition to Boniface, who just at that time was active in establishing the strictest hierarchial forms in the German and Frankish churches. Twice Boniface complained of him to the Pope; and the last time he even asked him of himself, as he held the view of the earth, that it was globular. But in both cases the Pope supported Virgilius, and in 1233 he was even canonized by Gregory IX. See the two letters from Pope Zacharias to Boniface in the Letters of Boniface (62 and 82), edited by Wurdwein.

VIRGINIA, Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary of. This school, for the training of ministers for the Episcopal Church, is in Fairfax County, Va., two miles and a half west of Alexandria, and seven miles in a straight line, from Washington, D.C. It was founded in 1823 by a number of churchmen of Virginia and Maryland, foremost among whom was Bishop Meade of Virginia. It was not, however, incorporated till 1854, owing to prejudice in the State against the incorporation of religious institutions. It opened in the city of Alexandria; and, for four years, instruction was given by the incidental clergy and by the Rev. Dr. Keith. It was removed in 1827 to its present site, on a hill two hundred and fifty feet above the Potomac. The present buildings were erected by the munificence of Messrs. William H. and John L. Aspinwall of New York, John Bohlen of Philadelphia, and others. A beautiful chapel has been recently added by the contributions of the alumni and friends of the seminary. The first professor was the Rev. Reuel Keith, a graduate of Middlebury College, Vermont. He was a man of learning, and an earnest and impressive preacher. He translated Hengstenberg's Christology from the German. Dr. William Sparrow succeeded him as professor of systematic divinity in 1841, and was connected with the seminary till his death, in 1874. He was distinguished as a teacher and preacher. (See his Life and Correspondence, by C. Walker, D.D., Philadelphia, 1878; Selected Sermons.) Dr. James H. Biddle succeeded Professor Lippitt in the chair of church history in 1841, and remained in office till 1861.

The number of students who have been connected with the seminary during its existence of sixty years is not far from seven hundred and fifty; of these about forty became foreign missionaries. The first missionary whom it sent out was the Rev. Dr. Hill, lately deceased, to Greece. Fifteen of its alumni have been connected with the China mission, among whom was Bishop Boone, a man eminently fitted for his work. Sixteen have been missionaries to Cape Palmas, West Africa, among whom was Bishop Payne, who bore the heat and burden of the climate for thirty-two years; and Golden Hoffman, of whom The London Christian Observer said, "The annals of missionary excellence do not furnish a brighter example than that of Golden Hoffman." The first missionary to Cape from any Protestant church, we believe, was from this seminary, as is also the present Bishop Williams.

There are now four professors in the seminary and an instructor in vocal culture. There is also a preparatory department, distinct from the seminary, for those who from any cause cannot go to a college, the course in which is two years. The number of volumes in the library is about twelve thousand.

J. PACKARD.

VISHNU. See Brahmanism.

VISITANTS, or NUNS OF THE VISITATION, a religious order which was founded in 1610, at Annecy, by St. Francis of Sales and Madame de Chantal. Originally the institution did not form an order, in the strict sense of the word, a religion, but simply a congregation, an association. No vow was made; no peculiar dress was put on. The asetic exercises were very mild. The practical purpose was to visit the sick and the poor, and the association stood under the immediate supervision of the bishop. To prevent suspicion, however, it was found necessary, in 1618, to alter the constitution, and to transform the association into a regular order. The Augustinian rule was introduced, seclusion was enforced; and the only peculiar feature which was left untouched was the immediate supervision of the bishop. In 1626 the order was confirmed by Urban VIII. It grew rapidly. At the death of St. Francis it numbered thirteen houses, and at that of Madame de Chantal no less than eighty-seven nuns scattered over France, Italy, Switzerland, and Austria. Instead of visiting the poor and the sick, which became an impossibility by the introduction of strict seclusion in 1618, the practical purpose of the order became the education and instruction of young girls; and in that respect the order has acquired some reputation.

VISITATIO LIMINUM SS. APOSTOLORUM. A visitatio liminum ex voto, that is, a visit to the Church of St. Peter and St. Paul in Rome, in consequence of a vow, seems to have been a very frequent occurrence in the middle ages. Pilgrims "who go to Rome for God's sake" are often spoken of, and much was done for their protection both in coming and going. The Pope put the ban on any one who robbed them, or in other ways molested them. There is also a considerable canonical legislation concerning the right to grant dispensations from such a vow, a right which at one time the Pope tried to reserve to himself, but which finally became vested in the bishops. Of much greater importance, however, are the visits ex lege, demanded by law. As early as the eighth century, in 743, a Roman synod demanded that all bishops subordinate to the bishop of Rome as their metropolitan should meet personally in Rome once a year to give due account of the state of their dioceses. By Gregory VII. this demand was extended to all metropolitans of the Western Church; and finally Sixtus V. (by the bull Romanus Pontifex, Dec. 20, 1584) ordered the bishops of Italy, Dalmatia, Greece, and the adjacent islands, to visit Rome once in three years; those of Germany, France, Spain, Portugal, Belgium, Bohemia, Hungary, England, Scotland, and Ireland, once in four years; those from the rest of Europe, once in five years; and those from the other continents, once in ten years. By a constitution of Nov. 26, 1740, Benedict XIV. extended the demand to all abbots, friars, provosts, etc., having territorial jurisdiction.

H. F. JACOBBON.

VITALIAN, Pope (657—672), tried in vain to compel the bishop of Ravenna to recognize the authority of the see of Rome. He summoned Maurus to VITALIS. 2464. VOLNEY.

Rome; and, when Maurus did not come, he put him under the ban. But Maurus answered by putting Vitalian under the ban, and nothing was gained. More successful was his interference in the affairs of the Church of England, where he found a devoted ally in Archbishop Theodore of Canterbury, to whom he wrote a sharp Epistle, condemning the protracted controversies with Cocceius (see Max Gubel: Gesch. des christl. Lebens in d. Rhein. Westph. Ercang. Kirche, ii.) and Cartesius (see Duguy, hist. theol. de pugna Voutiæ inter et Cartesium, Leyden, 1861) cannot fail to remind the reader that it is not necessary to belong to the RomanCatholic Church in order to practise the maxim; that the end justifies the means. Among Voluets other works are exercita pietatis (1684), Disputations theologica (1686), etc. by A. de Voetius, of church history (1693).

VOETIUS, Gysbertus, b. at Leeuwarden, in the province of Holland, March 3, 1588; d. at Utrecht, Nov. 1, 1676. He studied theology at Leyden; and was appointed pastor of Vlymen in 1611, and of Utrecht in 1617, and professor of theology at Utrecht in 1634. He was a pupil of Gomar, and, like his master, he assumed the attitude of an ecclesiastical Hercules, cleansing the Arminian Augean stable. A great scholar and an able dialectician, though of a somewhat scholastic turn, he was a strict Calvinist both in doctrine (Selecte Disputations Theol., 1648) and in policy (Politic. Eccles., 1688, 4 vols.). Arminianism, and its alliance with the secular party in politics, he considered as the greatest danger to the Dutch-Reformed Church, and he waged war against it to the bitter end. But his violent and protracted controversies with Cocceius (see Max Gubel: Gesch. des christl. Lebens in d. Rhein. Westph. Ercang. Kirche, ii.) and Cartesius (see Duguy, hist. theol. de pugna Voutiæ inter et Cartesium, Leyden, 1861) cannot fail to remind the reader that it is not necessary to belong to the RomanCatholic Church in order to practise the maxim; that the end justifies the means. Among Voluets other works are exercita pietatis (1684), Disputations theologica (1686), etc. by A. de Voetius, of church history (1693).

VOETIUS, Gysbertus, b. at Leeuwarden, in the province of Holland, March 3, 1588; d. at Utrecht, Nov. 1, 1676. He studied theology at Leyden; and was appointed pastor of Vlymen in 1611, and of Utrecht in 1617, and professor of theology at Utrecht in 1634. He was a pupil of Gomar, and, like his master, he assumed the attitude of an ecclesiastical Hercules, cleansing the Arminian Augean stable. A great scholar and an able dialectician, though of a somewhat scholastic turn, he was a strict Calvinist both in doctrine (Selecte Disputations Theol., 1648) and in policy (Politic. Eccles., 1688, 4 vols.). Arminianism, and its alliance with the secular party in politics, he considered as the greatest danger to the Dutch-Reformed Church, and he waged war against it to the bitter end. But his violent and protracted controversies with Cocceius (see Max Gubel: Gesch. des christl. Lebens in d. Rhein. Westph. Ercang. Kirche, ii.) and Cartesius (see Duguy, hist. theol. de pugna Voutiæ inter et Cartesium, Leyden, 1861) cannot fail to remind the reader that it is not necessary to belong to the RomanCatholic Church in order to practise the maxim; that the end justifies the means. Among Voluets other works are exercita pietatis (1684), Disputations theologica (1686), etc. by A. de Voetius, of church history (1693).
VOLTAIRE.

2465

VOLTAIRE.

religious writings: Les Ruines, 1791 (often reprinted, and translated into several foreign languages; into English, New York, 1796, London, 1827); La loi naturelle, 1793; Histoire de Samuel, etc.

VOLTAIRE, b. in Paris, Nov. 21, 1694; d. there May 30, 1778. His true name was François Marie Arouet, to which he added in 1718, but from reason not known, de Voltaire, which occurs among his maternal ancestors.

Voltaire was educated by the Jesuits in Collège Louis-le-Grand in Paris, where he learnt "nothing but Latin and nonsense," and was destined to study law. But his natural talent, no less than the levity of his disposition, drew him with irresistible force into literary life,—the theatre, the pamphlet, the salons, etc., where the efforts were short, and the triumphs rapid. He had wit, taste, a wonderful talent for turning every thing into verse, and a still more wonderful talent for dropping innuendoes, malicious or lewd, according to circumstances. He wrote small poems, satirical or complimentary, and said smart things at the supper-tables of dukes and abbés. In 1718 he obtained a diplomatic position as secretary to the French ambassador to Holland. But in The Hague he was most ridiculously taken in by a lady of semi-standing,—a certain Madame du Noyer, whose daughter he fell in love with, and tried to allure into an elopement. He was discharged, and sent back to Paris; and Madame du Noyer repaid herself for her troubles by publishing his love-letters. In 1714 he competed for the prize of the academy, but failed to obtain it. In 1717 some vicious lampoons on the regent and the Duchess of Berri were generally ascribed to him, and brought him to the Bastille, where he spent eleven months. But, soon after his release, his first tragedy, Eclipse, was brought on the stage with great success; and the success was followed up with still greater energy. The Henriade, a large epic on Henry IV., which he had begun in the Bastille, he printed, though he had not succeeded in obtaining the approbation of the royal censor, and it at once made his fame and his fortune. But Voltaire's ambition was always a little ahead of his powers, his impertinence a little more of polemical letters, witty, malicious, indecent to an incredible degree; and an astonishing number of letters to all the most prominent persons in Europe. At the middle of the eighteenth century he stood as the greatest literary celebrity which the European civilization ever had produced, far exceeding Erasmus both in fame and power. And when, in 1750, he set out for Berlin, on the invitation of Friedrich II., it was not a pensioner threading his way to the table of his patron, but the king of the pen coming to visit the king of the sword. Voltaire and Friedrich admired each other. But Voltaire admired in Friedrich only the general, and Friedrich wanted to be admired as a poet; while, in Voltaire, Friedrich admired only the poet, and Voltaire wanted to be admired as a statesman. Ludicrous conflicts arose, almost from the hour of their first meeting; and soon the conflict grew into a continuous warfare. At last Voltaire took to flight, 1753; but Friedrich pursued him, and had him actually arrested at Francfort. All Europe was ringing with laughter. The friendship, natural and necessary between those two men, served only to show to all the world what there was in them of weakness and vice, of frailty and fraud.

The last part of his life Voltaire spent at Ferney, an estate he bought in the county of Gex, conveniently situated near the Swiss frontier; and during this period some of the best features of his personal character came to light. There were forty-six miserable peasants at Ferney when he bought the estate: when he died, there were twelve hundred well-to-do inhabitants engaged in watch-making, silk-weaving, etc., and it was he who built their houses, bought their tools, sold their goods, etc. His defence of Jean Calas shows a courage and perception of cause and effect, which are most admirable, and contributed more than many volumes could have done to convince people that religious toleration is necessary, not only for the development of truth, but for the very existence of good morals. But his writings—and among them are some of his most prominent works: Essais, le Dictionnaire philosophique, etc.—show that his polemical passion had become intensified almost to the bursting-point, that his whole mental energy had concentrated itself around the famous motto, "Ecrases l'infini," with which he ended every letter he sent to his friends. L'infini meant, originally, the Roman-Catholic Church, then any church which has the support of the State for the enforcement of its doctrine and discipline, and finally it came to mean all religion, so far as it claims a supernatural origin. On this point his hatred is insatiable. It pervades all his writing, from Candide and Le dîner du comte de Bouillonvills to La Prucelle and L'Orphelîne de la Chîne; and in his minor pamphlets, newspaper-articles, letters, etc., it drags him not only below his dignity, but beneath decency. His own time, however, did not think so. When he went up to Paris in 1778, he was received with such enthusiasm and such ovations as the world had hardly ever seen before. But the excitement thereby produced was too much for his strength; he fell ill, took too big a dose of opium, and died in delirium.

Voltaire made his mark in literature as a poet. His Zaïre, Mahomet, and Mésopô were considered the very acme of tragic art. Now, there cannot from those three long dramas be culled three single sentences in which the true accent of human nature is hit upon and rendered. Their poetical value is null, but their elegance is exquisite and perfect. When conventional rules are fulfilled with the same ease and spontaneity with which natural laws are obeyed, elegance is the result. To the public for which Voltaire wrote, tragic art was only a maze of intricate conventional rules; but he mastered those rules so completely, that his audience sat enchanted, transported, and gazed upon his tragedies as upon clouds of "woven wind" floating in the sunshine. Of more solid worth are his historical works. Robert Flinte, in his The Philosophy of History in France and Germany, Edinburgh, 1874, vindicates him an honorable place in the development of the philosophy of history, and, no doubt, with right. But the true merit of Voltaire as an historian lies, not in his relation to the science, but in his relation to the public. He made history a part of a never-ending conversation. With quick, circular strokes he swept away the dull dreams and foul deceits of the monks, and fixed the attention of people upon that which had really taken place. Before him, history was to people in general a kind of moral picture-book, with examples to be imitated, and examples to be avoided; after him it became the principal material for the study of human nature and human affairs. To people in general his historical works opened up a new way to truth. Finally, the philosophy of Voltaire. Strictly speaking Voltaire was no philosopher at all. The higher methods of extracting truth he had never learned, and he was by natural disposition incapable of that sustained effort of thought without which systematic views cannot be formed. Nevertheless, he is the true representative of the "Age of Reason"; and the great boast of that age was justly confessed to be, not an atheism. He could sneer as heartily at the atheists as at the fanatics. He was a Deist, and started from the three well-known premises of Deism: God, the world, and between them no relation which can be represented under the form of divine revelation, special providence, etc. But to Voltaire God was only the result of a train of reasoning, an intellectual necessity. God is, because he must be: "if we were not, we would have to invent him." Of a personal relation between himself and God there was no trace; and, what is still worse, he did not understand that this relation could truly exist. Whenever he met it, he felt inclined to attack it, no matter under what form it presented itself, — Judaism, Romanism, Protestantism, etc.; and of his general conception of God he often spoke with an undercurrent of cold indifference, illuminated now and then with sparks of cynicism, which, to men of strongly marked religious disposition, have made his works an outrage, an abomination. The world, on the contrary, was a very serious affair to Voltaire, and a thing he understood. He was a critic of the very highest rank. His instinct of truth was wonderfully sharp and vivid. He felt a aham miles away; and he could make enormous exertions, and submit to exasperating annoyances, in order to hunt it down. With that instinct he combined a never equalled power of statement. Not that his wit is always enjoyable. In the service of his vanity, envy, and malice, and used to cover up deliberate falsehoods and lies, it is often shocking. But the directness, clearness, and precision of his statement of a fact or an idea has still more often made truth irresistible; and without entering into the details of his activity, his victories, and his defeats, it may be generally said that his criticism developed in modern literature a sense for that which is simple, natural, and clear. His best service was in the case of the Protestant Cæcilia (see art). Outside of France, however, his works, his ideas, his influence, have ceased to act as a living spring. The waters have dried up. And, even within the bounds of French civilization, Voltaireism is an active power only as battling with Jesuitism; the one or the other giving it its color to the events, according as anarchism or despotism has the upper hand.

Lit. — Collected editions of Voltaire's works, as well as separate editions of his tragedies, histories, letters, and miscellaneous writings, are very numerous: the latest and the most complete of the collected editions is that of Paris, 1834, in 97 vols. The chief facts of his life are easily accessible, though not always incontroverted. Condorcet was his first biographer (1787); James Parton (Life of Voltaire, Boston, 1881, 2 vols.), the latest and the best. The more obscure facts of his life, his relation to Madame du Châtelet, to the Berlin Jewbankers, etc., have been treated in a great number of special essays, but generally without any definite result. What might be called the anecdotes of his life, more or less authentic, but very instructive with respect to time and place, is found in Bungein: Voltaire et son temps, Paris, 1851; and Janin: Le roi Voltaire, Paris, 1861, 3d ed. General surveys of his life, character, and influence, have been given by Pierson, Carlyle, Strauss, and Morley. Clemens Petriksen: Vorstiis, Conrad, Arminian theologian, b. at Cologne, July 19, 1659; d. at Tönningen, in Sleswick, Sept. 29, 1722. His parents were Roman Catholics; but he was refused the degree in the college of St. Laurentius in his native city, because he would not subscribe to the Confession of Trent; and soon after he openly embraced the Reformation. He distinguished himself as a student and lecturer in Heidelberg, Basel, and Geneva, and still more as teacher of theology in the gymnasion of Steinfurt. But some treatises he published (De praedestinatione, De trinitate, De persona et officio Christi) made his orthodoxy suspect; and in 1580 he was called upon to defend himself at Heidelberg before the accusation of Socinianism. In 1610 he was appointed the successor of Arminius in the university of Leyden; but on account of his Tractatus de Deo, published in the same year, and containing many peculiar subtleties concerning the nature and attributes of God, his appointment was met with a violent protest by the Gomarists. James I. of England was drawn into the controversy, and made umpire among the contestants. He condemned Vorstius, and succeeded in having him expelled from Leyden. Vorstius settled at Tergow, but the controversy continued to rage. He was condemned by the synod of Dort as a heretic, and banished from the States, 1619. For a couple of years he kept himself concealed, but finally he found a refuge in Sleswick.

VOSSIUS, Gerard, Provost of Tongern, papal prothonotary: d. at Liege, March 25, 1609; acquired a great reputation by his Latin translation of the Armenian Chrysostom, 1590, and his editions of the Gesta et monumenta Gregorii IX., 1596, of the works of Gregory Thaumaturgus and Epaphras Syrus, 1589, of St. Bernard's De consideratione (with commentary), 1594, etc. Of his personal life nothing further is known.

VOSSIUS, Gerard Jan, b. near Heidelberg, 1577; d. in Amsterdam, March 19, 1649. He studied at Dort and Leyden; was first rector of the college of Dort, then of that of Leyden; and was in 1618 appointed professor of rhetoric and chronology at Leyden, and in 1633 professor of history in Amsterdam. He was originally a pupil of Gomarus, but in the course of the controversy he gradually approached the other side. In 1618 he published his Historia de controversia quaest Pela gius ejusque religiae modernorum, in which he showed that Arminianism was not identical with Semi dianism, and that the Calvinist doctrine of predestination was unknown to the ancient church. Persecutions were immediately instituted against him, and continued; though his De historicis latin is, 1627, contained a partial recantation.

Votive-offerings consisted sometimes in objects of value, sometimes simply in tablets, which were placed in the temples as a thankful commemoration of some happy event or some great man. From the Greek-Roman Paganism, the custom was adopted by the Christians; and votive-tablets in the Christian churches are spoken of in the fifth century by Bishop Theodoret of Cyrus. As the worship of saints extended, the churches were crowded with votive-offerings, and in the Roman-Catholic Church the custom has not yet died out. Voltaire's brother placed a votive-tablet in the church in Paris in which Voltaire had been baptized, to expiate his infidelity.

Vowel-points. See Bible-Text, p. 267.

Vowels. The conception of a personal God who has a will as well as the power, and the personal relation which necessarily springs up between God and man on the basis of this conception, naturally call forth the ideas of offerings which could and should be presented to God, and of solemn promises by which man binds himself to present such offerings. Thus arises the religious vow (votum, éxvotóv). It may come forth as the simple result of man's desire to fit himself in his feeling of gratitude and devotion to God, and no expression could be more fit than the offering of something particularly dear or valuable. Or it may be made with a view to the obtaining of some great benefit, as, for instance, the rescue from some overhanging danger: the vows of the Old Testa tament very often show this character of conditionality. Or, finally, it may by man be considered as the most effective means by which to keep himself in the closest possible communion with God: no doubt, such a consideration lay at the bottom of the asceticism of the ancient church. But in the New Testament we find all three forms: the religious vow is a vol tary promise, the offering of something which is not due.

The New Testament gives no direct advice with respect to vows. The Gospels contain only the one sharp utterance from the lips of Jesus concerning gifts to the temple when accompanied with neglect of parents (Matt. xv. 4; Mark vii. 10). The apostolical Epistles are completely silent on the question; and from Acts xxii. 23 (see Nazarites) and xviii. 18 no positive doctrine can be extracted. The latter passage is, however, very obscure: it seems to refer to Aquila, and not at all to Paul. Thus the question, What position ought to be given to vows in true Christian morals? cannot be answered from the letter of Scripture. The answer must be deduced from the general principles of morality such as they have been laid down in the New Testament, and developed in Christian conscience. But on this point a striking difference reveals itself between the evangelical churches and the Church of Rome.

The idea that the pious feels driven in his conscience to present offerings to his God has not only been recognized by Christianity, but in Chris tianity, it has attained its most extensive bearing and its deepest meaning. For what is the offer ing which Christianity demands? Nothing less than the person himself, his whole life, all his will (comp. Rom. vi. 11, 13, vii. 4, xii 1; Gal. ii. 20; 2 Cor. v. 16). In this general, expanded sense, the promise made at baptism, and renewed at confirmation, is certainly a vow. But the vow in the narrower and more proper sense of the word, defining the offering as something special, and not due, the evangelical churches do not rec cognize. Luther, no less than Calvin, held that whatsoever degree of devotion to God a person was able to realize in his life, it was simply his duty, and implicitly contained in his baptismal promise. Quite other is the Roman-Catholic view of vows. Beside the common morality to which all Christians are bound by the commandment of God, she establishes another and higher morality, which is not a divine commandment, and conse cuently not a moral duty, but which may become an object of a vow.

The Roman-Catholic view of vows is closely connected with the Roman-Catholic doctrines of Consilia evangelica, Opera supererogationis, and Bonum melius. From Petrus Lombardus, who, however, made a distinction between a votum singulare and the votum commune made at baptism, and down to our time, the Roman-Catholic Church had always defined a vow as a voluntary promise to God of a bonum melius. Classical in this respect is the exposition of Thomas Aquinas (Summa, ii. 2, qu. 88): a vow, strictly speaking, distinguished from the baptismal promise, which is necessary to salvation (fit de bono meliori, dicitur melius bonum quod ad supererogationem pertinet). The bonum melius here appears as synonymous with opus supererogatorium, and Thomas actually defines it as something beyond that which is necessary to salvation, though it is evident that the bonum melius refers exclusively to some special virtues,—poverty, obedience, chastity; while an opus supererogatorium may result also from doing more than is necessary in the ordinary line of morality. J. KÖSTLIN.

VOWS AMONG THE HEBREWS. Vows (ז"ענ, "nedarim") are solemn promises to God, on condition of his granting some benefit, to make an offering in return. The passages in the Pentateuch giving information about them are Lev. xxvii. and Num. xxx. There is no sufficient reason for denying the high antiquity of this practice (Gen. xxviii. 20-22); and the historical books of the Old Testament, the Psalms, and the writings of the Salomonic period, show how prevalent it was in Israel. Vows included persons, animals, and other possessions. Persons, however, were always to be redeemed according to their estimated value. The redemption-price differed according to the age and sex of the person, except in the case of the poor, where it was estimated according to their property. The votive-offerings had the character of compulsory offerings, and differed in this regard from the freewill gifts. Amongst the votive-offerings were the acts of renunciation or abstinence; such as fasting and the obligations of the Nazarite. It is characteristic of the moral tone of the Mosaic legislation, that it excludes all unnatural mortification, such as self-mutilation and other injuries to the body, which were reasons for exclusion from the theocratic congregation (Deut. xxxii. 1; comp. Lev. xix. 18).

The practice of vows corresponds to the condition of minority under the law, but the Mosaic legislation lays no particular stress upon it. "If thou shalt forbear to vow, it shall be no sin in thee" (Deut. xxiii. 22). Nowhere is the vow spoken of as meritorious, nor is there any indication that God was regarded as granting requests with reference to or because of the vows. The motive actuating them was insisted upon (Ps. lxvi. 13 sqq., lxxvi. 11 sqq.; Mal. i. 14), and the inviolability of the promise was insisted upon (Num. xxx. 2; Deut. xxiii. 21 sqq.). To the simple injunctions of the Old Testament, the Mishna, in the tract Nedarin, adds many rules, which it supports by casuistry, laying particular emphasis upon the language in which they are made. Korban ("it is devoted to God as an offering") was the usual votive-word; and our Lord, in speaking of it (Matt. xv. 5; Mark vii. 11), assumes that a son by its use might even rid himself of the obligation to support his parents. Such cases happened, as is evident from Nedarin, v. 6. De Wette goes too far, when, in commenting upon Matt. xv. 5, he says with reference to Nedarin, ix. 1, "Rabbi Elieser held the law of reverence for parents higher than all vows; but the rabbis declared vows against this law binding." The Mishna does not declare offerings and duties to God arbitrarily assumed, and militating against the law of love, unbinding and worthless. It is, however, true, that the traditional observances condemned by our Lord, the Mishna also disapproves. Christianity was not without influence upon Judaism. OEHLEB (DELTZSCH).

VULGATE. The name for Jerome’s version of the Scriptures. See Bible Versions, p. 283.

WADDELL, James, D.D., eminent Presbyterian blind pulpitan orator; b. at Newry, Ireland, July, 1739; d. at Hopewell, Louisa County, Va., Sept., 17, 1805. His parents emigrated to Pennsylvania while he was an infant. He was educated in Dr. Finley's academy at Nottingham, Penn.; licensed by presbytery of Hanover, April 2, 1761; ordained, June 16, 1762; pastor in Lancaster and Northumberland, Va. He subsequently held other charges. His eloquence was renowned. But by his own request all his manuscripts were burned, so that his reputation rests upon testimony alone. He was blind for the last twenty years of his life. He was the father-in-law of Mr. Archibald Alexander. Wirt gives a picture of him in his British Spy. See SPRAGUE'S Annals, iii. 235 sqq.

WADDINGTON, George, D.D., b. in England, Sept., 7, 1793; d. at Durham, July 20, 1869. He was elected fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge; then travelled extensively in the East; was installed dean of Durham, 1840, and in the following year became first warden of the university of Durham. Besides books of travel in Ethiopia, in connection with Barnard Hanbury (1822), and Greece, during the Greek Revolution (1829), he wrote History of the Church from the Earliest Ages to the Reformation (1833, 3 vols., 2d ed., 1835), and History of the Reformation on the Continent, 1841.

WAFFER, the small circular disk of unleavened bread, stamped either with the figure of Christ or with the initials I.H.S., and used in the celebration of the mass in the Roman-Catholic Church. In form it resembles the Jewish passover bread. The wafer eaten by the priest is larger than that given to the laity. It is supposed that the use of the wafer is not earlier than the eleventh century; previously, ordinary bread was generally used. See art. "Oblaten." Wirt, in his History of Dublin.

WAGENSEIL, Johann Christoph, b. at Nuremberg, Nov. 26, 1833; d. at Altdorf, Oct. 9, 1705, where he had been professor since 1667,—first of history, next of Oriental languages (1671), and finally of ecclesiastical law (1697). He wrote the famous works, Sota h.e. liber Mischneicus de uzore adulterii suspicata, Altdorf, 1674 (a translation, with notes, of the Mishna tractate upon the treatment of a wife suspected of adultery), and Tola Ignea Satanae, sive, arcani et horribiles Judaeorum adversus Christum Deum et Christianam religionem libri, Altdorf, 1681 (a translation and refutation, in Latin, of certain anti-Christian Jewish writings)

WAHABEES, the representatives of a reformatory movement which arose within Mohammedanism in the middle of the eighteenth century. A movement, which may be characterized as a Mohammedan rationalism, accepting the Koran as authoritative, but rejecting the worship of Mohammed as idolatry. originated in the tribe of Nedshi in Yemen, and was named, after its originator, Mohammed-ben-Abd-el-Wahab. At the beginning of the present century the Wahabees reached the culminating point of their power. In 1802 they occupied Mecca, and compelled the Turks to pay a yearly tribute in order to be allowed to enter it as pilgrims; and in 1808 they even threatened Cairo, and invaded Syria. But in 1812 Mehemet Ali invaded Arabia; and in 1815 his son, Ibrahim Pasha, sent Abdullah, the head of the Wahabees, to Constantinople to be executed. Politically their power is now nearly confined to their native tribe in Yemen.

WAINWRIGHT, Jonathan Mayhew, D.D., D.C.L. (Oxon.), Protestant-Episcopal provisional bishop of New York; b. in Liverpool, Eng., Feb. 24, 1772; d. in New-York City, Sept. 21, 1854. He was graduated from Harvard College 1812; ordained 1816; was rector in Hartford (Conn.), Boston, and New York. He was consecrated Nov. 10, 1852. He was for many years secretary of the house of bishops, and the author of several books of travel, controversy (especially one with Dr. Potter on episcopacy, New York, 1844), and biblical exposition. See Memorial Volume (thirty-four of his sermons, and memoir by Bishop Doane, New York, 1856) and his Life, by J. N. Norton, New York, 1858.

WAKE, William, D.D., Archbishop of Canterbury; b. at Blandford, Dorsetshire, Eng., 1657; d. at Lambeth, Jan. 24, 1705. He was educated at Oxford; and was successively D.D. and canon of Christ Church (1689), dean of Exeter (1701), bishop of Lincoln (1705), and archbishop of Canterbury (1716). He was a very learned man, and wrote many works; but probably he is best known to-day as the author, in connection with Dr. J. E. Grabe, of a translation of The Genuine Epistles of the Apostolical Fathers, London, 1693, many editions and reprints. Dr. Wake gives to all these epistles primitive and apostolical antiquity.

WAKEFIELD, Gilbert, English divine; b. at Nottingham, Feb. 22, 1776; d. in London, Sept. 9, 1801. He was graduated at Cambridge, 1779, obtained a fellowship; took holy orders, left (1786), and violently assaulted the Established Church. He joined no other communion. From 1779 to 1783 he was classical tutor in the dissenting academy at Warrington, and for a year (1789-91) the same in the dissenting academy at Hucknall. His later views were Unitarian. Gentle in domestic life, he yet was acrimonious in controversy. He published editions of Bion and Moschus, Virgil and Lucretius, and many original books, of which may be mentioned, An enquiry into the opinions of the Christian writers of the three first centuries concerning the person of Christ, London, 1784 (only vol. I printed); Enquiry into the expediency and propriety of social worship, 1791 (in which he takes strong ground against it); Translation of the New Testament, 1791, 3 vols. (2d ed., 1795, 2 vols.; reprinted, Cambridge, Mass., 1820); An examination of the Age of Reason, by Thomas Paine, 1794.

WALCH is the name of two German theologians of note. —I. Johann Georg Walch, b. at Meiningen in 1683; d. at Jena, Jan. 13, 1775. He studied theology at Leipzig; edited Ovid and Lactantius; published in 1716 his valuable Itinerarium in Insulas Latins, linguarum, and was in 1719 appointed professor of eloquence at Jena. He took an active part in the philosophical controversy between Buddeus and Wolf, and published in 1726 his Philosophisches Lexikon, in which, at every point, the so-called natural theology breaks through the old Lutheran orthodoxy, opening the way on one side for pietism, and on the other for rationalism.

In 1724 he was made professor of theology. His principal theological works are, Einleitung in die Religionsentsprechungen ausser der evangelisch-luther. Kirche, 1739-47, 5 vols., and Einleitung in die Religionsuentsprechungen der evang.-luther. Kirche, 1730-38, 5 vols., and an edition of Luther's works, Halle, 1740-52, 24 vols. —II. Christian Wilhelm Franz Walch, son of the preceding; b. at Jena, Dec. 25, 1726; d. at Göttingen, March 10, 1784. He studied theology under his father; visited Holland, France, Switzerland, and the East; was appointed professor of philosophy in 1750 at Jena, and in 1758 at Göttingen, where, in 1754, he became professor of theology, and worked for thirty years with as much success as energy. He was not a creative genius. He belonged to the same kind of minds as Moehheim and Semler, though without equaling them. His works are, nevertheless, of great importance, especially in the department of church history. He felt that God might be studied in the same way, and with the same advantage, in history as in nature. But even in his Geschicthe der evang.-luther. Religion, 1753, a work of great importance, his tendency is to raise the idea—true by itself, and very fertile — into a higher view of the philosophy of history: it sinks down into a merely apologetic application of a rather narrow notion of Providence. His Ketzerhistorie, 1782, 11 vols., is an almost exhaustive collection, and fully methodical arrangement, of the materials; and the conclusions are always drawn with caution and conscientiousness. But that power which penetrates the given materials so as to reproduce the organic developments of history, he entirely lacked. The book, which is his principal work, is, nevertheless, still an invaluable aid for the student of church history. Prominent among his other works are his Hist. der römischen Päste, Göttingen, 1756; Historie der Kirchenversammlungen, Leipzig, 1759; Biblioth. Symbol. Vetus, Lemgo, 1770, etc. Dissertations on his life and writings were written by Henmann, Less, and Heyne, 1794. W. Möller, WALDEGRAVE Samuel, D.D., son of Earl of Waldegrave; b. 1817; d. Oct. 1, 1889. He was graduated at Balliol College, Oxford, as a double first-class, 1839. In 1849 he was elected fellow of All Souls; in 1863 appointed Hampton Lecturer; in 1880 bishop of Carlisle. His writings include New-Testament Millenarianism (his Bampton Lectures), London, 1855, 2d ed., 1868; and the posthumous, Christ the True Altar, and other Sermons, with Introduction by Rev. J. C. Ryle, 1875.

WALDENSES. As the Latin Church with steadily-increasing force developed those features which especially characterize her as the Church of Rome, the instincts of the ancient Catholic Church, time after time, broke out in open resistance. In the Waldenses this opposition found one of its strongest expressions; and their history is so much the more interesting, as, besides the Bohemian and Moravian Brethren, they are the only party of medieval dissenters who have maintained their old faith down to the present day. Origin and Earlier History. — Lyons was the cradle of the Waldenses, whence they were often called Leonistae, Leonenses, Lugdunenses, or Pasipers of Lugduno, and it is worth noticing, that both on account of its excellent cathedral-school, and on account of the ability of its bishops and archbishops, the Church of Lyons held the most prominent position in Gaul, exhibiting in its history many grand examples—Agobard, Amolo, etc.—of the true type of ancient Catholicism; while on the other hand the Cathari had met with very little success there. The originator of the new movement in the mountains of Valais, or Waldensia, a rich and distinguished citizen of Lyons, who flourished in the latter part of the twelfth century. A very natural desire to know what the lectiones, the recitals from the Vulgate, really contained, led him to procure a translation of them into the vernacular tongue, the Romani, a Provençal dialect; and when he found the great use of a guide in studying the Bible, the translation of the Bible, or of parts of it, was followed by translations of extracts from the Fathers. But in all this there was nothing extraordinary. The translation and reading of the Bible had not yet been forbidden by the Church. But the reading of the Bible led to the imitation of Christ. Waldus felt compelled to take the rule of his life from the Gospels, and in that point there were many who agreed with him. They gave away their property to the poor, and began to preach publicly in the city. They preached in the streets, in the houses, even in the churches, and they produced a deep impression. The church took fright, and the archbishop finally forbade them to preach. They protested, refused to obey, and were expelled from the city. Taking their wives and children with them, they set out on a preaching-mission, and scattered all over the southern part of France, where the soil had been well prepared for them, partly by the Cathari, and partly by the notorious insufficiency and immorality of the priests. Travelling two and two together, clad in woollen penitence-garments, with bare feet or wooden shoes ( sabot, or zabate, whence they were often called Sabalii, Sabalenses, etc.), they penetrated into Switzerland and Northern Italy, well received everywhere as the poor Waldenses from Lyons. There was, however, as yet, no breach with the church. The Waldenses were not conscious of any decisive difference between themselves and their contemporaries, who, either from Lyons or elsewhere, they appealed to the third council of the Lateran (1179), and by Alexander III. they were treated with great leniency; but, as they would not stop preaching, they were put under the ban by Lucius III. (1184), and the measure was repeated by the fourth council of the Lateran, under Innocent III. (1215). Conflicts arose: and in some places, as, for instance, in Aragonia, under Alfonso II. (1194), very harsh proceedings were instituted against them; but in other places a spirit of reconciliation prevailed, not without prospects of good results. At the religious disputation of Pamiers (1187), between Waldus, or Valdesius, a rich and distinguished citizen of Lyons, who flourished in the latter part of the twelfth century, and Durandus of Huesca or Osca, a Waldensian, was induced to rejoin the church, together with his friends, on the condition that they should be allowed to retain the austere rule of life which they had adopted from the Waldenses. In 1209 Innocent III. gave his consent to this, thus allowing the “Cathari, or poor” (pauperes catholici). Similar movements occurred in other places; and, generally speaking, the Waldenses had an aversion to the Cathari and their heresies, which formed a bond of union between them and the church. But the state of affairs which at this time developed in Southern France—the crusades against the Albigenses, instituted by the Pope himself, and executed by Louis IX., Friedrich II., Raymund VII., etc.; the foundation of the Inquisition by Gregory IX. in 1232; and the establishment of the Dominican order as perpetual papal inquisitors—finally exercised its influence also on them. The Council of Toulouse (1229) forbade laymen to read the Bible, whether in Latin or in the vernacular tongue; and the Council of Tarragona (1234) extended the prohibition to the clergy. Under such circumstances the Waldenses could not help becoming aware of the very sharp differences between themselves and the church, involved in their very first principles; and they were thus forced into a position of open antagonism with respect to the church. Excluded from the ruling church by the Fourth Lateran Council of 1215, they were by no means willing to concede that they were excluded from the true church. Nor were they prepared to represent themselves as the true church, and the Church of Rome as a mere fraud. But they claimed to be the true and sound kernel of the church general; and they protested that the perseverance of the Church of Rome began with Pope Sylvester when he accepted riches and worldly power from Constantine the Great.

Doctrines and Discipline.—The great informing idea of the Waldensian Church, no less than its relation to the ruling church, made the formation of an order of preachers, and their complete education, an affair of paramount importance. The preachers, who were called perfecti, in contradistinction from the merely credentes (“faithful”), lived in poverty and celibacy. After due preparation and instruction, they were subjected to an examination concerning the fundamental articles of faith (such as contained in the Apostles’ Creed), the principal points of difference with respect to the Cathari, the seven sacraments, etc. After promising to obey God, to remain chaste, and to live in voluntary poverty, they received the ordination by the laying-on of hands. According to some accounts, there existed hierarchical distinctions of bishops, priests, and deacons, among the perfecti, and the frequently occurring terms of majoritis, magnum magister, major, minor, may refer to such distinctions. But, according to other accounts, the Waldenses held that every “good man” could, without any charge from any human hand, legitimately perform all the offices of a priest, even administer the Lord’s Supper (conficere corpus Christi). After the example of the seventy disciples, the preachers were sent out two and two. In order to escape the notice of the priests, they used various disguises, introducing themselves as monks, friars, or hermits. They carried books with them,—parts of the Bible translated into Ronaunt, devotional treatises consisting of extracts from the Fathers, rihomi, or poetical exhortations of moral import, etc. When possible, they gathered the faithful to service in secluded places: if not, they visited them in the families, preaching to them, baptising them, made auricular, and in a kneeling position), and giving them absolution. Generally some peneance (merioramentum), consisting of prayers, fasts, and alms, was added to the absolution, but only in the form of advice. There were, however, congregations among the Waldenses which considered the contrition of the heart and the silent prayer to God as the only confession and penance necessary. The moral teaching was very austere; its object being to penetrate human life in all its details with the principles of Christianity, and make it holy. The whole system was based upon a radical and uncompromising distinction between good and evil: there are only two ways, — one leading to heaven, and the other to hell. The doctrine of purgatory, and all doctrines connected with it,—masses, alms, prayers for the dead, etc., — they rejected. Certain commandments of the Gospels they enforced literally and with the utmost rigor. All swearing was forbidden. In consequence of Matt. vii. 1, "Judge not, that ye be not judged," they denied the right of civil authorities to inflict capital punishment. Any and every lie was a deadly sin. None had the right to punish those who deviated from the church; for it was in the character of the church to be persecuted, not to persecute. With respect to the saints, they taught to reverence them, and to be persecuted, not to persecute. With respect to the sacraments it is certain that the Waldenses had their children baptized by the Roman-Catholic priests, and that no kind of baptismal act was performed by the admission into the sect. It seems, however, from the answer of Bucer to G. Morel (1530), that their coming into contact with Anabaptists caused them some uneasiness on this point. The Lord's Supper the faithful took in the Roman-Catholic Church, with the permission of their preachers. After the excommunication, the preachers themselves administered the sacrament; but as the Waldenses believed that the transubstantiation took place, not in the hand of the priest, but in the mouth of the communicant, there was no reason why they should not receive the Eucharist from the Roman-Catholic priest. It must not be overlooked, however, that the consequences of the principles from which the Waldenses started reached much farther than was at first understood, and that, consequently, their doctrinal system became differently developed in different places and under different circumstances. Thus it seems very improbable, in spite of their aversion to the Cathari, that they should in no wise have been influenced by them. Many features of organization and discipline, and many points of doctrinal and moral teaching, were common to both parties; and everywhere the Cathari preceded the Waldenses. Stephanus says expressly of the Waldenses, that, after their excommunication, they became much mixed up with other heresies. And he states, that in 1247, there were Waldenses in Lyons, who in many points agreed with the Brethren of the Free Spirit, — a remark which is so much the more noticeable as traces of such an amalgamation are met with again in the middle of the sixteenth century.
WALDENSES.

The Waldenses. — The Waldenses was on the slopes of the Cottian Alps, east in Piedemont, west in Provence and Dauphine. The first mention of their appearance in the diocese of Turin dates from 1198, when Bishop Jacob of Turin obtained a decree of expulsion from Otho IV.; but the exact locality in which they appeared is not mentioned. A few decades later on, traces of them are found at Pignerol, on the border of those valleys which they now occupy. In 1220 Count Thomas of Savoy and the magistrate of Pignerol imposed a fine on any one who should be convicted of having shown hospitality to a Waldensian. In 1297 persecutions were instituted against them in the Valley of Poesa, and in 1312 one of them was burnt there at the stake. In the latter year they were so numerous in the valleys of Luserna and Poesa, that their assemblies often consisted of more than five hundred members. They arose against the inquisitor Albert; they killed the priest of Angrogne; and in 1376 they even killed an inquisitor. In 1403 the Waldenses in Lombardy, in Montferrat, and in the diocese of Turin, were visited by the celebrated preacher Vincentius Ferreri. He found the inhabitants of the Valley of Angrogne very much neglected by the Roman-Catholic clergy. For a period of thirty years they had been visited only twice a year by Waldensian preachers from Apulia. He succeeded in leading a number of them back into the Church of Rome, but most of them remained faithful. In 1475 new persecutions were instituted by Duchess Iolantia of Savoy; and, a few years later on, Pope Innocent VIII. waged actual war upon them, sending an army of ten thousand men against them under his legate, Albert de Capitaneis. Duke Philip VII. took them under his protection, and granted them some privileges; but in 1500 they were again persecuted. On the western slopes of the Cottian Alps, the Waldenses were generally confounded with the Cathari, and suffered immensely in consequence thereof. In 1385 Benedict XII. exhorted the bishops of Valence and Vienne to eradicate the sect altogether. In 1490, however, a considerable number of Waldenses came from Piedemont into Provence, and settled at Cabrieres, Merindol, and other places in the neighborhood. As they were excellent agriculturists, they were well received and protected by the feudal lords of the land; and, as they externally belonged much farther than we think, they were granted certain privileges by an edict of 1475, which was finally confirmed by Alexander VI. in 1502. Emigrants from the Cottian Alps settled, in the beginning of the fourteenth century, in Calabria, and founded the villages of St. Sipt, Argentina, La Rocca, Vaccarasso, and Guardia. In 1400 a new emigration took place, this time to Apulia, where the villages of Monlione, Montanato, Faito, La Cella, and La Motta, were founded. The Waldenses had also houses in Florence, Genoa, and Venice. At various times they appear to have been very numerous in Bern, Susseburg, Zussau, etc. In the last-mentioned place they attracted attention by refusing to pay tithes, and by rejecting monasticism, infant baptism, exorcism, and the sacrament of confirmation. When the reformatory movement began in Bohemia, they naturally were attracted by it; and their connection with the Bohemian sect of the Protestant Church is often spoken of as a turning-point in their history. In 1467 the Brethren entered into negotiations with a Waldensian congregation settled in Austria; but the Roman-Catholic clergy became aware of what was going on, and frustrated all attempts at a union. More successful were the Brethren in their address to the Waldenses settled in the Mark: a union was actually effected. In 1497 a connection was established between the Brethren and the Waldenses in Piedmont. In that year two Brethren—Lucas of Prague, author of the Bohemian Catechism, and Thomas of Landskron,—were sent out, with letters of recommendation from King Wenceslaw and the Bohemian barons, to the kings and princes and authorities in Italy and France, for the purpose of investigating the state of all dissenting parties in those countries. They found Waldenses everywhere, even in Rome itself, and brought back two letters from them,—one to the king and the barons, and one to the Utraquist ministers, drawn up by Thomas de fonte citicule. Thus, at the opening of the period of the Reformation, there were numerous Waldensian settlements on the Cottian Alps, in Naples, and in Provence around Cabrières and Merindol, besides scattered congregations in Italy, Switzerland, France, and Germany. Externally they were members of the Roman-Catholic Church, and enjoyed peace; but, as appears from the confessions of G. Morel, their internal state, religious and moral, had at that time fallen below the original standard of the party.

First Period of Literature.—The Waldenses had a literature almost from their very origin. The manuscripts of this literature are chiefly found at Geneva, Cambridge, and Dublin; though single works may also be found at Grenoble, Zurich, and Paris. Of special interest is the collection at Cambridge. It was made by Morland, who in 1658 was sent to Piedmont by Cromwell. On his return he deposited the manuscripts in the university library of Cambridge; but, shortly after, they disappeared, and they were generally considered as lost, until in 1862 they were rediscovered by Mr. Bradshaw. (See H. Bradshaw: On the Recovery of the Long-lost Waldensian Manuscripts, in the memoirs of the Cambridge Antiquarian Society, March 10, 1862, No. XVIII.; and Groome: The Long-lost Waldensian Manuscripts, in the Christian Advocate and Review, January, 1863, No. 28.) The language in which this literature is written is the Romaunt, a peculiar idiom, containing many features of its own; and a number of treatises on the sacraments, the decalogue, purgatory, worship of the saints, fasts, etc., were translated, or adapted from the Bohemian. The influence of this whole movement was immense. The idea of a complete separation from the Roman-Catholic Church became more familiar to the Waldenses. The biblical principle, that the ordinance of Christ is sufficient to salvation without the ceremonies of the old dispensation, and without the right of modern but merely human institution, was more precisely defined. The doctrine of transubstantiation became hollow, and the idea of a union was dropped. Those who had produced among them. The Waldensian Catechism (Las interrogaciones menores) was drawn up upon the model of the Bohemian, though containing many features of its own; and a number of treatises on the sacraments, the decalogue, purgatory, worship of the saints, fasts, etc., were translated, or adapted from the Bohemian. The worship of saints and the doctrine of purgatory were peremptorily rejected as opposed to Scripture, etc. Thus the acquaintance with the Bohemian Brethren, no less than the fundamental Waldensian principle, to study the Bible, and make it the rule of life, led the Waldenses directly to the Reformation.

Relation to the Reformation.—In 1560 the Waldenses settled on the French side of the Cottian Alps, sent George Morel and Pierre Masson (Buerc calls him Pierre Lathom) to the Swiss and German Reformers, the Waldensian literature took a new departure under Bohemian auspices. The very answers which the Waldenses sent back to King Wenceslaw and the Utraquist ministers, and still more a little original treatise on Antichrist, dating from the same time, show the great commotion which the acquaintance with the Brethren had produced among them. The Waldensian Catechism (Las interrogaciones menores) was drawn up upon the model of the Bohemian, though containing many features of its own; and a number of treatises on the sacraments, the decalogue, purgatory, worship of the saints, fasts, etc., were translated, or adapted from the Bohemian. The idea of a complete separation from the Roman-Catholic Church became more familiar to the Waldenses. The biblical principle, that the ordinance of Christ is sufficient to salvation without the ceremonies of the old dispensation, and without the right of modern but merely human institution, was more precisely defined. The doctrine of transubstantiation became hollow, and the idea of a union was dropped. Those who had produced among them. The Waldensian Catechism (Las interrogaciones menores) was drawn up upon the model of the Bohemian, though containing many features of its own; and a number of treatises on the sacraments, the decalogue, purgatory, worship of the saints, fasts, etc., were translated, or adapted from the Bohemian. The worship of saints and the doctrine of purgatory were peremptorily rejected as opposed to Scripture, etc. Thus the acquaintance with the Bohemian Brethren, no less than the fundamental Waldensian principle, to study the Bible, and make it the rule of life, led the Waldenses directly to the Reformation.

Relation to the Reformation.—In 1560 the Waldenses settled on the French side of the Cottian Alps, sent George Morel and Pierre Masson (Buerc calls him Pierre Lathom) to the Swiss and German Reformers to lay before them an account of the moral and religious state of the congregation, and to ask explanation of certain doubted points of doctrine and discipline. The two emissaries first visited Neuenburg, Murten, and Bern, and then Basel, where Ecolampadius was living, and Strassburg, where he died. Fortunately, quite extensive documents concerning this mission have come down to us: the address of Morel to Ecolampadius, and the answer of the latter in Scultetus. Annales, pp. 295-315; two more letters from Æcolampadius, in Æc. et Zwinglii epistolatarum libri IV., Basel, 1536; Martini Buceri responsiones ad questiones, etc., in the university library of Strassburg; and the Memoirs of Morel, written in Romaut, and preserved in Dublin. Morel also presented a confession of faith, which, in harmony with the old Waldensian articles de la fe, professes belief in the twelve articles of the Apostle's Creed, the Trinity, and the divinity of Christ; rejects the worship of saints with their festivals and vigils, the doctrine of purgatory, holy water, fasts, and the mass; defines the sacraments as holy symbols, visible tokens of an invisible grace; and finally recommends auricular confession as something useful. To this confession were added no less than forty-seven questions: whether there were only two sacraments, or, as the Roman Catholics say, seven; whether the sufferings of Christ referred to hereditary sin only, as the Roman theologians said, or also to actual sin; which were the canonical books of the Bible, and which not; whether the allegorical interpretation of Holy Writ—one of the main supports of the Church of Rome, and hitherto much used by the Waldenses themselves—was of any use; whether of the words, of Christ, some were only meant for advice (consilia), while others were direct commandments, etc. In speaking of the sacraments which the Waldenses continued to take from the hands of the Roman-Catholic priests, it is evident that Morel never thought of a complete separation from the Church of Rome; and from several other passages it appears that the Waldenses had read the De libero arbitrio of Erasmus and the De serro aristro of Luther, but without arriving at any definite result. Nor was their conviction settled with respect to the new doctrine of justification by faith. On all these points the Reformers gave the two emissaries open and clear answers; and Æcolampadius specially emphasized the necessity of complete separation from the Church of Rome. On their return, Masson was seized at Dijon, and decapitated; but Morel succeeded in reaching Merindol, and thence to Farel. The impression was very deep, and it was immediately decided to convene a synod, to which should be invited some of the most distinguished and most experienced preachers of Apulia and Calabria, and of the most prominent of the Reformed theologians. The synod assembled at Chanforans, a village in the Valley of Angrogne, Sept. 12, 1532. Farel and Sauvier were present. It lasted five days. The most important of its decrees are, a Christian may swear by the name of God; no work is good but that which is commanded by God, and no work is bad but that which is forbidden by God; the rest is indifferent; auricular confession is not commanded by God; a Christian is not forbidden to refrain from working on Sundays; the external word is not necessary in prayer, nor the bent knee, the bowed head, the fixed hour; laying on of hands is not necessary; the mass is not commanded by God; no one is forbidden to marry; to him who has not the gift of abstinence, marriage is a duty; it is not absolutely forbidden by God to take interest; all who are saved were elected before the creation of the world; he who asserts the existence of freewill denies the predestination and grace of God, etc. The difference between these decrees and the original Waldensian faith is very striking. The instructions of Æcolampadius and Bucer are everywhere visible. The last propositions concerning predestination are, no doubt, due to Farel. Remarkable is the total absence of strictly dogmatical propositions; but already the Bohemian Brethren had noticed the aversion of the Waldenses to doctrinal expositions and formal creeds. Remarkable is also the complete silence concerning one of the most important points, at least from a practical point of view,—the separation from the Church of Rome. Probably this omission was due to a cautious regard to a minority of the synod, which was frightened by the great innovations. Representatives of that minority shortly after repaired to Bohemia, where the Reformation had produced a similar movement, and caused the formation of a corresponding minority, the so-called Pseudo-Hussites. Several letters were exchanged between Bohemia and Piedmont; but a new synod of St. Martin (1533) broke off the negotiations, and confirmed the decrees of the synod of Angrogne.
The Waldenses.

WALDENSES.

Separation from the Church of Rome, and Persecutions.—The separation from the Church of Rome was most rapidly affected among the French Waldenses. In 1535 the congregations of Provence numbered several thousand members, and presented to Francis I., their king, a confession of faith wholly reformed. But in 1540 a horrible persecution broke out: twenty-two villages were burnt down, four thousand persons were massacred, and the congregations were all but destroyed. About four thousand persons sought refuge in flight, and returned afterwards to their old abodes, but lived on in a pitable state. In Dauphine the persecution began in 1560, but was only of short duration. On the eastern side of the Cottian Alps the Reformation was more slow in its progress, but more successful in vindicating itself. The territory which by the peace of Creaup (1544) came under French dominion was returned to Piedmont by the peace of Chateau-Cambresis (1559); and in 1560 Farel and his supporters, by the order that none but Roman-Catholic preachers should be heard in the valleys; but, when he attempted to carry out the order by force, the Waldenses made armed resistance. They were victorious in the encounter; and by the peace of Cavour (1551) they obtained freedom of worship within certain confines,—the valleys of St. Martin, Perosa, and Luserna. The agreement was not kept by the government; and in 1571 the Waldenses formed the so-called "Union of Valleys," by which they bound themselves to cling to the Reformed faith, and defend their religious independence. This Resolution also reached the Waldensian congregations in Calabria; and two evangelical preachers, Negrin and Pascal, went thither as missionaries. But the movement was stopped with the most inhuman cruelty. Men, women, and children were slaughtered indiscriminately at fixed terms, and the bodies were carried on board the Spanish galleys, or sold as slaves. Pascal was burnt at the stake in Rome. Thus the valleys of Piedmont were, in fact, the only place where the Waldensian Church succeeded in maintaining itself; and it kept itself alive there for Legal Establishment. — After the battle of Marengo, French influence became decisive. For several years in Northern Italy, Napoleon took a special interest in the brave Waldensian community, and gave their church a constitution similar to the constitution of the Reformed Church in France. But after his fall a strong and bigoted Roman-Catholic reaction set in; and immediately after his entrance into Turin, May 20, 1814, Emanuel issued an edict abolishing the constitution of the Waldensian Church, and putting in force once more the old restrictions and prohibitions. On the instance, however, of England and Prussia, he issued a milder edict of Feb. 7, 1816, according to which the Waldenses were allowed to practise as lawyers, physicians, architects, surveyors, etc.; and the Waldensian ministers were paid by the State. But the chicaneries of the Roman-Catholic clergy continued; and when Charles Albert ascended the throne, in 1831, the Jesuits nearly succeeded in effecting a revocation of the edict of 1816. Against this the Protestants, however, of Holland and Prussia, prevented the fatal blow from being struck; and after that time the internal and external development of the Waldensian Church has gone on smoothly, and without interruptions. In Turin a Protestant chapel was opened in the house of the Prussian embassy, and a Waldensian pastor was appointed preacher. In the valleys the Waldensian schools were greatly improved, especially by the exertions of Dr. Gilles and Col. Beckwith. At the synod of St. Jean, in April, 1839, the church-constitution was revised on the basis of the decrees of the synod of Angrogne. The highest legislative authority is the synod. It consists of all pastors in office, two laymen from each congregation (who, however, have only one vote), and all candidates of theology; but the last-mentioned have only a right to make propositions, without the right of voting. It assembles every five years; the place varying between the valleys of St. Martin, Perosa, and Luserna. Besides its legislative power, it also has the power of confirming the pastors elected by the congregations. The highest administrative authority is the Table ("board"), consisting of a moderator, who presides over the synod, a vice-moderator, a secretary, and two lay-members. The Table is appointed by the synod, and its term of office is five years. Every congregation has its own consistory, consisting of the pastor and the elders.

In 1848 the prospects of the Waldensian Church became very promising. Immediately after the promulgation of the new constitution, Charles Albert issued a letters-patent, declaring the Waldenses entitled to enjoy exactly the same social and political rights as his other subjects,—to frequent the schools and universities of the State, to acquire academical honors, etc.; and at the great national festival in Turin, in honor of the new constitution, the Waldensian delegates were hailed with enthusiasm whenever they showed themselves. Since that time the persecuted church has been able to carry on propaganda, and her aspirations are not low. She wishes to be to Italy in religion what Piedmont has been in politics; and, even though the prospects are not so very alluring, she has, at all events, given a powerful impulse to the religious reform-movements in Italy. She has established prosperous missionary stations, not only in Piedmont, but also in other parts of Italy; and she maintains a good theoretical school in which instruction is given. In the valleys there are 41 Waldensian congregations, 34 missionary stations, and 150 insulated places visited by Waldensian preachers.

Second Period of Literature. — As it became of consequence to the Waldenses to prove, that, by adopting the Reformation, they had undergone no essential change, a kind of mythical view of the origin and history of their church gradually developed among them. The government wanted to expel them from their native valleys, on the plea that they had become heretics by adopting the Reformation; and they wanted to justify their resistance by protesting that they had always held the same faith, and always lived in the same valleys. But in order to throw back into antiquity the origin of their church, make the valleys of Piedmont its true cradle, and bring its doctrines before and after the Reformation into perfect harmony, it was necessary to subject their literature to certain manipulations. This was accordingly done, both in the field of doctrine and in that of history. Before the Reformation very few traces are found of an attempt to go behind Waldus, and date the foundation of the Waldensian Church back to antiquity. When the Waldenses spoke of themselves as the descendants of the primitive church, as the small flock, which, through manifold persecutions, had kept the true faith alive since the days of the apostles, this must, no doubt, be understood spiritually. Nevertheless, the myth sprang up, that the sect was the mother of the Reformed Church, the Reformers of the sixteenth century ascribed the Reformation to the Waldenses, and by Brez, that the Waldensian Church was the mother of the Reformed Church, the Reformers adding nothing but a few doctrinal subtleties; and those views were repeated by Protestant church historians down to the present century. The true view has been given above. It is now settled, that the church started with Waldus in the twelfth century.

Sources and Modern Treatments of the History of the Waldenses.—I. Bernhard, Abbas Fontis Calidi (Font-Caudex), d. 1193: Adversus Waldensium sectam, in Max. Bibl., vol. xxv.; Alarius Ab Insulis (Alain de Lille), d. 1292: Summa quadrupartita adversus hereetics, Waldenses, Judaeos, et paganos, Antwerp, 1654; Erhard of Bethunia: Liber antithesen, in Max. Bibl., vol. xxv.; Gulcher Mapes: De secta Waldensium (in Usher: De christianae ecclesiae successione, Lond., 1857); Petrarius Monachus Vallium Cernais (Vaux Cernay), d. 1218, in Duchesne: Historia Franciae Scriptores, vol. v.; Stephanus de Borborne (Etienne de Bourbon), of whose book De septem donis spiritus sancti, it was asserted by Leger that the church started with Waldus in the twelfth century.

The latter became victorious. Perrin (Histoire des Vaudois, Geneva, 1619) and Gilles (Histoire ecclésiastique des églises réformées recueillies en quelques valles de Piémont, Geneva, 1648) still argues for the Waldensian Church. But the latter adds that Waldus, when he came to the valleys of Piedmont, found there a population holding exactly the same faith as he. Leger (Histoire générale des églises évangéliques des valles de Piémont ou Vaudois, Leyden, 1669) connects the Waldensian Church immediately with that of the apostles; and Brez (Histoire des Vaudois, Paris, 1796) even makes the apostle Paul the founder. With respect to doctrine, it was quite natural that the Waldenses, when they became attracted by the Reformation, should fix their attention on those points of their doctrinal system which were in harmony with the teaching of the Reformers, and overlook or forget those numerous accommodations which had made it possible for them to remain within the pale of the Roman-Catholic Church. Thus an unconscious transformation began, which finally ended in conscious fabrication. An instance of the former occurred in the Union of Valleys (1571), in which Morel (Bucer) have been struck out, and the words of Bucer, that is, the doctrines of the Reformers, incorporated with the text of Morel, that is, the doctrines of the Waldenses. Falsifications of this kind were first accepted by Perrin. In his above-mentioned work he gives the confession of faith which Morel laid before Ecolampadius and Bucer, and in which some of their answers have been incorporated, as an old confession of joy des Vaudois. From the time of Perrin they went on increasing, until it was asserted by Leger that the Reformers of the sixteenth century had their lights at the old lamp of the Waldensian Church, and that the Reformation was the mother of the Reformed Church, the Reformers adding nothing but a few doctrinal subtleties; and those views were repeated by Protestant church historians down to the present century. The true view has been given above. It is now settled, that the church started with Waldus in the twelfth century.

WALDHAUSEN. 2477 WALSH.

WALDHAUSEN, Conrad von, one of the precursors of Hus; was a native of Austria, a monk of the Augustinian order, and preached in Vienna from 1345 to 1390. In the latter year the emperor, Charles IV., appointed him pastor at Leitmeritz, whence he afterwards removed to Prague, where he died in 1393. Both in Austria and in Bohemia he produced a powerful impression by his sermons; but he was a revivalist, rather than a reformer. The dogmas and the discipline of the Church of Rome he did not attack; though he attacked the mendicant orders, and mercilessly castigated their follies and frauds. They finally lodged an accusation against him with the archbishop of Prague; but, when he was summoned before the court, no one dared to step forward, and support the accusation. See Jordan: Die Vorläufcr des Hussentum's, Leipzig, 1846.

WALDO, Peter. See Waldenses.

WALKER, James, D.D., Unitarian divine; b. in Burlington, Mass., Aug. 16, 1794; d. in Cambridge, Dec. 23, 1874. He was graduated at Harvard College, 1814; studied theology; was pastor in Charlestown, 1818-39; Alford Professor of moral and intellectual philosophy in Harvard College, 1839-59; and president, 1855-60, distinguishing himself in each position. He issued Twenty-five Sermons, Boston, 1861; Memoir of Hon. Daniel Appleton White, 1863; Memoir of Josiah Quincy, 1867; and edited Stewart's Active and Moral Powers, 1849, and Reid's Intellectual Powers, 1850. See the posthumous volume of his sermons, A Brief and Easy Explanation of the Shorter Catechism, presented by the Assembly of Divines at Westminster to both Houses of Parliament, and by them approved, London, 8th ed., 1861; The Doctrine of the blessed Trinity briefly explained in a letter to a friend, 1849 (followed by seven other letters on the same subject, these were republished by T. Flintoff, 1840); A defence of the Christian Sabbath, Oxford, 1892; Theological Discourses, London, 1892; and in 1891. The last volume contains a memoir by De Coetlogon.

WALLOON CHURCH. See Holland, p. 1004.

WALPURGIS, or WALPURGA, St., a Sister of St. Wunnebald and St. Willibald; was a native of England, and went to Germany at the instance of Boniface. She worked as a missionary in Thuringia, and became afterwards abbess of Heidenheim in the diocese of Eichstadt. She died in 776 or 778. Her arrival in Germany is commemorated on Aug. 4; her death, on Feb. 25; and her canonization, on May 1. Her legend is rather meagre, but so much the richer are the traditions. See Act. Sanc., Feb. 25. On Walpurgis Night, May 1, the witches met.

WALSH, Thomas, Methodist, b. at Ballylin, near Limerick, Ireland, 1730; d. in Dublin, April 8, 1759. Brought up in the Roman-Catholic faith, he renounced that creed, and joined the Established Church in his eighteenth year, and two years later commenced itinerating as a Methodist preacher. He met with great success, but also persecution from Roman Catholics and Protestants alike. In 1758 he came to London on Wesley's call, and there began to study Hebrew and Greek so diligently that he won the enthusiastic admiration of Wesley, who pronounced him the best Bible student he knew. He was not admittance to his incessant toils, and died at an early age. See his Life, by Morgan, London, 1762, New York.
WALTER OF ST. VICTOR.

1843, republished by T. Jackson, Early Methodist Preachers, vol. iii.

WALTER OF ST. VICTOR, prior of the monastery of St. Victor, a pupil of the celebrated Hugo of St. Victor; d. 1180. He left a work, of which large extracts have been printed in Bulevs: Histoires Part, T. iii, pp. 391, 402, 505, and 528, and which is generally named, after the words with which it begins, Contra quatuor labyninthos (Abelard, Petrus Lombardus, Petrus Pictavinsus, and Gilbertus Porretanus). The work is a violent but often striking criticism of the prevailing scholasticism, based on the just observation, that dialectics can decide only about formal truth (the correct transition from premises to conclusion), but not about material truth, the correctness of the premises. The author, however, is far from the lofty mysticism of his teacher. When the question arises, How the correct premises are to be found, he at once sinks down to the reigning church. He is often mistaken for Walter of Mauriania, who taught rhetoric in Paris, was appointed bishop of Laon in 1155, d. in 1174, and wrote against Abelard's conception of the Holy Trinity.

C. SCHMIDT.

WALther VON DER VOGELWEide.

Among the great German poets of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, who created the first classic period of German literature, Walther von der Vogelweide takes the highest rank as a lyric poet. Not only has he become immortal by his songs of love and spring, which have almost no equal in German literature, but by the power of his verses he has also a great political significance; and the strength of his language against Pope and Church makes him even a forerunner of the Reformation.

We do not know when and where he was born; although his birth falls not long before 1170, as his death can hardly have occurred long after 1230. The principal events of his life we must trace from his poems. At the end of the twelfth century we find him at the court of Austria, the scene of a bright, joyful life, and the home of poets and minstrels of all kinds; and it is probable that most of his beautiful "minnesongs" were produced at this time. But with the rise of political troubles in Germany, we find him passionately engaged in politics, taking the part of the different emperors who followed each other at short intervals. And now it is that he becomes the creator of that political poetry which had so great an influence upon the minds of his contemporaries. His clear eye detected the real source of the whole political misery of Germany in the destructive influence of Rome; and therefore he uses all the power of his art and satire against the Pope and his priests, "turning thousands from their duty to Rome," as a contemporary, Thomas, says in his Weische Gast. The language of these verses may justly be compared to Luther's early writings. Here is one of these poems in prose, translated by Bayard Taylor:

"Ye cardinals, ye root your choirs well; but our old holy altar stands exposed to evil weather."

It is very probable that Walther joined the crusade of Frederick II. in 1228, and that he died shortly afterward in Wurzburg.

Walther belonged to the poorer of German noblemen, the title here, shows his gentle birth; but he was one of the better class of minstrels, who went from castle to castle singing to the accompaniment of some musical instrument. He passed the greater part of his life in poverty, and it is touching to hear his joy when finally presented with an estate by Frederick II. It is the picture of a true and great poet which Walther has left to us in his songs. Love, nature, religion, and politics are his principal themes; and here he shows a purity, depth, and richness of feeling, which are equal only to his independent character. Although firm in his religious, political, and moral convictions, he objectified the new men of real religious tolerance in the middle age. In this respect resembling the great Emperor Frederick II., he may be called a prophet of the modern spirit as well as a true representative of his age.

The best of the numerous editions of Walther's poems is that of K. Lachmann, Berlin, 1827, and often since; a more popular one is that of F. Reinhold, in his German Classics of Middle Ages, translated into modern German by Simrock. [W. Grimm's theory, that Walther is also the author of the didactic poem Fridank's Bescheidenheit, adopted by W. Wackernagel, has been abandoned. Cf. W. LACHMANN: Leben Walther's v. Vogelweide, Bonn, 1855; KOLDE: Walther v. d. Vogelweide in seiner Stellung zu Kaisertum u. Hierarchie, Gütersloh, 1877, pp. 35.] W. Wackernagel (Dr. Goebel).

WALTON, Brian, D.D., b. at Seymour, Yorkshire, 1600; d. in London, Nov. 29, 1661. He was graduated M.A. at Cambridge, 1623; was curate and also schoolmaster in Suffolk; in 1628 rector of St. Martin's Orgar, London, to which he was joined in 1636 the rectorship of Sandon, Essex, at which time he was chaplain to the king, and prebend of St. Paul's; in 1639 he was made D.D. (his thesis was, the Pope not infallible judge in matters of faith); in 1640 he joined of both houses, was persecuted for his loyalty, fled to Oxford, and there formed the design of the great Polyglot, by which he immortalized himself. After the surrender of Oxford (1646), he went to London with the materials he had collected, and in 1652 published his prospectus to the Polyglot. Subscriptions were placed at ten pounds a set; the six volumes appeared 1654—57. (For particulars, see POLYGLOT BIBLES.) As a help to the student of his Polyglot, he published, London, 1655, Introductio ad Lect. Orient., republished, Deventer, 1655 and 1658. Owen thought the Polyglot, especially the Prolegomena, contained things injurious to Christian religion. To him he addressed himself in his Considerator Considered, London, 1860. Walton's Polyglot is the first book in England published by subscription. Walton was at the Restoration made chaplain to the king, and on Dec. 2, 1660, was consecrated, in Westminster Abbey, bishop of Chester. See his Life, translated by Toddy, London, 1821-22, 2 vols. The second volume is a reprint of the Considerator Considered.

WANDELBERT, St., b. in 813; d. in 870. He entered early the monastery of Prüm, near Echternach, in the Eifel Mountains, and was afterwards made director of the cloister school, which he brought to a very flourishing condition. He also developed a great literary activity; but only two of his works have come down to us,—Vita et Miracula S. Goar, first printed at Mayence, 1499, then by Sarius and Mabillon, in Act. Sanct., July 6; and Manarchogium, written in verse, on the basis of the martyrlogies of Jerome, Beda, and Florus, and printed first among the works of Beda in 1536, then by D'Archev, in his Spic. eti. Script., V.

WANDERING IN THE WILDERNESS. See WILDERNESS OR THE WANDERING.

WANDERING JEW. See JEW, WANDERING.

WAR. Though war most certainly is an evil, it may be considered from various points of view. Looking solely at the suffering and loss it entails, the temptations it offers, the passions it awakens, and the habits it engenders, it is not unnatural on some Christian critics. It is evident that the Roman-Catholic Church originally assumed with respect to the Crusades, in modern times the question has been raised by the State, and has given occasion to some elaborate researches. See the "Ethics," of Harless, Rothe, Martensen, and others.

KARL BURGER.

WAR, Hebrew Methods in. See ARMY.

WARBURTON, William, D.D., Bishop of Gloucester; one of the most learned and prolific prelates of the Church of England; b. at Newark-upon-Trent, Nottinghamshire, Dec. 24, 1698; d. at Gloucester, June 7, 1779. His father was an attorney, and educated him for the law, which he practised from 1719 to 1723; but theology had always been his passion, and therefore he was ordained deacon, 1723, and priest, 1726. His first charge was at Grysesley, Nottinghamshire, 1726 to 1728, thence he passed to Brunt-Broughton, Lincolnshire, and there remained until 1746. In the retirement of country life he prosecuted his studies with great diligence, and wrote those works which have perpetuated his memory. The first of these was The Alliance between Church and State, or the necessity and equity of an established religion and a test law demonstrated, from the essence and end of civil society upon the fundamental principles of the laws of nature and nations, 1736, in which, while taking high ground, as the title indicates, he yet maintains that the State Church should tolerate those who differed from it in doctrine and worship. In quick succession came his great work, and one of the great works in English theology,—The Divine Legation of Moses, demonstrated on the principles of a religious deist, from the omission of the doctrine of a future state of rewards and punishments in the Jewish dispensation. Books i., ii., iii., iv., v., vi., in one volume, 1741; books vii., viii., never appeared; book ix. was first published in his Works, 1788, 10th ed. of the entire work, ed. by James Nichols, 1846, 3 vols. The work raised a storm, and Warburton published a reply, Remarks on several occasional reflections on the Deism, 1748. The Deists turned their attacks particularly upon the Old Testament, and tried to make a case by alleging the absence of any express statement respecting immortality. Warburton turns the tables upon them by constructing, out of the very absence of such statements, a proof of the divinity of the Mosaic legislation. The first three books deal with the necessity of the doctrine of a future state of rewards and punishments to civil society from, (1) the nature of the thing, (2) the conduct of the ancient law-givers and founders of civil policy, and (3) the opinions and conduct of the ancient sages and philosophers. The fourth book proves the high antiquity of the arts and empire of Egypt, and that such high antiquity illustrates and confirms the truth of the Mosaic history. The fifth book explains the nature of the Jewish theocracy, and proves that the doctrine of a future state is not in, nor makes part of, the Mosaic dispensation. In the sixth book Warburton examines all the texts brought from the Old and New Testaments to prove a future state of rewards and punishments did make part of the Mosaic dispensation. The ninth book treats of the true nature and genius of the religious argument. It is briefly this: the Deists said the Jewish religion could lay no claim to divinity, because its sacred books said nothing respecting a future state of rewards and punishments; but for that very reason, Warburton replied, must it be divine, since it did really accomplish the punishment of wrong-doers without such a doctrine, and no other legislation has been able to do without it. In answer to the question, How could it do this? he replied, Because the foundation and support of the Mosaic legislation was the theocracy which was peculiar to the Jews, and which dealt out in this life righteous rewards and punishments upon individual and nation. An extraordinary providence conducted the affairs of this people, and consequently the sending of Moses was divinely ordered.

The work is confessedly limited to one line of argument, is defective in exegesis, and does not do justice to the intimations of immortality among the Jews; yet it is full of readiness and vigor, masterly argumentation, and bold imagination. The excursus are particularly admirable; e.g., the hieroglyphs and picture-writing ["The great proof of the discernment of Warburton was his dim second-sight of the modern discoveries in hieroglyphics." — Dunn Milman], the mysteries, the origin of the Book of Job (which he calls "an allegorical poem written after the return from Babylon").

Warburton was a man of untiring energy, wide information, clear insight, and lively fancy. He had a noble, open, guileless heart; yet he was capable of intolerance and unfairness. As a critic he was sharp, and often satirical, resembling Bentley. He was comparatively slow in receiving pre- ferments and honors, although he attracted such great notice. In 1738 he was made chaplain to the Prince of Wales; in 1746, preacher to Lincoln's Inn; in 1754, chaplain to the king; in 1755, prebendary of Durham; in 1756, D.D.; in 1758, dean of Bristol; and, in 1760, bishop of Gloucester. His writings during this period embrace A Vindication of Mr. Pope's Essay on Man, 1739, and a Commentary upon the essay, 1742 (by these writings he won Pope's firm friendship); Julian, 1750 (a proof of the numerous providential interferences which defeated Julian's attempt to rebuild the temple); The Doctrine of Grace, or the office and operations of the Holy Spirit vindicated from the insults of infidelity and the abuses of fanaticism, 1762, 2 vols. (a work directed against the Methodists, which did not advance his reputation). His Works were edited by Bishop Hurd, 1788, 7 vols. (the expense was borne by Warburton's widow), new ed., 1811, 12 vols. [Supplementary to this edition are the Tracts by Warburton and a Warburtonian, 1759; Letters, Kidderminster, 1808, 2d ed., Lond., 1809; Selection from the Unpublished Papers of Warburton, Lond., 1841. Bishop Warburton's life was first written by Bishop Hurd, 1794, enlarged edition by F. Kilvert, 1860, but best by J. S. Watson, 1863. Compare the art. on Warburton, in Allibone's Dict of Authors, vol. iii. pp. 2569-2573; and Leslie Stephen's Hist. of Eng. Thought, chap. vii.]. THEODOR CHRISTLIEB.

WARBURTONIAN LECTURE was founded by Bishop Warburton in 1768, by the gift of five hundred pounds, for the purpose of proving "the truth of revealed religion in general, and of the Christian in particular, from the completion of the prophecies of the Old and New Testaments, which relate to the Christian Church, and especially to the apostasy of Papal Rome." The lectures were to be given at Lincoln's Inn, London, upon three Sundays of each year. See lists in DARLING's Cyclopædia Bibliographica, and BOHN's edition of Lowesles. Of recent lectures may be mentioned the Stanley Leathes's Old Testament Prophecy, its witness as a record of divine foreknowledge, 1880, and Ederheim's Witness of Kit. to Messiah, 1885.

WARDEN is the name sometimes given to the head of some English colleges, and also to the superior of the chapter in some conventual churches.

WARDLAW. Ralph, D.D., a prominent Scottish divine; b. at Dalkeith, Dec. 22, 1779; d. at Glasgow, Dec. 17, 1853. By birth and education a Presbyterian, he adopted Congregational views before ordination. Educated at Glasgow university. He was ordained a Congregational minister, and after the Albion Street Congregational Church (afterwards removed to George Street), which he held for over fifty years. Professor of theology in the Glasgow Theological Academy from 1811 for some forty years. A good scholar, polished gentleman, and devout Christian; an expository preacher, keen in logic, courteous to opponents, rather diffuse in style, an admirable elocutionist; gathered a large and influential congregation, and was for a long time a leader in the Congregational churches in Scotland. He published largely; his chief works being A Selection of Hymns, 1803, with supplement, 1817 (twelve of his own composition are included, these have since been extensively used); Discourses on the Principal Points of the Socinian Controversy, 1814; Unitarianism Incapable of Vindication, 1816; Expository Lectures on the Book of Ecclesiastes, 1821; Dissertation on Infant Baptism, 1825; Two Essays on the Assurance of Faith and on the Extent of the Apostasy and Universal Pardon, 1820; The Sabbath, 1832; Civil Establishments of Christianity tried by the Word of God, 1832; Christian Ethics, 1833; Congregational Independence, 1848; Essay on the Miracles, 1852; and many occasional discourses. Dr. Wardlaw was a powerful speaker.
on the platform, and took part in many public movements, especially in the antislavery controversy and the formation of the Evangelical Alliance in 1846. His System of Theology, 1856—57, 3 vols., and Lectures Upon Proverbs (1851, 3 vols.), Romans (1851, 3 vols.), Zechariah (1852), and James (1853), have been published since his death, and a Memoir by Rev. W. L. Alexander, D.D. (1856).

WARE, Henry, D.D., b. at Sherburne, Mass., April 1, 1741; d. at Cambridge, July 12, 1845.

He was graduated from Harvard College in 1765; and from Oct. 24, 1779, until 1806, was pastor of the First Church, Hingham, Mass.; was Hollis Professor of divinity in Harvard College, 1805-18, and then in the divinity school, which was that year organized, until, in 1840, loss of sight compelled his resignation. "His election to the Hollis Professorship was the occasion of a memorable controversy. Dr. Ware, in his predecessor, had always been regarded as a Trinitarian and a moderate Calvinist; but Mr. Ware was understood to be a decided Arminian and a Unitarian. Vigorous efforts were made to prevent the nomination, when submitted to the overseers, from being confirmed; but it was confirmed by a vote of thirty-three to twenty-three. The 'orthodox' clergy generally were greatly dissatisfied with the result; and Dr. [Elia] Pearson, who had been both a professor and a fellow in the college, next year resigned both these offices, giving as a reason that the university was the subject of such radical and constitutional maladies as to exclude the hope of rendering any essential service to the interests of religion by continuing his relation to it. Dr. [Jedediah] Morse also published a pamphlet entitled True Reasons on which the Election of a Hollis Professor of Divinity was opposed at the Board of Overseers. This may be regarded as the commencement of the Unitarian controversy, which was prosecuted with great vigor for many years, until at length the lines between the two parties were distinctly drawn" (Sprague).

Mr. Ware took no part in this controversy until 1820, when he wrote Letters to Trinitarians and Calvinists, occasioned by Dr. Tappan's organ and published under that title. This involved him in a controversy with Dr. Woods. Mr. Ware also published An Inquiry into the Foundation, Evidences, and Truths of Religion, Cambridge, 1842, 2 vols. See Sprague's Annals of the American Pulpit, viii. 189 sq.

WARE, Henry, jun., D.D., b. at Hingham, Mass., April 21, 1781; and graduated at Harvard, 1812; and at Framingham, Mass., Sept. 22, 1834. He was pastor of the Second Church in Boston, 1817-30; and Parkman Professor of pulpit eloquence in the divinity school at Cambridge, 1830-32. He edited the Christian Disciple, the first Unitarian organ, and published Hints on Extemaneous Preaching (1824). On the Formation of the Christian Character (1831), and various memoirs, sermons, and poems. Four volumes of selections from his writings were issued by Dr. C. Robbins, 1846-47, and a memoir by his brother, 1847. Among his hymns, written in the 1860's to 1817 on, possess decided merit, and have been widely used.

WARHAM, Archbishop of Canterbury; b. at Okeley, Hampshire, about 1450; d. at St. Stephen's, near Canterbury, Aug. 23, 1532. He was elected fellow of New College, Oxford, 1475; studied particularly canon and civil law; was made LL.D. 1488, but entered the church, and left the university; was collated by the bishop of Ely to some living in the church, but does not appear to have discharged its duties, for he became advocate of the Cause of the University in the Court of Arches, and was then, in 1494, elected one of the Civil Law School in St. Edmund's parish, Oxford. Having attracted the notice of Henry VIII., his ability and learning were called upon in honorable service. He was sent, with Sir E. Poynts, to the Duchess of Burgundy to effect the delivery of the pretender, Perkin Warbeck (1495), and a few years after sat on the case as commissioner. He was successively Master of the Rolls (1494), Keeper of the Great Seal (Aug. 11, 1502), Lord-Chancellor (Jan. 1, 1503), bishop of London (1503), enthroned archbishop of Canterbury (March 9, 1504), chancellor of the university of Oxford (1505), and succeeded the suppression of Henry VIII. (1509), he suffered no loss of position; but the growth of Wolsey in royal favor was bitter to him, and he finally resigned the Great Seal to Wolsey, Dec. 22, 1516. He was offered it again after Wolsey's fall, but declined, pleading his age and other reasons.

Warham was behind his age. He had learning, and skill in state-craft, dignity, and virtue. He was, for his age, singularly abstemious, and, although primate, lived in all simplicity. He was the friend of Erasmus and Colet. But he was deaf to the cries for reform, blind to the corruptions of the church. He headed the opponents to the Reformation. He considered it a capital offence to introduce the writings of the Reformers, and to translate the Bible into the vernacular,—at best a work of superfluity. He listened to the Holy Maid of Kent (Elizabeth Barton), but he persecuted the "heretics" without mercy. See the numerous works upon the English Reformation.

WASHBURN, Edward Abel, D.D., b. in Boston, Mass., April 16, 1819; d. in New York, Feb. 2, 1881. Dr. Washburn was for nearly forty years a clergyman in the Episcopal Church, of which, as a layman, he was one of the prominent leaders. Grandson of Gen. Washburn of Massachusetts, and son of a well-known Boston merchant, he passed the early years of his life in the study of literature and philosophy, and, graduating from Harvard College in the year 1838, he entered the Congregational ministry after a year's study in each of the seminaries of Andover and New Haven. He soon found, however, that he could not be satisfied with this communion, and after a short pastorate he entered the Episcopal Church, being ordained to preach in Boston in 1845. From this time, until 1851, he was rector of St. Paul's, New Haven; and he laid the foundation of his wide scholarship and learning by constant study. For two years after this time he journeyed in the East, visiting Egypt, Palestine, India, and China, and on his return succeeded Dr. Coxe as rector of St. John's, Hartford. In the same year (1853) he married Miss Frances H. Lindley, daughter of Dr. Lindley of Washington. In 1860 he received the degree of doctor of divinity from Trinity College. Two years later he accepted the charge of St. Mark's, Philadelphia, whence, in 1865, he was called to Calvary.
WATSON.

Church, New York, where for sixteen years he worked with unceasing toil, although contending, in the latter years of his life, with an incurable illness. Dr. Washburn's breadth of mind, and deep perception, were united with such power of eloquence, that he was for many years a recognized leader in his church. As a Churchman he belonged neither to the high nor low parties, but advocated most earnestly the position of the new school of Broad Churchmen. His literary works were mainly formed of scattered articles; such as sermons and lectures were in 1888 collected and published by the clerical club of which he was a member. After his death another volume of selected sermons was published in 1882; and a third volume of sermons and lectures were in 1888 collected and published by the clerical club of which he was a member. A close reasoner, and an able defender of his own views, he was at the same time as honest, and free from bigotry, as he was strong and intrepid. His arbor of cant, his warmth of heart, and his purity of soul, made him one not only to be admired, but also one to be loved and cultivated as a friend. He took a deep interest in philosophical questions, but he made them subservient to his practical work and the vital problems of Church and State.

E. W. HOPKINS.

WATSON, Richard, Bishop of Llandaff, both chemist and theologian; b. at Heversham, Westmoreland, Aug., 1771; d. in London, Jan. 8, 1833.

In the seven days previous he took the degrees of bachelor and doctor of divinity, Nov. 14, 1771 (cf. Darling). He was a man of restless activity, versatile than deep, yet deserves mention for his two apologetic writings in the form of letters, Apology for Christianity (1776), addressed to Edward Gibbon, and Apology for the Bible (1778), addressed to Thomas Paine; and for his very valuable Collection of Theological Tracts, 1785, 6 vols., 2d ed., 1791. See list in Darling. See his autobiography, Anecdotes of the Life of Richard Watson, published by his son, 1817, 2 vols., 2d ed., 1818.

WATSON, Richard, one of the most eminent Methodists; secretary of the Wesleyan Missionary Society; b. at Barton-upon-Humber, Lincolnshire, Feb. 22, 1781; d. in London, Jan. 8, 1833. He received no schooling after his fourteenth year, but at fifteen commenced to preach as a Methodist itinerant. Accused unjustly of Arianism, he joined the Methodist New Connection, 1801, but in 1812 was received back into the Wesleyan body, and the next year zealously labored in the organization of their missionary society, and was one of the secretaries from 1816 to 1830. He also took an active part in the anti-slavery movement, and lived to see the preparation for the emancipation of all slaves in the British Colonies. He was a man of restless activity, versatility, conscientiousness, and practical skill. He represents the more thoughtful and moderate form of Methodism, and by his works won and has maintained an honored place among English theologians. His writings embrace A Defence of The Wesleyan Methodist Missions in the West Indies, 1817 (a work which did much to reveal the misery of slavery in the West Indies, and lead to its abolition); Conversations for the Young, 1830 (a good help for young people reading the Bible); Life of John Wesley, 1831 (written by request of conference and approved by Wesley himself); The Wesleyan Methodist Filission in the West Indies, and Lead to Its Abolition; Conversations for the Young, 1830 (for the most part, a compilation); and, chiefly, Theological Institutes, or a View of the Evidences, Dogmatics, and Institutions of Christianity, 1823-24; 3 vols., 8th ed., 1850, 4 vols. (a popular rather than strictly scientific presentation of theology and ethics, resting upon the Arminian interpretation of the Bible, particularly useful for students and young ministers). Watts himself did not prepare himself for their profession ("though not the legal, it has been the moral and scientific standard of Methodism"); Sermons and Sketches of Sermons, 1834, 3 vols., reprinted, N.Y., 1843. Watson's Life was written by Rev. Thomas Jackson, in the first volume of the collected edition of his Works, 1834-37, 13 vols., 7th ed., 1857-58. [An Analysis of the Institutes was prepared by Dr. McClintock in 1812, bound with new edition of the work (N.Y., 1850, 2 vols.), and revised by James A. Bastow; published separately, London, 1879]. THEODOR CHRISTLIEB.

WATSON, Thomas, eminent nonconformist divine; d. in Essex about 1689. He was educated at Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and was rector of St. Stephen's, Walbrook, London, 1646; ejected for nonconformity in 1662; preached at Crosby Hall in 1672, but retired after a few years. He was an admired preacher; and one of his sermons, Heaven taken by Storm (often reprinted), was honored by the conversion of Col. Gardiner (cf. Doddridge, Life of Col. Gardiner). He published Three Treatises,—(1) The Christian's Charter, (2) The Art of Divine Contentment, (3) A Discourse of Meditation, London, 8th ed., 1698; A Body of Practical Divinity, London, 1692; The Assembly's Catechism, 1692, last ed., New York, 1871. His Select Works, in which the above and other sermons are contained, appeared in London, 1821, and in New York, 1855.

WATT, Isaac, the best-known of all English hymn-writers: b. at Southampton, July 17, 1674; d. at Abney Park, Nov. 25, 1748. The son of a zealous nonconformist boarding-school master, he was educated in the little dissenting academy at Newington, near London; studied theology; and in 1698 was chosen assistant minister to the independent congregation (Dr. Chauncey's) of Mark Lane, London; in 1702 became pastor, and held the position nominally until his death, although in 1712 he was compelled by ill health to retire from active service. In the latter year he was invited by Sir Thomas Abney to spend a week at Abney Park, near London, but remained for three months, and was a welcome and beloved guest. He never married. In height he was little more than five feet.

At the age of seven he showed poetical talent; but his first volume (Hymns Lyricus) did not appear until 1706. It was a promise rather than a performance of excellence. In the next year came his Hymns and Spiritual Songs. His hymns opened a new path: they were without precedent or rival. By them he has won the epithet "the inventor of English hymns" (Montgomery, Christian Psalmist, p. xx.). Previous to Watts, the best hymn-writers writing in public worship: he introduced hymns. There is now not a hymn-book published in any denomination which does not contain some of his; and although in some respects excelled by other hymnists, he has been equalled by none in depth of feeling, or in warmth, strength, and simplicity of expression. Yet his hymns are by no means faultless. Ofttimes they are defective in form and contents, prosaic, and carelessly rhymed, or not at all. It should be said, however, that these faults were not so offensive to his day as to ours, [and also that "poetical license" allows many imperfect rhymes]. Next came The Psalms of David Imitated in the Language of the New Testament, 1719. Watts considered this his most important work, and indeed it effected the reformation of English psalmody. One noticeable feature of his psalms is their evangelical character. The title exactly describes the work. He never hesitates to read into the Hebrew psalms their New-Testament exegesis. He substitutes everywhere gospel for law. Does the Psalmist speak of sacrifices of bullocks and oxen, he introduces the sacrifice of Christ: does the Psalmist speak of fear, he of faith and love. But this peculiarity was no fault to his audience. With astonishing rapidity his psalms were taken up; and now they are well-nigh universally used, and have had a blessed effect in deepening spirituality, and propagating the Christian religion. In 1729 appeared his excellent Divine and Moral Songs for the Use of Children,—a book of such a noble, genuine, childlike simplicity, that it remains the favorite of its kind among English youth, and has yearly a large sale.

But Watts was more than a hymn-writer. He wrote upon logic, astronomy, geography, English grammar, pedagogics, and ethics. His Logic, or A Treatise of the Right Use of Reason in the Pursuit of Truth, 1722, was used in the academies of Dissenters and in the universities of the Established Church. His Improvement of the Mind: Philosophical Essays (clear proof that metaphysical speculation was not his forte); First Principles of Geography and Astronomy: and his very characteristic Reliquiar Juveniles, or Miscellaneous Thoughts in Prose and Verse,—have been widely useful. In 1728 he published his Discourse on Instruction by Catechism, with two Catechisms, and the Assembly's Catechism explained. Watts was considered one of the best preachers of his time. He published three volumes of discourses, 1721, 1726, 1727. The charge of Arianism brought against him is apparently unfounded. He has a monument in the cemetery of Abney Park, where he lies buried, and also in Westminster Abbey [a statue at Southampon (1881), and a memorial hall there (1873)]. His Works were published in London, 1810, 9 vols., and 1812, 9 vols. Nine [additional volumes appeared in Oxford, 1812]. His Life has been written by Samuel Johnson, Rev. Thomas Milner, Robert Southey, Rev. Samuel Palmer, and Dr. Gibbons. THEODOR CHRISTLIEB.
WAUGH, Beverly, D.D., Bishop of the Methodist-Episcopal Church; b. in Fairfax County, Va., Oct. 25, 1789; d. in Baltimore, Feb. 9, 1858. After a business career of a few years in 1809, he entered the Baltimore Conference, and in 1838 was ordained a bishop.

WAYLAND, Francis, b. in New York, March 11, 1796; d. at Providence, R.I., Sept. 30, 1865; was son of Rev. Francis Wayland; graduated at Union College in 1813; studied medicine, and began practice; was converted, and joined the Baptist Church in 1819; studied at Andover Theological Seminary in 1818 and 1819; was tutor in Union College, 1817-21; pastor of First Baptist Church in Boston, 1821-26; made professor in Union College in 1828; president of Brown University, 1827-55; received degree of D.D. from Harvard University, 1827-55; received degree of LL.D. from Harvard College in 1827, and from Harvard College in 1829, and degree of LL.D. from Harvard College in 1832.

He is most widely remembered as a college officer. With Arnold of Rugby, and with his own instructors,—Nott of Union, and Stuart of Andover,—he ranks as one of the great teachers of the century. And his influence as an educator went beyond his own lecture-room. The textbooks which he prepared for the use of his own classes soon came into general use. In the re-organization, brought about by him, of the courses of study in Brown University, he did much to reform the general system of college education. He was a leader in the organization of the system of public schools in the city of Providence, throughout the State of Rhode Island, and elsewhere. He was one of the founders and the first president of the American Institute of Instruction, for many years presiding over and taking an active part in its deliberations. He did much to secure the founding of free public libraries. Through many published reports and addresses, and by extended treatises, he aroused and directed the educational spirit in the country at large.

Eminent as an educator, Dr. Wayland stands hardly less distinguished as a preacher. Some of his sermons, for example, his sermon, The Moral Dignity of the Missionary Enterprise, are prominent in the annals of the American pulpit. His University Sermons and other volumes of discourses have been widely read. His Bible-class in the university became widely known, and his preaching was not merely faithful official exhortation, it was the outburst of an earnest desire for the salvation of souls. It was his constant custom to talk individually with his students regarding their spiritual state, and to pray with them singly. In 1857-58, having retired from the college presidency, he acted for more than a year as pastor of the First Baptist Church in Providence, not only preaching each Sunday, but going, in pastoral visiting, from house to house to every family in the congregation, urging his hearers in person to become followers of Christ. He often preached to the inmates of prisons and other public institutions. In all his course of public service he never ceased to be an earnest and effective preacher of the gospel.

His union of great mental power with strong common sense made him a wise counsellor and trusted guide. In the religious enterprises, both of his own ecclesiastical connection and of united Christian bodies, he was looked up to as an adviser and leader. As a citizen, also, he took a great interest in public affairs, and was continually called on to serve the State in matters which combined civil and moral interests, as, for example, public charities and prison-discipline. He was in the broadest sense a man; and all that pertained to human interests commanded his thoughts and efforts.

Lit. — A Memoir of the Life and Labors of Dr. Wayland, 2 vols. (New York, 1868), by his sons Hon. Francis Wayland, L.L.D., and Rev. H. L. Wayland, D.D., gives a list of his published writings, including Discourses (1832), Elements of Moral Science (1850), the same abridged (1836), the same revised (1855), Elements of Political Economy, also abridged (1857), Limits of Human Responsibility (1854), Thoughts on the Present Collegiate System in the United States (1842), Domestic Slavery, a Discussion with Rev. R. Fuller, D.D. (1845), University Sermons (1850), Memoir of the Life and Labors of Rev. A. Judson, D.D. (1853), Elements of Intellectual Philosophy (1854), The Principles and Practices of the Baptist Churches (1856), Sermons to the Churches (1859), Salutatory of the American and British Christian Labor's of Thomas Chalmers (1864), also many introductions and notes to various works, articles in reviews and other periodicals, with separate discourses, sermons, addresses, orations, reports, tracts, etc. NORMAN FOX.

WAZO, Bishop of Liège; b. about 974; d. July 8, 1048. It was as a driver he first attracted the attention of Notger, bishop of Liège; and, as he showed aptness to learn, he was placed in the cathedral school. In due time he became teacher in the school, dean of the chapter, provost, and in 1041 he was elected bishop of Liège; and after some difficulties he was confirmed by Henry III. He proved a worthy bishop in every respect, and though he is of no great importance, either in history or in theology, his Life, written a few years after his death, by Auselmius, in his Gesta episcoporum Leodiensium, has a great interest to the student of the social state of affairs in those times. See Albrecht Vogel, in the first edition of Herzog's Real-Encyklopädie.

WEEK (שבוע, pl. שבועות, ἡμέρα σεβτή̄μα, septima-nata). The Greeks and Romans first became acquainted with the seven-day week through Christianity and the scattered Jews. [The Romans adopted it after the reign of Theodosius.] The expression ἡμέρα is not found in the New Testament, but rather εἰρήνη (e.g., Luke xxi. 12) or ἀκρόασις (e.g., Matt. xxi. 1). used, however, in the sense of, as, in the Old Testament, غيركس is parallel with נכון (cf. Lev. xxiii. 15; Dext. xvi. 9). But μία, μέντα, etc., כּנָוָּבָן, the special names for the days of the week, were not used by the Jews. The age of this hebdomadal division among the Jews depends upon the disputed date of the sabbath. (See Sabbath.) But, since the lunar month divides itself naturally into the four periods of seven days each, this division must have been very old. It is found among all Semites. For the peculiar use of the word "week" in Daniel, see Daniel. [See art. "Week" in Smith's Dict. of the Bible. HAGGEBACH.
WEIGEL, Valentin, b. at Hayn in Misnia, 1583; studied at Leipzig and Wittenberg from 1564 to 1567; and was in the latter year appointed pastor at St. Ignatius in Saxony, where he died, Jan. 10, 1588. He appears to have been a precursor of Böhme, and, on a basis of mysticism, a decided adversary of the scholasticism in which the Reformation ended. Frightened by the terrorism of the reigning orthodoxy, he published nothing; and probably very few of his parishioners noticed his heterodoxies; but privately he elaborated his system; and after his death his cantor, Weikert, began to promulgate his ideas in public. Weikert was deposed, and nothing further is known of him.

But a circle of adherents had been formed, and perhaps very few of his arishiouers noticed the fall of Napoleon, the university of Halle enttered upon a career of great prosperity; and Weg-scheider, as its most celebrated professor, often gathered more than three hundred students to his lectures. But early in 1830 he and his friend Gesenius were summoned before a committee of investigation, and even threatened with deposition, on account of the open rationalism of their teaching. The outbreak, however, of the revolution of 1830, made the king of Prussia unwilling to employ rigorous measures of any kind. Weg-scheider remained in office; but his influence was completely lost, and the theological leadership underwent a severe revolution.

Wegscheider. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL is strongly pantheistic, but in his system of pantheism the human personality plays a prominent part. Man he represents, not only as a micro-cosmos, but as a microtheos; that is, as the point of passage through which the world, having emanated from God, again returns to him. Thus man, although an intellectual being of the lowest order, is still the microtheos; and the ultimate end of his existence is his perfection as microtheos, through the realization of the Divine ideal.

The Outbreak, however, of the revolution of 1830, made the king of Prussia unwilling to employ rigorous measures of any kind. Weg-scheider remained in office; but his influence was completely lost, and the theological leadership underwent a severe revolution.

But a circle of adherents had been formed, and

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGEL. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.
tions (Exod, xxix. 40; Lev. xxiii. 13; Num. xv. 4, [5, 6, 7, 9, 10], xxxvii., 5, [7, 14]; Ezek. iv. 11, [14]). (c) Loteck = \( \frac{1}{12} \) hin, \( \frac{1}{24} \) bath (Lev. xiv. 10, 12, 15, 21, 24), originally signifying a “basin.”
(b) Dry Measures. (a) Loteck = \( \frac{1}{12} \) homer, occurs only in Hos. iii. 2. (b) Ephah = \( \frac{1}{4} \) homer, of frequent occurrence in the Bible (Exod. xvi. 86; Lev. v. 11, vi. 20; Num. v. 15, xxviii. 5; Judg. vi. 19; Ruth ii. 17; 1 Sam. i. 24, xvii. 17; Ezek. xiv. 11, 13, 14, xv. 7, 11, 14); it is probably of Egyptian origin. (c) Senk = \( \frac{1}{12} \) ephah, denoting “measure” (Gen. xviii. 8; 1 Sam. xxv. 18; 2 Kings vii. 1, 16). The sheah was otherwise termed shaliah, as being the third part of an ephah (Isa. xi. 12; Ps. lxxx. 5).

For the dry measures:—

- 1 ephah = 10 ephah = 30 seah = 100 omer = 180 cab
- 1 seah = 10 seah = 100 omer = 300 cab
- 1 omer = 10 omer = 100 cab

Weights.

- At a very early period the Hebrews seem to have used scales for determining the weight of things, especially of precious metals. The weights generally consisted of stones. There were five standard weights, — beka, gerah, shekel, maneh, and kikkar. The highest was (a) the kikkar, or talent, literally “a circle,” hence any round object, and thus a circular piece of money. It was of gold (1 Kings ix. 14) and of silver (2 Kings v. 22).
(b) Maneh, the Greek mina, or mna, strictly a portion, i.e., a subdivision of the “talent” = \( \frac{1}{7} \) kikkar. (c) Shekel, properly a weight, the usual unit of estimation applied to coins and weights. It likewise was of two kinds, — the sacred (Lev. v. 15) and the royal (2 Sam. xiv. 26). (b) Beka, strictly a cleft or fraction (Gen. xxiv. 22); and (c) gerah, properly a kernel or bean, like our "ain" (Ezek. xiv. 12). Ezek. xxx. 13; Lev. xxvii. 25; Num. iii. 47).

For the weights we thus get:

- 1 kikkar = 60 maneh = 3,000 shekel = 6,000 beka = 60,000 gerah
- 1 " = 50 " = 100 " = 1,000 "
- 1 " = 2 " = 20 "
- 1 " = 10 "

Handels, 2 parts, 1883, 1885, and Handelsgeschichte der Juden des Alterthums, Brunsweig, 1879, pp. 171 sq.; ZUCKERMAANN: Das jüdische Massystem, Brunsweig, 1897; [MÜHLE: Uber die heiligen Masse der Hebräer und Hellenen,* Freiburg, 1859]; the arts. "Elle," "Gelt," "Gewicht," "Masse," etc., in RIEHM’S Handb. Handtorbuch der bibl. Alterthums, the same arts. in WINE: Real-Wörterbuch (in HAMBURGER’s Real-Encyclopädie); the sections in the archologies of De Wette, Jahn, Saalschütz, Keil; Hussm*: Essay on the Ancient Money. It was of gold (1 Kings ix. 14) and of silver (2 Kings v. 22). A strict disciplinarian, he was, above all, a sympathetic and stimulating teacher. To quote the language of one of his colleagues in the funeral sermon delivered in the university after his death, "His familiarity with the Hebrew language in all its phases, his rational analysis and explanation even of its most peculiar and apparently abnormal phenomena, his delicate perception of its niceties, his sympathetic appreciation of the spirit of Hebrew poetry and Hebrew prophecy, gave to his prelections an interest and charm which were enhanced by the transparent simplicity and earnestness of his character." Another colleague, who had been his friend from his earliest years, thus described in a local periodical his personal character: "The grave has seldom closed over one whose life was more pure and blameless, more uniformly regulated by high principle and motive, and more incapable of an unworthy or ignoble action. A somewhat reserved manner gave, perhaps, to strangers, in their intercourse with him, the impression of coldness and inaptitude for friendship, but those who were honored by his friendship know well . . . how their respect and admiration for the memory of the great scholar, the acute thinker, the sagacious counsellor, are blended with the deeper sorrow for the loss of the true and tender-hearted friend."
Dr. Weir died at a comparatively early age, and unhappily left behind him no adequate results, at least in a permanent form, of the great learning and ability by which, in the knowledge of those who knew him, he was so eminently distinguished. His chief literary works are occasioned by the introduction of the Catechism of Heidelberg, already mentioned, to the Imperial Bible Dictionary, and to The Academy. Professor Cheyne, in the Introduction to his book on Isaiah, expresses his obligations to suggestions of Dr. Weir privately communicated to him. His non-productiveness in the way of authorship was partly due to the exacting nature of the duties of his chair, to which he devoted himself with scrupulous fidelity, and partly to the fact that he was looking forward, as he might reasonably do at his age, to a time of greater leisure, when the immense store of materials on Old Testament criticism which he had accumulated, might be reduced to shape, and given to the public.

WILLIAM LEE.

WEISS, Charles, b. at Strassburg, Dec. 10, 1812; d. at Vanves, 1881. He was professor of history in the Lycée Bonaparte; and both his L'Espagne depuis le règne de Philippe II. jusqu'à l'avenement des Bourbons (Paris, 1844, 2 vols.) and his Histoire des refugiés protestants de France (Paris, 1853, 2 vols.) were crowned by the Academy. In 1864 he became insane, and spent the rest of his life in an asylum at Vanves, near Paris.

WEISS, Pantaleon, generally known under the name Candidus; b. at Ips, in Lower Austria, Oct. 7, 1540; d. at Zweibrücken, Feb. 3, 1608. He studied at Wittenberg from 1557 to 1564; and was in 1565 appointed rector of the Latin School of Zweibrücken, and, later on, pastor and superintendent of that city. Though he had studied at Wittenberg, and was honored with the friendship of Melancthon, he was by the strict Lutherans suspected of inclining towards Calvinism; and he became, indeed, instrumental in the conversion of the principality of Zweibrücken from the Lutheran to the Reformed faith. At a theological disputation at Bergzabern, July, 1578, he for the first time divulged his Calvinist views of the person of Christ, which he further developed in his Dialogue de unione personali (sive in Christo personarum, Geneva, 1583). He was immediately subjected. So strongly did he cling to the established faith as it then was. Had they been in the self-denying labors of clergymen of the Established Church; such as the Rev. Griffith Jones of Llanddowror, Carmarthenshire, who is justly called "the morning-star of the Methodist revival." Installed in 1718, he commenced immediately a work of evangelization and in 1730, to make his labors more effective, established a system of circulating schools, in which both children and adults were taught to read the Scriptures. The work of Griffith Jones, and others in spirit like him, was, however, but the preparation of the ground for the seed. The Welsh Methodist revival, properly so called, began in 1735-38, through the earnest ministry of Howell Harris, Daniel Rowlands, and Howell Davies; the former a layman, the two latter clergymen, Davies being a convert and pupil of Griffith Jones. These men first gave Welsh religious reform an organic life. Their work was carried on wholly within the Established Church. They and their followers attempted the useless work of reforming that organization as it then was. Had they separated from it, they would as dissenters have been protected, by the Act of Toleration, from the savage persecution to which they were frequently subjected. So strongly did they cling to the Establishment, that it was only after seventy-six years (1811), that they ceased as a body from comming in the parish churches. Their first society (the first Methodist society in Britain) was organized at Erwood in Brecknockshire, in 1738. By the beginning of 1740 thirty societies had been organized in South Wales alone. Their first General Association was held at Watford, Glamorganshire, Jan. 5 and 6, 1742, two years and a half prior to the first conference of English Methodists, convened by Wesley in London. The moderator at the Watford meeting was the Rev. George Whitefield, who came into personal relation with the movement first in 1738. From 1751 to 1762 the denomination grew but little, owing to internal dissensions, occasioned by differences between the two leaders. — Harris and Rowlands. These differences were not doctrinal in their nature; for the controversies which divided the English Methodists never affected their Welsh brethren, the latter being almost to a man Calvinists. In 1762-63 a great revival welded the divided church into an inseparable union. The year 1785 was signalized by the accession of the Rev. Thomas Charles of Bala, whose great work was the organizing of the denominational sabbath schools. These were in many respects similar to the circulating-schools established by Griffith Jones, and, like them, included the adults, as well as the children, of the congregations. The study of the Scriptures in these schools, by the whole church, led to two important results,—the one a demand for Welsh Bibles beyond the then means of supply, and as a consequence to the formation, in 1801, of the British and Foreign Bible Society; the other, a new impetus to the cause of Calvinistic Methodism. In fact, the formal act of separation from the Established Church was forced upon the denomination by its rapid growth. Communion in the few parish churches having “Methodistic” rectors became impossible to a body numbering its members by tens of thousands. And in the General Associations held at Bala and at Llandilo Fawr in 1811, twenty-one persons were ordained to the office of the ministry. This step led to the withdrawal of the majority of the episcopally ordained ministers, but their defection did not check the progress of the Welsh Calvinists. In 1813 the Home Mission Society was organized for work in the English districts bordering on Wales. In 1823 a Confession of Faith was adopted. In 1839 a theological seminary was established at Bala, and in 1842 another at Trevecca. The work of foreign missions was carried on, until 1840, in connection with the London Missionary Society; but since that date the church has maintained missions of its own in Khasia, India, in Brittany to the Breton kinsmen of the Welsh, and in London to the Jews. The last step in its organization was taken by the constitution of the General Assembly, at Southport, in 1838. The church is a member of the Presbyterian Alliance, and is in numbers, in influence, and in Christian work, the foremost church of the Principality. Stevens, in his History of Methodism, graphically describes it as the source to Wales of that extraordinary religious progress which the thirty dissenting churches of 1715 have increased (1857) to 2,300; by which a chapel now dots nearly every three square miles of the country, and over a million people, nearly the whole Welsh population (seven-eighths), are found attending public worship some part of every Sabbath.

Doctrine. — The doctrines of the Confession of Faith of this church are in substantial harmony with the doctrines of the Westminster Confession. The word “Methodist” in its name is, therefore, to be understood as defining; not a form of doctrine, but one mode of Christian life, and work. The Confession is published in both English and Welsh.

Polity. — The polity of this church was from its origin practically Presbyterian; the first “societies” being represented in the monthly meetings and the General Association by stewards, deacons, or elders, as well as by ministers and exhorters; and it is to be distinctly noted, that Howell Harris, a layman, was for many years the moderator of the General Association. The government consists at present (1888) of twenty-five monthly meetings or presbyteries, two synods, and a general assembly. The points wherein the polity differs from that of other Presbyterian churches are, (1) Members are received and disciplined by the particular church in congregational meeting; (2) Elders are nominated by the churches, but cannot be installed until approved by the presbytery; (3) Candidates for the ministry must be recommended to the presbytery by a three-fourths vote of the church with which they are connected; (4) Ministers are ordained by the synods, on recommendation of the presbytery, after five years’ trial as probationers; (5) All the elders of a church are members of presbytery; (6) The church-buildings are the property of the denomination as a whole; (7) The General Assembly consists of two ministers and two elders from each presbytery, and, in addition, the moderators and clerks of the synods, the treasurers and secretaries of the Foreign Missionary Society, the previous moderators of the Assembly, and the conveners of committees.

Worship. — The church uses no Liturgy. Its services are simple, characterized by earnestness, and are conducted, as a rule, in the Welsh language.

United States. History, etc. — The first Calvinistic Methodist in America was the Rev. George Whitefield. Welsh emigrants of the Calvinistic faith began to enter the country about 1776; but being few in number, and unfamiliar with the English language, they worshipped, for many years after that date, with the Welsh Independents. Their first church was organized at Pen-y-caeru, Remsen, Oneida County, N.Y., in the year 1826. Within a year or two after, the first presbytery was formed. In 1838 a denominational magazine, Y Cyfaill a’r Hen Wlwl (“The Friend from the Old Country”), was established in New York, by the Rev. William Rowlands, D.D., and aided greatly in furthering the interests of the denomination. In 1845 fraternal relations were entered into with the Old School General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church. The denomination is strongest in the States of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin, and Minnesota; and its synods bear the names of these States respectively. The presbyteries (1882) number eighteen. The General Assembly, established in 1870, meets triennially. In doctrine the Welsh Calvinists in the United States agree with their brethren in Britain. In polity they are, in some particulars, more nearly assimilated to the American Presbyterian churches.

Statistics. England and Wales (1882). — Churches (organizations), 1,179; English churches, 158; chapels and preaching-stations, 1,343; pastors, 610; preachers, 917; elders, 4,817; communicants, 119,450; children under care of the church, 50,452; Sabbath-school members, 177,585; hearers, 274,805; contributions, £818,375. United States (1882). — Churches, 171; ministers, 108; communicants, 11,000; children under care of the church, 5,700; Sabbath-school members, 13,500; hearers, 20,000.

WENDELIN, or WENDELIN, a saint of the Roman Catholic Church, whose festival falls on Oct. 20. He was a native of Scotland, and flourished in the seventh century. Educated for the church, he went to Germany as a missionary; settled near Treves, and labored with so great success that the monks of Tholey, a convent situated near the Saar, chose him their abbot. Nothing more is known of him with certainty, but he is still devotedly worshipped in many parts of Germany and Switzerland as the protector of the cattle. See Act. Sanct., July 6, p. 171.

WENDELIN, Markus Friedrich, b. at Sandingen, near Heidelberg, 1854; d. at Zerbst, Aug. 7, 1582. He studied theology at Heidelberg; was for several years tutor to the young princess of Anhalt-Dessau; and was in 1611 appointed rector of the gymnasium of Zerbst, which position he retained to his death. His education fell in the period immediately after the contest between the Lutherans and the Reformed in the Palatinate. The Reformed came out victorious; but the contest had compelled them to employ the highest degree of scholastic precision in the exposition of their views: and in his theological works — Compendium christianae theologiae, Hanau, 1684; Christianae theologiae systema majus, published after his death, Cassel, 1686, and translated into Dutch and Hungarian; Excercitationes theologicae contra Gerhardum et Danhauern, and Collatio doctrinae reformatorum et lutheranorum, Cassel, 1690 — he shows himself to be one of the chief representatives of that Reformed scholasticism. But his great learning and activity outside of the field of theology kept his theological scholasticism in a healthy condition: indeed, scholasticism was with him nothing more than a method. A. EBRARD.

WENDS is the collective name of a number of Slavic tribes which in ancient time inhabited the northern part of Germany, along the Baltic Sea, between the Elbe and the Vistula, — Obotrites in Mecklenburg; Ranes, or Ruggias, in the Island of Rügen; Pomarianas; Sorbias in Misnia and Brandenburg, etc. The name was derived from the old German wend ("water"), that is, those who live by the water; but they called themselves Slavenes, from slovo ("word"), that is, those who were not able to understand; while they called the Germans njem, njemut (the "dumb," the "unintelligible"). Agriculture, cattle-raising, fishing, and piracy, were their general occupations. Their religion was a strongly clerical hermeneutical bearing. He was, indeed, the first to propound those principles of grammatical and historical exegesis which afterwards Ernesti brought to prevail, inculcating that not the possible, but only the actual, meaning of a passage is of any account. HAGENBACH.

WERKMEISTER, Benedikt Maria von, b. at Allgäu in Upper Swabia, Oct. 22, 1746; d. at Steinhach, near Stuttgart, July 16, 1823. He entered the order of the Benedictines in 1766; studied theology at Neresheim and Benedictins, and was ordained a priest in 1769; and taught philosophy and canon law at various Roman-Catholic seminaries in Würtemberg, but was dismissed in 1784 as an adherent of "Josephinism" (see art.). In 1799, however, he was made pastor of Steinhach, and later on he held various offices in the administration. He wrote against the celibacy of priests, against the worship of Mary, etc.
His book in favor of divorce (Beweis, dass die bei den Protestantischen Ehebestimmungen auch recht katholischen Grundsätzen gültig sind, 1804, 3d ed., 1810) produced a great sensation. PALMER.

WERNSDORF, Gottlieb, b. at Schönwalde, Feb. 25, 1688; d. at Wittenberg, July 1, 1729; was appointed professor of theology in his native city in 1698, and provost of the cathedral church, and, incidentally, general superintendent-general of all the schools of the city. He was in the last place of the last prominent representatives of the old, strict Lutheran orthodoxy. In his treatise, De auctoritate librorum symbolicorum, he vindicates a mediate inspiration for the symbolical books of the Lutheran Church. His Disputaciones academicae, of which a collected edition appeared in 1738, and which touch all the vital questions of the time, are not without interest. THOLUCK.

WERTHEIM, The Bible of, is a German translation of the Pentateuch, the first installment of the translation of the whole Bible which was published at Wertheim in 1736 by J. L. Schmidt, at that time tutor in the hospital of the cathedral of Lüwenstein. The work is a paraphrase rather than a translation, and is executed, not without knowledge, but on the principles of the flattest rationalism. Not only are the spirit and true character of the original work entirely lost, but the meaning of single passages is often so curiously though unintentionally perverted, that the result becomes perfectly ridiculous. Nevertheless, the work found its patrons, and was on the way to a fair success, when it was most vehemently denounced by the theologians. An imperial edict of Jan. 15, 1737, ordered the work to be seized, and the author imprisoned. The end of the affair is not known, but Schmidt died in 1750 as tutor to the ducal pages of Wolfenbiittel. The book, though confiscated, is not difficult to get hold of in second-hand bookstores, and is of great historical interest. The various pamphlets which were issued in the course of the affair have been collected by J. N. Sinnhol, Erfurt, 1737, and by the author himself, 1738. ED. REUSS.

WESSEL, Johann von, one of the most interesting characters among the Reformers before the Reformation; b. at Oberwesel in the beginning of the fifteenth century; d. at Mayence in 1461. Very little is known of his life before formal proceedings were instituted against him as a heretic in 1479, and at that time he was an old man. In the middle of the century he taught philosophy and theology at Erfurt. In philosophy he was a nominalist, one of the foremost leaders of that re-action against realism which was setting in just at that time. He taught with great effect: he made the whole university nominalist. Luther himself testifies to his success. In theology his influence was less pronounced, though the stand he took upon the Bible was in striking opposition to the prevailing scholasticism and the method of the sententiarists. But, in spite of their audacity in attacking established powers, his Adversus indultgentias (probably published while Nicholas of Cusa was preparing the public mind for the jubilee indulgences of 1450), and his De potestate ecclesiastica (probably of a somewhat later date), seem at first to have caused him no annoyance. In 1480 he was appointed preacher at Mayence; by 1480 he had obtained a similar position at Worms in 1482. It would seem that the real cause of the whole process instituted against him was hatred of his philosophical views, and not indignation at his theological ideas: for the process was instituted, not by his next superior, the bishop of Worms, but by the archbishop of Mayence; and the tribunal before which he was summoned was composed, not simply of generalissimi, but of some professors from Heidelberg, all of whom were realists. The process was opened Feb. 4, 1479, and the very first proceedings showed the ill-which the judges bore him. The principal charges were, that he denied the procession of the Holy Spirit from the Son, rejected tradition, and disputed the absolute authority of a council legitimately convened. Then followed a number of minor errors. Concerning sin, he said that there was no deadly sin but that which the Bible designated as such; concerning hereditary sin, that it did not exist in the facts; concerning the Lord's Supper, that the doctrine of transubstantiation was unnecessary; concerning celibacy, monasticism, fasts, etc., that they were not obligatory; concerning the hierarchical organization, that there was no difference between a bishop and a presbyter. At every point he made as great concessions as he conscientiously could, and by a general recantation he succeeded in escaping the stake; but he was locked up for life in an Augustinian convent at Mayence. From the elaborate report of the trial which has come down to us, as well as from Wessel's writing, it is evident that he mastered the formal principle of Protestantism — Scripture the sole rule of faith — with a greater clearness and completeness than the Reformers themselves, at least in the beginning of the Reformation. But it is also evident that he never actually reached the material principle of Protestantism — justification by faith; though he began his attack at the very same point as the Reformers — the doctrine of indulgences. He knew very well that ecclesiastical penance is very far from being identical with divine punishment, and that the Pope can dispense only from the former. He knew, furthermore, that a treasure of good works at the disposal of the Pope, and the transferrance by him of merit from one person to another, were empty pretensions. But to his eyes the sale of indulgences was simply an ecclesiastical abuse: that it was a danger to conscience he did not see. LIT. — Wessel was quite a prolific writer, but of his works only two above mentioned have come down to us. A report of his trial is found in D'Argentre: Collectio judiciorum de nonis erro-ribus, Paris, 1728. It consists of three parts, — Paradoxa Joannis de Wessalia (a collection of heretical propositions drawn from his various works), Examen magistrale (a representation of the trial), and, finally, a survey by the author of the whole affair. See also the works of other Reformers before the Reformation [Eng. trans., Edinb., 1855, 2 vols.; 2d Ger. ed., 1868]. H. Schmidt.

WESLEY, Charles, youngest son of Samuel Wesley, sen., was b. at Epworth in Lincolnshire, Dec. 18, 1708, O.S. (Dec. 28, N.S.); and d. in London, March 29, 1758. In childhood he declined and the/young man was preparing the public mind for the jubilee indulgences of 1450, and his De potestate ecclesiastica (probably of a somewhat later date), seem at first to have caused him no annoyance. In 1480 he was appointed preacher at Mayence; by 1480 he had obtained a similar position at Worms in 1482. It would seem that the real cause of the whole process instituted against him was hatred of his philosophical views, and not indignation at his theological ideas: for the process was instituted, not by his next superior, the bishop of Worms, but by the archbishop of Mayence; and the tribunal before which he was summoned was composed, not simply of generalissimi, but of some professors from Heidelberg, all of whom were realists. The process was opened Feb. 4, 1479, and the very first proceedings showed the ill-which the judges bore him. The principal charges were, that he denied the procession of the Holy Spirit from the Son, rejected tradition, and disputed the absolute authority of a council legitimately convened. Then followed a number of minor errors. Concerning sin, he said that there was no deadly sin but that which the Bible designated as such; concerning hereditary sin, that it did not exist in the facts; concerning the Lord's Supper, that the doctrine of transubstantiation was unnecessary; concerning celibacy, monasticism, fasts, etc., that they were not obligatory; concerning the hierarchical organization, that there was no difference between a bishop and a presbyter. At every point he made as great concessions as he conscientiously could, and by a general recantation he succeeded in escaping the stake; but he was locked up for life in an Augustinian convent at Mayence. From the elaborate report of the trial which has come down to us, as well as from Wessel's writing, it is evident that he mastered the formal principle of Protestantism — Scripture the sole rule of faith — with a greater clearness and completeness than the Reformers themselves, at least in the beginning of the Reformation. But it is also evident that he never actually reached the material principle of Protestantism — justification by faith; though he began his attack at the very same point as the Reformers — the doctrine of indulgences. He knew very well that ecclesiastical penance is very far from being identical with divine punishment, and that the Pope can dispense only from the former. He knew, furthermore, that a treasure of good works at the disposal of the Pope, and the transferrance by him of merit from one person to another, were empty pretensions. But to his eyes the sale of indulgences was simply an ecclesiastical abuse: that it was a danger to conscience he did not see. LIT. — Wessel was quite a prolific writer, but of his works only the two above mentioned have come down to us. A report of his trial is found in D'Argentre: Collectio judiciorum de nonis erro-ribus, Paris, 1728. It consists of three parts, — Paradoxa Joannis de Wessalia (a collection of heretical propositions drawn from his various works), Examen magistrale (a representation of the trial), and, finally, a survey by the author of the whole affair. See also the works of other Reformers before the Reformation [Eng. trans., Edinb., 1855, 2 vols.; 2d Ger. ed., 1868]. H. Schmidt.

WESLEY, Charles, youngest son of Samuel Wesley, sen., was b. at Epworth in Lincolnshire, Dec. 18, 1708, O.S. (Dec. 28, N.S.); and d. in London, March 29, 1758. In childhood he declined and...
WESLEY. 2491

WESLEY. John, the father of the doctrinal and practical system of Methodism; b. at Epworth, Eng., June 28, 1703; d. in London, March 2, 1791. The Wesley family has been traced, by an indefatigable genealogist in late years, back to a period anterior to the Norman Conquest. In the days of Athelstan the Saxon, Guy Wesley, or Wellesley, was created a thane, or member of Parliament; and it is claimed that the genealogy of the Wellington. He was educated at Westminster school, under his brother Samuel, 1718; at St. Peter's College, Westminster, 1719; and at Christ Church, Oxford, 1728, where, with his brother John and one or two others, he received the nickname of "Methodist." In 1735 he was ordained, and went with John Wesley to Georgia, returning 1736. May 21, 1738, he "experienced the witness of adoption," and at once joined his brother's evangelistic work, which was at first "horseback, in a stage-coach, a most important event of death." His fifty-six Hymns "were written with equal grace in Going to Answer a Charge of Treason, and For a Child Cutting his Teeth."

Nearly every occasion and condition of external life is provided for in the vast range of his productions, which have more "variety of matter and manner" than critics have commonly supposed; and, as to feelings and experiences, "he has celebrated them with an affluence of diction and a splendor of coloring rarely surpassed" — or, more accurately, neither praised nor condemned, and rarely expressed. Temperament and belief alike inclined him to subjective themes, and, guiding his unique lyrical talent, made him pre-eminently "the poet of Methodism." To the wonderful growth and success of that system his hymns were no less essential than his brother's government. They are the main element in most Wesleyan collections, both English and American: probably no school or system in any age or land has owned so mighty an implement in the way of sacred song. For the same reason non-Methodists long suspected and shunned this poetry, and still need to exercise unusual caution in admittance to it. Its authorship has been given not only to extravagances of expression (which were sometimes pared down by his brother's severer taste), but to unrestrained and often violent emotion. His ecstasies and agonies occur too frequently for sober readers, and many of his finest pieces are in this high key. Withal he is too fluent, too rhetorical: his mannerism at times involves a lack of simplicity; his "fatal facility of strong words" is a fault both literary and religious. Yet his intensely sincere and fervent piety, his intellectual strength and acuteness, his unmistakably high culture, and the matchless spontaneity of his eloquence, place him easily at the head of British sacred lyricists. No collection is complete — probably for a century none has been formed — without his hymns; and they are now perhaps more generally and widely used than of old. He is entitled to rank not merely as a hymn-writer, but among Christian poets. Many of his pieces are adapted to public worship, and very little known, possess much literary and human interest: his autobiographic and polemic writings, which have more "variety of matter and manner," are among the greatest treasures of Christian literature. Nearly every occasion and condition of external life is provided for in the vast range of his productions, which have more "variety of matter and manner" than critics have commonly supposed; and, as to feelings and experiences, "he has celebrated them with an affluence of diction and a splendor of coloring rarely surpassed" — or, more accurately, neither praised nor condemned, and rarely expressed. Temperament and belief alike inclined him to subjective themes, and, guiding his unique lyrical talent, made him pre-eminently "the poet of Methodism." To the wonderful growth and success of that system his hymns were no less essential than his brother's government. They are the main element in most Wesleyan collections, both English and American: probably no school or system in any age or land has owned so mighty an implement in the way of sacred song. For the same reason non-Methodists long suspected and shunned this poetry, and still need to exercise unusual caution in admittance to it. Its authorship has been given not only to extravagances of expression (which were sometimes pared down by his brother's severer taste), but to unrestrained and often violent emotion. His ecstasies and agonies occur too frequently for sober readers, and many of his finest pieces are in this high key. Withal he is too fluent, too rhetorical: his mannerism at times involves a lack of simplicity; his "fatal facility of strong words" is a fault both literary and religious. Yet his intensely sincere and fervent piety, his intellectual strength and acuteness, his unmistakably high culture, and the matchless spontaneity of his eloquence, place him easily at the head of British sacred lyricists. No collection is complete — probably for a century none has been formed — without his hymns; and they are now perhaps more generally and widely used than of old. He is entitled to rank not merely as a hymn-writer, but among Christian poets. Many of his pieces are adapted to public worship, and very little known, possess much literary and human interest: his autobiographic and polemic writings, which have more "variety of matter and manner," are among the greatest treasures of Christian literature.

See also Jackson's Life of the Rev. Charles Wesley, 2 vols., 1841; D. Creamer's Methodist Hymnology, N.Y., 1848; Sacred Poetry selected from the Works of C. Wesley, N.Y., 1864; C. Wesley and Methodist Hymns, in the Bibliotheca Sacra, 1864; C. Wesley seen in his Finer and less Familiar Poems, N.Y., 1867.

FREDERIC M. BIRD.
family may be followed in an unbroken line from Guy to Samuel Wesley, the father of the Reformer. Samuel Wesley was a graduate of Oxford, and a minister of the Church of England. He married in 1689 Susannah, the twenty-fifth child of Dr. Samuel Annesley, who became the mother of nineteen children. In 1696 he was appointed rector of Epworth, where John, the fifteenth child, was born. He was christened John Benjamin, but he never used the second name. An incident of his childhood was his rescue, at the age of six, from the burning rectory. The manner of his escape made a deep impression on his mind; and he spoke of himself as a "brand plucked from the burning," and as a child of Providence. With a small income and a large family, the good rector, with the utmost economy, was most of the time in debt. The early education of all the children was given by Mrs. Wesley, a woman of remarkable intelligence and deep piety, apt in teaching, and wise and firm in governing. At the age of ten John was admitted to the Charterhouse School, London, where he lived the studious, methodical, and (for a while) religious life in which he had been trained at home. He entered Christ Church College, Oxford, seven years later, was ordained in 1725, elected fellow of Lincoln College in the following year, and given his degree of M.A. in 1727. He served his father as curate two years, and then returned to Oxford to fulfill his functions as fellow.

The year of his return to Oxford (1729) marks the beginning of the rise of Methodism. The famous Holy Club was formed; and its members, including John and Charles Wesley, were derisively called "Methodists," because of their methodical habits. John had enjoyed during his early years a deep religious experience. He went, says his latest and best biographer, Tyerman, to Charterhouse a saint; but he became negligent of his religious duties, and left a sinner. In the year of his ordination he read Thomas Kempis and Jeremy Taylor, and began to grope after those religious truths which underlay the great revival of the eighteenth century. The reading of Law's Christian Perfection and Serious Call, he said, awoke in him a new view of the law of God; and he resolved to keep it, inwardly and outwardly, as sincerely as possible, believing that in this obedience he should find salvation. He pursued a rigidly methodical and abstemious life; studied the Scriptures, and performed his religious duties with great diligence; pinched himself that he might have alms to give; and gave his heart, mind, and soul to the effort to live a godly life. When a clergyman "inured to contempt of the ornaments and conveniences of life, to bodily austerities, and to serious thoughts," was wanted to go to Georgia, Wesley responded, and remained in the colony two years, returning to England in 1738, feeling that his mission, which was to convert the Indians, and deepen and regulate the religious life of the colonists, had been a failure. His High-Church notions, his strict enforcement of the regulations of the church, especially concerning the administration of the holy communion, offended most of the colonists; and he left Georgia with several indictments pending against him (largely due to malice) for alleged violation of church law.

As Wesley's spiritual state is the key to his whole career, an account of his conversion in the year of his return from Georgia must not be omitted. For ten years he had fought against sin, striving to fulfill the law of the gospel, endeavoring to manifest his righteousness; but he had not, he wrote, obtained freedom from sin, nor the witness of the Spirit, because he sought it, not by faith, but "by the works of the law." He had learned from the Moravians that true faith was inseparably connected with dominion over sin and constant peace proceeding from a sense of forgiveness, and that saving faith is given in a moment. This saving faith he obtained at a Moravian meeting in Aldersgate Street, London, while listening to the reading of Luther's Preface to the Epistle to the Romans, in which explanation of faith and the doctrine of justification by faith is given. "I felt," he wrote, "my heart strangely warmed. I felt I did trust in Christ, Christ alone, for salvation; and an assurance was given me that he had taken away my sins." Two or three weeks later he preached a remarkable sermon, enforcing the doctrine of present personal salvation by faith, which was followed by another, on God's grace "free in all, and free for all." He never ceased in his whole subsequent career to preach this doctrine and that of the witness of the Spirit. He allied himself with the Moravian society in Fetter Lane, and went to the Moravian headquarters in Germany to learn more of a people to whom he felt deeply indebted. On his return to England he drew up rules for the bands into which the Fetter-Lane society was divided, and published a collection of hymns for them. He met frequently with this and other religious societies in London, but did not preach often in 1738, because most of the parish churches were closed to him. His friend Whitefield, the great evangelist, upon his return from America, was likewise excluded from the churches of Bristol; and, going to the neighboring village of Kingswood, he there preached in the open air, February, 1739, to a company of miners. This was a bold step, and Wesley hesitated to accept Whitefield's earnest request to follow him in this innovation. But he overcame his scruples, and in April preached his first sermon in the open air, near Bristol. He said he could hardly reconcile himself to field-preaching, and would have thought, "till very lately," such a method of saving souls as "almost a sin." These open-air services were very successful; and he never again hesitated to preach in any place where an assembly could be got together. More than once occupying his father's tombstone as a pulpit. He spent upwards of fifty years in field-preaching,—entering churches when he was invited, taking his stand in the fields, in halls, cottages, and chapels, when the churches would not receive him; in prisons, when the church of Christ was divided, and the Moravians in London occurred. Wesley had helped them organize in May, 1738, the Fetter-Lane society; and the converts of the preaching of himself, his brother, and Whitefield, had become members of their bands. But finding, as he said, that they had fallen into heresies, especially Quietism, a separation took place; and so, at the close of 1739, Wesley was led to form his followers into a separate society. "Thus," he wrote, "without any previous plan, began the Methodist society in England." Similar societies were soon after formed in Bristol and Kingswood, and wherever Wesley and his coadjutors made converts.

From 1739 onward, Wesley and the Methodists were persecuted by clergymen and magistrates, attacked in sermon, tract, and book; mobbed by the populace; often in controversy; always at work among the neglected and needy; and ever increasing in number. They were denounced as propagators of strange doctrines, fomenters of religious disturbances; as blind fanatics, leading the people astray, claiming miraculous gifts, inveighing against the clergy of the Church of England, and endeavoring to re-establish Popery. Wesley was frequently mobbed, and great violence was done both to the persons and property of Methodists. Seeing, however, that the church failed in its duty to call sinners to repentance, that its clergy were worldly-minded, and that souls were perishing in their sins, he regarded himself as commissioned of God to warn men to flee from the wrath to come; and no opposition, or persecution, or obstacles were permitted by him to prevail against the divine urgency and authority of his commission.

The prejudices of his High-Church training, his strict notions of the methods and proprieties of public worship, his views of the apostolic succession and the prerogatives of the priest, even his most cherished convictions, were not allowed to stand in the way in which Providence seemed to lead. Unwilling that ungodly men should perish in their sins and because they could not be reached from the pulpit, he began field-preaching. Seeing that he and the few clergymen co-operating with him could not do the work that needed to be done, he was led, as early as 1739, to approve tacitly, soon after openly, of lay-preaching; and men who were not episcopally ordained were permitted to preach, and do pastoral work. Thus one of the greatest features of Methodism, to which it has largely owed its success, was adopted by Wesley in answer to a necessity.

As his societies must have houses to worship in, he began in 1739 to provide chapels, first in Bristol, and then in London and elsewhere. The Bristol chapel was at first in the hands of trustees; but as a large debt was contracted, and Wesley's friends urged him to keep its pulpit under his own control, the deed was cancelled, and the trust became vested in himself. Following this precedent, all Methodist chapels were committed in trust to him until, by a "deed of declaration," all his interests in them were transferred to a body of preachers called the "Legal Hundred." When disorderly persons began to manifest themselves among the members of the societies, he adopted the plan of giving tickets to members, with their names written thereon by his own hand. These were renewed every three months. Thus Wesley and his coadjutors made converts.

From 1739 onward, Wesley and the Methodists were persecuted by clergymen and magistrates, attacked in sermon, tract, and book; mobbed by the populace; often in controversy; always at work among the neglected and needy; and ever increasing in number. They were denounced as propagators of strange doctrines, fomenters of religious disturbances; as blind fanatics, leading the people astray, claiming miraculous gifts, inveighing against the clergy of the Church of England, and endeavoring to re-establish Popery. Wesley was frequently mobbed, and great violence was done both to the persons and property of Methodists. Seeing, however, that the church failed in its duty to call sinners to repentance, that its clergy were worldly-minded, and that souls were perishing in their sins, he regarded himself as commissioned of God to warn men to flee from the wrath to come; and no opposition, or persecution, or obstacles were permitted by him to prevail against the divine urgency and authority of his commission.

The prejudices of his High-Church training, his strict notions of the methods and proprieties of public worship, his views of the apostolic succession and the prerogatives of the priest, even his most cherished convictions, were not allowed to stand in the way in which Providence seemed to lead. Unwilling that ungodly men should perish in their sins and because they could not be reached from the pulpit, he began field-preaching. Seeing that he and the few clergymen co-operating with him could not do the work that needed to be done, he was led, as early as 1739, to approve tacitly, soon after openly, of lay-preaching; and men who were not episcopally ordained were permitted to preach, and do pastoral work. Thus one of the greatest features of Methodism, to which it has largely owed its success, was adopted by Wesley in answer to a necessity.

As his societies must have houses to worship in, he began in 1739 to provide chapels, first in Bristol, and then in London and elsewhere. The Bristol chapel was at first in the hands of trustees; but as a large debt was contracted, and Wesley's friends urged him to keep its pulpit under his own control, the deed was cancelled, and the trust became vested in himself. Following this precedent, all Methodist chapels were committed in trust to him until, by a "deed of declaration," all his interests in them were transferred to a body of preachers called the "Legal Hundred." When disorderly persons began to manifest themselves among the members of the societies, he adopted the plan of giving tickets to members, with their names written thereon by his own hand. These were renewed every three months. Thus Wesley and his coadjutors made converts.
tion of hands; but he considered his appointment (says Watson) of his preachers as an act of ordination. The Conference of 1746 declared that the reason more solemnity in receiving new laborers was not employed was because it savored of state-line and of haste. "We desire barely to follow Providence so it gradually opened. When, however, he deemed that Providence had opened the way, and the bishop of London had definitively declined to ordain a minister for the American Methodists who were without the ordinances, he ordained by imposition of hands preachers for Scotland and England and America, with power to administer the sacraments. He consecrated, also, by laying on of hands, Dr. Coke, a presbyter of the Church of England, to be superintendent or bishop in America, and a preacher, Alexander Mather, by imposition of hands preachers for England, and a preacher, Alexander Mather, to the same office in England. He de- signed that both Dr. Coke and Mr. Mather should ordain others. This act alarmed his brother, Charles, who besought him to stop and consider, before he had "quite broken down the bridge," and not immitter his [Charles's] last moments on earth, nor "leave an indelible blot on our memo- rying."

Wesley declared, in reply, that he had not separated from the church, nor did he intend to, but he must and would save as many souls as he could while alive, "without being careful about what may possibly be when I die." Thus, though he rejoiced that the Methodists in America were freed from entanglements with both Church and State, he counselled his English followers to re- main in the church; and he himself died in that communion.

Wesley was a strong controversialist. The most notable of his controversies was that on Calvinism. His father was of the Arminian school in the church; but John settled the question for himself while in college, and expressed himself strongly against the doctrines of election and reprobation. Whitefield inclined to Calvinism. In his first tour in America, he embraced the views of the New-England school of Calvinism; and when Wesley preached a sermon on Free Grace, attacking predestination as blasphemous, as representing "God as worse than the Devil," Whitefield besought him (1739) not to repeat it in that discourse. He deprecated a dispute or discussion. "Let us," he said, "offer salvation freely to all," but be silent about election. Wesley's sermon was published, and among the many replies to it was one by Whitefield. Separation followed in 1741. Wesley wrote of it, that those who held universal redemption did not desire it, but "those who held particular redemption would not hear of any accommodation." Whitefield, Harris, Cennick, and others, became the founders of Cal- vinistic Methodism. Whitefield and Wesley, how- ever, were soon again on very friendly terms, and their friendship remained thenceforth unbroken, though they travelled different paths. Occasional publications appeared on Calvinistic doctrines, by Wesley and others; but in 1770 the controversy broke out anew with violence and bitterness.

Toplady, Berridge, Rowland and Richard Hill, and others were engaged on the one side, and Toplady was editor of the Gospel Magazine, which was filled with the controversy. Wesley in 1778 began the publication of the Arminian Magazine, not, he said, to convince Calvinists, but to pre- serve Methodists; not to notice opponents, but to teach the truth that "God willeth all men to be saved." A "lasting peace" he thought could be secured in no other way.

The doctrines which Wesley revived, restated, and emphasized in his sermons and writings, are present personal salvation by faith, the witness of the Spirit, and sanctification. The second he defined thus: "The testimony of the Spirit is an inward impression on the soul of believers, whereby the spirit of God directly testifies to their spirit that they are the children of God." Sanctifica- tion he spoke of (1790) as the "grand depositions which God has lodged with the people called "Methodists;" and, for the sake of propagating this chiefly, he appears to have raised them up." He taught that sanctification was obtainable in- stantaneously by faith, between justification and death. It was not "sinless perfection" that he contended for; but he believed that those who are "perfect in love" feel no sin, feel nothing but love. He was very anxious that this doctrine should be constantly preached. The system of Wesleyan Arminianism, the foundations of which were laid by Wesley and Fletcher, is treated in its appropriate place, under the title ARMINIANISM, q.v.

Wesley was the busiest man in England. He travelled almost constantly, generally on horse- back, preaching twice or thrice a day. He formed societies, opened chapels, examined and commis- sioned preachers, administered discipline, raised funds for schools, chapels, and charities, pre- scribed for the sick, superintended schools and orphanages, prepared commentaries and a vast amount of other religious literature, replied to attacks on Methodism, conducted controversies, and carried on a prodigious correspondence. He is believed to have travelled in the course of his itinerant ministry more than two hundred and fifty thousand miles, and to have preached more than forty thousand sermons. The number of works he wrote, translated, or edited, exceeds two hundred. The list includes sermons, commentaries, hymns, a Christian library of fifty volumes, and other religious manuscripts, editions of the New Testament, other text-books, political tracts, etc. He is said to have received not less than a hundred thousand dollars for his publications, but he used little of it for himself. His charities were only limited by his means. He died poor. He rose at four in the morning, lived simply and methodically, and was never idle, even for a moment, unless by compul- sion. In person he was rather under the medium height, well proportioned, strong, with a bright eye, a clear complexion, and a saintly, intellectual face. He married very unhappily, at the age of forty-eight, a widow, and had no children. He died, after a short illness, in which he had great spiritual peace and joy, March 2, 1791; leaving as the result of his life-work 135,000 members, and 541 itinerant preachers, owning the name "Method- ist."

Wesley's mind was of a logical cast. His conceptions were clear, his perceptions quick. His thoughts were not always in accord with the other side of the question. His language was terse, vigorous language. His logical acuteness, self-control, and scholarly acquirements, made him a strong controversialist. He wrote usually currente calamo. His written sermons are characterized by truth and power. They are doctrinal, but not dogmatic; expository, argumentative, practical. His Notes on the New Testament are luminous and suggestive. Both the Sermons (of which there are about a hundred and forty) and the Notes are in the Methodist course of study, and are doctrinal standards. He was a fluent, impressive, persuasive, powerful preacher, producing striking effects. He preached generally extemporaneously and briefly, though occasionally at great length, using manuscript only for special occasions. As an organizer, an ecclesiastical general, and statesman, he was pre-eminent. He knew well how to marshal and control men, how to achieve purposes. He had in his hands the powers of a despot; yet he so used them as not only not to provoke rebellion, but to inspire love. His mission was to spread "scriptural holiness:" his means and plans were such as Providence indicated. The course thus marked out for him he pursued with a determination, a fidelity, from which nothing could swerve him.

Wesley's chief prose-works have been published in seven octavo volumes by the Methodist Book Concern, New York. Besides his Sermons and Notes already referred to, are his Journals (originally published in twenty parts), which are of great interest; a Treatise on Original Sin, in reply to Dr. Taylor of Norwich; an Appeal to Men of Reason and Religion (originally published in three parts of 268 12mo pp.), an elaborate defence of Methodism, describing with great vigor the evils of society and the church; a Plain Account of Christian Perfection, a duodecimo of 162 pp., published in 1769.

The literature concerning Wesley is abundant. Not less than twenty-one distinct biographies of him have been published. The earliest was John HAMPSON's, 3 vols. 18mo, London, 1791 (the year of Wesley's death), imperfect; Dr. COKE's and HENRY MOORE's, 1 vol. 8vo, London, 1792, popular; Dr. JOHN WHITEHEAD's, 2 vols. 8vo, London, 1798-99, defective; ROBERT SOUTHEY's, 2 vols. 8vo, London, 1820, with a biographical and critical preface, and comments, but which are out of print; JOHN CEPHAS's, 2 vols. 8vo, London, 1824, in 2 vols. 8vo, faithful, trustworthy; RICHARD WATSON, 1 vol. 12mo, London, 1831, clear, compact, intended for general readers; WILLIAM JONES, 1 vol. 8vo, London, 1833, Calvinistic view; THOMAS JACKSON, 1 vol. 8vo, London, 1833, unobjectionable; ISAAC TAYLOR: Wesley and Methodism, 1 vol. 8vo, London, 1851, unimportant; ROBERT BICKERSTETH, 1 vol. 12mo, London, 1856, containing a Life, by a clergyman, for Churchmen; LUKAS TYERMAN, 3 vols. 8vo, London, 1870, best, fullest, most impartial; JULIA WEDGWOOD, 1 vol. 8vo, London, 1870, Unitarian; R. D. URWIN, 1 vol. 12mo, London, 1870, a Churchman's Life, inaccurate; GEORGE J. STEVENSON: Memorials of the Wesley Family, 1 vol. 8vo, London, 1878, copious in material; ABE STEVENS: History of the Religious Movement of the Eighteenth Century, called Methodism, 3 vols. 12mo, New York, 1859-62. H. K. CARROLL

WESLEY, Samuel, jun., elder brother of John and Charles Wesley: b. in London, Jan. 20, 1690, and d. at Tiverton, Nov. 6, 1739; educated at Westminster and Oxford; head usher at Westminster School, 1712 (Vincent Bourne being one of his colleagues), and ordained soon after; head master of the Free School at Tiverton, 1732. He was a man of considerable learning, great talent, and high character. As an old-fashioned Churchman he had no sympathy with the "new faith" of his brothers. His Poems on Several Occasions, 1739 (reprinted, with additions and Life, 1862), have much merit, and include one or two of our best epigrams, besides hymns to the Trinity, for Sunday, Good Friday, and Easter, and on the death of a young lady. These are of a high order, and show much of Charles Wesley's splendor of diction: they have been largely used in church hymn-books. F. M. BIRD.

WESLEY, Susannah, the mother of John and Charles Wesley: b. in London, Jan. 20, 1669, d. there July 23, 1742. Her father, Samuel Annells, LL.D., was a prominent nonconformist divine, but she renounced nonconformity in her thirteenth year, and joined the Established Church. In 1689 she married Samuel Wesley (see art.), and bore him nineteen children, of whom nine, however, died in infancy. She was a remarkable woman. Tyerman gives this account of her home discipline: "When the child was one year old, he was taught to fear the rod, and, if he cried at all, to cry in softened tones. The children were limited to three or four a day. Eating and drinking between meals was strictly prohibited. All the children were washed and put to bed by eight o'clock, and on no account was a servant to sit by a child till it fell asleep. The children were taught the Lord's Prayer as soon as they could speak, and repeated it every morning and every night. They were on no account allowed to call each other by their proper name without the addition of brother or sister, as the case might be. Six hours a day were spent at school, the parents being the teachers. They were not taught to read till five years old, and then only a single day was allowed wherein to learn the letters of the alphabet, great and small. Psalms were sung every morning; when school was opened, and also every night, when the duties of the day were ended. In addition to all this, at the commencement and close of every day, each of the elder children took one of the younger, and read the psalms appointed for the day, and a chapter in the Bible, after which they severally went to their private devotions" (Life of Wesley, vol. i. pp. 17, 18). Her husband died in 1735, and shortly after, she went to London to live with her son John. See J. Kirk: The Mother of the Wesleys, London and Cincinnati, 1872.

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE. 2496

WESSEL, Johann, with the surname Gansfort or Gansevort, from an estate in Westphalia, the original seat of the family; b. at Groeningen about 1420; d. there Oct. 4, 1489; was in Germany the most prominent of the precursors of the Reformation. He was educated in the school of Zwoll, which at that time was under the control of the Brethren of the Common Life, and came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he came very early in contact with Thomas à Kempis, who resided in the vicinity.
predestination is incapable of assimilating. The benefits which the individual may derive from this community are great, are invaluable, but at no moment can he become dependent on it for his personal relation to God. An organization and a visible representation of the community are good, are even necessary; but an organization sub uno papa is wholly incidental, and may be changed. The Pope is so far from being infallible, that the right of the church to criticise and correct him is indispensable to safety. And less infallible are the rest of the clergy and the counsels too. But where, then, is the authority? In external affairs, and in them alone, the authority rests with the incidental organization, which may be changed. But, with respect to questions of faith, it rests solely with the Bible; and so far as Wessel thought it necessary or expedient to apply any supplementary support, he seems, like a true son of the Sorbonne, to have professed the idea of divinity to the priest. There is a ministerium, and its influence may reach into the innermost recesses of religious life; but always that influence depends solely upon the individual, spiritual gifts of the minister: the office has by itself no inherent authority whatever. It is apparent that such an idea of the church must in a very high degree affect the idea of the sacraments. In the middle ages the church was not only the administrator, but also the dispenser, of the means of grace: now, she was herself the sum total of all means of grace. Consequently, in medieval theology, the doctrine of the church formed the basis for the doctrine of the sacrament; and a radical change of the former necessarily produced a corresponding modification of the latter. To Wessel the sacraments are simply fidei instrumenta, tanto semper efficacia, quando est fides necossis, as has already been hinted above with respect to the Lord's Supper. The idea of an opus operatum he rejects. The efficacy of the mass does not depend on the intendio of either the administrant or the acceptant, but solely on the disposiatio of the latter; and this disposiatio consists in hunger and thirst for the means of grace: the idea of a sacrifice he leaves entirely out of consideration.

His missionary labors and his life have been carried on chiefly by Dutch scholars, and brought to a close by W. Muurling: Commentatio historico-theologica de Wesseli, etc., Utrecht, 1831, and De Wesseli principiis atque viris. Wessel, 1862; 2d ed., 2 vols.; T. Jacob: Johannes Wesseli quo jure Lutheri anteicorrent appellari possit, Jena, 1878. — H. Schmidt.

Wessenberg, Ignaz Heinrich, b. in Dresden, Nov. 4, 1774; d. at Constance, Aug. 6, 1860; one of the noblest representatives of liberal Catholicism in the beginning of the present century. He was educated at Dillingen, under Sailer, and then studied theology at Wurzburg (where he first became acquainted with Dalberg) and in Vienna. In 1800 Dalberg appointed him his vicar-general in the diocese of Constance; and when Dalberg died, in 1817, the pope, without the least ceremony, immediately elected him bishop. The Roman curia, however, refused in a very harsh manner to confirm the election; and when the curia, on two later occasions, continued to refuse to admit him to office, he retired to private life. The reasons of the curia's aversion to him were, that he advocated the establishment of a national church of Germany (Die Deutsche Kirche, Constance, 1814), and the revival of the general councils (Die grossen Kirchenversammlungen des 15. und 16. Jahrhunderts, Constance, 1840, 4 vols.), and that, as vicar-general, he had introduced the German language into the Liturgy and choir-singing of the churches of his diocese, and sent his seminarians to Pestalozzi to learn the new method of instruction,— presumptions which could never be forgiven. See his life, by J. Beck, Freiburg, 1892. — Palmer.

West, Stephen, D.D., b. in Tolland, Conn., Nov. 2, 1735; d. at Stockbridge, Mass., May 15, 1819. He was graduated at Yale College, 1755. Having pursued his theological studies with Rev. Timothy Woodbridge of Hatfield, Mass., he was called in 1757 to be the military chaplain at Hoosac Fort. In 1758 he was invited, by the Commissioners for Indian Affairs in Boston, to succeed Jonathan Edwards in the Indian mission at Stockbridge. He was ordained pastor of the church at Stockbridge in 1758. In the forenoon of every sabbath he preached, by an interpreter, to the Indians; in the afternoon he preached to the English. For sixteen years he persevered in this course with encouraging success. In 1775 he relinquished his missionary office, and confined his labors to the English. When Mr. West was ordained at Stockbridge, he was unsatisfied with the tenets of his predecessor, Jonathan Edwards. He often conversed upon them with his clerical neighbor, Hopkins of Great Barrington. He acquired a profound esteem and a warm affection for Hopkins, and was at length converted to the Edwardian faith. This change in his religious life led to a more important change in his religious life. He became convinced that he had never been regenerated. The whole style of his sermons and pastoral interviews became so different from what it had been, that it surprised his parish. Some members of it were delighted; others were displeased. He was more successful than ever before in his ministerial work. The number of converts continued in it more than fifty-nine years,—with a colleague less than eight years, without a colleague more than fifty-one years.

Soon after the renewal of his religious life, he preached a series of sermons, which were afterwards published in the form of an Essay on Moral Agency, New Haven, 1772; 2d ed., 1794. He published his Essay on the Scripture Doctrine of the Atonement in 1785; a second edition, with an appendix of seventy pages, in 1815. This essay has an historical value. Its relation to the celebrated sermons of Dr. Jonathan Edwards and of Dr. John Sualley, on the ground of the atonement, contained in the Discourses and Treatises on the Atonement, Introductory Essay, pp. 67-79, Boston, 1860. In 1794 he published An Inquiry into the Ground and Import of Infant Baptism; and in 1798 A Dissertation on Infant Baptism, Reply to the Rev. Cyprian Strong. After he had passed his eightieth year, he published an essay (republished in England) entitled Evidence of the Divinity of the Lord Jesus Christ, collected from the Scriptures, 1816. One of his works which attracted much attention was

Two of his pamphlets awakened a notable opposition; they were entitled A Sermon on the Duty and Obligation of Christians to marry in the Lord (1779); A Vindication of the Church in Stockbridge in excommunating one of its members. He also published more than a dozen sermons, and numerous essays in the Theological Magazine and the Connecticut Evangelical Magazine, he was engaged in an elaborate correspondence with the Rev. Dr. John Ryland of England, and many other theologians.

As he read Latin with great facility, was familiar with the Greek of the New Testament, and had a respectable acquaintance with the Hebrew language; as he was an acute metaphysician, and had a respectable acquaintance with the Hebrew language; as he was an acute metaphysician, and had a respectable acquaintance with the Hebrew language; he attracted to himself many theological pupils. They resided in his house, and uniformly spoke of him in terms of the highest admiration. At least five of them became eminent as preachers and writers. Two of them were Samuel Spring, D.D., of Newburyport, and John Thornton Kirkland, LL.D., president of Harvard College.

Westen was not only a man of wonderful diligence in his study, but was also a man of affairs. He exerted a marked influence over jurists. On the sabbath he was regularly listened to by six judges of Massachusetts courts. Of these the most celebrated was Theodore Sedgwick, whose personal intercourse with his pastor was intimate and long-continued. In 1793, when Williams College was incorporated, Dr. West "was named as one of the trustees, and at the first meeting of the board was elected vice-president of the institution." He was one of Dr. Samuel Spring's chief counsellors in forming the Creed and Associate Statutes of Andover Theological Seminary. He was also a pioneer in the work of missionary and various charitable institutions.

EDWARDS A. PARK.

Westen, Thomas von, b. at Trondhjem in 1682; d. there April 9, 1727; occupies a prominent place in the history of Finnish missions, on account of his self-sacrificing but very successful labor among the Fins and Laps of the northernmost part of the Scandinavian peninsula. He studied theology at the university of Copenhagen, and was in 1710 appointed pastor of Wedoen, in the diocese of Trondhjem. Meanwhile, the foul Paganism and moral depravity in which the Finnish and Lappish nomads of Northern Norway lived had begun to attract the attention of the government; and, the Collegium de promovendo cursu evangelii having been founded in 1714, a college for the training of missionaries to the Fins and Lapps was immediately established at Trondhjem, and Westen was appointed its director Feb. 28, 1716. In the same year he made his first missionary tour in Norland and Finnmarken; in 1718-19 his second, during which, churches were built in Tana, Porsanger, and Alten, and some Finnish children were brought to Trondhjem to be educated as missionaries; and in 1722 his third, which already showed good results. He was completely master of the language; translated Luther's Catechism into Lappish; wrote a Grammatica Laponica, a Specimen vocabularii Laponici, a Lappish spelling-book, etc.; and he succeeded in educating a number of zealous and devoted disciples. See HAMMOND: Nordl. Missionsgeschichte, Copenhagen, 1877. HEIZOO.

WESTERN THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY, The.

The need of a theological seminary for the West had been felt for several years previous to the action on the subject taken by the General Assembly (O.S.) in 1825, which action was as follows:

"It is expedient forthwith to establish a theological seminary in the West, to be styled 'The Western Theological Seminary of the Presbyterian Church of the United States.'" In 1827 the location was fixed at Allegheny, Allegheny County, Penn.; and on Nov. 16, 1827, the seminary was opened, with Rev. Joseph Stockton and Rev. Elisha P. Swift, D.D., as instructors. At that time "Allegheny town, opposite Pittsburgh," was, an unincorporated village, and a part of Ross Township. As one of the inducements to locating the seminary at this place, eighteen acres of "common" had been released for the use of the institution. This grant included what is now known as "Monument Hill;" and on the summit of this hill the first building was erected. This building was occupied from the spring of 1831 until its total destruction by fire on Jan. 23, 1854.

The present seminary building, which was dedicated on Jan. 10, 1858, is delightfully situated on Ridge Avenue, with West Park in front, and Monument Hill in the rear. The buildings of the seminary consist of Seminary Hall, containing chapel, lecture-rooms, and dormitories; Memorial Hall, containing dormitories, studies, and gymnasium; Library Hall, fire proof; and five professors' houses.

The government of the seminary is vested in a board of directors and a board of trustees; the former consisting of forty members (twenty-eight ministers, and twelve ruling elders), one-fourth of whom are chosen annually, the Board having the power to fill vacancies, subject to the veto of the General Assembly. The Board of Directors have power to elect, suspend, and remove professors; such election and removal being subject to the veto of the General Assembly. The Board of Directors have the management and disbursement of the funds of the institution. The internal management of the seminary is devolved upon the professors as a faculty, with the senior professor as president. Each professor at his inauguration subscribes the following pledge: "In the presence of God and of the directors of this seminary, I do solemnly, and ex animo, adopt, receive, andsubscribe the Confession of Faith and Catechisms of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America as the confession of my faith, or as a summary and just exhibition of that system of doctrine and religious belief which is contained in Holy Scripture, and therein revealed by God to man for his salvation. And I do solemnly ex animo profess to receive the form of government of said church as agreeable to the inspired oracles. And I do solemnly promise and engage not to incul—cated, teach, or insinuate any thing which shall appear to me to contradict or contravene, either directly or impliedly, any thing taught in the said Confession of Faith or Catechisms, or to oppose, any of the fundamental principles of Presbyterian church government, while I shall continue a professor in this seminary."

There are five professorships, all endowed and all filled. The endowment of a chair of election is just as large as that of the professorship.
The seminary is open to students from all denomiations of Christians. In addition to the regular course, extending over three years, there is a post-graduate course, for those who, from this or any other semiary, wish to pursue advanced studies. Nursed in the lap of the old synod of Pittsburgh, which,
as soon as it was conscious of organic life, constituted itself the Western Missionary Society, the seminary inherited the missionary spirit. Her son's are found in all lands, and on the roll of her worthies are found the names of martyrs. The whole number of alumni is 1,415. It will not be deemed invidious to place at the head of the numerous patron's of the seminary the late Rev.
Charles C. Beatty, D.D., LL.D., and James Laughlin, Esq., recently deceased. The gifts of Dr.
Beatty exceed two hundred thousand dollars.

The spirit and policy of the seminary are admirably expressed in the fundamental principle which was incorporated by its founders in the "plan": "That learning without religion in ministers of the gospel will prove injurious to the church, and religion without learning will leave the ministry exposed to the impositions of designing men, and insufficient in a high degree for the great purposes of the gospel ministry." This is the principle on which the seminary has been conducted. The combination of learning and piety, of erudition and earnestness, of intellectual discipline and practical efficiency, is the standard which has been set up. The measure of success which has been achieved in this line the semiary claims as one of its distinctive characteristics.

S. J. Wilson.

Westminster Abbey. This famous pile, at once cathedral and walhalla, is upon the site of a Saxon church, within the so-called "Thorney Isle," built under King Sebert in the seventh century. Long before the Norman Conquest (eleventh century), it was connected with a Benedictine monestery called the "Western," in contradistinction to St. Paul's, which was east. Hence the name "Western" given to the church subsequently built upon this site by Edward the Confessor (1065-65), who, though a Saxon, employed the Norman style of architecture. All that is now left of Edward's buildings are a few traces about the choir and the structure of the dormitory, and on the south end of the abbey the Pyx house, or chapel of the Pyx, in which the sacred vessel containing the eucharistic elements was kept.
Henry III. (1216-72) is the great name connected with the abbey in the Middle-Age style, and the present transepts and choir are his; but the greater part of the present building dates from the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. The most frequent is the "Poets' Corner," where lie buried Chaucer and Spenser, and where are the monuments to Shakespeare and Milton. The abbey as it now stands is in the form of a Latin cross, 611 feet long by 205 feet wide across the transept. The nave and aisles are 74 feet wide, the choir 38 feet, and Henry VIL's Chapel 70 feet.

The abbey passed from the government of an abbot to that of a dean when the monasteries were dissolved. For a short time there was a bishops of Westminster. The semi-

The present objects of interest are mainly the tombs of royal families and the tombs and tablets of illustrious men in all walks of life; but, what was to have been expected, as the abbey has been accorded to many whose fame was interred with their bones. See Dean Stanley's brilliant Memorials of Westminster Abbey,

Westminster Assembly (1643-52), a synd of Calvinistic and Puritan divines, which produced the doctrinal and disciplinary standards of the British and American Presbyterian churches. It occupies the first place of all synods held in the Reformed churches, not excepting even that of Dort, although this was of more importance for the Continent. It grew out of that great movement in English church history which began with the risings of the Scotch nation against the semi-Popish tyranny of Charles I. and Archbishop Laud, rolled like an avalanche all over England, cemented both nations in the "Solemn League and Covenant" (1643), and resulted in the temporary overthrow of the Stuart dynasty and episcopy and the brilliant reign of Puritanism under Cromwell. The assembly was called

1 The Assembly was directed to meet "at Westminster, in the chappell called King Henry the Seventh's Chappell on the first day of July, in the year of our Lord, 1642... to conferre and treat amongst themselves of such matters and touching and concerning the liturgy, government and reward of the Church of England, or the vindicating and clearing of the doctrine of the same from all false aspirations and misconstrued, as shall be required, and in the same time not to divulge by printing.
writing, or otherwise without the order of the said house of Parliament. And be it further ordained by the authority aforesaid, that William Twiss, D.D., shall sit in the chair as procurator of the said Assembly."
The assembly was solemnly opened July 1, 1643, in Westminster Abbey, before the two Houses of Parliament, by a sermon of Dr. William Twisse, and was organized in the chapel of Henry VII.; from which it afterwards moved to more comfortable quarters, — the famous Jerusalem Chamber (originally the abbots’ parlor), in the deanery of Westminster, held daily sessions, from nine to two, except Saturday and Sunday. Once a month it met with Parliament in public humiliation and prayer. At first the divines undertook the revision of the Thirty-nine Articles of the Church of England, but abandoned it after reaching the fifteenth article; and afterwards they framed a new confession of faith (see below), together with a directory of government and worship. The doctrinal debates recently published by Professor Mitchell reveal a difference between a milder and stricter school of Calvinism. The Westminster Confession may be called a compromise between them. The subject of church government called forth long and earnest debates. Twisse, Gataker, Palmer, Temple, and several other learned members, inclined to what was called primitive episcopacy, or presbyterianism with superintendents. The Scotch commissioners, and the Puritans of the school of Cartwright, contended for a pure divina, or high church presbyterianism pure and simple, but had to consent to the compromise phrase “lawful, and agreeable to the word of God,” instead of “expressly instituted or commanded.” Besides these two leading parties, there was a small fraction of Independents who had strong political influence (Cromwell being on their side), and advocated a limited degree of toleration. On the subject of public worship there was substantial harmony. After completing its doctrinal and disciplinary standards (1648), the assembly became an executive body, engaged chiefly in examination of candidates, and rapidly lost its authority and importance. The one hundred and sixty-third session was held Feb. 22, 1648; the last, in March 25, 1652. The assembly was not formally dissolved; but, as Fuller says, “it dwindled by degrees,” and “vanished with the Parliament,” which called it into existence. Principal Baillie, the chief of the commissioners of Scotland, gives the following graphic description of the assembly:—

“The like of that Assembly I did never see, and as we hear say, the like was never in England, nor anywhere is shortly like to be. They did sit in Henry VII.’s chapel, in the place of the convocation; but since the weather grew cold, they did go to Jerusalem chamber, a fair room in the abbey of Westminster, about the middle of the college hall, but wider. At the one end, nearest the door, and both sides, are stages of seats as in the new assembly-house at Edinburgh, but not so high: for there will be room but for five or six score. At the upper end and there is a chair set on a frame, a foot from the earth, for the Mr. President, Dr. Freeman. Before it on the ground stand two chairs for the two Mr. Assessors, Dr. Burgess and Mr. White. Before these three, through the length of the house, stands a table at which sit the two scribes, Mr. Ryfield and Mr. Kolverough. The house is all well hung, and has a good fire, which is sound. We meet every day of the week but Saturday. We sit commonly from nine to one or two afternoon. Generally, there will be present about three scores of their divines. These three committees; in one whereof every man is a member. No man is excluded who pleases to come to any of the three. Every committee, as the Parliament gives order in writing to take any purpose into consideration, takes a portion, and in their afternoon meeting prepares matters for the Assembly, sets down their mind in distinct propositions, back their propositions with texts of Scripture. After the prayer, Mr. Ryfield, the scribe, reads the proposition and Scriptures, whereupon the Assembly debates in a most grave and orderly way. No man is called up to speak, but who stands up of his own accord. He who speaks, so long as he will, without interruption. . . They harangue long and very learnedly. They study the questions well beforehand, and prepare their speeches, but withal the men are exceedingly prompt and well-spoken. I do marvel at the very accurate and extemporal replies that many of them usually make.”

The estimates of the assembly differ widely according to the denominational stand-point of the writer, but all must agree as to its importance and influence. Milton at first praised it highly; but, when it condemned his unfortunate book on Divorce he spoke of it and of the Long Parliament with vindictive scorn. Clarendon disparaged it in his History of the Rebellion. Baxter, who, from his familiarity with the leading members, was more competent to judge than either, thought that the synod compared favorably with any since the days of the apostles, and called its members “men of eminent learning, godliness, ministerial abilities, and fidelity.” Stoughton (an Independent) gives the Westminster divines credit for “learning — scriptural, patriotic, scholastic, and modern — enough and to spare, all solid, substantial, and ready for use.” A German historian, Gen. Von Rudolff, judged them “noble, zealous, intelligent, and learned body of divines seldom, if ever, met in Christendom.” Dr. Briggs closes his article on the Westminster Assembly with this strong commendation:—

“Looking at the Westminster Assembly as a whole, it is safe to say that there never was a body of divines who labored more conscientiously, carefully, and with a greater sense of responsibility. They published no less than thirty-nine important and important documents, or a richer theological literature, than that remarkably learned, able, and pious body, who, from the days of their synod, till now, have labored for the glory of God in the Jerusalem Chamber of Westminster Abbey.”
On the Continent it is little known; but, among all the Presbyterian churches of Great Britain and the United States, its history is a familiar household word. It attempted too much, and went on the assumption of one national church, that should embrace all Englishmen, Scotchmen, and Irishmen, and be subject to one creed and one polity. But this was the error of the age, in which Episcopalianism shared alike with the Puritans. Both were equally intolerant, and expelled all nonconformists from their livings. The Independents, Baptists, and Quakers were somewhat in advance; yet the Independents excluded from toleration the Prelatists, Roman Catholics, Quakers, and Unitarians. It was only after a long series of persecutions and failures, that the idea of religious freedom took firm root in English soil. But while the Westminster Assembly and the Long Parliament failed, as far as England and Ireland are concerned, and were succeeded by the restoration of the Stuart dynasty and a monarchy, the doctrinal and polity standards of the assembly have retained their vitality in Scotland and North America to this day. (See Westminster Standards.)

I. The Doctrinal Standards. 1. The Westminster Confession of Faith. It was completed Dec. 4, 1646, provided with the Scripture passages (by order of Parliament, which had six hundred copies printed), approved in full by the Church of Scotland in 1647, and, with a few changes, by the Long Parliament in 1648, under the title of Articles of Religion, omitting chaps. xxx. and xxxi. and parts of chaps. xx. and xxiv. But in spite of Parliament the Confession continues to be printed in Great Britain in the form in which it left the Assembly, and was adopted by the Church of Scotland. Its original title is, The Humble Advice of the Assembly of Divines now, by Authority of Parliament, concerning a Confession of Faith, with the Quotations and Texts of Scripture annexed. Presented by them lately to both Houses of Parliament. (See the facsimile in Schaff's Creeds, iii. 598.) It consists of thirty-three chapters beginning with the doctrine of the Bible as the only rule of faith and practice, and ending with the last judgment. It is the clearest, strongest, most logical, and most careful symbolic statement of the Calvinistic scheme of Christian doctrine. (See Calvinism.) It is based upon a thorough study of the Scriptures, the Continental Reformed theology, the earlier English and Scotch Confessions, but more particularly (as Dr. Mitchell has shown) upon the Irish Articles, which were probably drawn up by Archbishop Usher, 1615, and form the connecting link between the Thirty-nine Articles and the Westminster Confession. Several sections, especially on the Holy Scriptures, the Holy Trinity, the Divine Decrees, the Fall, the Perseverance of Saints, and the Civil Magistrate, are almost verbatim derived from these Articles, which had been set aside by Archbishop Laud. (See Mitchell: The Westminster Confession, 1867, and Introduction to the Minutes. Schaff: Creeds, i. 762 sqq., and iii. § 20 sqq., where the Irish Articles are given in full.)

The United Presbyterian Church of Scotland has recently adopted an explanatory supplement.
or "Declaratory Act" (May, 1879) which "sets forth more fully and clearly" some doctrines of Holy Scripture, among which are the following important modifications of the Westminster statements:

1. "That in regard to the doctrine of redemption as taught in the Westminster Standards, and in consistency with the love of God to all mankind, his gift of his Son to be the propitiation for the sins of the world, and the offer of salvation to men without distinction, on the ground of Christ's perfect sacrifice, are matters which have been and continue to be regarded by this church as integral in the system of gospel truth, and to which due prominence ought ever to be given.

2. "That the doctrine of the divine decrees, including the doctrine of election to eternal life, is held in connection and harmony with the truth that God is not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance, and that he has provided a salvation sufficient for all, adapted to all, and offered to all in the gospel; and also with the responsibility of every one for his dealing with the free and unrestricted offer of eternal life.

3. "That the doctrine of man's total depravity, and of his loss of all ability of will to any spiritual good apart from saving grace, is not held as implying such a condition of man's nature as would affect his responsibility under the law of God and the gospel, or that he does not experience those strivings and restraining influences of the Spirit of God, or that he cannot perform actions in any sense good; although actions which do not spring from a renewed heart are not spiritually good or holy,—such as accompany salvation.

4. "That while none are saved except through the election of Christ and by the grace of his Holy Spirit who worketh when and where and how he pleaseth him; while the duty of sending the gospel to the heathen, who are saved in ignorance, sin, and misery, is clear and imperative; and while the outward and ordinary means of salvation for those capable of being called by the Word are the ordinances of the gospel,—in accepting the Standards, it is not required to be held that any who die in infancy are lost, or that God may not extend his grace to an unregenerate child, who are very characteristic. The Longer Catechism is, next to Luther's Small Catechism and the Heidelberg Catechism, the most extensively-used catechism in Protestant Christendom. It exceeds all other Catechisms by the terse brevity and precision of the questions and answers, and differs from most by the following peculiarities: (1) It embodying principles, but appended "because it is a brief sum of the Christian faith, agreeable to the word of God, and anciently received in the churches of Christ."

5. "That in regard to the doctrine of the Civil Magistracy and duty of the civil magistrate to support religion, and to punish heresy.

The American Presbyterians adopted the Westminster Confession and Catechisms at first without alteration, but with a liberal construction, "as being, in all the essential and necessary articles, good forms of sound words and systems of Christian doctrine" (Synod of Philadelphia, Sept. 17, 1729). After the Revolutionary War, however, it became necessary to change the articles on church polity, and to adapt them to the volume of the Church and State. Such changes were made in chaps. xx., xxxiii, 5, xxxi, 1 and 2, and adopted in the Synod of Philadelphia, May 29, 1788. (See the changes in Schaff's Creeds, i. 806 sqq.) The Protestant-Episcopal Church had to make similar changes in the Thirty-Nine Articles, which were the basis of the Church of England; for all the creeds of the sixteenth century imply the union of Church and State, and the duty of the civil magistrate to support religion, and to punish heresy.
the Catechisms by Vincent, Watson, Flavel, Fisher, Willson, Brown, MAir, Green, and many others; Alexander Taylor Innes: The Law of Creeds in Scotland, Edinburgh, 1867; Alexander F. Mitchell (of St. Andrew's); The Westminster Confession of Faith, Edinburgh, 3d ed., 1867 (comp. also the valuable Introduction to his edition of the Minutes, Edinburgh, 1874); Schaff: Creeds of Christendom, i. 783 sqq. and iii. 597 sqq.; the editions of the Confession and the Catechisms published by the Scotch Presbyterian Assemblies and the Presbyterian Board in Philadelphia. Niemeyer published a Latin translation as an appendix to his collection of the Reformed Confessions, 1840.

II. THE DIRECTORY OF PUBLIC WORSHIP. This was prepared during 1644, sanctioned by the English Parliament Jan. 3, 1645, approved by the Scotch Assembly and Parliament in February, 1645, and published in the same year in London and Edinburgh. It was intended to be a substitute for the Anglican Book of Common Prayer; but, instead of prescribing liturgical forms, it gives minute directions and suggestions to the minister how to conduct public worship.

III. THE DIRECTORY OF GOVERNMENT AND DISCIPLINE. This sets forth the principles of Presbyterian church polity, on which see the art. Presbyterianism and the literature there given. The debates of the Assembly on church government will probably be published soon by Professor Mitchell, from the Minutes in Dr. Williams's library. PHILIP SCHAFF.

WESTPHAL, Joachim, b. in Hamburg in 1510 or 1511; d. there Jan. 16, 1574. He studied theology at Wittenberg, under Luther and Melanchthon; visited, also, the universities of Jena, Erfurt, Marburg, Heidelberg, Strassburg, and Basel; and was appointed preacher at the Church of St. Catherine, in his native city, in 1541, and superintendent in 1571. He began his polemical activity by partaking in the controversy occasioned by the Leipzig Interim; and siding with Flacius, and attacking Melanchthon, he wrote two pamphlets on the question of true and false adiaphora,—Historia utilitatis Aarom's, etc. (Magdeburg, 1549), and Explicatio generalis, etc. (Hamburg, 1550). But his great controversial exploit was the contest he raised between the Reformed Congregation of foreigners in London and Edinburgh, under the direction of professor Mitchell, from the Minutes in Dr. Williams's library. PHILIP SCHAFF.

WESTPHALIA, The Peace of, ending the Thirty Years' War, was signed Oct. 14, 1648. The preliminaries were agreed upon as early as December, 1641; but the treacherous equivocations of the emperor, the jealousies between Sweden and France (who had different and sometimes opposite interests to defend), and the almost incredible haggling between the powers concerning rank and ceremony, prevented the congress from actually beginning its work until April, 1645. One part of the congress, consisting of deputies of the emperor, Sweden, and princes of the empire, sat at Osnabruck, a city of Westphalia, and finished its work Aug. 8, 1648; the other part, consisting of deputies of the emperor, France, and other foreign powers concerned, sat at Münster, a neighboring city, and finished its work Sept. 17. The complete instrument of peace was actually signed at Munster, Dec. 10, 1648.

Leaving entirely out of consideration the merely political elements of the negotiations, and confining ourselves to the purely religious and ecclesiastical questions, the two general points of agreement were the confirmation of the peace of Augsburg, settling the relations between the Roman Catholics and the Protestants within the boundaries of the German Empire, and the establishment of full equality between the two Protestant churches,—the Lutheran and the Reformed. Of the special points of the treaty, two are of particular interest,—one concerning the right of possession with respect to certain ecclesiastical estates and revenues, and the other concerning the right of the prince to reform the confession of faith within the boundaries of his territory. In order to arrive at an agreement, it was decided to fix Jan. 1, 1624, as a norm from which to proceed; so that a prince might, if he chose, confiscate monasteries, or other kinds of ecclesiastical estate and revenue which at that day were in the possession of the Protestants, should be ceded to them; while, on the other hand, any kind of ecclesiastical property which they had acquired after that date should be returned to the Roman-Catholic Church, and vice versa. Of course, such a rule could not be carried out with any degree of strictness without harshness. It seems, however, that the general result of the negotiations gave satisfaction to both the parties concerned. More difficult was the second point. The maxim, ex filio, etc., ejus religia, which forms the basis of the so-called "Territorial System," had in Germany given rise to many despotc acts, entailing much suffering and endless confusion. More than once a prince had, by one stroke of the pen, changed the confession of his country from Lutheranism to Calvinism, or from Calvinism to Lutheranism; and generally the stroke of the pen had to be followed up with exile, confiscation of property, imprisonment, and the stake. It was now decided that those who on the day mentioned held a certain right of worship should continue to hold it, irrespective of the prince's jus reformæ, and that every church who at that time had acquired no such right were still at the mercy of their prince.

It must be noticed that all these stipulations were valid only for the German Empire, but not for the hereditary Austrian possessions of the emperor. Some of the great feudal lords of Silesia, the dukes of Brieg, Liegnitz, Münsterberg, Oels, and the city of Breslau, obtained certain privileges from the emperor; but with respect to his other subjects no security, not even a promise of toleration, was given. At the signing of the treaty at Münster, the papal legate, Fabricius Chigi, formally protested; and the protest was followed up by the bull Zelo Domus Dei, Nov. 26, 1648. But the protest had no influence whatever, nor was it even considered by the papal (Innocent X.) and the Roman curia. The question of claims, however, was decided that those who on the day mentioned held a certain right of worship should continue to hold it, irrespective of the prince's jus reformæ, and that every church who at that time had acquired no such right were still at the mercy of their prince.

It must be noticed that all these stipulations were valid only for the German Empire, but not for the hereditary Austrian possessions of the emperor. Some of the great feudal lords of Silesia, the dukes of Brieg, Liegnitz, Münsterberg, Oels, and the city of Breslau, obtained certain privileges from the emperor; but with respect to his other subjects no security, not even a promise of toleration, was given. At the signing of the treaty at Münster, the papal legate, Fabricius Chigi, formally protested; and the protest was followed up by the bull Zelo Domus Dei, Nov. 26, 1648. But the protest had no influence whatever, nor was it even considered by the papal (Innocent X.) and the Roman curia. The question of claims, however, was decided that those who on the day mentioned held a certain right of worship should continue to hold it, irrespective of the prince's jus reformæ, and that every church who at that time had acquired no such right were still at the mercy of their prince.

It must be noticed that all these stipulations were valid only for the German Empire, but not for the hereditary Austrian possessions of the emperor. Some of the great feudal lords of Silesia, the dukes of Brieg, Liegnitz, Münsterberg, Oels, and the city of Breslau, obtained certain privileges from the emperor; but with respect to his other subjects no security, not even a promise of toleration, was given. At the signing of the treaty at Münster, the papal legate, Fabricius Chigi, formally protested; and the protest was followed up by the bull Zelo Domus Dei, Nov. 26, 1648. But the protest had no influence whatever, nor was it even considered by the papal (Innocent X.) and the Roman curia. The question of claims, however, was decided that those who on the day mentioned held a certain right of worship should continue to hold it, irrespective of the prince's jus reformæ, and that every church who at that time had acquired no such right were still at the mercy of their prince.

It must be noticed that all these stipulations were valid only for the German Empire, but not for the hereditary Austrian possessions of the emperor. Some of the great feudal lords of Silesia, the dukes of Brieg, Liegnitz, Münsterberg, Oels, and the city of Breslau, obtained certain privileges from the emperor; but with respect to his other subjects no security, not even a promise of toleration, was given. At the signing of the treaty at Münster, the papal legate, Fabricius Chigi, formally protested; and the protest was followed up by the bull Zelo Domus Dei, Nov. 26, 1648. But the protest had no influence whatever, nor was it even considered by the papal (Innocent X.) and the Roman curia. The question of claims, however, was decided that those who on the day mentioned held a certain right of worship should continue to hold it, irrespective of the prince's jus reformæ, and that every church who at that time had acquired no such right were still at the mercy of their prince.

It must be noticed that all these stipulations were valid only for the German Empire, but not for the hereditary Austrian possessions of the emperor. Some of the great feudal lords of Silesia, the dukes of Brieg, Liegnitz, Münsterberg, Oels, and the city of Breslau, obtained certain privileges from the emperor; but with respect to his other subjects no security, not even a promise of toleration, was given. At the signing of the treaty at Münster, the papal legate, Fabricius Chigi, formally protested; and the protest was followed up by the bull Zelo Domus Dei, Nov. 26, 1648. But the protest had no influence whatever, nor was it even considered by the papal (Innocent X.) and the Roman curia. The question of claims, however, was decided that those who on the day mentioned held a certain right of worship should continue to hold it, irrespective of the prince's jus reformæ, and that every church who at that time had acquired no such right were still at the mercy of their prince.

It must be noticed that all these stipulations were valid only for the German Empire, but not for the hereditary Austrian possessions of the emperor. Some of the great feudal lords of Silesia, the dukes of Brieg, Liegnitz, Münsterberg, Oels, and the city of Breslau, obtained certain privileges from the emperor; but with respect to his other subjects no security, not even a promise of toleration, was given. At the signing of the treaty at Münster, the papal legate, Fabricius Chigi, formally protested; and the protest was followed up by the bull Zelo Domus Dei, Nov. 26, 1648. But the protest had no influence whatever, nor was it even considered by the papal (Innocent X.) and the Roman curia. The question of claims, however, was decided that those who on the day mentioned held a certain right of worship should continue to hold it, irrespective of the prince's jus reformæ, and that every church who at that time had acquired no such right were still at the mercy of their prince.

It must be noticed that all these stipulations were valid only for the German Empire, but not for the hereditary Austrian possessions of the emperor. Some of the great feudal lords of Silesia, the dukes of Brieg, Liegnitz, Münsterberg, Oels, and the city of Breslau, obtained certain privileges from the emperor; but with respect to his other subjects no security, not even a promise of toleration, was given. At the signing of the treaty at Münster, the papal legate, Fabricius Chigi, formally protested; and the protest was followed up by the bull Zelo Domus Dei, Nov. 26, 1648. But the protest had no influence whatever, nor was it even considered by the papal (Innocent X.) and the Roman curia. The question of claims, however, was decided that those who on the day mentioned held a certain right of worship should continue to hold it, irrespective of the prince's jus reformæ, and that every church who at that time had acquired no such right were still at the mercy of their prince.

It must be noticed that all these stipulations were valid only for the German Empire, but not for the hereditary Austrian possessions of the emperor. Some of the great feudal lords of Silesia, the dukes of Brieg, Liegnitz, Münsterberg, Oels, and the city of Breslau, obtained certain privileges from the emperor; but with respect to his other subjects no security, not even a promise of toleration, was given. At the signing of the treaty at Münster, the papal legate, Fabricius Chigi, formally protested; and the protest was followed up by the bull Zelo Domus Dei, Nov. 26, 1648. But the protest had no influence whatever, nor was it even considered by the papal (Innocent X.) and the Roman curia. The question of claims, however, was decided that those who on the day mentioned held a certain right of worship should continue to hold it, irrespective of the prince's jus reformæ, and that every church who at that time had acquired no such right were still at the mercy of their prince.
merely an abstract of them, and appended it to his Critical Examination of the Credibility of Chronicles (Jena, 1806) as an avowed supplement to Vater's book on the Pentateuch. De Wette charged intentional alterations and additions in a predominantly levitical and hierarchical spirit upon the Old Testament history. But so far as the New Testament is concerned, his best critical work (seven editions were published during his lifetime; 8th ed. by E. Schrader; Basel, 1825-29). Another series was published after his death (1849). In 1846 he issued the first part of his unfinished Bible History, or History of Revelation. In 1836 he began, and in 1848 he finished, his renowned Concise Exegetical Commentary on the New Testament, — a work marked by breastly brevity and precision and the most exact
and accurate scholarship.

The numerous works already mentioned make up, after all, only a partial list of the writings of this extraordinary and prolific genius. Reviews, criticisms, essays, lectures, sermons, addresses, pamphlets, works applied upon (Berlin, 1823, 1824, 4 vols.),
and upon Religion, its Essence, its Manifestations,
and its Influence upon Life (1827). There, also,
he preached to a select but highly appreciative audience, and published five collections of sermons (Basel, 1825-29). Another series was published after his death (1849). In 1846 he issued the first part of his unfinished Bible History, or History of Revelation. In 1836 he began, and in 1848 he finished, his renowned Concise Exegetical Commentary on the New Testament, — a work marked by breastly brevity and precision and the most exact
and accurate scholarship.

The numerous works already mentioned make up, after all, only a partial list of the writings of this extraordinary and prolific genius. Reviews, criticisms, essays, lectures, sermons, addresses, pamphlets, works applied upon (Berlin, 1823, 1824, 4 vols.),
and upon Religion, its Essence, its Manifestations,
and its Influence upon Life (1827). There, also,
he preached to a select but highly appreciative audience, and published five collections of sermons (Basel, 1825-29). Another series was published after his death (1849). In 1846 he issued the first part of his unfinished Bible History, or History of Revelation. In 1836 he began, and in 1848 he finished, his renowned Concise Exegetical Commentary on the New Testament, — a work marked by breastly brevity and precision and the most exact
and accurate scholarship.

The numerous works already mentioned make up, after all, only a partial list of the writings of this extraordinary and prolific genius. Reviews, criticisms, essays, lectures, sermons, addresses, pamphlets, works applied upon (Berlin, 1823, 1824, 4 vols.),
and upon Religion, its Essence, its Manifestations,
and its Influence upon Life (1827). There, also,
he preached to a select but highly appreciative audience, and published five collections of sermons (Basel, 1825-29). Another series was published after his death (1849). In 1846 he issued the first part of his unfinished Bible History, or History of Revelation. In 1836 he began, and in 1848 he finished, his renowned Concise Exegetical Commentary on the New Testament, — a work marked by breastly brevity and precision and the most exact
and accurate scholarship.

But his days in Berlin were numbered.
Taking a great interest in public affairs, he wrote a letter to the mother of an Erlangen student, Karl Ludwig Sand (who murdered in cold blood August von Kotzebue, a determined foe to liberalism), in which, while expressing deep abhorrence at the crime which had torn his city, at the same time he clearly denied the Davidic origin given to man psalms, their early dates, and also that the his torical and theological opinions, early embraced and worked out, and faithfully adhered to through life. These will be best read in his Uber Religion u. Theologie, Erlauterungen zum Lehrbuch der Dogmatik (Berlin, 1815, new edition, 1821).
theism of the Kantian criticism forms the basis of De Wette's doctrinal system; but he leans visibly towards Jacobis theory of religion as feeling. He makes a sharp distinction between knowledge and feeling, and the one to the other belongs only by accident. The former has to do only with finite things; while the infinite must be grasped by faith under the form of feeling.—devotion, enthusiasm, resignation, etc.
The infinite is revealed by the finite in a symboli-cal manner. The whole historical revelation is a symbol in which the eternal and supersensuous ideas have found their expression. The miracle is a cross to the understanding, but as a symbol it shows its meaning. The dogma is inaccessible to the understanding, but opens itself to the intuition; for intuition is the only means of conception when the object is a symbol. All religious conception is consequently esthetical, and this aesthetical elevation above the merely intelligible is to De Wette the only tenable form of supranaturalism. De Wette was pre-eminently an ethical theologian. He closely connected dogmas with ethics, and made ethical considerations dec-cisive in judging other dogmas. He held fast to the personality of Christ, and in the preface to his Commentary on Revelation made use of the fol-dowing remarkable language: "I know that there is salvation in no other name but the name of Jesus Christ and him crucified; and that there is nothing higher for humanity than the God-man hood realized in him, and the kingdom of God planted by him. . . . Christianity must become life and deed." This was his dying testimony.

LIT.—See HAGENBACH: Lichtenreide, Basel, 1849, and Akademische Gedichtnissrede, Leipzig, 1850; SCHENKEL: W. M. L. de Wette und die Beleutung seiner Theologie für unsere Zeit, Schaffhausen, 1849; LÜCKE: W. M. L. de Wette zu freundsechter Erinnerung, Hamburg, 1850;
WIEGAND: W. M. L. de Wette, Erfurt, 1877; R. STÄHELIN: W. M. L. de Wette nach seiner theologischen Wirksamkeit u. Bedeutung gescbildert, WETZER, Heinrich Joseph, joint editor, with Welte, of the great Roman-Catholic theological encyclopedia; b. at Anzeafahr, Hessia, March 19, 1801; d. in Freiburg, Nov. 5, 1853. His favorite study was Oriental philology; and this he proscutved at Marburg, Tubingen, and Paris. In 1824 he received from Freiburg the degrees of doctor of theology and canon law, and became extraordinary professor of Oriental philology in that university, 1828, and ordinary, 1830. He joined Van Ess in his translation of the Old Testament, Sulzbach, 1840. In 1846 he began the issue of the encyclopaedia with which his name and that of the co-editor, Benedikt Welte, are indissolubly connected. The first volume was completed 1847.

Wetzer put all his time, strength, and learning at the disposal of the work, and the result was eminently satisfactory. The encyclopaedia of Wetzer and Welte is authoritative, fair-minded, and, for a Roman-Catholic work, highly polished. It has been mentioned by Dr. Fuhrer, The Elements of Logic. The latter book had already substantially appeared in the shape of an article in the Encyclopaedia Metropolitana. By it he revived the study of logic in Oxford, and won great fame;
for his book was extensively used as a text-book in England and America. It contained no novelties, rather it was a clear presentation of the Aristotelian-scholastic logic. Next came his Elements of Rhetoric (1829), which likewise has been widely used and much prized. In the same year appeared his second series of essays, On some of the Difficulties in the Writings of the Apostle Paul, and in some of the Other Parts of the New Testament. In the second edition (1830) he inserted an essay, Thoughts on the Sabbath, which he also published separately. He gave great offence by opposing the current views. In 1830 ap-ppeared his third series of essays, The Errors of Romanism traced to their Origin in Human Nature.
It is the best antidote to Roman-Catholic error yet published. By these different writings, and by his lectures and sermons, Whately had given evidence of peculiar fitness for the academic life, and had won fame as a liberal theologian of the most independent kind.

To the great astonishment of every one, and in the face of vehement opposition, Professor Whately was in 1831 promoted by the premier, Earl Grey, to the archbishopric of Dublin, and in the autumn of that year began his service.
He showed in his new position the same absolute indifference to popular opinion or prejudices, the same delight in stinging wit and biting sarcasm, and the same recklessness in stating his convictions, which had already made him so unpopular.
And yet Whately abundantly justified the wisdom of his promotion; for he won his way by the exhibition of a spirit of independence and kindness toward all. As archbishop of Dublin the Catholics by virtue of his office succeeded in twenty years' long-continued efforts in the cause of popular education, by his services in stemming the tide toward Rome, and by his interest in, and self-sacrificing labor for, all that tended to make Ireland better in body and soul.
As primate of Ireland, he sat in the Privy COUNCIL of Lords, and made many speeches, which are noticeable for their independence. Thus he advocated a revision of the Liturgy, a revision of the Authorized Version of the Bible, the abrogation of the prohibition to marry a deceased wife's sister, the emancipation of Jews (cf. Speech on Jewish Disabilities, 1833) and Roman Catholics. Whatley's theological stand-point was substantially that of rational supernaturalism. He was, however, no creative genius, but followed, in his usual independent way, the direction of Paley. He left no systematic treatise; yet his principal ideas are easily gathered from his numerous essays, sermons, charges, and speeches; and the living proof of his great influence upon English theology is the Broad Church party. The limpid clearness of his style, and his soberness and impartiality, demand a word of recognition. In his theological writings he ever quietly opposed Tractarianism. The following are the principal points of his distinctive teaching—between Reason and Revelation. — What reason can discover is not revealed. What it cannot discover, and yet is not contrary to it, may be made an article of faith by proof from particular passages of Scripture. What is contrary to reason can only be so made by the most disputable evidence. While believing in the right and necessity of a revelation, he found a place for reason within revelation's limits, and a duty for it,—to find out the truth. Whatley was a genuine disciple of the "evidential" school. Faith is to him the conclusion drawn from historical premises. 2. The Scriptures. — Revelation is to be distinguished from mere matters of history, etc. The former is infallible, inspired, if not verbally, at least substantially. The peculiarities of Scripture, its omissions, etc., are to be referred to the special guidance of the Holy Spirit. Its contents are practical truths expressed in popular language. The Bible is to be interpreted as the persons immediately addressed would understand it. There is no infallible interpretation; but the effort should be to get at this primitive understanding by a study of the circumstances and religious ideas and customs of the first Christians. (The merits of historical and grammatical exegesis.) 3. Doctrine of Election. — The Christian's Duly with respect to the Established Government and the Laws, 1821, and The Kingdom of Christ, 1841.) The Christian revelation is substantially a revelation of the truth in the words and example of Christ. Christianity is, on the other hand, a social religion. The kingdom of Christ is a society, whose members may at the same time belong to other societies. Thus the problem of Church and State is solved. Christ has himself given the plan for the society's government, but the execution of this plan lies with the society. It has, like every other society, its officers, who have the right to draw up rules for the admission and expulsion of members. This is the so-called "power of the keys,"—a power which does not reach to the forgiveness of sins, but only to ecclesiastical penances. The essentials of Christianity are of universal, the minor matters, only of relative, importance. The authority of ecumenical councils is not justified by the Bible, which rather recognizes independence among churches. There is no such thing as apostolic succession in the sense of the succession of the Holy Ghost and the efficacy of the sacraments. The true apostolic succession is maintenance of apostolic principles. 7. The Sacraments. — (Cf. Scripture Doctrine concerning the Sacraments, 1857.) Baptism, analogous to circumcision, is the initiatory rite; and infant baptism, with its obligations on the parents, was therefore to be expected, unless it had been expressly prohibited. It is the removal from a state of damnation to a state of grace. The Lord's Supper is symbolic, else the Lord had instructed his disciples otherwise; for they could not have supposed that he gave them his actual body. 8. Every transmission of the Holy Ghost and the efficacy of the sacraments. The true apostolic succession is maintenance of apostolic principles. 7. The Sacraments. — (Cf. Scripture Doctrine concerning the Sacraments, 1857.) Baptism, analogous to circumcision, is the initiatory rite; and infant baptism, with its obligations on the parents, was therefore to be expected, unless it had been expressly prohibited. It is the removal from a state of damnation to a state of grace. The Lord's Supper is symbolic, else the Lord had instructed his disciples otherwise; for they could not have supposed that he gave them his actual body. 8. Every transmission of the Holy Ghost and the efficacy of the sacraments. The true apostolic succession is maintenance of apostolic principles. 7. The Sacraments. — (Cf. Scripture Doctrine concerning the Sacraments, 1857.) Baptism, analogous to circumcision, is the initiatory rite; and infant baptism, with its obligations on the parents, was therefore to be expected, unless it had been expressly prohibited. It is the removal from a state of damnation to a state of grace. The Lord's Supper is symbolic, else the Lord had instructed his disciples otherwise; for they could not have supposed that he gave them his actual body. 8. Every transmission of the Holy Ghost and the efficacy of the sacraments. The true apostolic succession is maintenance of apostolic principles.
Dr. Wheelock's pupils are Sampson Occum (see art.), Joseph Brundt the Indian chief, and his own son John. He wrote Narrative of the Indian Charity School at Lebanon, 1789, and several continuations to it, 1783-78. See his Memoirs by McClure and Parish, 1810. — John Wheelock, D.D., LL.D., Congregational minister and second president of Dartmouth College; b. in Lebanon, Conn., Jan. 28, 1754; d. at Hanover, April 4, 1817. He was graduated from Dartmouth in the first class, 1771; was tutor, 1772-78; served as major and colonel in the Continental Army. On the death of his father (1779) he was chosen successor, and held the position to his death, except from 1815 to 1817, when, in consequence of an ecclesiastical controversy, he was removed. He published Sketches of Dartmouth College, 1816.

WHHEWELL, William, D.D., b. at Lancaster, Eng., May 24, 1794; d. at Cambridge, March 5, 1866. He was an undergraduate, fellow, tutor, and master of Trinity College, Cambridge, 1841, and in 1855 vice-chancellor of the university. He was elected F.R.S. 1829; was professor of mineralogy, 1828-32; professor of moral philosophy, 1835-55. His attainments took a very wide sweep: "Science was his chief forte, and omniscience his foible." Probably his most valuable book is his History of the Inductive Science, 1837; his most widely read, Essay on the Plurality of Worlds, 1853. Valuable also are his Lectures on Systematic Morality (1846), Lectures on the History of Moral Philosophy (1852), and The Platonic Dialogues for English Readers (1859-63, 3 vols.). See Account of his Writings, with Selections from his Literary and Scientific Correspondence, edited by Isaac Todhunter, London, 1876, 2 vols.

WHICHCOTE, Benjamin, one of the most eminent of the "Cambridge Platonists," or, as they were sometimes called, "Latitudinarians," of the seventeenth century (a party which also included such men as Cudworth, Wilkins, More, and Worthington); was b. March 11, 1609; and d. May, 1683. He was descended from an ancient family, and was the sixth son of Christopher Whichcote, Esq., of Whichcote Hall in the county of Salop, and parish of Stoke. His mother was the family, and was the sixth son of Christopher Whichcote, Esq., of Whichcote Hall in the county of Salop, and parish of Stoke. His mother was the daughter of Edward Fox, Esq., of Greet, in the same county. Of his training in boyhood nothing is known. In 1626 he was sent to Emmanuel College, Cambridge. He took his degree of B.A. in 1629, and of M.A. in 1633. In the latter year he became fellow of his college, where he appears to have remained as tutor till 1643. In that year he was presented to the college living of North Cadbury in Somersetshire; but, before he had time to settle himself in this new sphere of duty, he was recalled (1644) to Cambridge, having been offered, and, after some hesitation, accepted, the preferment of the provostship of King's College, in room of Dr. Collins, who had been ejected by the Parliament. He had been brought up under Puritan influences, but can hardly be said to have belonged to that or any other ecclesiastical party; and when he returned to Cambridge to occupy a prominent position in the university, it was to use the words to Principal Tulloch, as "a thoughtful and independent student in religious matters than either as a Puritan or an Anglo-Catholic," that he took his place, and became a power in the university.

The date of the event just referred to, namely, Whichcote's appointment to King's College, marks the rise of the new philosophical and religious movement with which he is identified. Cambridge Latitudinarianism or Platonism, as a system, must be estimated by the works of its most eminent representatives, and may be seen more fully to indicate the Puritan view of the school in question as expressed in the letters of Whichcote's Puritan friend Tuckney, master of Emmanuel. Tuckney does not like Whichcote's "mode of preaching, the philosophical rational style . . . in contrast to the "spiritual, plain, powerful ministry" for which Cambridge had been [formerly] distinguished." He goes on:

"Whilst you were fellow here [in Cambridge], you were cast into the company of very learned and ingenious men, who I fear, at least some of them, studied other authors more than the Scriptures, and Plato and his scholars above others . . . and hence in part hath run a vein of doctrine, which diverge very able and worthy men — whom from my heart I much love and admire — are, I fear, too much given to the power of Nature [are] too much advanced. Reason hath too much given to it in the mysteries of faith. . . . — a revelation much talked of, which hath sometimes very unseemly language given it; yet much said of the one, and very little or nothing of the other. This was not Paul's manner of preaching."

To this must be added the opinion of Principal Tulloch as to the peculiar position of Whichcote:

"He stood at the head of the Cambridge thought of his time. He moved the university youth with a force which Tuckney and others failed to imitate. He inspired the highest intellect which it was destined for Jesus to give, only with a little of Christ added. No: a Platonic faith unites to God. Inherent righteousness [is] so preached, as if with the prejudice of insuperable weakness, which sometimes very unseemly language given it; yet much said of the one, and very little or nothing of the other. This was not Paul's manner of preaching."

He continued his university career till the Restoration, when, though clearly distinguished from them in many ways, he shared the fate of the Puritan leaders, and was removed from his provostship by the special order of the king. When the Act of Uniformity was passed, he adhered, however, to the church, and in 1662 he was appointed to the cure of St. Anne's, Blackfriars, London. This church was burned down in the great fire of 1666, when he returned to a former preferment at Milton in Cambridgeshire, and in 1668 was promoted to the vicarage of St. Lawrence Jewry, where he passed his last years.

Four volumes of Discourses, and a series of Moral and Religious Aphorisms collected from his manuscripts, and his Correspondence, comprise all his works.

According to the editor of his Correspondence, "he was married, but I cannot learn to whom." He left no children. Tillocton preached his funeral sermon. Baxter numbers him with "the best and ablest of the conformists." Burnett describes him as a man of a rare temper, very mild and obliging. He had, Burnett says, "credit with some that had credit in the late times, but made all the use of it he could to protect good men of all persuasions. He was much for liberty of conscience; and being disgusted with the dry, systematical way of those times, he studied to raise those who conversed with him to a nobler set of thoughts."

Whiston, William; as theologian, a leading defender of Arianism in England; as mathematician, a scholar of Sir Isaac Newton; a very prolific and eccentric writer; b. at Norton, in Leicestershire, Dec. 9, 1672; d. in London, Aug. 22, 1752. He was educated at Cambridge, entered holy orders, and was chaplain of the bishop of Norwich. During his period of service he wrote A New Theory of the Earth, from its Original to the Consummation of all Things, 1698, 6th ed., 1755. He was a Lowsofter, Suffolk, in 1698, and in 1703 Sir Isaac Newton's successor as professor of mathematics at Cambridge. In 1702 he published A Short View of the Chronology of the Old Testament and of the Harmony of the Four Evangelists, in 1706, An Essay on the Revelation of St. John, in 1708, The Accomplishment of Scripture Prophecies (cf. The Literal Accomplishment, etc., 1724); in 1709, Sermons and Essays; in 1710, Prelectiones physico-mathematicae, sive philosophia clarissimi Newtoni mathematica illustrata, quickly Englished, and which first popularized Newtonian ideas. But his stay at Cambridge was destined to be abruptly terminated. In 1708 he prepared an essay upon the Apostatical Constitutions of Clemens Romanus, in which he endeavored to prove that Arianism was the dominant faith in the first two centuries, and maintained that the Constitutions was the "most sacred of the canonical books of the New Testament. This essay was rejected by the chancellor to be printed; hence Whiston's ardent advocacy of his opinions rendered his heterodox incapable of concealment, and he was accordingly tried, and expelled the university in 1710. He passed the rest of his days in London. His next publication was Primitive Christianity Reviewed (1711, 1712, 5 vols.), in which he printed the essay referred to, gave text and translation of the Constitutions, and translations of the Ignation Epistles, the Second Book of Esdras, the Patriarch references to the Trinity, and the Recognitions of Clement, prefacing these with an account of his treatment at Cambridge and by convocation, and closing with observations on Dr. Samuel Clarke's Scripture Doctrine of the Trinity, and the proceedings of convocation in his own case. He showed his zeal for "Primitive Christianity" by organizing a society for its promotion; but as the more cautious Arians, noticeable Dr. Clarke himself, declined to join it, in a few years it died out. In 1722 Whiston accepted Baptist and Millenarian tenets (placing the millennium and the restoration of the Jews in 1776); yet he did not leave the Established Church until 1747, when he could no longer endure to hear read the, to him, hateful Athanasian Creed. He then set up a "Primitive Christian" congregation in his own house, and prepared for its use the Book of Common Prayer, "reduced nearer the primitive standard" (2d ed., 1750). His enthusiastic spirit led him into many freaks, and his fancy overmastered his critical judgment. Still one must admire the manly openness and truthfulness of his character, the consistency of his life, and the straightforwardness of his conduct. He seems to have had little influence upon his time. Many were attracted to him; but his peculiar, not to say dangerous, views, and great self-assertiveness, soon drove them away. By one piece of work, out of the many which proceeded from his learned brain and busy pen, he has made himself familiar to thousands,—his translation of Josephus (1730), which has appeared in innumerable subsequent editions, and never been superseded. As a curiosity, may be mentioned his Primitive New Testament, 1745, translated from the Codex Bezae in Gospels and Acts, from the Clermont manuscript for the Pauline Epistles, and from the Codex Alexandrinus (ed. Mill) for the Catholic Epistles. See his Memoirs, Written by Himself, 1740–90, 5 vols., and the Life of Whiston, Britannica, s.v., Theodor Chisholm.

Whitaker, William, D.D., b. at Holme, Lancashire, 1548; d. at Cambridge, Dec. 4, 1595. He was graduated at Cambridge, where he was successively fellow of Trinity College; Regius Professor of divinity, 1575; chancellor of St. Paul's, 1580; and master of St. John's College, 1586. He was a man of great learning, very staunch in his Protestantism and Calvinism. Among his polemical works may be mentioned Disputatio de sacra scriptura, Cambridge, 1588 (Eng. trans., A Disputation on Holy Scripture against the Papists, especially Bellerine and Stapleton, ed. for Parker Society, 1849); An Answer to the Ten Reasons of Edward Campian, the Jesuit (Eng. trans. from Latin of 1581), London, 1606.

Whitby, The Council of, was convened in 684 by King Oswy for the purpose of settling the questions of the time of the celebration of Easter, and to which the shape of the tunsae, etc., concerning the different opinions and customs prevailed among the Roman and the Iro-Scottish ecclesiastics. On the Roman side, Wilfrid spoke; on the Iro-Scottish, Colman. The former was victorious. The latter left the country with most of his monks. But from that day the English Church took up a new direction in its course of development,—a direction towards Rome,—and the doom of the Iro-Scottish Church was sealed.

Whitby, Daniel, D.D., b. at Rushden, Northamptonshire, 1638; fellow of Trinity College, Oxford, 1684; prebendary of Salisbury, 1686; rector of St. Edmund's, Salisbury, 1672; d. there March 24, 1726. A man of great learning, he is best remembered for his striking theological changes. He began as an ardent advocate of Protestantism in his book on The Abasurdity and Idolatry of Host Worship (1679); and next appeared, as a champion of ecclesiastical union, The Protestant Reconciler humbly pleading for conciliation to Dissenting brethren in things indifferent (1683), in which he expressed very liberal opinions respecting "things indifferent," contending that they should not be made legal barriers to union among Protestants. But the book raised a storm. The High-Church party were loud in protestations. The university of Oxford ordered the book to be publicly burnt by the university marshal: and the bishop of Salisbury, whose chaplain he then was, obliged him to make humble confession of his two principal "heresies": (1) That it is not legal for the authorities to require in worship anything to be said or used which the older custom did not; and (2) That the Christian duty not to offend the weaker brethren was inconsistent with the legal requirement of these "indifferent things." Accordingly, in the same year, Whity issued a second part of his Protestant Reconciler, in which he commanded the nonconformists to re-enter the Church of England, and endeavored to refute their objections to such a proceeding. His next work of importance was A Paraphrase and Commentary on the New Testament, 1703, in two vols., which now forms part of the familiar Commentary of Patrick, Lowth, and Arnauld, commonly called "Patrick, Lowth, and Whity's Commentary." Whity says his Commentary was the fruit of fifteen years' study. It belongs to the old orthodox school. But scarcely was it out of the press before its changeable author was upon a new line. Influenced by deistic attacks upon the doctrine of original sin, he issued his Discourse (1710) on the "five points" of Calvinism; viz., (1) election, (2) extent of the atonement, (3) divine grace, (4) liberty of the will, (5) perseverance of the saints. In this he revealed his Arminianism. Four years later his treatise on the patristic interpretation of the Scriptures appeared (Dis-seratio de S. Scripturarum interpretatione secundum patrum commentarios, in qua probatur, I. S. S. esse regulam fidei unicam II. Patres non esse idoneos S. S. interpres, 1714), in which he maintained, not only that the Scriptures are the only infallible rule of faith, but that the Fathers are mostly very incompetent exegetes and unsafe guides in theological controversies. This book was intended to show that the controversy upon the Trinity could not be decided by appeal to the Fathers, the councils, nor ecclesiastical tradition. By it the public was prepared for his next theological change. Formerly an "ordained" minister, he became an Arian; had a controversy with Waterland, and in his Last Thoughts, containing his Correction of Several Passages in his Commentary on the New Testament, issued after his death by Dr. Sykes, 1727, retracted his exposition of the trinitarian dogmas, which he declared to be a tissue of absurdities.

The little thin man spent his whole life in his study, and was a child in all worldly matters. His character is very favorably described by An- thony Wood, in Athenae Oxonienses, II. See also Dr. Sykes's sketch of him in Last Thoughts, mentioned above.

THEODOR CHRISTIE.

WHITE, Henry, D.D., Presbyterian; b. at Durham, Greene County, N.Y., June 19, 1800; d. in New-York City, Aug. 25, 1850. He was graduated at Union College, New York, 1824; studied two years in Princeton Theological Seminary. New York was placed at the University of New York, 1828-36, when he became professor of theology in the newly founded Union Theological Seminary, and held this position till his death. He was an excellent teacher and a sound theologian, but he never published anything except a few sermons. See Sprague: An- nals of the American Pulpit, iv., 691 sqq.

WHITE, Henry Kirke, whose pathetic history has won him wider fame, perhaps, than his talents might have commanded during a longer life, was born at Nottingham, March 21, 1756; managed to educate himself while apprenticed to a lawyer; took to verse at fourteen; published Clifton Grove, 1803; entered St. John's College, Cambridge, 1804; and, after two years of severe and successful study, died of consumption, Oct. 19, 1806. His Remains were published in 2 vols., by Southey, 1807. His few hymns were included in Dr. Collyer's Collection, 1812, and have been extensively used.

WHITE, Joseph, D.D., Church-of-England divine, and Orientalist, b. at Stroud, Gloucestershire, 1746; d. at Oxford, May 22, 1814. He was educated at Oxford, where he was successively fellow of Wadham College, 1774; Laudian Professor of Arabic, 1775; Bampton Lecturer, 1784; Regius Professor of Hebrew, 1802; and canon of Christ Church. His works are of great value. Among them are an edition of the whole Harecan version, 1773-1803, 4 vols. (see Bible Versions, p. 267); A View of Christianity and Mohammedanism (Bampton Lectures), 1784; Dia- tessaron (with Greek text), 1799, new ed., 1856 (see Diatessaron, p. 834).

WHITE, William, D.D. This person, so generally regarded as the "Father" of the Protestant Episcopal Church, was the son of Col. Thomas White of London, Eng., and Esther Hewlings of Burlington, N.J., having been born in Philadelphia, March 24, 1747 (O.S.), where, also, he died July 17, 1836. He was educated in the schools and College of Philadelphia, graduating in 1765. At the age of sixteen he decided to become a clergyman; and in 1770 he sailed for England to receive orders, having pursued his theological studies under the direction of leading divines of the church in the city of its birth. Dec. 23, 1770, he was ordained deacon in the Royal Chapel, London, by Dr. Young, bishop of Norwich. Being under age with respect to further advancement, he remained, however, in England, and in 1772, when he was ordained priest by Dr. Terrick, bishop of London. Sailing at once for Philadelphia, and arriving there Sept. 13, he entered upon his duties as assistant minister of Christ Church and St. Peter's. Upon the outbreak of the Revolution he promptly sided with the Colonies, and was chosen chaplain to the Continental Congress in September, 1777. April 19, 1779, he was elected rector of Christ Church, Philadelphia. In the year 1782, before the acknowledgment of American independence, he published his celebrated but poorly understood pamphlet, The Case of the Episcopal Churches in the United States considered, proposing a temporary administration by the presbyters of the church; there being no prospect, at the time, of obtaining the episcopate. Shortly after, however, independence was recognized, when he immediately abandoned the plan. The part taken by the Allenists in the Alienism, and the alienation of the laity into the councils of the church, which, together with the adoption of Articles, was opposed subsequently by Seabury. The counsels of White prevailed when the church was organized. Sept. 14, 1786, he was elected bishop of...

WHITEFIELD.

Pennsylvania, and, Nov. 2, sailed for England, in company with the Rev. Samuel Provoost, who had been elected bishop of New York, receiving consecration with the latter, at the hands of the archbishop of Canterbury, the archbishop of York, and other prelates, in Lambeth Palace, Feb. 4, 1787. He reached New York on Easter Sunday, April 7, 1787. Bishop Seabury had been consecrated for Connecticut by the Scotch non-jurors, Nov. 14, 1784; but the church was not altogether satisfied with that transaction, desiring a threefold succession, through the English line, which was completed by the consecration of the Rev. James Madison of Virginia, at Lambeth, 1790. Three years before, however, Bishop Seabury had passed away. Bishop White exercised the Episcopal Office until his death, having been in orders more than sixty-five years, and standing at the head of the American Church nearly half a century. About twenty-six bishops were consecrated by him. He married Miss Mary Harrison of Philadelphia, in 1773; and his descendants are honorably represented both among the clergy and laity of the church of which, in such an eminent sense, he was the founder. He finally passed away, leaving the Episcopal Office, which, at the beginning of his administration was viewed with distrust, one of the most honored institutions in America. Throughout his entire life he bore an unblemished reputation, bearing his high office with that meekness which formed its great adornment. Bishop White was a man of large and comprehensive views, sound in his theology and churchmanship, temperate in opinion, and wise in his administration, occupying a position in the Church similar to that held by Washington in the State. As a writer he evinced usefulness rather than popularity. Some account of his works may be found in Wilson's Memoir (p. 305), and Sprague's American Pulpit (v. 283). His principal work, and one that will always continue a prime necessity for students, is his Memoirs of the Protestant Episcopal Church, first published in 1820. A second edition appeared in 1836, and third in 1880, with an introduction and notes by the Rev. Geo. H. Keio. Bishop White, the Account of the Meeting of the Descendants of Col. Thomas White of Maryland, Philadelphia, 1879.

B. F. DE COSTA.

WHITEFIELD, George, a famous evangelist; b. in Gloucester, Eng., Dec. 27, 1714, in Bell Inn (of which his father was keeper); d. in Newburyport, Mass., Sept. 20, 1770. His grandfather and great-grandfather on the paternal side were clergymen of the Established Church. He was the youngest of a family of six sons and one daughter. When he was two years of age, his father died, and his mother kept the inn. His own account of his early years, published in 1740, and severely criticized as impudent, exaggerated his youthful follies and vices. He speaks of himself as given to various forms of wickedness, fond of cards, despising instruction, and, when larger, exhibiting a great love for plays. He says, however, that his mother was careful of his education, and that she had sent him to a school near Boston, and returned the next year, with a new impulse, to prepare for college. The religious impressions which he had felt on different occasions were deepened while he was at school the second time. He became attentive to his church duties, and went to Oxford in 1732, resolving to live a holy life. At Oxford he fell in with the Wesleys, joined the famous "Holy Club," observed its rules rigorously, and was enabled, after great distress of mind over his spiritual condition, to testify that the "day-star" which he "had seen at a distance before" "rose in his heart," and to trust that the Spirit of God had sealed him "unto the day of redemption." This was in 1735, and Whitefield was the first of the "Oxford Methodists" to profess conversion. His health being impaired, he left Oxford for a year, returning in March, 1736. He was ordained in the following June. The youthful deacon preached his first sermon in a bucket, with marked effect, and took his degree of B.A. from Oxford the same year. He spent much time among the prisoners in Oxford, preached in London and elsewhere, and at once rose to great prominence as a pulpit orator. Nine of the sermons preached the first year of his ordination were published. The Wesleys had requested him to come to them in Georgia; and he finally resolved to go, but did not sail until the beginning of 1738, just as John Wesley returned. Whitefield spent several months in Georgia, preaching with great acceptance. He sailed for England the same year, to be ordained priest. He found many of the London churches closed to him, because he was considered as erratic and fanatical. The Wesleys had obtained the peace of mind they had so long been seeking, and were preaching very earnestly the doctrine of justification by faith; and they impressed Whitefield, who had been emphasizing the doctrine of the "new birth," with its great importance. He busied himself preaching in such churches as would receive him, and in visiting and working among the Moravians and religious societies in London. Early in 1739 he held a conference with the Wesleys and other Oxford Methodists, and it was arranged that Wesley be ordained in June. Being excluded from the churches, he preached to colliers on Kingswood Hill, in the open air,—a step which he induced Wesley to take, thus establishing an innovation which gave opportunity to the Methodist movement. Whitefield had no lack of hearers. Thousands thronged about him. At Rose Green, a month after his first open-air sermon, twenty thousand persons formed his audience. At Kingswood he laid the foundations of the Kingswood School, which became so important to Methodism. He now began his career as an itinerant evangelist. He visited Wales, and gave an impulse to the movement already begun by Howell Harris. He visited Scotland, and great results followed. He travelled through England, attracting extraordinary attention everywhere. His arraignment of the clergy as "blind guides" roused many to oppose him; and in 1739 no less than forty-nine publications for and against him were issued in London. The hostile feeling preceded him to America. On his second visit to the Colonies, some of the Episcopal churches refused him their pulpit; but other churches were open to him. He preached in Philadelphia and New York, and on his way to Georgia, drawing delighted multitudes everywhere. Visiting New England, the revival which had begun in Northampton in 1736 broke out again, and perhaps Boston never saw a greater awakening. He paid seven visits to America; and the results of his evangelistic tours were shared by the Congregational, the Presbyterian, and the Baptist churches, from Massachusetts to Georgia.

When he was not in America, he was stirring by his mighty eloquence the great audiences that greeted him in England, Scotland, and Wales. He early became Calvinistic in his reviews, and his association with Calvinistic divines in America deepened them. He complained to Wesley of his attacks on the doctrine of election; and there was a short, sharp controversy between them, which led to a temporary alienation. But Whitefield had a noble and generous spirit, and loved Wesley, and neither wished to contend with the other - so a reconciliation took place, and the two great men, the evangelist and the organizer, were henceforth fast friends, though their paths were different. Whitefield was nominally the leader of the Calvinistic Methodists, but he left to others the work of organization.

The result, however, of his embracing Calvinism, was the opening of "a wide field of usefulness, which, without it, neither he nor Wesley could have occupied." So says his impartial Methodist biographer, Tyerman, who also says that his services to Methodism were greater "than Methodists have ever yet acknowledged," and that it is "impossible to estimate" the value of the work he and his "female prelate, the grand, stately, strong-minded, godly, and self-sacrificing Countess of Huntingdon," performed for the Church of England.

In a true cosmopolitan spirit he divided his time between Great Britain and America; with a catholicity as broad as the gospel, he gave his wonderful labors to all denominations. He married, in 1741, a widow, Mrs. Elizabeth James. A son born of this union lived only a short time. He saw little of home-life. His activities were incessant, all-absorbing. He never spared himself, preaching every day in the week, and often three or four times a day. His last sermon was preached in Exeter, Mass., the day before his death. He was ill, and a friend remarked that he was more fit to go to bed than to preach. "Yes," said he; then pausing, he added, "Lord Jesus, I am weary in thy work, but not of it." An immense audience gathered to hear him. At first he labored; but soon all his faculties responded for a last great effort, and he held the multitude spell-bound for two hours. He proceeded to Newburyport the same day. In the evening, as he took his candle to go to bed, many who were gathered in the hall tempted him to an exhortation, which continued till the candle burned out in the socket. The next morning, Sept. 30, 1770, he was dead.

In person Whitefield, as described by Dr. Gillies of Scotland, was graceful, well-proportioned, above the middle size in stature. His eyes were dark blue, small, and sprightly. His complexion was fair, his countenance manly. Both his face and voice were softened with an uncommon degree of sweetness, and he was neat, easy in deportment, and without affectation. He had a strong, musical voice, under wonderful command. Twenty thousand people could hear him. "Every accent of his voice spoke to the ear: every feature of his face, and every motion of his hands, spoke to the eye." His preaching melted Dr. Jonathan Edwards to tears. Benjamin Franklin went to hear him in Philadelphia, and was completely won. He perceived, he wrote, that Whitefield would finish with a collection; and although he had gold, silver, and copper in his pocket, he resolved to give nothing. "But, as the preacher proceeded, 'I began to soften, and concluded to give the copper. Another stroke of his oratory determined me to give the silver; and he finished so admirably, that I emptied my pocket wholly into the collector's dish,—gold and all." Whitefield was once asked for a copy of a sermon to publish. "I have no objection," said he, "if you will print the lightning, thunder, and rainbow with it." The Franklin incident exhibits his great persuasive power. A scene described by Dr. James Hamilton shows how vivid were some of his pictures. Chesterfield was listening while the orator described the sinner as a blind beggar led by a dog. The dog leaving him, he was forced to grope his way, guided only by his staff. "Unconsciously he wanders to the edge of a precipice; his staff drops from his hand, down the abyss, too far to send back an echo; he reaches forward cautiously to recover it; for a moment he poises on vacancy, and — 'Good God!' shouted Chesterfield, 'he is gone,' as he sprang from his seat to prevent the catastrophe.

Wesley's sermon on his departed friend contains a high but just estimate of him. He spoke of Whitefield's "unparalleled zeal," "indescribable activity," "tender-heartedness," "charitableness toward the poor," his "deep gratitude," "tender friendship" (which he himself had tested), his "frankness and openness," "courage and intrepidity," "great plainness of speech," "steadiness," "integrity." "Have we," said Wesley, "read or heard of any person since the apostles, to testify the gospel of the grace of God through so widely extended a space, through so large a part of the habitable world? Have we heard or read of any person who called so many thousands, so many myriads, of sinners to repentance?"

Whitefield's sermons and journals were published in instalments at different periods during his life. His collected works, — comprising about seventy-five sermons, — his journals, and his letters, together with Memoirs of his Life, by Dr. Gillies, were published in London, in 7 vols. 8vo. 1771-72. Dr. Gillies was the first biographer: his latest, and perhaps best, is Tyerman: Life of George Whitefield, London, 1876, 2 vols. 8vo. Lives have also been written by Robert Philip (Lond., 1838, 8vo), J. R. Andrews (1864, 8vo), D. A. Harris (Albany, N. Y., 1866, 8vo). See also Life and Times of the Countess of Huntingdon, Lond., 1840, 2 vols., 8vo; Stevens's History of the Religious Movement of the Eighteenth Century called Methodism, N. Y., 1859-62.

H. E. CARROLL.
1555; ordained priest, 1560; appointed Lady Margaret professor of divinity, 1563; master of Pembroke Hall, master of Trinity College, and then regius professor of divinity, all in the same year, 1567; prebendary of Ely, 1568; dean of Lincoln, 1568; bishop of Worcester, 1577; and in 1583 he was raised to the primacy. During Mary's reign he observed a discreet silence, which enabled him to keep his position; but on the succession of Elizabeth he appeared as the defender of the Church of England, and advocate of extreme opinions respecting her authority. He headed the prelatical party, and for years carried on a controversy with Thomas Cartwright, the great champion of Puritanism (see arts.). When raised to the primacy, Whitgift was in position to carry out repressive measures against the detested Puritan party. He obtained the decree (June 23, 1585) of the Star Chamber (to which he belonged) against liberty of printing, by which no one was allowed to print except in London, Oxford, and Cambridge: no new presses were to be set up, but by license of the primate and the bishop of London; and only matter authorized by the archbishop of Canterbury, or the bishop of London, or their chaplains, could be printed. Persons selling or binding an unauthorized book suffered three months' imprisonment. And this decree was a mere specimen of his proceedings. He determined to uproot Puritanism, and to this end drew up several articles which he well knew the Puritans could not and would not subscribe, particularly one declaring that the Book of Common Prayer contained nothing contrary to the word of God; and, because they would not sign, he summarily suspended them, and in their places appointed inferior, and in some cases, probably without his knowledge, even immoral men. He carried out his programme so imperiously that Lord Burleigh once and again remonstrated with him, but to no purpose. The amount of suffering caused is incalculable. Hundreds of worthy ministers, for no other fault than conscientious scruples against alleged unscriptural and Romanizing practices and doctrines in the Church of England, were deprived of their charges, hurried off to prison, harassed by deferred hopes, and, if they left prison at all, were, after their harsh and unjust treatment, ruined in health and property. The incoming of James I. (1603) did not affect his position nor manners. He was shrewd enough to treat that vain monarch with peculiar respect. In the famous Hampton Court conference, he knelt before him, and even told a falsehood concerning the practice of lay baptism in the Church of England, denying its permissibility in order to give the king a higher idea of that church. But, ere the first Parliament of the new reign met, Whitgift died. His works, consisting mostly of polemical tracts, were edited for the Parker Society by Rev. John Ayre, Cambridge, 1851-54, 3 vols.; and Life, written by Sir George Faule, 1612, and by John Strype, 1718. Cf. Neale's History of the Puritans, and Hook's Lives of the Archbishops of Canterbury.

WHITSUNDAY. See Pentecost.

WHITTEMORE, Thomas, D.D., Universalist clergyman; b. at Boston, Jan. 1, 1800; d. at Cambridge, Mass., March 21, 1861. He was pastor in Cambridgeport, 1822 to 1831; editor and proprietor of the Trumpet, a Universalist religious newspaper, for nearly thirty years, from its commencement in 1828. He was prominent in political and railroad affairs, being president of the Vermont and Massachusetts Railroad, and repeatedly a member of the Massachusetts Legislature. He wrote The Modern History of Universalism, 1830, enlarged edition, 1860; Notes and Illustrations of the Parables of the New Testament, 1832; Plain Guide to Universalism, 1838; Commentary on Revelation (1838) and On Daniel: Life of Walter Balfour, 1853; Life of Hosea Ballou, 1853-55, 4 vols.; Autobiography, 1859.

WHITTENHAM, William Rollinson, D.D., LL.D., D.C.L., b. in New-York City, Dec. 2, 1805; d. at West Orange, N.J., Oct. 15, 1879. He was professor of ecclesiastical history in the General Theological Seminary (where he had been graduated in 1825) from 1835 till 1840, when he was consecrated (Sept. 17) bishop of Maryland. He was one of the scholars of his church, and belonged to the High-Church party. See his Life by W. F. Brand, New York, 1883, 2 vols.

WHITTLESEY, William, Archbishop of Canterbury; b. probably at Whittlesey, near Cambridge; d. at Lambeth, June 6, 1374. He was educated at Cambridge. In 1349, became master of his college, Peterhouse; in 1361, bishop of Rochester; and on Oct. 11, 1368, primate of all England, and metropolitan. He was an unhappy choice, for the times required a vigorous prelate. Edward III. was laying heavy taxes on the people, and especially the clergy, in order to keep up the lavish extravagance of the court, and Whittlesey was weak physically, most of the time an invalid, and destitute of commanding mental gifts. He was, however, sadly conscious of his deficiencies, and conscientiously did his best. See Hook: Lives of the Archbishops of Canterbury, iv. 221 sqq.

WICELIUS, or WITZEL, Georg, b. at Vach, in Hesse, 1501; d. at Mayence, 1673. He studied theology at Erfurt, and went in 1520 to Wittenberg to hear Luther and Melanchthon, but was nevertheless ordained as priest by Bishop Adolph of Merseburg. Appointed vicar in his native town, he preached the doctrine of the Reformation, married, and was expelled in 1526. Driven away by the Peasants' War from Wenigen-Lübnitz in Thuringia, where he had settled, he was, on the recommendation of Luther, appointed pastor of Niemeck, but relapsed into Romanism, began to write with great violence against Luther and Melanchthon, and was expelled in 1530. After some years of uncertain endeavors, he entered the service of Abbot John of Fulda in 1540, published his principal book, Typus ecclesiae prioris, presented his Querela pacis to Charles V. at the diet of Spires (1544), and took part in the drawing-up of the Augsburg Interim. As the Reformation spread, he felt compelled to leave Fuldä, and settled in 1554 at Mayence, where he spent the rest of his life in quiet retirement. See NEWBERY: George Wyclif, Berlin, 1839; KAMPF-SCHULTZ: De G. W., Paderborn, 1856; [SCHMIDT: Georg Witzel, Vienna, 1876].

WICHERN, Johann Heinrich, D.D., the founder of the Inner Mission in Germany (see art.), and one of the foremost Christian philanthropists of the century; b. at Hamburg, April 21, 1808; d. there April 7, 1881. He studied theology in Göttingen and Berlin, and reached the degree of "candidate," and afterwards received the honorary degree of doctor of divinity. On his return home, encouraged by his pious mother, he started a Sunday school for the poorest and wickedest children in the city, and ultimately had five hundred children under his care. It was this school which gave him the idea of the institution which he opened on Nov. 1, 1833, at Horn, a suburb of Hamburg. He called it the "Rough House" (Das Raue Haus). It has served as the pattern of many similar institutions in Germany, France, England, Holland, etc. It is a house for the correction of juvenile offenders. Here these evil-minded and often weak-minded children are received, portioned off into "families" of twelve, placed under the charge of a young workman, and taught a trade. In connection with the Haus there is a book printing, binding, and selling business carried on. The Haus celebrated its fiftieth anniversary in November, 1883. For the education of persons competent to take charge of similar institutions, or to serve in them, there was started in 1845 a "Brotherhood." In 1844 Wichern sent out his FliegenleBldtler ("Flying Leaves"), now the organ of the Inner Mission, in which he urged the duty of laying to heart the misery of our fellow-mortals, and at the same time told the story of his own institutions. His story was eagerly read, and incited many imitators. In 1848, at the Kirchentag (see art.) held at Wittemberg, he presented with such extraordinary eloquence the claim of the sick, the suffering, and the sinful who were their countrymen, that from that hour a new movement on their behalf was begun. This was the so-called "Inner Mission" (see art.), the very name of which is due to Wichern. Under Friedrich Wilhelm IV. (who came to the throne in 1840), Wichern found favor in court-circles, and exerted great influence upon the aristocracy. In 1851 he was commissioned by the Prussian Government to visit the reformatory and correctional institutions in all the provinces of the kingdom, and suggest improvements. In 1858 he was made a member of the council in the department of the interior, and also of the highest church council. In the same year he founded in Berlin the Evangelische Johannistrift, —a similar institution to the Raue Haus. Its twenty-fifth anniversary was celebrated in 1883. He interested himself particularly in prison reform, and also in the relief of the Prussian military during the Seven Years' War. In 1872 he had a stroke of paralysis, from which he never recovered. It prevented him from visiting America as a delegate to the General Conference of the Evangelical Alliance in New York, 1873, for which he had engaged to prepare an essay. Wichern was of commanding person, full of faith and the Holy Ghost, and always made a powerful impression by his speeches at the Church Diet and in the Annual Congress for Inner Missions. He wrote Die innere Mission der deutschen evangelischen Kirche, Hamburg, 1849; Die Behandlung der Verbrecher u. entlassenen Sträflinge, 1853; Der Dienst der Frauen in der Kirche, 1888, 3d ed., 1880. His biography has been written by F. Oldenburg, Hamburg, 1882, and by Dr. Hermann Krümacher, Gotha, 1882.

WICLIF, John, the "Morning Star of the Reformation," b. at Spreswell, one mile from Old Richmond, in the North Riding of Yorkshire, several years, perhaps even ten, earlier than the usual date, 1324; d. at Lutterworth, Dec. 31, 1384.

His Life. — He entered Oxford University about 1335; belonged probably to Balliol College; was graduated about 1345, or perhaps not until 1351; became a fellow of Balliol College, and in 1361 appears as its master. On May 16, 1361, he was nominated by his college, rector of Fillingham, ten miles north-north-west from Lincoln, but continued to reside in Oxford. In the same year he became incumbent of Abbotseye. From Dec. 6, 1365, to March, 1367, he was warden of Canterbury Hall; took the degree of doctor of divinity between 1365 and 1374; and in 1368 exchanged his parish of Fillingham for that of Ludgershall, Buckinghamshire, which he held until his resignation in April, 1374, in order that he might consecrately accept the rectoryship of Lutterworth, Leicestershire, to which he had been nominated by Edward III. But in all these changes he never broke his connection with the university, for there he habitually resided, and there taught and debated. His life up to 1361 is largely conjectural and uncertain, but after that time can be traced by documents. Strangely enough, the first appearance of the learned doctor of theology as a leader was occasioned by politics and patriotism. He defended (1366) before the university, for he certainly shows an intimate acquaintance with its proceedings. On July 26, 1374, Wiclif was appointed by Edward III. a royal commissary in Bruges to conclude such a treaty with the papal nuncios on the pending points (viz., the papal reservations in filling English church offices, encroachments upon the electoral rights of cathedral chapters, and the like) as should at once secure the honor of the church, and uphold the rights of the English crown and realm. But the meeting came to nothing material; for, although the Pope abandoned for the future his claim to the reservation of English church livings, it was only on condition that the king abstained in future from conferring church dignities in the way of simple royal command: hence there was no real ecclesiastical reform. But Wiclif was not to blame for this outcome. He had faithfully strove to advance the popular rights; and his efforts had won enthusiastic recognition from the people and the king, who had called him to successive Parliaments. His very position rendered him the object of hatred to the hierarchy, whose designs he had so persistently opposed. At the Pope, Gregory XI, to put Wiclif down as heretic. The alleged nineteen heresies were to the chancellor, and the university of Oxford. I: 1-5, concerning rights of property and inheritance, which he maintained were dependent upon God's will and grace.; II. 6, 7, 17-19, concerning church property, and its rightful secularization in certain circumstances (e.g., in case the Church should fall into error); III. 8-16, concerning the power of church discipline, which he claimed belonged to every priest, and concerned only God's matters, not temporal goods and revenues. But, ere the five bulls were officially delivered, Edward III. died (June 21, 1377), and so the bull to the king became inept. With his successor, Richard II., Wiclif stood in high favor, and so no adverse action came from the king. It was not until Parliament had been prorogued (Nov. 25, 1377), that a mandate was addressed to the chancellor of Oxford, requiring him to appoint a commission to find out whether Wiclif did advocate the alleged heresies, and also to cite Wiclif within thirty days before the papal commissaries, or their delegates, in St. Paul's Church, London. But since the papal bull had required Wiclif's imprisonment, subject to a point a commission, he was accordingly addressed by the chancellor, with the authority of his primacy to wreck the hopes of the Wycliffites. He skilfully adopted a line of attack likely to attain his end. He first had the doctrines and principles of Wiclif and his adherents condemned by ecclesiastical authority, and then persecuted those who continued to maintain the obnoxious doctrines. The first step was easy. He summoned an assembly of ten bishops, sixteen doctors of laws, thirty doctors of theology, and four bachelors of laws, in the hall of the Dominical Monastery, Blackfriars, London, May 17, 1382, and received the expected verdict. During their session a terrific earthquake shook the city:
WICLIF.

WICLIF.
potal lord; (2) Beneficed priests were compelled to give up to their ecclesiastical superiors all that portion of their revenues in excess of their own necessities, and this was nothing less than a robbery of God's poor; (3) Unbeneficed priests were free to preach the gospel anywhere, and, when opposed by the "clergy of Antichrist," could flee without hinderance. But Wiclif also sent out lay-preachers; and this fact led him to use repeatedly the expression "evangelical" or "apostolical" when referring to his itinerants. They were now not all priests. Oxford was the first centre of this activity, and Leicester the second. Clad in commonest clothing, bare-foot, and staff in hand, they wandered through the surrounding country, preaching as they had opportunity. They opened the Scriptures, and summoned their hearers to repent. They exhorted them to live in Christian brotherhood, peace, and beneficence. But they did not stop here. They depicted the sinful lives of too many of the clergy, and so powerfully, that the hierarchy were alarmed. How thoughtful Wiclif was for his itinerants is manifested by the many sermon outlines and tracts for their benefit found among his literary remains.

His Translation of the Bible. — Before Wiclif sent out his translation, the Psalter was the only complete book of Scripture accessible in English, although other parts had been rendered. The credit of producing the first translation which was intended for popular use is due to Wiclif. How long he was engaged upon this work is unknown. He probably began with several single books of the New Testament. As a preliminary labor may be regarded the translation of the Latin Harmony of the Gospels of Prior Clement of Lanthony, Monmouthshire, written in the second half of the twelfth century. Wiclif translated the Bible from the Vulgate, for he was ignorant of Greek. He rendered the entire New Testament into English; but, ere he had finished, Nicolas of Hereford began upon the Vulgate Old Testament. Wiclif far outstripped him, and when he was compelled to desist, owing to the sentence of excommunication which had been passed upon him. From there on, another hand may be seen upon it, perhaps Wiclif's. In 1382 the entire translation was finished: copies of it, in whole or in part, were made and circulated. But immediately the important work of revision was begun by Wiclif himself and by John Purvey, who carried it on after the former's death; for it was not until 1388 that the Wiclifite version was given out in its revised and much improved form. This version marks an epoch in the development of the English language. His Bible prose is the earliest classic Middle English.

His Theology. — Of Wiclif's doctrinal system it is somewhat difficult to form a complete and fully satisfactory opinion. The principal of the three allegorical characters,—Alithia, Pseudis, and Phrenesis. The first of the interlocutors is a staid theologian; the second, a sophist and infidel; and the third, a ripe and erudite scholar, who decides the questions. The first book treats of the doctrine of God; the second, that of the universe, especially the ideas of matter, man, angels, evil spirits, etc.; the third book contains the Christian morals; and the fourth, which occupies about one-half of the whole work, gives the author's views of the sacraments, the ecclesiastical institutions, eschatology, etc. Besides from the Trialogus, some stray remarks useful for the understanding of Wiclif's doctrinal stand-point may also be gleaned from his minor treatises and popular pamphlets, and from extracts now and then published from his unprinted manuscripts, etc.

The basis of all Wiclif's teaching is his doctrine of the absolute authority of Scripture. He places the Bible infinitely higher than any other book, not only those of the more recent teachers, but also those of the ancient Fathers: yea, he places the Bible infinitely higher than any ordinance of the Roman-Catholic Church. The evidence of this absolute authority is the dignity of Christ as the God-man, and the reason why the Bible is not held in due esteem is owing to the lack of true faith in Christ; for, if we trusted fully in the Lord Christ, that faith would not fail to bring forth in our heart a firm conviction of the authority of the Bible. All other writings, even those of Augustine, are trustworthy only so far as they are founded in Holy Writ: all other truth, except that which depends upon simple observation, can be accepted only so far as it is derived from the Bible. "Even though there were a hundred popes, and all the monks were transformed into cardinals, in matters of faith their opinions would be of no account, unless they were founded on Scripture" (Trial., iv. c. 7). From this maxim sprung the enthusiasm and the energy which produced the first English translation of the Bible.

But Wiclif's doctrine of God is a piece of scholasticism. Instead of planting himself on Scripture, or on the individual Christian self-consciousness, he institutes dialectical processes. He develops ideas, defines notions, etc. More closely characterized, his scholasticism is realism. The infinite is to him not an idea, but a reality. He recoils from the conceptions of God as a mere universale, or a mere individuale, both of which sprang from the principle of nominalism. To him, God is the absolute cause, the mysterious source of all. The doctrine of the Trinity he develops after Augustine and Anselm, without adding any thing of his own, and following closely the method of the schoolmen. But already in his christology a curious contest arises between scholastic dialectics, in which he was trained, and an instinctive craving for a biblico-ethical construction of the idea of the God-man. On the one side he cannot free himself from the common questions, categories, definitions, etc., of the scholastic christology. On the other side he sees very well the hollowness and sterility of the whole proceeding. His third book contains the incarnation from a moral point of view. He loves to set forth Christ as the centre of humanity, and he is inexhaustible in varying the expression of that truth by means of the most manifold ideas and figurative illustrations.

In his cosmology, Wiclif broke through the bounds of scholasticism, mixing up the metaphysical researches concerning the materia prima with various anatomical and pathological questions concerning the structure of the brain, the action of the senses, etc. Of greatest interest is his theological anthropology. Hereditary sin he considers as depending on some moral, and not on any physical condition. He denies that the state of sinfulness is propagated from generation to generation, whatever be the origin of the kernel of human nature is the spirit. To this aspect of anthropology corresponds his general view of evil.
WICLIF.

Who is the originator of evil? Does it come from God? No; for evil has by itself no positive existence: it is only a defectus, a non-ens, a negation of the divine. The single act of sin is certainly a reality, and as certainly an evil, but only so far as it refers to the person who committed it. So far as it enters into the web and woof of objective reality, it ceases to be an evil, and is by God turned into a mediate or secondary good: it becomes a means to an end, something willed by God, and so far as it is a reality, is an act of the will; and evil results from the freedom of the will, which is misused, and turned into a denial of God; in which latter point Wiclif differs from his older contemporary, Thomas of Bradwardine, who, in his rejection of the reality of evil, ended with rejecting the freedom of the human will; (see G. Lechler: De Thoma Bradwardino, Leipzig, 1862). In his doctrine of the church, Wiclif became almost wholly a Protestant. The prevalent ecclesiastical idea of the church as the communion of the clergy, to the exclusion of all non-clergy, he expressly rejected. The church he defines as the communion of the elect; and as he carries back conversion, salvation, and membership of the church, to the election of grace (that is, to the eternal and free counsel of God in Christ), he refutes the assumption, which up till that time was universal, that participation in salvation, and the hope of heaven, were dependent entirely on the mediation of the clergy, to the exclusion of all non-clergy, he subjected the doctrines, ordinances, and usages of the church to rigid scrutiny, and brought them to the test of the Bible. With him the critical genius was not merely an efflux of scientific power and independence, but also a fruit of moral sentiment and of Christian character. He cared very little in what form his ideas were expressed, so long as they were understood. Hence his style is inartistic, and often very bad. But by way of compensation he secreted his whole personality, undissemled, true, and full. He was a man of intellect, not of feeling; yet everywhere we recognize the moral pathos, the holy earnestness, which comes from deep convictions. Curiously, he oftentimes burst out into indignant or horror-strick denunciation while carrying on a dialectical discussion; an outburst of triumphant joy is found in the very middle of a disputation. He is always himself, conscious of his own perfect integrity, and fearless in the expression of his views. He used other weapons than sober reasoning: wit, humor, irony, and sarcasm are the edged-tools he handles, especially against the monks. But his object is always to defend the truth of Christ; and it was from glowing zeal for the cause of God, sincere love to the souls of men, upright conscientiousness before God, and heartfelt longing for the reformation of the church, that he labored so abundantly and assiduously.

His Place in History.—He was the first ecclesiastico-political worker, sat in Parliament, and earnestly advocated the independence of the English Church and State of the dictation of the curia, the disruption of monasteries, and the removal of the crying evils of simony and licen-
WIGLIF. 2519 WIGAND.

In 1880 the fifth centennial of Wiclif's translation of the Bible was celebrated by the Bible societies of English-speaking lands, especially by the American Bible Society in New-York City, Dec 2, 1880; on which occasion Dr. Storrs delivered the brilliant oration mentioned below.

LIT.—Lechler gives the completest list of Wiclif's writings (vol. ii. 337-339). The small number printed has long been considered a disgrace. But in 1883 the Wyclif Society, organized in 1882, began the publication of his Latin works, up to that time in manuscript. The following list probably embraces nearly all that have at any time appeared. Theabove three volumes were edited by J. H. Todd, D.D.; the first volume and the last treatise have been pronounced spurious; Tracts and Treatises, with Selections and Translations from his Latin Works (edited for the Wyclif Society by R. Vaughan, D.D.), London, 1845; Tractatus de officio pastorali, Leipzig, 1883, Trialogus, and Supplementum Trialogii sive de distributione ecclesiae, Oxford, 1869 (all three edited by Lechler); Selections and Translations from his English Works (edited by T. Arnold), Oxford, 1871, 3 vols.; English Works of Wyclif hitherto unprinted (edited by F. D. Matthew, for the Early English Text Society), London, 1879; De Christo et suo adversario Antichristo, Ein polemischer Tractat Johann Wyclifs zum ersten Male herausgegeben (edited by R. Buddensieg), Gotha, 1880, pp. 60; Polenimic Works (edited by Buddensieg), London, 1883, 2 vols. Some of his pieces were printed in vol. vii. of British Reformers. Wiclif's translation of the Bible was first edited in a scholarly and satisfactory manner by Rev. Josiah Forshall and Sir Frederick Madden, Oxford, 1850, 4 vols. The New Testament portion was separately printed, with introduction and glossary by W. W. Skeat, Cambridge, 1879; and Job, Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and the Song of Solomon, in 1881, with the same apparatus. With important additional notes, by Principal Lorimer: John Wyclif and his English Precursors, London, 1878, 2 vols.; in 1 vol., 1881. This biography supersedes all the others. Compare Fasciculi Zizaniorum magistri Johannes Wyclif cum Tritico, ascribed to Thomas Netter of Welden, edited by W. W. Shirley, London, 1858; Chronica monasterii S. Albanii, vol. i.; Thomas Walsingham, Historia Anglicana, edited by H. T. Riley, London, 1863. See also B. Vaughan, D.D., John Wyclif and the first English Bible, N.Y., 1880; Burrows: Wiclif's Place in History, London, 1882. SAMUEL M. JACKSON.

WIDOWS, Hebrew. Besides the general law against their hard treatment (Exod. xxii. 22-24), there was special legislation respecting them. 1. Their rights should always be respected (Deut. x. 18, xvii. 19); nor should their clothing or cattle be pledged (Deut. xxiv. 17), nor their children be sold for debt (2 Kings iv. 1; Job xxiv. 9). According to Maimonides (Synedr. 21, 4), their cases must be tried next after those of orphans. 2. They must be invited to the feasts accompanying sacrifices and tithes (Deut. xiv. 29, xvi. 11, 14, xvi. 12 sq.). Childless priest-widows living in their fathers' houses had right to the priests' meat (Lev. xxii. 13). In later times the rich sent them presents of wine. In the Maccabean time they were allowed to dispose of their property in the temple treasury (2 Macc. iii. 10). 3. Gleanings were left for them (Deut. xxiv. 19 sq.), and they shared in the battle spoils (2 Macc. viii. 28, 30). Their remarriage was contemplated, but the high priest was forbidden to marry one (Lev. xxvi. 14). Only on the childless widow did the Levirate law operate (Deut. xxiv. 5; see art. LEVIRATE). The Jewish doctors greatly facilitated the remarriage of widows, only stipulating that they must not marry inside of ninety days of their husbands' demise. If they chose to remain in the house of their father-in-law, they must be supported, and receive their dowry. But if they went to their fathers' home they forfeited their right to support more than was absolutely necessary; and neither they nor the heirs could lay claim to their dowry until the expiration of twenty-five years, and then only on their oath that they had not in that time derived any benefit from it. In order to get subsistence, they were allowed to sell the property of their husbands, both real and personal. In case a man left widows, the first wife had prior claims. Betrothed women whose prospective husbands died were considered as widows, and therefore high priests could not marry them. In spite of these laws and regulations, complaints of the unjust treatment of widows were frequent (Isa. i. 17, 23, x. 2; Jer. xxii. 8; Ezek. xxii. 7; Mal. iii. 5; Matt. xxiii. 14). LEYRER.

WIDOWS IN THE APOSTOLIC CHURCH.

See DEACONESS.

WIGAND, Johann, b. at Mansfeld in 1523; d. at Jena, Oct. 21, 1587. He studied theology at Wittenberg, and was appointed pastor of his native city in 1546, superintendent of Magdeburg in 1553, professor of theology at Jena in 1560 (from which position he was discharged the next year), superintendent of Wismar in 1562, and again professor at Jena in 1564. He was an ardent champion of Ficinus, and took part with great vehemence in all the controversies of the time, persecuting with blind fanaticism anyone who differed from him in opinion. At last he fell out even with his own master, Flacius, with whom he at one time labored for the establishment of a Lutheran popedom. His autobiography in Sammlung von alten und neuen theologischen Sachen (Leipzig, 1738) gives a list of his very numerous writings, of which none, however, have any scientific value. See also Sani's SEL.
WILBERFORCE.

2520

WILBERFORCE.

WIGBERT. St., the first abbot of Fritzlar; d. 747; was a native of England, and educated in the monasteries of Winbrun and Glaston. In 734 he went to Germany on the invitation of Boniface, and settled at Fritzlar as abbot of the newly founded monastery, and director of the school, which he brought to a very flourishing condition. His life, written by Servatius Lupus, is found in MARILLO: Act. Bened., iii. 1. See also Miracula S. Wigberti, in PERTZ: Mon. Hist. Ger., vi.

WIGGLESWORTH, Michael, b. Oct. 28, 1631, probably in Yorkshire; d. at Malvern, Mass., June 10, 1705: was brought to New England, 1638; graduated at Harvard, 1651; was tutor there a while, and minister or "teacher" at Malden from 1656. He published in 1661 or 1662 his remarkable Day of Doom, a poem which preserves, as in amber, the ideas of his time and probably in Yorkshire; d. at Malden, Mass., Sept. 7, 1805; killed by a fall from his horse, near Dorking, July 19, 1873. He was graduated at Oriel College, Oxford, 1826; curate of Cheekendon, Berkshire, 1828-30; rector of Brightstone, Isle of Wight, 1830-38; of Alverstoke, Hampshire, 1839; archdeacon of Surry, 1840; and canon of Winchester Cathedral. In 1844 he was appointed sub-almoner to the queen, and in 1845 dean of Westminster, and, later in same year, bishop of Oxford. In 1869 he was transferred to the see of Winchester. As bishop of Oxford he made his mark. He was a man of broad views, genial wit, and ready eloquence, in which latter respect he led all the bishops. He delighted in out-door life. He was a leader of the High-Church party, but in point of doctrine was an evangelical. Besides his work upon his father's life referred to below, he left nothing of importance. See his Life by ASHWELL and WILBERFORCE, London, 1881-82, 3 vols.; abridged edition, New York, 1883. 1 vol.

WILBERFORCE, William, the English philanthropist, b. at Hull, Aug 24, 1759; d. in London, Monday, July 29, 1838. By the death of his father he came at ten years of age into the family of his uncle, whose very pious wife was a great admirer of Whitefield; and although permitted by his grandfather (who feared his becoming a Methodist) to be only two years in his uncle's family, his religious views received a coloring from which they permanently retained, and the main principle of his early piety. He was educated at St John's College, Cambridge; left the university at twenty-one (1770), and immediately entered Parliament, where he continued to sit as a member of the House of Commons until 1825, when his advanced years obliged him to retire. Being rich, witty, and fond of society, he at first mingled in the world of fashion. But in 1784, and again in 1785, he travelled on the Continent with Isaac Milner (see art.), his former teacher at Hull; and Milner's serious conversation upon religion, little as his conduct was regulated by it, turned Wilberforce to serious thought. His latent piety was aroused. The two read together Doddridge's Rise and Progress, and studied the New Testament in the original. The energies of Wilberforce's soul were set in a new direction. He was converted (1785), and became the Wesley of the upper circles of English society, and the leader of the evangelical party in the English Church. In 1787 he founded a "society for the reformation of manners," and the same year set out upon that great mission which has immortalized him,—the abolition of slavery in the English domains. Henceforth his life was devoted to this cause. His attention had been drawn to the subject in childish days, and in his fifteenth year he wrote an essay upon it; but his efforts to secure the realization of his youthful dreams date from his twenty-eighth year. The slaveholders quickly perceived the ability and strength of their antagonist, who was determined to fight until the victory was gained. Year after year the struggle went on. At last, after twenty years of tireless exertion, the bill for the abolition of the slave-trade was introduced in the House of Lords by Lord Grenville; passed Feb. 4, 1806; went to the House of Commons, and passed its first reading by a vote of 283 to 16, Feb. 23, and finally, March 23, 1807. It received the royal assent March 25; and after Jan. 1, 1808, slave-trading was illegal. In the carrying-out of this measure Wilberforce was not, of course, unaided. Burke, Pitt, Fox, the Quakers, and especially Thomas Clarkson, gave him powerful support. But Wilberforce was the leader of the abolitionists, and to him the major part of the credit is due. In the prosecution of his mission he met with repeated disappointments; and his scheme, along with other abolitionists, to demonstrate the fitness of the negro race for civilization by the organization of the Sierra Leone Company (1791), for the extension of lawful commerce in Africa, and the promotion of the useful arts among the negroes, lamentably failed. The abolition of the slave-trade legally accomplished, Wilberforce turned his attention to the enforcement of the law and the emancipation of the slave himself. For the rest of his life he keenly watched the interests of the negro race, and toiled for the abolition of slavery in every land. Three days before his death he had the satisfaction of learning that slavery itself was abolished.

The decided religious convictions of this remarkable man find their expression in his book, A Practical View of the Prevailing Religious System of Professed Christians in the Higher and Middle Classes in this Country Contrasted with Real Christianity, London, 1797. Five editions (7,500 copies) were sold in its first half-year; and it has been translated into French, German, Italian, Spanish, and Dutch. It is impossible to overestimate its influence in awakening a warm, practical, determined religious life, and in stemming the tide of infidelity and indifferentism, especially in the upper classes of England. The book consists of seven chapters, treating two questions: first, whether morality without belief can be wholesome and sufficient; second, whether Christianity satisfactorily meets all the demands of life. But not only by this book did he proclaim his Christianity. In 1801, with a few friends, he established The Christian Observer, a religious newspaper, and in 1804 took a prominent part in the formation of the British and Foreign Bible Society. He was ever a champion of the Church of England; but, far from being partisan, he contended with equal warmth for the rights of dissenters and Roman Catholics. The great influence was due to his character, although his gifts were of a high order. He was one of the foremost public speakers, ever self-contained and dignified. He was buried in Westminster Abbey. One son, Samuel, became bishop of Oxford and Winchester successively; but three others entered the Roman-Catholic Church.

WILBRORD, or WILLIBRORD, the apostle of the Frisians; b. in Northumbria about 657; d. in the monastery of Epternach, near Treves, 730. He came to Friesland towards the close of the seventh century; settled at Utrecht, and preached with success among the wild Pagan inhabitants of the country, powerfully supported, however, by the victories of Pepin and Charles Martel. He also visited the Danish Frisians settled on the western coast of Sweden. See also: Hist. Eccles., v.; and Mabillon: Ann. Ord. S. B. lib. xviii.

WILDERNESS. The Bible word means, not a mere waste, but rather a tract of country, plain or mountainous, which is not under cultivation, although it may be capable of it, and actually afford rich pasturage. Several such wildernesses are mentioned in the Bible. I. Chief in importance is the "Wilderness of Sinai" (see Sinai). II. "Wilderness of Moab" (Deut. ii. 8), the east boundary of the territory Israel conquered. III. "Wilderness of Beersheba" (Gen. xxxi. 14), upon the extreme south-west border. IV. The most famous in Palestine is the "Wilderness of Judah," which comprehends the easterly and southerly slopes of the mountain of Judah, and is bounded on the north by the "Wilderness of Jericho" (between the north end of the Dead Sea and Jerusalem), on the east by the Dead Sea, on the west by the mountains of Judah, and on the south runs out into the "Wilderness of Zin" (Josh. xv. 1, 3) and of "Edom" (2 Kings iii. 8), between the mountains of Seir and the southern point of the Dead Sea. Into this wilderness David fled from Saul. As component parts of it are mentioned the wilderness of (a) "Shittim" (Deut. v. 25), (b) "Maon" (1 Sam. xiii. 24 sqq.), (c) "Ziph" (1 Sam. xxxii. 14), (d) "Tekoa" (2 Chron. xx. 20), (e) "Jeruel" (2 Chron. xx. 16). V. The northern continuation of the Wilderness of Judah is the wilderness that goeth up from Jericho throughout Mount Bethel (Josh. xvi. 1), i.e., the whole stretch along the western slopes of the mountains of Judah, from the neighborhood of Jericho north to Bethel. Into this wilderness fled David from Absalom (2 Sam. xv. 23), and so did Zedekiah on the capture of Jerusalem (2 Kings xxv. 4). It was the scene of our Lord's temptation (Matt. iv. 1), and there is the parable of the Good Samaritan (Luke x. 30). Tradition points out the exact spot of Satan's exhibition to our Lord of "all the kingdoms of the world," the so-called Mount Quarantania (Jebel Kerentel), and also the exact location of the inn to which Jesus took the good Samaritan. In the "Wilderness by Jordan" (Mark i. 4) John preached, and the place of Christ's baptism is pointed out to-day. Tradition, however, puts the Wilderness of John six miles south-west of...
WILDERNESS OF WANDERING. 2522

Jerusalem; but here is no wilderness at all. VI. "Wilderness of Beth-aven," a northerly part of the Wilderness of Jericho (Josh. xviii. 12). VII. "Wilderness of Gibeon" east of Gibeon. VIII. "Wilderness of Dothan" (Gen. xxxvii. 22).

ARNOLD.

WILDERNESS OF THE WANDERING. The so-called forty-two journeys of the Israelites from Egypt to Canaan are enumerated in Num. xxxiii. On leaving Egypt they bent their steps to Sinai (see EXODUS, SINAI). The general direction was south-east along the Gulf of Suez, until the Wady Feiran was struck, which was followed to Mount Sinai. The stations are not yet fully and unanimously identified. The first was probably Aytn Musa ("the wells of Moses"), seven to eight miles from the Gulf of Suez, where the triumphal song of Moses was sung. Thence the host went three days' journey through the Wilderness of Shur ("fort-wall," derived, according to E. H. Palmer, from the long wall-like range which is the feature of this part of the wilderness), and came to Marah ("bitterness"), generally identified with Ain Ilawarah ("fountain of destruction"); and thenceit spells it Hor bybok, and interpretsit "a small pool"). Here the water was miraculously sweetened (Exod. xv. 25). Thence they journeyed to Elim ("trees"), identified either with Wady Ghorunyal or Wady Usit. The next station was upon the shore of the Red Sea, from Wady Taiyibeh to Wady Feiran. There the Israelites were first put to pasture. God's object was finally accomplished: the murmurers had all died, and their children were strong for battle. They gathered at Kadesh, whence they had separated so many years before. There Moses and Aaron offended, and were told that they should not enter the Promised Land (Num. xx. 12). The succeeding events may be thus summarized: application for passage through Edom was refused; Aaron died upon Mount Hor; the Israelites suffering from the plague of serpents were healed by the sight of the brazen serpent; Sihon, king of the Amorites, and Og, king of Bashan, were overcome; Balak, king of Moab, in vain used enchantments against Israel, but instead, heard from Balaam the glorious future of that people; the census of Israel was taken on the plains of Moab; the Midianites were slaughtered and spoiled; the Reubenites and Gadites received their inheritance on the east side of Jordan; finally, the host made their last journey prior to the Conquest, and reached the east shore of the Jordan. Moses delivered his farewell address on the first day of the eleventh month of the fortieth year, and then ascended Mount Nebo, and died. Thus ended the Wandering. The Israelites were now on the borders of the Promised Land. See SMITH: Dictionary of the Bible, s.v. "Wilderness of the Wandering." E. H. PALMER: Desert of the Exod. (Dictionary of the Bible, s.v. " Wilderness of the Wandering").

WILFRID, Bishop of York, b. in Northumbria, 634; d. at York, Oct. 12, 709. He was educated in the monastery of Lindisfarne, but having found out that the way to virtue taught by the Scotch monks was not the perfect one, he set out for Rome, where he arrived in 654. After his return from Rome, he was, by King Aswy of Northumbria, appointed tutor to his son Alchfred, 664; and having, at the synod of Streoneshale (Whithby in Yorkshire), persuaded the king and the clergy that the Roman computation of Easter, and the Roman shape of the tonsure, were the only right ones, he received the episcopal see of York as a reward (665), and held it for forty years. He was one of the most prominent champions of the Church of Rome in England. Several times he was deposed or expelled from his see by the kings; and each time he repaired to Rome, where he was sure to find support. On one of his journeys to Rome he suffered shipwreck on the Frisian coast, and began that missionary work among them which afterwards was so successfully continued by Wilfrid. See HENNESSY: Vita Wilfridi; and BEDES: Hist. Eccl., i., iii.—V.

THEODOR CHRISTLIEB.

WILL, The. A theme of endless debate, and one respect in which there is, apparently, an irreconcilable difference of opinion. It illustrates better than almost any other subject the close relation subsisting between philosophy and theology; it is related to both departments, and it would be better if the psychological and theological aspects of this question were more sharply distinguished than is sometimes done. Difficult as the problem of the will confessedly is, there can be no doubt that much of the confusion that exists regarding it arises from a want of precision in the use of terms. It is important that the nature of the problem should be understood, however impossible it may be to find a satisfactory solution of it.

I. Nature of the Will.—Psychologists of a former day usually divided mental phenomena under two heads,—understanding and will. In this way the moral and active powers, the desires and affections, as well as the volitions, were under the latter designation. To say that the will was in bondage was only saying that a man's desires and affections are not determined by his volitions. So understood, few would deny the bondage of the will. For whatever power there may be to control appetite, or restrain desire, no one claims that a man may have or not have an appetite or desire at his pleasure. It is common now to distribute the phenomena of the mind under a triple division,—intellect, feeling, will. According to this classification, the emotions are treated separately, and are not embraced in discussions pertaining to the will. Yet even here there is a wider and a narrower sense of the word 'will'; for, as the third term of this triple division, it stands for both desire and volition. Locke's distinction between these two forms of causation is a good one, and the attempt of Edwards to overthrow it is not successful. There is a clear difference between a desire to act that may be vague, spontaneous, and motiveless, and a volition or determination to act that is direct, definite, and deliberate. Indeed, the two may be opposed to each other, as when we so often see desire struggling in the strong grip of volition.

It should be understood, that, when the will is spoken of under the limitations of the freewill controversy, reference is made to volitions, and not to desires. It is not easy, however, to substitute 'volitions for 'will' at all times; for it is convenient to speak of the will abstractly as the power of choice, in distinction from volitions as the concrete manifestations of choice. But, when the word 'will' is so used, care must be taken not to hypostatize the will,—not to conceive of it as something different from the man, or of the man as divided into three parts, of which the will is one. It is not a volition, then, as the intellect means the man knowing. It must be remembered, moreover, that no mental state belongs exclusively to any one of these three divisions just referred to. An act of will is likewise an act of the intellect. An act of will may be also very closely related to an emotion. So closely related, in fact, are the feelings and the will, that Bain's attempt to explain the genesis of the will is in some respects the most plausible defence of empiricism in print. At the other extreme, but still illustrating the close relation between intellect, feeling, and will, stand those who hold, with Schopenhauer, that the will is the prior of all mental phenomena. We cannot stop to inquire whether the will begat the emotions, or whether the emotions begat the will, or whether (though this is what we believe) intellect, feeling, and will are co-ordinate elements in man's nature, there being no right of priority in favor of any of the three. In any case it is evident that the problem of the will occupies to-day, and must continue to occupy, a large place in religious philosophy. It is not necessary to hold, on the one hand, that will is generated out of emotion, or, on the other, that all objective reality is the manifestation of the causal activity of will in order to see that the problem of the will is on that concerns matters of far more importance than the doctrinal differences of Calvinists and Arminians. For however much men may differ in regard to the questions referred to above, it, nevertheless, seems to be true: (1) That there can be no will without intelligence, the manifestation of will is the first sign of intelligence — purposeful action is not reflex action; (2) That the will, both in man and in the brutes, is the great barrier to automatism; (3) That physical determinism cannot explain the phenomena of the will, and that in the consciousness of power revealed to us in the exercise of will we have a type of causation to which physical causes furnish no analogy, if, indeed, physical causes be, in the true sense of the word, causes at all.

II. Freedom of the Will.—It is impossible in the short space allowed for this article to enter fully into the history of the freewill controversy. It holds such an important place, however, both in philosophy and theology, that some notice must be taken of those who have been the most conspicuous participants in it. Some knowledge of the history of the controversy may greatly help in the consideration of the particular points which it involved.

1. History of the Freewill Controversy.—At first this was altogether a theological question. It was not treated metaphysically. Sharp distinctions between ability and liberty were not known. The question was not. How are individual volitions explained? but, How has sin affected man's ability to do what God commands? Tertullian distinguished between the will before and the will after the fall. Augustine does the same thing, and says that by the fall Adam lost himself and his freewill. In opposition to Pelagius, he taught that since the fall man is totally depraved, that he can do no spiritual good, and that efficacious grace is a sovereign gift of God. This is what he meant by denying freewill. This is what Luther meant in his controversy with Erasmus, what Calvin meant in his reforms, just as Christianity, in what the Reformers preached in opposition to the Council of Trent. This, too, is the Calvinistic position in opposition to Arminianism. Total depravity, inability, efficacious grace,—these doctrines are closely related; and they stand opposed to Pelagian or semi-Pelagian error. But the service of the will, which Augustinian theologians have always contended for on scriptural grounds, must be distinguished from the doctrine of philosophical necessity that was advocated in the period that follows the one of which we have been speaking.

In the next period the discussion assumed a philosophical form; Hobbes, Collins, Priestley, and Leibnitz defending the necessitarian, while Price and Clarke advocated the libertarian position. Hobbes anticipated Edwards in resolving the doctrine of the self-determination of the will into an infinite series of choices, where the freedom of each case was complete and independent. Leibnitz, in his doctrine of the sufficient reason, furnished the argument that has been made use of ever since in support of determinism.
And it is safe to say that the argument has not advanced much beyond the position it occupied when Clarke urged on the one hand the self-determining power of the will, and Hobbes, on the other hand, claimed that volitions, like all other events, come under the law of causality. Spinoza was a determinist, of course. Descartes argues against Hobbes, but admits all that a determinist could ask. So does Locke, whose discussion of this subject is admirably clear and discriminative.

Jonathan Edwards stands apart and above all others in the discussion of this problem. He is the first in a long succession of able men in America who have dealt with this and kindred anthropological questions according to a metaphysico-theological method, and who have contributed a most important chapter to the history of opinion. The treatise on The Will was intended as a polemic against Arminianism. It has been criticised. A library of literature has grown up around it in defence of, or in opposition to, its teaching. Its faults have been conceded even by those who, nevertheless, accept its main positions. But it has never been refuted. The libertarian doctrine is now taught by appealing to consciousness, by denying that causation reigns in the empire of the will, and by affirming, as Whedon does, that the Ego can "project volitions" without any reason whatever: but the "self-determining power of the will" has not come back from the trip up the infinite series whether Edwards sent it; and the "liberty of indifference." Calderwood tells us, has been "laid upon the shelf." Edwards holds, that the will is determined by the strongest motive, and the strongest motive is the greatest apparent good. His arguments are, for the most part, philosophical; but the doctrine advocated in his treatise follows also, in his judgment, from the divine foreknowledge. Here he is wrong; for while foreknowledge may insure the certain futurition of a volition, it does not determine the question how it shall be brought about. It would have been better had he followed Locke's example, and, refusing to consider "consequences," confined himself to the psychological study of the will.

The Edwardean doctrine of the will, besides meeting with opposition at the hands of Tappan, Hazard, Upham, Bledsoe, and Whedon, who have all written specially upon the subject, has been strongly objected to by the Scottish philosophers, Reid, Stuart, and Sir William Hamilton. Empirical philosophers are naturally determinists, so are all those who deny the separate personal existence of the individual self. Determinism follows as naturally from the scheme of Hegel as from that of Comte. Kant postulated freedom under the practical reason, when he could not find it by means of the speculative reason. Sir William Hamilton, following the suggestions of Kant's antinomies, found freedom and necessity both inconceivable, but believed in freedom, since, being contradictories, one or the other must be true. This is one form of his doctrine of the conditioned. And a great many who do not follow him in this conclusion are yet compelled to take a conditional anticommitment regarding the whole matter, believing that there is no answer to the question, Why this rather than that volition? but believing, nevertheless, that they are free, and convinced beyond all peradventure that the reign of physical determinism would be the blight of humanity.

2. Points in the Freewill Controversy. — If it were asked what is meant by saying that a man is free, the reply would be, 'He can do as he wills.' Will being the norm of freedom, there seems to be something incongruous in the inquiry whether the will is free. How can we predicate freedom of the will when our only idea of freedom is through the will? How can will be measured and measured at the same time? It would not settle the freewill controversy to discontinue the use of the word 'free' in connection with the will, but it would make it capable of more intelligible statement. If, however, it must be used, let it be said that the man is free in willing. But then what does this mean? 'I will.' That is a simple psychological fact. I at pleasure determine a certain mental state which is attended with a certain expenditure of energy. The mental state is a volition: the muscular change is action. What is meant by calling this volition a free volition? Does it mean that nothing outside of me forced it upon me? that it is free, inasmuch as it is my act—that we all believe in freewill. To this fact, that I am self-determined, that I am the cause of my volitions, consciousness bears witness; and in this sense the freedom of the will is irrespective altogether of the relation of the volitions to antecedent mental states. But it is commonly maintained, that, in order to believe in freewill, one must hold a view of the relation of a given volition to the past. This, however, must not be conceded. The difference among men regarding the will relates to the question how a given volition came to pass, and not to the question whether the will is free. That the problem may be understood, let us take the case of a single volition. When the question arises, What is the cause of a given mental state? there is no doubt that I am the cause; I am the agent, the efficient cause. But while the volition is accounted for by saying, "I am the cause of it," the question also arises, Why did I choose this rather than that? But the question here is, What is the highest motive of the case? Is it a west? Is it true that the volition is an effect produced by me, but is it not also an effect produced in me? That I am an agent explains the coming about of a volition, but how does it happen to be such a volition? If this question could be answered, the problem of the will would be solved. There are two generic answers to this question, and it seems impossible that there should be a third. Some hold that each volition is unconditioned by antecedents, and in this sense, before it comes into existence, is contingent. Others hold that each volition was antecedently determined, and therefore certain. Indeterminism and determinism are therefore the two rival theories of the will.

(a) Indeterminism. — Without entering into the discussions suggested by such familiar phrases as "power of contrary choices," "liberty of indifference," "self-determining power of the will," we may say that indeterminism may be presented in two forms. It either means, that, in every free volition, 'I not only do as I choose, but choose as I choose,' or else it means that the whole philosophy of the will is expressed in the two words, 'I choose.' If the free choice is one conditioned on an antecedent choice, then we have the old difficulty of the "infinite series" over again. But if, with Whedon, we cut off the infinite series by saying that each choice is a separate and distinct creation by the soul out of nothing; if to the question, What reason is the determinism, and their belief in the true causal efficiency of the Ego. On these points there is of nothing; if to the question, What reason is the separate and perdurable personality of man. The mind simply "projects volitions" blindly, without motive, with reference to past or future: so that, according to the tenets of indeterminism, there is no way of having a free choice, except through an infinite series of choices, or else through a theory that makes all choices purely fortuitous. These difficulties are very serious, and they are not removed by pointing to the evils that are connected with determinism; nor are the arguments that an urgent interest of indeterminism so strong, that these difficulties may be safely overlooked. Indeterminism is supported, (1) By appeals to consciousness. But it may be doubted whether consciousness testifies to any thing beyond the fact that the Ego is the sole agent in each volition, and is undetermined by any thing ex ab extra. (2) It is said that the will can decide against the strongest motives; but this is true, only when by "motive" is meant something out of the mind as end or object. In this sense no one believes that the stronger motive determines the will. (3) It is said that we sometimes choose when there is no motive for choosing this rather than that. But it is one thing to say that we see no reason why the choice should be this, and not that, and a different thing to say that no reason exists for such choice. (4) It is said that power of contrary choice is essential to moral responsibility, for actions are moral as expressing will, and willismoral only when by "motive" is meant something out of the mind without warrant. We are morally accountable, whatever be the true doctrine of the will. The question under discussion is a psychological question, and should be discussed on its proper grounds. The advocates of indeterminism have done great service in magnifying the testimony of consciousness respecting self-determination in all acts of will. This is not only an important, but a vitally important truth, and one that needs special emphasis at the present day. Indeed, it is not too much to say, that many who oppose determinism mean only to express their abhorrence of physical determinism, and their belief in the true causal efficiency of the Ego. On these points there is no room for any difference of opinion among those who believe in one personal God and in the separate and perdurable personality of man. But the advocacy of these great truths does not entail upon us the absurdities that have so often been shown to inhere in the theories of indeterminism.
WILL.

(b) Determinism. — There are two forms of this theory that should be carefully distinguished. It is altogether unfair to represent Spinoza, Priestley, and Huxley as holding the same view of the will as that advocated by Edwards, Chalmers, and Hodge. It is true that these men are all determinists, that they all hold the antecedent certainty of every volition; but they are the poies apart of regard to the explanation of that certainty. Physical determinism is simply the mechanical explanation of the doctrine of physical causation to psychical phenomena. According to that doctrine, the phenomenal world of to-day is the necessary result of all the past. Given the world at any one period, and its condition at any subsequent period is mathematically and absolutely certain. The craving for unity accounts for the attempt to place mind and matter under one generalization. The law of uniformity, indeed, cannot be true regarding matter, unless it be true regarding mind. To bring mental phenomena under the law of physical causation is simply to blot out mind, and teach materialism in fact, however much materialism in name may be denied. This physical determinism, which is now advocated by so many scientific men, is something which every theist must look upon with abhorrence; and we protest against the unfair attempts of some of its advocates to secure a hearing for it by pleading in its behalf the support of Jonathan Edwards. Physical determinism is a very different thing from psychical determinism. Physical determinism blitzes out the soul, the separate personality. It makes man an automaton, and interprets history in the terms of matter and motion. Psychical determinism, as taught by Edwards and others, is simply the determinism of character. It is allowed, that, in defending his position, Edwards is often at fault in the use of such words as "cause," "motive," and "will:" and those who accept his theory would not always employ his phraseology. Taking, then, any given volition for illustration, the advocate of psychical determinism would say that the cause of the volition is the Ego. A great deal can be said for limiting the meaning of cause to agent; and in volition certainly the agent is the Ego. But now the question is, why the agent put forth this and not that volition. And if it is asserted "There is no reason," it will be replied, (1) This is inconceivable; (2) This destroys responsibility, for actions are moral as expressing will, and will is moral as expressing character. If volitions are simply "projected" without reason,—if they are separate units, sustaining no relation to the man, other than that the man having the power to shoot out volitions does so, it is hard to see what is to be the subject of moral accountability;—not the volition, certainly; and not the man, for these volitions are not related to him in any other way than that he projected them. If character does not determine conduct, how can we know that it is not the bad man who exhibits good behavior, and the good man who is filling the world with all the bad volitions? (3) Why, then, do the volitions of the same man manifest a general similarity? Why are the mean man's volitions unlike the generous man's volitions? Indeterminism has no answer to this question. (4) We must choose, then, between the theory that affirms that uniformities of conduct which we suppose to reveal character are simply fortuitous, and that which says that character determines conduct. We may express this latter belief by saying that the strongest motive influences the will, or that the will is the greatest apparent good or that the will follows the last dictate of the understanding, or that character determines volitions, or that the mental state in the indivisible moment prior to volition determines the volition. These expressions all mean practically the same thing; and those who hold the view embodied in these words are determinists of the second class above named, as distinguished from those who advocate the doctrine of physical determinism.

Belief in the distinction between volition and antecedent mental state may be represented, there is no difficulty to the next division.

Doctrines as illustrating alike the bondage of the will, and even to treat them as identical. It is, therefore, determinism, he was under bondage also. It is on this account that the Edwardian theory of the will has been held by some to be contrary to the Westminster Confession of Faith, for there the distinction between the will before and the will after the fall is made emphatic. If, however, the distinction between determinism and inability be kept in mind, it will be seen that there is no foundation for this criticism of the Edwardian theory. Determinism is simply a theory that affirms of all men, fallen or unfallen, that their volitions stand in necessary relation to antecedent states of mind. The Confession of Faith, on the other hand, teaches, that, so far as holy choices are concerned, there is a great difference between the will before and the will after the fall. Determinism is applicable to all volitions without exception; whereas it is only in respect to any thing spiritually good that the Confession of Faith and the Reformed theology predicate of men, since the fall, an inability of will. The word ‘inability’ itself expresses an important point of difference. It states, concerning a certain class of volitions, that they are beyond the power of a certain class of men. Determinism, on the other hand, affirms nothing with regard to the ability or inability of men as to volitions. It is, of course, very natural for those who believe in inability to be determinists: for if all volitions are determined by antecedent mental states, then, assuming that the nature of man since the fall has been corrupt, there is no difficulty in supposing that the volitions correspond to the nature. Determinism will account for inability, but whether we are obliged to adopt determinism in order to account for inability is another question. Principal Cunningham thinks we are not. But, however this may be, determinism does not affect the question raised by the Confession of Faith, according to the will before and after the fall. And it may be said, that whatever conflict may be supposed to exist between free-will and determinism exists likewise between free-will and inability. There is really no conflict in either case; for we are free in choosing, whatever may be the underlying reason that determines choice; and we are self-determined in every volition, although a certain class of volitions may be out of the power of unregenerate men. But if, on the one hand, determinism be not contrary to the Westminster Confession of Faith, neither, on the other hand, does it necessarily involve the doctrine of a fourfold state of will, which is taught in that Confession; that doctrine belonging altogether to the theological side of the free-will debate.

2. Nature of Inability. — To the question, How did the sin of Adam affect his posterity? three generic answers have been given. The Pelagian says that mankind have been practically unaffected, and that men have plenary ability to do all that is required; the semi-Pelagian says that man’s moral powers have been weakened, and that there is need of divine grace; the Augustinian says that man is dead in trespasses and sins, and that he is unable to do anything spiritually good before regeneration. Augustine taught, and it has been repeated by Peter Lombard and also by the Reformed theologians, that there is a fourfold state of the human will,—before the fall, when Adam had freedom of choice; after the fall and before regeneration, when there is freedom in sin only, and an inability of will to any thing spiritually good; after regeneration, when there is ability to do both good and evil; and after glorification, when the will is unalterably determined to holy choices. If we are to include, as the Reformed do, the doctrine of the necessity of grace in the doctrine of original sin, and without any reference to the psychological problem regarding volitions. The Westminster Confession affirms this doctrine in the following terms: “Man by his fall into a state of sin hath wholly lost all ability of will to any spiritual good accompanying salvation; so as to the natural man, being altogether dead in sin, and an inability of will: he can do nothing to will, but moral inability. This he generalized, therefore, that the doctrine of predestination interferes with man’s liberty, it is replied, that the Calvinist can hold any theory of the will that the Arminian can hold. The fore-ordination of all events makes all events, and therefore all volitions, certain, but not more certain than the doctrine of foreknowledge makes. The doctrine of predestination interferes with freedom, the Arminian’s freedom is put in jeopardy quite as much as the Calvinist’s. And the only way for him to be consistent in criticising the bearing of predestination upon freedom is to follow Dr. McCabe in giving up the divine foreknowledge regarding future contingent events.

Calvinism. The symbols of the Reformed churchers state the doctrine of inability very positively as the necessary consequence of the doctrine of original sin, and without any reference to the psychological problem regarding volitions. The Westminster Confession affirms this doctrine in the following terms: “Man by his fall into a state of sin hath wholly lost all ability of will to any spiritual good accompanying salvation; so as to the natural man, being altogether dead in sin, and an inability of will: he can do nothing to will, but moral inability. This he generalized, therefore, that the doctrine of predestination interferes with man’s liberty, it is replied, that the Calvinist can hold any theory of the will that the Arminian can hold. The fore-ordination of all events makes all events, and therefore all volitions, certain, but not more certain than the doctrine of foreknowledge makes. The doctrine of predestination interferes with freedom, the Arminian’s freedom is put in jeopardy quite as much as the Calvinist’s. And the only way for him to be consistent in criticising the bearing of predestination upon freedom is to follow Dr. McCabe in giving up the divine foreknowledge regarding future contingent events.

C. Symbolical
WILHELM.

2528 WILLIAM OF CHAMPEAUX.

WILLERAM, or WILTRAMUS, was first teacher in the cloister school of Boimberg, the favorite establishment of Henry II., then monk at Fulda, and finally abbot of Ebersberg in Bavaria, where he died Jan. 5, 1085. He was very busy in promoting the material welfare of his monastery, exchanging devotional books for good vineyards (Oeche: Iter. Boicar. Script., ii. p. 46). But he won his great reputation as a scholar and poet. His Latin translation of the Song of Songs into Latin hexameters and Old-High-German stanzas, accompanied with commentaries extracted from the Fathers, was highly appreciated and often copied. The Latin translation was published by Merula, Liege, 1589; the German, by Hoffman, Breslau, 1627. His life is found in the above collection by Oeche.

EULER.

WILLIAM OF AUVERGNE, Archbishop of Paris from 1228; b. at Aurillac about the close of the thirteenth century; d. March 30, 1249; sided with the court and the monks in the contest between the university of Paris and the queen regent, Blanche of Castile. He was a Platonist, having derived his Platonic views from Arabic sources, and opposed realism in philosophy and mysticism in theology, to the reigning Aristotelian scholasticisms. His works (Cuir des homs; De Fide et Legibus, De Virtutibus, De Anima, etc.) were published by Leféron, Orleans, 1674, 2 vol.; See Valois: Guillaume I'Auvergne, Paris, 1880.

WILLIAM OF CHAMPEAUX, b. at Champeaux about 1070; d. at Châlons-sur-Marne, Feb. 15, 1122. He was a pupil of Anselm of Laon, a realist; and, having defeated the nominalist Roscelin, he began a brilliant career as a teacher in Paris, until he himself was defeated by Abelard. Tormented by the invectives and sarcasms of Abelard, he retired (1108) to St. Victor (Celia Vetus); and there he founded a celebrated school, which afterwards became the seat of French mysticism in its opposition to scholasticism. In 1113 he was elected bishop of Châlons-sur-Marne, and as such he took part in the controversies concerning investiture between Abelard, and Bernard of Clairvaux, etc. He was a friend of Bernard, often visited him, and was buried at Clairvaux. Of his works, only fragments, though large fragments, have come down to us: Sententiae, in two man.

...
WILLIAM OF MALMESBURY, b. in Somersetshire, probably in 1096; d. at Malmesbury after 1142. He was the son of a Norman father and a Saxon mother; was educated in the monastery of Malmesbury, where he spent his whole life and from that moment, though the man of silence and from that moment, though the man of silence, he resigned all his government offices, retired to his possessions in Nassau, and publicly embraced Calvinism. During the war which ensued, he twice raised an army at his own expense; and, though he achieved no signal military success against the Spaniards, he succeeded in gradually rousing the whole Protestant population of the Netherlands to throw off the Spanish yoke. On Jan. 23, 1579, the Union of Utrecht was signed, by which the northern provinces established themselves as an independent state, intending to do homage to some foreign prince. Philip II. answered by putting a prize of twenty-five thousand crowns on the head of William, March 15, 1580; and July 10, 1584, Balthazar Gerard shot him in his house in Delft. Besides his Correspondance, collected and published by Gachard (Brussels, 1847-50, 5 vols.), he wrote an Apologie de Guillaume de Nassau, a most remarkable document, of which there is a recent edition, Brussels and Leipzig, 1858. See Motley: The Rise of the Dutch Republic, New York, 1859, 3 vols.

WILLIAM OF ST. AMOUR, b. in the first decade of the thirteenth century, probably at St. Amour in Burgundy; d. in Paris, probably in 1272. He was professor at the Sorbonne, and became famous on account of his spirited opposition to the Mendicant orders. In 1228 the Dominicans succeeded in penetrating into the university of Paris, and obtaining possession of a chair of theology. And hardly had twenty years elapsed before they claimed to control the whole institution, refusing to obey the laws of the corporation. Their most dangerous opponent was William. He preached against people who taught that labor was a shame, and begged a glory; that prayer was sufficient to make the corn grow in the field, etc.; and his sarcasms bit. In 1254 he was summoned before the archbishop of Paris; but, as his accusers dared not confront him publicly, he was acquitted. In 1256 he published his De perticula novissimorum temporum, which, put into French verse, became very popular, and consequently very dangerous. Thomas Aquinas and Bonaventura wrote against it. The Pope condemned the book to be burnt, and the author was banished from Paris. He returned, however, in 1258, was received with enthusiasm by the students, and continued his activity till his death, unmolested by the Dominicans. See Buleius: Hist. Univers. Parisi., iii.; Cornelle St. Marc: Etude sur Guillaume de St. Amour, Lons-le-Saunier, 1805.

W. HOLLENBERG.

WILLIAM OF TYRE, b. in Syria in 1130; was educated in Antioch or Jerusalem, but went in 1160 to the Occident, and studied for several years in Italy and France. After his return to Jerusalem he gained the favor of King Amalric, who made him archdeacon of Tyre in 1167, sent him to Constantinople as ambassador in 1168, and in 1189 appointed him tutor to his son Baldwin, the heir-apparent. Baldwin ascended the throne in 1173, and in the following year made his former tutor archbishop of Tyre. In this quality William was present at the third Lateran synod; but of the last years of his life the accounts are very contradictory, and the date of his death is unknown. Of his two great historical works, Gesta principum orientalium and Belli sacri historiæ, the former has perished. The latter, containing the history of the Crusades from 1100 to 1184, is one of the finest specimens of mediæval historiography, full, accurate, and impartial. It was first printed at Basel, 1549, and then by Bongarsius, in his Gesta dei pes Francos, 1, 1564, reprinted by Migne. The best editions are that in the Recueil des historiers des croisades, 1644-45, 3 vols, that edited by J. Simon at Paris, Paris, 1879-80, 2 vols. There is an old French translation, Estoire de Eroaches (1573), and a modern German, by Kauler, Stuttgart, 1844, 2d edition, 1848.

WILLIAM OF WYKEHAM, English statesman and divine; b. at Wykeham, Hampshire, 1324; d. at South Waltham, Sept. 24, 1404. He was educated at Winchester; and in 1356 was surveyor of King Edward III.'s works at Windsor, and was rewarded for his merit by the gift of the rectory of Pulham, Norfolk, and in 1359 by a prebendary's stall at Lichfield. At this time he was a theosophist and divine; and did nothing but preach. In 1361. In 1364 he was made keeper of the privy seal; secretary of state, 1366; and bishop of Winchester the same year. He was lord-chancellor from 1367 to 1371, when he resigned. He founded New College at Oxford, 1373. In 1376 he was accused of malefeasance in office, and deprived of the temporalities of his see. But the rectitude of the bishop was subsequently established (for the charge was shown to have arisen from his having given half of a fine of eighty pounds); and Richard II. restored him to his offices and dignities, 1379. He was again lord-chancellor from 1389 to 1390. He rebuilt Winchester Cathedral, 1395-1405. See CAMPEL: Lives of the Lord-Chancellors.

WILLIAMS, Daniel, D.D., Presbyterian; b. at Wrexham in Denbighshire, in North Wales, about 1844; d. in London, Jan. 26, 1716. His education was defective; yet he began to preach about 1644; and died in London, March 25, 1650. He was graduated at Cambridge, 1603; ordained priest, 1609; dean of Salisbury, 1619; and of Westminster, 1620. From July 10, 1621 (succeeding Lord Bacon) to Oct. 20, 1626, he was lord-keeper of the great seal of England. In 1621 he was consecrated archbishop of York, 1641, and had all records of his trial cancelled. He is said to have died of fever at London, Dec. 14, 1897. She went to London, 1780, and entered literary circles, visited Paris, 1786, and settled there soon after, publishing, from 1790 to 1819, various Letters from France, etc., besides A Tour in Switzerland, 1798, 2 vols, and translations of St. Pierre's Paul and Virginia, 1796, and Humboldt's Personal Narrative, 1814-29, 7 vols. She was imprisoned during the Reign of Terror, and after again the Peace of Amiens, and afterwards became a Le- gitimatist. The late Athanasie Coquerel was her nephew and pupil. Her poems, containing the familiar hymn, While thee I seek. Protecting Power, appeared in 2 vols., 1768, and with later addi- tions, in 1 vol., 1829. She was associated with Newman and Keble in Lyra Apostolica and Tracts for the Times, writing Tracts 80, 86, and 87. Her literary industry was great. In prose she published a Harmony and Commentary on the Whole Gospel, 1812—29, 8 vols. There is an old edition of Paul's Epistles, 1842, and a modern one by Bongarsius, in his Gesta dei pes Francos, 1879-80, 2 vols. There is an old French translation, Estoire de Eroaches (1573), and a modern German, by Kauler, Stuttgart, 1844, 2d edition, 1848.

WILLIAMS, Helen Maria, was b. near Berwick, 1785, and d. in Paris, Dec. 14, 1897. She went to London, 1780, and entered literary circles, visited Paris, 1786, and settled there soon after, publishing, from 1790 to 1819, various Letters from France, etc., besides A Tour in Switzerland, 1798, 2 vols, and translations of St. Pierre's Paul and Virginia, 1796, and Humboldt's Personal Narrative, 1814-29, 7 vols. She was imprisoned during the Reign of Terror, and after again the Peace of Amiens, and afterwards became a Le- gitimatist. The late Athanasie Coquerel was her nephew and pupil. Her poems, containing the familiar hymn, While thee I seek. Protecting Power, appeared in 2 vols., 1768, and with later addi- tions, in 1 vol., 1829. She was associated with Newman and Keble in Lyra Apostolica and Tracts for the Times, writing Tracts 80, 86, and 87. Her literary industry was great. In prose she published a Harmony and Commentary on the Whole Gospel, 1812—29, 8 vols. There is an old edition of Paul's Epistles, 1842, and a modern one by Bongarsius, in his Gesta dei pes Francos, 1879-80, 2 vols. There is an old French translation, Estoire de Eroaches (1573), and a modern German, by Kauler, Stuttgart, 1844, 2d edition, 1848.

WILLIAMS, Isaac, B.D., was b. in Wales, 1802; and d. at Stinchcombe, May 1, 1865. He was educated at Oxford, and settled at Windrush, 1829, Oxford, 1832, and Bisley, 1842-45. His health failing, he retired to Stinchcombe, Glouce- tershire, and there died, May 1, 1865. He was a candidate for the professorship of poetry at Oxford in 1842, and was associated with Newman and Keble in Lyra Apostolica and Tracts for the Times, writing Tracts 80, 86, and 87. His literary industry was great. In prose he published a Harmony and Commentary on the Whole Gospel, 1812—29, 8 vols. There is an old edition of Paul's Epistles, 1842, and a modern one by Bongarsius, in his Gesta dei pes Francos, 1879-80, 2 vols. There is an old French translation, Estoire de Eroaches (1573), and a modern German, by Kauler, Stuttgart, 1844, 2d edition, 1848.
WILLIAMS.

2531

WILLIAMS.

WILLIAMS, John, “The Apostle of Polynesia,” missionary; b. at Tottenham, June 26, 1796; moved to Kamehameha's New Honolulu, Nov. 20, 1839. By trade an ironmonger, he was led at the age of twenty to give himself to missionary labor, and was sent by the London Missionary Society to the Society Islands (November, 1816). He settled in the Island of Rarotonga. In 1823 he discovered the Island of Rarotonga. On both islands he did most useful and permanent work, not only for their religious, but also for their secular interests. In connection with the latter, especially, he will be remembered; for he returned his language to writing, and in connection with Messrs. Pitman and Buzacott translated the New Testament into it. He visited England 1834-36, and on his return asked for his services. But not even the men of extreme, and unreasonably destructive; for this was the opinion held of the Separatists by the Puritans, of the Puritans by the Anglicans, and of the Anglicans by the Separatists. Seldom will two Reformers agree as to the extent to which amendments shall carry. In each of his ideas which will now be deemed untenable, he had the countenance of some of the very best of his contemporaries; and the verdict of the present day will be, that the best and wisest of Williams's antagonists held as many erroneous opinions as he, while his views, taken as a whole, were much nearer right than theirs.

Williams returned to Salem in the latter half of the year 1633, some of the Plymouth people having become so attached to him that they removed thither also. He became assistant to the pastor, and on the death of the latter, in 1634, was himself made pastor of the church. During his whole ministry there, he held the very highest place in the love and honor of the people of Salem. But certain of his opinions brought upon him the displeasure of the authorities of the Colony. He was repeatedly cited to appear before the General Court; and in October, 1635, it was "ordered that the said Mr. Williams shall depart out of this jurisdiction within six weeks next ensuing." Permission was afterwards given him to remain at Salem until spring; but as it was soon reported, that, at gatherings in his own house, he had continued to utter the objectionable teachings of an officer was sent to Salem in January, 1636, to apprehend him, in order to put him on board ship, and send him back to England. On the officer's arrival at Salem, it was found that Williams had departed three days before, whether could not be learned.

The most noted of the proscribed opinions of Williams was that the civil magistrate should not inflict punishment for purely religious error. It has been urged that it was not simply for his doctrine of religious liberty, but for other opinions also, that Williams was banished. This, however, will not exculpate the General Court; for we find them enacting a law, that: "If any person or persons within this jurisdiction . . . shall deny . . . their [the magistrates'] lawful right or authority . . . to punish the outward breaches of the first table . . . every such person or persons shall be sentenced to banishment." In other words, though it be admitted that Williams was banished for other utterances, together with the proclamation of the doctrine of religious freedom, the court deemed it proper to decree banishment for that teaching alone. Certain others of Williams's opinions were condemned, e.g., those regarding the royal patent, by Williams, but had been preached for a long time.

Vanhoozer's Providence was necessary, and consequently those doctrines threatened the civil peace, and thus rendered him justly liable to exile. But in Rhode Island, where the teachings of Williams and of all others were freely permitted, life and property and civil order were as secure as in Massachusetts. In other words, the Rhode-Island experiment showed that Williams's teachings were not dangerous to civil order, and that therefore his banishment from Massachusetts was unnecessary, and consequently unjust.

Departing from Salem, Williams, with four companions, made his way to Seekonk, where he began to build and plant. But in a few weeks, finding that this spot was within the jurisdiction of Plymouth Colony, he went on and made a new settlement, to which he gave the name of "Providence."

Three years after Williams's settlement at Providence came a change in his ecclesiastical relations. It should be remarked that the doctrine of religious liberty was not first set forth by Williams, but had been preached for a long time by the Baptists. It is found in their Confession of Faith, put forth in Amsterdam in 1611, when Williams was but a lad; and he must have been familiar with the teachings of the Baptists on this point. Possibly a leaning, on his part, to Baptist views, is revealed in the fear of Brewster at Plymouth, that Williams might "run the course of rigid separation and antipapistry, which Mr. John Smith, the Se-Baptist at Amsterdam, had done." At any rate, in 1636, Williams, with others, renounced his baptism in infancy, and was baptized again, Ezekiel Holliman baptizing Williams, and Williams in return baptizing Holliman and several others. This reciprocal baptism is generally given as the origin of the First Baptist Church of Providence. Williams, however, remained connected with the new society only some four months; for, becoming dissatisfied with his baptism as not coming down from the apostles, he withdrew, and henceforth renounced his Baptist consecrations.

In 1643 Williams went to England to procure a charter for the Providence and Rhode Island colonists; in which mission he succeeded, returning the following year. In 1651, in company with John Clarke of Newport, he sailed again for England to secure the interests of the Colony, returning in 1654. He lived to advanced years, dying in 1683.

Williams's character as a man and a Christian was above reproach. Though he was much engaged in sharp discussion, and the age was one in which disputants indulged in bitter invective, opponents spoke of him personally in terms of high respect. He was an especial friend of the Indians. He studied their language, respected and defended their title to their lands, and, when the Massachusetts Colony and other white settlements were threatened with Indian hostilities, he was able, by his acquaintance and friendship with leading chiefs, to avert the impending dangers.

He was a somewhat copious and a vigorous author. His writings contain many striking passages, and can still be read with interest. He had the intimate friendship of Cromwell, Milton, Vane, and others of the noblest Englishmen of his day.

Williams's extant writings (all published in London except when otherwise designated) are:

A key into the Language of America, or a help to the language of the Natives, etc., 1645, 12mo, pp. 216; Mr. Cotton's letter examined, etc., 1644, 4to, pp. 67; The Bloody Tenent of Persecution, etc., 1644, 4to, pp. 271; Queries, etc., 1644, pp. 13; Christenings make not Christians, a tract, 1645; The Bloody Tenent yet more Bloody, etc., 1652, 4to, pp. 373; The Harming Ministry none of Christ's, 1652, 4to, pp. 44; Experiments, etc., 1832, 4to, pp. 69; George Fox Dug out of his Burrow, Boston, 1676, 4to, pp. 353. Many of his letters are also published, edited by J. Russell Bartlett, Providence, 1882. His works, except one or two of the shorter writings, were republished by the Narragansett Club, in 6 vols. 4to, Providence, 1866-74. A seventh volume will complete the set.

Lit.—JAMES D. KNOWLES: Memoir of Roger Williams, the Founder of the State of Rhode Island, Boston, 1834; WILLIAM GAMMELL: Life of Roger Williams, Boston, 1845 (Sparks's American Biography, 2d series, vol. iv.); ROEMO ELOX: Life of Roger Williams, the Earliest Legislator, and the True Champion for a Full and Absolute Liberty of Conscience, Providence, 1853; REUBEN ALDRIGE: A Biographical Introduction to the Writings of Roger Williams, Providence, 1866 (publications of the Narragansett Club, vol. i.); Z. A. MURTO: Footprints of Roger Williams, a Biography, New York, 1871 (for the young); HENRY M. DEWS: As to His Age and Rate, in 1636; 1639; 1642; With Remarks on the Massachusetts Plantation, Boston, 1876. See also EVANS: Memoir of the Life of William Richards, L.L.D., Cheorwich, 1819 (Appendix, pp. 322-326); Works of Hon. Job Durfee, L.L.D., edited by his son, Providence, 1849 (What Cheer, or Roger Williams in Banishment, pp. 1-178); ARNOLD: History of Rhode Island, New York, 1865 (for the young); TYLER: History of American Literature, vol. i. pp. 241-286. and the articles upon Roger Williams, by REUBEN A. GUILD, in the Biographical Cyclopedia of Rhode Island (Providence, 1881), and in CATHCART’S Baptist Encyclopedia. NORMAN FOX.

WILLIAMS, Rowland, D.D., English divine; b. at Falklyn, Flintshire, Wales, Aug. 16, 1817; d. at Broad-chalke, near Salisbury, Wilts., Jan. 18, 1870. He was graduated at King’s College, Cambridge, and chosen fellow of his college, 1839; travelled from August, 1840, till the autumn of 1841, upon the continent; B.A., 1841; ordained deacon, October, 1842, and priest the next year; classical tutor of King’s College, 1843; M.A., 1844; was elected vice-principal, and professor of Hebrew, in the Welsh theological college of St. David’s, Lampeter, 1849; resigned his tutorship; began his new duties in the spring of 1850; B.D., 1851; appointed select preacher at the University of Cambridge, December, 1854; D.D., 1857; became vicar of Historical Evidence applied to Dis cer, a Dramatic Biography: and Other Poems,

The Philosophy of Universalism, Cincinnati, 1860.

WILLIBALD, St., the first bishop of Eichstadt, Bavaria; was b. in England, 700; a relative of Boniface, and was educated by Abbot Egbold in the monastery of Waltheim. In 720 he made a pilgrimage to Rome, and thence to the Holy Land; and after his return to Italy he spent ten years in the monastery of Monte Cassino, 720–730. In 740 he met Boniface in Rome, and accompanied him to Germany, where in 741 he was consecrated bishop of the newly founded see of Eichstadt. He built the monastery of Heidenheim, over which his brother Wunnebald presided till 763, and then his sister Walpurgis till 778. The year of his death is given as 751 and as 768 or 785, and the latter is the most probable. His life (L’ita Willibaldi, also called Hodoeporicum) was written by a nun of Heidenheim, and is found in the famous volume, Essays and Reviews, London, 1869 (issued shortly after his death) ; Psalms and WILLIAMSON, Isaac Dowd, D.D., Universalist; b. at Pomfret, Vt., April 4, 1807; d. in Connecticut, Nov. 26, 1876. He began preaching when twenty years old, and was pastor in different parts of the Union. He also edited several religious denominational papers, and published An Exposition and Defence of Universalism, New York, 1840; Examination of the Doctrine of Endless Punishment, Cincinnati, 1854; The Philosophy of Universalism, Cincinnati, 1860.

WILLIAMSON, Isaac Dowd, D.D., Universalist; b. at Pomfret, Vt., April 4, 1807; d. in Connecticut, Nov. 26, 1876. He began preaching when twenty years old, and was pastor in different parts of the Union. He also edited several religious denominational papers, and published An Exposition and Defence of Universalism, New York, 1840; Examination of the Doctrine of Endless Punishment, Cincinnati, 1854; The Philosophy of Universalism, Cincinnati, 1860.

WILLIAMSON, Isaac Dowd, D.D., Universalist; b. at Pomfret, Vt., April 4, 1807; d. in Connecticut, Nov. 26, 1876. He began preaching when twenty years old, and was pastor in different parts of the Union. He also edited several religious denominational papers, and published An Exposition and Defence of Universalism, New York, 1840; Examination of the Doctrine of Endless Punishment, Cincinnati, 1854; The Philosophy of Universalism, Cincinnati, 1860.
WILSON, John, D.D., Bishop of Sodor and Man; b. at Burton, Cheshire, Sunday, Dec. 20, 1833; d. on the Isle of Man, March 7, 1875. He was graduated B.A. at Trinity College, Dublin, 1855; and became curate of Newchurch, Kent, Eng., 1856, where he remained until August, 1862, when he was appointed chaplain to the Earl of Derby, who, on Nov. 27, 1897, appointed him bishop of Sodor and Man; the benefice being in his gift as Lord of the Isle of Man. Wilson was consecrated at the Savoy Church, London, Jan. 16, 1897, and thus entered upon fifty-eight years of faithful labor. He accomplished two great reforms in his diocese,—the first (1708) relating to the tenures of landed property, which had been very uncertain; and the second, to the rules and discipline of the church there. He had, indeed, remarkable qualities as an administrator, and was, from his position, compelled to take a great share in secular affairs. He wrote comparatively little. In 1707 he issued his Principles and Duties of Christianity, commonly called the "Manx Catechism," in English and Manx; being the first book ever printed in Manx. In 1735 he showed his interest in the missionary aspect of Gen. Oglethorpe's Georgia plantation scheme, and in 1745 he published his Essay towards an Instruction or Doctrine of Christianity, commonly called the "Manx Catechism"; he translated into French, English, and Manx; being the first book ever printed in Manx. In 1735 he showed his interest in the missionary aspect of Gen. Oglethorpe's Georgia plantation scheme, and in 1745 he published his Essay towards an Instruction or Doctrine of Christianity, commonly called the "Manx Catechism." His death occasioned a great outburst of sorrow. He was a model bishop; and, wherever he is now known by his writings, he receives the involuntary encomium, "surely he was a saintly man." The best known of these writings, besides those already mentioned, are, Short and Plain Instructions for the Better Understanding of the Lord's Supper, London, 1736, 32d ed., 1807; repeatedly republished, e.g., New York, 1883; Parochialia, or Instructions for the Clergy, Bath, 1788, several editions and reprints; *Maxims of Piety and Christianiy, 1788, several reprints, e.g., London, 1869; *Sacra privata, Private Meditations, Devotions, and Prayers, London, 1800, new ed., 1873. A translation of the Bible into Manx was begun at his request; but he only lived to see the translation of the Gospels and the printing of Matthew (London, 1748). The Manx Bible was published at Whitehaven, 1772-75, 5 vols. 8vo. His *Works were first published in a collected edition, with his *Life, by Rev. C. Cruttwell, Bath, 1781, quarto, several times reprinted in different sizes and numbers of volumes; but the best edition is by Rev. John Keble, as part of the *Library of Anglo-Catholic Theology, Oxford, 1847-52, 7 vols. in 8 parts, of which vol. 1 in 2 parts is the *Life,—an elaborate, not to say prolix, account of Bishop Wilson and his surroundings. *Keble’s *Life of Wilson appeared in a new edition, 1863, 2 vols. For a literary judgment upon Wilson, see Matthew Arnold’s *Culture and *Anarchy, London, 1869, Preface.
WIMPHELING. 2535

WINCKLER.

WIMPHELING, Jakob, b. at Schlettstadt, in Alsace, July 26, 1450; d. there Nov. 17, 1528. The school in which he was educated was controlled by the Brethren of Common Life,—a circumstance which seems to have exercised a decisive influence on his whole life. He studied at Freiburg (1464-71) and at Heidelberg, where he took his degree, and began to lecture. In 1483 he was ordained priest, and appointed preacher at the Cathedral of Spire; but in 1498 he was called to Heidelberg as professor in the *facultas arium. That position, however, he gave up in 1500, and joined Geiler von Kaisersberg at Strassburg, where for some time he was occupied with the editing of Gerson’s works. In 1515 he finally retired to his native city, where he spent the rest of his life in his sister’s house. He was one of those well-meaning but weak humanists, who were always clamoring for reform, but who were, nevertheless, frightened almost to death by the Reformation. He was one of the first to attack the works of Osiander, etc. He died with a mind at peace, and despite of the intervention of the Pope, who commanded silence, the controversy had not died out in 1523. At Luther’s first appearance he saw in him the realization of his own ideas; but afterwards he became disgusted and indignant, when, of the various members of the peaceable literary society he had founded in Schlettstadt, Butzer began to preach justification by faith, Capito rejected the worship of the Virgin, etc. A complete list of his works (eighty-seven), and materials for his biography, are found in Rieger: Amaeitus litterarum *Friderigenses, Ulm, 1772; *Schwarz: Jakob Wimpheling, Gotth., 1875. See also Ch. Schmidt: *Histoire litteraire d’Alsace, Paris, 1879, i.

CH. SCHMIDT.

WIMPINA, Conrad, also called Cocus from Koch, his family name; b. at Buchen or Buchheim, in Odenwald, 1459 or 1460; d. in the monastery of Amorbach, May 17, or June 16, 1531. He studied divinity at Paris, and was appointed *professor there in 1491, and in 1506 rector of the newly founded university of Frankfort-on-the-Oder. When the Reformation began, he espoused the cause of Romanism, defended Tetzel in 1517, and afterwards appeared at the side of Eck and Faber. Among his writings are *Farrago Miscellaneorum (1531), *De fato, *De providentia, etc.

WINANs, William, D.D., b. near Braddock’s Grave, Pa., Nov. 3, 1768, and d. in Amite Co., Miss., Aug. 31, 1857; was a leading minister in the Methodist-Episcopal Church South. He joined the Western Conference in Pennsylvania in 1808, and two years later moved to Mississippi. Here he soon took high rank in his conference, and rose to great eminence in the connection. He was one of the strongest advocates in the South for the American Colonization Society. He took a prominent part in the organization of the Methodist-Episcopal Church South in 1844-46. Intellectually he was one of the strongest men the Southern Methodist Church has ever produced. A close student, a clear thinker and reasoner, a vigorous writer, a powerful preacher, a debater of decided ability and reputation, he is justly regarded as one of the leading minds and representative men of the Southern Church in his day. In addition to many public addresses, he published a volume of *Discourses (8vo, Nashville, 1855) of a theological nature, which are remarkable for clearness of analysis and vigor of style, and for a masterly treatment of the individual themes, a depth and compass of thought rarely, if ever, surpassed in sermonic literature.

W. F. TILLETT.

WINCHESTER, the seat of an English bishopric since 602; is the capital of Hampshire, and is situated on the right bank of the Itchen. It was called by the ancient Britons *Coer Gwened (“The White City”); by the Romans, *Venta *Bulgarum, and by the Anglo-Saxons, *Winchester. The Romans are supposed to have built its walls. It has witnessed a number of important events in former times; such as the coronation of Egbert as Bretwaldas, 897; its capture by the Danes, 860; the great assembly held by *Cuut, between 1016 and 1020; the reconciliation of King John with Archbishop Langton and the prelates, 1213; the marriage of Queen Mary with Philip II., 1564. It was the capital of England from its capture by the Danes till after Henry II. It was first built by Ceolwulf, 613-616, but has been rebuilt and enlarged several times. The present structure is 545 feet long, with transepts 186 wide, and a tower 139 feet high, but only 26 feet above the roof. The stipend of the bishop is $5,500. See Benham: Winchester, Lond., 1854.

WINCHESTER, Elhanan, Universalist; b. in Brookline, Mass., Sept. 30, 1751; d. in Hartford, Conn., April 18, 1797. In 1769 he joined a Separate Church in his native town, and became a preacher; but the next year he went over to the Ojen-Communion Baptists in Canterbury, Conn.; later, became a close-communionist, and in consequence was excommunicated; but from 1771 to 1780 he preached in various parts of the country. In 1780 he was settled in Philadelphia, and there avowed his belief in Restorationism, and, followed by most of his congregation, established a Universalist Church. From 1779 to 1794 he preached Restorationism in England. His number upwards of forty volumes. See list (imperfect) in Allibone. His *Life has been written by William Vidal (London, 1797) and by E. M. Stone (Boston, 1836).

WINCKLER, Johann, b. at *Görlitz in Saxony, July 13, 1842; d. at Hamburg, April 5, 1875. He WINDESHEIM, or WINDESEN, a convent of regular canons, founded in 1386 by the Brethren of Common Life, and situated in the diocese of Utrecht. It was a very prosperous institution. In 1402 it had founded, or entered into connection with, six other convents; towards the end of the fifteenth century, with eighty. In 1435 it was closed towards the end of the sixteenth century with, six other convents; towards the end of the fifteenth century, with eighty. In 1435 it was closed, its reformatory activity was extended also to other orders. It was closed towards the end of the sixteenth century. See BUSCH: Chronicon Windesenense (Antwerp, 1621), and De Reformazione Monasteriorum quorundam Saxoniae, in LEIBNITZ: Scriptores Brunsvicenses.

WINDESHEIM.

2586

WINE.

WINE-MAKING AMONG THE HEBREWS.

The vine was brought from Armenia to Palestine at the time of Abraham; and it found there, especially in the southern part of the country, a climate most congenial to it. It produced the grapes of which the vineyard of Jeusalem Valley of Eschol that the Lord cut down the gigantic trees of Judah and planted it for the Israelites in their Holy Land. The vineyard was a source of profit to the farmers, who sold their grapes to the neighboring cities. The grapes were then crushed by treading with the feet. Hence the word 'asis', which means literally trodden (see the root, Mal. iii. 21, Heb.), is used to denote must, or the newly expressed juice of the grape. A more common term for must is tirosh. For grape-juice when it has undergone the vinous fermentation, the proper word is yechelem. The acetous fermentation converts it into chumah, or vinegar. In Latin, vinum ('wine') stands intermediate between mustum ('must') and acetum ('vinegar'). In Greek we have the same gradation, gleukos ('must'), oinos ('wine'; cf. the definition in Passow, or in Dictionnaire), and oxos ('vinegar'). The references to wine-making in the Bible let us see that no effort was made to preserve the expressed juice of the grape from exposure to the air; and it would, of course, ferment. But long before it was matured, so as to be proper yayin, it could intoxicate: hence we find an inebriating power ascribed to 'asis (Isa. xlix. 26) and to tirosh (Hos. ii. 11) and to gleukos (Acts ii. 13). Dagkan ('corn') is regularly joined with tirosh ('must'), e.g., Gen. xxvii. 28; while lechem ('bread') is found in conjunction with yayin (e.g., Gen. xiv. 18), and not with tirosh. But corn is not eaten in its crude state: it must be prepared in order to be fit for food. So tirosh needs to mature into yayin to be a proper drink. In all wine-producing countries this is acknowledged. Our Lord (Luke v. 39) attests the universal preference for old wine to new (cf. Columella, iii. 4; Ecclus. iv. 10; Pirke Aboth, iv. 21). But intemperate Jews of old would not wait till the juice of the grape had fully matured. They could get drunk on it a few days after it had been expressed. So Dr. J. H. Sheed makes of the drunken Armenians and Nestorians of the present day: “The drinking is usually done up because the wine is exhausted at Easter. Till then drunkenness is too common to excite remark” (Missions and Science, p. 433). If tirosh were, as a few modern writers contend, “the fruit of the vineyard,” it would not be “found in the cluster” (Isa. lxv. 8, 9), but would be the cluster. That it is a fluid is clear from Joel ii. 24. To tirosh is ascribed “the element contained in the cup of the Holy Supper,” etc. (Prov. xxiii. 3). An unintelligible proviso against excess, and “wine in excess” is held reprehensible (1 Tim. v. 23). If tirosh were, as a few modern writers contend, “the fruit of the vineyard,” it would not be “found in the cluster” (Isa. lxv. 8, 9). No Christian or heathen moralist has ever, in condemning wine, and advocating temperance, alluded to the use of which was free from peril. In fact, the theory of two kinds of wine—the one fermented and intoxicating and unlawful, and the other unfermented, unintoxicating, and lawful—is a modern hypothesis, devised during the present century, and has no foundation in the Bible, or in Hebrew or classical antiquity.

Examples of unfermented wines are, indeed, adduced from Latin and Greek authors; but they do not bear examination. Those who take the pains to study the authorities appealed to must be amazed at the purpose for which they are brought forward. That must pass into wine by fermentation, see Varro, De Re Rustica, i. 65; Columella, De Re Rustica, xii. 25; Pliny, H. N., xiv. 11. These writers mention only one way of trying to hinder must from becoming wine; viz., by keeping the casks containing it in cold water. But no instance of this preserved must being drunk as a beverage alone, or simply mixed with water, has been pointed out.

To complete the evidence against the unfermented wine theory, no trace of such a wine can now be discovered in the lands of the Bible. Missionaries of the highest character and attainments, and long resident in Syria, such as Drs. W. M. Thomson, C. V. A. Van Dyck, H. H. Jesup, and W. Wright, have united with some of the most intelligent natives of Syria in testifying that they have never seen or heard of an unfermented wine in Syria or the Holy Land, nor have found, among Jews, Christians, or Mohammedans, any tradition of such a wine ever existing in the country in which our Saviour lived in the days of his flesh. Dibs, which is sometimes referred to as a specimen of an unfermented wine, is simply honey of grapes, the Hebrew debsh. It is not drunk diluted with water, but is used as molasses or jelly.

The expression “the fruit of the vine” is employed by our Saviour in the synoptical Gospels to denote the element contained in the cup of the Holy Supper. The fruit of the vine is literally the grape. But the Jews from time immemorial have used this phrase to designate the wine partaken of on sacred occasions, as at the Passover and on the evening of the Sabbath. The Mishna (De Bezid. cap. 6, para 1) expressly states, that, in pronouncing blessings, “the fruit of the vine” is the consecrated expression for yasin. For further proof of this usage the Jewish Prayer-Book may be consulted. How naturally the phrase “the fruit of the vine” is put for wine is seen from Herodotus (book i. 212), where Tomyris, the Queen of the Massagetae, is made to employ the three synonyms ("the fruit of the wine","pharmakon ("a drug"), and os" ("wine"), to denote the wine by which a part of her army was so intoxicated as to fall an easy prey to Cyrus. Wine is not whiskey, but compare the phrase "old rye" for the latter. The Christian Fathers, as well as the Jewish rabbis, have understood "the fruit of the vine" to mean wine in the proper sense. Our Lord, in instituting the Supper after the Passover, availed himself of the expression invariably employed by his countrymen in speaking of the wine of the Passover. On other occasions, when employing the language of common life, he calls wine by its ordinary name. We have seen, that, according to Old Testament usage, the product of the wine which accompanies bread is not tirosh, but proper wine. The New-Testament corroboration of this usage is found in Luke vii. 33. Hence, when we have bread in the Communion, wine is its fitting scriptural accompaniment. What we read in 1 Cor. xi. 21, 27, testifies unmistakably to the nature of the wine of the Supper. Those in the Corinthian church who were "drunken" at the Communion partook of "the cup of the Lord," though "unworthily." It is right to state, that, during the Passover, Jews will not taste or touch fermented drinks into which sugar has entered (cf. Mishna, Pesachoth, part ii.). But the fermented juice of the grape prepared by Jews, and kept carefully free from leaven, is the proper Paschal wine. The truth on this subject can be learned from any intelligent Jew. The wine of the Supper is not different from the wine made by our Lord at Cana. The character of the latter is clear from the remark of the governor of the feast recorded in John ii. 10. It is clasmed by him with the good wine, which was always served at the beginning of a feast, and which could so affect those who partook of it too freely as to blunt their taste, and render them incapable of distinguishing between good wine and bad. It was to the governor, whose judgment is reported, that Christ instructed the servants to bear the wine.

Shekhar (Greek, sikera, Luke i. 15) is rightly translated "strong drink" in the English Version. The attempt to connect shekhar with Sanskrit (skarod, saccharum ("sugar")), is inadmissible, as sugar was unknown to the ancient Hebrews. Numerous are the words of censure and warning uttered in connection with shekhar, the use of it is expressly sanctioned (Deut. xiv. 26; Prov. xxxi. 6). It could be poured out to the Lord as a drink-offering (Num. xxviii. 7). As yiqin was the natural, shekhar was the artificial wine. It was prepared from grain, apples, honey, or dates (Jerome, Epist. ad Nepotianum), and included zuthos, or beer.

Chemer is in Hebrew a poetic term for wine, and is derived from a verb signifying both "to ferment" and "to be red." Whichever meaning is ascribed to its root, the import of chemer is the same, as the red color of natural wine supposes fermentation. Chemer in its Chaldee form denotes the wine drunk by Belshazzar (Dan. v. 1); yet it appears as a blessing (Isa. xxvii. 2; Deut. xxxi. 14). In the latter place it explains the expression, "the blood of the grape."

Shemdrin (Isa. xxv. 6) is translated in the English Version "wines on the lees." It denotes strictly the lees with which the newly pressed wine kept long on the lees, and therefore old, and of superior quality (Alexander). It forms, along with "fat things," the provision of a feast (Heb., mishkef, literally "a drinking"). A feast without wine could not be called a mishkef. It is absurd, therefore, to make shemdrim designate preserves or jellys.

Sobe, in Isa. i. 22, denotes the wine of Jerusalem in its best days, but in Nah. 1. 10 the Ninevites appear drunken with their sobe.

Meshek (Ps. Ixxv. 9, Hebrew text), mimsek (Prov. xxxiii. 30), and mezeg (Cant. vii. 3, Hebrew text), all denote literally a mixture, then wine mixed with spices to increase its strength, and render it more agreeable. Some scholars dispute the acquaintance of the Hebrews with spiced wines; but see Cant. viii. 2, and the note on Isa. v. 21, in Lange's Commentary. Mishruth adonim (Num. vi. 3), rendered in the English Version "liquor of grapes," is defined by Gesenius "drinking made of sand," which is an unfermented grape-juice is the approved wine of Scripture is maintained in Bacchus by R. B. Grimord, and in Anti-Bacchus by Rev. B. Parsons; in the Temperance Bible Commentary, by Lees and Burns; Dr. Samson's Divine Law as to Wines, and a multitude of pamphlets and essays. Dr. John Maclean criticised Bacchus and Anti-Bacchus in the April and October issues of the Princeton Review for 1841. The Rev. A. M. Wilson wrote The Wines of the Bible (London, Hamilton Adams & Co.), principally against Dr. Lees. The subject is discussed by Dr. T. Laurie, in Bib. Sac. for January, 1851; by Dr. Atwater, in Princeton Review for October, 1871; by Professor Bumstead, in Bib. Sac. for January, 1881, and by the writer of the foregoing article, in the Presb. Review for January, 1882, and Januay, 1883. DUNLOP MOORE.

WINEBRENNERIANS, the popular designation of a Baptist denomination officially called "The Church of God." The founder, the Rev. John Winebrenner, was a minister of the German Reformed Church; b. March 25, 1797, in Frederick County, Md.; d. Sept. 12, 1860, in Harrisburg, Penn. He was settled in 1820, in Harrisburg, over four congregations of the German Reformed Church,—one in town, and three in the country. Soon after his settlement a revival began in his churches, on account of which, as he wrote, he encountered much opposition from members and ministers of the synod. This state of things, according to his own account, "lasted for the space of about five years, and then resulted in a separation from the German Reformed Church." This separation, which must have been in 1825, did not interrupt the revival. On the contrary, it spread, and there were "multitudes happily converted to God." These converts were organized into churches; and, as Mr. Winebrenner's views as to the nature of a scriptural ecclesiastical... tual organization had meantime changed, these churches were formed as "spiritual, free, and independent churches." Ministers were raised up from among the converts; but until 1830 they co-operated with Mr. Winebrenner, without a definite practical system. The first congregation called "The Church of God" was organized in 1829; and in the following year the ministers met together, and agreed upon the principles upon which the new denomination should be based. Winebrenner was elected speaker (president) of the conference, and preached a sermon, in which he gave an outline of the faith and practice of New Testament churches. Such churches should be formed, (1) of "believers only;" (2) "without sectarian or human name;" (3) "with no creed and discipline but the Bible;" (4) subject to no foreign jurisdiction; (5) "they should be governed by their own officers, chosen by a majority of the members of each individual church." Thus originated the Annual Eldership, or Conference. There are now, chiefly in Pennsylvania and the West, fifteen annual elderships, besides a General Eldership (triennial), which adopts general legislation for the church, and controls its denominational activities and benevolences. The ministers, of whom there are four hundred and fifty, are called elders, and occupy stations, or itinerate in given districts under the control of their respective elderships, or travel as missionaries at large. The number of members is estimated at forty-five thousand. The church was organized by Germans, and the German element enters largely into the membership. One eldership is wholly German. The church holds its denominational activities and benevolences. Learning, and skill, y W. F. Moulton, Edinburgh, 1873); and his edition, with notes, of the Augsburg Confession, 1825. And a third production, which has put scholars under heavy contribution, is his handbook of theological literature, Handbuch der theologischen Literatur. 1821: 3d ed., 1838-40, 2 vols. with supplement, one of the most useful and accurate compilations of its class, and greatly enriched, beyond its classifications of book-titles, by brief biographical notices of all authors mentioned, giving merely the most essential dates, which in many instances rescue the name from total oblivion. But with the exception of the books just mentioned, and two or three essays, Wine's publications, in the shape of volumes or articles, treat of the Bible, yet only in some of its departments of scientific study; for to biblical theology, as to textual and historic criticism, he gave little attention; and, although verbally he expended in his classes all the books of the New Testament, he published a commentary upon only one,—the Epistle to the Galatians, 1821; 4th ed., 1859. Upon three great works his fame as a Bible student and grammarian rests: 1. A Bible Dictionary (Bibliisches Realwörterbuch), 1920, 1 vol.; 3d ed., 1847, 2 vols. The work of immense industry, a thesaurus of learning upon all historical, geographical, archeological, and natural-historical matters contained in the Bible, and the whole characterized by thorough study, great truthfulness, and absence of speculation; 2. A Grammar of the Chaldee Language, as contained in the Bible and the Targums (Grammatik des biblischen und talmudischen Chaldaismus), 1824 [3d ed. by Dr. B. Fischer, 1852; Eng. trans. by Professor H. B. Hackett, Andover, 1845], supplemented by a Chaldee chrestomathy, 1825; 3. A Grammar of New Testament Greek regarded as a Sure Basis for New Testament Exegesis (Grammatik des neutestamentlichen Sprachraums, als sichere Grundlage der neutestamentlichen Exegese bezeichnet), 1822; 7th ed. by Lümemann, 1866; Eng. trans. by Moses Stuart and Edward Robinson, Andover, 1825 [from the 4th ed. by Agnew and Ebbeke, Philadelphia, 1859; from the 6th ed. by Masson, Edinburgh, 1859; from the 7th ed. of Masson, by J. Henry Thayer, Andover, 1869; and on the same basis, with equal freedom, independence, learning, and skill, by W. F. Moulton, Edinburgh, 1870; 2d ed., 1877]. It is Wine's imperishable service, that he put an end forever to the vague suppositions respecting the historic language of the Greek New Testament, and to the unending arbitrariness of an exposition, which, through decades of use, had become a system, and claimed to have the exclusive right to interpret the Bible, was brought to a great victory about by proving the truly Greek usage in the New Testament, both in grammatical forms and in style. His work had apparently only a scientific end, but in reality Winer was influenced by moral and religious considerations. He had a great reverence for the Bible; and his labors accomplished much, for they enabled the student to get at the truth. In consequence, it may be claimed for him, that he led the way to reform in biblical interpretation, making it less subjective and individual, and more in accordance with the real facts. It is greatly to be regretted, that Winer was not permitted to do for the lexicon of the New Testament a work corresponding to that he had done for the grammar. He did, it is true, prepare a Beitrag zur Verbesserung der neustamentlichen Lexikographie, 1833, and collect rich materials for such a lexicton; but he did not live to put his work in shape. In 1850 he issued a Specimen lexici hebraici, and in 1852 a revision of the Simon-Eichhorn Dictionary of the Hebrew and Chaldee languages. G. LECHLER.

WINES, Enoch Cobb, D.D., LL.D., Presbyterian, b. at Hanover, N.J., Feb. 17, 1806; d. at Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 10, 1879. He was graduated at Middlebury College, 1827; from 1825 till 1831 was chaplain and teacher in the navy, and subsequently taught and preached in various places, until in 1854 he was appointed professor of ancient languages in Washington College, Pennsylvania, and in 1859 president of the City University, St. Louis. In 1862 he entered publicly upon the great work of prison-reform, with which his name is indissolubly connected. In that year he became corresponding secretary of the New York Prison Association, and in 1870 the secretary of the National Prison Association, which was formed through his exertions. In 1871 he went to Europe, as a representative of the United States Government, to make arrangements for an international penitentiary congress, which met in London, July 4, 1872, and through his personal efforts embraced representatives of twenty-six governments. He was on this occasion chosen chairman of the permanent international commission, which met at Brussels, 1874, and at Bruchsal, 1875. He was also the leading spirit in the second congress, called by the commission at Stockholm, 1877. Besides his official reports, which contain much valuable information, and reveal his indefatigable energy and tireless enthusiasm, he was the author of Two Years and a Half in the Navy, Phila., 1839, 2 vols.; Commentaries on the Laws of the Ancient Hebrews, New York, 1852, 6th ed., Phila., 1869; Adam and Christ, or the Doctrines to India, and for seventeen years labored at Jaffna and Oddoville in Ceylon, then, 1836, was transferred to Madras; which mission founded a mission, and in 1840 a college, of which he was president. He was the author of Sketch of the Missions, Andover, 1819; Memoir of Harriet Ward, North Wind Association Mission, New York, 1835 (a very widely read memoir); Hints on Missions to India, New York, 1856; A Comprehensive Tamil and English Dictionary of High and Low Tamil, Madras, 1862 (based partly upon manuscript materials left by Rev. Joseph Knight: upon it he spent from three to four hours a day for thirty years. He was assisted by native scholars. It contains 67,000 Tamil words). Dr. Winslow also translated the Bible into Tamil (Madras, 1855). He was married five times.

WINFRIED. See Boniface.

WINFRID, Miron (often spelled Myron), D.D., LL.D., Congregational missionary, b. at Williams- ton, Va., Dec. 11, 1817, d. at the Cape of Good Hope, on his way home, Oct. 22, 1844. He was graduated at Middlebury College, 1815, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1818. In June, 1818, he sailed for the East Indies, and spent two years in the Indian Archipelago, and on his return labored at Jaffna and Oddoville in Ceylon, then, 1836, was transferred to Madras; which mission founded a mission, and in 1840 a college, of which he was president. He was the author of Sketch of the Missions, Andover, 1819; Memoir of Harriet Ward, North Wind Association Mission, New York, 1835 (a very widely read memoir); Hints on Missions to India, New York, 1856; A Comprehensive Tamil and English Dictionary of High and Low Tamil, Madras, 1862 (based partly upon manuscript materials left by Rev. Joseph Knight: upon it he spent from three to four hours a day for thirty years. He was assisted by native scholars. It contains 67,000 Tamil words). Dr. Winslow also translated the Bible into Tamil (Madras, 1855). He was married five times.

WINTERTHUR, Johann of, or Vitoduranus, b. at Winterthur, in the canton of Zurich, towards the close of the thirteenth century; entered the order of the Minorites about 1320, and lived in the various convents of the order, at Basel, Schaffhausen, Lindau, and Zurich. The date and place of his death are unknown. He is the author of a chronicle, reaching from the death of Friedrich H. to 1418, which is of great interest, especially for the history of Switzerland, but also for history in general. The book was first published in Eccard's Corpus hist. mediævi, 1723: the latest edition is that by Jaffe, in Monumenta Germaniae.

WISDOM OF SOLOMON. See Apocrypha, p. 103.

WISEMAN, Nicholas Patrick Stephen, S.T.D., Cardinal, and Archbishop of Westminster; b. in Seville, Spain, Aug. 2, 1802; d. in London, Feb. 15, 1863. He was educated in England, then in English College at Rome, where he was graduated S.T.D. in 1824. He was ordained priest, 1826, and made professor of Oriental languages of the Roman University, and vice-rector of the English College, 1827, rector, 1828. In 1835 he returned to England, and won fame as a preacher; in 1840 he was made bishop of Melpotamus, and president of St. Mary's College, Oscott; in 1849, vicar-apostolic of the London district; and on the restoration of the Roman-Catholic hierarchy in England, Sept. 29, 1850, archbishop of Westminster, and cardinal. He was the author of Horæ Syriacæ, Rome, 1828, vol. i. (all pub.); Twelve Lectures on the Connection between Science and Revealed Religion, delivered in Rome, London, 1836, 2 vols., 5th ed., 1853, reprinted Andover, 1837, St. Louis, 1878 (a masterly work, although now behind the times); Lectures on the Principal Doctrines and Practices of the Catholic Church, London, 1836, 6th Amer. ed., Baltimore, 1862; Fabiola, a Tale of the Catacombs, London, 1855, 3d ed., 1870, New York, 1855; Recollections of the Last Four Poles, in Low House, London and Boston, 1858; Daily Meditation, Dublin, 1868. His Works have been published in 14 vols. (New York), including his dramas, one of which, The Hidden Gem, was produced at Liverpool in 1859, and well received.

WISHART, George, a celebrated Scottish martyr; b. in the early part of the sixteenth century; d. at the stake, March 1, 1546. According appears to have taken an exceptional high place in 1548, when the sect was said to have been the most learned and accomplished of the Scotsmen of a period which abounded in instances of the highest scholastic attainments among his countrymen. He had, perhaps, more daring than firmness in the faith which was in him. But he died with true courage. Judging of him on very slight evidence, he seems to have been, upon the whole, little suited for the rough life and the hard fate which became his actual lot in life. A very interesting account of his person and habits will be found in the account of him published in Fox's Book of Martyrs, given in a letter from one of his Cambridge pupils, Emery Tytney, written in 1543.

Tytney writes, about the year of our Lord 1543:

"There was in the Universitie of Cambridge, one Maister George Wischart, commonly called Maister George of Bennets College, who was a man of tall stature, pale headed, and on the same a rounde French cap of the best; judged of melancholy complexion by his physiognome; black haired, long bearded, comely of personage, well spoken after his country of Scotland; courteous, industrious, fond to teach, desirous to learn, and was well travailed; having on him for his habit or clothing never but a Mantell friezc gowne to the shoes, a black Milan fustian doublet, and plain black hosen, coarse new canvayse for his shirts, and white falling bands and cuffs at his hands. All the which apparel he gave to the poor, some quarterly, some monthly, some quarterly, as hee liked, saving his French Cappe, which he kept the whole eyre of my being With him. He was a man modest, temperate, fearing God, hating covetousness. . . . His learning no lesse sufficient than his desire . . . to do good."

Mr. Tytney (History of Scotland, v. 343) brings a charge against Wischart, of some concern with a scheme for the assassination of Cardinal Beaton, and appears to conclude that his execution was justifiable on this ground; but Mr. David Laing has given sufficient grounds for dismissing an imputation against his character which is at variance with all that we know of the martyr. See Laing's edition of Knox, vol. i. p. 536.

WISCHART, or WISEHEART, George, one of the best known of the Scottish bishops of the Restoration period; was b. in 1609, and d. in 1671. He belonged to the ancient family of the Wischearts of Logie in Forfarshire. He was educated at the University of Edinburgh for the Scotch Church, at that time in a state of transition, or rather of oscillation between presbyterianism and episcopacy, to which last party Wishart, as well from family connection as personal predilection, most inclined. He was a minister of St. Andrew's (not as Keith says, erroneously, of North Leith: see Sir James Balfour, Annals, iii. 261) down to the year 1638, when he was deposed for refusing to sign the covenant, and subjected himself otherwise to his own share of the troubles of the times. He tells us, that, for his attachment to Charles I. and episcopacy, he thence suffered spoliation, imprisonment, and exile, before the year 1647. In 1645, having been sent to the Marquis of Montrose, then everywhere victorious, with the intention of deposing the king and the terrified citizens of Edinburgh to plead for the royal clemency, he appears to have joined the family of Montrose as his chaplain. He continued with him till the close of the campaign, and afterwards, in the same capacity, accompanied him and the Marquis of Montrose to the siege of Edinbrough. On this occasion he is said to have been that of the failure of the unfortunate rising much in his favor. The time appears to have interested himself to obtain mercy for the captive sister of King Charles I. At the Restoration he returned to England; and having been, in partial recognition of his loyalty to the royal family and of his strict adherence to episcopacy, appointed to the rectory of Newcastle-on-Tyne, he was in the year 1692 promoted to the bishopric of Edinburgh. His character is very differently represented by the Presbyterian and the Episcopalian. Wodrow says of him, that he could not refrain from profane swearing, even upon the streets of Edinburgh; that he was a known drunkard; and that his poems, by their indelicacy, gave scandal to all great religion. Keith mentions one incident very of his strict adherence to episcopacy, appointed to the chaplaincy to Elizabeth, Queen of Bohemia, and at Pentland. On this occasion he is said to have been that of the failure of the unfortunate rising much in his favor. The time appears to have interested himself to obtain mercy for the captive sister of King Charles I. At the Restoration he returned to England; and having been, in partial recognition of his loyalty to the royal family and of his strict adherence to episcopacy, appointed to the rectory of Newcastle-on-Tyne, he was in the year 1692 promoted to the bishopric of Edinburgh. His character is very differently represented by the Presbyterians and the Episcopalian. Wodrow says of him, that he could not refrain from profane swearing, even upon the streets of Edinburgh; that he was a known drunkard; and that his poems, by their indelicacy, gave scandal to all the world (Suffrances of the Church of Scotland, i. 236). He is described by Keith as a person of great religion. Keith mentions one incident very much in his favor. The time appears to have been that of the failure of the unfortunate rising at Pentland. On this occasion he is said to have interested himself to obtain mercy for the captive insurgents; and, having been a prisoner himself, it is added, "he was always careful at each dinner to send away the first mess to the prisoners." He was an elegant Latinist, and a man of general literary ability. He wrote in two parts a history of the great campaign in Scotland, and the other transactions of the life of his great patron, the Marquis of Montrose. The title of the first part is J. G. De Rebis auspicia Serenissimi et Potentissimi Caroli, D. G., Mag. Brit. regis, etc., sub imperio illustrissimi Montis Rarat artistarchionis, etc., Anno 1644, et duobus sequentibus, praecipue gesta, Commentarium, s. c. and of the second, Pars Secunda, De Ejusdem Marchionis, ab Anno 1647 ad 1650. This work was frequently translated and reprinted.
WITCHCRAFT.

2542

WITHER.

WITCHCRAFT means the production of an effect by means of spirit-powers, supernatural and yet subordinate, and presupposes belief in the existence of such powers and in the existence of a science (magic) by which they can be controlled. The Mosaic law condemned witchcraft (Deut. xviii. 10), but the very condemnation proves that it recognized its possibility. A similar attitude the Christian Church assumed with respect to the question; and when, in the thirteenth century, the Inquisition was instituted, witchcraft, as a kind of heresy, was laid under its dominion. In the fourteenth century, the inquisitor, Nicolaus Eymericus, published his Directorium Inquisitorum, pointing out in detail how the matter should be treated. The subject was still further developed by the bull of Innocent VIII. (Summis desiderantes affectibus), 1484; and in 1487 the development reached its apex in the major-general for Surrey by Cromwell; was enriched under the Protectorate, but impoverished, and continued through the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, only slowly decreasing. In general, the doctrine of the reigning view of the subject, wrote, among Roman Catholics, Jean Bodin (Magorum Daemonomania, 1579); Peter Binsfeld (De Confessionibus maleficiarum et sagarum, 1559), and Martin Delrio (Disquisitiones magicae, 1599); among Protestants, Thomas Erast (De lamiu seu striisipibus, Basel, 1578), James I. of England (Daemonologia), and Benedict Carpzov (Practica nova, 1635). The first who attacked it with any degree of effect were Balthasar Becker (Bezauberte Welt, 1882); Ger. trana., edited by Frenkel, Leipzig, 1781, 3 vols.), and Thomasius (Thebes de crimine magico, 1701); but Becker lost his office, and Thomasius also was actually persecuted. [The great witch process of Salem, Mass., took place in 1692. Nineteen persons were hanged for witchcraft. But a re-action set in; so that, although in 1693 three condemnations took place, there was no execution. Mr. Parris, the chief prosecutor, was dismissed by his church in 1696. He confessed that he had done wrong. (For history of this event see Lit. below.) The English laws against witchcraft were repealed in 1736. The last witch was officially tried and executed in Prussia, 1796. In 1881 a peasant community in the interior of Russia tried and burnt a witch.] Lit. — SOLDANZ: Geschichte der Hexenprozesse, Stuttgart, 1843 (new ed. by H. Hepp, 1880, 2 vols.); WÄCHTER: Die gerichtlichen Verfolgungen der Hezen und Zauberer in Deutschland, Tübingen, 1845; H. WILLIAMS: The Supercflitions of Witchcraft, London, 1818; LIEBENSTEIN: Zur Geschichte der Hexenprozesse in Erfurt u. Umgebung, Erfurt, 1879, pp. 28; G. ROSKOFF: Geschichte des Teufels, Leipzig, 1869; [LEYK: History of Rationalism. For the Salem witchsee S. P. FOWLER: Account of Samuel Parris, and of his Connection with the Witchcraft Delusion of 1692, Salem, 1657; CHARLES W. UPHAM: Salem Witchcraft, Boston, 1867, 2 vols.; G. M. BEARD: The Psychology of the Salem Witchcraft, New York 1882].

Henke. (E. PLITT.)

WITHER, George, b. at Brentworth, Hampshire, June 11, 1588; d. in London, May 2, 1657; studied at Magdalen College, Oxford, 1604-07; went to London, 1608, and read law at Lincoln's Inn; was imprisoned 1613 for his Absuses Stript and Whipt; plunged into the controversies of the time; entered the military service of Charles I., and that of the Parliament, 1642; was made major-general for punishing it. As a poet he was enriched under the Protectorate, but impoverished, and imprisoned for three years, at the Restoration. He wrote Shepherds Hunting and sundry other poems, but is now chiefly remembered and honored for his Hymns and Songs of the Church (1629), which bore the patronage of King James I., and for his CHRISTIAN REMEMBRANCER (1641), a much larger and more interesting work. Neglected at the time, and despised... by succeeding generations, these have been rescued from obscurity by comparatively recent compilers and editors, and shown to possess, as poetry as well as piety. See Mr. Farr's reprint of them, London, 1856-57.

WITHERSPOON, John, D.D., L.L.D., Presbyterian divine, and signer of the Declaration of Independence; b. in the parish of Yester, Haddingtonshire, near Edinburgh, Scotland, Feb. 5, 1721; d. at Princeton, N. J., Nov. 15, 1794. He was graduated from the University of Edinburgh, licensed in the Church of Scotland, 1743, and settled at Beith (1744) and at Paisley (1757), whence he was called to the presidency of the College of New Jersey, 1768. In his new position he was eminently useful. He introduced a number of improvements, particularly the lecture-system, previously unknown in American colleges (lecturing himself upon rhetoric, moral philosophy, and divinity), the study of French and Hebrew, the latter of which he taught, philosophical instruments, among them the first orrery made by Rittenhouse, and additions to the library. He attracted, by his reputation and ability as a teacher, a large number of students. He was pastor of the church at Princeton during his presidency, a New-Jersey representative to the Continental Congress, 1776-82 (with the exception of 1780, when he declined the election), in which body he wrote several important state papers. During the war the college was suspended. In 1790 he became totally blind. He was a versatile man and a voluminous writer. His Works were edited by Rev. Dr. Green, Philadelphia, 1803, 3 vols., also Edinburgh, 1815, 9 vols. They include Ecclesiastical Characteristics, 1753 (a satire upon the moderate party in the Church of Scotland); Essay on Justification, 1756 (which has always been regarded as one of the ablest Calvinistic expositions of that doctrine in any language); A Serious Enquiry into the Nature and Effects of the Stage, 1757 (occasioned by the piece Rev. John Newton's drama, Douglas); Treatise on Regeneration, 1764. For his life, see the editions of his works; also Sprague: Annals American Pulpit, iii. 288-300.

Witness-Bearing Among the Hebrews. In criminal cases, where life was involved, at least two witnesses were necessary to prove the crime (Deut. xvii. 6, xix. 15). Where there was only one witness, but he was one whose reputation for probity made his testimony weighty, the case must be tried before the priests and the judges (Deut. xix. 17). Witnesses were usually cited in civil cases, even when the matter was purely amicable (Ruth iv. 9 sqq.; Isa. viii. 2; Jer. xxxii. 10 sqq.). Bearing false witness is often mentioned with aversion in the Bible (1 Kings xxii. 10; Ps. lxxii. 12, xxxv. 11; Prov. vi. 19, xiv. 5; Matt. xxvi. 59; Acts vi. 13).

The rabbins laid down special enactments respecting witnesses. In criminal cases the testimony of witnesses was so considered by them, indeed, such a person was even considered a slanderer, and one rabbi would have him corporally punished. In civil cases, where movable property was involved, if there was one witness to prove a levy on the same, then the person denying it would be obliged to clear himself by a solemn oath. In order to establish the fact of a murder which no one had seen done, and avoid the ceremonies prescribed in Deut. xx. 1-9, the testimony of only one person was necessary to prove a murder and to justify a suspicion of unfaithfulness which would bring the woman before the judges for trial by the waters of jealousy. In both these cases the otherwise inadmissible testimony of slaves, children, and women, was accepted. If any one, asked to testify in regard to a certain fact within his knowledge, denied under oath his knowledge of it, where his testimony would have possible weight, he was required to bring an offering according to his ability (Lev. v. 1 sqq.). Each witness must give his testimony by himself, in a language intelligible to the judge (for interpreters were forbidden), and limit himself to what he actually saw or heard. If, upon any considerable point, two witnesses contradict one another, the testimony of both is worthless. The witness must not have any bias, and therefore near relatives could not testify; nor must he belong to any of ten criminal classes, such as robbers, thieves, and usurers; nor must he have any serious bodily defect, such as blindness or dumbness. In civil cases the testimony of otherwise incapable witnesses could be accepted if the party against whom the testimony was directed had no objection. The king, on account of his exalted rank, could not be cited as a witness; and the high priest was not bound to give evidence in any case, except one affecting the king. If, for any reason, a witness appeared suspicious to a judge, and yet he could not, on examination, find out any good grounds for his suspicion, he must give the case over to some other unprejudiced judge. Witnesses must testify without recompense: if paid, their testimony is inadmissible. Cf. Saalscüüt: Das Gesetz über falsche Zeugen nach Bibel und Talmud, Berlin, 1882.

WITSIUS (WITS), Hermann, Dutch theologian of the Coccean school; b. at Enkhuysen, Feb. 12, 1638; d. at Utrecht, Oct. 22, 1708. He studied at the universities Gröningen, Leyden, and Utrecht. In the latter university he applied himself to Hebrew, under Leusden's direction, so assiduously, that at the age of eighteen he delivered a learned lecture in Hebrew upon Messianic Prophecy. From 1656 to 1681 he was pastor at Westwoud; to 1686, at Wormeren; to 1686, at Goesen; to 1675, at Leeuwarden. In 1675 he was called to Franeker University, and in 1680 to Utrecht. In 1685 he visited England as chaplain of the Netherland embassy. In 1698 he left Utrecht for Leyden, induced to leave his beloved city by the release from preaching which he would have in his new professorships; and there he died, after a retirement of eighteen months on account of sickness. Witsius' great work is De economia Fœderum Dei cum hominibus, libri iv., Leeuwaarden, 1685; 2d ed., Utrecht, 1693; later ed., Basel, 1739 (Eng. trans., The Economics of the Covenants Between God and Man, 3 vols. Londo- trans., Edinburgh, 1771, 3 vols.; also Edinburgh, 1837, 2 vols.). It was an earnest effort to still the conflict between the orthodox and the federalists, but as usual pleased neither party, least of all the federalists (to whom he belonged), who accused him of having sinned against the Holy Ghost. As a matter of fact, the book is not strong.

WITTENBERG.

WODROW.

Rhægius, Brenz, Amsdorf, Agricola, etc.; and in October, 1533, he wrote to Strassburg, Augsburg, Ulm, Esslingen, to Gerion Seiler, Huberinus, etc., inviting them to a general discussion of it.

Eisenach was decided upon as the place of rendezvous. In April Butzer left Constance, accompanied by nine preachers. As they progressed, they were joined by Capito, Melanchthon, and many others. Meanwhile Luther had fallen sick, and requested the visitors to come as far as Grimma: they determined to go directly to Wittenberg. May 22, at seven o'clock in the morning, they met in Luther's study, but not under the best auspices, as it would seem. Luther was suffering, irritable, harsh: Butzer became confused. The subject of the debate was the doctrine of the Lord's Supper. Luther demanded that the Swiss should make a formal recantation of what they had hitherto believed and taught, and their refusal made him excited. The next day, however, every thing was changed. Butzer was clear and adroit: Luther was mild and kind. After some debate, the Saxon theologians retired to another room to deliberate in private; and the result was, that the formula proposed by the Swiss was substantially accepted. May 24 the assembly met in the house of Melanchthon. The subjects of the discussion were baptism, absolution, the school, etc.; and the agreement which was arrived at was chiefly due to the tact and resolution of Bugenhagen. On Sunday Butzer preached in the morning, Luther in the afternoon; and all the members of the assembly took the Lord's Supper together. The stubborn Lutherians, such as Amsdorf, Osiander, etc., were, of course, not satisfied with the result: they continued to demand that Butzer and the other Reformed preachers should recant before they confessed. But Luther himself spoke for a long time with great contentment and confidence of the affair. In Switzerland there were also some difficulties in getting the formulas of the concord accepted; but Butzer succeeded in overcoming them, and hoped that he had really achieved the great work of his life. See BUTZER.

WODROW, Robert, a well-known Scottish ecclesiastical historian; b. in Glasgow, some time in the year 1679; d. at Eastwood, March 21, 1734. He was the son of James Wodrow, professor of divinity in Glasgow University, and the great-grandson of Patrick Wodrow, vicar of Eaglesham, a convert from the Roman-Catholic Church.

R. Wodrow was educated in the University of Glasgow; and on the completion of his course—having acted for a time, first as tutor in the family of his relative, Sir J. Maxwell of Pollock, one of the senators of the College of Justice, and afterwards as librarian of the University of Glasgow—was, in October, 1703, ordained to the pastoral charge of the parish of Eastwood, in the vicinity of the same city, a parish in which he continued to exercise the ministerial office till his death.

He early gave all his leisure hours to the collection of materials for Scottish church history. But he did not confine his historical investigations which Luther had given Melanchthon, they succeeded in drawing up a formula of concord which satisfied Luther. He sent it to Urbanus Witius was a biblical theologian, and not equal to the role of scholastic: in consequence he did not really mediate between the parties, but simply to the theology.

Other writings are of less interest than his Econom. His Miscellaneum sacrorum libri appeared in Utrecht, 1692—1700, 2 vols.; new ed., Leyden, 1736, 2 vols. Three of these essays have been translated,—Conciliorum Animaduersions on the Controversies agitated in the long series of negotiations, which, during the first period of the formation, was carried on in order to bring about an agreement between the Swiss and the Saxon Reformers. Politically, landgrave Philip of Hesse was the motive power of election and the application of salvation in the third; while the fourth is occupied with a condensed account of the history of revelation and the doctrine of the sacraments. But on the whole the personality counts for more

But the Saxon Reformers. Politically, landgrave Philip of Hesse was the motive power of election and the application of salvation in the third; while the fourth is occupied with a condensed account of the history of revelation and the doctrine of the sacraments. But on the whole the personality counts for more

In April Butzer left Constance, accompanied by nine preachers. As they progressed, they were joined by Capito, Melanchthon, and many others. Meanwhile Luther had fallen sick, and requested the visitors to come as far as Grimma: they determined to go directly to Wittenberg. May 22, at seven o'clock in the morning, they met in Luther's study, but not under the best auspices, as it would seem. Luther was suffering, irritable, harsh: Butzer became confused. The subject of the debate was the doctrine of the Lord's Supper. Luther demanded that the Swiss should make a formal recantation of what they had hitherto believed and taught, and their refusal made him excited. The next day, however, every thing was changed. Butzer was clear and adroit: Luther was mild and kind. After some debate, the Saxon theologians retired to another room to deliberate in private; and the result was, that the formula proposed by the Swiss was substantially accepted. May 24 the assembly met in the house of Melanchthon. The subjects of the discussion were baptism, absolution, the school, etc.; and the agreement which was arrived at was chiefly due to the tact and resolution of Bugenhagen. On Sunday Butzer preached in the morning, Luther in the afternoon; and all the members of the assembly took the Lord's Supper together. The stubborn Lutherians, such as Amsdorf, Osiander, etc., were, of course, not satisfied with the result: they continued to demand that Butzer and the other Reformed preachers should recant before they confessed. But Luther himself spoke for a long time with great contentment and confidence of the affair. In Switzerland there were also some difficulties in getting the formulas of the concord accepted; but Butzer succeeded in overcoming them, and hoped that he had really achieved the great work of his life. See BUTZER.

WODROW, Robert, a well-known Scottish ecclesiastical historian; b. in Glasgow, some time in the year 1679; d. at Eastwood, March 21, 1734. He was the son of James Wodrow, professor of divinity in Glasgow University, and the great-grandson of Patrick Wodrow, vicar of Eaglesham, a convert from the Roman-Catholic Church. R. Wodrow was educated in the University of Glasgow; and on the completion of his course—having acted for a time, first as tutor in the family of his relative, Sir J. Maxwell of Pollock, one of the senators of the College of Justice, and afterwards as librarian of the University of Glasgow—was, in October, 1703, ordained to the pastoral charge of the parish of Eastwood, in the vicinity of the same city, a parish in which he continued to exercise the ministerial office till his death.

He early gave all his leisure hours to the collection of materials for Scottish church history. But he did not confine his historical investigations which Luther had given Melanchthon, they succeeded in drawing up a formula of concord which satisfied Luther. He sent it to Urbanus one of the publications of the Maitland Club,— Wodrow's correspondence shows the high estimation in which he was held by many of the most distinguished men of his day. It likewise furnishes abundant proof of the extraordinary activity of his mind, of the interest which he took in every subject connected with science or general literature, and of the zeal and fidelity with which he devoted himself to the discharge of the more immediate duties of his sacred profession.

As a historian, he was, if not free from prejudice and credulity, trustworthy, upon the whole.

Charles James Fox, in his History of James II., refers to Wodrow as a writer "whose veracity is above suspicion;" and speaking especially of the troubles in Scotland, after the restoration of Charles II., and during the reign of James II., says that "no historical facts are better ascertained than the accounts . . . to be found in Wodrow." His writings, most of them unpublished, are very numerous, and have earned for him the name of "the indefatigable Wodrow." The larger portion of his manuscripts are deposited in the library of the faculty of Advocates in Edinburgh. A number of others, chiefly biographical, form part of the manuscript collections of the library of the University of Glasgow. Wodrow's most important published works are his History of the Sufferings of the Church of Scotland, from the Restoration to the Revolution (4 vols., Glasgow, 1829), his Analecta (printed for the Maitland Club, 1843, in 4 vols.), and his Collections upon the Lives of the Reformers and most Eminent Ministers of the Church of Scotland (Glasgow, 1834).

LIT.—Analecta (Prefatory Notice), Glasgow, 1843; Sufferings of the Church of Scotland (Memoir of the author), Glasgow, 1829; Life of James Wodrow, by his son (edited by Rev. Dr. Campbell), Edinburgh, 1829.

WILLIAM LEE.

WOLF, Johann Christoph, eminent Lutheran bibliographer of Judaism; b. at Wernigerode, Germany, Feb. 21, 1883; d. at Hamburg, July 25, 1739. He was made doctor of theology at Wittenberg, 1704; in 1712 professor of Oriental languages at the Hamburg gymnasium; in 1716 pastor in St. Catherine's. His most important work was Bibliotheca hebrea (Hamburg, 1715-33, 4 vols.), which is an inexhaustible mine of bibliographical information. The first volume contains notices of Jewish authors and their works; the second volume is the bibliography proper; the third and fourth supplement and correct the first two.

WOLFENBÜTTEL FRAGMENTS is the name of a work written from the deistic point of view, to contest the truth of the gospel history, of which Lessing began to publish fragments in 1774. As early as 1771, during a visit to Berlin, he tried to find a publisher for the work, in spite of the advice of Nicolai and Mendelssohn to the contrary; but, as the royal censor (though he promised not to interfere with the publication) refused to authorize it, he gave up the plan for the time. In 1773, however, he began to issue a kind of periodical publication, Zur Geschichte und Literatur der deutschen kirchlichen Bibliothek zu Wolfenbüttel, which was exempted from the control of the ducal censor; and in the third number of that publication appeared in 1774 the first instalment of the work, Von Dal dung der Deister, Fragment eines Ungenanntes, accompanied with a few cautious remarks by the editor, but very adroitly introduced by the preceding article. The fragment attracted no particular attention; but when, in 1777, the whole fourth number was occupied by "fragments," of which some, Sturz der Israeliten durch das rothe Meer, Uber die Auferstehungsgeschichte, etc., were of a rather pronounced character, quite a sensation was produced; and Lessing did not fail to deepen the impression by publishing in 1778, in the form of an independent book, a new fragment,—Von dem Zwecke Jesu und seines Jüngers. He immediately lost his privilege of publishing anything without the permit of the censor, and a violent controversy with the orthodox party began (see the article on Goeze). After the death of Lessing, the seven fragments which he had published appeared in Berlin, 1784, in a collected edition, which was several times reprinted, the last time in 1835. Some more fragments which Lessing had had in his possession, but not published, appeared in Berlin, 1878, edited by C. A. E. Schmidt, a pseudonym. The anonymous author of the work, which forms one of the most remarkable productions of German deism, was Reimarus; whose article see. Lessing tried to lead public curiosity on a wrong track by hinting that the author probably was Johann Lorenz Schmidt of the Wertheim Bible fame. But already Hamann mentions Reimarus as author in a letter to Herder, of Oct. 13, 1777; and the authorship was afterwards established beyond any doubt by the declaration of the son of Reimarus, published in the Leipzig Litteratur Zeitschrift, 1827, No. 55, and by numerous passages in the correspondence of Lessing and the son and daughter of Reimarus.

WOLFF, Bernard C., D.D., German Reformed theologian; b. at Martinsburg, Va., Dec. 11, 1794; d. at Lancaster, Penn., Nov. 1, 1870. He was graduated from the theological seminary at York, Penn., 1832; was associate (English) pastor in Easton, Penn., 1832-44; pastor in Baltimore, Md., 1844-64; professor of didactic and practical theology in the theological seminary at Mercersburg, 1854-64, when he resigned, and removed to Lancaster, Penn. He was a pure man, a model pastor, and a wise counsellor. He played a prominent part in the development of the Mercersburg Theology (which art. see)." He was," says the late Dr. J. T. Berg, his friend and opponent in the controversy, "a man of rare tact, of winning manners, and great kindness of heart; and few men exerted a more marked influence on the policy of the German Reformed Church than himself, before years and growing infirmities had weakened his strength."

WOLFF, Christian, b. at Breslau, Jan. 24, 1679; d. at Halle, April 9, 1754. He studied theology and mathematics at Jena, and was appointed professor at Halle, the chief seat of ism, in 1706. He lectured on metaphysics, logic, and ethics; and his lectures attracted most extraordinary attention. Not only the audiences of the theological professors began to grow thinner, but the students took the liberty to speak slightly of their unscientific method. In 1718 appeared Wolff's great theological work, Vernünftige Gedanken von Gott, der Welt, und der Seele. In 1720 his ethicks, Vernünftige Gedanken von der Menschen Thun und Lassen, in 1721, his politics, Vernünftige Gedanken von dem gesellschaftlichen Leben der Menachen. The pietists now became thoroughly alarmed. They felt that a great danger was upon them. Franke prayed; Lange harangued; finally the faculty made a formal complaint of Wolff to the king, stating, that, among other vicious doctrines, he also taught a kind of modern fatalism under the name of pre-established harmony. "What does that mean?" asked the king in his tobacco-congress. "It means," explained the court-fool, Paul Gundling, "that, if your tallest grenadier runs away, he can, properly speaking, not be justly punished, because his running away is, indeed, merely a piece of the pre-established harmony." By a cabinet decree of Nov. 8, 1723, Wolff was ordered to leave the Prussian dominion within forty-eight hours, under penalty of the gibbet; by another, the Prussian people were forbidden to read his books, under a penalty of a hundred ducats for each transgression. In the same year, however, Wolff was appointed professor at Marburg, and his fame rose rapidly. Acquaintance with his philosophy became an indispensable element of intellectual culture; dictionaries were gotten up to familiarize the public with the technical terms of his system. His method and principles were applied, not only to philosophy and theology, but also to aesthetics, jurisprudence, grammar, etc. His style was introduced in the translation of the Bible, the so-called Wertheim Bible, 1735-37; and before 1739 no less than a hundred and seven German writers of more or less note had declared in his favor, and were working in the same line. Under such circumstances we cannot wonder that it was one of the first acts of Friedrich II., after his accession to the throne, to recall Wolff; and Dec. 6, 1740, he made his triumphal entrance into the city, preceded by trumpet-blats and a procession of students on horseback, received at the gates by the town-council, waited on by the whole body of professors, etc. The university elected him its perpetual rector, the king made him a baron, etc.

Though a philosopher rather than a theologian, it is Wolff who has given to the rationalistic school of theology its fundamental principle and a great number of its watchwords. The Cartesian dualism between the res cogitans and the res extensa was happily overcome by Spinoza; but the pantheism of Spinoza, in which the two substances of Cartesianism were reduced into mere attributes of the one single substance, had no room for true individuality. Spinoza knew only accidental and transient appearances of the substance; and it was Leibnitz, who, by splitting up the one compact substance of Spinoza into a harmonious world of monads, made possible a satisfactory explanation of the phenomenon of individuality. But Leibnitz was somewhat desultory and unsystematic, and the flights of his mind were too high for the general public. In Wolff, however, he found a perfect exponent of his ideas; for in philosophy he is a systematizer only, not a creative genius. He drew his materials from Leibnitz, and his method he derived from mathematics. To make philosophical truth, by means of its peculiar exposition, as binding to reason as mathematical truth, was the great object of his life; and the toil he bestowed on that task—often ridiculous on account of its pedantry when applied to futile trivialities, often amazing on account of its superficiality when applied to things of great moment—was rewarded with complete success: even Kant considered him the greatest among dogmatic philosophers. Of course, he could not forbear to try his method also on theology; and though the attempts at first encountered much opposition, it finally came out victorious. To give a mathematical demonstration of the mysteries of Christianity—the miracles, the Holy Trinity, etc.—was the problem. But why should such a problem be considered unsolvable? A divine revelation could not possibly contain any thing which was against the principles of its harmony. By a principle rationis sufficiens; and how could a more effective barrier be raised against the inflex of English deism and French atheism than by fortifying the Christian doctrines themselves, according to the latest and most approved logic? By many of Wolff's followers the application of his method to theology was, no doubt, considered an excellent safeguard against the irreligious agencies of the time; and the danger was wholly overlooked, that reason, when once admitted into the field, might some day undertake to clear it of any thing for which no "sufficient reason" could be found. People went to work with great enthusiasm and perfect confidence. None of the Christian doctrines caused any anxiety: one by one they were taken forth from the armory, treated with the new polish, and exhibited to admiring spectators on the new pedestals.

Natural religion was the department most zealously cultivated by Wolff's disciples. Tired of pondering the symbolical books, and hunting up heresies in each other's sermons, the Protestant ministers threw themselves upon nature, and began to study the Creator in the creation. The pulpit and the lecture-room resounded with devotional meditations on rain and storm, mountains and rocks, snails and mice; and a ichthistes, insecto-, testaceo-, insecto-, a litho-, hydro-, pyro-theology arose. But as high as natural religion rose, as low sunk revealed religion. Some of the most prominent among Wolff's theological disciples were: Jacob Carpov (d. 1750), who recognized reason as the judge only of the falsitatis mysteriorum, but not of their veritas; Joachim Georg Darjes (d. 1791), who demonstrated that the doctrine of the Holy Trinity contained no mystery, but only a psychological problem; Johann Peter Reusch (d. 1756), who proved that revealed religion was not necessary to the salvation of souls, and that, if all revealed religions, Christianity was the only sufficient one; Israel Gottlieb Canz (d. 1753), who made the suggestive remark, that natural religion stood in the same relation to revealed religion as well-water dug up from the ground, cool and clear, by means of philosophy, to rain-water fall lukewarm down from the sky, and gathered up in dirty cisterns; Johann Gustav Reinbeck (d. 1741), whose Betrachtungen über die in der augsburgischen Confession enthaltenen göttlichen Wahrheiten, 9 vols., were bought, at the expense of the royal treasury, for every church in Prussia; Herrmann Samuel Reimarus, the author of the Welfenspiegel Fragmente, etc. All these men were Lutherans. To the Reformed Church belonged: Johann Friedrich Stapfer (d. 1775), who gave an algebraic demonstration of the doctrine of the Holy Trinity, and protested that there was no essential divergence between Lutheranism and Calvinism; Daniel Wytenbach (d. 1779), who used the mathematical method, not only against scepticism, but also against the doctrine of predestination. Jacob Christoph Beck (d. 1785), who emphatically gave natural religion the precedence of revealed religion, etc.

Lit.—Wolff's books are tremendously bulky; and he wrote a book a year, except 1714, the year in which he married. His autobiography was published by Wuttke, Leipzig, 1840. See Ludovici: Historie der W. Philosophie, Leipzig, 1787, 3 vols.; Neueste Merkwiirdigkeiten d. Leib. W. Philosophie, 1789; Streitschriften wegen d. W. PA, 2 vols.; Hartmann: Historie d. Leib. W. Philosophie, Leipzig, 1737.

WOLFF, Joseph, D.D., LL.D., a famous missionary and traveller; b. of Jewish parentage, at Weilersbach, near Bamberg, Germany, 1705; d. at Isle Brewers, Somersetshire, Eng., May 2, 1862. His father was a rabbi. In 1812 he was baptized at Prague by a Benedictine monk; in 1815 he went to Rome, but falling under the suspicion of Inquisition, because of his "heretical" views, he had to leave the city, 1818. He went to England, 1819; joined the Church of England; studied for two years Oriental languages at Cambridge; was sent out as missionary to the Jews, April, 1821, and for the next two years travelled extensively in the East, and again, from 1827 to 1834, and 1838 to 1838, ending up his last journey with a trip through the United States, upon which he was ordained deacon in the Episcopal Church, by Bishop Doane of New Jersey. On his return he was ordained priest, and settled at Litchwite, and later at High Hoyland, both in Yorkshire. In 1843 he made a daring journey to Bokhara, to learn the fate of two British officers, and, if possible, rescue them, and barely escaped being shot, but returned safely in 1845, and lived the rest of his days as vicar in Isle Brewers. He has been justly styled "a comet in the missionary heaven." His journeys were essentially missionary in their character. He had a marvellous facility in the acquisition of language, and great coolness and self-possession in the presence of danger. He had abundant need to summon every resource to his aid, for his journeys were full of difficulties and alarms. He has left recitals of his labours among Jews, Mohammedans, and Other Sects, Malta, 1885; Journal of his Missionary Labours, 1827—53, 1899; Narrative of a Mission to Persia, 1833—45, 1845; 9 vols., 5th ed., 1848; Travels and Adventures of J. W., 1860, 2 vols., 2d ed., 1861.
said during his fatal sickness, "If I had served God as diligently as I have done the king, he would not have given me over in my gray hairs. But this is the just reward that I must receive for my diligent pains and studies that I have had to do him service, not regarding my service to God but to satisfy him of my being his equal. Polygamy prevailed, and divorce was easy. The penal code of Ashur brings out the inferiority of woman in its statement of the rule of divorce: 'If a husband say unto his wife, 'Thou art not my wife,' he shall pay half a mina, and be free. But, if a woman repudiate her husband, she shall be drowned in the river' (George Smith: Assyrian Discoveries). In Europe, among the Greeks and the Romans, woman was held in higher respect. Homer casts a halo around the early Greek woman; but, at the period when art and literature were achieving their highest triumphs, the type of woman was the courtesan Aspasia, whom Socrates invited "to talk on the question, how she might ply her occupation with most profit." Later Roman historians and poets give an attractive picture of the Roman matron of the days of the republic. From the earliest period, however, the wife was regarded as a piece of property, destitute of legal rights, and absolutely under the control of the father of the household (Mommsen: History of Rome, i. 90). In the later periods of Roman history, the immorality of Roman women, and the utter laxness of the marriage-relationship, was the butt of satirists and the grief of moralists. Ovid, Horace, and Propertius agree that female virtue was not to be found at Rome. Seneca, in a famous sentence, says, "The ladies count their years, not by the consuls, but by the number of their husbands." Tertullian, a Christian writer of the latter part of the second century, said, "The women marry in order to be divorced, and are divorced in order to marry." The Teutonic tribes from the beginning seem to have respected womanhood. Tacitus speaks especially of this fact. But, even among the Teutonic tribes, women were articles of purchase and sale. Amongst the heathen nations which have been opened up to commerce during this century, the condition of woman is a degraded one. From the Indian tribes of America, who make their wives do all the slavish work, and the Fiji-islanders, whose princes were accustomed to lay the four corners of their residences upon the bodies of four women buried alive, to the East Indies, where the practice of the sutee (burning the wives on the funeral-pyre of their husbands) prevailed till English law abolished it, women are still relegated to the languor and inanity of the zenana, and widows (of whom there is estimated to be twenty millions), at however tender an age they are left in that condition, are condemned to perpetual widowhood. Mohammedanism is no better than Paganism in its treatment of woman, practises polygamy, treats woman as an inferior creature, and erects the harem.

2. In the Old Testament.—The account of the creation of woman (Gen. ii. 21-24) accords, at the very opening of the Hebrew Scriptures, the position of a helpmeet to man, which she did not occupy in the practice of other Oriental nations. Polygamy was to some extent practised among the early Hebrews, and attained to alarming proportions at the palace under David, especially Solomon and his successors. But monogamy was the rule; and the laws of the Pentateuch, while they do not prohibit polygamy, at least mitigate and discourage it (Exod. xxi. 8; Lev. xv. 18).
The laws designed to alleviate the evil of the practice of forcing female prisoners of war into a state of concubinage witness to the Hebrew regard for the rights of woman (Deut. xxi. 11-14).
Divorce was regulated, and the only ground upon which it is granted is indicated in Deut. xivv. 1.
Marriage evidently came to be regarded as a sacred relation, as is evident from the fact that some of the prophets depict God as occupying the marriage-relation to the theocratic people, as well as from single passages (e.g., Mal. ii. 16). The esteem of the Hebrew people for women is further shown in the important part accorded to some of them in their history, and the prominence with which they are mentioned in the patriarchal and Mosaic periods. Sarah's history is not only given at some length, but at her death Abraham, so it is reported, "came to mourn for Sarah, and to weep for her" (Gen. xxiii. 2). The account of the meeting of Isaac and Rebekah still affords a language suitable to the marriage-service. Miriam, Deborah, Hannah, Huldah, and others, are illustrations of the freedom which was accorded to women, and the esteem in which they were held.
The picture which is given in Prov. xxxi. of a faithful housewife was only possible where the ideal of womanhood was a high one. There seems to have been comparative freedom of intercourse between the sexes in the early periods of Jewish history (comp. the account of the women meeting Saul and David after victory, 1 Sam.
xviii. 6, 7, etc.); but in the later periods it was restricted (2 Macc. iii. 19; 3 Macc. i. 18 sqq.).
The apocryphal Book of Ecclesiasticus implies a waning esteem for woman in such statements as "the badness of men is better than the goodness of women."

3. In the New Testament. — It has been under Christianity alone that woman has been able to occupy the position assigned to her at the cretation,—of social equality with man. Our Lord, in his Divorce in Romans. — The influence of the practices of some Old-Testament characters in Genesis. The spirit of the New Testament is unfavorable to woman's degradation or inferiority, as it is to the cruelties of slavery. The gospel offers to woman an equal right with man to its promises and rewards, and declares that in Christ
there is no distinction of male and female (Gal.
iii. 28). The Lord found some of his intimate friends among women (Mary, Martha, etc.), overcame the barriers of prejudice in holding with a woman of Samaria one of the most refreshing conversations ever recorded (John iv.), allowed mothers to bring their children to him, performed works of mercy upon them (Matt. xvi. 21-28, etc.), and pronounced upon the act of one woman the most splendid encomium that ever passed human lips (Mark xiv. 9). Women stood over against the cross (Luke xxiii. 49), were the first to visit the sepulchre, and the first to receive the revelation of the risen Lord (John xx. 1 sqq.). In the history of the early church they took an active part. Women were present at the first meeting of the disciples after the ascension (Acts i. 14).

They were among the early converts of the apoestles' preaching (v. 14), received baptism (viii. 12), and were steadfast under persecution (viii. 3).
Paul's first convert in Europe was a woman; and her name (Lydia) is given, while that of the jailer of Philippi is withheld (xvi.). She is a model of womanly reserve and hospitality (xvi. 15, 40). Dorcas is a representative of woman's work of charity among the sick and poor (ix. 38—39); and Priscilla, who expounded the way of God more perfectly to Apollos (xviii. 26), is a representative of another kind of labor, recognized in the New Testament as proper to woman,—that of instruction, at least in private; for Paul seems to refuse to woman the right of speaking in the public meetings of the congregation (1 Cor. xiv.
34 sq.; 1 Tim. ii. 9 sqq.). Paul distinctly refers in Rom. xvi. to Phoebe, Persis, and other women as efficient fellow-helpers in the spread of the gospel. The annals of the first several centuries include the names of women (Candina, Perpetua, etc.) among the Christian martyrs, and depict their history and influence (Monica, Paula, etc.).

Pagan society was startled at the freedom with which Christian women went about on errands of charity. "What heathen will suffer his wife to go about from one street to another, to the houses of strangers, to the market-places and in-deed, to visit the heathen? What heathen will allow her to steal away to the dungeon to kiss the chain of the martyr?" (Tertullian.) Councils like that of Arles, 314 A.D., emphasized the sacredness of the marriage-tie. The influence of Christianity in producing the conception of the dignity of womanhood in the human mind is attested at a later period by the Madonnas of art and the false honor put upon Mary in the Roman-Catholic system. The Mormon revival of the institution of polygamy is a return (under the cover of the practices of some Old-Testament characters) to Paganism.

See GUIZOT: History of Civilization; FRIE-DLANDER: Sittengeschichte Roms, Leipzig, 1862,
6th ed., 1881; MANNSEN: Het Christendom en de Vrouwe, Leiden, 1877; GOELZER: Les femmes dans la société chrétienne au IVe siècle, La Flèche, 1878, pp. 85; K. STROEBEL: Geschicht der Vereinigung in Deutschland, Gütersloh, 1879; W. WIENER: Die Frauen, ihre Geschichte, ihr Beruf u. ihre Bildung, Mainz, 1880; L. BACKER: Le droit de la femme dans l'antiquité, Paris, 1880; J. G. MAN-DELEY: Women outside Christendom, London, 1880;
J. HÜBNER: Die christliche Frau in ihrem Leben
u. Wirken, Berlin, 1882; BRACE: Gesta Christi, New York, 1888; MORGAN DIX: Lectures on the Calling of a Christian Woman, and her Training to Fulfil it, New York, 1888; H. SCHOKK: Das
Weib im Alten Testamente, Wien, 1883; also arct.
DEACONESSES, DIVORCE, MARRIAGE.

WOOD, Basil, b. at Richmond, Surrey, Aug.
5, 1798; d. in London, April 12, 1851; was graduated at Trinity College, Oxford; and ordained, 1838. He was lecturer at St. Peter's, Cornhill, 1784-1808; morning preacher at Bentinck Chapel, Marylebone, 1785-1831; chaplain to the Earl of Leicester, and rector of Drayton Beauchamp in Buckinghamshire, once held by Hooker. A short memoir of him appeared 1831. He published sundry tracts, etc., and a Collection of Psalms and Hymns, 1794, containing some originals. In sub-

Digitized by Google
WOODS, Leonard, D.D., Congregationalist; b. at Princeton, Mass., June 19, 1745; d. at Andover, Aug. 24, 1834. He was graduated at Harvard College, 1766, and from 1798 to 1808 was pastor of the church in Newbury, Mass.; and on the formation of Andover Seminary he became professor of theology, and held this position until his retirement in 1846, after which he devoted himself to a history of Andover Seminary, which was published 1884, and to preparing his lectures for the press. He was one of the founders of the American Tract Society, the American Education Society, American Temperance Society, American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions (of whose prudential committee he was a member for twenty-five years). He was a champion of orthodox Calvinism against the assaults of Drs. Ware, Buckminster, and Charming. Dr. H. B. Smith said he was "emphatically the 'judicious' divine of later New-England theology." His writings embrace Letters to Unitarians, Andover, and Calvinists, 1821; Remarks on Dr. Ware's An

ment (New York, 1843), on Su'ellenboryianism preceding; b. in Newburv, Mass., Nov. 24, 1807; graduated at Union College, 1827, and at Andover Seminary, 1830; taught in the latter institution for a year; was ordained by the Third Presbytery of New York, 1833; editor of the New

WOODS, Leonard, jun., D.D., LL.D., son of the preceding; b. in Newbury, Mass., Nov. 24, 1807; d. in Boston, Tuesday, Dec. 24, 1878. He was graduated at Union College, 1827, and at Andover Seminary, 1830; taught in the latter institution for a year; was ordained by the Third Presbytery of New York, 1833; editor of the New

ment (New York, 1843), on Su'ellenboryianism preceding; b. in Newburv, Mass., Nov. 24, 1807; graduated at Union College, 1827, and at Andover Seminary, 1830; taught in the latter institution for a year; was ordained by the Third Presbytery of New York, 1833; editor of the New

WOODS, Leonard, jun., D.D., LL.D., son of the preceding; b. in Newbury, Mass., Nov. 24, 1807; d. in Boston, Tuesday, Dec. 24, 1878. He was graduated at Union College, 1827, and at Andover Seminary, 1830; taught in the latter institution for a year; was ordained by the Third Presbytery of New York, 1833; editor of the New

ment (New York, 1843), on Su'ellenboryianism preceding; b. in Newburv, Mass., Nov. 24, 1807; graduated at Union College, 1827, and at Andover Seminary, 1830; taught in the latter institution for a year; was ordained by the Third Presbytery of New York, 1833; editor of the New memorial sermon by Professor E. A. Park, Andover, 1879.

WOOLSTON, Thomas, English deistic writer; b. at Northampton, 1669; d. in London, Jan. 27, 1723-24. He was elected fellow of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, and took degree of B.D. He wrote several theological works before his six

Discourses on the Miracles of our Saviour, London, 1727-29, in which he very coarsely and offensively assailed the historicity of the miracles, declaring that their records are purely allegorical. For this bold theory he was sentenced to one year's imprisonment, and a hundred pounds' fine; and, because he could not pay, he died in prison. There is reason to believe that Woolston was insane. His study of Origen doubtless infected him with a love of allegorizing, and may have disordered his mind. See arts. DEISM, p. 621, and INFIDELITY, p. 1084; and LESLIE STEPHEN: History of English Thought, §§ 45-48, vol. i. pp. 228-229.

WOOLSTON, Thomas, English deistic writer; b. at Northampton, 1669; d. in London, Jan. 27, 1723-24. He was elected fellow of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, and took degree of B.D. He wrote several theological works before his six

Discourses on the Miracles of our Saviour, London, 1727-29, in which he very coarsely and offensively assailed the historicity of the miracles, declaring that their records are purely allegorical. For this bold theory he was sentenced to one year's imprisonment, and a hundred pounds' fine; and, because he could not pay, he died in prison. There is reason to believe that Woolston was insane. His study of Origen doubtless infected him with a love of allegorizing, and may have disordered his mind. See arts. DEISM, p. 621, and INFIDELITY, p. 1084; and LESLIE STEPHEN: History of English Thought, §§ 45-48, vol. i. pp. 228-229.

WOOLSTON, Thomas, English deistic writer; b. at Northampton, 1669; d. in London, Jan. 27, 1723-24. He was elected fellow of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, and took degree of B.D. He wrote several theological works before his six

Discourses on the Miracles of our Saviour, London, 1727-29, in which he very coarsely and offensively assailed the historicity of the miracles, declaring that their records are purely allegorical. For this bold theory he was sentenced to one year's imprisonment, and a hundred pounds' fine; and, because he could not pay, he died in prison. There is reason to believe that Woolston was insane. His study of Origen doubtless infected him with a love of allegorizing, and may have disordered his mind. See arts. DEISM, p. 621, and INFIDELITY, p. 1084; and LESLIE STEPHEN: History of English Thought, §§ 45-48, vol. i. pp. 228-229.

WOOLSTON, Thomas, English deistic writer; b. at Northampton, 1669; d. in London, Jan. 27, 1723-24. He was elected fellow of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, and took degree of B.D. He wrote several theological works before his six

Discourses on the Miracles of our Saviour, London, 1727-29, in which he very coarsely and offensively assailed the historicity of the miracles, declaring that their records are purely allegorical. For this bold theory he was sentenced to one year's imprisonment, and a hundred pounds' fine; and, because he could not pay, he died in prison. There is reason to believe that Woolston was insane. His study of Origen doubtless infected him with a love of allegorizing, and may have disordered his mind. See arts. DEISM, p. 621, and INFIDELITY, p. 1084; and LESLIE STEPHEN: History of English Thought, §§ 45-48, vol. i. pp. 228-229.
to him by Jeremiah Evarts, Esq., Dr. Leonard Woods, and Dr. Elias Cornelius, were admirable specimens of biography. In 1852 his Memoir was published, in two duodecimo volumes, by his son, Rev. Samuel M. Worcester, D.D.

Dr. Worcester was distinguished by the vast amount of labor which he performed in connection with the foreign missionary enterprise. Either he or Dr. Samuel Spring, or both together, originated the idea of forming the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. The detailed plan of the board was doubtless formed mainly by Dr. Worcester. He wrote the first ten, which are in some respects the most important, Annual Reports of this society.

As an author he was noted for his logical acumen, and vigorous, pointed style. Twenty-seven of his sermons were published during his life, and a volume of additional sermons after his death. Besides his sermons, he published nine pamphlets, some of them controversial; three of them being his remarkable Letters to Rev. Dr. William E. Channing. He edited two Hymn-Books,—one in 1814, entitled Christian Psalmody; another in 1818, entitled Watts's Entire and Select Hymns. The latter has been much celebrated. He published many articles in the periodicals of his day. For five years he was editor-in-chief of the Massachusetts Missionary Magazine, which was afterward united with the Panoplist, and still later with the Missionary Herald, the present organ of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. Wordsworth, Christopher, D.D., youngest brother of the poet; b. at Cockermouth, Cumberland, June 9, 1774; d. at Buxted, Sussex, Feb. 2, 1846. He was graduated at Trinity College, Cambridge, of which he was elected fellow, 1795; entered into holy orders, and, after holding various preferments, was master of Trinity College from 1820 till 1841. He then retired to his rectory of Buxted-with-Uckfield, which he had held since 1820. He is best remembered for his Ecclesiastical Biography, or, lives of eminent men connected with the history of religion in England from the commencement of the Reformation to the Revolution (London, 1810, 6 vols.; 4th ed., 1853, 4 vols.), and for his writings in defence of King Charles's claim to be the author of Eikon Basilike.

Works, Good. The sharp distinction which Paul made between law and gospel, between justification by faith and justification by good works, naturally lost its prominence in Christian teaching with the overthrow of Paganism. From her own experience, and that a dearly-paid-for experience, the ancient church had gained the double conviction, that nothing but faith is able to keep man in true communion with Christ, and that faith, which so necessarily must produce a thorough regeneration of practical life, the relation, however, between faith and good works, and between them and salvation, had not yet been made the subject of critical reflection; and was theologially so loosely fixed, that the older Fathers could content themselves with placing them in a horizontal relationship beside each other as equally necessary to salvation; sometimes emphasizing the former, but sometimes also emphasizing the latter.

Meanwhile, Gnosticism arose, with its disparagement of the Old Testament, and its inclination towards an antinomistic libertinism. It became necessary for the church to place the inherent connection between the Old and the New Testament in the right light; but in so doing she happened to adopt a little more of the Old Testament type than good, and in course of time the gospel itself became a nova lex. The more perfectly Christianity was developed as a social and political institution, the more frequently an external legality took the place of that faith which regenerates man from within: the more firmly the church established herself as the representative of God and Christ on earth, the more easily observance of merely ecclesiastical ordinances, rites, and penances, was mistaken for works of true moral worth. At last faith itself became, in the form of obedience to the church, a meritorious and obligatory work. But a faith, which, according to the definition of the schoolmen, simply consisted in assent to the dogmas of the church (fides informis) could not be vindicated as the alone sufficient power of salvation. On the contrary, it became necessary to define the faith which proves itself in works (fides caritate formata) as the true condition of salvation; and the distinction which was made between praecipit and consiliai evangelicis finally brought forth the delusion of a surplus of good works,—opera supererogationis.

The doctrine of the Roman-Catholic Church concerning the insufficiency of faith to salvation, and the necessity of good works, was the point at which the Reformers aimed their arrows; and they hit. The strength of the truth, the clear words of Scripture, and the irrefragable testimony of thousands of people, —to whom their faith was their sole hope, but also their sure confidence,—finally gained the victory; and the words of Paul, "Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law," became the banner around which the evangelical churches rallied their forces. Afterwards Leibnitz and after him several recent theologians have characterized the controversy between the Roman Catholic and the Evangelical churches, concerning the relation between faith and works, as a mere play of words. But that is certainly a mistake. It is true that both parties agree in the necessity of good works; and the meaningless exaggeration of the principle of the Reformation which appeared in the Majorist controversy, that good works are detrimental to salvation, found its due rebuke in the Formula Concordiae. But they differ widely in their conceptions of justification and good works. As above mentioned, Roman-Catholic theology transforms the practical realization of an inner, ethical ideal into a mere submission to the ordinances of the church, and it is led to do so by confounding justification and sanctification, between which Protestant theology makes a definite distinction. In Protestant theology, justification means the forgiveness of sin by the grace of God for the sake of Christ; but in Roman-Catholic theology it means something more,—a justitia infantis.
human activity, the idea which man forms of it exercises a powerful influence on all his fundamental religious ideas, — those of God and man, of revelation and salvation, etc. We give below a few remarks illustrative of this idea as it occurs in the Bible.

The Old Testament has no particular word corresponding to our universe. When the Hebrews wanted to express that idea, they used the phrase "heaven and earth." Heaven again they considered from a double point of view, — as connected with the earth, and forming part of a grand totality, and as the abode of God in contradistinction to the earth as the abode of man. Considered from the first point of view, heaven appears to be very closely connected with the earth. It is, indeed, a geogony, and not a cosmogony, which is given in the first chapter of Genesis; and every thing which is said of the firmament serves simply to image forth and explain its immediate apparition. It must be firmly secured on pillars in order not to fall down (Job xxvi. 11; 2 Sam. xx. 8); gates lead into it (Gen. xxviii. 17); the stars are fixed to its vault (Gen. i. 16); light and rain and any lightning break through it (Job xxxviii. 24 sqq.). From this view of heaven to that as the abode of God, the transition is made through the observation that the great stars rule the earth (Gen. i. 16). The recognition of fixed seasons, of an established order, etc., shows that the Hebrews had a feeling of the existence of natural laws; but neither they nor any other Shemites ever firmly grasped that idea. Natural laws are to them the "ordinances of heaven" (Job xxxviii. 33; Ps. civ. 19); and the ordinances of heaven shall forever be a secret to man, because the exact knowledge of them is subordinate part as mediators; and this conception, in which the heavenly bodies played only a primary part, was an idea which arose with the religion of Jehovah, culminating in the great prophet, and only the theoretical interest: confidence in the power and wisdom, and goodness of God. To the Hebrew, man was the only being on earth of absolute interest: the dead and dumb sphere lay far below him, and was simply his dominion (Gen. i. 28). To the Hebrew, the human world was the abode of God; as the unity of that world, that is, the unity of the human race and of its relation to God, the Creator and the Judge, was an idea which arose with the religion of Jehovah, culminated in the great prophet, and never died completely out, though it was reduced into a mere caricature of itself by the particularism and pride of the Pharisees. See, concerning the Old Testament view of the world in general, C. Von Lengerke: Kenaan, 1824; H. König: Die Theologie der Psalmen, 1857.

In the New Testament the idea of the world as the human world received a powerful development by being placed in opposition to the idea of a divine world,—the kingdom of heaven. It then came to mean the history of the human race so far as that history lies outside of the influence of Christ, and grows up the mere product of the forces and spirit of nature. Darkness, that is, blindness, is the chief characteristic of the world in this sense of the word; for by its own strength the world is utterly unable to grasp the truth, and see God (John iii. 27, 31; xvii. 25). But by itself the darkness is not sin or guilt; for it is simply the inherent nature of the world, and not an effect of the fall of the human race and of original sin. It becomes sin, however, and leads to guilt, when it rises into a denial of the light; and, just as the mere love of light develops the faculty of acquiring it, so the hatred of light destroys that very faculty, etc. A comparison between the various ideas of the world which have been developed in the course of Christian civilization, and the typical idea as it is contained in the New Testament, would be a most instructive task, but is beyond the compass of this article. One of the principal points of such an investigation would be the idea of Augustine. It exercised great influence on the Reformers, and is more especially peculiar to the four sides of the earth, they, like the Greeks, and, indeed, like most other people, began by facing east, and placing north to the left, south to the right. Towards the north was the sombre region: the highest mountains were there, especially the holy mountain, the mount of the congregations (Isa. xiv. 15): the cheryb, indicating the divine presence, stood there (Ezek. xxviii. 14). As a rule Jehovah came from the north (Ps. xlviii. 3; Ezek. i. 4); and there were the beginnings of the human race, the first time at Eden, the second time at Ararat. Below the heaven was the abode of the dead (see art. Hades). This must not be understood, however, as if in the above passages, and in others of similar import, the sacred writers ever proposed to give a lesson in geography, or geology, or any other department of science. On the contrary, the freedom and manifoldness of the similes employed give irresistible evidence that this whole group of ideas were never treated as articles of faith. They can even not be considered as fixed popular opinions. They were simply poetical objects, with which the imagination was at liberty to play, in order to produce a more striking and impressive representation of the grandeur, wisdom, and goodness of God. To the Hebrew, man was the only being on earth of absolute interest: the dead and dumb sphere lay far below him, and was simply his dominion (Gen. i. 28). To the Hebrew, the human world was the abode of God; as the unity of that world, that is, the unity of the human race and of its relation to God, the Creator and the Judge, was an idea which arose with the religion of Jehovah, culminated in the great prophet, and never died completely out, though it was reduced into a mere caricature of itself by the particularism and pride of the Pharisees. See, concerning the Old Testament view of the world in general, C. Von Lengerke: Kenaan, 1824; H. König: Die Theologie der Psalmen, 1857.

In the New Testament the idea of the world as the human world received a powerful development by being placed in opposition to the idea of a divine world,—the kingdom of heaven. It then came to mean the history of the human race so far as that history lies outside of the influence of Christ, and grows up the mere product of the forces and spirit of nature. Darkness, that is, blindness, is the chief characteristic of the world in this sense of the word; for by its own strength the world is utterly unable to grasp the truth, and see God (John iii. 27, 31; xvii. 25). But by itself the darkness is not sin or guilt; for it is simply the inherent nature of the world, and not an effect of the fall of the human race and of original sin. It becomes sin, however, and leads to guilt, when it rises into a denial of the light; and, just as the mere love of light develops the faculty of acquiring it, so the hatred of light destroys that very faculty, etc. A comparison between the various ideas of the world which have been developed in the course of Christian civilization, and the typical idea as it is contained in the New Testament, would be a most instructive task, but is beyond the compass of this article. One of the principal points of such an investigation would be the idea of Augustine. It exercised great influence on the Reformers, and is more especially peculiar to the four sides of the earth, they, like the Greeks, and, indeed, like most other people, began by facing east, and placing north to the left, south to the right. Towards the north was the sombre region: the highest mountains were there, especially the holy mountain, the mount of the congregations (Isa. xiv. 15): the cheryb, indicating the divine presence, stood there (Ezek. xxviii. 14). As a rule Jehovah came from the north (Ps. xlviii. 3; Ezek. i. 4); and there were the beginnings of the human race, the first time at Eden, the second time at Ararat. Below the heaven was the abode of the dead (see art. Hades). This must not be understood, however, as if in the above passages, and in others of similar import, the sacred writers ever proposed to give a lesson in geography, or geology, or any other department of science. On the contrary, the freedom and manifoldness of the similes employed give irresistible evidence that this whole group of ideas were never treated as articles of faith. They can even not be considered as fixed popular opinions. They were simply poetical objects, with which the imagination was at liberty to play, in order to produce a more striking and impressive representation of the grandeur, wisdom, and goodness of God. To the Hebrew, man was the only being on earth of absolute interest: the dead and dumb sphere lay far below him, and was simply his dominion (Gen. i. 28). To the Hebrew, the human world was the abode of God; as the unity of that world, that is, the unity of the human race and of its relation to God, the Creator and the Judge, was an idea which arose with the religion of Jehovah, culminated in the great prophet, and never died completely out, though it was reduced into a mere caricature of itself by the particularism and pride of the Pharisees. See, concerning the Old Testament view of the world in general, C. Von Lengerke: Kenaan, 1824; H. König: Die Theologie der Psalmen, 1857.

In the New Testament the idea of the world as the human world received a powerful development by being placed in opposition to the idea of a divine world,—the kingdom of heaven. It then came to mean the history of the human race so far as that history lies outside of the influence of Christ, and grows up the mere product of the forces and spirit of nature. Darkness, that is, blindness, is the chief characteristic of the world in this sense of the word; for by its own strength the world is utterly unable to grasp the truth, and see God (John iii. 27, 31; xvii. 25). But by itself the darkness is not sin or guilt; for it is simply the inherent nature of the world, and not an effect of the fall of the human race and of original sin. It becomes sin, however, and leads to guilt, when it rises into a denial of the light; and, just as the mere love of light develops the faculty of acquiring it, so the hatred of light destroys that very faculty, etc. A comparison between the various ideas of the world which have been developed in the course of Christian civilization, and the typical idea as it is contained in the New Testament, would be a most instructive task, but is beyond the compass of this article. One of the principal points of such an investigation would be the idea of Augustine. It exercised great influence on the Reformers, and is more especially peculiar to the four sides of the earth, they, like the Greeks, and, indeed, like most other people, began by facing east, and placing north to the left, south to the right. Towards the north was the sombre region: the highest mountains were there, especially the holy mountain, the mount of the congregations (Isa. xiv. 15): the cheryb, indicating the divine presence, stood there (Ezek. xxviii. 14). As a rule Jehovah came from the north (Ps. xlviii. 3; Ezek. i. 4); and there were the beginnings of the human race, the first time at Eden, the second time at Ararat. Below the heaven was the abode of the dead (see art. Hades). This must not be understood, however, as if in the above passages, and in others of similar import, the sacred writers ever proposed to give a lesson in geography, or geology, or any other department of science. On the contrary, the freedom and manifoldness of the similes employed give irresistible evidence that this whole group of ideas were never treated as articles of faith. They can even not be considered as fixed popular opinions. They were simply poetical objects, with which the imagination was at liberty to play, in order to produce a more striking and impressive representation of the grandeur, wisdom, and goodness of God. To the Hebrew, man was the only being on earth of absolute interest: the dead and dumb sphere lay far below him, and was simply his dominion (Gen. i. 28). To the Hebrew, the human world was the abode of God; as the unity of that world, that is, the unity of the human race and of its relation to God, the Creator and the Judge, was an idea which arose with the religion of Jehovah, culminated in the great prophet, and never died completely out, though it was reduced into a mere caricature of itself by the particularism and pride of the Pharisees. See, concerning the Old Testament view of the world in general, C. Von Lengerke: Kenaan, 1824; H. König: Die Theologie der Psalmen, 1857.
and, with a fling at the uncourtly manners of the not so very favorable. The emperor wondered that "that man should have written those books;" was granted him. The impression made was to consider, and a respite of twenty-four hours in the name of the emperor, and demanded that he period of the Reformation, so winning to the world Eek, a brother of the disputant of Leipzig fame, the diet, assembled in the episcopal palace, where passed. The next day (Wednesday, April 17), at Tuesday, April 16, in the forenoon, and was lodged in the house of the Knights of St. John. Great excitement prevailed in the city: thousands of their hisses and yells, while outside in the streets the crowd growled and threatened. When Luther passed by the seat of Duke Erick of Brunswick, an inveterate Romanist, the duke saw that the man was exhausted almost to fainting, and handed ed him his big silver mug with Eimbecker beer. When he came home to his lodgings, he threw up his arms, and cried out with joy, "Now I am through." Some further negotiations with a committee took place, though without any result. April 28, Luther left Worms. See J. KÜSTLIN: Martin Luther, Eibersfeld, 1875. On June 25, 1888, a colossal monument of Luther, with figures of the principal Reformers and of the cities of Spire, Magdeburg, and Augsburg, was unveiled in Worms.

3. 4. Later on, two Colloquies took place in Worms, between Protestant and Roman-Catholic theologians, for the purpose of bringing about a reconciliation between the two parties without having recourse to armed force. The first, January, 1541, was presided over by Cardinal Granvella. On the Protestant side were present Melanchthon, Calvin, Cruciger, Gryneus, Menius, etc.; on the Roman-Catholic, Coclius, Eck, Nausea, etc. Though, no doubt, both parties met with the sincere intention of doing their utmost in order to avoid war, it soon became evident that no compromise was possible unless some very strong influence from without could be brought to bear on the negotiations; and by an imperial decree of Jan. 18, 1541, the assembly was transferred to Ratisbon, where the diet was about to meet. The second colloquy, the so-called "Consultation of Worms," took place in 1557 under the presidency of Julius von Pflug, Bishop of Naumburg; but, beside Melanchthon, the president was probably the only one present who took a real interest in the union. The Protestants were represented by Melanchthon, Frenz, Mörlin, Schnepf, etc.; the Roman Catholics, by Sidonius, Bishop of Merseburg, Canisius, Staphylus, Wizelius, etc. It seems to have been the object of the Roman Catholics to break up the compact unity of the Protestant party; and, if so, they succeeded. In the sixth sitting, Sidonius demanded a formal declaration, whether the whole Protestant Church, including the Calvinist doctrine of the Lord's Supper, the Osianian doctrine of justification, the Placian doctrine de servo arbitrio, etc.; and immediately the internal discord of the Protestant party broke out in full blaze. The assembly finally dispersed of their baptism and the purity of their doctrine made out of the world something vague to the eyes of the Lutherans, — something entirely outside of the pale of their own church. It was Spener and the Pietists who first, by applying regeneration and sanctification as the true tests of any realization of Christianity in individual life, made the idea of the world of practical importance also in the Lutheran Church. [T. FÖRSTER: Ueber ethische u. ästhetische Weltanschauung, Halle, 1882.]

L. DIESTEL.

WORMS, one of the oldest towns of Germany, situated on the Rhine, with about fifteen thousand inhabitants; played on four different occasions a very prominent part in the history of the Reformation, as once previously in the religious history of Germany.

1. The first of these occasions was on Sept. 23, 1122, when the terms of the Concordat were read before a vast multitude assembled in a meadow near the city. This Concordat ended the contest between emperor and pope, which had been going on for fifty years. According to the emperor, on his part, gave up all investiture by ring and staff; allowed free election and consecration to all churches, according to ecclesiastical law. The pope, on his part, conceded that the election of German bishops and abbots should take place in the presence of the emperor, but without simony or violence; that, in case an election was disputed, the emperor, on the advice of the archbishop and bishops, should take the side of the right party. The bishop elect should receive the temporalities of his see by the imperial sceptre, and obliged himself to perform the accompanying duties. In other parts of the empire, the bishop, six months after consecration, should receive his temporalities in like manner, on the same conditions, but without any payment. The Concordat was ratified by the first Lateran Council, March, 1123. For a further account of it, see HASE: Kirchengeschichte, 10th ed., Leipzig, 1877, pp. 224—225; ROBERTSON: History Ch. Church, London, 1866, pp. 695—697; H. WITTE: For- schungen zur Geschichte d. Wormser Concordats, Göttingen, 1877; E. BEHRENS: Zur Geschicht e d. Wurmer Concordats, Göttingen, 1878.

2. The Diet of Worms, 1521, before which Luther was summoned to appear, closed the first period of the Reformation, showing to the world that the movement started by Luther was something greater, and likely to take quite another turn, than that started by Hus. Luther arrived Tuesday, April 16, in the forenoon, and was lodged in the house of the Knights of St. John. Great excitement prevailed in the city: thousands of people thronged the streets through which he passed. The next day (Wednesday, April 17), at six o'clock in the afternoon, he appeared before the diet, assembled in the episcopal palace, where the emperor and King Ferdinand staed. Johann Eck, a brother of the disputant of Leipzig fame, and official to the Bishop of Worms, addressed him in the name of the emperor, and demanded that he should recant. Luther answered by a long time to consider, and a respite of twenty-four hours was granted him. The impression he made was not so very favorable. The emperor wondered that "that man should have written those books;" and, with a fling at the uncourteous manners of the monk, he added, "He shall never make me a heretic." Thursday, April 18, at six o'clock in the afternoon, he again appeared before the diet; and, the demand of recantation having been repeated, he answered with a Latin speech, which has been preserved in his own draught. It is short, and clothed throughout in respectful terms; but every sentence is stamped with that decision which characterizes the action of natural forces, and which, when met with in human life, almost inspires with horror. And it was well delivered: in every corner of the hall it was heard that not one word would be retracted. A short dispute followed between Luther and Eck, ending with the famous words by Luther, "Here I stand. I can do no otherwise. So help me God! Amen!" The emperor left in a rage. It had become quite dark in the hall; and the Spaniards filled the room with their hisses and yells, while outside in the streets the crowd growled and threatened. When Luther passed by the seat of Duke Erick of Brunswick, an inveterate Romanist, the duke saw that the man was exhausted almost to fainting, and handed ed him his big silver mug with Eimbecker beer. When he came home to his lodgings, he threw up his arms, and cried out with joy, "Now I am through." Some further negotiations with a committee took place, though without any result. April 28, Luther left Worms. See J. KÜSTLIN: Martin Luther, Eibersfeld, 1875. On June 25, 1888, a colossal monument of Luther, with figures of the principal Reformers and of the cities of Spire, Magdeburg, and Augsburg, was unveiled in Worms.

3. 4. Later on, two Colloquies took place in Worms, between Protestant and Roman-Catholic theologians, for the purpose of bringing about a reconciliation between the two parties without having recourse to armed force. The first, January, 1541, was presided over by Cardinal Granvella. On the Protestant side were present Melanchthon, Calvin, Cruciger, Gryneus, Menius, etc.; on the Roman-Catholic, Coclius, Eck, Nausea, etc. Though, no doubt, both parties met with the sincere intention of doing their utmost in order to avoid war, it soon became evident that no compromise was possible unless some very strong influence from without could be brought to bear on the negotiations; and by an imperial decree of Jan. 18, 1541, the assembly was transferred to Ratisbon, where the diet was about to meet. The second colloquy, the so-called "Consultation of Worms," took place in 1557 under the presidency of Julius von Pfug, Bishop of Naumburg; but, beside Melanchthon, the president was probably the only one present who took a real interest in the union. The Protestants were represented by Melanchthon, Frenz, Mörlin, Schnepf, etc.; the Roman Catholics, by Sidonius, Bishop of Merseburg, Canisius, Staphylus, Wizelius, etc. It seems to have been the object of the Roman Catholics to break up the compact unity of the Protestant party; and, if so, they succeeded. In the sixth sitting, Sidonius demanded a formal declaration, whether the whole Protestant Church, including the Calvinist doctrine of the Lord's Supper, the Osianian doctrine of justification, the Placian doctrine de servo arbitrio, etc.; and immediately the internal discord of the Protestant party broke out in full blaze. The assembly finally dispersed.
WORSHIP. The earliest account we have of Christian worship after the close of the canon is from a Pagan source. When Pliny the Younger entered upon his proconsulship of Bithynia in Asia Minor, about A.D. 110, he found the number of Christians already so great, and the heathen worship so seriously undermined, that he was obliged by the popular clamor to exert himself against the new religion. Even under the cruel application of the torture, he could find out nothing worse than that the Christians were accustomed to meet together on a set day, before dawn, and sing responsive hymns to Christ as their God, and to pledge themselves in a sacrament to abstain from every form of evil, to commit no theft, rapine, or adultery, to falsify no word, and betray no trust. At a later period in the day they met together again, and joined in a harmless supper (Pliny to Trajan, Let. 93). No higher testimony could be desired to the purity of the Christian life and worship. The next account is from a Christian source, and, as might be expected, somewhat more particular. Justin Martyr, in his first Apology, says, that on the day called Sunday, all the Christians of a neighborhood meet together in one place, and listen to the reading of the Gospels and the Prophets. The presiding bishop preaches a sermon, exhorting them to holy living. All stand up, and pray. Bread is then brought in, with wine and water, the sacramental wine being invariably diluted. After further prayers, to which the people respond with audible "Amen," the body and blood of Christ are distributed. Portions are sent to the sick, and a collection is taken for the poor. Justin adds, "Sunday is the day on which we all meet together; because it is the first creative day, on which God called forth the light out of darkness, and on which also Jesus Christ our Saviour rose from the dead." The first important change in public worship to be noticed after this is the division of the service into two parts,—the service (missa) of the catechumens, which was open to all, and consisted of prayer, reading, and preaching; and the service for church-members (missa fidelium). The central part of this was the Lord's Supper, which was celebrated as a Christian mystery. More and more the "Eucharist" came to be the grand feature in Christian worship, about which all the other parts were grouped. A regular order was formed for its administration, which eventually grew into the liturgies of Basil and Chrysostom, and the Latin Sacramentaries of Gelasius, Leo, and Gregory. It was not till the period of long tranquillity that both preceded and followed the Decian persecution, that the Christian house of worship ventured to confront the heathen temple. During the last half of the century many churches were reared in Egypt, Syria, Asia Minor, Italy, Gaul, and Britain. The preaching of the last great sermon that was to break on the Christian party was given by tearing down what Eusebius calls a "great and splendid church" that had boldly reared itself in full view of the imperial palace at Nicomedia. Without having arrived at any definite result. The acts of these two colloquies are found in Corpus Reformatorum, vols. iii., iv., and ix. See also Sale: Historie der ausbugerischen Confession, vol. iii.

The preaching of the gospel continued to be an essential part of all Christian worship; often brief, simple, and expository, sometimes elaborate and rhetorical. The great bishops both of the East and the West have left us illustrious proofs of their homiletical eloquence. These have been preserved to us, partly through the care with which they were written out by their authors, and partly by the labors of shorthand writers who took them down as they fell from the lips of the speakers. As compared with the best modern sermons, they are defective in the critical analysis of the text, in sobriety of interpretation, breadth of discussion, and cogency of practical application. By the side of the efforts of Bourdaloue, Saurin, Krummacher, Robert Hall, Spurgeon, or the best preachers of America, they are signally inferior.

In accordance with apostolic precept, the disciples spoke to each other in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs. A body of devout lyrical poetry began to be formed,—the work of Clement, Gregory Nazianzen, Ambrose, Hilary, and others,—which, during the middle and Reformation ages, was swelled to an immense volume by the contributions of Protestant poets. The choral singing was at first only a sort of monotonous (hypophonc) cantilation, in which all took part. This was improved into elaborate choral singing, which, like that of Milan, became, in the judgment of Augustine at least, too artificial and dramatic. The effect of this change was to exclude the people from taking part in the service. Congregational singing perished. Church music in all Roman and in many Protestant churches exhibits the furthest possible departure from the apostolic and primitive conception of that office.

During the darker part of the middle ages, or from the eighth to the twelfth centuries, there was little if any thing that can be regarded as the preaching of the gospel. The great cathedrals that were built after the end of the Crusades were unadapted to that purpose. They were suited only to a dramatic show of worship, with altars, processions, and other features suited only to a dramatic show of worship, with altars, processions, and other features, being built in the dark and dramatic. The effect of this change was to exclude the people from taking part in the service. Congregational singing perished. Church music in all Roman and in many Protestant churches exhibits the furthest possible departure from the apostolic and primitive conception of that office. Luther, Calvin, Knox, all the great Reformers and their disciples, preached in the Reformation the function of preaching, which had begun, indeed, during the preceding century, to recover from its long neglect, reasserted its divine right, and again made a prominent part of public worship. The preaching of the gospel continued to be an essential part of all Christian worship; often brief, simple, and expository, sometimes elaborate and rhetorical. The great bishops both of the East and the West have left us illustrious proofs of their homiletical eloquence. These have been preserved to us, partly through the care with which they were written out by their authors, and partly by the labors of shorthand writers who took them down as they fell from the lips of the speakers. As compared with the best modern sermons, they are defective in the critical analysis of the text, in sobriety of interpretation, breadth of discussion, and cogency of practical application. By the side of the efforts of Bourdaloue, Saurin, Krummacher, Robert Hall, Spurgeon, or the best preachers of America, they are signally inferior.

In accordance with apostolic precept, the disciples spoke to each other in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs. A body of devout lyrical poetry began to be formed,—the work of Clement, Gregory Nazianzen, Ambrose, Hilary, and others,—which, during the middle and Reformation ages, was swelled to an immense volume by the contributions of Protestant poets. The choral singing was at first only a sort of monotonous (hypophonc) cantilation, in which all took part. This was improved into elaborate choral singing, which, like that of Milan, became, in the judgment of Augustine at least, too artificial and dramatic. The effect of this change was to exclude the people from taking part in the service. Congregational singing perished. Church music in all Roman and in many Protestant churches exhibits the furthest possible departure from the apostolic and primitive conception of that office. Luther, Calvin, Knox, all the great Reformers and their disciples, preached in the Reformation the function of preaching, which had begun, indeed, during the preceding century, to recover from its long neglect, reasserted its divine right, and again made a prominent part of public worship. The preaching of the gospel continued to be an essential part of all Christian worship; often brief, simple, and expository, sometimes elaborate and rhetorical. The great bishops both of the East and the West have left us illustrious proofs of their homiletical eloquence. These have been preserved to us, partly through the care with which they were written out by their authors, and partly by the labors of shorthand writers who took them down as they fell from the lips of the speakers. As compared with the best modern sermons, they are defective in the critical analysis of the text, in sobriety of interpretation, breadth of discussion, and cogency of practical application. By the side of the efforts of Bourdaloue, Saurin, Krummacher, Robert Hall, Spurgeon, or the best preachers of America, they are signally inferior.

In accordance with apostolic precept, the disciples spoke to each other in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs. A body of devout lyrical poetry began to be formed,—the work of Clement, Gregory Nazianzen, Ambrose, Hilary, and others,—which, during the middle and Reformation ages, was swelled to an immense volume by the contributions of Protestant poets. The choral singing was at first only a sort of monotonous (hypophonc) cantilation, in which all took part. This was improved into elaborate choral singing, which, like that of Milan, became, in the judgment of Augustine at least, too artificial and dramatic. The effect of this change was to exclude the people from taking part in the service. Congregational singing perished. Church music in all Roman and in many Protestant churches exhibits the furthest possible departure from the apostolic and primitive conception of that office. Luther, Calvin, Knox, all the great Reformers and their disciples, preached in the Reformation the function of preaching, which had begun, indeed, during the preceding century, to recover from its long neglect, reasserted its divine right, and again made a prominent part of public worship. The preaching of the gospel continued to be an essential part of all Christian worship; often brief, simple, and expository, sometimes elaborate and rhetorical. The great bishops both of the East and the West have left us illustrious proofs of their homiletical eloquence. These have been preserved to us, partly through the care with which they were written out by their authors, and partly by the labors of shorthand writers who took them down as they fell from the lips of the speakers. As compared with the best modern sermons, they are defective in the critical analysis of the text, in sobriety of interpretation, breadth of discussion, and cogency of practical application. By the side of the efforts of Bourdaloue, Saurin, Krummacher, Robert Hall, Spurgeon, or the best preachers of America, they are signally inferior.
of public prayer, that it may be performed with propriety and dignity, as well as to the profit of those who join in it, and that he may not disgrace that important service by mean, irregular, or extravagant effusions." Notwithstanding this admonition, the Presbyterian clergy continued to give so little attention to this part of their duty, that, about the close of the first quarter of the century, the venerable Dr. Miller of Princeton, one of the recognized leaders of that church, pointed out no less than eighteen separate faults into which they were accustomed to fall. This invariable tendency has led, from about the time of the publication of Dr. Miller's treatise, to a re-action in favor of the primitive mode of worship, by means of a partial Liturgy; and various works designed to encourage and assist that movement have been laid before the church. No marked change, however, in the forms of worship has yet been effected. Among the Scottish Presbyterians, a large and active society, numbering many thousand members and clerical, has devoted itself to the improvement of public worship, and has published several excellent liturgical works for that purpose. Their Euchologion, or Book of Common Order, has passed through four editions, and an improved fifth edition is about being issued (1883).

In the Roman-Catholic Church in America a marked change for the better in respect to public worship is to be noticed. Brought into immediate competition with a powerful and vigorous Protestantism, the Roman Church has been obliged to borrow something of its methods in self-defence. Its churches are mostly large, but not too large for the purposes of preaching; and the pews are often upholstered, and rented permanently by the same families. A sermon always makes a part of the service. The children are gathered into Sunday schools, in which the Catechism is taught, and hymns are sung to the popular tunes familiar to Protestant children.

In the department of hymnology a great development of activity has taken place, both in Europe and America, during the last half-century. Many new hymn and tune books have appeared, mostly worthy of high commendation, including from one thousand to fifteen hundred hymns each. A serious fault with some of them is the unauthorized "tinkering" of old and familiar hymns, at the discretion of the individual editor. The intrusion of modern "sentimental" hymns is another fault. The conference of Eise- nach (1858) went to the opposite extreme, and adopted the principle of accepting no hymn of a later date than 1750. Many hymns are also objectionable as being too exclusively didactic. A hymn may properly include doctrine, reproof, or warning; but the great function of sacred song is the utterance of the devout emotions in praise to God; preaching hymns, in which the whole object, apparently, is to rouse and terrify the sinner, are illegitimate. The German collections are generally free from these faults. On the whole, the modern church worship must be regarded as more ornate and didactic, appealing more to the intellect and the taste, than that of the earlier ages, and as having something the same relation to it that modern confessions have to the Apostles' Creed, or a finely constructed and furnished modern church to the bare basilicas of the Nicene period. See HOMILETICS, HYMNOL- OGY, LITURGY, PRAYER-BOOK, and the literature there given. SAMUEL MILES HOPKINS.

WOTTON, Sir Henry, a traveller, diplomatist, scholar, and poet; b. at Boughton, Malherbe, Kent, March 30, 1658; d. at Eton, December, 1698; was educated at Oxford, and was for a time a tutor at Eton; lived abroad; was for a time secretary to the Earl of Essex; knighted by James I. soon after his accession; three times minister to Venice, and in the intervals to Germany, the Netherlands, etc.; provost of Eton, 1625. His tracts, letters, etc., were collected, 1661-72, by Izak Walton, as Reliquiae Wottonianae, with a memoir. Of his few poems, several, especially How happy is he born or taught, have a place among our sacred classics. F. M. BIRD.

WOTTON, William, D.D., English divine; b. at Wrentham, Suffolk, Aug. 15, 1611; d. at Ox- ford, 1679; M.A., 1633; and was elected fellow of St. John's College, 1658. He entered holy orders; in 1633 was rector of Middleton Keynes, Buckinghamshire; in 1705 prebendary of Salisbury. Among his learned works may be mentioned, Reflections upon Ancient and Modern Learning, 1694, 3d ed., 1705 (a reply to Sir William Temple's extravagant eulogy of the ancients); Miscellaneous Discourses relating to the Traditions and Usages of the Scribes and Pharisees in our Blessed Saviour Jesus Christ's Time, 1718, 2 vols. (in vol. 2 are translations of the Mishna's Shabbath and Erwin, two books on the sabbath).

WORSHIP. The Hebrew word Kdath denotes originally, to "engrave" in stone (Exod. xxxi. 18, xxxii. 15), metal (Exod. xxxix. 30; Job xix. 24; Isa. viii. 1; Hab. ii. 2), wood (Num. xvii. 3); then to "write." The discovery and first use of the art of writing is certainly at least 7410 years old, as the time of Abra- ham, yet in the patriarchal age we meet with absolutely certain traces of its employment by the Hebrews. But undoubtedly they made this art their own during their stay in Egypt; for here already we find Israelite officers who derived their name, skotrim, from "writing." All the more we may assume that Moses, brought up as he was in the Egyptian court, and instructed in all the wisdom of the Egyptians (Acts vii. 22), not only was acquainted with it, but was so practised in it that he could set down in writing the laws which were given to his people, and so insire them against that disfigurement which is the case of mere oral tradition. Nay, in the time of Moses, the art of writing is presupposed, and mentioned as being already known and in common use among the people (Exod. xvii. 14, xxi. 4, xxxiv. 27, 28; Lev. xiv. 28; Num. v. 25, xi. 28, xxxiii. 2; Deut. xv. 17, 18, xxxi. 9, 10, 22, 24). The Shemites, that is the earlier peoples, are not mentioned in connection with this. Therefore the Hebrew is merely a branch, not was it invented by the Hebrews, neither was it invented by the Phoenicians. It was certainly invented and used... by a Semitic race, because it is adapted to the peculiarities of the Semitic languages, and was developed out of the primitive type independently of Egypt in Babylonia, whence the Phenicians got it, and were the instruments of communicating it to other nations.

The Semitic primitive alphabet presents itself in a threefold stage of development, while it was contributing to the formation of the present Hebrew character. In its oldest (iconographical) state it exists in Phenician monuments, both stones and coins. The letters, characterized generally by stiff, straight down-strokes, without regularity and beauty, were used among the Samaritans, and on coins struck under the Maccabean princes. While the old character thus continued without much change among the Phenicians and Samaritans, it had gradually altered among the Arameans, and assumed somewhat of a cursive, or tackygraphical form, by opening the heads or tops of the letters, which were closed before, so that they presented themselves as two projecting points or ears, and by breaking the stiff down-strokes, which were either upright, or but slightly bent into horizontally inclined ones, to serve for union in writing. This character appears in a twofold form on Aramaean monuments. It is seen as an older and simpler one on the Carpentras stone, where it still inclines to the old writing, and is just beginning to deviate from it by opening the heads of the letters. It is also seen as a younger character, in inscriptions found among the ruins of Palmyra, departing very considerably from the primitive alphabet, by the open heads of the letters and by the horizontal strokes of union. The ancient character also underwent a similar process among the Jews. It is probable that the influence of the later Aramean character (Palmyrene) contributed most to this effect, until the present Hebrew writing, the ייִּתְנְתְלָה [square writing (so called on account of its angular form)] more commonly, called ייִּתְנְתְלָה [the Assyrian writing], was formed. To give the characters more uniformity and symmetry, the calligraphic principle, or effort to write beautifully and ornamentally, came in use. Letters which had been joined together it divided, and attaches various ornamental flourishes to them, agreeably to current taste.

At what time the Hebrew writing thus altered passed from the Arameans, or Syrians, to the Jews, it is very difficult to discover. In the Talmud, Origen, and Jerome, the change of the characters is ascribed to Ezra, who, after the captivity, is said to have introduced the square character for the old. [Here it is said the Assyrian writing, הָעָמֵד] According to a tradition (Euseb., Chron. ad ann. 4720), Ezra is said to have invented the square writing, that the Jews might not become mixed with the Samaritans. This square writing was also called the "holy," in opposition to the more ancient, the ייִּתְנְתְלָה, i.e., the broken, irregular one, or ייִּתְנְתְלָה [Hebrew writing], which was now regarded as the profane, and only in use among the Samaritans. But the fact that this character was still retained for a considerable time, and on account of its antiquity was used in the Maccabean coinage, and that the Samaritans may have accepted it along with the Pentateuch, while, out of hatred to the Samaritans, the Jews may then have preferred the running hand, and may have perfected it calligraphically into the square character, shows that the square writing must have been introduced later. The name ייִּתְנְתְלָה cannot, indeed, be held absolutely to determine the origin and history of the square character, since the meaning of the word הָעָמֵד is greatly disputed. Thus Rabbi Judah [surprised by the Holy] explains it, "beautified," "sanctified." The same is to be said of the explanations "rectilinear writing" (Michaelis, Orient. Bibl. xxii. p. 133) and "straight, strong, firm writing" (Hupfeld). Although we cannot determine with precision the time at which the square character was perfected, still there is complete evidence that it cannot have taken place so late as the fourth century of the Christian era (as Kopp, Bilder-Schreiben der Vorzeit, ii. 87 sq.). In the New Testament (Matt. v. 18) we find that the yod is referred to as the smallest letter, which suits better the square character. The Talmud and Jerome designate those letters as similar, and exposed to change by mistake, which can only refer to the square character. [Comp. Pick, art. "The Old Testament in the Time of the Talmud," in McClintock and Strong's Cyclopaedia, vol. x. p. 187.] During the middle ages we find another kind of cursive writing, the rabbinic, which is also a kind of square writing.

The question whether the Hebrew system of writing was merely a writing of consonants, or not, is still pending. According to Hupfeld, there were from the beginning three vowel-signs for the vowels ə, ı, and u. Of these, however, the first, the aleph, was used only with a commencing sound, and in a concluding sound it was not written; but every consonant was sounded with the a. Moreover, in the beginning, the sound was very greatly predominant; and only as the language became developed, the other vowels became more frequent,—ı and u, also e, o, ai, and au. Yet the writing was developed less rapidly than the pronunciation; and thus the vowel-marks i and ı were not applied everywhere, but only in accordance with the modes of pronunciation. In the Old Testament we find a manifest progress in the written symbols for the vowels, as the so-called scriptio plena comes much more frequently into use. At the time of the Alexandrian version the vocalization had not attained to its later perfection, and therefore in many cases it deviates from that which is now adopted. In the Targums it meets us in a much firmer and less variable form; and by the time of the Talmud it is thoroughly fixed, and it agrees essentially with the later vocalization; though it exhibits no traces of vowel-points (Hupfeld: Studien u. Kritiken, 1880, p. 549; Exercitatio Ethip. §§ 6; of these see mar. § 11). The first traces of diacritical signs we find in the marketono, the Samaritan diacritical line, and which is also found on Phenician inscriptions.

The ancient Hebrews, like the ancients generally, had no word-lines, nor complete scripito continuo; but they divided the sentences, and, for the most part, the words also, by little spaces, whilst closely connected words were frequently written without any break. But, when the regular square character was introduced, the separation of the individual words by little spaces also became universal. The Semitic, with the exception of the Ethiopic, is written from right to left. The Hebrew has twenty-two letters, which, after the exile, were also used as numbers. In the old Hebrew writing, abbreviations were also used, as in the Phoenician.
WULFRAM.  2557  WYTTENBACH.

The Writing-Material.—The earliest was either wood, metal, or stone. According to Herodotus, the skins of animals were the most ancient materials for writing books in Western Asia. Only at a later period the Egyptian paper, made from the coats of the papyrus, came widely into use among the Jews (comp. Hengstenberg: Beiträge ii. 486); and so did parchment afterwards, on which, no doubt, the original form of the Pentateuch was written in the antique form of a roll, with ink (Num. v. 29). According to Josephus (Ant. xili. 2, 10), parchment was used for copies of the law; and this is customary up to this day. In the form of a roll the parchment seems to have been used in David's time. (Comp. Ps. xi. 7; Jer. xxxvi. 14 sq.; Ezek. ii. 9, 10; Zech. v. 1-4.)

Writing utensils for hard materials were iron instruments, styles, and chisel (Job xix. 24; Ps. xlv. 1; Jer. xili. 8, xvii. 1; Isa. viii. 1); for parchment or papyrus, a pen of reed, and ink, was used (3 John 13; 3 Mace. iv. 20). A penknife is mentioned, Jer. xxxvi. 23; and the inkhorn, in Ezek. ix. 2.

LEYRER. (B. PICK.)

WULFRAM, ST., b. at Milly in 650; d. in the monastery of Fontenelle, according to some in 693, according to others in 720 or 740. He was a monk in Fontenelle, and afterwards bishop of Sens. He was one of the fathers among the Frisians, of which a fanciful report, highly ornamented with legendary fictions, is found in Act. Sanct., March 20.

WÜRZBURG, The Kingdom of, has, according to the census of 1880, a population of 1,971,255 souls, of whom 1,361,412 are Protestants, 590,405 Roman Catholics, 13,326 Jews, etc. The constitution of the Protestant Church is consistent. The highest legislative and administrative authority is, so far as regards purely ecclesiastical matters, vested in the consistory, composed of a president, a legal councillor, and seven ordinary councillors (five laymen and two ecclesiastics), who are all appointed by the king. Since 1848, however, there has been established alongside the consistory, and acting in unison with it, a series of parish councils, diocesan synods, and annual synods-general, to which the membership is elective. The territory of the church is divided into six superintendencies, each with a "prelate" at its head, 49 deaneries, and 906 parishes, paid by the state. The University of Tübingen has a faculty of Protestant theology, consisting of five ordinary professors, besides professors extraordinary and Privatdocenten. The Roman Catholics in Würzburg form the episcopal diocese of Rottenburg, with 672 parishes and 946 priests, paid by the state. The University of Tübingen has also a faculty of Roman-Catholic theology consisting of six professors. The diocese of Rottenburg belongs to the ecclesiastical province of Freiburg, to which its relations have been arranged by the papal bull, Provisa solerque, of Aug. 11, 1821. See O. SCHMID-SONUSCK: Die evangelische Diaspora Würzburgs nach Entstehung u. gegenwärtigem Bestand, Stuttgart, 1879; H. HELFERRICH: Chronik der evangelischen Kirche Württembergs vom Jahre 1792, Stuttgart, 1880.

WUTTKE, Karl Friedrich Adolf, b. at Breslau, Nov. 10, 1819; d. at Halle, April 12, 1870. He studied theology in his native city, and was appointed professor at Berlin in 1854, and at Halle in 1851. His principal work is his Handbuch der christlichen Sittenlehre, Leipzig, 1860-62; 3d ed., 1874-75; Eng. trans. by Professor John P. Lacroix, New York, 1873, 2 vols. He also wrote Die Geschichte des Heidentums, 1851-53; and Der Deutsche Volksaberglaube der Gegenwart, 1865; 2d ed., 1869. As a journalist and politician he was noted for the maxim, "A democrat will not be a democrat, nor can a democrat be a Christian."

WYLI, Samuel Brown, D.D., LL.D., Reformed Presbyterian; b. at Moylargh, County Antrim, Ireland, May 21, 1773; d. in Philadelphia, Oct. 13, 1852. He was graduated at the university of Glasgow, 1797; emigrated to America the same year; was tutor in the University of Pennsylvania; was ordained 1800; and from 1801 to 1852 he was pastor of the First Reformed Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia. During this time he was likewise professor in the Philadelphia theological seminary of his denomination (1809-51), of ancient languages in the University of Pennsylvania (1828-45), emeritus-professor (1845-52), and vice-novost of the university (1836-45). He wrote The Faithful Witness or Illustration, and Ministry upon a Scriptural Basis, Philadelphia, 1804, later eds.; Life of Rev. Alexander McLeod, D.D., New York, 1854; See Sprague: Annals, vol. ix., "Reformed Presbyterian College.

WYTENBACH, Thomas, b. at Biel, in the canton of Bern, 1472; d. there in 1526. He studied at Basel and Tübingen; lectured for some time at Basel, where he had Leo Judae and Zwingli among his hearers; and was in 1507 made pastor in his native city. He preached openly against indulgences, the mass, the celibacy of priests, etc., and was in reality the first of the Swiss Reformers. But when, in 1524, he married, he was deposed; and, though a large portion of the inhabitants sided with him, he did not succeed in establishing the Reformation in Biel. See Haller: Geschichte d. prot. Ref. d. Kantons Bern, Luzern, 1836.
XAVIER. See Francis Xavier.

XIMENES DE CISNEROS, Francisco, b. at Torrelaguna in Castile, in 1436; d. at Ros, Nov. 8, 1517. He belonged to a family of old nobility, but without wealth or any other distinction. He was educated at Alcala; studied at Salamanca; took holy orders; visited Rome, and returned in 1473 with an expectative letter from the Pope on the archpriestship of Uzeda. The archbishop of Toledo felt provoked at the Pope's arrogance in giving away benefices in his diocese; and, as Ximenes would not yield his claim, he locked him up in a convent prison, and held him there for six years. Having been released, Ximenes was in 1480 appointed vicar-general to the bishop of Siguenza, and in that position he gave evidences of an administrative talent of the highest order. But he suddenly broke off the brilliant career which opened before him, and entered the Franciscan monastery of San Juan de los Reyes in Toledo. The austerity of his ascetic practices, and the fervor of his preachings, soon made him a great name in this new field; but again he astonished the world by being appointed confessor to Queen Isabella. The position was of great political importance, as the queen used to confer with her confessor, not only on her private affairs, but also on public business; and Ximenes so completely gained the confidence of the queen, that in 1495 she made him archbishop of Toledo, and shortly after, also grand-inquisitor of Spain. The archbishopric of Toledo was probably, next to the papacy, the richest and most influential position in the church. Ximenes, however, continued to live like a monk; and, even when a bull from Rome ordered him to keep up a certain style answering to the dignity of his position, he continued in secret his ascetic practices, wearing the hair-shirt under his gorgeous robe, and sleeping on a wooden board. Though the relation between him and King Ferdinand had been very cool while Isabella lived, he did not lose his influence after her death: on the contrary, by his will the king made him regent of Spain during the minority of his heir, Charles V.; and Ximenes had the good fortune to die just as Charles landed in Asturias, probably without learning that his deposition was the first act of the king.

Ximenes was an ultramontanist and a fanatic. He opposed with all his might the translation of the Bible into the vernacular tongue, as a profanation and a dangerous measure; since common people (vulgus) respect only what they do not understand, while they despise any thing which becomes easily accessible to them. He also opposed the introduction of publicity in the transactions of the Inquisition. And when the newly converted Jews and Moors offered King Ferdinand, who was always in need of money, a considerable sum for the introduction of such a measure, Ximenes paid the king a still larger sum out of his own pocket in order to prevent the establishment of the reform. Against the conquered Moors he advocated the harshest measures, and it was he who persuaded the king and queen to give them the choice between conversion and banishment. On the other hand, he was perfectly sincere. He carried out the necessary reform of the Franciscan order in Spain, in spite of the interference of the general of the order and the Pope himself, and though more than one thousand monks emigrated in order to escape the severe discipline which he established. For the promotion of education and learning he did very much, though he was not himself a scholar. He founded the university of Alcala. There had for more than two centuries been a flourishing school in the place, which he extended into a complete university, with forty-two professors,—six in theology proper, six in canon law, four in medicine, one in anatomy, one in surgery, eight in philosophy, one in moral philosophy, one in mathematics, four in Greek and Hebrew languages, four in rhetoric, and six in grammar. The erection of the many new and splendid buildings began in 1498, and was completed in 1508. Another magnificent undertaking of his was the publication of the Complutensian Polyglot (see POLYGLOT). But it was chiefly as a statesman that he earned his great fame. He even won the laurels of a general. In 1509, in his seventy-second year, he equipped at his own expense a brilliant armament, consisting of ten thousand foot, four thousand horse, and a fleet; crossed in person the Mediterranean; conquered Oran; and made forever an end of the Moorish piracy on the southern and south-eastern coasts of Spain.

LIT.—The principal source of his life is ALVARO GOMEZ DE CASTRO: De rebus gestibus F. X., Alcala, 1639. Other biographies have been written in Spanish, by ROBLES (1694) and QUINTANILLA (1833); in French, by BAUDIER (1835), MARSELIER (1834), FLECHIER (1894), and RICHARD (1704); in German, by HEFEL (1844, translated into English by Dalton, 1860) and ULRICH (1888); in English, by BARRETT (1813). HERZOG.
YALE UNIVERSITY, in New Haven, Conn., owes its origin to the action of a few Congregational ministers, principally of the old New-Haven Colony, who met by agreement in 1700, and gave books in a formal way "for founding a college." The action of these ministers, however, at this time, was only the carrying into execution of a plan which had been conceived by the first settlers of New Haven more than sixty years before, — probably before they had left England, their native land. A charter was obtained from the General Court of Connecticut, Oct. 9, 1701; and the location of the college was fixed temporarily at Saybrook. And in 1701, Samuel Andrew was elected rector; and in March, 1702, instruction was begun. The first Commencement was held at Saybrook, Sept. 13, 1702. As the college grew in importance, it began to be apparent that it would be worth something as a prize; and an attempt was made to capture it, and remove it to Wethersfield. A great struggle ensued, in which New Haven was at last successful. In 1718 the college was permanently established in the town which was its natural home, and where it had been the object of the hopes and efforts of successive generations. Just at this time, a considerable gift having been received from Elihu Yale of London, governor of the East India Company, a son of one of the original colonists, the trustees were enabled to erect a college building, to which, in 1718, at the first public commencement held in New Haven, they gave the name of their benefactor,—a name which was soon transferred to the institution itself.

According to the original charter of 1701, the government of the college was placed in the hands of a rector and ten fellows, all of whom were ministers. A new charter, more ample in its provisions, was obtained in 1745, in which the president was styled the president and rector. In 1792, in consideration of pecuniary assistance received from the State, the trustees voted that the governor, lieutenant-governor, and the six senior ministers (in 1818 called senators), should be added to their number. In 1866 the Legislature relinquished the privilege of being represented in the corporation by the six senators in favor of as many graduates, to be elected by their fellow-graduates. The arrangement for the terms of office of these members was so made, that there is every year an election of one graduate, who is to serve six years. All the departments of the college are under the control of this corporation, whose legal title is the "President and Fellows of Yale College in New Haven." The president is ex officio the head of each department, but each is practically independent of the others in the management of its internal affairs. The corporation alone has the power to give degrees, which are conferred on candidates, only after passing a satisfactory examination.

The college is thought to have been remarkably fortunate in its presidents, whose terms of office have been as follows: Abraham Pierson, 1701-07; Samuel Andrew, 1707-19; Timothy Cutler, 1719-22; Elisha Williams, 1725-39; Thomas Clap, 1739-96; Naftali Daggett, 1786-77; Ezra Stiles, 1777-95; Timothy Dwight, 1795-1817; Jeremiah Day, 1817-46; Theodore Dwight Woolsey, 1846-71; Noah Porter, 1871-

At first there was no permanent instructor besides the rector, who was assisted by tutors temporarily employed. In 1755 (public worship having been shortly before commenced on the college ground, and a church established) a professor of divinity was appointed, who was to be college pastor; and not long after, in 1771, a professor of mathematics, and in 1787 a professor of philosophy, were added to the corps of instructors. At the end of the first hundred years of the history of the college, its progress had been all that its founders could have anticipated. There had been a steady increase in the number of students and a marked enlargement in the range of studies required. But after 1860, under the presidency of the Rev. Timothy Dwight, a rapid development of the college began. Through the influence of Dr. Dwight, three recent graduates of the college — Jeremiah Day, Benjamin Silliman, and James L. Kingsley — were appointed professors. These three men, for half a century, — first as his co-adjutors, and after his death as colleagues, — labored together with great zeal and unbroken harmony to advance the interests of learning in the institution. As the prosperity of the country advanced, not only was the number of professors enlarged, but new departments were organized, as follows: medicine in 1812, theology in 1822, law in 1824, philosophy and the arts in 1847, the fine arts in 1854, and a department of original research in astronomy in 1871. At last, in 1871, the corporation, recognizing that the college already comprised all the courses of instruction which are usually found in an institution of the highest rank, organized the university with the departments of theology, medicine, law, and philosophy, and the arts; which last was made to consist of four sections, viz., (1) for graduates, (2) for academical undergraduates, (3) for undergraduates of the Sheffield Scientific School, (4) for students of the fine arts; each section having a separate organization.

In the section for graduates, or those who have already taken a bachelor's degree, there are forty-two instructors, and the course of instruction occupies two years. In the section for academical undergraduates there are thirty-one instructors, and the instruction occupies four years. The Sheffield Scientific School is devoted especially to instruction in the mathematical, physical, and natural sciences. The school was established in 1847; but in 1890, through the liberality of Mr. Joseph E. Sheffield, it was re-organized, and received his name. There are twenty-seven instructors, and the course occupies three years. The Street School of the Fine Arts has for its end the cultivation and promotion of the arts of design; viz., painting, sculpture, and architecture, thorough practice, and criticism. The course occupies three years, and is open to persons of both sexes.

The Theological School, as a distinct department, was founded in 1822; though, from the origin of the college, the instruction had been specially arranged to favor the education of ministers. But from the establishment of the chair of divinity in 1755, and probably from a much earlier period, classes of graduates had been in the habit of continuing their residence for the purpose of pursuing theological studies; so that, out of the large number of the alumni who had entered the ministry during the hundred years before 1822, a considerable portion had been trained for their duties at the college. Among these may be mentioned Jonathan Edwards of Northampton, Samuel Hopkins of Newport, Nathanael Emmons of Franklin, Joseph Bellamy of Bethlehem, Timothy Dwight of New Haven, Joseph Buckminster of Portsmouth, John Smalley, Stephen Vest, Azel Backus, Moses Stuart, Nathaniel W. Taylor, Lyman Beecher, Eleazer T. Fitch, Bennet Tyler, Edward Dorr Griffin, and Edward Robinson. The faculty consisted of Nathaniel W. Taylor, Eleazer T. Fitch, and Josiah W. Gibbs. Chauncey A. Goodrich was subsequently added to their number. The faculty at present consists of the president of the university, a professor of Hebrew literature and biblical theology, a professor of systematic theology, a professor of homiletics and the pastoral charge, a professor of ecclesiastical history, and a professor of sacred literature and New-Testament Greek. There are, besides, eight special lecturers and instructors. Students of every Christian denomination, in case they are possessed of the required qualifications, are admitted. The course of instruction occupies three years; but, at the close of the studies of the second year, students may be licensed to preach. In one of the theological buildings is a library of three thousand volumes in various languages, open several hours each day, which takes the place of a well-selected private library for the students. The library of the Peabody observatory, which was collected by Dr. Lowell Mason, was, after his death, presented to the seminary. There is in this department no charge for instruction, room-rent, or the use of the library. Students whose circumstances require it receive a hundred dollars a year from the income of scholarships, and other funds. In special cases there is additional aid. The Hooker Graduate scholarship, with an annual income of seven hundred dollars for two years after graduation, was established in 1876; and there is another graduate scholarship, yielding five hundred dollars for one year. The term begins in September, and the session continues for eight months, without vacation, to near the close of May. The degree of bachelor of divinity is conferred at the end of the course upon those who pass the required examination. Students in this department have the special advantage of being allowed to attend the lectures in no other departments of the university. The alumni of the seminary number about fourteen hundred. Of the alumni of the academical and theological departments, about a hundred have been foreign missionaries. A course of instruction for two years is also arranged for graduates, or those who have already completed a three-years' course in this or any other theological school.

The faculty of the department of medicine consists of eight professors and ten special lecturers and instructors. The system of instruction is arranged in a graded course for three full years. The faculty of the department of law consists of six professors and eight special lecturers and instructors. The course occupies two years. There is also a graduate course of two additional years, for those who have already taken the degree of bachelor of laws. The Peabody Museum of Natural History was endowed in 1806 by Mr. George Peabody of London, for the preservation of the valuable collection already owned by the college, and of those which may be made hereafter, in the departments of zoology, geology, mineralogy, paleontology, and ethnology. In 1871 the department of astronomy was enlarged in its organization, when, to the former facilities for instruction in this science, were added ample means of original investigation and research. At present there is a corps of eight astronomers connected with the observatory.

According to the report of the treasurer in 1882, the invested funds of the university were $1,833,983.47. The annual income from tuition was $138,815.43. The number of the volumes in the several libraries which are open to students is about 135,000. Over 13,000 degrees have been conferred by the corporation, of which about 1,000 have been pro honore causa. There have been, besides, several thousand students in the academical department of the university who received no degree. The students of the law department before 1843, and of the theological department before 1867, are not included in the catalogue of the alumni, as, till those years, degrees were not conferred in law or theology. About 2,200 of the graduates of the academical department have been ordained as ministers.

The number of students in attendance in 1882-83 was as follows; department of theology, 106; department of medicine, 30; department of law, 85; department of philosophy and the arts (graduate instruction, 41; undergraduate academical department, 611; Sheffield Scientific School, 206; School of the Fine Arts, 40), 898; deduct for names inserted twice, 23. Total, 1,990.

YATES, William, D.D., English Baptist missionary; b. at Loughborough, Leicestershire, Dec. 15, 1792; d. on the Red Sea, July 3, 1845. He went to India in 1815, and settled at Serampore, where he devoted himself to literary work, and produced a translation of the entire Bible into Bengalee, in continuation of Carey's (d. 1834) labors, a translation of the New Testament into Hindee and Hindostanee, besides large parts of the Bible into Sanscrit. He prepared, also, textbooks, — A Grammar of the Sanscrit Language on a New Plan, Calcutta, 1820, 2d ed., 1845; Sanscrit Vocabulary, 1820; Introduction to the Hindostanee Language, in three parts, 1827, new ed., 1843, printed in Roman characters, 1836; Dictionary, Hindostani and English, 1850; and (posthumous) Introduction to the Bengali Language, ed. J. Wenger, 1847, 2 vols. He visited England and the United States in 1827-29, and was on his second visit home when he died. See James Hoby: Memoir of William Yates, London, 1817.
YEAR.

YEAR, The Church, does not rest upon a commandment of the New Testament, but was the gradual product of the needs of the church. The periods of its development can be readily traced. In the apostolic age, the Jewish Christians seem to have strictly followed the Jewish cycle of feasts; while the Gentile Christians at first seem to have observed no yearly church festivals. In the middle of the first century, the two such festivals meet us, — the Paschal and Pentecost festivals. The former at first commemorated the passion of our Lord (see Paschal Controversies, Easter), and was prolonged to a period of six days, marked by solemnity and fasting. Pentecost commemorated the resurrection and ascension of Christ and the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, comprehended fifty days, and was a period of joyousness, in which there was no fasting, or kneeling in prayer. The second period in the formation of the church year is marked by the elevation of Ascension Day to the rank of a distinct festival, the closer association of the day of resurrection, Easter, with the Christian Passover, Good Friday, and the addition of the festival of Christ's birth, — Christmas, — and Epiphany. There were then three festival cycles, — Christmas, Easter, and Pentecost; the former two being preceded by preparatory periods, — Quinquagesima (forty days) and Advent. The ancient church celebrated the anniversaries of the deaths of martyrs as local festivals. The veneration of martyrs was accompanied by the feeling that their intercession made prayer effective. History, however, in this direction, is vitiated by myths. The oldest festivals of Mary, Annunciation, and Purification, were at first festivals of Christ, and were transferred to Mary at a later period, when her worship became prevalent. The Roman-Catholic Church assigns a saint to every day of the year. The culmination and conclusion of its system of festivals is marked by Corpus Christi, the feast of transsubstantiation.

Although the church year would properly begin with the first Sunday in Advent, it was a long time before the church came to this conclusion. The most confusing differences occur late in the middle ages. The older church teachers, following the Jewish mode of reckoning, regarded the Easter month as the first month of the year; and in the West it was made to begin with March. Dionysius Exiguus began the year with January; but, in the middle ages, Germany, Italy, and other lands dated it from Dec. 25; or, as in Florence and Pisa down to 1749, from March 25. The Greek Church begins its year with Sept. 1. The custom of dating the church year from the first Sunday in Advent was first in vogue among the Nestorians. All the Reformers, Luther included, at first questioned whether it was not best to return to the simplicity of the apostolic age in regard to church festivals. The Reformed churches never had any sympathy for the church year. In Calvin's time Sunday only was observed at Geneva. Good Friday was not introduced till 1729. In other lands Christmas was the only church festival observed on a week day. [The Puritans gave up even Christmas: and until very recently it was not observed at all in any of the Congregational churches of New England, or the Presbyterian churches of Scotland and the United States, as a religious festival. The Puritans, however, appointed and observed, from time to time, special fast and thanksgiving days.] The Lutheran Church preserved not only Christmas and Easter, but the days for each of the twelve apostles, Annunciation Day, Pentecost Day, and the festival of the Archangel Michael. Luther gave up even Christmas, Easter, and Pentecost; the former at first composed of sixty days, marked by solemnity and fasting. But, whatever may have been their knowledge, in practice the church year of the Catholic Church, and preserved the names of many of the saints in her Prayer-Book. The Episcopal Church of the United States, however, has discarded the most of these.] Compare the art. Calendar, and the special articles Easter, Advent, etc. See Gnetzer: De Festis Christianis; Lisco: D. christlichen Kirchenjahre, Berlin, 1840; Straus: D. evang. Kirchenjahr in seinem Zusammenhang, etc., Berlin, 1850; Boyertag: D. evangelische Kirchenjahre, Breslau, 1853.

YEAR, Hebrew. I. THE YEARS. — The Hebrew word for year, שנה, means "repetition," — that which runs a circuit. The word countenances the idea that the Hebrews were acquainted with the solar year, which was the year of the Egyptians, who divided it into twelve months of thirty days each, and Advent. The exact fixing of the months, and therefore of the year, was post-exilic. According to the directions given at length in the Talmud [Mishna Rosh Ha-Shana, i.], as soon as the first glimpse of the new month was announced by two persons appointed for the purpose, the sanhedrin, with the cry "The new moon is hallowed," officially declared a new month begun. Of course there was no astronomical observation possible, and much depended upon the weather. If, on account of overcast, the moon could not be seen, then there was no proclamation; but, if there was an observation, the news was despatched through the land, at first by signal-fires from height to height, later by messengers. Those months which had thirty days in them (of which there were ten) no less than eight in the year) had two days called שַׁעַר שָׁנָה, of which one was the thirtieth of the old, and the other the first of the new, month. The present Jews use an astronomical table of moons, which dates from a century after the destruction of the second temple.
The ancient Hebrews corrected the discrepancy between the lunar year and the solar by the insertion every two or three years of a month before the last month of the year, except in the sabbatical year. It is true that there is no mention in the pre-exilian Scriptures of a year with thirteen months; but since, in this period, there was such a year among the Babylonians, Assyrians, and the Greeks, the omission may be merely accidental. In later times the sanhedrin determined in the month Adar, according to the state of vegetation, whether a month should be intercalated or not.

In the fourth Christian century the Jews adopted the Greek astronomer Menon's 19-year cycle, according to which, in every nineteen years there were seven leap-years,—the 3d, 6th, 8th, 11th, 14th, 17th, 19th. There were two important legal enactments to be allowed for: the Feast of Tabernacles must not end before the autumn equinox, and the full moon of Passover must not precede the spring equinox.

II. THE MONTHS. — These were, giving them their pre- and post-exilic names, as follows.

1. Abib (Exod. xii. 2; cf. xl. 2, 17; Lev. xxiii. 5; Num. ix. 1, xxxvii. 16, xxxiii. 3), the "plough" month, or Nisan, the month of the "breaking-forth." (The year was thus dated from spring, because the exodus took place; but the Feast of the New Moon was in the seventh month.)
2. Zif (1 Kings vi. 1), the "bloom" month, or Iyyar.
3. Sivan (Esth. iii. 9; Bar. i. 5).
4. Tammuz, the summer solstice, the month of mourning for "Tammuz." — Adonis.
5. Ab. (The names of 4 and 5 do not occur in the Scriptures.)
6. Etul (Neh. vi. 15).
7. Elkanim (1 Kings vii. 2), the "month of the overflowing waters," or Tishri.
8. Bul (1 Kings vi. 38), the "rain" or "fruit" month, and Marheshvan, abridged to Heshvan.
9. Kislev (Neh. i. 1; Zech. viii. 1), the "Orion" (?) month.
12. Adar (Est. vi. 15; Esth. iii. 7, 13, viii. 12).

There are no known pre-exilic names for the last four months, and the origin of this post-exilic nomenclature is in dispute; but probably it is derived from Babylonia. The names are found on Syriac, Arabic, and Persian inscriptions, and names closely similar upon the Nineveh tablet. Before, as well as after the exile, it was customary to give the number rather than the name of the month (e.g., Ez. iii. 1, 6, 8; Hag. i. 15), although sometimes both are given (Zech. i. 7; Esth. ii. 16).

III. THE CIVIL AND ECClesiastICAL YEARS.

— Besides the ecclesiastical, there was apparently, from the earliest times, a civil year, which began in the autumn.

The reasons for believing the existence and antiquity of this state of things are:

(1) In Exod. xxiii. 16 and xxxiv. 22 the Feast of Ingathering is said to have been "in the end of the year." (2) The sabbath- and jubilee-year insertion every ten days of the seventh month, according to Lev. xxxv. 4, 9 sq. This puts the Feast of Tabernacles in the actual beginning of the civil year. (3) The flood began in Bul, the second month, which was in autumn, according to tradition. (4) By the later Jews the year, reckoned from the creation of the world, began in autumn. (5) The day of the new moon in the seventh month was by the later Jews celebrated as New-Year's Day.

(6) The Talmud expressly recognizes two beginnings to the year (Rosh hash., i). (7) Josephus (Antiq., i. iii. 3) says, "Moses appointed Nisan (i.e., Xanthikos) as the first month of their religious festivals, because upon it he had led the Hebrews out of Egypt . . . but he preferred the original order of the months as to . . . ordinary affairs." (8) The Targum to 1 Kings viii. 2 says that the ancients called Tishri the first month.

IV. THE SEASONS. — Properly speaking, there are only two seasons in the Holy Land,—summer and winter. The former is characterized by cloudless heavens, heavy dews at night (Strach xviii. 16, xliii. 22), great heat by day, and cool evenings and nights (Gen. xxxi. 40; Jer. xxxvi. 30). The winter begins with the sowing-time, and lasts until the later rains of March. It is a period of rain and snow. Reference is made in the Bible to various seasons,—barley-harvest, wine-making, etc., —as was to be expected in the records of an agricultural people.

TABLE OF HEBREW MONTHS.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CIVIL</th>
<th>SACRED</th>
<th>BEGINNING WITH THE NEW MOON</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>VII.</td>
<td>I. Abib or Nisan</td>
<td>March or April</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>VIII.</td>
<td>II. Zif or Iyyar</td>
<td>April or May</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IX.</td>
<td>III. Sivan</td>
<td>May or June</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>X.</td>
<td>IV. Tammuz</td>
<td>June or July</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>XI.</td>
<td>V. Adar</td>
<td>July or August, September, October</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>XII.</td>
<td>VI. Ethanim or Tishri</td>
<td>September or October</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I.</td>
<td>VII. Elul</td>
<td>October or November</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>II.</td>
<td>VIII. Shebat (Hebrew)</td>
<td>November or December</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>III.</td>
<td>IX. Kislev</td>
<td>December or January</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IV.</td>
<td>X. Tebeth</td>
<td>January or February</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>V.</td>
<td>XI. Shebat</td>
<td>February or March</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

YEOMANS, Edward Dorr, D.D., Presbyterian divine; b. at North Adams, Mass., Sept. 27, 1829; d. at Orange, N.J., Aug. 26, 1868. He entered Lafayette College, Pennsylvania, under the presidency of his father, and passed through the junior year, then continued academic and theological studies under his father's direction until his licensure by the presbytery of Northumberland, Penn., April 21, 1847. He was stationed at New Columbia, Penn., from 1848 to 1854; pastor at Warrior Run, Penn., Nov. 29, 1854 (the date of his ordination), until November, 1858; at Trenton, N.J., until May, 1858; at Rochester, N.Y., until July 7, 1856; and then installed over the Central Church, Orange, N.J., and was pastor there at his death. In 1864 he received the degree of D.D. from the College of New Jersey. Dr. Yeomans received high praise for his thoroughly idiomatic and elegant translation of Dr. Schaff's History of the Christian Church (New York, 1853) and the first two volumes of his History of the Christian Church, 1858 and 1857. He prepared a book of worship, and collection of hymns, and began the translation of Lange's YORK. 2564 YOUNG MEN'S ASSOCIATIONS.

Commentary on John, but was obliged by failing health to desist in the summer of 1868. See Lange on John, p. xii.

YORK (Eboracum), the capital of Yorkshire, Eng., the seat of an archbishopric, situated on both sides of the River Ouse, a hundred and seventy-two miles north-west of London. It was the capital of the old kingdom of Northumbria, and the seat of its bishops. 625. Its first min-ister was built of wood by Edwin of Northumbria, 627, who also began one in stone before 633.

The building was completed in 642, repaired in 699, burnt April 23, 741, and rebuilt 757-780. Since then, it has been burnt several times,—wholly in 1069, partly in Feb. 2, 1829, and May 30, 1840. The present building dates its beginning from the twelfth century, but was not con-secrated until July 3, 1472.

"It is in the form of a cross, with a central square tower two hundred and thirteen feet high, and two other towers, each a hundred and ninety-six feet high, flanking the west front, which is highly orna-tmented. The extreme length is five hundred and twenty-four feet; and the extreme breadth across the transcepts, two hundred and forty-nine feet. The east window is seventy-eight feet high, and thirty-two feet wide, and filled with stained glass representing about two hundred historical events. An elaborate screen contains statues of all the kings of England from William I. to Henry VI.; and upon this screen is the organ, one of the finest in the kingdom. The cathedral has a peal of twelve bells, one of which weighs eleven tons and a half, and is the largest in Great Britain."

The archbishop's palace, now the library of the dean and chapter, dates from the twelfth century, and is on the north side of the cathedral. The archbishop now lives at Bishopthorpe, near York. See The Diocesan History of York by Canon George Ormsby, London, [1883].

YOUNG, Brigham. See Mormons, p. 1577.

YOUNG, Edward, b. at Upham, Hampshire, 1603; d. at Bromfield, Essex, Eng., Sept. 7, 1652. He was educated at the university of St. An-

YOUNG MEN'S CHRI\SIAN ASSOCIATIONS.

These are undenominational societies of young men, organized upon an evangelical basis, for the promotion of the mental, moral, social, and physical welfare of young men. Their actire, voting membership is confined to Christian young men; but large numbers of unconverted young men, without regard to denominational affiliations, become associate members for the sake of social and educational privileges. The work of the associations is carried on through the personal efforts of Christian young men themselves, laboring individually in the sphere of their daily calling, and collectively in connection with committees having charge of the reading-rooms, libraries, gymnasia, evening educational classes, lecture-courses, prayer-meetings, and Bible-classes for young men exclusively, boarding-house and employment bureaus, visitation of sick young men, etc. The associations also, as opportunity offers, hold undenominational religious services in neglected neighborhoods, in public institutions, and in the open air.

The parent English-speaking association was organized at London, by George Williams, June 6, 1844. Societies formed in Germany earlier than this date have since come into affiliation with the English-speaking associations and those of other lands. The society now bearing the name of the Young Men's Christian Association in Glasgow, Scotland, claims an origin, under a different name, prior to that of London. But the brotherhood bearing the distinctive title of the Young Men's Christian Association, which has developed into provincial, state, national, and international organization, can be traced in its origin and name distinctly to the London association, and cannot be traced behind it. And the societies claiming priority under different names belonged, rather, to the multitude of societies of Christian young men which have been formed in every period of the Christian Church, but which have not developed into the permanent and varied organization just referred to. The Montreal Association was organized Dec. 9, 1851; and that of Boston, Dec. 29, 1851. The first International Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association, which met in Buffalo, June 7, 1854. The first World's Conference convened in Paris, Aug. 19, 1855. Here the following test of membership, since known as the "Paris Basis," was adopted:—

"The Young Men's Christian Associations seek to unite those young men, who, regarding Jesus Christ as their God and Saviour, according to the Holy Scriptures, desire to be his disciples in their doctrine and in their life, and to associate their efforts for the extension of his kingdom among young men."

In April, 1860, the associations of North America had about twenty-five thousand members. At the breaking-out of the civil war, many members of the associations entered the armies on both sides, and the associations naturally followed them with efforts for their welfare and that of their comrades. At the instance of the New-York Association, a special convention was called, Nov. 14, 1861, to consider the relations of the associations to the army. This resulted in the organization of the United-States Christian Commission (q.v.); and during the civil war the energies of the associations were largely absorbed in army-work. With the close of the war, a new season of growth and activity began. In 1868 the executive committee of the convention, which had been located from year to year in different cities, was located for a term of years at New-York City (where the working quorum has been continued ever since), and has become known and incorporated as the "International Committee." The convention which met in Detroit, June 24, 1868, adopted the following test of active membership, since known as the "Evangelical Test":

"Resolved, That as these organizations bear the name of Christian, and profess to be engaged directly in the Saviour's service, so it is clearly their duty to maintain in the control and management of all their affairs in the hands of those who profess to love, and publicly avow their faith in Jesus, the Redeemer, as divine, and who testify their faith by becoming and remaining members of churches held to be evangelical; and that such persons, and none others, should be allowed to vote, or hold office."

At the Portland convention, July 14, 1869, the word "evangelical" was thus defined:

We hold those churches to be evangelical, which, maintaining the inerrancy of the Scriptures to be the only infallible rule of faith and practice, do believe in the Lord Jesus Christ (the only-begotten of the Father, King of Kings, and Lord of lords, in whom dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily, and who was made sin for us, though knowing no sin, bearing our sins in his own body on the tree), as the only name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved.

All associations organized since the passage of the above resolution, in order to be entitled to representation in the International Convention, must limit their active, voting membership to members of evangelical churches. The formal adoption of this test by the American associations has secured for them the active sympathy of brotherhood of States. The expenditure of the international and State committees in 1882 was over $45,000; and 350 associations reported their annual current expenses as $400,370; 650 associations reported an aggregate membership of 82,375; 69 reported the ownership of buildings valued at $2,700,473; and 255 persons were employed as general secretaries or agents of the local associations and of the international and State committees. The number of these officers is increasing rapidly, having, in March, 1883, grown to over 300. The chief aim of the general secretaries is to enlist and train volunteer workers, using his tact to discover the post of duty for which each member is specially fitted, and his personal influence to induce him to enter upon it. A gratifying result of this is that in the number of these officers is seen in the development of a larger and more efficient force of helpers on the various committees of the associations. Appropriate methods have been wrought out to meet with timely aid the stranger, the unemployed, the destitute, the sick, and the intemperate. The social and literary appliances have been made more effective for good, and the various religious meetings have been largely increased in number and usefulness.

The International Committee has nine secretaries. Some of these are occupied with the work of correspondence and supervision at the office of the committee, which is also a central bureau for securing and testing young men for the office of secretary in the local associations. Others are engaged in the extension and care of the work in the sections of the continent destitute of associations, or where they are yet feeble. One secretary of the committee is engaged in the work of organizing railroad branches of the associations, and enlisting the railroad companies in their support. The contributions of the companies for this purpose now amount to $65,000 annually. Sixty railroad branches are in operation, and preliminary work is done at over twenty other points. Another secretary labors among college students. One hundred and eighty college institutions have been organized. Other secretaries are busy among German-speaking young men, commercial travellers, and colored young men in the Southern States. The magnitude of this several fields is shown by the fact, that there are, in the United States and Domion of Canada, 1,900,000 railroad-men, 60,000 college students, 700,000 German-speaking young men, 100,000 commercial travellers, and 500,000 colored young men.

The association cause abroad is strongest in Great Britain, where a national organization has recently been effected. The associations of Germany are grouped together in several Bands. Like organizations exist in Holland and Sweden. The associations are few and feeble in Belgium, France, Russia, Spain, and Italy. Several vigorous organizations have been formed in the cities of Australasia.

The principal publications of the American associations are The Watchman, published in...
Chicago; the Year-Book and other publications, about fifty in number, of the International Committee, whose office is at 23d Street and Fourth Avenue, New York; and the annual reports of the State and Provincial conventions, and of the local associations.

RICHARD C. MORSE.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS. Upon the general plan of the Young Men's Christian Associations, Women's Christian Associations have been organized in various European and American cities. In America this movement dates from the year 1857, when the first association for distinctive work among young women was organized in New-York City. Ten years later a general interest in this subject resulted in the formation of associations in many of the large cities of the United States. There are now fifty-six associations in the United States and British Provinces, with an aggregate membership of about fifteen thousand. A great variety of work in behalf of young women has been undertaken. Many of the associations use their buildings as lodging or boarding houses for women, and a few have restaurants; but there is a growing tendency to emphasize such methods of educational, social, and religious work for women, as the reading-room, library, educational classes, social receptions, Bible-classes, and prayer-meetings. Employment offices are also a very general feature in this work. An effort to organize associations among young women in schools and colleges is meeting with considerable success.

The American associations hold a Biennial International Conference, which has convened six times. The last conference met in St. Louis, Mo., in October, 1881. Eighteen associations were represented by thirty-four delegates: written reports were received from many others. In twenty-two cities buildings have been secured for the purposes of the associations, amounting in value to $849,000. Monthly newspapers devoted to the interests of this specific work are issued by the associations of Cleveland, O., Philadelphia, Penn., Utica, N.Y., and Memphis, Tenn. Other publications of the society are the Conference Journal and reports of the associations.

J. P. CATTELL.

YULE, the old name for Christmas. Skeat connects the word with the Middle English youlen, yollen ("to cry out"), because it was a time of revelry. December was called the "former yule," and January the "latter yule."

YVONETUS, the supposed Dominican author of Tractatus de haeresi pauperum de Lugduno (printed in Thesaurus novus anecdotorum, edited by Martene and Durand, vol. v. pp. 1777 sqq.). Franz Pfeiffer has, however, conclusively demonstrated, that the author was the Franciscan David of Augsburg, who lived in the beginning of the thirteenth century. Manuscripts of this work are found in Stuttgart and Strassburg. It is one of the authorities in Waldesian history.

C. SCHMIDT
ZABARELLA, or DE ZABARELLIS, b. at Padua, 1539; d. at Constance, Sept. 26, 1417. He studied canon law at Bologna; lectured in his native city; was employed in various diplomatic missions; and was by Boniface IX. called to Rome to take part in the negotiations concerning the schism; but when his De schismatibus was printed at Basle, in 1565, it was put on the Index. Having returned to Padua as arch-priest-bater at the cathedral, he was again summoned to Rome by John XXIII.; made a cardinal, and archbishop of Florence, and sent as a legate to the Council of Constance, on whose transactions he exercised considerable influence. He was a prolific writer, but many of his works have never been printed. It is doubtful whether he is the author of Capitula agendorum in concilio generali Constantiensi de reformatione ecclesiae.

ZACCHEUS, Roman chief tax-gatherer in Jericho, and a convert of Christ (Luke xix. 2). He was a Jew, and his name is Hebrew 'm, "righteous" (Ez. ii. 9; Neh. vii. 14). In the Talmud he is mentioned as the son of Zacheus of Jericho, whose son was the celebrated rabbi Yochanan ben Zachai. According to tradition, Zaccæus of the Gospel became bishop of Cassarea in Palestine by the ordination of Peter (Apost. Const., vii. 46; cf. Clement: Homilies, iii. 63, 71, 72; Recognitions, iii. 65 sqq.). A half-ruined tower in Jericho, now used by a Turkish garrison, is pointed out as the house of Zaccheus. See the Bible dictionaries, s.v., and the commentaries upon Luke xix. 2-10.

ZACHARIA, Gotthilf Traugott, b. at Tauchardt, Thurinßia, Nov. 17, 1729; d. at Kiel, Feb. 8, 1777. He studied theology at Kiel, Göttingen, and Halle; and was appointed professor in 1760 at Bützow in Mecklenburg, in 1765 at Göttingen, and in 1775 at Kiel. His Biblica Theologie (1771-75, 4 vols.) opened a new line of research. His paraphrases of the Epistles to the Romans, Corinthians, etc., were a great success. His stand-point was the supernaturalism of S. J. Baumgarten, though singularly modified by the rising rationalism.

ZACHARIAS, Pope 741-752; carried forward the aspirations of the Roman see with great adroitness and dignity in his relations with the Lombards, the Greeks, Boniface, and Pepin, whom he raised to the throne of the Merovingians. He translated the Dialogues of Gregory the Great into Greek. His lettersto Boniface are found in Migne (Patroloqia Latina, vol. 89) and in Giles's edition of Bonifacii Opera, London, 1845, vol. i. See D. Bartolini: Di S. Zaccaria papa e degli anni del suo pontificato, Regensburg, 1879; H. Crampin: Le pape Zacharie et la consultation de Pepin le Bref, Amiens, 1879; J. Cozza-Luizi: Historia S. P. Z. Benedicti a SS. pontificibus Romanis: Gregorio I. descripta et Zachariae grace rededita, Rome, 1880.

ZACHARIUS SCHOLASTICUS, Bishop of Mytilene in the Island of Lesbos; was present at the synod of Constantiopolis (536) which deposed Antonius, the patriarch of Constantinople, as Eutychian. He had studied philosophy and rhetoric in Alexandria, and for some time practised as an advocate at Berytus. His dialogue, Ammonius sive de mundi opificio, is a defence of the Christian view of the creation and government of the world against objections to it raised from the point of view of the Greek philosophy. It was first published in Paris, 1619. The best edition is that by Boissonade, Paris, 1836, where it stands, together with Æneas' De immortalitate animae, a work of similar kind. He also wrote a Disputatio against the Manicheans; but it exists only in a Latin translation, in Bib. Pat. Max., IX. Gass.

ZAMZUM'MIM (Deut. ii. 20), or ZU'ZIM (Gen. xiv. 5), a tribe of giants in the East Jordan country, who were part of the original settlers of Palestine. They were attacked and routed by Chedorlaomer, and finally expelled by the Amorites.

ZANCHI, Hieronymus, b. at Alzano, near Bergamo, 1516; d. at Heidelberg, Nov. 19, 1590. He entered the Carthusian Order at Milan in 1539, became abbot of St. Augustine in 1581, but studied the writings of Luther, Melanchthon, Calvin, etc., under the guidance of Vermigli, and began to preach the Reformation in Lucca. Compelled to flee, he visited Geneva, Engand, and Strasbourg, and was in 1553 appointed professor of the Old Testament in the last-mentioned place. His relations with the Lutheran theologians of Marbach were, in the beginning, very peaceful; but his open advocacy of the Calvinistic doctrine of predestination, and his attack on the Lutheran doctrine of ubiquity, finally caused a breach; and in 1563 he removed to Switzerland as pastor of the Reformed Church, where in 1568 he published an account of his controversies with the Marbach theologians,—Miscelanea. In 1568 he was appointed professor at Heidelberg, where he lectured on the Summa, and gradually acquired a great reputation as one of the most learned theologians of his time. He took part with great energy in the controversy with the Antitrinitarians, and wrote De tribus Elokim (1572), De natura Dei, De operibus Dei, etc. When the Palatinate became Lutheran, he retired to Neustadt-an-der-Hardt, where he spent the rest of his life. A collected edition of his works appeared at Geneva, 1619, 3 vols. (Eng. trans. of his Spiritual marriage between Christ and the Church (Cambridge, 1592), and of his Confession of the Christian Religion, 1599).

C. Schmidt.

ZEALOT. the epithet given in Luke vi. 15 and Acts i. 13 to Simon called the Cananean (not Canaanite, as in Authorized Version, Matt. x. 4, Mark ii. 18), to distinguish him from Simon Peter. The Greek Κανανειος is a mere transliteration of the Aramæan traîZ ("zeal"). The Zealots were one of the parties or factions in Palestine noted for their advocacy of the Mosaic law. Their founder was Judas the Galilean, also called the "Gaulonite" (Acts v. 37); but they degenerated into the Sicarii (from the Latin sicar, "a dagger"), and were then guilty of many a dark deed. They were a prominent cause of the Jewish war, and increased its horrors (Joseph. iv. 3-7).

ZECHARI'AH. See Tribes of Israel.

ZECHARI'AH (Jehovah remembers), the eleventh of the Minor Prophets. He describes himself as son of Berechiah, and grandson of Iddo, whence it has been inferred that his father died young, and that he was brought up as Iddo’s son and successor (see Neh. xii. 1, 4, 10). In that case Zechariah, like Jeremiah and Ezekiel, was a priest as well as a prophet. He appears to have been born in Babylon, and to have come up, while yet young, with the first company of exiles who returned to Palestine.

I. DATE. — In 536 B.C. Cyrus issued a decree permitting the captive Jews to return to their own country. More than forty thousand men with their families and slaves availed themselves of this permission, and re-occupied the land of their forefathers. Barely seven years elapsed before preparations were made for rebuilding the temple; and in the second month of the second year of the return, the foundation was laid with mingled joy and grief (Ez. iii. 11-13). Speedily, however, the work was interrupted by the jealousy of the Samaritans, who continued during the reigns of Cyrus and Cambyses to misrepresent the Jews at the court of Persia. In the reign of Gomates, the pseudo-Smerdis, they obtained a decree absolutely prohibiting the further prosecution of the work. The tide turned, however, when Darius Hystaspes came to the throne. In the second year of his reign he renewed and confirmed the original decree of Cyrus, and thenceforth there was no longer any outward difficulty in the way. But by this time (520 B.C.) a great change had occurred in the views and feelings of the people. Their zeal in divine things declined; they were engrossed in the care of their private affairs; and it needed very energetic appeals to rouse them to the toils and sacrifices required for the completion of the temple. These were furnished by the prophets Haggai and Zechariah (Ez. vi. 14), and were successful; so that the building was finished in the sixth year of Darius, B.C. 515. But it is not necessary to suppose that all Zechariah’s earlier prophecies were mainly directed to this end. Undoubtedly they had more or less reference to it; but they also looked farther, even to the whole character and condition of the covenant people, their dangers and discouragements, and their influence upon the future prospects of the world. So that the prophet’s historical position was simply a background for his delineation of the present and coming fortunes of the kingdom of God.

II. FORM AND STYLE. — From the earliest ages, interpreters have complained of the book as obscure and difficult, — a feature which results from the predominance of symbolical and figurative language, and occasionally from the brevity and conciseness of the expressions. But in general the style is easy and flowing. Zechariah leans much upon his predecessors prior to the captivity, and yet not unfrequently shows a marked individuality in thought and utterance. Sometimes his oracles are given in direct speech, at others in the relation of visions, and again in the descriptions of symbolical acts. The two latter forms are not to be ascribed to his Chaldaic education, for both are found in the older prophets; e.g., Isa. vi.; Amos vii.-ix.; Hab. iii. There are some orthographic peculiarities; but in the main the Hebrew is pure, and remarkably free from Chaldaisms.

III. CONTENTS. — The first part (chaps. i. — viii.) consists of three portions, the dates of which are distinctly given. 1. (i. 1–6) A general introduction in the shape of a warning not to imitate the sins of their fathers. 2. (i. 7—vi. 15) Three months afterward, a series of visions, all given in one night, closely connected together, and exhibiting an orderly progress of thought in respect to God’s dealings with his people. These are appropriately closed by the recital of a symbolical action, — the crowning of the high priest, that is, the glory of the man whose name is Branch. 3. (vii., viii.) Two years later, a long answer to inquiries about the need of continuing to observe fasts commemorative of former disasters. The prophet rebukes the formalism of the people, and then promises such blessings as will change fasts into festivals, and even attract the heathen to their fellowship. The second part of the book, which bears no dates, is divided into two oracles by the title prefixed to chapters nine and twelve. The general theme is the future destiny of the covenant people. (a) The First Burden (ix.—xi.) outlines God’s providence toward Israel up to the appearance of the Saviour. The ninth chapter begins by recounting Alexander’s conquests, and ends with the triumph of the Maccabees, interposing in the middle a dramatic sketch of Zion’s King of peace (9, 10). The tenth chapter describes the increase of the people in means and numbers under native rulers. The eleventh, under the figure of the rejection of a good shepherd by his flock, offers a striking delineation of the case of Christ’s death to awaken and renew. (b) The Second Burden (xii.—xiv.) carries forward the outlook upon the future, even to the time of the end. (1) The twelfth chapter, in the first nine verses, tells of Israel’s victory over trials, meaning, doubtless, the triumph of the early church over persecuting foes. (2) The remaining verses, with the first one of the following chapter, show the power of Christ’s death to awaken and renew. (3) Chapter xiii. 2—6 illustrates the fruits of penitence in the abolition of false worship and false prophecy, which stand for all forms of sin. (4) Verses 7–9 show the sword drawn against the Shepherd and his flock, or Christ smitten by his Father, and his people suffering also. (5) The last chapter seems to be a general survey of the checkered course of God’s kingdom in this world from beginning to end, concluding with a vivid picture of the universal reign of holiness.

IV. Messianic Predictions. — These are six in number, and represent a gradual development. (1) In iii. 8 the lowly servant, as in Isaiah and Jeremiah, is called "Branch." (2) In vi. 12, 13, as priest and king he builds the Lord’s spiritual temple. (3) In ix. 9, 10, he reigns as a meek and peaceful but universal monarch. (4) In xi. he appears as a shepherd, scorned, rejected, betrayed, and (by implication) slain. The expressions are obscure, but the New Testament leaves no doubt of the application. (5) In xii. 10 his pierced form, seen by the eye of faith, becomes a means of deep and general repentance, attended by pardon and conversion. (9) Finally (xiii. 7) the follow of all this, the prophet, Zechariah himself, becomes the redeemer and the pattern of the flock. These predictions are more numerous and emphatic than in any of Zechariah's predecessors, save Isaiah. Their Messianic character is established both by the intrinsic evidence of the utterances themselves, and by reference in the words of our Lord or his apostles.

V. THE GENUINENESS OF THE SECOND PART.

— The question on this point was first raised by the learned Joseph Mede, 1653, who was followed by Hammond, Kidder, Whitson, and Newcombe, but opposed by Blayney. Mede's objection was based upon Matthew's quotation (xxvii. 9, 10) of a passage in Zechariah, which he attributes to Jeremiah, and upon the internal evidence of the chapters (ix.-xiv.) themselves. The former of these is now not much pressed; but the latter has been adopted and enforced by Gesenius, Ewald, Bleek, and many other eminent scholars. There is no evidence that the formers of these statements had greatly or entirely changed, he added the subsequent portion of the book. One has continual references to the author's own time, the half-built temple, the growing city, the struggling population: the other has scarcely a single direct allusion to contemporary circumstances, but points to a distant future. One is full of visions, and speaks much of angels, and also of Satan, of all of which there is scarcely a trace in the other. But these differences are not enough to require us to assume that the last chapters were an anonymous production of older date, accidentally, or for some unknown reason, attached by the compilers of the canon to the Book of Zechariah. The prophet, it is agreed, was a young man when he entered upon his office, and uttered his first prophecies; and it is not at all unlikely that many years afterward, when circumstances had greatly or entirely changed, he added the subsequent portion of the book. On the other hand, it is very unlikely that the formers of the Old-Testament canon should have committed the gross error attributed to them.

The objections to the genuineness seem plausible at first sight, but disappear when carefully weighed; for example, Ephraim and Judah are spoken of together, as if they still existed as distinct kingdoms, which they never did after the exile. True, they are so mentioned, but only in the same way as Malachi (ii. 11) uses the name Israel, i.e., merely as designating a part of the existing population. Again: Assyria and Egypt are mentioned as formidable powers, which they were not; Persia having absorbed one, and subdued the other. The answer is, that the prophet uses these names as natural and convenient representatives of the foes existing in his day. Similar is the reply to the objection that false prophecy and idolatry did not exist in the restoration, and therefore could not be rebuked by Zechariah; viz., that in accordance with the generic character of this prophecy it represents the present under the forms of the past. It is also urged that Phoenicia, Damascus, and Phœlisia are set forth as foes of importance, when their power had long been broken. Here the reference is to the ninth chapter and the tenth. But in view of the liberal spirit which has expressed the opinion that this whole section does not admit of any explanation but that which is gained from the history of Alexander the Great. It describes his victorious march, the subjugation of the whole of Syria, and the manner in which the contumacious people from harm; all of which was actually accomplished. True, it was two hundred years after Zechariah's time, which is an insuperable difficulty to those who hold that prophecy confines itself to what immediately concerns the existing generation. But a critic of the liberal school has expressly postulated, what was to hinder Zechariah, or the Spirit which guided him, from upholding the small and weak restored people amid their fears of the rapacity of their neighbors, by the assurance of a very marked and specific deliverance in the distant future. Jehovah says the heavy stroke shall fall upon Damascus and all along the seacoast; but "I will encamp about mine house." The safety of the temple amid a wide-spread overthrow in every other direction was well suited to the post-exilian period, but in no sense, and in no degree, to the earlier history. And, if any earthly event merited a place on the prophetic page, it was that rapid conquest by which Alexander changed the face of the world, and paved the way for the triumph of the gospel.

Another objection cites the threatened disruption of the nation (xi. 14), "I cut asunder the staff . . . that I might break the brotherhood between Judah and Israel," as a gross anachronism. But, if this is to be taken literally, it will put the composition of the book back to a period prior to the secession of Jeroboam; which is simply absurd. The obvious sense of the passage is the disintegration of the nation, which could not be better expressed than by the use of the old, well-understood rupture in the days of Solomon's successor, which was the first and most serious step in the decline of the monarchy. That calamitous event was a natural figure of the bursting of the bond which united the Jews as a nation.

It is certain that there are numerous references in both parts of the book to the earlier prophets, and several distinct references to the later prophets in the second part. A full and minute consecution of these may be seen in Wright (Zechariah and his Prophecies, p. xxxv.), an examination of which will confirm the opinion of Stähelin, that it is far more likely that one prophet quoted from many than that many quoted from one. This was so conclusive to such a critic as De Wette, that, after having declared for two authors of Zechariah in three editions of his Einleitung, he returned to the traditional view in the fourth. Upon the whole, then, there seems to be no good reason for departing from the old view, that the entire book came from the same hand. The contrary view yields no aid toward an orderly and reasonable explanation of the successive prophetic utterances, but rather embarrasses the interpretation.

Lit.—The principal writers are VITRINGA (Leeuwarden, 1734), BLAYNEY (Oxford, 1787), BAUMGARTEN (Brussels, 1854), T. V. MOORE (New York, 1856), A. KöHLER (Erlangen, 1860-65), W. PRESSEL (Gotha, 1872), CHAMBERS (in Lange's Commentary, New York, 1874), C. H. H. WRIGHT (Bampton Lecture, London, 1879). See also the Commentaries of BLEEK, HARTNAGEL (1854) and W. H. LOWE (Lond., 1882); and E. G. KING:...
ZEDEKIAH.

The Yalkut on Zechariah, trans. with notes and appendices, Lond., 1882. T. W. CHAMBERS

ZEDEKIAH (to whom Jehovah will be just), the last king of Judah, third son of Josiah, and uncle of Jehoiachin. His proper name was Mattaniah (gift of Jehovah). Nebuchadnezzar raised him to the throne (597 B.C.) in the room of Jehoiachin, and altered his name. The new name may have been Zedekiah's own choice, and intended to express his hope of release from the Babylonish yoke. He was twenty-one at this time, and reigned eleven years; but he did not govern, for anarchy prevailed. Instances of his weakness are his bearing towards his princes, and failure to protect Jeremiah (Jer. xxxviii. 5, 24 sq.); his belief in false prophets (Jer. xxviii., xxxvii. 19); and the very striking incident, which sets the king in a very bad light,—that the princes and the people, after obeying the command of Jehovah to free their fellow country men and women from bondage, compelled these persons to return to slavery. Jeremiah announced the speedy downfall of the nation as punishment of this disobedience (Jer. xxxiv. 8-22). In the fourth year of his reign, Zedekiah made a journey to Babylon to pay his respects to his lord, to procure the release of the captives, a loosening of the vassal yoke, and very probably to clear himself of suspected infidelity toward the Babylonian king. By his own conduct in his ninth year, he proved how faithless he was. He rebelled, on the strength of promises from Egypt (Jer. xxxvii. 5 sq.; Ezek. xvii. 15 sqq.). His punishment came on apace. Nebuchadnezzar fell upon the land, took one walled city after another, and at last besieged Jerusalem from the tenth month of Zedekiah's ninth year to the fourth month of his eleventh. Zedekiah attempted flight, was easily overtaken at Jericho. His sons were killed before his eyes at Riblah, and his eyes were put out, and, heavily chainèd, he was carried to Babylon, where, according to tradition, he ground in a mill until he died (Jer. xxxix.). His fate was a literal fulfilment of Ezekiel's prophecy (xii. 13, xvii. 19).

LEYRER.

ZEISBERGER, David, a missionary, who deserves to be called the apostle of the Western Indians of North America; b. at Zanchenthal in Moravia, April 11, 1721; d. at Goshen, O., Nov. 17, 1808. His parents, David and Rosina Zeisberger, were descended from the Bohemian Brethren, and in 1726 fled to Herrnhut in Saxony, leaving all for the gospel's sake. Nine years later they joined a body of Moravians that emigrated to Georgia. Meanwhile young David remained at school at Herrnhut, and when he had finished his studies was sent to Herrndyk, a settlement of the Brethren, in Holland. There he was subjected to so harsh a discipline that he ran away. He reached England in safety, and through the kind offices of Gen. Oglethorpe succeeded in joining his parents in Georgia. In 1740 the Moravians left this colony, and settled in Pennsylvania, where young Zeisberger helped to build their towns of Nazareth and Bethlehem. He took great delight in the hardy life which he was leading, and rejoiced at the thought that Amsden, who had been the patron of his parents, was his disappointment, when, in the beginning of 1743, he was designated as one of the escort that was to accompany Count Zinzendorf on his return to Europe. But he did not venture to protest against this decision. It was not until he was aboard the ship, which was on the point of sailing, that his real sentiments became known, and that he received permission to remain in the country which he loved. He hastened back to Bethlehem, and soon after was deeply convicted of sin by a hymn which treated of the love of Christ. In answer to his fervent prayers, he found peace in believing. No sooner had this change taken place than he determined to devote his life to the evangelization of the Indians. His work among them began in 1746, and was continued for sixty-two years with unfailing courage and apostolic zeal. He labored in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, and Canada, among the Iroquois, or the Six Nations, the Delawares, the Mohicans and Wyandots, the Nanticokes, Shawnees, Chippewas, Ottawas, and Ottowas. He established in different parts of the country thirteen Christian Indian towns, which filled both the savages and the settlers with the utmost wonder. He brought many aborigines into the church of Christ and to a consistent practice of Christianity, and was instrumental in the conversion of characters most notorious, fierce, and bloodthirsty. No other Protestant missionary exercised more real influence, and was more sincerely honored among the Indians; and no one, except the Jesuit fathers, excelled him in the frequency and hardships of his journeys through the wilderness. He spoke with great fluency the Delaware, Mohawk, and Onondaga languages, and was familiar with other native tongues. The Six Nations adopted him as a sancham of their confederacy, gave him the name of Ganoesseracheri, and, during his stay at Onandaga, made him the keeper of their archives. He was naturalized among the Monsees by a formal act of the State, and there stayed for a number of years he saveled the Grand Council of the Delawares in Ohio, and prevented them from joining the British Indians in the Revolutionary War. In 1781 these Indians broke up the mission in Ohio. Zeisberger and his fellow-missionaries were captured, tried at Detroit as American spies, but acquitted. The massacre of the Christian Indians at Gnadenhütten in the following year nearly broke his heart. He led the survivors from place to place, until they found a refuge in Canada. In 1798 he brought a part of them back to the Tuscarawas Valley of Ohio, where Congress had granted the Moravian Indians a large tract of land, and established a station, which he called Goshen. There he died, a patriarch of eighty-seven years. Zeisberger wrote numerous works. The following were published: A Delaware Indian and English Spelling-Book, Philadelphia, 1776, reprinted 1816; A Delaware Indian Hymn-Book, Philadelphia, 1803; Lieberkühn's Harmony of the Four Gospels translated into Delaware Indian, Philadelphia, 1821; and a Collection of Delaware Indian Conjugations, published in Vater's Analecten der Sprachkunde, Leipzig, 1821. Some of his most important works remain unpublished, the manuscript of the first, therefore, was his disappointment, when, in the beginning of 1743, he was designated as one of the escort
LEXICON, ETC. These manuscripts are preserved, partly in the library of the American Philosophical Society at Philadelphia, and partly in the library of Harvard University at Cambridge. Biographies: HEIM: D. Zeisberger, Bielefeld, 1849 (inaccurate); FROMMANN: Zeisberger, in MacCracken's Leaders of Our Church Universal. DE SCHWENTZ: Life and Times of D. Zeisberger, Philadelphia, 1877; TROCH: D. Zeisberger, ein Prediger der heiligen, 1878.

ZELL, Mattheus, the first Protestant pastor in Strassburg; b. at Kaysersberg, Upper Elsass, Sept. 21, 1477; d. at Strassburg, Jan. 10, 1548. He studied successively at Mainz and Erfurt; made a journey into Italy, and served a while as a soldier in the imperial army; took the degree of M.A. at Freiburg in Breisgau, 1505; taught theology in that university; was chosen rector, Oct. 31, 1517; and finally was nominated, in 1518, preacher in the Cathedral of Strassburg, and pastor of the parish of St. Lawrence. Under the influence of his own study of the Bible, and the writings of Geiler and Luther, he embraced the Reformation, and commenced in 1521 his evangelistic labors by the exposition of the Epistle to the Romans. He was the first in the city to celebrate mass in the vulgar tongue, and to dispense the Eucharist under both forms. He broke with the ecclesiastical authorities in 1523, and replied to the charge of heresy by his Christiane Veranwortung, in which he eloquently pleaded for the religious renovation of Strassburg. In the same year he married Katharina Schütz (b. 1497; d. Sept. 5, 1502), a carpenter's daughter, who made him a faithful and intelligent companion and fellow-laborer. Along with six other married priests, he was summoned by the bishop before the synod at Saverne, and was excommunicated. Zell then issued Appellatio sacerdotum maritorum, April, 1524. The magistrates continued him in his functions, and he actively engaged in the work of reconstructing the church. His house was a refuge for his persecuted brethren. With singular largeness of heart and Christian love he extended his friendship to men from other cities. With singular largeness of heart and Christian love he extended his friendship to men from other cities. With singular largeness of heart and Christian love he extended his friendship to men from other cities. With singular largeness of heart and Christian love he extended his friendship to men from other cities.

ZEPHANIAH, one of the so-called Minor Prophets. He was a descendant of a certain "Hezekiah" (Is. 1), who may have been, but probably was not, the king of that name, since Zephaniah would in all likelihood have indicated "Hezekiah's" rank, had it been royal.

I. OUTLINE OF THE BOOK. — 1. The announcement of the near approach of judgment upon Judah (i. 2–13), with a description of the terrors of that day (i. 14–18). In this section is the suggestion of the famous hymn, Dies irae. 2. The call of the people to repentance, and the plagues to constancy (ii. 1–3); for the Philistines and other nations are to be destroyed, while the remnant of Judah will return, and spoil their foes (ii. 4–15). 3. Woe over Jerusalem for its obstinacy (iii. 1–7); upon it comes judgment; then follows the conversion of the heathen, and the restoration of Israel (iii. 8–14). After the removal of the remnant of Judah, the believing remnant will rejoice in the presence of Jehovah, and the day of suffering will be over (iii. 11–20).

II. DATE. — Zephaniah himself tells us he wrote in the days of Josiah, king of Judah. Confirmation of this fact is afforded (a) by a comparison of this book with Jeremiah's. It will be found that precisely the same state of things is described in both, and the expressions used are in many cases the same. Thus, both speak of idolatry alongside of Jehovah-worship (Zeph. i. 4, 5; cf. Jer. v. 2, 7, 9, 12, 16, vii. 17, 18), of wickedness permeating all classes (Zeph. i. 4, 8, 9; ii. 1, iii. 3–5; cf. Jer. ii. 8, 20, iii. 5, vi. 18, viii. 12).
Both announce the approach of punishment (Zeph. i. 2, 3, 18; cf. Jer. iv. 4, 25, vii. 7, ix. 9, xii. 4): both prophesy that the called executioners of this punishment will come from the north (Zeph. i. 10; cf. Jer. i. 15), and that Jerusalem, Judah, and the surrounding peoples, will fall under the avenging strokes of Jehovah (Zeph. i. 10, ii. 8; cf. Jer. v. 2, 7, 9, vi. 12, x. 10, 25). (b) By the position of Zephaniah in the arrangement of the Minor Prophets. This arrangement was chronological (Bara 14 b.), and, in the case of the pre-exilian Minor Prophets, also according to subject-matter. The fact that Zephaniah is put with other prophets of Josiah's time is therefore proof that he prophesied in that reign. But there remains the settlement of the question, In what portion of this long reign of thirty-one years did he prophesy? or, what is the same thing, When were the words, "I will cut off the remnant of Baal" (i. 4) spoken? Manifestly, when Josiah's reformation had been long enough in progress to uproot the Baal-worship, all but a "remnant," and that would not be until the closing period of his reign, when the Jehovah-worship was the only one tolerated in the kingdom, i.e., after his eighteenth year. Additional proof of this is the fact, that, according to 2 Kings xxiii. 26, 27, the prophetic voices announced the oncoming of the day of wrath in spite of the religious reforms. Zephaniah was probably one of those who foretold the dire event. Another expression of Zephaniah yields the same answer to the question concerning the date of his prophecy. Jehovah says through him, "I will punish the king's sons" (children) (i. 8). This prophecy was fulfilled in the subsequent history. Jehoahaz died a prisoner in Egypt (Jer. xxii. 11, 12); Jehoiakim was carried in chains to Babylon, and finally was murdered (Jer. xxxi. 19); and Zedekiah died in blindness at Babylon. But since Jehoiakim was born in the sixth year of Josiah's reign, Jehoahaz in the eighth, and Zedekiah in the twentieth, it will be seen that Zephaniah's prophecy more properly dates from the close of Josiah's reign than from any earlier period.

III. CHARACTERISTICS.—Dividing the prophets into three bands, and the Zophian kind, Zephaniah is the first of the latter. But his chief peculiarity is his employment of the words of other prophets in the expression of his own prophetic ideas. To quote a striking example (i. 7), "Hold thy peace at the presence of the Lord (Hab. ii. 20); for the day of the Lord is at hand (Joel i. 15); for the Lord hath prepared a sacrifice (Isa. xxxvii. 6), he hath bid his guests" (Isa. xiii. 3). This does not detract from his independence. It only shows, that, when the prophetic spirit impelled him, it brought to mind the former words; and this mingling of old phrases and new became the vehicle of new thoughts, a new body of living words. He was in a sense an epitomizer of his forerunners, even as Martin Butzer says, "If any one desires a compendium of the prophets, let him read through Zephaniah."

[LIT. — For commentaries upon the Minor Prophets in general, see that art. Special commentaries upon Zephaniah: MARTY BUTHZ, Com. in Zephaniah, Strassburg, 1528; LUTHER: Com. in Sophon.; J. A. NOLTEN: Diss. exeq. pratim. in prophetiam Zephania, Frankfurt, a.d.O. 1719; D. V. CÜLLN: Specilegium observat. exeg. crit. ad Zephaniah vaticinia, Breslau, 1818; F. A. STRAUß: Zephaniah vaticinia commentario illustravi, Berlin, 1843; KLEINEERT, in Lange, Bielefeld, 1865, English translation, New York, 1874.]
ZINGEBALG. 2573

ZINGEBALG, Bartholomew. See Missions.

ZILLERTHAL, a valley of Tyrol, stretching for about twenty miles along the Ziller, between Salzburg and Innsbruck, and inhabited by about fifteen thousand souls; has become memorable in church history on account of the infamous manner in which the Roman-Catholic clergy succeeded in overcoming an evangelical rising which took place there in the fourth decade of the present century. In the diocese of Salzburg it was suppressed by force in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, and its last oscillations were thought to have vanished completely before the cruel persecutions of Archbishop Firmian in 1730. Nevertheless, it reappeared in the Zillerthal, in the beginning of the present century. As soon as the Roman clergy became aware of the danger, the number of priests was doubled in the villages, and the strictest watch was kept. As admonitions and petty chicaneries proved ineffective to stop the movement, violent measures were resorted to. The Protestants were excluded from baptism, communion, marriage-consecration, burial in consecrated ground, etc. Their neighbors were warned against any kind of intercourse with them. Their servants were allured to desert them. Their children were forced to frequent the Roman-Catholic schools, where they were placed on separate seats as "children of the Devil," apart from the "Christian children," etc. The toleration edict of Joseph II, and the stipulations of the congress of Vienna, were thrown aside; and, in this emergency the Protestantsof Zillerthal addressed themselves to Friedrich Wilhelm III. of Prussia, in 1837; and by his humane intercession they were allowed to sell their estates, and remove to his dominions, where they were settled, four hundred and forty-eight souls, in Hohen-Mittel- and Nieder-Zillerthal in Silesia. See Rheinwald: Die Evangel. Staaten der Königl. Prov. Ross., 1838.

ZIM'RI [the fifth sovereign of the separate kingdom of Israel, of which he occupied the throne for the brief period of seven days in the year], 923 B.C. according to Winer, 931 according to Thenius and Bunsen, 935 according to Ewald, was originally in command of half the chariots in the royal army, and gained the crown by his murder of King Elah, who was indulging in a drunken revel in the house of his steward Arza, at Tirzah, then the capital. In the midst of the festivities, Zimri killed him, and immediately afterwards all the rest of Baasha's family. But the army, which at that time was besieging the Philistine town of Gibbethon, when they heard of Elah's murder, proclaimed their general Omri king. He immediately marched against Tirzah, and took the city. Zimri retreated into the innermost part of the late king's palace, set it on fire, and perished in the ruins (1 Kings xvi. 9-20). Ewald's inference from the speech to the Philistines (2 Kings ix. 31), that on Elah's death the queen-mother welcomed his murderer, is far fetched, and rather arbitrary (Gesch. des Volkes Israel, first edition, ii. pp. 166 sq.), and is connected with the erroneous interpretation of armon, which he translates with "harem." The same may be said of his assertion that Zimri was a voluptuous slave of women.

Zimri is also the name of that Simeonitish chief who was slain by Phinehas with the Midianitish prince of Cozbi (Num. xxv. 11). Phinehas was afterwards regarded as the canonical type of the zealots (Ps. cvi. 30; Ecclus. xxviii. 28 sq.; 1 Macc. ii. 26, 54). In 1 Chron. ii. 6 a certain Zimri is mentioned as grandson of Judah; but in Josh. viii. 1 it is written Zabdi; also a descendant of Jonathan is called Zimri (1 Chron. viii. 36, ix. 42).

"Kings of Zimri" are mentioned (Jer. xxvi. 25) between the kings of Arabia and those of Elam and Media. They are generally identified with Zimran, a son of Abraham by Returah (Gen. xxvii. 2), according to which an Arabic tribe is meant, which, according to Jer. xxvi., lived towards Persia. Grotius finds a trace in the Zamereni, a tribe of the interior of Arabia (Pliny, vi. 32). Hitzig and Lengerke propose to connect the name Zimran with Zimris in Ethiopia (Pliny, xxxvi. 15). Winer (Real-Wörterbuch, i. p. 465, 3d edition) suggests the Zimar of Asia Minor and Armenia.

ZINZENDORF, Nicholas Lewis, Count von, the resuscitator of the Moravian Church, and for many years its leader; b. at Dresden, May 26, 1700; d. at Herrnhut, May 9, 1773. Six weeks after his birth, his father, one of the ministers of the Saxon cabinet, died. His mother took him to her home at Gross Hennersdorf, in Upper Lusatia. When he was four years old, she married the Prussian field-marshal, Von Natzmer, and removed to Berlin. Young Zinzendorf remained with his grandfather, the Baroness von Geserfeld. She was a distinguished representative of Pietism, and a personal friend of Spener. Her unmarried daughter, the Baroness Henrietta, belonged to the same school of thought and practice. These two godly women, with the assistance of a private tutor, educated Zinzendorf until his tenth year, and shaped his religious character. He was an extraordinary child, and exhibited a precocious piety which has rarely been equalled. Christ was the end and aim of his daily life. He loved him with his whole heart, abode in a childlike fellowship with him, wrote letters to him in which he poured out his religious feelings, and threw these letters out of the window, confident that the Lord would receive and read them. What he said of himself in after-years holds good of his childhood also: "I have but one passion; and it is He, only He." Hence, throughout his whole career, his theology remained a theology of the heart, and he never allowed his understanding to interfere with his faith. When he was ten years old, he entered Francke's grammar-school at Halle. There he met with other pious lads, and took the lead in organizing among them the Order of the Grain of Mustard-Seed,—a juvenile association having in view personal godliness and the spread of the gospel. Baron Frederick de Watteville was his most intimate friend; and with him he made an additional compact, whose aim was the conversion of the heathen, and especially of those for whom no one else would care. In his sixteenth year he entered the university of Wittenberg. His inclina-ZINZENDORF.

2574 ZINZENDORF.

...tions prompted him to take up theology; but his guardian, Count Otto Christian Zinzendorf, and his other relatives, including even his pious grandmother, struck him with the thought that a citizen of young noblemen in that day. He first visited various parts of Germany. In the picture-gallery at Düsseldorf an Ecce Homo, with this inscription, "Hoc feci pro te; quid facis pro me?" made a deep impression upon him, and induced him to consecrate himself anew to Christ. Continuing his journey to Holland, he spent some time at the university of Utrecht, and then proceeded to Paris. In this city he became intimate with the devout Cardinal Noailles, and formed the acquaintance of other distinguished men. He was introduced at court, where he won the special regard of the regent's mother; but in all places he boldly confessed Christ, and kept himself unsullied from the world. Having returned to Saxony in 1721, he again yielded to the wishes of his family, declined with deep regret the position which Francke offered him at Halle, as the successor of Baron von Canstein in the Bible House, and accepted a judicial clemencyship under the Saxon Government at Dresden. In the following year he purchased of his grandmother the estate of Berthelsdorf, in Upper Lusatia, and married the Countess Erdmuth Dorothy Reuss, sister of Henry XXIX., the reigning count of Reuss-Ebersdorf. When bringing his bride to his newly acquired domain, he met for the first time with the refugees from Moravia to whom he had afforded an asylum. (Vide art. Moravian Church.) He gave them a cordial welcome, but otherwise took little notice of them. Of the ancient church which they represented, he knew nothing; that he was to God's instrument in bringing about his renewal was a thought that consequently could not enter his mind. His plans were of an entirely different character. In the course of the year 1723 he formed with Frederick de Watteville, Rothe the parish minister at Berthelsdorf, and Schaefer, the pastor of the Church of the Trinity at Gorlitz, the so-called "Covenant of the Four Brethren." Its object was the spread of the religion of the crucified Saviour (Die Universalreligion des Weltheitandes) in all the world. The means to be employed in accomplishing this work were the preaching of the Word, itinerant evangelists, schools, publications, and correspondence. But, the more Zinzendorf urged this enterprise, the more evident it became that it did not constitute the mission to which he had been called of God; whereas Herrnhut, that settlement of refugees from Moravia and Bohemia which had been established on his estate, gradually increased in population and importance, until it comprised a body of several hundred souls. By slow degrees Zinzendorf realized that his work lay among the Moravian Brethren. In 1727 he resigned his office at Dresden, and took up his abode at Berthelsdorf. Soon after, he met with a copy of the Ratio Disciplinae of the Bohemian Brethren, as published by Bishop Amos Comenius. This work made a very deep impression upon him, and he now resolved to do all in his power to bring about a resuscitation of the Brethren's church. By consecrating God himself set his seal. In August of the same year a wonderful outpouring of the Holy Spirit took place at Herrnhut. From this time until his death, the biography of Zinzendorf is identical with the history of the Moravians. He became their leader; shaped their development according to that funda mental idea, which he never relinquished, of constituting them "a little church within the [Established] Church;" introduced nearly all their peculiar usages; furthered in every possible way their foreign missionary work; secured for them the episcopal succession of the Bohemian Brethren, and was himself consecrated a bishop by Bishops Jablonsky and Nitzchmann (1737); induced various Continental governments and the Parliament of Great Britain to acknowledge their church; spent nearly his entire property in their behalf; and in all other respects promoted their welfare with a most self-sacrificing spirit. At the same time he embraced every opportunity to labor for Christ's kingdom in general, and never allowed himself to be bound by denominational restraints. His course awakened great hostility. He was often misunderstood and misrepresented; sometimes he gave just cause for offence by his extravagant utterances. A flood of polemical writings was poured out against him, and in 1736 he was banished from Saxony. But this measure helped to spread the cause which he represented. Surrounded by his family and his principal assistants,—constituting together what he called "The Church of the Pilgrims," — he took up his abode, now in Germany, then in Holland, and again in England, furthering the gospel, and establishing Moravianism wherever he came. Moreover, he went out on many evangelistic journeys alone, or with only a few companions. In 1739 he visited St. Thomas, and three years later came to America (November, 1741). He spent more than a year in the country, laboring among the Germans, especially the Lutherans; organizing the so-called "Congregation of God in the Spirit," that is, a sort of evangelical alliance among the German religious denominations of Pennsylvania, which were represented in a union synod, an undertaking that proved to be a total failure; preaching the gospel wherever he found an opportunity; establishing a Moravian church at Bethlehem; and going out on missionary journeys to the Indians, the last of which extended as far as the Wyoming Valley, where, in all probability, he was the first white man to pitch his tent. His work in America was again misunderstood, and led to the most unfortunate complications, especially with the Lutherans. The ideal which inspired him was too lofty for that time of sectarian bigotry and disputes. He was more than a century in advance of his age. And yet in the general victorious blow of attack that was made upon him and from all the persecutions to which he was subjected. In 1749 the Saxon Government not only rescinded the decree of banishment against him, but also begged him to establish within its jurisdiction more settlements like that at Herrnhut. Some of his worst enemies became his friends: the assaults of those who remained hostile made no more impression upon him, says his biographer, Bishop Spangenberg, than the waves of the sea beating upon a rock. He died in peace, on the 9th of May, 1760, at Herrnhut, honored by thousands in many parts of the world.

Thirty-two presbyters and deacons, from Germany, Holland, England, Ireland, North America, Greenland, and other countries, bore his remains to their last resting-place. His tombstone describes his work in these brief words: "He was ordained to bring forth fruit, and that his fruit should remain." However great and distinguished a position Zinzendorf occupies in the history of the church of God, he was by no means without faults. His lively imagination and joyous piety often led him to give expression, both in his public discourses and in his writings, to sentiments that were sensuous and objectible; he occasionally developed biblical doctrines to extremes unwarranted by the Bible; at times he appealed instead of to the law and the testimony; and, while his love to his fellow-men not unfrequently manifested itself, he also, like the Lord ren-dered him too severe and fiery. But all these and other faults were more than counterbalanced by the noble traits of his character. To the day of his death, Christ his Saviour remained to him all, and in all. He lived only to his glory, and he abode with him in an unbroken communion of faith and love. Earthly sessions, honors, and fame were to him as nothing in comparison with Christ: to do good to his fellow-men for Christ’s sake was his highest joy. He had the rare faculty of knowing how to deal with the highest and the lowest. He corresponded and conversed with kings and princes, that he might bring them to the Saviour; and he followed the Indian savage into his wilderness, that he might tell him of Jesus. His personal appearance was distinguished and noble. He had a piercing and yet benevolent eye; his countenance reflected the divine peace which filled his heart and the joy which was his own. He was familiar with the Lord and gave him. It was impossible to approach him without becoming conscious of an inner life hid-den with Christ in God. He was affable and kind in his social intercourse, but no one ever became familiar with him. His public ministra-tions were in the highest degree strictly, in strictest -ness unhindered by any other considerations. The writings of Zinzendorf, comprising sermons, hymnals, catechisms, historical collections, devotional and controversial works, number more than one hundred and fifty; but the most of them are obsolete. Several years after his death a collection of his sermons was published by Godfrey Clemens, Auszüge aus Zinzendorfs Reden, 10 vols. Knapp published a new edition of his hymns in 1845, Geistliche Gedichte des Grafen v. Zinzendorf. Other republications are: JEREMIAS, ein Prediger der Gerechtigkeit, Berlin, 1830; Gedanken über Evangelische Wahrheiten, Gnadau, 1840, etc.; Zinzendorf, Leben, 3 vols.; SCHRAUBENBACH: Graf v. Zinzendorf, Gnadau, 1851; VERBECK: Graf v. Zinzendorf, Gnadau, 1845; DUVENROY: Kurzgefasste Lebensgeschichte Z., Barby, 1753; VANNHAGEN VON ENSE: Leben Z., Berlin, 1816; MÜLLER: Bekennnisse merkwiirdiger Männer, Part 3, 1775; THOLUCK: Textgeschichte Schriften, i. No. 6, 1859; SCHÖNBERG: Z. und Herrnhut, Nordhausen, 1857; BOVET: Le Comte de Zinzendorf, Paris, 1860, 2 vols., Eng. trans. entitled The Banished Count, London, 1865; BURKHARDT: Zinzendorf u. die B. G., Gotha, 1866, reprinted, in an enlarged form, from Herzog’s Enzyklopedia.

ZION, or S’ON (sunny), strictly speaking, the south-western hill of Jerusalem, although sometimes used as a synonyme for the entire city, and sometimes symbolically. It was bounded on the south by the Valley of Hinnom; on the west, by the “Valley of Gihon;” a part of Hinnom, originally two distinct precipices side by side, but now partially filled up; while on the north there was no such definite boundary, but the hill extended on the Mediterranean, and 105 feet higher than Moriah, on which was the temple.

Zion is first mentioned in Josh. xv. 63 as a Jebusitic stronghold. David took it, and built upon it his palace; and it was the site of his capital, the “city of David” (2 Sam. v. 7), and eventually the aristocratic portion of Jerusalem. Josephus never speaks of it as Zion, but as “the city of David,” “the upper city,” and “the upper market-place.” Here built a palace upon its north-west corner, which became the praetorium, the residence of the Roman procurator (Mark xv. 16). It was the last part of the city to yield to the Romans under Titus (War, VI., viii.). The name “Zion” occurs six times in the historical, and a hundred and forty-eight times in the poeti-cal and prophetic, books of the Old Testament, and seven times in the New Testament; making, in all, a hundred and sixty-one times in the Bible. In the later books it is sometimes used symbolically.

The present wall around Jerusalem includes only half of Mount Zion, but the only building outside it is the tomb of David. Upon the part of the hill from Zion gate, southwards towards the Jaffa gate, are the Christian cemeteries; on the other part is under cultivation (cf. Jer. xxvi. 18; Mic. iii. 12). See JERUSALEM and the Bible dictionaries.

ZIZKA, John. See HUSSITES, UTRACISTS.

ZO’AN, the present San, the Avaris of Manetho, and the Tanis of the Greeks; a city of Lower Egypt; was situated on the eastern bank of the ancient Tanitic branch of the Nile, in latitude 31° N. It was an exceedingly old city, built seven years after Hebron (Num. xxv. 27), and fortified by the shepherd-kings. According to tradition, it was the place of the meeting between Moses and Pharaoh; and in “the field of Zoan” (Ps. lxxvii. 12, 43) God’s wonders were wrought. The mounds and ruins which surround the present city are very extensive; and interesting dis coveries have recently been made there by Brugsch-Bey.

ZOYAR, one of the cities of the plain (Gen. xiii. 10); originally called Bela (Gen. xiv. 2); was spared from the destruction which overtook Sodom; and became the refuge of Lot (Gen. xix. 20-30). Its exact location has not been identified. It was included in the view Moses had from Pisgah (Deut. xxxiv. 3). The prophets place it between the cities of Moab (Isa. xv. 6; Jer. xlviii. 34).

ZO'BA, or ZO'BAH (station), that part of Syria between the north-east of Palestine and the Euphrates; the home of a powerful people who were frequently at war with the Israelites (1 Sam. xiv. 47; 2 Sam. viii. 2 sq., xx. 6 sq.; 2 Chron. viii. 9). The region is rich in natural resources, but is now deserted save by the wandering Bedouin.

ZOLLIKOFER, Georg Joachim, b. at St. Gall, Aug. 5, 1730; d. at Leipzig, Jan. 22, 1798. He was educated at Bremen, studied theology at Utrecht, lived from 1748 to 1753 in Frankfort as tutor, and was in 1758 appointed pastor of the Reformed Congregation in Leipzig. He was considered one of the greatest preachers of his time. The collected edition of his sermons (1758-1804) comprises fifteen volumes [Eng. trans., London, 1803-15; 10 vols.]. His tombstone characterizes him very aptly by telling us that he is now "conversing in the sphere of the spirit with Socrates and Jesus." He was, however, not one of the common herd of rationalists, though he held that "conversion" was not necessary to everybody, but only improvement and progress. He also published a number of devotional books [some of which have been translated; e.g., Exercises of Piety (London, 1796) and Devotional Exercises and Prayers]. See R. Fischer: Geleitenschrift, and Döring: Deutsche Kanzelredner, Neustadt, 1830.

ZONARAS, Johannes, b. in the last part of the eleventh century; d. in the middle of the twelfth; was secretary to the Byzantine emperors Alexius Connenmus, but retired in 1118 to the monastery of St. Elijah in Mount Athos, and devoted himself to theological and literary studies. His Chronicle, from the creation, till the death of Alexius (edited by Hieronymus Wolf, Basel, 1557; Du Fresnoy, Paris, 1666; Pinder, Bonn, 1841-44, 2 vols.), is a mere compilation without interest. Of more value is his Commentary on the Synopsis of Photius, the best edition of which appeared in Paris, 1619, together with a Latin translation. See Morteuil: Histoire du droit Byzantin, Paris, 1843, tom. iii. pp. 423-428. He also wrote scholia to the New Testament, Commentaries on the poems of Gregory Nazianzen, etc.

ZORASTER. See Parseeism.

ZOSIMUS, Bishop of Rome, 417-418; the successor of Innocent I.; was a Greek by birth. He began his reign by cancelling the condemnation of Pelagius and Caelestinus, issued by several African synods, and confirmed by his predecessor. But when the African bishops refused to yield, and, after a new synod of Carthage, obtained a sacrum rescriptum against the Pelagians from the Emperor Honorius, Zosimus and Celestius sat fit to retract, and condemned also Pelagius in an Epistola tractatoria, or encyclical to the Eastern Churches. See Schröck: Kirchengeschichte, Leipzig, 1752, viii. 148. Neudecker.

ZWICK, Johannes, b. at Constance, 1496; d. at Bischofszell, Oct. 23, 1542. He studied theology and canon law in Constace and Basel, took his degree in Padua, and was considered a rising light in the Roman camp, when he became acquainted with the writings of the Reformers; went to see Zwingli in Zurich, and inaugurated his entrance upon his first pastoral charge in Riedlingen, by marrying. In 1525 he was expelled from Riedlingen; and then settled in his native city, where he contributed much to the establishment of the Reformation by his preaching, his disputation, his devotional publications, especially hymns, and his re-organization of the whole department of public education. His activity, however, was by no means confined to Constance, but extended to Wurtemberg and the whole of south-western Germany. In the union negotiations he took an active part. A collection of his letters is found in manuscript in Constance. ZWINGLI, Heinrich, b. at Wildhaus, an Alpine village in the canton of St. Gall, Jan. 1, 1484; d. Oct. 11, 1531, on the battlefield of Kappel, whither he had accompanied the Protestant army as chaplain.

Zwingli's parents were peasants, grave and well-to-do people. One of his uncles was deacon of Wesen; another, abbot of Riechlingen. As he was an uncommonly bright boy, eager to learn, and with a talent for music, he was destined for the church, and educated in the schools of Basel and Bern. In 1499 he entered the university of Vienna, where he went through the common course of philosophy, acquired the friendship of Vadian and Glarean, and made the acquaintance of Faber and Eck. In 1502 he returned to Basel, where he taught school, studied theology, lived in intimate intercourse with Leo Jud, and heard Thomas Wytenbach. In 1506 he was ordained a priest, and appointed pastor of Glarus.

In Glarus, where he remained for ten years, he learned Greek, an arduous task, as he had none to help him along; studied Plutarch and Plato, and especially the Bible; copied the Epistles of Paul, in order to have them always with him; read Origine, Chrysostom, Jerome, and Augustine, also Wiclif, Petrus Waldus, Huns, and Picus de Mirandola; and entered into correspondence with Erasumus. He became a learned man; and his scholarship, no less than the earnestness and energy he evinced in the discharge of his pastoral duties, and the great charm of his personal address, attracted attention. From the Pope he received the legate, Cardinal Schinner, a pension of fifty gulden a year for the continuation of his studies. As a humanist, and a pupil of Wytenbach, his relation to the doctrinal and disciplinary system of the Church of Rome was somewhat free; but there was nothing anti-Romanist or distinctly evangelical in his ministration. Its character was moral rather than religious, and so were his first publications, — Der Labyrinthe and Fabelisch Gedicht von einem Ochsen und etlichen Thieren, 1510, 1511. Switzerland was at that time the barracks of Europe. Tens of thousands of young men hired themselves out every year as mercenaries; and foreign powers, France, the emperor, the Pope, inundated the country with enrolling agents, and paid regular pensions to the nobility in every canton in order to control the religious issues in the union. The result was the gradual decay of the old, stern republican virtues, and a steadily increasing profanation and corruption. Zwingli, who, while pastor of Glarus, several times accompanied such regiments of Swiss mercenaries as their chaplain, saw the evil in all its forms, and resented it with bitterness, both in the above publications and in his sermons. More especially he opposed the alliance with France; but, as the French party had the majority in the council of the canton, he was pursued with slander and chicanery to such a degree, that in 1516 he was glad to leave Glarus, and accepted the office of preacher at Einsiedeln.

Einsiedeln, in the canton of Schwyz, was the most celebrated place of pilgrimage in the country. Hic est plena remissio omnium peccatorum ("Full forgiveness of all sins can be had here") was written over its gates; and pilgrims, not only from Switzerland, but from the whole Southern Germany, flocked around Zwingli. Zwingli, who knew what waste of human strength, what disturbance of human life, what suffering to the human heart, is the inevitable result of such superstition, turned away many a pilgrim by his sermons, to seek for consolation in some other way. He made no open attack. But he did not conceal, either, that he was fully aware of the horrible discrepancy between the ordinances of the Church and the ordinances of the Bible. He asked Cardinal Schinner, the papal legate Pucci, the Bishop of Constance, to employ their influence and power for the abrogation of gross misuses and the restoration of a pure preaching of God's word. In 1517 he began to discuss with his friends the possibility of abolishing the Papacy; in 1518 he drove the indulgence-seller, Samson, out of the canton by his open denunciations. The cardinal, the legate, the bishop, kept silent. The year 1518 was a year of rising whirlwind, and the storm drew nearer, slowly but irresistibly.

On New Year's Day, 1519, he entered the pulpit of the cathedral of Zurich for the first time, and announced to his hearers, that, in a continuous series of sermons, he would preach on the life of Christ such as it was set forth in the Gospel of St. Matthew, and such as he had come to understand it by looking at it by its own inherent light to the exclusion of all human authorities. Thus he asserted what the Church was not willing to grant,—the freedom of the pulpit; and the impression he made was very great. Distinguished persons in the city who long before had ceased to frequent the church, because they derived no good from their visits, returned, and became active and zealous members of his flock. Even the peasantry of the adjacent country crowded into the cathedral when he preached on market-days; and he had a peculiar manner of gaining their confidence also, outside of the church, always succeeding, when conversing with them, in "slipping a tract into their pocket, and the devil into their heart," as one of his adversaries expresses himself. In 1521 his influence had grown so great, that he was able to prevent Zurich from joining the other cantons in their alliance with France; and his Verwarnung an die zu Schwyz was received with much respect, though it did not achieve its purpose. But this political success, or, rather, this deed of patriotism, made him more enemies than his opposition to the practices of the Church; for in their alliance with France, the name "heretic" was applied to him. He answered with a sermon on 1 Tim. iv. 1-5, the pith of which is, that "it is no sin to eat flesh on a fast-day, but it is a great sin to sell human flesh for slaughter- ing;" and the result of which was, that a number of his hearers, for the first time, openly broke with the established discipline of the Church. The monks, the pensioners, the French partisans, the agents of foreign enrolment, then united, and caused an interference by the Bishop of Constance. The bishop sent his vicar-general to Zurich; but, in the debate which took place before the council, the vicar-general was miserably worsted by Zwingli, who shortly after, April 10, 1522, published his first tract of decided reformatory character,—Von Erkiesen und Frölheit der Spen. The pamphlet became the signal of battle. The ecclesiastical authorities decided that Zwingli should be put down speedily. But in July, same year, Zwingli held a meeting with ten other pastors at Einsiedeln, and thence an address was sent to the Bishop of Constance and the magistrates of Zurich, demanding, not only the freedom of the pulpit, but also the abolition of celibacy. In August he published his Archeteles, one of his boldest and one of his most characteristic polemical writings; and in the mean time echoes began to answer from everywhere in the neighborhood,—from Vadian in St. Gall, Myconius in Lucerne, Trachslern in Schwyz, Haller in Bern, etc. The mysterious disappearance of Luther after the diet of Worms, naturally made Zwingli the center of the whole reformatory movement; and connections were opened with Capito, Hedio, and Bucer in Strassburg, with Pirkheimer and Dürrer in Nuremberg, with Nesen in Franconf, etc. The fermentation in Zurich finally became so violent, that the magistrates recognized the necessity of energetic action; and, in harmony with the temper of the time, a public religious disputaion was decided upon.

It was held in the city-hall of Zurich, Jan. 29, 1523. About six hundred persons were present. The Bishop of Constance was represented by his vicar-general, Faber. For the occasion, Zwingli had drawn up sixty-five theses, in which he maintained that Christ is the only means of reconciliation with God, the only way to salvation, while the whole apparatus gotten up by the Church of Rome—papacy, mass, intercession of the saints, absolution, indulgences, etc.—is a vain thing; that Scripture is the highest, and, indeed, the only authoritative, guide, while the whole scheme laid out by the Church of Rome—priesthood, confession, fasting, penance, pilgrimage, monasticism, etc.—is a dangerous delusion. Both the formal and the material principles of the Reformation are set forth in these theses with great completeness, and applied with merciless logic. But the most characteristic and original feature in them is the new principle which is added,—the principle of ecclesiastical polity, which has exercised so decisive an influence on the whole development and organization of the Reformed Church. The congregation, and not the hierarchy, say the theses, is the representative of the Church; and to the congregation, consequently, and not to the hierarchy, belongs the right of considering the discrepancies which may arise between the doctrine and the practice of the Church. The administration of the Church belongs, like all administration, to the State authorities,—a proposition which at once overthrows the whole fabric of the Church of Rome.
ZWINGLI.

2578

ZWINGLI.

But, the theses add, if the State authorities do not carry them into effect, the Church is entitled to proceed by its own judgment. Therefore, at first, Zwingli, in order to calm down the public mind, and prevent excesses, a second religious disputation was held, Oct. 26, 1523. About nine hundred persons were present. Vadian presided. The conclusion was that the people were correct, and that the reformers were right.

Meanwhile, the Reformation made rapid progress in Switzerland. By the conference of Jan. 4, 1528, at which Zwingli was present, the city of Bern was gained for the Reformation; and soon after, Basel, St. Gall, and Schaffhausen followed the example of Bern. But of course the progress of the Reformation carried with it a closer union of the opposite party. In November, 1528, five Roman-Catholic cantons, Freiburg at their head, concluded a separate alliance; and the following spring Archduke Ferdinand of Austria became a member of that alliance. April 21, 1529, Zurich, St. Gall, etc., formally protested against such a mixing-up of foreign princes with the internal politics of the Union; but the answer they received was very chilling. A month later (May 29, 1529), a Protestant pastor from Zurich was seized on the public highway, carried into Schwyz, tried for heresy, and sentenced to be burned. Zurich immediately declared war, and marched her troops into position, according to a plan of operation probably drawn up by Zwingli. He stood with the bulk of the army at Kappel, and the battle was about to begin, when mediators succeeded in preventing bloodshed; and a peace was negotiated June 25, 1529. Zwingli was not satisfied with the conditions of the peace, but predicted that they would cause still graver conflicts. During the Conference of Marburg he had by Landgrave Philipp been induced to take up a plan of forming a great coalition against the ambitious schemes of the House of Austria, and preliminary negotiations were opened with Venice, France, and other countries. At the same time he labored with great enthusiasm and energy for a reconstruction of the Swiss Union. The threads of the different plans became entangled; and at one time Zwingli's position was doubtful, even in Zurich. His theocratic ideas of civil government he had carried through with great severity, and discontent with him was actually brooding in the city. His wide political plans were used against him as a weapon of attack.

He understood the situation very clearly; and on June 26 he appeared before the council, and handed in his resignation. The city was taken by surprise. All opposition grew dumb, and Zurich maintained against the advice of Zwingli, with great determination, the ideas of the intercession and royal office of Christ, he rarely touched. He took an active interest only in those doctrines which have direct and practical bearing on the relation between God and man, — the way in which God communicates himself to man, and through man to the world; the indwelling of the Spirit of God in man, and the unity thereby effected between God and man; Christ as the great example entailing responsibility on every one who looks at it; faith as an organ, not of receptivity, but of spontaneity, etc. His writings have in a literary respect no particular merits; and he himself thought, that, as soon as the Bible was studied as it ought to be studied, they would prove superfluous, and fall into oblivion. The first collected edition of them is that by Gualther, his son-in-law, Zurich, 1545: the last and most complete is that by Schuler and Schulthess, Zurich, 1828—42, supplement, 1861. His correspondence with Ecolampadius appeared at Basel, 1538. Selections from his works have been made by Usteri and Vogelin, Zurich, 1819, 3 vols. [The following translations into English are mentioned by Lowndes: The Rekenynge and Declaration of the Fayth and Belefe of Huldrick Zwingly, Zuryk, 1545 (another trans. Geneva, 1555); Certanye Preceptes, gathered by Hulricus Zwinglius, declaring howe the ingenious Youth ought to be instructed and brought unto Christ, Ipswich, 1548; The Detection of ye Blasphemies and errors of them that say they offer up the Badge of Christ in their Masse, London, 1543; A briefe Rehearsal of the Death, Resurrection and Ascension of Christ, London (n.d.); The Ymage of both Pastoures, London, 1550; A short Pathwaye to the ryghte and true Verdering of the holye and sacred Scriptures, Worcester, 1550.]

APPENDIX.

The unsigned hymnological articles in this Appendix, with the exception of those on the Cary sisters and Gustav Schwab, have been contributed by the Rev. Professor F. M. Bird of Lehigh University, Penn.

AC'CAD. See SHINAR.

ADAMS, Mrs. Sarah Flower, b. at Harlow, Essex, Feb. 22, 1805; d. Aug. 13, 1848; was the second daughter of Benjamin Flower, a well-known Liberal, and long editor of the Cambridge Intelligencer. In 1834 she married William Bridges Adams, an engineer and a writer of some eminence. She published Vivia Perpetua, a dramatic poem, 1841, and The Flock at the Fountain, a catechism with hymns, 1845. Her pastor in London was the able and distinguished William Johnson Fox (1787-1864), who was an Independent, and rather a deist than a Unitarian. To his remarkable Hymns and Anthems (1840-41) she contributed thirteen lyrics, among them the famous “Nearer, my God, to thee.” In later years she is said to have become a Baptist. The story of her supposed residence in America, credited by Sir R. Palmer and Professor Cleveland, had no other basis than a purchase by a cousin of some land in Illinois, whereon her uncle settled in 1822. She has been confounded by Allibone and Dr. Belcher with her elder sister, Eliza Flower (b. at Cambridge, 1801; d. 1847), who set some of Mrs. Adams’s songs to music, wrote sixty-two tunes for Fox’s Hymns and Anthems, and published some poems, called Adoration, Aspiration, and Belief.

ADVENTISTS, the general name of a body, embracing several branches, who look for the proximate personal coming of Christ. William Miller, their founder, was a converted deist, who joined the Baptist church in Low Hampton, N.Y. He became a close student of the Bible, especially of the prophecies, and soon satisfied himself that the advent was to be personal and pre-millennial, and that it is near at hand. He began these studies in 1818, but did not enter upon the work of the ministry until 1831. The year 1843 was the date agreed upon for the advent: subsequent other dates were fixed, the failure of which divided a body of followers which had become quite numerous. In the year of his death (1849) they were estimated at 50,000. Many who had been drawn into the movement by the prevalent excitement left it, and returned to the churches from which they had withdrawn. After the second failure, Mr. Miller and some other leaders discouraged attempts to fix exact dates. On this question and the doctrine of the immortality of the soul, there have been divisions. There are now at least five distinct branches, all of which agree that the second coming of Christ is to be personal and pre-millennial, and that it is near at hand.

The oldest branch is the Evangelical Adventists. They believe in the natural immortality of the soul and in eternal future punishment. They publish a weekly paper in Boston, called Messiah’s Herald. Their number has been estimated at from 5,000 to 9,000.

The most numerous branch is the Advent Christians, who are said to be upwards of 50,000 strong. They have two or three weekly papers, the chief of which is the World’s Crisis of Boston. They also have a few missionary and denominational organizations. They believe that man is material, that the wicked are to be finally destroyed, and that the earth is to be made anew for the abode of the saints.

The third branch, the Seventh-Day Adventists, has a compacted organization, and has grown considerably, especially in the West. Its headquarters are at Battle Creek, Mich., where it has a health-institution, a college, a publishing-house, and other denominational enterprises. It maintains a number of missionaries abroad, and does home missionary work very systematically. It holds that it is still obligatory to observe the seventh day as the sabbath, and believes in visions as seen by Mrs. White, who has published several volumes of visions and testimonies. It numbers 16,000 or 17,000.

The Life and Advent Union, the fourth branch, believe that only the righteous dead will take part in the resurrection. They do not exceed 10,000 in number. They have a weekly paper, published in Springfield, Mass., called the Herald of Life.

The Age-to-come Adventists believe that the Jews are to be re-established in Jerusalem. A weekly paper called The Restitution, published in Plymouth, Ind., represents them. They are not numerous. All these bodies, excepting, perhaps, the Seventh-Day, are Congregational in polity.

The last census credits the Adventists with a total of 90,079 members, including 746 ordained ministers, and with 1,282 churches.

There is no wholly trustworthy literature. History of the Advent Message, by J. D. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me., 1874, is the fullest general his-ADVOWSON. 2582 ANSTICE.

ADVOWSON is the right of presentation to a church or ecclesiastical benefice. It is synonymous with patronage. Advowsons are appendant (as a privilege or the possession of the manor), presentative (where the patron has absolute right of presentation), collative (where the bishop is also the patron), donative (where the patron puts the clergymen in possession by a simple written donation). See Dictionary of the English Church, Ancient and Modern, London and New York, 1881, s.v.

ALATIUS, Leo (Leone Allacci), b. of Greek Catholic parents on the Island of Chios, 1586; d. in Rome, Jan. 19, 1639. He early manifested aptitude for learning, became a Roman Catholic, entered the Greek college at Rome (1600), and was graduated as doctor of theology and philosophy. For the next three years he taught in the seminary of the Bishop of Anglona, then became vicar-general of the Latin bishop of Chios, returned to Rome, took the degree of doctor of medicine (1616), became assistant in the Vatican Library, and professor of rhetoric in the Greek college; which latter position he resigned a few years afterwards. In 1622 Pope Gregory XV. sent him to Heidelberg to superintend the removal to Rome of the Palatinate library, which the Emperor Maximilian had given to the Pope. This he accomplished (arriving at Rome Aug. 5, 1623), best as he was with many difficulties; but Gregory XV.'s death (July 8, 1623) prevented his being rewarded for his valuable services, since the new pope, Urban VIII., did not like him. By the influence and assistance of friends—Cardinal Barberini made him his librarian—he was able, however, to continue his work in the Vatican Library and upon his private studies. In 1651 Alexander VII. appointed him custodian of the Vatican. His services to Greek learning, secular and patristic, are inestimable. There is scarcely an author among the Greek Fathers concerning whom he did not do some pioneer work, but his judgment by no means equaled his learning. One of the interests which lay near his heart was the union between the Greek and Latin churches, and his great learning was freely displayed to prove the insignificance of the separating causes. His principal writings upon this subject are De ecclesia occidentalis et orientalis persecutione consenstein, Cologne, 1648; De utrisque ecclesiae in dogmate de purgatorio consensusione, Rome, 1655; De symboło Athenassi, 1639; Vindiciae Synodi Ephesinae et S. Cyrrili de processione Spiritus Sancto ex Patre et Filio, 1638. He wrote also upon Johanna Papissa and other apocryphal Acts by its relatively earlier attestation (Tischendorf, l.c. Proleg. pp. 105 sqq.), which is distinguished from the other apocryphal Acts by its relatively earlier attestation (Tischendorf, l.c. Proleg. pp. 115 sqq.), relate it in general to the apocrypha of the Greek, but Eusebius (H.E., III. 1) says in Scythia. According to tradition he was crucified on Nov. 80, at Patrae in Achaia, by the proconsul Egeas, and upon a Cross decussata (X), hence called a "St. Andrew's cross." See, on the traditional Andrew, Fabri (Sard. 67, 24), Bovon (Bibl. Nova Patrum, ii. 5-28); Thümm: Schenkung der Heidel. Bibliothek, München, 1844; Ranke: Gesch. der Päpste, ii. 306, and Appendix.

ALLENE, Joseph, Nonconformist; b. at Devon, 1634; d. Nov. 17, 1688. He was educated at Oxford, and took the degree of B.D. July 6, 1653; became chaplain to his college (Corpus Christi); resigned in 1656, to become assistant minister in Taunton. On Aug. 24, 1662, he was ejected from his benefice, but preached wherever he had opportunities, he was imprisoned; released May 26, 1664; again imprisoned, within a year, as violator of the Five Mile Act, and again released. His last few years were troubled by constant danger of arrest for preaching. Before his ejection he had proved himself a model pastor. He had also remarkable learning. He associated as an equal with the fellows of the Royal Society, and concerned himself with scientific study and research. It is, however, as the author of An Alarm to Unconverted Sinners, that he is now remembered. This little book appeared in 1672, and has been ever since a religious classic. It is the fruit of a consecrated life. In 1675 its title was changed to A Sure Guide to Heaven. He wrote also an Explanation of the Assembly's Catechism (1659), and other works. See his Life by Baxter (London, 1672) and by Charles Stanford (1861).

ALLEN, James, b. at Gayle, Yorkshire, June 24, 1734; d. there Oct. 31, 1804; was one of the Inghamite preachers from 1762 to 1761, then associated with Glas and Sandeman, and during his later years ministered at a chapel which he built on his own estate. He edited the Kendall Hymn-Book, 1757, and, with W. and C. Batty, wrote most of its contents. One or two of his hymns are still used.

ANAN THE KARAITE. See KARAITE JEWS.

ANDREW, one of the twelve apostles, brother of Peter, like him born in Bethsaida (John i. 41, 46), and a member of Peter's family in Capernaum (Mark i. 21, 29). His name, although Greek, was common among Jews (Dio Cassius, 69, 32). According to John (i. 35 sq.), Andrew was the first one to follow Jesus in consequence of the Baptist's testimony, and the one to introduce Peter to Jesus. In Jesus' later Galilean choice of disciples, the two brothers were the first called to the apostleship (Matt. iv. 18 sq.); Mark (ii. 16 sqq.). It is not, therefore, without good grounds that the Greeks give to Andrew the epitaph πρωτοκλέτων. The Gospel evidence, that next to Peter, James, and John, Andrew with Philip occupied a prominent place among the twelve (Mark iii. 15, xii. 3; John vi. 8, xii. 22; Acts i. 13). Yet in the Acts he is, like almost all the other apostles, barely mentioned. The apocryphal Acta of Andrew (Tischendorf: Acta apocr., pp. 105 sqq.), which is distinguished from the other apocryphal Acts by its relatively earlier attestation (Tischendorf, l.c. Proleg. pp. 115 sqq.), relate it in general to the apocrypha of the Greeks, but Eusebius (H.E., III. 1) says in Scythia. According to tradition he was crucified on Nov. 30, at Patrae in Achaia, by the proconsul Egeas, and upon a Cross decussata (X), hence called a "St. Andrew's cross." See, on the traditional Andrew, Fabrici (Sard. 66, 24); Bovon (Bibl. Nova Patrum, i. 549-522); Karl Schmid.

ANSTICE, Joseph, b. at Madeley Wood, Shropshire, 1808; d. at Torquay, Feb. 29, 1836; was educated at Westminster and Oxford, where he... graduated with great distinction, and when only twenty-two became professor of classical literature at King's College, London. He wrote some prize essays, poems, etc., and translated Selections from the Greek Dramatic Writers, 1832. His fifty-four Hymns appeared posthumously in 1836; and twenty-seven of them were incorporated in Mrs. Yonge's Child's Christian Year, 1841. Several of them are much used.

ANTI-MISSION BAPTISTS (Primitive or Old-School Baptists) agree with the regular Baptists, except in their opposition to missions, Sunday schools, and similar church enterprises. The Chemung Association (New York and Pennsylvania) in September, 1835, withdrew fellowship with these associations which countenanced such enterprises; in May, 1836, the Baltimore Association did the same, and similar divisions ran through other churches and associations, mostly in the South and West. In 1834 these BAPTIST associations adopted the same title, and hence frequent con-ries are doubtless too high. See Baptist Encyclodied 1852, and retired to Darle'dale, Derby-

AUSTIN, John, b. at Walpole in Norfolk, about 1620; d. in London, 1689; was of a good family, and studied at Cambridge, but became a Romanist. He is credited with The Christian illoderalor, an anonymously, 1829. With the similar works of AUBER, Harriet, b. in London, Oct. 4, 1773; d. at Woodbridge, Suffolk, Feb. 19, 1849; was widely known as "the Quaker poet." At fourteen he was apprenticed to a shopkeeper at Halstead, Essex, and from 1810 was a bank-clerk. Notwithstanding these practical employments, he produced a vast amount of verse, though wisely dissuaded by Byron and Lamb from trusting wholly to authorship. He published Metrical Effusions, 1812; Poems, 1820; Napoleon, 1822; Poetic Vigils, 1824; Devotional Verses, 1827; Household Verses, 1845; and others. His muse, if nowise strong or striking, is pleasing, pure, and pious. One or two of his pieces have been used as hymns, and many of them are found in the collections of sacred poetry. His Memoirs and Letters were edited by his daughter.

BATHURST, William Hiley, b. at Cleve Dale, near Bristol, Aug. 28, 1796; d. at Sydney Park, Gloucestershire, 1877; was educated at Winchester and Oxford, and in 1820 became rector of Barwick-in-Elmet, Yorkshire. This living he resigned, 1852, and retired to Darleydale, Derbyshire, removing in 1863 to his inherited estate of Sydney Park. He published An Essay on the Limits of Human Knowledge, 1827; Metrical Musings, 1849; The Grenvillian, 1851; and Psalms and Hymns, 1831, 2d ed., 1842. Of his two hundred and six hymns many have been used in England, and a few are well known in America, especially "Oh for a faith that will not shrink!"

BAUER, Bruno, b. at Eisenberg, Saxony, Sept. 9, 1809; d. near Berlin, April 13, 1882. He was graduated at Berlin; became a licentiate of theology there in 1834, privatdocent at Bonn in 1838, and extraordinary professor there in 1839. In 1842 he was deposed. From belonging to the right of the Hegelian school, he turned in 1839 to the left. He wrote a great deal of verse and translated the Bible, and was the most prominent compiler of Hymns Ancient and Modern, 1861 (appendix, 1868, rev. and enlarged edition, 1874), the most successful and influential of modern collections. His own contributions to this (some twenty-five in number, including translations and originals) are of no little value. They are very popular in the English Church, and several of them are much used in America. Both as editor and as writer, Bauer's is one of the most important names in the history of recent hymnody.

BAKEWELL, John, b. at Brailsford, Derbyshire, 1721; d. at Lewisham, March 18, 1819; was a Wesleyan preacher from 1749, and conducted an academy at Greenwich for many years. He wrote one universally familiar hymn, "Hail, thou once despised Jesus!"

BARTON, Bernard, b. at Carlisle, Jan. 31, 1794; d. at Woodbridge, Suffolk, Feb. 19, 1849; was widely known as the Quaker poet." At fourteen he was apprenticed to a shopkeeper at Halstead, Essex, and from 1810 was a bank-clerk. Notwithstanding these practical employments, he produced a vast amount of verse, though wisely dissuaded by Byron and Lamb from trusting wholly to authorship. He published Metrical Effusions, 1812; Poems, 1820; Napoleon, 1822; Poetic Vigils, 1824; Devotional Verses, 1827; Household Verses, 1845; and others. His muse, if nowise strong or striking, is pleasing, pure, and pious. One or two of his pieces have been used as hymns, and many of them are found in the collections of sacred poetry. His Memoirs and Letters were edited by his daughter.

BAUER, Harriet, b. in London, Oct. 4, 1773; d. at Princeton, N.J., Feb. 17, 1883. He was graduated at Yale College, 1831; was a tutor and theological student at Yale, 1832–35; pastor of the First Congregational Church in Fairfield, Conn., 1835–54; and from 1854 till his death a professor in the college at Princeton, N.J., at first of mental and moral philosophy, afterwards of logic and moral and political science. His numerous contributions to the Princeton Review, of which he became an editor in 1836, and to other periodicals, were of marked ability, and gave him a high place among American theologians. In 1867 he published A Manual of Logic, Philadelphia.

AUBER, Lyman Hotchkiss, D.D., LL.D., b. at Hamden, Conn., Feb. 23, 1813; d. at Prince-

BATHURST, William Hiley, b. at Cleve Dale, near Bristol, Aug. 28, 1796; d. at Sydney Park, Gloucestershire, 1877; was educated at Winchester and Oxford, and in 1820 became rector of Barwick-in-Elmet, Yorkshire. This living he resigned, 1852, and retired to Darleydale, Derbyshire, removing in 1863 to his inherited estate of Sydney Park. He published An Essay on the Limits of Human Knowledge, 1827; Metrical Musings, 1849; The Grenvillian, 1851; and Psalms and Hymns, 1831, 2d ed., 1842. Of his two hundred and six hymns many have been used in England, and a few are well known in America, especially "Oh for a faith that will not shrink!"

BARTON, Bernard, b. at Carlisle, Jan. 31, 1794; d. at Woodbridge, Suffolk, Feb. 19, 1849; was widely known as the Quaker poet." At fourteen he was apprenticed to a shopkeeper at Halstead, Essex, and from 1810 was a bank-clerk. Notwithstanding these practical employments, he produced a vast amount of verse, though wisely dissuaded by Byron and Lamb from trusting wholly to authorship. He published Metrical Effusions, 1812; Poems, 1820; Napoleon, 1822; Poetic Vigils, 1824; Devotional Verses, 1827; Household Verses, 1845; and others. His muse, if nowise strong or striking, is pleasing, pure, and pious. One or two of his pieces have been used as hymns, and many of them are found in the collections of sacred poetry. His Memoirs and Letters were edited by his daughter.

BEGG, James, D.D., a distinguished minister of the Free Church of Scotland; was b. at New Monkland, near Airdrie, in Lanarkshire, where his father was parish minister, Oct. 31, 1808. Having been brought up in the Kirk, and received the degrees of L.R.I. and D.D., at the University of Edinburgh, he was ordained to the ministry at Maxwelltown, Dumfries, in May, 1830, and from the first was a powerful and popular preacher. From Maxwelltown he was transferred to Edinburgh as assistant to Mr. Jones of Lady Glenorchy's; thence to the Middle Parish, Paisley; thence, in 1835, to Liberton, near Edinburgh; and from Liberton in 1841, he had a church built at Newington in Edinburgh. There he ministered till his death, which took place at Edinburgh, Sep. 29, 1888. In 1847 he received the degree of D.D. from Lafayette College, Pennsylvania. In 1865 he was chosen moderator of the General Assembly of the Free Church.

Dr. Begg began his career as an ardent supporter of evangelical views, and a very decided opponent of the "moderate" party in the church. He was strongly opposed to lay patronage, and an enthusiastic supporter of Dr. Chalmers in his church-extension scheme. He was at the same time an opponent of voluntaryism, and contended eagerly for the establishment and support of the Church by the State. When the aggressions of the civil courts on the jurisdiction of the Church took place, he resisted them strenuously, and broke the interdicts of the Court of Session by preaching in the parishes of the suspended ministers of Strathbogie, contrary to the requirements of the civil courts. At the convocation of ministers in 1842, held to deliberate as to the propriety of dissolving the connection with the State, Dr. Begg was disposed to continue to fight the battle within the Establishment; but in May, 1843, he left along with his brethren. In the Free Church, Dr. Begg from the first was a conspicuous and powerful man. From an early period he showed a disposition to take his own course on several points, against the course recommended by Drs. Candlish, Buchanan, and other leading men; and this disposition became more and more pronounced, till latterly he was the recognized chief of a party of opposition, usually a somewhat small minority. In the discussion on union with the United Presbyterian and other churches, Dr. Begg's attitude of opposition and that of his friends was so serious and decided, that the project for an incorporating union had to be abandoned. What Dr. Begg was alarmed at was lest the door should be thrown open to voluntary views, and lest the severance of Church and State, and of all religion from matters under the control of the State, should follow. Dr. Begg thought that he saw unwholesome tendencies at work in this direction, and on various other questions he adopted a more and more conservative attitude. He opposed the use of hymns in public worship, and looked with horror upon instrumental music. In these movements he found his greatest support in the Highlands, and many in that part of the country looked on him as a barrier raised up between the Church and the flood. In the Robertson Smith case he was most strenuously in opposition to the views of the new critical school. Dr. Begg took a lively interest in the conflict with Popery, and was a strong advocate for the due observance of the sabbath. In many social questions he strenuously upheld the rights of the people. He was a vigorous advocate of better homes for the working-classes; and one of the last acts of his life was to show his sympathy with Highlanders from Rosshire, who had been imprisoned for preventing a goods' train from running one Lord's Day.
Dr. Begg was a great pamphleteer, and was fond of writing in newspapers and magazines. He was for a long time editor of the Bulwark, a journal devoted to the maintenance of Protestantism. The Watchword was its organ for opposing the union with the United Presbyterians. More recently the Signal was started, to oppose instrumental music in worship. Among his larger publications were A Handbook of Pulpit; Free-Church Principles; Happy Homes, and how to get them. In figure, Dr. Begg was tall and massive, with a handsome and expressive countenance. His bonhomie, frankness, and good-nature made him popular with both friends and foes; while at the same time it was apparent that he wanted certain qualities needful to one who would successfully lead a large body of earnest, spiritual minded people.

BELLOWS, Henry Whitney, D.D., prominent Unitarian clergyman; b. in Walpole, N.H., June 10, 1814; d. in New York, Monday, Jan. 30, 1882. He was graduated at Harvard College, 1832, and at the Divinity School, 1837; was called to the First Congregational (Unitarian) Church, Boston, subsequently known as All Souls' Unitarian Church, New York, 1838, and remained their pastor till his death. He was faithful, energetic, zealous, and at times eloquent. An indefatigable worker and a man of broad sympathies, he connected himself prominently with all the best movements of art, literature, history, education, and philanthropy in the city. By his connection with the United-States Sanitary Commission (1861-66) during the American civil war, of which he was one of the organizers, president, and tireless advocate, he achieved a national reputation, and endeared himself to innumerable households. In 1867, on a visit to Europe, he promoted the organization there of International Sanitary Commissions, which have proved of great benefit in subsequent wars. Of his books may be mentioned Restatements of Christian Doctrine, Boston, 1859 (new ed., 1870), and 0111 World in its New Face: Impressions of Europe in 1867-68, New York, 1868.

BERRIDGE, John, b. at Kingston, Nottinghamshire, March, 1716; d. at Everton, June 23, 1759; was long famous for evangelical zeal and eccentric humor. The son of a farmer, he was educated at Clare Hall, Cambridge. In his own words, he "remained ignorant of [his] fallen state till 1730, lived proudly on faith and works for salvation till 1754, fled to Jesus for refuge 1755." He became curate of Stapleford, 1749, and vicar of Everton, 1755. He was one of the few beneficed clergy who co-operated actively with Wesley, Whitefield, and Lady Huntingdon. He published The Christian World Unmasked, 1773, and 342 Sion's Songs, 1785. A previous Collection of Divine Songs, 1760, he carefully recalled and burned. The same fate might well have befallen some of those which retained his approval, so coarse and extravagant is their imagery: but two or three of them are still valued and burned. The same fate might well have befallen some of those which retained his approval, so coarse and extravagant is their image used.

BELLOWS, Henry Whitney, D.D., prominent Unitarian clergyman; b. in Walpole, N.H., June 10, 1814; d. in New York, Monday, Jan. 30, 1882. He was graduated at Harvard College, 1832, and at the Divinity School, 1837; was called to the First Congregational (Unitarian) Church, Boston, subsequently known as All Souls' Unitarian Church, New York, 1838, and remained their pastor till his death. He was faithful, energetic, zealous, and at times eloquent. An indefatigable worker and a man of broad sympathies, he connected himself prominently with all the best movements of art, literature, history, education, and philanthropy in the city. By his connection with the United-States Sanitary Commission (1861-66) during the American civil war, of which he was one of the organizers, president, and tireless advocate, he achieved a national reputation, and endeared himself to innumerable households. In 1867, on a visit to Europe, he promoted the organization there of International Sanitary Commissions, which have proved of great benefit in subsequent wars. Of his books may be mentioned Restatements of Christian Doctrine, Boston, 1859 (new ed., 1870), and 0111 World in its New Face: Impressions of Europe in 1867-68, New York, 1868.

BELLOWS, Henry Whitney, D.D., prominent Unitarian clergyman; b. in Walpole, N.H., June 10, 1814; d. in New York, Monday, Jan. 30, 1882. He was graduated at Harvard College, 1832, and at the Divinity School, 1837; was called to the First Congregational (Unitarian) Church, Boston, subsequently known as All Souls' Unitarian Church, New York, 1838, and remained their pastor till his death. He was faithful, energetic, zealous, and at times eloquent. An indefatigable worker and a man of broad sympathies, he connected himself prominently with all the best movements of art, literature, history, education, and philanthropy in the city. By his connection with the United-States Sanitary Commission (1861-66) during the American civil war, of which he was one of the organizers, president, and tireless advocate, he achieved a national reputation, and endeared himself to innumerable households. In 1867, on a visit to Europe, he promoted the organization there of International Sanitary Commissions, which have proved of great benefit in subsequent wars. Of his books may be mentioned Restatements of Christian Doctrine, Boston, 1859 (new ed., 1870), and 0111 World in its New Face: Impressions of Europe in 1867-68, New York, 1868.

BELLOWS, Henry Whitney, D.D., prominent Unitarian clergyman; b. in Walpole, N.H., June 10, 1814; d. in New York, Monday, Jan. 30, 1882. He was graduated at Harvard College, 1832, and at the Divinity School, 1837; was called to the First Congregational (Unitarian) Church, Boston, subsequently known as All Souls' Unitarian Church, New York, 1838, and remained their pastor till his death. He was faithful, energetic, zealous, and at times eloquent. An indefatigable worker and a man of broad sympathies, he connected himself prominently with all the best movements of art, literature, history, education, and philanthropy in the city. By his connection with the United-States Sanitary Commission (1861-66) during the American civil war, of which he was one of the organizers, president, and tireless advocate, he achieved a national reputation, and endeared himself to innumerable households. In 1867, on a visit to Europe, he promoted the organization there of International Sanitary Commissions, which have proved of great benefit in subsequent wars. Of his books may be mentioned Restatements of Christian Doctrine, Boston, 1859 (new ed., 1870), and 0111 World in its New Face: Impressions of Europe in 1867-68, New York, 1868.
O'Bryan and some others he called out as preachers to assist him. Each party claimed the right of property, and an unhappy conflict and rivalry continued for about two years. God, however, who so greatly blessed Mr. O’Bryan’s labors at first, did not prosper him in this movement. Ultimately a reconciliation took place. The members and friends of the preachers, in connection with Mr. O’Bryan, returned to the other party; and Mr. O’Bryan left England for America, and settled in New York, where he died Jan. 8, 1808. He never became nominally united to the Bible Christians after he left; but a friendly intercourse was kept up, and Mr. O’Bryan paid more than one visit to his friends in England. He also once visited the Bible Christians in Canada, and after the reunion he received a liberal annuity from the English conference till his death. His error was one of judgment rather than of principle, for he still lived an exemplary Christian life till his earthly course terminated. Before the separation from Mr. O’Bryan, the work had extended from Devon and Cornwall to the Scilly Islands, the Norman Isles, Somerset, Wales, Isle of Wight, Portsmouth, London, Kent, and Sussex. In 1831 missionaries were sent to Canada and Prince Edward Island, and subsequently to the United States, Australia, Melbourne, New Zealand, and Queensland. In 1865 the jubilee of the denomination was held, and a jubilee volume published at the book-room, 26 Paternoster Row, London, Eng. Before this, in 1854, the American work was organized into a separate conference; and the same privilege was subsequently granted to South Australia. In 1882, under the government of the Canadian conference, there were ten districts,—one in Prince Edward Island, six in Ontario, one in Manitoba, and two in the United States, one of which is in the State of Ohio, and the other in Wisconsin. On these stations there were 81 itinerant preachers and 7,531 members. The Australian conference has 31 ministers and 2,306 members. Victoria, New South Wales, and Queensland are not as yet invested with conferential powers. The entire denomination as reported in 1882 had a membership of 31,000, with 299 ministers. The denomination, as a whole, is regarded as a college or seminary, and is under the control and government of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1876 it was removed to Boston, re-organized, and opened in the fall of 1877 as the Boston Theological Seminary. In 1881 it was merged into the newly established Boston University, taking the name which it now bears. Its chief benefactors were the same men who founded the university,—Isaac Rich, Lee Claffin, Jacob Sleeper, and Governor William Claffin.

The curriculum of the school is of unusual breadth. In addition to all the branches ordinarily taught in similar institutions, it presents a great variety of elective studies in ancient and modern languages, philosophy, and the moral sciences. It was the first in America to maintain a regular catalog, giving them the local encyclopaedia and methodology, and another in the science of missions. It has long maintained a required course of one year in the history of Christian philosophy in its relations to Christian doctrine. It was the first to give three hours a week for one year to the study of the historical religions, comparative theology, and the philosophical theory of religion. It has had advanced classes in which the instruction was wholly in German, with the use of German text-books, and original German lectures. It has maintained missionary classes

---

Bible Christians.

Boston University.

---

Blacklock, Thomas, D.D., b. at Annan in Scotland, 1721; d. at Edinburgh, July 7, 1791; lost his sight when six months old, yet became a man of learning and literary activity. He studied at the university of Edinburgh, and was licensed as a preacher in 1759. Among his publications are Poems, 1754; Paracelsus, 1767; A Panegyric on Great Britain, 1773; The Graham, 1774; and a few hymns still somewhat used.

Boden, James, b. at Chester, 1757; d. at Chesterfield, June 4, 1841; was Congregational pastor at Hanley, Staffordshire, for fifteen years, and at Sheffield, 1796-1839. He was one of the founders of the London Missionary Society in 1795, and in 1801, with Edward Williams, D.D., issued a collection of hymns supplementary to Watts, which was one of the most creditable and useful hymnals up to its date. It contained a few of his own.

Boston University, School of Theology of. This oldest of the theological seminaries of the Methodist-Episcopal Church was projected in 1839, the first centennial year of British Methodism. In connection with the then strong academic institution in Newbury, Vt., instruction was commenced in 1840, though for lack of funds the institution could not be independently established and officered until 1847. At this latter date, under a charter from the Legislature of New Hampshire, it was opened at Concord, N.H., as the Methodist General Biblical Institute. Its first faculty included men of marked character, such as the Rev. John Dempster, D.D., later the projector and organizer of the theological school at Evansville, Ill.; the Rev. John W. Merrill, D.D., who was called from the presidency of McKendree College; the Rev. Osmon C. Baker, D.D., soon to be chosen one of the bishops of the church; the Rev. Stephen M. Vall, D.D., the enthusiastic Helvraist; the Rev. Charles Adams, D.D.; and, a little later, the saintly David Patten, D.D.

In connection with the celebration of the centennial of American Methodism, the school was more adequately endowed; and, as a consequence, it was removed to Boston, re-organized, and opened in the fall of 1877 as the Boston Theological Seminary. In 1871 it was merged into the newly established Boston University, taking the name which it now bears. Its chief benefactors were the same men who founded the university,—Isaac Rich, Lee Claffin, Jacob Sleeper, and Governor William Claffin.

The curriculum of the school is of unusual breadth. In addition to all the branches ordinarily taught in similar institutions, it presents a great variety of elective studies in ancient and modern languages, philosophy, and the moral sciences. It was the first in America to maintain a regular catalog, giving them the local encyclopaedia and methodology, and another in the science of missions. It has long maintained a required course of one year in the history of Christian philosophy in its relations to Christian doctrine. It was the first to give three hours a week for one year to the study of the historical religions, comparative theology, and the philosophical theory of religion. It has had advanced classes in which the instruction was wholly in German, with the use of German text-books, and original German lectures. It has maintained missionary classes in Spanish; and as a fruit the Methodist-Episcopal mission in Mexico is almost exclusively manned by former members of these classes. Large numbers of other foremost divines and scholars of the country.

---

H. J. Nott

(Editor The Observer, Bowmanville, Ont., a B. C. organ).

At the present time (1888-84) the governing faculty is as follows: William F. Warren, president, professor of comparative theology and of the history and philosophy of religion; James E. Latimer, dean, professor of systematic theology; John W. Lindsay, professor of exegetical theology and New-Testament Greek; Luther T. Townsend, Harris professor of practical theology; Henry C. Sheldon, professor of historical theology; Samuel S. Curry, professor of sacred oratory; Hinckley G. Mitchell, instructor in Hebrew and Old-Testament exegesis. Rev. WILLIAM F. WARREN.

BOWDLER, John, jun., b. in London, Feb. 4, 1783; d. there Feb. 1, 1815; was a young lawyer of talent and high character, whose promising career was cut short by consumption. He studied at Sevenoaks and Winchester; was articled to a solicitor, 1800; admitted to the bar, 1807, and travelled abroad 1810-12, in a vain search for health. His Select Pieces in Verse and Prose, issued 1816 by his father, in two vols. 8vo, contain a few hymns of unusual elegance.

BROWN, James, a banker and Christian philanthropist; b. at Ballymena, County Antrim, Ireland, Feb. 4, 1701; d. in New-York City, Nov. 1, 1777. He came to Baltimore, Md., in 1800, with his father, Alexander Brown, and his three brothers, William, John A., and George. The father established himself in the Irish linen business, and greatly prospered. James Brown founded the famous banking-house of Brown Brothers and Company in New-York City, in 1826. He made wise use of his great wealth, giving freely, largely, and judiciously, but without ostentation, from mere pleasure in doing good. For many years he was president of the New-York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, an active eidon of the University-place (Presbyterian) Church, a director of Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, and a friend to every worthy enterprise. In 1874 he greatly enlarged the usefulness of that seminary by the grant of three hundred thousand dollars for the full endowment of all the professorships,—an amount largely exceeding the aggregate of all that had been given by the founders of the several chairs.

BROWN, Matthew, D.D., L.L.D., b. in Northumberland County, Penn., 1778; d. at Pittsburgh, Penn., July 29, 1853. He was graduated at Dickinson College, 1794; pastor at Millin: called to Washington, 1829, as a young man, and principal of the academy, Oct. 16, 1805. In 1806 a charter was obtained, and Washington College began. Dr. Brown president. Success here in all functions pronounced. Resigned presidency in 1816, continued pastorate until 1822, then called to Jefferson College, Cannonsburgh, Penn. He held that charge until his death, 1877. His personal influence, with experience and growing popular power, told in the rapid development of the institution. In twenty-three years the graduates numbered seven hundred and seventy-two. "Nearly one-half entered the ministry, and not a few went as foreign missionaries" (Brown). Six years after leaving Washington he was invited to resume his place there as pastor and president, but declined. Yet at his death he was, according to his own request, buried there.

BROWN, Phoebe (Hinsdale), b. at Canaan, N.Y., May 1, 1783; d. at Marshall, Henry County, Ill., Oct. 10, 1861; was left an orphan at two, and never learned to read or write till eighteen. Her youth was passed under "intense and cruel suffering," and her whole life in poverty and trouble. She married Timothy H. Brown, a painter, and went to Ellington, Conn.; there, in August, 1818, her famous "I love to steal a while away" was written, under circumstances, probably, the most pathetic that have attended the origin of any hymn. It was altered and abridged by Nettleton, or some one else, and appeared, with two more by her, in Village Hymns, 1824. She contributed other hymns, some of them still popular, to later collections, and wrote sundry newspaper articles, tracts, and a volume of tales, The Tree and its Fruits, N.Y., 1838. After living some thirty years at Monson, Mass., her last years were spent with a daughter in Illinois. Her autobiography was "written at the urgent request of her children, at Chicago, in 1849," and, with her poetical manuscripts, is preserved by the family of her son, Dr. S. R. Brown, the first American missionary to Japan, who was not alone in reverently cherishing her memory. (See New-York Independent for Jan. 6, 20 Jan., and April 14, 1881.) "My history," she wrote, "is soon told,—a sinner saved by grace and sanctified by trials.

BROWNE, George, the first Protestant archbishop of Dublin; d. about 1565. He was graduated at Oxford, and was an Augustinian friar when he embraced the Reformation. On March 19, 1535, he was consecrated archbishop of Dublin. In consequence of his reformatory labors he was deposed by Queen Mary.

BROWNE, Peter, b. in Ireland about 1680; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; consecrated bishop of Cork and Ross, 1710; d. 1735. His principal works are The procedure, extent, and limits of human understanding, 1728, 2d ed., 1729 (an able critique of Locke's Essay); Things divine and supernatural conceived by analogy with things natural and human, 1735 (asserts that God's essence and attributes can only be expressed analogically).

BROWNE, Simon, b. at Shepton Mallet, Somersetshire, about 1680; d. 1732; was Independent pastor at Portsmouth, and from 1716 at Old Jewry, London. This charge he gave up in 1723, when laboring under a lung disease,—a case long cited in books of mental philosophy. In that year, grief for the deaths of his wife and son, and of a highwayman whom he had killed unintentionally and in self-defense, unhinged his mind, though only in one particular. He maintained that God had "annihilated in him the thinking substance, and utterly divested him of consciousness," and replied to a friend who instanced his learned and laborious occupations, "I am doing nothing that requires a reasonable soul: I am making a dictionary." Yet, as Toplady said, "instead of having no soul, he wrote and reasoned and prayed as if he had two." His publications numbered twenty-three, including A Disquisition on the Trinity, and a defence of Christianity against Woolston, etc. Prior to his misfortunes, several appeared, 1722, and two earlier treatises, besides two hundred and sixty-six Hymns and Spiritual Songs, 1720. This last is an important volume, and places him high in the school of Watts, whom he was the first to follow in order of time. His hymns, if not eminently poetical, are unusually solid: their strongly ethical character has caused many of them to be long and largely used by Unitarians, though Browne himself was rigidly Orthodox; and a few of them are still general favorites, as eminently, "Come, gracious Spirit.

BRUCE, Michael, b. at Kinnesswood, Kinross-shire, March 27, 1748; d. there July 5, 1767; is the hero of one of the most pathetic chapters in literary history. The son of a poor weaver, he was designed for the ministry, and managed to study at Edinburgh; but severe labors and privations cut short his promising career. His parents intrusted his poetical manuscripts to his friend Logan, who published a few of them in 1770, and several others in 1773 and 1814, and his Literary Remains in 1827 served gratuitously as secretary of the first named, besides editing the Evangelical Magazine. The most successful of his many publications were Village Sermons, 1787–1820, 8 vols., and a Supplement to Watts, 1784. The latter went through some fifty editions, and contained four hymns of his own.

BURLEIGH, William Henry, b. at Woodstock, Conn., Feb. 12, 1812; d. at Brooklyn, N.Y., March 18, 1871; was an active and zealous reformer, editing temperance and anti-slavery papers in Pittsburgh (1837), Hartford (1843), Syracuse (1849), and Albany. From 1855 he was the harbormaster of New York. He published Poems, Philadelphia, 1841, enlarged edition, with memoir by his wife, New York, 1871. Several of his hymns are used in England as well as here.

BURNHAM, Richard, b. 1749; d. in London, Oct. 30, 1810; was a Baptist minister, and wrote some three hundred and twenty hymns, which appeared 1783 and 1796. They are of a low order, but have had success in certain quarters.

BYROM, John, b. at Kersall, near Manchester, 1691; d. there Sept. 28, 1763; entered Trinity College, Cambridge, 1708, and became a fellow of it, 1714; contributed to the Spectator; invented a system of shorthand, and taught it with much success; became F.R.S., 1724; succeeded to the family estate at Kersall, and spent his later years there in peace and honor. Though a disciple of Jacob Behmen and other mystics, he was a man of great acuteness and equanimity, and combined ardent piety with views then novel. His Poems, written in easy, colloquial style, for his own and his friends' amusement, were printed posthumously in 1773 and 1814, and his Literary Remains in 1867. He wrote some of the best epigrams in the language, and a Christmas-hymn which is in almost universal use in England.

CARLYLE, Joseph Dacre, b. at Carlisle, June 4, 1758; d. at Newcastle, April 12, 1804; was professor of Arabic at Cambridge, 1774, and, later, chancellor of Carlisle, and vicar of Newcastle-on-Tyne. He compiled and printed a Treatise on Arabic Poetry, 1796, etc. His Poems appeared in quarto, 1805, including a hymn now in nearly universal use.

CARY, the name of two sisters, Alice (b. near Cincinnati, O., April 28, 1820; d. in New-York City, Feb. 12, 1871) and Phoebe (b. Sept. 4, 1824; d. at Newport, R.I., July 31, 1894). They were joint workers in literature, and published a volume of poems in 1850. In 1852 they came to New-York City, and supported themselves by literary work. Their poems and prose-writings are much admired. Phoebe Cary's "One sweetly solemn thought," written when but seventeen years old, has passed into all hymn-books. Her Poems of Faith, Hope, and Love (1868) sold widely. See M. C. AMES: Alice and Phoebe Cary, N.Y., 1871.

CASWALL, Edward, b. July 15, 1814, at Yeate-ley in Hampshire; d. Jan. 2, 1878; was educated at Brasenose College, Oxford; ordained deacon 1838, and priest 1839; perpetual curate of Stratford-sub-Castle, near Salisbury, 1840. In 1846 he resigned this charge, and in January, 1847, exchanged the Church of England for that of Rome. His wife dying in 1849, he entered Dr. J. H. Newman's Congregation of the Oratory in Bir-CHRISTADELPHIANS.

John b. at Matlock, Derbyshire, March 18, 1775; d. Nov. 7, 1852; was the son of a farmer; educated at Oxford; ordained 1801; curate at Ribbesford and Dowles; in 1814 became perpetual curate of Bewdley, Worcestershire. He published The Church and Dissent, 1831, and two volumes of Sermons, 1842. Cotterill's Selection, his piety in advance of both. His Muse had the perpetual curate of Bewdley, Worcestershire. He published The Church and Dissent, 1831, and two volumes of Sermons, 1842. Cotterill's Selection, 1819, included nine hymns of his, two or more of which have been much used.

CENNICK, John, b. at Reading, Berkshire, Dec. 12, 1718 (?); d. in London, July 4, 1756; was teacher of Wesley's school at Kingswood, but joined Whitefield 1741, and the Moravians 1745. He published an autobiography, 1745; some tracts and sermons; Sacred Hymns for the Children of God in the Days of their Pilgrimage, 1741-42, 2 vols.; Sacred Hymns for the Use of Religious Societies, 1743-45, 3 parts; and Hymns for Children, 1754. The last is not now known to exist: the others are scarce and remarkable volumes. Cennick's talents were better than his education, and his piety in advance of both. His Muse had the Wesleyan fire without the Wesleyan elegance, but with a passionate simplicity of her own. His first book of verse was corrected, and the contents of all were more or less suggested and inspired, by C. Wesley; but he had something of his own. His hymns, extensively used during the last century, have, with a few exceptions, been condemned by the colder taste of our age; but they are vivid and curious memorials of the style of religious feeling A.D. 1740-50.

CHANDLER, John, b. at Witney, Surrey, June 16, 1806; d. at Putney, July 1, 1876; has a leading place among translators of Latin hymns. He studied at Corpus Christi College, Oxford, graduating 1827; was ordained, 1831; became vicar of Witney, 1837, and afterwards rural dean. He published Life of William of Wykeham, 1842; Hora Sacra, 1864; and sundry sermons and tracts, besides his great work (in quality, not in size, for it is a moderate 12mo), Hymns of the Primitive Church, 1837. This volume—now rare, contains a hundred and eighty Latin hymns, with translations of his own. The renderings are simple and unpretentious, but of such solid merit that a large number of them have attained wide acceptance. In the English Church, and not a few have come into use elsewhere. In the important service of adapting to modern use the treasures of Latin hymnody, Chandler had no immediate or notable predecessors, except J. H. Newman. Bishop Mant's Ancient Hymns appeared the same year; and the books of Isaac Williams, Caswall, Cope-lan, R. Campbell, Neale, Chambers, and others, later. Chandler's influence on all these must have been great; and none of them has done as good work in this field except Caswall, and perhaps Neale: so that, both directly and indirectly, his modest labors have been very fruitful. It is one of several cases in which very moderate poetic talents have produced eminent hymnic benefactions. A much smaller work, Hymns of the Church, 1841, has its contents mostly selected from the former, but contains some altered or added versions, and a few originals.

CHRISTADELPHIANS, a small sect originating in this country half a century ago. They call themselves Christadelphians because of the belief that all that are in Christ are his brethren, and designate their congregations as 'ecclesiias' to distinguish them from the so-called churches of the apostasy. John Thomas, M.D., the founder, seceded from the Disciples of Christ, and established a separate denomination, because he believed, that, though the Disciples were the most apostolic and scripturally enlightened religious organization in America, the religious teaching of the day was contrary to the teaching of the Bible. It is not known how many ecclesiias there are in this country. Jersey City has one or two, and there is one in Philadelphia, and one in Washington. A few have been organized in England, where most of the literature of the denomination is printed.

Christadelphians reject the Trinity. They believe in one supreme God, who dwells in unproucachable light; in Jesus Christ, in whom was manifest the eternal spirit of God, and who died for the offences of sinners, and rose for the justification of believing men and women; in one baptism only, immersion, the burial with Christ in water into death to sin, which is essential to salvation; in immediate and final punishment of the wicked, but not in eternal torment; in hell, not as a place of torment, but as the grave; in the resurrection of the just and unjust; in the utter annihilation of the wicked, and in the non-resurrection of those who have never heard the gospel, lack in intelligence (as infants), or are sunk in ignorance or brutality; in a second coming of Christ to establish his kingdom on earth, which is to be fitted for the everlasting abode of the saints; in the proximity of this second coming; in Satan as a scriptural personification of sin; in the millennial reign of Christ on earth over the nations during which sin and death will continue in a milder degree, and after which Christ will surrender his position of supremacy, and God will reveal himself, and become Father and Governor of a complete family; in salvation only for those who can understand the faith as taught by the Christadelphians, and become obedient to it.

LIT. — The works of Dr. Thomas: Elpis Israel, Eureka, also, in pamphlet form, Anastasis, Phanerosis, The Revealed Mystery, The Apostasy Un-

COAN, Titus, D.D., missionary; b. at Killingworth, Conn., Feb. 1, 1801; d. at Hilo, Sandwich Islands, Sept. 16, 1882. He was graduated at Auburn Theological Seminary in 1833, and on Dec. 24, 1834, sailed for the Sandwich Islands, where he labored as missionary, under the care of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, until his death, with great success; his conversions up to 1880 numbering 12,113. In the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions Historical Text-book and Atlas of Biblical Geography, etc., 1870 he returned to America for a very brief visit. He published Life in Hawaii, New York, 1882. COLEMAN, Lyman, D.D., Congregationalist; b. at Middlefield, Mass., June 14, 1796; d. at Easton Penn., March 16, 1892. He was graduated at Yale College, 1817; principal of the Latin Grammar School at Hartford, 1817-20; tutor in Yale College; student of theology, and for seven years pastor of the Belchertown (Mass.) Congregational Church. He resigned, spent two years in foreign travel, held various positions, until in 1862 he became professor of Latin in Lafayette College. He was the author of several widely circulated volumes embodying the results of much study,—Antiquities of the Christian Church, Philadelphia, 1841; Ancient Christianity Examined, 1852; Historical Text-book and Atlas of Biblical Geography, etc., 1854; Pælacy and Ritualism, 1869.

COAN, John William, D.D., English prelate; b. Jan. 21, 1814, in the Duchy of Cornwall; d. at Durban, Natal, South Africa, June 20, 1883. He was graduated at St. John's College, Cambridge, 1836; became fellow of his college; was assistant master of Harrow School, 1838-42; resided at St. John's College, 1842-46; rector of Forncett St. Mary, Norfolk, 1846-53; and on Nov. 30, 1853, was appointed first bishop of Forncett St. Mary, Howland, and stretching from his Pentateuch and Book of Joshua critically Examined (London, 1862-70, 7 parts), calling in question the historical accuracy and the traditional authorship of these books. This work was condemned by small majorities in both Houses of Convocation of the Province of Canterbury (1864); and he was deposed by his metropolitan, the Bishop of Cape Town. Colenso appealed to the Privy Council; and this body declared his deposition null and void in law, on the ground that "the crown has no legal power to constitute a bishopric, or to confer coercive jurisdiction within any colony possessing an independent legislature; and that, as the letters-patent purporting to create the sees of Cape Town and Natal were issued after these colonies had acquired legislatures, the sees did not legally exist, and neither bishop possessed in law any jurisdiction whatever." As his appeal had been refused by the council of the Colonial Bishopric's Fund, he brought suit in the Court of Chancery, and was again sustained. The result of the trouble was, that, while Bishop Colenso remained the only bishop of the Church of England in Natal, there was at Cape Town a bishop of Maritzburg for the Province of South Africa. In 1874 Bishop Colenso visited England, and reported to the Archbishop of Canterbury. He was a warm friend of the Zulus.

COOPER, Peter, an American manufacturer, inventor, and philanthropist; b. Feb. 12, 1791, in New York, and d. there April 4, 1883. His grandfather and father were soldiers in the American Revolution, after which his father resumed business as a hatter. Peter was the fifth of nine children, seven of whom were boys. He attended school for part of one year only; learned and practised his father's trade; and at the age of seventeen, the family having left New York, he returned thither, and apprenticed himself for four years to a carriage-maker. Upon a salary of twenty-five dollars a year and board, he kept out of debt, and saved money. His industry and inventive ingenuity won the favor of his employer, who offered to loan him the necessary capital to establish himself in business. Not wishing to assume the burden of debt, he declined this offer, and went as a workman on day-wages to a woollen-factory at Hempstead, L.I. Here he perfected a machine for shearing the nap from cloth, for which he obtained a patent. By the war of 1812 American cloth manufactures were greatly stimulated, and this machine found for a brief period a rapid sale. It is said that the first five hundred dollars realized by the inventor were devoted to the relief of his father, then seriously embarrassed. In 1813 Mr. Cooper married Sarah Bedell, a lady of Hempstead, with whom he enjoyed more than fifty-six years of wedded happiness. Of six children, two survive,—Edward Cooper, recently mayor of New York, and Mrs. Sarah Amelia Hewitt, wife of Abram S. Hewitt, several times elected a representative in Congress from New York City.

At the close of the war with England, Mr. Cooper turned his shop at Hempstead into a manufactory of cabinet-ware. A year later he established a grocery in New York; and after another year he sold out this business, and embarked in the manufacture of glue and isinglass, which he carried on with great success, amusing from this and other enterprises the large fortune which he administered with so much generosity and public spirit. Among his business undertakings may be mentioned the establishment of iron-works at Baltimore, New York, Trenton, and Phillipsburg, N.J., and the laying of the Atlantic cable, which he promoted with enthusiastic faith, by large advances of money at critical periods. Of his genius as an inventor, many instances might be cited: among them, the construction, in 1829, of the first steam locomotive ever made in America; the movement of canal and river boats by means of an endless chain (now revived as the Belgian towing-system); the introduction of rolled wrought-iron beams for fire-proof buildings, etc. His wide acquaintance with trades and handicrafts, the quick interest with which he watched their progress, the fruitful suggestiveness of his mind, and an unconquerably sanguine temper, combined to make him naturally an inventor and pioneer.

But the keynote of Mr. Cooper's character was active benevolence. He was a Unitarian Christian; and through the charities of that denomination, as well as through innumerable channels, public and private, he distributed his beneficence. It is not too much to say that sympathy sometimes overpowered his judgment and reason. Some of his later political views on the subject of finance, views not altogether consistent with those he had advocated in his vigorous manhood, were doubtless the expression of his benevolence, and his measures he urged to bring immediate relief to the debtor-class. Although the Greenback party, of which he was in 1876 the presidential nominee, was generally distrusted, and overwhelmingly defeated, no one among its opponents questioned the purity and sincerity of its candidate.

As a member of the common council of New York in early days, a trustee of its first public-school society, and subsequently a member under the present system, he was active in all measures of public and educational improvement. But the great work of his life, and that for which he will be longest remembered with praise and thanks, is the Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art, established and endowed by him in the city of New York at a cost of more than a million of dollars. This institution is in many respects unique. It is devoted to the free instruction of working men and women, and comprises day schools of drawing, painting, wood-engraving, modelling, and telegraphy for women; evening classes for both sexes in all branches of art and anti-decoration, mathematics, the natural sciences, mechanics, engineering, etc.; a free library and reading-room; and a free course of popular scientific lectures. It may be said in round numbers, that nearly 4,000 students are enrolled annually in the various classes, about 1,500 persons frequent the reading-room daily, and an audience of 2,000 attends the weekly lectures. The expenses of the institution amount to over $50,000 per year, the greater part of which is obtained from the rent of stores and offices in the building. Any deficit has been met by Mr. Cooper, who also left by his will an additional endowment of $100,000. To this, his son and daughter have notified the trustees that they will add another $100,000. This will make the total endowment, apart from building and apparatus, $400,000.

The funeral of Mr. Cooper was an imposing spectacle, testifying the universal love and esteem in which he was held. A popular subscription is in progress for a monument in his honor. This purpose all must applaud. Yet, after all, his best monument is the "Cooper Union." And what epitaph can be better than that inscribed upon the scroll, which, thirty years ago, he deposited within its cornerstone?—

"The great object that I desire to accomplish by the erection of this institution is to open the avenues of scientific knowledge to the youth of our city and country, and so unfold the volume of nature that the young may see the beauties of creation, enjoy its blessings, and learn to love the Author from whom cometh every good and perfect gift."—R. W. RAYMOND.

COTTERILL, Thomas, b. at Cannock, Staffordshire, Dec. 4, 1779; d. at Sheffield, Dec. 29, 1823; was educated at St. John's, Cambridge; ordained, 1808; ministered two years at Tutbury, and nine at Lane End, in the Staffordshire potteries; perpetual curate of St. Paul's, Sheffield, from 1817. He published a book of family prayers, and a memorable Selection of Psalms and Hymns, of which the chief edition appeared at Sheffield, 1819. In this he was assisted by James Montgomery, who was the printer. They both contributed numerous originals, and altered or rewrote other people's verses very freely. The righteousness of hymn-singing was not then well established in the English Church; and a suit was brought against the compiler, which ended in the book being withdrawn, to be succeeded by an abridged and altered edition. Though its life was so short, its influence was great. Cotterill’s hymns, while not highly poetical, were judicious, neat, and sometimes impressive. They met a want then widely if not deeply felt, and for a generation were largely copied into most Anglican hymnals; some of the chief favorites being such as were his only in part, for he was the most successful practiser of the doubtful art of “tinkering,” or amending. Several of his alterations and originals keep a place still.

57—III
COTTON.

COTTON, Nathaniel, M.D., b. 1705; d. at St. Albans, Aug. 2, 1788; studied medicine at Leyden, and kept a lunatic-asylum at St. Albans. He was raised and loved by Cowper, who was for some time (1763-65) his patient. He published two medical books in 1730 and 1749, and Visions in Verse, 1761. His Various Pieces in Verse and Prose appeared, 1791, in 2 vols., containing a few very graceful renderings of psalms.

COWLEY, Abraham, M.D., b. in London, 1618;
d. at Chertsey, in Surrey, July 28, 1667; entered Trinity College, Cambridge, 1637, and was ejected as a royalist, 1643. He published various poems, essays, and Liber Plantarum, 1662-78. Once counted the first poet of his time, he is now mildly valued for his graver strains, which show a sober and studious mind, with moderate inclinations toward religion.

CROLY, George, LL.D., b. in Dublin, August, 1790; d. in London, Nov. 24, 1860; was from 1826 to 1837 rector of St. Stephen’s, Vallbrook, London. He published many volumes of prose, mostly on sacred themes, and of verse, chiefly secular, besides a slight collection of Psalms and Hymns (1854), largely made up of unimportant originals. Mrs. Hall thought him “an almost universal poet, grand and gorgeous, but too cold and stately.”

CROSSMAN, Samuel, b. at Bradfield, Suffolk, 1624; d. at Bristol, Feb. 4, 1688; was prebendary of Bristol, and published sundry sermons, etc., and The Young Man’s Meditation, 1684, reprinted by D. Sedgwick, 1863. This contains nine hymns, one or two of which are meritorious and well known.

CROSSWELL, William, D.D., b. at Hudson, N.Y., Nov. 7, 1804; d. in Boston, Nov. 9, 1851; graduated at Yale, 1822; studied divinity at New York and Hartford; became rector of Christ Church, Boston (1820), of St. Peter’s, Auburn (1840), and of the Advent, Boston (1844). His memoir was published by his father. His Poems, edited by Bishop Coxee, appeared 1861. They contain some meritorious hymns, one of which is widely used.

DARBY, John Nelson, b. in London, Nov. 18, 1800; d. in Bournemouth, April 29, 1889. He was graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, 1819; took orders, and served a curacy in Wicklow, until, in 1827, doubts as to church establishments led him to leave the Church altogether, and meet with a little company of like-minded persons gathered in Dublin. In 1830 he visited Plymouth, and entered the work there. An assembly of Brethren was shortly formed in the town that has lent its name to this movement. James L. Harris, perpetual curate of Plymstock, resigned his living to unite with them, and in 1834 started the Christian Witness, their first periodical. Darby became an assiduous writer. In the first volume of the Witness appeared his Parochial Arrangement destructive of Order in the Church. In 1836 he wrote for the same serial Aposiagy of the Successive Dispensations, afterwards published in French as l’Apostasie de l’économie actuelle, in which he “laid the axe to the tree of the Christian Church” (Herzog, cf. “Plymouth Brethren”).

Between 1838 and 1840 Darby worked in Switzerland. In the autumn of 1838 an influential member of the congregation at Lausanne invited Darby thither to oppose Methodism. In March, 1840, he came, and obtained a hearing by discourses, and a tract, De la doctrine des Wesleyens à l’égard de la perfection, etc. In the spring of 1841 the greater part of the Methodists joined the other dissenters of Lausanne. Some lectures by Darby on prophecy made great impression, bringing together nationalists and dissenters. The key to the prophecies had been found. Darby at the same time continued his preaching. He soon gathered young men round him at Lausanne, with whom he studied the Scriptures. The fruit of these conferences was his Études sur la Parole, a work which has appeared in English as Synopsis of the Books of the Bible. His associates were not long in beginning missionary enterprise among, not the indifferent or worldly, but awakened souls. Many congregations were formed in Cantons Vaud, Geneva, and Berne. Certain of his followers started a periodical, Le témoignage des disciples de la Parole.

When, by Jesuit intrigues, a revolution broke out in Canton Vaud (February, 1845), the Darbystes in some parts of Switzerland suffered persecution. Darby’s own life was in jeopardy. He thenceforth took a more active lead among the English Brethren, and in particular, from 1845 to 1848, in respect to the disruption at Plymouth (cf. Plymouth Brethren); but his heart seems ever to have turned towards Switzerland and France.

The appearance of Newman’s Phases of Faith evoked a reply from Darby, The Irrationalism of Infidelity (1858). Nor did the advance made by the Anglo-Catholics, inspired of old by another Newcomman, escape his notice. See his Remarks on Puseyism (1854), and review of The Church and the World, his Christianity and Christendom (1874), etc.

It was not long before Darby had formed links with several congregations in Germany. In 1858 he paid a first visit to Elberfeld. Already were there some dozen assemblies of Brethren, holding the same views of the church as those already spoken of in Great Britain and Switzerland, but without formal connection. Darby was wont to say, “The Lord has not given me Germany.” Nothing was required, however, but his appearance on the scene to turn these “Baptistens” into “Darbisten.” In 1854 he was in Elberfeld a second time, translating on their behalf the New Testament into German. Next he exercised his ministry far and wide.

In 1858 Darby took up independently a subject which he had before touched only in controversy with Newman, the sufferings of Christ. Though harassed by opposition, he retained the confidence of the bulk of his supporters, manifest when he offered to withdraw from his ministry. In 1859 appeared his Righteousness of God, which subject also plunged him into controversy. In the latter year he executed a French translation of the New Testament (Vevey). After the completion of this work, he made a first visit to Canada, where had been assembled of Brethren for many years. Shortly after his return to England (1863) appeared his dialogues on the Essays and Reviews. In 1864-65 he was again in Canada; in 1866 he issued his analysis of Dr. Newman's Apology for the Apostles (C. W., xxv.) was composed in Italian. In 1872-73 came a vigorous campaign in the United States. A Boston journal, the Traveller, records at that time his daily meetings at 3 Tremont Row, and says, "Now seventy-two years of age, he is hale and dignified, yet genial and joy-ful in his life of unclouded faith." At a subsequent period he visited the West Indies. He was again in the States in 1874, and visited, in 1875, the Brethren in New Zealand. Between 1878 and 1880 he was occupied very much with his translation into French of the Old Testament, in connection with which he sojourned long at Pau, after having made several other occasional visits to France.

He had, besides, found time to make known his judgment on several points of scholarship. His view of the Greek article approximates to that expressed by Donaldson. In the Bible Witness and Review (1877-81) appeared several articles by him in apologetics; e.g., a review of W. Robertson Smith's well-known article in the Encyclopaedia Britannica, another of Mill's Logic, and a paper on Miracles, with reference to Hume. In metaphysics, as in theology, he struck out his own path. Well acquainted with Kant's system, he valued the Königberg philosophy as little as Mill's. We possess papers of his on the Relative and Absolute, Self-consciousness, and the Infinite with reference to the Hampton Lectures of Mansel.

Though his works are largely doctrinal and controversial, his delight was to write anything devotional and practical. How he lived in the devotional and practical. How he lived in the DEWEY, Orville, D.D., Unitarian; b. in Sheffield, Mass., March 28, 1794; d. there March 21, 1882. He was graduated at Williams College, 1814, and at Andover, 1819; was, soon after graduation, Dr. Channing's assistant; pastor of the Unitarian Church at New Bedford, Mass., 1823-33; of the Second Church of New-York City, 1835-48; of the New South Church, Boston, 1858-62. He was a frequent contributor to the North-American Review. His works were collected in 3 vols. in 1847 (N. Y.) and were in the twentieth edition in 1876. Since 1847 he issued his Lowell Lectures on the Problem of Human Destiny, N. Y., and Sermons on the Great Commandments, 1876. A new edition of his Works in one volume appeared in Boston, 1883. See his Autobiography and Letters, edited by his daughter, Boston, 1883.

DOBELL, John, b. 1757; d. at Poole, Dorset, May, 1840; was an exciseman of limited education, but wrote or edited several books, among them a very important and influential New Selection, 1806, including some rude hymns of his own, and many others not previously published, with the authors' names.

DODGE, Hon. William Earl, an eminent merchant and philanthropist; son of David Low and Sarah Cleveland Dodge, b. Sept. 4, 1805, in Hartford, Conn.; d. in New York, Feb. 9, 1883. Sprung from Puritan stock, he illustrated in a marked degree the sturdiness, enterprise, and piety of his ancestry. With a lithe figure, elastic step, keen black eye, a countenance beaming with intelligence and kindness, a mind discriminating and fertile in resources; with ready tact, pleasing address, sound judgment, and unceasing energy; forgetful of self; with broad views, yet adhering firmly to religious convictions; a wise and sympathetic adviser, a forcible speaker, and apt presiding officer,—he was a natural and acknowledged leader among men. He entered a store at thirteen; and with the exception of a short interval spent at his father's cotton-mills near Norwich, Conn., his entire life was passed in New York. He was identified with its mercantile, social, and religious interests, and took part in most of the great political and national movements of the day.

At first a dry-goods merchant, he soon joined in the establishment of Phelps, Dodge & Co., now one of the oldest houses in America. He was among the originators of the Erie, the New-Jersey Central, the Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western, the Houston and Texas Central, and other railroads. He was largely interested in manufactures, and had extensive lumber operations in different parts of the United States and the West Indies.
DODGE.

Sarah Platt Haines), Mrs. Thomas Dodge, b. in New-York City, Aug. 3, 1802; d. there Jan. 29, 1877. Her life was consecrated to Christ and to the relief of sorrow in every form. For thirty-two years she was a manager of the Woman's Prison Association, and from 1863 its presiding officer. For thirty-six years she was a manager of the City and Tract Mission Society, and twenty-eight years of the City Bible Society.

In 1855, by her hearty co-operation, she enabled Dr. J. Marion Sims (d. Nov. 18, 1883) to establish the Woman's Hospital in New-York City, the first institution of the kind to be founded anywhere. In 1860 she helped to organize the Presbyterian Home for Aged Women, presided at its first meeting, and continued a member. During the civil war she played a prominent part in distributing supplies to all the hospitals in and around the city. All her life she was a Sunday-school teacher, and greatly interested in child-life. Her own family was large, and she never forgot her home duties amid the distractions of her many public enterprises.

But her greatest work was for foreign missions. She was called the “Mother of Missions.” No missionary entered or left the port of New York without substantial evidence of her interest. At ten years of age she attended, with her mother, meetings held by Mrs. Isabella Graham and other women to pray for the conversion of the world; and from that time on she labored in the great cause. In 1828 she organized a band for the relief of the Greek Christians persecuted by the Turks, in 1835 a society in New York in aid of Madame Feller’s Baptist Mission at Grand Ligne, Canada. Her memorial is the Woman’s Union Missionary Society, which she organized in New York, November, 1860, and which has led to similar organizations all over the country. It is unconnected with any church board, is supported by voluntary contributions, and devoted to work among women high and low.

Mrs. Doremus was a member of the South Reformed (Dutch) Church; but in her love for...
EDMESTON, James, b. at Wapping, London, Sept. 10, 1791; d. at Homerton, Middlesex, Jan. 7, 1857; was an architect, but better known as a voluminous writer of sacred verse. Besides one or two prose-works he published The Search, and other Poems, 1817; Sacred Lyrics, 1820–22, 3 vols.; The Cottage Minstrel, 1821; a hundred hymns for Sunday schools, 1821; another hundred for particular occasions, and fifty for missionary prayer-meetings, 1822; Patmos, etc., 1824; The Woman of Shunem, etc., 1829; Sonnets: Hymns for the Chamber of Sickness, 1844; Closet Hymns and Poems, 1844; Infant Breathings, 1846; Sacred Poetry, 1847. In all he produced near two thousand of these effusions, some of which are spirited and elegant, while many of them have been useful, and one or two are still largely used.

ELLIOTT, Charlotte, b. 1789; d. at Brighton, Sept. 22, 1871; was a daughter of Charles Elliott, and sister of two somewhat eminent clergymen, Henry V. and Edward B.; but her "Just as I am" has been far more widely useful than her brother Edward's Hora Apocalyptica. She wrote Hours of Sorrows, 1836; Morning and Evening Hymns for a Week, 1842; Poems by C. E., 1863; and over a hundred lyrics in The Invalid's Hymn-Book, 1834–64, the last edition of which she edited, as also The Christian Remembrancer, an annual. Several of her hymns have been and are very popular. The earliest of them appeared in the Psalter and Hymns of her brother, Henry Venn, whose wife, Julia Anne Elliott (d. 1841), also contributed to it several of great merit.

ELLIOTT, David, D.D., LL.D., b. at Sherman Valley, Penn., Feb. 6, 1787, of pious ancestry, and carefully educated in religion; d. at Allegheny, Penn., March 18, 1874; diligent at academies; successful teacher at Washington, Penn., in 1805–06; valedictorian at Dickinson College in 1808; licensed, 1811; pastor from 1812 to 1829 at Mercersburg, Penn., from 1829 to 1836 at Washington, Penn. Both pastors were filled with "well-studied, clear, convincing, and persuasive" sermonizing, "the influence of their practice in discipline, organization of Christian activity in various directions, revival-seasons, initiation of prayer-meetings and Sunday schools, and accomplished by a steadily increasing influence in the denomination."

Dr. Elliott's educational life began with the re-organization of Washington College in 1830. Owing to his enterprise, wisdom, and resolution, the new movement rapidly attained success. He was "acting president" two years, president of the Board of Trustees thirty-nine years. His transfer to Allegheny in 1836 brought him to the theological seminary at one critical period, and he continued through many others. He made the burdens of the seminary his own, laid all his gifts and experience upon its altar, pleaded its cause against all opponents, bound it upon the heart of the church, increased the number of its students, often performed the extra duties of its unoccupied chairs, accepted whatever place best suited its needs, proved equal to every exigency in teaching and administration, sustained its work alone in 1840, begg'd it out of difficulties in 1850, watched with delight its later rapid growth, saw nearly a thousand men go from its doors to preach the gospel, and when made emeritus in 1870, lived to pray for it and with every student, and still lives as its model of piety and devotedness.

For ecclesiastical usefulness Dr. Elliott was pre-eminentlj fitted by clear thinking, directness in expression, perfect impartiality, and a judicial habit of mind. All these traits were often exhibited, but especially in the disruption assembly of 1837, of which his moderatorship was a marvel of fairness as tested by the feelings of the time, and his decisions unimpeachable in their accuracy as tested by subsequent judicial deliberations. Present and assenting at the re-union of the Presbyterian Church in 1869, he died, leaving to the church and the world the legacy of a great work well done, and of a character wonderfully symmetrical.

Ephraim. See Tribes of Israel.

ERSKINE, Ralph, b. at Monilaws, Northumberland, March 18, 1685; d. Oct. 6, 1752; was educated at the university of Edinburgh; became minister at Dunfermline 1711, and joined the seceders 1734. His Gospel Sonnets, 1732, which are extraordinary in their affect, far excelling in their merit, and their great number, were long very popular, and went through many editions. They were followed by A Paraphrase on the Song of Solomon, 1738, and Scripture Songs. His entire Poetical Works were printed in one volume, 8vo, Aberdeen, so lately as 1858.

EUCHARIST (Greek eucharistia, "a giving of thanks"); the ancient church-name for the sacrament of the Lord's Supper as a feast of thanksgiving, a thank-offering of the whole church; all the favors of God in creation and redemption. The term denoted in the first place the prayer of thanksgiving, which was part of the communion-service and the service itself. The sacrament is not so called in the New Testament; but the designation quite naturally followed from the use of expressing ("he had given thanks") in Matt. xxvi. 27, Mark xiv. 23, Luke xxi. 10, 1 Cor. xi. 24, and is used by Justin Martyr (Apol. i. 65, 66), Irenæus (Adv. haeres. iv. 44), Clement of Alexandria (Pedag. ii. 2), and others. See Lord's Supper.

FAWCETT, John, D.D., b. at Lidget Green near Bradford, Yorkshire, Jan. 6, 1739; d. at Brearley Hall near Waingate, July 25, 1817; was an eminent hymn-writer of the school of Watts. Converted under Whitefield in 1755, he became in 1764 Baptist minister at Waingate, and there remained through life, rejecting all allurements to larger fields. His most popular hymn, "Blest be the tie that binds," is said to have celebrated his refusal, under touching circumstances, of a London charge in 1772. He also declined the presidency of the Baptist academy at Bristol in 1793, and eked out his scanty income by taking pupils at home, and by his pen. He published The Devotional Family Bible, 1811, 2 vols., and sundry smaller works in prose, besides Poetic Essays, 1707, and a hundred and sixty-six Hymns, 1782, 2d ed., 1817. Many of these had merit enough to be largely used in former days, and some of them still retain a place in our collections. His Life and Letters were published by J. Parker, London, 1818.

FITCH, Eleazar Thompson, D.D., b. at New Haven, Jan. 1, 1791; d. there Jan. 31, 1871; graduated at Yale, 1810; studied theology at Andover; and was professor of divinity, and college pastor, at Yale, 1817-63. He published some sermons, etc., and was one of the compilers of the Connecticut Congregational Psalms and Hymns, for which he wrote a few pieces of merit.

FOLLEN, Eliza Lee (Cabot), b. in Boston, Aug. 15, 1787; d. at Brookline, Mass., Jan. 26, 1860; was a voluminous writer of prose and verse for children and adults. In 1828 she married Professor Charles Follen, who was exiled from Germany, fled to America, 1825, and was lost on the Island had been an eminent minister, and apparently acceptable, when in 1819 he was publicly opposed in Philadelphia. A separation in that Year took place in 1827; one party styling the other "Hickites" and "Separatists," these terms which have ever been repudiated. These Friends constituted the much larger portion of the membership in New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore Yearly Meetings.

The utterances of Elias Hicks will bear comparison with those of ancient Friends; and Job Scott of Rhode Island, who died in 1793, acknowledged to be an acceptable minister and writer, was his contemporary and of a kindred spirit. Facts prove that other causes were potent in producing the difficulties.

The re-organized Philadelphia Yearly Meeting in 1830 wrote to London Yearly Meeting: "We are not sensible of any dereliction on our part from the principles laid down by our blessed Lord. The history of the birth, life, acts, death, and resurrection of the holy Jesus, as in the volume of the book it is written of him, we reverently believe. We are not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, because it is the power of God unto salvation to all them that believe; neither do we hesitate to acknowledge the divinity of its author, because we know from living experience that is the power of God and the wisdom of God;" and, "under the present glorious dispensation, he is the one holy principle of divine life and light." Neither are we sensible of any departure from the faith or principles of our primitive Friends. We are not ignorant, that, on some points of a speculative nature, they had different views, and expressed themselves diversely. . . In the fundamental principle of the Christian faith, 'the light of Christ within, as God's gift for man's salvation,' . . . they were all united, and in that which united them we are united with them" (Printed Epistles).

The Scriptures, without this divine illumination, "will not give a knowledge of Christ" (Fox's Great Mystery).

"Christ is the substance of all figures, and his flesh is a figure; for every one passeth through the same way as he did who comes to know Christ in the flesh" (George Fox's Great Mystery).

"The true grounds of salvation by Christ . . . in all ages has been a real birth of God in the soul, a substantial union of the human and divine nature,—the Son of God and the Son of man, which is the true Emanuel state" (Job Scott).

The blood of Christ is dedicated with the blood, the life of Christ Jesus, which is the alone atonement unto God, by which all his people are washed, sanctified, cleansed, and redeemed to God. . . . The true witnesses of this" are "they only that have drunk of the blood of Christ, and eaten of his flesh, which he gives for the life of the world" (Fox's Doctrines).

Friends do not believe in imputative righteousness, nor that "Christ died as a substitute for the whole human race in order to satisfy the offended justice of God, and render him propitious to guilty man" (Janney's Conversations).

They do not accept the commonly received doctrine of the Trinity, and hold that children are only sinners by actual transgression of the law.

(For other views held by all branches of Friends, see under Friends.)

They have, at the Yearly Meetings, laboring jointly on behalf of the Indians; and recently four of these agreed to co-operate in a Union for Philanthropic Labor.

First-day schools are maintained in very many localities, and an official sanction to some extent has been extended. Swarthmore College, Pennsylvania, and Friends College, Long Island, are well patronized; and flourishing schools are supported in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and other places.

Lit.—THOMAS HAMMOND: Works, 1804—1708, Philadelphia and New York, 1831, 8 vols., and all other early Friends' writings; JOHN SCOTT: Journal, New York, 1797; Works, 1831, 2 vols.; ELIAS HICKS: Journal, New York, 1832; Letters, New York, 1834, Philadelphia, 1861; SERMONS, Philadelphia, 1825, New York, 1831; THOMAS WETHERALD: Sermons, Phila., 1825, Baltimore, 1864; HUGH JUDGE: Journal, 1841; EDWARD STABLES: Journal, 1846; JESSE KERREY: Narrative, 1851; FREDERICK JERVIS: Journal, 1853; Friends' Miscellany, 1831—39, 12 vols.; Memoir of Dr. Watts, issued by his brother, Lord Glenelg, in 1839. All of these are meritorious, most of them are more or less used as hymns, and two of them are of the first rank. "When gathering clouds around I view" appeared in the Christian Observer, February, 1806, and "Saviour, when in dust to thee," November, 1815.

He published Principles of Moral Philosophy, 1789; Duties of Men, 1795; Duties of the Female Sex, 1797; Familiar Survey of the Christian Religion and History, 1797; On Christian Morality, 1810; and several volumes of sermons, poems, etc. His Walks in a Forest (1794) was much esteemed, and one of his hymns is still valued by those who use it.

GOODE, William, b. at Buckingham, April 2, 1782; d. April 15, 1816; was educated at Magdalen Hall, Oxford; curate of Abbotts Langley, Herts, 1784; curate to Romaine at St. Ann, Blackfriars, London, 1786; rector of the same, 1795, besides filling several lectureships; was one of the founders of the Church Missionary Society. His New Version of the Book of Psalms (1811, 2 vols.) has been a good deal valued and extracted from. A volume of his sermons appeared, 1812; and his Essays On All the Scriptural Names and Titles Of Christ, etc., with a memoir, was published in six volumes by his son in 1822. The Divine Rule of Faith and Practice (1842), and sundry other works against the Tractarians, were written by a later London rector of the same name.

GRAHAM, James, b. at Glasgow, 1765; d. 1811; was educated at the university of Glasgow; was for a time a lawyer; took orders, and served as curate at Shipton, Gloucestershire, at St. Margarets, Durham, and at Sedgefield, near Durham. He published sundry poems, as The Sabbath (1804), Birds of Scotland, etc. (1806), which were once much valued.

GRANT, Sir Robert, b. 1785; d. at Dapoorie, in Western India, July 9, 1858; graduated at Cambridge, 1806; was admitted to the bar, 1807; member of Parliament for Inverness, 1826; privy-councillor, 1831; governor of Bombay, 1834. He wrote one or two books on India, and twelve Sacred Poems, issued by his brother, Lord Glenelg, in 1839. All of these are meritorious, most of them are more or less used as hymns, and two of them are of the first rank. "When gathering clouds around I view" appeared in the Christian Observer, February, 1806, and "Saviour, when in dust to thee," November, 1815.

GRIGG, Joseph, d. at Walthamstow, near London, Oct. 29, 1795; was a Presbyterian assistant minister in Silver Street, London, 1745—47, and after that seems to have lived at St. Albans and Stourbridge. He issued a few tracts in prose and verse. His hymns and poems were collected by D. Sedgwick, 1801: two of them have long been very popular. "Jesus, and shall it ever be," was written at the age of ten.

HAMMOND, William, b. at Battle, Sussex, Jan. 6, 1719; d. in London, Aug. 19, 1783; was educated at St. John's College, Cambridge, but joined the Calvinistic Methodists, and afterwards, with his friend Cennick, the Moravians. He published Medulla Ecclesiae (1744), and Psalms, Hymns, and Spiritual Songs (1745). The latter show the Wesleyan influence strongly, and form a volume of considerable size and importance. Many of them were not printed during the last century and one or two of them are still somewhat popular.
HANNA. 2598

HASTINGS.

HANNA, William, D.D., LL.D., author of the Life of Dr. Chalmers, etc.; b. at Belfast in 1808, and d. in London, May 24, 1882. Having studied in Glasgow, he became a licentiate of the Church of Scotland, and was settled at East Kilbride, and subsequently removed to Kirling, both in Lanarkshire. He married the eldest daughter of Dr. Chalmers. At the disruption, in 1843, he joined the Free Church. Subsequently he was called to Edinburgh as colleague to the Rev. Dr. Guthrie. He was a very grave and impressive preacher, but his fame rests chiefly on his books. Besides the Life and Letters of Dr. Chalmers (Edinburgh, 1849–52, 5 vols.), he published Lectures on the Unreasonableness of Religion (1741). He began preaching about 1759, and soon settled at the independent chapel in Jewin Street, where his ministry was most vigorous and effective. He was an advanced Calvinist, but not an Antinomian. Personally he was an original and striking, if not an attractive, character, with a plain and narrow mind, a temper sincere, vehement, and entirely devoted, and an utterance blunt and unpolished to the last degree. His Hymns, with the Author's Experience, appeared 1756, with additions 1759 and 1765. Like nearly all the lyrics of last century dissent, they are without refinement, or any evidence of culture, but not, like them, commonplace. Hart established a new and strong type of his own. His rudeness often runs into quaint boorishness, but has occasional gleams, not only of good sense and good feeling, but of something like poetry. Such as they are, these hymns have been immensely influential. With the extreme Calvinistic sects they have always been prime favorites, and some of them are still largely used by most English-speaking Christians. But the natural effect on a cultivated man is expressed in the familiar anecdote of Dr. Johnson's giving a crown at church to "a poor girl in a bedgown, though I saw Hart's Hymns in her hand."

HASTINGS, Thomas, Doctor of Music; b. in Washington, Conn., Oct. 15, 1784; d. in New York City, May 15, 1782; married Mrs. Clinton, Oneida County, N.Y. In early youth he began his musical studies, and prosecuted them without a teacher, mastering every treasure that came within his reach. He began his career as a teacher in singing-schools in 1809, and as an editor in 1816. In connection with Professor Norton of Hamilton College he published two pamphlets (1816), afterwards enlarged, and united with The Springfield Collection, in a volume entitled Musica Sacra. From 1823 to 1832 Mr. Hastings, by special request, was the editor of The Western Recorder, a religious paper published at Utica. In 1832, at the call of twelve churches, he removed to the city of New York. Not only had he studied his favorite art, but with great diligence he had applied himself to the study of English literature, philosophy, and theology, and had acquired facility in public address and in writing. Before leaving Utica, he had begun to write hymns, impelled by the lack of variety in those then current, and by the need of adapting suitable words to the music he arranged. In the Spiritual Songs (1832) there are more than thirty of his hymns published anonymously. Among them are some of the best that he wrote; such as, "How calm and beautiful the morn!" "Gently, Lord, oh gently lead us," "Child of sin and sorrow." The popularity of these first attempts led him to continue and cultivate the habit thus early begun. About two hundred of his hymns are in current use, and he left in manuscript about four hundred more. Doubtless his name will live longer as a writer of hymns than as a writer of tunes. His music, with that of Dr. Lowell Mason, did important service in the church, and marks in this country the transition period between the crude and the more cultured periods of psalmody. In his lifetime Dr. Hastings was criticised, as a musician, as too far in advance of the general cultivation; now he is criticised as too far behind the present wants. Both criticisms point to the truth that he aimed to lead higher the people of his own time. His cardinal principle was, that in church music the artistic must be strictly subordinated to the devotional. He was a devout and an earnest Christian, a hard student, a resolute worker, not laying aside his pen till three days before his death, which came to his relief in his eighty-eighth year. A list of his publications, with their dates, is subject to correction. Among them are:

Musica Sacra, 1816–22; The Musical Reader, 1819; A Dissertation on Musical Taste, 1822, revised and republished, 1853; Spiritual Songs (Dr. Lowell Mason, co-editor), 1832–36; Prayer, 1831; The Christian Psalmist (the Rev. Dr. William Paton, co-editor), 1836; *Author's Hymn-book, The Sacred Lyre, 1840; Juvenile Songs, 1842; The Crystal Fountain, 1847; The Sunday-school Lyre, 1848. With William B. Bradbury as joint editor from 1844 to 1851,—

*The Psalmodist, 1844; The Choralist, 1847; The Mendelssohn Collection, 1849; The Psalms, 1851; Devotional Hymns and Poems, 1850; The History of Forty Choirs, 1854; Sacred Praise, The Selah, 1856; Church Melodies, 1858; Hastings's Church Music, 1856; The Western Recorder, 1858; The Sunday-school Lyre, 1859; With Dr. Hastings edited, for the American Tract Society, Sacred Songs (1855) and Songs of Zion (1856); and, for the Presbyterian Church, The Presbyterian Psalmist (1852) and The Juvenile Psalmist.

THOMAS S. HASTINGS.
HATFIELD, Edwin Francis, D.D., b. at Elizabethtown, N. J., Jan. 9, 1807; d. at Summit, N. J., Sept. 22, 1883. He was graduated at Middlebury College, Vt., 1829; studied two years (1828-31) at Andover Theological Seminary; was pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Boston, 1839-45; of the Seventh Presbyterian Church, New-York City, 1864-70, and then of the united body. In 1846 he was a member of the Re-Union Committee of the New-School Assembly. In 1848 he was elected moderator of the General Assembly; and, although seventy-six years old, he discharged the onerous duties of the position with surprising freshness and vigor. He was an eminent student of hymnology, had collected a large and valuable library in this branch, and in 1872 published at New York The Church Hymn-Book, with Tunes. His library is now in the Union Theological Seminary, New-York City. His acquaintance with ecclesiastical polity, with parliamentary law, and with the history and the members of the Presbyterian Church, was remarkable. He wrote the Memoir of Elihu W. Baldwin, D.D., 1843; St. Helena and the Cape of Good Hope, 1852; and The History of Elizabeth, N. J., 1883. For his contributions to this encyclopedia, see Analysis.

HAWEIS, Thomas, M. D., b. at Truro, Cornwall, 1792; d. at Bath, Feb. 11, 1839; was educated at Christ College, Cambridge; became rector of Aldwinkle, Northamptonshire, 1864, and chaplain to Lady Huntington. He published Communicant's Spiritual Companion, 1763; Evangelical Principles and Practice, 1762; Evangelical Expositor, 1766-93, 2 vols. Improvement of the Church Canons, 1767; Transactions of the New Testament, 1795; Life of Romaine, 1797; History of the Church, 1800, 3 vols. His Carmina Christo, or Hymns to the Saviour, appeared 1792 and 1808: some of them are valuable and popular.

HEGINbotham, Orriwell, b. 1744; d. at Sudbury, 1768; was a student of Daventry, and a youth of "uncommon merit and abilities." Nov. 20, 1766, he was ordained at Sudbury as pastor of a congregation made up of two hostile parties, whose disputes drove him (being noted for "sensibility, gentleness, and tenderness") into consumption and an early grave. His twenty-five hymns were not printed till 1794, in a small volume now rare. They are of fair merit, and have been considerably used.

HEMANS, Felicia Dorothea (Brown), b. in Liverpool, Sept. 25, 1794; d. near Dublin, May, 1839; married to Capt. Hemans 1812, and separated from him 1815. Her voluminous poetry, first stamped popular by some nineteen separate publications, beginning 1808, and was collected, with a memoir by her sister, 1839, in 7 vols. Her Hymns for Childhood, and Scenes and Hymns of Life, were her last publications, 1834.

HERBERT, Daniel, b. about 1751; d. Aug. 29, 1833; was an illiterate but indefatigable rhymr, whose Hymns and Poems (1819-27) fill three volumes of over a thousand pages. Despicable from a literary view point, they have been used by extreme Calvinists. His Christ and Calvary (1828), was actuated by a noble motive, viz., the desire of raising much money. He was Stated Clerk of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church from 1846 until his death, first of the New-School Assembly (1846-70), and then of the united body. In 1848 he was elected moderator of the General Assembly; and, although seventy-six years old, he discharged the onerous duties of the position with surprising freshness and vigor. He was an eminent student of hymnology, had collected a large and valuable library in this branch, and in 1872 published at New York The Church Hymn-Book, with Tunes. His library is now in the Union Theological Seminary, New-York City. His acquaintance with ecclesiastical polity, with parliamentary law, and with the history and the members of the Presbyterian Church, was remarkable. He wrote the Memoir of Elihu W. Baldwin, D.D., 1843; St. Helena and the Cape of Good Hope, 1852; and The History of Elizabeth, N. J., 1883. For his contributions to this encyclopedia, see Analysis.

HERRICK, Robert, b. in London, Aug. 20, 1591; d. at Dean Prior's, Devon, October, 1744; was one of the most eminent of our lyric poets; was educated at Trinity Hall, Cambridge; M.A., 1617; vicar of Dean Prior's, 1728; ejected by the Puritans, 1649, and reinstated 1660. His Noble Numbers appeared 1647, and Hesperides, or Works both Human and Divine, 1748. The frequent levity or licentiousness of what he calls

"My unaptizted rhymes, Writ in my wild, unallowed times," rather heavily overweighs his occasional sober moods, and but a small proportion of his verses entitle him to be called a sacred poet; but his fresh style and joyous fancy have won as many admirers in our time as he ever had. His "Litanie to the Holy Spirit" is well known.

HERRON, Francis, B. Aug. 28, 1774, near Shippensburg, Penn.; d. Dec. 6, 1860, at Pittsburgh, Penn. He was born of Scotch-Irish and pious parents, and trained by them and the times to faith and manliness; Dickinson graduate, May, 1794; studied theology with Cooper; licensed Oct. 4, 1797; toughened by severe journey West, 1798-99, kindled by great revivals in progress there; settled at Rocky Springs, Penn., in April, 1800, and, after eleven years' successful pastorate, translated to Pittsburgh First Church.

Here began "labors more abundant." As preacher, he was careful in preparation, impressive, and experimental. The house, too large before, soon became too small. As pastor, he was affectionate, accessible, and progressive in methods. As presbyter, a born leader in synod and presbytery, and moderator of General Assembly in 1827. He was president of the board of directors of the Theological Seminary, Allegheny, from its beginning, and, as such, pursued its location at Allegheny, he carried the institution by force of will, large influence, incessant begging, and indomitable trust in its future. As Pittsburgher, he was devoted to the city's interests, jealous of its morals, helpful in extending the churches, founding the first Moral Association, and holding the first temperance meetings.

He was pre-eminently a man to mould the times. "There are but two things in Pittsburgh," was once said,—"Dr. Herron and the Devil; and the doctor seems to be getting the advantage."

In personal influence he was commanding and magnetic (aided by an unequalled mastery of presence), equal to emergencies in church or city, with pronounced opinions and well-understood convictions, sound judgment, and warm sympathies, of remarkable courage, and great practical wisdom.

SYLVESTER F. SCOVEL

HERZOG, Johann Jakob, D.D., b. at Basel, Sept. 12, 1805; d. at Erlangen, Sept. 30, 1882. He pursued his university studies (1823-29) at Basel and Berlin. In 1830 he became licentiate in theology, and privatdocent in the university of Basel. In 1835 he was called as provisional, but in 1838 was appointed definitely professor of historical theology in the academy at Lausanne. There his colleague was Alexandre Vinet (see art.). He contributed to the Studien u. Kritiken, 1838, an essay on Zwingli's doctrine of providence and election. Four years later he issued his life of John Calvin (Basel, 1843), and the same year and place his elaborate Life of Eclectus, the Reformation in Basel (Basel, 2 vols.). In 1845 he criticized the Plymouth Brethren in his Les frères de Plymouth et John Darby, Lausanne, and that year resigned his professorship (November, 1845) in consequence of a radical revolution, and retired into private life, until, on Tholuck's suggestion, he was called in 1847 to Halle as professor of church history. His acquaintance with two Waldensian students at Lausanne had led him to investigate that ancient sect's early history, and he published De Origine et pristino statu Waldensium (Halle, 1848), the first-fruits of such study. His essay attracted great attention; and under the patronage of the Russian Government he made a journey through Switzerland, France, and Ireland for the inspection of manuscripts belonging to the Waldensians. In 1853 he published Die romanischen Waldenser (Halle); in which he proved, that both the Waldensian and other historians were mistaken in attributing to the sect direct primitive descent from apostolic times, but, on the contrary, that the Roman-Catholic historians were right in maintaining that it started in the twelfth century. He also showed, that the sect had from the beginning biblical principles, but was first brought by the Hussite movement and the Reformation of the sixteenth century upon truly Protestant ground. His work was based upon comprehensive and careful study of the sources, and written in a friendly spirit. In 1854 Herzog went to Erlangen as professor of Reformed theology; and there he lectured until 1877, when he retired upon a pension. At the time of his death he had just finished his Abriss der gesammten Kirchengeschichte, Erlangen, 1878-82, 3 vols. Translations into Swedish, French, and Italian have been made, or are in preparation. It was Dr. Herzog's intention to add a supplementary volume, upon the church history of the nineteenth century.
HERZOG, 2600

But Dr. Herzog's greatest service was his Real-Encyklopädie der Protestantischen Kirche (1871). The idea of a religious encyclopedia of a very comprehensive character had long been in the minds of Protestant theologians, and preparations had been made for it under the editorship of Schneckensburger (q.v.); but the Revolution of 1848 put a temporary end to the enterprise. After the excitement of that time had passed, and their business again justified it, the publishers revived the project; and Tholuck was asked to take charge of it, Schneckensburger having meanwhile died (1848); but he recommended Herzog, his colleague, and under the latter's care the first volume appeared at Hamburg in 1854, and the twenty-second and last volume, which contained the very elaborate index, at Gotha in 1868. The encyclopedia was an extraordinary success. It became at once a standard and indispensable work. Such a display of learning had not been previously made. And Dr. Herzog was just the man for his position,—learned, modest, energetic, wide in his sympathies, and liberal in his theology; for, although of the Reformed Church, he had the friendliest feelings towards Lutherans. He treated his contributors with uniform courtesy, kindness, and liberality. Besides bearing the burden of responsibility and care necessarily attached to the editing of so extensive a work, he assumed a large part of the authorship, contributing no less than five hundred and twenty-nine articles, some of them quite extensive and elaborate. But within less than ten years after the completion of his encyclopedia he was called upon to edit a second edition. He prudently allied to himself a younger man, Professor G. L. Pritz, his colleague; and the first volume of the new edition appeared at Leipzig in 1877. Professor Pritz died in 1880, after the completion of the seventh volume. Dr. Herzog then associated with himself another colleague, Professor Albert Hauck, and three volumes appeared under their conduct; but part 103, the third part of the eleventh volume, brought the announcement that Dr. Herzog had finished his work on earth.

HORNBlower, William Henry, D.D., b. March 21, 1820, at Newark, N.J.; son of Chief Justice Hornblower; graduated at Princeton College in 1835; led to Christ by a tract written by Dr. Archibald Alexander, and devoted himself to the ministry; graduated from Princeton seminary in 1843; ordained by presbytery of Elizabeth-town; missionated some months; ordained and installed pastor of church at Paterson, N.J., Jan. 30, 1844; resigned in October, 1871, to become professor of sacred rhetoric, pastoral theology, and church government in the Western Theological Seminary of the Presbyterian Church at Allegheny, Penn.; died in that position, July 16, 1883.

He relinquished brilliant prospects in choosing the ministry, and proved his earnestness by devotedness. He earned so good a degree in the faith as to gratify the pride felt in him by Dr. Alexander. His diligence in biblical study issued in critical skill in Scripture exegesis. This found expression in the scholarly, discriminating, and edifying work done in editing and enlarging the Schaff-Nigerbach-Lange Commentary on the Lamentations, published in 1872.

Dr. Hornblower's unvarying characteristics were a firm gentleness, a dignified courtesy, a winning and unselfish interest in others, a tenderness to the suffering which overlooked none. He was the most loving, bright, and genial of friends, the stanchest of advocates where principle was concerned, and eminently spiritually minded and devout.

SylvesteR F. SCovel.

Hoskins, Joseph, b. 1745; d. at Bristol, Sept. 28, 1788; was for his last ten years an earnest and successful dissenting minister at Castle-Green Chapel, Bristol. His three hundred and eighty four hymns, 1770, 1782, are of the humblest and most commonplace character; but a few of them are still used.

Hurn, William, b. at Breccles Hall, Norfolk, Dec. 21, 1754; d. at Woodbridge, Oct. 9, 1829; was ordained, 1781, and became vicar of Debenham, Suffolk, 1782; he left the Established Church, and in 1823 became Congregational pastor at Woodbridge. He wrote The Fundamental Principles of the Established Church proved to be the Doctrine of the Scripture, 1790; A Farewell Testimony, 1823; Reasons for Secession, 1830; A Glance at the Stage, A Catechism, and at the commencement of the New Earth it was four hundred and twenty Hymns, 1813–24. Most of the medium and intercession of a powerful being whom they denominate Na-wen-a-bo-nó, that they were allowed to exist, and a code of religion was more lately bestowed upon them, whereby they could commune with the offended Great Spirit, and ward off the approach and ravages of death. They thus term ‘Me-da-wi-win,’ or ‘Grand Medicine.’

All the heathen Indians firmly believe, as the above writer states, that the Grand Medicine was given them by the Great Spirit. He is also right in saying that they use it in obtaining long life in this world, and warding off the ravages of sickness and death. It has no reference to life in the other world, all the Indian’s hopes and fears being bounded by this life. He tries to prolong his life in this world by every means, of which he esteems this the very chief; but beyond that his thoughts do not go. He has no fear or dread of the future, nor any idea that his actions here may influence his state there. Very often, accompanying his most solemn performance of the Grand Medicine, there will be in the same vicinity gamblers, lewdness, and even murder; but he is not thought that there is anything out of consonance with what he is engaged in. Very often he is drunk when beginning its performance, and that is thought to be just as proper as if he were sober.

As to their belief about the immortality of the soul, it cannot be more exactly told than in the words of the writer before quoted, who had it from Indian sources, and was most careful to have it exactly correct.

When an Ojibway dies, his body is placed in a grave, generally in a sitting posture, facing the west. With his body are buried all the articles needed in life for a journey,—of a man, his gun, blanket, kettle, fire-steel, flint, and moccasins; of a woman, her moccasins, axe, portage-collar, blanket, and kettle.

The soul is supposed to stand, immediately after the death of the body, on a deep beaten path, which leads westward. The first object he comes to in following this path is the great ‘Odeimin’ (‘Heart-berry’), or strawberry, which stands on the roadside like a huge rock, and from which he takes a handful, and eats on his way.

The Ojibways call the road which leads to this place “Tchi-be-kuna,” or “the Road of Souls.” They all—good, bad, and indifferent—expect to go there, and to find all their relatives there. There, also, they believe they will be waited on by the souls of those whom they have slain in battle, as slaves.

When entering on manhood, the heathen Indian practises a rigid fast, that he may, if possible, obtain a vision of the Great Spirit, or of some subordinate spirit, and may in consequence be directed to a long and prosperous life. He builds himself a sort of nest in a tree, or on the top of a rock, and there retires, and fasts for from four to ten days, till he obtains the much desired vision, or is compelled by hunger to desist. By this vision, if he obtain it, all his subsequent life is directed. He never mentions it but with the utmost veneration, and even with the sacrifice of tobacco, or some other thing precious to him, to the spirit of the vision he has seen.

They often hang up an offering of tobacco or clothing on poles to the sun (whom they so see) or is compelled by hunger to desist. By this vision, if he obtain it, all his subsequent life is directed. He never mentions it but with the utmost veneration, and even with the sacrifice of tobacco, or some other thing precious to him, to the spirit of the vision he has seen.

The Indians are not so quick to adopt Christianity, or any new thing, as the negroes, being very slow and deliberate in the movement of their minds; but, once embraced, they cling faster to it. They seem to value religion, when they do embrace it, far higher than we, as, indeed, it is often all they have. It makes them well dressed, clean, quiet, and industrious.

The system of free rations should cease the earliest possible moment, and in its stead a complete outfit for farming should be offered to every Indian family willing to commence that life; namely, a hundred and sixty acres of land in severalty, a yoke of oxen, wagon, sleigh, cow, plough, harrow, and all necessary farming-implements, seed for his land, and provisions to last until he can raise a crop; and, having once given him this complete outfit, let him then shift for himself. If, as is often the case, he has been always so babied, it would take all the manliness and self-reliance out of them.

And, with all this, let missions be sustained among them by the good Christian people; so that Christianity can have an opportunity to do its work among them, and raise them, as it has raised all other people with whom it has come in contact. And, as the chiefest means to this end, let native Indian clergy be raised up and employed, of whom there are now very many, and whose labors have been blessed with abundant success. Thus employing the two powerful arms, — the temporal and the spiritual, education and Christianity, — an end will be reached which will gladden every lover of humanity, and solve the most difficult of problems.

JOHNS, John, D.D., b. in New Castle, Del., July 10, 1796; d. April 5, 1876, at the Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia. Bishop Johns entered Princeton College in 1812, and graduated with the first honors in 1815. In 1816 he entered the theological seminary of Princeton. In both the college and seminary he was the classmate of Rev. Dr. Charles Hodge. Their friendship was lasting, and, like that of David and Jonathan, was "wonderful." On hearing of Bishop Johns's death, Dr. Hodge said, "I have no such friend on earth."

He was ordained by Bishop White in 1819. His first charge was in Frederick, Md.; from thence, in 1829, he became rector of Christ Church in Baltimore, where he remained till he was elected assistant bishop of the diocese of Virginia. He was consecrated in 1842, and on the death of Bishop Meade, in 1862, became bishop.

Bishop Johns was no ordinary man. He was by his natural gifts "fashioned to much honor." His classmate, Dr. Hodge, said of him, "He was always first,—first everywhere, and first in every thing." He had a well modulated voice, an earnest and impassioned delivery, a tenacious memory, and extraordinary fluency of language, which made him very popular as a preacher. As bishop, in the administration of his diocese and of the affairs of the church generally, he manifested wisdom, prudence, and gentleness. He was also a professor of homiletics and pastoral theology in the Protestant-Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia. As a man he was greatly beloved for the indescribable charm of his manner and the warmth of his friendship. His last hours were cheered by the full assurance of faith in that gospel he had always preached. The sting of death was taken away, and the grave robbed of its victory.

JOYCE, James, b. at Frome, Somersetshire, Nov. 2, 1781; d. at Dorking, Oct. 9, 1850; was vicar of Dorking, and wrote A Treatise on Love to God, 1822, The Lay of Truth, 1825, and some hymns, one of which, on the Jews, is much used. His last hours were cheered by the full assurance of faith in that gospel he had always preached. The sting of death was taken away, and the grave robbed of its victory.

KEY, Francis Scott, b. in Frederick County, Md., Aug. 1, 1779; d. in Baltimore, Jan. 11, 1848; is remembered as the author of The Star-spaugled Banner, 1814. He was educated at St. John's College, Annapolis; began to practice law at Freder-ick, Md.; removed to Washington, and became United-States district attorney. His Poema, 1857, include three hymns of some value.

KRAUTH, Charles Porterfield, D.D., LL.D., b. in Martinsburgh, Va., March 17, 1823; d. in Philadelphia, Jan. 2, 1883. He was the oldest son of Charles Philip Krauth, D.D.; was educated at Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn. (of which his father was president), graduating in 1839, and at the Lutheran Theological Seminary at the same place; was pastor at Baltimore, Md. (1841-47), Shepherdstown, Va. (1847-49), Winchester, Va. (1850-53), and in several churches in Philadelphia after 1859; editor of Lutheran and Missionary, 1861-67; professor of systematic theology in the Lutheran seminary at Philadelphia from its foundation in 1864 until his death; professor of mental and modern science, University of Pennsylvania, from 1868; vice-provost of same institution from 1873. He was a member of the American Oriental Society, of the American Philosophical Society, and of the Old Testament Society, a member of the American Bible Revision Committee. He was by universal acknowledgment the most accomplished scholar and theologian of the Lutheran Church in the United States. Furnished with a well-selected library of fourteen thousand volumes, which, in some of the departments represented, was almost exhaustive with respect to primary sources of information, a most exact and conscientious student of a wide range of learning, especially fond of the most minute and thorough investigations that penetrated all the ramifications and development of a subject concerning which he was searching, endowed with rare powers as a thinker, writer, and debater, and with social gifts that always made him the centre and admiration of every circle in which he moved, he has left a permanent impress on the life and heart of the entire church. His associates in the Bible Revision Committee record their estimate in the words, "America has produced few men who united in their own persons so many of the excellences which distinguish the scholar, the theologian, the exegete, the debater, and leader of his brethren, as did our accomplished associate. His learning did not smother his genius, nor did his philosophical attainments impair the simplicity of his faith." His greatest work, The Conservative Reformation and its Theology (Philadelphia, 1872), is both historical and doctrinal. He translated Tholuck's Commentary on John (1859) and Ulrici's Review of Strauss (1874), and edited Berkeley's Principles of Human Knowledge (1874) and Fleming's Vocabulary of Philosophy (1880), to the last edition of which (1877) he added a Vocabulary of the Philosophical Sciences of almost equal size with the main work. He was an associate editor of Johnstone's Cyclopedia. His review articles are numerous. In the controversy in the Lutheran church which resulted in a division in 1868, Dr. Krauth was the leader of the wing, which, after the separation in the General Synod, established the General Council upon the confessional basis he has defended in The Conservative Reformation, viz., that of a strict adherence to the sym-bolical books. The revised doctrinal basis of the General Synod (1869) is a modification of a form of subscription to the Augsburg Confession he had prepared for the Pittsburgh Synod (1868). Of the General Council he was president for ten years, composed its Fundamental Principles of Faith and Church Polity, co-operated largely in the determination of its liturgical forms, moulded to a great extent all its legislation involving doctrinal questions, while, in the defence of doctrinal theses he at various times presented, all his exalted gifts shone with their fullest brilliancy. Failing health prevented the completion of a life of Luther for the fourth Luther centenary, for which he had made extensive preparations, including a visit to the lands of the Reformation, in 1880. A memoir is in preparation by his son-in-law and colleague, Dr. A. Spaeth. See also biographical...
Leland, John, b. at Grafton, Mass., May 14, 1772; d. at North Adams, Jan. 14, 1841; was an eminent and active Baptist minister and politician in Virginia, 1775-90, and thenceforth at Conway, Cheshire, and New Ashford, Mass., excepting the years 1804-06 in New-York State. His influence contributed largely to the election of Madison instead of Patrick Henry to the Virginia Convention, and the consequent ratification of the United-States Constitution. Leland was a man of some talent and immense energy, and a local celebrity and power through life. He preached near eight thousand sermons, baptized 1,278 persons, and published some thirty pamphlets. He wrote some hymns, one or two of which are still used. His autobiography, sermons, etc., appeared 1846.

Lenox, James, b. in New-York City, August, 1800; d. there Feb. 17, 1880. He inherited and possessed all his life great wealth, but lived in near eight thousand sermons, baptized 1,278 persons, and published some thirty pamphlets. He wrote some hymns, one or two of which are still used. His autobiography, sermons, etc., appeared 1846.

Leland, John, b. at Grafton, Mass., May 14, 1772; d. at North Adams, Jan. 14, 1841; was an eminent and active Baptist minister and politician in Virginia, 1775-90, and thenceforth at Conway, Cheshire, and New Ashford, Mass., excepting the years 1804-06 in New-York State. His influence contributed largely to the election of Madison instead of Patrick Henry to the Virginia Convention, and the consequent ratification of the United-States Constitution. Leland was a man of some talent and immense energy, and a local celebrity and power through life. He preached near eight thousand sermons, baptized 1,278 persons, and published some thirty pamphlets. He wrote some hymns, one or two of which are still used. His autobiography, sermons, etc., appeared 1846.
MEDLEY.

in Aid of Self-Improvement, 1854; Among Transgressors, 1860; A Group of Six Sermons, 1869; The Mornington Lecture, 1870; and Sermons for my Curates, 1871, reprinted as The Moral of Accidents, etc. Some of these were not so much written by him, as reported from his delivery.

In 1853 he published The Rivulet, a Contribution to Sacred Song. This was attacked with great virulence by James Grant in the Morning Advertiser, and Dr. John Campbell in The British Banner. Newman Hall, Thomas Binney, and other leading Independents stood by Mr. Lynch; and thus arose the once famous "Rivulet Controversy," which filled some thousand pages,chiefly of closely printed octavo. The most memorable part in it was borne by Lynch himself, as "Silent Long," in Songs Controversial and The Ethics of Quotation, and under his own name in the Christian Spectator for November, 1856. In his puny frame dwelt an indomitable spirit, with the indignation as of a Hebrew prophet for meannesses, shams, compromises. The Rivulet won him many friends, and the assaults upon it many enemies. The book itself is full of fresh thought, delicate poetry, uncommonplace experience, and quiet devotion: it reached a third edition, much enlarged, in 1868. Selections from it are found in many recent hymnals, both English and American; the most familiar of them beginning, "Gracious Spirit, dwell with me." See Lynch's Memoirs, edited by William White, London, 1874.

MACURDY, Elisha, b. Oct. 15, 1763, in Carlsile, Penn.; d. at Pittsburgh, Penn., July, 1845. Education interrupted by the Revolution and family embarrassment. Character early developed. Total abstainer from boyhood. Advised by presbyteries, the stern advocate of sound discipline, the relentless opponent of laxity in doctrine, the relentless opponent of laxity in discipline, the relentless opponent of laxity in discipline, the relentless opponent of laxity in discipline, the relentless opponent of laxity in discipline, the relentless opponent of laxity in discipline; first at academy, and then at Princeton College, from 1770. Awakened in the academy when less than seventeen years old, he passed through characteristically strong religious struggles, but finally yielded his will to God's call to the ministry. His theological studies were with Dr. Robert Smith of Pequea. He was ordained at Chambersburg, Penn., June, 1776, as pastor of Chartiers and Pigeon Creek in Washington County. Revolution intervening, he visited the congregations frequently, but removed with his family only in November, 1778. Once settled among a people grappling with the forests, and surrounded by savages housed in log huts, clothed in linsey-woolsey, fed from the products of their own labor, but true to God and their standards, he shared their lot, organized their churches, re- induced rising immorality, kept the generations true to the faith, provided for a needed ministry, visited, catechized, preached and lived the truth through the nearly sixty years' most fruitful ministry, whose fruits remain. He was prominent in the revivals of 1795, when the people spent whole nights in prayer, of 1798, of 1799, of 1802, and of 1823. As ecclesiastic, he was the nucleus of presbyteries, the stern advocate of sound discipline, the relentless opponent of laxity in doctrine, the relentless opponent of laxity in discipline, the relentless opponent of laxity in discipline, the relentless opponent of laxity in discipline, the relentless opponent of laxity in discipline; as citizen, he was the defense of law and order during the whiskey insurrection (1794); as educator, he was the father of the "Log-cabin College," the "founder of Jefferson," and the teacher in theology of more than a hundred ministers, who were well taught despite defective apparatus. He resigned his pastoral charge in 1820.

MEDLEY, Samuel, b. at Cheshunt, Herts, June 28, 1738; d. at Liverpool, July 17, 1799; was apprenticed to an oilman in London, 1752; entered the navy as a midshipman, 1755; was wounded, 1768, and soon after "converted," opened a school in London, 1769 or 1761; became Baptist pastor at Watford, Herts, 1767, and at Liverpool, 1772, where his ministry was earnest and efficient. His Hymns appeared on leaflets or broadsides: seventy-seven of them were gathered in a volume, 1769, and two hundred and thirty-two in 1800. They show some talent, but powerful influence on the West. Macurdy's Indian work as remarkable for sagacity, bravery, perseverance, and self-sacrifice. Eight missionary journeys to Wyandottes, Maunnees, etc., travelling forty-five hundred miles, all on horseback. Pastorate resigned, 1835, for infirmity. Labored unremittingly in Allegheny City as long as strength endured. SYLVESTER F. SCOVEL.

MACURDY, Elisha, b. Oct. 15, 1763, in Carlsile, Penn.; d. at Pittsburgh, Penn., July, 1845. Education interrupted by the Revolution and family embarrassment. Character early developed. Total abstainer from boyhood. Advised by presbyteries, the stern advocate of sound discipline, the relentless opponent of laxity in doctrine, the relentless opponent of laxity in discipline, the relentless opponent of laxity in discipline, the relentless opponent of laxity in discipline; first at academy, and then at Princeton College, from 1770. Awakened in the academy when less than seventeen years old, he passed through characteristically strong religious struggles, but finally yielded his will to God's call to the ministry. His theological studies were with Dr. Robert Smith of Pequea. He was ordained at Chambersburg, Penn., June, 1776, as pastor of Chartiers and Pigeon Creek in Washington County. Revolution intervening, he visited the congregations frequently, but removed with his family only in November, 1778. Once settled among a people grappling with the forests, and surrounded by savages housed in log huts, clothed in linsey-woolsey, fed from the products of their own labor, but true to God and their standards, he shared their lot, organized their churches, re- induced rising immorality, kept the generations true to the faith, provided for a needed ministry, visited, catechized, preached and lived the truth through the nearly sixty years' most fruitful ministry, whose fruits remain. He was prominent in the revivals of 1795, when the people spent whole nights in prayer, of 1798, of 1799, of 1802, and of 1823. As ecclesiastic, he was the nucleus of presbyteries, the stern advocate of sound discipline, the relentless opponent of laxity in doctrine, the relentless opponent of laxity in discipline, the relentless opponent of laxity in discipline; as citizen, he was the defense of law and order during the whiskey insurrection (1794); as educator, he was the father of the "Log-cabin College," the "founder of Jefferson," and the teacher in theology of more than a hundred ministers, who were well taught despite defective apparatus. He resigned his pastoral charge in 1820.

MEDLEY, Samuel, b. at Cheshunt, Herts, June 28, 1738; d. at Liverpool, July 17, 1799; was apprenticed to an oilman in London, 1752; entered the navy as a midshipman, 1755; was wounded, 1768, and soon after "converted," opened a school in London, 1769 or 1761; became Baptist pastor at Watford, Herts, 1767, and at Liverpool, 1772, where his ministry was earnest and efficient. His Hymns appeared on leaflets or broadsides: seventy-seven of them were gathered in a volume, 1769, and two hundred and thirty-two in 1800. They show some talent, but powerful influence on the West. Macurdy's Indian work as remarkable for sagacity, bravery, perseverance, and self-sacrifice. Eight missionary journeys to Wyandottes, Maunnees, etc., travelling forty-five hundred miles, all on horseback. Pastorate resigned, 1835, for infirmity. Labored unremittingly in Allegheny City as long as strength endured. SYLVESTER F. SCOVEL.

MACURDY, Elisha, b. Oct. 15, 1763, in Carlsile, Penn.; d. at Pittsburgh, Penn., July, 1845. Education interrupted by the Revolution and family embarrassment. Character early developed. Total abstainer from boyhood. Advised by presbyteries, the stern advocate of sound discipline, the relentless opponent of laxity in doctrine, the relentless opponent of laxity in discipline, the relentless opponent of laxity in discipline; first at academy, and then at Princeton College, from 1770. Awakened in the academy when less than seventeen years old, he passed through characteristically strong religious struggles, but finally yielded his will to God's call to the ministry. His theological studies were with Dr. Robert Smith of Pequea. He was ordained at Chambersburg, Penn., June, 1776, as pastor of Chartiers and Pigeon Creek in Washington County. Revolution intervening, he visited the congregations frequently, but removed with his family only in November, 1778. Once settled among a people grappling with the forests, and surrounded by savages housed in log huts, clothed in linsey-woolsey, fed from the products of their own labor, but true to God and their standards, he shared their lot, organized their churches, re- induced rising immorality, kept the generations true to the faith, provided for a needed ministry, visited, catechized, preached and lived the truth through the nearly sixty years' most fruitful ministry, whose fruits remain. He was prominent in the revivals of 1795, when the people spent whole nights in prayer, of 1798, of 1799, of 1802, and of 1823. As ecclesiastic, he was the nucleus of presbyteries, the stern advocate of sound discipline, the relentless opponent of laxity in doctrine, the relentless opponent of laxity in discipline; as citizen, he was the defense of law and order during the whiskey insurrection (1794); as educator, he was the father of the "Log-cabin College," the "founder of Jefferson," and the teacher in theology of more than a hundred ministers, who were well taught despite defective apparatus. He resigned his pastoral charge in 1820.

MEDLEY, Samuel, b. at Cheshunt, Herts, June 28, 1738; d. at Liverpool, July 17, 1799; was apprenticed to an oilman in London, 1752; entered the navy as a midshipman, 1755; was wounded, 1768, and soon after "converted," opened a school in London, 1769 or 1761; became Baptist pastor at Watford, Herts, 1767, and at Liverpool, 1772, where his ministry was earnest and efficient. His Hymns appeared on leaflets or broadsides: seventy-seven of them were gathered in a volume, 1769, and two hundred and thirty-two in 1800. They show some talent, but powerful influence on the West. Macurdy's Indian work as remarkable for sagacity, bravery, perseverance, and self-sacrifice. Eight missionary journeys to Wyandottes, Maunnees, etc., travelling forty-five hundred miles, all on horseback. Pastorate resigned, 1835, for infirmity. Labored unremittingly in Allegheny City as long as strength endured. SYLVESTER F. SCOVEL.
MERRICK, James, b. at Reading, Jan. 8, 1720; d. there Jan. 5, 1769; was educated at Trinity College, Oxford, and became a fellow of it; took orders, but no parochial charge. Bishop Lowth called him one of the best of men and most eminent of scholars. He published Annotations on the Psalms, 1767, and on the Gospel of St. John, 1764–67; a translation of Tryphiodorus' Destruction of Troy, 1742; Poems on Sacred Subjects, 1763; and The Psalms Translated, or Paraphrased in English Verse, quarto, 1765, divided into stanzas, etc., by W. D. Tattersall, 1789. The weakness of this important version is its excessive verbosity: had the author known how to condense, he might have done excellent work. Yet some have greatly valued and largely used his renderings. Of his few other lyrics, those on The Providence of God and The Ignorance of Man are great beauty and interest; and the last half of the latter makes a popular and admirable hymn.

MILLS, Henry, D.D., b. at Morristown, N.Y., March 12, 1786; d. at Auburn, June 10, 1867; graduated at Princeton, 1802; taught for some years; received Presbyterian ordination, 1810; professor of biblical criticism at Auburn, 1821–54. He published Hora Germanica, a Version of German Hymns, 1845, enlarged edition, 1856.

MOFFAT, Robert, D.D., African missionary; b. at Ormiston, Haddingtonshire, Scotland, Dec. 21, 1796; d. at Leigh, near Tunbridge Wells, Eng., Aug. 9, 1883. He was of humble parentage. Becoming a gardener, but in 1814 offered himself to become a missionary, in 1819, with Miss Mary Smith (b. at New Windsor, near Manchester, Eng., May 24, 1795; d. in England, Jan. 10, 1871), he settled at Kuruman, among the Bechuana tribes, translated the Bible into Bechuana, and carried it through the press after his return to England in 1870. In all his labors and dangers he had a most efficient helper, and friend in his harvest. As the real work of his life, he set before him the grand and spiritual labors, civilization and Christianity. Bechuana were the result of his vigorous, large-minded, and spiritual labors, civilization and Christianity have been spread through his field of operations,—Kuruman to the Zambezi. In 1842, while on a visit home, he published Missionary Labors and Scenes in South Africa. On his final return, in 1870, he was enthusiastically welcomed, and in 1873 given a testimonial of six thousand pounds. David Livingstone was his son-in-law.

MONCREIFF, Sir Henry Wellwood, Bart., D.D., a distinguished and much valued minister of the Free Church of Scotland; was b. at Edinburgh in 1809, and d. there Nov. 4, 1883. He was the eldest son of Sir James Wemyss Moncreiff, Bart., known as Lord Moncreiff, a judge in the supreme court of Scotland. He was the head of a family that for many generations had been noted for their attachment to the Presbyterian Church of Scotland, and had given to that church in almost unbroken succession a line of most estimable ministers. The baronetcy in the family is one of the oldest in Scotland, having been created in 1626. The grandfather of Sir Henry was long known and widely esteemed as minister of St. Cuthbert's, Edinburgh, and a leader of the evangelical party in the church.

After receiving education at the high school and university of Edinburgh, young Moncreiff entered the university of Oxford, where he was a fellow-student of Mr. Gladstone and other eminent men. Influence was brought to bear on him to join the Church of England; and, as the Archbishop of Canterbury was the husband of his aunt, his prospects there were excellent. But he preferred to labor in the church of his fathers, and, returning to Edinburgh to study at the Divinity Hall, he was ordained to the ministry in the country parish of Baldeaton in 1866, whence he was translated to East Kilbride, near Glasgow, in 1837. At the disruption in 1843 he joined the Free Church; and in 1852 was translated to Free St. Cuthbert's, Edinburgh, in which charge he remained till his death. Sir Henry was one of the principal clerks of the General Assembly of the Free Church; and he likewise held the situation of secretary to the Queen's printers in Scotland, in which capacity it was his duty to see to the correctness of the various editions printed of the Bible. In 1869 he was moderator of the General Assembly of the Free Church. He was the first lecturer under the foundation of the Chalmers Lectureship, and had but recently delivered and published his course of lectures on the Principles of the Free Church.

Sir Henry had quite a genius for ecclesiastical law and ecclesiastical procedure and forms. His services as clerk of the Free-Church Assembly were of great value, not only in promoting the orderly course of business, but likewise in guiding deliberations, and elucidating the principles that were applicable to difficult questions. The whole question of the relation of Church and State in Scotland, especially as it came to a crisis in 1843, was the subject of his very perceptive and careful study. He published several tracts on this subject, including A Letter to Lord Melbourne, in 1840; The Practice of the Free Church in her Several Courts, 1871; A Letter to the Duke of Argyile, in 1875; Vindication of the Claim of Right of the Free Church, 1877; and, most elaborate of all, his Chalmers Lectures, just referred to. The Practice of the Free Church is the book by which he will probably be most remembered. He deemed it quite competent, in harmony with Free-Church principles, to negotiate for union with the United Presbyterians; although, when the question of disestablishment came up, he thought that step inconsistent with those principles. He equally disapproved of the existing Established Church, and of the attempt to pull it down without rearing a purer establishment in its room.

Sir Henry Moncreiff was an assiduous and faithful minister. His discourses were earnest, evangelical, substantial, and often powerful, though he was not always so regular and unwearied in visiting the members of his congregation, and in all the other parts of pastoral duty. Personally he was kind, affable, and unobtrusive, ready to do any service to the poorest of the brethren, quite voluntarily accepting the humble place of a member of a nonconformist church, and content to see the favors of the state bestowed upon others. His personal earnestness as a Christian, his sympathy with evangelical work, his desire for the spiritual good of his people and for the presence of God's spirit in the church at large, were very sincere. Few men have enjoyed a more general esteem for integrity and purity of character, for the true bearing of a Christian minister and a Christian gentleman, throughout his whole life.
MONSELL. 2607 SCHWAB.

W. G. BLAIKIE.

MONSELL, John Samuel Bewley, LL.D., b. at St. Columba's, Londonderry, March 2, 1811; d. at Guildford, April 9, 1875; was educated at Trinity College, Dublin; B.A., 1832; became examining chaplain to Bishop Mant, rector of Rameon, and chancellor of the diocese of Con- nor; vicar of Egham, Surrey, 1853, and rural dean; rector of St. Nicholas', Guildford, 1870. Besides "Our Northern Vicar," 1867, and other prose works, he published "Hymns and Psalms," 1837; "Parish Musings," 1850; "Hymns of Love and Praise for the Church's Year," 1863; "Spiritual Songs;" The "Parish Hymnal," 1873; "Simon the Cyrenian," etc., 1873, and several pamphlets, etc. His devotional verses combine warmth with refinement, and are greatly valued by many of schools widely different from his own.

MOORE, Thomas, b. in Dublin, May 28, 1779; d. at Sloperton, Wilts, Feb. 25, 1852; enters into religious literature by his "Sacred Songs," 1816. These have their full share of the spiritual elegance which usually marks his lyrics, and some of them touch deep subjects with apparent feeling; so that a few are much valued and sometimes sung by Christians of almost every denomination.

MORGAN, Edwin Denison, b. in Washington, Berkshire County, Mass., Feb. 8, 1811; d. in New- York City, Feb. 14, 1883. He was of genuine New England origin in the eighth generation of a Connecticut family. His early years were spent in Hartford, where he began his business-life. In 1838 he removed to New-York City, and entered upon a commercial career, which was from the first one of marked and growing success, and gave him a high place among the merchant princes of the metropolis. His political career began with his election, at the age of twenty-one, to the city council of Hartford. In 1849 he was made one of the assistant aldermen of the city of New York, and from this time forward was engaged in public service for twenty years, holding positions of highest honor and responsibility. He was State senator from the Sixth District in 1850 and in 1852, commissioner of emigration from 1855 to 1858, governor of New York from 1868 to 1892, senator of the United States for New York from 1862 to 1869. He was nominated for the secretaryship of the treasury twice by President Lincoln, and in 1861 by President Arthur, but declined the appointment. His services to the country during the first years of the civil war were excelled by none; they are still held in most honorable remembrance: and his name is marked as that of one of our most upright, energetic, and capable public men.

In all this he ever declared and proved his personal adherence to the religion of Jesus Christ. Christianity was the foundation of his character. In 1847 he became a member of the Presbyterian Church, to which he was drawn not by a love and loyalty which deepened with every year of his life. Connected during his later years with the Brick Church of New York, and devoted to its interests, he brought forth abundant fruits of Christian benevolence in large gifts and earnest labors for many good causes. His benefactions to Union Theological Seminary, Williams College, the Woman's Hospital, the Presbyterian Boards of Missions, the Presbyterian Hospital, and other similar objects, were most generous. He furnished funds for a fire-proof building of the valuable library of the Union Theological Seminary in New York, now called "the Morgan Library." He was a director in many of the religious and charitable societies; and his name abides in honor in the church as one who feared God, adorned his faith, and did great good in the world.

HENRY J. VAN DYKE, JUN.

PATTERSON, Joseph, b. County Down, Ireland, March, 1752; d. at Pittsburgh, Feb. 4, 1832. Accepted Christ beside his father's plough, and held prayer-meetings with his playmates at ten years of age. Married and immigrated in 1772. Present at first public reading of the Declaration of Independence; in the army until 1777. Came to Washington County, Penn., 1778. Shared perils of time and place until 1785. Prepared for the ministry, at much sacrifice, by suggestion of the presbytery; licensed, August, 1788; settled at Raccoon and Montours churches, April, 1789. Preached to people who walked ten to fifteen miles to worship without house or fire even in winter. Made missionary journey to Maumee Indians in 1802. Resigned pastorate in 1816. Removed to Pittsburgh, where he sought the river population, distributed Bibles (6,863 copies in all), formed the Sabbath-school Association (in 1817), stimulated the piety of all the churches, led the "sundays" prayer-meetings, cultivated inquiry in all the renewal, helped every good work, prayed in every room of the unfinished theological seminary for its future tenant, visited the sick, and gave tender exhortations at the communion-table.

SYLVESTER F. SCOVEL.

PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS. See ANTI-MISSION BAPTISTS (Appendix).

SCHWAB, Gustav, b. at Stuttgart, June 10, 1792; d. there Nov. 4, 1850. He studied theology and philosophy at Tübingen as a classmate of Baur; was appointed professor of ancient literature in the gymnasium of Stuttgart in 1817, pastor at Gömmaringen in 1837, and at the St. Leonard Church in Stuttgart in 1842, and member of the highest ecclesiastical tribunal of Württemberg. His reputation is chiefly literary. He belonged to the Swabian school of poets, with his intimate friend Ludwig Uhland; and his poems are distinctive, often being reprinted. Of his prose works, mostly consisting of sketches from nature and history, the most remarkable are Schiller's Leben (1840),...
Sagen des klassischen Alterthums (1840), Deutsche Volkstücher (1843), and Wegweiser durch die Literatur der Deutschen (1846). He wrote with his friend Ullmann against the pantheistic worship of genius, and some witty epigrams against the Leben Jesu of Strauss and modern infidelity, one of which is worthy of preservation:

"Ich bin der Weg, die Wahrheit und das Leben, Sprach Der, den Gott zum Führer uns gegeben;
Doch wie spricht der, mit dem ihr uns bedroht?
Ich bin der Weg, die Wahrheit und der Tod."

STARK, Johann Friedrich, b. at Hildesheim, Oct. 10, 1806; d. at Frankfort-on-the-Main, July 17, 1876. He was the author of the famous German devotional works, Tägliches Handbuch in guten und bösen Tagen (Frankfort, 1777; 53d ed., 1867; other editions elsewhere; Engl. trans., Philadelphia), Morgen- u. Abend-Andachten frommer Christen auf alle Tage im Jahr (Frankfort, 9th ed., 1882; other editions elsewhere), Guides Schatz-Kästlein, and also of the sermons, Predigten über die Sonn-Fest- u. Feiertags-Evangelien, many editions. Among his other works may be mentioned a commentary (in Latin) upon Ezekiel, Frankfort, 1731. The biography of Stark is found in the modern Frankfort edition of his Handbuch.

STUART, Robert L. (b. in New-York City, July 21, 1806; d. there Dec. 12, 1892) and Alexander his brother (b. in New-York City, Dec. 8, 1810; d. there Dec. 23, 1879), two philanthropists, whose princely gifts entitle them to lasting honor. From 1828 until 1873 they carried on, under the firm name of R. L. & A. Stuart, an extensive business, at first as candy-manufacturers only (1828–32), then in connection with steam sugar-refining (1832–69), and afterwards (1869–92) as sugar manufacturers. They accumulated large wealth, and their reputation for integrity was such that their name upon an article was a guaranty of its excellent quality. They refined annually about forty million pounds of sugar. They made no concealment of their religion. To each new employee they presented a Bible. During their long business-experience their workmen never struck once; and when their establishment was threatened by the rioters in 1863, they stood to a man in its defence. They were zealous Presbyterians, but to many an enterprise which did not bear this name they gave liberally. Princeton College and Theological Seminary received from them, probably, more in buildings and endowments than other institutions. One of their plans was to devote a certain sum each year to charity. Mr. R. L. Stuart was also a liberal patron of art; and both brothers were public-spirited, influential citizens, held in esteem by all.

UBERWEGB, Friedrich, Ph.D., b. near Solingen, Rhenish Prussia, Jan. 22, 1826; d. at Königsberg, June 7, 1871. He studied at Göttingen and Ber-WHITE.

2609

ZSCHOKKE.

1657). (8) Charlemagne was not scholar enough to have composed it without Alcuin's help (Wackernagel, i. 75). (7) The hymn is really a paraphrase of Rabanus Maurus' own chapter on the Holy Spirit (Migne, 111, 25); and in his hymn "Eterne rerum conditor, et clarus," etc., Rabanus Maurus reads "paracletus" as in the "Feni, Creator." (8) In respect to the lines "Inferna," etc., and its companion, it is noticeable that these are in the "very doubtful" stanza of Ambrose's "Feni, Redemptor gentium," where they probably are an interpolation.

For an exhaustive treatment of the point at issue, see the undersigned's book, The Latin Hymn-Writers and their Hymns, New York, 1886; Daniel: Thesaurus Hymnologicus, i. 213 and iv. 124; and Wackernagel: Das Deutsche Kirchenlied, i. 75. On Charlemagne's scholarship comp. Berington: Literary History of Middle Ages, London, 1814, p. 102. [Comp. art. Veni Creator Spiritus, p. 2452.]

Samuel Wilson, D.D., LL.D., b. July 18, 1828, in Western Pennsylvania (Washington County), of godly parentage; converted in Washington College (Dr. Brownson, pastor) at twenty-one years of age; graduated thence in 1852; entered the Western Theological Seminary (Presbyterian) the same year; licensed at close of his course, in 1855, by presbytery of Washington; during 1855-57 instructor in Hebrew in the same seminary, elected to its chair of ecclesiastical history and homiletics by the General Assembly in 1857, and ordained sine titulo by presbytery of Washington the same year; relinquished homiletics to Dr. William M. Paxton in 1869; became senior professor in 1876, and about 1879 added history of doctrines; preached as stated supply at Wheeling and at Sharpsburgh; pastor of Sixth Church from 1862 to 1877; president of the Young Men's Bible Society, an influential manager and vice-president of the American Bible Society. To his wise foresight and practical sagacity when upon its building committee, this latter society is largely indebted for its present site and its model buildings. He was interested in the Union Theological Seminary from the time of its founding, was for twenty-five years one of the directors upon its board, and for twelve years its vice-president.

Mr. Wilson's character and influence are well expressed in the following words extracted from the resolutions passed at the time of his death by the directors of the Union Theological Seminary:

"While energetic in action, he was eminently sagacious in council. In difficult emergencies his advice was always sought, and had great weight. It may be said with truth and justice that in church and society he was characterized by the same union of boldness and wisdom. He was prompt in every good cause, and during his long Christian life was one of the most influential laymen which this city has produced."

ZSCHOKKE, Johann Heinrich Daniel, b. at Magdeburg, March 22, 1771; d. at Biberstein, June 27, 1848. He studied at Frankfort-on-the-Oder, and in 1792 began to lecture there upon literary and historical subjects. In 1796 he was refused the appointment as professor, in consequence of his opposition to the Prussian minister's (Wilhumer) order, that all preachers should conform their discourses to the Confessional statements. He went to Switzerland, and for the rest of his life played a prominent part in Swiss affairs, especially at Aarau. He was a poet, a novelist, an historian (cf. especially his Deutsche Geschichte fur das Schweizerische Ministerium, 1822, Eng. trans. N.Y., 1855); but he is best known as the author of Stunden der Andacht (1806, last ed., 1874, 6 vols.; twice translated, last in 1862, Meditations on Death..."
It is the best devotional volume produced by rationalism, and has received great popularity in England by royal favor. It was partly to counteract its influence that Tholuck wrote his Hours of Christian Devotion.

Just as we concluded this volume, the intelligence of Bishop Martensen's death arrived.

MARTENSEN, Hans Lassen, D.D., an eminent Danish theologian and bishop; b. at Flensburg, Aug. 19, 1808; d. in Copenhagen, Feb. 4, 1884. He was brought up in the ideas of Hegel and Franz Baader, and these ideas influenced his Lutheran theology. He obtained the gold medal for his ecclesiastical examination (1832), and, at state expense, studied at Berlin, Munich, Vienna, and Paris, particularly the philosophy of the middle age. On his return, in 1836, he took the degree of licentiate in theology, for which he presented a remarkable thesis on the autonomy of the human conscience, De autonomic conscientiae sui humanae, Copenhagen, 1837 (translated into Danish, 1841, and into German, Kiel, 1844). He began lecturing upon moral philosophy, at the university of Copenhagen, in 1837, and was made ordinary-professor in 1840. He attracted throngs of hearers. In 1843 he was made bishop of Seeland, and in 1845 court-preacher, but still continued his lectures and writing. He was a man of great spirituality, learning, and ability. He sympathized with the old German mystics, whom he knew so well, and of whom he has written so charmingly. His principal writings (all published in Copenhagen) are Principles of Moral Philosophy, 1841 (German trans., Kiel, 1841); Master Eckart (German trans., Hamburg, 1842); Christian Baptism, 1843 (2d ed., 1847; German trans., 2d ed., 1860); Christian Dogmatics, 1849 (2d ed., 1850; German trans., 4th ed., 1858; English trans., Edinburgh, 1866); Christian Ethics, 1871–78, 2 vols. (German trans., Gotha, 3d ed., 1878–79, 2 vols.; English trans., 1873–82, 3 vols.); Catholicism and Protestantism (German trans., Gütersloh, 1884); Jacob Boehme, 1879 (Eng. trans., London, 1885); Autobiography, 1883 (German trans., Carlshagen, 1883). Besides these, Bishop Martensen published Sermons (four series, 1849–54), and occasional discourses, in which with great skill he opposed destructive tendencies in the Danish Church, of which he is one of the most distinguished ornaments.
The numerous unsigned articles are by the editors, and are not included in this Analysis.
ANALYSIS.

[Names and titles of individuals listed, including: Bjerring, Nicholas, Rem, New York; Carlyle, Joseph Dacre; Burleigh, William Henry; Gurney, John Hnmpden; Grigg, Joseph; Fitch, Elizar Thompson; Grant, Sir Robert; Good, William; Gisborne, Thomas; Enfold, William; Irons, William Josiah; Cawood, John; Caswall, Edward; Byrom, John; Carlyle, Joseph Ince; Caswall, Edward; Cawood, John; Cunliffe, John; Chandler, John; Colyer, William Bengo; Conder, Josiah; Cotterill, Thomas; Cotton, Nathaniel; Cowley, Abraham; Croly, George; Crossman, Samuel; Crosswell, William; Davies, Sir John; Dobell, John; Down, Joseph; Dunn, Robinson Porter; Edmonston, James; Elliot, Charlotte; Enfield, William; Erskine, Ralph; Fawcett, John; Felth, Eleazer Thompson; Foulkes, Elissa Lee; Frothingham, Nathaniel Langdon; Gibbons, Thomas; Gilman, Samuel; Gisborn, Thomas; Good, William; Graham, James; Grant, Sir Robert; Grizz, Joseph; Gumney, John Hampden; Habington, William; Hammond, William; Hart, Joseph; Hawes, Thomas; Haughton,OTHwell; Hume, Felicia Dorothy; Herbert, Daniel; Herrick, Robert; Hoskins, Joseph; Hurn, William; Hyde, Abby; Irons, Joseph; Irons, William Josiah; Joyce, James; Kent, John; Key, Frances Scott; Lesand, John; Lloyd, William Freeman; Lynch, Thomas Toke; Madden, Martin; Mericch, Samuel; Merriick, James; Mills, Henry; Monseil, John Samuel Bewley; Moore, Thomas.

*Blakie, William Gardiner, D.D., J.L.D., Edinburgh, Scotland. Camerons; Candish, Robert Smith; Covington; Crawford, Thomas Jackson; Cunningham, William; Duff, Alexander; Keith, Alexander; Livingston, David; Presbyterian Church, The Free, or Wilson, John.

APPENDIX.

Adams, Sarah Flows; Allen, James; Anstis, Joseph; Aubert, Harriet; Austin, John; Baker, Sir Henry Williams; Bakewell, John; Barton, Bernard; Bathurst, William Hiley; Beaumont, Joseph; Beddome, Benjamin; Berridge, John; Blake, Thomas; Boden, James; Bowdler, John, jun.; Brown, Phebe; Browne, Simon; Bruce, Thomas; Bryant, William Cullen; Bumby, Mary; Greenwich; Burleigh, George; Burleigh, William Henry; Burnham, Richard; Byrom, John; Carlyle, Joseph Ince; Caswall, Edward; Cawood, John; Cunliffe, John; Chandler, John; Colyer, William Bengo; Conder, Josiah; Cotterill, Thomas; Cotton, Nathaniel; Cowley, Abraham; Croly, George; Crossman, Samuel; Crosswell, William; Davies, Sir John; Dobell, John; Down, Joseph; Dunn, Robinson Porter; Edmonston, James; Elliot, Charlotte; Enfield, William; Erskine, Ralph; Fawcett, John; Felth, Eleazer Thompson; Foulkes, Elissa Lee; Frothingham, Nathaniel Langdon; Gibbons, Thomas; Gilman, Samuel; Gisborn, Thomas; Good, William; Graham, James; Grant, Sir Robert; Grizz, Joseph; Gumney, John Hampden; Habington, William; Hammond, William; Hart, Joseph; Hawes, Thomas; Haughton,OTHwell; Hume, Felicia Dorothy; Herbert, Daniel; Herrick, Robert; Hoskins, Joseph; Hurn, William; Hyde, Abby; Irons, Joseph; Irons, William Josiah; Joyce, James; Kent, John; Key, Frances Scott; Lesand, John; Lloyd, William Freeman; Lynch, Thomas Toke; Madden, Martin; Mericch, Samuel; Merriick, James; Mills, Henry; Monseil, John Samuel Bewley; Moore, Thomas.

*Blakie, William Gardiner, D.D., J.L.D., Edinburgh, Scotland. Camerons; Candish, Robert Smith; Covington; Crawford, Thomas Jackson; Cunningham, William; Duff, Alexander; Keith, Alexander; Livingston, David; Presbyterian Church, The Free, or Wilson, John.

APPENDIX.

Begg, James; Hauns, William; Moncrieff, Rev. Sir Henry Wellwood; *Blair, William, D.D., Dunblane, Scot- land; Leighton, Robert; *Bliss, George Ripley, D.D., L.L.D., Oxford, Penn. Theological Seminary, The Baptist Crezer, Philadelphia; Boehmer, Eduard, Ph. D., Strasburg; Valdes, Alonso and Juan de; *Bomberger, J. H. A., D.D., Freeland, Penn. Theological Seminary, Reformed Theological Department of Ursinus College; Bonnet, L. P., Ph. D., Frankfurt-am-M., Monod, Adolphe; *Briggs, Charles Augustus, D.D., New York City; Arrowsmith, John; Ball, John; Beachy, Thomas; Brightman, Thomas; Burgess, Cornelius; Byfield, Aduridum; Byfield, Nicholas; Chalmers, Edmund, son; Cartwright, Thomas; Dury, John; George, William; Herie, Charles; Howe, Joshua; Love, Christopher; Marshall, Stephen; Palmer, Herbert; Perkins, William; Puiseau, Mathieu; Tuckney, Anthony; Vines, Richard; *Broads, John Albert, D.D., L.L.D., Louisville, Ky. Theological Seminaries, Southern Baptist.

APPENDIX.

ANALYSIS.

2617

Suzereth, Beneath.
Synagogue, The Great.
Synagogues of the Jews.
Tabernacle.
Tetrarch.
Theophanes.
Tithes among the Hebrews.
Weights and Measures among the Hebrews.
Widows, Hebrew.
Writing Bearing among the Hebrews.
Writing among the Hebrews.
Year, Hebrew.
Zedekiah.

List, Franz, Ph.D., Munich.
Manuel, Nikolaus.
Munroe, Thomas.

Theological School (Unitarian), Meadville.
Unitarianism.

*Loyd, H. S., Rev., Hamilton, N.Y.
Theological Seminary (Baptist), Hamilton.

Lührs, Ph.
Faley, William.

Luthardt, Christoph Ernst, D.D., Leipzig.
Grail, Karl.

Lütteke, Moritz, Schkeiditz.
Albanian Church.
Copies and the Copite Church.

Mallet, Hermann,Women.
Krummacher, Friedrich Adolf.
Martinus, Matthias.
Peucer, Casper.
Pezel, Christof.
Sceutetus, Abraham.
Spina, Alphonsus de.
Spinola, Orsottol Rojas de.

Maurice, John.
Maurer, Theo.
New-York City.

Liberius.

Lupus, Servatus.

Lupus, Servatus.
Luscinus.
Maccarinus.
Simeon, Archbishop of Thessalonia.
Sidonius, Michael.

MARIING, Francis H., Rev., New York City.
James, John Angel.
Smith, Gasper.
Warbird, Ralph.

Mathews, George D., D.D., Quebec.
Alliance of the Reformed Churches.
Canada, Dominion of.

Matter, Jacques.
(D. 1834.)
Gallicanism.
Sattmann, Friedrich Rudolph.
Sorbonne, The.
Sitting.

Maxson, Darwin Eldridge, D.D., Alfred Centre, N.Y.
Seventh-Day Baptists.

McCosh, James, D.D., LL.D., Princeton, N.J.
Evolution and Development.
Hume, David.
Locke, John.
Scottish Philosophy.

Seamen, Missions to.

McKim, Randolph H., D.D., New York City.
Sparrow, William.

Mejer, Otto, Ph.D., Göttingen.
Apostasy.
Apostolical Constitutions.

Archdeacon and Archpriests.
Bernard de Botono.
Bishop. See under Jacobson.
Bifrons, Bull, and Bullarium, Papal.
Canonization.
Capitularies.
Cardinal.
Cellency. See under Jacobson.
Censorship of Books.
Chaplain.
Chrestogog.
Coadjutor. See under Jacobson.
Collegia Nationalln.
Collegialism.
Concordat.
Conciliar, Ercole.
Curia Romana.
Del Gratta.
Excommunication (Christian).
Faculty.
Incest.
Indulgences.

Jurisdiction, Ecclesiastical.
Leges and Nundices in the Roman Catholic Church.
Marca, Petrus de.
Menso Papales.
Parity.
Penitentiaries.
Placet.
Prebend.
Propaganda, Definition of.
Taxation, Ecclesiastical.

Merkel, Paul Jolin, Ph.D., (D. 1861.)
Anso.

Merz, Heinrich von, D.D., Stuttgart.

Bibles, Pictured, and Biblical Pictures.
Calendar Brothers.
Candles, Use of, in Divine Service.
Catacombs.
Cross.
Kyrie Eleison.
Monstrance.
New-Year's Celebration.

Temples at Jerusalem.

Müller, Wilhelm Ernst, D.D., Kiel.
Adoptionism, Adoptionists.
Aleuin.
Antioch, School of.
Athenaies.
Dionysius Areopagita.
Funk, Johann.
Gott's hal (monk).
Gregorio Thaumaturgos.
Gregory of Nyssa.
Hosius.

Impostorum, de Tribus.
Isidore of Pelusium.
Joachim of Flores.
Julianus.
Lerins, convent.
Libertus.
Lucifer and the Luciferians.
Lupus, Servatus.
Macedonius.
Makrina.
Marcellus, Bishop of Ancyra.
Maximus, Bishop of Turin.
Meletius of Antioch.
Meletius of Lyopolis.
Methodius.
Monophysites.
Monothelites.

Montanism.
Nemestus.
Nepos.
Nestorius and the Nestorian Controversy to 489.
Origen.
Origentic Controversies.
Osian, Andrew.
Pamphilus.
Panathen.
Pelagius and the Pelagian Controversies.
Porphius.
Rufinus, Tyrannus.
Secundus.
Semi-Arians.
Semi-Pelagianism.
Simon Magus.
Synesius.
Tatian.
Theology of Mopsuestia.

Three-Chapter Controversy.

Waldch.

Mombert, Jacob Isidor, D.D., Paterson, N.J.
Elst, Johannes Wilhelm.
English Bible Versions.
Prayer, Book of Common.
Schönherr, Johann Heinrich.

Tynade, William.

Moore, Dunlop, D.D., New Brighton, Penn.

Talmud.

Wine, Bible.

Morris, Edward Daffy, D.D., Cincinnati, O.

Lane Theological Seminary.

Soterology.

Morse, Richard Cary, Rev., New York City.

Young Men's Christian Associations.

Müller, Carl, Ph.D., Tübingen.

Joseph H. Loe (popes).
Ludus (popes).

Müller, Ivan, Ph.D., Erlangen.

Apollonian of Tyana.

Müller, Johann Georg, D.D. (D. ---)

Animus.

Sun, Worship of the.

Nagelsbach, Eduard, D.D. (D. ---)

Jeremiah.

Judges of Israel.
Judges, Book of.
Malachi.

Mica.

Adalrich.

Samuel.

Uzziah.

Week.

Nestle, Ernvard, Ph.D., Ulm.
Ibas.

Lease of Antioch.

Jacob Baradues.

Jacob of Edessa.

Jacob of Nisibis.

Jacob of Sarag.

Jacobites. See under Ridding.

John, Bishop of Ephesus.
Marthas.

Corpus Catholicoorum.
Inquisition.
Montes Pietatis.

Pfleger, Thomas.

Sabinas, St.

Sagittarius, Kaspar.

Schwieg, Samuel.

Scotus, Marianus.

Sebalbas.

Sebastian.

Sergius (popes).

Servites.

Sfondrati (family).

Sindoins, Michael.

Simeon, Archbishop of Thessalonica.

Simplicius.

Sixtus (popes).

Sloender, Johannes.

Soden.

Sotier.

Soto, Dominicus de.

Soto, Petrus de.

Spatnain, Georg.
ANALYSIS. 2621

Place: Jouna.
Holzina, Johann Caspar.

Scevls, SYLVESTER FITHIAN, Rev.,
Wooster, O.
Swift, Eliza Pope.

APPENDIX.
Brown, Matthew.
Elliott, David.
Herron, Francis.
Hornibower, William Henry.
Howe, Walter.
Macyr, Eliza.
McMillan, John.
Patterson, Joseph.
Wilson, Samuel Jennings.

Diodore.
Diogenes, Epistle to.
Epiphanius, Bishop of Constantia.
Eusebius of Alexandria.

Eusebius, Bishop of Caesarea.
Eusebius, Bishop of Emmaus.
Eusebius, Bishop of Lodocin.
Eusebius, Bishop of Vercelli.
Euthenius and Eutychianism.
Eutychius, Bishop of Potesir.
Millenarianism, Millennium.

Shea, JOHN GILMARY, D.D., Llzzards, B.N., Roman-Catholic Church in the United States.

Sheed, WILLIAM GREENOUGTH THAT-EER, D.D., LL.D., New-York City.
South, Robert.

Sheedy, CHARLES WOODRUFF, D.D.,
Ll., Princeton, N.J.

Philosophy and Religion.

Steefert, JEREMIAS LUDWIG, Ph.D., Erlangen.

Herod.
Herodotus.
Herodians.
James.
James, Epistle of.
Jude, Epistle of.
Libertines.
Nicolaus.
Peter the Apostle.
Philip the Apostle.
Philip, the Evangelist.

Sigwart, CHRISTIAN, Ph.D., Tübingen.

Jewel, John.
More, Sir Thomas.

Sisane, J. R. W., D.D., Edinburgh, F.

Prebyterian Church in United States of America. Synod of the Southern.

Smith, EUGENE COFFIN, D.D.,
Anson, Massachusetts.

Coffin, D.D., Massachusetts.

Smyth, NEWKIN, D.D., New Haven, Conn.

Immortality. See under Ulric.

Incarnation.

Spiegel, FRIEDRICH, Ph.D., Frankfurt-am-Main.

Archbishop.
Moses Chirwoneles.

Speech, EDOARDO E., New-York City.

Vachon, William Buell.

Lett's Supper, Rites of Celebration of the St. John, RUDOLP, Basel.

Engel, Desiderius.
Hugenbach, Karl Rudolf.
Nabhla, ADOLF, D.D., Munich.
Löhe, Johann Konrad Wilhelm.

Stitt, LEWIS FRANCIS, D.D., Bangor, Me.

Theological Seminary: Congregational.

Steele, DAVID, D.D., Philadelphia.

Presbyterian Church in United States of America. General Synod of the Steffs, GEORGE EDWARD, D.D. (1859.)

Baptists.

Communion of the Extreme Unction.

Faber, Pierre François.
Fenouilh, Johann Philipp.

guenin.
Incense.
Jesus.
Jesus, Society of the Sacred Heart of Keyes, Power of the Mary, the Mother of our Lord.

Mass.
Matz of Sardis.
Meyer, Johann Friedrich von.
Papisa. See under Leibniz.

Paschal Controversies.

Radbertus, Paschalis.

Hatramus.
Rosemary.
Sauces, France.

Year, The Church.

Sievers, WILLIAM BACON, D.D., LL.D.

Potter, Alonzo.

Still, CHARLES JANeway, LL.D., Philadelphia.

Liberty, Religious.
Slavish Age.

Military Religious Orders.

Renaissance.

Roman Empire and Christianity.

Slavery and Christianity.

Kemp, Charles.
Lardner, Nathaniel.

McLaren, John Frederic Denison.
Newton, John.
Owen, John.
Perry, Symon.

Pearson, John.
Rahke, Robert.
Romaine, William.
Sherlock.

Stanley, Arthur Penrhyn.

Lillingston, Edward.

Taylor, Jeremy.

Teunson, Thomas.

Thornrike, Herbert.
Tillott, John.

Vane, Sir Henry.

Vaughan, Robert.

Canon of the Old Testament.

Kol Nidre.
Masora.
Midrash.

Pellikan, Konrad.
Philosophy and Religion.

Raymond Martini.

Striegel, MICHAEL E., D.D., New York

City.

Negro Evangelization and Education in America.

Strong, JAMES, S.T.D., LL.D., Philadelphia.

Arminianism, Wesleyan.
Methodism in America.

Schu Perez, CARL. (D. 1865.)

Garage, Francois.

Garve, Karl Bernhard.

Wesleyan Female College.

Helmich Confession.

Hedius, Stanley.

Tenison, Thomas.

Vesuvius, William.

Tischendorf, LORENTZ FRIEDRICH

CONSTANTIN VON, D.D. (D. 1874.)

Bible Text (New Testament). See under Gebhardt.

Toy, CRAWFORD HOWELL, D.D., LL.D., Cambridge, Mass.

Harvard University.

Semitic Languages.

Trechsel, FRANZ, Bern.

Antoninaus.

Barn, Synod of.

Genesia, Petruss.

Haller, Berthold.

Helmich Confession.

Kohler, Christian and Hieronymus.

König, Samuel.

Libertines.

Sabellici.

Servetus, Michael.

True, BENJAMIN ORGOO, D.D., Rochester, N.Y.

Theological Seminary (Episcopal). Rochester, N.Y.

Truman, JOSIAS, Jr., Philadelphia.

Friends, Liberal Branch of. (Appendix.)

Trumbull, HENRY CLAY, D.D., Philadelphia, Penn.

Kadeshe.

Tucker, PAUL MORITZ RUBERT, Ph.D., Halte.

All, Pierre d'.

Bahrt, Karl Friedrich.

Bordemlian Sect.

Edelmam, Johann Christian.
Ferrara, Florence, Council of.

Gregor von Helmsburg.

Hermam von der Hardt.

Jacob of Jütterbog.

Pavia, Council of.

Tutin, DANIEL SYLVESTER, D.D., Philadelphia.

Mormons.

Tyler, WILLIAM SYMMS, D.D., Amherst, Mass.

Platonism and Christianity.

Piroti, The Cambrigide.

Socrates.

Tzaichkowsky, P. M., Ph.D., Leipzig.

Niederger, Christian Wilhelms.

Uhborn, JONHARD WILHELMS.

Philosophies, Anabaptists.

Clemens Romanus.

Clementines.

Dodteenth.

Chthonites.

Ekklesiastics.

Essenes, The.

Hares, Ludwig.

Hermes.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>ANÁLISIS.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Talho, Theodor, D.D., Erlangen.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hebrews, Epistle to the.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Irenaeus.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zemachwitz, Gerhard von, D.D., Erlangen.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arcani Disciplina.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bohemian Brethren.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Confession of Sins.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Litany.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Luther's Two Catechisms.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zimmermann, Karl, D.D., Darmstadt.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gustavus Adolphus Association.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zöckler, Otto, D.D., Greifswald.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agreda, Maria de.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Alombrados.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Anchorites, or Anachorites.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ama, St.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aquila.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Augustinian Monks and Nuns. See under Chlebus.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bridget, St.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Catharina.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cordova.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Credner, Karl August.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Feuillante, The.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Francis of Paula, St.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Franciscans.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fructuosus.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gilbert of Sempringham.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grandmont, Order of.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hospitalers, or Hospital Brethren.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hugo of St. Victor.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Humiliani.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jerome Sophronius Eusebius. See under Hagenbach.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jesus Christ.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Knobel, Karl August.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kundt, Christian.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Leander, St.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lefebre.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ligouri, Alfonso Maria da.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Loreto.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Macarius.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Magdalen, Order of.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Magi.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Magister Sacri Palatii.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Man.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Marianists.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Monte Cassino.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Neri, Philip. See under Reuchlin.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nolascus, Petrus.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Palladius.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Passionists.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Perpetua, the Christian.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Peter, Festivals of St.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Philo.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Phocas.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plaristas.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plus Societatis.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Polytheism.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Probabilism.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pulcheria.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Redemptorists.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reservation, Mental.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Roch, St.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Salmanticenses.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Seven, The Sacred Number.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Smaugstes.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

| Somaschians, The Order of. | | Stercoranista. |
| Sudalii, Stephanus Bar. |
| Ursula. |
| Vagantes. |
| Valentines, St. |
| Valerian (Roman emperor). |
| Valerian, St. |
| Verena. |
| Veronica. |
| Vaspetas. |
| Victor (popes). |
| Zöpfel, Richard Otto, Ph.D., Strassburg. |
| Adrian (popes). |
| Agapeitus (popes). |
| Alexander (popes). |
| Anacletus (popes). |
| Anastasius (popes). |
| Boniface (popes). |
| Formosus. |
| Fridolin. |
| Gelasius (popes). |
| Gregory I. |
| Honorius (popes). |
| Innocent (popes). |
| Julius (popes). |
| Martinus (popes). |
| Nicholas II. to V. |
| Paschalis (popes). |
| Paul I. to III., V. |
| Pelagius (popes). |
| Plus I. to III., VI. to VIII. |
Pronouncing Vocabulary of Proper Names

Schaff-Herzog Encyclopaedia.

Explanations.
- The acute accent (') denotes the accented syllable.
- The grave accent (˘) over a, e, and i, denotes that they are pronounced as a in "far," as a, and i as e respectively.
- The italicized letters in parentheses immediately utters the name give the pronunciation of a portion of the name.
- The system of pronunciation adopted is in the main that used by Thomas in his excellent Pronouncing Biographical Dictionary, Philadelphia, 1871.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Pronunciation</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Ab-er-crom-by</td>
<td>Ab-er-krome (krum)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aqui-er-re</td>
<td>Aqui-er-ree (a-ker-ri)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ab-er-nel</td>
<td>Ab-er-nell</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Abo-l-gar</td>
<td>Abo-l-gar</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-ber-ne-thy</td>
<td>Al-ber-ne-thy (the)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-ber-tus</td>
<td>Al-ber-tus (ber-tus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-ber-tu-vus</td>
<td>Al-ber-tu-vus (ber-tuvus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-ber-tus</td>
<td>Al-ber-tus (ber-tus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-bi-lus</td>
<td>Al-bi-lus (bi-lus)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
PRONOUNCING VOCABULARY OF PROPER NAMES. 2627

Guerlech (ger-ik-keh).
Guibert (ge-bahr).
Guizol (gwe-zol).
Guillot (ge-yon).
Guillaume (gwe-yeh).
Guillaume (gwe-yeh).
Guillaume (gwe-yeh).
Guillaume (gwe-yeh).
Guillaume (gwe-yeh).
Guillaume (gwe-yeh).

Huber (hoo-ber).
Huber (hoo-ber).
Huber (hoo-ber).
Huber (hoo-ber).
Huber (hoo-ber).
Huber (hoo-ber).
Huber (hoo-ber).
Huber (hoo-ber).

Hara (ha-ra).
Hara (ha-ra).
Hara (ha-ra).
Hara (ha-ra).
Hara (ha-ra).
Hara (ha-ra).
Hara (ha-ra).
Hara (ha-ra).

Hern-her.
Hern-her.
Hern-her.
Hern-her.
Hern-her.
Hern-her.
Hern-her.
Hern-her.

Hervé (her-ve).
Hervé (her-ve).
Hervé (her-ve).
Hervé (her-ve).
Hervé (her-ve).
Hervé (her-ve).
Hervé (her-ve).
Hervé (her-ve).

Hug (hoog).
Hug (hoog).
Hug (hoog).
Hug (hoog).
Hug (hoog).
Hug (hoog).
Hug (hoog).
Hug (hoog).

Hulssen (hool-ssen).
Hulssen (hool-ssen).
Hulssen (hool-ssen).
Hulssen (hool-ssen).
Hulssen (hool-ssen).
Hulssen (hool-ssen).
Hulssen (hool-ssen).
Hulssen (hool-ssen).

Hune (hoon).
Hune (hoon).
Hune (hoon).
Hune (hoon).
Hune (hoon).
Hune (hoon).
Hune (hoon).
Hune (hoon).

Hux (hoex).
Hux (hoex).
Hux (hoex).
Hux (hoex).
Hux (hoex).
Hux (hoex).
Hux (hoex).
Hux (hoex).

Huys (hooys).
Huys (hooys).
Huys (hooys).
Huys (hooys).
Huys (hooys).
Huys (hooys).
Huys (hooys).
Huys (hooys).

Hutter (hooter).
Hutter (hooter).
Hutter (hooter).
Hutter (hooter).
Hutter (hooter).
Hutter (hooter).
Hutter (hooter).
Hutter (hooter).

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.

I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
I.-bas.
2628

PRONOUNCING VOCABULARY OF PROPER NAMES.

Mnuzer gmuan-er).
Mu-ri~to ~rX.
Muruer (moor’mer).
Musius (mu-zee’-ua).
Munﬁcwlus.
Mu-tl’-a-nus.
My-co’ml-us.

N.
Nnrdln (nar-dun).
Na-lk’Jis.
Nau-di-us ((10,410).
Ne-an’ er.
Nec-ti'-ri-us.
Neff (uef).
Negri (uéﬂgrm).
Nari (ni’vree).
Nef-ses.
Ned-Bk.
Neubrigemlin (nol'brig-an-ala).
Niccron (ues-run).
Ni-ce’-LM.
Nicolai (ne-kodin-e).
Nicole (ne-kol).
Niebuhr (nee’vboor).
Niedner (need’mer).
Niemeyer (uee'-mi-er).
NV-lus.
Nitzsch (nitah).
lechmann gnitsh'mkn) .
Noailles (no-a1).
No'-el.
No-las’-cua.
Nordhelmer (non'-him-er).
Nijs’-selt..
NoL’-ker.
Nourry (noor-c).

O’-ber-lln.
Ochino (o-kee’-no).
Oet'lingﬁer.
O-lé-h’-ri-ua.
O-le-vi-kﬁnus.
()lier (o-le-a).
Ulivéum (o-lev-wn).
O-ll-vi.
Olnhauaen (ole-how-zen).
Oos-lef-zee.
OH-l-gen.
O-ro’-oI-us.
Oulander (o-ze-hnder).
Omt, d’ (do-nu).
Osﬂwr-wald (rail).
Ot’-wr-beln (Mn).
Oudin (oo-dan).
0u’-en.
Onnam (o-zi-non).

P.
Pad-ca.
Pa-chym’-e-rés.
Paciunus (pa-nho'ﬁﬂnus).
Pug! (pa-zhee).
Pajou (pa-zhun).
Palafox, de (da pﬁ-li-foh).
I’alCa-maa.
Paleario (pi-li-t'l-re-o).
Pal-eu-tri’mn.
Paldildhua.
Pal-la-ﬁ-cI-uo (clue-no).
Pam’-phI-Iua.
Pa-nor-mLui'mns.
Pnph-nu’-tl-ua (Mae-m).
X‘a’-pI-as.
Pap Ju.
l’ar-a-cel’-sus.
Parcus (pa-ri-us).
l'arls (pi'c-re).
Pas-cha’Jis.
Pasnionci (pamswo-niﬂee).
l’ntoulllet (pit-1003i).
Pau'Ja.
Pan-li’-nua.
l’aulus (panua).
Pavilion (pa-ve-yon).
l'ézmﬁny (poz-mann).
Pe-li'gl-us.
l’el'-ll-kan.
Pen'-na~forte (fort).
Perelm (pa-ri-e-rk).
Per-pet'n’m.
Per-ron’-6.
Pu-wloz-IJ (bf-cu).

Pam’wl-un.
Pen-1 (pi’-r.ree).
Peucer (polar-er).
I’ezt-l (pew’-el).
Pfaﬂ (pfal).
Pﬂixg.

YEW???"
’ I- p (p ea).
l’hi’loli
Phl-lo-pa’-trls.
Phl-los-toH-gI-ua.
Phl~los’-trn-luu.
Phl-lox’e-uus.
Pho'-cu.
Pho-ti’mua.
I’ho'-l.1-ua (rhea-m)
hilt.
Pictet (pek-ta) .
Pighiua (pod-gem.)
H-miu.

Rlihr.
Ro-mi’mua.
Roscelin (roe-Ian).
Rb-aeuﬂbkch.
RO-seu’-mlll-ler.
Rolhe (NY-Kb).
Rousseau (roe-56).
Roussel (roe-Bel).
Royﬁaards.
Ruchat (Hi-shin).
Rlichen (rick-en).
Rﬁ-del'-bach.
Rli-ding'-er.
Ruel (r1141).
Ru-ﬁ’-uus.
Rulnan (rlLe'mkr).
REV-min.
RAT-pert.
Ruysbroek (rio-brok).

S. l’i'-ua.
Plknck.
Platlna( li-tee’am).
Podlebra (pod-yﬁ'-brld)
Pohlmanu (pOI-mim).
Polret (Pwh-ri).
Po-Ii-an ~der.
Pom-po-ua'JJua.
I’onﬂanun (pon-ahe-i'mun).
Piiachl.
Pouevlno (pos-ai-vee'mo).
Pos-nld’J-ua.
Pos’-tel.
Prh’-dea.
Pde (prht).
Prm-t6’-ri-ul.
PrI-e’ri-aa.
Prl-mi-cé’-rl-ul.
Pro-06’-pi~uu.
Pronier (pron-yi).
Pru-den’-tl-ua (she-m)
Paellun sel'Jus).
PIT-fen- orf.

Q. mnm

vnad-rli’mu.
uen'-0Ledt (std).
'ueanel (ki-nel).
uedf (keh-let).
ui'-rI-ni-ua.

RI

Ra-bn’mua Mnurus (mbw’rus).
Rabaut. (rh-bo).
Ra-bu'Jum.
‘ Rad'Jwr-lus.
i Ruinerio (ri-ne’-rl-o).
. Rhm’-bhch.
Ril’-mua.
Ran-cé (m).
ku’-!h‘l.
Ra-t-heﬂrl-un.
lunhmnnn (rkt-mhu).
Rn-munﬂnna.
Ratzberger (rats-berg’er).
>Rnu

rOw).

{Rnuc (rbwkgl.
| Rauwnstnmc (rbw-tem strbwk).
Ravignau rh-ven-yon).
Ra "-mun .
Re chel (ri’-kel).
Relhing (ri-hlng).
Relmarus (ri-mwrus).
Reinhard (rin’ert).
Relnnd (ri-lant).
Re‘mig’J-us.
Rank-m.
Renaudol (reh-nb-do).
RelV-berg.
Row-lg.
Reuterdahl (ref-tend“).
Rhe'-gI-us.
Ricci (retﬂchee).
Richelieu (reab’Je-uh).
Richer (re-shin).
Richter (rlk’-ter).
Rie or (ré’-ger).
Riu "an.
Rit’~ter.
Roch (rok).
Ba-dlf-er.

Sudln (ab-dee-h).
Saulachiilz (magnum).
Sabbaner (ak-bh-te-a).
55’ has.
Sa-bel’JI-uu.
Sa-bi’um.
Sa-bln-l-i’mul.
Simk.
Sir-cf.
Sado at (ubdo-Li).
Bi-gil-ti-ﬂ-ul.
Saller ai’-Ier).
Salut- artin (san-mar-mn).
Saint-Simon (san-se-mou).
Sul-mi’-ei-us (she-m).
Salmeron (aal-ma-ron).
Saltzmaun (silla'qnim).
Sll-vI-i’-uua.
Sanchez (sin-chem).
San'chu-ni’a-Lhon.
Sar-ce’-ﬂ-ua.
Suﬁ-p1.
SKI-lo'd’i-Ill.
Baurln (ab-ran).
SA-vo-nh-roﬁla.
Bcal'J- er.
SChil'- é.
Bchiiﬂier (ahéf-ﬂer).
Schauﬂler (shbwf’-ﬂer).
Schelhorn (ahel’~horn).
Schellng (shol’Jing).
Schelwig (shol’wig).
Schlnner (shin’mcr).
Schlatler (nhliu-ter).
Schlelermlcher (ahli-er-mhk’ r).
Schlaunner (ahlols’mer).
Schmid (shmit).
Schmolke (shmol-ka).
Schmucker (ahmook’-er).
Schneckenbubger (lhnek-en burg/Ker).
Schﬁnherr (ahﬁn’Jnr).
Schott (shou).
Schanzn (shot/4m).
Schroeckh (shriik).
Schulteua (skool’-Lcua).
Schwartz (shwhrta).
Schwebel (shwi’-bel).
Schwegler (lhweg’-lcr).
Schwenkfeld (ehwenk’-felt).
Schyn (shin).
Scolus (sk6’-tus).
Scrlver (skrce’wer).
Scul-te’-tuu.
Sebastian (se-bnat’-yan).
Seck’-en-d0rf.
Se'du’JI-us.
Sem’Jer.
Beu’-e-ca.
ScH-gI-ul.
Ber-veﬂtua.
Sev-er-i-V-mu.
Bev-er-i’mun.
Se-ve'-ruu.
Sibel see’_hel).
Sig'-e- rt.
Slgﬂla-mhnd.
Shuplicin» (aim-plish’w-UB).
Siricius (so-riah’-e-ua).
Sirmond (arr-mon).
Bleidnn (MY-dun).
Sohn gnome).
Sol-i-ta~rI’-ua.

So'-phrb-nI-ul.
HIV-lo.
Bo-zém’e-uoa.
Spgladn (ab-lbw).
Span -en- rg.
Spku- eim.
Spec (spi).
Spcuer (apéﬁuer).
Speng’Jer.
Splera (npe¢’-ri),z‘
Spinoza
S it-lk. (s pe ~uo’- ) .
P
Stahl (stkl) .
Sun-e-a'-rus.
Sum'ds-laua.
Slhp'Jer.
Bmphylus (nit-141m).
Blink.
Smudenmaler (albwﬂden-niﬁ er .
Sliudlln (mold-lean).
Smupllz (uldwﬁpiln).
Swill (mils).
Steudel (saw-dal).
Sﬂefel (slee'fel).
Silekna (slék’ml).
Stler (steer).
SUV-ling.
Swlﬁbérg.
Strhph'-an.
Strauss (lLrOWMI
Slr'l"gel.
Stu-d|’-tea.
Slum! (sloorrn).
Suarez (awh’q'elh),
Su-dul’Jl.
Sugar (aii-zhu).
Sulcerus (swee-ce’Jlu).
Suidben (swid’-bert).
Sulzer (uoohaﬁzer).
Su'-rI-ua.
Sym’-ma-chus (kua).
Sym-pho-rX-i’-uus.
Sym-pho-r6'-aa.
Byn-cel’Jua.
Synealns aevneeﬂahe-ua).

Syr-o-pu’- us.

T.
'I‘a-rﬁ'-nl-ua (nhe-ua).
T5’-t1-an (she-an).
'l‘auler (léw’Jcr).
Tuuaen (16W Hun).
Tellicr (tel-le-a).

Terauaegcn (ter-sbayﬁgan).
Ter-tuY-lI-an.
'l‘etzel (tets'-el).
Thnmer (LIV-mar).
Theiner (ti'-DQI').
The~o.do’-ra.
'1‘he-od’-o-rel.
Theogmés-tul.
Theﬁo-nas.
'l‘he-oph’-a-uéa.
The-oph'-I-lun.
The-0ph’-i-lnct.
'l‘heremiu (Li-reh-meeh'.
Theresa (te-ree-sa).
Thletmar (Wetﬁmar).
Thilo (LY-lo).
Tholuck (WI-look).
Thomusin (tom'-a-ain).
Thomasius (to-mi’-ze-ul).
Thomassin (m-mh-san).
Tillemom. (tel‘mon).
Tischeudorf (Half-ended).
Titt’-mhuu.
Tolet. (to-la).
Torquemada (tor-kn-miﬂdi).
Tos-sh’mus.
Toulmin (tool-min).
Tremelllus (lru-mel’-le-00|).
Tri-Lhe’-mi-ua_
Trl-um h’-us.
Tronch n (tron-shin).
Tu-rib'-i-ua.
Turrelln (tiir-re-un).
Twéa’-wn.
TY~ch6’-ui~ua.
Tychaen (tik’-aen).
Tuchlrner (uheerﬂner).

Us

U-ber-tiﬂnul.
Ul’-ﬂ-]u.


Umbret (oombrēt).
Urs-,perg-er.
Ur-s-ell-nus.
Ur-s-f-nus.
Ur-s-an-l.
Uestert (yewstert-e).
Utenhein (ooy-ten-hēn).
Uytenbogaert (yo-ten-bo-gart).

PBONOUNCING VOCABULARY OF PROPER NAMES.
2629

V.

Ellingreit (cod-hrēt).
Er - er.
Ur-ni’ggfgus.
Ur-ll’llII
Urfiau-la.
Uateri (yud-ter-e).
Utenheim (oot-an’HM).
U ywnbogaem yu-wn-bo-gu’t).
Va’d-an.
Val-déu.
Vi’Jens.
Vul’en~line.
Val-en-ti’an.
Val-en-ti’mul.
Val-en-leran.
Val-er-SI-ua.
Va-m’blm.
Vlsber (i3-ber).
Valke (FAL-keh).
Ven-a-t6’r|-us.
Venema (ven’a-ma).
Vercellone (ver-chel-lē-ne).
Verena (ver-a’ua).
Veopalian (vea-a-ha-an).
Vloelln (ve-ch Mn).
Vid-tor.
Vla-Uo-ri’mua.
Vlctlciuu (vlc-tfl’-che-ul).
Vl-gl-lan’ua.
Vl-gil’J-ua.
VL legagnon (vecl-gan-yon).
Vo-en ‘r-bus.
Volney (vol-ne).
Vulck’er.
Wand’el-be”.
WN-zo.
Wen-der (wig-sel).
Wen-der (wig-sel).
Wen-de-lin (leen).
W½-ren-feln.
Werk’metter (mās-ter).
Werss’-dorn.
Wesel (wa’isel).
Wes’-eel.
Wes’-en-berg.
Wes’t-
Wes’t-phał.
Wes’t-stin (stin).
Wet’t-e, de.
Wetzler (wets’-er).
Wl-cof’l-nus.
Wichern (wikh-ern).
Wlgand (wee’-gant).
Wlf’-brord.
Wlf’-ten-am.
Wlf’-di-bald.
Wimpheing (wim-fel-ing).
Wimpitas (wim-pē’-nas).
Wileck’ler.
Winder (wee’-ner).
Winterthur (fēr’).
Wiltius (wit’-ē-ns).
Wol’-leb.
Wol-ler’-dorff.
Wulf-ram.

Wutke (woot’-ke).
Wyttcnbach (wik’ten-bač).

X.

Xavier (zav-e-ar).
Ximenes (be-mā’-nes).

Y.

Yvontus (e-von’-e-tus).

Z.

Zabarella (dzā-ba-re’la).
Zachark (tsak-ā-re’-e).
Zach-a-ri’-us.
Zach-kri’-us.
Zancli (dzān-kw).
Zeisberger (tāis’-bēr-gēr).
Zell (tēl’l).
Ze’-no.
Zeph-y’-ri’nus.
Zillendorf (taht’-en-dor’f).
Zollkofer (sohl’ko-fēr).
Zoni’-ras.
Zot’-enus.
Zwick (zwick).
Zwicking (xwing’-lee).

Vletichus (vlic-tri’che-us).
Vl-gl-lan’tus.
Vl-gil’J-us.
Vigneolles (vein-yol).
Villeegnoo (veyl-gan-yon).
Villors (veyk).
Vilmar (fī-mār).
Vincenz (van-soh).
Vines (ve-ns).
Vires (ve-ri’).
Vitri’-l-ua.
Vl-tal’-lan.
Vl-tal’-ia.
Vl-tring-ua.
Vl’-tus.
Vlves (vee-ves).
Vn-f’-bus.
Volney (vol-ne).
Voltaire (vol-tēr).
Vorbutus (for’st-us).
Vasetus (voch’-ē-us).

W.

Wlck’-er-ah-gel.
Wk-gen-sel (sēl).
Walch (waltch).
Waldhausen (walt-hōw’-sen).
Wal-pur’gias.
Walker von der Vogelweide (vaw’t-er fon der fol-gel-wi’-de).

Wand’el-bert.
WK’-so.
Wegschelder (wāg’-shel-der).
Wigel (wig’-el).
Weiss (wīz).
Weselo (wīz-sel).
Wen-de-lin (leen).
W½-ren-feln.
Werk’metter (mās-ter).
Werss’-dorn.
Wesel (wa’isel).
Wes’-eel.
Wes’-en-berg.
Wes’t-
Wes’t-phał.
Wes’t-stin (stin).
Wet’t-e, de.
Wetzler (wets’-er).
Wl-cof’l-nus.
Wichern (wikh-ern).
Wlgand (wee’-gant).
Wlf’-brord.
Wlf’-ten-am.
Wlf’-di-bald.
Wimpheing (wim-fel-ing).
Wimpitas (wim-pē’-nas).
Wileck’ler.
Winder (wee’-ner).
Winterthur (fēr’).
Wiltius (wit’-ē-ns).
Wol’-leb.
Wol-ler’-dorff.
Wulf-ram.
COPYRIGHT, 1886,
BY FUNK & WAGNALLS.
PREFACE TO THE THIRD EDITION.

THIS Encyclopædia of Living Divines was originally a separate and original supplement to the Schaff-Herzog Encyclopædia, but is now incorporated in the large work and improved by a new Appendix, pages 273–296, including biographical and bibliographical data down to December, 1890. See the general preface to Vol. I.

PHILIP SCHAFF.

NEW YORK, March, 1891.
PREFACE.

THIS book contains biographical sketches of contemporary divines, celebrated preachers, Christian workers, theological professors, church dignitaries, and editors of prominent religious periodicals. It is intended as a supplement to the Religious Encyclopædia published in 1884, in three volumes. The German Encyclopædia of Herzog excludes living authors.

The value of such a book depends on the extent of its authentic information. In this respect we have been highly favored. When the senior editor resolved, somewhat reluctantly, to undertake the delicate task, he issued a circular letter to distinguished divines of Europe and America, requesting them to furnish for publication exact facts and dates concerning their birth, their education, titles, offices, publications, and other noteworthy incidents. To his great encouragement he received prompt and full replies from nearly all, and takes great pleasure in expressing to them publicly his sincere thanks for their kindness. The information thus obtained is presented without note or comment. Where the gentlemen chose to indicate their theological standpoint in a distinctive way, it is given in their own words; if not, it is left to be inferred from their reputation and works.

To secure still greater exactness, proof was sent for revision to each living person named; and their corrections and additions have been inserted as far as possible.

Additional information and corrections received too late for insertion in the proper place have been printed in the appendix.

When no response was received to the circular, the dates and facts desired were derived from the best attainable sources, chiefly the following: HOLTZMANN and ZÖPFFEL'S Lexikon für Theologie und Kirchenwesen, for German Protestants; SCHÄFLER's Handlexicon der Katholischen Theologie, for German Roman-Catholics; the thirteenth volume of LICHTENBERGER's Encyclopédie des sciences religieuses, for French authors; CROCKFORD'S Clerical Directory, and the latest (eleventh) edition of the Men of the Time, for English authors and church dignitaries; denominational cyclopædias,—Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, etc.,—manuals, year-books, and catalogues of colleges and theological seminaries, for Americans. The articles thus compiled are marked by a star.
Besides living celebrities, the volume includes notices of divines who have died since the completion of the Religious Encyclopædia (1884), and a few others who were inadvertently omitted.

Simultaneously with this Supplement will be published a new and revised edition of the Religious Encyclopædia, which will embody the corrections made by the authors of the several articles, as well as by the editors. Copies were sent to foreign contributors with the request to correct the translation of their articles, and to bring them down to the latest date, which was done.

As to the distribution of labor, the senior editor has procured the material, and written biographical sketches of departed friends (as Drs. Ezra Abbot, Dorner, Lange, Prime, Thiersch), besides aiding in the final revision; while the junior editor has prepared the material for the press, and devoted himself to the work for nearly two years.

The editors have aimed at the greatest possible accuracy and completeness, as well as strict impartiality, in the desire to make a useful and reliable book of reference for readers of all denominations and theological schools.

Philip Schaff.

Samuel M. Jackson.

New York, November, 1886.
EXPLANATORY NOTE

The general order of arrangement of the sketches is this: Name in full (where initials instead of middle names are given, it is to be understood that the person had no middle names, but had introduced initials to distinguish their names from others); honorary titles, other than M.A., with their sources and dates in parenthesis; denomination ("Methodist" means Methodist-Episcopal Church North; "Episcopal" means Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States; "Presbyterian" means Presbyterian Church in the United States, Northern Assembly; the other divisions which come under these general names are particularly described, e.g., "Methodist Protestant"); places and dates of study and graduation; positions held in chronological order (e.g., when the person held collegiate and clerical positions simultaneously, in which case it has sometimes seemed better to give each class of positions separately); theological standpoint; publications (the place of publication given with the first book is to be understood as that of all subsequent books until another place is given).

The following abbreviations or other abbreviations used in this work, and the various honors, prizes, etc., mentioned, may be acceptable to American readers.

I. — CONTRACTIONS.

A.B. or B.A. Bachelor of Arts (Artium Baccalaurae).

A.M. or M.A. Master of Arts (Artium Magister).

B.D. Bachelor of Divinity.

C.I. Order of the Crown of India, member of.

C.M.G. Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

D. died (followed by place and date).

D.D. Doctor of divinity.

F.R.G.S. Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society.

F.R.H.S. Fellow of the Royal Historical Society.

F.R.S. Fellow of the Royal Society.

Lith. Fellow of the Royal Society, Edinburgh.

Lic. Theol. Licentiate of Theology (in Germany, one who has passed the examination for a theological professorship in a university).

L.L.D. Doctor of laws.

Litt. Doctor of letters.

M.A. Master of Arts.

Ph.D. Doctor of Philosophy.

S.T.D. Doctor of sacred theology (Sacro Theologiae Doctor).

Ven. Venerable; title of an English archdeacon.

II. — PRIZES AND POSITIONS.

Archdeacon. In the English Church, the assistant of the bishop in the government of his diocese.

Arnold's Historical Prize (Oxford). Open to competition among graduates not older than eight years from matriculation; value £42.

Battie University Scholarship (Cambridge). Founded by William Battie, M.D., Fellow of King's College, in 1797; competed for by undergraduates, and held for six years; value £200. See Encyclopaedia, vol. 1. p. 615.

Battie University Scholarship (Cambridge). Founded by Robert Boyle, Fellow of the Royal Society, Edinburgh, 1716, for proficiency in Greek language and literature; two in number, one for undergraduates and one for graduates of the university of not more than three years standing from admission to first degree; given to the students ranking first and second in the examination.

Bodan Sanscrit Scholarship (Cambridge). Open to competition by B.A.'s; two gold medals, senior and junior, open to competition by B.A.'s; held three years.

Browne Prize (Cambridge). Founded in 1845 by Richard Burns, Esq., M.A. of Christ's College, of the Presbyterian Church in the United States; "Presbyterian" means Presbyterian Church in the United States; "Methodist" means Methodist Church North; "Episcopal" means Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States; "Presbyterian" means Presbyterian Church in the United States, Northern Assembly; the other divisions which come under these general names are particularly described. See Encyclopaedia, vol. 1. p. 615.

Browne Prize (Cambridge). Founded in 1833, in honor of and by Rev. William Carus, M.A., canon of Winchester, and late senior fellow of Trinity College, his friends and he each giving £500 at three per cent; the prizes are two in number, one for undergraduates and one for graduates of the university of not more than three years standing from admission to first degree; given to the students ranking first and second in the examination.

Carus Greek Testament Prize (Cambridge). Founded by William Carus, M.A., canon of Winchester, and late senior fellow of Trinity College, his friends and he each giving £500 at three per cent; the prizes are two in number, one for undergraduates and one for graduates of the university of not more than three years standing from admission to first degree; given to the students ranking first and second in the examination.

Cranfield Scholarship Prize (Cambridge). Founded in 1875 by Rev. John Craven, vicar of Bradford, Yorkshire, 1816, for proficiency in Greek language and literature; two in number, one for undergraduates and one for graduates of the university of not more than three years standing from admission to first degree; given to the students ranking first and second in the examination.

Cranfield Scholarship Prize (Cambridge). Founded by Rev. John Craven, vicar of Bradford, Yorkshire, 1816, for proficiency in Greek language and literature; two in number, one for undergraduates and one for graduates of the university of not more than three years standing from admission to first degree; given to the students ranking first and second in the examination.

Chancellor Medal (Cambridge). For classics; instituted by Thomas Hollis, Duke of Westminster, when chancellor 1751, and continued by his successors; two gold medals, senior and junior, open to competition by B.A.'s; held three years.

Class (Oxford). A division according to merit, of those who pass an examination.

Classic (senior). A first-class in classics.

Convict. Building in which Roman-Catholic divinity students live at State expense.

Consistorialrath. Counselor of the Consistory, the governing body in spiritual affairs in German States.

Craven Scholarship (Cambridge). Founded by Rev. John, Lord Craven, 1647; open to competition by undergraduates; held seven years; value £60.

Crosse Theological Scholarship (Cambridge). Founded by Rev. John Crosse, vicar of Bradford, Yorkshire, 1816, for promoting the cause of true religion; open to competition by B.A.'s; held three years.

Denyer Theological Essay (Oxford). Open to competition among B.A.'s.

Diaconus. The title in Germany of certain assistant clergymen and chaplains of subordinate rank, but equal standing with ordained ministers. See Encyclopaedia, vol. 1. p. 615.

Divinity Testimonium (Dublin). Certificate of attendance on whole divinity course of six terms; graduates arranged in three classes according to merit.

Double First (Oxford). To be in the first division in B.A. examination both in classics and mathematics.

Ellerton Theological Essay (Oxford). Open to competition among members of the university, value of prize £21.

Ephorus (German ecclesiastical dignitary). One who presides over and superintends a number of other clergymen.

Evans Prize (Cambridge). Founded in honor of the Rev. J. V. Wilson Evans, B.D., archdeacon of Westmoreland, formerly fellow and tutor of Trinity College; awarded to best student in ecclesiastical history and Greek and Latin Fathers, among the candidates for honors in the second part of the theological tripos.

Fellow. A member of a college who is on the foundation, and receives an income from its revenues.

Gymnasial Professor. Professor in a German gymnasium (college), where students are prepared for the university.

Hall-Houghton Prize (Oxford). Two for work upon the Greek Testament, value £20 and £20 respectively; and two upon the Septuagint, value £25 and £15 respectively.

Inspector (of Stift). Head spiritual officer of a building in which theological students live at State expense. See Stift.

Jeremian Septuagint Prize (Cambridge). Founded in 1870, by gift of £1,000 from the Very Rev. James Amiraux Jeremian, D.D., dean of Lincoln, formerly professor of divinity; two annual prizes: open to all members of the university of not more than three years standing from their first degree.

Johnson Theological Scholarship (Oxford). Open to a B.A. member of a college, of not more than three years standing from their first degree; tenable one year; value £20.

Kennicott Hebrew Scholarship (Oxford). Open to B.A.'s; tenable a year.

Law (Bishop) Prize (Dublin). Founded by John, lord bishop of Elphin, in 1796, for proficiency in mathematics; open to competition among undergraduates; there are two prizes.

Le Bas Prize (Cambridge). Founded by Rev. Charles W. Le Bas, M.A., Fellow of Trinity, 1848; subject of essay, general literature, and occasionally some topic connected with the history and prospects of India.

Lloyd Exhibition (Dublin). Founded in memory of Provost Lloyd, by his friends, in 1839; open to competition among undergraduates; subjects, mathematics and physics.

Maitland Prize (Cambridge). Founded in 1844, by gift of £1,000 in honor of Lieut.-Gen. Sir Peregrine Maitland, K.C.B., late commander-in-chief of the forces in South India; for English essay on some subject connected with the propagation of the gospel through missionary exertion in India, and other parts of the heathen world; awarded every three years: open to graduates of not more than ten years standing. The successful essay is published.

Master of the Charterhouse. Principal of the school of that name.

Master of Christ's Hospital. Principal of the school of that name.

Master of Marlborough College. Principal of the school of that name.

Merton Prize (Cambridge). Given by the representatives of the University in Parliament; one for English essay on some subject connected with British history or literature, and one for Latin essay; each prize open to all members of the university not of sufficient standing to be created M.A. or M.L.; value £21. 10s. each.

Modenary Prize (Cambridge). The second undergraduate examination.

Moderatorship (Dublin). Given at B.A. examination to best students in each of five departments (mathematics, classics, logsics and ethics, natural and experimental science, and history); value, a gold medal.

Newdigate Prize (Oxford). Founded by Sir Roger Newdigate; open to competition among members of the university under four years from matriculation; is in English verse; value £21.

Norrisian Prize (Cambridge). Founded by John Norris in 1777; value £12 (gold medal and books).

Oberkirchenrathe. Member of the highest Protestant Church Council in Prussia and Baden.

Optime (Cambridge). One who stands in the second or third class of final honors in mathematics; called Senior and Junior Optime respectively.

Porson Prize (Cambridge). For translation from any standard English poet into Greek verse, with Latin version of the Greek.

Privat-docent. One who has "habilitated himself," i.e., passed the examination for professor in a German university, and delivers lectures like the professors; but receives, usually, no salary from the State, and therefore depends for support upon lecture-fees or other sources.

Professor Extraordinary. In a German university, has no seat in the faculty or senate, a smaller salary than the regular or ordinary professor, but is in the line of promotion.

Professor Ordinary. In a German university, is a member of the faculty, and salaried by government.

Pusey and Ellerton Hebrew Scholarship (Oxford). Tenable two years; value £40.

Realschule. A school in which modern languages and the arts and sciences are taught; corresponds to a grammar school.

Repetent. One who in Tübingen, Marburg, and Erlangen conducts weekly examinations in the lectures of the professors, selected from the best graduate students.

Scholastic Prize (Cambridge). Founded by gift of £200 in 1856, in honor of Rev. James Scholastic, M.A., regius professor of Greek; in promotion of the critical study of Holy Scripture; given to that candidate for honors, in the second part of the theological tripos who shows the best knowledge of the Greek Testament and the Septuagint version of the Old Testament.

Seatonian Prize (Cambridge). Founded by Rev. Thomas Seaton, M.A., fellow of Clare College, who died in 1741; given for best English poem on a sacred subject; open to M.A.'s; value £20.

Select Prize (Cambridge). Value £100. For best translation from the Latin version of the Greek Testament.

Smith's Prize (Cambridge). Founded by Rev. Robert Smith, D.D., master of Trinity College, died 1718; two annual prizes given to the two commencing B.A.'s who are most proficient in mathematics and natural philosophy; value £23 each.

Tripos (Cambridge). One of the honor lists with its three classes, called in mathematics wranglers, senior optimes, junior optimes.

Tyrwhitt Hebrew Scholarship (Cambridge). Founded by Rev. Robert Tyrwhitt, M.A., Fellow of Jesus College, died 1817; open to competition among B.A.'s or students in civil law or medicine; tenable three years; six scholarships, worth together £120.

Whitehall Preachership (Cambridge). Established by George I. in 1724, tenable two years; filled from Trinity College (two from each) by appointment of the Bishop of London.

Wrangler. One of the students who pass the first class of wranglers; the first in the list being styled senior wrangler, and the others respectively second wrangler, third wrangler, etc.
ABBOT, Ezra, S.T.D. (Harvard, 1872), LL.D. (Yale, 1869, Bowdoin, 1878), Unitarian layman; b. at Jackson, Waldo County, Me., April 28, 1819; d. at Cambridge, Mass., March 21, 1884, and was buried in Mount Auburn Cemetery, near Boston. He was fitted for college at Phillips Academy, at Exeter (N.H.), and graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick (Me.), 1840. He then taught school in Maine until 1847, when he removed to Cambridge (Mass.). He taught the high school at Cambridgeport, and also rendered service in the Harvard University and Boston Athenæum libraries. In 1856 he was appointed assistant librarian of Harvard University. His studies had long been given to the Greek New Testament, and in 1872 he became Bussey professor of New-Testament criticism and interpretation in the Harvard Divinity School, and so remained until his death.

He was the recipient of many testimonials to his scholarship. In 1852 he was elected a member of the American Oriental Society, and since 1853 was its recording secretary; and in 1861 a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He was University lecturer on the textual criticism of the New Testament, in 1871. He was one of the original members of the American New-Testament Revision Company. In 1880 he aided in organizing the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis. He belonged also to the Harvard Biblical Club. He was the recipient of many testimonials to his worth as a scholar and conscience Christian gentleman. From the many testimonials to his worth as a scholar and a man, which are published in a memorial three hundred titles; while Grässle's Bibliotheca Psychologica (1843) contains only ten hundred and twenty-five. He enriched Smith's Bible Dictionary (Am. ed., 1887-70, 4 vols.) with careful bibliographical lists on the most important topics. His most valuable and independent labors, however, were devoted to textual criticism, and are incorporated in Dr. Gregory's Prolegomena to the Ed. viii. critica major of Tischendorf's Greek Testament. He followed the preparation of this work with the deepest interest till his last sickness, but died a few months before the first volume appeared (Leipzig, 1884). The chapter De Versibus (pp. 167-182) is by him, and he read the MS. and proof of all the rest. Dr. Gregory lost in him, as he says, “a constant and proven guide, councillor, and support.” Oscar von Gebhardt, the editor of Tischendorf's latest text, declares Abbot's loss to biblical science irreparable. “We all feel it who labor in the same field.” His services to the American Bible-Revision Committee were invaluable. He attended the monthly meetings from 1871 to 1881 most punctually, and was always thoroughly prepared. The critical papers which he prepared on disputed passages, at the request of the N. T. Company, and which were forwarded from time to time to the British Company, were uncommonly thorough, and had no small influence in determining the text finally accepted. As a Unitarian, he differed on some points from his fellow-revisers; but he had the most delicate regard for their convictions, never obtruded his own, sought only the truth, and as his friend and successor, Dr. Thayer, says in his memorial paper adopted by the Committee, “his Christlike temper rendered him a brother beloved, and lends a heavenly lustre to his memory.” His defence of the Johannean Authorship of the Fourth Gospel (1880, pp. 104) is an invaluable contribution to the solution of that great question: it is the best within the limits of external evidence, and makes one regret that he did not complete it by the internal evidence, which he thought would require two volumes. Godet (in the third ed. of his Com. on the Gospel of St. John, I. 38) says of Abbot's book: “Ce travail me parait épouser la matière. Connaissance complète des discussions modernes, étude approfondie des témoignages du 15° siècle, mesure et netteté dans le jugement, rien n'y manque.”

Personally, Dr. Abbot was a kind-hearted, modest, courteous, disinterested, amiable, devout, and conscientious Christian gentleman. From the many testimonials to his worth as a scholar and a man, which are published in a memorial...

AABBOTT. Edwin Abbott, D.D. (by Archbishop of Canterbury, 1872), Church of England; b. in London, Dec. 20, 1838; educated at St. John's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A., 1861 (7th senior optime and senior classic); M.A., 1864; was fellow of his college; assistant master at King Edward's School, Birmingham (1862), then at Clifton College, Bristol, and since 1865 head master of the City of London School. In 1869, and twice subsequently, he was in Israel and in Jerusalem, and the same at Oxford (1877). In 1876 he was Hulsean lecturer at Cambridge. His theological position is that of the Broad Church School. He goes "beyond many of them in rejecting the miraculous, but does not go with many of them in rejecting what is generally called dualism,—some kind of a recognition of an Evil contending against the Good." His religious publications include Bible Lessons, London, 1871; Good Voices, a Child's Guide to the Bible, 1872; Parables for Children, 1873; Cambridge Sermons, 1875; Through Nature to Christ, 1877; Oxford Sermons, 1879; (in connection with W. G. Rusbrooke, editor of the Sympo 1sticon), The Common Tradition of the Synoptic Gospels in the Text of the Revised Version, 1884. He wrote the article Gospels in the 9th ed. of the Encycl. Brit. (1879), and the anonymous religious publications, Physiocrates, Memoirs of a Disciple of Our Lord, 1876; On the Use of a Disciple of St. Paul, 1882. Among his other works are, A Shakespearian Grammar, 1869, 2d ed., 1871; an edition of Bacon's Essays, 1876, 2 vols.; Bacon and Essex, 1877; Hints on Home Teaching, 1883, 2d ed. same year; Platland, a Romance of Many Dimensions, 1884, 2d ed., 1885, republished, Boston, 1885; Francis Bacon, an Account of his Life and Works, 1885; and several instruction-books in English and Latin.

ABBOTT, Thomas Kingsmill, Episcopal Church in Ireland; b. in Dublin, March 26, 1829; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; graduated B.A. (senior moderator, large gold medal in mathematics, and senior in ethics, 1851; M.A., 1855; B.D., 1870. He was Lloyd exhibitioner, 1849; Bishop Law's prizeman (first), 1850; elected fellow, 1854. From 1867 to 1872 he was professor of moral philosophy in Trinity College; since 1875 has been professor of Biblical Greek; and since 1870 also of Hebrew. In the ology he is Broad Church. He is the author of The English Bible, a Plea for Revision, Dublin, 1857, 2d ed., 1871; Sicht und Touch, an attempt to disprove the Berkeleyan theory of vision, London, 1864; Kant's Theory of Ethics, translated with memoir in, 1873, 3d ed., 1883; Collation of Four MSS. of the Gospels, by Ferrar, edited with introduction, 1877; Codex rescriptus S. Matthewi Dublinensis (Z), Dublin, 1880; Elements of Logic, London, 1883, 2d ed., 1885; Evangelia ante Hier; Kant's Introduction to Logic, translated, London, 1885.

ACHELIS, Ernst Christian, D.D. (hon. Halle, 1882), Reformed; b. at Bremen, Jan. 13, 1838; studied theology at Heidelberg and Halle, 1857-60; became successively assistant preacher at Arsten, near Bremen, 1860; pastor at Hastedt, near Bremen, 1862; pastor at Barmen, 1875; ordinary professor of theology at Marburg, 1882. Besides numerous minor publications, he has issued Die bibliischen Thatsachen und die religiöse Bedeutung ihrer Geschichtlichkeit, Gotha, 1869; Der Richard Rothe, 1869; Der Krieg im Lichte der christlichen Moral, Bremen, 1871; Die Bergpredigt nach Matthäus und Lukas exegesis und kritisch untersucht, Bielefeld and Leipzig, 1875; Partiewesen und Evangelium, Barmen, 1878; Die Entstehungszeit von Luther's geistlichen Liedern, Marburg, 1884; Kant's Introduction to Logic, translated, London, 1885.

ADAMS, Right Rev. William Forbes, D.D. (University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1871), Episcopal bishop; b. in Ireland, Jan. 2, 1837; came to the United States, 1841; ordained priest, 1860; consecrated first missionary bishop of New Mexico and Arizona, 1875; resigned, 1876; became rector at Vicksburg, Miss.

ADLER, Felix, Ph.D. (Heidelberg, 1873); b. at Alzey, Germany, Aug. 18, 1851; graduated at Columbia College, New-York City, 1870; and at Heidelberg University, 1873. From 1873 to 1876 he was non-resident professor of Oriental languages and literature at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., and since 1876 has been lecturer of the Society for Ethical Culture, New-York City. His "stand-point is not to be classed as theological in a strict sense, but rather as a foundation on which some of the foundations of the human heart, good judgment, ready sympathies, and kindly humor, so that he was the friend and counsellor of all classes, and held by every one in affectionate esteem. His sermons were listened to by throngs, and abounded in apt and beautiful illustration. Besides preaching, he taught in the Leipzig Theological Seminary, and for many years did good service upon the commission to revise the Luther version of the Old Testament. In 1881 he was made pastor emeritus and Geheimer Kirchenrat. Of the numerous collections of his discourses may be mentioned, Predigten über die evangelischen Perikopen, Halle, 1845, 10th ed., 1880; Das Leben im Lichte des Wortes Gottes, 1861, 6th ed., 1879; Predigten über die epistolischen Perikopen, 1867, 3d ed., 1877; Confirmationreden, Leipzig, 1880, 2 series. See his Lebensbild, Halle, 1885.

AIKEN, Charles Augustus, Ph.D. (Princeton, 1880), D.D. (Princeton, 1879), Presbyterian; b. in Manchester, Vt., Oct. 30, 1827; graduated at Dartmouth College, 1846; taught three years in the Lawrence Academy, Groton, Mass., and in Phillips Academy, Andover; entered the Andover...
Theological Seminary, graduated 1858, having meanwhile studied at the universities of Halle and Berlin (1851—53). He became successively pastor of the Congregational Church at Yarmouth, Me., 1854; professor of Latin in Dartmouth College, 1859; the same in the College of New Jersey at Princeton, 1866; president of Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1869; Archibald Alexander professor of Christian ethics and apologetics in Princeton Theological Seminary, 1871; and since 1892, Archibald Alexander professor of Oriental and Old-Testament literature in the same institution. He was a member of the Old-Testament Revision Company. He translated Zöckler's commentary on Proverbs in the Lange series, New York, 1869; and has contributed to the Presbyterian and other reviews, etc.

ALEXANDER, William Hay Macdowall Hunter, Church of England; b. at Liverpool, Sept. 21, 1841; educated at Wadham College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (2d class classics), 1865; M.A., 1867; was curate of St. Jude's, Mildmay Park, 1866—70; incumbent of Christ Church, Everton, Liverpool, 1871—73; has since devoted himself entirely to mission work and study. In 1884 he has been general superintendent of the Church of England Parochial Mission Society, which he founded in 1877, with a view to supply competent mission [revival] preachers. His theology is "eclectic. He desires to be a Churchman pure and simple, to belong to no party, but to comprehend what is good in all. He holds evangelical principles strongly, but without Calvinism, and values highly Church order and the sacraments." He conducted a mission in New-York City in the winter of 1885. He has published Mission Sermons, Brighton, 1875—76, 3 series, 2d ed., London, 1877; Newness of Life, Brighton, 1877, 2d ed., London, 1878; Difficulties of the Soul, London, 1878; What is your Life? 1878; Manual of Parochial Missions, 1879; The School of Grace, 1879; God's Everlasting "Yea," 1880; The Glory of the Gospel, 1881; The Highway of Holiness, 1883; Around the Cross, 1884; The Reeker revealed, 1885.

ALLEN, Edmund Kimball, D.D. (Amherst, 1866), Congregationalist; b. at Randolph, Mass., April 11, 1825; graduated at Amherst College, 1841; and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1848; became pastor of First Church, Yarmouth, Me., 1850; at Lenox, Mass., 1854; of Phillips Church, South Boston, Mass., 1859; secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, Boston, Mass., 1876. He is the author of various sermons and pamphlets.

ALEXANDER, Right Rev. William, D.D. (by diploma, Oxford, 1867), D.G.L. (hon., Oxford, 1870), Lord Bishop of Derry and Raphoe, Episcopalian Church in Ireland; b. at Londonderry, Ireland, April 13, 1824; was a student in Exeter and then in Brasenoise College, Oxford University; won the theological prize essay, 1850; graduated B.A., 1854; M.A., 1856; won the sacred prize poem, 1850. He was select preacher, 1870—71, 1882; and Bampton lector, 1870. His ministerial life has been spent in Ireland, where he became bishop of Derry and Raphoe, 1882; of Camus-juxta-Mourne; dean of Emily, 1863; bishop of Derry and Raphoe, 1887. His wife, Cecil Frances Humphreya, is author of many familiar hymns and poems. He has written, besides numerous articles, etc., Leading Ideas of the Gospels (Oxford sermons, 1870—71), London, 1872; The Witness of the Psalms to Christ and Christianity (Bampton lectures), 1877, 2d ed., 1878, republished, New York; The Great Question and other Sermons, 1883; The New Atlantis and other Poems: introductions to and comments upon Colossians, Thessalonians, Philoemen, and Epistles of John, in Bible (Speaker's) Commentary, vols. ix., x. (1881).

ALEXANDER, William, D.D. (University of Wooster, O., 1870), Presbyterian; b. near Shireyburg, Huntingdon County, Penn., Dec. 18, 1831; graduated at Jefferson College, Penn., 1858, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1861; was pastor at Lycoming, Penn. (1862—63); stated supply at Waukesha, Wis., while president of Carroll College in that place (1863—64); pastor at Beloit, Wis. (1864—65); and at San Jose, Cal., 1869—71; president of City College, San Francisco, 1871—74. In October, 1871, he took a leading part in founding the San Francisco Theological Seminary, and was made (1871) its first professor of New-Testament literature. In 1876 he was transferred to the chair of ecclesiastical history and church government. He has published several sermons, Commentaries on the New Testament, 1881 sqq.; Letters (4) to Gen. George Stone on the Sunday Law, 1881; Letters (9) to Bishop McQuade on Failure of Romanism, 1883, etc.

ALEXANDER, William Lindsay, D.D., F.R.S.E., Scotch Congregationalist; b. at Edinburgh, Aug. 24, 1808; educated at the universities of Edinburgh and St. Andrews; classical tutor in the Lancashire Independent College at Blackburn (now at Manchester) from 1828 to 1835; Congregational pastor in Edinburgh (1835—1854); subsequently professor of theology in the Congregational Theological College, Edinburgh (1854); examiner in philosophy at St. Andrew's University (1861); and member of the Old-Testament Revision Company from its formation (1870). He published The Connection and Harmony of the Old and New Testament, London (Congregational lecture for 1840), 2d ed., 1853; Anglo-Catholicism not Apostolical, 1843; Christ and Christianity, 1854; A History of the Christian Church, Edinburgh (1854); introductions to and comments upon Colossians, Thessalonians, Philemon, and Epistles of John, in Bible (Speaker's) Commentary, vols. ix., x. (1881).

ALLEN, Alexander Viets Giriswold, D.D. (Kenyon, 1878), Episcopal; b. at Otis, Berkshire County, Mass., May 4, 1841; graduated at Kenyon College, Gambier, O., 1862, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1865; became rector of St. John's Church, Lawrence, Mass., 1865, and professor of ecclesiastical history in the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, Mass., 1887. He is the author of The Continuity of Christian Thought, a Study of Modern Theology in the Light of its History, Boston, 1884.

ALLEN, Joseph Henry, Unitarian; b. at Northborough, Mass., Aug. 21, 1820; graduated at Harvard College (1840), and Divinity School (1843); pastor at Roxbury, Mass., 1843-47; Washington, D.C., 1847-50; Bangor, Me., 1850-57; West Newton, 1858-60; Northborough, 1864-66; and Lincoln, Mass., 1866-74; Ithaca, N.Y., 1893-94; editor (assistant or chief) of the Christian Examiner, 1857-89; lecturer upon ecclesiastical history in Harvard University, 1878-82; delegate (1881) of British and Foreign and of American Unitarian Associations to the Supreme Consistory of Transylvania, held in Kolozsvár, Hungary. He is the author of Memoir of Hiram Wilkington, Boston, 1849; Ten Discourses on Oracles, 1849; Manual of Devotions for Families and Sunday Schools, 1852; Hebr. Men and Times from the Patriarchs to the Messiah, 1861, 2d ed., 1879; Fragments of Christian History, 1880; Our Liberal Movement in Theology, chiefly as shown in Recollections of the History of Unitarianism in New England, 1882; Christian History in its Three Great Periods, 1893; Manual of Devotions for Families and Sunday Schools, 1884, 2d ed., 1885; joint editor of "Allen and Greenough's Classical Series."

ALLIOLI, Joseph Franz, D.D. (Regensburg, 1816), Roman Catholic; b. at Sulzbach, Austria, Aug. 10, 1793; d. at Augsburg, May 22, 1873. After receiving his general training at Sulzbach and Amberg, he studied theology at Landshut, then entered the clerical seminary at Regensburg; was consecrated to the priesthood, Aug. 11, 1816, and shortly afterwards made a Doctor of Divinity. He officiated for short periods as priest, in Grading, Roding, and Regensburg, but, quitting the ecclesiastical stage, set himself to learned pursuits, studied oriental languages at Vienna, Rome, and Paris; became successively privat-docent (1821), extraordinary (1823) and then ordinary professor (1824) of the oriental languages and of biblical exegesis and archaeology at Landshut. He went with the University to Munich (1829), and became in 1830 member of the Munich Academy of Sciences, and rector of the university. A threat of affection obliging him to give up teaching, he was in 1835 chosen member of the Cathedral Chapter, Munich, and, in 1838, provost of the cathedral at Augsburg. Active in charitable work, he greatly promoted the Franciscan Female Institute of the Star of Mary. Although an invalid, he wrote many academic addresses, sermons, liturgical treaties, and Hebrew and Arabic poems, besides the following important works: Aphorismen über den Zusammenhang der heiligen Schriften des Alten und Neuen Testaments, Landschütz, 1810; Römische Alterthümer der Hebräer nebst biblische Geographie, 1821; Bibilische Alterthümer, 1825; Leben Jesu, 1840; Handbuch der biblischen Alterthumskunde, 1841-44, 2 vols. (in connection with L. C. Gratz and Haneberg). But by far the greatest of his works was his third edition of H. Braun's annotated German translation from the Vulgate of the entire Bible, Nuremberg, 1830-34, 6 vols. The original work appeared in 1786, and in a second edition by Michael Feder, 1803, 3 parts. Alliolli's edition was such a decided improvement, that his predecessors have been forgotten. It has been repeatedly re-issued, and has the unique honor among German translations of the Bible, of having received the papal sanction.

ALLISON, James, D.D. (Washington and Jefferson College, Pa., 1868), Presbyterian; b. at Pittsburg, Penn., Sept. 27, 1823; graduated at Jefferson College, 1845, and at Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1848; became pastor at Sewickley, 1849; editor and proprietor of the Presbyterian Banner, Pittsburg, 1864, of which he had been associate editor since 1856. He has been a member of the Presbyterian Board for Freedmen since its organization in 1865, and its treasurer since 1870.

ALLON, Henry, D.D. (Yale College, 1871; St. Andrew's University, 1885), Congregationalist; b. at Welton, near Hull, Yorkshire, Eng., Oct. 13, 1818; graduated at Cheshunt College, Hertfordshire, 1843; and since January, 1844, has been minister of Union Chapel, Islington, London (for the first eight years as associate of the Rev. Thomas Lewis); and in addition, since 1865, editor of the British Quarterly Review. In 1864, and again in the Jubilee Year, 1861, he was chairman of the Congregational Union. In December, 1877, he left the church of the Congregational Union for a church of his own, in Compton Terrace, Islington, which had cost £41,466, was opened for service. His congregation numbers nearly two thousand. Although so immersed in pastoral labors, he yet has written much for the periodical press, compiled the Congregational Psalmist, very generally used in his denomination, and published the following volumes: The Life of Rev. James Sherman, London, 1863 (three editions same year); The History of God, and other Sermons, 1878, 3d ed., 1877; and edited Thomas Binney's sermons, prefacing a critical sketch, 1875.

ANDERSON, Martin Brewer, LL.D. (University of Rochester, 1886), LL.D. (both Rochester and Madison Universities, 1888), Baptist; b. at Bergen, Genesee County, N.Y., March 7, 1832; graduated at University of Rochester (1854), and (Baptist) theological seminary (1854); became pastor at Janesville, Wis., 1859; St. Louis (Second Church), 1868; professor of homiletics, church policy, and pastoral duties in Newton (Mass.) Theological Institution, 1866; pastor in Brooklyn (Strong-place Church), 1873; Chicago (Second Church), 1876; president of University of Chicago, 1875; pastor at Salem, Mass., 1885. From 1880-85 he lectured at Morgan Park (Baptist) Theological Seminary. Anderson, Martin Brewer, LL.D. (Colby University, 1858, New-York Board of Regents, 1890), Baptist; b. at Brunswick, Me., Feb. 12, 1815; graduated at Waterville College (now Colby University), Me., 1840; studied in Newton Theological Seminary, 1840-41; became tutor in Waterville College, 1841; professor of rhetoric, 1843; proprietor and editor-in-chief of the New-England Observer, a denominational weekly, 1850; president of the newly organized University of Rochester, 1853. He was president of the American Baptist Home.
ANDREWS, Edwin, M.A., b. at Rochester, Eng., 1829; A.B. at Lafayette College, 1856; A.M. at Union College, 1860; D. D. at the University of Edinburgh, 1865. Professor of Latin at Union College, 1861-1870; since 1870 Professor of Classical Languages at the University of Cambridge, where he has been since 1870. He is the author of several works on classical literature and the classical languages, and is known as an authority on the language and literature of the early Greeks and Romans. He has contributed to various periodicals and journals, and is a member of several learned societies. He is also a distinguished contributor to the New Testament, having published several works on the text and interpretation of the New Testament.

ARNOLD, Edwin, M.A., b. at Rochester, Eng., 1829; A.B. at Lafayette College, 1856; A.M. at Union College, 1860; D. D. at the University of Edinburgh, 1865. Professor of Latin at Union College, 1861-1870; since 1870 Professor of Classical Languages at the University of Cambridge, where he has been since 1870. He is the author of several works on classical literature and the classical languages, and is known as an authority on the language and literature of the early Greeks and Romans. He has contributed to various periodicals and journals, and is a member of several learned societies. He is also a distinguished contributor to the New Testament, having published several works on the text and interpretation of the New Testament.
ARNOLD.

June 10, 1832; educated at University College, Oxford; graduated B.A., 1854; became assistant master of Edward VI. School, Birmingham; later, principal of the government Sanscrit College at Poona, Bombay Presidency; an editor of the London Daily Telegraph, 1851. He is a fellow of the Royal Asiatic Society, and of the Royal Geographical Society; 2d class of the imperial order of the Medjidie (Turkish), and companion of the Star of India. He arranged George Smith's first expedition, and Stanley's expedition in search of Livingstone,—both in behalf of the Daily Telegraph. He has made numerous poetical translations from Greek and Sanscrit, and has written many poems, of which the most famous are, The Light of Asia (the life and teaching of Buddha), London, 1879 (28th ed., 1886, and several reprints; in recognition he was decorated by the King of Siam with the Order of the White Elephant); Pearls of the Faith, or Islam, 1883, 5d ed.; 1884; The Secret of Death, 1885.

ARNOLD, Matthew, D.C.L. (Edinburgh, 1869, Oxford, 1870), son of Thomas Arnold of Rugby; b. at Laleham, near Staines, Dec. 24, 1822; entered Balliol College, Oxford; won the Newdigate prize for English verse (1842); graduated in honors, 1844; became a Fellow of Oriel College (1845); a lay inspector of schools, 1851; was professor of poetry at Oxford from 1857 to 1867. He received the order of Commander of the Crown of India, in recognition he was decorated by the King of Italy in Transition, Public Scenes and Private Life, 1874; The Success of Religion, 1885; The Pope, the Kings, and the People, 1877, 2 vols.; The Difference between Physical and Moral Law, 1858, 4th ed., 1855; Religion without God, and God without Religion, 1856, 2 parts.

ATSTIE, Jean Frédéric, French Swiss Protestant, b. at Nerac (Lot-et-Garonne), France, Sept. 21, 1822; studied theology at Geneva, Halie, and Berlin; lived for a long time in the United States, and was pastor of a French church in New-York City from 1848 to 1853. From 1856 he has been professor of philosophy and theology in the Free Faculty at Lausanne, and editor of the Revue de Théologie et de Philosophie. Besides a history of the United States (Paris, 1865, 2 vols.), and of the revival there of 1857-58 (Lausanne, 1859), and various polemical pamphlets against M. Scherer, Hornung, and Bersier, he has published an edition of the Pensées de Pascal, 1857, 2d ed., 1862; Esprit d'Alexandre Vinet, Paris, 1861, 2 vols.; Les deux théologies nouvelles dans le sein du Protestantisme Français, 1862; Explication de l'évangile selon Saint-Jean, Geneva, 1864, 3 vols. (the first two were anonymous); Théologie allemande contemporaine, 1875; Mélanges de théologie et de philosophie, Lausanne, 1878.

ATLAY, Right Rev. James D.D. (Cambridge, 1859), Lord Bishop of Hereford, Church of England; b. at Wakerley, Northamptonshire, Eng., in the year 1817; was scholar of St. John's College, Cambridge; Bell's University scholar, 1837; graduated B.A. (senior optime, 1st class classical tripus), 1840; M.A., 1843; B.D., 1850. He was a fellow of St. John's College, 1842-59; tutor, 1846-59; curate of Warsop, Notts, 1842; vicar of Madingley, Cambridge, 1847-52; Whitehall preacher, 1856-68; vicar of Leeds and rural dean, 1858-68; canon residentary of Ripon Cathedral, 1861-68; consecrated Lord Bishop of Hereford, 1868.

ATTERBURY, William Wallace, Presbyterian; b. at Newark, N.J., Aug. 4, 1823; graduated at Yale College, 1843; was resident for a year, then entered Yale Theological Seminary, and graduated, 1847; was ordained, 1848; established Presbyterian Church at Lansing, Mich., 1848; was pastor there until 1854; at Madison, Ind., 1854-66; in Europe and the East; supplied pulpits at Cleveland, O., and elsewhere; became secretary of the New-York Sabbath Committee, 1866. He is an active member of the United-States Branch of the Evangelical Alliance, and was its secretary in 1875. He has written numerous documents, reports, articles for the press, etc., mostly on the various aspects of the Sunday question.

ATWOOD, Isaac Morgan, D.D. (Tufts, 1879), Universalist; b. at Pembroke, Genesee County, N.Y., March 24, 1838; was educated in the States of New York, Maine, and Massachusetts; editor of the Boston Universalist, 1867-72; since and now associate editor of the Christian Leader; and since 1879 has been president of the Canton (N.Y.) Theological School, and Dockstader professor of theology and ethics. He has published, Have we lost our Christian Faith? Boston, 1870; The Word of Universalism, 1878; Walks about Zion, 1882; Episcopacy, 1884.
BAIRD, Charles Washington, D.D. (University, New York City, 1856; Presbyterian: b. at Princeton, N.J., Aug. 29, 1828; graduated at the University of the City of New York, 1848, and at Union Theological Seminary, 1852; was chaplain of the American Chapel at Rome, Italy, 1852-54; and pastor of the Reformed Dutch Church on Bergen Hill, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1856-61; but since 1861 has been pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Rye, Westchester County, N.Y. He is the necrologist of Union Theological Seminary. He has written the following books: Eutaxia, or the Presbyterian Liturgies: Historical Sketches, New York, 1855 (revised and reprinted under title A Chapter on Liturgies, with preface and appendix, Are Dissenters to have a Liturgy? both by Thomas Binney, London, 1856); A Book of Public Prayer, compiled from the Authorized Formularies of Worship of the Presbyterian Church, as prepared by the Reformers Calvin, Knox, Bucer, and others. With Supplemental Forms, New York, 1857; Chronicle of a Border Town [Rye, N.Y.], 1870; History of Bedford Church [Westchester County, N.Y.], 1882; History of the Huguenot Emigration to America (1895), 2 vols.; 2d ed. same year. Besides these he has translated Malan's Romanism, New York, 1844; and Discourses and Essays of J. H. Merle d'Aubigné, 1849; and written an arti-BAIRD, Henry Martyn, Ph.D. (Princeton College, 1867), D.D. (Rutgers College, 1877), L.L.D. (Princeton, 1883), brother of the preceding Presbyterian; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., Jan. 17, 1832; graduated at the University of the City of New York, 1850; studied in the University of Athens, Greece; in the Union Theological Seminary, New York, 1853-55; graduated at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1856; was tutor in the College of New Jersey, Princeton, N.J., 1856-60; and has been since 1859 professor of the Greek language and literature in the University of the City of New York. He is the author of Modern Greece: A Narrative of a Residence and Travel in that Country, New York, 1856; The Life of the Rev. Robert Baird, D.D. (his father), 1868; History of the Rise of the Huguenots of France, New York, 1879, 2 vols., 2d ed., 1883, London, 1889. BALAN, Pietro, Roman Catholic; b. at Este, Padua, Italy, Sept. 3, 1840; educated in the seminary at Padua; became ordinary professor in October, 1862, in that institution; director of the Venetian La Libertad Cattolica, 1865; of the Modenese Direito Cattolico, 1867; sub-archivist of the Vatican, 1880; retired on account of health, 1888; since 1883 has lived at Pragatto in the province of Bologna. He was nominated chamberlain by Leo XIII., 1881; domestic prelate, 1882; referendary of the Papal "segnatura," 1883; commander of the order of Franz Josef, Emperor of Austria, 1883. He is the author of Studi sul Papato, Padua, 1862; Tommaso Becket, 1884, 3d ed., Rome, 1889; Storia di S. Tommaso di Canterbury e dei suoi tempi, Modena, 1866, 2 vols.; I precursori del Razionalismo moderno fino a Lutero, Parma, 1867-68, 2 vols.; Romani e Longobardi, Modena, 1869; Della necessità di ristorare la storia d'Italia, 1868; L' Economia, la Chiesa e gli umanitari, 1869; Pio IX., la Chiesa e la Rivoluzione, 1869, 2 vols.; Dante e i Papi, 1870; Gli assedii della Mirandola nel 1511 e nel 1561, Mirandola, 1870; Della preponderanza germanica sull'Occidente dell'Europa, Modena, 1871; Chiesa e papi in Italia nel Secolo XVIII., Modena, 1872-73, 4 vols.; Saggio storico su varie legazioni compiute nei paesi nordici da Giuglielmo vescovo di Modena nel Secolo XIII., 1872; Il vescovo di Modena Alberto Boscetti, 1872; La Chiesa Cattolica ed i Romani Pontefici difesi dalle calunnie del Senatoro Siotto I n'Innes, Bologna, 1873; Storia di Gregorio IX. e dei suoi tempi, Modena, 1873-74, 3 vols.; Storia d'Italia dai primi tempi fino al 1870, 1875-86, 7 vols.; Storia del Pontificato di Papa Giovanni VIII., 1876, 3d ed., Rome, 1880; Storia della Lega Lombarda, con documenti, Modena, 1876; Memorie storiche di Tencarola nel Padovano con documenti inediti, 1876; Storia della Chiesa Cattolica durante il Pontificato di Pio IX., Turin, 1876-80, 3 vols., 4th ed.; vols. 1 and 2, 1886 (in continuation of Rohrbacher); Memorie della B. Beatrice I. di Este, Modena, 1877, 3d ed., Venice, 1879; Un giro nei Sette Comuni del Vicentino, Milan, 1878; Roberto Boscetti e l'Italia dei suoi tempi, Modena, 1878-84, 2 vols.; Discorsi tenuti nel Congresso della Chiesa Cattolica in Modena, Bologna, 1879, 31st ed., Milan, 1885; Le tombe dei Papi profanate da Frd. Gregorovius, vendicate dalla storia, Modena, 1879; Sull'autenticità dei diplomi di Enrico II. di Germania a Papa Benedetta VIII., Rome, 1880; S. Caterina da Siena e il Papa, 1880 (Flemish and French trans., Bruge, 1884); La politica italiana dal 1863 al 1870, secondo gli ultimi documenti, 1880; La storia d'Italia e gli archivi segreti della S. Sede, 1881; Le relazioni fra la Chiesa Cattolica e gli stati meridionali, 1881 (Slavic trans., Agram, 1882); I Papi ed i respiri siciliani, con documenti, 1881 (Spanish trans., Rome, 1881); Il processo di Bonifazio VIII., 1881; La politica di Clemente VII. fino al sacco di Roma, 1884; Rama capìtale d'Italia, 1884 (German trans., 1884); Monumenta reformationis Lutheranæ ex tabulariis secretariis s. sedis 1521-25, Regensburg, 1884; Monumenta sæculi XVI. historiae illustrantia, vol. i., Clementis VII. epistole per Sadoletum scriptae, quibus accedit variorum ad papam et ad alios epistole, Innsbruck, 1885; Clemente VII., e l'Italia del suo tempo, Milan, 1886. BALLANTINE, William Gay, Congregationalist; b. at Washington, D.C., Dec. 7, 1848; graduated at Marietta College, Ohio, 1868, and Union Theological Seminary, New York, 1872; professor in Ripon College, 1874-78; in Indiana University, 1878-79; since 1878 connected with the Congregational Theological Seminary of Oberlin, O., first as professor of Greek and Hebrew exegesis (1878-80), and since as professor of Old-Testament language and literature. He studied at the University of Leipzig, 1872-73; was with the American Palestine Exploration Expedition in Palestine, March to August, 1873. Since 1884, he has been one of the editors of the Bibliotheca Sacra. BALOQHI, Francis, Reformed; b. at Nagy Várad (Magnus Varadinum), Hungary, March 30, 1836; graduated there, 1854; continued theological studies at Debreczen, Hungary, until 1858; resided in the college until 1863, when he went to Paris, London, and Edinburgh for further study; in 1865 he returned to Debreczen as assistant professor, and the next year (1866) became ordinary professor of church history, the history of doctrines, and of Hungarian Protestant church history. His theological standpoint is orthodox and evangelical. He defends the Helvetic Confession of the Hungarian Reformed Church against those who throw away all confessions. He was founder, and editor 1875-78, of the Evangelical Protestant Gazette (Debreczen, weekly), which successfully opposed the Budapest "Protestant Union," an imitation of the "Protestanten Verein" of Schenkel. The "Union" has ceased to exist. He was a delegate from his church to the Reformed Alliance Council at Edinburgh, 1877, and made a report; a member of the first general national synod held at Debreczen 1881, again in 1882; and since 1883 has been ecclesiastical assessor of the superintendency (a life office). Besides addresses, translations, articles in Herzog, etc., he has written, all in Hungarian, and published at Debreczen, Peter Mélia, the Hungarian Reformer, 1868 (German translation, 1867); The History of the Hungarian Protestant Church, 1872; The History of the Christian Church to the 17th Century, 1872-82, 2 vols.; Points of Information in the Field of Theology Against Hungarian "Modernism," 1877. BARBOUR, William McLeod, D.D. (Bowdoin College, 1870). Congregationalist; b. at Fochabers, Morayshire, Scotland, May 29, 1827; graduated at Oberlin College, Ohio, 1859, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1861; was pastor of South Church, South Danvers (now Peabody), Mass., 1861-68; professor of sacred rhetoric and pastoral theology (1868-73), and of systematic theology (1873-77), in Bangor (Me.) Theological Seminary; since 1877 he has been professor of divinity in Yale College, and college pastor. He is a moderate Calvinist.

BARCLAY, Joseph, D.D. (Dublin University, 1880; L.D.D. (Dublin University, 1880); b. near Strabane, County Tyrone, Ireland, Aug. 12, 1831; d. in Jerusalem, Palestine, Jan. 23, 1880. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, but did not distinguish himself; graduated B.A., 1854; M.A., 1857; became curate of Bagnalstown, County Carlow, Ireland, 1854; missionary to the Jews in Constantinople, 1858; minister of Christ Church, Jerusalem, 1861; resigned July 22, 1870; curate of Howe, England, 1871; St. Margaret's, Westminster, 1871-73; rector of Stapleford, near Hertford, 1873; consecrated bishop of Jerusalem, July 25, 1879; arrived in that city Jan. 23, 1880. His attainments were extensive. He preached in Spanish, French, and German, was well read in Hebrew, both biblical and rabbinic, and acquainted with Turkish and Arabic. He is the author of The Talmud (select treatises of the Mishna with prolegomena and notes), London, 1877. See his biography (anonymous), London, 1883.

BARCÉS, Jean-Joseph, Roman Catholic abbe; b. at Auriol (Bouches-du-Rhône), Feb. 27, 1810; studied Arabic and Hebrew at Marseilles; was ordained priest in 1834; has been since 1842 professor of Oriental languages in the faculty of Catholic theology at Paris; and since 1850 honorary canon of Notre Dame. He has written, Traditions orientales sur les pyramides d'Egypte, Marseilles, 1841; Rabbi Yapheth ben Holi Bassorensis Kartia in librum Psalmorum commentarii arabici edidit et in Latinum convertit, Paris, 1846, and Yapheth's Verso, 1861; Apercu historique sur l'Eglise d'Arfique, 1848; Le livre de Ruth, 1854; Hebraic et le tombeau du patriarche Abraham: Tradition et Legendes, Paris, 1857; many, Past and Present, 1879. From 1871 to 1873 he was pastor of the New Church Society in New York City, 1840-43; in Cincinnati, O., 1844-50; retired temporarily from ministerial service because of ill health; was pastor in Philadelphia. Penn., 1854-71; and since has been president and corresponding secretary of the Swedenborgian Publishing Association, Philadelphia. He edited The Swedenborgian, 1858-60 (when discontinued), and The New Church Monthly, 1867-70 (when merged in The New Church Independent). He is the author of Life of Emanuel Swedenborg, New York, 1841; Lectures on the Doctrines of the New Church, 1842 (present title, Lectures on the New Dispensation), 11th ed., Philadelphia, 1878; The Golden Reed, New York, 1855; The Question concerning the Visible Church, 1856; University Education, 1858; Undulatory Theory of Light, 1892; Machinery and Processes of the Industrial Arts, and Apparatus of the Exact Sciences, New York, 1868; Metric System of Weights and Measures, 1871, 3d ed. 1879; Imaginary Metrometrical System of the Great Pyramid of Gizeh, 1883.

BARRETT, Benjamin Fisk, Swedenborgian; b. at Dresden, Me., June 24, 1808; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1829, and at the Harvard (Unitarian) Divinity School, Cambridge, Mass., 1833; became a Swedenborgian, 1839; was pastor of the New Church Society in New York City, 1840-49; in Cincinnati, O., 1849-50; retired temporarily from ministerial service because of ill health; was pastor in Philadelphia. Penn., 1854-71; and since has been president and corresponding secretary of the Swedenborgian Publishing Association, Philadelphia. He edited The Swedenborgian, 1858-60 (when discontinued), and The New Church Monthly, 1867-70 (when merged in The New Church Independent). He is the author of Life of Emanuel Swedenborg, New York, 1841; Lectures on the Doctrines of the New Church, 1842 (present title, Lectures on the New Dispensation), 11th ed., Philadelphia, 1878; The Golden Reed, New York, 1855; The Question concerning the Visible Church, 1856; University Education, 1858; Undulatory Theory of Light, 1892; Machinery and Processes of the Industrial Arts, and Apparatus of the Exact Sciences, New York, 1868; Metric System of Weights and Measures, 1871, 3d ed. 1879; Imaginary Metrometrical System of the Great Pyramid of Gizeh, 1883.
BARTOL.

First Words in Australia, 1884. He commented upon Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, and Philemon, in vol. iii. of Bishop Eliott's N. T. Commentary for English Readers, 1879, reissued in the Handy Commentary, 1883.

BARTLETT, Edward Totterson, Episcopalian; b. at Philadelphia, Penn., July 25, 1843; graduated from the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1865, and from Andover Theological Seminary, 1868; became rector at Sharon Springs, N. Y., 1869, and at Matteawan, N. Y., 1874, and since 1884 has been dean of the Divinity School of the Protestant Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, and professor of ecclesiastical history in the same.

BARTLETT, Samuel Colcord, D.D. (Dartmouth College, 1861). L.L.D. (College of New Jersey, 1878), Congregationalist; b. at Salisbury, N. H., Nov. 25, 1817; graduated at Dartmouth College, 1836, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1842; became successively pastor at Monson, Mass., 1843; professor of intellectual philosophy in the Western Reserve College, at Manchester, N. H., 1852; pastor in Chicago, Ill., and professor of biblical literature in the Congregational Theological Seminary, Chicago, Ill., 1857; resigned pastorship, but retained professorship, 1859; president of Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H., 1877. He is "in substantial accord with the modified Calvinism of New England, as represented by Andover Seminary in the time of Woods, Stuart, B. B. Edwards, and Park; welcoming all new light, from whatever source, upon the text, composition, or interpretation of the Scriptures, or the doctrines thence legitimately resulting; but resisting all baseless theories, and rash speculations, and, in general, declining to surrender the matured and well-established convictions of the great mass of intelligent evangelical Christians, except on valid evidence." He was the first on the ground to open and organize the Chicago Congregational Theological Seminary, and raised the funds for endowing the chair he occupied. He aided also in the organization of numerous churches in Illinois. He crossed the desert of El'Tih to Palestine (1874) with a view to compare in detail all the circumstances and conditions of the region with the narrative of the journey of the children of Israel. Besides numerous articles in the Bibliotheca Sacra, The New-Englander, The North-American Review, orations at the centennial of the battle of Benjamin, the quarter-millennial celebration of Newburyport, and at literary anniversaries, he has written Life and Death Eternal, a Refutation of the Doctrine of Annihilation, Boston, 1899, 2d ed. 1875; Sketches of the Missions of the A. B. C. F. M., 1872; Future Punishment, 1875; From Egypt to Palestine, Observations of a Journey, New York, 1879; Sources of History in the Pentateuch, 1883.

BARTOL, Cyrus Augustus, D.D. (Harvard, 1839), Independent Congregationalist; b. at Freeport, Me., April 30, 1819; graduated at Bowdoin College, Maine, the Cambridge Theological Seminary School, 1835; since 1837 he has been pastor of the West Church, Boston. He has written Discourse on the Christian Spirit and Life, Boston, 1850; Discourse on the Christian Body and Form, 1854; Pictures of Europe, 1853; Church and Congregation, 1858; Radical Problems, 1872; The BARROWS.

1850; Discourse on the Christian Body and Form, 1854; The Manifest Witness for Christ, 1880; The Teacher's Prayer Book, being the Book of Common Prayer, with introductions, analyses, notes, and a commentary upon the Psalter, 1882, 2d ed. 1885; BASCOM.

Rising Faith, 1873; Principles and Portraits, 1880.

BASCOM, John, D.D. (Iowa College, 1875), LL.D. (Amherst, 1873), Congregationalist; b. at Genoa, N.Y., May 1, 1827; graduated at Williams College, Massachusetts, 1849, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1853; was professor of rhetoric in Williams College from 1853 to 1873, and ever since has been president of the University of Wisconsin. He is the author of A Political Economy, Andover, 1859; Aesthetics, or the Science of Beauty, New York, 1862, revised edition 1881; Rhetoric, 1865; The Principles of Psychology, 1869, revised edition 1877; Science, Philosophy, and Religion (Lowell lectures), 1871; A Philosophy of English Literature, 1874; Philosophy of Religion, or the Rational Grounds of Religious Belief, 1876; Comparative Psychology, or Growth and Grades of Intelligence, 1878; Ethics, or Science of Duty, 1879; Natural Theology, 1880; Science of Mind, 1881; The Words of Christ as Principles of Personal and Social Growth, 1884; Problems in Philosophy, 1885.

BASERMANN, Heinrich, Lic. Theol. (Jena, 1876), D.D. (Kon., Zürich, 1883), German Protestant; b. at Frankfurt-am-Main, July 12, 1849; studied at Jena, Ziirich, and Heidelberg, 1867—72; rector in Cleveland, 1884. He is the author of the Rational Grounds of Religious Belief, 1876; Comparative Psychology, or Growth and Grades of Intelligence, 1878; Ethics, or Science of Duty, 1879; Natural Theology, 1880; Science of Mind, 1881; The Words of Christ as Principles of Personal and Social Growth, 1884; Problems in Philosophy, 1885.

BEATTIE, Francis Robert, Ph.D. (Illinois University, U.S.A., 1884), Presbyterian; b. at Guelph, Ontario, Can., March 31, 1848; graduated at the University of Toronto, B.A., 1875 (medallist in English literature); M.A., 1884; Ph.D. (Toronto, 1882). He was tutor in the University of Toronto, 1877; examiner, 1877-78, 1882; tutor in Knox College, Toronto, 1882.

Euangeliius und Alcar, ein Abschnitt spanischer Kirchengeschichte aus der Zeit der Maurenherrschaft, 1872; Studien zur semitischen Religionsgeschichte, 1870-78, 2 vols.: Der heutige Stand der alttestamentlichen Wissenschaft, Giessen, 1884.

BAUM, Henry Mason. See page 31.

BAUR, Gustav (Adolf Ludwig), D.D. (German Protestant; b. at Hamborn, June 14, 1816; became privat-docent at Giessen, 1841; professor extraordinary, 1847; ordinary, 1849; pastor at Hamburg, 1861; ordinary professor of theology at Leipzig, 1870. Besides numerous sermons he has issued Der Prophet Amos erklärt, Giessen, 1847; Grundzüge der Homileologie, 1885; Geschichte der alttestamentlichen Weissagung, 1st part, 1881; Grundzüge der Erziehungskunde, 1st to 3d ed., 1876; Botius und Dante, Leipzig, 1874.

BAUSMAN, Benjamin, D.D. (Franklin and Marshall College, 1870), Reformed (German); b. at Lancaster, Penn., Jan. 29, 1824; graduated at Marshall College, and the theological seminary, Mercersburg, Penn., 1852; became pastor at Lewisburg, Penn., 1852; editor of The Reformed Messenger, published at Chambersburg, Penn., 1858; pastor there, 1861; at Reading, 1883 (First Reformed Church till 1873, since of St. Paul's, which he organized). He was delegate to German Church Diet at Merck, 1858, and to Council of Alliance of Reformed Churches held at Belfare, 1884; president of General Synod, Baltimore, Md., 1884. He is the author of Sinai and Zion (travels), Philadelphia, 1860, 7th ed. 1883 (German trans., Reading, Penn., 1875, 2d ed. 1885); Wayside Gleanings in Europe, Reading, 1876; edited The Guardian, 1871-72; Harbaugh's Harfe (poems), 1870; founded, and since has edited, Der Reformierte Hausfreund, 1887 sqq.

BAYLIS, Jeremiah Henry, D.D. (Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, O., 1873), Methodist; b. at Wednesday, Eng., Dec. 20, 1830; attended Genesee College, Can., 1849-53, Ch. X., O. Dec. 31, 1849; graduated at the Cincinnati Law College, 1855, and at the Gambier Episcopal Theological Seminary, 1873. From 1865 to 1871 he was a lawyer in Cincinnati; became rector at Newark, O., 1873; professor of systematic divinity in the Gambier Theological Seminary, 1878; rector in Cleveland, 1884.

BATTERSON, Herman Griswold, D.D. (Nebraska College, 1889), Episcopalian; b. at Marbledale, Conn., May 28, 1827; educated privately; was rector at San Antonio, Tex., 1850-51; at Wabasha, Minn., 1862-66; and in 1866 in Philadelphia, Penn. (St. Clement's 1866-72, the Announcement since 1880). He is the author of the Missionary Tune-Book, Philadelphia, 1837, 10th ed. 1870; The Churchman's Hymn-Book, 1870; Sketch-Book of the American Episcopal, 1878, 2d ed. 1883; Christmas Carols and other Verses, 1878; The Pathway of Faith, New York, 1885, 2d ed. 1888.

BAUDISSIN, Wolf Wilhelm Friedrich, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1870), Count, German Protestant; b. at Sophienruhe, near Kiel, Sept. 26, 1847; became privat-docent at Leipzig, 1874; professor extraordinary at Strassburg, 1876; ordinary professor, 1880; and at Marburg, 1881. He is the author of Institutionis antiquae libri duo quae superstiteri, Leipzig, 1870; Jake et Molice sive de ratione inter duasIsraelitarum et Moabichum intercedente, 1874; BEECHER.

College, 1877-78; examiner since 1880; since 1878 he has been pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Brantford, Ontario, Can. He has written, besides numerous articles, An Examination of the Utilitarian Theory of Morals, Brantford, 1885; and has in preparation a work covering the whole ground of apologetics. BEOADY, Louis Napoleon, Methodist; b. of Roman-Catholic French-Canadian parentage, at Highgate, Franklin County, Vt., Aug. 11, 1833; entered Troy Conference, 1856; studied in Troy University, but left before graduation, and became chaplain of the 5th regiment of cavalry, N.Y.S.V., Jan. 31, 1863; was in nearly one hundred engagements; in Libby Prison, Richmond, Va., during summer of 1863; and honorably discharged from the service, July 19, 1865. Since 1876 he has been a member of the Montreal Conference, and is now superintendent (presiding elder) of the French District of the conference, and professor of theology in French in the Wesleyan Theological College, Montreal. He was converted from Romanism through the influence of Rev. Joseph Cook, his classmate and room-mate at Keeseville, N.Y., 1852-54. He has written, Army and Prison Experiences with the Fifth New-York Cavalry, Albany, 1865, 4th ed. 1874; Spiritual Struggles of a Roman Catholic, New York, 1875; (6th Canadian ed., Toronto, 1883; French trans., Montreal, 1892; Spanish trans., Mexico, 1884).

BECKWITH, Right Rev. John Watrus, S.T.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1808), D.D. (University of Georgia, 1809), Episcopal, bishop of Georgia; b. at Raleigh, N.C., Feb. 9, 1831; graduated at Trinity College, Hartford, 1852; became rector of Calvary Church, Wadesborough, N.C., 1855; of All Hallows' parish, Anne Arundel County, Md., 1856; chaplain in the Confederate army, 1861; rector of Trinity, New Orleans, 1865; bishop, 1898. He has published addresses, charges, sermons, historical and controversial tracts, etc.

BECKX, Pierre Jean, General of the Society of Jesus (retired), Roman Catholic; b. at Sichem, near Louvain, Belgium, Feb. 8, 1795; entered the novitiate of the Society of Jesus at Hildesheim, near Hanover, 1819; became junior editor of The Congregationalist, 1849-53; senior editor of The Congregationalist, 1849-53; editor of the Autobiography, etc., of his father, Lyman Beecher, 1865, 2 vols.

BEECHER, Edward, D.D. (Marietta College, 1831), Congregationalist; b. at East Hampton, Long Island, N.Y., Aug. 27, 1808; graduated at Yale College, 1822; studied for one year (1825) in Andover Theological Seminary, but did not graduate; was tutor in Yale College, 1825-26; pastor of the Park-street Church, Boston, 1829-30; president of Illinois College, 1830-44; pastor of the Salem-street Church, Boston, 1844-56; senior editor of The Congregationalist, 1849-53; pastor in Galesburg, Ill., 1856-71; professor extraordinary in Congregational Theological Seminary, Chicago, 1871-78; president of the society, for some years after 1860. Since 1871 he has resided, without pastoral charge, in Brooklyn, preaching often in various churches. He is "an evangelical Calvinist, except as to the nature and cause of original sin, and the question of the suffering of God and its influence in the atonement. He holds that sin did not come through the material system, and of course not through the fall of Adam, but that the material system by its analogies is adapted to regenerate those who have made themselves sinful in a previous state of existence. The doctrine of divine suffering he holds as presenting the character of God in its most affecting and powerful aspects, and as essential to a true view of the atonement."

"He went to Alton, Ill., in 1837, to aid in defending the freedom of the press in the case of E. P. Lovejoy. Resisted by the mob spirit, he aided in forming the Illinois State. He drew up its constitution and declaration of principles, and published an address to the people of the State. He was with E. P. Lovejoy and Owen Lovejoy, his brother, the night before the former's death, Nov. 6, 1837. He aided in landing the second press, and in storing it in the stone store of Godfrey and Gilman, where in defending it E. P. Lovejoy was slain.

Since 1824, he has published in various religious journals articles on questions of theology and practical reform, amounting in all to many volumes. His books are: On the Kingdom of God, Boston, 1827; History of the Alton Riots, Cincinnati, 1836; Import and Modes of Baptism, New York, 1849; The Conflict of Ages, exposing False Views of the Origin of Sin, False Interpretations on which they are based, the Great Controversy originating, and the Means of the Restoration of Harmony, Boston, 1853-54, 5th ed. 1855; The Concord of Ages: A Defence of the Historical Statements and the Interpretations of The Conflict of Ages, and a more Full Discussion of the Doctrine of the Suffering of God, and its Wide Range of Influence in harmonizing the Church, New York, 1853; The Papal Conspiracy, exposing the Principles and Plans of the Papacy with respect to this Country, Boston, 1855; History of Opinions on the Scriptural Doctrine of Retribution, New York, 1874.

BEECHER, Henry Ward, Congregationalist; b. at Litchfield, Conn., June 24, 1813; graduated at Amherst College, Mass., 1834; and at Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O., 1837, where his father was professor; became successive pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Layravenburg, Ind., 1837; and at Indianapolis, 1839; and of Plymouth Congregational Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1847. The latter building seats nearly 3,000, and the membership is (1855) 2,618. Besides preaching, Mr. Beecher has done much lecturing and political speaking, particularly in behalf of various reform movements. From its start in 1848 to 1861, he was a regular contributor to The Independent, a religious weekly of New-York City, and from 1861 to 1863 its editor. From 1870 to 1890, he was editor of the New-York Christian Union, a paper of the same tendency. Mr. Beecher visited Europe in 1866, and couraged the side of the Northern States in the Civil War then raging.

On Oct. 10, 1882, he withdrew from the Association to which he belonged, because he did not wish to compromise it by his alleged heresies. The chief points of his divergence from the orthodox position relate to the person of Christ, whom he considers to be the Divine Spirit under the limitations of time, space, and flesh; miracles, which he considers divine uses of natural laws; and future punishment, whose endlessness he denies, inclining to a modification of the annihilation theory. He calls his standpoint "evangelical progressive: anti-Calvinistic."

His sermons have been published weekly since 1859, and in book form in numerous volumes. He says he is the author of "swarms of books — of which I know less than any other person — of all sorts, some thirty to forty." Of these books may be mentioned, Lectures to Young Men, New York, 1850; Star Thoughts, 1858; Eyes and Ears, 1853; Royal Truths, 1864; Norwood (a novel), 1867; Lecture-room Talks, 1870; Life of Christ, vol. i., 1871; Yale Lectures on Preaching, 1873-74, 3 vols.; A Summer Parish, 1875; Evolution and Religion, 1885. Cf. Lyman Abbott: Henry Ward Beecher, N.Y., 1883.

BEECHER, Thomas Kenney, brother of the preceding, Congregationalist; b. at Litchfield, Conn., Feb. 10, 1824; graduated at Illinois College, 1843, under his brother Edward; became school-principal in Philadelphia, 1846, and in Hartford, Conn., 1848; pastor in Brooklyn, N.Y., 1852; in Elmira, 1854. His theological standpoint is that of the New Testament, Apostolic Creed, and Catholic faith. He is the author of Our Seven Churches, New York, 1870 [a volume of discourses, in a catholic spirit, upon the denominations represented in Elmira], and various articles in periodicals.

BEECHER, Willis Judson, D.D. (Hamilton College, 1873), Presbyterian; b. at Hampden, O., April 29, 1838; graduated at Hamilton College, N.Y., 1858, and at Auburn Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1864; became pastor at Ovid, N.Y., 1864; professor of moral science and belles-lettres in Knox College, Ill., 1865; acting pastor at Galesburg, Ill., 1869; professor of Hebrew language and literature in Auburn Seminary, 1871. He has written Farmer Tompkins and his Bible, Philadelphia, 1874; General Catalogue of Auburn Theological Seminary, Auburn, 1883; Drill Lessons in Hebrew, 1883, and jointly with Mary A. Beecher, Index of Presbyterian Ministers, 1706-1881, Philadelphia, 1883.

BEECHER, Willis Judson, D.D. (Hamilton College, 1873), Presbyterian; b. at Hampden, O., April 29, 1838; graduated at Hamilton College, N.Y., 1858, and at Auburn Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1864; became pastor at Ovid, N.Y., 1864; professor of moral science and belles-lettres in Knox College, Ill., 1865; acting pastor at Galesburg, Ill., 1869; professor of Hebrew language and literature in Auburn Seminary, 1871. He has written Farmer Tompkins and his Bible, Philadelphia, 1874; General Catalogue of Auburn Theological Seminary, Auburn, 1883; Drill Lessons in Hebrew, 1883, and jointly with Mary A. Beecher, Index of Presbyterian Ministers, 1706-1881, Philadelphia, 1883.

BEET, Joseph Agar, Wesleyan Methodist; b. at Sheffield, Eng., Sept. 27, 1840; educated at Wesley College, Sheffield, and Wesleyan Theological College, Richmond, London; for twenty-one years held pastoral charges as a Wesleyan minister; in 1885 entered the faculty of the Wesleyan Theological College at Richmond, as professor of systematic theology. Besides articles, he has published Commentary on the Epistle to the Romans, London, 1877, 5th ed. 1885; Holiness as understood by the Writers of the Bible, 1880, 3d ed. 1883; Commentary on the Epistles to the Corinthians, 1882, 3d ed. 1885; Commentary on the Epistles to the Galatians, 1885. (These works have been republished in New York.)

BEHRENS, Adolphus Julius Frederick, D.D. (Richmond College, 1873), Congregationalist; b. at Nymegen, Holland, Dec. 18, 1839; graduated at Denison University, O., 1862, and at Rochester (Baptist) Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1865; became pastor of the Baptist Church at Yonkers, N.Y., 1865; of the First Baptist Church, Cleveland, O., 1873; of the Union Congregational Church, Providence, R.I., 1876; and of the Central Congregational Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1883.

BENDER, Wilhelm (Friedrich), Ph.D. (Göttingen, 1868), D.D. (same, kon., 1877), German Protestant; b. at Münzenberg, Hesse, Jan. 15, 1845; studied at Göttingen and Giessen, 1863-66; and at the theological seminary at Friedberg, 1866-67; became teacher of religion and assistant preacher at Worms, 1868; ordinary professor of theology at Bonn, 1876. He is the author of Schülerschicksale philosophische Götterlehre, Worms, 1868; Der Wanderbegriff des Naturwissens, Frankfurt-a.-M., 1871; Schleiermachers Theologie mit ihren philosophischen Grundlagen, Nördlingen, 1876-78, 2 vols.; Friedrich Schleiermacher und die Frage nach dem Wesen der Religion, Bonn, 1877; Johann Conrad Dippel. Der Freigeist aus dem Pie-BERGER.

BERGNER, Charles Wesley, D.D. (Genesea College, N.Y., 1870), Methodist; b. at Bethany, N.Y., July 18, 1829; graduated from Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1852; studied church history and archeology in Berlin University, and travelled in Europe and the East, 1860-69; was in educational work in connection with schools until 1871, when he became professor of history in Syracuse University; since 1885 he has been professor of historical theology in the Garrett Biblical Institute (Methodist), Evanston, Ill. He edited the "Methodist" department of Appleton's Encyclopedia, revised edition. He has published, besides articles, History of the Philosophy of Pedagogy, New York, 1877; National Education in Italy, France, Germany, England, and Wales, Syracuse, 1878; Christ's Art and Archeology of the First Six Centuries (nearly ready).

BERNATH, Karl, German Protestant theologian; b. at Duren, Germany, Aug. 10, 1845; studied at Bonn, Berlin, and Heidelberg, 1863-67; taught in the city school of Duren until 1872; then studied in Italy, principally in Rome (1872-73); became privat-Dozent at Bonn, 1876, and professor extraordinary, 1879. He has written Bernardino Ochino von Siena, Leipzig, 1875; Ueber die Quellen der italienischen Reformationsgeschichte, Bonn, 1876; Die Summa der Heiligen Schrift, ein Zeugniss aus dem Zeitalter der Reformation fur die Rechtfertigung aux dent Glauben, Leipzig, 1880.

BENSLY, Robert Lubbock, M.A., layman, Church of England; b. at Eaton, near Norwich, Eng., Aug. 24, 1831; was educated at King's College, London, Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge; studied in University of Halle, Germany; was a student at Gonville and Caius College, 1863; and elected fellow in 1876. He is now (1885) lecturer in Hebrew and Syriac in his college; examiner in the Hebrew text of the Old Testament in the University of London; and was a member of the Old-Testament Revision Company. He has edited The Missing Fragment of the Latin Translation of the New Testament, 1879; Das Wesen der Religion und die Grundgesetze der Kirchenbildung, 1886 (1885), 3d ed. same year.

BENNETT.

BERGER, Daniel, D.D. (Westfield College, Ill., 1878), United Brethren in Christ; b. near Reading, Penn., Feb. 14, 1832; studied privately at Springfield, O.; became a school-teacher, 1852; principal of public high school, Springfield, O.; 1853; pastor, 1856; editor of publishing house of United Brethren in Christ, Dayton, O., 1861; edited the leading church weekly, The Religious Telescope, until 1869, and since, the denominational Sunday-school literature.

BERGER, Samuel, French Lutheran theologian; b. at Beaucourt (Haut-Rhin), May 2, 1843; studied at Strasbourg and Tulingen; in 1867 he became assistant preacher in the Lutheran Church in Paris; in 1877, librarian to the Paris faculty of Protestant theology. He is the author of F. C. Baur, les origines de l'école de Tübingue et ses principes, Paris, 1867; La Bible et le seizième siècle: Étude sur les origines de la critique, 1879; De glossarius et compendii biblicis qui bis bisbus melii avvi, 1879; Du rôle de la dogmatique...
BERTHARD, Thomas Dehany, Church of England; b. at Clifton, Bristol, Nov. 11, 1815; entered Exeter College, Oxford; took a second-class in classics, 1837; wrote the Ellerton theological essay, and graduated B.A., 1838; wrote the chancellor's English essay, 1839; graduated M.A., 1840; was ordained deacon, 1840; priest, 1841; became vicar of Great Baddow, Essex, 1841; of Terling, 1848; rector of Walcot, Bath, 1863. In 1866 he became prebendary of Hasellhere, and canon residentiary in Wells Cathedral; in 1879, chancellor of Wells Cathedral; and in 1880, proctor for dean and chapter of Wells. He was select preacher at Oxford, 1866, 1862, and 1882; and lampton lecturer in 1884. He is the author of The Witness of God (University sermons), Oxford, 1867; The Progress of Doctrine in the New Testament (Bampton lectures), London, 1885, 4th ed. 1878; Before his Presence with a Song, 1883.

BERNHAIN, Gotthardt Dellmann, D.D. (North Carolina College, 1877), Lutheran (Old Pennsylvania); b. at Iselohm, Westphalia, Prussia, Nov. 8, 1827; graduated at the Lutheran Seminary of the South Carolina synod, Lexington, S.C., 1849; became successive pastor in Charleston, S.C., 1850; at Mount Pleasant, N.C., and financial secretary of North-Carolina College, 1858; at Charlotte, N.C., 1861; principal of female seminary of the North Carolina Synod, Mount Pleasant, N.C., and pastor of Ebenezer Church in Rowan County, N.C., 1866; pastor of St. Paul's Church, Wilmington, N.C., 1869; an editor and proprietor of At Home and Abroad, monthly, published at Wilmington and Charlotte, N.C., 1881; pastor of Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church, Phillipburg, N.J., 1883. Besides The Success of God's Work (sermon), Wilmington, N.C., 1870, and Localities of the Reformation (pamphlet), 1877, he has published History of the German Settlements and of the Lutheran Church in North and South Carolina, Philadelphia, 1872; The First Twenty Years (of the history of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Wilmington, N.C.), Wilmington, 1870.

BERSIER, Eugene Arthur Francois, Reformed Church of France; b. of descendants of Huguenot refugees, at Morges, near Geneva, Switzerland, Feb. 5, 1831; pursued his elementary studies at Geneva and Paris; was in America, 1848-50; studied theology at Geneva, Göttingen, and Halle; became pastor in Paris, 1855, where he has been ever since. He was in the Free Church until 1877 (until 1801, over the Faubourg St. Antoine Church; until 1874, assistant of Pressensé in the Taitbout Church; until 1877, over the Etoile Church), when he and his congregation joined the Reformed (established) Church of France. He was made in 1872 a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, in recognition of his services during the siege of Paris. He is the author of Sermons, Paris, 1861-81, 7 vols., several editions apiece (English trans. of selected sermons, Oneness of the Church in its Fall and its Future, translated by Annie Harwood, London, 1871), Sermons, 1881; St. Paul's Vision, translated by Marie Stewart, New York, 1881; The Gospel in Paris, Sermons, with Personal Sketch of the Author, by Rev. Fred. gymnasium of the Halle orphanage, 1883; in the Missions Seminary, Leipzig, 1884. He is author of Qua ratione Augustinus notiones philosophiae graecae ad dogmata anthropologica descripta adhibitur, Erlangen, 1877; (edited) J. Ch. K. von Hofmann’s Encyclopaedie der Theologie, Nördlingen, 1879; Griechische und lateinische Sitten, 1880 sqq., 2nd. II. 2te Abt. 1885; Die theologische Wissenschaft und die Rätselschule, eine Streitschrift, Nördlingen, 1881; Die Anfänge des Katholischen Christenthums und des Islam, 1884.

BEVAN. Llewelyn David, D.D. (Princeton, 1857), Congregationalist; b. at Llanelli, Caernarvonshire, South Wales, Sept. 11, 1842; studied at New College, London; graduated at London University, B.A. (an English exhibitioner), 1861; with first-class philosophy honors, 1863, LL.B. (with first-class honors), 1866; became assistant at King’s Weigh-house Chapel, London, 1863; minister of the Rochester court Road Chapel (Whitefield’s), London, 1869; of the Brick Presbyteran Church, New York City, 1876; of Highbury Quadrant Church, London, 1882. He was associated with Rev. F. D. Maurice in the Workingmen’s College, London; professor at New College for some years; elected member of the London School Board, 1873. Besides separate sermons and discourses, he has published Sermons to Students, New York, 1880; Christ and the Age, London, 1885.

BEVSCHLAG, Willibald, D.D., German Protestant theologian; b. at Frankfurt-on-the-Main, Sept. 9, 1828; court-preacher at Carlsruhe (1856); appointed in 1860, ordinary professor of theology in Halle, and since 1876 also editor of the Deutsche Evangelische Blätter, an organ of the so-called “Mittelpartei.” Of his numerous writings, besides volumes of sermons and single discourses, may be mentioned, Die Christologie des Neuen Testaments, Berlin, 1886; Die paulinische Theo-dicee Rom. ix.—xi., 1888; Die Christliche Gemeindeverfassung im Zeitalter des Neuen Testaments (Von der Teyler’schen theolog. Gesell. gekr. Preiss), Haarlem, 1874; Zur Johannischen Frage, Goth a, 1876; the Zwei Bücher der Apostelgeschichtologie Thierschlag (Aus dem Leben eines Frühvollendeten, Berlin, 1858—59, 2 parts, 5th ed. 1878), of Carl Ullmann (Gotha, 1867), of Carl Immanuel Nitzsch (Halle, 1872, 2d ed. 1882), and of Albrecht Wol ters (1880). His latest work is Das Leben Jesu, Halle, 1885—86, 2 vols. He edited Huther’s commentary upon James in the revised Meyer series (Göttingen, 1882).

BICKELL, Gustav, D.D. (Innsbruck, 1875), Roman-Catholic theologian, the son of a distinguished Protestant jurist; b. in Cassel, July 7, 1859; became in 1892 privat-docent at Marburg in Indo-Germanic and Semitic philology; the same at Giessen, 1883; but in 1885 went over to the Roman Church, was ordained priest in 1886; and after teaching Oriental languages in the Munster Academy from 1887 till 1874 became professor of the Semitic languages and Christian archaeology at Halle. He is the author of Die indischen und semitischen Sprachen (Aristotiana at Alexandria, Ephemerides Scripturae Scribentis Scribentis Scribentis), sive de saeculo V. (recent edition), 1885; B. Ephraemi Syri carmina, Leipzig, 1868; Grundriss der hebräischen Grammatik, 1869—70, 2 parts, English trans. by Prof. S. I. Curtiss, Ph.D., D.D., Leipzig, 1877; *Gründe für die Unfehlbarkeit des Kirchenver-studied at Basel, 1837–39, and Berlin, 1839–43; became pastor at Mönchenstein, Basselland, 1843; professor extraordinary of theology at Zürich, 1850, and ordinary in 1864; d. at Zürich, Jan. 29, 1865. He was a leading rationalist, a disciple of Hegel, and deeply influenced by the Edinburgh School, especially by Strauss. He was a prolific writer for the religious press, published a life of Heinrich Lang (Zürich, 1876), but obtained his greatest repute by his Christliche Dogmatik (1869, 2d ed. vol. 1., Berlin, 1884, vol. ii. edited by Prof. Dr. Rehmke, 1885), in which he denies the historicality of the Gospels, yet holds to the eternal ideas which the supposed facts of the Gospels embody; denies Christian doctrine, but advocates Christian practice; denies personality to God, and personal immortality to man, yet holds that love to God and man constitutes the essence of religion. In this way he tries to join the speculative and the practical. He was a famous Alpine climber. See his posthumous Ausgewählte Vorträge und Aufsätze, mit einer biographischen Einleitung von Kradolfer, Berlin, 1885.

Binnie, William, D.D. (Glasgow, 1866), Free Church of Scotland; b. at Glasgow, Aug. 20, 1825; graduated at the University of Glasgow; M. A., 1844; studied theology in Divinity Hall of the Reformed Presbyterian Church at Stirling, 1849–51; became professor of Hebrew and Orientallanguagesin the Union Theological Seminary, New York, 1859; was pastor of Congregational churches at Westhampton, Mass. (1864–69); Winchester, Mass. (1870–73); missionary of the A. B. C. F. M. in Austria, 1873–78; studied the Old Testament in Boston and Leipzig, 1878–81; since 1881 has been professor of Hebrew in the Hartford Theological Seminary. During first pastorate raised and commanded Company K, Fifty-second Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers, which served under Gen. Banks at Port Hudson during 1862–63. For a year (1869–70) he was stated supply at Honolulu, Oahu (Sandwich Islands). He is the author of The Historic Origin of the Bible, New York, 1873; The Apocrypha of the Old Testament (a revised trans., introduction and notes, forms vol. xvi. of the Old Testament in the American Lange series), 1880; The Pentateuch, its Origin and Structure: an Examination of Recent Theories, 1885.

Bissell, Edwin Cone, D.D. (Amherst, 1874), Congregationalist; b. at Schoharie, N. Y., March 10, 1832; graduated at Amherst College, Mass., 1855, and Union Theological Seminary, New York, 1859; was pastor of Congregational churches at Westhampton, Mass. (1859–64); San Francisco, Cal. (1864–69); Winchester, Mass. (1870–73); missionary of the A. B. C. F. M. in Austria, 1873–78; studied the Old Testament in Boston and Leipzig, 1878–81; since 1881 has been professor of Hebrew in the Hartford Theological Seminary.

Bird, Frederic Mayer, Episcopalian; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., June 28, 1868; graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, 1887, and the Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1890; became a Lutheran minister, 1890; was an army chaplain, 1862–63; pastor in several places; entered Episcopal ministry, 1890; was rector at Spotswood, N. J., and elsewhere; and since February, 1881, has been professor of psychology, Christian evidence, and rhetoric, in the Lehigh University, South Bethlehem, Penn. He has given especial attention to hymnology, and his library on the subject, embracing some 3,500 volumes, is by far the largest in America, and possibly in existence. He has edited Charles Wesley's poems in his Miscellanea Hymnica (1871), and was familiar with the production of the Hymn Society of London. He has written the department of Hymn Notes in the New-York Inde- pendent since 1880; wrote most of the hymnological articles in the Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia, and most of the American matter in Julian's Dictionary of Hymnology, London and New York, now in course of preparation.

Birrell, John, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1878), Established Church of Scotland; b. in the parish of Newburn, near St. Andrews, Oct. 21, 1836; studied four years at the University of St. Andrews, and two years at Halle; was graduated at the former, M. A., 1856. He was examiner in classical literature for degrees in arts in the University of St. Andrews, and minister of Dunino, near St. Andrews (1864–72); but since 1871 has been professor of Hebrew and Oriental languages in the University of St. Andrews. He was for twelve years chairman of the School Board of St. Andrews, has been examiner of many of the secondary schools under its care, and was chairman of the local examination committee of St. Andrews University. He was an Old Testament reviser.

Bissell, Right Rev. William Henry, D.D. (Norwich University, 1852; Hobart College, 1868; Vermont University, 1870), Episcopalian, bishop of the diocese of Vermont; b. at Randolph, Vt., Nov. 10, 1814; graduated at Vermont University, 1836; successively rector of Trinity, West Troy, N. Y., 1841; Grace, Lyons, 1845; Trinity, Geneva, 1848; consecrated, 1868.

Bittner, Franz Anton, D.D. (Münster, 1835), Roman-Catholic theologian; b. at Appeln, Silesia, Germany, Sept. 17, 1812; and became professor of theology in the clerical seminary at Posen, 1835; the same in the Lyceum Hosianum at Braunsberg, 1839; ordinary professor of moral theology at Breslau, 1850. He is the author of De ciniothea divina commentarii, Mainz, 1845; De Ciceronis et Ambrosiani officiorum libris commentatio, Braunsberg, 1846; De cath. theologio Roman a inter precipua philosophia genera salutari ac coelesti mediocratiae, Breslau, 1850; Lehrbuch der Kathol. Moraltheologie, Regensburg, 1855; Uber die Geburt, Aufhebung und Himmelfahrt Jesu Christi, 1850; and the translator of Gousset's Dogmatik, Regensburg, 1855–56, 2 vols.
BJÖRLING. 19

BJÖRLING, Carl Olof, Swedish theologian; b. at Westerås, Sweden, Sept. 18, 1844; d. there, Jan. 20, 1884. He was graduated at the University of Upsala, Ph. D., 1830; D. D., 1844. He became a bishop of Westerås, 1866, having long been connected as teacher and rector with the Gelle gymnasiun, from which he was afterward made an authority in the study of the works, of which should be mentioned Christian Dogmatics, 1847 (2d ed. 1866) to 1875, 2 parts, which attracted considerable attention in Germany, and which shows his firm adherence to the Augsburg Confession.

BLAISKLEY, Very Rev. Joseph Williams, dean of Lincoln, Church of England; b. at Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 9, 1809; d. at Alexandria, Va., Dec. 8, 1877; graduated at Kenyon College, 1824; LL. D. (Mississippi University, both 1854); M. A., 1834; B. D., 1850; was fellow of his college, 1831-45; assistant tutor, 1834-49; tutor, 1839-49; select preacher before the university, 1840 and 1843. In 1845, by presentation of his college, he became vicar of Ware; declined, in 1860, the Regius professorship of modern history at Cambridge; was appointed in 1850 a classical examiner, and in 1875 a member of the senate of the University of London; in 1863, a canon of Canterbury; in 1872, dean of Lincoln. He was the author of Thoughts on the Recommendations of the Ecclesiastical Commission, London, 1837; Life of Aristotle, Cambridge, 1839; Concinna academica, London, 1843; Four Months in Algeria, 1859; and edited Herodotus, 1852-54, 2 vols.

BLEDSEOE, Albert Taylor, LL. D. (Kenyon College, O., and Mississippi University, both 1834), Methodist; b. at Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 9, 1809; d. at Alexandria, Va., Dec. 8, 1877; graduated at the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., 1830; became lieutenant Seventh Infantry; resigned, 1832; became assistant professor of mathematics, Kenyon College, O., 1834; entered ministry of the Episcopal Church, and was rector at Hamilton, O., and professor of mathematics in Miami University, 1835-36; left the ministry, owing to some theological difficulties, and took up the practice of law in Springfield, Ill. and in the Supreme Court at Washington, D. C., 1840-48; became professor of mathe-an attempt to express one unimportant thought. Occasionally in Methodist pulpits, but never took doctrine of free-will,—of the responsibility of strict adherent of any church creed. He was a pages more would be thrown aside, each being the constitutional history of the United States. He returned to America in February, 1866, and in 1867 began, at Baltimore, the publication of The Southern Review.

He became a Methodist in 1871, and preached occasionally in Methodist pulpits, but never took charge of a church. His views on theological subjects are difficult to define, as he was not a strict adherent of any church creed. He was a firm believer in, and strenuous advocate of, the doctrine of free-will,—of the responsibility of men for their belief,—a stern opponent of atheism and scepticism. While always friendly towards predestinationists, he fought all his life the doctrine which he believed tarnished the Divine glory, and drove many into unbelief. His views upon these subjects are given in full in his Review of Edwards on the Will, in his Theodicy, and in the pages of The Southern Review. His views on the Constitution are to be found in Liberty and Slavery, and Is Davis a Traitor?

His literary work was done in a manner somewhat peculiar. He pondered his subject long, revolving it year after year; but when he came to write, the work was done with marvellous rapidity and precision, sometimes thirty or forty pages with scarcely an erasure, and then would come a point where he could not write precisely what he wished to say, and perhaps thirty or forty pages more would be thrown aside, each being an attempt to express one unimportant thought. His memory was prodigious for what he read. Of the six hundred and eighty moral philosophers he had read, he could tell, after the lapse of years, just the precise shade of views each upheld. He was an honest but unsparing controversialist, dealing trenchant blows without mercy, but never once in his long militant career accused of misrepresenting the views of an antagonist: though he made bitter enemies by his pen, they were made in open fair fight.

After the intellectual labor of authorship was over, he lost all interest in the financial success of his books. If a strict profit-and-loss account could be made, he probably made nothing by his books, which reached a number of editions: An Examination of Edwards on the Will, Philadelphia, 1845; A Theodicy, or Vindication of Divine Glory, New York, 1853; Liberty and Slavery, Philadelphia, 1857; Philosophy of Mathematics, 1865; Is Davis a Traitor? Baltimore (privately published), 1866.

BLISS, Daniel, D.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1864), Congregationalist; b. at Georgia, Va., Aug. 17, 1823; graduated at Amherst College, 1852, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1858; was missionary of A. B. C. F. M. in Syria, 1855-59; served 1861-63 as assistant professor of the School of Medicine, Beirut. He is the author in Arabic of a Mental Philosophy, sermons, etc.

BLISS, George Riple, D.D. (Madison University, 1860). L.L.D. (Lewisburg University, 1878), Baptist; b. at Sherburne, N.Y., June 20, 1816; graduated at Madison University, Hamilton, N.Y., 1838, and at Hamilton Theological Seminary (Baptist), 1840; became tutor in Madison University, 1840; pastor at New Brunswick, N.J., 1843; professor of Greek in University of Lewisburg, Penn., 1849; professor of biblical exegesis in the Community College, 1871; became licentiate in theology, 1852; was ordained deacon, 1852, and priest, 1855; and filled a number of curacies, until in 1868 he was appointed by the warden and fellows of All Souls' College, Oxford, vicar of Kennington; in 1873 he was presented by Mr. Gladstone with the crown living of Beverston, Gloucestershire, and retained it until his death. He was a conscientious and careful literary worker, and a High Churchman of pronounced views. Besides numerous contributions in periodicals, he wrote The Atonement, London, 1855; Three Essays on the Reformation, 1869; Miscellaneous Sermons, 1860; Directory pastoral (English), 1864; 4th ed. 1880; Key to the Bible, 1865; Household Theology, 1885, 6th ed. 1886; The Annotated Book of Common Prayer, 1866, 7th ed. 1883 (a standard work); The Sacraments and Sacramental Ordinances of the Church, 1868; The Reformation of the Church of England, vol. 1, 1868, 6th ed. 1886, vol. 2, 1882 ("a solid and careful study of a critical period"); Key to Church History, 1869; Union and Disunion, 1870; Plain Account of the English Bible, 1870; Dictionary of Doctrinal and Historical Theology, 1870, 2d ed. 1872; Key to the Prayer-Book, 1871; The Condition and Prospects of the Church of England, 1871; The Book of Common Prayer, 4th ed., by Sir W. G. F. Phillimore, 1885; Myroure of Our Lady (a reprint of a devotional treatise of great rarity, which originally appeared in 1580), 1873; The Poverty that makes Rich, 1873; Dictionary of Sects, Heresies, Ecclesiastical Parties, and Schools of Religious Thought, 1874; Historic Memorials of BOMBERGER, John Henry Augustus, D.D. (Franklin and Marshall College, 1854), Reformed (German); b. at Lancaster, Penn., Jan. 19, 1817; graduated from Marshall College, 1837, and Theological Seminary, Mercersburg, Penn., 1838; became tutor in Marshall College, 1838; pastor at the Race-street [Reformed] Church, with its Ecclesiastical Appendix, 1840; president of Ursinus College and its Theological Seminary at Morgan Park, near Chicago. Besides the Annotated Bible being a Household Commentary comprehending the Results of Modern Discovery and Criticism, 1878—81, 3 vols.; Companion to the New Testament, 1881; Key to Christian Doctrine and Practice, 1882; A Companion to the Old Testament, 1883. He was president of the American Baptist Missionary Union, 1859—84. He delivered before his church, on successive Wednesday evenings from October, 1864, to April, 1865, six hundred and forty-three lectures, going through every word of the New Testament; and is now (1886) engaged on a similar series on the Old Testament. He has written Studies in the Creative Week, New York, 1878 (fourteen lectures first delivered on consecutive Tuesday noons); Studies in the Model Prayer, 1879; Epiphaniae of the Risen Lord, 1879; The Mountain Instruction, 1880; etc.

BOMBERGER, Paul, Lic. Theol- (hon., Ziirich, 1868), LL.D. (Michigan, 1868). D.D. (Brown, 1879), Baptist; b. at Blandford, Hampden County, Mass., Jan. 27, 1815; graduated at Brown University, 1840; was tutor there for three years, and then professor of the Greek language; resigned in 1850, and for eighteen months pursued his studies in Germany, Greece, Italy, and France. In 1852 he became professor of the Greek language and literature in the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor; in 1868 the same in the University of Chicago; in 1877 professor of New Testament interpretation in the Baptist Union Theological Seminary at Morgan Park, near Chicago. Besides Greek text-books for school and college use (including Exercises in Greek Prose Composition, New York, 1849; The First Six Books of Homer's Iliad, Chicago, 1868; First Lessons in Greek, Chicago, 1870; Five Books of Xenophon's Anabasis, New York, 1879), he has written: A Commentary on the Epistle to the Galatians, 1871; Romans, 1882; and to the Ephesians, the Colossians, Philemon, and the Philippians, 1884.

BOEHL, Edward, Ph.D- (Erlangen, 1860), Lic. Theol. (Basel, 1860), D.D. (Vienna, 1865), Reformed; b. at Hamburg, Nov. 18, 1836; educated at Brown University, 1852, and at Newton Theological Institution, 1855; pastor at Barnwell Court-house, S.C., December, 1855—May, 1858; of the Second Church, Rochester, N.Y., October, 1858—May, 1864; and since of the First Church, Philadelphia, Penn. He was president of the American Baptist Missionary Union, 1859—84. He delivered before his church, on successive Wednesday evenings from October, 1864, to April, 1882, six hundred and forty-three lectures, going through every word of the New Testament; and is now (1886) engaged on a similar series on the Old Testament. He has written Studies in the Creative Week, New York, 1878 (fourteen lectures first delivered on consecutive Tuesday noons); Studies in the Model Prayer, 1879; Epiphaniae of the Risen Lord, 1879; The Mountain Instruction, 1880; etc.

BOEHLING, Georg Friedrich, Swiss Protes-
The Revised Liturgy, a History and Criticism of the Ritualistic Movement in the Reformed Church, 1869; Reformed not Ritualistic: a Reply to Dr. Nevin's "Vindication," 1867. He edited The Reformed Church Monthly (chiefly in opposition to "Mercersburg theology") from 1885-77, 9 vols.

BONAR, Andrew Alexander, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1874-75; b. in Edinburgh, May 29, 1810; graduated from the University of Edinburgh, 1839; and until 1856 labored in the parish of Collace, Perthshire, when he removed to his present charge, the Finnieston Church, Glasgow. He left the Established Church in 1843; was moderator of the General Assembly of the Free Church in 1875. He has always sought to identify himself with evangelical and revival movements. He is the author of Mission of Inquiry to the Jews in Palestine and Other Countries, Edinburgh, 1842; Memoir of Rev. R. M. McChesney, 1844, many editions, republished and translated; Commentary on Leviticus, 1840, 5th ed. 1875; Redemption Drawing Near, a Defence of Pre-millennialism, 1847; (edited) Nettleton's Life and Labours, 1850; The Gospel pointing to the Person of Christ, 1852; Christ and His Church, in the Book of Psalms, 1858; (edited) Letters of Samuel Rutherford, 1892; Gospel Truths, 1878; The Brook Besor, 1879; James Scott: A Labourer for God, 1885. The best-known collection of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAll Mission), 1879; The Life of G. F. Whitefield, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of the McAl...
BOYD.

Bern, 1884), Swiss Protestant (Independent); b. at Geneva, Feb. 16, 1826; educated at the university there, and was ordained 1851; served as missionary and pastor in France, London, and Switzerland; became professor of apologetics and practical theology in the Genevan University, 1861; transferred to chair of dogmatics, 1865. Since 1873 he has also been librarian of the Company of Pastors. He was founder and first president of the committee in Geneva auxiliary to the Evangelical Missionary Society of Paris, 1865, and of the Society of Theological Sciences, 1871; made chevalier of the Legion of Honor, 1885. Among his numerous writings may be mentioned Etude sur les conditions du developpement du Christianisme, Geneva, 1851; Le chrétien, ou l’homme accompli, 1857; Sermons, 1890-92, 2 vols.; L’Apologetique actuelle, 1866; La Réconciliation, 1870; Les sciences théologiques au dix-neuvième siècle, 1871; Catholiques libéraux et Protestants, 1873; Époches et caractères bibliques, 1873; Les conférences religieuses à Genève de 1855 à 1875, 1876; L’Esprit du Christianisme, 1877; La faculté de théologie de Genève pendant le dix-neuvième siècle, 1878; L’enseignement supérieur à Genève de 1859 à 1876, 1878; La Compagnie des Pasteurs de Genève, 1878; Le Pasteur John Bost, 1881, 4th ed. 1882 (English trans.); Paroles de foi et de liberté, 1882; Le divin d’après les apôtres, 1883; Le Protestantisme à Genève, 1884 (in English in Modern Review, January, 1884); Nouvelles paroles de foi et de liberté, 1885; La conscience moderne et la doctrine du péché, 1886.

BOYCE, James Petigru, D.D. (Columbian College, Washington, D.C., 1859), LL.D. (Union University, Murfreesborough, Tenn., 1872), Baptist; b. at Charleston, S.C., Jan. 11, 1827; graduated at Brown University, 1847; studied theology in Princeton Theological Seminary, 1849-51; became pastor of the Baptist Church, Columbia, S.C., 1851; professor of theology in Furman University, Greenville, S.C., 1855; chairman of the faculty, and professor of systematic theology, 1859, in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, then at Greenville, S.C., and of church government and pastoral duties, 1877. In 1877 the seminary was moved to Louisville, Ky. He was chaplain of the Sixteenth South-Carolina Volunteers from 1861 to 1865; member of the South Carolina Legislature from 1862 to 1865; of the governor’s (Magrath) staff and State Council, 1864 and 1865; and of the State convention for reconstruction in 1865; from 1872 to 1879 was annually elected president of the Southern Baptist Convention. He is a trustee of the John F. Slater Fund. Besides speeches, sermons, and articles, he has published Three Changes in Theological Education, Greenville, S.C., 1856 (the principles of which address are embodied in the peculiar plan of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary); Brief Catechism of Bible Doctrine, Greenville, S.C., 1863, last ed. Louisville, Ky., 1884; Abstract of Theology, Louisville, Ky., 1882.

BOYD, Andrew Kennedy Hutchison, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1864), Church of Scotland; b. in the Auchenleck Manse, Ayrshire, Nov. 3, 1825; educated at King’s College, London, and at the University of Glasgow, graduating from the latter as B.A. (taking the highest honors in philosophy and theology), 1846. From November, 1850, to July, 1851, he was assistant in St. George’s, Edinburgh; then was minister successively of Newton-on-Ayr, September, 1851-January, 1854; Kirkpatrick-Ironlagh, 1854-59; St. Bernard’s Parish, Edinburgh, April, 1859-September, 1865; and since September, 1865, has been first minister of the city of St. Andrew’s. [He is widely known by his signature A. K. II. B., and his sobriquet “The Country Parson.”] He is the author of Recreations of a Country Parson, London, 1858, 1861, 1878, 3 series; Leisure Hours in Town, 1861; Grace Thoughts of a Country Parson, 1862, 1864, 1875, 3 series; The Common-place Philosopher in Town and Country, 1862; Counsel and Comfort, spoken from a City Pulpit, 1863; The Autumn Holidays of a Country Parson, 1864; The Critical Essays of a Country Parson, 1865; Sunday Afternoons at the Parson Church of a University City, 1866; Lessons of Middle Age, 1867; Changed Aspects of Unchanged Truths, 1869; Present-day Thoughts, 1870; Seaside Musings, 1872; A Scotch Communion Sunday, 1873; Landscapes, Churches, and Morals, 1874; From a Quiet Place: Discoveries in Old Life, 1881, 1884, 2 series; Towards the Sunset: Teachings after Thirty Years, 1882; What set him right: with Other Chapters to help, 1885.
BOYCE, Very Rev. George David, Dean of Salisbury, son of the late Lord Chief Justice-General of Scotland; b. in Scotland, in the year 1828; educated at Exeter College, Oxford, graduated B.A., 1851; M.A., 1853; was curate of Kidderminster (the scene of Baxter's labors), 1853-57; of Hagley, 1857-60; perpetual curate of St. Michael, Handsworth, 1861-67; rural dean of Handsworth, 1866-67; vicar of Kidderminster, and chaplain of Kidderminster Union, 1867-80; honorary canon of Worcester Cathedral, 1872-80; rural dean of Kidderminster, 1877-80; appointed dean of Salisbury, 1880; precentor, 1881. He is the author of Confession according to the Rule of the Church of England, London, 1868; Lessons from a Churchyard, 1872; The Trust of the Ministry, 1882; My Aids to the Divine Life, 1883; Richard Baxter, a Sketch, 1885.

BRADLEY, Charles Frederic, Methodist; b. in England, 1828; studied in Yale (1847-48) and in Union Theological Seminaries, New York (1848-49), but did not graduate; went to Europe, 1850; while at Groa Wardein in Hungary, 1851, was tried by the political authorities, and was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment against the Austrian government; but released through the efforts of the American chargé d'affaires at Vienna, Mr. C. J. McCurdy. On his return, 1852, he became one of the founders of the "Children's Aid Society of New-York City," and its secretary and executive agent the next year, and has ever since held the office. In 1854 he established the first newsboys' lodging-house; in 1856, an Italian industrial school; and in 1856, a German one. He has published Hungary in 1851, New York, 1852; Home Life in Germany, 1853; The Norse Folk (travels in Norway and Sweden), 1857; Short Sermons to Newsboys, 1861; Races of the Old World, 1863; The New West, 1868; The Dangerous Classes of New York, and Twenty Years Work among them, 1872, 3d ed. (enlarged) 1880; Free Trade as promoting Peace and Good Will among Men, 1879; Gesta Christi; or, A History of Humane Events in the World, 1880; while at Gros Wardein in Hungary, 1851, he wrote several volumes for Sunday-school libraries, and besides sermons and review articles.

BRADLEY, Very Rev. George Granville, D.D. (Hobart College, 1881), Episcopalian, missionary bishop of Montana; b. at Berkshire, Vt., Jan. 30, 1839; graduated at Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., 1863; and at the General (Episcopal) Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1866; became rector of Grace Church, Watertown, N. Y., 1872; was consecrated bishop, 1890.

BREWER, Right Rev. Leigh Richmond, S.T.D. (Hobart College, 1881), Episcopalian, missionary bishop of Montana; b. at Berkshire, Vt., Jan. 30, 1839; graduated at Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., 1863; and at the General (Episcopal) Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1866; became rector of Grace Church, Carthage, N. Y., 1868; of Trinity Church, Watertown, N. Y., 1872; was consecrated bishop, 1890.

BRIEGER, Theodor, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1870), Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1870), D.D. (hon., Göttingen, 1877), Prussian consular agent at Halle, 1870; studied at the universities of Göttingen, Berlin, 1870-71; at Halle, 1870; at the University of Munich, 1871; and at Strassburg, 1872. He was a chaplain in the Union Army during 1862 and 1865. His publications consist of sermons and review articles.

BRESENKAMP, Conrad Justus, Lic. Theol. (Erlangen, 1880), D.D. (hon., Erlangen, 1883), Lutheran; b. at Böberg, Hannover, June 26, 1847. He studied at the universities of Erlangen, Bonn, and Göttingen; was pastor at Kupfert in Mecklenburg, 1872-78; without official position, 1878-80; priest of the ev. church in Erlangen, 1880-83; the author of a history of the ev. church at Greifswald, since 1858. He is the author of Der Prophet Sacharja erklärh, Erlangen, 1879; Vaticinium quod de Immanuele edidit Jesu, [vii. 1-6] explicavit, 1880; Gesetze und Propheten. Ein Beitrag zur alttestamentlichen Kritik, 1881.

BREUER, Very Rev. George David, Dean of Salisbury, son of the late Lord Chief Justice-General of Scotland; b. in Scotland, in the year 1828; educated at Rugby School, 1846-58; head master of Marlborough College, 1858-70; became professor of the Greek language and literature in Hamline University, 1880; adjunct professor of exegetical theology (1883), and professor of New Testament exegesis (1884), in the Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill.

BRIGGS, Very Rev. George Granville, D.D. (Hobart College, 1881), Episcopalian, missionary bishop of Montana; b. at Berkshire, Vt., Jan. 30, 1839; graduated at Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., 1863; and at the General (Episcopal) Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1866; became rector of Grace Church, Carthage, N. Y., 1868; of Trinity Church, Watertown, N. Y., 1872; was consecrated bishop, 1890.
Since 1876 he has edited the Zeitschrift für Kirchengeschichte. His publications include De formula concordatii Ratisbonensis origine etaque indole, Halle, 1870; Gasparo Contarini und das Regensburger Concordienwerk des Jahres 1541, Gotha, 1870; Constantin der Grosse als Religionspolilitiker, 1880; Die angebliche Marburger Kirchenanordnung von 1537 und Luther's erster katechetischer Unterricht von Abendmahl, 1881; Neue Mitteilungen über Luther in Worms, Marburg, 1883; Luther und sein Werk, 1883; Quellen und Forschungen zur Geschichte der Reformation. 1. Bd. Alexander u. Luther, 1851. Die vollständigen Alexander-Depesen, nebst Untersuchungen über den Wormser Reichstag. 1 Athisg, Gotha, 1884.

BRIGGS, Charles Augustus, D.D. (University of Edinburgh, 1884). Presbyterian; b. in New York City, Jan. 15, 1841; studied in the University of Virginia, 1857-60; in the Union Theological Seminary, New York, 1861-63; and in the University of Berlin, Germany, under Dorner and Rödiger, 1866-69. He marched with the Seventh Regiment (N.Y. V.) to the defense of the capital. From 1863-65 he was in business with his father, in New York City. He was pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Roselle, N.J., 1870-74; and has been since 1874 professor of Hebrew and the cognate languages in the Union Theological Seminary, New York City. Since 1880 he has been a managing editor of the Presbyterian Review, of which he was a founder. Besides numerous articles in different periodicals,—notably those on biblical theology in the American Presbyterian Review, the earliest on the subject in America; and those on the higher criticism, in the Presbyterian Review, which beat the way for its study,—he has written Biblical Study: its Principles, Methods, and History, New York, 1883, 2d ed. 1885; American Presbyterianism; its Origin and Growth, 1885. He was one of the translators of the commentaries on the Psalms and Ezra, in the American Lange series.

BRIGHT, William, D.D. (Oxford, 1869), Church of England; b. at Doncaster, Dec. 14, 1824; educated at University College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class classics), 1846; fellow of his college, 1847; Johnson theological scholar, 1847; Ellerton theological essayist, 1848; M.A., 1849; was theological tutor in Trinity College, Glenalmond, Perthshire, 1851-58; tutor of University College, Oxford, 1862; resigned fellowship on appointment as Regius professor of ecclesiastical history, Oxford University, and canon of Christ Church, 1869; honorary canon of Cathedral of the Isles, Cambræ, 1853; examining chaplain to the bishop of Lincoln, 1855. He has published Ancient Collects selected from Various Rituals, London, 1857, 4th ed. 1869; A History of the Church from the Edict of Milan, A.D. 315, to the Council of Chalcedon, A.D. 451, Oxford, 1860, 3d ed. 1873; Eighteen Sermons of St. Leo the Great on the Incarnation. With the "owe," translated with notes, London, 1862, 2d ed. 1886; Faith and Life: Readings compiled from Ancient Writers, 1864, 2d ed. 1869; Hymns and other Verses, 1865, 2d ed. 1874; Chapters of Early English Church History, 1878; Later Treatises of St. Athanasius, translated with notes and an appendix by the author, 1881; Private Prayers, for a Week, 1882; Notes on the Canons of the First Four General Councils, 1882; Family Prayers, 1885; Iona, and other Verses, 1885; edited the original text of Eusebius' Ecclesiastical History, 1872, 2d ed. 1882; St. Athanasian's Orations against the Arians, 1873, 2d ed. 1883; Socrates' Ecclesiastical History, 1878; Select Anti-Pelagian Treatises of St. Augustine, 1880; and St. Athanasius' Historical Writings, 1881; and with the Rev. P. G. Medd, M.A. edited a Latin translation of the Prayer-Book, 1865, 3d ed. 1877.

BROADUS, John Albert, D.D. (William and Mary, 1859), also Richmond College, 1859, L.L.D. (Wake Forest College, N.C., 1874); Baptist; b. in Culpepper County, Va., Jan. 24, 1827; graduated at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va., 1850; there assistant professor of Latin and Greek, 1851-58, chaplain, 1855-57; pastor in the Baptist Church, 1851-55, 1857-59. Since its organization in 1859 he has been professor of the interpretation of the New Testament and of homiletics in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, then in Greenville, S.C., removed in 1877 to Louisville, Ky. He has for many summers supplied pulpits in New York, Brooklyn, and Orange, N.J. He is a member of the International Sunday-school Lesson Committee. Besides numerous articles in periodicals, he has written The Preparation and Delivery of Sermons, Philadelphia, 1870, many editions, latest 1885, republished in London, much of it translated into Chinese, and used for native ministers of all denominations; Lectures on the History of Preaching, New York, 1876.

BROOKE, Stopford Augustus, Unitarian; b. at Glendoe rectory, Letter Kenny, County Donegal, Ireland, Nov. 14, 1832; was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, graduated M.A. 1858; since 1857 has preached in London, first as curate of St. Matthew, Marylebone, 1857-59; then of Kensington 1860-63; as minister of St. James's Chapel, York Street, 1866-75; and of Bedford Chapel, Bloomsbury, since 1876. In 1872 he was appointed chaplain in ordinary to the Queen. In 1880 he left the Established Church, and connected himself with the Unitarians. He has published The Life and Letters of the Late Frederick W. Robertson, London, 1865 (many subsequent editions and reprints); Theology in the English Poets, 1874, 4th ed. 1880; and the following volumes of sermons: Sermons at St. James's Chapel, 1868, 11th ed. 1880; 2d series, 1874, 5th ed. 1881; Christ in Modern Life, 1872, 14th ed. 1890; Fight of Faith: Sermons on Various Occasions, 1877; Spirit of the Christian Life, 1881. He also edited the sermons of F. W. Robertson.

BROOKS, Phillips, D.D. (Harvard, 1877, Oxford, 1885), Episcopal; b. in Boston, Dec. 13, 1835; graduated at Harvard College, 1855; and at the Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia, near Alexandria, 1859; was from 1859 to 1862 rector of the Church of the Advent, Philadelphia; till 1869, of the Church of the Holy Trinity in the same city; and since, of Trinity Church, Boston. His church was burned in the Boston fire, November, 1872; and the present imposing structure completed in February, 1877. In 1884 Mr. Brooks declined the Plumner professorship of Christian morals and preached in St. John's Chapel, Harvard College. He has published Lectures on Preaching delivered before the Divinity School of Yale
BROWN.

College, January—February, 1877 (Lyman Beecher Foundation), New York, 1877; Sermons, 1878; Influence of Jesus (the Bohlen Lectures for 1879), 1879; Candle of the Lord, and other Sermons, 1881; Sermons preached in English Churches, 1883.

BROWN, Charles Rufus, Baptist; b. at East Kingston, N.H., Feb. 22, 1849; educated at Phillips Exeter Academy, N.H., 1863-65; United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., 1865-69; in the Navy, promoted to master; resigned, and entered Newton Theological Institution in 1874, Harvard College, 1875, and graduated, 1877; studied in Newton Theological Institution, 1877-78, Union Theological Seminary, 1878-79; graduated at Union, May, 1879, and at Newton, June, 1879; studied in Berlin University, 1879-80; in Leipzig, 1880-81; became pastor at Franklin, N.H., 1881; professor of Old-Testament interpretation in Newton Theological Institution, 1883. He has published An Aramaic Method, Part II. Text, Notes, and Vocabulary. Part II. Grammar. Chicago, 1884-86.

BROWN, David, D.D. (Princeton College, 1852, and Aberdeen University, 1872), Free Church of Scotland; b. at Aberdeen, Aug. 17, 1803; graduated at the University of Aberdeen; was assistant to Edward Irving in London, 1830-32; minister of the Established Church of Scotland; b. at Aberdeen, Aug. 17, 1803; graduated at the University, 1839; studied law or the ministry; studied theology at Highbury College; became an Independent minister, first of the Established Church. But doubts respecting that Church's position toward the State, and on her baptismal teachings, led him ultimately into the Baptist Church; and at the close of 1847 he began his ministry in the Myrtle-street Chapel, Liverpool, being ordained the following January. He soon took a first place in his denomination, and won particular notice by inaugurating the largely attended Sunday-afternoon lectures for working-men, — an idea which was acted upon in many localities. He visited the United States and Canada in 1872; and was elected chairman of the Baptist Union of the United Kingdom. He has published numerous sermons and lectures.

BROWN, James Baldwin, B.A., Congregationalist; b. in the Inner Temple, London, Aug. 19, 1820; d. in London, June 23, 1884. He was educated at University College, London, and graduated at the University, 1838; studied law for the next two years, but then obeyed an inner call to the ministry; studied theology at Highbury College; became an Independent minister, first of London Road Chapel, Derby, 1843; three years later (1846), of Claylands Chapel, Clapham Road, London. In 1870 he went with his congregation to the new church they had built at Brixton, and remained their pastor until his death. His ministry was a notable one. His influence was consecrated and wide-spread. He strenuously opposed the doctrine of conditional immortality as a deadly error. The esteem in which his brethren held him is shown by his occupancy of the chair of the Congregational Union in 1873. Besides pamphlets, occasional sermons, newspaper articles, sketches of Rev. Drs. Leichild (1862) and Raffles (1863), he wrote Studies of First Principles, London, 1849; The Divine Life in Man, 1859, 2d ed. 1860; The Doctrine of the Divine Fatherhood in relation to the Atonement, 1860; The Soul's Exodusc and Pilgrimage, 1862; Aids to the Development of the Divine Life, 1862; Divine Mystery of Peace, 1863; Divine Treatment of Sin, 1864 (the two together under title The Divine Mysteries, 1869); The Home Life in the Light of its Divine Idea, 1869, 5th ed. 1870; Idolatries, Old and New: their Cause and Cure, 1867; Murals Passages of Scripture, 1869, 2d series 1871; The Christian Policy of Life, 1870, 2d ed. 1880; The First Principles of Ecclesiastical Truth: Essays on the Church and Society, 1871; The Sunday Afternoon: Fifty-two Brief Sermons, 1871; Buying and Selling and Getting Gain, 1871; Young Men and Maidens, 1871 (the two together under title Our Morals and Manners, 1872); The Higher Life: its Reality, Experience, and Destiny, 1874, 5th ed. 1878; The Battle and the Burden of Life, 1875; The Doctrine of Annihilation in the Light of the Gospel of Love, 1875, 2d ed. 1878; Church and State, 1876; Home: its Relation to Man and Society, 1883, 3d ed. 1894. See In Manners and Customs (the two together under title Our Morals and Manners, 1872).

BROWN, Hugh Stowell, English Baptist; b. at Douglas, Isle of Man, Aug. 10, 1823; d. at Liverpool, Feb. 24, 1886. He learned surveying, then locomotive engineering, but at twenty-one entered King William's College, Castleton, Isle of Man, in order to fit himself for the ministry of the Established Church. But doubts respecting that Church's position toward the State, and on her baptismal teachings, led him ultimately into the Baptist Church; and at the close of 1847 he began his ministry in the Myrtle-street Chapel, Liverpool, being ordained the following January. He soon took a first place in his denomination, and won particular notice by inaugurating the largely attended Sunday-afternoon lectures for working-men,— an idea which was acted upon in many localities. He visited the United States and Canada in 1872; and was elected chairman of the Baptist Union of the United Kingdom. He has published numerous sermons and lectures.

BROWNE.

27

BRYENNOS.

1, 1831; graduated at the General Theological Seminary there, 1854; became assistant minister of Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights, 1854; rector of the Church of the Good Angels, 1855; of the Church of the Evangelists, New York City, 1856; of St. John's, Cohoes, 1859; consecrated bishop, 1859. In 1858 he was secretary to the diocesan convention at Albany; in 1859, archdeacon of the Albany convocation. He is a "High Churchman." He has published some sermons and pamphlets.

BROWNE, Right Rev. Edward Harold, D.D. (Cambridge, 1864), D.C.L. (Oxford, 1877), lord bishop of Winchester, Church of England; b. at Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire, March 6, 1811; educated at Emmanuel College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (wangler) 1832; obtained the Cross of theological scholarship, 1833; the Tywitt Hebrew scholarship, 1834; the Norrissian prize for a theological essay, 1835; M.A., 1835; B.D., 1855. He became fellow and tutor in his college, 1837; curate of St. Paul, Gloucestershire, 1840; perpetual curate of St. James, Exeter, 1841; perpetual curate of St. Sidwell, Exeter, 1841; vice-principal and professor of Hebrew in St. David's College, Lampeter, Wales, 1843; vicar of Kennwyn, Cornwall, and prebendary of Exeter, 1849; vicar of Heavitree, 1857; canon of Exeter, 1857. In 1854 he became Norrissian professor of divinity at Cambridge; in 1864, bishop of Ely; and in 1873 was translated to Winchester, and made ex officio prelate of the Most Noble Order of the Garter. He has taken great interest in the "Old Catholic" movement, and attended the Old Catholic Congress at Cologne in 1872. He was a member of the Old-Testament Company of Revisers. He is the author of An Exposition of the XXXIX. Articles, London, 1850—53, 2 vols.; three volumes of sermons,—The Atonement and other Sermons (1859), Messiah Foretold and Expected (1862), The Strophe, the Victories, and the Kingdom (1872); The Pentateuch and the Elohist Psalms, in reply to Bishop Colenso, 1863; Position and Parties of the English Church, 1875. He was a contributor to Aids to Faith, to Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, and to the Bible (Speaker's) Commentary on the Gospels.

BROWNE, John, B.A., Congregationalist; b. at North Walsham, Norfolk, Feb. 6, 1823; studied at Coward College and University College, London, 1840—44; graduated B.A. at London University, 1843; since 1845 he has been pastor at Wrentham, Suffolk. Besides sundry pamphlets he is the author of History of Congregationalism in Norfolk and Suffolk, London, 1877.

BRUCE, Alexander Balmain, D.D. (Glasgow, 1876), Free Church of Scotland; b. in the parish of Aberdalgie near Perth, Jan. 30, 1831; educated at Edinburgh, and was minister in Free Church, Cardross, Dumbartonshire, 1839—68; in Broughty Ferry, Forfarshire, 1868—75; since 1875 he has been professor of theology (apotheology and New-Testament exegesis) in the Free Church College, Glasgow. He declares himself to be "in sympathy with modern religious thought, while maintaining solidarity with all that is best in theology," and has published some sermons and pamphlets. His essay on "The Training of the Twelve, in the School of the Great Church of Christ," and having distinguished himself was then sent to Germany for further study, and attended lectures in Leipzig, Berlin, and Munich. In 1861 he became professor of ecclesiastical history, exegesis, and other studies, in his alma mater; and in 1863, master and director. In December, 1867, he was called to Constantinople to be the head of the "Great School of the Nation" in the Phanar, and so remained until in 1875 he was sent by the Most Holy Synod of Metropolitans and Patriarch to the Bonn Old-Catholic Conference (Aug. 10—18, 1875), and while there received the patriarchal letter announcing his appointment as metropolitan of Serrae in Macedonia, which position he assumed December, 1875. In 1877 he was transferred to the metropolitan see of Nicomedia. In 1880 he went to Bucharest as commissioner of the Eastern Orthodox Patriarchal and other independent churches, to settle the matter of the plundering of Greek monasteries in Moldavia and Wallachia.

In 1882, as instructed by the Holy Synod of metropolitans in Constantinople, and the Patriarch Joachim III, he wrote a reply to the encyclical of the Holy Synod, in Constantinople. His fame the Jerusalem Manuscript, so called because found in the West rests upon his discovery in 1873 of important in 1878, he set to work to prepare a suit small octavo pages contains (1) A Synopsis of the Old and New Testaments in the order of Books by St. Chrysostom; (2) The Epistle of Barnabas; (3) The First Epistle of Clement of Rome to the Corinthians; (4) The Second Epistle of Clement to the Corinthians; (5) The Teaching of the Twelve Apostles; (6) The spurious letter of Mary of Cassoboli; (7) Twelve pseudo-Ignatian Epistles. The Epistles to the Corinthians were published by him with prolegomena and notes in Greek. His edition is the basis of the rich literature on the Didache which has grown up in a short time. See his autobiography which he prepared for , and has edited D. Martini Lutheri scholar inedita de libro Julium habitas primum editid, Leipzig, 1884; Urgedruckte Predigten D. Martin Lutherus aed 1530 auf der Coburg gehalten, Zwickau, 1884; Andreas Paesch hand-schriftliche Sammlungen ungedruckter Predigten D. Martin Lutherus in den Jahren 1528—'34, Leipzig, 1884 sqq.; Sechs Predigten Johannes Bugenhagens (Osterprogramm of the university, Halle-Wittenberg), Halle, 1885. He is a collaborator on the Erlangen and on the Weimar editions of Luther's works. He has contributed to the Theologische Studien und Kritiken, Zeitschrift für kirchliche Wissenschaft und kirchliches Leben, Beiträge für sächsische Kirchengeschichte.

BUCKLEY, James Monroe, D.D. (Wesleyan University, 1876), LL.D. (Emory and Henry College, Virginia, 1882), Methodist; b. at Rathway, N.J., Dec. 16, 1836; entered Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., in 1856, but compelled by impaired health to leave in 1858; from then until 1880 he was a Methodist pastor, — in New Hampshire 1858—63, Michigan (Detroit) 1863—66, New York (Brooklyn) 1866—68, 1872—75, 1878—80, and Connecticut (Stamford) 1869—72, 1875—78. In 1880 he was elected to his present position, editor of the Christian Advocate, the chief organ of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is the author of BUDE, Karl (Ferdinand Reinhardt), Lic. Theol. (Bonn, 1873), D.D. (hon., Giessen, 1889), German Protestant theologian; b. at Bensberg near Cologne on the Rhine, April 13, 1850; studied at Bonn 1867—68, 1869—70, 1871; at Berlin, 1872; at Utrecht, 1873—75; became assistant to the apoc. of Old-Testament theology at Bonn, 1878; fessor extraordinary, 1879; was inspector of the evangelical Stift of the University of Bonn, September—April, 1885. He was in the German infantry during the Franco-Prussian war, 1870—71. He is the author of Beiträge zur Kritik des Buches Hiob, Bonn, 1876; Die biblische Urgeschichte (Gen. i.—xi) untersucht, Giessen, 1883; and in periodicals has published Ueber vermeintliche merシェr Formen in der hebräischen Poesie, in Theol. Studien u. Kritiken, 1874, pp. 747—764; Ueb der die 50 und 51 des Buches Jeremia, in Jahrb. f. Deutsche Theologie, 1875, pp. 428—471. V.1. — Das hebräische Klagelied, in Zeitschrift für die alttest. Wissenschaft, 1882, p. 1—52; Die Capitel 27 und 28 des Buches Hiob, do., pp. 193—274; Gen. 48: 7 und die benachbarten Abschnitte, do., 1888, pp. 59—88; Ein althebräisches Klagelied, do., pp. 299—300; Die hebräische Umschreibung, in Zeitschr. d. deutschen Palästina-Vereins, Bd. XLIII, p. 590—598; Das hebräische Klagelied, in Uhle, Berichtigung, in Zeitschrift f. d. alttest. Wissenschaft, 1884, pp. 298—302, 1885, pp. 155—160; Gen. 3: 17; 6: 29; 8: 21, ein Beitrag zur Quellenkritik der biblischen Urgeschichte, do., 1886, pp. 30—43.

BUDE, Paul, D.D. (Tübingen, 1866), German Protestant theologian; b. at Leutkirch, Württen-BURNEY, Stanford Guthrie, D.D. (Bethel College, Tenn., 1854), LL.D. (Waynesburg College, Penn., 1880), Cumberland Presbyterian; b. in Robinson County, Tenn., April 16, 1814; licensed by the Nashville Presbytery of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, October, 1834; ordained, March, 1836; pastor at Franklin, Tenn., 1836-38; at Nashville, Tenn., 1841-43; financial agent of Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tenn. (formerly Princeton College, Ky.) 1843; pastor at Memphis, Tenn., 1845-48; at Oxford, Miss., 1848-73 (president of Union Female College, 1852-62, professor of English literature, 1852-59); president of Cumberland University since its reorganization in 1877,— until 1880 professor of biblical literature, since 1880 of systematic theology. He has been a prominent member or chairman of most of the special theological and denominational conferences held from Aug. 10 to 16, 1875, at Bonn, New York, 1876; The Apos tolical System of the Church defended in a Reply to Dr. Whately on the Kingdom of Christ, Philadelphia, 1844; Eucharistic Presence, Sacrifice, and Adoration, New York, 1874.

BUELL, Marcus Darius, Methodist; b. at Way land, N.Y., Jan. 1, 1851; graduated at Brown University, 1872; and at the School of Theology, Boston University, 1875; held pastorates at King Street, Conn., Great Neck, L.I., in Brooklyn, N.Y., and in Hartford, Conn.; travelled in Europe and the Levant in 1879-80; pursued his studies at the Universities of Cambridge and Berlin, 1881-85; and in 1885 was appointed professor of New Testament Greek and exegesis in the School of Theology, Boston University.

BURGESS, Right Rev. Alexander, S.T.D. (Brown University, 1866; Racine College, 1882), Episcopalian, bishop of Quincy, Ill.; b. in Providence, R.I., Oct. 31, 1819; graduated at Brown University there, 1838; and at the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1841; successively rector of St. Mark's, Augusta, Me., 1843; St. Luke's, Portland, 1854; St. John's, Brooklyn, L.I., 1867; Christ Church, Springfield, Mass., 1869; consecrated, 1878. In 1877 he was president of the House of Deputies. Besides sermons, addresses, carols, and hymns, he has written a memoir of his brother, Bishop George Burgess of Maine (d. April 23, 1866; see Encyclopaedia, 1. 341), Philadelphia, 1869.

BURGESS, Henry, Ph.D. (Göttingen, 1852), LL.D. (Glasgow, 1851), Church of England; b. in the parish of St. Mary, Newington, London, Jan. 29, 1808; was educated at the Dissenting College at Diisseldorf and enriched himself in both Hebrew and the classical languages. After graduation (1830), he became Baptist minister at Suson. But after a time he thought best to alter his church relations (1849), and was ordained deacon 1850, and priest 1851, by the Bishop of Manchester; became curate at Blackburn, 1851; perpetual curate of Clifton Reynes, Buckinghamshire, 1851; vicar of St. Andrew's, Whittlesey, near Peterborough, 1854-64; D.D., 1866. He edited The Clerical Journal, 1854-68; The Journal of Sacred Literature; the second edition of Kitto's Cyclopedia of Biblical Literature, Edinburgh, 1856-62, 2 vols. He is the translator from the Syriac of The Fes tal Letters of St. Athanasius, London, 1852; and Metrical Hymns and Homilies of St. Epiphanius Syrus, 1853; and author of Luther, his Excellences and Defects, 1857; The Reformed Church of England in its Principles and their Legitimate Development, 1869; Essays, Biblical and Ecclesiastical, relating chiefly to the Authority and Inspiration of the Holy Scriptures, 1873; Disestablishment and Disendowment, 1875; The Art of Preaching and the Composition of Sermons, 1881.

BURGON, Very Rev. John William, B.D., dean of Chichester, Church of England; b. at Snyrma, Asia Minor, Aug. 21, 1813; educated at Worcester College, Oxford, graduated B.A. (second-class classics), 1838; M.A. (Oriel), 1848, B.D., 1871; wrote the Nowell prize poems, 1845, the Ellerton theological essay, 1847, the Denyer theological essay, 1851; was elected a fellow of Oriel College, 1848; ordained deacon, 1848, priest, 1849; Gresham lecturer in divinity, 1868; became vicar of St. Mary the Virgin, Oxford, 1863; dean of Chichester, 1876. He has written The Life and Times of St. Thomas Preschia, London, 1886, 2 vols.; Petra, a Poem, 1849; Oxford Reformers, 1854; A Plain Commentary on the Four Holy Gospels, 1855, 8 vols., new ed. 1877, 4 vols., reprinted Philadelphia, 1868, 2 vols.; Historical Notices of the Colleges of Oxford, 1857; Plain Commentary on the Book of Psalms (P.B. Version), 1857, 2 vols.; Inspiration and Interpretation (answer to Essays and Reviews), 1861; Letters from Rome to Friends in England, 1862; A Treatise on the Pastoral Office, 1864; Ninety-one Short Sermons, 1867, 2 vols.; Disestablishment, the Nation's Formal Rejection of God and Denial of the Faith, 1868; England and Rome, 1869; A Perent, 1869; The Last Twelve Verses of the Gospel according to St. Mark vindicated against recent Critical Objectors and established, 1871; The Athanasian Creed to be retained in its integrity, and why, 1872; A Plea for the Study of Divinity in Oxford, 1875; The Revision revised. Three Articles from the Quarterly Review, 1883; Ten Lives of Good Men, 1885; Poems, 1885.
BURNHAM. Sylvester, D.D. (Bowdoin, 1885), Baptist; b. at Exeter, N.H., Feb. 1, 1842; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1862, and from the Newton Theological Institution, Newton Centre, Mass., 1873; and since 1875 has been professor of Hebrew and Old-Testament exegesis in the Baptist Theological Seminary, Hamilton, N.Y.

BURRAGE, Henry Sweetser, D.D. (Brown University, 1883), Baptist; b. at Exeter, N.H., Feb. 1, 1842; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1862, and from the Newton Theological Institution, Newton Centre, Mass., 1873; and since 1875 has been professor of Hebrew and Old-Testament exegesis in the Baptist Theological Seminary, Hamilton, N.Y.

BURNHAM, Sylvester, D.D. (Bowdoin, 1885), Baptist; b. at Exeter, N.H., Feb. 1, 1842; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1862, and from the Newton Theological Institution, Newton Centre, Mass., 1873; and since 1875 has been professor of Hebrew and Old-Testament exegesis in the Baptist Theological Seminary, Hamilton, N.Y.

BURR, Enoch Fitch, D.D. (Amherst, 1868), Congregationalist; b. at Green's Farms, Westport, Conn., Oct. 21, 1818; graduated at Yale College, 1839; carried on for several years in New Haven mingled scientific and theological studies; since 1850 has been pastor in Lyme, Conn.; and since 1868, lecturer in Amherst College on the sciences and evidences of religion. In 1874 he delivered by request, in New York and Boston, a course of lectures on "The Latest Astronomy against the Latest Atheism"; and has since lectured on kindred themes at Williams College, the Sheffield Scientific School, and other institutions. He is the author of *The Mathematical Theory of Newton, New Haven, 1848; Spiritualism, New York, 1859; Ecce Calum, Boston, 1867; Pater Mundii, 1869; Ad Fidem, 1871; Evolution, 1873; Sunday Afternoons, New York, 1874; Thy Voyage (poem), 1874; Toward the Strait Gate, Boston, 1870; *Work in the Vineyard, 1876; From Dark to Day (poem), 1877; *Do the Athenian, New York, 1880; Tempted to Unbelief, 1882; Ecce Terra, Philadelphia, 1881; Celestial Empires, New York, 1885; Theism as a Canon of Science, London, 1886.

BURRELL, Henry Sweetser, D.D. (Brown University, 1883), Baptist; b. at Fitchburg, Mass., Jan. 7, 1857; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1876, and at Newton Theological Institution, Newton Centre, Mass., 1867; studied in Halle, Germany, 1868-69; was a Baptist pastor in Waterville, Me., 1869-73; since has been editor and proprietor of *Zion's Advocate, a Baptist religious paper published at Portland, Me.; since 1876, recording secretary of the American Baptist Missionary Union; and is also chancellor of the Maine Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States. While a student of theology at Newton he entered (1882), as private, the Thirty-sixth Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry; was promoted sergeant, sergeant-major, second lieutenant, first lieutenant, captain, brevet major; was wounded at Cold Harbor, June 3, 1864; was assistant adjutant general on the staff of the first brigade, second division, Ninth Army Corps; was a prisoner from Nov. 1, 1864, to Feb. 22, 1865; was mustered out of the service June 8, 1865, and re-entered at Stanford, Mass., where he engaged in business; was called to the ministry in 1884; entered and graduated in his absence. He has written, besides numerous articles, *The Act of Baptism in the History of the Christian Church, Philadelphia, 1879; *A History of the Anabaptists in Switzerland, Philadelphia, 1882; and has edited *Brown University in the Civil War, Providence, R.I., 1868; *Henry Ward Burroughs, *Twenty-Fifth Birthday. *Proceedings of the Maine Historical Society, Portland, 1892; *History of the Thirty-seventh Regiment, *Massachusetts Volunteers, Boston, 1893.

BURROWES, George, D.D. (Washington College, Washington, Washington, Penn., 1853), Presbyterian; b. at Trenton, N.J., April 3, 1811; graduated at Nassau Hall (College of New Jersey), Princeton, N.J., 1832, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1835; was pastor at West Newfiedham, Md., 1836-50; professor of Latin and Greek, Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1850-55; pastor of Newton Presbyterian Church, Penn., 1857-59; built up the City College, San Francisco, Calif., 1859, left it 1865; was principal of the University Mound boarding-school near San Francisco, 1870-73; has been, since its origin in 1872, professor of Hebrew and Greek in the San Francisco Presbyterian Theological Seminary. He is the author of *A Commentary on the Song of Solomon, Philadelphia, 1853, 3d ed. 1861; *Octara, a Poem, and other Pieces, 1856; *Advanced Growth in Grace, San Francisco, 1865.

BURTON, Ernest De Witt, Baptist; b. at Granville, O., Feb. 4, 1856; graduated at Denison University, Granville, O., 1876; and at Rochester (Baptist) Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1882; was instructor in New-Testament Greek in Rochester Seminary, 1882-83; and since has been associate professor of interpretation of the New Testament, Newton Theological Institution, Newton Centre, Mass.

BURWASH, Nathaniel, S.T.D. (Garrett Biblical Institute, 1876), Methodisst; b. at Argentuell, Quebec, Can., July 25, 1839; graduated at Victoria University, Cobourg, Can., B.A. (valedictorian), 1858; Yule College, 1869; Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., B.D., 1871; was classical tutor in Victoria University, 1890; pastor, 1861-66; professor of natural science, Victoria University, 1867-72; dean of theological faculty, and professor of biblical and systematic theology; Victoria University, since 1873. He is the author of *Genesis, Natural and Historic, 1879, and *Results of the Jewish Synagogue, 1878; *Wesley's Doctrinal Standards, 1881; *Relation of Children to the Fall, the Atonement, and the Church, 1882.

BUTLER, Clement Moore, D.D. (Kenyon College, O., 1847), Episcopal; b. at Troy, N.Y., Oct. 18, 1810; graduated at Trinity College, Hartford, 1833; and at the General Theological Seminary, New York, 1836. Between 1837 and 1861 he was rector of Episcopal churches in New York, District of Columbia, Massachusetts, and Ohio; from 1861 to 1864, chaplain to the United-States Embassy at Rome, Italy; from 1864 to 1884, professor of church history in the Protestant Episcopal Divinity School, Philadelphia. While a pastor in Washington, D.C. (1846-54), he was chaplain of the United-States Senate (1849-53), and in that capacity performed the funeral service and preached the sermon upon the death of Mr. Calhoun and Mr. Clay. These sermons and other Pieces, published by class friends, 1866. He is the author of forty published occasional sermons, and of *The Year of the Church: Hymns and Devotional Verse

BUTLER, Very Rev. Henry Montague, D.D. (Cambridge, 1867), dean of Gloucester, Church of England; b. at Harrow in the year 1833; educated at Harrow School (of which his father was then head master, afterward dean of Peterborough), and Trinity College, Cambridge; was elected Bell University scholar, 1852, and Battle University scholar, 1853; won Sir W. Browne's medal for the Greek ode, 1853; the Porson prize, the Greek ode, the Camden medal for Latin hexameters, and the members' prize for a Latin essay, 1854; graduated B.A. (senior classic), 1855; M.A., 1858; was fellow of his college, 1855-59; ordained deacon and priest, 1859; head master of Harrow, 1850-85; honorary chaplain to the Queen, 1875-77; chaplain in ordinary, 1877—85; select preacher at Oxford, 1877, 1878, 1882; at Cambridge, 1879; examining chaplain to Archbishop of Canterbury, 1879-85; appointed dean, 1885. He is the author of Sermons preached at Harrow, 1861-69, 2 vols.

BUTLER, James Glentworth, D.D. (Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1844), Presbyterian; b. in Brooklyn, N.Y., Aug. 3, 1821; studied in Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1846-47, and at the New-Haven (Congregational) Theological Seminary, Conn., 1847-49; was resident licentiate at the latter, 1849-50; Presbyterian pastor in West Philadelphia, Penn., 1852-58; secretary of the American and Foreign Christian Union, New-York City, 1868-71; pastor in Brooklyn (E.D.), N.Y., 1871-75; has been without charge in Brooklyn since 1874. Besides numerous articles, he has issued The Bible Reader's Commentary, New Testament, New York, 1879, 2 vols.; in 1883 title changed to Bible Work (5 vols. on Old Testament in preparation).

BUTLER, William, D.D. (Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1882), Methodist; b. in Dublin, Ireland, Jan. 31, 1818; graduated at Didbury College, near Manchester, Eng., 1844; same year became a member of the Irish Wesleyan Conference; in 1850 joined the New-England Annual Conference; in 1856 went to India to found a mission for the Methodist-Episcopal Church; returned in 1865; succeeded Dr. Mattison as secretary of the American and Foreign Christian Union, 1869; resigned when appointed to found a mission for his denomination in Mexico in 1873; returned, 1879; revisited India, 1883-84. He is the author of Compendium of Missions, Boston, 1852; The Land of the Veda, New York, 1872; From Boston to Bareilly, and back, 1885.

BAUM, Henry Mason, Episcopal; b. at East Schuyler, Herkimer County, N.Y., Feb. 24, 1848; educated at Hudson-river Institute, Claverack, Dutchess County, New York; read law for three years; entered the Protestant-Episcopal Divinity School of Philadelphia, 1869; was ordained deacon 1870, priest 1872; was rector of St. Peter's Church, East Bloomfield, N.Y., 1870-71; and missionary to Allen's Hill, Victor, Lima, and Honoye Falls, N.Y.; rector of St. Matthew's Church, Laramie City, Wyoming Territory, 1872-73; in charge of St. James's Church, Paulsborough, N.J., 1873-74; rector of St. Mathew's Church, Lambertville, N.J., 1875-76; and of Trinity Church, Easton, Penn., 1876-80; travelled in Europe, 1879-80; since January, 1881, has been editor and proprietor of The Church Review. He is the author of Rights and Duties of Rectors, Church Wardens, and Vestrymen, in the American Church, Philadelphia, 1879; The Law of the Church in the United States, New York, 1886.
CAPEL, Thomas John, D.D., Roman Catholic;

JOHN'S Free Church, Glasgow (Dr. Chalmers's congregation) from 1871 to 1882, when he was appointed professor of Hebrew and Oriental languages in the Free Church College, Aberdeen.

CAMPBELL, James Colquhon, D.D. (Cambridge, 1839), lord bishop of Bangor, Church of England; b. at Stonefield, Argyleshire, Scotland, in the year 1813; educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (senior optime and second-class classical tripes), 1838; M.A., 1839; was ordained deacon, 1837; priest, 1838; was rector of Merthyr-Tydfel, Glamorganshire, 1844-59; rural dean of the Upper Desaney of Llandaff, Northern Division, 1844-57; honorary canon of Llandaff Cathedral, 1852-57; archdeacon of Llandaff, 1857-59; consecrated bishop, 1859.

CAMPBELL, John, Presbyterian Church in Canada; b. in Edinburgh, Scotland, June 18, 1840; graduated at the University of Toronto, B.A., 1865; M.A., 1866; studied theology at Knox College, Toronto, and New College, Edinburgh, 1865-68; has been minister of Charles- street Church, Toronto, since 1868; member of the senate and examiner in the University of Toronto since 1871; has been pastor in Princeton Theological Seminary, 1859-63; was pastor of the Reformed Dutch Church at Chittenden, Vt., 1861-62; principal of Erasmus Hall, Baltimoré, Long Island, N.Y., 1833-39; pastor in East New York, 1840-41; of the Third Church, Albany, 1841-49; principal of the Albany Academy, 1848-51; professor of Oriental literature in the Reformed Dutch Theological Seminary, New Brunswick, N.J., 1851-63; in Rutgers College, New Brunswick, professor of belles-lettres, 1851-63; of moral philosophy, 1862-63; president of Rutgers College, and professor of biblical literature, moral philosophy, and evidences of Christianity, 1866-62. His publications consist of occasional sermons and discourses, and articles in periodicals. See list of the chief of these in Corwin's Manual of the Reformed Church in America, 3d ed., New York, 1879, p. 206.

CAPEL, Thomas John, D.D., Roman Catholic;
CARR, George Lovell, A.M., Unitarian, layman; b. at Medway, Mass., May 10, 1830; graduated at Harvard College, 1852; became professor of ancient languages in Antioch College (Yellow Springs, O.), 1857; and professor of New-Testament literature in the Meadville (Penn.) Theological School, 1862. He is "in special sympathy with those who emphasize the doctrine of the immortality of God in nature and the human soul." He has published An Introduction to the Greek of the New Testament, Andover, 1878, 2d ed. 1881.

CASPARI, Carl Paul, D.D. (hon., Erlangen, 1880), Lutheran; b. of Jewish parents, at Dessau, Anhalt, Germany, Feb. 8, 1814; studied at Leipzig, 1834—38; and at Berlin, 1839—41; was baptized, 1838; received degree of Ph.D. at Leipzig, 1842. He became professor of theology at Christiansia, Norway, 1847; refused calls to Rostock, 1850, and Erlangen, 1857. His theological position is that of a simple evangelical Christian and theologian. Besides very numerous essays on biblical and ecclesiastical topics, in German and Norwegian, he has published an edition of Bar-han-eddi's es Surnal'j enchridion studioi (Arabic text, Latin version, notes, etc.), Leipzig, 1838; commentary on Othladiis (in Delitzsch and Caspari's Exegetisches Handbuch zu den Propheten des alten Bundes), 1842; Grammaica arabica, 1844—48, 2 parts, 4th ed. by August Muller, under title Arabische Grammatik, Halle, 1876 (English trans. and ed. by William Wright, London, 1862, 2d ed. 1875—76, 2 vols.; French trans. of 4th ed., by F. Uriccoches, Brusselles, 1879—80, 2 vols.); Beiträge zur Einleitungen in das Buch Jesaia und zur Geschichte der jüdisischen Zeit, Berlin, 1848 (vol. ii. of Delitzsch and Caspari's Bibliothec-theologicae und apologetisch-kritislichen Studien, 1840—48, 2 vols.); Über den zyrisch-ephrasimischen Krieg unter Jotham und Ahaz, Christsia, 1849; Über Michæa den Morasthiten und seine prophetische Schrift, 1851—52, 2 parts; Unge- druckte, unbekannte und wenig beachtete Quellen zur Geschichte des Tausfymbols und der Glaubensregel, 1866, 1869, 1873, 3 vols.; Zur Einführung in das Buch Daniel, Leipzig, 1869; Ältere und neue Quellen zur Geschichte des neuen Testamentes und der Glaubensregel, 1879; Martin von Bracara's Schrift "De rectiorum in totum corurum," zuersten bule vollständig und in verbessertem Text herausgegeben, 1880; Kirchcnhistorische Anecdota, nebst neuen Ausgaben patristischer und kirklich-mittelalterlicher Schriften, 1893; Eine pseudoaugustinische Homilia "De Saireligiaus," 1866; Bischof Fastuidus' pelagische Briefe, 1866. Besides these, he has written in Norwegian a translation of the Book of Concord, Christiansia, 1861—66, 2d ed. 1882; an essay upon the Wandering Jew, 1862; a commentary upon the first six chapters of Isaiah, 1867; an historical essay on the confession of faith at baptism, 1871; on Abraham's trial, and Jacob's wrestling with God, 1871, 3d ed. 1876; on Abraham's call and meeting with Melchizedek, 1872, 2d ed. 1876; Bible essays, 1884; and since 1857 he has edited the Theologisk Tidskrift for den evangelisk-lutherske kirke i Norge.

CASSEL, Paulus (Stephanus Selig), D.D. (Vienna, 1874), United Evangelical; b. of Jewish parents, at Grossglockau, Silesia, Feb. 27, 1821; educated at the University of Berlin; became a rabbis; was baptized May 28, 1855, at Bussleben, near Erfurt; became licentiate of theology of Erfangen, 1850; professor at Erfurt, the same year; since 1859 public lecturer in Berlin, and gymnasial Oberlehrer: and since Jan. 5, 1863, pastor of Christ Church. In early life he was a political journalist, and in 1860-67 was a member of the Prussian parliament. He is a member of the Erfurt Academy and other societies. Since 1875 he has edited the Berlin weekly Sunem. His writings are very numerous. Of the theological, may be mentioned article Geschichte der Juden in Ersch u. Gruber, II., t. 27 (1850); Der Prophet Elisäa, 1860; Das Buch der Richter und Ruth, Bielefeld, 1865 (in Lange’s Commentary, English trans., ed. Schaff, New York, 1871); Für erste Stunden. Betrachtungen und Erinnerungen, 1868, 2d ed. 1881; Atkircherlisch Festkalender nach Ursprün- gen und Bräuchen, 1889; Sunem, I., 11th., 1889; Das Evangelium der Söhne Zebedäi (holds that the Fourth Gospel was composed by James and John), Berlin, 1870, 2d ed. 1881; Aus guten Stunden. Geschichte und Erfahrung in Symbol, Kunst und Legende ausgelegt. Mit e. Einleitung in das Evangelium Johannes, 1883; Februdigente, Eine Nocte in Briefen, Leipzig, 1888; Aus Literatur und Symbolik; Ähassurus, Die Sage vom ewigen Juden, Berlin, 1885; Über die Probebibel, 1885 sq.

CATHCART, William, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1864); also Hanover College, Ind., 1864, LL.D. (Woster University, O., 1875), Presbyterian; b. at Salem, N.J., Aug. 30, 1827; graduated at Princeton College, 1848, and at the theological seminary there, 1852; resident licentiate, 1852-53; became professor of Latin and Greek, Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1853-63; at Harvard Divinity School, 1864; and ever since has been minister of the Second Unitarian Society, Brooklyn, N.Y. He is a “radical Unitarian.” His works are Life of N. A. Staples, Boston, 1870; A Book of Poems, 1876, 7th ed. 1885; The Faith of Reason, 1879, 2d ed. 1880; The Bible of To-day, New York, 1879, 3d ed. 1882; Some Aspects of Religion (16 discourses), 1879; Belief and Life (do.), 1881; The Manna from Heaven, Boston, 1881-82, 1884; Jesus, Boston, 1884; Jesus (16 discourses), 1884; In Nazareth Town; and other Poems, 1883; A Daring Faith (16 discourses), 1885; The Good Voices (poems), Troy, N.Y., 1885.

CHALMERS, William, M.A., D.D. (Aberdeen, 1867), Presbyterian; b. in Malacca, East Indies, April 12, 1812; graduated at Aberdeen, 1829; studied theology in Glasgow and in Edinburgh under Dr. Thomas Chalmers; became minister of the Established Church of Scotland at Aberdeen, Fife-shire, 1836, and at Dalil, Ayshire, 1841; of the Free Church at Dailly, 1843; of Marybone Presbyterian Church, London, 1843; professor of apologetic and dogmatic theology and church history in the Presbyterian Church of England, 1868; and principal of the Presbyterian Theological College, London, 1880. He has been a frequent contributor to periodicals.

CHAMBERLAIN, Jacob, M.D., D.D. (Rutgers, Western Reserve, and Union, all in 1878), Reformed (Dutch); b. at Sharon, Litchfield County, Conn., April 13, 1835; graduated at Western Reserve College, O., 1856, and at Reformed Theological Seminary (New Brunswick, N.J.) and at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, in 1859; and that December sailed as medical missionary to India; stationed in Madras Presidency, at Palamanny, 1860-63, established new station at Madanapalli, 1863, and since has had charge of both. In 1868 he established a hospital and dispensary at the latter place, and the same in 1872 at the former. In 1873 he was appointed chairman of the committee for bringing out a new translation of the Old Testament from the Hebrew into the Telugu; in 1879, chairman of committee to revise the Telugu New Testament; both works are now (1886) going on.

In 1878 he was elected vice-president for India of the American Tract Society. Broken health compelled a long rest in America, 1874-78; revisited it 1884-86. He translated into Telugu the Reformed Church liturgy, Madras, 1873, 2d ed. 1885; and the "Hymns for Public and Social Worship," 1874, 2d ed. 1885 (in all 3,000 copies); and has published in English, The Bible tested, New York, 1878, 7th ed. 1885 (in all 21,000 copies); Native Churches and Foreign Missionary Societies, Madras, 1879 (2,000 copies); "Winding up a Horse," or Christian Giving, New York, 1878, 2d ed. same year (5,000 copies); "Eating Cocoa-nuts over the Wheels," or, All pull for Christ, 1885 (20,000 copies); besides frequent contributions to periodicals.

CHAMBERS, Talbot Wilson, S.T.D. (Columbia College, 1853), LL.D. (Rutgers, 1885), Reformed Church (Dutch); b. at Carlisle, Penn., Feb. 25, 1819; graduated at Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1834; studied theology in both the New Brunswick and Princeton Theological Seminaries; became pastor of the Second Reformed Dutch Church, Somerville, N.J., 1839; and one of the pastors of the Collegiate Dutch Church of New-York City, 1849. He was the Vedder lecturer at New Brunswick in 1875, is chairman of the Committee on Versions of the American Bible Society, and member of the American Bible Revision Committee, Old Testament Company. He has published, besides numerous articles, addresses, and sermons, The Noon Prayer Meeting in Fulton Street, New York, 1857; Memoir of Theodore Frelinghuysen, 1863; Exposition of Zechariah, in Schaff-Lange Commentary, 1874; The Psalter a Witness to the Divine Origin of the Bible (Vedder Lectures), 1875; Companion to the Revised Version of the Old Testament, 1885.

CHANCE, Frank, Church of England, layman; b. at Highgate, London, June 22, 1829; graduated in arts and in medicine at Cambridge (B. A. 1854, M.B. 1855, licentiate in medicine 1857); became a member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, 1856; of the Royal College of Physicians, London, 1859; fellow of the latter, 1863. He paid special attention to Hebrew while at Cambridge, and was Tytwhitt's University Hebrew scholar in 1854. Since 1864 his health has prevented his continued practice of medicine. He became a member of the Old-Testament Company of Bible Revisers in 1875. He has translated Virchow's Cellular Pathology, London, 1860; edited H. H. Bernard's Commentary on Job, 1864, re-issued (with appendix) 1880; written many philological notes in Notes and Queries.

CHANNING, William Henry, Unitarian, nephew of William Ellery Channing; b. in Boston, May 25, 1810; d. in London, Dec. 23, 1884. He graduated at Harvard College, 1829, and at the Cambridge Divinity School, 1833; and was ordained at Cincinnati, May 10, 1839. After holding various pastorates in America, he went to England in 1857, and succeeded Rev. Dr. James Martinuse as minister of the Hope-street Unitarian Chapel in Liverpool. He returned to America in 1866, and became minister of the Unitarian Church in Washington, D.C.; but for the last fourteen years of his life he lived in England. He was an earnest social reformer and eloquent preacher. Besides numerous contributions to periodical literature, he published a translation of Joubfroy's Introduction to Ethics, Boston, 1840, 2 vols.; Memoirs of William Ellery Channing, 1848, 3 vols.; Memoirs of Rev. James H. Perkins, 1851, 2 vols.; (with R. W. Emerson and J. F. Clarke) Memoirs of Margaret Fuller Ossoli, 1851, 2 vols.; The Christian Church and Social Reform; (edited) W. E. Channing's The Perfect Life (sermons), 1872.

CHANTRE, Daniel Augusta, Lic. Theol. (Geneva, 1860), French Swiss Protestant; b. at Geneva, Dec. 21, 1836; educated at the university there, 1856-60; pastor in the city, 1862; in charge of the course of historical theology in the university, 1861; ordinary professor, 1882. He is a "liberal theologian." He was one of the founders of L'Alliance libre, 1869, and Etienne chrétienne, 1873, and has written much for them, also a few books and pamphlets.

CHAPONNIERE, Jacques François (called Francis), Lic. Theol. (Geneva, 1867), Swiss Protestant theologian; b. at Geneva, April 6, 1842; graduated M.A. at University of Geneva 1862; studied theology there until 1866; was ordained, 1867; continued his studies in Paris, Germany, England, and Scotland, until 1869; returned to Geneva in 1870, and, while auxiliary pastor in the National Church, lectured in the theological faculty of the university nearly every year upon New Testament exegesis or ecclesiastical statistics, until in 1880 he became chief editor of the Semaine Religieuse, the organ of the evangelical party in the National Church. From 1878 to 1875 he was professor of Zoroastrianism at Paris Christianisme au xixe siècle. Besides numerous articles, he has written La question des confessions de foi au sein du protestantisme contemporain, Geneva, 1867; Affirmations religieuses de quelques physiciens et naturalistes modernes, 1874; Rendez à César ce qui est à César, et à Dieu ce qui est à Dieu (sermon), 1874; Quel doit être, dans la crise actuelle, notre programme ecclésiastique ? 1876; La revision constitutionnelle et la lutte protestante, 1878; L'Eglise nationale ecclésiastique au lendemain de la séparation, 1880; and has translated Christlieb's L'incredibilité moderne et les meilleurs moyens de la combattre, 1874, and Orelli's L'immutabilité de l'Evangile apostolique, 1876.

CHARTERIS, Archibald Hamilton, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1863), Church of Scotland; b. at Wanspyar, Dumfriesshire, Dec. 13, 1855; graduated at Edinburgh University, B.A. 1853, M.A. 1854; he became associate and successor minister of St. Quivox, 1858; minister of Glenogle and ten other parishes, 1863; professor of biblical criticism, University of Edinburgh, 1868. He was the originator and first convener of the General Assembly (Church of Scotland) Committee on Christian Life and Work (1868), which established and edited Life and Work, a journal of now 100,000 circulation, and which also founded the "Church of Scotland's Young Men's Guild." He is one of her Majesty's chaplains, and a dean of the Chapel Royal. He has written, besides lectures and pamphlets, Life of Professor James Robertson (Edinburgh, 1849; 2d ed. 1854); Christian Antiquties, 1875-80, 2 vols., for which he wrote largely himself.

CHASTEL, Étienne (Louis), Litt.D. (Geneva, 1879), D.D. (hon., Strasbourg, 1882), French Swiss Protestant; b. in Geneva, July 11, 1801; studied theology, particularly church history, at Geneva, 1819-23; in Paris, 1825, 1830; in Italy, 1826-27; and in England, 1830-31; became a pastor in Geneva, 1832; professor of church history in the theological faculty of the city's university, 1839; emeritus, 1881 (director of the city library, 1845-49); received the cross of the Legion of Honor, 1879. He is the author of Conférences sur l'histoire du christianisme, Geneva, 1889-97, 2 vols.; Histoire de la destruction de l'hégémonie dans l'empire d'Orient ("crowned by l'Académie des inscriptions et belles-lettres"); 1859; Études historiques sur l'influence de la charité durant les premiers siècles chrétiens ("crowned by l'Académie française"), Paris, 1853 (German trans., Die christliche Barnabeszeit, preface by G. A. Matile, Leipzig, 1854; English trans. by G. A. Matile, The Charity of the Primitive Church, Philadelphia, 1857); L'Église romaine considérée dans ses rapports avec le développement de l'humanité, Geneva, 1856; Destinées de l'école d'Alexandrie, 1836; Trois conciles réformateurs au XVIIe siècle, 1838; Le christianisme et l'Église aux origines, 1839; Le christianisme dans l'âge moderne, 1842; Le christianisme dans les six premiers siècles, 1853; Le christianisme au xixe siècle, 1874 (English trans. by Rev. John R. Beard, D.D., Christianity in the Nineteenth Century, London, 1875); new edition of these volumes chronologically arranged, under the title, Histoire du christianisme depuis son origine jusqu'à nos jours, Paris, 1881-88, 5 vols.: La France et le pape (reply to Count de Montalembert), 1860; Un historien catholique et un critique ultramontain (De Broglié et Guéranger); Le martyre dans les premiers siècles de l'Église, 1881; Les catacumbes et les inscriptions chrétiennes de Rome, 1887; Le cénacle de Calixte à Rome, 1889; J. James Tay-evangelischen Heidenmission: eine Wettüberschau, 1876, 4th ed. 1880 (English trans., Protestant Foreign Missions, their Present State, London, 1880, 3d ed. 1881; Boston, 1st and 2d ed. 1880, Protestant Missions to the Heathen, a General Survey, calculated for an English text, Lausanne, 1880; Swedish, Stockholm, 1880; Norwegian, Kristiania, 1881); Zur methodistischen Frage in Deutschland, Bonn, 1st and 2d ed., 1882; Die religiöse Gleichgültigkeit und die besten Mittel zu ihrer Bekämpfung, Magdeburg, 1st and 2d ed., 1885. Since 1874 he has been co-editor of the Allgemeine Missionsschweiz, Gütersloh. He is president of the West German Branch of the Evangelical Alliance, and attended as delegate the General Conferences of New York (1873), Basel (1879), and Copenhagen (1884).

CHURCH, Pharcellus, D.D. (Madison University, N.Y., 1847). Baptist; at Seneca, near Geneva, Ontario County, N.Y., Sept. 11, 1801; educated for the ministry at Hamilton, N.Y.; became pastor at Poultney, Vt., 1825; in Providence, R.I. (Central Church), 1828; in New Orleans, La., 1834; of the First Church, Rochester, N.Y., 1835; of the Bowdoin-square Church, Boston, 1846; became pastor at Central Church, Boston, 1848; was deprived of the pastoral office and compelled to return to Liverpool. He is the author of The Philosophy of Benevolence, New York, 1847, (Central Church), Boston, 1873; do. on Luke, 1876; do. on John, 1879; The Harmonic Arrangement of the Acts, 1884; Brief Notes on the Gospels, 1884.

CLARK, George Whitfield, D.D. (Rochester University, 1872). Baptist; at South Orange, N.J., Feb. 15, 1851; graduated at Amherst College 1855, and at Rochester Theological Seminary 1855; became pastor at New Market, N.J., 1855; at Elizabeth, N.J., 1859; at Ballston, N.Y., 1868; at Somerville, N.J., 1873; retired broken in health, 1877; since 1880 has been doing missionary, collecting, and literary work for the American Baptist Publication Society. He is the author of History of the First Baptist Church, Elizabeth, N.J., Increase of Moral Power in the Church, 1842; Pentecost (sermon to the Missionary Union at Albany), 1843; Memoir of Theodosia Dean (wife of Dr. William Dean, missionary to China), Boston, 1850; Mapleton, or More Work for the Maine Law (a temperance tale), Montreal, 1853; Seed Truths (written in Bonn on the Rhine), 1870; and of many articles in periodicals.

CHURCH, Very Rev. Richard William, dean of St. Paul's, London, Church of England; b. at Cintra, April 25, 1815; educated at Wadham College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1836, M.A. 1839, Hon. D.C.L. 1873. He was fellow of Oriel College, 1838-53; junior proctor, 1841-45; was ordained deacon 1838, priest 1850; rector of Whately, near Frome-Selwood, 1853-71; select preacher at Oxford, 1869, 1875, 1881; on Sept. 6, 1871, appointed dean of St. Paul's; was elected honorary fellow of Oriel College, 1872. He published before these lectures and sermons, The Catechetical Lectures of St. Cyril, translated with Notes (Library of the Fathers), London, 1841; Essays and Reviews, 1854; Sermons preached before the University of Oxford, 1868, 2d ed. 1880; Life of St. Anselm, 1871, 2d ed. 1877; The Beginnings of the Middle Ages, 1877; Human Life and its Conditions: Sermons preached before the University of Oxford in 1876-78, with three Ordination Sermons, 1878; Dante: an Essay (with translation of De Monarchia by J. Elyot), 1878 (first issued, without the translation, in 1850); Spencer, 1879; Gifts of Civilization, and other Sermons and Lectures, 1880 (includes the separately published lectures, Civilization before and after Christianity, 1872; On some Influences of Christianity upon National Character, 1873; On the Sacred Poetry of Early Religions, 1874); Bacon, 1884; The Discipline of the Christian Character, 1885.

CHURCHILL, John Wesley, Congregationalist; b. at Fairlee, Vt., May 26, 1830; graduated at Harvard College, 1855; and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1860, in which he has been since 1869 Jones professor of pulpit delivery, and co-pastor of the chapel church. He is co-editor of The Andover Review.

CLAPP, Alexander Huntington, D.D. (Iowa College, 1868). Congregationalist; b. at Walthington, Mass., Sept. 1, 1818; graduated at Yale College, 1842, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1843 (studied 1842-43 at the Yale Theological Seminary) was pastor at Brattleborough, Vt., 1846-53; of the Beneficent Church, Providence, R.I., 1855-65; secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, New York City, 1865-78; since 1875 its treasurer; and since 1875 New-York editor of The Congregationalist, Boston, Mass. He has published occasional sermons, etc.

CLARK, Joseph Bourne, D.D. (Amherst University, 1872). Baptist; at Sturbridge, Mass., Oct. 7, 1836; graduated at Amherst College, Mass., 1838, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1861; became pastor at Yarmouth, Mass., 1861; Newton, 1868; Jamaica Plain (Central Church), Boston, 1872; secretary of the Massachusetts Home Missionary Society, 1879; secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, 1882. He is the author of seven occasional sermons, printed by request while pastor at Yarmouth, Newton, and Boston; twelve sermons in the Monday Club volumes, Boston, 1875-80; three papers read before the Annual Meetings of the American Home Missionary Society at Saratoga, 1883, 1884, 1885.

CLARK, Nathaniel George, D.D. (Union College, New York, 1869). LL.D. (University of Vermont, 1875). Congregationalist; b. at Calais, Vt., CLARK, Right Rev. Thomas March, D.D.
(Union College, 1851), S.T.D. (Brown University, of Rhode Island, 1854. He has published Early years in Princeton Theological Seminar (1833—35); was licensed by Presbytery at Newburyport, 1835; ordained priest in the Episcopal Church, 1836; became rector of Grace Church, Boston, Mass., 1836; of St. Andrew's Church, Philadelphia, Penn., 1843; assistant minister of Trinity Church, Boston, Mass., 1847; rector of Christ Church, Hartford, Conn., 1851; bishop of Rhode Island, 1854. He has published Early Discipline and Culture, Hartford, 1832, Providence, 1855; Lectures on the Formation of Character, Hartford, 1853, revised ed. under title Dew of Youth, Boston: Primary Truths of Religion, New York and London, 1859.

CLARKE, James Freeman, D.D. (Harvard College, 1863), Unitarian; b. at Hanover, N.H., April 4, 1810; graduated at Harvard College 1829, and at the Cambridge Divinity School 1833; pastor at Louisville, Ky., 1833-40; and of the Church of the Disciples, Boston, 1841-50, and from 1853 to the present time. He has published, besides numerous sermons, poems, and articles in periodicals, a translation of De Wette's Theodore, Boston, 1840, 2 vols.; and of Hase's Life of Jesus, 1851; and also Service-Book and Hymn-Book for the Church of the Disciples, 1814, revised ed. 1836; Life and Military Services of Gen. William Hull, 1851; Eleven Weeks in Europe, 1852; Memoir of the Marchioness d'Ossoli, 1852; Christian Doctrine of Prayer, 1854, 2d ed. 1856, new ed. 1874; The Hour which Cometh and Now Is (sermons), 1861, 3d ed. 1871; Orthodoxy: its Truths and its Errors, 1866, 8th ed. 1885; The Ten Great Religions, 1870-83, 2 vols., 1st vol. 22d ed. 1886, 2d vol. 5th ed. 1886; Steps of Belief, 1870; Common Sense in Religion (essays), 1874; Zoötics, Translations in Verse, 1870; Go up Higher, or Religion in Common Life, 1877; Essentials and Non-Essentials in Religion, 1878; How to Find the Stars, 1878; Memorial and Biographical Sketches, 1878; Self-Culture, Physical, Intellectual, Moral, and Spiritual, 1880, 11th ed. 1886; Ecceens and Epochs in Religious History, 1881; Legend of Thomas Dillynus, the Jewish Sceptic, 1881; Anti-Slavery Days: Sketch of the Struggle which ended in the Abolition of Slavery in the United States, New York, 1883; Life and Military Services of Gen. William Hull, 2d ed. 1883, 2d ed. 1884; Juvenile Conduct, 1885; The Dawn of Manhood: a Book for Young Men, 1886.

COE, David Benton, D.D. (Middlebury College, Vt., 1857), Congregationalist; b. at Gran-COIT, Thomas Winthrop, D.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1834). LL.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1833). Episcopalian; b. at New London, Conn., June 28, 1803; d. at Middletown, Conn., June 21, 1885. He graduated at Yale College, 1821; was rector of St. Peter's College, New-York City, 1834), LL.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1833), Episcopalian; b. at New London, Conn., June 28, 1803; d. at Middletown, Conn., June 21, 1885. He graduated at Yale College, 1821; was rector of St. Peter's Church, Salem, Mass., 1827-29; of Christ Church, Cambridge, Mass., 1829-34; president and professor of moral philosophy, Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky., 1834-37; rector of Trinity Church, New Rochelle, N.Y., 1837-49; professor of ecclesiastical history in Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1849-54; rector of St. Paul's Church, Trumbull, Conn., 1854-73; historian of religious history in the Berkeley (Episcopalian) Divinity School, Middletown, Conn., 1872 till his death. He edited The Bible in Paragraphs and Parallelisms, Boston, 1831; Townsend's Chronological Bible (with notes), 1837-38, 2 vols.; and wrote The Theological Commonplace Book, Boston, 1832, revised ed. 1837; Remarks on Norton's "Statement of Reasons," 1833; Puritanism: or, a Churchman's Defence against its Aspersions, 1844; Exclusiveness (a lecture), Troy, 1855, 3d ed. — Lectures on the Early History of Christianity in England, with Sermons on Several Occasions, 1850; Necessity of preaching Doctrine: Sermons, 1860; Sameness of Words no Hindrance to Devotion (a sermon), 3d ed. — COLLIER, Robert Laird, D.D. (Iowa State University, 1865), Unitarian; b. at Salisbury, Md., Aug. 7, 1837; graduated at Boston University, 1858; was pastor of the Church of the Messiah, Chicago, 1861-74; Second Church, Boston, 1876-80; was pastor at Leicester, Bradford, and Birmingham, Eng., 1880-85; and since has been pastor in Kansas City, Mo. He is "a Channing, or conservative, Unitarian, holding to free reasoning in religion and in the use of the evangelical spirit and methods. For the past twenty years has lectured on literary and social topics in the United States and Great Britain, and has written for the press and periodicals of these countries. He is the author of Every-day Subjects in Sunday Sermons, Boston, 1874, several editions; Meditations on the Essence of Christianity, 1878, several editions; English Home Life, 1883.

COLLYER, Robert, Unitarian; b. at Keighly, Yorkshire, Eng., Dec. 8, 1823; educated in the country-school of Fewston, Yorkshire; was a mill-hand at eight years, and a blacksmith at fourteen; emigrated to America in 1850; was a hammer-maker at Shoemakertown, Montgomery, Penn., all the while, however, making good use of his leisure time in study. From 1850 to 1858 he was a Methodist local preacher; but converted to Unitarian views, he went to Chicago, Ill., and took charge of a Unitarian mission among the poor, but soon after was chosen pastor of the Unity Church there, and so remained until in September, 1879, he came to his present charge, the Church of the Messiah, New-York City. He has published Nature and Life (sermons), Boston, 1865, 11th ed. 1884; At Home (sermons), 1867; The Simple Truth, 1877; History of Ilkley, Ancient and Modern, London, 1886.

CONANT, Thomas Jefferson, D.D. (Middlebury College, Middlebury, 1844). Baptist; b at Brandon, Vt., Dec. 13, 1862; studied at Middlebury College, Vt. (Hebrew and German in addition to usual course), graduated 1863; took a post-graduate course of two years in Greek and Hebrew with Professor Robert H. Patton; was tutor in Columbia College (now Columbia University), Washington, D.C., 1825-27; successively professor of the Latin, Greek, and German languages in Waterville College (now Colby University), Waterville, Me., 1827-33; of languages and biblical literature in Hamilton Literary and Theological Institution (now Madison University and Theological Seminary), Hamilton, N.Y., 1835-51; and of the Hebrew language and biblical exegesis in Rochester (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1851-57. In 1857 he resigned his professorship in order to revise the English Version of the Bible for the American Bible Union, and in this work was engaged many years. He is a member of the English Version of the New Testament Revision Company. He is the author of a translation of the eleventh edition of Gesenius' Hebrew Grammar, Boston, 1839; and of the seventeenth edition (by Rodiger) with grammatical exercises and a chrestomathy by the trans-
CONRAD, Frederick William, D.D. (Wittenberg College, Springfield, O., 1864), Lutheran; b. at Pinegrove, Schuylkill County, Penn., Jan. 3, 1816; studied at Mount Airy College, Germantown, 1829-31; was collector of tolls on the Union Canal and Railroad at Pinegrove, 1834-41; student of theology at Gettysburg, 1837-39; was ordained deacon 1839, priest 1840; was ordained canon residentiary of Exeter, 1857; became chaplain in ordinary to the Queen, 1857; was pastor in Washington, D.C., 1854-56; Cincinnati, O., 1857-62; London, 1861-65; became a Unitarian; graduated at Harvard Divinity School, 1854; was pastor in Washington, D.C., 1854-56; Cincinnati, O., 1857-62; London, Eng., 1863-84. He is the author of Tracts for To-day, Cincinnati, 1858; The Rejected Stone, Boston, 1861; The Golden Hour, 1862; Commentaries concerning Slavery, London, 1864, 2d ed. 1865; The Sacred Anthology, 1870, 6th ed. 1877; The Earthward Pilgrimage, 1870, 2d ed. 1877; Republican Superstitions, 1872; Christianity, 1876; Idols and Ideals (with essay on Christianity), 1877, 2d ed. 1880; Demonology and Devil Lore, 1878, 2 vols.; A Necklace of Stories, 1880; The Wandering Jew, 1881; Thomas Carlyle, 1882; Emerson at Home and Abroad, 1882; Travels in South Kensington, 1882; Farewell Discourses, 1884.

COOK, Frederic Charles, Church of England, b. at Milbrook, Dec. 1, 1804; educated at St. John's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1828, M.A. 1840; was ordained deacon 1839, priest 1840; was one of her Majesty's inspectors of schools; became chaplain in ordinary to the Queen, 1857; canon residentiary of Exeter, 1864; chaplain to the bishop of London, 1869; precentor of Exeter, 1872. He is the author of Acts of the Apostles with Commentary, London, 1849, new ed. 1866; Sermons at Lincoln's Inn, 1863; Church Doctrine and Spiritual Life (sermons), 1879; The Revised Version of the First Three Gospels considered in its Bearings upon the Record of our Lord's Words and of Incidents in his Life, 1882; Deliver us from Evil, 1883; The Origins of Religion and Language, 1884; Letters addressed to Rev. H. Wace and Rev. J. Earle (relating to Origins), 1885; and was the editor of the Bible (Speaker's Commentary, 1872-82, 10 vols. (in which he wrote the introductions to Exodus, Leviticus, and Numbers), and the commentary on Job, Habakkuk, Zech., Luke, and First Peter, and partly that on Ezekiel, Psalms, and Matthew.

COOK, Joseph, Congregational licentiate, b. at Ticonderoga, N.Y., Jan. 29, 1838; graduated at Harvard College 1865, and at Andover Theological Seminary 1868; supplied vacant pulpits, and continued studies, 1865-70; acting pastor First (Congregational) Church, Lynn, Mass., 1870-71; not ordained; studied under Tholuck and Muller, and travelled in Europe, 1871-73; began lecturing, 1874; delivered the Monday Lectures upon scientific, philosophic, religious, and social topics, in Boston during the winter of each successive year from 1875 till 1880; in England, Italy, India, Japan, and Australia, as lecturer, 1880-82; resumed his Monday Lectures in 1883. His publications consist of his lectures, and these have been widely circulated: Biology, Boston, 1877 (16th ed.; 1885); The Truthtentative, London, 1877 (13th ed.); Orthology, 1877 (7th ed.); Conscience, 1878; Heresy, 1878; Marriage, 1878; Labor, 1879; Socialism, 1880; Occident, 1884; Orient, 1886.
COOPER. 42

COOPER, Thomas, Baptist, b. at Leicester, Eng., March 28, 1805; was in youth a shoemaker at Gainsborough, Lincolnshire, and employed his leisure time to acquire Latin, Greek, Hebrew, and French. When twenty-three, he taught a school, then was a reporter for several country newspapers. In 1841 he led the Chartists of Leicester, lectured in the Potteries during the "riots" of August, 1842; was convicted of conspiracy and sedition, and for two years was confined in Stafford Jail, where he began his literary career, and on his release became a journalist. In 1843 he first appeared prominently in London as political and historical lecturer; in 1849 edited The Plain Speaker, a weekly penny journal of radical politics; and in 1850 started Cooper's Journal, a sceptical weekly penny periodical. In 1855 he renounced infidelity, and has since defended and preached Christian truth with the same energy with which he formerly attacked it. In 1850 he was immersed, and ordained as a Baptist preacher. In 1866 he retired in broken health, upon an annuity of one hundred pounds purchased for him by friends. He has published, besides fiction and poetry, The Triumphs of Perseverance and Enterprise, London, 1847, new ed. 1879; The Bridge of History over the Gulf of Time: a Popular View of the Historical Evidence for the Truth of Christianity, 1871, 3d ed. 1872, reprinted, N. Y. 1876; Plain Pulpit Talk, London, 1872, 2d ed. 1873; Life, written by himself, 1872, 2d ed. 1880; God, the Soul, and a Future State, 1873; The Verity of Christ's Resurrection from the Dead: an Appeal to the Common Sense of the People, 1875, new ed. 1884; The Verity and Value of the Miracles of Christ, 1877; Evolution: the Stone Book and the Mosaic Record of Creation, 1878; The Atonement, 1880; Thoughts at Fourscore and Earlier, 1885.

CORNISH, George Henry, Methodist, b. at Exeter, Eng., June 26, 1834; educated at Victoria University, Cobourg, Can., 1855-58; became titular archbishop of Petra, N. J., 1873; made titular archbishop of New York, with the right of succession, 1880; succeeded the late Cardinal McClorey, 1885.

COWIN, Edward Tanjore, D.D. (Rutgers College, 1871), Reformed (Dutch); b. in New-York City, July 12, 1849; graduated in the first class of the New-York Free Academy (since 1866, the College of the City of New York) 1863, and at the theological seminary of the Reformed Dutch Church, New Brunswick, N. J., 1856; was resident licentiate, 1856-57; became pastor at Paramus, N. J., 1857, and at Millstone 1868. He is the author of Manual and Record of Church of Paramus, New York, 1858, 2d ed. 1859; Manual of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church in North America, 1859, 3d ed. 1879; Millstone Centennial, 1896; Corecin Genealogy, 1872; and of sundry sermons and articles.

COTTERTILL, Right Rev. Henry, D.D. (Cambridge, 1830), lord bishop of Edinburgh, Episcopal Church in Scotland; b. at Ampton, Suffolk, Eng., Jan. 6, 1812; educated at St. John's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (first Smith's prize senior wrangler, and first-class classical tripos) 1833, and was elected a fellow; M.A. by royal mandate, 1836; was ordained deacon 1835, priest 1836; was successively chaplain in the Honourable East-India Company's service, in the Madras Presidency, 1836, vice-principal of Brighton College, 1847; principal, 1851; bishop of Grahamstown, South Africa, 1856; bishop coadjutor of Edinburgh, Scotland, 1871; bishop, 1872. He is the author of The Seven Ages of the Church, London, 1849; Calendars among Candidates for Baptism, 1861; The Epistle to the Galatians, with Explanatory Notes, 1862; The Genesis of the Church, 1872; Does Science aid Faith in Regard to Creation? 1883; wrote the introduction to the Pentateuch in The Pulpit Commentary, 1880.

COULIN, Frank, French Swiss Protestant; b. in Geneva, Nov. 17, 1828, the son of one of the most distinguished Swiss preachers; was ordained 1851, and since 1853 has been pastor of the parish of Gentilod, on the shores of the Lake of Geneva; was delegate to the Evangelical Alliance Conference in New-York City, 1873; made D.D. by the University of St. Andrew's, Scotland, 1882. He has been lecturer in Oriental languages, McGill University, Montreal. He was one of the revisers of the French translation of the Old Testament under the auspices of the Société Biblique de France, Paris, 1881. He published a thesis on Election,
Rom. ix.-xi., Toulouse, 1864; and has contributed to the Revue des deux mondes, and the Revue chrétienne, Paris (1870—77). He became an officier d'Académie, Paris, 1885.

COWIE, Very Rev. Benjamin Morgan, D.D. (Cambridge, 1880), dean of Exeter, Church of England; b. in England upon June 8, 1816; educated at St. John's College, Cambridge; graduated (senior wrangler) 1839, M.A. 1842, B.D. 1853; ordained deacon 1841, priest 1842; was elected fellow of his college 1838, moderator 1843; principal of the Engineers' College, Putney, 1844—51; select preacher, Cambridge, 1852, 1856; Huslean lecturer, 1853—54; minor canon of St. Paul's, London, 1856—73; vicar of St. Lawrence-Jewry with Principal of the Engineers' College, Putney, 1844—51; select preacher, Cambridge, 1852, 1856; Huslean lecturer, 1853—54; minor canon of St. Paul's, London, 1856—73; vicar of St. Lawrence-Jewry with St. Mary Magdalen, Mil Street, London, 1857—73; one of her Majesty's inspectors of schools, 1857—72; Warburtonian lecturer; dean of Manchester, 1872—83; prolocutor of the Lower House of Convocation of York, 1880—82; became chaplain in ordinary to the Queen, 1871; dean of Exeter, 1883. Since 1854 he has been professor of poetry, and has been appointed to the Readership in Poetry at Gresham College. He is the author of Catalogue of MSS. and Scarce Books in St. John's College, Cambridge Library, Cambridge, 1842: Scripture Difficulties (Hulsean Lectures), London, 1854, 2 vols.; Sacrifice and Atonement (five Cambridge University sermons), 1858; On "Essays and Reviews," 1881; Remains, seven pieces of a City Church, 1887; The Voice of God: Chapters on Foreknowledge, Inspiration, and Prophecy, 1870; Ministerial Work, Manchester, 1872.

COX, Samuel, D.D. (St. Andrew's, 1882), Baptist theologian; b. in London, Eng., April 19, 1826; graduated at the Stepney Baptist Theological College, London, 1851, and was ordained pastor of St. Paul's Square Baptist Church, Southsea; was pastor at Ryde, 1853—59; and pastor of the General Baptist Church, Mansfield Road, Nottingham, 1863, where he still remains. He was president of the British General Baptist Association in 1873, and of the Theological and first editor of The Expositor (1875 to 1884), a monthly journal devoted to biblical exposition, and in it wrote copiously. His principal separate publications are The Quest of the Chief Good: Expository Lectures on the Book of Ecclesiastes, with a new translation, London, 1863; The Private Letters of St. Paul and St. John, 1867; The Resurrection (expository lectures on 1 Cor. xv.), 1869; An Expositor's Note-Book, 1872; Biblical Expositions, 1874; The Pilgrim Psalms (exposition of the Songs of Degrees), 1874; The Book of Ruth: A Popular Exposition, 1875; A Day with Christ, 1879; Salvator Mundi, 1877; Expository Essays and Discourses, 1877; Commentary on the Book of Job, 1880; Genesis of Evil, and other sermons, 1880; The Larger Hope: a sequel to Salvator Mundi, 1883; Miracles: an Argument and a Challenge, 1884; Balaam, 1884; Expositions, vol. i. 1886, vol. ii. 1886.

COXE, John W. Armstrong, Cleveland, D.D. (St. James College, Hagerstown, Md., 1866), S.T.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1868), LL.D. (Kenyon College, Gambier, O., 1888), Episcopal, bishop of Western New York; b. at Mendham, N.J., May 10, 1815; graduated at the University of the City of New York, 1838, and at the University of the City of New York, 1841; became rector at Hartford, Conn., 1842; Baltimore, Md., 1854; and of Calvary Church, New-York City, 1883; bishop of Western New York, 1895. From 1852 to 1874 he was provisional bishop of the church in Haiti, which he visited officially. He was prominent in the formation of the Anglo-Continental Society (1838), and gave it its name. He vigorously and successfully opposed the attempt of the American Bible Society to make slight alterations in the text and punctuation of the Bible in 1842. He is the author of The Quest of the Chief Good: Expository Lectures on the Book of Ecclesiastes, with a new translation, London, 1863; The Private Letters of St. Paul and St. John, 1867; The Resurrection (expository lectures on 1 Cor. xv.), 1869; An Expositor's Note-Book, 1872; Biblical Expositions, 1874; The Pilgrim Psalms (exposition of the Songs of Degrees), 1874; The Book of Ruth: A Popular Exposition, 1875; A Day with Christ, 1879; Salvator Mundi, 1877; Expository Essays and Discourses, 1877; Commentary on the Book of Job, 1880; Genesis of Evil, and other sermons, 1880; The Larger Hope: a sequel to Salvator Mundi, 1883; Miracles: an Argument and a Challenge, 1884; Balaam, 1884; Expositions, vol. i. 1886, vol. ii. 1886.

CRAGGS, Wilbur Fisk, B.D., Presbyterian; b. at Fremont, Me., Jan. 12, 1850; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1880, and at the School of Theology, Boston (Mass.) University, 1872; was Methodist minister until 1880, his last pastorate in that denomination being Trinity, Chicago, Ill.; became pastor of the Lee Avenue Congregational Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1880; and pastor of the First Union Presbyterian Church of New-York City, 1883. He has paid particular attention to Sunday-school work, and conducted the "Sunday-school Parliament" in Thousand Island Park, 1876—77; spoke in many cities of Great Britain in connection with the centennial of Sunday schools (1880). He is a vice-president of the National Temperance Society. Besides numerous articles he has written Through the Eye to the Heart, New York, 1873; Childhood the Textbook of the Age, Boston, 1875 (Mrs. Crafts joint author of both; the latter appeared in enlarged form as a subscription-book under the title, The Coming Man is the Present Child, Chicago, 1879); The Bible and the Sunday School, Toronto, 1876, Chicago, 1878; The Rescue of Child Soul, London, 1880; Plain Uses of the Blackboard, 1880, New York, 1881; Teachers' Edition of the Revised Version of the New Testament, New York, 1881; Talks to Boys and Girls about Jesus, 1881; Must the Old Testament go? Boston, 1883; Successful Men of To-day, New York, 1883, London, 1885; Rhetoric made Racy, Chicago, 1884 (Prof. H. F. Fisk joint author); The Sabbath for Man,
New York, 1855 (3d thousand in second month);
What the Temperance Century has made Certain, 1885; Pocket Lesson Notes, 1886 (Mrs. Crafts joint author).

CRAIG, Willis Green, D.D. (Centre College, 1873), Presbyterian; b. near Danville, Ky., Sept. 27, 1854; graduated at Centre College, Danville, 1851, studied at the Danville Theological Seminary until 1851; became pastor at Keokuk, Ia., 1862; professor of biblical and ecclesiastical history, of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of the North-West, Chicago, Ill., 1882.

CRAVAR, Benjamin Franklin, D.D. (Iowa Wesleyan University, 1873), Methodist; b. at Schaffhausen, Switzerland, Feb. 6, 1853; emigrated to the United States of America, 1847; graduated at the Ohio Wesleyan University, 1860; became pastor in Cincinnati, O., 1860, in Nashville, Tenn., 1864; chaplain U.S.A., 1864; consul at Leipzig, 1867; attended lectures in theology and philosophy at Leipzig and Berlin, 1867-70; United States minister at Copenhagen, Denmark, 1870; attended lectures in theology, School of Theology, Boston University, 1888. He has published a large number of essays of an isogogical, exegetical, and bibliocritical character, in Methodist periodicals.

CRARY, Benjamin Franklin, D.D. (Iowa Wesleyan University, 1858, Indiana State University, 1860), Methodist; b. in Jennings County, Ind., Dec. 12, 1823; educated at Pleasant Hill Academy, Cincinnati, 1849-51; admitted to the bar in Indiana, 1858; became pastor in Indiana of the Northern Presbyterian Church, 1859; Professor of Greek and Latin in the University of Cincinnati, 1860; became Reformed Dutch pastor at Somerville, N.J., 1862; was tutor in Princeton College, 1847-49; became professor of Greek and Latin in the college, 1867-75; public examiner in modern history, 1869-70, 1875-76, 1883-84; was ordained deacon 1870, priest 1873; select preacher in the university, 1875-77, 1883; vicar of Emtbenton, Northumberland, 1875-84; rural dean of Alnwick, 1882-84. In 1884 he became Bishop of ecclesiastical history in the University of Cambridge, hon. M.A.; and fellow of Emanuel College, Cambridge; in 1886 canon of Worcester, and hon. D. C. L., Durham. He has published Prudner of Roman History, London, 1873; The Age of Elizabeth, 1876; Life of Simon de Montfort, 1876; The Twenties and the Reformation, 1876; Short History of England, 1879; History of the Popacy during the Period of the Reformation, vols. 1 and 2, 1882. He is founder and editor of The Historical Review, 1886, sqq.

CREMER, August Hermann, Lic. Theol. (Tübingen, 1859), D.D. (h. Berlin, 1873), Lutheran (United Evangelical); b. at Unna, Westphalia, Germany, Oct. 18, 1834; studied at Halle 1853-56, and at Tübingen 1856-59; became pastor at Ostönnen, near Soest, Westphalia, 1859; ordinary professor of systematic theology at Greifswald, and pastor of St. Mary's there, 1870. He is the author of Die exakologische Rede Jesu Christi, Matth 24, 25. Versuch einer exegetischen Erörterung derselben, Stuttgart, 1860; Uber den biblischen Begriff der Erbauung, Barmen, 1863; Uber die Wunder im Zusammenhange der göttlichen Offenbarung, 1865; Bibeltheologisches Worterbuch der neuzeitlichen Göttheit, Gottinga, 1866-67, 1st ed. 1872, 2d ed. 1875-76, 3d ed. 1883-84. In 1884 he became Dixie professor of systematic theology at Greifswald, and pastor of St. Mary's there, 1870. He is ordinary professor of systematic theology at Greifswald, and pastor of St. Mary's there, 1870. He is the author of Die exakologische Rede Jesu Christi, Matth 24, 25. Versuch einer exegetischen Erörterung derselben, Stuttgart, 1860; Uber den biblischen Begriff der Erbauung, Barmen, 1863; Uber die Wunder im Zusammenhange der göttlichen Offenbarung, 1865; Bibeltheologisches Worterbuch der neuzeitlichen Göttheit, Gottinga, 1866-67; 2d ed. 1872, 3d ed. 1875-76, 4th ed. 1883 (English trans. by Rev. William Urrick, Bibldico-theologis Lexcon of New Testament Greek, Edinburgh, 1872, 2d ed. 1878, 3d ed. 1886); Uber Luthers Schriften; "dass unser Heiland ein gebornender Jude sei," Cologne, 1867; Jenseits des Grabs, Gütersloh, 1868; Vernunft, Gewissen und Offenbarung, Gottinga, 1869; Die Aufstellung der Tendenzen, Barmen, 1870; Der Glaube des Alten Bundes, 1872; Die kirchliche Tragweig historisch, ethisch und liturgisch, Berlin, 1875; Auffassung und Bedeutung der Predigt in der gegenwärtigen Zeit, 1876; Uber die Befähigung zum geistlichen Amte, 1878; Die Bibel im Führhau und in der Gemeinde, 1873, 3d ed. 1875, 4th ed. 1883 (German trans. Anselmische Satzungen in der (Studien u. Krit., 1880); Unterweisung im Christentum nach der Ordnung des kleinen Katechismus, Gütersloh, 1883; Reformation und Wissenschaft (Reformationsrecht der Luthnerfeier), Gottinga, 1883; Uber den Zustand nach dem Tode, nebst einigen Anmerkungen über das Kindsleben und über den Spiritus am, 1889 (Swedish trans. Jürkoping, 1885; English trans. by Rev. Dr. S. T. Lowrie, Beyond the Grave, New York, 1885). He was a delegate to the General Conference of the Evangelical Alliance at Basel, 1879, and read a paper on the state of religion in Germany.

CROOKS, George Richard, D.D. (Dickinson College, 1857), Methodist; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., Feb. 3, 1822; graduated at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1840; was teacher and adjunct professor of Latin and Greek in the college, 1841-48; pastor of various Methodist churches in Pennsylvania, Delaware, and New York, 1848-80; editor of The Methodist, 1880-83; was bishop of church history in Drew Methodist-Episcopal Theological Seminary, Madison, N.J. He published, with Dr. McClintock, CROSBY, Howard, S.T.D. (Harvard, 1850), L.L.D. (Columbia College, 1872), Presbyterian; b. in New-York City, Feb. 27, 1826; graduated at the University of the City of New York, 1844; became professor of Greek in this institution, 1851; went in the same capacity to Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1856. He was president of the Young Men's Christian Association of the city, 1852-55; licensed by North Berkshire Association, Mass. (Congregational), 1859; received as licentiate by Classis of New Brunswick (Reformed Dutch), Oct. 16, 1860; dismissed to presbytery of New Brunswick, and by it ordained, April 10, 1861; was pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick, in connection with his professorship, 1861-63; since 1863 pastor of the Fourth-avenue Presbyterian Church, New-York City. He was chosen professor of Hebrew at the University of the City of New York, 1870-71; member of the American Bible Revision Committee, 1870-81; moderator of the General Assembly at Baltimore, Md., 1873; since 1877 he has been president of the Society for the Prevention of Crime, and takes an active part in temperance and other moral reforms in New-York City. Besides occasional pamphlets, articles, etc., he has written Landts of the Moslem (travels), New York, 1851; Epilopus Tyranus, 1852; New-Testament Scholia, 1863; Social Hints for Young Christians, 1866; Decalogue, Philadelphia, 1873; Expository Notes on the Book of Joshua, New York, 1873; Nehemiah (in American Lange series), 1877; The Christian Preacher (Yale Lectures), 1880; True Humanity of Christ, 1880; Commentary on the New Testament, 1885.

CROSKEY, Thomas, D.D. (Derry and Belfast Presbyterian Colleges, 1883), Presbyterian; b. at Carrowdore, County Down, Ireland, May 26, 1830; graduated at Belfast College, 1848; became a minister, 1860 (served in various places); professor of logic and rhetoric in Magee College, Londonderry, 1875, and of systematic theology, 1879. He wrote Treatise on the Doctrines of the Plymouth Brethren, Belfast, 1880.

CROSS, Joseph, D.D. (Carolina University, Chapel Hill, N.C., 1854), L.L.D. (North-Western College, Ill., 1873), Episcopalian; b. at East Brent, Somersetshire, Eng., July 4, 1813; studied in Oneida Conference Seminary, Cazenovia, N.Y., 1832-33; entered Methodist ministry, became an Episcopalian, was chaplain in Confederate army; rector at Houston, Tex., 1867; at Buffalo, N.Y., 1868-70; St. Louis, Mo., 1872-73; Jacksonville, Ill., 1874-77; afternoon preacher in the Church of the Resurrection, 1878; Vicar of St. Paul's, Chicago, 1878-84. Besides articles in periodicals, he has written Hebrew Missionary, Nashville, Tenn., 1855; Hebrew Missionary, Nashville, Tenn., 1855; A Year in Europe, 1857; Church Reader for Lent, 1858; Ecceh, 1858; Coats from the Altar, 1863; Pauline Charity, 1884; Old Wine and Nee, 1884; Church Reader for Lent, 1885 (most of these have been republished, London).
CURCI.

Curci have distinguished themselves by the abundance of their writings. In 1850 he founded, in Naples, the Civiltà Cattolica, a religious and political review, which soon became the organ of the Society of Jesus, and of the Vatican. As the Review upheld the rights of the Pope over kings and emperors, it soon fell under the ban of Ferdinand II., the despotic-king of Naples, and Father Curci was forced to remove it to Rome. But the Civiltà Cattolica still pursuing its course, Ferdinand urged upon Pope Pius IX. the necessity of stopping its publication; and as the Pope was reluctant to take this course, the King threatened to expel the Jesuits from his kingdom if his request was not complied with; whereupon the Review was suppressed, and Curci went to Bologna, but only for a year (1855-56), and on the death of the King (1859) he returned to Rome to continue his work. With the beginning of the national movement in 1850, Father Curci seemed to have somewhat changed his opinions, and to have taken a more liberal direction; and as his associates continued to hold the old anti-national doctrines of the Church, he gradually separated himself from the Review, becoming more reconciled with the progress of the times, so far at least as it involved the reconciliation of the Church with the new Kingdom of Italy. He remains, however, entirely devoted to the interests of the Church; and even when he urges the reconciliation of the papacy with Italy, he does so more as a matter of political necessity than as a moral obligation.

The following are the works of Father Curci:

- La questione romana nell'Assemblea francese, Rome, 1849;
- La demagogia italiana e il Papa, 1849;
- La natura e la grazia, 1865, 2 vols.; Lezioni esegetiche e moralè sopra i quattro Evangelii, dette in Firenze dal 1 Novembre 1873 al 29 Giugno 1874, Florence, 1874-75, 5 vols. [these lectures attracted a good deal of attention, for in them he expressed his progressive views, e.g., he urged the priests to take part in the elections];
- Le virtù domestiche: il libro di Tobia esposto in lezioni, 1877;
- Il moderno dissidio tra la Chiesa e lo Stato, considerato per occasione di un fatto particolare ("The modern dissension between Church and State, examined on the occurrence of a personal affair"), December, 1877 [it escaped being put upon the Index, was widely circulated in original and translation, e.g., in German, Vienna, 1878, and brought the author before the world as an enlightened priest];
- Il Nuovo Testamento volgarizzato ed esposto in note esegetiche e morali, Naples, 1878-90, 3 vols.; La Nuova Italia ed i vecchi zelanti ("The New Italy and the old zealots"), Florence, 1881, German trans., Leipzig, 1882, 2 vols. [in this work, promptly put upon the Index, he attempts to mediate between Church and State in Italy, and to re-organize the parliamentary parties];
- Il Salmastro volgarizzato dall' Ebreo ed esposto in note esegetiche e morali, Rome, 1883;
- Il Vaticano Regio, tarto superstite della Chiesa Cattolica, Florence, 1888;
- Lo scandalò del Vaticano Regio, 1884;
- Di un socialismo cristiano nella questione operaia e nel concerto selvaggio degli stati civili, 1885.

[Advanced in the study of the Scriptures more than any son of his house, he still moves within the narrow limits of Catholic orthodoxy; His mind, logically trained, is more in sympathy with scholastic theology than with modern philosophy. Hence his writings, which are prolix and heavy in style, lack the strength, freshness, and breadth of truly scholarly compositions, and have neither artistic nor scholarly qualities. His biblical works have no originality, but are substantially only repetitions of medieval notions; and his polemical books have only a personal interest, simply expressing a conscientious protest against old abuses in the Church, which neither in strength nor in influence can be compared with the protests of Arnaldo da Brescia, of Savonarola, and in more modern times, of Gioberti or Rosmini. Yet as an example of a noble self-sacrifice, renouncing the favors of a powerful association, and condemning himself to poverty, rather than bend his knee before the idol of vapid temporal authority, Father Curci deserves to be revered by all who hold in honor truth and independence. — V. B.

CURREY, George, D.D. (Cambridge, 1862), Church Historian in London, April 7, 1816; d. there, April 30, 1885. He was educated at St. John's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. ( wrangler and first-class classical tripus) 1838, M.A. 1841, B.D. 1850. He was elected fellow of his college, 1839; appointed lecturer, 1840; tutor, 1844; Whitehall preacher, 1845; preacher at the Charterhouse, 1849-71; Hulsean lecturer, 1851-52; Boyle lecturer, 1851; master of the Charterhouse, London, 1871, until his death; since 1872, prebendary of Brownwood in St. Paul's Cathedral; and since 1877, examining chaplain to the bishop of Rochester. He edited Tertullian's De Spectaculis, de idololatria, et de corona militae, Cambridge, 1854; and prepared the commentary upon Ezekiel in the Bible (Speaker's) Commentary, and that on Ecclesiastes and The Revelation in the S. P. C. K. Commentary.

CURRIE, Albert Henry, D.D. (Bowdoin College, 1883), Congregationalist; b. at Skowhegan, Me., Nov. 15, 1809; graduated from Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1857, and from Andover Theological Seminary, 1862; became pastor of Congregational churches of Ashland (1862) and Lynn, Mass. (1865), and professor of homiletics and pastoral theology in Oberlin Theological Seminary, Oberlin, O., 1868. He contributed to the successive volumes of the Monday Club, Germans upon the International Sunday-school Lessons (Boston), from 1876 to 1882, and articles to The Boston Review, 1865-67.

CURRY, Daniel, D.D. (Wesleyan University, 1852), L.L.D. (Syracuse University, 1878), Methodist; b. near Peekskill, N.Y., Oct. 26, 1809; graduated from Bowdoin College, Me., Nov. 15, 1837; was president of the Indiana Asbury University, Me., 1844; Whitehall preacher, 1845; preacher at the Charterhouse, 1849-71; Hulsean lecturer, 1851-52; Boyle lecturer, 1851; master of the Charterhouse, London, 1871, until his death; since 1872, prebendary of Brownwood in St. Paul's Cathedral; and since 1877, examining chaplain to the bishop of Rochester. He edited Tertullian's De Spectaculis, de idololatria, et de corona militae, Cambridge, 1854; and prepared the commentary upon Ezekiel in the Bible (Speaker's) Commentary, and that on Ecclesiastes and The Revelation in the S. P. C. K. Commentary.

CURRIE, George, D.D. (Cambridge, 1862), Church Historian in London, April 7, 1816; d. there, April 30, 1885. He was educated at St. John's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. ( wrangler and first-class classical tripus) 1838, M.A. 1841, B.D. 1850. He was elected fellow of his college, 1839; appointed lecturer, 1840; tutor, 1844; Whitehall preacher, 1845; preacher at the Charterhouse, 1849-71; Hulsean lecturer, 1851-52; Boyle lecturer, 1851; master of the Charterhouse, London, 1871, until his death; since 1872, prebendary of Brownwood in St. Paul's Cathedral; and since 1877, examining chaplain to the bishop of Rochester. He edited Tertullian's De Spectaculis, de idololatria, et de corona militae, Cambridge, 1854; and prepared the commentary upon Ezekiel in the Bible (Speaker's) Commentary, and that on Ecclesiastes and The Revelation in the S. P. C. K. Commentary.

CURRIE, Albert Henry, D.D. (Bowdoin College, 1883), Congregationalist; b. at Skowhegan, Me., Nov. 15, 1809; graduated from Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1857, and from Andover Theological Seminary, 1862; became pastor of Congregational churches of Ashland (1862) and Lynn, Mass. (1865), and professor of homiletics and pastoral theology in Oberlin Theological Seminary, Oberlin, O., 1868. He contributed to the successive volumes of the Monday Club, Germans upon the International Sunday-school Lessons (Boston), from 1876 to 1882, and articles to The Boston Review, 1865-67.

CURRY, Daniel, D.D. (Wesleyan University, 1852), L.L.D. (Syracuse University, 1878), Methodist; b. near Peekskill, N.Y., Oct. 26, 1809; graduated from the Wesleyan University, 1837; became principal of the Troy Conference Academy, West Poultney, Vt., 1837; professor in the Georgia Female College at Macon, Ga, 1839; member of the Georgia Conference, and pastor at Athens, Savannah, and Columbus, 1841; in similar work in the New-York Conference, 1844; was president of the Indiana Asbury University, Greenscavile, Ind., 1854; member of New-York East Conference, 1857; was editor of the Christian Advocate, 1864-76; of the National Repository, 1876-80; pastor, 1880-84; since 1884 editor of The Metropolitan Advertiser, New York. He has written A Life of Watts (New York, 1846); The Metropolitan City of America, 1852; Life Story of CUYLER.

CURRY, Jabez Lamar Monroe, D.D. (Rochester University, 1871), LL.D. (Mercer University, 1867), Baptist; b. in Lincoln County, Ga., June 5, 1825; graduated from the University of Georgia, 1843, and the Harvard Law School, Mass., 1845; was representative in Alabama legislature, 1817–25, 1855–56; Buchanan elector, 1856; member of 35th and 36th United-States Congress, and of the Confederate Congress; president of Howard College, Alabama, 1866–68; professor of English and mental philosophy in Richmond College, Va., 1868–81; general agent of Peabody Education Fund, 1881–85. In October, 1885, he was appointed by President Cleveland, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States of America to Spain. He never has accepted a pastoral charge, although he has been ordained, and has preached frequently. He has issued numerous addresses on political, educational, literary, and religious topics; and one on the Evils of a Union of Church and State, before the General Conference of the Evangelical Alliance in New-York City, 1873 (cf. Proceedings, pp. 544 sqq.).

Curtis, Edward Lewis, A.B., Presbyterian; b. at Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 13, 1853; graduated at Yale College, 1874, and at the Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1879; was appointed fellow of the seminary; spent two years in study abroad, chiefly at Berlin; in 1881 was appointed instructor, and in 1884 associate professor of Old-Testament literature, in the Presbyterian Seminary of the North-West, Chicago, Ill.

Curtiss, Samuel Ives, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1870), Lic. Theol. (hon., Berlin, 1878), D.D. (Iowa College, 1873, Amherst, 1881), Congregationalist; b. at Union, Conn., Feb. 5, 1844; graduated at Amherst College, 1867, and at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1870; was pastor of the Alexander Mission, King Street, New York, connected with the Fifth-avenue Presbyterian Church, 1870–72; and of the American Chapel, Leipzig, 1874–78. In 1872 he went to Germany, studied nine months in Bonn (1872–73), and then at Leipzig (1873–78), and received private instruction from Prof. Franz Delitzsch (four years) and Dr. J. H. R. Biesenthal. From 1878–79 he was New-England professor of biblical literature in Chicago (Congregational) Theological Seminary, and since 1879 has been New-England professor of Old-Testament literature and interpretation. He is the translator of Bickell's Outlines of Hebrew Grammar, Leipzig, 1877; and of Delitzsch's Messianic Prophecies, Edinburgh, 1880, and Old-Testament History of Redemption, 1881; and author of The Name Most Holy, Leipzig, 1878 (his doctor's thesis); The Lexical Priest, Edinburgh, 1877; De Aaronitci sacerdotii aliqu thore Elohistice origine, Leipzig, 1878 (his licentiate thesis); Ingersoll and Moses, Chicago, 1879; and of contributions to Current Discussions in Theology, 1883 sqq. and in periodicals. He is associate editor of the Bibliotheca Sacra.

CUYLIER, Theodore Ledyard, D.D. (Princeton, 1866), Presbyterian; b. at Aurora, Cayuga County, N.Y., Jan. 10, 1822; graduated at the College of New Jersey, 1841, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1846; became stated supply at Burlington, N.J., 1846; pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Trenton, 1849; of the Market-street Reformed Church, New-York City, 1853; and of the Lafayette-avenue Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1860. His church reported in 1885 a membership of 2,012. He has contributed 2,700 articles to leading religious papers of America and Europe, and been active in temperance work. He is the author of Stray Arrows, New York, 1852, new ed. 1880; The Cedar Christian, 1858, new ed. 1881; The Empty Crib: A Memorial, 1868; Heart Life, 1871; Thought Hives, 1872; Pointed Papers for the Christian Life, 1879; From the Nile to Norway, 1881; God's Light on Dark Clouds, 1882; Wayside Springs from the Fountain of Life, 1883; Right to the Point, 1884; Lafayette-avenue Church, 1886 (exercises connected with the celebration of the 25th anniversary of his pastorate, April 6 and 8, 1886).
DABNEY, Robert Lewis, D.D. (Hampden-Sidney College, 1853), LL.D. (do., 1872), Presbyterian (Southern); b. in Louisa County, Va., March 5, 1820; after studying in Hampden-Sidney College, Va., to the beginning of senior year, he entered the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, took the whole M.A. course, then the full theological course in Union Theological Seminary, Va., and graduated in 1840; became missionary in Virginia, 1848; pastor of Tinkling-Spring Church, Augusta County, Va., 1847; professor of church history in the Union Theological Seminary, Va., 1853, and of theology in the same institution, 1859; professor of philosophy, mental, moral, and political, in the State University of Texas, Austin, 1883 (his health requiring a milder climate). From 1858 till 1874 he was co-pastor of the Hampden-Sidney College Church. In 1891 he was a chaplain in the Confederate army, with the Virginia troops; in 1862, chief of staff of the Second Corps under Gen. T. J. Jackson. In 1870 he was moderator of the Southern General Assembly. He has published Memoir of Dr. F. S. Sampson, Richmond, 1854; Life of Gen. Thomas J. Jackson, New York, 1860; Defence of Religion and Society, 1867; Treatise on Sacred Rhetoric, Richmond, 1870, 3d ed. 1881; Sensational Philosophy of the Nineteenth Century examined, New York, 1875; Theology, Dogmatic and Polemic, Richmond, 1874, 3d ed. 1885.

DALE, Robert William, D.D. (Yale, 1877), LL.D. (Glasgow, 1883), Congregationalist; b. in London, Dec. 1, 1829; educated at Spring Hill College, Birmingham (1847-53), graduated M.A. (with gold medal) at the University of London, 1853; and in June of that year was ordained and installed as co-pastor with John Angell James of the Carr's-lane (Congregational) Church, Birmingham, and since Mr. James's death in 1859 sole pastor. In 1869 he was chairman of the Congregational Union of England and Wales. In 1877 he was lecturer at Yale Seminary on the Lyman Beecher foundation. He is governor of King Edward VI.'s School, Birmingham, on appointment of the Senate of the University of London. He takes an active part in religious, political (radical), and educational matters. As for his theology, he is in "general agreement with evangelical theologians, but claims freedom in relation to inspiration of the Scriptures, and differs widely from the traditional evangelical school in principles of criticism and exegesis." His views are most fully set forth in his Epistle to the Ephesians. He assigns a fundamental position to the relations of the human race to the Eternal Son of God, in whom the race was created. Only by the free consent of the individual man to God's eternal election of him in Christ can he actually realize union with God and the possession of eternal life. The potency of immortality is in the race, and all men survive death and will be judged; but that only those who consent to find the root of their life in Christ will live forever: the rest of the race will sooner or later cease to exist." Besides many articles of importance, addresses separately published, and an edition of Reuss's History of Christian Theology in the Apostolic Age (translated by Annie Harwood, London, 1872-74, 3 vols.), he has issued Life and Letters of the Rev. J. A. James, London, 1861, 5th ed. 1862; The Jewish Temple and the Christian Church, 1855. 7th ed. 1886; Discourses delivered on Special Occasions, 1866; Week-day Sermons, 1867, 4th ed. 1883; The Ten Commandments, 1871, 5th ed. 1885; Protestantism: its Ultimate Principles, 1874, 2d ed. 1875; The Atonement (the Congregational Union lecture for 1875), 1875, 9th ed. 1883 (German trans. from 7th ed., Gotha, 1880, also French trans. and New-York reprint); Nine Lectures on Preaching (Lyman Beecher lectures, referred to above), 1877, 5th ed. 1886; The Evangelical Revival, and other Sermons, 1889, 2d ed. 1881; Epistle to the Ephesians: its Doctrine and Ethics, 1882, 3d ed. 1884; The Laws of Christ for Common Life, 1884, 2d ed. 1885; Manual of Congregational Principles, 1884. He edited The English Hymn-book, Birmingham, 1875, containing 1,290 hymns. For a time he was joint editor of The Eclectic Review, and for seven years sole editor of The Congregationalist.

DALES, John Blakely, D.D. (Franklin College, O., 1853), United Presbyterian; b. at Kortright, Delaware County, N.Y., Aug. 6, 1815; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1835, and at the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Newburgh, N.Y., 1839; has been pastor of the First Associate Reformed (now Second United) Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, Penn., since June 4, 1840, and held the following positions: editor in part of Christian Instructor (1840-79); professor of church history and pastoral theology in Newburgh Theological Seminary (1857-76); moderator of the General Assembly (1867); recording secretary of the Presbyterian Historical Society (Philadelphia) since 1853; corresponding secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the United Presbyterian Church, since its organization in 1859; stated clerk of the United Presbyterian Synod of New York since 1863. He is the author of Roman Catholicism, Philadelphia, 1842; Introduction to Lectures on Odd Fellowship, 1851; The Dangers and Duties of Young Men, 1857; History of the Associate Reformed Church and its Missions (in the Church Memorial), Xenia, O., 1859; A Memorial Discourse on the fortieth anniversary of his pastorate, Philadelphia, 1882; a Church Manual, 1884.

DALTON, Hermann, D.D. (кон., Marburg, 1888), German Reformed; b. at Offenbach, near Frankfurt-am-Main, Aug. 20, 1858 (his father was an Englishman); studied at the universities of Marburg, Berlin, and Heidelberg, 1858-56; has been since 1858 pastor of the German Reformed Church in St. Petersburg, Russia, and member of the ecclesiastical council of the Reformed Church.
DAVIDSON. Andrew Bruce, D.D., Free Church of Scotland; b. in Scotland about 1849; received a university education; was ordained in 1863, and the same year was appointed professor of Hebrew and Old-Testament exegesis in New College, Edinburgh, which position he still holds. He was a member of the Old-Testament Company of Revisers. He is the author of A Commentary on Job, Edinburgh, vol. 1, 1862; An Introductory Hebrew Grammar, 1874, 4th ed. 1881; The Epistle to the Hebrews, with Introduction and Notes, 1882 (in Clark's Handbooks for Bible Classes); Job, Cambridge, 1884 (in Cambridge Bible for Schools, edited by Dean Perowne).

DAVIDSON, Very Rev. Randall Thomas, dean of Windsor, Church of England; b. in Scotland in the year 1818; educated at Trinity College, Oxford; graduated B.A., 1871, M.A. 1875; ordained deacon 1874, priest 1875; was curate of Dartford, Kent, 1874-77; resident chaplain to Archbishop of Canterbury (both Tait and Benson), 1877-83; examining chaplain to the bishop of Durham, 1881-83; sub-almoner and honorary chaplain to the Queen, 1882; one of the six preachers of Canterbury Cathedral; appointed dean. 1883; Queen's domestic chaplain, 1883.

tion on the Criticism, Translation, and Interpretation of the Book, 1875, 2d ed. 1876; (14) The Canon of the Bible, 1876, 3d ed. 1880; (15) The Doctrine of Last Things contained in the New Testament, compared with the Notions of the Jews and the Statements of the Church Creeds, 1882.

DAVIES, John Llewelyn, Church of England; b. at Chichester, Feb. 26, 1826; educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (senior optime and fifth in first-class classical tripos) 1848, M.A. 1851; elected fellow of his college in 1850; was ordained deacon 1851, priest 1852; from 1853 till 1856, incumbent of St. Mark's, Whitechapel, and since has been rector of Christ Church, Marylebone, London. In 1881 he was appointed a chaplain in ordinary to the Queen, and select preacher at Oxford, and the next year rural dean of St. Marylebone. He was a contributor to Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, and to Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography. Besides five volumes of sermons, he has published (with Rev. D. J. Vaughan) a translation of Plato's Republic, London, 3d ed. 1866; The Epistles to the Ephesians, Colossians, and Philemon, with Introduction and Notes, and an Essay on the Traces of Foreign Elements in the Theology of these Epistles, London, 1866, 2d ed. 1884; Theology and Morality, 1873; Social Questions from the Point of View of Christian Theology, 1885.

DAVIS, Peter Selbert, D.D. (Franklin and Marshall College, Penn., 1874), Reformed (German); b. at Funkstown, Md., March 21, 1828; graduated at Marshall College, Mercersburg, 1849; studied in Mercersburg Seminary, and at Princeton; became pastor at Winchester, Va., 1853; teacher at Mount Washington College, 1857; pastor at Norristown, Penn., 1858, and at Chambersburg, Penn., 1859; editor of The Messenger (official organ of the Reformed Church), Philadelphia, 1875. He is the author of The Young Parson, Philadelphia, 1862, 7th ed. 1885, and of review and magazine articles.

DAWSON, Sir John William, G.H.T. (i.e., Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George), M.A. (Edinburgh, 1856), LL.D. (McGill 1857, and Edinburgh 1884); F.R.S. (1882), F.G.S. (1854), etc., Presbyterian layman; b. at Picton, Nova Scotia, Oct. 13, 1820; studied at the College of Picton, and at the University of Edinburgh, finishing in 1846; became superintendent of education for Nova Scotia, 1851; principal, and professor of geology, McGill University, 1855. In 1851 he received the Lyell medal of the Geological Society of London for eminent geological discoveries; in 1852 was the first president of the Royal Society of Canada; in 1859, president of the American Association; in 1868 travelled in Egypt and Syria; in 1848 was knighted; in 1855 was president-elect of the British Association for 1868. He became corresponding of the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences, 1846; fellow of Boston Academy Arts and Sciences 1860, of Philadelphia American Philosophical Society 1892; honorary member British Association for the Advancement of Science 1867, and of the New-York Academy of Sciences 1876. He is the author of Acadia Geology, London, 1855, 3d ed. 1888; Archaia, or Studies of Creation in the Bible, 1860; Story of the Earth and Man, 1873; Nature and the Bible (Morse lectures before Union Theological Seminary, New-York City), 1875; Dawn of Life, 1875; Origin of the World, 1877, 4th ed. 1886; Fossil Man, 1880; Chain of Life in Geological Time, 1883; Egypt and Syria, Physical Features in Relation to the Bible, 1866; besides many scientific memoirs in proceedings of societies, etc.

DAY, George Edward, D.D. (Marietta College, 1850), Congregationalist; b. at Pittsfield, Mass., March 10, 1815; graduated at Yale College 1833; was instructor two years in the New-York Institution for the Deaf and Dumb; graduated at the Yale Divinity School 1858, in which he was assistant instructor in sacred literature from 1832 to 1840. For the next ten years he was a Congregational pastor, first in Marlborough, and then Northampton, Mass. From 1851 to 1866 he was professor of biblical literature in Lane (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O.; and since then has been professor of the Hebrew language and biblical theology in the Yale Divinity School (Congregational), New Haven, Conn.; was secretary, from its organization, of the American Bible Revision Committee, in which he served as a member of the Old-Testament Company. He published two extended reports of his personal examination of the condition of deaf-mute instruction in Europe, especially in regard to mechanical articulation, 1845 and 1861; established and edited The Theological Eclectic, a repertory of foreign theological literature, 1863-70, for which he translated from the Dutch, and also published separately, Van Oosterzee's Biblical Theology of the New Testament, 1871. He also translated, with additions, Van Oosterzee on Titus, for Dr. Schaff's edition of Lange's Commentary, New York; and edited the American issue of Oehler's Biblical Theology of the Old Testament, with an introduction and additional notes, 1883.

DAY, Right Rev. Maurice Fitzgerald, D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1867), Lord Bishop of Cashel, Emly, Waterford, and Lismore, Church of Ireland; b. at Killullagh, County Kerry, Ireland, in the year 1816; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; graduated B.A. 1838, M.A. 1855, B.D. 1867; was vicar of St. Matthias, Dublin, 1845-68; dean of Limerick, 1868-72; prebendary of G slainee in Cashel Cathedral since 1872; consecrated bishop, 1872. He is the author of The Gospel at Philippi: Sermons preached in St. Matthias Church, Dublin, 1865, 3d ed. 1876; The Church: Sermons preached in Limerick Cathedral, 1870.

DEANE, Henry, Church of England; b. at Gillingham, Dorset, July 27, 1838; was scholar of Winchester College, 1851; fellow of St. John's College, Oxford, 1856; graduated B.A. (first-class mathematics) 1860, M.A. 1864, B.D. 1869; was ordained deacon 1869, priest 1869; was curate of St. Thomas, Salisbury, 1863-67; of St. Giles, Oxford, 1867-74; mathematical public examiner at Oxford 1868-69, theological 1873-74; senior proctor of the university, 1870-71; vicar of St. Giles, Oxford, since 1874; since 1874 has been assistant lecturer to the regius professor of Hebrew; has been professor of history and literature at the Wadham College; and since 1885, examiner in theology at the University of Durham. He is a fellow of the Society of Antiquaries. He edited the third book of Ireneus, Oxford, 1874; contrib-DEANE, William John, Church of England; b. at Lymington, Hants, Oct. 6, 1823; educated at Oriel College, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1847, M.A. 1872; was ordained deacon 1847, priest 1849; was curate of Rugby 1847–49, of Wyck-Ryssington 1849–52; rector of South Tobsrey, Lincolnshire, 1852–53; and since 1853 has been rector of Ashen, Essex. Besides various articles, he has published Catechism of the Holy Days, London, 1850, 3d ed. 1856; Lyras Sanctorum, Lays for the Minor Festivals of the English Church, 1850; Manual of Household Prayer, 1857; Proper Lessons from the Old Testament, with a Plain Commentary, 1864; The Book of Wisdom, with Introduction, Critical Apparatus, and Commentary, Oxford, 1881.

DE COSTA, Benjamin Franklin, D.D. (William and Mary College, 1881), Episcopalian; b. at Charlestown, Mass., July 10, 1831; graduated at Wilbraham Seminary and Biblical Institute, Concord, N.H. (now part of Boston University), 1856; studied and travelled three years on the Continent; was rector in Massachusetts; chaplain of the 5th and 18th Mass. Vol. Infantry, 1861–62; became rector of St. John Evangelist's, New York City, 1880. He edited The Christian Times, 1863, and The Magazine of American History, 1882–83, both published in New-York City. He was first secretary of the Church Temperance Society, 1881; inaugurated the White Cross movement, 1884; and belongs to many learned societies at home and abroad. He is a quite voluminous author, mostly in American history. Among his publications in book form may be mentioned Pre-Columbian Discovery of America by the Northmen, Albany, 1889; The Mound Stone, New York, 1870; The Rabbit Stone, 1847 (a novel under name de plume of William Hickling), 1873; edited White's *Memoirs of the Protestant-Episcopal Church, 1881; contributed to Bishop Perry's History of the American Episcopal Church 1857–1883, Boston, 1885, 2 vols.; and to The Narrative and Critical History of America, 1886, 2 vols.

DEENS, Charles Force, D.D. (Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va., 1850), L.L.D. (University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, 1877); b. at Baltimore, Md., Dec. 4, 1820; graduated from Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1839; entered the ministry of the Methodist Church (South); was general agent of the American Bible Society for North Carolina, 1840–41; professor of logic and rhetoric in the University of North Carolina, 1842–45; and of chemistry in Randolph-Macon College, Va., 1845–46; president of Greensborough Female College, 1850–55; and since 1866 pastor of the Church of the Strangers, an Independent congregation, in New-York City. He edited The Southern Methodist-Episcopal Pulpit from 1846–51, and The Annals of Southern Methodism, 1849–52; The Sunday Magazine, published by Frank Leslie, 1876–79; and since 1883 Christian Thought, the organ of the American Institute of Christian Philosophy, of which he was principal founder, and has been from the beginning (1881) president. He has published Triumph of Peace, and other Poems, New York, 1840; Life of Adam Clarke, LL.D., 1840; Devotional Melodies, Raleigh, N. C., 1842; Twelve College Sermons, Philadelphia, 1844; The Home Altar, New York, 1850, 3d ed. 1881; What Now? New York, 1853; Hymns for all Christians, 1869, new ed. 1881; Forty Sermons preached in the Church of the Strangers, 1871; Jesus, 1872, new ed. (with title, The Light of the Nations), 1880; Weights and Wings, 1872, new ed. 1878; Sermons, 1885.

DE HOOP SCHEFFER.—See HOOP SCHEFFER.

DELITZSCH, Franz, D.D., German Lutheran theologian; b. at Leipzig, Feb. 23, 1813 (of Hebrew descent); studied there, took degree of Ph.D., and became privat-docent; went thence as ordinary professor to Rostock 1846, thence to Erlangen 1850, and back to Leipzig in 1867, and has since been of that faculty. By reason of his prominent attainments in biblical and post-biblical Hebrew, he has been styled "the Christian Talmudist." His writings are of great value, especially his commentaries. — Der Prophet Habakuk, Leipzig, 1843; in the Keil and Delitzsch series, Job, 1864, 2d ed. 1876 (English trans., Edinburgh, 1866, 2 vols.); Die Psalmen, 1869, 3d ed. 1874 (English trans. 1871, 3 vols.); Das Salomonische Sprachbuch, 1879 (English trans., 1875, 2 vols.); Hobel und Kohlent, 1875 (English trans. 1877); Jesaja, 1866, 3d ed. 1879 (English trans. 1867, 2 vols.); independently, Genesis, 1852, 4th ed. 1872; Hebræus, 1857 (English trans. 1870, 2 vols.). His other publications include *Zur Gesch. d. jüd. Poesie v. Abschuss d. A. B. bis auf die neueste Zeit, 1836; Jesuvers v. Prophetenmen in Concordiavias V. T. a Fuersta, Grimma, 1838; Anekdota zur Geschichte der mittelalterlichen Scholastik unter Juden und Mosulmen, Leipzig, 1841; Das Sacrament des wahren Leibes und Blutes Jesu Christi, Dresden, 1844, 7th ed. Leipzig, 1886; Die bibelprophetische Theologie, Leipzig, 1843; Vier Bücher von der Kirche, 1845, 2d ed. 1872, 3d ed. 1879; Handwerkerleben: zur Zeit des Jesus, 1868, 3d ed. 1878 (English trans. of the two, by Mrs. P. Monkhouse, Jewish Artisan Life in the Time of our Lord: to which is appended a critical comparison between Jesus and Hillel, London, 1877, and of the Artisan Life alone, from 3d ed. by Croll, Philadelphia, 1883, and by Pick, New York, 1893; Sehet welch ein Mensch! Leipzig, 1869, 2d ed. 1872; System der christlichen Apologetik, 1869; Paulus des Apostels Brief an die Römer aus der griech. ins Hebr. übersetzt u. aus d. Talmud u. Midrasch erläutert, 1870; Ein Tag in Capernaum, 1871; Complementische Varianten zum A.T. Texte, 1878; Rohlings Talmudjude beleuchtet, 1881 (7th ed. same year); Was D. Aug. Rohling beschoren hat und beschworen wir, 1883 (2d ed. same year); Schachmatt, den Blutlügen Rohling u. Justus entbieten, Erlangen, 1883; Die Bibel und der Wein, Leipzig, 1885 (pp. 18), cf. Expositor, January, 1886. In connection with S. Bauer, he has issued a Hebrew text of Genesis, Ezra, Nehemiah, Job, the Psalms, Proverbs, Isaiah, Ezekiel, Daniel, and the minor texts of Numbers, Deuteronomy, Leviticus. He was first secretary of the Church Temperance Society in 1841, and by Pick, New York, 1893; Sehet welch ein Mensch! Leipzig, 1869, 2d ed. 1872; System der christlichen Apologetik, 1869; Paulus des Apostels Brief an die Römer aus der griech. ins Hebr. übersetzt u. aus d. Talmud u. Midrasch erläutert, 1870; Ein Tag in Capernaum, 1871; Complementische Varianten zum A.T. Texte, 1878; Rohlings Talmudjude beleuchtet, 1881 (7th ed. same year); Was D. Aug. Rohling beschoren hat und beschworen wir, 1883 (2d ed. same year); Schachmatt, den Blutlügen Rohling u. Justus entbieten, Erlangen, 1883; Die Bibel und der Wein, Leipzig, 1885 (pp. 18), cf. Expositor, January, 1886. In connection with S. Bauer, he has issued a Hebrew text of Genesis, Ezra, Nehemiah, Job, the Psalms, Proverbs, Isaiah, Ezekiel, Daniel, and the minor prophets, and in the same institution, 1879-1885. He is the author of "Assyrische Studien, Leipzig, 1874; Assyrische Lexicostücke, 1878; Wo lag das Paradies? 1881; The Hebrew Language viewed in the Light of Assyrian Research, London, 1883; Die Sprache der Kosotte, 1884; Studien über indogermanisch-semitsche Wurzeln und Verwandtschaft, 1884."

DEMAREST, David D., D.D. (College of New Jersey, 1857), Reformed (Dutch); b. in Harrington township, Bergen County, N.J., July 30, 1819; graduated from Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1837, and from the Reformed Dutch Theological Seminary there, 1840; became pastor of the Reformed Dutch Church of Flatbush, Ulster County, N.Y., 1841; (the Second) of New Brunswick, N.J., 1843; of Hudson, N.Y., 1852; professor of pastoral theology and sacred rhetoric in the Theological Seminary of New Brunswick, 1855. He has published, besides occasional addresses, "History and Characteristics of the Reformed Dutch Churches of New Jersey, 1856, 3d ed. n. d.; Practical Catechetics, 1882."

DEMAREST, John Terheun, D.D. (Rutgers College, N.J., 1851), Reformed (Dutch); b. at Teaneck, near Hackensack, N.J., Feb. 20, 1813; graduated at Rutgers College 1849, and at the New Brunswick Theological Seminary 1857; was pastor at New Prospect, N.Y., 1837-49, 1869-71, 1873-85 (emeritus, April 21, 1885); at Minisink, N.Y., 1850-52; at Pascack, N.J., 1854-67; principal of Harrisburg Academy, 1852-64. He is a Calvinistic premillenarian. He has written "Exposition of the Efficient Cause of Regeneration, the Duty and Reward of the Cross, the Doctrine of Election, New Brunswick, N.J., 1842; Translation and Exposition of the First Epistle of Peter, New York, 1851; Commentary on the Second Epistle of Peter, 1862; (with W. R. Gordon) Christocracy, or Essays on the Coming and Kingdom of Christ, with Answers to the Principal Objections of Post-Millarians, 1867, 2d ed. 1878; A Commentary on the Catholic Epistles, 1879."

DENIO, Francis Brigham, Congregationalist; b. at Enosburg, Franklin County, Vt., May 4, 1848; graduated at Middlebury College, Vt., 1871, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1875; became instructor in New Testament Greek in Bangor Theological Seminary, Me., 1879, and professor of Old-Testament language and literature in the same institution, 1882.

DENISON, Ven. George Anthony, archdeacon of Taunton, Church of England; b. at Ossington, Nottinghamshire, Eng., Dec. 11, 1853; educated at Christ Church, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first class in classics) 1879; M.A., fellow of Oriel, and Latin essayist (University prize), 1879; English essayist (do.), 1829; was ordained deacon and priest, 1832; from 1832 till 1838 was curate to the bishop of Oxford; in the latter year he resigned his appointment as lecturer of Broadwater, Dorset, and so remained until 1845, when he became vicar of East Brent, and also examining chaplain to the bishop of Bath and Wells, who in 1851 made him archdeacon of Taunton, and these two positions he held ever since. The archdeacon is an "English Catholic," or, as such are commonly called, an "ultra High Churchman." From 1859 to 1870 he was prominent as a Church champion in the school controversy as between the Church of England and the civil power, which resulted in the Elementary Education Act, the final and decisive victory of the latter; was from 1854 to 1858 publicly prosecuted for maintaining the real presence, but the prosecution ultimately failed. His publications consist of a large number of pamphlets, sermons, charges, letters, etc., and the following volumes: "Proceedings against the Archdeacon of Taunton, London, 1854, 1855, 1856; Defence of the Archdeacon of Taunton, London, 1856; Final Paper put in in Defence, October, 1856; Church Rate a National Trust, 1861; Notes of my Life, 1865-78, 1878, 3d ed. 1879. He translated from the manuscript in the British Museum Saravias on the Holy Eucharist, 1855.

DENTON, William, Church of England; b. at Carisbrook, Isle of Wight, March 1, 1815; educated at Worcester College, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1844, M.A. 1848; was ordained deacon 1844, priest 1845; curate from 1844-50, and since 1850 vicar of St. Bartholomew, Cripplegate, London. His writings upon the condition of the Christian people of Servia and Montenegro, the result of personal investigations, won him the recognition of the Servian king, who gave him the grand cross of the Order of St. Saba (Servia), and cross of the Saviour of Tokara (Servia). He has published "Commentary on the Sunday and Saints'-Day Gospels in the Communion Office, London, 1861-63, 3 vols., 3d ed. 1875-80; Servia and the Servians, 1862; The Christians under Mussulman Rule, 1863, 3d ed. 1877; Commentary on the Lord's Prayer, 1864; Commentary on the Sunday and Saints'-Day Psalms in the Communion Office, New Brunswick, N.J., 1842; Translation and Exposition of the First Epistle of Peter, New York, 1851; Commentary on the Second Epistle of Peter, 1862; (with W. R. Gordon) Christocracy, or Essays on the Coming and Kingdom of Christ, with Answers to the Principal Objections of Post-Millarians, 1867, 2d ed. 1878; A Commentary on the Catholic Epistles, 1879."

DE PUY, William Harrison, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1889), LL.D. (Mount Union College, Ohio, 1884), Methodist; b. at Penn Yan, N.Y., Oct. 31, 1821; graduated at Genesee College, Lima, N.Y.; taught in several institutions; was professor of mathematics and natural philosophy in Genesee Wesleyan Seminary 1851-53, being before and after a pastor; was associate editor of "The Christian Advocate," New York, 1865-84. He edits "The Methodist Year Book," and has published "Three score and Ten Years, or Beyond, or Experiences of the Aged, New York, 1872; and the valuable "Methodist Centennial Year Book," 1878-83, 1884. He is also the author of "Home and Health and Home Economics," 1880 (170,000 copies sold up to 1880); editor of "The People's Cyclopedia of Universal Knowledge, 3 vols., super royal 8vo, 1882 (100,000 sets sold up to 1886); and "The People's Atlas of the World, 1886."

DE SCHWEINITZ. See Schweinitz.

DEUTSCH, Samuel Martin, Lic. Theol. (Jena, 1866), United Evangelical; b. at Warsaw, Feb. 19, 1837; studied at Erlangen 1854-56, Rostock
DE WITT, John, D.D. (Princeton, 1877), Presbyterian; b. at Harrisburg, Penn., Oct. 10, 1842; graduated at the College of New Jersey, 1861; studied at Princeton and Union Theological Seminaries, 1861-53; became pastor of Presbyterian Church, Irvington, N.Y., 1865; of Congregational Central Church, Boston, 1869; of Tenth Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, 1870; professor of church history in Lane Theological Seminary (Presbyterian), Cincinnati, O., 1882. He is the author of Sermons on the Christian Life, New York, 1885.

DE WITT, John, D.D. (Rutgers College, 1860), LL.D. (Edinburgh, 1885), Church of Scotland; b. at Pettinain Manse, Lanarkshire, Scotland, Oct. 22, 1823; graduated at the University of St. Andrew's, 1843; became minister of the parish of Cameron, Fife, 1841; professor in the University of Glasgow, of biblical criticism 1863, and of divinity 1873. Since 1874 he has been convener of the Education Committee of the Church of Scotland, having charge of the training colleges in Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Aberdeen; and since 1866 the curator of the university library of Glasgow and subsequent to the preparation of the new printed catalogue, of which the alphabetic form was completed in 1885, in twenty volumes, and of the seventeen volumes of the subject catalogue already issued. Besides various articles in Fairbairn's Imperial Bible Dictionary, Smith's Dictionary of Christian Biography, The Academy, The Expositor, etc., he has published a translation of Mommsen's History of Rome, London, 1862-66, 4 vols., revised ed. 1868; and of Meyer's Commentary on the New Testament, Edinburgh, 1873-80, 10 vols. (of which ten were revised by him throughout); St. Paul's Use of the Terms Flesh and Spirit (laid lecture for 1883), Glasgow, 1883.

DIECKHOFF, August Wilhelm, Lic. Theol. (Göttingen, 1850), D.D. (flon., Greifswald, 1856), a strict Lutheran theologian; b. at Göttingen, Germany, Feb. 5, 1823; studied at Göttingen, where he became ordinary professor of theology, 1854; since 1869 he has held the same position, together with the directorship of the monastical and catechetical seminar at Rostock; since 1882 he was Consistorial-Rath. From 1860 to 1864 he edited (with Kliefeth) the Theolog. Zeitschrift; in Berlin, 1864, he issued Dievertici's Institutionen.
DIKE.

Samuel Fuller, D.D. (Bowdoin, 1872), Swedenborgian; b. at North Bridgewater (now Brockton), Mass., March 17, 1815; graduated at Brown University, Rhode Island, 1838; has been pastor of the Society of the New Jerusalem, Bath, Me., since 1840; is teacher of church history in the Theological School of the General Convention of the New Church, Boston, and has always taken a prominent part in Maine educational interests. He has published Doctrine of the Lord in the Primitive Christian Church, Boston, 1870, and various occasional and fugitive pieces.

DIKE, Samuel Warren, Congregationalist; b. at Thompson, Conn., Feb. 13, 1839; graduated at Williams College 1863, and at Andover 1868; was pastor of the Congregational churches at West Randolph (1869-77) and at Royalton, Vt. (1889-93); since 1891 secretary first of the New England, and then of the New England and New York Divorce Reform League. He lectured at Andover Theological Seminary in 1883, upon the family and social problems. He is the author of Some Aspects of the Divorce Question, in The Andover Review, 1884-85; The Family in the History of Christianity, N. Y. 1885; and in charge of the department of "Sociological Notes" in the Andover Review, 1886 sqq.

DILLMANN (Christian Friedrich) August, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1840), D.D. (Heidelberg, 1862), Evangelical Lutheran, of the Evangelical Church of the Reformation; born at Berlin, April 25, 1823; studied in the seminary at Schénthal, 1836-40; at Tübingen, 1840-45; was assistant pastor at Sersheim, Württemberg, 1845-46; travelled and studied, especially in Paris, London, and Oxford, 1846-48; became repetit (i.e., tutor for three years) at Tübingen, 1848; privaat-dozent for the New Testament express in theological faculty, 1852; professor extraordinary of theology, 1853; professor of the Oriental languages in the philosophical faculty at Kiel, 1854; professor of theology at Giessen, 1864; and at Berlin, 1869. He has published Catalogus codicum orientalium MSS. qui in Museo Britannico asserantur. P. III. Codices Ethiopici amplex., London, 1847; Catalogus codicum manuscriptorum Bibliotheca Bodleianae Oxoniensis. P. VII. Codices Ethiopiai, digessit A. Dillmann, Oxford, 1848; Liber Henoch, Ethiopice, Leipzig, 1851; Das Buch Henoch übersetzt u. erklärt, 1853; Das christliche Abendmahl-Lehre der Grundlagen von den Ethnischen (repr. from Paulus's Nachruhärger). 1858; Biblia Vetus Testamenti Ethiopicorum, Thomas 1 Octateuch. Fasc. 1, Genesis, Exod. Leibnitz's commentary; Fasc. 2, Numeri et Deuteronomium (1854). Fasc. 3, Josua, Juditum et Ruth (1855). Tomus II. Fasc. 1 et 2, Libri Regum (1856 and 1871); Grammatik der ethiopischen Sprache, 1857; Liber Jubileorum, Ethiopicorum, 1859; Lexicon linguae Ethiopicae, 1863; Christomathia Ethiopicae cum glossario, 1866; Erklärung des B. Hioh (1899). Genesis (1875, 3d ed. 1886), Exodus u. Levitıcus (1890), and Numeri, Deuteronomium u. Josua (1866)—these commentaries are all in the Kurzgefassten exegetischen Handbuch series; ascensiono Isaacu, Ethiopicae et Latine, 1877; Verzeichniss d. abessinischen Hdschr. d. k. Bibliothek zu Berlin, Berlin, 1878; Verhandlungen des V. ten internationalen Orientalisten Congresses in Berlin, 1881; Das Buch der Jubilei oder die kleine Genesis, aus dem Aethiopsischen übersetzt (in Ewald's Jahrbücher der bibl. Wissenschaft, Göttingen, 1849-51); numerous articles, academical addresses, etc.

DITTRICH, Franz, D.D. (Munich, 1865), Roman Catholic; b. at Thegsten near Heilsberg, East Prussia, Jan. 26, 1839; studied philosophy and theology at Braunschwig; became priest, 1869; continued his theological studies at Rome and Munich; became private-dozent at Braunschwig 1866; professor extraordinary 1868, ordinary professor of theology 1873. He is the author of Dionysius der Grosse von Alexandrien, Freiburg-in-Breisgau, 1867.

DIX, Morgan, S.T.D. (Columbia, 1862), D.C.L. (University of the South, 1885), Episcopalian; b. in New-York City, Nov. 1, 1827; graduated at Columbia College, N.Y., 1848, and at the General Theological Seminary, 1852; became assistant minister of St. Mark's Church, Philadelphia, 1853, and of Trinity Church, New York, 1855; has been a member of the Church of the Reform League. He is president of the Standing Committee of the Diocese of New York; deputy to General Convention; trustee (ex officio) of Sailors' Snug Harbor, and of Leake and Watts Orphan House, and president of the board; trustee of General Theological Seminary (and chairman of Standing Committee) of Columbia College, of the Society.
for promoting Religion and Learning, of House of Mercy, Church Orphan Home, Home for Incurables, St. Stephen's College (Amandelle, N.Y.), Hobart College (Geneva, N.Y.), Corporation for Relief of Widows and Orphans of Clergymen, Home for Old Men and Aged Couples; vice-president of N. Y. P. E. Public School; executor of different estates and two private trusts, etc. He has published, besides many single sermons, lectures, and articles, Manual of the Christian Life, New York, 1864; 2 vols. Second Peak Prize Essay on the Maintenance of the Church of England as an Established Church, 1873; The Parables of our Lord, 1st series 1881, 2d ed. 1884, 2d series 1885. He edited the En-English translation of Lange's Life of Christ, Edinburgh, 1864; 8 vols., and of Augustin's works, 1872-76; and Clark's series of Handbooks for Bible Classes, 1879 sqq.; contributed translation of Justin Martyr's Apologies, and other portions of Greek writers, to Clark's Anti-Nicene Christian Library, and the articles Pelagius and Predestina-tion to the 9th ed. Encyclopædia Britannica.

DOEDES, Jacobus Isaäc, D.D. (Utrecht, 1841), Reformed; b. at Langemark, Zuid Holland, Nederlnds, Nov. 20, 1817; educated at the Latin school of Amsterdam, 1839-45; thence to the University of Utrecht, 1841-44; graduated as doctor of theology, June 16, 1841; became preacher in the Reformed Church at Hall, near Zutphen, 1843; at Rotterdam, 1847; professor of theology in the University of Utrecht, 1859. He teaches New-Testament exegesis, hermeneutics, and encyclo-pedi. He is a theistic and supernaturalistic theologian; and has vigorously opposed the theological school of Groningen, and the so-called "modern theology." In 1843 he received the prize of the Teyler Society, for his essay upon the textual criticism of the New Testament (see below). With Dr. J. J. Van Oosterzee and two other scholars, he issued the Jaarbeken voor Wetenschappelijke Theologie, 1844—57; with Dr. N. Beets and Dr. D. Chatteliez de la Saumblayere, the Ernst en Vrede. Maandschrift voor de Nederlandsche Hervormde Kerk, 1853 sqq.; and alone, the Evangeliebode (religious weekly), 1849—55; the Kerkelijke Bijdragen (essays on church law questions), Harderwijk, 1872, two parts. In 1867 he made the report upon the religious condition of Holland, to the Amsterdam (fifth) Conference of the Evangelical Alliance. He is the author of Diss. theol. Jezus in uitkomst reditus, Utrecht, 1841; Verhandeling over de Tekstkritiek der Schriften des Nieuwen Verbonds (the Teyler prize essay), Haarlem, 1844; De Leer van den Doop en het Aanrecht, op nieuw uitgeweest, 1845; Het Aanrecht, Utrecht, 1847; Wat dunkt u van uzeeven? 1849; Aanmeldingsgids, 1850, 4th ed. 1857; De Groninger School in het onderwijs van God, 1871; Geschiedenis van de eerste uitgaven der Bibel, 1876); Heidenthum en Judeïsden, Voorhalle, 1876; De Heidelbergsche Catechismus, als Belijdenisschriften der Neder. Herv. Kerk in de 19de eeuw; getoetst en beoordeeld, 1880—81, two parts; Ter Negadachtigen van Dr. J. J. van Oosterzee, 1883; De Heide. Catechismus op nieuw overgezet en volgens de vertaling van Dr. J. J. van Oosterzee, 1883; Over geregen; 1881; Een christelijke samenspreking uit Gods Woord (Over het onderscheid tuschen Wet en Evangelie) door Petrus Dathenus. Op nieuw uitgegeven naar den eersten druk door J. I. D. met een inschrijving, o. d. uitgever, 1st and 2d ed. 1884; lectures, sermons, miscellaneous articles.

DOELLINGER, Johann Joseph Ignaz, Ph.D. (hon.), Vienna, Marburg, 1873; D.D. (Oxford, 1881); L.L.D. (Oxford and Edinburgh, 1873), Old Catholic; b. at Bamberg, Bavaria, Feb. 28, 1799; became chaplain in the diocese of Bamberg, 1822; teacher in the Lyceum at Aschaffenburg, 1829; and since 1829 has been professor of church history in the University of Munich, except from 1847 to 1849, to which position has been added those of Propst of St. Cajetan, Reichspräsident der Academy of Sciences, 1855 (president since 1873 on nomination of the king, which makes him chief keeper of the Bavarian scientific collections).

He represented the University of Munich in the Bavarian Parliament of 1845 and 1819, and a Bavarian election district in the Frankfort Diet in 1848. After 1848 he gradually became an anti-Ultramontane. In 1857 he made a journey to Rome; and what he saw then, and subsequently learned in the Italian war, 1859, had the effect of confirming him in the views to which his historical studies had brought him. In 1861 he delivered three lectures in Munich, in which he advocated the abandonment by the Pope of all temporal power. The lectures were published as an appendix to Kirche und Kirchen (see list).

He obtained with his vigorous attack, before and during the Vatican Council, upon the infallibility dogma. He, with his fellow-professor Johannes Huber, wrote Janus, Leipzig, 1869, and Römische Briefe vom Concil, von Quarinus, originally in the Augsburg Allgemeine Zeitung. When the dogma was passed, he refused to accept it, and was in consequence excommunicated April 17, 1871. On July 29, 1873, he was elected rector of the University of Munich, by a vote of fifty-four to six, nor has his excommunication decreased his popularity in Bavaria. He presided over the Munich Old-Catholic congress (1871), and was at that of Cologne (1872), but has taken no part in the movement, since he opposes the formation of a separate church. He was president of the Bonn Conferences of 1875 and 1876. Among his numerous books may be mentioned, Lehrbuch der Kirchengeschichte, Regensburg, vol. i. 1836, vol. ii. 1st pt. 1836 (English translation by Alfred Plummer, Edinburgh, 1876), 2d ed. 1883; De Nederlandische Gelovigheid en de Heidelbergsche Catechismus, als Belijdenisschriften der Neder. Herv. Kerk in de 19de eeuw; getoetst en beoordeeld, 1880—81, two parts; Ter Negadachtigen van Dr. J. J. van Oosterzee, 1883; De Heide. Catechismus op nieuw overgezet en volgens de vertaling van Dr. J. J. van Oosterzee, 1883; Over geregen; 1881; Een christelijke samenspreking uit Gods Woord (Over het onderscheid tuschen Wet en Evangelie) door Petrus Dathenus. Op nieuw uitgegeven naar den eersten druk door J. I. D. met een inschrijving, o. d. uitgever, 1st and 2d ed. 1884; lectures, sermons, miscellaneous articles.
DONALDSON.

DÖRNER, August Johannes, Ph.D., Lic. Theol. (both Berlin, 1867 and 1869), D.D. (hon., Halle, 1883), Protestant (son of the late I. A. Dörner); b. at Schiltach, Baden, May 13, 1846; studied at Berlin; was repentin Göttingen, 1870-73; since then has been professor of theology and co-director of the theological seminary at Wit- tenberg. He is the author of De Baconis philo- sophia, Berlin, 1867; Augustinus, sein theologisches System und seine religions-philosoph. Anschauung, 1873; Predigten vom Reiche Gottes, 1880; Kirche u. Reich Gottes, 1888, besides minor publications and new articles.

DÖRNER, Isaac August, D.D., one of the greatest modern divines and teachers of Ger- many; b. at Neuhausen, in the kingdom of Wür- temberg, June 20, 1809; d. at Wiesbaden, July 8, 1864; buried, July 27, in the family vault at Neuhausen, where a plain monument is erected to Dörner, among other places; there was the sixth of twelve children born to the pastor of Neuhausen, and was educated first by a private tutor, then in the Latin school at Tuttlingen. In 1823 he entered the collegiate seminary at Maulbronn; in 1827, the University of Tübingen, where he studied philosophy and theology. He visited England and North Germany. In 1834 he became repentin (teaching tutor, or fellow, in the theological de- partment of the university), having two years pre- vious acted as assistant to his father; and in 1837, professor extraordinary of theology in Tübingen. In 1835 David Friedrich Strauss, a col- league of Dörner, published his Life of Jesus, and Dörner issued the first pages of his work of directly opposite tendency, History of the Develop- ment of the Doctrine of the Person of Christ, in which the historical Christ of the Gospels is traced through the ages of the Church as the greatest fact in Christian thought and experience. His teacher, Christian Friedrich Schmid, had incited him to take up the work, into which he put his thought and study until its completion in 1838. This work determined Dörner’s place among theologians and doctrinal historians, and was a most effectual, though indirect, answer to Strauss and his mythical theory. The work was afterwards greatly enlarged and improved by an exhaustive study of the sources from the aposto- late age down to the recent Kenosis controversy. In 1838 he was called to the University of Kiel as ordinary professor, and there remained until 1843. He formed an intimate friendship with Bishop Martensen, the greatest theologian of Denmark; and even the Schleswig-Holstein difficulty did not disturb it. His principal writing during his Kiel residence is his dogmatic treatise upon the Foundation Ideas of the Protestant Church, in which he maintained that the so-called mater- ial and formal principles of the Reformation — i.e., justification by faith, and the supreme author- ity of Scripture, respectively — were to be consid- ered as two pillars inseparably joined, so that each stands with and through the other. This was his word of comfort to those distressed by Straus: No criticism can alter the fact that the primitive Church did record in the New Testa- ment, by means of the Spirit proceeding from Christ, its impressions and experiences of Christ’s salvation. On the other hand, faith holds fast to the written word. For the Christian experiences is the Christ of Scripture, which alone enables the Christian to understand and assert faith and the mystery of his new personality. Justification, he used to say, is the only completed fact in the Christian: everything else is growth.

In 1843 he became professor of theology at Königsberg, in 1847 at Bonn, in 1853 at Göttingen, and finally in 1862 at Berlin. Here, besides being professor in the university, he was superior consistorial councillor (Oberkirchenrath), and from here for twenty-two years he exerted a quiet but mighty influence on the Evangelical Church of Prussia, and on students from all parts of the world.

In 1873 he visited, with his son August, the United States, as a delegate to the Sixth Gen- eral Conference of the Evangelical Alliance in New York, and read a thoughtful paper on the Infallibility of the Vatican Council, which is published in the Proceedings, New York, pp. 427- 436. He travelled in New England, and as far south as Washington, and was deeply impressed with the religious and literary activity of America. He carried back with him the most favor-ble recollections, and heartily welcomed American students in his hospitable home. The last years of his life were clouded by a painful cancerous affection of his face, and the incurable malady of one of his sons, a promising youth, who lost his mind while studying at college. He bore his trial with meek resignation, and never complained. He continued to work on his Christian Ethics till the last weeks of his life, which he spent at Wittenberg, in view of the Luther house. Then, feeble as he was, he set out with his wife on a journey to Switzerland for rest, and proposed visiting, on the way, the national monument of Germany on the Niederwald, by the Rhine; but was seized with a hemorrhage, and died suddenly at Wiesbaden. His wife followed him a few months afterwards to his eternal rest.

Dr. Dorner was one of the profoundest and most learned theologians of the nineteenth century, and ranks with Schleiermacher, Neander, Nitzsch, Julius Müller, and Richard Rothe. He mastered the theology of Schleiermacher and the philosophy of Hegel, appropriated the best elements of both, infused into them a positive evangelical faith and a historical spirit. The central idea of his system was the divine-human personality of Christ, as the highest revealer of God, the perfect ideal of humanity, and the Saviour from sin and death. His theology is pre-eminently christological, and his monumental history of christology will long remain the richest mine of study in that department. He lectured on exegesis, on New Testament theology, on symbolics, and especially on dogmatics and ethics, in which he excelled all his contemporaries. He was one of the revisers of the Luther Bible, and proposed a correspondence with the Anglo-American Revision Committee, while in New York, 1873, which was carried on for a short time. He was alive to all the practical church questions, and labored in the Oberkirchenrath for synodical church government, and the development of the lay agency and the voluntary principle. He had a deep interest in the work of "inner missions," and was one of the leading speakers and managers at its annual sessions. His catholicity went beyond the limits of the German churches, and was in full sympathy with the principles and aims of the International Evangelical Alliance. He was a most devoted and conscientious teacher, and a favorite among students. The Johanneum and the Melanchthon House in Berlin are memorials of his active interest in indigent students. The leading traits in his personal character were purity, simplicity, courtesy, gentleness, humility, and love. Decan Jäger and Diaconus Knapp paid noble testimonies to his virtues, at the funeral (Zur Erinnerung an Dr. Isaak August Dorner, Tuttingen, 1884); and Dr. Kleinert, as dean of the theological faculty, delivered a eulogy before the University of Berlin, July 26, 1884 (Zum Gedächtniss i. A. D.'s, Berlin, 1884), in which he places him next to Schleiermacher, and calls him "a leader and propitator in the highest sense of theology; adding, that, as great as were his merits in theological science, the noblest thing in him was his personality, which reflected the image of Christ, and impressed itself indelibly on all who knew him." His son has given a good account of his theological system in Dem Andenken von Dr. I. A. Dorner von Dr. Dorner, Prof. in Wittenberg, Gotha, 1885.

The following is a list of Dorner's publications:

- Das Princip unserer Kirche nach dem innern Verhältniss seiner zwei Seiten betrachtet, Kiel, 1841; De oratione Christi eschatologica Matt. xvi. 1-8 (Luc. xxi. 3-36, Marc. xxi. 1-13; asservata, Stuttgart, 1844; Das Verhältniss zwischen Kirche und Staat, aus dem Gesichtspunkte evangelischer Wissenschaft, Bonn, 1847; Sendeschreiben über Reform der evangelischen Landeskirchen im Zusammenhang mit der Herstellung einer evangelisch-deutschen Nationalkirche; an Herrn Dr. J. Nitzsch in Berlin und Herrn Julius Müller in Halle, Bonn, 1848; Uber Jesu stindlose Vollkommenheit, Gotha, 1862 (translated into English by H. B. Smith, New York); Geschichte der protestantischen Theologie, Munich, 1867 (English trans., History of Protestant Theology, particularly in Germany, viewed according to its fundamental movement, and in connection with the religious, moral, and intellectual life, Edinburgh, 1871, 2 vols.); System der christlichen Glaubenslehre, Berlin, 1879-80, 2d ed. 1886, 2 vols. (English trans., by Rev. Prof. Alfred Cave and J. S. Banks, A System of Christian Doctrines, Edinburgh, 1886-92, 4 vols.); Gesammelte Schriften. Auf dem Gebiet der Dogmengeschichte, Exegese und Geschichte, Berlin, 1883 (contains his valuable metaphysical essays on the unchangeability of God, and criticism of the Kenosis theory of the incarnation); System der christlichen Sittenlehre (500 pp., edited by August Dorner, his son), Berlin, 1885. He founded and edited, with Liebner, the valuable theological quarterly, Jahrbücher für deutsche Theologie, Gotha, 1856-1878.

PHILIP SCHAPP.

DOUEN, Emmanuel Orentin, Reformed ("Liberal" school); b. at Templeux le Guérard (Sommme), France, June 2, 1830; studied theology at Strasbourg, 1849-52; was pastor at Quincy Seigy, near Menil (Seine et Marne), 1853-61; and since has been agent of the "Société biblique protestante de Paris," and since 1866 a member of the committee of the "Société d'histoire du protestantisme." He is the author of Histoire de la Société biblique protestante de Paris, Paris, 1865; Notes sur les auteurs protestants d'expression N. T. traduit en français (in Revue de théologie, Strasbourg, 1898); Intolérance de Fénélon, d'après les documents pour la plupart

DOUGLAS, Hon. and Right Rev. Arthur Gascoigne, D.D. (Durham, 1838), lord bishop of Aberdeen and Orkney, Episcopal Church of Scotland; son of the nineteenth Earl of Morton; b. in Scotland, Jan. 5, 1827; educated at University College, Durham University; graduated B.A. 1848, Lic. theol. and M.A. 1850; was ordained deacon 1850, priest 1852; curate of Kidderminster, 1850-52; rector of St. Olave, Southwark, 1855-56; of Scaldwell, Northamptonshire, 1856-72; vicar of Shapwick, 1872-83; consecrated bishop, 1883.

DOUGLAS, George, LL.D. (McGill University, Montreal, 1869), D.D. (Victoria University, Toronto, 1881), Wesleyan Methodist; b. near Abbotsford, Roxburghshire, Scotland, Oct. 14, 1825; educated in Scotland and Canada; entered the ministry of British Conference, 1848; went as missionary to the West Indies, 1848; entered Methodist Church of Canada, 1854; has been principal of the Wesleyan Theological College, Montreal, since its foundation in 1873. He was president of the General Conference, 1878-80; delegate to Evangelical Alliance Conference in New York City, 1875, and the Ecumenical Council of Methodism in London, 1881. He has published various sermons and addresses.

DOUGLAS, George Cunningham Monteaeth, D.D. (University of Glasgow, 1867), Free Church of Scotland; b. at Kilbarchan, Renfrewshire, Scotland, March 2, 1826; graduated B.A. at the University of Glasgow; entered the ministry of the Free Church; and after being pastor as Bridge of Weir, Renfrewshire, was appointed professor of Hebrew and Old-Testament exegesis, later also principal, in the Free Church College, Glasgow. He was one of the Old-Testament revisers, 1870-94. Besides articles in Fairbairn's Imperial Bible Dictionary (London, 1886, 2 vols.), and in The Monthly Interpreter (Edinburgh, 1885, seq.), and a translation with notes of Kell's Introduction to the Old Testament, in Clark's Library (1869-70, 2 vols.), he has published, Why I still believe that Moses wrote Deuteronomy, 1878; and notes on Judges and Joshua, in Docs and Whyte's Handbook for Bible Classes, 1891, 1892.

DOW, Naas, layman; b. Quaker parents at Portland, Me., March 20, 1804; educated at Friends' Academy, New Bedford, Mass.; was chief engineer of the Portland Fire Department 1888-44, mayor of the city 1851-54; and in 1851 drew up the bill "for the suppression of drinking-houses and tippling-shops," since widely known as the "Maine Law," and he was immediately in a public hearing before the committee of the legislature, "which unanimously adopted it, without change. It was printed during the night; and the next day, Saturday, May 31, 1851, being the last day of the session, it was passed without change through all its stages; and on Monday, June 2, it was approved by the governor, and took effect by special provision from that day." It has since been upheld as the settled policy of the State. He was subsequently, for two terms, a member of the Maine Legislature, 1858-59. "In September, 1881, by a popular vote, the prohibition of the liquor-traffic was incorporated into the Constitution of the State by a very large majority, the affirmative vote being nearly three times larger than the negative." He has been three times in Britain as the guest of the United Kingdom Alliance, the largest and most influential temperance society in the world, and has advocated the cause in all parts of the kingdom. He was commissioned by Gov. Washburn colonel of the Thirteenth Maine Volunteers in September, 1881; went immediately to the Department of the Gulf, where he had three separate commands at different times, having been commissioned brigadier-general by President Lincoln soon after his arrival at the Gulf of Mexico, April, 1882. He was twice wounded at Port Hudson, and, being taken to a plantation-house in the rear of the army, was captured in the night by a detachment of Louisiana cavalry (June 30, 1863), and was taken by many successive stages to Richmond, Va., where he was confined six months in Libby Prison. He was also confined two months at Mobile, being exchanged afterwards for Fitz Henry Lee, March 14, 1864. His health was so far broken down by his experiences at Richmond, that he was not able to resume his duties in the field until the war was practically closed. Since the war he has advocated publicly all over the country "the policy of prohibition of the liquor-traffic as a political necessity and a public duty."

DRIVER, Samuel Rolles, D.D. (by decree of Convocation, 1888), Church of England; b. at Southampton, Oct. 2, 1846; was scholar of New College, Oxford; Pusey and Ellerton Hebrew scholar, 1866; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics), 1868; Kennicott Hebrew scholar, 1870; fellow of New College 1870-92, and tutor 1876-92; Hall of Houghton senior Syriac prizeman, 1871; Houghton Syriac prizeman, M.A., 1872; ordained deacon 1881, priest 1882; succeeded Dr. Pusey as regius professor of Hebrew and as a canon of Christ Church, Oxford, 1882. In 1884 he was appointed examining chaplain to the bishop of Southwell. In 1875 he became a member of the Old-Testament Revision Company. He has published the following papers: in The Philological Journal (Cambridge), On the Linguistic Affinities of the Elohiim (1882), On Gen. xii. 10, an Exegetical Study (1885); in Studia Biblica (Oxford, 1885), On Recent Theories of the Origin and Nature of the Tetragrammaton; and the following books: A Treatise on the Use of the Tenses in Hebrew, Oxford, 1874, 2d ed. improved and enlarged 1881; (jointly with Ad. Neubauer) The Fifty-third Chapter of Isaiah according to Jewish Interpreters, London, vol. ii. 1877 (translations); (jointly with T. K. Cheyne) The Holy Bible, with Various Readings, 1876, 2d ed. under title Variorum Biblia 1880; (an editor) A Commentary on Jeremiah and Ezekiel by Mosheh ben Shesheth, with Translation and Notes, 1871; A Rabbinical Commentary on the Book of Proverbs attributed to Abraham ben Ezra, Oxford, 1880.
land, in the year 1852; educated at Edinburgh and Tubingen; in 1879 appointed professor of natural history and science in the Free Church College, Glasgow. He is the author of Natural Law in the Spiritual World, London and New York, 1883, numerous editions.

DUCHESNE, Louis, Roman Catholic; b. at St. Servan (Ille-et-Vilaine), Sept. 18, 1843; studied at Paris, and then, devoting himself particularly to church history, continued his studies in the French school at Rome under teachers for three years (1873-76), during which time, however, he made two journeys,—in 1874 to the Epirus, Thessaly, and Macedonia, and for a time lived on Mount Athos; and in 1876 to Asia Minor. In 1877 he was made a doctor of letters by the Faculty of Paris; and has been since professor of ecclesiastical history in the Catholic Institute at Paris; and since 1880 editor of the Bulletin critique, which he founded. Besides numerous learned articles, he has published the following important books: Mission au Mont Athos et en Macedoine (with Bayet), Paris, 1875; De Macario Magnete et scriptis ejus, 1877; Etude sur le Liber Pontificalis, 1877; De codicibus MSS. graecis Pli II., 1880; Vita S. Polycarpi auctore Pionio, 1881; Les origines chrétiennes, 1882. He is now (1885) issuing an edition of the Liber Pontificalis, with introduction and a commentary, in 2 vols. Of his review articles may be mentioned: in Revue des questions historiques, La question de la Pâque au concile de Nicee (July, 1880), Virgile et Pêlage (October, 1881); in Revue des sciences ecclésiastiques, Les témoins antécédents du dogma de la Trinité (December, 1882); in Mélanges d'archéologie et d'histoire, La question de la Pâque au concile du Pape Félix IV. (1883), L'histoireigraphie pontificale au VIIIe siècle (1884), Les sources du martyrologe hieronymien (1885); in Bulletin de correspondance hellénique, Une inscription chrétienne de Bithynie (1878), Les inscriptions chrétiennes de l'Issourie (1879-80); in Mémoire de la société des Antiquaires de France, t. xliii. (1883), La civilisation Romaine et l'évêché de Nice.

DUCKWORTH, Robinson, D.D. (Oxford, 1879), Church of England; b. at Liverpool, Eng., in the year 1834; was scholar and exhibitor of University College, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1857, M.A. 1859, B.D. 1879; was appointed by the crown in 1879, assistant master at Marlborough College, 1858-60; fellow of Trinity College, Oxford, 1860-76; tutor of the same, 1860-66; master of the schools, 1860-62; examining chaplain to the bishop of Peterborough, 1864; instructor to his Royal Highness Prince Leopold, 1866-70, and governor to his Royal Highness Prince Alfred, 1870-75; since 1870 curate of St. Mark's, Marylebone, London, and been chaplain in ordinary to the Queen; since

DUCKWORTH, Robinson, D.D. (Oxford, 1879), Church of England; b. at Liverpool, Eng., in the year 1834; was scholar and exhibitor of University College, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1857, M.A. 1859, B.D. 1879; was appointed by the crown in 1879, assistant master at Marlborough College, 1858-60; fellow of Trinity College, Oxford, 1860-76; tutor of the same, 1860-66; master of the schools, 1860-62; examining chaplain to the bishop of Peterborough, 1864; instructor to his Royal Highness Prince Leopold, 1866-70, and governor to his Royal Highness Prince Alfred, 1870-75; since 1870 curate of St. Mark's, Marylebone, London, and been chaplain in ordinary to the Queen; since

DUCKWORTH, Robinson, D.D. (Oxford, 1879), Church of England; b. at Liverpool, Eng., in the year 1834; was scholar and exhibitor of University College, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1857, M.A. 1859, B.D. 1879; was appointed by the crown in 1879, assistant master at Marlborough College, 1858-60; fellow of Trinity College, Oxford, 1860-76; tutor of the same, 1860-66; master of the schools, 1860-62; examining chaplain to the bishop of Peterborough, 1864; instructor to his Royal Highness Prince Leopold, 1866-70, and governor to his Royal Highness Prince Alfred, 1870-75; since 1870 curate of St. Mark's, Marylebone, London, and been chaplain in ordinary to the Queen; since

DUCKWORTH, Robinson, D.D. (Oxford, 1879), Church of England; b. at Liverpool, Eng., in the year 1834; was scholar and exhibitor of University College, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1857, M.A. 1859, B.D. 1879; was appointed by the crown in 1879, assistant master at Marlborough College, 1858-60; fellow of Trinity College, Oxford, 1860-76; tutor of the same, 1860-66; master of the schools, 1860-62; examining chaplain to the bishop of Peterborough, 1864; instructor to his Royal Highness Prince Leopold, 1866-70, and governor to his Royal Highness Prince Alfred, 1870-75; since 1870 curate of St. Mark's, Marylebone, London, and been chaplain in ordinary to the Queen; since DUDLEY, Charles Densmore, Freewill Baptist; b. at Agency, Wakello County, Iowa, June 14, 1852; graduated at Hillsdale College, Hillsdale, Mich., 1873, and from the Bates Theological School, Lewiston, Me., 1877; was pastor of Freewill Baptist churches at Scituate, R.I., 1877-78; Ashland, N.H., 1878-80; Great Falls, N.H., 1881-83; since June, 1883, has been Burr professor of systematic theology, Hillsdale College, Mich.

DUDLEY, Right Rev. Thomas Underwood, D.D. (St. John's College, Annapolis, Md., 1874, and University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1883), Episcopal, bishop of Kentucky; b. in Richmond, Va., Sept. 26, 1837; graduated M.A. at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, 1858; became assistant professor of Latin in it; during the war was major in the commissary department of the Confederate Army; was rector of Christ Church, Maltimore, 1865-69; became rector and assistant bishop of Kentucky, 1875; became bishop on the death of Bishop Smith, May 31, 1884; was Bohlen lecturer, 1881.

DUFF, David, LL.D. (Glasgow, 1872), United Presbyterian; b. at Greencock, Scotland, Jan. 29, 1824; graduated M.A. at Glasgow, 1843; studied theology, first at Relief and after the union of Relief and Secession Churches, in United Presbyterian Hall, Edinburgh; became master of grammar school at Greenock, 1847; minister of the United Presbyterian Church, Helensburgh, 1856; professor of church history in the denomination's theological hall, Edinburgh, 1876. He was chairman of the first school board of Row, 1873-78; and since 1882, of that of Edinburgh.

DUFFIELD, George, D.D. (Knox College, Ill., 1872), Presbyterian; b. at Carlisle, Penn., Sept. 12, 1816; graduated at Yale College, 1837, and at the Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1840; was succesively pastor at Brooklyn, N.Y., 1840; Bloomfield, N.J., 1847; Philadelphia, Penn., 1852; Adrian, Mich., 1861; Galesburg, Ill., 1865; Saginaw City, Mich., 1869; evangelist, Ann Arbor, 1874; pastor at Lansing, 1877-80; since 1884 without charge at Detroit. He is one of the regents of the University of Michigan. He has written many hymns, among them the famous Blessed Saviour, thee I love (1851), and Stand up, stand up for Jesus (1858).

DUFFIELD, Samuel (Augustus) Willoughby, Presbyterian; b. at Brooklyn, L.N., 1872. Sept. 24, 1848; graduated at Yale College, 1868; became pastor of Tioga-street Church, Philadelphia, 1867; Claremont, Jersey City, N.J., 1870; Ann Arbor, Mich., 1871; Chicago (Eighth Church), 1874; (pastor-elect) Auburn (Central Church), N.Y., 1876; Altona (Second Church), Penn., 1878; Bloomfield, N.J., 1882. He has contributed frequently in prose and verse to the religious press and to magazines, and is the author of The Heavenly Land (a translation of Bernard of Cluny's De contemptu mundi), New York, 1887; Wap and Woof: a Book of Verse, 1868; (with his father, Rev. Dr. George Duffield, jun.) The Burial of the Dead (a funeral manual), 1882; English Hymns: their Authors and History, 1886; Latin Hymn-writers and their Hymns, 1887.

DUHM, Bernhard, German Protestant; b. at Bingum, East Frisia, Oct. 10, 1847; studied at Göttingen, 1870-71; became repent there 1871, privat-docent 1873, professor extraordinary 1877. He is the author of Pauli apostoloi de Judaeorum legi judicia, Göttingen, 1878; Die Theologie der Propheten, 1875.

DULES, John Walsh, D.D. (College of New Jersey, 1872), Presbyterian; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., Nov. 4, 1823; graduated at Yale College, 1844, and at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1848; was a missionary of the American Board at Madras, India, 1848-53; secretary American Sunday-school Union, Philadelphia, 1853-57; of the Presbyterian Publication Committee (New School), 1867-70; since 1870 he has been editorial secretary of the Board of Publication of the re-united Presbyterian Church. He has published Life in India, Philadelphia, 1854; Ride through Palestine, 1881.

DUNLOP, Right Rev. George Kelly, S.T.D. (Racine College, Wis., 1880), Episcopal, missionary bishop of New Mexico and Arizona; b. in County Tyrone, Ireland, Nov. 10, 1830; graduated at Queen's University, Galway, 1852, taking the second classical scholarship; became rector of Christ Church, Lexington, Mo., 1856; and of Grace Church, Kirkwood, Miss., 1863; was consecrated bishop, 1880.

DUNN, Ransom, D.D. (Bates College, Lewiston, Me., 1873), Freewill Baptist; b. at Bakersfield, Vt., July 7, 1818; was home missionary in Ohio, 1837-43; pastor at Dover and Great Falls, N.H., and in Boston, Mass.; became professor of mental and moral philosophy in Michigan Central College, which was soon after removed to Hillsdale, Mich., 1852; professor of theology in Hillsdale College 1863, and president of the same 1884. He has been corresponding editor of The Morning Star, the denominational organ, since 1876.

DUNNING, Albert Elijah, Congregationalist; b. at Brookfield, Conn., Jan. 5, 1844; graduated at Yale College 1867, and at Andover Theological Seminary 1870; became pastor of Highland Church, Boston, 1870; national superintendent of Sunday-school work for Congregational churches, 1881; general secretary of the Congregational Sunday-school and Publishing Society, 1894; also in the same year a member of the International Sunday School Committee. He is the author of The Sunday School Library, Boston, 1883, republished New York, 1884; Normal Outlines for Sunday-school Teachers, Boston, 1883; since 1876 has contributed to the Sermons by the Monday Club; since 1885 edited the Pilgrim Teacher (monthly).

DUNS, John, D.D. (Amherst, U. S. A., 1883), F.R.S.E., F.S.A., Scot. Free Church; b. at Duns, Berwickshire, Scotland, July 11, 1820; educated at Edinburgh University, 1843; became pastor of the Free Church, 1844; professor of natural science, New College, Edinburgh, 1844. He has been editor of the North British Review since 1857; was elected a fellow of the Royal Physical Society, Edinburgh, 1864, and president 1868; a fellow of the Royal Society of Antiquaries, Scotland, 1874, and a vice-president 1879; corresponding member of the New-York and of the Philadelphia Academies of Science, 1877. He is the author of Memoirs of Rev. Samuel Martin Bathgate and of Professor Fleming, D.D., F.R.S.E. (both DURFORD, Right Rev. Richard, D.D. (Oxford, 1870), Lord Bishop of Chichester, Church of England; b. at Sandleford, Berkshire, in the year 1802; educated at Magdalen College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1826, M.A. 1829; was elected fellow of his college; ordained deacon 1830, priest 1831; was rector of Middleton, Lancashire, and also rural dean of Manchester, and surrogate of the diocese, 1835–70; honorary canon of Manchester, 1854–68; archdeacon of Manchester, 1867–70; canon residentiary, 1868–70; consecrated bishop, 1870. He is a leader in educational and philanthropic movements in the Church of England.

DURYEA, Joseph Tuthill, D.D. (College of New Jersey, 1866), Congregationalist; b. at Jamaica, L.I., N.Y., c. 9, 1832; graduated at the College of New Jersey 1856, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1859; became pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Troy, N.Y., 1859; of the Collegiate Reformed Dutch Church, New York City, 1862; of the Classon-avenue Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, New York, 1867; and of the Central Congregational Church, Boston, Mass., 1870. In 1873 he was elected a director of Princeton Theological Seminary. In 1885 he declined the presidency of Union College, Schenectady, N.Y.

DURHAM, Edward, D.D. (Chicago Theological Seminary, Ill., 1869), Congregationalist; b. at Norwich, Conn., Nov. 18, 1825; graduated at the College of New York 1848, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1851; became pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Troy, N.Y., 1859; of the Collegiate Reformed Dutch Church, New York City, 1862; of the Classon Avenue Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, New York, 1867; and of the Central Congregational Church, Boston, Mass., 1870. In 1873 he was elected a director of Princeton Theological Seminary. In 1885 he declined the presidency of Union College, Schenectady, N.Y.

DWIGHT, Timothy, D.D. (Chicago Theological Seminary, Ill., 1869), Congregationalist; b. at Norwich, Conn., Nov. 18, 1825; graduated at the College of New York 1848, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1851; became tutor in the Divinity School of the college; was tutor in the college, 1851–55; studied at Bonn and Berlin, 1856–58; became professor of sacred literature in Yale College, 1858; president of Yale College, 1886. He was a member of the New-Testament Bible Revision Company. He has published a good many articles on various topics; annotated the English translation of Meyer on Romans (New York, 1884), Philippians–Philemon, Timothy–Hebrews; translated and annotated Godet on the Gospel of John (1886, 2 vols.).

DWINELLY, Israel Edson, D.D. (University of Vermont, 1884), Congregationalist; b. at East Calais, Vt., Oct. 24, 1830; graduated at the University of Vermont, Burlington, 1843, and at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1848; associate pastor of South (Congregational) Church, Salem, Mass., 1849–63; pastor in Sacramento, Cal., 1863–83; since 1884 has been professor of homiletics and pastoral theology in the Pacific (Congregational) Theological Seminary, Oakland, near San Francisco, Cal. He has published various articles in different reviews.

DYER, Heman, D.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1843), Protestant Episcopal; b. at Shaftesbury, Vt., Sept. 24, 1810; graduated at Kenyon College, Gambier, O., 1833; tutor there, 1832–3; principal of Milnor Hall, 1855–60; professor in the Western University of Pennsylvania 1844–45, and chancellor 1845–49; since 1854 secretary and editor of "The Evangelical Knowledge Society," and since 1865 corresponding secretary of "The American Church Missionary Society," both of which have their headquarters in New-York City. During the war he was actively engaged in the Christian Commission.
EBRARD, (Johannes Heinrich) August, Ph.D., Lic. Theol. (Erlangen, 1841, 1842), D.D. (Basel, 1847), Reformed; b. at Erlangen, Jan. 18, 1818; studied at Erlangen and Berlin, 1835—39; became tutor in a family, 1839; privat-dozent and repreentant at Erlangen, 1841; professor of theology at Zürich, 1844, the same at Erlangen 1847; consistorial councillor at Speyer, 1853; retired at Erlangen, 1861; pastor of the French Reformed Church at Erlangen, 1875. His theological standpoint is "Reformed orthodox, in the sense of the Loudun Synod of 1600, which declared Amyraldism to be 'highly orthodox.'" He has published Wissenschaftliche Kränze u. u. Geschichte, Erlangen, 1842; 2d ed. 1868 (Eng. trans., The Gospel History, Edinburgh, 1868); Das Dogma vom heil. Abendmahl u. u. Geschichte, Frankfurt-a.-M., 1845—46, 2 vols.; Christliche Dogmatik, Königsberg, 1851, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1862; Vorlesungen über praktische Theologie, 1864; Das Buch Hobs als poétisches Kunstwerk übersetzt u. erklärt, Landau, 1858; Handbuch d. christl. Kirchen- u. Dogmengeschichte, Erlangen, 1865—66, 4 vols.; Die irischen Missionskirche d. 6. 7. u. 8. Jahrh., Göttersloh, 1873; Apologetik, 1874—75, 2 parts (2d ed., 1st part, 1875; 2d part, 1881); Bonifatius, der Zerstörer d. cumbamischen Kirchenums auf d. Festlande, 1882; Christian Ernst, 1885. Besides these, he has published sermons, edited and completed Olshausen's Commentary (Eng. trans., revised by Professor A. C. Kendrick, N.Y., 1856—58, 6 vols.) by writing on Der Brief an die Hebräer (Königsberg, 1850), Die Offenbarung Johannis (1859), and Die Briefe Johannis (1861). (Eng. trans., Edinburgh, 1869; Swedish trans., Örebro, 1862) and under the pseudonym, Gottfried Flammberg, Christian Deutsch, Sigmund Sturm, Schliemann d. j., a long series of Christian bellettristic productions.

Eddy, Richard, S.T.D. (Tufts, 1883), Universalist; b. at Providence, R.I., June 21, 1828; was pastor at Rome, N.Y., 1851—51; Buffalo, 1854; Philadelphia, Penn., 1855—56; Canton, N.Y., 1856—61; chaplain of the Sixth Regiment, New-York State Volunteers, 1861—63; pastor in Philadelphia, Penn., 1863—68 (librarian State Historical Society 1864—68); Franklin, Mass., 1868—70; Gloucester, Mass., 1870—77; Akron, O., 1870; Melrose, Mass., since 1881. Since 1878 he has been president of the Universalist Historical Society. He is the author of History of the Sixtieth Regiment New-York State Volunteers from July, 1861, to January, 1863, Philadelphia, 1864: Universalism in America, A History, Boston, 1884—56, 2 vols.

Eddy, Zachary, D.D. (Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1858), Congregationalist; b. at Stockbridge, Vt., Dec. 19, 1815; educated privately; ordained by Pennsylvania Presbytery (Cumberland Presbyterian), Pennsylvania, 1855; was missionary in Pennsylvania, Ohio, 1855—58; pastor (Presbyterian), Springville, N.Y., 1858—43; Mineral Point, Wis., 1844—50; Warsaw, N.Y., 1850—56; Birmingham, Conn., 1856—58; Northampton, Mass., 1858—67; Brooklyn Heights (Reformed Dutch Church), Brooklyn, N.Y., 1867—71; First Congregational Church, Detroit, Mich., 1873—84; until 1886 at Atlanta, Ga. (Congregational Church of the Redeemer). He is a Conservative Congregationalist. He is the editor of Hymns of the Church, compiled for the General Synod of the Reformed Church in America, New York, 1869; of Hymns and Songs of Praise (with Rev. Drs. Roswell Dwight Hitchcock and Philip Schaff), 1874; and of Carmina Sacrorum (with Rev. Dr. Roswell Dwight Hitchcock and Lewis Ward Mudge), 1886; author of Immanuel, or the Life of Christ (Springfield, Mass., 1868), and several occasional sermons.

Eden, Right Rev. Robert, D.D. (Oxford, 1851), lord bishop of Moray, Ross, and Caithness, 1851; elected Primus of Scotch Church, 1862; Episcopal Church in Scotland; b. in London, Sept. 2, 1804; educated at Christ Church, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1827, M.A. 1829, B.D. 1851; was ordained deacon and priest, 1828; became successively curate of Weston-sub-Edge 1828; Messing, Essex, 1829; Peldon, 1832; rector of Leigh, 1837; consecrated bishop, 1851. He was appointed rural dean of Rochford, 1837; was justice of the peace for the county of Essex, and inspector of schools. During his episcopate the episcopal residence has been removed from Elgin to Inverness (1853), and an official residence (1879) and new cathedral built (begun 1866, opened 1869, consecrated 1873). He has published various sermons, charges, pamphlets, etc.
EDKINS, Joseph, D.D. (Edinburgh University, 1875), Congregationalist; b. at Nailsworth, Gloucestershire, Eng., Dec. 19, 1823; studied at Coward College and University College, London; graduated at London University, B.A., 1843; was missionary of London Missionary Society in China, 1848–80; translator of scientific and other books into the Chinese language, in the Chinese Imperial Maritime Customs service, 1880–85. He was a member of the committee for translating the New Testament into Chinese. He is the author of the following works in Chinese:

- Refutation of the Principal Errors of Buddhism;
- General View of Western Knowledge, 1885; sixteen scientific and historical primers rendered into Chinese. In English:
  - Grammar of the Shanghai Dialect, Shanghai, 1858;
  - Grammar of the Mandarin Colloquial Language, 1857, 2d ed. 1863; Religious Condition of the Chinese, 1859 (2d ed., entitled Religion in China, 1873; 3d ed. 1884);
  - Progressive Lessons in the Chinese Language, 1862, 4th ed. 1886; Vocabulary of the Shanghai Dialect, Shanghai, 1869; China's Place in Philology, London, 1879; Introduction to the Study of the Chinese Characters, 1876; Chinese Buddhism, 1880.

EDMOND, John, D.D. (Glascow University, 1861), Presbyterian; b. at Balfron, Stirlingshire, Scotland, Aug. 12, 1816; studied in Glasgow University, 1832–35, and in Anderson's University, 1835–37; B.D. of Dr. James Stark, Dennyloanhead, 1841; inducted to Regent Place, Glasgow, 1850; to Islington (now Highbury), London, 1880. He was moderator of the United Presbyterian Synod, 1871; and of the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of England, 1883; with Dr. Norman McLeod, represented the United Presbyterian Synod at the First General Assembly of the re-united Presbyterian Church in the United States, at the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church of America, Pittsburgh, and the first General Assembly of the Canada Presbyterian Church, Toronto, — all in 1870. He is a "liberal Calvinist,—a disciple of the Marrow school." He is the author of The Children's Charter, Glasgow, 1859; The Children's Church at Home, London, 1861–63, 2 vols., 4th ed. 1872, 1 vol.; Scripture Stories in Verse, with Sacred Songs and Miscellaneous Poems, Edinburgh, 1871.

EDWARS, M. D. (Edinburgh, 1865), Welsh Calvinistic Methodist; b. at Pwllcewan, near Aberystwyth, Wales, Oct. 27, 1809; graduated M.A. at the University of Edinburgh, 1836; has been principal of the Welsh Calvinistic Methodist College, Bala, Wales, since its foundation in 1837; was moderator of the General Assembly of the denomination, 1866 and 1876. ELLIS, James, D.D. (New-York University, 1861), LL.D. (Marietta College, O., 1881), Presbyterian; b. at Westmoreland, Oneida County, N.Y., Aug. 27, 1822; ordained to its Ministry more than 50 years ago, and from Auburn Theological Seminary, 1851; pastor (N. S.), Penn Yan, N.Y., 1851-54; Cleveland (Second Church), O., 1855–59, 1870–74; Brooklyn (Reformed Dutch Church, Brooklyn Heights), N.Y., 1859–67; San Francisco, Cal. (Presbyterian Church), 1867–70; Oakland, Cal., 1874–79; professor of practical theology and apologetics in San-Francisco Theological Seminary, 1877–79; and of practical theology and church polity in Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O., from 1879 till his death, March 9, 1888. He was moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly in 1877, at Chicago. He is the author of Samuel Eells, 1872, occasional sermons, etc.

EGLI, Emil, Lic. Theol. (hon.; Zurich, 1884), Swiss Protestant; b. at Flasch, Canton Zürich, Jan. 9, 1848; studied theology at Zurich, 1866–70; was curate at Cappel, 1870–71; pastor at Dynhard, 1871–76; Assens, 1873–77; Bern, since 1885 (all these places are in Canton Zürich); since 1880 he has been privatdozent of church history in the University of Zürich. Since 1873 he has been a member of the Volkmar Theological and Historical Society at Zürich. He is the author of Feldzüge in Armenien, Beitrag zur Kritik des Tacitus (in Büdinger's Untersuchungen zur Röm. Kaisergeschichte, Leipzig, 1868); Schlacht von Cappel, Zürich, 1873; Les origines du Nouveau Testament, Geneva, 1874; Züricher Wiederstätter zur Reformationszeit, Zürich, 1873; Actensammlung zur Züricher Reformationsgeschichte, 1876; Martyrium des Polycarp und seine Zeit (in Hilgenfeld's Zeitschrift f. wissenschaftl. Theol., 1881); Lucian und Polycarp (ib., 1883); (edited) Zwinglis Lehrbüchlein, Zürich, 1884; Luther und Zwingle in Marburg (in the Theol. Zeitschrift a. d. Schweiz, 1884).

EHRENFIELD, Charles Lewis, Ph.D. (Wittenberg College, 1877), Evangelical Lutheran; b. near Milroy, Mifflin County, Penn., June 15, 1832; graduated at Wittenberg College (1856) and Seminary (1860), Springfield, O.; was tutor in Wittenberg College, 1857–59; pastor at Altoona, Penn., 1860–63; Shippensburg, 1863–65; Hollidaysburg, 1865–71; principal S.W. Pennsylvania State Normal School, 1871–77; financial secretary State (Penn.) department of public instruction, 1877–79; State librarian, 1878–82; and since has been professor of English literature and Latin at Wittenberg College.

EKMAN, Erik Jakob, Swedish Congregationalist; b. at Strömsbro, a suburb of Gelde, Sweden, Jan. 8, 1842; graduated at Upsala, 1862; ordained minister in the Lutheran State Church, 1864; was promoted to komminister at Ogelbo, 1868; passed pastoral examination at the University of Upsala, 1871; resigned his office in the State Church, Sept. 1, 1879, and became director of the Mission Institute at Kristinehamb, and president of the Swedish Mission Association. He is the author of the following works in Swedish: The Lord is my Light, Stockholm, 1877, 3d ed. 1881; God has done it, 1878, 3d ed. 1881; The Obedience of Faith, Gefle, 1878; The Suffering and Crucified ELLICOTT, Right Rev. Charles John, lord bishop of Gloucester and Bristol, Church of England; b. at Whitwell, near Stamford, April 25, 1819; studied at St. John's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (senior optime and second-class classic tripos) 1841; became members' prize 1842; and Hulsean prize essayist (see below) 1843; M.A. 1844; fellow of St. John's; was ordained deacon 1846, priest 1847; was rector of Pilton, Rutlandshire, 1841-48; professor of divinity, King's College, London, 1848-50; Hulsean professor of divinity, Cambridge, 1850-60; dean of Exeter, 1861-63; in 1863 consecrated bishop of Gloucester and Bristol. He was chairman of the British New-Testament Revision Company, 1870-81. He has published, besides sermons, lectures, and charges, the following: The History and Obligation of the Sabbath (Hulsean prize essay), Cambridge, 1844; Treatise on Analytical Studies, 1851; Critical and Grammatical Commentary on Galatians, London, 1854, 2d ed. 1859; Ephesians, 1855, 5th ed. 1884; Philippians, Colossians, and Philemon, 1857, 2d ed. 1861; Thessalonians, 1858, 4th ed. 1860; Pastoral Epistles, 1858, 5th ed. 1883; Life of our Lord (Hulsean lectures for 1859), 1860; Considerations on the Revision of the English Version of the New Testament, 1870, reprinted in volume with Lightfoot and Trench, by Dr. Schaff, New York, 1873; Modern Unbelief, 1870; The Present Dangers of the Church of England, 1878; The Being of God, 1889; Are we to modify Fundamental doctrine? Bristol, 1885. He edited A New Testament Commentary for English Readers, by Various Writers, 1877-82, 3 vols.; Handy Commentary, 1883, 13 vols. (revised from preceding); Old-Testament Commentary for English Readers, 1882-84, 5 vols.

ELLINWOOD, Frank Fields, D.D. (University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1874), Episcopalian, missionary bishop of Western Texas; b. at Beaufort, S.C., Aug. 16, 1840; graduated at South-Carolina College, Columbia, 1861; was missionary in Georgia, 1868; assistant minister in Church of the Incarnation, New York, 1870; rector of St. Philip's, Atlanta, Ga., 1871; consecrated, 1874. He was aide-de-camp to Gen. A. R. Lawton, C.S.A., 1862-63; wounded at second battle of Manassas, Aug. 28, 1862; promoted to be assistant adjutant-general of division, October, 1863; surrendered at Greensborough, N.C., with Gen. J. E. Johnston's forces, May 10, 1865.

ELLIS, George Edward, D.D. (Harvard University, 1857), LL.D. (the same, 1883); b. in Boston, Mass., Aug. 8, 1814; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1833, and at the Harvard Divinity School 1838; pastor of the Harvard Church, Charlestown, Mass., 1840-49; professor of doctrinal theology in Harvard Divinity School, 1857-63. He is the president of the Massachusetts Historical Society. He edited for many years the Christian Register and Christian Examiner. He has delivered several courses of lectures before the Lowell Institute. He has published The Half-Century of the Unitarian Controversy, Boston, 1857; Aims and Purposes of the Founders of Massachusetts, 1869; Memoir of Jared Sparks (1869), of Count Rumford (1871), of Jacob Bigelow, M.D. (1881), and of Nathaniel Thayer; History of the Battle of bunker's Hill, 1873; Introduction to the History of the First Church in Boston, 1880-88; The Red Man and the White Man, 1882; Lives of Anne Hutchinson, John Mason, and William Penn, in Sparks's American Biographies; Address at the Consecration of Woodlawn Cemetery, 1851; Oration before the City Government, on the Centennial of the Evacuation of Boston by the British Army, 1876; A Vindication of the Statute of John Harvard, Cambridge, 1884; Address on a Memorial of Chief Justice Sewall, in Old South Church, Boston, 1884; and several chapters in the Church party. He is the author of Sermons on Subjects of the Day, London, 1847.

ELLICOTT, Charles, D.D. (Ohio University, Athens, O., 1861), Presbyterian; b. at Castleton, Roxburghshire, Scotland, March 18, 1815; graduated at Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1840; studied for a year at Princeton Theological Seminary; taught in the academy at Xenia, O., 1843-45; became professor of biblical literature and exegesis; Princeton (1871), New York, 1879; A Treatise on the Inspiration of the Scriptures, Edinburgh, 1877; (with Rev. W. J. Harsha) Biblical Hermeneutics (a translation of Cellérier, Manuel d'herméneutique, 1852), New York, 1879; Mosaic Authorship of the Pentateuch, Cincinnati, 1884.

ELLICOTT, Right Rev. Robert Woodward Barnwell, D.D. (University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1874), Episcopalian, missionary bishop of Western Texas; b. at Beaufort, S.C., Aug. 16, 1840; graduated at South-Carolina College, Columbia, 1861; was missionary in Georgia, 1868; assistant minister in Church of the Incarnation, New York, 1870; rector of St. Philip's, Atlanta, Ga., 1871; consecrated, 1874. He was aide-de-camp to Gen. A. R. Lawton, C.S.A., 1862-63; wounded at second battle of Manassas, Aug. 28, 1862; promoted to be assistant adjutant-general of division, October, 1863; surrendered at Greensborough, N.C., with Gen. J. E. Johnston's forces, May 10, 1865.
MEMORIAL HISTORY OF BOSTON, AND IN THE NARRATIVE AND CRITICAL HISTORY OF AMERICA, ETC.

ELMSLIE, William Gray, M.A., English Presbyterian; b. at Insh, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, Oct. 5, 1814; graduated with first-class honors at the University of Aberdeen, 1836; studied theology at New College, Edinburgh, Berlin, and in Paris; became assistant professor of natural philosophy at Aberdeen, 1839; minister of Willesden Church, 1873; and professor of Hebrew in London Presbyterian College, 1883.

EMERTON, Ephraim, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1870), Unitarian; b. at Salem, Mass., Feb. 18, 1851; graduated at Harvard College, 1871; became instructor in history in Harvard University, 1878; and Winn professor of ecclesiastical history, 1882.

ENDERS, Ernst Ludwig, D.D. (Erlangen, 1883); Lutheran; b. at Frankfurt-am-Main, Germany, Dec. 27, 1833; studied at Heidelberg, Erlangen, and Tubingen, 1852-55; has been pastor at Oberndorf, near Frankfurt-am-Main, since 1883. He is the editor of the second edition of the Erlangen edition of Luther's works (1. Predigten, 1862-81, 21 vols.; 2. Reformations-historische und polemische deutsche Schriften, 1883-85, 3 vols.; 3. Briefwechsel, vol. I., 1507-1519, 1884, all published at Frankfurt-am-Main, except the first six vols.

ENGELSH, John Mahan, Baptist; b. at Tullytown, Bucks County, Penn., Oct. 20, 1845; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1870, and at Newton Theological Institution, 1875; became pastor in Gloucester, Mass., 1875; in Boston, 1892; and professor of homiletics, pastoral duties, and church policy, in Newton Theological Institution, Mass., 1882.

ERDMANN, (Christian Friedrich) David, D.D., German Protestant theologian; b. at Gießebiese, Mold, North Wales, June 27, 1833; studied at Cambridge; received Person prize 1838; graduated at Cambridge; 1844, priest 1846; was assistant master of Rugby College, Pittsburg, Penn., 1840; New Lisbon, O., 1844; North Bloomfield, 1849; Warren, 1851; Muir and Ionia, Mich., 1856; Detroit, 1863; Muir and Ionia, 1865; Cleveland, 1866; retired, 1868; Chicago, 1870-71. He was corresponding secretary of the Ohio Christian Missionary Society 1835-50, and president 1850-71; corresponding secretary of the American Christian Missionary Society 1857-60, and president 1874-76; president of the Foreign Christian Missionary Society since 1875. He was president of Alliance College, Alliance, Ohio, 1868-69; declined elections to the presidency of Agricultural and Mechanic College, Kentucky University, Lexington, Ky. (1889). He is professor of biblical literature in Bethany College, Bethany, W. Va. (1890), and to the professorship of homiletics in the College of the Bible, Kentucky University, Lexington, Ky. (1880). In 1884 he became a member of the International Sunday-school Committee; in 1885, one of the Council of the American Congress of Churches; in 1886, one of the executive committee of the Law and Order League of Cincinnati, O., where he has resided since 1880. He was associated with Alexander Campbell (d. 1866) in editing The Millennial Harbinger; since 1886 he has been editor-in-chief of The Christian Standard, the denominational organ. He is the author of Modern Spiritualism compared with Christianity: a Debate between Joel Tiffany, Esq., of Painesville, O., and Rev. Isaac Errett of Warren, O. (a Phonographic Report by J. D. Cox, Esq.), Warren, O., 1855; Brief View of Christian Missions, Ancient and Modern, Cincinnati, 1857; First Principles; or, The Elements of the Gospel, 1867 (twenty thousand copies issued); Walks about Jerusalem; a Search after the Landmarks of Primitive Christianity, 1872, 4th ed., St. Louis, Mo., 1884; Talks to Bereans: a Series of Twenty-three Sermons to Inquirers who acknowledge the Divine Inspiration of the Scriptures, Cincinnati, 1875, 4th ed., St. Louis, Mo., 1884; Letters to a Young Christian, Cincinnati, 1881 (two editions); Evenings with the Bible, vol. I., Studies in the Old Testament, 1883, 2d ed. 1885; Life and Writings of George Edward Flower, 1885; Our Position: a Brief Statement of the Plea urged by the People known as Disciples of Christ, 1885 (about seventy-five thousand have been issued).

EVANS, Llewelyn Ioan, D.D. (Wabash College, O., 1872), Presbyterian; b. at Teedbury, near Mold, North Wales, June 27, 1833; studied at Welsh Presbyterian College, Bala, 1846-49; graduated at Racine College, Wis., B.S., 1854, B.A. 1856, and at Laue Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O., 1860; became successively pastor of the Seminary Church, 1860; professor of church history, 1863; of biblical literature and exegesis, 1867; of New-Testament Greek and exegesis, 1875. He was a member of the Wisconsin legislature, 1856-57; and corresponding editor of The Central Christian Herald, 1863-66. He translated and edited Zöckler's commentary on Job, in the American Lange series, New York, 1874; and has published sermons, pamphlets, etc.

EVANS, Thomas Saunders, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1885), Church of England; b. at Belper, Derbyshire, March 8, 1816; entered St. John's College, Cambridge; received Porson prize 1838; graduated B.A. 1839, M.A. 1845; was ordained deacon 1844, priest 1849, was assistant master of Rugby School; since 1862 canon residentiary of Durham, and professor of Greek and classical literature in the University of Durham. He has contributed to the Sabrina Corolla and to The Expositor (1882-83, on the Revised Version of the New Testament); and published Tennyson's (Enone translated into Latin Hexameters, Cambridge, 1873; Commentary on Ian Conolly's In The Speaker's Commentary, London, 1881; The Nihilist in the Hayfield: a Latin poem, 1882.

EVERETT, Charles Carroll, D.D. (Bowdoin, 1870), Harvard, 1874), Unitarian; b. at Brunswick, Me., June 10, 1829; graduated at Bowdoin College 1851, and at the Harvard Divinity School 1859; tutor (1853-55) and professor of modern languages at Bowdoin (1855-57); minister of Unitarian Church, Bangor, Me., 1850-63; since EWALD. 67 EYRE.

1869 has been Bussey professor of theology in Harvard University, and since 1878 dean of the Harvard Divinity School. He has published The Science of Thought, Boston, 1869; Religions before Christianity: a Manual for Sunday Schools, 1883; Fichte's Science of Knowledge, Chicago, 1884.

EWALD. (Heinrich August) Paul, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1881), Lic. Theol. (Leipzig, 1883), German Protestant; b. at Leipzig, Jan. 13, 1857; studied at Leipzig and Erlangen, 1875–79; member of the Prediger Collegium of St. Paul's, Leipzig, 1880–82; became privat-docent of theology at Leipzig, 1883. He is the author of Der Einfluss der stoisch ciceronianischen Moral auf die Darstellung der Ethik bei Ambrosius, Leipzig, 1881; De vocis Metadrēluae apud scriptores novi testamenti et ac potestate, commentatio et biblico-hilologica et biblico-theologica, 1883; edited the 4th ed. of Winer's Comparative Darstellung des Lehrbegriffs der verschiedenen christlichen Kirchenparteien, 1882.

EXELL, Joseph Samuel, M.A., Church of England; b. at Melksham, Wilts, May 29, 1849; educated at Taunton and Sheffield Colleges; was ordained deacon 1881, priest 1882; was curate of Weston-super-Mare, 1881–84; and since vicar of Townstall with St. Saviour, Dartmouth, Devonshire. He is, with Canon Spence, joint editor of The Pulpit Commentary, London, 1880 sqq., and of The Homiletical Library, 1882 sqq.; and, with Canon Spence and Rev. C. Neil, of Thirty Thousand Thoughts, 1883 sqq.; sole editor of The Homiletical Quarterly since 1880; of Heart Chords, 1883 sqq.; and of The Monthly Interpreter, 1883 sqq. He has independently published Practical Readings in the Book of Jonah, and Homiletical Commentary on the Book of Exodus, 1879; with T. H. Leate, Homiletical Commentary on the Book of Genesis, 1885.

EYRE, Most Rev. Charles, archbishop of Glasgow, Roman Catholic; b. at Askam Bryan Hall, York, in the year 1817; educated at Ushaw College, Durham, and at Rome; was senior priest at St. Mary’s Cathedral, Newcastle, 1847–68; appointed in 1868 archbishop for the western district and delegate apostolic for Scotland; consecrated at Rome, Jan. 31, 1869, by the title of Archbishop of Anazarba in partibus infidelium; but when the Roman-Catholic hierarchy was restored in Scotland, March 4, 1878, he was appointed archbishop of Glasgow. He published History of St. Cuthbert, London, 1849, 8d ed. 1886.
FARRAR, Andrew Martin, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1878), Congregationalist; b. in the neighborhood of Edinburgh, Nov. 4, 1838; graduated from Edinburgh University, 1860; studied theology at the Evangelical Union Theological Hall, Glasgow, 1866–67, and at Berlin under Dörner, 1868–69; became pastor of Independent Church at Bathgate, Scotland, 1861 (during 1866 and 1867 absent in Berlin to study under Dörner); at Aberdeen, 1872; principal and professor of theology in the Congregational Theological Institution, Airdale College, Bradford, Eng., 1877; principal of Mansfield College, Oxford, 1886. He was Mair lecturer on the science of religion in the University of Edinburgh, 1878–83. He is the author of Studies in the Philosophy of Religion and History, London, 1876, New York, 1877; Studies in the Life of Christ, 1880, 4th ed. 1885, New York, 1882; The City of God, a Series of Discussions in Religion, 1883, 2d ed. 1885; Religion in History and in Life of To-day, 1884, 2d ed. 1885; and since 1871 has constantly contributed to the Contemporary Review on philosophical and theological subjects, his special field of work being the philosophy and history of religion.

FAIRCCHILD, James Harris, D.D. (Hillsdale College, Mich., 1864), Congregationalist; b. at Stockbridge, Mass., Nov. 25, 1817; graduated at Oberlin College, O., 1838, and has been connected with it since 1839, as professor of languages, 1842–47; of mathematics, 1847–58; of moral philosophy and theology, 1858–66, which chair has since 1866 been held by him along with the presidency. He has published Moral Philosophy, New York, 1869; Oberlin, the College and the Colony, 1883–88; Oberlin, and 1883; and edited Memoirs of Rev. C. G. Finney, New York, 1876, and Finny's Systematic Theology, Oberlin, 1878.

FALLOWS, Right Rev. Samuel, D.D. (Lawrence University, Wis., 1862), Congregationalist; b. at Pendleton, near Manchester, Eng., Dec. 15, 1815; graduated at Lawrence University, Wis., and at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis., graduated as valedictorian at the latter, 1839; was vice-president of Galesville University, Wis., 1856–61; chaplain of the 32d Regiment Wis. Vols., 1862; professor elect of natural sciences, Lawrence University, Wis., 1863; lieutenant-colonel 40th Wis. Vol. Infantry, and colonel 49th, 1864–65; promoted brevet-brigadier-general for meritorious services; was State superintendent of public instruction for the State of Wisconsin, 1870–73; professor elect of logic and rhetoric in the University of Wisconsin, 1873; president of Illinois Wesleyan University, Bloomington, Ill., 1874–75. From 1857 to 1875 he was a minister of the Methodist-Episcopal Church; in 1875 he became rector of St. Paul's Reformed Episcopal Church, Chicago; in 1876 was elected bishop, and given the missionary jurisdiction of the West, and still unites this with his rectorship. While superintendent of public instruction of Wisconsin he devised, and carried out through legislative action, the plan of bringing all the high and common schools of the State into direct connection with the University of Wisconsin. He also perfected the institute plan of instruction for teachers, now in operation in that State. While president of the Illinois Wesleyan University, he inaugurated in America the plan of conferring collegiate degrees, especially the higher ones, upon non-resident students and graduates, based upon a thorough written as well as oral examination on a prescribed course of study, akin to the plan pursued by the London University. He delivered, as the representative of the West, one of the addresses before the American Bible Society in Philadelphia, 1872; as fraternal delegate, addressed the General Conference of the Methodist-Episcopal Church at Cincinnati, O., 1880; delivered the annual oration before the Society of the Army of the Tennessee, at Cleveland, O., 1883. In theology he is an Arminian. He founded in 1876, and for four years edited, The Appeal, the first distinctively Reformed Episcopal Church paper, published in Chicago, Ill. (now incorporated with The Episcopal Recorder, New York). He is the compiler and editor of Bright and Happy Homes, Chicago, Ill., 1881 (several editions); Synonyms and Antonyms, 1883; Abbreviations and Contractions, 1883; Briticisms, Americanisms, Colloquial and Provincial Words and Phrases, 1883 (all three in the Standard Handbook Series); Liberty and Union, Madison, Wis., 1883; The Home Beyond, Chicago, Ill., 1884, last ed. 1886; The Progressive Dictionary (a supplement to all the standard dictionaries of the English language), 1885; Past Noon, Cincinnati, O., 1886.

FARRAR, Adam Storey, D.D. (Oxford, 1864), F.G.S., F.R.A.S., Church of England; b. in London, April 20, 1826; educated at St. Mary's Hall, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class classics and second-class mathematics), 1850; Arnold historical prizeman, Denyer's theological prizeman, 1850; M.A. (Queen's College), 1852; B.D., 1864. He was ordained deacon 1852, and priest 1853; was Michel fellow of Queen's College, Oxford, 1852–53; public examiner in classics and mathematics, 1854–66; tutor of Wadham College, 1855–64; select preacher at Oxford, 1856–67, 1868–70; preacher at Whitehall, 1858–60; Bampton lecturer, 1862; select preacher at Cambridge, 1875 and 1881. Since 1884 he has been professor of divinity and of ecclesiastical history in the University of Durham; since 1886 an examining chaplain to the bishop of Peterborough; since 1878 a canon of Durham. He has published Science in Theology (university sermons), London, 1859; Critical History of Free Thought (Bampton lectures), 1862; and miscellaneous sermons and lectures.

FARRAR, Ven. Frederic William, D.D. (Cambridge, 1878). F.R.S., archedeacon of Westminster, Church of England; b. in Bombay, India, Aug. 7, 1831; educated at King William's College, Isle of Man, and at King's College, London; gradu-
FFOULKES, Edmund Salusbury, Church of England; b. at Silverhill, County Fermanagh, Ireland, Oct. 13, 1821; was scholar of Trinity College, Dublin, 1841; took the vice-chancellor's prize for Latin verse (fourth) and for Greek verse (third), 1841; Berkeley gold medal, 1842; vice-chancellor's prize for Greek verse (second) 1842, and for Latin prose (first) 1843-44; divinity testimonium (second-class), 1845; graduated B.A. (senior moderator classics), 1843, M.A. 1846. He was ordained deacon 1847, priest 1848; became curate of Bishop Middleham, County Durham, 1847; and rector of St. Cuthbert's, York, his present charge, 1859. He was chaplain at Bex, Switzerland, 1870, and at St. Goar on the Rhine, 1873 (both under the Church Colonial and Continental Society). He is evangelical, of the Church of England type of orthodoxy. He has edited Terence, with notes, Dublin, 1844; Homer's Iliad, I.-VIII., 1846; Iliy, I.-III., 1849; Bengel's Gnomon of the New Testament, Edinburgh, 1857, 5 vols.; Fenist's Homiletics, with Notes, London, 1858; The Greek Testament (for the British and Foreign Bible Society), 1877; written, Scriptures and the Prayer-Book in Harmony, 1854; Ireland and the Irish, 1854; Faculties of the Lower Animals, 1858; vols. ii. and iv. of the Critical and Explanatory Pocket-Bible, Glasgow, 1862, 4 vols.; vols. iii. and vi. of the Critical, Experimental, and Practical Commentary (Jamieson, Fausset, and Brown's), 1868; Horae Psalmticae, London, 1877, 2d ed. 1885; The Church and the World, 1878; The Englishman's Bible Cyclopedia, 1879; The Millennium, 1880; The Signs of the Times, 1881; Prophecy a Sure Light, 1882; The Latter Rain, 1888; True Science confirming Genesis, 1884; The Personal Antichrist, 1894; Spiritualism, 1895: Expository Commentary on the Book of Judges, 1885.

FERGUSON, Right Rev. Samuel D., Episcopalian, missionary bishop of West Africa; b. in Charleston, S.C., Jan. 1, 1842; emigrated to Liberia, 1848; educated in the mission schools; became rector of St. Mark's, Harper, 1868; bishop, 1885.

FERRIS, John Mason, D.D. (Rutgers College, New Brunswick, New Jersey, 1841), Reformed (Dutch); b. at Albany, N.Y., Jan. 17, 1825; graduated at the University of the City of New York, 1843, and at the theological seminary of the Reformed Dutch Church, New Brunswick, N.J., 1849; became pastor of Reformed Churches, at Tarrytown, N.Y., 1849; Chicago (Second), Ill., 1864; and at Grand Rapids (First), Mich., 1892; corresponding secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed Church in America, 1865; editor of The Christian Intelligencer, New York (the denominational organ), 1883.

FFOULKES, Edmund Salusbury, Church of England; b. at Silverhill, County Fermanagh, Ireland, Oct. 13, 1821; was scholar of Trinity College, Dublin, 1841; took the vice-chancellor's prize for Latin verse (fourth) and for Greek verse (third), 1841; Berkeley gold medal, 1842; vice-chancellor's prize for Greek verse (second) 1842, and for Latin prose (first) 1843-44; divinity testimonium (second-class), 1845; graduated B.A. (senior moderator classics), 1843, M.A. 1846. He was ordained deacon 1847, priest 1848; became curate of Bishop Middleham, County Durham, 1847; and rector of St. Cuthbert's, York, his present charge, 1859. He was chaplain at Bex, Switzerland, 1870, and at St. Goar on the Rhine, 1873 (both under the Church Colonial and Continental Society). He is evangelical, of the Church of England type of orthodoxy. He has edited Terence, with notes, Dublin, 1844; Homer's Iliad, I.-VIII., 1846; Iliy, I.-III., 1849; Bengel's Gnomon of the New Testament, Edinburgh, 1857, 5 vols.; Fenist's Homiletics, with Notes, London, 1858; The Greek Testament (for the British and Foreign Bible Society), 1877; written, Scriptures and the Prayer-Book in Harmony, 1854; Ireland and the Irish, 1854; Faculties of the Lower Animals, 1858; vols. ii. and iv. of the Critical and Explanatory Pocket-Bible, Glasgow, 1862, 4 vols.; vols. iii. and vi. of the Critical, Experimental, and Practical Commentary (Jamieson, Fausset, and Brown's), 1868; Horae Psalmticae, London, 1877, 2d ed. 1885; The Church and the World, 1878; The Englishman's Bible Cyclopedia, 1879; The Millennium, 1880; The Signs of the Times, 1881; Prophecy a Sure Light, 1882; The Latter Rain, 1888; True Science confirming Genesis, 1884; The Personal Antichrist, 1894; Spiritualism, 1895: Expository Commentary on the Book of Judges, 1885.
FIEL D.

FIEL D, Frederick, Church of England; b. in London, in the year 1801; d. at Norwich, April 19, 1885. He was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he graduated B.A. (Tyrwhitt's Hebrew scholar, tenth wrangler, and chancellor's medallist) 1828, M.A. 1829, hon. LL.D. 1875; was fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, 1824-45; professor of Reepham, Norwich, 1842-63; elected honorary fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, 1875. He was a member of the Old Testament Revision Company. He edited the Greek text of Chrysostom's Homilies on Matthew, Cambridge, 1839, 3 vols., and all the Pauline Epistles, 1849-62, 7 vols.; Barrow's Treatise on the Pope's Supremacy, London, 1851; Grabe's text of the Septuagint, Oxford; Oium Norvicense (1. Tentamen de reliquis Aquilea, Symmachii, Theodotionis lingua Syriaca in Graecam convertendis; II. Tentamen de quibusdam vocabulis Syro-Gracisc. III., Notes on Select Passages of the Greek Testament), 3 parts, 1884-1876, 1881; Origines Hieraticorum quae supersunt, 1876-74, 2 vols.; Sermons, 1878.

FIEL D, Henry Martyn, D.D. (Williams College, 1862), Presbyterian; b. at Stockbridge, Mass., April 3, 1822; graduated at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1836, and at East Windsor Hill (now Hartford) Theological Seminary, Conn., 1841; studied at Yale Divinity School, New Haven, Conn., 1841-42; was pastor in St. Louis, Mo., 1842-47; at West Springfield, Mass., 1850-54; from 1854 has been an editor and proprietor of The Evangelist, a Presbyterian denominational weekly, published in New York City; since 1870, sole editor and proprietor. He has been an extensive traveller, having been five times in Europe, twice in the East, and once round the world. He has written The Irish Confederates, and the Rebellion of 1798, New York, 1861; Summer Pictures from Copenhagen to Venice, 1859; History of the Atlantic Telegraph, 1866; from the Lakes of Killarney to the Golden Horn, 1876; From Egypt to Jerusalem, 1877; (of the two last named, fifteen editions have been issued); On the Desert; with Reviews of Events in Egypt, 1883; Among the Holy Hills (Palestine), 1884; The Greek Islands and Turkey after the War, 1888.

FIEL D, John, D.D. (Brown University, 1866); the same degree was given him by Edinburgh University, 1886), L.L.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1879), Congregationalist; b. at Wrentham, Mass., Aug. 10, 1827; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.L., 1847, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1851; became professor of divinity (college preacher) in Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1854; professor of ecclesiastical history, 1861. He has published Essays on the Supernatural Origin of Christianity, New York, 1893, 3d ed. (enlarged) 1877; Life of Benjamin Silliman, 1880, 2 vols., new ed., Philadelphia, 1877, 1 vol.; The Reformation, New York, 1873; The Beginnings of Christianity, 1877; Faith and Rationalism, 1879; Discussions in History and Theology, 1880; The Christian Religion, 1882; Grounds of Theistic and Christian Belief, 1883; Outlines of Universal History, 1885.

FISK, Franklin Woodbury, D.D. (Olivet College, 1879), Presbyterian; b. at Hopkinton, N.H., Feb. 18, 1820; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1849, and at the Yale Divinity School, 1852; tutor in Yale College, 1851-1853; became professor of rhetoric and English literature, Beloit College, Wis., 1854; professor of sacred rhetoric in Chicago (Congregational) Theological Seminary, 1857. Besides articles, and contributions to Current Discussions in Theology (Chicago, 1864 sqq.), prepared annually by the professors of the seminary, he has published Manual of Preaching, 1864.

FITZGERALD, Oscar Penn, D.D. (Southern University, Greensboro, Alabama, 1868), Methodist (Southern branch); b. in Caswell County, North Carolina, Aug. 24, 1829; was missionary in the California mines, 1855-57; editor of Pacific Methodist, Christian Spectator, and California Teacher, in San Francisco; was superintendent of public instruction of California, 1867-71, and under his administration the State University was founded, and the Normal School fully organized and permanently located; president of Pacific Methodist College, Santa Rosa, Cal., 1872; editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, since 1878. He is the author of California Sketches, Nashville, Tenn., 1879, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1879; The Class Meeting, 1880, 2d ed. 1880; Christian Growth, 1881, 2d ed. 1881; Glimpses of Truth, 1883, 2d ed. 1885; Dr. Summers; a Life-study, 1884, 2d ed. 1885; Centenary Cameos, 1885.

FLICKINGER, Daniel Kumler, D.D. (Otterbein University, Westerville, Ohio, 1875), United Brethren in Christ; b. at Sevenmile, Ohio, May 25, 1824; educated in common schools and Germantown Academy; elected corresponding secretary of the United-Brethren Church Missionary Society, 1857, and quadrennially re-elected until 1885, when he was elected foreign missionary bishop. He has been to Africa eight times, and to Germany five times, on missionary business; has done much work upon the frontiers of the United States, and also among the Chinese. He is the author of Off-hand Sketches in Africa, Dayton, Ohio, 1857; Sermons (jointly with Rev. W. J. Shuey), 1859; Ethiopia, or Twenty-six Years of Missionary Life in Western Africa, 1877, 3d ed. 1886; The Church's Marching Orders, 1879.

FLIEDNER, Fritz, German pastor; b. at Kaiserswerth on the Rhine, June 10, 1846; studied at Halle 1863-69, and at Tübingen 1869-71; professor in the boarding school for young ladies at Hilden, 1869; chaplain to the legation of the German Empire at Madrid, and evangelist in Spain, 1870. Since 1870 he has edited Leaves from Spain, a German periodical devoted to evangelization in Spain; has written articles in different reviews, newspapers, and encyclopedias (Herzog and Brockhaus), and Blätter und Blumen, Gedichte, Heidelberg, 1885.

FLINT, Robert, B.D., L.L.D., Church of Scotland; b. near Dumfries, Scotland, in the year 1838; studied at Glasgow; was pastor from 1859 until 1864, when he became professor of moral philosophy and political economy at the University of St. Andrew's, and in 1876 professor of divinity in the University of Edinburgh. He is the author of The Philosophy of History in France and Germany, Edinburgh, 1874; Theism (Baird lectures for 1876), 1877, 6th ed. 1886; Anti-Theistic Theories (Baird lectures for 1877), 1879.

FOOTMAN, Henry, M.A., Church of England; b. at Ipswich, Feb. 10, 1831; educated at St. Peter's College, Cambridge, where, after having Frank, Franz Hermann Reinhold, Ph.D., Lic. Theol. (both Leipzig, 1851), D.D. (from Erlangen, 1859), German Evangelical Lutheran theologian; b. at Altenburg, March 25, 1827; studied at Leipzig, FRANK.

FRASER, Right Rev. James, D.D. (Oxford, 1870), lord bishop of Manchester, Church of England; b. at Presbury, near Cheltenham, Aug. 18, 1818; d. at Manchester, Thursday, Oct. 22, 1885. He was scholar of Lincoln College, Oxford, 1839-39; Irish scholar, and in the first class in classics, 1838; graduated B.A. 1840, M.A. (Oriel) 1842. He was fellow of Oriel College, 1840-40; tutor, 1842-47; ordained deacon 1846, priest 1847; was rector of Cholderton, Wilts, 1847-70; select preacher, Oxford, 1854, 1882, 1872, 1877; chancellor of Sarum Cathedral, 1858-80; rector of Ufton-Nevet, Berks, 1860-70; prebendary of Bishopston, in Sarum Cathedral, 1861-70. In 1870 he was consecrated bishop of Manchester. He is the author of Siz Sermones preached before the dean and chapter of York, 1859; editor of the special reports presented to Parliament on education (1860), on education in the United States and Canada (1867), and on the employment of children, young persons, and women in agriculture (1868). He was a most faithful Prelate, and hastened his death by overwork, for he had not taken adequate rest for several years.

FREMANTLE, Rev. the Honorable William Henry; b. at Swanbourne, Buckinghamshire, Dec. 12, 1831; educated at Eton and at Balliol College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1853; gained the prize for the English essay in 1854; M.A. (All Souls' College) 1857; and was fellow of All Souls' College from 1854 to 1864; ordained deacon 1855, priest 1856; was curate of Middle Claydon, 1855-57; vicar of Lewknor, 1857-65; chaplain to Dr. Tait while the bishop of London (1861-68), and archbishop of Canterbury, 1869-92; rector of St. Mary's, Bryantspl. Square, London, 1855-65; chaplain of H.M. 70. n 1870 he was consecrated bishop of Manchester, Cheshire, and petty statesman; dean, 1867; fellow and tutor of Balliol College, Oxford, since 1882; Bampton lecturer in 1888. His theological standpoint is in the main similar to that of the late Dr. Arnold, Dean Stanley, and Richard Rothe. He is the author of Ecclesiastical Judgments of the Privy Council, London, 1865; The Doctrine of Reconciliation to God through Jesus Christ, 1870; The Gospel of the Secular Life, 1882; The World as the Subject of Redemption (Bampton lectures), 1885; and various separate sermons, pamphlets, and articles in the Contemp. and Edin. Reviews. Franciscus, Right Rev. Charles Emilie, Roman Catholic; b. at Obernai (Bas Rhin), France, July 1, 1827; studied at Strasbourg; was ordained priest, 1849; taught philosophy in Paris, 1850-53; was chaplain of St. Genevieve, 1853; dean, 1867; professor of sacred eloquence in the faculty of Catholic theology at Paris, 1854-70, and greatly distinguished himself. He was called in 1869 to Rome, to assist in the preliminary arrangements for the Vatican Council, and was pronounced in favor of the papal-infallibility dogma. He was consecrated bishop of Angers in 1870, and has made a vigorous prelim ate, being active in organizing the pilgrimages to Paray-le-Monial, Puyc, and elsewhere, in 1872 and 1873, and in founding a Catholic university at Angers. In 1880 he was returned as deputy from Brest, and attracted great notice by the frequency and violence of his opposition to the government, and by his outspoken ultramontanism. His works are numerous. Among them are, Les Pères apostoliques et leur époque, Paris, 1859, 2d ed. 1870; Les apologistes chrétiens au dixième siècle, 1860, 3d ed. 1888; St. Irénée, 1861; Examen critique de la vie de Jésus, de M. Renan, 1863 (numerous editions); Conférences sur la divine de Jésus Christ, 1883; Tertullien, 1864, 2 vols.; St. Cyprien, 1865, 3d ed. 1875; Clément d’Alexandrie, 1865, 2d ed. 1873; Examen critique des apôtres de M. Renan, 1866; Origène, 1868; Œuvres pastorales ordinaires, 1860–64, 4 vols.; Œuvres paléochrétiennes, 1871–76, 2 vols.; L’Eglise et les ouvriers, 1876; Les devoirs du chrétien dans la vie civile, 1876; La vie chrétienne, 1879 (Lenten sermons delivered in the chapel of the Tuileries, 1862).

FRIEDLAENDER, Michael, Ph.D. (Halle, 1862), Hebrew; b. at Istrichin, Prussia, April 29, 1833; studied at Berlin under Protestant and Hebrew teachers; was director of the Institute for Talmudic instruction, in Berlin, and since 1865 has been principal of the Jews’ College, London; and under the auspices of the Society of Hebrew Literature, he has published The Commentary of Ibn Ezra on Genesis, edited from M.S., and translated, with Notes, Introductions, and Glossary, London, 1873–77, 3 vols.; The Guide of the Perplexed of Maimonides, translated from the original text and annotated, 1882–83, 3 vols.; and a revision of the Authorized Version with the Hebrew text, The Jewish Family Bible, 1893.

FRIEDEL, Moritz, Lic. Theol. (Bonn, 1840), D.D. (Breslau, 1848), Roman Catholic; b. at Meisenheim, Germany, Sept. 1, 1810; became priest 1837, repented at Bonn 1839, and privat-docent 1840; professor extraordinary of ethics and of New-Testament exegesis at Breslau, 1845; ordinary professor, 1847. He is the author of Archäologie der Leidensgeschichte unser Herrn Jesu Christi, Bonn, 1843; Synopsis Evangeliorum, Breslau, 1847; De codicibus Sibyllinorum manusc. in usum criticism monum adhuc latum, 1847; Oracula Sibyllina rec. proleg. illustr. vers. germ. inruit, Leipzig, 1852; Schrift, Tradition und kirchliche Schriftauslegung, oder die katholische Lehre von den Quellen der christlichen Heilsurh von an den Zeugnissen der fünf ersten christlichen Jahrhunderte geprüft, Breslau, 1854; Geschichte des Lebens Jesu Christi mit chronolog. u. an der histor. Untersuchungen, 1855, 3d ed. Münster, 1886; Erinnerungen und Kritiken, Sondervorlesungen an Dr. Sepp, 1857; Prolegomena zur bibl. Hermeneutik, 1868.

FRIEDRICH, Johann, D.D. (Munich, 1862), Old Catholic, b. at Pozdorf, Upper Franconia, Bavaria, May 8, 1836; studied at Bamberg and Munich; was ordained priest, June 4, 1859; became privat-docent 1862, and in 1865 professor extraordinary of theology in the University of Munich. In 1869 he accompanied Cardinal Hohenlohe to the Vatican Council, in the capacity of "theologian," but was there severely criticized because he took Dörflinger's position of hostility to the infallibility dogma, and left Rome before the council closed. He flatly refused to accept the dogma, and therefore, as archiepiscopal orders, attendance upon his lectures was forbidden, April 13, 1871, and he was excommunicated, April 17. Nevertheless, he continued to exercise priestly functions, kept his academic position, indeed was promoted, for in June, 1872, he became ordinary professor of doctrinal history, symbols, patrology, Christian archaeology, and literature; but in 1882 was removed to the philosophical faculty as professor of history, by request of the Ultramontanes. Although prominent in the organization of the Old Catholic Church, he has kept aloof from it since 1878, because opposed to its abolition of enforced celibacy. His writings embrace Johann Wessell, Regensburg, 1862; Die Lehre des Johann Huy u. ihre Bedeutung für die Entwicklung der neueren Zeit, 1882; Astrologie und Reformation, Munich, 1885; Die kirchliche Lehre des Rupert, Bamberg, 1886; Kirchengeschichte des neunten Jahrhunderts, Bamberg (1867, 1 Bd. 1 Thl., Die Römerzeit; 1889, 2 Bd. 1 Thl., Die Merowingerzeit); Drei (bisher unedierte) Concilien aus der Merowingerzeit, 1887; Tagebuch während des Vatikan. Concils geführter, Nordlingen, 1871, 2d ed. 1873; Documenta ad illustrandum concilium Vaticanum anni 1870, 1871, 2 vols.; Joannis de Terracronemata, De potestate papae et concilii generalis tractatus, Innsbruck, 1871; Zur Vertieftung meines Tagebuch, 1872; Der Mechanismus der Vatican. Religion, 1st and 2d ed. 1876; Beiträge zur Kirchengeschichte des 18. Jahrh., Munich, 1876; Geschichte der Vatican. Concils, Bonn, 1 Bd. 1877, 2 Bd. 1883, 3 Bd. 1886; Zur ältesten Geschichte des Primates in der Kirche, 1879; Beiträge zur Geschichte des Jesus-Ordens, Munich, 1881.

FROTHINGHAM, Octavius Brooks, A.M., Rationalist; b. in Boston, Mass., Nov. 26, 1822; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1843; became clergyman at Salem, Mass., 1847; Jersey City, N.J., 1855; New-York City, 1859; resigned from ill health, 1879. He is the author of Stories from the Lips of the Teacher, Retold by a Disciple, Boston, 1863, ed. New York, 1875; Stories of the Patriarchs, Boston, 1864, 2d ed. New York, 1876; A Child's Book of Religion, Boston, 1866, 3d ed. New York, 1876; The Religion of Humanity, Boston, 1872, 3d ed. New York, 1873; Life of Theodore Parker, Boston, 1874; Safest Creed, and Ten Other Discourses of Reason, by New York, 1874; A History of Transcendentalism in New England, 1876; Knowledge and Faith, and other Discourses, 1876; The Cradle of the Christ, 1877; Creed and Conduct, and other Discourses, 1878; Gerrit Smith: a Biography, 1875; Visions of the Future, and other Discourses, 1879; George Ripley, Boston, 1882.

FRY, Benjamin St. James, D.D. (Quincy, now Chaddock, College, 1871), Methodist; b. at Rutledge, Grainger County, Tenn., June 16, 1824; studied at Sewickley College, three years, but did not graduate; entered the ministry, and the Ohio Conference, 1847; was president of the Worthington Female College, O., 1856-60; chaplain 63d Regiment Ohio Volunteers, 1861-64; in charge of St. Louis branch of the Western Methodist Book Concern, 1865-72; and since has been editor of The Central Christian Advocate, St. Louis. He was member of the London Methodist Ecumenical Conference, and of the Centennial Conference at Baltimore, and read an essay on the Methodist press. He is the author of Property Consecrated (prize essay on systematic beneficence), New York, 1856, last ed. 1884; Lives of Bishops Whatcoat, McKendree, George, and Roberts, 4 vols.; besides articles in reviews, etc.

FULLER, John Mead, Church of England; b. in London, Dec. 4, 1855; entered St. John's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. and Crosse University scholar, and was elected to a fellowship in his degree, 1880; took a first-class in the theological tripos, 1880; was Tyndall's University scholar, 1880; graduated M.A., 1882; took Kaye University prize, 1883; was ordained deacon 1886; priest 1881; curate in Ealing, 1880-92; South Audley Street, London, 1892-93; Pimlico, 1893-70; editorial secretary of the Society for the Promotion of Christian Knowledge (S.P.C.K.), 1870-74; since 1874 he has been vicar of Bexley, Kent; and since 1889 professor of ecclesiastical history in King's College, London. Besides articles in Smith's and Ward's Dict. Eccles. Biography, he has written or edited the following: An Essay on the Authenticity of the Book of Daniel (the Kaye prize essay), Cambridge, 1864; Harmony of the Gospels, 1872; The Book of Daniel, in The Speaker's Commentary, 1875, 2d ed. 1880; The Student's Commentary (founded on The Speaker's Commentary), 1879 sqq.

FULLERTON, John, D.D. (Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., 1862), Free Baptist; b. at Raymond, N.H., Aug. 3, 1832; graduated at Dartmouth College, 1840, and from the Biblical School, Whitestown, N.Y., 1849; became principal of North Parsonfield Academy, Me., 1840; of the Whitestown Seminary, N.Y., 1843; professor in the Free Baptist Theological School since 1851 (the school, then at Whitestown, in 1854 was removed to New Hampton, N.H., but since 1870 has been a department of Bates College, Lewiston, Me., the Teacher Retold in the New-Hampshire Legislature, 1863; a member of the House in that legislature, 1867.

FUNK, Otto, German Protestant; b. at Wülf- rath, near Elberfeld, Germany, March 9, 1836; studied at Hall, Tubingen, and Bonn; was pastor at Halpe, in the Rhine Mountains, 1862-68; and since 1868 has been pastor of the Friedenskirche, Bremen. He is the author of Reisebilder und Heimathkünfte, Bremen, 3 series, 1869 (11th ed. 1886), 1871 (6th ed. 1886), 1872 (5th ed. 1886); Die Schule des Lebens; oder, christliche Lebensbilder im Lichte des Buches Jonas, 1871, 6th ed. 1885, reprinted New York (American Tract Society), 1879 (English trans., The School of Life: Life Pictures from the Book of Jonah. 1885, 2d ed. 1886); Christliche Fragzeizicken, 1873, 11th ed. 1885; Verwandlungen, 1873, 4th ed. 1885; Tügliche Andachten, 1874, 4th ed. 1885; Gottes Weisheit auf der Kinderstube, 1876, 5th ed. 1880; St. Paulus und Cincinnati, 1877, 7th ed. 1884; Figur, Leid, Arbeit, 1879, 6th ed. 1886; Seelenkämpfe und Seelenfrieden, 1881, 3d ed. 1885; Willst du gesund werden? 1882; Englische Bilder in deutscher Beleuchtung, 1883, 5th ed. 1886; Die Welt des Glaubens und die Alltagswelt, 1885.

FUNK, Franz Xavier, Ph.D., Lie. Theol., D.D. (all Tubingen, 1883, 1871, 1875, respectively), Roman Catholic; b. at Abstumünd, Württemberg, Germany, Oct. 12, 1840; studied theology and philosophy at Tubingen, 1869-68, and theology in the priests' seminary at Rotenburg, 1868-69; was curate at Waldsee, 1864-68; studied political economy in Paris, 1863-68; became repenter in Tubingen, 1866; professor extraordinary of church history, patrology, and archaeology, 1870; ordinary professor, 1875. He is the author of Zins und Wucher, eine moraltheologische Abhandlung, Tubingen, 1868; Die nationalökonom. Anschauung der mittelalterlichen Theologen, 1869; Geschichte des kirchlichen Zinsverhältnisses, 1878; Die Echtheit der Ignatianischen Briefe auf neue vertieft. Mit e. literar. Beilage: Die alte Lateinische Ubersetzung der Urheber'schen Sammlung der Ignatiusbriefe u. d. Polyparkriefes, 1883; Lehrbuch der Kirchengeschichte, Rotenburg, 1886; and many articles. He edited the 5th ed. of Hefele's Opera patrum apostolorum, 1878-81, 2 vols.

FUNK, Isaac Kauffman, D.D. (Wittenberg
College, Springfield, O., 1882), Lutheran (General Synod); b. at Clifton, Greene County, O., Sept.
10, 1839; graduated at Wittenberg College, 1860;
entered the ministry of the Lutheran Church, 1861; was pastor at Carey, O., 1862-64; in Brooklyn, N.Y. (St. Matthew's Evangelical Lutheran), 1865-72; resigned, and went to Europe, Egypt, and Palestine; on return was associate editor of Christian Radical, Pittsburg, Penn., 1872-73; editor of The Union Advocate, N.Y., 1873-75; started Complete Preacher, 1877; changed the name of the former to Homiletic Monthly, and combined it with the second, October, 1878; enlarged the Monthly, and called it Homiletic Review, January, 1885; began book-publishing in 1877.

FUNKHOUSE, George Absalom, D.D. (Otterbein University, 1879), United Brethren; b. at Mount Jackson, Shenandoah County, Va., June
7, 1841; graduated from Otter-bein University, Westervility, O., 1868, and from Western (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, Alleghany, Penn., 1871; and since has been professor of New-Testament exegesis in Union Biblical Seminary, Dayton, O.

FURMAN, James Clement, D.D., Baptist; b. in Charleston, S.C., Dec. 5, 1809; was educated in Charleston College, —; studied medicine, but in 1828 was baptized, and began to preach; conducted revival services; was pastor at Society Hill, S.C.; —; in 1843 became professor in Furman Theological Institution, now Furman University, Greenvillle, S.C., of which he was president many years, and is now professor of intellectual and moral philosophy, logic, and rhetoric.

FURNESS, William Henry, D.D. (Harvard, 1847), Unitarian; b. in Boston, Mass., April 20, 1802; graduated from Harvard College, 1820; studied theology, and was ordained pastor of the First Unitarian Congregational Church, Philadelphia, Penn., Jan. 12, 1825, and held the office until his retirement in 1875. He was a leading abolitionist, and is the author of Remarks on the Four Gospels, Philadelphia, 1835, London, 1837; Jesus and his Biographers, 1838; Domestic Worship (a volume of prayers), 1842, new ed. 1856;
A History of Jesus, Philadelphia and London, 1850, new ed. 1853; Discourses, 1855; Thoughts on the Life and Character of Jesus of Nazareth, Boston, 1859; Veil partly uplifted, 1864; The Unconscious Truth of the Four Gospels, Philadelphia, 1869; Jesus, 1871; The Power of Spirit manifest in Jesus of Nazareth, 1877; The Story of the Resurrection told once more, 1885; Verses: Translations and Hymns, Boston, 1886; numerous discourses, mostly on abolition, both in pamphlet form and in the Pennsylvania Freeman and Anti-slavery Standard. He has also translated from the German Schubert's Mirror of Nature, 1849; Genus of German Verse, 1851; Julius, and other Tales, 1856; and Schenkel's Character of Jesus portrayed, Boston, 1866, 2 vols. He edited The Diadem, an annual published in Philadelphia, 1843-47.

FURRER, Konrad, D.D. (Bern, 1879), Swiss Protestant theologian; b. at Fluntern, near Zürich, Nov. 5, 1838; studied at Zürich, 1857-62; was ordained, 1862; from 1864 to 1876, pastor in various places of the canton of Zürich:
since 1876, pastor of St. Peter's, Zürich. In 1863 he made an exploring tour through Palestine; in 1869 he became privat-docent for biblical archaeology in the University of Zürich, but did not lectured from 1871 until 1885, when on the death of Biedermann he resumed his position, and now lectures upon the history of religion. He is also a Kirchenrat of the canton (since 1885), and teacher of religion in the Zürich female seminary.
In theology he is a liberal, right wing. He is the author of Rudolph Collin, der Freund Zwinglis, Halle, 1862; Wanderungen durch Palæstina, Zürich, 1865 (French trans., Geneva, 1886); Die Bedeutung der biblischen Geographie für die biblische Exegese, Zürich, 1870; of the majority of the geographical, zoological, and botanical articles in Schenkel's Billet-lexicon, Leipzig, 1869-75; of many essays, e.g., Die religiösgeschichtliche Bedeutung Jerusalems (in Zeitstimmen, 1880); Israel als Volk des Morgenlandes (in the same, 1887); Die Religion im Jugendalter der Menschheit (in Reform, 1878);
Die allgemeine Religionsgeschichte und die religiöse Bildung (in Meili's Theolog. Zeitschrift, 1884); has in preparation an entire reconstruction of Raumer's Palæstina.

GAILEY, Matthew, Reformed Presbyterian; b. at Rathdonell, near Letterkenny, County Donegal, Ireland, Dec. 16, 1853; graduated at Queen's College, Belfast, 1866; studied theology in Belfast and Edinburgh; b. in 1868 pastor of the Third Reformed Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, U.S.A.; and since 1876 professor of biblical literature in the Reformed Presbyterian Seminary, Philadelphia. He was moderator of the General Synod, 1885; and has published Christian Patriotism (a sermon), Philadelphia, 1875, 2 editions; Wreaths and Gems (poems), 1882.

GAILEY, Matthew, Reformed Presbyterian; b. at Jackson, Miss., Sept. 17, 1856; graduated at the Episcopal Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1879; became pastor of the Church of the Messiah, Pulaski, Tenn., 1879; professor of ecclesiastical history in the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1882, and has been chaplain of the university since 1883. He is in hearty sympathy with the "Oxford movement" in the English Church, as represented by Canon Liddon in England, and Dr. DeKoven in the United States. He is the author of occasional sermons, and articles in reviews; and of Manual of Devotions for Schoolboys, New York, 1886.

GALLOWAY, Right Rev. John Nicholas, S.T.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1875), Episcopal, bishop of Louisianans; b. at Washington, Ky., Feb. 17, 1869; educated at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville; studied law, and graduated at the Brockenborough Law School at Lexington, Va.; began practice at Louisville, Ky.; was successively rector in New Orleans, La.; Baltimore, Md.; Zion Church, New-York City; consecrated, 1880. He served in the Confederate Army during the war, enlisting as a private in 1861; was captured at Fort Donelson, and imprisoned several months; when exchanged, he was made aide-de-camp to General Buckner, and assistant rector at Middletown, Conn.; and the next year a professor in the Berkeley (Episcopal) Divinity School there (1888-82 of Old Testament literature and language, and since 1883 of New-Testament literature and interpretation). He is the author of The Island of Life, an Allegory, Boston, 1851; Commentary on the Epistle of St. Jude, 1856; Harmony of the Gospels in Greek, Andover, 1871, 7th ed. subsequent; Diatessaron, The Life of our Lord in the Words of the Gospels, 1871, 2d ed. subsequently; The Principles of Textual Criticism, 1876; The Old and New Testaments in their Mutual Relations, New York, 1885. He wrote the commentary on Leviticus (incorporating that of Christi College, 1852-77; select preacher, 1859; Grinfield lecturer on the Septuagint, 1859; senior proctor, 1860-81; examiner in "Rud. Fid. et Relig." 1881-82; since 1856 he has been one of the four city lecturers at St. Martin Carfax, Oxford; since 1861, Laudian professor of Arabic; since 1870, examining chaplain to the bishop of Bath and Wells; since 1874, fellow of Hertford College, Oxford, and prebendary of Ashill in Wells Cathedral; since 1880 canon of Wells Cathedral, since 1884 precentor. He is the author of The Prophecy of Joel, in Hebrew, poetically arranged, London, 1849; Jehovah Gouletau (sermon), 1853; The Greater Glory of the Second Temple (sermon), 1858; edited Lightfoot's Horae Hebraicae et Talmudicae, 1859, 4 vols.; contributed commentary on Amos, Nahum, and Zephaniah to The Bible (Speaker's) Commentary, 1879.

GANSE, Hervey Doddridge, Presbyterian; b. at Fishkill, Dutchess County, N.Y., Feb. 27, 1822; studied at the New-York University, 1835-38; graduated at Columbia College in the same city, 1839, and at the Reformed Dutch Theological Seminary, New Brunswick, N.J., 1843; became pastor of Reformed Dutch Church, Freehold, N.J., 1843; of the North-west (afterwards Madison-avenue) Reformed Church, New-York City, 1856; of the First Presbyterian Church, St. Louis, Mo., 1875; corresponding secretary of the Presbyterian Board for colleges and academies, 1883 (the year of its establishment). He is the author of printed sermons, addresses, review articles; a pamphlet, Bible Slaveholding, New York, 1853; a discussion of The Sabbath's Claim on Christian Consciences (read before the General Council of the Reformed Churches, Philadelphia, 1880), and of a number of hymns.

GARDNER, Frederic, D.B. (Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1869), Episcopal; b. at Gardner, Me., Sept. 11, 1822; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1842; was rector of Trinity Church, Saco, Me., 1845-47; assistant minister, St. Luke's, Philadelphia, Penn., 1847-48; rector of Grace Church, Bath, Me., 1848-53; and of Trinity Church, Lewiston, Me., 1855-56. In 1865 he became professor of the literature and interpretation of Scripture in Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary, Gambier, Ohio, in 1867, assistant rector at Middletown, Conn.; and the next year a professor in the Berkeley (Episcopal) Divinity School there (1868-82 of Old Testament literature, and since 1883 of New-Testament literature and interpretation). He is the author of The Island of Life, an Allegory, Boston, 1851; Commentary on the Epistle of St. Jude, 1856; Harmony of the Gospels in Greek, Andover, 1871, 7th ed. 1884; Harmony of the Gospels in English, 1871, 3d ed. subsequently; Diatessaron, The Life of our Lord in the Words of the Gospels, 1871, 2d ed. subsequently; The Principles of Textual Criticism, 1876; The Old and New Testaments in their Mutual Relations, New York, 1885. He wrote the commentary on Leviticus (incorporating that of...
GARLAND.

Lange) in the American Lange series, New York, 1876; and that upon Second Samuel (1883) and Ezekiel (1894) in Bishop Ellicott's Old-Testament Commentary, for English Readers, London and New York.

GARLAND, Landon Cabel, LL.D. (Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky., 1846), Methodist-Episcopal Church South, layman; b. in Nelson County, Va., March 21, 1810; graduated at Hampden-Sidney College, Prince Edward County, Va., 1829; became professor of chemistry and natural philosophy in Washington College, Lexington, Va., 1830; professor of the same in Randolph-Macon College, then in Mecklenburg County (since 1860 at Ashland), Va., 1833; president of the college, 1837; professor of mathematics and physics in the University of Alabama, 1840; professor of physics and astronomy in the University of Mississippi, at Oxford, 1846; became professor of theology in the University of Mississippi, Oxford, Miss., 1876; professor of English, Old Testament, New Testament, and Old-Testament theology. He has written articles upon Old-Testament science, etc.

GARRISON, Joseph Fithian, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1879), Episcopalian; b. at Fairton, Cumberland County, N. J., Jan. 20, 1823; graduated from the College of New Jersey at Princeton, 1849, and from the University of Pennsylvania, 1851; entered the Episcopal ministry in 1855, and became rector of St. Paul's Church, Camden, N. J.; but since 1881 has been professor of liturgics and canon law in the Episcopal Divinity School in Philadelphia, Penn. He has published numerous sermons, also articles upon ecclesiastical history and canon law. He was a member of the commission for the revision of the Prayer Book.

GARRUCCI, Raffaele, Roman Catholic; b. at Naples, Jan. 23, 1812; d. at Rome, May 5, 1885. He was a Jesuit, and a famous archaeologist, especially in iconography. He devoted himself almost entirely to the history of early Christian art, but at the time of his death he had just completed a history of Italian coinage from its origin to the present time. Of his other great works may be mentioned, Monumenta reipublica Ligurum Bobonorum, Rome, 1847; Monumenti del Museo Lateranense, 1881; Storia dell' Arte Cristiana nei primi otto secoli della Chiesa, Prato, 1872—90, 6 vols. He was also a profound student of minor subjects. See American Journal of Archaeology, i. 309.

GASS, Friedrich Wilhelm Johann Heinrich, Ph.D. (Berlin, 1838), Lic. Theol. (Breslau, 1839), D.D. (Greifswald, 1843), German Protestant (United Evangelical Church); b. at Breslau, Nov. 28, 1813; studied at Breslau, Halle, and Berlin, 1832—36; became priores-docent of theology at Breslau, 1839; professor extraordinary, 1845; the same at Greifswald, 1847; ordinary professor, 1853; at Giessen, 1861; at Heidelberg, 1868. In 1885 he was made an ecclesiastical councillor. In theology he is a moderate Liberal. Besides numerous articles in reviews, etc., he has written Gennadius und Pseudo, Aristotelismus u. Platonismus in d. griechischen Kirche, parts 1 and 2, Breslau, 1841; Georg Calixt u. d. Synkretismus, 1846; Die Mystik d. Nikolaus Kabasilas vom Leben in Christo, Erste Ausgabe u. einleitende Darstellung, Greifswald, 1849; Schleiermachers Briefwechsel mit J. Chr. F. von Wattenwyl, 2 vols., Berlin, 1855. He was a Jesuit, and a famous ecologist, and has since in Great Britain and America repeatedly lectured upon the evils of the papal system. In 1890 he went with Garibaldi to Sicily. In 1870 he was again in Italy; in 1891 he made his last visit to America. He was one of the organizers of the Free Italian Church (1870), and of its theological college in Rome (1873), in which he is professor of dogmatics, apologetics, and polemics. He is the author of Memoirs, London, 1851; Orations, 1852; Recollections of the last Four Popes, 1859; No Union with Rome: an antireformen, 1871; The Priest in Absolution, 1877.

See Father Gaetano’s Life and Lectures, New York, 1853.

GERBARDT, Oscar Leopold von, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1873). Lic. Theol. (hon., Leipzig, 1883), D.D. (hon., Marburg, 1889), Lutheran; b. at Wiesbaden in Estland, Russia, June 22, 1844; student at Dorpat, 1862–66, Tübingen, Erlangen, Göttingen, and Leipzig, 1867–70; assistant in the library of the University of Leipzig, 1873–76; custos and sub-librarian of the University of Halle, 1876–79; sub-librarian of the University of Göttingen, 1880–94; since 1894 has been librarian of the Royal Library, Berlin. His publications are, Græcus Vetus (the Pentateuch, Proverbs, Ruth, Canticles, Ecclesiastes, Lamentations, and Daniel, edited from a Greek MS. discovered in the library of St. Mark’s, Venice), Leipzig, 1875; Novum Testamentum Graece (the 11th to 14th ed. of Tischendorf), 1876, 1878, 1883, 1885; Patrum Apostolicorum Opera (in connection with A. Harnack and Zahn), 1875–77, 3 vols.; the same, editio minor, 1877; Evangeliorum codex Græcum purpureum Rossanensii (Seine Entdeckung, sein wissenschaftlicher und künstlerischer Werth dargestellt [with A. Harnack], 1880; Das N. T. griechisch nach Tischendorfs letzter Rezension, 1881, 2d (stereotyped) ed. 1884; N. T. Graece, Recensionis Tischendorffianae ultima textum cum Tregellesiano edito, 1881, 2d (stereotyped) ed. 1881; Texte u. Untersuchungen zur Geschichte der alchristlichen Literatur; (in connection with A. Harnack), since 1883; Zehn handelsfliche, Ueberehrung von græischen Apologisten: 1. Der Arbeitescode, Bd. I. Heft 3 (1883); Die Evangelien d. Matthaeus u. d. Marcus aus d. Codex Ross. (see above), Bd. I. Heft 4 (1883); Ein überschneites Fragment der ∆θηγγι. in alter latinaeischer Uebersetzung mitgetheilt, Bd. II. Heft 2 (1884); The Miniatures of the Ashburnham Pentateuch, London, 1883.

GEDEN, John Dury, D.D. (St. Andrew’s, Scotland), 1885; Wesleyan; b. at Hastings, Eng., May 4, 1822; educated at Kingswood School, near Bristol (1830–36), then privately; was pro-bationist for the Wesleyan ministry, 1846; ordained, 1850; was assistant classical tutor in the Wesleyan Theological College, Richmond, Surrey, 1846–51; professor of Hebrew and biblical literature in the Wesleyan Theological College, Didsbury, near Manchester, 1859–83; resigned through failure of health, and died in the month of March, 1886. He was a member of the British Old-Testament Revision Company, 1870–85. He was the author of the Fernald lectures for 1874, The Doctrine of a Future Life, as contained in the Old-Testament Scriptures, 2d ed. 1877; and Didsbury Sermons: Fifteen Discourses preached in the Wesleyan College Chapel, 1878.

GÉKIE, Cunningham, D.D. (Queen’s University, Canada, 1871), Church of England; b. in Edinburgh, Scotland, Oct. 26, 1824; educated at Queen’s College, Toronto; and was pastor of Argyle-street Presbyterian Church, Halifax, N.S., 1851–54; Argyle-street, Sunderland, Eng., 1860–67; Islington Chapel, London, 1867–78. In 1876 he was ordained deacon in the Church of England, and priest the following year. From 1876 to 1879 he was curate of St. Peter’s, Lordship Lane, Dulwich, near London; from 1879 to 1881, rector of Christ Church, Paris; from 1882 to 1883, vicar of St. Mary Magdalene, Barnstaple; and since has been vicar of St. Martin-at-Palace, Norwich. He holds the old “evangelical” views of Christianity, with the right to the fullest investigation in every direction. He is the author of Entering on Life, a Book for Young Men, London, 1874, 4th ed. 1884; The Great and Prejudicial Promises, or Light beyond, 1875, 4th ed. 1884; The English Reformation, 1875, 11th ed. 1883; The Life and Words of Christ, 1876, 30th ed. 1885; Old-Testament Characters, 1877, 2d ed. 1884; Hours with the Bible, 1880–85, 6 vols. (completing the Old Testament).

GERHART, Emanuel Vogel, D.D. (Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1857), Reformed (German); b. at Freeburg, Penn., June 13, 1817; graduated from Marshall College, 1838, and from Mercersburg (Penn.) Theological Seminary, 1841; became successively pastor at Gettysburg, Penn., 1843; missionary among foreign Germans at Cincinnati, O., 1849; professor of theology in the theological department, and president, of Heidelberg College, Tiffin, O., 1851; president of Franklin and Marshall College, 1855; vice-president and professor of moral philosophy, 1869; professor of systematic and practical theology in the Reformed Theology Seminary, 1868 (then at Mercersburg, but since 1871 at Lancaster, Penn.). He is the author of Philosophy and Logic, Philadelphia, 1858; and many articles in reviews and encyclopedias.

GEROK, Karl (Friedrich), D.D. (hon., Tubingen, 1877), Lutheran; b. at Vaihingen, Württemberg, Jan. 30, 1815; studied in the Stuttgart gymnasium, under Gustav Schwab; and from 1832 to 1836 in the theological seminary at Tübingen, where he was rector from 1840 to 1843. In 1844 he became diakonos at Böblingen; in 1849, diakonos at Stuttgart; in 1852, deacon (superintendent) there; in 1868, chief cencillor of the consistory, and prelate. He is a renowned preacher, and Germany’s foremost religious poet. He belongs to the “Positive Union” party in the Church. He has published the following prose volumes: Gebet des Herrn in Gebeten, Stuttgart, 1854, 5th ed. 1883; Evangelienpredigten, 1855, 7th ed. 1889; Epistelpredigten, 1857, 6th ed. 1880; Pilgerbrot, 1866, 4th ed. 1882; Die Apostelgeschichte in Bihelstunden, 1868, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1882; Aus einer Zeit, 1873; Jugendserinnerungen (his autobiography), 1876 (3 editions in six months); Hirtentimmen, 1876, 2d ed. 1882. He furnished the homiletic portion of Lechler’s volume on Acts for Lange’s Commentary (Elberfeld, 1890, 4th ed. 1881, American ed. New York). He also edited Paul Gerhardt’s Geistliche Lieder, Leipzig 3d ed. 1883; Matthias Claudius’, Gotha, 1857; Die Wiitemberger Nachtigall, Stuttgart, 1853; and Luther’s Geistliche Lieder, Stuttgart, 1853.

But Karl Gerok’s poems have given him his widest fame: Palmblätter, Stuttgart, 1857, 51st ed. 1883 (in several editions, plain and illustrated; English
GESS. 79  GLASGOW.

GESS, Wolfgang Friedrich, D.D. (Basel, 1864), Luthertv. 15 at Kircheim in Würtemberg, July 27, 1819; studied at Tubingen, 1837-41; was assistant pastor, repeated, and pastor in Würtemberg, 1841-50; theological tutor in the Missions House at Basel, and member of the board of directors, 1850-64; ordinary professor of theology at Göttingen, 1864-71; the same at Breslau, and member of the Silesian Consistory, 1871-80; general superintendent of the province of Posen, 1880; emeritus, 1885. He is the author of Christi Person und Werk, Basel, 1870-80, 3 parts: Bibelstunden über Joh. xii.-xxi., 1871, 14th ed. 1886; Bibelstunden über Rom. iv.-vi., 1885, and minor works.

GIBSON, His Eminence James, Cardinal, D.D. (St. Mary's University, Baltimore, 1868), Roman Catholic; b. at Baltimore, Md., July 23, 1834; graduated at St. Charles's College, Ellicott City, Md., 1857; studied philosophy and theology at St. Mary's Seminary of St. Sulpice, Baltimore, where he was ordained a priest, June 30, 1861; was successively assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Baltimore, 1861; pastor of St. Bridget's, Canton, fall of 1861; assistant pastor of the cathedral of Baltimore, and secretary to the archbishop (Dr. Spalding), 1865; vicar apostolic of North Carolina, 1866; consecrated bishop, Aug. 18, 1868; translated to see of Richmond, Va., on the death of Dr. McSill, 1872; coadjutor of Dr. Bayley, archbishop of Baltimore, with right of succession, 1877; on Oct. 3, 1877, became archbishop of Baltimore; and in 1886 was created a cardinal. He was present at the Vatican Council, Rome, 1869-70; went to Rome for the preparation of the questions to be treated in the third plenary council of Baltimore, Nov. 2-Dec. 7, 1884, over which he presided as apostolic delegate. Besides various articles in Roman-Catholic magazines, sermons, and lectures, he has written The Faith of our Fathers, New York, 1871; The Foundations (lectures on evidences of Christianity), Chicago, 1880, 2d ed.; The Mosaic Era, London and New York, 1881, 2d ed. New York and Edinburgh, 1874-80; and since 1886 has been the editor of The Foundations, London, 1883, 2d ed. 1885; Pomegranates from an English Garden (selected poems of Browning with notes), New York, 1885.

GILLESPIE, Right Rev. George De Norman- die, S.T.D. (Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y.), 1875, Episcopalian, bishop of Western Michigan; b. at Goshen, Orange County, N.Y., June 14, 1819; graduated at the General Theological Seminary, New York City, 1840; successively rector at Leroy, N.Y., 1841; Cincinnati, 1845; Pawnyra, N.Y., 1851; Ann Arbor, Mich., 1851; consecrated 1854. He has been on the State Board of Corrections and Charities since 1877. He has published occasional sermons, tracts, etc.

GLILLET, Charles Ripley, Presbyterian; b. in New York City (Harlem), Nov. 29, 1855; prepared for college by his father, Rev. Dr. E. H. Gillett (see Encyclopaedia, p. 874); graduated B.A. at the University of the City of New York, 1874; B.S. and civil engineer at the same, 1875; practised engineering in the city, 1876-77; entered the Union Theological Seminary, New York City, 1877; graduated there, 1880; was fellow of the same in the city, 1880-81; and in Berlin, Germany, 1881-83; since 1883 has been librarian of Union Theological Seminary.

GILMAN, Edward Whiting, D.D. (Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1874), Congregationalist; b. at Norwich, Conn., Feb. 11, 1829; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1843; studied in Union Theological Seminary, New York City, 1845-47; and graduated at the Yale Theological Seminary, New Haven, Conn., 1848. He was a tutor in Yale College, 1847-49; Congregational pastor at Lockport, N.Y., 1849-56; Cambridge-port, Mass., 1856-58; Bangor, Me., 1859-61; Stonington, Conn., 1861-71. Since 1871 he has been one of the secretaries of the American Bible Society. He is the editor of the Bible Society Record, an occasional contributor to various periodicals, and has written articles for Appleton's and Johnson's Encyclopaedias, etc.

GLADEN, Washington, D.D. (Roanoke College, Salem, Va., 1881), L.L.D. (University of Wisconsin, Madison, 1881), Congregationalist; b. at Potsugve, Penn., Feb. 11, 1836; graduated at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1859; became successively pastor at Brooklyn, N.Y., 1860; Morrisania, N.Y., 1861; North Adams, Mass., 1866-67; Springfield, Mass., 1875; Columbus, O., 1883. He was on the editorial staff of the New-York Independent, 1871-73; and edited Sunday Afternoon, 1878-80. He is the author of Plain Thoughts on the Art of Living, Boston, 1868; From the Hub to the Hudson, 1869; Workingmen and their Employers, 1878, 2d ed. New York, 1885; Being a Christian, 1876; The Christian Way, New York, 1877; The Lord's Prayer, Boston, 1881; The Christian League of Connecticut, New York, 1883; Things New and Old, Columbus, O., 1884; The Young Men and the Churches, Boston, 1885.

GLASGOW, James, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1855), Presbyterian; b. in parish of Dunaghy, near Ballymena, County Antrim, Ireland, May 27, 1865; graduated at Royal Belfast College, 1882; licensed, 1884; ordained in the Congregation of Castledawn, County Londonderry, 1884; was missionary in Bombay, India, 1890-91; was in the United States since 1896. He has been the general superintendent of the province of Posen, 1880; emeritus, 1885. He is the author of Christi Person und Werk, Basel, 1870-80, 3 parts: Bibelstunden über Joh. xii.-xxi., 1871, 14th ed. 1886; Bibelstunden über Rom. iv.-vi., 1885, and minor works.

Asiatic Society (1848), and fellow of the University of Bombay (1862). He was principal translator of the Gujarati Bible, 1850–61; and, besides various papers in religious journals, has written Exposition of the Apocalypse, Edinburgh, 1871; Heart and Voice, 1873.

GLOAG, Patrick James, D.D. (St. Andrew’s, 1807), Church of Scotland; b. at Perth, May 17, 1823; attended universities of Edinburgh (1840–43) and of St. Andrew’s (1843–44); became minister of Dunoon, Perthshire, 1848; Blantyre, Lanarkshire, 1860; Galashiels, Selkirkshire, 1871. He belonged to the positive critical school; is rather an expositor of Scripture than an expounder of doctrine. He was Baird lecturer in 1869. He is the author of The Assurance of Salvation, Edinburgh, 1853, 2d ed. Glasgow, 1869; Justification by Faith, Edinburgh, 1850; Primal World, or Relation of Geology to Revelation, 1859; The Resurrection, London, 1870; translation of Lechler’s commentary on Acts, in Lange series, Edinburgh, 1874; Practical Christianity, Glasgow, 1866; Commentary on Acts, Edinburgh, 1870. 2 vols.; Introduction to the Pauline Epistles, 1876; translation of Meyer on Acts, 1880, and of Huther’s commentary on Acts, in Lange series, Edinburgh, 1884. He is the author of various papers in religious journals, has written Miscellaneous Studies, 1884; and articles in reviews and other periodicals.

GLOSSBRENNER, Jacob John, D.D. (Otterbein University, Westerville, O., and Lebanon Valley College, Annville, Penn., both 1873, and declined; Lebanon-Valley College, 1884), a bishop of the United Brethren in Christ; b. at Hagem in 1811, and began reading theological books; was declined; Lebanon-Valley College, 1884), a bishop, till May, 1849, when he was first elected elder, till May, 1849, when he was first elected bishop; re-elected for ten quadrennial terms; in May, 1855, elected bishop emeritus, and is now serving without any assigned district of labor. Several of his occasional sermons have been published in the denominational organ, The Religious Telescope, Dayton, O.

GOADBY, Thomas, D.D. (Central University of Iowa, Pella, Ia., 1880; Bates College, Lewiston, Me., 1881), General Baptist; b. at Leicester, Eng., Dec. 23, 1829; studied at the Baptist College, Leicester, and graduated at Glasgow University as B.A. 1853; became minister of churches at Coventry, 1856; Commercial Road, East, London, 1861; Osmaston Road, Derby, 1868; president of Nottingham General Baptist College, 1873. He is evangelical and non-Calvinistic. He has been since 1861 the English correspondent of the Boston (U. S. A.) Morning Star, the weekly organ of the Freewill Baptists. He is the author of sermons and addresses published at Leicester in 1863, 1865, 1872; of The Day of Death, a Poem, Leicester, 1893; article in British Quarterly, April, 1894; Tract on the Modern Spirit; translator of Ewald's Revelation: its Nature and Record, Edinburgh, 1881.

GOOD, Frederick Louis, D.D. (hon., Basel, 1888), Reformed; b. at Neuchâtel, Switzerland, Oct. 25, 1812; educated in his native city, and studied theology at Bonn and Berlin (under Neander); was ordained in 1836; was assistant of the pastor of Walangin, near Neuchâtel, for a year; then preceptor of the Crown Prince of Prussia from 1838 to 1844; from 1845 to 1851 supplied churches in the Val-de-Ruy; from 1851 to 1866 was pastor in Neuchâtel. From 1850 to 1873 he was professor of exegetical and critical theology in the theological school of the National Church of the canton, and since has been in the same capacity in the independent faculty of the Church of Neuchâtel. He is the author of Histoire de la Réformation et du Refuge dans le Canton de Neuchâtel, Neuchâtel, 1856; Commentaire sur l'évangile de Saint Jean, 1863–65, 2 vols., 3d ed. 1881, 5 vols.; Commentaire sur l'évangile de Luc, 1871, 2d ed. 1872; Commentaire sur l'évangile de Jean, 1863–65, 2 vols.; Conferences apologiques, 1889 (Eng. trans. by W. H. Lyttleton, Lectures in Defence of the Christian Faith, Edinburgh, 1881, 2d ed. 1883); Etudes bibliques, 1873–74, 2 series, 3d ed. 1876 (Eng. trans. W. H. Lyttleton, Old Testament Studies, Oxford, 1875, 3d ed. 1885; New Testament Studies, London, 1876, 6th ed. 1885).

GOEBEL, Siegfried Abraham, Reformed; b. at Winningen, near Coblenz, Prussia, March 24, 1814; studied at Erlangen, Halle, and Berlin; from 1868 to 1874 was pastor at Posen; since then he has been court preacher (first preacher in the royal Evangelical Reformed court church) at Halberstadt, Prussia. He is the author of Die Parabeln Jesu methodisch ausgelegt, Gotha, 1878–80, 3 parts (Eng. trans. by Professor Banks, The Parables of Jesus, A Methodical Exposition, Edinburgh, 1885, 2 vols.).

GOLTZ, Baron Hermann von der, D.D., German Protestant; b. at Düsseldorf, March 17, 1835; studied at Erlangen, Berlin, Tübingen, and Bonn, 1853–58; became chaplain to the Prussian embassy at Rome, 1861; professor extraordinary of theology at Basel, 1865; ordinary professor, 1870; at Bonn, 1873; honorary professor at Berlin, superior consistorial councillor and provost of St. Peter’s, 1876; ordinary professor, 1883. He is the author of Die reformirte Kirche Genf’s im 19. Jahrhundert, Basel, 1892; Gottes Offenbarung durch heilige Geschichte, 1868; Die Grenzen der Lehre in Theologie und Kirche, 1873 (pp. 80); Die christlichen Grundwahrheiten, Gotha, Bd. 1, 1873; Templerbühler aus d. Leben d. Herrn Jesu (5 sermons), Berlin, 1877, 2d ed. 1879.

GOOD, Jeremiah Haak, D.D. (Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Penn., 1888), Reformed; b. at Rehersburg, Berks County, Penn., Nov. 22, 1855; graduated at Mercersburg, Penn., 1884; was sub-rector of the preparatory department of the college, 1844–46; pastor of Lancaster charge, Fairfield County, O., GOODWIN. 81

GOTTHEIL.

1846–48; professor of mathematics in Heidelberg College, Tiffin, O., 1850–68; and since 1869 has been professor of dogmatic theology in the theological department. He was founder (1848) and editor of The Western Missionary, now called The Christian World, Columbus, Ohio. He also was largely instrumental in founding Heidelberg College and Theological Seminary, Tiffin, O., 1856. He is the author of The Reformed Church Hymnal, with Tunes, Cleveland, 1878, 20 editions; The Heidelberg Catechism, newly arranged, Tiffin, O., 1879, several editions; The Children's Catechism, 1881, several editions; Prayer-book and Aids to Private Devotions, 1881; The Church-Member's Handbook, 1882.

GOODWIN, Daniel Raynes, D.D. (Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1853, LL.D. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1868), Episcopalian; b. at North Berwick, Me., April 12, 1811; graduated from Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1832; became professor in it of modern languages, 1835; president of Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1853; provost of the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1860; resigned, 1868. Since 1866 he has been Holy Trinity professor of systematic divinity in the Episcopal Divinity School of Philadelphia. He is the author of Christianity; the aspect of Jesus. His works include: Anglican Revision, 3 vols.; Homilies to the Parish Church, 1855, 4th ed.; In Christ: or, the Believer's Union with his Lord, Boston, 1872, 9th ed. 1885; Congregational Worship, 1872; Grace and Glory (sermons), 1881; Ministry of Healing, 1882, 2d ed. 1883; The Two-fold Life, 1884, 2d ed. 1884.

GORDON, William Robert, D.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1850), Reformist (Dutch); b. in New-York City, March 19, 1811; graduated from the University of the City of New York (the first class publicly graduated; the exercises were held in the Middle Dutch Church, subsequently the New-York Post-Office), 1834, and at New Brunswick (N. J.) Theological Seminary, 1837; became pastor at North Hempstead, Long Island, N.Y., 1838; Flushing, L.I., 1843; New-York City (Houston Street), 1849; Schraalenburgh, N.J., 1858; and since 1881 has lived in literary retirement. He is the author of A Rebuff to High Churchism, New York, 1844; The Supreme Godhead of Christ, 1848, 2d ed. 1859; A Guide to Children in Reading the Scriptures, 1852; Particular Providence, illustrated in the Life of Joseph, 1855, 3d ed. 1863; A Threefold Test of Modern Spiritualism, 1856; Reformation (a sermon in behalf of domestic missions preached before General Synod, 30,000 copies distributed), 1857; The Peril of Our Ship of State, 1861; Christocracy (with J. T. Demarest), 1867, 2d ed. 1879; The Reformed Church in America: its History, Dogmatics, and Government, 1866; Life of Henry Ostrander, D.D., 1875; Revealed Truth impenetrable (Vedder Lectures), 1879.

GOODWIN, Right Rev. Harvey, D.D. (Cambridge, 1856), lord bishop of Carlisle, Church of England; b. at King's Lynn, Norfolk, in the year 1818; entered Caius College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (second wrangler and Smith's prizeman), 1840, M.A. 1843; was fellow and mathematical lecturer of his college; ordained deacon 1842, priest 1844; was perpetual curate of St. Edward, Cambridge, 1848–58; Hulsean lecturer at Cambridge, 1855–57; dean of Ely, 1858–69; consecrated bishop, 1869. He became visitor of St. Bee's College, 1869; honorary fellow of Caius College, Cambridge, 1881. Besides mathematical works he is the author of Parish Sermons, London, 1847–52, 5 vols., several editions; University Sermons at Oxford and Cambridge, 1853, 1855, 1878, 3 vols.; Guide to the Parish Church, 1855, 4th ed. 1879; Hulsean Lectures for 1855–56 (1. Doctrines and Difficulties of the Christian Faith, etc.; 2. The Glory of the Only Begotten of the Father seen in the Lord Jesus Christ); 1856–59; Commentary on St. Matthew (1857), St. Mark (1856–60), and St. Luke (1864); Essays on the Pentateuch, 1867; Plain Sermons on Ordination and Ministry of the Church, 1875; Walks in Regions of Science and Faith, 1883.

GORDON, Adoniram Judson, D.D. (Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1877), Baptist; b. at New Hampton, N.H., April 10, 1836; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1860, and at Newton (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1864; became pastor of the Trinity Church, Boston, 1868, of the Clarendon-street Church, Boston, 1869. He is "a prohibitionist in temperance reform; a supporter and co-laborer with Mr. Moody in his evangelistic movement; low church in ecclesiologv, and pre-millennial in eschatology. He is the author of In Christ: or, the Believer's Union with his Lord, Boston, 1872, 9th ed. 1885; Congregational Worship, 1872; Grace and Glory (sermons), 1881; Ministry of Healing, 1882, 2d ed. 1883; The Two-fold Life, 1884, 2d ed. 1884.

GOODWIN, Edward Payson, D.D. (Western Reserve College, Hudson, O., 1857; Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., 1868), Congregationalist; b. at Rome, N.Y., July 31, 1832; graduated from Amherst (Mass.) College, 1856, and the Union (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1859; became Congregational minister at Burke, Vt., 1859; Columbus, O., 1860; Chicago, Ill., 1865.

GORDON, Abraham, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1862), Presbyterian; b. at Danby, N.Y., July 25, 1819; graduated from Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1843; and from Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1847, in which for a year (1850–51) was instructor in Hebrew; since 1851 he has been pastor at Lawrenceville, N.J. He partly translated and edited Genesis and Numbers; and entirely, with special introduction, Deuteronomy, in the American Lange series.

GOTTHEIL, Gustav, Ph.D. (Jena University, Berlin, 1881).—b. at Kettering, Northamptonshire, Eng., in the year 1857; studied at Bristol Baptist College, 1878; graduated B.A. at Trinity College, Dublin, 1888; became pastor, Baptist Church at Boxmoor, Hertfordshire, Eng., 1888; philosophical tutor at Stepney College, London, 18—; professor at Bristol College 1846, president 1888; resigned 1898; chairman of the Baptist Union 1888; member of the Baptist Association 1870. He edited the Pentateuch in a Revised English Bible, London, 1877; is author of Supplement to the Fragments of the Codex Cottianus, 1881.
GOTTSCICK, Johannes, D.D. (Kon, Giessen, 1882), Lutheran; b. at Rochau, Prussia, Nov. 29, 1847; studied theology at Erlangen and Halle, 1863-68; became teacher in Halle gymnasmium, 1871; at Wernigerode, 1873; professor of practical theology at Giessen, 1882. He is in substantial agreement with the school of Rickert of Göttingen. He has written Ueber Schleichermacher's Verkänniss zu Kant, Wernigerode, 1875; Kant's Beweis für das Dasein Gottes, Torgau, 1878; Luther als Katesch, Giessen, 1883; Ueber den evangelischen Religionsunterricht an den höheren Schulen, 1881; 2d ed. 1886.

Gough, John Bartholomew, Congregationalist, layman, famous temperance orator; b. at Sandgate, Kent, Eng., Aug. 22, 1817; d. in Philadelphia, Penn., Feb. 18, 1886. His father had been a soldier from 1798 to 1823, and had been honorably discharged on a pension of twenty pounds per annum. He was of a stern disposition; yet his heart was tender, and his children loved him. In church connections he was a Methodist. Mr. Gough's mother was a Baptist, an intelligent, sober-minded, gentle, and loving woman, who had been for twenty years the village schoolmistress. He was taken from school at ten, and put to service in a gentleman's family. In his boyhood he enjoyed a village reputation as a good reader. About this time he was struck on the head by a spade, and rendered insensible. His life was for a time despaired of, and then his reason; and indeed he never fully recovered from the shock. Whenever he was excited from any cause, he felt prickings and darting sensations in his head. One of his earliest amusements was to personate characters, as in amateur Punch-and-Judy shows, and otherwise, showing his rare talent for mimicry and acting. There seemed to be small prospect of his advancement at home, his parents accepted the offer of a Sandgate family about to emigrate to America, who engaged for ten guineas to take him with them, have him taught a trade, and provide for him until he was twenty-one. He sailed from London, June 10, 1829, and arrived in New York, Aug. 3; went with the family to the farm they had purchased in Oneida County, N.Y., and staid with them for two years; and then, having received his father's permission, he left them, and made his way to New York City, where he arrived in the latter part of December, 1831, friendless, and with only a half-crown in his pocket. He was then a member of the Methodist-Episcopal Church on probation, and so was induced to lay his case before Mr. Dans, the agent of the Christian Advocate and Journal, upon whom he made so favorable an impression, that he secured him a place as errand-boy and apprentice in the book-bindery in the Methodist Book Concern, where he had for a companion John McClintock, who afterwards became the well-known Methodist theologian. Young Gough was taught book-binding, and soon became remarkably skilful. Some of his Methodist friends proposed to educate him for the ministry, but the project was abandoned.—indeed, he withdrew from the denomination. (He later on joined the Congregational Church.) In 1832 he left the Book Concern, and secured elsewhere such good wages by his trade, that he sent for his father, mother, and only sister, who was two years his junior, to join him in New York; and the latter two arrived in August, 1833. His father remained behind, so as not to lose his pension. His sister was a straw-bonnet maker, and worked at her trade in the city. But in November, 1832, he and his sister lost their positions, owing to the hard times, and did not get regular employment. Thus the family was reduced to such straits, that when his mother died, July 8, 1834, there was no money for a funeral, and her body was buried in the potter's field. After a brief visit to his former home in Oneida County, he returned to work in the city in September. It was then, when he was about eighteen years old, that he began to drink. His fund of amusing stories, and his wonderful ability to tell them, naturally made him a favorite among the young men he met. Under the name of Gilbert, he sang a comic song entitled "The Water Party" at the Franklin Theatre in Chatham Street, New York. In 1836 he went to Bristol, R.I., and then to Providence. His intemperance was now noticeable, and led to his discharge by successive employers. Once, while out of work, he played low-comedy parts in a theatre in Providence, and then in Boston, where, strangely enough, he personated the keeper of a temperance inn in a play entitled Departed Spirits, or the Temperance House (in which Deacon Moses Grant and Dr. Lyman Beecher were ridiculed), but his engagement lasted only a few weeks. He frequently sang comic songs in public. In 1838 he married at Newburyport, Mass.; but his wife and child died. On the Saturday, Oct. 23, 1842, at the age of twenty-five; by invitation of Joel Dudley Stratton, who at the time was a waiter in the American Temperance House at Worcester, Mass., but later was a boot-crimper (see sketch of Stratton in Gough's Autobiography, p. 322), he signed the pledge of total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors, at Worcester. The next week he was called upon to relate his experience as a drunkard; and the way in which he told his story of wretchedness, disease, and want, led to frequent requests to repeat it in public, and so he gradually became prominent as a temperance orator. Within five months (April, 1843) he thoughtlessly violated his pledge in Boston, when, almost insane in consequence of a drug taken to relieve his nervous exhaustion, he was offered, by an old companion, a glass of brandy. Again on Friday, Sept. 5, 1843, in New York City, he was tricked into drinking liquor in a glass from which the single glass aroused his craving, and he drank until intoxicated. His second fall was the more deplorable because he was then a widely known advocate of total abstinence. But he retained the confidence of the public, and showed true repentance. On Nov. 24, 1834, at Worcester, he married Miss Mary Whitcomb, his second wife. In 1835 he was invited by the Scottish Temperance League, and the British Temperance Association, to lecture on temperance in Great Britain for a few weeks; but he staid two years, and returned in 1837, and remained three years. On Nov. 21, 1860, he delivered at New Haven, Conn., his first lecture not directly upon temperance ("Street Life in London"), and thus entered a broader field in which, by his lectures on "London," "Eloquence and Orators," "Peculiar People," "Habit," and other topics, he has delighted thousands on both sides of the ocean. But he never lost interest in temperance work, and introduced the theme prominently in every lecture.

Mr. Gough was one of the most remarkable natural orators of this century. He was endowed with a musical and flexible voice, a winning mannner, and a fine presence. He had both laughter and tears at his disposal. No one was superior to him as a story-teller. In proof of his popularity, it may be mentioned, that his receipts per lecture rose from $2.77 in 1843, to $173.39 in 1867.
(See Autobiography, pp. 247, 248.) His life was dictated to John Ross and, — or, as he then called himself, John Dix Ross,—a short-hand writer, who then was an inmate of his family, and who subsequently claimed the authorship of the book on the strength of a few verbal alterations he had made); Orations, 1854; Autobiography and Per-personal Recollections, Springfield, Mass., 1869; Temperance Lectures, New York, 1879; Sunlight and Shadows; or, Gleamings from my Life-work, London, 1881; Platform Echoes, Hartford, 1886.

GOULBOURN, Very Rev. Edward Meyrick, dean of Norwich. Church of England; b. in England in the year 1818; educated at Eton and at Balliol College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1836, M.A. (Merton College) 1842; ordained deacon 1842, priest 1843; became president of the College of the Bible in that university.

Since its beginning, in 1865, he has been joint editor of the Beweis des Glaubens. He is the author of several

GRANT, George Monro, D.D. (Glasgow University, 1878), Canadian Presbyterian; b. at East River, Pictou, N.S., Dec. 22, 1835; studied at Glasgow University (letters and theology), 1857-60; graduated M.A. with highest honors in philosophy, 1857; became minister of Georgetown and St. Peter’s Road, Prince Edward Island, 1861; of St. Matthew’s, Halifax, N.S., 1863; principal of Queen’s University, Kingston, Ont., and prima-rus professor of divinity, 1877. He is the author of Ocean to Ocean through Canada, Toronto, 1872, last ed. 1878; and of numerous review articles.
GREEN, Samuel Cosmull, D.D. (University of Chicago, Ill., 1870), Baptist; b. at Falmouth, Cornwall, Eng., Dec. 20, 1822; studied at Stepney College, London, and graduated B.A. at the University of London, 1843; became minister at High Wycombe, Bucks, 1845, and at Taunton, Somerset, 1847. He was classical tutor 1851—63; then presbyterian pastor, New York, 1856—65; Baptist College 1863—70 (first at Bradford, after 1859 at Rawdon); since has been secretary of the Religious Tract Society of London. He is the author of several books for young people, Addresses, 1848; Lectures, 1853; Bible Sketches, 1870—72; Christian Ministry to the Young, 1883. Also of books for teachers, Kings of Israel and Judah, 1876; Life and Letters of the Apostle Peter, 1873; Notes on the Scripture Lessons (yearly), from 1872 to 1878. Of a more general character, Handbook to Grammar of the Greek New Testament, 1870, 4th revised ed. 1885; Pen and Pencil Pictures, 1878—83, 5 vols. He edited the English edition of Hackett on Acts, 1862, 2 vols., and new edition of Lorimer's translation of Lechler's Wicif, 1884.

GREEN, William Henry, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1857), L.L.D. (Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1873), Presbyterian; b. at Groveville, near Bordentown, N.J., Jan. 27, 1825; graduated at Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1840; was tutor there for two years, then entered Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, and took the full course, interrupted by one year's teaching of mathematics (1843—44) at Lafayette, graduating in 1846. He was appointed instructor in Hebrew in the Seminary from 1846 to 1849, during which time (1847) he was stated supply to the Second Church of Princeton. From 1849 to 1851 he was pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia; and since 1851 he has been a professor in Princeton Theological Seminary. Until 1859 his chair was styled Biblical and Old Testament literature); since 1859, "Oriental and Old-Testament literature." He was the chairman of the American Old-Testament Company of the Anglo-American Bible-Revision Committee; and is the author of A Grammar of the Hebrew Language, New York, 1881, 4th ed. 1885; A Hebrew Chrestomathy, 1881, 2d ed., impoverished from the Aspersions of Bishop Colenso, 1863; Elementary Hebrew Grammar, 1866, 2d ed. 1871; The Argument of the Book of Job unfolded, 1874; Moses and the Prophets, 1888; The Hebrew Feasts in Their Relation to Recent Critical Hypoth-ten memoirs of Bishops Ravenscroft (New York, 1870) and Oney (1885).

GREGG, Right Rev. Alexander, D.D. (South Carolina College, Columbia, S.C., 1839), Episcopalian, bishop of Texas; b. at Society Hill, Darlington District, S.C., Oct. 8, 1819; graduated head of his class, South Carolina College, Columbia, 1838; professor of law, Cheraw, S.C., 1838—43; was rector of St. David's, Cheraw, 1846; consecrated, 1859. He attended the first Lambeth Conference, 1874. He has published, besides sermons, etc., History of Old Cheraw, 1867.

GREGG, Right Rev. Robert Samuel, D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1873), lord bishop of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross, Church of Ireland; son of Bishop Gregg; b. in Dublin, Ireland, in the year 1834; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; graduated B.A. and Divinity Testimonia (second class) 1857, M.A. 1860, B.D. 1873; ordained deacon 1857, priest 1858; rector of Cartrighane; vicar of St. Fin Barre; dean of Cork, 1874—78; bishop of Ossory, Ferns, and Leighlin, 1878—79; successor his father as bishop of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross, 1878. He is a member of the senate of Trinity College. He is the author of Memo- rials of the Life of John Gregg, D.D. (his father), Dublin, 1879; sermons, pamphlets, etc.

GREGG, William, D.D. (Hanover College, Hanover, Ind., 1878), Canadian Presbyterian; b. at Killycreeen, near Ramelton, County Donegal, Ireland, July 5, 1817; graduated B.A. at the University of Glasgow, 1843, and M.A. at that of Edinburgh, 1844; studied theology in Free Church College, Edinburgh, 1844—46; became pastor at Belleville, Canada West, 1847; of Cooke's Church, Toronto, 1857; professor of apologetics and church history, Knox College, Toronto, 1872 (having taught apologetics in the college since 1864). He was moderator in 1861, when union was effected between the Presbyterian Church and the United Presbyterian Church in Canada. He edited Book of Passages for Family Worship, Toronto, 1878, 3d ed. 1885; wrote History of Presbyterian Church in Canada from the Earliest Times to 1854 (with chronological tables of subsequent legislation ensuing), 1885.

GREER, Constantine, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1876), Lic. Theol. (Leipzig, 1884), Presbyterian; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., Nov. 6, 1846; graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1864, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1870; was Dr. Charles Hodge's literary assistant in preparing for and in carrying through the press his Systematic Theology, 1870—73 (of which he made the separately printed elaborate Index); sub-editor (bibliographer) of Schürer and Harnack, Theologische Literaturzeitung, 1876—81; pastor of the American Chapel in Leipzig, 1878—79; privat-dozent at Leipzig University, May 28, 1884; elected professor of New Testament Greek, Johns Hopkins University, 1883. Besides several articles, notably upon Tischendorf, and translusions of Luthardt's St. John the Author of the Fourth Gospel (Edinburgh, 1873, 2d ed. 1885), and Commentary on St. John's Gospel (1870—78, 3d ed. 1885), and in Biblische Zeitschrift, and Biblische Rundschau, Paris, 1885, he is the author of the Protopo- mena in N. T. Tischendorfanum ed. viii., maior, Leipzig, pars prima 1884.

GREGORY, Daniel Seely, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1873), Presbyterian; b. at Carneu, N.Y., Aug. 21, 1832; graduated at the College of New Jersey, 1857, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1860; was tutor of rhetoric and belles-lettres in the College of New Jersey, 1858—60; became pastor (elect) of the South Church, Garvsn, Ill., 1860; of the Second Church, Troy, N.Y., in 1864; of the Congregational Church, New Haven, Conn., 1866; pastor there, 1867; at South Salem, N.Y., 1869; professor of metaphysics and logic in Wooster University, Wooster, O., 1871; of mental science and English literature in the same institution, 1873; president of Lake Forest University, Ill., 1875—78. He is the author of Christian Ethics: or, the True Moral Mankind and Life of Duty, Philadelphia, 1875, seventh thousand 1886; Why Four Gospels? or, the Gospel for All the World, New York, 1876, 3d ed. 1885; Practical Logic, or the Art of Thinking, Philadelphia, 1881, third thousand 1886; The Tests of Philosophic Systems, or a Natural Philosophy, being the L. P. Stone Lectures (enlarged) before Princeton Theological Seminary, 1885, 1886. He has also written, besides much else, the following review articles: 1. In The Princeton Review: The Preaching for the Times (1866), The Pastorate for the Times, and Studies in the Gospels—Matthew the Gospel for the Jew (1868), The Novel and Novel-reading (1869), The Christian Giving for the Times (1870), Mark the Gospel for the Romans (1871), Works by Professor March on Anglo-Saxon and English (1874). 2. In *The Presbyterian Quarterly and Princeton Review: The True Theory and Practice of Education, and Studies in the Gospels—Luke the Gospel for the Greek (1873), A Grammar of the Hindi Language (1877). 3. In The Princeton Review (new series): The Eastern Problem, and John Stuart Mill and the Destruction of Theism (1878). 4. In The Presbyterian Review: A New Principle in Education (1884).

GRIER, Matthew Blackburne, Presbyterian; b. at Brandywine Manor, Chester County, Penn., July 25, 1820; graduated at Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1838, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1841; was pastor at Elicott's Mills, Md., 1847—55; at Ocean City, Md., 1855—61; since 1873 has been editor of The Presbyterian, Philadelphia, Penn.

GRIER, William Moffatt, D.D. (Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill., 1873), Associate Reformed Presbyterian; b. near Yorkville, S.C., Feb. 11, 1838; graduated at Erskine College, Due West, S.C., 1869; pastor in Wilcox County, Ala., 1867—71; since 1871 president of Erskine College, and since 1884 professor of pastoral theology in Erskine Theological Seminary. Since 1881 he has been principal editor of The Associate Reformed Presbyterian.

GRIFFIS, William Elliot, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1884), Congregationalist; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., Sept. 17, 1843; graduated at Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1869, and at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1877; became pastor of the First Reformed Church, Schenectady, N.Y., 1877; of the Shawsut Congregational Church, Middletown, Conn., 1884; he was in the 44th Penn. Vols. during Lee's invasion of Pennsylvania, 1863; editor of Our Messenger, Philadelphia, Penn., 1864; in the educational service of the Japanese Government at Fukui and

GRIFFITH, Benjamin, D.D. (University of Lewisburg, Lewisburg, Penn., 1863), Baptist; b. in Juniata County, Penn., Oct. 13, 1821; graduated at Madison University, Hamilton, N.Y., 1841; became a “ministerial student” in Philadelphia, Penn., 1850; corresponding secretary of the American Baptist Publication Society, May, 1857, whose office is in Philadelphia.

GRIMM, Carl Ludwig Willibald, Ph.D. (Jena, 1832), Lic. Theol. (Giessen, 1833), D.D. (kon., Giessen, 1833), Lutheran; b. at Jena, Nov. 1, 1809; educated there 1827-32, and has ever since been connected with her university, as privat-dozent, 1833; professor extraordinary, 1837; honorary ordinary professor, 1844. He became grand ducal ecclesiastical councillor in 1871, and privy ecclesiastical councillor 1885. His theological standpoint is of the "Mittelpartei." His writings embrace, De Ioanne christiologie inde paulina comparata, Leipzig, 1833; De libro sapientiae, Jena, 1833; De Lutheri indole, 1833; Oratio de Studiis, Leipzig, 1836; Commentar über das Buch der Weisheit, Leipzig, 1837; Die Glaubwürdigkeit der evangelischen Geschichte (against Strauss), Jena, 1845; Institutio theologica dogmatica evangelica historico critica, 1848, 2d ed. 1869; Die Lutherbibel und ihre Texterevision, Berlin, 1874; Kurzgefasste Geschichte der lutherischen Bibelübersetzung bis zur Gegenwart, Jena, 1894. He so edited Wilke’s Clavis N. T. philologica (Leipzig, 1807), that it became a new work. He also published Von den Griechischen Latium in libros N. T., 3d ed. 1879. With O. F. Fritzche he edited the Kurzgefasste exegetisches Handbuch zu den Apostryphen d. A. T., Leipzig, 1851-60 (1st Macabeus, 1853; 2d, 3d, 4th Macabeus, 1857; Wisdom, 1860).

GRIMM, Joseph, D.D. (Munich, 1834), Roman Catholic; b. at Freising, Bavaria, Jan. 23, 1827; studied at the University of Munich, 1845-50; became a teacher 1852, chaplain 1854; professor of Old and New Testament exegesis in the royal lyceum at Regensburg, 1856; ordinary professor of New-Testament exegesis at Wurzburg, 1874. He is bishop, geistlicher Rat, and since 1888 knight of the Order of St. Michael. He is the author of Die Samariter und ihre Stellung in der Weltgeschichte, Regensburg, 1864; Der kariob des zweiten Thessalonicier-Briefes (Programm zum Jahresbericht des Lyceums u. Gymnasiums in Regensburg), 1861; Die Einheit des Lukas Evangeliums. 1868; Das Leben Jesu, 1876, seq. 6 vols. (vol. V, 1886).

GRISAR, Hermann, Roman Catholic; b. at Coblenz; became a priest at Rome, 1868 (shortly after entered the Society of Jesus); professor of church history at Innsbruck, 1871. He has written essays in his department, in the Innsbruck Zeitschrift für kathol. Theologie, and edited from the MS. and annotated I ago Lainez’ (1512-1565) Disputationes Tridentinae, Innsbruck, 1886, 2 vols. Der Kaiser im Wirken der Kirche, Innsbruck, 1887; The Mikado’s Empire, New York, 1876, 4th ed. 1886; Japanese Fairy World, Schenectady, 1880; Schenectady First Church Memorial, Schenectady, 1880; Asiatic History, China, Corea, and Japan (Chautauqua series, No. 34), New York, 1881; Corea, the Hermit Nation, New York, 1882, 2d ed. 1885; Corea, Without and Within, Philadelphia, 2d ed. 1885; Life of Commodore Matthew Calbraith Perry, New York, 1886.
GUTHE, Hermann, Lic. Theol. (Leipzig, 1876), German Protestant; b. at Westerlinde, Braunschweig, May 10, 1849; studied at Göttingen from 1867 to 1869, and at Erlangen 1869 and 1870; became private tutor in Livonia, 1870; repetent of theology at Göttingen, 1873; privat-dozent at Leipzig, 1877; professor extraordinary there, 1884. As member of the business committee of the German Palestine Exploration Society, he conducted the excavations at Jerusalem in 1881. His theological standpoint is "Ethischer Supranaturalismus mit völliger Freiheit der historischen Forschung." Since 1877 he has edited the Zeitschrift des Deutschen Palästina Vereins, Leipzig (1877-85, 8 vols.), and in it written numerous articles upon biblical geography, topography, and archaeology. Besides these and articles in Herzog's Real-Encyklopädie, 2d ed., and Harnack-Schürer Theolog. Literaturzeitung, he has written De deris notione jeremianna (Habilitationsschrift), Leipzig, 1877; Ausgrabungen bei Jerusalem, 1883; Das Siloahinschrift (Z. D. M. Bd. xxxvi.); Fragmente einer Lederhandschrift (Shapira's Deuteronomy) mitgeteilt und geprüft, 1883; Das Zukunftsbild des Jesaja (Antrittsvorlesung enlarged), 1885; and with Georg Ebers made the German edition of Pictorial Palestine, London and New York, 1881-84, 2 vols. (Palästina in Bild u. Wort, Stuttgart und Leipzig, 1883-84, 2 vols.).

GWYNN, John, D.D. (Dublin, 1880), Church of Ireland; b. at Larne, County Antrim, Ireland, Aug. 28, 1827; graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, B.A. (senior moderator in mathematics) 1850, M.A. 1854, B.D. 1881. He became fellow of Trinity College, 1853; warden of St. Columba's College, Dublin, 1856; was rector of Tullyahunshagh, 1883-82; dean of Raphoe, 1873-82; dean of Derry, 1882; and rector of Templemore, Derry, 1882-83; Archbishop King's lecturer in divinity, University of Dublin, 1883, and is a member of the senate. He wrote the commentary (with introduction) on the Epistle to Philippians, in The Bible (Speaker's) Commentary, London, 1881.
HAERING, Theodor, German theologian; b. in Stuttgart, Württemburg, April 22, 1848; studied in the Stuttgart gymnasium, and in the evangelical theological seminaries of Erlach (1862-66) and of Tübingen (1866-70), and at the University of Berlin (1871); became repetentin the Evangelical Theological Seminary at Tübingen, 1873; diaconus in Calw 1876, and in Stuttgart, 1881; ordinary professor of theology at Zürich, 1886. His theological position is the biblicoc-positive, particularly influenced by Ritschi and Kafan and his deceased teachers Landerer and Beck. He is the author of Das Bibelende im Glauben an Christus, Stuttgart, 1880; and since 1880 has edited the Theologische Studien aus Württemberg.

HALE, Charles Reuben, S.T.D. (Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1870). Episcopal; b. at Lewistown, Mifflin County, Penn.; graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1858; was assistant minister of All Saints' Church, Lower Dublin, Philadelphia, 1861; chaplain in United States Navy, 1863; rector of St. John's Church, Auburn, N.Y., 1870; rector of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, Baltimore County, Md., 1875; one of the Very Rev. Paul's Church, Baltimore, Md., 1877; since 1886 dean of Davenport, Ia. He was secretary to the Italian Church Reformation Commission, 1869; secretary to the Russo-Greek Committee, 1871; clerk to the Commission of the House of Bishops on Correspondence with the Hierarchs of the Eastern Churches, 1874; and with the Old Catholics, 1874; secretary (for America) of the Anglo-Continental Society of England, 1874; secretary to the Commission of the General Convention on Ecclesiastical Relations, 1877. In theology he is an Anglican. His published writings consist of Reports (of the House of Bishops, 1863-1873) of the Committee on Ecclesiastical Relations, N.Y., 1881 and 1884), a Paper on the Russian Church (read before the Church Congress, Leicester, Eng., 1880; republished, Baltimore, 1881), Speeches and Addresses (in Baltimore, 1881; two in Church Congress at Carlisle, Eng., 1884, On Foreign Chaplaincies, and England's Duty towards Egypt; two in Church Congress at Portsmouth, Eng., 1885, The Prayer Book, and The Attitude of the Church towards Movements in Foreign Churches), Sermons (in St. Timothy's Church, N. Y. City, 1874; in Inverness Cathedral, by appointment of the Primus of Scotland, Oct. 5, 1884), and the following: Report of the Committee appointed by the Philomathean Society of the Univ. of Pennsylvania to translate the Inscription on the Rosetta Stone (the committee consisted of S. H. Jones, H. Morton, and himself), Philadelphia (privately printed), 1838, 2d ed. 1859; A List of the Sees and Bishops of the Holy Eastern Church, 1870; A List of all the sees and dioceses of the Illyrian Church on the East, New York, 1872; An Eastern View of the Bonn Conference, Utica, N.Y., 1876; The Mozarabic Liturgy, and the Mexican Branch of the Catholic Church of our Lord Jesus Christ Militant upon Earth, New York, 1876; Innocent of Moscow, the Apostle of Kamchatka and Alaska, 1877; The Orthodox Missionary Society of Russia, 1878; Russian Missions in China and Japan, 1878; An Order for the Holy Communion, arranged from the Mozarabic Liturgy, Baltimore, 1879 (two supplements to the above, 1879); An Office for Holy Baptism, arranged from the Mozarabic and Cognate Sources, 1879; Mozarabic Collects, translated and arranged from the Ancient Liturgy of the Spanish Church, New York, 1881; The Universal Episcopate, or List of the Sees and Bishops in the Holy Catholic Church throughout the World, Baltimore, 1882; The Eucharistic Office of the Christian Catholic Church of Switzerland, translated and compared with that in the Missale Romanum, New York, 1882.

HALE, Edward Everett, S.T.D. (Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., 1879). Unitarian; b. in Boston, Mass., April 3, 1822; educated at the Boston Latin School, and at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., where he graduated in 1843; studied theology privately; was pastor at Worcesters from 1846 to 1856, and since that time has been pastor of the South Congregational (Unitarian) Church in Kansas and Nebraska, Boston, 1856; Ten Times One is Ten, 1870; What Career? 1878; four volumes of sermons, 1879-81. He was one of the writers of Bryant and Gay's History of the United States, New York, 1876-80.

HALEY, John William, Congregationalist; b. at Tuftonborough, N.H., June 8, 1834; graduated at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., 1850, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1851; was pastor of the Christian Church, Eastport, Me., 1864-66; professor of metaphysics, Union College, Merion, Ind., 1865; pastor at Somerset, Mass., 1866-69; acting pastor of the Congregational Church, Duxbury, Mass., 1869-70; resident licentiate at Andover, Mass., 1870-71, 1872-74; acting pastor at Dudley, Mass., 1872. Since 1874 has been engaged in literary work at Tyngsborough, Mass. (1874-80), at Lowell, Mass. (1890-84), and since at Amherst; he has also preached in these places and their vicinity. He took an active part in the Lowell Hebrew Club, organized in 1875. He is the author of Examination of Alleged Discrepancies of the Bible, Andover, 1874, 3d ed. 1882; The Hereafter of Sin: What it will be; with Answers to Certain Questions and Objections, 1881; edited The Book of Esther, a New Translation, with Notes, Excursuses, Illustrations, and Indexes, by a Hebrew Club, 1883. He taught Hebrew in 1885, and Hebrew and Greek in 1886, in the Amherst Summer School of Languages. He has also lectured on different topics.
HALL, Isaac Hollister, A.M., LL.B., Ph.D. (Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1876), Presbyterian layman; b. at Norwalk, Conn., Dec. 12, 1837; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1859, and at Columbia Law School, New-York City, 1869; practised law in the city until 1875; was associate editor of the New-York Independent, 1875; professor in the Beirat Protestant College, 1875-77; associate editor of The Sunday School Times, Philadelphia, 1877-81; since then has been connected with the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New-York City, and lecturer on New-Testament Greek in Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md. He was an original decipherer of the Cypriote inscriptions; discoverer of the Pre-Harklesian Syriac version in the Beirat MS, and of the Antilegomena Epistles in the Williams MS. of Acts and Epistles. He is the author of American Greek Testaments, A Critical Bibliography of the Greek New Testament as published in America, Philadelphia, 1883; Reproduction in Phototype of 3 Pages of the Beirat MS., 1883; Reproduction in Phototype of 17 Pages of a Syriac MS. containing the Epistles known as Antilegomena, Baltimore and New-York, 1883; Reproduction in Phototype of 17 Pages of the Greek New Testament, based upon Reuss' Bibliotheca N. T. Græci, in Schaff's Companion to the Greek Testament and English Version, New York, 1883; and of articles in the Journals and Transactions of learned societies, particularly of the American Oriental Society (chiefly decipherment of Cypriote and other inscriptions, Syriac MSS., etc.), Society of Biblical Archæology (London), American Philological Association, Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis, etc.

HALL, John, D.D. (Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1869). LL.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1885, and from Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., 1885), Presbyterian; b. in County Armagh, Ireland, July 31, 1829; graduated from the Royal College, and the General Assembly's Theological College, both in Belfast; and was licensed to preach in 1849. For the next three years he laboured in the vineyard of the kingdom of God in the West of Ireland. In 1852 he began his regular ministry as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Armagh; in 1858 he went to Dublin as collegiate pastor of Mary's Abbey; and thence in 1867 to the Fifth-avenue Presbyterian Church, New-York City, where he still is. In college he was repeatedly Hebrew prizeman; and in Dublin his interest in education led to his being appointed by the Queen, in 1860, a member of the Board of National Education, upon which he served gratuitously until his departure to America. In 1867 he came as a delegate from the Presbyterian Church in Ireland to the Presbyterian Church in America. In 1882 he was elected chancellor of the University of the City of New York, and in 1886 accepted the position, having meanwhile been chancellor ad interim. He receives, however, no salary, and is assisted by a vice-chancellor. In 1874 his congregation removed from the corner of Fifth Avenue and Nineteenth Street to that of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, where they had erected a spacious building at the cost of a million dollars. Dr. Hall is the author of Family Prayers for Four Weeks, New York, 1868; Papers for Home Reading, 1871; Familiar Talks to Boys, n. d.; Questions of the Day, 1873; God's Word through Preaching, 1875 (Lyman Beecher Lectures at Yale Seminary); Foundation Scenes for Young Builders, New Year's Book for the Boys and Girls of America, Philadelphia, 1880; A Christian Home, How to make and how to keep it, 1883.

HALL, Newman, LL.B. (London University, 1855), Congregationalist; b. at Maidstone, Kent, near London, Eng., May 22, 1816; educated at Totteridge and at Highbury College; and graduated B.A. at the University of London, 1841. From 1842 to 1854 he was minister of the Albion Congregational Church, Hill. In 1854 he went to London, to his present charge. The congregation then worshipped in the Surrey Chapel (Rowland Hill's), Blackfriars Road; but in 1876 they removed to their new building, Christ Church, on the Westminster-Bridge road. Mr. Hall's ministry has been an eventful one, on account of the independence and vigor of his work. He was among the earliest advocates of total abstinence in England, a deprecator of the fears of Roman-Catholic aggression in 1850, and a faithful friend of the North in the late Civil War. After that war he made an extensive tour through the Northern states, desiring to allay the popular bitterness against Great Britain, and preached before both houses of Congress assembled in the House of Representatives, on a Sunday in November, 1867. As a memorial of this visit, there was built the Lincoln Tower, as part of his new church, by joint subscription of the British and Americans. This church cost £90,000, and seats two thousand persons. The Church-of-England service is used in a slightly modified form. Mr. Hall is the author of the tract Come to Jesus, London, 1840 (of which nearly 3,000,000 copies have been circulated, in upwards of twenty languages); It is I, 1848 (139,000 copies of the English ed. up to 1885); Antidote to Fear, 1850, new ed. 1869; The Land of the Forum and the Vatican (travels), 1852, new ed. 1859; Sacrifice, or Pardon and Purity through the Cross, 1857; Conflict and Victory (a biography of his father's life), 1858; Homeward Bound, and other Sermons, 1868; From Liverpool to St. Louis, 1868; Pilgrim Songs in Cloud and Sunshine (poems), 1871; Prayer, its Reasonableness and Efficacy, 1875; The Lord's Prayer: a Practical Meditation, 1883; Songs of Earth and Heaven, 1885; besides several tracts and minor treatises, of which may be mentioned, My Friends; Follow Jesus (246,000 copies of the English ed. up to 1885); Now; Quench not the Spirit; Memoir of Rowland Hill; Grace and Glory; Scriptural Claims of Total Abstinence.

HALL, Randall Cook, S.T.D. (Racine College, Racine, Wis., 1881; General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1889), Episcopal; b. at Wallingford, Conn., Dec. 18, 1842; graduated from Columbia College, 1883, and from the General Theological Seminary (both in New-York City), 1866; and since 1871 has been Clement C. Moore professor of the Hebrew and Greek language in the latter institution. He is examining chaplain of the diocese of New York.

HALLOCK, Joseph Newton, Congregationalist; b. at Jamesport, N.Y., July 4, 1834; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1857, and at Yale Theological Seminary, 1860; suc-
HALSEY.

missionary to Turkey, Feb. 3, 1837; sailed Dec. 3, 1838 (being delayed by Board's financial straits); opened the Belbek Seminary on the Bosphorus, 1840; became president of Robert College, 1860; foiled Russian, French, and Jesuit plots, and obtained imperial edict committing the college to the United States,—an unexampled favor; resigned presidency in 1876; became professor of dogmatic theology in Bangor Theological Seminary, Me., 1877; president of Middlebury College, 1880; resigned 1885, and retired to Lexington, Mass. His writings are principally in the Armenian language, and include a book on Popery and Protestantism (pp. 350), to counteract Jesuit libels; an exposition of the heresies of Archbishop Matteo in his book "True Man and True Christian," a tract on the mediatorialship of Christ; and translations of Upham's Philosophy, and Wayland's Moral Science, etc. He has published in English, Among the Turks, New York, 1877, and sermons, lectures, reviews, etc.

HAMILTON, Charles Edward, Church of England; b. at Bath, Somersetshire, Eng., Jan. 24, 1837; was a student in Exeter College, Oxford, took double first-class in modern languages in 1855, passed first-class in modern languages in 1856, and in 1856, 3d class in classics; has been professor of the schools 1875; classical moderator in the pass schools, 1880—81; was ordained deacon 1861, priest 1862; chaplain of the Oxford Female Penitentiary, 1870—72; since 1882 has been rector of Wootton, Northamptonshire, Eng. He is the author of Outlines of Textual Criticism applied to the New Testament, Oxford, 1872, 4th ed. 1884; Liturgies, Eastern and Western, 1878; (Appendix), The Ancient Liturgy of Atoch, and other Liturgical Fragments, 1879.

HANNE, Johann Wilhelm, D.D., German Protestant theologian; b. at Harber, Lüneburg, Dec. 29, 1813; was pastor at Braunschweig (Brunswick) and Hannover; became ordinary professor of theology, and pastor of St. James at Greifswald, 1861. He is the author of Rationalismus und speculativ Theologie in Braunschweig, Brunswick, 1848; Festreden an Gebüderte über das Wesen des christlichen Glaubens, insbesondere über das Verhältniss der geschichtlichen Person Christi zur Idee des Geschöpfkinds, 1859; Friedrich Schleiermacher als religiöser Genius Deutschlands, 1840; Sokrates als Genius der Humanität (companion volume to the preceding), 1841; Der moderne Nihilismus und die Straumannsche Glaubenslehre im Verhältniss zur Idee der christlichen Religion, Bielefeld, HAPPY.

91

HARKAVY.

1842 (this book won him great repute); Drei Predigten über christliches Glauben und Liebe, Braunschweig, 1844; Der ideale Protestantismus, Bielefeld, 1845; Anti-orthodox, oder gegen Buchatabendienst und Pfaffenhetum und für den freien Geist der Humanität und des Christentums, Braunschweig, 1846; Der freie Glaube im Kampf mit den theologischen Halbheiten unserer Tage, 1846; Religiöse Mahnungen zur Sühne, 1848; Vorköpf zum Glauben oder das Wunder des Christentums im Einkange mit Vernunft und Natur, Jena, 1850—53, 3 parts; Zeitspiegelungen, Hannover, 1852, 2d ed. 1854; Bekenntnisse, oder, Drei Bücher vom Glauben. Zum Vianium auf der Wanderung durch die Wüste dieser Zeit zum reinem Heimathland des Glaubens. Für werdende Christen, 1861, 2d ed. 1865; Die Idee der absoluten Persönlichkeit, oder, Gott und sein Verhältnis zur Welt, insonderheit zur menschliche Persönlichkeit, 1861—62, 2 vols. 2d ed. 1863; Christliche Weistumstunden, Greifswald, 1863; Die Zeit der deutschen Freiheitskriegen in ihrer Betreuung für die Zukunft, des Reiche Gottes und seiner Gerechtigkeit, 1863; Anti Hengstenberg, Elberfeld, 1867; Der Geist des Christentums, 1867; Die christliche Kirche nach ihrer Stellung und Aufgabe im neuen Reiche, 1871; 1 Der ideale und der geschichtliche Christus, Berlin, 1st and 2d ed. 1871.

HAPPY, Andrew Patton, M.D. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1844), D.D. (Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1849), Presbyterian; b. near Monongahela City, Penn., Oct. 26, 1819; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1838; taught school, 1835—40; studied in Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1840—43; graduated, since 1844 has been a foreign missionary in China. He visited America 1867—68, 1885—86.

HARE, Right Rev. William Hobart, D.D. (Kenyon College, Gambier, O., 1872), S.T.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., and Columbia College, New-York City, both 1872), Episcopalian, missionary bishop of South Dakota; b. at Princeton, N.J., May 17, 1838; studied at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, but serious eye-trouble compelled him to withdraw at the close of junior year; was assistant minister at St. Luke's, 1859—62; rector of St. Paul's, Chestnut Hill, 1862—63; in charge of St. Luke's, 1863—64; in charge of, and later rector of, the Church of the Ascension, 1864—70 (all in Philadelphia); secretary and general agent of the Foreign Committee of the Episcopal Church, 1870—March, 1873; nominated by the House of Bishops missionary bishop of Cape Palmas and parts adjacent in West Africa, 1871, but the nomination was withdrawn in consequence of remonstrance from the House of Deputies, on the ground of his great usefulness as secretary; accepted missionary bishopric of Niobrara, 1872, consecrated Jan. 9, 1873; present diocese defined, 1883. Bishop Hare is classed with the Broad-Church school, but his conservative tendencies are marked.

HARGROVE, Robert Kennon, D.D. (Emory College, Oxford, Ga., 1872), bishop of the Methodist-Episcopal Church South; b. in Pickens County, Ala., Sept. 17, 1829; graduated at the State University of Alabama, at Tuscaloosa, 1842; was itinerant preacher in the Alabama Conference, 1857—67; in the Kentucky Conference, 1868; in the Tennessee Conference, 1868—82; professor of mathematics in the University of Alabama, 1853—57; chaplain in the Confederate army; president of the Centenary Institute, Summerville, Ala., 1865—67; of the Tennessee Female College at Franklin, 1865—72; member of Cape May Commission for adjudicating differences between Methodism North and South, 1876; elected bishop, 1882. He has written articles in periodicals.

HARKAVY, A. (Hebrew name Abraham Elias, in ordinary life Albert), Hebrew rabbi; b. in St. Petersburg, Russia, Oct. 29, 1839; educated in the Wilna Rabbinical School, and did his theological studies at the University of St. Petersburg (1863—67); pursued studies at Berlin (under Rödiger and Dümichen) and at Paris (under Oppert) 1868—70; graduated a rabbi at Wilna, 1863; magister (1868) and doctor (1872) of the history of the Orient; was unanimously chosen a docent in the Oriental faculty at St. Petersburg in 1870, after delivering test lectures upon the history of the Semitic nations, but prevented by the efforts of a personal enemy from receiving the position; is a member of the Imperial Russian State Council, knight of several orders, librarian of the Imperial Public Library, and honorary member of the Helene Philological Syllogos of Constantinople, member of the Society of the Friends of Natural Science and Anthropology of Moscow, corresponding member of the geographical society of Tiflis, and member of the imperial Russian Archæological Society, etc. He is a moderate conservative in religious matters. His literary activity in Hebrew and Russian dates from 1860. Besides different articles in learned periodicals, he has written in Russian "The Jews and the Slavonic Languages," St. Petersburg, 1867; "Information concerning the Mussulman Writers upon Slavs and Russians," 1870, appendix to same 1871; "The Historical Importance of the Moabite Inscription of King Messa," 1871; "The Original Home of the Semites, Hamites, and Japhetites," 1872; "Information concerning the Arabs under Thule," 1873; "Information concerning Jewish Writers upon the Chararen and their Kingdom," 1874; "Catalogue of the Samarian MSS. in the Imperial Public Library," 1874—75; "The Origin of some Geographical Names on the Taurian Peninsula," 1876; "The Information of Abraham of Kertah on the Embassy of St. Wladimir to the Chararen," 1870; "Biography of Peter Lerch," 1885; "Biography of Caetan Rosnowics, Professor in St. Petersburg University," 1885. In French, Les mots égyptiens de la Bible, 1876; Sur un passage des "Prairies d'or" a Macouli concernant l'histoire ancienne de l'Ethiopie, 1876. In German, Catalog der hebräischen Bibel-
HARMAN. 92

HARMAN, Henry Martyn, D.D. (Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1866), Methodist; b. in Anne Arundel County, Md., March 22, 1822; graduated at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1848; was professor in Baltimore (Md.) Female College, 1853–55; professor of languages in West Virginia University, Morgantown, W. Va., 1868–69; since 1870 in Dickinson College (professor of ancient languages and literature, 1870–79; since 1876, of Greek and Hebrew). He is the author of A Journey to Egypt and the Holy Land, Philadelphia, 1872; Introduction to the Study of the Holy Scriptures, New York, 1878, 4th ed., greatly enlarged, 1894 (this work is part of the course of study for the itinerant ministers of the Methodist-Episcopal Church during the first four years of their ministry).

HARMON, George Milford, Universalist; b. at Thornrike, Waldo County, Me., Nov. 28, 1842; graduated at Tufts College, College Hill, Mass., 1867, and at its divinity school, 1875; was pastor of several churches prior to and subsequent to his theological course; from 1882 to 1883 was professor in Lombard University, Galesburg, Ill.; and since 1883, has been professor of theology in Tufts Divinity School, College Hill, Mass.

HARRACK, Karl Gustav Adolph, Ph.D. (Leipzig, February, 1873), Lic. Theol. (Graul, November, 1874), B.D. (Münster, 1879), German Pro-estant; b. at Dorpat, Livland, May 7, 1851; studied at Dorpat, 1869–72; became privat-doent of practical theology there, 1873; professor of languages prior to and subsequent to his theological course; from 1882 to 1883 was professor in Lombard University, Galesburg, Ill.; and since 1883, has been professor of theology in Tufts Divinity School, College Hill, Mass.

HARPER, William Rainey, Ph.D. (Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1875), Baptist layman; b. at New Concord, O., July 26, 1856; graduated at Muskingum College, New Concord, O., 1870; from 1876 to 1879 was principal of the preparatory department of Denison University, Granville, O.; from 1879 to 1886 was professor of Hebrew at the Congregational Theological Seminary at Chicago (Morgan Park, Ill.), Baptist Union Theological Seminary; and since 1886 has been professor of Semitic languages in Yale College. He is the author of Elements of Hebrew by an Inductive Method, Chicago, 1882, 2d ed. 1885; Hebrew Vocabulary, 1886, 3d ed. 1884; Introductory Hebrew Method, 1882; Intermediate Hebrew Method, 1888, 2d ed. 1885. He is the author of Elements of Hebrew by an Inductive Method, Chicago, 1882, 2d ed. 1885; Hebrew Vocabulary, 1886, 3d ed. 1884; Introductory Hebrew Method, 1882; Intermediate Hebrew Method, 1888, 2d ed. 1885.
edits The Hebrew Student (Chicago, 1882-84), and edits Hebraica (Chicago, 1884, sqq.), Old-Testament Student (1882, sqq.).

HARRIS, George, D.D. (Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., 1859), Congregationalist; b. at East Machias, Me., April 1, 1814; graduated from Amherst College, Mass., 1868, and from Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1869; was pastor at Auburn, Me., 1869-72; at Providence, R.I., 1872-83; and since 1883 has been Abbott professor of Christian theology in the Andover Theological Seminary.

HARRIS, Samuel, D.D. (Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1855), L.L.D. (Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1871), Congregationalist; b. at East Machias, Me., June 14, 1814; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1833, and at Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1838; was principal of Limerick Academy, Me., 1833-34, and of Washington Academy, East Machias, Me., 1834-35, 1838-41; pastor at Conway, Mass., 1841-51, and at Pittsfield, Mass., 1851-55; professor of systematic theology in the Bangor Theological Seminary, 1855-67 (from 1855 to 1863, jointly with Rev. Prof. George Shepard, D.D., acting pastor of the Center Church in Bangor); president of the Center Church in Bangor); president of the College of the Incarnation, New York, 1883.

HARRISON, Frederic, Positivist; b. in London, Eng., Oct. 18, 1831; was scholar of Wadham College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1859; tutor and fellow of his college; called to the bar, 1859. He was a member of the Royal Commission upon trade-unions, 1867-69; secretary to the Royal Commission for the digest of the law, 1869-70; appointed by the council of legal education, professor of jurisprudence and inter-national law. He was one of the founders of the Positivist School, in 1870; and in 1871, of Newton Hall, London, where the religious services of the Positivists are held. He has in articles, lectures, and addresses advocated his faith. He has been a frequent contributor to The Westminster Review, the Contemporary, the Nineteenth Century, and Fortnightly reviews; and in book form have been issued of his writings, Order and Progress (Pt. 1, On Government; Pt. 2, Studies of Political Crises), London, 1875; 2d vol. of English trans. of A. Comte's Positive Philosophy, 1875; Present and Future: a Positivist Address, 1880; The Choice of Books, and other Literary Pieces, 1886. A reprint, unauthorized by him, of his and Herbert Spencer's articles upon The Nature and Reality of Religion, appeared in New York, 1885.

HARTRANFT, Chester David, D.D. (Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1879), Congregationalist; b. at Frederick, Montgomery County, Penn., Oct. 15, 1839; graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1861, and at the New Brunswick (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1864; was pastor of Reformed (Dutch) churches at South Bushwick, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1864-66, and New Brunswick, N.J. 1866-78; and since 1878 has been professor of biblical and ecclesiastical history in the Hartford, Conn. (Congregational) Theological Seminary. He received the degree of Doctor of Music from Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., in 1861.

HARVEY, Hezekiah, D.D. (Colby University, Waterville, Me., 1861), Baptist; b. at Hulver, Suffolk County, Eng., Nov. 27, 1821; came to America, 1830; graduated at Madison University, 1845, and at Hamilton Theological Seminary (both at Hamilton, N.Y.), 1847; was successively tutor of languages in Madison University until 1849; pastor at Moscow, 1867, and Hamilton, N.Y., until 1858; professor of ecclesiastical history in Hamilton Theological Seminary until 1861, professor of biblical criticism and interpretation and pastoral theology until 1864; pastor at Dayton, O., until 1869; and since has been professor of New-Testament exegesis and pastoral theology in Eastern Theological Seminary. He is the author of Memoir of Rev. Alfred Bennett, New York, 1832; The Church: its Polity and Ordinances, Philadelphia, 1879; The Pastor: his Qualifications and Duties, 1879.

HARWOOD, Edwin, D.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1882), Episcopal; b. in Philadelphia, Aug. 21, 1822; graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1840, and at the General (Episcopal) Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1844; became rector of Christ Church, Oyster Bay, Long Island, N.Y., 1844; of St. Paul's, East Chester, N.Y., 1849; of St. James's, Hamilton Square, New York, 1847; and of the Incarnation, New York, 1850; and in 1859 professor in the Berkeley Divinity School, Middletown, Conn., 1851; and since 1859 rector of Trinity Church, New Haven, Conn. He is a "liberal of the school of Coleridge, perhaps, more than any other." He translated Bähr's commentary on First Kings, and Vermwelten and Voluntarism in the American Lange series (both New York, 1872); and is the author of several essays (Maricon; Was St. Peter ever in Rome? Gnosticism).

HASE, Karl August, D.D., Lutheran; b. at HANSELQUIST, Tuvey Nelson, D.D. (Muhlenberg College, Allentown, Penn., 1871), Lutheran; b. at Ousby, Skåne, Sweden, March 2, 1810; ordained at Lund, 1839; came to America 1852, and was one of the founders of the Swedish Lutheran Church in the United States. He was pastor at Galesburg, Ill., 1852-63; president of Augustana College and Theological Seminary when it was located at Paxton, Ill. (1863-75), and since its removal to Rock Island, Ill. (1875-). He has edited the most important religious periodicals published in Swedish in the United States in the interest of the Lutheran Church, for the last thirty years, and is still the editor of Augustana och Missionären, the leading religious paper circulated in the Swedish Lutheran Church. He also fills the chair of homiletics and pastoral theology in the institution of which he is president. He has in press a Commentary on Ephesians.

HASTINGS, Thomas Samuel, D.D. (University of N.Y., 1850), Presbyterian at Utica, N.Y., Aug. 28, 1827; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1848, and at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1851; was pastor at Mendham, N. J., 1852-54, and of the West Presbyterian Church, New-York City, 1856-81; since 1881, he has been professor of sacred rhetoric in Union Theological Seminary, New York.

HATCH, Edwin, D.D. (University of Edinburgh, 1883), Church of England; b. at Derby, Eng., Sept. 4, 1855; educated at Pembroke College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (second-class classics) 1875, M.A. 1887; won theological prize essay, 1858; was ordained deacon 1858, priest 1859; between 1850 and 1866 was professor of classics in Trinity College, Toronto, Can.; rector of the High School, Quebec; fellow of McGill University, Montreal; became vice-principal of St. Mary Hall, Oxford, Eng., 1867; in addition, since 1855 has been rector of Purleigh, and since 1884 secretary to the boards of faculties, and reader in ecclesiastical history, Oxford. He was master of the schools, 1868, 1869, 1873, 1877; Bamton lecturer, 1880; Grinstead lecturer, 1882; in the Septuagint, 1882-84. He is the author of The Student's Handbook to the University and Colleges of Oxford, London, 1873, 7th ed. 1883; The Organization of the Early Christian Church (Bampton Lectures), 1881, 2d ed. 1882 (German trans., Die Gesellschaftsverfassung der christlichen Kirchen im Altersam, Von Verfasser autorix. Ubersetzt, d. 2. durchgesch. Auf.) des bekannte u. m. Excursen versehen von D. Adl. Harnack, Giessen, 1883); Diversity in Unity, The Law of Spiritual Life (sermon), 1881; Progress in Theology (address to the Edinburgh University Theological Society on Friday, Nov. 14, 1884), Edinburgh, 1885.

HAUCK, Albert, D.D., Lutheran; b. at Wassertüringen, Dec. 9, 1845; studied at Erlangen and Berlin; became pastor in Frankenheim, 1875; professor extraordinary of theology at Erlangen, 1878; ordinary professor, 1882. He has been since 1839 editor of the new edition of Herzog's Real-Encyclopädie, which was begun by Professors Herzog and Plitt, 1877. Professor Plitt died in 1886, and Professor Hauck succeeded him as joint editor. Professor Herzog died in 1882, and Professor Hauck has since carried on the work alone. He is the author of Tertullian's Leben und Schriften, Erlangen, 1877; Die Bischofsweisen unter den Meistersingen, 1883 (pp. 28).

HAUPT, Erich, D.D. (b. Greifswald, 1853), German Protestant; b. at Stralsund, July 8, 1841; studied at Berlin, 1858-61; became gymnasial teacher at Colberg 1864, and at Treptow 1866; ordinary professor of theology at Kiel 1878, and at Greifswald 1883. He is a Consistorialrat. He is the author of Der erste Brief des Johannes, Colberg, 1869; Die alttestamentlichen Citate in den vier Evangelien, 1871; Johannes der Täufer, Gütersloh, 1874; Der Sonntag und die Bibel, Hamburg, 1877; Die Kirche und die theologische Lehrfreiheit, Kiel, 1881; Pflegerschaft und Valerhaus, Sechs Predigten, 1881.

HAUPT, Herman, Ph.D. (Würzburg, 1875); b. in Markt-Bibart, Bavaria, June 29, 1854; studied philology and history at Würzburg, 1871-75; became gymnasial teacher in Würzburg, 1874; librarian of the university there, 1870; correspondent of the Augustana, 1871; has in press a Commentary on Ephesians; at the Evangelische Zeitung, Hamburg, 1881; and in the University Press. He is the author of Der erste Brief des Johannes, Colberg, 1869; Die alttestamentlichen Citate in den vier Evangelien, 1871; Johannes der Täufer, Gütersloh, 1874; Der Sonntag und die Bibel, Hamburg, 1877; Die Kirche und die theologische Lehrfreiheit, Kiel, 1881; Pflegerschaft und Valerhaus, Sechs Predigten, 1881.
logical Literaturzeitung. He is the author of Die religiösen Sektren in Frankreich vor der Reformation, Würzburg, 1882; Die deutsche Bibelübersetzung der mittelalterlichen Waldenser im Codex Teplensis und den ersten gedruckten deutschen Biblien nachgewiesen, 1885; Zur Geschichte des Joachimismus, Gotha, 1888; Beiträge zur Geschichte des Bergkarden thums und der Sekte vom freien Geiste, 1885 (both separately printed from the Zeitschrift für Kirchengeschichte, Band vii.); Der walденische Ursprung der Codex Teplensis und der vorlutherischen deutschen Bibeldrucke gegen die Angriffe des Dr. Franz Jostes vertheidigt, Würzburg, 1886; and of various articles in the Zeitschrift für Kirchengeschichte, Bd. v.–viil. He has in preparation a collection of printed and unprinted sources of the history of the Waldenses in Germany.

HAURÉAU, Jean Barthélemy, Roman Catholic; b. in Paris, Nov. 9, 1812; was first a journalist, sat in the constitutional assembly of 1848; was keeper of the MSS. in the National Library, but resigned; in 1852, he was made librarian for the lawyers' corporation of Paris. He is a member of the Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-lettres, and has published many learned works, among which may be mentioned the 14th, 16th, and 18th vols. of Gallia Christiana; Histoire de la philosophie scolastique, Paris, 1850, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1881; Hugo de S. Victor, 1850; Bernard Délégic et l'Inquisition Albigeois, 1877.

HAUSRATH, Adolph, Lic. Theol. (Heidelberg, 1881), D.D. (kon., Vienna, 1871), Reformed; b. at Carlsruhe, Jan. 19, 1857; studied at Jena, Göttingen, Berlin, and Heidelberg; was privat-dozent at Heidelberg in 1861; “assessor” of the upper consistatory at Carlsruhe in 1864; returned to Heidelberg as professor extraordinary in 1867, and became ordinary professor in 1872. He belongs to the Tübingen school, and is the author of Der Apostel Paulus, Heidelberg, 1865, 2d ed. 1872; Neuestamentliche Zeitgeschichte, 1868–73, 4 parts, 2d ed. 1873–77, 3d ed. 1st part, Die Zeit Jesu, 1879; Religiöse Reden und Betrachtungen, Leipzig, 1873, 2d ed. 1882; David Friedrich Strauss und die Theologie seiner Zeit, Munich, 1876–78, 2 vols.; kleine Schriften religiösgeschichtlichen Inhalts, Leipzig, 1883. Under the pseudonyme “George Taylor” he has written several historical romances: Antinous (from the time of the Roman emperors), Leipzig, 1880, 5th ed. 1884; Kylix (from the 16th century), 1883, 5th ed. 1884; Jetta (from the time of the great immigrations), 1884, 3d ed. same year.

HAWEIS, Hugh Reginald, Church of England; b. at Egham, Surrey, April 3, 1838; educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. 1859, M.A. 1864; was curate of St. Peter’s, Bethnal Green, 1856–63; of St. James the Less, Bethnal Green, 1863–65; since 1865 has been incumbent of St. James, Marylebone, — all Lon don. He is an ardent friend of the humbler classes; and for their benefit he organized the penny readings, and holds Sunday-evening services in which by means of orchestral music, oratorios, pictures of sacred scenes, he seeks to impress religious truth. He is a voluminous writer, and in The Times, London, 1871, 14th ed. 1886; Thoughts for the Times, London, 1872, 14th ed. 1887; Pet (a child’s book), 1873; Unsectarian Family Prayers, 1874, 4th ed. 1886; Speech in Season, 1874, 4th ed. 1880; Ashes to Ashes (an argument for cremation), 1874; New Pet, 1875; Current Coin, 1876, 4th ed. 1881; Arrows in the Air, 1878, 4th ed. 1881; Shakespeare and the Stage, 1878; American Humanists, 1882; Poets in the Pulpit, 1883; Key of Doctrine and Practice, 1884, 15th thousand same year; My Musical Life, 1894; Winged Words; or, Truths re-told, 1885.

HAY, Charles Augustus, D.D. (Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., 1859), Lutheran (General Synod); b. at York, Penn., Feb. 11, 1821, graduated at Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., and studied in Germany at Berlin and Halle. After a nine-months’ pastorate at Middletown, Md., he became in 1845 professor of Hebrew, German, and New-Testament exegesis, in the Gettysburg Theological Seminary, and served until 1848, and again from 1865 to the present time. From 1848 to 1849 he was pastor at Hanover, Penn., and from 1850 to 1853, at Harrisburg. He is the author of Life of Captain See, Harrisburg, 1867; and, with Prof. Dr. H. E. Jacobs, translated Schmid’s Doctrinal Theology of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, Philadelphia, 1875.

HAYES, Benjamin Francis, D.D. (Hillsdale College, Hillsdale, Mich., 1871), Free Baptist; b. at New Gloucester, Me., March 24, 1830; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1853, and from the Freewill Baptist Theological Seminary, New Hampton, N.H. (now at Lewiston, Me.), 1858; was teacher of sciences and German in New Hampton Literary Institution, 1855–59; pastor of Free Baptist Church at Olneyville, R.I., 1859–63; principal of Lapham Institute, North Scituate, R.I., 1863–65; since 1865 has been professor in Bates College, Lewiston, Me. (professor of modern languages, 1865–69; of intellectual and moral philosophy since 1869); and since 1873 professor of exegetical theology in the Free Baptist Theological Seminary at Lewiston, Me. He studied at Ittalle, Germany, with Ulrici, 1873–74. He has published since 1860 various articles in the Freewill Baptist Quarterly, Centennial Record, etc., Dover, N.H.; also Questions and Notes, with an Analysis of Butler’s Analogy, Lewiston, Me.

HAYGOOD, Atticus Greene, D.D. (Emory College, Oxford, Ga., 1870), LL.D. (South-Western University, Georgetown, Tex., 1884), Methodist (Southern Church); b. at Watkinsville, Ga., Nov. 19, 1838; graduated at Emory College, Oxford, Ga., 1859; entered the ministry, was Sunday-school secretary M. E. Church South, 1870–75; president of Emory College, 1876–84; agent of the “John F. Slater Fund” since 1855. He declined election as bishop in 1882; was member of General Conference in 1870, 1874, 1878, and 1882. He is the author of Our Children, New York, 1876; Our Beasts and Birds = Bull. Libr., 1881; Sermons and Speeches, Nashville, Tenn., 1888.

HEAR, John Bickford, Church of England; b. in Dublin, Ireland, Oct. 26, 1828; entered Caius College, Cambridge, obtained a scholarship, wrote the Hulsean theological prize essay, took the Whewell prize in moral philosophy, and graduated B.A. (first class in moral science tripos) 1858, M.A. 1862. He was ordained deacon and priest, 1852; vicar of Bilston, Harrogate, 1864–68; editor HECKER, Isaac Thomas, Roman Catholic; b. at Unterkochen, Würtemberg, March 16, 1800; studied philosophy and theology at Tubingen from 1827 to 1832, and then for a year in theological seminary at Rotenburg; was ordained a priest, Aug. 14, 1833; was reprievet at Tubingen in 1834; taught in the Rottweil gymnasium in 1835; in 1836 became tutor for Möhler, at Tubingen; there in 1837 professor extraordinary, and in 1890 professor ordinary, of church history and patrology, in the Roman-Catholic faculty. He was ennobled in 1853; was a member of the Würtemberg House of Representatives from 1842–48; in 1898 and 1809 was one of the council to prepare for the Vatican Council, which he attended, and in which he opposed the infallibility dogma. On Dec. 29, 1889, he was at Rottenburg enthroned bishop of Rotenburg; and on April 21, 1871, he promulgated the new dogma in his diocese, and in 1872 publicly announced his acceptance of it. He is the author of Geschichtedetripartitenatur des Christenthumsim erzidiatischenDeutschland, onders in Württemberg, Tubingen, 1837; Patrum Apostolicorum Opera, 1839, 4th ed. 1853; Das Sendschreiben des Apostels Barnabas, 1840; Der Cardinal Ximenes and die hirliche Zustände Spaniens am Ende des 15. u. Beginn des 16. Jahrh., 1844, 2d ed. 1851; S. Bonaventura breviloquium et itinerarium mentis ad Deum, 1845, 3d ed. 1861; Chrysostomus-Postille, 1845, 3d ed. 1857; Beiträge zur Kirchengeschichte, Archäologie and Liturgik, 1864–65, 2 vols.; Causa Honorii papae, Naples, 1870 (German trans. by Rump, Die Honoriusfrage, Münster, 1870 (pp. 28); Honoria und das sechste, also auch das siebente, Kapitel der Concilia, 1870, 3d ed. 1874). Protestant; b. at Karkeln, East Prussia, March 14, 1844; studied at Halle and Berlin; became inspector of the Domkoaditlatenstiftat Berlin, 1870; professor-extraordinary in the university, 1871; professor extraordinary at Marburg, 1873; ordinary professor of New-Testament exegetics, 1874. In 1881 he became a member of the royal consistory at Cassel. He is the author of Die Valentinianische Gnosis und die HeiligcSchri 2,Berlin, 1870; pricat-(locenlin the university, 1871; Concilientgeschichte (from the first council to that of Ferrara Florence; the work is to be continued by other hands), Freiburg, 1855–74, 7 vols. 2d ed. 1853 seqq., vol. 5, 1896 (Eng. trans., History of the Councils of the Church, Edinburgh, 1871, seqq.; vol. 3 [To 352], 1892).

HEINRICI, Karl Friedrich Georg, Ph.D. (Halle, 1880). Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1888). D.D. (Marburg, 1875). Protestant; b. at Karkeln, East Prussia, March 14, 1844; studied at Halle and Berlin; became inspector of the Domkoaditlatenstiftat Berlin, 1870; professor-extraordinary in the university, 1871; professor extraordinary at Marburg, 1873; ordinary professor of New-Testament exegetics, 1874. In 1881 he became a member of the royal consistory at Cassel. He is the author of Die Valentinianische Gnosis und die HeiligcSchri 2,Berlin, 1870; pricat-(locenlin the university, 1871; Concilientgeschichte (from the first council to that of Ferrara Florence; the work is to be continued by other hands), Freiburg, 1855–74, 7 vols. 2d ed. 1853 seqq., vol. 5, 1896 (Eng. trans., History of the Councils of the Church, Edinburgh, 1871, seqq.; vol. 3 [To 352], 1892).

HEMEL, Carl Friedrich, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1870). Lic. Theol. (Basel, 1883). Swiss Protestant theologian; b. at Grunstadt, Rheinpfalz, Aug. 30, 1839; studied at Basel, Erlangen, and Tübingen; became pastor in the Rheinpfalz, 1872; agent of the Verein der Freunde Israels at Basel, 1874, and privaat-docent in the university. His theological standpoint is positio offenbarungsläuglich. He is the author of Ed. von Hartmann's Religion der Zeitung in ihrer Schaffung, Leipzig, 1875: Die Erscheinung der Dinge in der Wahrnehmung, 1881; Die religiöse Weltstellung des jüdischen Volkes, 1882 (these two were translated into Norwegian and Swedish, 1882); Die wissenschaftlichen Versuche neuer Religionsbildungen, Basel, 1884; Der Ursprung der Religion, 1886.

HEMPHILL, Charles Robert, Presbyterian, Southern Church; b. at Chester Court House, S.C., April 18, 1832; was educated at the University of South Carolina (1868), and at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va. (1869-70); graduated at Columbia (S.C.) Theological Seminary, 1874; took a degree of doctor of divinity at the University of the Confederate States of America, 1874-78; fellow in Greek, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md., 1878; professor of ancient languages, Northwestern Presbyterian University, Clarksville, Tenn., 1879-81; since 1881, has been professor of biblical literature in the Columbia (S.C.) Theological Seminary.

HENDRIX, Eugene Russell, D.D. (Emory College, Oxford, Ga., 1878), Methodist-Episcopal Church South; b. at Fayette, Mo., May 17, 1847; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1867, and at Union Theological Seminary (Presbyterian), New York City, 1869; was Methodist (Southern Church) stated supply at Leavenworth, Kan., 1869-70; pastor at Macon, Mo., 1870-72; St. Joseph, 1872-76; Glasgow, 1877; became president of Central College, Fayette, Mo., 1878; bishop, 1886. In 1876-77 he made a missionary tour of the world, with Bishop Marvin of St. Louis. In 1885 he declined the vice-chancellorship of Vanderbilt University, and also the presidency of the University of Missouri. He is the author of Around the World, Nashville, Tenn., 1878, 5th ed. 1882.

HENSON, Poindexter Smith, D.D. (Lewisburg College, Lewisburg, Penn., 1867), Baptist; b. in Fluvanna County, Va., Dec. 7, 1831; graduated at Richmond (Va.) College, 1849, and the University of Virginia, at Charlottesville, 1851; became principal of the Milton (N.C.) Classical Institute, 1851; professor of natural science in the Chowan Female College, Murfreesborough, N.C., 1853; pastor of Fluvanna Baptist Church, Va., 1855; Broad-street Church, Philadelphia, 1860; Memorial Church, Philadelphia, 1867 (which he organized); First Church, Chicago, 1882. Since 1870 he has been editor of The Baptist Magazine (American Baptist Publication Society, Philadelphia), and published numerous articles, occasional sermons, etc.

HERGENROETHER, His Eminence Joseph, Cardinal, D.D. (Munich, 1850), Roman Catholic; b. at Würzburg, Bavaria, Sept. 15, 1824; studied at Würzburg and in Rome, there ordained priest in 1851, and in the University of Munich, successively privaat-docent (1851), professor extraordinary (1852), and ordinary professor of ecclesiastical law and history (1855). In 1866-69 he was one of the committee to prepare for the Vatican Council. He has been a consistent defender of the infallibility dogma. Pius IX. made him one of his domestic prelates; and Leo XIII., on May 12, 1879, a cardinal deacon, with the title of S. Nicola in Carcere, and residence in Rome, where he is prefect of the apostolic archives. His publications are numerous: of especial interest are, Der Kirchenstaat seit der französischen Revolution, Freiburg-im-Breisgau, 1875; Piothus, Paterarch von Constantinople, Regensburg, 1867-69, 3 vols. (this is one of the great monographs of modern times; in vol. 3 is Monumenta Graeca ad Photium ejusque historiam spectantia, also separately issued, 1869); Anti-janus, Freiburg-im-Breisgau, 1870 (English trans., Dublin, 1870, a reply to Döllinger's Janua); Katholische Kirche und christlicher Staat in ihrer geschichtlichen Entwicklung und in Beziehung auf die Fragen der Gegenwart, 1872, abridged ed. 1873 (English trans., Catholic Church and Christian State, London, 1876, 2 vols.); Literaturbelege und Nachträge dazu, 1876; Piothis, Paterarch von Constantinople, Regensburg, 1874; tutor in Hebrew there, 1874-78; fellow in Greek, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md., 1878; professor of ancient languages, Northwestern Presbyterian University, Clarksville, Tenn., 1879-81; since 1881, has been professor of biblical literature in the Columbia (S.C.) Theological Seminary.

HERING, Hermann, D.D., German Protestant theologian; b. at Dallmayr in the Westphaln, Feb. 28, 1838; studied at Halle, 1858-61; became diakon in Weissensee, 1863; archi-diaconus at Weissensee, 1863; archi-diakonus at Weissensee, 1869; chief pastor at Lützen, 1874; superintendent of the diocese of Lützen, 1875; ordinary professor of practical theology at Halles, 1878. He is the author of Die Mystik Luthers im Zusammenkange seiner Theologie und in ihrem Verhältniss zur älteren Mystik, Leipzig, 1879.

HERMINYARD, Aimé Louis, Reformed; b. at Vevey, Switzerland, Nov. 7, 1817; studied at Lausanne; for many years was a teacher in Russia, France, and Germany, but latter has lived at Lausanne. After thirty years' labor, he began the publication, with full annotations, of the correspondence of the French Reformers, in a series of volumes of unique and priceless value, for which he has the profoundest gratitude of all students of the period: Correspondance des réformateurs dans les langues de langue française, Geneva, 1866 sqq. (vol. 6, 1885).

HERRMANN, Johann Georg Wilhelm, Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1874), Ph.D., D.D. (both Marburg, 1880), German Protestant; b. at Melkow, Magdeburg, Dec. 6, 1848; studied at Halle, 1869-70; became privat-docent there, 1874; ordinary professor of theology at Marburg, 1879. He is the author of Die Metaphysik in der Theologie, Halle, 1774; Die Religion im Verhältniss zum Welterkennen und zur Sittlichkeit, 1879; Die Bedeutung der Inspirationslehre für die evangelische Kirche, 1882; Warum be- darf unser Glaube geschichtlicher Tatssachen, 1884.

HERSON, Paul Isaac, Nonconformist; b. of Jewish parents, at Buczacz (pronounced booch- church), Galicia, Austrian Poland, in May (8th day of the Jewish month Iyyar), 1818; studied at the then Hebrew College in Jerusalem, under the auspices of the London Society for promoting Christianity amongst the Jews, 1842-60, and became superintendent of the society's house of industry in that city, 1847; resigned, was reinstated 1848 after visit to England, retained position till 1853, resigned again; became the society's mission- ary to the Jews at Manchester, Eng.; was superintendent of the Palestine model farm at Jaffa, started by a committee of Hebrew Christians; resigned through ill health, and returned to England, 1859. He has published Extracts from the Talmud, Being Specimens of Wis, Wisdom, Learning, etc., of the Wise and Learned Rabbis, London, 1834; Notes on the Talmud and Genesis, 1874 (Hebrew; in English, 1883); an improved edition of the New Testament, in Judeo-Polish, published by the British and Foreign Bible Society, 1874; A Talmudic Miscellany, 1880; Treasures of the Talmud, 1882; A Rabbinical Commentary on Genesis, 1885; and has in manuscript Exodus according to the Talmud, Key to the Babylonian Talmud (references to 1,400 classified subjects); Modern Orthodox Judaism, and what it teaches about God, Man, and the World to come, etc.

HERVEY, Right Rev. Lord Arthur Charles, D.D. (Cambridge, 1869), lord bishop of Bath and Wells, Church of England; b. in London, July 17, 1814; entered Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated M.A. (first-class classical tripos), 1830; ordained deacon and priest, 1832. He is the son of the first Marquis of Bristol, and after a short service as curate was appointed by his father rector of Leekworth in 1832, to which Horringer, the adjacent living (both in Suffolk), was united in 1853, and the united living was held by him until 1869. In 1862 he was promoted to the archdeaconry of Sudbury, and in 1869 was consecrated bishop of Bath and Wells. He is visitor of Wadham College, Oxford. He was a member of the Old Testament Revision Company. He contributed to Smith’s Dictionary of the Bible, to The Bible (Speaker’s) Commentary (Ruth and Samuel), to The Pulpit Commentary (Judges, Ruth, and Acts), and The Brief Commentary of the S.P. C. K.; and has also published various single sermons and charges, and three volumes of collected discourses,—Parochial Sermons, London, 1850, 2 vols.; The Inspiration of Holy Scripture (four Cambridge University sermons), 1855. His most important publication is The Genealogies of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, as contained in the Gospels of Matthew and Luke, reconciled with each other, and with the Genealogy of the House of David, from Adam to the Close of the Canon of the Old Testament, and shown to be in harmony with the True Chronology of the Times, 1853.

HERZOG, Right Rev. Eduard, D.D. (Hon., Bern, 1878), Christian Catholic (Catholic); b. at Schongau, Canton Luzern, Switzerland, Aug. 1, 1841; studied theology at Tubingen, Freiburg, and Bonn, 1865–68; became teacher of religion in the teachers’ institute of the Canton Luzern, and of exegesis in the theological (Roman-Catholic) seminary at Luzern, 1868; chosen professor of New Testament exegesis at Crefeld, Prussia, 1872; at Olten, 1873; Bern, 1876–84; chosen bishop of the Christian Catholic Church of Switzerland, June 7, 1878; consecrated, Sept. 15, 1876. Since 1874 he has been professor of theology at Bern, and was rector of the university 1884–85. He has written Über die Abfassungszeit der Pastorallbriefe, Luzern, 1870; Chrikt-kath. Gebethbuch, Bern, 1879, 2d ed. 1884; Gemeinschaft mit der Anglo-Amer. Kirche, 1881; Religionsfreiheit in der heil. Republik, 1884; about twenty episcopal charges, relative to excommunication, confession, the three Peter-passages, etc., essays and sermons. He edited the Katholische Stimmle, Luzern, 1870–71 (a weekly newspaper against papal infallibility); Katholische Blätter, Olten, 1873–76 (weekly, Old Catholic); is joint editor of Katholik, Bern, 1878, sqq. (weekly, organ of the Christian Catholic Church of Switzerland).

HESSEY, Ven. James Augustus, D.C.L. (Oxford, England, 1881), bishop of the Diocese of Sewanee, Tenn., U.S.A., 1884, Church of England; b. in London, July 17, 1814; became provost of St. John’s College, Oxford, 1832, fellow 1835; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1838, M.A. 1840, B.D. 1845, B.C.L. 1846, ordained deacon 1837, priest 1838; was vicar of Helidon, 1839, resigned; college logic lecturer, 1839–42; examiner for the Hertford Latin scholarship at Oxford, 1842–43; public examiner in the university, 1842–44; head master of Merchant Taylors’ School, London, 1844–50; select preacher in the University of Oxford, 1849; preacher of Gray’s Inn Chapel, 1860–65; tutor 1859–60 at Oriel College, Oxford, 1880; prebendary of St. Paul’s, London, 1860–75; Grinfield lecturer in the University, 1869; ordained deacon 1837, priest 1838; in 1853; and the united living was held by him until 1869. In 1862 he was promoted to the archdeaconry of Sudbury, and in 1869 was consecrated bishop of Bath and Wells. He is visitor of Wadham College, Oxford. He was a member of the Old Testament Revision Company. He contributed to Smith’s Dictionary of the Bible, to The Bible (Speaker’s) Commentary (Ruth and Samuel), to The Pulpit Commentary (Judges, Ruth, and Acts), and The Brief Commentary of the S. P. C. K.; and has also published various single sermons and charges, and three volumes of collected discourses,—Parochial Sermons, London, 1850, 2 vols.; The Inspiration of Holy Scripture (four Cambridge University sermons), 1855. His most important publication is The Genealogies of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, as contained in the Gospels of Matthew and Luke, reconciled with each other, and with the Genealogy of the House of David, from Adam to the Close of the Canon of the Old Testament, and shown to be in harmony with the True Chronology of the Times, 1853.

HERZOG, Right Rev. Eduard, D.D. (Hon., Bern, 1878), Christian Catholic (Catholic); b. at Schongau, Canton Luzern, Switzerland, Aug. 1, 1841; studied theology at Tubingen, Freiburg, and Bonn, 1865–68; became teacher of religion in the teachers’ institute of the Canton Luzern, and of exegesis in the theological (Roman-Catholic) seminary at Luzern, 1868; chosen professor of New Testament exegesis at Crefeld, Prussia, 1872; at Olten, 1873; Bern, 1876–84; chosen bishop of the Christian Catholic Church of Switzerland, June 7, 1878; consecrated, Sept. 15, 1876. Since 1874 he has been professor of theology at Bern, and was rector of the university 1884–85. He has written Über die Abfassungszeit der Pastorallbriefe, Luzern, 1870; Chrikt-kath. Gebethbuch, Bern, 1879, 2d ed. 1884; Gemeinschaft mit der Anglo-Amer. Kirche, 1881; Religionsfreiheit in der helvet. Republik, 1884; about twenty episcopal charges, relative to excommunication, confession, the three Peter-passages, etc., essays and sermons. He edited the Katholische Stimmle, Luzern, 1870–71 (a weekly newspaper against papal infallibility); Katholische Blätter, Olten, 1873–76 (weekly, Old Catholic); is joint editor of Katholik, Bern, 1878, sqq. (weekly, organ of the Christian Catholic Church of Switzerland).

HESSEY, Ven. James Augustus, D.C.L. (Oxford, England, 1881), bishop of the Diocese of Sewanee, Tenn., U.S.A., 1884, Church of England; b. in London, July 17, 1814; became provost of St. John’s College, Oxford, 1832, fellow 1835; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1838, M.A. 1840, B.D. 1845, B.C.L. 1846, ordained deacon 1837, priest 1838; was vicar of Helidon, 1839, resigned; college logic lecturer, 1839–42; examiner for the Hertford Latin scholarship at Oxford, 1842–43; public examiner in the university, 1842–44; head master of Merchant Taylors’ School, London, 1844–50; select preacher in the University of Oxford, 1849; preacher of Gray’s Inn Chapel, 1859–60; tutor 1859–60 at Oriel College, Oxford, 1880; prebendary of St. Paul’s, London, 1860–75; Grinfield lecturer in the University, 1869; ordained deacon 1837, priest 1838; in 1853; and the united living was held by him until 1869. In 1862 he was promoted to the archdeaconry of Sudbury, and in 1869 was consecrated bishop of Bath and Wells. He is visitor of Wadham College, Oxford. He was a member of the Old Testament Revision Company. He contributed to Smith’s Dictionary of the Bible, to The Bible (Speaker’s) Commentary (Ruth and Samuel), to The Pulpit Commentary (Judges, Ruth, and Acts), and The Brief Commentary of the S. P. C. K.; and has also published various single sermons and charges, and three volumes of collected discourses,—Parochial Sermons, London, 1850, 2 vols.; The Inspiration of Holy Scripture (four Cambridge University sermons), 1855. His most important publication is The Genealogies of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, as contained in the Gospels of Matthew and Luke, reconciled with each other, and with the Genealogy of the House of David, from Adam to the Close of the Canon of the Old Testament, and shown to be in harmony with the True Chronology of the Times, 1853.
HEURTLEY.

HILL.

HEURTLEY, Charles Abel, D.D. (Oxford, 1853), Church of England; b. in England, about the year 1806; was scholar, and later fellow (1832-41), of Corpus Christi College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class in mathematics), 1827; Ellerton theological prizeman, 1828; M.A. 1831, B.D. 1838; was ordained (deacon 1831, priest 1832); was curate of Wardington and Claydon, Buckinghamshire, 1840-72. In 1834, 1838, and 1851 he was select preacher to the university; in 1845 the Bampton lecturer; from 1845 to 1853 honorary canon of Worcester Cathedral. In 1853 he became Margaret professor of divinity, and canon of Christ Church, Oxford. From 1864 to 1872 he was a member of the hebdomadal council of the university. His publications include numerous sermons (single and collected), pamphlets, and essays; his Bampton lectures on "ustification, tractatus, 1869, 3d ed. 1884; The Athanasian "reetl: 1869; ecclesiastical councilor, 1873. He is a Protestant theologian; b. at Stappenbeck, near Salz- wedel, June 2, 1829; studied theology at Berlin 1841-43, and at Halle 1843-45; became priva- docent of theology at Jena, 1847; professor extra- ordinary, 1856; honorary ordinary professor, 1869; ecclesiastical councillor, 1873. He is a liberal theologian. Since 1858 he has edited the Zeitschrift für wissenschaftliche Theologie. He is the author of "Die klementinischen Homilien und Martyrien", Jena, 1848; "Das Evangelium und die Briefe Johannis nach ihrem Lehrbegriff", Halle, 1849; "Kritische Untersuchungen über die Evangelien Justin's, der klementinischen Homilien und Marcions", 1850; "Die Glossolalie in der alten Kirche", Leipzig, 1850; "Das Markusevangelium, 1850; "Die göttliche Pole- nik gegen meine Forschungen", 1851; "Der Apostel Paulus, ein Vortrag", Jena, 1851; "Der Galertbrief", Leipzig, 1852; "Die apostolischen Väter", Halle, 1853; "Die Evangelien nach ihrer Entstehung und geschichtli- chen Bedeutung", Leipzig, 1854; "Das Ueitchristenthum in den Hauptpunkten seines Entwickelungs- ranges", Jena, 1855; "Die C. A. V., 1867; "Die kirchl. Vollge salt(les apostol. Stuhles, Freiburg-im-Br., 1873, 5th ed. 1879; D. I". Strauss, 1878; "Lehrbuch der Theologie oder Apologetik", 1879, 2 vols.; "Die Theologie der göttlichen Komödie d. Dante Alighieri in ihren Grundzügen", Köln, 1879; "Die göttl. Komödie d. Dante nach ihrem wesentl. Inhal t u. Character", Freib.-im-Br., 1880; "Die "Krise des Christentums," Protestantismus u. katholische Kirche", 1881; "Die Welt u. Kirche", 1883, 2 vols.

HICKOCK, Laurens Perseus, D.D. (Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1843), LL.D. (Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., 1869), Presbyterian; b. at Bethel, Conn., Dec. 29, 1798; graduated from Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1820; after studying theology under Rev. William Andrews and Bennett Tyler, D.D., He was pastor (Congregational) at Kent, Conn., 1824-29, and at Litchfield, 1829-36. From 1836 to 1844 he was professor of theology in Western Reserve College, Ohio; until 1852 in Auburn (Presby- tean) Theological Seminary, N.Y.; until 1866 was professor of mental and moral science, and vice- president, of Union College; until 1869 president. He then resigned, and has since lived in literary retirement at Amherst, Mass. He is the author of "Rational Psychology, New York, 1849; A System of Moral Science, 1853, revised ed. 1859; Empirical Psychology, 1854, revised ed. 1882; Rational Cos- mology, 1858; Creator and Creation, 1872; Human- ity Immortal, 1872; Logic of Reason, 1875.

HILL, David Jayne, LL.D. (Madison University, Hamilton, N.Y., 1883), Baptist; b. at Plainfield, N.J., June 10, 1850; graduated at the University of Lewisburg, Penn., 1874; became professor of rhetoric there, 1875-76, and president, 1876-79; was pastor of the Church of the Covenant, 1873-76. He is the author of "The Science of Rhetoric, New York, 1877; Elements of Rhetoric and Composition, 1878; Biography of Washington Irving, 1878; Biography of William Cullen Bryant, 1879; The Ultimate HODGE, Caspar Wistar, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1865), son of the late Dr. Charles Hodge, Presbyterian; b. at Princeton, N.J., Feb. 21, 1839; graduated from the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1864, and from the theological seminary (1847); was missionary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions (Old-school) at Allabahad, India, 1847–50; pastor at Lower West Nottingham, Md., 1851–55; Fredericksburg, Va., 1855–61; and at Wilkesbarre (First Church), Penn., 1861–64. In 1864 he became professor of didactic and polemic theology in the Western (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, Alleghany, Penn. In connection with his professorship he held the pastorate of the North Church, Alleghany, from 1866 to 1877. In 1877 he removed to Princeton, first as associate professor, or, of didactic and polemic theology. He is the author of Outlines of Theology, New York, 1890, rewritten and enlarged ed. 1878 (translated into Welsh, modern Greek, and Hindustani); The Atonement, Philadelphia, 1865; Commentary on Confession of Faith, 1869; Presbyterian Form, Philadelphia, 1876; (with Dr. Eddy) 1882; Life of Charles Hodge, New York, 1880.

HODGE, Archibald Alexander, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1862), L.L.D. (Woooster University, Wooster, O., 1876), oldest son of the late Dr. Charles Hodge, Presbyterian; b. at Princeton, N.J., July 18, 1823; graduated from the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1841, and Princeton Theological Seminary (1847); was missionary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions (Old-school) at Allabahad, India, 1847–50; pastor at Lower West Nottingham, Md., 1851–55; Fredericksburg, Va., 1855–61; and at Wilkesbarre (First Church), Penn., 1861–64. In 1864 he became professor of didactic and polemic theology in the Western (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, Alleghany, Penn. In connection with his professorship he held the pastorate of the North Church, Alleghany, from 1866 to 1877. In 1877 he removed to Princeton, first as associate professor, or, of didactic and polemic theology. He is the author of Outlines of Theology, New York, 1890, rewritten and enlarged ed. 1878 (translated into Welsh, modern Greek, and Hindustani); The Atonement, Philadelphia, 1865; Commentary on Confession of Faith, 1869; Presbyterian Form, Philadelphia, 1876; (with Dr. Eddy) 1882; Life of Charles Hodge, New York, 1880.

HODGE, Archibald Alexander, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1862), L.L.D. (Woooster University, Wooster, O., 1876), oldest son of the late Dr. Charles Hodge, Presbyterian; b. at Princeton, N.J., July 18, 1823; graduated from the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1841, and Princeton Theological Seminary (1847); was missionary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions (Old-school) at Allabahad, India, 1847–50; pastor at Lower West Nottingham, Md., 1851–55; Fredericksburg, Va., 1855–61; and at Wilkesbarre (First Church), Penn., 1861–64. In 1864 he became professor of didactic and polemic theology in the Western (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, Alleghany, Penn. In connection with his professorship he held the pastorate of the North Church, Alleghany, from 1866 to 1877. In 1877 he removed to Princeton, first as associate professor, or, of didactic and polemic theology. He is the author of Outlines of Theology, New York, 1890, rewritten and enlarged ed. 1878 (translated into Welsh, modern Greek, and Hindustani); The Atonement, Philadelphia, 1865; Commentary on Confession of Faith, 1869; Presbyterian Form, Philadelphia, 1876; (with Dr. Eddy) 1882; Life of Charles Hodge, New York, 1880.

HODGE, Archibald Alexander, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1862), L.L.D. (Woooster University, Wooster, O., 1876), oldest son of the late Dr. Charles Hodge, Presbyterian; b. at Princeton, N.J., July 18, 1823; graduated from the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1841, and Princeton Theological Seminary (1847); was missionary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions (Old-school) at Allabahad, India, 1847–50; pastor at Lower West Nottingham, Md., 1851–55; Fredericksburg, Va., 1855–61; and at Wilkesbarre (First Church), Penn., 1861–64. In 1864 he became professor of didactic and polemic theology in the Western (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, Alleghany, Penn. In connection with his professorship he held the pastorate of the North Church, Alleghany, from 1866 to 1877. In 1877 he removed to Princeton, first as associate professor, or, of didactic and polemic theology. He is the author of Outlines of Theology, New York, 1890, rewritten and enlarged ed. 1878 (translated into Welsh, modern Greek, and Hindustani); The Atonement, Philadelphia, 1865; Commentary on Confession of Faith, 1869; Presbyterian Form, Philadelphia, 1876; (with Dr. Eddy) 1882; Life of Charles Hodge, New York, 1880.

HODGE, Archibald Alexander, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1862), L.L.D. (Woooster University, Wooster, O., 1876), oldest son of the late Dr. Charles Hodge, Presbyterian; b. at Princeton, N.J., July 18, 1823; graduated from the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1841, and Princeton Theological Seminary (1847); was missionary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions (Old-school) at Allabahad, India, 1847–50; pastor at Lower West Nottingham, Md., 1851–55; Fredericksburg, Va., 1855–61; and at Wilkesbarre (First Church), Penn., 1861–64. In 1864 he became professor of didactic and polemic theology in the Western (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, Alleghany, Penn. In connection with his professorship he held the pastorate of the North Church, Alleghany, from 1866 to 1877. In 1877 he removed to Princeton, first as associate professor, or, of didactic and polemic theology. He is the author of Outlines of Theology, New York, 1890, rewritten and enlarged ed. 1878 (translated into Welsh, modern Greek, and Hindustani); The Atonement, Philadelphia, 1865; Commentary on Confession of Faith, 1869; Presbyterian Form, Philadelphia, 1876; (with Dr. Eddy) 1882; Life of Charles Hodge, New York, 1880.
HODGSON, Telfair, D.D. (University of the South, Tenn., 1878), Episcopalian; b. at Columbia, Va., March 14, 1840; graduated at College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1859; chaplain in the Confederate Army, 1863-65; rector of Keyport, N.J., 1865-74; professor in the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, 1871-73; assistant at Christ Church, Baltimore, Md., 1873-74; rector of Trinity Church, Hoboken, N.J., 1874-78; since 1878 vice-chancellor of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn. He has published occasional sermons, addresses, and reports.

HOLE, Charles, Church of England; b. at Newport, near Barnstable, Devonshire, Eng., March 23, 1823; educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (wrahanger in the mathematical tripos, 1846); was ordained deacon 1846, priest 1847; became curate of St. Mary's Chapel, Reading, 1846; of Shanklin, Isle of Wight, 1858; rector of Loxbeare, Devonshire, 1868; resigned, 1878; lecturer in ecclesiastical history since 1879, and in English history since 1884, at King's College, London; since 1883 chaplain to Lord Sackville. He is the author of A Brief Biographical Dictionary, London, 1863, 2d ed. 1866; Life of Archdeacon Phelps, 1871, 2 vols.; Maintenance of the Church of England as an Established Church (first Peck prize essay), 1874; editor of The Christian Observer, 1877; contributor to Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography, 1877-80, 2 vols., and of Christian Antiquities, 1877-80, 2 vols.

HOLSTEN, Karl Johann, Lutheran; b. at Goisern, Mecklenburg, March 31, 1825; studied at Leipzig, Berlin, and Rostock; became teacher in 1848; Das Leben Jesu nach den Apostraphen, 1851; Symbolik, 1856; Die Lehre vom Gewissen, 1860; Predigten gehalten in der Universitätskirche zu Leipzig, 1869; Zum System der praktischen Theologie, 1874; Schubelob, Dresden, 1873, 2d ed. 1879; Die praktische Vorbildung der Candidaten des höhere Schulams der Universität, Leipzig, 1881; Predigten über das Vaterunser, 1881; Die freien christlichen Liebesthätigkeit und die Gemeinde, 1884; and of numerous articles in Herzog's Real-Encyclopädie, etc.

HOGE, Moses Drury, D.D. (Hampden-Sidney College, Va., 1858), Presbyterian; b. on College Hill, Hampden-Sidney, Sept. 17, 1819; graduated from Hampden-Sidney College, Prince Edward County, Va., 1839, and from the Union Theological Seminary there, 1843; was assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Richmond, Va., 1843-45; and since 1845 (the year of its organization) has been pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in the same city. He was moderator of the General Assembly (Southern Church) at St. Louis, 1874; and a delegate to the General Conferences of the Evangelical Alliance, New York, 1873, and Copenhagen, 1884, and to the Council of the Reformed Churches in Edinburgh, 1877.

HOLSTEN, Karl Johann, Lutheran; b. at Goisern, Mecklenburg, March 31, 1825; studied at Leipzig, Berlin, and Rostock; became teacher in 1848; Das Leben Jesu nach den Apostraphen, 1851; Symbolik, 1856; Die Lehre vom Gewissen, 1860; Predigten gehalten in der Universitätskirche zu Leipzig, 1869; Zum System der praktischen Theologie, 1874; Schubelob, Dresden, 1873, 2d ed. 1879; Die praktische Vorbildung der Candidaten des höhere Schulams der Universität, Leipzig, 1881; Predigten über das Vaterunser, 1881; Die freien christlichen Liebesthätigkeit und die Gemeinde, 1884; and of numerous articles in Herzog's Real-Encyclopädie, etc.

HIGGINS, William, D.D. (University of the South, Tenn.), Episcopalian; b. in New-York City, March 18, 1826; educated at St. Paul's School, New-York; was ordained deacon 1844, priest 1847; became curate of St. Mary's Chapel, Reading, 1846; of Shanklin, Isle of Wight, 1858; rector of Loxbeare, Devonshire, 1868; resigned, 1878; lecturer in ecclesiastical history since 1879, and in English history since 1884, at King's College, London; since 1883 chaplain to Lord Sackville. He is the author of A Brief Biographical Dictionary, London, 1863, 2d ed. 1866; Life of Archdeacon Phelps, 1871, 2 vols.; Maintenance of the Church of England as an Established Church (first Peck prize essay), 1874; editor of The Christian Observer, 1877; contributor to Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography, 1877-80, 2 vols., and of Christian Antiquities, 1877-80, 2 vols.

HOLLAND, Henry Scott, Church of England; b. at Underwood, Ledbury, Herefordshire, Jan. 29, 1847; educated at Eton College, and Balliol College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1870, M.A. (Christ Church) 1873; was elected a senior student (i.e., fellow) of Christ Church College, Oxford, 1870; tutor, 1872-84; ordained deacon 1872, priest 1874; select preacher at the university, 1880-81; senior proctor, 1882; honorary canon of Truro, 1883-84; appointed examining chaplain to the bishop of Truro, 1883; canon residentiary of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, 1884, whereupon he resigned his tutorship. He is the author of The Apostolic Fathers, London, 1878; Four Addresses on the Sacrifice of the Cross, 1879; Logic and Life, 1882, 3d ed. 1885, reprinted, New York, 1882; Good-Friday Addresses in St. Paul's Cathedral, 1884. He wrote the article on Justin Martyr in Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography, vol. ii.

HOLSTEN, Karl Johann, Lutheran; b. at Gütstrow, Mecklenburg, March 31, 1825; studied at Leipzig, Berlin, and Rostock; became teacher in HOLT. 102

HOLT, Levi Herbert, Baptist; b. at Topsham, Me., Aug. 14, 1849; graduated at University of Chicago, Ill., 1874, and at Morgan-Park Baptist Theological Seminary, Ill., 1877; became pastor at De Kalb, Ill., 1877; at Clay Center, Kan., 1881; editor Western Baptist, Topeka, Kans., 1884.

HOLTZMANN, Heinrich Julius, Lic. Theol. (Heidelberg, 1858), D.D. (hon., Vienna, 1882), German Protestant; b. at Carlsruhe, May 17, 1832; studied theology at Heidelberg and Berlin; was in the service of the Baden Church, 1854–57; became privat-docent at Heidelberg, 1858; professor extraordinary, 1861; ordinary professor, 1865; at Strassburg, 1874. He is the author of Kanon und Tradition, Ludwigsburg, 1858; Die synoptischen Evangelien, ihr Ursprung und geschichtlicher Charakter, Leipzig, 1863; Christenthum und Judenthum in der pseudosynoptischen Literatur, 1867 (vol. 2 of Weber's Geschichte des Volks Israel u. des Erstehktschr.; 1867, 2 vols.); Kritik der Ephelser und Colossverbriefe, 1872; Die Pastoralbriefe, 1880; (with R. O. Zöpfel) Lexikon für Theologie u. Kirchengesch., 1882; Historische Einleitung in das N. T., Freiburg, 1885.

HOOD, Edward Paxton, English Congregationalist: b. in Westminster, London, Dec. 18, 1820, and educated privately; began his ministry in 1852; was for many years a preacher in London, and, at the time of his death, was pastor of Falcon-square Independent Chapel. He died in Paris, France, Friday, June 12, 1886. He was for many years the editor of The Eclectic Review, and of The Preacher's Lantern from 1871 to 1875. He lectured on social, literary, and religious subjects in Great Britain, and also on his visit to the United States in 1851. He was rather an industrious collector of anecdotes and curious and miscellaneous information and extracts, than an original author; still his works are instructive, and his Lamps, Pichers, and Trumpets, his best-known work, is a valuable history of homilies. He is the author of The Age and its Architects, London, 1851; Genius and Industry, Golden Days of Queen Mary, 1851; Literature of Labour, 1851; Mental and Moral Philosophy of Laughter, 1851; Old England's Historic Pictures, 1851; Self-education, 1851; Common-sense Arguements, 1852; Here and There in Shoeses, a Book for the Laborer, 1852; Uses of Biography, 1852; Dreamland and Ghostland, 1852; Scevlen borg, a Biography, 1856; Wordsworth, a Biography, 1856; An Earnest Ministry: Record of Life and Writings of B. Parsons, 1855; Havelock, the Brand Stone of Honour, 1838; Book of Temperance Melody, 1852., new ed. 1853; Arguements and His newest Principles, 1855; 4th ed. 1853; Blind Amos and his Velvet Principles, 1855; 6th ed. (enlarged) 1884; Peerage of Poverty, 1st and 2d series 1859, 5th ed. 1870; Sermons, 1859; Lamps, Pichers, and Trumpets, 1867; World of Anecdote, 1869, 3d ed. 1886; Dark Sayings on a Trial; Sermons, 1869; * Stones of Honour,* 1870; 2d ed. 1885; Byr gmeadow, 1870, 2d ed. 1883; Villages of the Bible, 1874; Thomas Carlyle, 1875; Romance of Biography, 1876; Robert Raikes of Gloucester, 1880; Vignettes of the Great Revival of the 18th Century, 1880; The Day, the Book, and the Teacher, 1880; Christmas Essays, the Preacher of Wild Wales, 1881; Oliver Cromwell, 1882; Scotch Characteristics, 1883; The World of Proverb and Fable, 1884; The King's Windoos, or Glimpses of the Wonderful Works of God, 1885; The Throne of Eloquence: Great Preachers, Ancient and Modern, 1886.

HOOP-SCHIEFFER, Jacob Qysbert de, Dutch philologist and historian; b. at The Hague, Sept. 28, 1819. Having lost his father at an early age, he was brought up in Amsterdam by his uncle de Hoop, whose name he took; studied in the Mennonite Theological Seminary at Amsterdam, and graduated at the University of Utrecht. During this period he employed his leisure time in the study of the medieval literature of the Netherlands, and was one of the founders (1842) of the society for the publication of Dutch texts of the thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth centuries. He was pastor successively at Hoorn (1849–50), Rhenen (1850–51), and then in St. Timothy's Church, New-York; and has been professor in the Mennonite Seminary since 1860; and professor of Old-Testament exegesis, and the Christian literature of the first two centuries, in the Municipal University of Amsterdam, since 1877. Besides a number of articles in the Nauwucker, Studien en Bijdragen, etc., he has written in Dutch, "A Brief History of the Mennonites," Amsterdam, 1860; "A History of the Reformation in the Netherlands before 1581," 1873; "A History of the Brownists of Amsterdam," 1881; and contributed the article upon the Mennonites in the *Pictures of the History of the Christian Church in the Netherlands," 1899.

HOOPYKAAS, Isaac, D.D. (Leiden, 1862), Dutch theologian; b. at Nieuw Tonge, Holland, Oct. 21, 1837; studied at the University of Leiden; became pastor of the Reformed Church at Nieuw Helvoet 1862, and at Schiedam 1867, and is now Remonstrant General pastor at Rotterdam. He was joint author with Oort of The Bible for Young People, English trans. London, 1873–79, 8 vols.; republished (under title "The Bible for Learners"), Boston, 1878–80, 5 vols.

HOPKINS, John Henry, S.T.D. (Racine College, Racine, Wis., 1878), Episcopalian; b. at Pitts burg, Penn., Oct. 28, 1850; graduated at the University of Vermont, Burlington, 1839, and at the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1850; ordained deacon, 1850; was assistant in Zion Church, Greensburg, in St. George the Martyr, and then in St. Timothy's Church, New-York City; in charge of St. Paul's Church, Vergennes, Vt., and of St. John's Church, Essex, N. Y.; ordained priest, 1872; became rector of Trinity Church, Plattsburg, N. Y., 1872; of Christ Church, Williamsport, Penn., 1876. He founded the New-York Church Journal, February, 1853, and edited it until May 1859. 4th ed. 1853; 5th ed. 1885; 4th ed. 1885; Christmas E cards, the Preacher of Wild Wales.

HOPKINS, Mark, D.D. (Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H., 1837; Harvard College, Cam-
HOPKINS, Samuel Miles, D.D. (Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., 1851), Presbyterian; b. at Geneva, N.Y., Aug. 8, 1813; graduated from Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., 1832; studied theology at Auburn (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1834-36, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1836-37; pastor at Corning, N.Y., 1839-43; at Fredonia, 1843-46; and at Avon, 1846-47; since 1847 he has been professor of church history in Auburn Theological Seminary. He was moderator of General Assembly (N. S.) at St. Louis, Mo., 1866. He is the author of A Manual of Church Polity, Auburn, 1873; A Liturgy and Book of Common Prayer for the Presbyterian Church, New York, 1883, 2d ed. 1886.

HOPPIN, James Mason, D.D. (Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., 1870), Congregationalist; b. at Providence, R.I., Jan. 17, 1830; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1851—54; studied law at school, Cambridge, Mass., 1840-42; Union Theological Seminary, New York City, 1842-44; at Andover Theological Seminary, 1844-45 (graduated); at Berlin University, 1846-47; was pastor at Salem, Mass., 1850-59; professor of homiletics and pastoral theology in Yale College, 1861-79 (acting pastor of the college, 1861-63; lecturer on forensic eloquence in its law school, 1872-75); since 1879 has been professor of the history of art in Yale College. He taught homiletics in Union Theological Seminary, New York, in 1880. He is the author of Notes of a Theological Student, New York, 1854; Old England: its Art, Scenery, and People, Boston, 1867, 8th ed. 1886; Office and Work of the Christian Ministry, New York, 1869; Life of Rear-Admiral Andrew Hull Foote, 1874; Memoir of Henry Armitt Brown, Philadelphia, 1880; Homiletics, New York, 1851, 2d ed. 1883; Pastoral Theology, 1884 (these two books are revised and enlarged in a new edition, 1884); ed. a series of Life Sketches of Eminent Christians, 1888, 3 vols., and Life of Chrysostom, Boston, 1884.

HOTT, James William, D.D. (Avalon College, Avalon, Mo., and Western College, Toledo, Ohio, both 1882), United Brethren in Christ; b. at Winchester, Va., Nov. 15, 1841; self-educated; became pastor (in Virginia and Maryland), 1861; treasurer of the Home Frontier and Foreign Missionary Society of his denomination, 1873; editor of The Religious Telescope, denominational organ), Dayton, Ohio, 1877. He was a member of the Pan Methodist Congress, London, 1881; and of each General Conference of his denomination since 1869, representing the Virginia Conference, to which he belongs. He is the author of Journeys in the Old World: or, Europe, Palestine, and Egypt, Dayton, O., 1884, 4th ed. 1886.

HOVEY, Alvah, D.D. (Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1850), LL.D. (Denison University, Granville, O., and Richmond (Va.) College, 1876), Baptist; b. at Greene, Chenango County, N.Y., March 5, 1829; graduated from Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., 1844, and from Newton Theological Institution, Newton Centre, Mass., 1848; with the latter has been connected since 1849, as assistant teacher of Hebrew (1849-55), and as professor, first of church history (1853-55), and then of theology and Christian ethics since 1855, president since 1868. For one year (1849-50) he preached in New London, Me.; for two years (1851-52) was in Europe. From 1858 to 1883, was member of the executive committee of the American Baptist Missionary Union. With Rev. D. B. Ford, he translated F. M. Berthus' Life of Chrysostom, Boston, 1854. He is author of Life Tripheres, 1851; proceeded M.A. 1853, B.D. 1875; was ordained deacon 1854, priest 1856; was fellow of Trinity College, 1852-57; since 1872, fellow of Emmanuel College; vicar of St. Ippolita with Great Wynnfoldy, Hertes (a college living), 1857-72; examining chaplain to the bishop of Ely (Dr. Browne), 1871-73; and when Dr. Browne was translated to the see of Winchester, he retained him in that capacity. In 1871 he was Hullean lecturer. From 1872 to 1878 he was divinity lecturer of Emmanuel College, and in 1878 elected Hullean professor of divinity. He has several times been examiner for the moral science and natural science tripheres, a select preacher before the university, and is a member of the council of the senate of the university. He was one of the original members of the New-Testament Company of Anglo-American Bible-revision Committee. Besides various articles in The Journal of Philology, and Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography, he has published Two Dissertations (i. On τον ονοματεύ τον in Scripture and tradition. ii. On the Constantinopolitan and other Eastern creeds of the fourth century), London, 1876. He was joint editor with Canon Westcott of The New Testament in the Original Greek: A Revised Text, with Introduction and Appendix (May—Oct. 1881, 2 vols., corrected issue, Dec. 1881—April, 1882, smaller edition of text 1885, repub. New York); These eminent biblical scholars worked together upon the text from 1853 to 1881. The second volume was written by Dr. Hort, and includes an elaborate statement and defence of their principles of textual criticism, with various illustrative matter. [See Schaaff, Companion to Greek Testament, New York, 1883, 2d ed. 1885, pp. 268-282.]

HOTT, James William, D.D. (Avalon College, Avalon, Mo., and Western College, Toledo, Ohio, both 1882), United Brethren in Christ; b. at Winchester, Va., Nov. 15, 1841; self-educated; became pastor (in Virginia and Maryland), 1861; treasurer of the Home Frontier and Foreign Missionary Society of his denomination, 1873; editor of The Religious Telescope, denominational organ), Dayton, O., 1877. He was a member of the Pan Methodist Congress, London, 1881; and of each General Conference of his denomination since 1869, representing the Virginia Conference, to which he belongs. He is the author of Journeys in the Old World; or, Europe, Palestine, and Egypt, Dayton, O., 1884, 4th ed. 1886.

HOVEY, Alvah, D.D. (Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1850), LL.D. (Denison University, Granville, O., and Richmond (Va.) College, 1876), Baptist; b. at Greene, Chenango County, N.Y., March 5, 1829; graduated from Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., 1844, and from Newton Theological Institution, Newton Centre, Mass., 1848; with the latter has been connected since 1849, as assistant teacher of Hebrew (1849-55), and as professor, first of church history (1853-55), and then of theology and Christian ethics since 1855, president since 1868. For one year (1849-50) he preached in Newton, Mass.; for two years (1851-52) was in Europe. From 1858 to 1883, was member of the executive committee of the American Baptist Missionary Union. With Rev. D. B. Ford, he translated F. M. Berthus' Life of Chrysostom, Boston, 1854. He is author of Life Tripheres, 1851; proceeded M.A. 1853, B.D. 1875; was ordained deacon 1854, priest 1856; was fellow of Trinity College, 1852-57; since 1872, fellow of Emmanuel College; vicar of St. Ippolita with Great Wynnfoldy, Hertes (a college living), 1857-72; examining chaplain to the bishop of Ely (Dr. Browne), 1871-73; and when Dr. Browne was translated to the see of Winchester, he retained him in that capacity. In 1871 he was Hullean lecturer. From 1872 to 1878 he was divinity lecturer of Emmanuel College, and in 1878 elected Hullean professor of divinity. He has several times been examiner for the moral science and natural science tripheres, a select preacher before the university, and is a member of the council of the senate of the university. He was one of the original members of the New-Testament Company of Anglo-American Bible-revision Committee. Besides various articles in The Journal of Philology, and Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography, he has published Two Dissertations (i. On τον ονοματεύ τον in Scripture and tradition. ii. On the Constantinopolitan and other Eastern creeds of the fourth century), London, 1876. He was joint editor with Canon Westcott of The New Testament in the Original Greek: A Revised Text, with Introduction and Appendix (May—Oct. 1881, 2 vols., corrected issue, Dec. 1881—April, 1882, smaller edition of text 1885, repub. New York); These eminent biblical scholars worked together upon the text from 1853 to 1881. The second volume was written by Dr. Hort, and includes an elaborate statement and defence of their principles of textual criticism, with various illustrative matter. [See Schaaff, Companion to Greek Testament, New York, 1883, 2d ed. 1885, pp. 268-282.]

HOTT, James William, D.D. (Avalon College, Avalon, Mo., and Western College, Toledo, Ohio, both 1882), United Brethren in Christ; b. at Winchester, Va., Nov. 15, 1841; self-educated; became pastor (in Virginia and Maryland), 1861; treasurer of the Home Frontier and Foreign Missionary Society of his denomination, 1873; editor of The Religious Telescope, denominational organ), Dayton, O., 1877. He was a member of the Pan Methodist Congress, London, 1881; and of each General Conference of his denomination since 1869, representing the Virginia Conference, to which he belongs. He is the author of Journeys in the Old World: or, Europe, Palestine, and Egypt, Dayton, O., 1884, 4th ed. 1886.
of Rev. Isaac Backus, Boston, 1858; The State of the Impenitent Dead, 1859; The Miracles of Christ as attested by the Evangelists, 1861; The Scriptural Law of Divorce, 1860; God with us, or the Person and Work of Christ, 1872; Normal Class Manual, Part I., What to Teach, 1873; Religion and the State, 1874: The Doctrine of the Higher Christian Life compared with the Teachings of the Holy Scriptures, 1876; Manual of Systematic Theology and Christian Ethics, 1877, re-issued, Philadelphia, 1880.

He is general editor of The Complete Commentary on the New Testament, Philadelphia, 1891 seq., in which series he contributed the commentary on The Gospel of John, 1883.

HOW, Right Rev. William Walsham, D.D. (by Archbishop of Canterbury, 1879), bishop suffragan of Bedford (for East London), Church of England; b. at Shrewsbury, Dec. 15, 1823; educated at Wadham College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (third-class classics) 1845, M.A. 1847; was ordained deacon 1846, priest 1847; was curate of St. George, Kidderminster, 1846; Holy Cross, Shrewsbury, 1848; rector of Whittington, 1851-79; diocesan inspector of schools, 1852-70; rural dean of Shrewsbury, 1855-79; select preacher at Oxford, 1869-89; protector of diocese of St. Asaph, 1869-79; examining chaplain to bishop of Lichfield, 1878-79; became bishop, 1879; since 1859 has been prebendary of Llanefydd and chancellor of St. Asaph Cathedral; since 1879, prebendary of Brondesbury in St. Paul’s Cathedral, and rector of St. Andrew’s Unkershaw with St. Mary Axe, City and Diocese of London. He is the author of Daily Family Prayers for Churchmen, London, 1859, 5th ed. 1879; Collect Lyric Pieces, 1880; Plain Words, 1850-90, 4 series; Psalm li., 1861, 7th ed. 1874; Twenty-four Practical Sermons, 1861, 2d ed. 1870; Pastor in Parochia, 1875-87, 8th ed. 1883; Private Life and Ministraisons of a Parish Priest, 1873; Plain Words to Children, 1876; History of Systematic Theology and Christian Ethics, 1874; Notes on the Church Service, 1883; Plain Words to Children, 1876; The Life and Work of Christ, 1872; Normal Class Manual, Part I., What to Teach, 1873; Religion and the State, 1874: The Doctrine of the Higher Christian Life compared with the Teachings of the Holy Scriptures, 1876; Manual of Systematic Theology and Christian Ethics, 1877, re-issued, Philadelphia, 1880.

HOWE, Right Rev. Mark Antony DeWolfe, D.D. (Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1849), LL.D. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1875), Episcopal, bishop of Central Pennsylvania; b. at Bristol, R.I., April 5, 1804; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1824; taught in Boston public schools, 1829-30; was classical tutor in Brown University, 1832-36; entered the ministry, and after three months service in St. Matthew’s, South Boston, became rector of St. James’s, Roxbury, 1832; editor of The Christian Witness, and rector of Christ Church, Cambridge, 1835-36; of St. James’s again, 1837-46; of St. Luke’s, Philadelphia, Penn., 1846-72; consecrated bishop, Dec. 28, 1871. He had declined his election as missionary bishop of Nevada in 1865. He stands “on the doctrines of God’s Word, as recognized in the Catholic creeds, and in the Articles and Liturgy of the Protestant-Episcopal Church.” He is author of A Critique on the Annual Report of the Boston School Committee, Boston, 1816; an Introduction to Butler's edition of the poetical works of Bishop Reginald Heber, 1859; Memoirs of Bishop Alonzo Potter, 1871: and of various occasional sermons, essays, and controversial pamphlets.

HOWE, Right Rev. William Bell White, D.D. (University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1871), S.T.D. (Columbia Coll., N.Y., City, 1872), Episcopal, bishop of South Carolina; b. at Claremont, N.H., March 31, 1838; graduated at the University of Vermont, Burlington, 1844; was successively rector of St. John’s, Berkeley, S.C., 1848-50; of St. Philip’s, Charleston, 1863-71; bishop, 1871.

HOWSON, Very Rev. John Saul, D.D. (Cambridge, 1861), dean of Chester, Church of England; b. at Giggleswick, Yorkshire, Eng., May 5, 1816; d. at Bournemouth, Dec. 15, 1883. He was a student in Trinity College, Cambridge, and graduated B.A. (wangler and first-class classical tripos) 1837, M.A. 1841; won the member’s prize in 1837 and 1838, and wrote the Norrisian prize essay in 1840. He was ordained deacon in 1845, and priest in 1846, rector of Longdon, 1840-57, dean of the Liverpool Collegiate Institute, first as senior classical master, and from 1849 as principal. In 1862 he was Hulsean lecturer at Cambridge. From 1868 to 1871 he was vicar of Wisbech St. Peter; and examining chaplain to the bishop of Ely from 1867 to 1871. In 1867 he was made dean of Chester. He was the joint author, with the late Rev. W. J. Conybeare, of The Life and Epistles of St. Paul, London, 1852, 2 vols. 4to, 5vo. ed. 1856, people’s ed. 1862 (widely circulated, several reprints in America). Besides numerous lectures, sermons, articles in periodicals and Smith’s Dictionary of the Bible, he published Sunday Evenings (short sermons for family reading), 1849, new ed. 1857; Deaconesses, or the Official Help of Women in Parochial Work and in Charitable Institutions, 1802; Sermons to Schoolboys, 1830, 2d ed. 1858, 2d series 1866; The Character of St. Paul (Hulsean Lectures), 1884, 4th ed. 1884; Scenes from the Life of St. Paul, and their Religious Lessons, 1886; The Metaphors of St. Paul, 1888, 2d ed. 1883; The Companions of St. Paul, 1871, 2d ed. 1883; Meditations on the Miracles of Christ, 1871-77, 2 series; Chester as it was, 1872; Sacramental Consecration, 1874; The River Dee, its Aspect and His-HUNT, Albert Sandford, D.D. (Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1873), Methodist; b. at Amenia, N.Y., July 3, 1827; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1851; was tutor (1851-53) and assistant professor of moral science there (1853-55); joined the New-York Conference of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, 1859; was pastor in Brooklyn, N.Y., 1854-68; since 1857 has been corresponding secretary of the American Bible Society, New-York City. In 1874 he was chairman of fraternal delegation from General Conference of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, to General Conference of Methodist-Episcopal Church South; in 1886, fraternal dele to from, the General Conference of the Methodist-Episcopal Church to British Wesleyan Conference. He has published several occasional sermons.
HYACINTHE.

HUNT, John, D.D. (University of St. Andrew's, Scotland, 1878). Church of England; b. at Bridgend, parish of Kinnoul, Perth, Scotland, Jan. 21, 1827; matriculated at St. Andrew's, 1847; was ordained deacon 1855, and priest 1857; was curate of Deptford, Sunderland, Eng., 1855-59; and in churches in and about London until 1877, when, on nomination of Dean Stanley, he was appointed vicar of Otford, in Kent. In theology he is "liberal." He was on the staff of The Contemporary Review, 1857-71, and has been contributor to other periodicals. He is the author of Poems from the German. London, 1852; Luther's Spiritual Songs, translated, 1853; Essay on Pantheism, 1866; Religious Thought in England, 1870-73, 3 vols.; Contemporary Essays in Theology, 1873; Pantheism and Christianity, 1884 (the Essay on Pantheism revised, and the argument brought to a more definite issue).

HUNT, Sandford, D.D. (Alleghany College, Meadville, Penn., 1871). Methodist; b. in Erie County, N.Y., April 1, 1825; graduated at Alleghany College, Meadville, Penn., 1847; became pastor in Genesee Conference, presiding elder, and since 1879 has been agent of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in churches in and about London until 1877, when, on nomination of Dean Stanley, he was appointed vicar of Otford, in Kent. In theology he is "liberal." He was on the staff of The Contemporary Review, 1857-71, and has been contributor to other periodicals. He is the author of Poems from the German. London, 1852; Luther's Spiritual Songs, translated, 1853; Essay on Pantheism, 1866; Religious Thought in England, 1870-73, 3 vols.; Contemporary Essays in Theology, 1873; Pantheism and Christianity, 1884 (the Essay on Pantheism revised, and the argument brought to a more definite issue).

HUNTINGTON, Right Rev. Frederic Dan, S.T.D. (Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., 1855). Episcopalian; b. at Hadley, Mass., May 28, 1819, graduated as valedictorian from Amherst College, Mass., 1839, and at the divinity school of Harvard University, 1842; was Unitarian minister in Boston until 1855; professor of Christian morals and preacher to Harvard University until 1860; was chaplain and preacher to the Massachusetts State Legislature; was ordained deacon in the Episcopal Church, Sept. 12, 1860; ordained priest, March 19, 1861; and was rector in Boston of Emmanuel Church, which he organized, until he was consecrated bishop of Central New York, April 8, 1869. He was editor of The Church Monthly, Boston, 1861 sqq., and of The Christian Register and The Monthly Religious Magazine, both Boston. He is the author of Lessons on the Parables of our Saviour, Boston, 1856; Sermons for the People, Boston, 1856, 11th ed. New York, 1879; Christian Believing and Living (sermons), 1860, 7th ed. New York, 1867; Elin (a collection of ancient and modern sacred poems), Boston, 1865; Divine Aspects of Human Society (Lowell and Graham Lectures), N.Y., 1880; Helps to a Holy Lent, 1872; New Helps to a Holy Lent, 1876; Christ in the Christian Year, and in the Life of Man, 1875; The Fitness of Christiananity to Man (Bohlen Lectures for 1875), 1878; Sermons on the Christian Year, 1851, 2 vols.; numerous articles in periodicals, minor works, etc.

HUNTINGTON, William Reed, D.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1873). Episcopalian; b. at Lowell, Mass., Sept. 20, 1838; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1859; instructor there in chemistry, 1859-60; assistant at Emmanuel Church, Boston, 1861-62; rector of All Saints' Warder, Mass.; rector of Grace Church, New York. He was the class poet (1859) and B.B. poet at Harvard (1870); and secretary of the joint committee of the General Convention of the Episcopal Church, on the enrichment and better adaptation to American needs of the Book of Common Prayer. Besides various Sunday-school text-books and manuals, he has published The Church Idea: an Essay towards Unity, New York, 1870, 3d ed. 1884; Conditional Immortality, 1876.

HURST, John Fletcher, D.D., LL.D. (both from Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1866 and 1877 respectively). Methodist; b. at Salem, Md., Aug. 17, 1834; graduated at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1854; taught ancient languages in New York, 1854-56; then studied theology at Halle and Heidelberg, 1856-57; was a Methodist pastor in New Jersey and on Staten Island, N.Y., 1858-60; professor of theology in the Mission Institute of the Methodist-Episcopal Church (for the training of ministers for the German Methodist Church) at Bremen, 1866-69; institute removed to Frankfort-on-the-Main, and re-endowed as the Martin Mission Institute; was professor there, 1869-71; professor of historical theology in Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N.Y., 1871-80, and president from 1873; elected a bishop of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, 1880. Besides translations of Hagemann's History of the Church in the 18th and 19th Centuries (New York, 1869, 2 vols.), Van Oosterzee's Apologetical Lectures on John's Gospel (Edinburgh, 1869), and of Lange's Commentary on Romans (New York, 1870), he has written Why Americans love Shakespeare, Catskill, N.Y., 1855; History of Rationalism, New York, 1866, London, 1867; Martyrs to the Tract Cause, New York, 1872; Outlines of Bible History, 1873; Outlines of Church History, 1874, 3d ed. 1880; Life and Literature in the Fatherland, 1876; Our Theological Century, 1877; Bibliotheca theologica (a bibliography of theology), 1883; Short History of the Reformation, 1884; (jointly with Prof. Dr. G. R. Crooks) an adaptation of Hagenbach's Theological Encyclopedia and Methodology, 1884, as part of The Library of Theological and Biblical Literature begun in 1879.

HURTER, Hugo, Ph.D. (Rome, 1851). D.D. (do., 1855). Roman Catholic; b. at Schaffhausen, Switzerland, Jan. 11, 1832; studied in Rome, partly in the Propaganda and partly in the German College; and since 1858 has been professor of dogmatic theology in the University of Innsbruck. On Oct. 30, 1845, entered the Roman-Catholic Church, and on June 15, 1857, the Jesuit Order. He is the author of Uber die Rechte der Vernunft und des Glaubens, Innsbruck, 1863; Opuscula selecta S.S. Patrum ad usum praemii studiorum theologian, 1868-85, 48 vols., 2d series 1884 sqq.; Leonardi Lessii S. J. de summo bono et aeterna beatitudine hominum, libri 4, newly edited, Freiburg-im-Br., 1869; Nomenclator literarius recentiora theologica catholicae, Innsbruck, 1871-78; D. Thomas Aq. sermones, newly edited, 1871; Theologia dogmatica compendium, 1876, 3 vols. 5th ed. 1885; Miscitula theologiae dogmaticae, 1880, 2d ed. 1885.

HYACINTHE, Father (whose full name is Charles Jean Marie Augustin Hyacinthe Loyson); b. at Orleans, France, March 10, 1827, and educated at St. Sulpice, Paris, 1880; since 1858 has been rector of the University of France, attached to the Academy of Pau. After taking his degree of B.A. he entered (1845) the Seminary of St. Sul-
HYACINTHE.

Hyde, Paris, and there studied philosophy and theology under the first masters of religious science. He was ordained a priest at Notre Dame de Paris, June 14, 1851, and for the next five years was a professor, first of philosophy at the Grand Seminary of Avignon (1851-54), then of dogmatic theology at the Seminary of Nantes (1854-56). In 1856-57 he was curate of St. Sulpice, Paris, being member of the company of the priests of St. Sulpice, and was made honorary canon of Troy. In 1858 he decided upon a monastic life, and made a six-months' novitiate in the Dominican Order (as reformed by La Pince, Paris, being member of the company of the footed Carmelites (as reformed by St. Theresa and St. John of the Cross in the sixteenth century); rose to be superior of his order in Paris and second definitor of the province of Avignon, and remained in it until September, 1869. From 1864 to 1869 he was metropolitan preacher of Notre Dame de Paris; but refused to be court preacher under Napoleon III., and also to be archbishop of Lyons, always maintaining that his vocation of preacher was preferable to all social or ecclesiastical "preferment." He has preached in the large cities of France (sometimes under great difficulties), England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, and the United States.

On Sept. 20, 1869, he published a manifesto against the usurpations of Rome, protesting against the lack of (ecumenity in the convocation of the Vatican Council. At the same time he quit his convent; and then, to avoid importunity, he went to America for a few months, awaiting the deliberations of the council. When the decree of infallibilty was pronounced (July 18, 1870), he found it impossible for him longer to submit to Rome; and since then he has devoted himself to preaching Catholic reform (the Bible to be read by all, vernacular worship, the cup to be given to the laity, liberty of marriage for priests, freedom of confession), and as far as possible carrying it out in practice. On Sept. 3, 1872, he married in London, Mrs. Emilie Jane (Butterfield) Meriman of New York, N.Y., U.S.A., who he had previously engaged in Catholic reform. In 1873 he began reformed public worship in Geneva, Switzerland, whither he was called by the disaffected Roman Catholics, who elected him their vicar. There he remained five years, but separated himself from the Old Catholics there, because of their too radical tendencies in politics and religion. In 1877 and 1878 he gave a series of conferences in the Cirque d'Hiver in Paris, on the necessity of religious reform in Catholic countries, which was a political event feared by the French Republic. In 1879 he returned to live in Paris, and opened a free church, known as the Catholic Gallican Church, with the episcopal aid of Bishop Herzog of Bern of the Old Catholic Church, and the bishop of the Anglican Church, with which churches his own is in communion. His church was legalized in December, 1883, by a decree of the French Government, signed by President Grévy. It has therefore the right to exist; but it is free, and unsubsidized by the government. In July, 1885, it numbered over a thousand members and six clergy.

In philosophy M. Loyson is a disciple of Plato, Descartes, Malebranche, and Leibnitz. An assiduous investigator of the Holy Scriptures from earliest childhood, his theology is that of the Bible and of the Fathers. Always a devoted, liberal, and evangelical Catholic, he accepts the Primacy of the early Church, but rejects the Papacy. He holds to the faith of the undivided church, i.e., the Episcopate, as expressed in the Nicene Creed, which he believes to be the broad yet firm basis of all social and scientific progress, as well as the adaptation of all spiritual truth; and his aim is the unity (not uniformity) of all Christians.

Among his numerous publications are the following: Poèmes, Pau, 1841-45; La société civile dans ses rapports avec le Christianisme (Conférences de Notre Dame), Paris, 1867, 5th ed. —; La famille (Conférences de Notre Dame), 1867, 2d ed. —; Éducation des classes ouvrières, 1867; Profession de la foi Catholique d'une protestante convaincue, 1868; De la Réforme Catholique: lettres, fragments, discours, 1869-72, 2d ed. (English trans., Catholic reform: Letters, Fragments, etc., by Madame Loyson, introd. by Dean Stanley, London, 1874); L'Église Catholique en Suisse, Geneva, 1875; Réforme Catholique, II. Catholicisme et Protestantisme, Paris, 1875; L'Ultramontanisme et la Révolution, 1875; Trois conférences au Cirque d'Hiver (April 15, 22, and 29, 1877), 1877; Les principes de la Réforme Catholique (Conférences au Cirque d'Hiver, 1878), 1878 (Englishtrans., London, 1879); Programme de la Réforme Catholique, 1879; Liturgie Gallicane, 1879, 5th ed. 1883; L'Inquisition, 1882. In 1880 Madame Hyacinthe Loyson translated into French, and he published, Dollinger's Réunion des Églises. His son, Paul Emmanuel Hyacinthe Loyson, was born at Geneva, Oct. 19, 1873.

HYDE, James Thomas, D.D. (Yale, New Haven, Conn., and Beloit College, Mich., 1870), Congregationalist; b. at Norwich, Conn., Jan. 29, 1827; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1847; and at Yale Divinity School 1850; tutor in Yale College, 1849-52; became colleague of Rev. Dr. John Fiske at New Brantree, Mass., 1853; acting pastor of North Church (Rev. Dr. Horace Bushnell's), Hartford, Conn., 1855; pastor at Middlebury, Vt., 1857; inaugurated Iowa professor of pastoral theology and special studies in the Chicago (Congregational) Theological Seminary, III., 1870; transferred to the chair of New Testament literature and interpretation, 1879. He is the author of New Testament Introduction, Chicago, 1881; A New Catechism, or Manual of Instruction for Students and other Thoughtful Inquirers, 1884.
JACKSON, George Anson, Congregationalist; b. at North Adams, Mass., March 17, 1846; graduated from Yale (New Haven, Conn.) scientific department Ph.B. 1868, and from Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary 1871; was pastor at Lebanon, Kan., from 1871 to 73; Southbridge, Mass., 1874-78; since at Swampscott, Mass. He is the author of The Christian Faith: a Manual for Catechumens, Boston, 1875; The Apostolic Fathers, New York, 1879; The Fathers of the Third Century, 1881; The Post-Nicene Greek Fathers, 1883; The Post-Nicene Latin Fathers, 1883 (these volumes were revised for London reprint and Gotha German translation in 1884, when The Teaching of the Apostles was embodied in The Apostolic Fathers).

JACKSON, Right Rev. and Right Hon. John, D.D. (Oxford, 1853), lord bishop of London; b. in London, Feb. 22, 1811; d. there Jan. 6, 1885. He was educated at Pembroke College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1833, M.A. 1836, B.D. 1853; was Ellerton theological prize essayist, 1834; ordained deacon 1835, priest 1836; was head master of the proprietary school at Islington, 1836-46; select preacher to the University of Oxford, 1845, 1850, 1882, 1886; Boyle lecturer in London, 1853; rector of St. James, Westminster, London, 1846-53; bishop of Lincoln, 1853-69; translated to London, 1869. He was one of her Majesty's Most Honorable Privy Council; dean of her Majesty's Chapels Royal; provincial dean of Canterbury; official trustee of the British Museum; official governor of King's College, London; visitor of Harrow and Highgate schools, and of Balliol College; a governor of the College of the City of New York, 1870, and of Christian Missions, New York City, 1878; and of Christian Societies, New York City Missionary and Tract Society. He is the author of Gospel Work, a Semi-centennial of City Missions, New York, 1878; and of Christian Work in New York: being The Annual Report of The New York City Missionary and Tract Society, with Brief Notices of the Operations of other Societies, Church Directory, List of Benevolent Societies, and Statistics of Population, etc. (since 1863).

JACKSON, Samuel Macauley, Presbyterian; b. in New-York City, June 19, 1851; graduated at the College of the City of New York, 1870, and at Union Theological Seminary, in the same city, 1873; studied and travelled, 1873-76; pastor at Norwood, N.Y., 1876-80; since in literary work; contributor to Schaff's Bible Dictionary, 1878-80; associate editor of the Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia, 1880-84.

JACKSON, Sheldon, D.D. (Hanover College, Hanover, Ind., 1874), Presbyterian; b. at Mina-ville, N.Y., May 13, 1854; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1875, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1885; became missionary to the Chocotaws, Indian Territory; home missionary for Western Wisconsin and Southern Minnesota, with headquarters at Cres- cent, Minn., 1889; pastor at Rochester, Minn., with oversight of mission-work in Southern Minnesota, 1894; superintendent of missions for Northern and Western Iowa, Dakota, Nebraska, and other Western territories, 1899; superintendent of missions for the Rocky-Mountain territories, 1870 (the first under commission of the presbyteries of Fort Dodge, Des Moines, and Council Bluffs, the second under that of the Board of Home Mis-sions); business manager of The Presbyterian Home Missionary, New-York City, 1882 (which had grown out of The Rocky-Mountain Presby-terian, which he established at Denver, 1872). In 1879 and 1880 he brought Indian children from New Mexico and Arizona to the Indian training schools at Carlisle, Penn., and Hampton, Va., under commission of the U. S. Government. He organized the first Presbyterian churches and mis-sions in Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, Utah, Arizona, and Alaska.

JACOB, George Andrew, D.D. (Oxford, 1852), Church of England; b. at Exmouth, Dec. 18, 1807; was scholar of Worcester College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1829, M.A. 1832, B.D. 1852; was tutor of his college; ordained deacon 1831, priest 1832; head master of King Edward's Grammar School, Bromsgrove, 1832-43; principal of Sheffield College School, 1843-55; head master of Christ's Hospital [School], London, 1853-68; when he resigned. He is the author of (besides Greek and Latin grammars for schools) A Letter to Sir Robert Peel on National Education, London, 1839; Tirocinium Gallicum, 1849; Four Sermons before the University of Oxford, 1858; The Ecclesiastical Polity of the New Testament, a Study for the Present Crisis of the Church of England, 1871, 3d ed. 1884, reprinted, New York, 1872, 4th ed. 1874; Reply on Eucharistic Doctrine... of Romanists and Ritualists, 1874; Sabbath made for Man, 1880; The Lord's Supper historically considered, 1884.

JACOBS, Henry Eyster, D.D. (Thiel College, Carthage, Ill., 1877), Lutheran; b. at Gettysburg, Penn., Nov. 10, 1844; graduated at Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., 1862; and at the Gettysburg Theological Seminary. He was tutor in Pennsylvania College, 1864-87; home missionary at Pittsburgh, Penn., 1867-68; pastor and principal of Thiel Hall, Phillipsburg, Penn. (now Thiel College, Greenville, Penn.), 1868-70; professor in Pennsylvania College, of Latin 1870-80, of Latin and Greek 1880-81, of Greek 1881-83; and since 1883 has been editor of Lutheran Church Review. He has published a number of articles and the following books: Hutter's Compend of Lutheran Theology (trans. with Rev. G. F. Spiekier), Philadelphia, 1887, 4th ed. 1882; Schmidt's Doctrinal Theology of the Evangelical Lutheran Seminary, Philadelphia, Penn. He has published many articles and the following books: Hutter's Compend of Lutheran Theology (trans. with Rev. G. F. Spiekier), Philadelphia, 1887, 4th ed. 1882; Schmidt's Doctrinal Theology of the Evangelical Lutheran Church (trans. with Rev. D. C. A. Hay), 1875; Proceedings of the First Lutheran Diet (edited), 1878; The Book of Concord, or the Symbols of the Evangelical Lutheran Church (trans. with notes) vol. 1, 1882, vol. 2, historical introduction, appendices, and indexes, 1883; Meyer's Commentary on Galatians and Ephesians (American ed., with translation of references and supplementary notes), New York, 1884. Since 1883 he has been editor of Lutheran Church Review.

JACOBSON, Right Rev. William, D.D. (by Convocation of Canterbury, 1843), lord bishop of Chester, Church of England; b. at Great Yarmouth, Norfolk, in the year 1803; d. at Chester, July 13, 1884. He was educated at the Dissenting College, Homerton, Middlesex, and afterwards at Lincoln College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (second-class classics) 1827, M.A. 1829; won Ellerton theological prize for essay: "What were the Causes of the Persecution to which the Christians were subject in the First Centuries of Christianity? elected fellow of Exeter College, 1829; was curate of St. Mary Magdalen, Oxford, 1830-32; perpetual curate of Iffley, 1839--40; vice-principal of Magdalen Hall, Oxford, 1832-48; public orator of the university, 1842-48; regius professor of divinity, canon of Christ Church, and rector of Ewelme, Oxford, 1848-55; bishop of Chester, 1865 till his death. He was elected preacher to the university, 1833, 1842, and 1869; elected honorary fellow of Hertford College, Oxford, 1874. He was on the Royal Commission of 1864, to consider the terms of clerical subscription. He edited Dean Rowley's Catechismus, the principal Lutheran disciplinaque pietais Christianae, Latine explicata, Oxford, 1835, 2d ed. 1841; Patres Apostolici (Clemens Romannus, Ignatius, Polycarp, martyrdoms of Ignatius and Polycarp), 1838, 2 vols., 4th ed. 1863; The Oxford Paraphrase and Annotations upon all the Epistles of St. Paul, 1852; The Collected Works of Bishop Sanderson, 1854, 8 vols.; Fragmentary Illustrations of the History of the Book of Common Prayer, from M.S. Sources (Bishops Sanderson and Wren), 1874; was the author of Sermons preached in the Parish Church of Iffley, Oxon., 1840, 2d ed. 1846; On the Athanasian Creed (a speech in the Convocation of York), 1872; the commentary on the Acts in The Bible (Speaker's Commentary, London and New York, 1860; and a number of charges and sermons.

JACOBY, Carl Johannes Hermann, D.D. (hon., Halie, 1873), German Protestant theologian; b. in Berlin, Dec. 30, 1836; studied at Berlin 1854-57, and in the Königl. Prediger-Seminar at Wittenberg 1858-59; was gymnasial teacher at Landsberg-a.-W. 1859-68, and at Stendal 1863-64; diaconus in Schleswig, 1868-69; became ordinary professor of practical theology at Königsberg, 1869; and since 1871 has also been university preacher. He holds to the "Vermittelnde Theologie, wie sie in der evangel. Vereinigung vertreten ist." He is the author of Zwei evangelische Lebensbilder aus der katholischen Kirche (Princess Galtz-ten and Bishop Alexander), Buscha, 1865; Beiträge zu christlicher Erkenntnis (sermons), Gütersloh, 1870; Liturgik der Reformatoren, Gota, 1871-76, 2 vols.; Staatskirche, Freikirche, Landeskirche, Leipzig, 1875; Die Gestalt des evangelischen Hauptgottesdienstens, Gota, 1879; Allgemeine Pädagogik auf Grund der christlichen Ethik, 1883; Christliche Tugenden (sermons), 1885.

JAECER, Abraham, D.D. (University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1880), Episcopalian; b. at Stanislaw, Austria, March 25, 1839; educated at rabbinical schools, and was rabbi at Selma and Mobile, Ala., 1870-72. In the spring of 1872 he was converted from Judaism, and in May joined the Baptist Church, and studied Christian theology in the Southern Baptist Seminary, Greenville, S.C. (now at Louisville, Ky.), and was there honorary professor 1875-76. In 1877 he joined the Episcopal Church; was ordained deacon, 1878; and ordained priest, 1880. From 1878 to 1880 he was professor in the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn.; and since has been professor in the theological seminary of the Protestant-Episcopal dio-cese of Ohio, at Gambier. He is the author of Mind and Heart in Religion, or Judaism and Christi-anity, Chicago, 1873; Infant Baptism versus Con-verted Membership (announced); Modern Conception of the Development of the Religion of Israel (in preparation).

JAGGAR, Right Rev. Thomas Augustus, D.D. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1874), Episcopal, bishop of Southern Ohio; b. in New-York City, June 2, 1839; studied at General Theological Seminary in New-York City, 1859, became rector of Anthon Memorial (now All Souls') Church, New-York City, 1864; St. John's, Yonkers, 1868; Holy Trinity, Philadelphia, 1870; bishop, 1875. He is the author of occasional sermons, addresses, etc.

JAMES, Fleming, D.D. (Protestant-Episcopal Seminary of Ohio, Gambier, 1876); b. at Rich-mond, Va., Dec. 7, 1835; graduated M.A. at Uni-JANSSSEN.

110 JESSUP.

University of Virginia at Charlottesville, 1856, and at General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1868; was assistant minister in New-York City, and Baltimore, Md., 1868-70; rector of St. Mark's, Baltimore, 1870-75, and of Calvary, Louisville, Ky., 1875-78; and since 1876 has been professor in the theological seminary of the Protestant-Episcopal diocese of Ohio, and pastor of Harcourt parish, both at Gambier.

JANSSSEN, Johannes, Ph.D. (Bonn, 1853). D.D. (kon., Würzburg, 1882, Louvain, 1884), Roman Catholic; b. at Xanten, Germany, April 10, 1829; studied at the universities of Louvain, Belgium (1850-51), and Bonn, Germany (1851-53); became priest-locenx in the academy at Münster, 1854; the same year, professor of history in the gymnasium at Frankfurt-am-Main, and so remains. He is now papal domestic prelate, apostolical protonotar, and archiepiscopal ecclesiastical councillor of Freiburg. His literary work has been often interrupted by illness. He is the author of Wibald von Stablo und Corvey, Münster, 1854; vol. 3 of Geschichtsquellen des Bisthums Münster, 1856; Frankreichs Rheingebiete, Frankfurt, 1861, 2d ed. Freiburg, 1883; Frankfurts Reichsreiters von 1476 bis 1519, Freiburg, 1863-68, 2 vols.; Schüler als Historiker, 1863, 2d ed. 1879; Joh. Friedrich Böhm's Leben, Briefe und kleine Schriften, 1868, 3 vols.; Zur Genese der ersten Theilung Polens, 1869; Zeit- und Lebensbilder, 1873, 3d ed. 1879; Friedrich Leopold Graf zu Stolberg, 1875-76, 2 vols. (in 1 vol. 1882, 3d ed. 1885); Geschichten des deutschen Vokses seit dem Ausgang des Mittelalters, 1879, seqq. 1-iv. (12th ed. of the first 4 vols. 1884-85, 19th ed. vol. ii. 1886). In defence of his history, which has been vigorously attacked by Protestant scholars, he has published An meine Kritiker, Nebst Ergänzungen und Erläuterungen zu den ersten Band. meiner Geschichtsre., 1883, 19th thousand 1884; Ein zweites Wort Kritiker gegenüber. 18th thousand 1885.

JEBB, John, D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1860), Episcopal Church in Ireland; b. in Dublin, Ireland, in the year 1805; d. at Peterstow, Eng., January, 1886; graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, B.A. 1827, M.A. 1829, B.D. 1860; ordained deacon 1829, priest 1829; was rector of Dunlinur, Ireland, 1831-33; prebendary of Decani in Limerick Cathedral, 1832-43; proctor of the diocese of Hereford, Eng., 1857-80; prector of Hereford Cathedral, 1863-70. Since 1843 he was the rector of Peterstow; since 1858, prebendary of Preston Wynne; since 1870, canon residuary; since 1878, chancellor of the choir of Hereford Cathedral. He was one of the revisers of the Old Testament, and the author of The Three Lectures on the Cathedral Service, London, 1841; The Choral Service of the United Church of England and Ireland, 1848; A Literal Translation of the Book of Psalms, with Dissertations, 1848, 2 vols.; The Choral Responses and Litanie of the United Churches of England and Ireland, 1847-57, 2 vols.; The Principle of Ritualism defended, 1856; The Ritual Law and Custom of the Church Universal, 1866; The Rights of the Irish Branch of the United Church of England and Ireland considered, 1868.

JEFFERS, William Hamilton, D.D. (Western Reserve College, Hudson, O., 1874). L.L.D. (University of Wooster, Wooster, O., 1879), Presbyterian; b. near Cadiz, O., May 1, 1858; graduated at Geneva College, Northwood, Penn. (now Beaver Falls, O.), 1855; and at Xenia (United-Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, O., 1856. From 1862 to 1866 he was pastor of the United-Presbyterian united churches of Bellefontaine and Northwood, O.; in 1866 became professor of Latin and Hebrew in Westminster College, New Wilminton, Penn.; in 1869, professor of Greek in the University of Wooster, O.; in 1876, pastor of the Euclid-avenue Presbyterian Church, Cleveland, O.; and since 1877 has been professor of Old-Testament literature and exegesis in the Western Presbyterian theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn. While pastor at Bellefontaine, he was put on the committee to revise the United-Presbyterian metrical version of the Psalms.

JENNINGS, Arthur Charles, Church of England; b. in London, Dec. 19, 1847; educated at Eton and Radley; entered Jesus College, Cambridge; took the Carus prize in 1866; graduated B.A. 1872; Carus Bachelor's prizeman, and Jeremiah Seguntiprize, and Crosse scholar, 1872; took a first-class in the theological tripos, the university Hebrew prize, Evan's prize, and Scholefield's prize; was Tyrwhitt's scholar and Fry's scholar (St. John's), 1873; M.A. 1875. He was ordained deacon 1873, priest 1874; was curate of St. Edward, Cambridge, 1873-74; became vicar of Whittlesford, near Cambridge, 1877. He is broad. He is the author of Commentary on the Psalms (jointly with W. H. Lowe), published in parts, London, 1875-77, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1884; Ecclesia Anglica, A History of the Church of Christ in England, from the Earliest to the Present Times, 1882; Synopsis of Ancient Chronology, 1882. He contributed the comments on Nahum, Haggai, Habakkuk, and Zephaniah, in Elliot's Old-Testament Commentary (vol. v., 1884).

JERMYN, Right Rev. Hugh Willoughby, D.D. (Cambridge, 1871), lord bishop of Brechin, Episcopal Church of Scotland; b. about the year 1820; educated at Trinity Hall, Cambridge; graduated B.A. 1841, M.A. 1847; was ordained deacon 1843, priest 1845; archdeacon of St. Christopher's, West Indies, 1854-58; rector of Nettlecombe, near Taunton, 1858-70; vicar of Barking, Essex, 1870-71; lord bishop of Colombo, 1871-75; elected to Brechin, 1875, and so remained till 1887.

JESSUP, Henry Harris, D.D. (University of New-York City, and College of New Jersey, Prin-
JOHNSON, Elias Henry, D.D. (University of Rochester, N.Y., 1875), Baptist; b. at Troy, N.Y., Oct. 15, 1841; graduated at the University of Rochester, N.Y., 1862, and at the Rochester Theological Seminary, 1871; was pastor at Le Sueur, Minn., 1866-68; Ballston Spa, N.Y., 1873-75; and at Providence, R.I., 1875-82; in 1882 became professor of systematic theology in Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester, Penn. He published (jointly with W. H. Doane, Mus. D.) Baptist Hymnal, Philadelphia, 1883; (alone) Songs of Praise for Sunday Schools, 1882; Select Sunday-school Songs, 1885; articles in reviews and other periodicals.

JOHNSON, Herrick, D.D. (Western Reserve College, Hudson, O., 1867), LL.D. (Wooster University, Wooster, O., 1880), Presbyterian; b. near Fonda, Montgomery County, N.Y., Sept. 21, 1832; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1857, and from Auburn (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1860. He was colleague pastor of the First Church, Troy, N.Y., 1860-62; pastor of the Third Church, Pittsburg, Penn., 1862-68 and of the First Church, Philadelphia, Penn., 1868-74. In 1874 he went to Auburn as professor of homiletics and pastoral theology; in 1880 he removed to Chicago, where he is pastor of the Fourth Church, and professor of sacred rhetoric in the Theological Seminary of the North-west. He was moderator of the General Assembly at Springfield, Ill., 1882. He is president of the Presbyterian Church Board of Aid for Colleges and Academies, and of the board of trustees of Lake Forest University.

JOHNSON, William Allen, Episcopal; b. at Hyde Park, Dutchess County, N.Y., Aug. 4, 1838; graduated at Columbia College, New-York City, 1853, and at the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1857. He was successively rector at Bainbridge, N.Y., 1857-62; missionary in Upper Michigan, 1862-64; rector at Burlington, N.J., 1864-70, and at Salisbury, Conn., 1871-82. On Jan. 1, 1888, he went to his present position, the professorship of Christian evidences and homiletics in the Berkeley Divinity School, Middletown, Conn.

JONES, Samuel P, the “Mountain Evangelist,” Missionary to Tripoli, Syria, and there remained until 1860, when he removed to Beirut, which has ever since been the centre of his operations. He made several visits, made brief home visits, and during one of these in 1879 was elected moderator of the General Assembly at Saratoga, N.Y. He is the author of The Mohammedan Missionary Problem, Philadelphia, 1879.

JOSTES, Franz (Ludwig), Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1882), Roman Catholic; b. at Giandorf, Hannover, Germany, July 12, 1858; studied history and German at Freiburg (professor, studied medicine), Berlin, Strassburg, and Leipzig, 1878-82; became privat-docent of the German language and literature in the Royal Academy of Münster, in Westphalia, 1884. He is the author of Johannes Vehige, Halle, 1882; Johannes Vehige, ein deutscher Stüde-Prediger des 16. Jahrhunderts, Halle, 1894; Male herausgegeben, 1883; Drei unbekannte deutsche Schriften von Johannes Vehige (in Histor. Jahrbuck, 1885, pp. 345-412); Beiträge zur Kennniss der for three years in his native county, with indifferent success, owing to his bad habits. He was, however, converted, joined the Methodist Church, and became a preacher under the sanction of the North Georgia Conference. At first he did not go outside of his State; but in 1881 he went into Alabama, and has since been not only all over the South, but also through the North, and has always labored with remarkable success. He uses the plainest speech, and abounds in witty and pregnant sayings. Some of his sermons have been printed, New York, 1885.

JONES, Right Rev. William Basil, D.D. (University of Oxford, 1874), lord bishop of St. David’s, Church of England; b. at Cheltenham, Gloucestershire, Eng. In the year 1822 was scholar of Trinity College, Oxford, 1840; Ireland scholar, 1842; graduated B.A. (second-class classics) 1844, M.A. (Queen’s College) 1847; was ordained deacon 1848, priest 1853; was fellow of Queen’s College, Oxford, 1848-51; tutor of University College, 1851-57; master of the schools, 1848; tutor of University College, 1854-65; classical moderator, 1856 and 1860; select preacher at Oxford, 1860-62, 1866-76, 1876-78; at Cambridge, 1861; senior proctor, Oxford, 1861-62; examining chaplain to the archbishop of York, 1861-74; public examiner in theology, 1870; curial prebendary of St. David’s Cathedral, 1859-65; prebendary of Grindal in York Cathedral, 1863-71; perpetual curate of Haxby, Yorkshire, 1863-65; vicar of Bishopthorpe with Middlethorpe, 1865-74; archdeacon of York, 1867-74; rural dean of Bishopthorpe, 1869-74, and of the city of York, 1873-74; chancellor of York Cathedral, and prebendary of Laughton-en-le-Morthen, 1871-74; canon residuary of York, 1873-74; consecrated bishop, 1874. He is the author of Vestiges of the Gaal in, Guerneld, London, 1851; Christ College, Brecon, its History and Capabilities with Reference to a Measure now before Parliament, 1853; The History and Antiquities of St. David’s (conjointly with E. A. Freeman, LL.D.), 1856; Notes on the Edipus Tyrannus of Sophocles, adapted to the Text of Dindorf, 1862, 2d ed. 1869; The Clergyman’s Office (a sermon), 1864; The New Testament illustrated with a Plain Explanatory Commentary for Private Reading (with Archdeacon Churton), 1865; Judgment, Mercy, and Faith (University sermon), 1866; The Mystery of Iniquity (University sermons), 1867; The Peace of God, Sermons on the Reconciliation of God and Man, 1869, 2d ed. 1885; Commentary on St. Luke in The Bible (Speaker’s) Commentary, 1878; visitation charges; papers in literary and antiquarian journals; contributions to Smith’s Dictionary of the Bible.

JOSTES, Franz (Ludwig), Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1882), Roman Catholic; b. at Giandorf, Hannover, Germany, July 12, 1858; studied history and German at Freiburg (professor, studied medicine), Berlin, Strassburg, and Leipzig, 1878-82; became privat-docent of the German language and literature in the Royal Academy of Münster, in Westphalia, 1884. He is the author of Johannes Vehige, Halle, 1882; Johannes Vehige, ein deutscher Stüde-Prediger des 16. Jahrhunderts, Halle, 1894; Male herausgegeben, 1883; Drei unbekannte deutsche Schriften von Johannes Vehige (in Histor. Jahrbuck, 1885, pp. 345-412); Beiträge zur Kennniss der JOWETT, Benjamin, LL.D. (University of Leiden, 1875), Church of England; b. at Camberwell, Eng., in the year 1817; scholar of Balliol College, Oxford, 1835; Hertford university scholar, 1837; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1839, M.A. 1842; was ordained deacon 1842, priest 1845. In 1838 he was elected to a fellowship at Balliol College; was tutor from 1842 to 1870; public examiner in classics, 1849-50, 1853-54; classical moderator, 1859-60. In 1854 he was a member of the commission appointed to arrange the examinations for admission to the East-Indian Civil Service; and in 1855, on the recommendation of Lord Palmerston, he was appointed regius professor of Greek. In 1870 he resigned his fellowship, and took the mastership of Balliol College, which he still holds along with his professorship. In 1875 he became a member of the Hebdomadal Council of the university, and in 1882 was vice-chancellor. He is the author of St. Paul’s Epistles to the Thessalonians, Galatians, and Romans; Critical Notes and Dissertations, London, 1855, 2d ed. 1859; On the Interpretation of Scripture (an essay in Essays and Reviews), 1860; The Dialogues of Plato translated into English, with Analyses and Essays, 1871, 4 vols., 2d ed. 1875, 5 vols.; Thucydides translated into English, with Introduction, Marginal Analysis, Notes, and Indices, 1881, 2 vols. (American reprint, preface by Rev. A. P. Peabody, Boston, 1883, 1 vol.); The Politics of Aristotle (trans. with notes, etc.), 1885, 2 vols.

JUNGMANN, Joseph, Roman Catholic; b. at Münster, Germany, Nov. 11, 1830; d. at Innsbruck, Nov. 25, 1885. He studied theology there, and in the Collegium Germanicum at Rome, Italy, 1850-56; became priest there, 1855; Jesuit, 1857; ordinary professor of sacred rhetoric and catechetics in the University of Innsbruck, and professor of liturgies in the theological convexit there. He was the author of Die Schönheit und ihre schöne Kunst, Innsbruck, 1886, 2 parts; Das Gemüt und das Gefühlsermögln des neueren Psychologie, 1888, 2d ed. Freiburg-im-Br., 1885; Theorie der geistlichen Beredsamkeit, Freiburg-im-Br., 1877-78, 4 parts, 2d ed. 1884; Die Andacht zum heiligsten Herzen Jesu und die Bedenken gegen dieselbe, 1885 (pp. 51).

KALISCH, Marcus, M.A., Ph.D., Hebrew; b. at Treptow, Pomerania, Prussia, May 16, 1828; d. at Rowsley, Derbyshire, Eng., Aug. 23, 1885. He studied classical philology and Semitic languages at Berlin University, and at the same time Talmudic literature under Jewish teachers. In 1849 political causes drove him out of the country; and he settled in London, where he soon came into intimate relations with the Rothschild family, by whose liberality he was able to devote himself since 1850 to the preparation of a critical commentary upon the Old Testament, of which he published Exodus (London, 1855), Genesis (1858), Leviticus (1867-72, 2 parts); besides Prophecies of Balaam, 1877; Jonah, 1878; Path and Goal, a Discussion on the Elements of Civilization and the Conditions of Happiness, 1880. His best work was, however, his Hebrew Grammar, London, 1863. His commentaries are rationalistic.
KAMPHAUSEN. Adolf (Hermann Heinrich), D.D. (hon., Halle, 1867), German Protestant theologian; b. at Solingen, Rheinish Prussia, Sept. 10, 1829; studied at Bonn, 1849-55; became there privat-docent, August, 1855; in October went to Heidelberg to be Bunsen's private secretary, and to work on his Bibelwerk, and taught as privat-docent in the university there; removed with Bunsen to Bonn in 1859, and there became professor extraordinary of theology in 1863, and ordinary professor in 1868. He has taken prominent part in the revision of the German Bible, 1871, sqq. He is the author of Das Lied Moses, Leipzig, 1862; Das Gebet des Herrn, Elberfeld, 1866; Die Hagiographie des Alten Bundes nach den überlieferten Grundzügen übersetzt und mit erklärenden Anmerkungen versehen, Leipzig, 1885; Die Chronologie der hebräischen Könige, Bonn, 1883. He contributed to Riehm's Handwörterbuch des biblischen Alterthums (Bielefeld, 1885); and edited Bleek's Einleitung ins Alte Testament, Berlin, 1880, 3d ed. 1870.

KARR, William Stevens, D.D. (Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., 1876), Congregationalist; b. at Newark, N.J., Jan. 9, 1829; graduated at Amherst, Mass. (1873-76); and since 1876 has been professor of systematic theology in the Hartford (Conn.) Theological Seminary. He edited Dr. H. B. Smith's Apologetics (New York, 1882), Introduction to Christian Theology (1883), and System of Christian Theology, 1884.

KATTENBUSCH, Friedrich Wilhelm, Ferdinand, Lic. Theol. (Göttingen, 1875), D.D. (hon., Göttingen, 1879), German Protestant; b. at Kettwig-on-the-Ruhr, Rheinish Prussia, Oct. 3, 1851; studied at Bonn, Berlin, and Halle; became retenant at Göttingen 1878, privat-docent there 1879; professor of systematic theology at Giessen, 1873-80; since 1880 at Tübingen. In 1877 he founded, with A. Soine and Zimmernann, the German Palestine Exploration Society. He prepared, with F. Mühlau, an edition of the unpointed text of Genesis, Leipzig, 1880, 2d ed. 1885; brought out the second edition of H. Scholz's Abriß der Hebr. Literatur und Formenlehre, 1874, 6th ed. 1885; the 22d to the 24th editions of Gesenius' Hebräischer Grammatik, 1878-85, to which he added an Übungsbuch, 1881, 2d ed. 1884; and the 10th and 11th editions of Hagenbach's Encyklopädie und Methodologie, 1880, 1884; and has written Der Vetere Testamenti loci a Paulo apostolo allegatus, 1869; (with Socin) Die Aechtigkeit der moabischen Alterthümer geprüft, 1876; Johannes Boaistorf der Aetheri, Basel, 1878; Uber die Derivate des Stammes P' in alltestamentlichen Sprachgebrauch, Tübingen, 1881 (pp. 50); Grammatik des Biblisch-Aramäischen. Mit einer kritischen Erörterung der aramäischen Wörter im N.T., Leipzig, 1884.

KAUFMANN, Gustav, D.D. (Amherst College, Amherst, N.H., 1868), Roman Catholic; b. at Solingen, Rhenish Prussia, Sept. 10, 1841; studied at Bonn, 1859-63; was adjunct of the Nicolai-gymnasium, 1863-66; head master, 1866-72; privat-docent in the university, 1869-71; ordinary professor at Basel, 1872-80; since 1880 at Tübingen. In 1877 he founded, with A. Soine and Zimmermann, the German Palestine Exploration Society. He prepared, with F. Mühlau, an edition of the unpointed text of Genesis, Leipzig, 1880, 2d ed. 1885; brought out the second edition of H. Scholz's Abriß der Hebr. Literatur und Formenlehre, 1874, 6th ed. 1885; the 22d to the 24th editions of Gesenius' Hebräischer Grammatik, 1878-85, to which he added an Übungsbuch, 1881, 2d ed. 1884; and the 10th and 11th editions of Hagenbach's Encyklopädie und Methodologie, 1880, 1884; and has written Der Vetere Testamenti loci a Paulo apostolo allegatus, 1869; (with Socin) Die Aechtigkeit der moabischen Alterthümer geprüft, 1876; Johannes Boaistorf der Aetheri, Basel, 1878; Uber die Derivate des Stammes P' in alltestamentlichen Sprachgebrauch, Tübingen, 1881 (pp. 50); Grammatik des Biblisch-Aramäischen. Mit einer kritischen Erörterung der aramäischen Wörter im N. T., Leipzig, 1884.

KAUFMANN, Curtav, D.D. (Amherst College, Amherst, N.H., 1868), German theologian; b. at Bunzlau, Silesia, Feb. 25, 1847; studied at Berlin, 1863-66; became assistant preacher at Lucas's, Berlin, 1870; pastor at Langheinersdorf, Brandenburg, 1871; at Klemzig, 1876; professor and geistlicher Inspector am Kloster U. l. Frauen, and president of the theological seminary, Magdeburg, 1892; ordinary professor of pastoral theology, Kiel, 1886. In 1883 he participated with the archivist Jacobs and Prof. Dr. Koestlin in founding the Verein für Reformations Geschichte, of which he has since been the editor. He is the author of Johann Agricola von Eisleben, Berlin, 1881; Caspar Güttel. Ein Lebensbild aus Luther's Freundeskreis, Halle, 1882; five articles against Jansenism in Zeitschrift für kirchl. Wissenschaft und kirchl. Leben, 1882 and 1883; the introduction to the reprint of Von der Winckelmesse und Pfaffen Wehe. D. Martin Luther, Halle, 1883; and that of Passional Christi und Antichristi, Berlin, 1885; edited the Briefwechsel des Luther im Inn, 2 vols. 1882. In 1885 he published the third (1885) and fourth (1886) volumes of the Weimar edition of Luther's works.

KAY, William, D.D. (Oxford, 1885), Church of England; b. at Pickering, Yorkshire, April 8, ...
KAYSER.

KELLER, Carl Adam Heinrich, D.D. (Munich, 1862), Roman Catholic; b. at Heiligenstadt, Thueringia, Germany, Aug. 26, 1837; studied at Münster, Tubingen, and Trier; became chaplain at Trier; pastor at Bitburg; professor of church law in the theological seminary at Hildesheim, Hanover, 1867; professor of church history in the University of Bonn, 1882. He is the author of Das Buss- und Strafverfahren gegen Kleriker in den ersten christlichen Jahrhunderten, Trier, 1869; Hellenismus und Christentum, oder die geistl. Reaktion des antiken Heidenhums gegen das Christentum, Köln, 1890; Verfassung, Lehramt und Unfähigkeit der Kirche, Kempten, 1873, 2d ed. 1874; Tertullian's sämtliche Schriften, übersetzt, Köln, 1882, 2 vols.

KELLOGG.

Samuel Henry, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1877): Presbyterian; b. at Quique, Long Island, N.Y., Sept. 6, 1839; graduated at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1861, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1864; was missionary in India.1864—76 (1872—76, theological instructor in synod's school at Allahabad); pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, Penn.; and professor of systematic theology, and lecturer on comparative religion, in Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1877—85; since 1886 pastor in Toronto, Ontario, Can. He is the author of A Grammar of the Hindi Language, London, 1879;
KENDALL, Henry, D.D. (Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1858), Presbyterian; b. at Volney, N.Y., Aug. 24, 1815; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1840, and at the theological school in New York, 1843; became pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Verona, N.Y., 1844; East Bloomfield, 1848; Pittsburg, Penn. (Third Church), 1858; secretary of the Board of Home Missions, New-York City, 1861. He was a trustee of Auburn Theological Seminary, 1855—58, and since 1871 of Hamilton College.

KENDRICK, Asa Eli Clark, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1845), LL.D. (Lewisburg University, Lewisburg, Penn., 1870), Baptist; b. at Poultney, Vt., Dec. 7, 1809; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1831; professor of Greek in Madison University, Hamilton, N.Y., 1832—50; and since 1850 has held similar position in Rochester (Sewanee University, and taught the intervals Hebrew and New-Testament Greek in Rochester (Baptist) Theological Seminary. He was a member of the New-Testament Company of the Anglo-American Bible-revision Committee (1871—81). He is the author of a Greek Introduction, New York, 1833; Greek Olibendorf, 1851; Echoes, or Leisure Hours with the German Poets, Rochester, 1855; Life and Letters of Mrs. Emily C. Julson, New York, 1860; Our Poetical Favorites (selected poems), 1873, 2 series, new ed. Boston, 1883; The Anaesthesia of Xenophon, with Notes and Vocabulary, New York, 1879; revised and in part translated Olshausen's Commentary, New York, 1856—58, 6 vols.; trans. Moll on Hebrews in American ed. of Lange's Commentary, 1868; revised and edited trans. of Meyer's Commentary on John, 1884; besides has written various magazine articles, a series of exegetical articles under the title of Biblical Hours, and aided in several publications of the American Bible Union.

KENNEDY, Benjamin Hall, D.D. (Cambridge, 1836), Church of England; b. at Summer Hill, near Birmingham, Nov. 6, 1804; entered St. John's College, Cambridge; gained the Porson prize, and Browne's medal for Latin odes, and the Porson prize, in 1824; Browne's medal for epigrams in 1825, the Person prize in 1826; graduated B.A. (senior optime, and first in the first class of the classical tripods, and senior chancellor's medallist) 1827, M.A. 1830; gained the member's prize for a Latin essay, De origine scriptura alphabeticæ; was fellow of his college, and classical lecturer, 1828—36; assistant master at Harrow, 1830—36; head master of Shrewsbury School, 1836—68; was ordained deacon 1829, priest 1830; was prebendary of Gaia Major in Lichfield Cathedral, 1843—67; select preacher to the university, 1860; rector of West Felton, Salop, 1865—67; became regius professor of Greek in the University of Cambridge, and canon of Ely, 1867. In 1870 he was elected a member of the council of the university; appointed Lady Margaret's preacher for 1875; elected honorary fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, 1873; elected a fellow of the New-Testament Company of Bible Revisers (1870—81). His works are mostly Latin school-books or translations of classic authors: e.g., Birds of Aristophanes (London, 1874), Agamemnon of Aeschylus (1878, 2d ed. 1882), Eupolis Tyrannus of Sophocles; but he has also published Between Whites: Wayside Amusements of a Working Life, 1877; Occasional Sermons, 1877; and Ely Lectures on the Revised Translation of the New Testament, 1882.

KENNICK, Most Rev. Peter Richard, D.D., Roman Catholic; b. in Dublin, Ireland, in the year 1800, and ordained him to the priesthood in 1824; he came to Philadelphia, U.S.A., where his brother, F. P. Kenrick (see title in Encyclopaedia), was coadjutor bishop; there he edited The Catholic Herald, and was made vicar-general. From 1841 to 1843 he was bishop of Drass, and coadjutor bishop of St. Louis; and since 1848 bishop, and since 1847 the first archbishop. He sat in the Vatican Council, and vigorously opposed the infallibility dogma, but acquiesced. He is author of numerous translations, and of The Holy House of Loreto, Philadelphia, and Anglican Ordinations.

KEPHART, Ezekiel Boring, D.D. (Otterbein University, Westerville, O., 1881), bishop of the United Brethren in Christ; b. at Decatur, Penn., Nov. 6, 1834; graduated at Otterbein University, Westerville, O., in the English scientific course, 1855; in the regular classical course, 1870; was licensed to preach, 1857; received as a minister into the Allegheny Conference, Penn., January, 1859; became principal of Michigan College, Institute, Leoni, Mich., 1865; a pastor in Pennsylvania, 1886; president of Western College (now at Toledo, To.,) 1868; bishop, 1881. He was State senator of Iowa, 1871—75.

KESSELING, Heinrich, D.D., Swiss Protestant theologian; b. at Frauenfeld, Canton Thurgau, Switzerland, July 15, 1832; studied theology at Zurich, Tubingen, and Berlin, 1850—56; was vicar at Horgen, Switzerland, 1856—57; pastor at Wipkingen, near Zurich, 1859—64; became privatdocent at Zurich, 1858; professor extraordinary of theology, there, 1864; ordinary professor of New Testament and practical theology, 1874. He is author of contributions to different periodicals, sermons, etc.

KIDDER, Daniel Parish, D.D. (McKendree College, Lebanon, Ill., 1861), Methodist; b. at Darien, N.Y., Oct. 18, 1815; in 1833; the Pittsville University scholarship, Browne's medals for Greek and Latin odes, and the Porson prize, in 1824; Browne's medal for epigrams in 1825, the Person prize in 1826; graduated B.A. (senior optime, and first in the first class of the classical tripods, and senior chancellor's medallist) 1827, M.A. 1830; gained the member's prize for a Latin essay, De origine scriptura alphabeticæ; was fellow of his college, and classical lecturer, 1828—36; assistant master at Harrow, 1830—36; head master of Shrewsbury School, 1836—68; was ordained deacon 1829, priest 1830; was prebendary of Gaia Major in Lichfield Cathedral, 1843—67; select preacher to the university, 1860; rector of West Felton, Salop, 1865—67; became regius professor of Greek in the University of Cambridge, and canon of Ely, 1867. In 1870 he was elected a member of the council of the university; appointed Lady Margaret's preacher for 1875; elected honorary fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, 1873; elected a fellow of the New-Testament Company of Bible Revisers (1870—81). His works are mostly Latin school-books or translations of classic authors: e.g., Birds of Aristophanes (London, 1874), Agamemnon of Aeschylus (1878, 2d ed. 1882), Eupolis Tyrannus of Sophocles; but he has also published Between Whites: Wayside Amusements of a Working Life, 1877; Occasional Sermons, 1877; and Ely Lectures on the Revised Translation of the New Testament, 1882.

KIDDER, Daniel Parish, D.D. (McKendree College, Lebanon, Ill., 1861), Methodist; b. at Darien, N.Y., Oct. 18, 1815; in 1833; the Pittsville University scholarship, Browne's medals for Greek and Latin odes, and the Porson prize, in 1824; Browne's medal for epigrams in 1825, the Person prize in 1826; graduated B.A. (senior optime, and first in the first class of the classical tripods, and senior chancellor's medallist) 1827, M.A. 1830; gained the member's prize for a Latin essay, De origine scriptura alphabeticæ; was fellow of his college, and classical lecturer, 1828—36; assistant master at Harrow, 1830—36; head master of Shrewsbury School, 1836—68; was ordained deacon 1829, priest 1830; was prebendary of Gaia Major in Lichfield Cathedral, 1843—67; select preacher to the university, 1860; rector of West Felton, Salop, 1865—67; became regius professor of Greek in the University of Cambridge, and canon of Ely, 1867. In 1870 he was elected a member of the council of the university; appointed Lady Margaret's preacher for 1875; elected honorary fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, 1873; elected a fellow of the New-Testament Company of Bible Revisers (1870—81). His works are mostly Latin school-books or translations of classic authors: e.g., Birds of Aristophanes (London, 1874), Agamemnon of Aeschylus (1878, 2d ed. 1882), Eupolis Tyrannus of Sophocles; but he has also published Between Whites: Wayside Amusements of a Working Life, 1877; Occasional Sermons, 1877; and Ely Lectures on the Revised Translation of the New Testament, 1882.

KENNICK, Most Rev. Peter Richard, D.D., Roman Catholic; b. in Dublin, Ireland, in the year 1800, and ordained him to the priesthood in 1824; he came to Philadelphia, U.S.A., where his brother, F. P. Kenrick (see title in Encyclopaedia), was coadjutor bishop; there he edited The Catholic Herald, and was made vicar-general. From 1841 to 1843 he was bishop of Drass, and coadjutor bishop of St. Louis; and since 1848 bishop, and since 1847 the first archbishop. He sat in the Vatican Council, and vigorously opposed the infallibility dogma, but acquiesced. He is author of numerous translations, and of The Holy House of Loreto, Philadelphia, and Anglican Ordinations.
KILLEN.

KILLEN, William Dool, D.D. (Glasgow, 1843), Irish Presbyterian; b. at Ballymena, County Antrim, Ireland, April 3, 1806; educated at Royal Academical Institution, Belfast; became minister of Raphoe, County Donegal, 1829; pro minister of Raphoe, County Donegal, 1829; pro royal Academical Institution, Belfast; became Irish Presbyterian; b. at Ballymena, County Antrim, April 5, 1806; educated at the arts-gymnasium at Eichstätt, 1864; professor extraordinary of theology at Würzburg, 1874; ordinary professor of canon law, patrology, encyclopaedia, and biblical hermeneutics, 1879. In 1884 and 1885 he was rector of the university. He is extraordinary of theology at Würzburg, 1874; ordinary professor of canon law, patrology, encyclopaedia, and biblical hermeneutics, 1879. In 1884 and 1885 he was rector of the university. He is extraordinary of theology at Würzburg, 1874; ordinary professor of canon law, patrology, encyclopaedia, and biblical hermeneutics, 1879. In 1884 and 1885 he was rector of the university. He is extraordinary of theology at Würzburg, 1874; ordinary professor of canon law, patrology, encyclopaedia, and biblical hermeneutics, 1879. In 1884 and 1885 he was rector of the university. He is extraordinary of theology at Würzburg, 1874; ordinary professor of canon law, patrology, encyclopaedia, and biblical hermeneutics, 1879. In 1884 and 1885 he was rector of the university. He is extraordinary of theology at Wü Tongue, 1873, 3d ed. 1883; is author of A History of France down to the Year 1789, 1873-77, 3 vols., 3d ed. 1884; A Memoir of Pope Pius II. (written for the Arundel Society, to accompany their issue of the frescoes by Pinturicchio in the library at St. Siervino, 1883).

KLEINERT, (Hugo Wilhelm) Paul, Ph.D. (Halle, 1857), Lic. Theol. (dono, 1890), D.D. (Halle, 1874), German Protestant; b. at Vielguth, Silesia, Sept. 25, 1837; studied at Breslau and Halle, 1854-57; became diaconus and teacher of religion in the Oepeln gymnasiurn, 1861; in the Berlin Friedrich-Wilhelm gymnasiurn, 1863; private docent of theology (Old-Testament) in the Berlin University, 1864; professor extraordinary, 1866; ordinary professor (of Old-Testament and practical theology), 1877. On Nov. 22, 1873, he became a consistorialrat for Brandenburg; in 1885-86, was rector of the university. As a student he was influenced by Hupfeld and Julius Muller, later Hitzig and Richard Roth; he adopts a "sient waysenschaftliche Richtung." He is the author of Vindiciw Lucane, Göttingen, 1865; Das Markus Evangelium, 1867; Untersuchungen zur A. T. Theologie, Gotha, 1868; Konmmentare zur bisherigen Erklärung des Römervires, 1861; Probleme im Aposteltexte, neu erörtert, 1883; Ueber deutsche Art und Wissen in der Literatur-geschichte, Part 1, 1872; Abriss tier Ein Unlersuchungen zur Altchristlichen Rechtsgeschichte, Part 1, 1872. He is the author of Die Colossener, 1882.

KNICKEBACKER, Right Rev. David Buel, D.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1873), Episcopalian, bishop of Indiana; b. at Schaghticoke, N.Y., Feb. 24, 1833; graduated at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1853, and at the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1856; became rector of Gethsemane Church, Minneapolis, Minn., 1857; bishop, 1883. He is a High Churchman. He has published occasional sermons and addresses, annual reports, etc.

KNIGHT, George Thomson, Universalist; b. at Windham, Me., Oct. 29, 1850; graduated at Tufts College, College Hill, Mass., 1872, and at Tufts Divinity School (B.D.) 1875; in the latter was instructor in rhetoric and church history from 1875 to 1882, when he became professor of church history.

KNOX, Charles Eugene, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1874), Presbyterian; b. at Knoxboro, N.Y., Dec. 27, 1833; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1856, and at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1859; was tutor in Hamilton College, 1859-60; pastor of Greifswald, March 1865; pasteur at Greifswald, March 1865; pastor (Presbyterian), Bloomfield, N.J., 1884-73; president of the German Theological School, Newark, N.J., since 1873. He is the author of A Year with St. Paul, New York, 1863; a series of graded Sunday-school text-books, 1864-70; Love to the End, 1866; David the King, 1874.
KNOX.

KNOX, Right Rev. Robert Bent, D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1849), lord bishop of Down, Connor, and Dromore, Church of Ireland; b. in Ireland, in the year 1808; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; graduated B.A. 1829, M.A. 1834, D.D. 1849; was chancellor of Ardfern, 1834–41; president of University, in Limerick Cathedral, 1841–49; became bishop, 1850; primate, and archbishop of Armagh, 1886.

KOBER, Franz, Lic. Theol. (Tübingen, 1856), D.D. (Tübingen, 1857), Roman Catholic; b. at Warthhausen, near Biberach, Germany, March 6, 1821; studied theology and philosophy at Tübingen; became priest there, 1845; and successively in its university, repetent to the Wilhelmsstift (1846), privat-dozent of pedagogics, didactics, and the exegesis of the N. T. Epistles (1851), professor extraordinary (1853), ordinary professor of church law, pedagogics, and the exegesis of the Epistles (1857), of the author of Die Kirchenbann nach den Grundsätzen des kanonischen Rechts, Tübingen, 1857, 2d ed. 1903; Die Suspension der Kirchenfederer, 1882; Die Deposition and Degradation, 1867.

KÖEGEL, Rudolf, D.D., German Protestant theologian; b. at Birnbaum, Posen, Feb. 18, 1829; became priest, 1867; teacher of religion in the Gross-Gymnasium, soon after in the Realschule, 1874; since 1880 he has, with W. Baur and E. Frommel, edited Neue Christentemper.

KÖEHLER, August, Ph.D. (Jena, 1859), Lic. Theol. (Erlangen, 1857), D.D. (Erlangen, 1864), Lutheran theologian; b. at Schenlenberg, Rheinpfalz, Germany, Feb. 8, 1835; educated at Bonn, Erlangen, and Utrecht, 1851–55; made a scientific journey in Holland, 1856; became privat-doctor at Erlangen, 1857; professor extraordinary of theology, 1862; ordinary professor at Jena 1864, at Bonn, 1866, at Erlangen 1868. He is the author of Die kirchlieds reformierte Kirche, Erlangen, 1856 (Dutch and German translation, Naarh. Kerk, Amsterdam, 1857); Principia doctrinae de regeneratione in novo testamento oboe, 1857; Die nachezelischen Propheten erklärt, 1860–63, 4 parts; Commentatio de ac pronunciatione sacrosantci Tetragrammatis, 1857; Lehrbuch der biblichen Ge- schichte aller Testamentes (down to the disruption of the kingdom), 1st vol., 2d vol. 1st pt., 1875–84; Ueber die Grundanschauungen des Buch Kokeleth, 1883; Ueber die Berichtigung der Lutherschen Bibelübersetzung, 1888; numerous articles in theological periodicals, etc.

KÖHIG, Arthur, D.D. (Breslau, Germany, 1873), Roman Catholic; b. at Neisse, Germany, June 4, 1843; studied at Breslau 1861–65, and in the episcopal priests' seminary there 1866–67; became priest, 1867; teacher of religion in the Gross Glogau gymnasium, soon after in the Realschule at Neisse (1868); chief teacher in the latter, 1890;ordinary professor of dogmatics in the university of Breslau, Germany, 1892. He is the author of Das Kalendarium des Breslauer Kreuzkarten (in the Zeitschrift für Geschichte u. Alterthümer Schlesiens, 1868); Die Echtheit der Apostelgeschichte, Breslau, 1867; Das Zeugnus der Natur für Gottes Dasein, Freiburg-im-Bzr., 1870 (Hungarian trans., Calocsa, 1871, 2d ed. Pesth, 1872); Die Bibel und die Sklaverei (Programm der Neisser Realschule, 1874); Lehrbuch für den katholischen Religionsunterricht in den oberen Klassen der Gymnasi- en und Realschulen, Freiburg-im-Bzr., 1879, 4th ed. 1883; Handbuch für den katholischen Religions- unterricht in den mittleren Klassen der Gymnasi- en und Realschulen, 1881; articles in the homiletical monthly, St. Hedwigblatt, Breslau, etc.

KOENIG, Friedrich Eduard, Ph.D., Lic. Theol. (both Leipzig, 1872 and 1879), German Protestant; b. at Reichenbach, Saxony, Nov. 15, 1846; studied at Leipzig, 1867–71; became privat-dozent there, 1879; professor extraordinary of theology, 1885. His theological standpoint is that of a be, liever in revelation. He is the author of Gelehrte-Laut und Accent, als die drei Faktoren der Sprach- bildung, comparativ und physiologisch am Hebräischen dargestellt, 1872; Studien über Schrift, Aussprache and allgemeine Formenlehre des Aethiopischen, Leipzig, 1877; De critica sacre argmento e lingua legibus repetito, 1879; Historisch- kritisches Lehrgebdude der Hebräischen Sprache, I. Theil, 1881; Der Offenbarungsgeschicht des Alten Testaments, 1882; Die Hauptprobleme der altertestamentlichen Religionsgeschichte, 1884 (English trans., The Religious History of Israel, Edinburgh, 1885): Falsche Exteme in der neueren Kritik des Alten Testaments, 1885.

KOENIG, Joseph, D.D. (Freiburg-im-Bzr., 1840), Roman Catholic; b. at Hausen-on-the-Aach, Germany, Sept. 7, 1819; studied philosophy and theology at Freiburg-im-Bzr.; became priest and repetitor in the theological convict there, 1845; and successively in this university, privat-dozent (1847), professor extraordinary (1854), ordinary professor of Old-Testament literature (1857). He is the author of Die Theologie der Psalmen, Frei- burg-im-Bzr., 1857; Das alttestamentl. Königthum, 1863; Das Alter u. die Entstehungsweise des Pentateuchs, 1884; Beiträge zur Geschichte der theologischen Fakultät in Freiburg am Schlusses des vorigen und im Beginne des jetzigen Jahrhunderts, 1894.

KOESSING, Friedrich, Roman Catholic; b. at Mimmenhausen, Münster, March 15, 1820; became spiritual instructor at Donaueschingen, 1851; in the lyceum at Heidelberg, 1855; professor of moral theology and theological encyclopedia at Freiburg-im-Bzr., 1863. He is the author of Die suprema Christi cena, Heidelberg, 1858; Das christ. Gesetz, 1862.

KOESTLIN, Julius Theodor, Ph.D., Lic. Theol. (both Tübingen, 1855), D.D. (hon., Göttingen, 1880), LL.D. (hon., Marburg, 1883); b. at Stuttgart, May 17, 1826; studied in Tübingen 1844–48, and Berlin 1849–50; became repetitor in the evangelical seminary in Tübingen, 1850; professor extraordinary, especially of New-Testament theology, and university preacher, in Göttingen, 1855; ordinary professor, especially of systematic theology, at Breslau 1860, at Halle 1870; since 1883 consistorial councillor, and since 1877 member of the Magdeburg consistory. His theological standpoint is that of the so-called or new German theology, with critical reference to the biblical revelation and the facts of the moral and religious Christian consciousness, and effort after the union of the Lutheran and Reformed confessions. He studied Presbyterianism in Scot-KOLDE, Theodor (Hermann Friedrich), Ph.D. (Halle, 1874), Lic. Theol. (Marburg, 1876), D.D. (hon., Marburg, 1881), German Protestant theologian; b. at Treves, Rhenish Prussia, Sept. 18, 1840; studied at Bonn and Leipzig, 1859-60; studied in the universities of Tübingen, 1860, and Cambridge, 1861-62; at Marburg (1863-64), and Zürich (1857-58); passed the state examination, 1862; came pastor of Stettfurt, Canton Thurgau, Switzerland, March 2, 1863; 1876-77; became privat-docent in church history at Marburg, 1876; professor extraordinary, 1879; ordinary professor of historical theology at Erlangen, 1881. He is a pupil of Hermann Reuter’s. He is author of Der Kanzler Briick u. seine Bedeutung für die Erforschung der Reformation, 1881; Luther-Stellung zu Konzil und Kirche bis zum Wormser Reichstag, Gütersloh, 1876; Walther von der Vogelweide in seiner Stellung zu Kaiserthum und Hierarchie, 1877; Die deutsche Augustiner-Congregatio und Johann von Staupitz, Goth. 1879; Friedrich der Weise und die Anfänge der Reformation, Erlangen, 1881; Analecta Luthera, Briefe und Actenstücke, Goth. 1883; Luther und der Reichstag zu Worms, 1883, 2d ed. same year; Martin Luther, eine Biographie, vol. I. 1884; Die Heilsarmee ("The Salvation Army") nach eigener Anschauung und nach ihren Schriften, Erlangen, 1885. He is a correspondent of KRAUSS, Alfred (Eduard), Lic. Theol. (Basel 1886), D.D. (hon., Basel, 1888), Reformed; b. at Rheineck, Canton St. Gallen, Switzerland, March 19, 1860; studied at Heidelberg (1855-56), and studied in the universities of Tübingen, 1874; has contributed to numerous periodicals.

KRAUSS, Alfred (Eduard), Lic. Theol. (Basel 1886), D.D. (hon., Basel, 1888), Reformed; b. at Rheineck, Canton St. Gallen, Switzerland, March 19, 1860; studied at Heidelberg (1855-56), and studied in the universities of Tübingen, 1874; has contributed to numerous periodicals.

KRAUSS, Alfred (Eduard), Lic. Theol. (Basel 1886), D.D. (hon., Basel, 1888), Reformed; b. at Rheineck, Canton St. Gallen, Switzerland, March 19, 1860; studied at Heidelberg (1855-56), and studied in the universities of Tübingen, 1874; has contributed to numerous periodicals.

KRAUSS, Alfred (Eduard), Lic. Theol. (Basel 1886), D.D. (hon., Basel, 1888), Reformed; b. at Rheineck, Canton St. Gallen, Switzerland, March 19, 1860; studied at Heidelberg (1855-56), and studied in the universities of Tübingen, 1874; has contributed to numerous periodicals.
revised and enlarged, 1855, sqq. (French trans. by Dr. A. Pierson, of the first two volumes, on the historical and Christian age, 1856; English trans. of the first two chapters by Bishop J. W. Colenso, in his Pentatuch and Book of Joshua critically examined, London, 1885; German trans. of the 2d ed. by Dr. Th. Weber, Leipzig, 1885, sqq.);

LAEMMER, Hugo, Ph.D. (Berlin, 1855), Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1858), D.D. (hon., Breslau, 1859), Roman-Catholic convert; b. at Allenstein, East Prussia, Jan. 25, 1835; studied at Königsberg, Leipzig, and Berlin, 1852–56; became privi-docien for historical theology at Berlin, 1857; made a scientific journey through Italy, and on his return went formally over to Catholicism at Braunsberg, Nov. 21, 1858. He then entered the clerical seminary there; was ordained a priest 1859; immediately thereafter went to Rome, and was appointed missionary apostolicus, 1861. On his return to Braunsberg that year, he was made sub-regens of the seminary; was called to Rome by the Pope in 1863, as consultor of the Congregatio de Propaganda Fide. In 1864 he became professor of moral theology at Braunsberg, and later in the year, in spite of the protest of the Protestant faculty, professor of dogmatics in the Roman-Catholic theological faculty of Breslau, and later on Consistorialrat, 1869, Prosnootlärmator, and episcopal Pénitentiar. In 1865 he became honorary member of the Doktorencollegium of the Vienna theological faculty. He is the author of Clemenstis Alexandrinus de laýa doctrina, Leipzig, 1855 (an academical prize essay, written at the suggestion given him by his first impulse towards Roman Catholicism); De theologica romanocatholica, qua reformatorum etate digna, anteridentina (another prize essay, Berlin, 1857; translated by him into German under the title, Die vortrinitisch-katholische Theologie des Reformations-Zeitalters aus den Quellen dargestellt, Berlin, 1858); Papst Nikolaus der Erste u. d. Byzantinische Staats-Kirche seiner Zeit, 1857 (his habilitationssrede); (ed.) Eusebiu Pamphili hist. eccles. libri x., Schaffhausen, 1859–62; Analecta Romana. Kirchengeschichtliche Forschungen in Römischen Bibliotheken u. Archiven. Eine Denkschrift, Schaffhausen, 1860; Missericordias Domini, Freiburg-im-B., 1861 (his autobioggraphy, in which he relates the history of his conversion, and attributes it to his work upon Anselsm's Cur Deus Homo, which he edited, Berlin, 1857, his study of Herrn von Kappenberg's De conversione suo, the reading of Roman-Catholic books, a severe illness, and the Jesuit revival meetings in Berlin); Monumenta Vaticana historiam ecclesiasticam sui saeculi XIV. et XV. illustransia, 1881; Zur Kirchen-geschichte des 16. und 17. Jahrh., 1883; (edited) Scripturarum Graecic orth. bibliotheca selecta, 1884–86; In decreta concilii Rutheonum Zamanoeiis animadversiones theologiao-canonicte, 1866; Caelaei Urbis Jerusalem, 1868; Meitematam romanorum manitisa, 1876; De martyrologia Romano, Parergon historico-criticum, Regensburg, 1876.

LAGARDE, Paul Anthony de, Ph.D. (Berlin, 1849), Lic. Theol. (hon., Erlangen, 1851), D.D. (hon., Halle, 1868), German Protestant; b. in Berlin, Nov. 2, 1827; studied in Berlin University from Easter, 1844, to Easter, 1846, and in Halle from Easter, 1846, to Easter, 1847; taught in schools in Berlin from Easter, 1855, to Easter, 1868; and since Easter, 1869, has been professor of Oriental languages at Göttingen. "He accepts nothing but what is proved, but accepts every thing that has been proved." He is the author of the following works: Didascalia apostolorum syriace, 1854; Zur urgeschichte der Armenier, 1854; Reliquias fuis ecclesiastici antiquissimae syriace, 1856, grace, 1856; Analecta Syriaca, 1858; Appendix arabica, 1858; Hippolyti romani quae feruntur omnia grcece, 1858; Titi bostreni contra Manichaeos libri quatuor syriace, 1859; Titi bostreni que ez opere contra Manichaeos in cod. hamburgenisi servata sunt grcece accessunt Iulii romani epistula et Gregorii Thamaturgi xartar musi niours, 1859; Geoponon in sermonem synecum versorum quae superant, 1860; Clememts roman recognitiones syriace, 1861; Libri V. T. apocryphi syriace, 1861; Constitutiones apostolorum grace, 1862; Anmerkungen zur griechischen übersetzung der Proverbien, 1863; Die vier evangelen arabisch aus der Wiener handschrift herausgegeben, 1864; Josephi Scaligers poema omnia ex museo Pietri Scrivieri, 1864; Clementina, 1865; Gesammelte abhandlungen, 1866; Der pentateuch koptisch, 1867; V. T. ab Origene rescritt fragmenta. Materialien zur geschichte und kritik des Pentateuch, I., II., 1879; Genesis grace, 1868; Hieronymi questions hebraice in libro Geneseos, 1869; Beitrage zur baktrischen lexographie, 1859; Onomastica sacra, 1870; Prophetica chaide, 1872; Hagiographa chaide, 1874; Psalterium isixae Hebraeo Hieronymi, 1874; Psalmi 1–49 in usum scholararum arab., 1875; Psalterii versio nempthymica, etc., 1875; Psalterium Proserbvia arabice, 1876; Ar- menische studien, 1877; Svmmatia, I., 1877, II., 1880; Semitica, I., 1878, II., 1879; Deutsche Schriften, 1878–88; Prätermissorum libri duo syriace, 1879; Orient- tala, I., 1879, II., 1880; Aus dem deutschen gelehrten- einleben, 1881; Die lateinischen übersetzungen des Ignatius, 1882; Änkündnng einer neuen ausgabe der griechischen übersetzung des alten testaments, 1882; Ignatii antiocheni qua feruntur grace. Sapientia uraque et Psalterium latine. Beschreibung des in Granada üblich genosse dialects der arabischen sprache. Johannis Euchaliorum metropolita qua in codice vaticano grace 676 superant Johannes Bollig descripit, 1882; Iuda Harizzi macaze hebraice, 1883; Egyptiacca, 1883; Librorum V. T. P. I. grace, 1885; Isaiah persica, 1885; Programm für die kon- servative Parie Preussia, 1885; Persische studien, 1885; Mittheilungen, 1884; Probe einer neuen Aus- gaben der lateinischen übersetzungen des alten Te-LANGE, John D.D. (Edinburgh, 1880), Free Church of Scotland; b. in Edinburgh, April 7, 1832; graduated as M.A. at Edinburgh University, 1855; studied theology in Reformed Presbyterian Divinity Hall, Glasgow, and then in New College (the Free Church College), Edinburgh; became a minister of the East Parish, Aberdeenshire, 1858; of Fyvie Parish, Aberdeenshire, 1856; of Langenberg, near Solingen, 1826; of Langenberg, near Bonn, 1840; of Langen, 1881.

He is the author of the "Bible Doctrine of Man" (Cunningham Lectures, Edinburgh, 1879); and the editor of "Memorials of the Late Rev. John Hamilton, Glasgow." 1881.

LAKE, Very Rev. William Charles, D.D. (Durham, 1882), dean of Durham, Church of England; b. in England, in January of the year 1817; was scholar at Balliol College, Oxford, 1834; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1835, M.A. 1841; obtained the Latin essay, 1840; was ordained deacon 1842, and priest 1844; fellow and compiler of his college. He was successively minister of the East Parish, Aberdeen, 1872; professor of systematic theology, New College, Edinburgh, 1881. He is the author of "The Bible Doctrine of Man," and editor of "Memorials of the Late Rev. John Hamilton, Glasgow." 1881.

LANG, John Marshall, D.D. (Glasgow, 1874), Church of Scotland; b. in the manse of Glassford, Lanarkshire, May 14, 1834; graduated at the University of Glasgow (prizeman in theology and philosophy, and historical medallist), 1856; was successively minister of the East Parish, Aberdeen, 1856; of Virgina, Aberdeen, 1858; of Anderston Church, Glasgow, 1865; of Morningside, Edinburgh, 1868; and since January, 1873, of the Barony Parish, Glasgow. He was associated with the earlier movements in the Church of Scotland, for improvement in modes of worship; was appointed editor of "The Reformed Church" in 1847, and retained his faculties to the end. He ceased to lecture five days before his death. An American student (Bossard') to whom he showed great kindness, and who informed me of the fact, called, and found him suffering from a cold, but reading and writing as usual, and full of animation and pleasant humor. Even a day before his death, he spoke of the beautiful summer and the beautiful Rhine, and hoped to resume his lectures shortly. "I never saw Lange appear happier than on this day; his eyes were brighter than ever, his countenance was serene, he was all kindness and friendliness, and seemed at peace with the whole world." On the 8th of July he arose as usual, spent the morning among his books, and after dinner, while his daughter went down-stairs to get him his cup of coffee, he quietly fell asleep in his arm-chair, to awake no more on earth.

Dr. Lange was small of stature, had a strong constitution, a benignant face, and bright eye which retained its strength to the last. He was twice happily married, lived in comfortable circumstances, and left a large and interesting family. He was simple in his tastes and habits, of unblemished character, genial, agreeable, full of kindness, wit, and humor, and even in his old age fully alive to all the religious, literary, and social questions of the day. He was at once a profound student and a most learned and enthusiastic writer, and retained his faculties to the end. He was a man of great powers, of an easy and graceful style, and a master of the English language. He was a man of great learning, and a master of the English language. He was a man of great learning, and a master of the English language.
LANGWORTHY, Isaac Pendleton, D.D. (Iowa College, Grinnell, i0, 1875). Congregationalist; b. at Stonington (now North Stonington), Conn., Jan. 19, 1806; educated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., and at Yale Theological Semiinary 1841; became pastor at Chelsea, Mass., 1841; corresponding secretary of the American Congregational Union, New York, 1868; corresponding secretary of the American Congregational Association, Boston, 1899. He inaugurated the church-building work of the American Congregational LANGEN, Joseph, D.D. (Freiburg, 1861). Old Catholic; b. at Cologne, June 3, 1837; studied at Bonn; was ordained priest, 1859; privat-docent at Bonn, 1861; professor extraordinary, 1864; ordinary professor, 1867; excommunicated for refusing to accept the infallibility dogma, 1872. He is the author of Die deutero-kanonischen Stücke des Buches Esther, Freiburg, 1832; Die letzten Lebensjahrheit Jesu, 1864; Das Judenchristentum in Palästina zu Zeiten Christi, 1846; Einleitung ins N. T., 1868, 2d ed. Bonn, 1873; Das N. T. u. der Uberlieferung, 1876; Johannes von der Welt, 1878; Die Trinitarische Lehre der Lutherischen Kirchen, 1877; Das Vaticansche Dogma in seinen Verhältnissen zum N. T. u. der Uberlieferung, 1879; Johann von Damaskus, Gotta, 1879; Geschichte der römischen Kirche, Bonn, vol. i. 1881, vol. ii. 1885 (to Nicholas I.).

LANCHANS, Eduard, D.D., Swiss Protestant theologian; b. at Guttannen, Berner Oberland, April 20, 1832; studied at Bern, Basel, Berlin, and Montauban; was past and teacher of religious at Münchenbuchsee, from 1876-80, and, at the same time privat-docent of the theological faculty at Bern, where in 1880 he became ordinary professor. He is the author of Handbuch der biblischen Geschichte und Literatur, Bern, 1875-81, 2 vols.

LANGWORTHY, Isaac Pendleton, D.D. (Iowa College, Grinnell, i0, 1875). Congregationalist; b. at Stonington (now North Stonington), Conn., Jan. 19, 1806; educated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., and at Yale Theological Seminary 1841; became pastor at Chelsea, Mass., 1841; corresponding secretary of the American Congregational Union, New York, 1868; corresponding secretary of the American Congregational Association, Boston, 1899. He inaugurated the church-building work of the American Congregational Union. The Congregational House, with its library of over thirty thousand books and more than a hundred thousand pamphlets, is largely the result of his energy. He has published several sermons, many reports and newspaper articles.

LANSDELL, Henry, D.D. (by Archbishop of Canterbury and Queen’s letters patent, 1882);
Chaplain of the United States 1823; Chaplain of First Baptist Church, New York, 1840; professor in Indiana University, 1841; dean of the Faculty of Divinity, 1842; rector of the New York Theological School, 1843; rector of the First Baptist Church, Schenectady, N.Y., 1849; principal of the New York Theological School, 1853; president of the Practical Theological Society, 1857; rector of the New York Theological School, 1858; rector of the First Baptist Church, Schenectady, N.Y., 1864; rector of the First Baptist Church, New York, 1872; was in Europe and the East, 1875; died in Europe, 1880; author of The Threefold Cord (1874), and Methods of Church Temperance Work (1877).

LASHER, George William, D.D. (Madison Uni-viversity, Hamilton, N.Y., 1883). Baptist; b. at Duanesburg, Schenectady County, N.Y., June 24, 1831; graduated at Madison University, Hamilton, N.Y., 1857, and at Hamilton Theological Seminary in the same place, 1858; became pastor of First Baptist Church, Norwalk, Conn., 1859; chaplain of Fifth Connecticut Regiment Volunteeers, 1861; pastor of First Baptist Church, Newburgh, N.Y., 1862, of the Portland-street Church, Haverhill, Mass., 1864; of the First Baptist Church, Trenton, N.J., 1868; secretary of the Baptist Education Society of the State of New York, 1872; was in Europe and the East, 1875; since 1875 has been editor of the Journal and Review, etc. He has published only review articles and occasional sermons, articles in Baptist Quarterly Review, etc.

LATIMER, James Elijah, D.D. (Wesleyan Uni-viversity, Middletown, Conn., 1888). Methodist;
B. at Hartford, Conn., Oct. 7, 1828, d. in Boston,
Mass., Nov. 25, 1884; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1848; became teacher of languages at Newbury (Vt.) Seminary, 1848; teacher of Latin and geology in the Genesee Wesleyan Seminary, Lima, N.Y., 1849; principal of seminary, Northfield, N.H., 1851; principal of Fort Plain Seminary, 1856; of seminary, Bemidji, languages in Elmira (N.Y.) Female College, 1859; pastor of the First Methodist-Episcopal Church, Elmira, 1861-62; of the Asbury Church, Rochester, N.Y., 1863-64; of the First Church, Rochester, 1865-67; in Europe, 1868; pastor at Penn Yan, N.Y., 1869; professor of historic theology in the school of theology of Boston University, Mass., 1870-74; dean and professor of systematic theology in said school, 1874-84. He published only review articles and occasional sermons.

LAWRENCE, William, Episcopalian; b. in Boston, May 30, 1850; graduated from Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., 1871, and from the Episcopal Theological School of Cambridge, Mass., rector in Lawrence, Mass., 1878-83; and since then professor of homiletics and pastoral care in the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass.

LAWSON, Albert Gallatin, D.D. (Madison Univity, Hamilton, N.Y., 1883). Baptist; b. at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., June 5, 1842; studied in New-York Free Academy (now College of the City of New York), 1856-59, and in Madison Univity, Hamilton, N.Y., 1859-60, but did not graduate; became pastor of First Baptist Church, Perth Amboy, N.J., 1862; at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., 1866; of the Greenwood Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1867; secretary of the American Baptist Missionary Union, Boston, Mass., 1884. He was clerk of the Long-Island Baptist Association, 1870-84; was active on the boards of the Brooklyn Young Men’s Christian Association, and of the National Temperance and Publication Society. Besides addresses and sermons, he has written for the National Temperance Society a number of widely circulated temperance leaflets, principal of which are The Threefold Cord (1874), and Methods of Church Temperance Work (1877).
LECHLER, Gotthard Victor, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1840). D.D. (kon., Göttingen, 1858), German Lutheran; b. at Königsbrunn, Württemberg, April 18, 1818; studied at Tübingen, 1839–34; became diaconus at Waiblingen, Württemberg, 1841; dean and city pastor at Knittlingen, Württemberg, 1853; pastor of St. Thomas’s and superintendent at Leipzig, 1858; emeritus, 1888; has been since 1858 professor of theology in the University of Leipzig, and since 1880 Geheimer Kirchenrathe. He is the author of Geschichte des Deutschen Dogmas (Stuttgart, 1841; Das apostolische und das nachapostolische Zeitalter, Mit Rücksicht auf Unterschied und Einheit in Lehre und Leben dargestellt (the Teyler prize essay), Haarlem, 1851 (3d ed., thoroughly revised and re-written, Karlsruhe and Leipzig, 1885); Johannes von Wicif und die Vorgeschichte der Reformation, 1873, 2 vols. (Eng. trans. of vol. i. by Principal Lorimer, John Wicif and his English Precursors, London, 1875, 2 vols.; 1884, 1 vol.); contributor of commentary on Acts in Lange’s Bibelwerk (Bielefeld, 1859, 4th ed. 1881 (Eng. trans. by C. F. Schaeffer, D.D., in the American Lange series, N.Y., 1880); editor of Wicif’s Tractatus de officio pastorali (Leipzig, 1883); Trialogus, and Supplementum trialogii sine de diutinio ecclesiae (Oxford, 1869); and, with Dibelius, of Beiträge zur römischen Kirchengeschichte, Leipzig (part 1, 1882; part 2, 1883; part 3, 1885). LEFFINGWELL, Charles Wesley, D.D. (Knox College, Galena, Ill., 1875), Episcopalian; b. at Ellington, Conn., Dec. 5, 1840; studied at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1857–59; was principal of Galveston Academy, Tex., 1859–60; graduated at Knox College, Galena, 1862; was vice-principal of Poughkeepsie (N.Y.) Military Institute, 1880–85; graduated B.D. at Nashotah Theological Seminary, 1877; was tutor in Nashotah Seminary, and assistant at St. James’s Church, Chicago, 1867–68; founder and rector of St. Mary’s School, Knoxville, Ill., since 1868; president of the standing committee of the diocese of Quincy; editor of the diocese and province, 1875–79; editor of The Living Church, 1879, sqq. He is a High Churchman. He is the compiler of Reading Book of English Classics for Young Pupils, New York, 1879.

LEGG, James, LL.D. (Aberdeen, and Edinburgh, 1884), D.D. (University of New York City, 1842), Congregationalist; b. at Huntly, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, Dec. 20, 1816; educated at the University College, Old Aberdeen; graduated M.A., 1835; studied at Highbury Theol. Seminary, London; was missionary of the London Missionary Society, and in charge of the Anglo-Chinese College, Macao, 1839-43; missionary, and in charge of the theological seminary of the London Missionary Society, and pastor of the Union Church, Hongkong, 1843-73; since 1876 has been professor of the Chinese language and literature at Oxford, where he is also fellow of Corpus Christi College, and received a honorary M.A. 1876. He is the author of Notions of the Chinese concerning God and Spirits, Hongkong, 1852; Confucian Analecta, Doctrines of the Mean, and Great Learning, 1861; Works of Mencius, 1861; The Shu King, or Book of Historical Documents, 1865; The Shi King, or Book of Poetry, 1871; The Chun Chiu, with the Tao Chuan, 1872 (the last five works contain the Chinese text, translation, prolegomena, and notes); The Life and Teachings of Confucius, 1860, 4th ed. 1875; The Life and Works of Mencius, 1875; The Book of Ancient Chinese Poetry in English Verse, 1876; The Religion of China: Confucianism and Thomism, described and compared (London 1880); New Testament, London 1880, New York 1881, Utrecht (Dutch trans.) 1882. In Max Muller's series, Sacred Books of the East, he has published The Sha King (Oxford, 1879), The Yi King (1882), The Li Ki, Book of Ceremonial Usages, 2 vols. (1880); The Travels of the Buddhist Pilgrim Fu-hsi in India (1886); author of other smaller works and sermons.

LEO XIII. His Holiness the Pope, the two hundred and fifty-eighth successor of St. Peter, Vincenzo Gioacchino Pecci, son of Count Ludovico Peci; b. at Carpineto, Anagni, States of the Papacy, March 2, 1810; educated at the Jesuit colleges of Viterbo (1818-24) and Rome (Collegio Romano, 1824-31), and graduated D.D. 1831. He then entered the College of Noble Ecclesiastics, attended lectures on canonical and civil law in the Roman University, and graduated D.C.L. 1837. His college course was very brilliant. In 1837 he was appointed by Gregory XVI. a domestic prelate, and refugary of the septanglia, March 16, 1837; ordained priest, Dec. 23, 1837; was made successively prohynothony apostolic, and apostolic delegate at Benevento (where he put down brigandage), Perugia, and Spoleto; archbishop of Ciomietta, in partihus infidelium, Jan. 17, 1843; papal nuncio to Belgium, 1843-46; archbishop of Perugia, Jan. 19, 1846, and so remained until his elevation to the papacy. On Dec. 19, 1858, he was proclaimed cardinal by Pius IX., and Sept. 16, 1859; created Cardinal Camerlingo of the Holy Roman Church. On the death of Pius IX. Feb. 7, 1878, he acted as pope ad tempore, and superintended all the arrangements for the papal obsequies and conclave. The conclave (Feb. 18-20, 1878) to choose a new pope was attended by sixty-two cardinals. He received nineteen votes on the first ballot, thirty-four on the second, forty-four on the third; his election was then made unanimous, and he accepted the position, and chose the name Leo. On March 3 he was crowned in the Sistine Chapel. He retains the prefectship of the following sacred congregations: the Holy Roman and Universal Inquisition or Holy Office, the Congregation of the Propagation of the Faith, the Congregation of Propaganda Fide, the Congregation of St. Peter's, the Congregation of Propagation of Faith, and the Congregation of Propagation of the Faith. On March 4, 1878, he restored the papal hierarchy in Scotland. He has proved himself to be much more liberally inclined than Pius IX. was in the latter part of his life; and has shown his scholarly tastes by opening the Vatican to scholars, within certain limits, and by recommending the study of Aquinas. The following are the encyclicals he has issued: (1) Inscrutabilis Dei consilium, the inaugural encyclical (April 21, 1878), which shows from history how the Roman Church has been the protectress of all true civilization; (2) Quod Apostolici munera (Dec. 28, 1878), on the dangers which threaten civilization from communism and socialism, and how they should be met; (3) Aeterni Patris (Aug. 4, 1879), on the necessity of a restoration of science upon the foundation of the philosophical principles of Thomas Aquinas; (4) Arcanum divinae sapientiae consilium (Feb. 10, 1880), on the holiness and indis posiness of Christian marriage; (5) Grande munus (Sept. 30, 1880), on the canonization of Cyril and Methodius; (6) Sancta Dei civitatis (Dec. 6, 1880), on Roman-Catholic missions; (7) Due namurum (June 29, 1881), on the small power; (8) Auspicio concedum (Sept. 17, 1882), on the third order of St. Francis; (9) Misererors Dei Filius (May 30, 1883), on the rule of the third Seraphic order; (10) Supremi Apostolatus (Sept. 1, 1883), on the rosary of Mary; (11) Nobilissima (Feb. 8, 1884), on the religious affairs of France; (12) Humanum genus (April 20, 1884), on the Masonic "ssect;" (13) Immortale Dei (Nov. 1, 1885), on the position of the Roman Church towards modern governments. He has also issued two briefs, (1) Cum hac sit (Aug. 4, 1880), on St. Thomas Aquinas, the patron of scholars; (2) Se pernum considerantes (Aug. 13, 1883), on historical studies; and one apostolic letter, Militiae Christi (March 13, 1881), appointing an extraordinary jubilee. The complete Latin text of all these is found in the Papa Acta Leoni XIII. Paris, 1885.

LEWIS, Abram Herbert, D.D. (Alfred University, Alfred Centre, N.Y., 1881; Seventh-day Baptist; b. at Scott, Cortland County, N.Y., Nov. 17, 1836; graduated at Milton College, Milton, Wis., 1861, and at Alfred University, Alfred Centre, N.Y., 1863; took post-graduate lectures at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1868; was pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist Church, Westerly, R.I., 1864-67; in New-York City, 1867-68; since 1869 professor of church history and homiletics in Alfred University; general agent of the American Sabbath Tract Society, 1869-72; pastor at Plainfield, N.J., since 1880. He was president of the New-Jersey State Sunday-school Association, 1881-82. He is the author of Sabbath and Sunday, Alfred Centre, N.Y., 1870; Biblical Teachings concerning the Sabbath and the Sunday, 1884; A Critical History of the Sabbath and the Sunday in the Christian Church, 1886, 2 vols.

LEWIS, Right Rev. Richard, D.D. (by diploma, 1883), lord bishop of Llandaff, Church of England; b. in Wales, in the year 1821; was scholar of Worcester College, Oxford; honorary fourthclass classics, 1842; graduated B.A. 1848, M.A. 1846; was ordained deacon 1844, priest 1846; rector of Lampeter Velfry, 1851-83; prebendary of Caerfarchell in St. David's Cathedral, 1867-75; archdeacon of St. David's; prebendary of My-drim in St. David's Cathedral, and chaplain to the bishop of St. David's, 1875-83; became bishop, 1883.
LIAS, John James, Church of England; b. in London, Nov. 30, 1834; studied at King's College, London, 1850–53, and was scholar of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, where he graduated as B.A. 1857, M.A. 1861; was ordained deacon 1858, priest 1860; was curate of Shaftesbury 1856–60, op. folkstone 1860–67; year after 1868, Berkeley, 1867, and was canon Llandaff, 1868–71; professor of modern literature and lecturers in theology and Hebrew, at St. David's College, Lampeter, 1871–80; select preacher at Cambridge, 1876 and 1880; Haluse lecturer there, 1884; Lady Margaret's preacher, 1884; Whitehall preacher, 1884–86; since 1890 has been vicar of St. Edmund's, Cambridge. He is the author of The Rector and his Friends: Dialogues on the Religious Questions of the Day, London, 1869; The Doctrinal System of St. John considered as Evidence for the Date of his Gospel, 1875; Commentary on First Corinthians (in Cambridge Bible for Schools), Cambridge, 1876; do. on Second Corinthians, 1879; Sermons preached at Lampeter, St. David's College, Lampeter, 1871–80; select preacher at Cambridge, 1876 and 1880; Haluse lecturer there, 1884; Lady Margaret's preacher, 1884; Whitehall preacher, 1884–86; since 1890 has been vicar of St. Edmund's, Cambridge.

LINCOLN, Herman, D.D. (Rochester University, Rochester, N.Y., 1865), Baptist; b. in Boston, Mass., April 14, 1821; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1940, and at New-LIVERMORE, Abiel Abbot, A.M., Unitarian; b. at Wilton, N.H., Oct. 30, 1811; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1833, and at the Harvard Divinity School, 1838; was pastor in Keene, N.H. (1838-50), Cincinnati, O. (1850-56), Yonkers, N.Y. (1856-83); editor of The Christian Inquirer, New York, 1848, 16th ed. 1862; The Marriage Offering, Boston, 1849, 16th ed. 1862; The Mexican War reviewed, 1852; Sermons, 1857; Syllabus on Ethics, 1870; Syllabus on Systematic Theology, 1874; Syllabus on Creeds, 1878; Anti-Tobacco, 1883.

LOBSTEIN, Paul, D.D. (Gottingen, 1884), German Protestant; b. at Epinal, France, Dec. 26, 1813; educated at Strasbourg and at the University of Leipzig, 1837; professor of systematic theology in the University of Berlin, 1852-55; died in Berlin, Aug. 22, 1855; educated at Bonn, Tübingen, and Berlin; became preacher to the German Church in Florence, Italy, 1880; privat-dozent in the University of Berlin, 1885. He is an adherent of the critical school in theology. He is the author of De Augustino Plotinianae in doctrina de sensu et sensatia, Halle, 1880; Floreauer Predigten, 1884; Ernst Moritz Arndt, der deutsche Reichsherold, Gotha, 1884; Haben die späteren neuplatonischen Polemiker gegen das Christentum das Werk des Celsum benutzt? (in Hilgenfeld's Zeitschrift f. w. Theologie, 1884, xxvii. 3).

LONG, Albert Limerick, D.D. (Allegheny College, Meadville, Penn., 1867), Presbyterian; b. at Washington, Penn., Dec. 4, 1882; studied in the Western University of Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh, Penn., and at Allegheny College, Meadville, Penn.; graduated from the latter institution, 1882; studied theology in what is now the theological department of the Boston University, 1887; went to Bulgaria as missionary in 1887; was transferred to Constantinople in 1883, to assist in the translation of the Scriptures into Bulgarian; edited a Bulgarian periodical, and various other publications, and acted as superintendent of the Bulgarian Mission of the Methodist-Episcopal Church until 1879, when he became professor in Robert College, Constantinople. The National Assembly of Bulgaria at their first meeting (1879) accorded him a vote of thanks in recognition of his services to the Bulgarian cause. In 1883 he was elected a corresponding member of the National Literary Society of Bulgaria; in 1884 Prince Alexander of Bulgaria, as a mark of personal appreciation, conferred upon him the Cross of Commander of the Order of St. Alexander. He is a corresponding member of the American Oriental Society, of the Numismatic Society of Philadelphia, and other associations. His contributions to literature have been chiefly in the Bulgarian language; but he has written upon subjects connected with Bulgaria, for English and American journals.

LOOS, (Armin) Friedrich, Ph.D., Lic. Theol. (both Leipzig, 1881 and 1882), Lutherian; b. at Hildesheim, Hannover, Germany, June 19, 1858; studied at Leipzig, 1877-81; became privat-dozent of church history in the University of Leipzig, 1882. He is the author of Zur Chronologie der auf die fränkischen Sagen der hl. Bonifatius bezüglichen Briefe der bonifatianischen Briefsammlung, Leipzig, 1881; Antiquae Brioniis Scotiaeque ecclesiae quales fuerint mores, quae rationes et vivendi, quae controversiae cum Romana ecclesia causarum agit, 1882.

LOOMIS, Augustus Ward, D.D. (Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1873), Presbyterian; b. at Andover, Conn., Sept. 4, 1810; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1841, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1844; was missionary in China, at Macao, Chefoo, and Ningpo, from 1844 to 1850, when his health failed; and missionary among the Creek Indians at Kowetah, 1852-53; stated supply at St. Charles, Mo., 1853-54; at Edgerton, Ill., 1854-59; but since 1850 has been missionary to the Chinese in San Francisco, Calif. In 1873 he is the author of No to say No in Philadelphia, 1858; Scenes in China, 1857; How to die Happy, 1858; Scenes in the Indian Country, 1859; A Child a Hundred Years Old, 1859; Profits
LORD, Willis, D.D. (Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1846), L.L.D. (University of Wooster, Wooster, O., 1874), Presbyterian; b. at Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 15, 1809; graduated at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1833; studied theology in Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1838-34; became pastor of the Congregational Church of New Hartford, Conn., 1834; of the Richmond-street Congregational Church, Providence, R.I., 1835; of the Penn-square Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, Penn., 1840; of the Broadway Presbyterian Church, Cincinnati, O., and professor of biblical literature and pastoral theology in the theological seminary there, 1850; pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1854; professor of biblical and ecclesiastical history, and then of didactic and polemic theology, in the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church in the United States, 1858-60; became pastor of the Congregational Church of New Haven, Conn., 1860; of the Abington Church, 1869-74; professor of New Testament exegesis and literature in Western Theological Seminary, 1874-78; during 1884 and 1885 giving assistance in building up the "Presbyterian College of the North-West" at Del Norte, Colo. He is the author of Men and Scenes before the Flood, Philadelphia, 1816; Christian Theology for the People, New York, 1873, 2d ed. 1875; The Blessed Hope, Chicago, 1874, 2d ed. 1875; The Foreign Missionary Papers, 1882. He was chaplain of his college from 1874 to 1881, when, his health failing, he returned to America, and so remains. He was chaplain of his college from 1874 to 1881. He belongs to the critical school, and is the author of The Psalms, with Introductions and Critical Notes, London, 1875-77 (edited jointly with A. C. Jennings, and issued in parts), 2 vols., 2d ed. 1894-95; Tuzech Odes of Haggai, translated from the Persian, with Sud's Commentary from the Turkish, Cambridge, 1877; The Fragment of Talmud Babli, Pesachin, of the x. cent., with Notes illustrative of the New Testament, London, 1879; The Memorbrum of Nurmburg, in Connection with the Persecution of the Jews in 1349, 1881; The Hebrew Student's Commentary on Zechariah, 1888; The Palestinian Mishnah (from the unique MS. preserved in the University Library, edited for the syndics of the University Press), Cambridge, 1888; Al-Baltiiin-i's Reign of Akbar (translated from the Persian for the Asiatic Society of Bengal), Calcutta, 1884-86; comments on Zechariah and Malachi in Bishop Ellicott's Bible for English Readers, London, 1884.

LOWRIE, John Cameron, D.D. (Miami University, Oxford, O., 1852), Presbyterian; b. at Butler, Penn., Dec. 16, 1808; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1829; was at Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1829-32; at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1832-33; missionary in Upper India 1833-36, when, his health failing, he returned to America, and since 1838 has been connected with the Board of Foreign Missions, until 1850 as assistant secretary, and since as secretary. From 1845 to 1850 he was minister of the Forty-second-street Church, New York; moderator of the O. S. General Assembly at Pittsburg, Penn., 1865. He is the author of Two Years in Upper India, New York, 1850; The Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, 1855, 3d ed. 1868; Missionary Papers, 1882.

LOWRIE, Samuel Thompson, D.D. (Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1874), Presbyterian; b. at Pittsburgh, Penn., Feb. 8, 1855; graduated at Miami University, Oxford, O., 1852; and at Western (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1855; took a fourth year; studied two semesters at Heidelberg, Germany; was pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Alexandria, Penn., December, 1856, to April, 1861; then nine months in Europe; pastor of the Bethany Church, Philadelphia, 1861-64; became pastor of the Abington Church, 1869-74; professor of New Testament exegesis and literature in Western Theological Seminary, 1874-78; from April, 1879, to October, 1885, he was pastor of the Ewing Presbyterian Church, near Trenton, N.J. He assisted Rev. Dr. D. Moore upon Isaiah in the American Lange series (New York, 1878), and Rev. Dr. A. Gosman upon Numbers in the same series (1879); wrote An Explanation of the Epistle to the Hebrews, 1884; and translated Cremer's (of Greifswald) Uber den Zustand nach dem Tode, Göttersloh, 1885, under the title Beyond the Grave, 1885.

LOWRY, Robert, D.D. (Lewisburg University, Lewisburg, Penn., 1875), Baptist; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., March 12, 1826; graduated at the head of his class at Lewisburg University, Lewisburg, Penn., 1854; was pastor at West Chester, Penn., 1854-58; in New-York City, 1858-61; in Brooklyn, 1861-69; at Lewisburg, Penn., and professor of New Testament exegesis and literature in Western Theological Seminary, 1869-73; pastor at Plainfield, N.J., 1876-80; president of the New-Jersey Baptist Sunday-school Union, 1880-84. He participated in the Robert Raikes centennial, London, 1880; travelled in Europe 1880, in Mexico 1885; was poet before the Grand Arch Council of the Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity, 1885. He is a composer and hymn-writer, and has edited Chapel Melodies, N.Y., 1868; Bright Jewels, 1869; Pure Gold, 1871; Hymn Service, 1871; Royal Diadem, 1873; Temple Anthems, 1873; Tid'al Wace, 1874; Brightest and Best, 1875; Welcome Tidings, 1877; Fountain of Song, 1877; Chautauqua Carols, 1878; Gospel Hymn and Tune Book, 1879; Good as Gold, 1880; Our Glad Hosta, 1882; Joyful Lay, 1884; Glad Refrains, 1886; with Christmas and Easter services annually, and numerous single songs; over 3,000,000 of these books have been issued.

LOY, Matthias, Confessional Lutheran; b. in Cumberland County, Penn., March 17, 1829; studied in Columbus (O.) Theological Seminary, and was pastor at Delaware, O., 1849-55; since 1864 has edited Luthersen Standard; since 1865 has been professor of theology in the Evangelical Lutheran Theological Seminary, Columbus, O.; and since 1880 has been president of Capital University. He established the Columbus (O.) Theological Maga... zine in 1881. Since 1860, with the exception of 1878–80, when out of health, he has been yearly president of the Evangelical Lutheran Joint Synod of Ohio and other States. He edited the translation of Luther's House-postils, Columbus, 1864, 3 vols.; translated Life and Deeds of Dr. M. Luther, 1869; The Doctrine of Justification, 1890, 2d ed. 1892; Essay on Ministration and Liturgy, 1870.

LUARD, Henry Richards, D.D. (Cambridge, 1878); Church of England; b. in London, Aug. 17, 1825; studied at Trinity College, Cambridge (1843–47), where he graduated B.A. (fourteenth wrangler) 1847, M.A. 1850, B.D. 1875; became fellow of Trinity College, 1849; was assistant tutor, 1855–65; ordained deacon and priest, 1855; became vicar of St. Mary the Great, Cambridge, 1860; registrar of the University of Cambridge, 1862; honorary canon of Ely, 1884. He is the author of Catalogue of the MSS. in the Cambridge University Library (the theological portion and the index), 1815–17; Life of Richard Porson (in Cambridge Essays), Cambridge, 1857; editor of Lives of Edward the Confessor (in the Master of the Rolls series of Chronicles and Memorials), 1858; Bartholomaei de Cotton Historia Anglica (same series), 1859; Diary of Edward Rut, 1860; Epistola Roberti Grosteste (Rolls series), 1861; Annales Monastici (the same), 1864–69, 5 vols.; The Correspondence of Porson, 1867; List of Documents, etc., concerning the Cambridge University Library, 1870; Matthaei Parisiensis Chronica Majora (Rolls series), 1872–83, 7 vols.; Graduati Cantabrigienses, 1800–72, 1873, 1800–84, 1894; author of On the Relations between England and Rome during the Earlier Period, the Reign of Henry III., 1878; occasional pamphlets, reviews, sermons, etc.

LUCIUS, Paul Ernst, Lic. Theol. (Strassburg, 1879), German Protestant; b. at Erfolmsheim, Elsas, Oct. 16, 1832; studied theology at Strassburg, 1871–73; afterwards at Zürich (1874), Paris (1875), Jesus (1877), Berlin (1878); became assistant at Sessenheim, 1878; assistant pastor in Strassburg, 1879; privat-docent there, 1880; professor extraordinary, 1883. He is the author of Die Therapeuten and ihre Stellung in der Geschichte der Askese, Eine kritische Untersuchung der Schrift "De vita contemplativa," Strassburg, 1879; Der Kommentar zu Ammonium Aelianum, 1881; Die Quellen der älteren Geschichte des aegyptischen Mönchthums (in Zeitschrift für Kpog., 1884); Die Kräftigung des Missionssinnes in der Gemeinde, 1885.

LUCKOCK, Herbert Mortimer, D.D. (Cambridge, 1879), Church of England; b. at Great Barr, Staffordshire, July 11, 1838; educated at Jesus College, Cambridge, graduated as B.A. (second-class classical tripos, and first-class theological tripos) 1858, M.A. 1862; was fellow of Jesus College, Crosse divinity scholar, Tythwitt Hebrew scholar; took Carus and Scholefield prizes 1890, member's prize 1890–91–92; was ordained deacon 1860, priest 1862; chaplain to Lord Carryington, examining chaplain to bishop of Ely since 1873; honorary canon of Ely, 1874–75; canon of Ely since 1875; principal of Ely Theological College since 1876; select preacher in the University of Cambridge, 1865, 1874–75, 1883; vicar of All Saints', Cambridge, 1862–98, and again 1898–99; rector of Harlaxton, 1899–1901; of Glen Innes, 1901–10; of Newmarket, 1910–31; of Oxford University, became repetent there, 1844; privat-docent, 1847; professor extraordinary of theology, 1851. He is the author of De epistola, quam Paulus ad Ephesios dedisse perhibetur, authentica, primis lectoribus, argumentum summum ac consilium (Privatschrift), Göttingen, 1842; Pauli ad Philippenses epistola, Commentarius, Göttingen, 1843; Auct. F. klauskii, Göttingen, 1847; Kristus, die Seele. Ein Handbuch über die Briehe an die Thessalonicher (Abtheil X. des Meyer'schen Kommentars), 1850, 4th

LUDLOW, James Meeker, D.D. (Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1872), Presbyterian; b. at Elizabeth, N.J., March 15, 1841; graduated at College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1861, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1864; was pastor First Church, Albany, N.Y., 1864–68; Collegiate Reformed Dutch Church, New-York City, 1868–77; Westminster Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1877–80; East Orange since 1886. He is the inventor and compiler of the Concentric Chart of History, New York, 1885; author of The Captain of the Janizaries, 1886; and contributor to periodicals, secular and religious.

LUEDEMANN, Hermann, Ph.D., Lic. Theol. (both Kiel, 1870 and 1871), D.D. (Heidelberg, 1883), German Protestant theologian; b. (son of the succeeding) at Kiel, Prussia, Sept. 15, 1842; studied at Kiel, Heidelberg, and Berlin, 1861–67; became privat-docent at Kiel, 1871, and preacher in a private school, 1872; professor extraordinary of the New Testament at Kiel, 1875; ordinary professor of church history at Bern, Switzerland, 1884. He is a critical and liberal theologian, in sympathy with the Jena school. He is the author of Die Anthropologie des Apostel Paulus and ihre Stellung innerhalb seiner Heilskunde, Nach den vier Hauptbriefen darge stellt, Kiel, 1872; Zur Erkldrung des Papiasfragments Euseb. H. e. iii. 39 (in Jahrb. f. prot. Theol., 1879); Die "Eidbrichtigkeit" unserer neukirchlichen (freiinnagen) Geistlichen, Kiel, 1881, 5d ed. 1884; Die neue Entwickelung der protestantischen Theologie, Bremen, 1894; from 1873 to 1883 he contributed to the Literarisches Centralblatt, Jenaer Literaturzeitung, Protestantische Kirchenzeitung, and political journals; since 1881 he has contributed the section on church history down to the Council of Nicea, in Fünfner's Theologischer Jahresbericht.

LUEDEMANN, Karl, D.D., German Protestant theologian; b. at Kiel, July 6, 1805; studied there, 1823–29; became preacher in St. Nicholas' Church there, 1831; convent and garrison preacher, and privat-docent, 1834; professor extraordinary, 1839; ordinary professor, 1841. In 1855 he was made Kirchenrath. He is the author of Die stützlichen Motive des Christenthums, Kiel, 1841; Uber das Wesen des protestantischen Cultus, 1846; Das Wort des Lebens (sermons), 1883; Erinnerung an Claus Harns und seine Zeit, 1878.

LUEDEMANN, Georg Conrad Gottlieb, Lic. Theol. (Göttingen, 1847), D.D. (hom., Göttingen, 1880), German Protestant theologian; b. at Göttingen, April 17, 1812; educated at its university, became repetent there, 1844; privat-docent, 1847; professor extraordinary of theology, 1851. He is the author of De epistola, quam Paulus ad Ephesos dedisse perhibetur, authentica, primis lectoribus, argumentum summum ac consilium (Privatschrift), Göttingen, 1842; Pauli ad Philippenses epistola, Commentarius, Göttingen, 1843; Auct. f. klauskii, Göttingen, 1847; Kristus, die Seele. Ein Handbuch über die Briehe an die Thessalonicher (Abtheil X. des Meyer'schen Kommentars), 1850, 4th LUTHARDT, Christoph Ernst, Lic. Theol., Ph.D., D.D. (all Erlangen, 1852, 1854, and 1856 respectively), Lutheran; b. at Maroldsweisach, Bavaria, March 22, 1823; studied at Erlangen and Berlin, 1841–45; was ordained at Münster, 1846; from 1846 till 1851 was teacher in the Munich gymnasium; until 1854 rector of Erlangen, and privat-docent 1853–54; for the next two years professor extraordinary at Marburg; since 1856 has been professor of systematic theology and New Testament exegesis at Leipzig; and since 1865 a consistorial councillor. In theology he is orthodox, and in general belongs to the Erlangen school. He is renowned as a university lecturer and pulpit orator. Since 1868 he has edited the Allgemeine evangel. Kirchenzeitung, and since 1874 has been its editor and proprietor. His numerous contributions to theological periodicals and his numerous publications, which include nine volumes of collected sermons (1861–86), and lectures and articles on many topics, may be mentioned, De compositione evangelii Joannei, Nuremberg, 1852; Das johanneische Evangelium nach seiner Eigen- tümlichkeit geschildert u. erklärt, 1852–53, 2 vols., 3d ed. 1873–74 (Eng. trans., The J ohannean Gospel described and explained according to its Peculiar Character, Edinburgh, 1881, 3 vols.); De prima Joannis epistolae compositione, Leipzig, 1860; De compositione evangelii Matthiae, 1861; Die Offenbarung Johannis übersetzt u. kurz erklärt für die Gemeinde, 1861; Die Lehre von den letzen Ding en in Abhandlungen und Schriften auslegungen darge stellt, 1861, 3d ed. 1885; Die Lehre vom freien Willen u. sein Verhältniss zur Gnade, 1863; Apologetische Vorträge über die Grundwahrheiten des Christenthums, 1864, 10th ed. 1883 (Eng. trans., The Fundamental Truths of Christianity, Edin burg, 1865, 5th ed. 1873); Kompendium der Dogmatik, 1865, 7th ed. 1886; Die Ethik Luthers in ihren Grundzügen, 1867, 2d ed. 1875; Apologetische Vorträge über die Heilswahr heiten des Christenthums, 1867, 5th ed. 1893 (Eng. trans., The Saving Truths of Christianity, Edinburgh, 1868); Die Ethik d. Aristoteles in ihr. Unterschied von der Moral des Christenthums, 1869–76, 3 parts; Vorträge über die Moral des Christenthums, 1869, 3d ed. 1882 (Eng. trans., The Moral Truths of Christianity, Edinburgh, 1878); Der johannitische Ursprung des vierten Evangeliums, 1874 (Eng. trans., with enlarged literature, by C. R. Gregory, St. John the Author of the Fourth Gospel, Edinburgh, 1875, 2d ed. 1885); Gesammelte Vorträge verschiedener Inhalts, 1876; Die modernen Weltanschauungen u. ihre praktischen Konsequenzen, 1880, 2d ed. same year; Licht und Leben (sermons), 1885.

LYMAN, Right Rev. Theodore Benedict, S.T.D. (College of St. James, Washington County, Md., 1856), Episcopal, bishop of North Carolina; b. at Brighton, near Boston, Mass., Nov. 27, 1815; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1837, and at the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1840; became rector of St. John's Parish, Hagerstown, Md., 1840; of Trinity Church, Pittsburgh, Penn., 1850; was in Europe 1860–70, during which time he was chaplain to the American embassy (1865), organized what is now St. Paul's Church, Rome, Italy (1866), and continued in charge four years; became rector of Trinity Church, San Francisco, Cal., 1870; assistant bishop of North Carolina, 1873; bishop, on the death of Bishop Atkinson, 1881. He declined the deanery of the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, to which office he was elected during his residence in Europe; appointed to the care and jurisdiction of the American Episcopal Churches, which have been established on the Continent of Europe, 1886. He is the author of several ser mons and addresses.

LYON, David Gordon, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1882), Baptist; b. at Benton, Ala., May 24, 1852; graduated at Howard College, Marion, Ala., 1875; studied at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., 1876–79, and at Leipzig, 1879–82, and in the latter year became Hollis professor of divinity in Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass. His specialty is Assyrian. He has issued Keilschrift -texte Sargon's Königs von Assyrien (722–705 u. Chr.) nach den Originalien neu herausgegeben, umschrieben, übersetzt und erklärt, Leipzig, 1883.
M.

MABON, William Augustus Van Vranken, D.D.

McALL, Robert Whitaker, F.L.S. (Congregationalist), b. at Macclesfield, Cheshire, Eng., Dec. 17, 1821; studied architecture under Mr. Walters, architect of the Free Trade Hall, Manchester, and Sir Gilbert Scott, R.A.; afterwards turned his attention to theology, and studied in the Lancashire Independent (Congregational and theological) College, Manchester; graduated B.A. at Leiden University, 1847; and for twenty-four years was a Congregational pastor in England, during which time he ministered to four churches. In 1871, while pastor at Hadleigh, Suffolk, he and his wife made a brief holiday visit to Paris, and were so struck with the spiritual destitution of the working classes there, that they resolved to devote themselves to the effort to evangelize them. Accordingly he left his charge, much to its regret, and single-handed they began their mission. Their success has been beyond their hopes. In 1885 there were a hundred stations in Paris and throughout France. The money required to carry on their operations comes from France, British, Home, and America. See article McAll Mission, in Encyclopaedia.

MacARTHUR, Robert Stuart, D.D. (University of Rochester, N.Y., 1880), Baptist; b. at Dalesville, Argenteuil County, Province of Quebec, Can., Aug. 91, 1841; graduated from the University of Rochester, N.Y., 1867, and from the Rochester Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1870; and since June, 1870, has been pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, New York City, which in 1883 erected a new church at an expense of nearly five hundred thousand dollars. He is the regular weekly New-York correspondent of the Chicago Standard, one of the editors of The Baptist Quarterly Review (since 1885), and with Rev. Dr. C. C. Robinson of the Calvary Selection of Hymns and Spiritual Songs, New York, 1879.

McAULEY, Jeremiah (better known as "Jerry McAuley"), layman; b. in Ireland, in the year 1839; d. in New-York City, Sept. 15, 1854. His father was a counterfeiter, who fled the country to escape arrest while his son was an infant. Jerry was brought up by his grandmother, who was a devout Romanist; but he never received any schooling. At the age of thirteen he came to New-York City, and lived with a married sister for a time. Soon he became as great a rogue as one of his years could be. On leaving his sister he boarded in Water Street, and supported himself by stealing from vessels lying in the river. The money procured by selling the articles stolen was spent in all sorts of wickedness. He became a prize-fighter, and a terror and a nuisance in the Fourth Ward. When nineteen years old he was arrested for highway robbery, an offence he had not committed. But he had no one to defend him; and so bad was his character, that he was condemned, in January, 1857, on circumstantial evidence, to fifteen years imprisonment at Sing-Sing. On his way thither he determined to be obedient to prison rules, do the best he could under the circumstances, and trust that somebody would be raised up to help him. He was set at carpet-weaving, and for two years had the approbation of his keepers. For the next three years he was, in consequence of illness, uneasy and intractable, and hence often severely punished, without being anywise improved. On one Sunday, when he had been some five years in prison, Orville Gardner (known as "Awful" Gardner), a former confederate in sin, addressed the convicts, and made a profound impression upon Jerry. On returning to his cell he took down the Bible, with which each cell is supplied, to find a verse which Gardner had quoted. He soon became a constant Bible-reader; and so, although he never found the verse he sought, he stored his mind with the Word of God. A great desire to be saved was awakened within him. But weeks of anxiety and struggle passed before the "words were distinctly spoken to his soul" which assured him that he was forgiven. Then the Lord began to use him in the prison among his fellow-convicts, and several were led to Christ by him. On March 8, 1864, he was pardoned. Like many another one, he had no one to help him to an honest living on leaving prison, so fell back into his former evil courses. He went into the bounty business, and made a great deal of money, which he spent freely. He became a sporting man, and often attended the races. After the war he dealt in stolen and smuggled goods, which he paid for in counterfeit money, until, being found out, no one would steal for him. He then became once more a river thief. But he could not shake off the religious impressions received in prison, although he tried to deaden conscience by drink. This wretched life continued until 1872, when he found Christian friends who manfully stood by him, notwithstanding his frequent falls, until he was confirmed in the Christian life. In October, 1872, he opened his "Helping Hand for Men," at 316 Water Street, as a resort for the forlorn way-farers, sailors, and others who frequented the locality. From the start the work was remarkably blessed. He manifested extraordinary aptitude for dealing with the degraded. His kindly ways drew them to him; while his simple-minded, whole-hearted piety, and his burning zeal, deeply impressed them. The result was, that many were converted. In 1876 the old building was replaced.
McCABE.

135

McCABE.

by a far better one, and the mission incorporated under the title of "The McAuley Water-street Mission." In 1859-62, feeling that his work in Water Street was done, he began a similar work at 104 West Thirty-second Street, called "The Cremorne Mission," from its contiguity to the notorious Cremorne Garden. In June, 1883, he began the publication of Jerry McAuley's Newspaper, which is still issued every other Thursday. Some time before his death, his health began to fail, but he continued his work. His end came suddenly. On Wednesday, Sept. 17, 1884, he had a hemorrhage of the lungs, and on Thursday afternoon at four o'clock another, and in a few minutes he was dead. On Sunday, Sept. 21, at half-past two P.M., he was buried from the Broadway Tabernacle, Thirty-fourth Street and Sixth Avenue. The spacious church was crowded in every part long before the services began, and a great multitude stood all around the building. For nearly two hours after the conclusion of the services, the procession of mourners filed past the coffin. In the throng were many of the very classes among whom and for whom his life had been spent,—the criminal, the vicious, the immoral.

By competent testimony and common acknowledgment Jerry McAuley was one of the most useful, remarkable, and indeed wonderful men in the city of New York. Himself for many years a criminal and an outcast, he knew from bitter experience that the way of transgressors is hard. Himself the subject of the Saviour's infinite love, he knew that God had mercy even for the vilest. When, therefore, he spoke to those who had fallen, and where he never knew, nor the pallium of the archbishop, nor the scarlet robes of the cardinal. After spending upwards of half a century in the exercise of the ministry, he goes down to his honored grave with not carried on without many hindrances and difficulties; but he triumphed over all. Liberal and wealthy friends supported his enterprises, and in his wife he found a devoted and efficient helper. See Jerry McAuley, His Life and Work, ed. Rev. B. M. Offord, New York, 1885.

McCABE, Charles Cardwell, D.D. (Central Tennessee College, Nashville, Tenn., 1873), Methodist; b. at Athens, Ohio, Oct. 11, 1836; studied at Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio, but did not graduate; was pastor in the Ohio Conference, 1860-61; chaplain of the 122d Ohio Infantry, 1862-63; was taken prisoner at the battle of Winchester, Va., and was in Libby Prison, Richmond, Va., for four months; on his release rejoined his regiment; agent of the Christian Commission, 1864-65; Centenary agent in Ohio, 1866-67; assistant secretary of the Church Extension Society, 1868-69; missionary secretary since 1884. McCLELLAN, John Brown, 1860, priest 1861; was vicar of Böttigham, diocese of Ely, 1861-79; rural dean of first division of Camp's deanery, 1871-77; since 1860 he has been principal of the Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester. He is a moderate High Churchman, in favor of disestablishment and of freedom of the Church. He is the author of Fourth Nicene Canon, and Election and Consecration of Bishops, London, 1870; A New Translation of the Nicene Creed and the apostolic Creeds, from a critically revised Greek Text, A Contribution to Christian Evidence, vol. i. (the Four Gospels, with notes and dissertations, and a new chronological harmony) 1875.

McCLOSKEY, His Eminence John, Cardinal, D.D., Roman Catholic; b. in Brooklyn, N.Y., March 10, 1810; d. in New York, Oct. 10, 1885. He was graduated with the highest honors at St. Mary's College, Emmittsburg, Md., 1828; ordained priest at New York, Jan. 9, 1834; studied for two years at the Collegium Romanum in Rome, and a year in France. Returning to America in 1837, he was appointed pastor of St. Joseph's Church, New York City. On March 10, 1844, he was consecrated bishop of Axieres in partibus, and co-adjutor to the bishop (later archbishop) of New York (John Hughes); translated to the new see of Albany, May 21, 1847; after the death of Archbishop Hughes (Jan. 8, 1864) he was appointed his successor, May 21, 1864. He attended the Vatican Council (1869-70), and was then among a committee on discipline. He was by Pius IX. created cardinal priest of the Most Holy Roman Church, March 15, 1875, under the title of "Sancta Maria sopra Minerva." He was the first American cardinal. He received the red hat from Leo XIII. in the consistory held in Rome on March 28, 1878. He enjoyed the respect of Protestant and Roman Catholic alike; and did much for his Church, as by buildings (e.g., the Fifth-avenue Cathedral) and new institutions, and by the introduction of the Capuchins, Franciscans, Sisters and Little Sisters of the Poor, who had previously no houses in his diocese. Under him the number of churches in New York increased from seventy to a hundred and seventy, and the number of clergy from a hundred and fifty to four hundred. Archbishop Gibbons, in his funeral oration, said of him: "He [the cardinal] has left you . . . the legacy of a pure and unsullied life, as priest, bishop, archbishop, and cardinal. He never tarnished the surplice of the priest, nor the rochet of the bishop, nor the pallium of the archbishop, nor the scarlet robes of the cardinal. After spending upwards of half a century in the exercise of the ministry, he goes down to his honored grave without a stain upon his moral character."

McCORK, Henry Christopher, D.D. (Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1880), Presbyterian; b. at New Lisbon, Ohio, July 3, 1837; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1859; studied at the Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1859-61; was first lieutenant Company F, Forty-first Regiment Illinois Volunteers, 1861; chaplain of the regiment, 1861-62; acting pastor, Clinton, Ill., 1861-62-63; home missionary, St. Louis, Mo., 1863-70; since 1870 has been pastor of the Tabernacle Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia. He is vice-president of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia (in whose proceedings he has published numerous papers upon the habits and industry of American ants and spiders), and vice-director of the American Entomological Society. He is the author of Object and Outline Teaching, St. Louis, 1871; The Last Year of Christ's Ministry, Philadelphia, 1871; The Last Days of Jesus, 1872; The Tercentenary Book.
McFERRIN.  136

McFERRIN, John Barry, D.D. (LaGrange College, Ala., and Randolph Macon College, Ashland, Va., both in 1851), Methodist (Southern Church); b. in Rutherford County, Tenn., June 15, 1807; was pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Columbus, O., 1863–67; of the First Presbyterian Church, Toledo, O., 1868–81; chancellor of Western University, Pittsburgh, Penn., 1881–84; since 1884 has been professor of philosophy, and also vice-chancellor of the University of the City of New York. He was deputy to the Free Church Assembly of Scotland, and to the Irish Presbyterian General Assembly, 1867; pro-poser of the observance of 1872 as tercentenary year of Presbyterianism, 1870 (see Minutes of General Assembly, 1870, p. 29, 1871, p. 588); delivered historical oration at re-union of the Scotch-irish race in Belfast, Ireland, July 4, 1884. He is the editor, translator, and author of Leaders of the Church Universal, 1879 (published by Presbyterian Board, Philadelphia, by the official publication boards of ten other denominations, and by T. & T. Clark, Edinburgh), from the German of Piper's Evangelische Kalender, Berlin, 1875.

MCCURDY, James Frederick, Ph.D. (College of New Jersey—Princeton, N.J., 1878), Canadian Presbyterian; b. at Chatham, New Brunswick, Can., Feb. 18, 1847; graduated at University of New Brunswick, Fredericton, N.B., 1866, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1871; in the latter was instructor in Hebrew and cognate languages, 1873–82; studied in Germany, 1882–84; lectured on the Stone foundation, Princeton, N.J., 1885–86; became professor of Oriental languages in University College, Toronto, Can., 1886. Besides review of Gesenius' Handwörterbuch, 9th ed. (Am. Journ. Philol., July, 1883); a paper on The Semitic Perfect in Assyrian, in Transactions of the Sixth Congress of Orientalists, Leyden, September, 1883; Agyro-Semitic Speech, a Study in Linguistic Archæology, Andover and London, 1881; The Assyrian and Babylonian Inscriptions, with Special Reference to the Old Testament, N.Y., 1888; he has also written the exposition of Haggai (N.Y., 1876), and translated, edited, and enlarged Moll's exposition of Ps. Lxix.—cxl. (1879), and Schmoller's of Hosea (1876); all three in the American Lange series.

MACDUFF, John Ross, D.D. (University of City of New York, 1857; Glasgow, 1860), Church of Scotland; b. at Bonhard, Perthshire, May 23, 1818; studied at the University of Edinburgh, 1835–42; was minister of parishes of Kettins, Forfarshire, 1843–49, and of St. Madoes, 1849–55; of Sandyford church and parish, Glasgow, 1855–70. He now resides in England. He is the author of Morning and Night Watches, London, 1852, and numerous other books, all of which have passed through several, many through numerous, editions, been promptly reprinted in America, and widely circulated.

McFERRIN, John Berry, D.D. (LaGrange College, Ala., and Randolph Macon College, Ashland, Va., both in 1851), Methodist (Southern Church); b. in Randolph County, N.C.; entered Tennessee Conference, 1855; edited Christian Advocate, Nashville, Tenn., 1840–48; was book-agent of the Southern Church, 1858-66; secretary of Board of Missions, 1866-78; since 1878 has been book-agent at Nashville, Tenn. He is the author of Methodism in Tennessee, Nashville, 1870-72, 3 vols. (several later editions).

McGARVEY, John William, Christian; b. at Hopkinsville, Ky., March 1, 1829; graduated at Bethany (W. Va.) College; preached at Dover, Mo., and Lexington, Ky. (1852-55), and since 1865 has been professor of sacred history and evidences in the College of the Bible, Kentucky University, Lexington, Ky. He is the author of a commentary on Acts (Cincinnati, O., 1863), and on Matthew and Mark (1875); Land of the Bible (visited 1876), Philadelphia, 1881 (16th thousand, 1882); Evidences of Christianity, Cincinnati, 1886.

McGILL, Alexander Taggart, D.D. (Marshall College, Lancaster, Penn., 1812), LL.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1868), Presbyteriant; b. at Canonsburg, Penn., Feb. 24, 1807; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1826; was admitted to the bar in Georgia, and elected by the Legislature of that State, to transmit, inter-State lines, and divide into sections the Cherokee lands under her chartered limits. In 1831 he turned to theology, took the full course of four years in the theological seminary of the Associate (now United) Presbyterian Church, at Canonsburg; was ordained at Carlisle, Penn., in 1835, and until 1838 ministered to Associate Presbyterian churches in Cumberland, Perry, and York counties. In 1838 he entered the Old-School branch of the Presbyterian Church, and until 1842 was pastor of the Second Church, Carlisle, Penn. From 1842 till 1864 (except 1852-53, when professor in Columbia Theological Seminary, S.C.), he was professor in the Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., when he was transferred by the General Assembly to Princeton, and remained as professor of ecclesiastical, homiletic, and pastoral theology, until in 1883 he resigned from active service, and became professor emeritus of theology, and is believed, was his, articles, and occasional sermons and addresses.

McLVainE, Joshua Hall, S.T.D. (University of Rochester, N.Y., 1854), Presbyterian; b. at Lewes, Del., March 4, 1815; graduated at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, N.J., 1837, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1840; became pastor at Little Falls, N.Y., 1841; of Westminster Church, Utica, N.Y., 1843; of First Church, Rochester, N.Y., 1848; professor of belles-lettres in the College of New Jersey, Princeton, N.J., 1880; pastor of the High-street Church, Newark, N.J., 1879. He introduced the name "Westminster" for churches, in founding the Westminster Church, Utica, 1843, which also, it is believed, was the first Presbyterian church in the United States with a rotary eldership. He was the first in America, it is believed, to explain (at the meeting of the Association for the Advancement of Science, in Montreal, 1850) the method by which Sir Henry Rawlinson deciphered the Persian cuneiform inscriptions. He was long a fellow of the American Oriental Society. In 1859 he delivered a course of six lectures on comparative philology in relation to ethnology (including an analysis of the structure of the Sanscrit language, and the process of deciphering the cuneiform inscriptions), before the Smithsonian Institution; and in 1869 a similar course on social science in Philadelphia, under the auspices of the University of Pennsylvania, in which institution he was subsequently chosen professor of that science. He is the author of The Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil, New York, 1845; Elocution, the Sources and Elements of its Power, New York, 1870, 2d ed. 1874; The Wisdom of Holy Scripture, with reference to Sceptical Objections, 1866; Two Wisdom of the Apocalypse, 1886; and articles in reviews on religious and scientific subjects, etc.

MACKARNES, John Fielder, D.D. (Oxford, 1870), lord bishop of Oxford, Church of England; b. in London, Dec. 3, 1820; was educated at Merton College, Oxford, of which he was postmaster; graduated B.A. (second-class classics) 1844, M.A. (Exeter College) 1847; was ordained deacon 1844, priest 1845; fellow of Exeter College, 1844-46; vicar of Tardebigge, Worcestershire, 1845-55; honorary canon of Worcester Cathedral, 1854; rector of Horniton, 1855-69; prebendary of Exeter, 1856-69; consecrated bishop, 1870. He has been book-agent at Nashville, Tenn. He is the author of a commentary on Acts (Cincinnati, O., 1863), and on Matthew and Mark (1875); Lands of the Bible (visited 1876), Philadelphia, 1881 (16th thousand, 1882); Evidences of Christianity, Cincinnati, 1886.

McKennaE, Alexander, D.D. (Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., 1879), Congregationalist; b. at New Bedford, Mass., Dec. 13, 1830; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1853, and at Andover (Massachusetts Theological Seminary, 1855); pastor of First Church, Cambridge, Mass.; since 1888, preacher to Harvard University. In 1882 he was lecturer on theology of the New Testament, in Andover Theological Seminary (of which he became trustee in 1876) and in Harvard Divinity School. He has published Hist. First Church, Cambridge, Boston, 1873; Cambridge Sermons, 1883.

McKniGHT, Harvey Washington, D.D. (Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill., 1888), Lutheran (General Synod); b. at McKnightstown, Adams County, Penn., April 5, 1840; graduated at Pennsylvania College and Theological School. He has published Hist. First Church, Cambridge, Boston, 1873; Cambridge Sermons, 1883.

McLARQAN, Right Rev. William Dalrymple, D.D. (jure dignitatis, Cambridge, 1875), lord bishop of Lichfield, Church of England; b. at Edinburgh in the year 1826; educated at St. Peter's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (junior optime) 1856, M.A. 1859; was ordained deacon 1856, priest 1857; curate of St. Saviour, Paddington, London, 1856-58; of St. Stephen, Marylebone, London, 1858-60; secretary of the London Diocesan Church Building Society, 1860-65; curate in charge of Enfield, 1865-69; rector of Newton, 1869-75; vicar of Kensington, 1875-78; honorary chaplain in ordinary to the Queen, 1877-78; prebendary of St. Paul's, Easton, 1872; of the First English, Cincinnati, O., 1880; president of Pennsylvania College, 1884. He was second lieutenant Company B, 138th Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, Aug. 16 to Dec. 17, 1862; adjutant 26th Regiment during Lee's invasion of Pennsylvania; captain Company D, 210th Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, Sept. 24, 1864, to June 9, 1865. He delivered an address before the alumni of the Gettysburg Theological Seminary, June, 1878, and an historical address at the semi-centennial of Pennsylvania College, June, 1882. of Reculverland in St. Paul's Cathedral, 1878; consecrated bishop, 1878. He edited, with Dr. Archibald Weir, The Church and the Age, Essays on the Principles and Present Position of the Anglican Church, London, 1870; and has published sermons, etc.

Mclaren, Alexander, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1875), Baptist; b. at Glasgow, Feb. 11, 1826; educated at St. Peter's College, Westminister, and graduate in 1847; ordained deacon 1856, and ordained priest 1857; was assistant minister of Curzon Chapel, Mayfair, and of St. Mark, Notting-hill, London; assistant preacher at the Temple Church, 1865-70; head master of King's College School, 1868-80; Boyle lecturer, 1879-80; select preacher at Cambridge, 1868 and 1880; editor of Good Words, at monthly intervals, 1883-92; and was minister of Portland Chapel, Southampton, from 1846 to 1859; since which time he has been minister of Union Chapel, Manchester. He was chairman of the Baptist Union of England in 1875. He has published sermons preached in Manchester, (1st series 1864, 10th ed. 1883; 2d series 1869, 7th ed. 1883; 3d series 1873, 6th ed. 1883); A Spring Holiday in Italy, 1865, 2d ed. 1866; Week-day Evening Addresses, 1877, 5th ed. 1885; Life of David as reflected in the Psalms, 1880; 6th ed. 1885; Secret of Power, and other Sermons, 1882, 2d ed. 1883; A Year's Ministry, 1884, 2 vols.; and Essays on Theological Subjects, 2 vols. ed. 1885.

McLaren, Right Rev. William Edward, S.T.D. (Racine College, Racine, Wis., 1875). D.C.L. (University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1884); Episcopal, bishop of Chicago; b. at Geneva, N.Y., Dec. 13, 1831; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1851; was an editor until 1857, when he entered the Western (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn.; graduated there 1859, and became a Presbyterian minister; entered the Protestant Episcopal ministry, 1872; and became rector of Trinity Church, Cleveland, O., 1872; bishop of Illinois, 1875; diocese divided into that of Illinois, Quincy, and Springfield, he retaining that of Illinois, which included Chicago and the northern part of the State, 1877; in 1883 the name of this diocese was changed to that of Chicago. He is the author of Catholic Dogma the Antidote of Doubt, 1883; and numerous sermons, addresses, articles, etc.

McLean, Alexander, D.D. (Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1874), Presbyterian; b. in Glasgow, Scotland, Oct. 1, 1833; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1855, and at Union Theological (Presbyterian) Seminary, New-York City, 1859; tutor at Jefferson College, Fairfield, Conn., 1857; of the Calvary Presbyterian Church, Buffalo, N.Y., 1860; and being secretary of the American Bible Society, 1874.

MacLear, George Frederick, D.D. (Cambridge, 1872), Church of England; b. at Bedford, Eng., Feb. 5, 1833; was scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (second-class classical tripos, first-class theological tripos) 1855; D.M. 1860; B.D. 1867; won the Carus (1854 and 1855), Burney University (1857), Hulsean (1857), Maitland University (1858 and 1860), and Norrisian (1861) prizes (see below); was ordained deacon 1856, priest 1857; was assistant minister of Curzon Chapel, Mayfair, and of St. Mark, Notting-hill, London; assistant preacher at the Temple Church, 1865-70; head master of King's College School, 1868-80; Boyle lecturer, 1879-80; select preacher at Cambridge, 1868 and 1880; examiner for the Lightfoot scholarships there, 1870-77; select preacher at Oxford, 1884-45; and since 1890 he has been warden of St. Augustine's College, Canterbury. He is the author of the following prize essays: Incentives to Virtue, Natural and Revealed (Burney), 1855; The Cross and the Nations (Hulsean), 1857; The Christian Statesman and our Indian Empire (Maitland), 1858, 2d ed. 1859; Missions of the Middle Ages (Maitland), 1861; The Witness of the Eucharist (Norrisian), 1863; also of Class Books of Old and New Testament History, 1861, 2 vols. 15th ed. 1890; Class Book of the Catechism, 1868, 6th ed. 1878; Class Book of the Confirmation, 1869, many editions; Ages of Medieval Europe, 1869, 2d ed. 1881; The Gospel according to St. Mark (English), 1877; The Book of Joshua, 1878 (both in Cambridge Bible for Schools series); The Greek Gospel of St. Mark, 1878 (in Cambridge Greek Testament for Schools); The Conversion of the Celts, the English, the Northmen, and the Slavs, 1878-79 (S. P. C. K.), 4 vols.; The Evidence of the Holy Eucharist (Boyle Lectures), 1883; articles in Smith and Cheetham's Dictionary of Christian Antiquities, and in Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography, The Bible Educator, and Encyclopaedia Britannica.

MacLeod, Donald, D.D. (Glasgow, 1876), Church of Scotland; b. in the manse of Campsie, March 18, 1831; the son of the late Norman MacLeod, sen. (dean of the Chapel Royal, Celtic scholar, and writer of Celtic literature), and the brother of Norman MacLeod, D.D., late of the Parish, Glasgow (dean of Chapel Royal, dean of the Thistle, etc.) educated at the University of Glasgow; and was minister of Lanark, Berwickshire, 1868-82; Linlithgow, 1882-86; and since 1869 of the parish of the Park, Glasgow. He is one of her Majesty's chaplains for Scotland, and since 1873 has edited Good Words, a monthly magazine. He is the author of Memoir of Norman Macleod, London, 1872, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1876, 1 vol.; The Sunday Home Service, 1885.

MacMillan, Hugh, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1879), L.L.D. (St. Andrew's, 1871), F.R.S.E. (1871), Free Church of Scotland; b. at Aberfeldy, Perthshire, Sept. 17, 1833; educated at Edinburgh University; was minister of Kirkmichael, Perthshire, 1859-64; of Free St. Peter's, Glasgow, 1864-78; and since 1878 has been minister of Free West Church, Greenock. He is the author of numerous contributions to periodicals, and the author of The Bible Teachings in Nature, 1866, 24th ed. 1886 (translated into Danish, Swedish, German, and other Continental languages); Holidays in High Lands, Search of Alpine Plants, 1869, 2d ed. 1874; The Ministry of Nature, 1872, 6th ed. 1886; The Garden and the City, with other Contrasts and Parallels of Scripture, 1872, 2d ed. 1873; Suns-glints in the Wilderness, 1872; Our Lord's Three Raisings from the Dead, 1875; Sabbath of the Fields (Danish and Norwegian translations), 1875, 5th ed. 1884; Two Worlds are Ours, 1880, 4th ed. 1880; The Conflagration in Cana of Galilee, 1882, 2d ed. 1886; The Riviera, 1885.

McTyeire, Holland Nimmons, D.D. (Emory College, Oxford, Ga., 1858), Methodist-Episcopal bishop (Southern Church); b. in Barnwell District, S.C., July 28, 1824; graduated at Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va., 1844; was ordained, 1844-45; since 1860 he has been stationed at Mobile and New Orleans; was first editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate (1851); editor of Christian Advocate, Nashville, MALAN, Solomon Cesar, D.D. (University of Edinburgh, 1880), Church of England; b. in Geneva, Switzerland, April 22, 1812; educated at St. Edmund Hall, Oxford; Boden Sanscrit scholar, 1834; Pusey and Ellerton Hebrew scholar, B.A. (second-class classics), 1837; M.A., and member of Balliol College, 1843; ordained deacon 1838, priest 1843; was senior classical professor at Bishop's College, Calcutta, 1839—40, and secretary to the Asiatic Society of Bengal, 1845—53; was rector of Enniskillen, Ireland, 1861; dean of the Vice-Regal Chapel, Dublin, 1865—69; select preacher at Oxford, 1880—82. He is the author of The Duties of Christian Masters, Nashville, Nashville, 1851 (a prize essay); A Catechism on Church Government, 1869; A Catechism on Bible History, 1889; Manual of the Discipline, 1870; A History of Methodism, 1884.

Mackenzie, John, D.D. (University of Edinburgh, 1885); LL.D. (McGill University, Montreal, 1870), Presbyterian; b. at Dunglass, south end of Cantyre, Argyllshire, Scotland, Nov. 29, 1831; graduated at Knox College, Toronto, Can., 1858; became pastor of Knox Church, Guelp, 1859; of Cote-street (now Crescent-street) Free Church, Montreal, 1861 (during his pastorate the annual increase averaged over one hundred members); principal and professor of divinity in the Presbyterian College, Montreal, 1868. When he began his work, the institution existed only in its charter. For four years he was the only professor; but now (1888) the seminary has extensive and costly buildings, a valuable library, a staff of four professors and four lecturers, with over seventy students in attendance. He lectures on dogmatics, church government, and homiletics. He is at the head of the work of French evangelization in Canada, and was for many years on the Protestant board of school commissioners of Montreal. In 1871 he was lecturer upon logic in McGill University, Montreal; in 1876 and 1884 he delivered courses of lectures upon applied logic, and in 1878 a course on ethics before the Ladies' Educational Association of Montreal. In 1881 he was chosen moderator of the General Assembly of Montreal. In 1881 he was the principal mover in securing a law to establish four new normal schools in the province of Cork, 1864; lord bishop of Peterborough, 1868. He was Donellan lecturer, Trinity College, Dublin, 1865—66; dean of the Vice-Regal Chapel, Dublin, 1866—69; select preacher at Oxford, 1880—82. He is the author of Sermons at St. Saviour's Church, Bath, London, N. Y., 1852; Sermons at the Octagonal Chapel, Bath, 1853, 2d ed. 1855; The Duty System and the Established Church, 1861 (a lecture in defence of the Established Church, which attracted wide attention).

MAHAN, Ass, D.D., LL.D. (Adrian College, Adrian, Mich., 1877), Congregationalist; b. at Vernon, N. Y., Nov. 19, 1800; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., 1824, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1827; pastor at Pittsford, N. Y., 1829—31; in Cincinnati (Pres.), 1831—35; president of Oberlin College, O., 1835—50; of Cleveland University, Jackson, Mich., 1850—54; pastor (Cong.) there, 1855—57, and at Adrian, Mich., 1857—68; president of Adrian College, 1860—71; since then has resided in England. He is the author of System of Intellectual Philosophy, New York, 1845; Election, and the Influence of the Holy Spirit, 1851; Modern Mysteries explained and exposed, Boston, 1855; The Science of Logic, New York, 1857; Science of Natural Theology, Boston, 1876; Phenomena of Spiritualism scientifically explained and exposed, New York, 1876; Critical History of the late American War, 1877; System of Mental Philosophy, Chicago, 1882; Crit. Hist. of Philosophy, N. Y., 1888, 2 vols.

MAIER, Adalbert, D.D. (Freiburg-im-Br., 1836), Roman Catholic; b. at Wülingen, Basel, Switzerland, April 22, 1812; educated at the Catholic University of Paris; was professor of Bible and theology at Freiburg-im-Br.; became priest there, and provisional teacher in the theological faculty, 1836; professor extraordinary of theology, 1840; ordinary professor, 1841; since 1846 has been a dean-ful of ecclesiastical councilor. He is the author of Exeget.-dogmat. Entwicklung der neutestamentlichen Begriffe von Zoé, Anastasis und Krisis, Freiburg-im-Br., 1839; Commentar über das Evangelium des Johannes, 1845—46, 2 vols.; Commentar über den Brief Pauli an die Römer, 1847; Gedächtnissrede auf Joh. Leonh. Hug, 1847; Einleitung in die Schriften des N.T., 1852; Commentar über den ersten Brief Pauli an die Korinther, 1857; do. über den zweiten Brief, 1865; do. über den Brief an die Hebrder, 1861.

MALAN, Solomon Cesar, D.D. (University of Edinburgh, 1880), Church of England; b. in Geneva, Switzerland, April 22, 1812; educated at St. Edmund Hall, Oxford; Boden Sanscrit scholar, 1834; Pusey and Ellerton Hebrew scholar, B.A. (second-class classics), 1837; M.A., and member of Balliol College, 1843; ordained deacon 1838, priest 1843; was senior classical professor at Bishop's College, Calcutta, 1839—40, and secretary to the Asiatic Society of Bengal, 1845—53; from 1850 to 1866 he was vicar of Broadwindsor, Dorsetshire, and from 1870—75 he was prebendary of Ruscombe-Southbury in Sarum Cathedral. He is the son of the late Rev. Cesar Malan, D.D., of Geneva, and is the author of Persomache Herodotica, a Topical Analysis of Herodotus, Oxford, 1837; An Outline of Bishop's College and its Missions, London, 1883;
MALAN.

140

MANGOLD.

Family Prayers, 1841; A Plain Exposition of the Apostles' Creed, 1847; A Systematic Catalogue of the Eggs of British Birds, 1848; List of British Birds, 1849; Who is God in China — Shin or Shang-Tsé? Remarks on the Etymology of Elohim and of Theos, and on the rendering of those terms into Chinese, 1853; A Vindication of the Authorized Version, 1859; A Letter to the Earl of Shaftesbury on the Buddhism of Japan, translated from the Chinese and Mongolian Versions of the Bible published by the British and Foreign Bible Society, 1856; The Threefold San-tsze King, or Trilingual Classic of China, translated into English, with notes, 1856; Aphorisms on Drunkenness, 1858; Magdala and Bethany, a Pilgrimage, 1857; The Coast of Tyre and Sidon, 1857; Letters to a Young Missionary, 1858; Prayers and Thanksgivings for the Holy Communion, translated from Armenian, Coptic, and other Eastern originals, for the use of the clergy, 1859; Meditations on a Prayer of S. Ephrem, translated from the Russian, 1859; The Gospel according to S. John, translated from the Eleven oldest versions, except the Latin (viz., Syriac, Ethiopic, Armenian, Sahidic, Memphitic, Gothic, Georgian, Slavonic, Anglo-Saxon, Arabic, and Persian), 1862; Preparation for the Holy Communion, translated from Coptic, Armenian, and other Eastern originals, for the use of the laity, 1863; Meditations on our Lord's Passion, translated from the Armenian of Matthew Vartabed, 1863; A Manual of Daily Prayers, translated from Armenian and other Eastern originals, 1863; Philosophy, or Truth? Remarks on the First Five Lectures by the Dean of Westminster on the Jewish Church, with Plain Words on Questions of the Day, regarding Faith, the Bible, and the Church, 1865; History of the Georgian Church, translated from the Russian of P. Joseliani, 1866; Sermons by Gabriel, Bishop of Imereth, translated from the Georgian, 1867; Repentance, translated from the Syriac of S. Ephrem, 1897; On Ritualism, 1867; The Life and Times of St. Gregory the Illuminator, translated from the Armenian, 1868; The Holy Sacrament of the Lord's Supper according to Scripture, Grammar, and the Faith, 1868; A Plea for the Authorised Version and for the Received Text in Answer to the Dean of Canterbury, 1869; Instruction in the Christian Faith, translated from the Armenian, 1869; The Liturgy of the Orthodox Armenian Church, translated from the Armenian, 1870; Differences between the Armenian and the Greek Churches, translated from the Russian, 1871; The Conflicts of the Holy Apostles, an Apocryphal Book of the Early Eastern Church, translated from an Ethiopic MS., together with The Epistle of S. Dionysius the Areopagite to Timothy, on the Death of S. Paul, also translated from an Ethiopic MS., and The Assumption of S. John, translated from the Armenian, 1871; Misao, the Japanese Girl, translated from the Japanese, 1871; Our Lord's Parables explained to Country Children, 2 vols., 1871; A Form of Prayer for the Use of Sunday Schools, 1871; Bishop Ellicott's New Translation of the Athanasian Creed, 1872; The Confession of Faith of the Orthodox Armenian Church, together with the Rite of Holy Baptism, as it is administered in that Church, translated from the Armenian, 1872; The Divine Liturgy of S. John the Evangelist, translated from an old Coptic MS., and compared with the same liturgy as arranged by S. Cyril, 1872; The Coptic Calendar, translated from an Arabic MS., with notes, 1873; A History of the Copts, and of their Church, translated from the Arabic of Tājī ed-Dīn El-Maqrīzī, with notes. 1873; The Holy Gospel and Versicles, for every Sunday and other Feast Day in the Year, as used in the Coptic Church, translated from a Coptic MS., 1874; The Divine Ekhshāth and the Divine Liturgy of S. Gregory the Theologian, translated from the Greek, with the additions found in the Roman ed. of 1737, 1875; Prayers and Thanksgivings for the Use of my Parishioners, Beaminster, 1875; The Two Holy Sacraments of Baptism and of the Lord's Supper according to Scripture, Grammar, and the Faith, London, 1880; The Miracles of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ explained to Country Children, 1881; Seven Chapters (St. Matt. i.–vi., St. Luke xii.) of the Revision of 1881 revised, 1881; Select Readings in the Greek Text of S. Matthew, lately published by the Rev. Drs. Westcott and Hort, revised, with a Postscript on the Pamphlet, "The Revisers and the Greek Text of the Testament," by two members of the Revision Company, 1882; The Book of Adam and Eve, also called The Conflict of Adam and Eve with Satan, a Book of the Early Eastern Church, translated from the Ethiopic, with notes from the Kufale, Talmud, Midrashim, and other Eastern works, 1882; Morning and Evening Prayers for Day and Sunday Schools in the Parish of Broadwaters, 1884.

MALLALIEU, Willard Francis, D.D. (East Tennessee Wesleyan University, Athens, Tenn., 1857), Methodist bishop; b. at Sutton, Worcester County, Mass., Dec. 11, 1829; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1857; joined the New-England Conference of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, 1858; became presiding elder, Boston district, 1882; bishop, 1884.

MALLORY, George Scovill, D.D. (Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1874), Episcopalian; b. at Watertown, Con., June 5, 1838; graduated head of his class at Trinit College, Hartford, Conn., 1858; travelled in Europe, 1858; entered the Berkeley Divinity School, Middletown, Conn., 1858; and graduated 1862; was assistant professor of ancient languages in Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1862–64; Brownell professor of literature and oratory in the same, 1864–72; trustee of the same from 1872; editor of The Churchman, New York, since 1866.

MANGOLD, Wilhelm Julius, Lic. Theol. (Marburg, 1852), D.D. (hon., Vienna, 1852); b. at Cassel, Nov. 20, 1825; studied at Halle (1845–47), Marburg (1847–49), and Göttingen (1848–49); became regent at Marburg, 1851; privatdozent there, 1852; professor extraordinary, 1857; ordinary professor of theology, 1863; at Bonn, 1872. He declined calls to professorships at Vienna (1863) and Basel (1866); was rector of the Prussian Landtag, 1871–72. He became consistorialmeister, 1882. He belongs to the critical school. He is the author of De monachatus originis et causis, Marburg, 1852; Die Irrlehrer der Johannisthohne, 1856; Jean Coins and Voltaire, 1861; Hyperion, 1862; Drei Predigten über Johannislose Texte, 1864; Der Römerbrief u. die Anfänge der römischen Gemeinde, 1866; Die Römischen Prophezeiungen, 1866; Die Anfänge der römischen Gemeinde, 1866; Andrex Hypomnemata, 1866; Consilium, 1866; Humanitatis et Christenthum, 1871; Wider Strauss, 1877; Ernst Ludwig Henne, Ein Gedenkwort, Marburg, 1879; De ecclesia prae-santium pro Casaribus ac magistratibus romanis proceris fundenda. Bonn, 1871; Der Römerbrief u. seine geschichtlichen Voraussetzungen, Neu un-sucht, Marburg, 1884. He edited the 3d ed. of Bleek's Einleitung in d. N.T., Berlin, 1875, and the 4th ed., 1886.

MANLY, Basil, D.D. (University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, Ala., 1839). LL.D. (Agricultural College, Auburn, Ala., 1874). Baptist; b. in Edgefield County, S.C., Dec. 19, 1825; graduated at University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa, 1843; and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1847; became pastor at Providence, Ala., 1848; Richmond, Va., 1850; president Richmond Female Institute, 1854; professor of biblical introduction and Old-Testament interpretation in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, 1859; president ofGeorgetown College, Ky., 1871; professor in Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, 1879. He compiled, with his father, The Baptist Preacher, a Selection of Hymns (about twenty original); Charleston, S.C., 1872; and has, in addition to pamphlets and occasional sermons, issued A Call to the Ministry, Philadelphia, 1867.

MANN, William Julius, D.D. (Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., 1857), Lutheran (General Council); b. at Stuttgart, Germany, May 29, 1819; graduated at Tübingen, 1844; was from 1850 to 1884 pastor of Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church, Philadelphia; now pastor emeritus; since 1864 has been professor of Hebrew, ethics, and syriac in the Philadelphia Theological Seminary of the Lutheran Church. He edited the Kirchen-freund, Philadelphia, 1834-80; and is the author of Lutheranism in America, 1857; General Principles of Christian Ethics, 1872 (abridgment of Dr. Ch. Fr. Schmid's Ethik); Heilsgeschichte (sermon), 1881; Leben und Wirken William Penn's, Reading, Penn., 1867.

MANNING, His Eminence Henry Edward, Cardinal, D.D. (Rome, Italy, 1854), Roman Catholic; b. at Totteridge, Hertfordshire, Eng., July 15, 1808; educated at Harrow and at Balliol College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics), 1830, and was elected fellow of Merton College, and for some time a select preacher to the university. In 1834 he became rector of Lavington and benefactor, Sussex, and married. In 1840 he was appointed archdeacons of Chichester. He was a leader in the so-called "Oxford movement," and in 1851 resigned his ecclesiastical preferments. On April 20, 1851, entered the Roman-Catholic Church, and (his wife having died some time previously), a little later, the priesthood. He then repaired to Rome, where he studied theology until 1854, when he received the degree of D.D. Returning to England, he entered upon a career of great activity. In 1857 he founded at Bayswater a congregation of the "Oblates of St. Charles Borromeo," and became its first superior; summoned Zion Sisters from Paris to teach the girls' schools; erected a pro-tectorcy; founded a Roman-Catholic university at Kensington (Oct. 15, 1874), and in other ways greatly increased the influence of his Church.

MARTIN, William Alexander Parsons, D.D.
(Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1860), LL.D.
(University of the City of New York, 1870), Presbyterian; b. at Livonia, Ind., April 10, 1827;
graduated at the State University at Bloomington, Ind., and at the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of New Albany (now removed to Chicago);
from 1850-60 was a missionary at Ningpo, China;
from 1863-68 was missionary at Peking; in 1869 became president of the Imperial Tungwen College of Peking, and professor of international law.
He visited the United States in 1860, 1868, and 1879. He is a member of the Executive Committee of International Law, and of other learned societies. His position in China is of the highest importance. During his long life there he has had several unusual experiences. In 1855 he was captured by Chinese pirates; in 1856 he served as interpreter to the United States mission in negotiating the treaty of Tientsin; in 1859 he ac-MARTINEAU, James, LL.D. (Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., U.S.A., 1872), Th.D. (Leiden, Holland, 1875), D.D. (Edinburgh, Scotland, 1884), Unitarian; b. at Norwich, Eng., April 21, 1805; educated at Norwich grammar school until 1819; Dr. Lant Carpenter's, Bristol, 1819–21; studied civil engineering, 1821–22; took course in Middlebury (Vt.) College, 1856, and at Andover Theological Seminary, N.J., 1846; was professor of philosophy in said college, London, and principal 1869—85; with ministry of Little Portland-street Chapel (two years with Rev. J. J. Tayler) from 1859—72. He was the younger brother of Harriet Martineau. He is the author of The Rationale of Religious Enquiry, or the Question Stated of Reason, The Bible, and the Church, London, 1836, 4th ed. 1853; Unitarianism condemned (five lectures of thirteen in the Liverpool controversy, delivered in connection with J. H. Thom and H. Giles), 1839; Hymns for the Christian Church and Home, 1840, 23d ed. 1885; Endeavours after the Christian Life, 1843–47; 2 vols.; in 1 vol. 1875; Unitarianism disavowed, 1853, and The Rationale of Religious Enquiry, or the Questions as affected by Modern Materialism, London, 1874: Modern Materialism, its Attitude towards Theology, 1876,— combined by the author and repub. 1878.

MATHESON, George, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1879), Church of Scotland; b. at Glasgow, March 27, 1842; lost his sight in youth, but after a brilliant course at the University of Edinburgh, taking the first prize in senior division of logic (1860) and in moral philosophy (1861), graduated M.A. 1862, B.D. 1866; minister at Innellan, 1868—86; since of St. Bernard's, Edinburgh. In 1880 he declined a unanimous call to succeed Dr. Cumming of London. In 1881 he was Baird lecturer, and in 1882 was St. Giles lecturer (Confucianism, in Faith of the World). He is the author of many articles and the following books: Aids to the Study of German Theology, Edinburgh, 1874, 3d ed. 1876; Growth of the Spirit of Christianity, 1877, 2 vols.; Natural Elements of Revealed Theology (Baird Lectures, 1881); My Aspirations (Heart-Chord series), London, 1885; Moments on the Mount, a Series of Devotional Meditations, 1884, 2d ed. 1886; Can the Old Faith live with the New? or, The Problem of Evolution and Revelation, 1885, 2d ed. 1886.

MATTOON, Stephen, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1870), Presbyterian; b. at Champion, N.Y., May 5, 1816; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1842, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1846; was missionary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions in Siam, 1849–67; pastor at Ballston Spa, N.Y., 1867–69; from 1870 till 1884 was president of Biddle Memorial Institute (now Bidle University), Chicago, Ill., and since 1876 professor of systematic theology in its theological department. He completed the translation of the New Testament into Siamese in 1885, and it was printed that year complete at the Presbyterian Mission Press at Bangkok, Siam: portions had been printed earlier as they were finished.

MEAD, Charles Marsh, Ph.D. (Tubingen, 1886), D.D. (Middlebury College, Vt., 1881), Congregationalist; b. at Cornell, Vt., Jan. 28, 1836; graduated at Middlebury (Vt.) College, 1856, and at Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1862; studied at Halle and Berlin, 1863–65; was professor of Hebrew in Andover Theological Seminary, 1884–88; since he has lived in Germany. He was a member of the Old Testament Revision Company. He translated Exodus, in the American Lange series (N.Y., 1876), and wrote The Soul Here and Hereafter, a Biblical Study, Boston, 1879.

MEDD, Peter Goldsmith, Church of England; b. at Leyburn in Wensleydale, Yorkshire, July 17, 1829; was scholar of University College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1852, M.A. 1856; fellow of his college, 1852–77; resident fellow, lecturer, tutor, bursar, and dean of same, 1853–70; ordained deacon 1853, priest 1859; was a great advocate of the Church of the Province of Barns, 1870–76; since 1876 has been rector of North Cerney, Gloucestershire, and since 1883

COMPANIED the United-States minister to Peking, and to Yedo, Japan; in 1866 he visited a colony of Jews in Honan, visiting also the tomb of Confucius, and was the first foreigner in recent times to make the journey from Peking to Shanghai by the grand canal (for account of this journey, see Journal North China Branch Royal Asiatic Society, 1890); in the conflict with France, 1894–95, as well as in former disputes, acted as adviser to the Chinese Government on questions of international law, and in 1885 was made a mandarin of the third rank, by imperial decree. In February, 1885, he was elected first president of the newly organized Oriental Society of Peking. Dr. Martin edited The Peking Scientific Magazine from 1875 to 1878 (printed in Chinese); and has written in Chinese, Evidences of Christianity, 1855, 10th ed. 1885 (translated into Japanese, and widely circulated in Japan); The Three Principles (1860), and Religious Allegories (1857), and numerous small tracts which have been widely distributed. In English, besides his correspondence with the learned societies to which he belongs, and his contributions to reviews and other periodicals, he has published The Education and Philosophy of the Chinese, Shanghai and London, 1880, new ed. under title, The Chinese: their Education, Philosophy, and Letters, New York, 1881. In French he has written much. But his largest works have been his translations into Chinese, of Wheaton (1853) and Bluntschli (1879) on International Law, De Martens's Guide diplomatique (1874), and the compilation in Chinese of courses of natural philosophy (1890) and mathematical physics (1885).

MARTIN EAU.
MENZEL, Andreas, Lic. Theol. (Breslau, 1843), LL.D. (Cambridge, Mass.), D.D. (Breslau, 1857), Old Catholic; b. at Mehl- sack, East Prussia, Nov. 25, 1815; studied theological at Braunsberg, 1837-41; was ordained priest, sack, East Prussia, Nov. 25, 1815; studied theol ogy at Braunsberg, 1845; professorextraordinary in the philosophical faculty at Tiibingen, 1857-64; became privat-ilocentof the theology at Greifswald, Dec. 17, 1844. He is the author of Die Composition des Buches Daniel (Habilitationsschrift), 1884.

MENZEL, Andreas, Lic. Theol. (Breslau, 1843), D.D. (Breslau, 1857), Old Catholic; b. at Mehlsack, East Prussia, Nov. 25, 1815; studied theology at Braunsberg, 1837-41; was ordained priest, 1841; became nikan at Braunsberg, 1841; stipendi- at in Rome, 1844; sub-regens of the Episcopal seminary at Braunsberg, 1845; professor extraordinary of theology in the university there, 1850; ordinary professor of systematic theology, 1853; at Bonn, 1874. In 1849-51 and 1862-63 he was member of the House of Deputies in Berlin. Since 1870, although an ordinary professor of theology, he has had no students, because he was excommuni cated for refusing to accept the Vatican decrees. He has always striven to make Catholicism, in the spirit of the New Testament, accord with the requirements and conceptions of our time. He is the author of De natura conscientiae, Brauns berg, 1852; Traducianismus an Creationismus! 1856; and other Latin academical dissertations. He died at Bonn, Aug. 5, 1886.

MERIVALE, Very Rev. Charles, D.D. (Cam bridge, 1870; Durham, ad eund., 1865), D.C.L. (Oxford, 1866), B.D. (London, 1860), L.L.D. (Bonn, 1879), D.D. (Jena, 1880), Dean of Ely, Church of England; b. in Blooms bury, London, March 8, 1808; entered St. John's College, Cambridge, 1826; was Browne's medallist, 1829; graduated B.A. (senior optime and first-class classical tripus) 1830, M.A. 1833, B.D. 1840; was fellow and tutor of St. John's College, 1833-45; ordained deacon 1833, priest 1834; select preacher 1838, and Whitehall preacher 1839-41; Hulsean lecturer 1862, and Boyle lecturer 1864-65; chaplain to the speaker of the House of Commons, 1863-69. From 1848 to 1870 he was rector of Lawford, Essex. On Dec. 25, 1868, he was in stituted dean of Ely. His theological standpoint is that of “the Church of the Revolution,—the platform of Tillotson and Burnet.” He is the author of History of the Romans under the Empire, London, 1850-82, 7 vols., new ed. 1855, 8 vols. (with re-issues); Saltius's Catiline and Jugurtha, 1854; History of the Romans under the Empire, London, 1862; The Conversion of the Roman Empire (Boyle Lectures for 1864), 1864; The Conversion of the Northern Na tions (do. for 1865), 1865; Homer's Iliad in Eng lish Rhymet Verse, 1889; General History of Rome, 1875; St. Paul at Rome, 1877; Conversion of the West, 1878; Four Lectures on Epochs of Early Church History, 1879.

MERRILL, Selah, D.D. (Iowa College, Grinnell, Io., 1875), L.L.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1884), Congregationalist; b. at Canton Centre, Hartford County, Conn., May 2, 1857; entered Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1875; left the class, but later received honors M. A. from the college “for special services in biblical learning;” studied theology in New Haven (Conn.) Theological Seminary; preached at Chester (Mass.), Le Roy (N.Y.), San Francisco (Cal.), and Salmon Falls (N.H.); was chaplain of the Forty-ninth U.S. Colored Infantry at Vicksburg, Miss., 1864-65; student in Germany, 1868-70; archeologist of the American Palestine Exploration Society, 1874-77, working in Moab, Gilgal, and Bashan, east of the Jordan; United-States consul in Jerusalem from 1882 to 1886. In 1872, and again in 1873, taught Hebrew in Andover Theological Seminary. He is a member of the American Oriental Society, of the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis, and of the Society of Biblical Archaeology (British). He is the author of several articles in the Bibliotheca Sacra and other periodicals, on biblical geography, the cuneiform inscriptions, and other Oriental topics; and of East of the Jordan, New York, 1881, 2d ed. 1883, reprinted London, 1891; Gallilee in the Time of Christ, Boston 1881, London 1885; several parts of Picturesque Palestine, New York and London, 1882-83; he published Greek Inscriptions collected in the Years 1875-77, in the Country East of the Jordan, 1885 (these were revised by Professor F. W. Allen of Cambridge, Mass.).

MERX, (Ernst Otto) Adalbert, D.D., German Protestant theologian and Orientalist; b. at Bleicherode, Nov. 2, 1838; studied at Marburg, Halle, and Berlin, 1857-61; became privat-docent of theology at Jena, 1865; professor extraordinary there, 1869; ordinary professor in the philosophical faculty at Tiibingen, 1869; ordinary professor of theology at Giessen, 1873; at Heidelberg, 1875. He is the author of Meletemata Ignatiana, Critica de epistolarum Ignatianarum versamento, 2d ed. Giessen, 1870; Die Prophetic des Joel und ihre Aus dive, Halle, 1861; Bardens homo von Edessa, 1863; Cur in libro Danielis justa hebrean aramea adhibita sit dialectus explicatur, 1865; Das Gedicht vom Hiob, Hebraischer Text, kritisch bearbeitet und ubersetzt, nebst sachlicher und kritischer Einleitung, Jena, 1871; Die Prophetie des Joel und ihre Aus ledger von den altesten Zeiten bis zu den Reforma toren, Halle, 1879; Eine Rede vom Auslezen ins Besondere des Alten Testaments, 1879.

MESSNER, (Karl Ferdinand) Hermann, Lic. Theol. (Göttingen, 1856), D.D. (hon., Wien, 1876), German theologian; b. at Obisfelde (Altmark), Prussia, Oct. 25, 1824; studied at Halle and Berlin, 1844-50; student at Göttingen, 1850-52; adjunct, 1856; later inspector of the Domkandidatensift in Berlin; and since 1860 has been pro fessor extraordinary of theology in her university. From 1890 to 1876 he was a member of the Royal Wissenschaftlichen Prufungs Commission in Berlin. His theological standpoint is that of "the Church of the Revolution,"—the platform of Tillotson and Burnet. He is the author of the "Lehre der Apostel," Leipzig, 1856; and edited the third edition of De Wette's Corinthians (1859), the fourth edition of his Matthew (1857), and, with Prof. Dr. Lüne mann of Göttingen, the sixth edition of De Wette's Lehrbuch der historisch kriti schen Einleitung in's Neue Testament, Berlin, 1860.

MEUSS, Eduard, Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1854), D.D. (Berlin, 1860), Protestant theologian; b. at Ravensburg, October 22, 1821; studied at Leipzig, Göttingen, Berlin, and Halle, 1843–41; was member of the Wittenberg theological seminary, 1844; assistant preacher in Berlin, 1847; court preacher at Köpenick, 1852; university preacher, and professor or extraordinary of theology, in Breslau, 1854; was ordinary professor, 1863–July 1, 1885; and since 1890 has been member of the consistorium. He is the author of In parabolam Jesu Christi de ac economo injusto denuo inquiritur, Breslau, 1850; Maqaparaoqo Jesu Christi seu ecclesiae publicae receptum historia, 1863; Das Weihnachtffest und die Kunst, Bonn, 1868; On the Art and Frucht des evangelischen Pfarrhauses vornehmlich in Deutsch land, Bielefeld, 1876, 2d ed. 1883.

MEYRICK, Frederick, Church of England; b. at Ramsbury Vicarage, Wiltshire, Jan. 28, 1827; entered Trinity College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (second-class in classics) 1847, M.A. 1850; ordained deacon 1850, priest 1852; was a fellow of Trinity College, Oxford, 1847–60, and tutor in it, 1851–59; in 1856 public examiner in classics; preacher at the Chapel Royal, Whitehall, 1856; select preacher before the University of Oxford, 1855–56, 1865–66, 1875–76; examiner for the Johnson theological scholarship at Oxford, 1850; one of her Majesty's inspectors of schools from 1859 to 1869; examining chaplain to Bishop Christopher Wordsworth, 1869–85; since 1868 rector of Bickling, Norfolk; and since 1869 nonresidential canon of Lincoln. He was tutor to the late and the present Marquis of Lothian from 1847–53, when the rest of the family, with their exception, joined the Church of Rome. In 1853 he founded the Anglo-Continental Society (now numbering six hundred, with two hundred publications), for making known upon the Continent the principles of the Anglican Church, and promoting the revival of the English Reformation abroad. As secretary of this society he has edited many dogmatic and controversial treatises in Latin, Italian, Spanish, etc. He attended the Bonn Conference of 1873, and formed one of the Committee on the Doctrine of the Procession of the Holy Spirit. His theological standpoint is "that of the historical school of Anglican divines, commencing with Bishop Andrews, and ending with Dean Hook and Bishop Christopher Wordsworth." Since 1877 he has edited The Foreign Church Chronicle and Review. His writings are very numerous (see list in Crockford's Clerical Directory for 1882), and include contributions to Smith's Dictionaries of the Bible and of Christian Antiquities, The Bible (Speaker's Commentary) (Joel and Obadiah, 1876; Ephesians, 1880), The Pulpit Commentary (Leviticus, 1882), Theological Library (Is Dogma a Necessity?), etc. Of general interest may be mentioned, The Practical Theology of the Church of Rome (London, 1855); Moral and Devotional Theology of the Church of Rome, London, 1856; Correspondence with Old Catholics and Orientals, 1877–78, 4 series; The Old Catholic Movement, 1877; Sketches of Dillingen (1879) and of Hyacinthe (1880); The Doctrine of the Church of England on the Holy Communion, 1885; editions of works of Bishop Cosin, Andrews, Hall, etc.

MICHAUD, Philibert Eugène, Christian Catholic; b. at Ramillies, 1828; studied at Saumur, Côte d'Or, France, March 13, 1839; studied theology in the seminary at Dijon and at the Dominican College of St. Maximin in Provence; became curate of St. Roch, and then of the Madeleine, Paris; refused to accept the infallibility dogma, and so was dismissed; was Old-Catholic minister at Paris, but since 1876 has been professor of theology at Bern, Switzerland. He is the author of Guillaume de Champeaux et les écoles de Paris au XIe siècle, d'après des documents inédits, Paris, 1867, 2d ed. 1867; L'Esprit et la Lettre dans la morale religieuse, 2 series, 1869 and 1870; Guignol et la Révolution dans l'Église romaine, M. Vellin. He is one of the most prominent of the older Jesuits, and his prominence is due to his long and interrupted period of residence in the society's headquarters in Rome. His writings are numerous (see list in Crockford's Clerical Tenure of Fellowships, Oxford, 1854; Clerical Tenure of Fellowships, Oxford, 1854; Moral and Devotional Theology of the Church of Rome, London, 1856; Correspondence with Old Catholics and Orientals, 1877–78, 4 series; The Old Catholic Movement, 1877; Sketches of Dillingen (1879) and of Hyacinthe (1880); The Doctrine of the Church of England on the Holy Communion, 1885; editions of works of Bishop Cosin, Andrews, Hall, etc.

MICHHAUD, Ph. Eugène, Christian Catholic; b. at Ramillies, 1828; studied at Saumur, Côte d'Or, France, March 13, 1839; studied theology in the seminary at Dijon and at the Dominican College of St. Maximin in Provence; became curate of St. Roch, and then of the Madeleine, Paris; refused to accept the infallibility dogma, and so was dismissed; was Old-Catholic minister at Paris, but since 1876 has been professor of theology at Bern, Switzerland. He is the author of Guillaume de Champeaux et les écoles de Paris au XIe siècle, d'après des documents inédits, Paris, 1867, 2d ed. 1867; L'Esprit et la Lettre dans la morale religieuse, 2 series, 1869 and 1870; Guignol et la Révolution dans l'Église romaine, M. Vellin. He is one of the most prominent of the older Jesuits, and his prominence is due to his long and interrupted period of residence in the society's headquarters in Rome. His writings are numerous (see list in Crockford's Clerical Tenure of Fellowships, Oxford, 1854; Clerical Tenure of Fellowships, Oxford, 1854; Moral and Devotional Theology of the Church of Rome, London, 1856; Correspondence with Old Catholics and Orientals, 1877–78, 4 series; The Old Catholic Movement, 1877; Sketches of Dillingen (1879) and of Hyacinthe (1880); The Doctrine of the Church of England on the Holy Communion, 1885; editions of works of Bishop Cosin, Andrews, Hall, etc.

MILLIGAN, William, D.D. (St. Andrew's, 1862), Church of Scotland; b. in the year 1821; graduated at St. Andrew's University, April, 1839; was settled at Cameron, Fife Sheriffdom, 1844; at Kilconquhar, 1850; and appointed professor of divinity and biblical criticism in the University of Aberdeen, 1860. He was moderator of the General Assembly in 1862, and is now principal clerk of the Assembly of the Church of Scotland. He has contributed to theological reviews and other periodicals, he has published Words of the New Testament as altered by Transmission and ascertained by Modern Criticism (with Dr. Roberts), Edinburgh, 1878; *Resurrection MINTER.

MINER.

MINER, Alonzo Ames, S.T.D. (Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1863). L.L.D. (Tufts College, College Hill, Mass., 1875). Universalist; b. at Lemper, N. Y., Aug. 14, 1814; was public-school teacher at intervals, 1830-35; became principal of Unity (N. H.) scientific and military academy, 1835; pastor at Methuen, Mass., 1839; Lowell, 1842; Boston, since 1848. He was president of Tufts College, College Hill, Mass., 1862-76; since 1869 has been a member of the State Board of Education; since 1873, chairman of the board of visitors of the State Normal Art School; is president of the State Temperance Alliance; was Prohibition candidate for governor, 1878; was original projector of the Universalist Publishing House, Boston, and has edited that organ since its organization before the municipal authorities of Boston, 1855; was elected by the Legislature an overseer of Harvard College, 1863; was chaplain of the Massachusetts Senate, 1864. Besides numerous pamphlets, he has published Bible Exercises, Boston, 1854, last ed. 1855; Old Forts taken, 1878, last ed. 1885.

MITCHELL, Alexander Ferrier, D.D. (St. Andrew's, 1862). Church of Scotland; b. at Brechin, Sept. 10, 1822; studied literature, philosophy, and theology at University of St. Andrews, 1837-41; graduated M.A., 1841; became minister of the parish of Drumchapel, in the presbytery and county of Forfar, 1847; professor of Hebrew and Oriental languages in the College of St. Mary in the University of St. Andrew's, 1848; transferred to the chair of ecclesiastical history and divinity in the same college, 1865. From 1856 to 1874 he was convener (chairman) of the Church of Scotland's Jewish Mission; visited the missions of the mission in Turkey, and recommended the occupation of Alexandria, Beyroot, and Constantinople; has been convener of the Assembly's committee on the minutes of the Westminster Assembly since its institution; has been one of the Church of Scotland's representatives at all the General Councils of the Reformed Churches, and is the convener of its committee on the desiderata of Presbyterian history. He is the author of The Westminster Confession of Faith, a Contribution to the Study of its History and the Defence of its Teaching, Edinburgh, 1866, 3d ed. 1897; The Wedderburns and their Work, or the Sacred Poetry of the Scottish Reformers in its Relation to that of Germany, 1867; Minutes of the Westminster Assembly from November, 1644, to March, 1649, with Historical Introduction, 1874; Historical Notice of Archbishop Hamilton's Catechism (prefixed to black-letter reprint of the same), 1882; The Westminster Assembly, its History and Standards (Baird Lecture for 1882), London, 1883; The Catechisms of the Second Reformation, 1886. He edited in 1860 the Sum of Saving Knowledge, translated into Modern Greek by the late Professor Edward Masson, and in 1876 the late Professor Crawford's The Preaching of the Cross, and other Sermons; and has contributed to journals and encyclopedias articles on historical topics.

MITCHELL, Arthur, D.D. (Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1876). Presbyterian; b. at Hudson, N. Y., Aug. 13, 1835; graduated at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1853, and at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1859; was tutor in Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1853-54; became pastor of Third Church, Richmond, Va., 1859; of Second Church, Morrisstown, N. J., 1881; of First Church, Chicago, Ill., 1868; of First Church, Cleveland, O., 1880; secretary of Board of Foreign Missions, New-York City, 1881. He has published many discourses in pamphlet form.

MITCHELL, Hinckley Gilbert, Ph.D. (Leipzig University, 1879). Methodist; b. at Lee, Oneida County, N. Y., Feb 22, 1846; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1873, and B.D. at Boston (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1876; studied in Germany, 1876-79; joined Central New-York Conference, 1879; became pastor at Fayette, N. Y., 1879; tutor of Latin, and instructor in Hebrew, Wesleyan University, 1880; instructor of Hebrew and Old-Testament exegesis in Boston University, 1883; professor of the same, 1884. He is the secretary of the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis; and is the author of Final Constructions of Biblical Hebrew, Leipzig, 1879; Hebrew Lessons, Boston, 1884, 2d ed. 1885.

MITCHELL, Samuel Thomas, African Methodist-Episcopal layman; b. at Toledo, O., Sept. 24, 1851; graduated at Wilberforce University, Xenia, O., 1873; was principal of Pratt-street School, Springfield, O., 1873-75; principal of Lincoln Institute, State Normal School, Jefferson City, Mo., 1879-84; since June 20, 1884, has been president of Wilberforce University. He presided over the Missouri State Teachers' Association at Jefferson City, 1873; was member of General Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Church in 1884; is founder of the present educational system in that denomination.
MOBERLY.

MOBERLY, Right Rev. George, D.C.L. (Oxford, 1836), lord bishop of Salisbury (Sarum), Church of England; b. in St. Petersburg, Russia, Oct. 10, 1803; d. at Salisbury, July 6, 1885. He was educated at Balliol College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1855, M.A. 1859; won English essay prize, 1828; was ordained deacon 1829, priest 1830; was fellow and tutor of Balliol College; public examiner in the university, 1830 and 1833–35; select preacher, 1853, 1858, 1883; head master of Winchester College, 1835–66; rector of Brightstone, Isle of Wight, 1866–69; fellow of Winchester College, 1840–60; D.D.; canon of Chester, 1862–66; fellow of Winchester College, 1866–70; Bampton lecturer, 1869; canon of Chester, 1868–69; consecrated bishop, 1869. He was the author of Practical Sermons, London, 1838; Sermons preached at Winchester College, 1844, 2d series (with a preface on faggot) 1848; The Sayings of the Great Forty Days between the Resurrection and Ascension, regarded as Outlines of the Kingdom of God (five sermons) 1844, 2d ed. (with An Examination of Mr. Newman's Theory of Development) 1846; The Proposed Degradation and Declaration considered (a letter addressed to the master of Balliol), Oxford, 1849; All Saints, Kings, and Priests (two sermons on papal aggression, preached at Winchester), London, 1864; The Law of the Love of God Restored, 1854; Sermons on the Beatitudes, Oxford, 1860; Five Short Letters to Sir William Hothcote, on the Studies and Discipline of Public Schools, London, 1861; The Administration of the Holy Spirit in the Body of Christ (Bampton Lectures), 1868; Sermons at Brightstone, 1868, 3d ed. 1874. He was one of the "five elders present" (Henry Alford, John Barrow, Charles John Ellicott, William Gilson Humphry), who published a revised version of John, Romans, Corinthians, Galatians, and James; and a member of the New-Testament Revision Company.

MOELLER, Ernst Wilhelm, Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1854), D.D. (hon., Greifswald, 1869), Ph.D. (hon., Halle, 1888), German theologian; b. at Erfurt, Oct. 1, 1827; studied at Berlin, Halle, and Bonn, 1847–51; became privat-docent at Halle, 1854; pastor near Halle, 1863; ordinary professor of church history at Kiel, 1873. He holds to the Vermittlungstheologie. He is the author of Gregorii Nysseni opera omnia, with a German introduction and an essay by E. P. Schelling; Gregorii Nysseni opera omnia et illustravit cum Origieniana comparavit, Halle, 1854; Geschichte der Ksmologie in der griechischen Kirche bis auf Origenes, 1860; Andreas Osiander, Leben und ausgewählte Schriften, Eibeifeld, 1870, Veber die Religion Plutarch's, Kiel, 1861 (pp. 14); edited the 3d ed. of De Wette's commentaries on Galatians and Thessalonians (Leipzig, 1864), and the Pastoral Epistles and Hebrews (1867).

MOFFAT, James Clement, D.D. (Miami University, Oxford, 1854), dean of the cathedral chapter of Christ Church, Wheeling, Va., 1873–82; consecrated bishop, 1883, of the diocese of West Virginia, 1883—88. He was stated supply of the Second Presbyterian Church, Wheeling, Va., 1871–73; pastor of the same, 1873–82; since has been president of Washington and Jefferson College.

MONOD, Guillaume, the son of Jean Monod, Reformed; b. in Paris, the son of preceding, Nov. 28, 1822; pastor at Marseilles, 1849–56; Mme. Monod, 1856–84; since 1884, professor of dogmatic theology at Montauban. He was made chevalier of the Legion of Honor, July 14, 1880. He has written many articles, and translated Neander's commentaries upon the Epistles of James and John, 1851 and 1854.

MOFFAT, James David, D.D. (Hanover College, Ind., 1882; College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1880), Presbyterian; b. at New Lisbon, O., March 15, 1849; graduated at Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1869; studied at Princeton Theological Seminary, N. J., 1869–71; was stated supply of the Second Presbyterian Church, Wheeling, Va., 1871–73; pastor of the same, 1873–82; since has been president of Washington and Jefferson College.

MONOD, Theodore, Reformed; b. in Paris, the son of preceding, Nov. 28, 1822; pastor at Marseilles, 1849–56; Mme. Monod, 1856–84; since 1884, professor of dogmatic theology at Montauban. He was made chevalier of the Legion of Honor, July 14, 1880. He has written many articles, and translated Neander's commentaries upon the Epistles of James and John, 1851 and 1854.

MONRAD, Ditlev Gothard, Danish Lutheran; b. at Copenha gen, March 6, 1836; studied law, 1855–58; but, converted in New York, April, 1858, he turned to the ministry, and studied theology in the Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1858–60; until 1863 he preached among the French Canadians; from 1864 till 1875 he was his father's successor in Paris; from 1875 till 1878 he was travelling agent of the Inner Mission work in France; but since 1878 he has been the successor of M. Montandon in Paris. From 1875 to 1879 he edited Le Libérateur, now absorbed in the Bulletin de la mission intérieure. His writings embrace Regardant à Jesus, 1862 (English trans., Looking unto Jesus, New York, 1864); The Gift of God (published in English), London, 1876 (in French, Paris, 1877); Life more Abundant, 1881.

MONRAD, Dittev Gothard, Danish Lutheran; b. at Copenhagen, Nov. 24, 1811; graduated in theology from the University of Copenhagen, 1833; studied also in Paris; went into politics, and had a successful career; was from March 22 to Nov. 10, 1848, minister of public worship; bishop of Lolland-Falster, 1849; again minister of public education and worship, 1859 (May 6 to Dec. 2), recalled to form a new cabinet; two months after his dismission he took the portfolio of worship. After the Schleswig-Holstein war, he emigrated to New Zealand, but returned in 1869, and since 1871 has... been bishop of Lolland. His writings are numerous, but very many are of political, temporary, or local interest. He is best known by his World of Prayer, 1851 (English trans., Edinburgh, 1879). Of his later writings may be mentioned Laurentius Vala und das Konzil zu Florence, German trans., Gotha, 1882; Festklang, Ger. trans., 1888.

MOORHOUSE, George, D.D. (Williams College, Williams- town, Mass., 1865), Congregationalist; b. in Andover, Mass., May 27, 1831; graduated at Williams College, Williams-town, Mass., 1851, and at Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1855; was pastor at Andover, Mass., 1855-61; at Oakland, Cal., 1861-72, and since 1874; professor of systematic theology and church history in the Pacific Theological Seminary, Oakland, since 1870; associate editor of The Pacific since 1863. He was one of the commission of twenty-five appointed by the National Council of Congregational Churches to prepare a statement of doctrine and a catechism (1881-84). He is the author of Historical Manual of the South Church, Andover, 1859; Handbook of the Congregational Church of California, 1883, 4th ed. 1888; The Religion of Loyalty, Oakland, 1865; The Prominent Characteristics of the Congregational Churches, San Francisco, 1866.

MOODY, Dwight Lyman, Congregational layman; b. at Northfield, Feb. 5, 1837; worked on a farm until seventeen years old, then became clerk in a shoe-store in Boston; joined a Congregational church; in 1856 went to Chicago; during the Civil War was employed by the Christian Commission, and after by the Young Men's Christian Association of Chicago as lay missionary. A church was the result of his efforts. This was burned in the great Chicago fire in 1871; but a new one, accommodating twenty-five hundred persons, has since been erected. From 1873 to 1875 he and Mr. I. D. Sankey (see title) held revival meetings in Great Britain, and they have since been associated in revival work upon an extensive scale there (again in 1883) and in America. Mr. Moody has published The Second Coming of Christ, Chicago, 1877; The Way and the Word, 1877; Secret Power; or, The Secret of Success in Christian Life and Work, 1881; The Way to God, and how to find it, 1884. Several collections of his sermons have been published; e.g., Glad Tidings (New York, 1876); Great Joy (1877), To all People (1877); Best Thoughts and Discourses (with sketch of his life and Sankey's), 1876; also Arrows and Anecdotes (with sketch of life), 1877.

MOORE, Dunlop, D.D. (Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1877), Presbyterian; b. at Lurgan, County Armagh, Ireland, July 25, 1830; studied at Edinburgh and Belfast, graduated 1854; was missionary of the Irish Presbyterian Church to Gujurat, India, 1855-67; to the Jews, Vienna, 1869-74; since 1875 has been pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, New Brighton, Penn. He assisted in translating the Scriptures into the Gujurati language; composed tracts on Missionary subjects; translated into English M. N. Nacht's, and edited a monthly periodical, The Gyanipakda, in the same tongue; translated with Dr. S. T. Lowrie Nagelsbach's Isaiah, in the American Lange series (New York, 1876); and has contributed to various reviews.

MOORE, George Foot, D.D. (Marietta College, Marietta, O., 1885), Presbyterian; b. at West Chester, Penn., Oct. 15, 1851; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1872, and at Union (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, New York, City, 1877; became pastor of the Putnam Presbyterian Church, Zanesville, O., 1878; Hitchcock professor of the Hebrew language and literature, Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1883.

MOORE, William Eves, D.D. (Marietta College, Marietta, O., 1873), Presbyterian; b. at Strauburg, Penn., April 1, 1845; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1874; studied theology with Rev. Dr. Lyman H. Atwater at Fairfield, Conn.; became pastor at West Chester, Penn., 1880, and at Columbus, O., 1872. Since 1884 he has been permanent clerk of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church. He is the author of the New Digest of the Acts and Deliverances of the Presbyterian Church (New School), Philadelphia, 1861; Presbyterian Digest (United Church), 1873, new ed. 1886.

MOORE, William Walter, Presbyterian (Southern Church); b. at Charlotte, N.C., June 14, 1857; educated at Davidson College, N.C., 1878, and at Union Theological Seminary, Hampden-Sidney, Va., 1881; became evangelist of Mecklenburg Presbytery, N.C., 1881; pastor at Millersburg, Ky., 1882; associate professor of Oriental literature in that seminary, 1883.

MOORHOUSE, Right Rev. James, D.D. (jure dignitatis, Cambridge, 1876), lord bishop of Manchester, Church of England; b. at Sheffield, Eng., in the year 1826; educated at St. John's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (senior optime) 1853, M.A. 1860; was ordained deacon 1858, priest 1854; became curate of St. Neots, 1855; of Sheffield, 1855; and Horsey, Middlesex, 1859; perpetual curate of St. John's, Fitzroy Square, London, 1861; vicar of Paddington, and rural dean, 1867; bishop of Melbourne, Australia, 1876; translated to the see of Manchester, in succession to Dr. Fraser, 1888. He was Hulsean lecturer at Cambridge, 1865; Warburtonian lecturer, London, 1874; chaplain to the queen, and prebendary of Caddington Major in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, 1874-76. He is the author of Nature and Revelation (four sermons before University of Cambridge), London, 1861; Our Lord Jesus Christ the Subject of Growth in Wisdom (Hulsean Lectures), 1866; Jacob (three sermons before University of Cambridge), 1870; The Expectation of the Christ, 1879.

MORAN, Most Rev. Patrick Francis, D.D., Roman Catholic; b. at Leighlinbridge, County Carlow, Ireland, Sept. 16, 1830; was graduated at the Irish College of St. Agatha, Rome, and made vice-president of it, and professor of Hebrew in the College of the Propaganda, 1866; became private secretary to Cardinal Cullen at Dublin, 1869, and bishop of Ossory, 1872. He is the author of Memoir of the Most Rev. Oliver Plunkett, Dublin, 1861; Essays on the Origin . . . of the Early Irish Church, 1864; History of the Catholic Archbishops of Dublin, 1864; History of the Persecutions of the Popes by H. Agricola and the Purtians, 1865; Acta S. Benedicti, 1872; Monasticon Hibernicum, 1873; Spicilegium Ossoriense, being a Collection of Documents to illustrate the History of the Irish Church from the Reformation to the Year 1800, 1874-75, 2 vols.

MOREHOUSE, Henry Lyman, D.D. (University of Rochester, N.Y., 1879), Baptist; b. at Stanford, Dutchess County, N.Y., Oct. 2, 1834; graduated at the University of Rochester, N.Y., 1838; and at Rochester (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1864; became pastor of the First Baptist Church, East Saginaw, Mich., 1864; of East Avenue Baptist Church, Rochester, N.Y., 1873; corresponding secretary of the American Baptist Home Mission Society, and editor of the Baptist Home Mission Advocate.

MORISON, James, D.D. (Adrian College, Adrian, Mich., 1862; University of Glasgow, 1882), Evangelical Union; b. at Bathgate, Linlithgowshire, Scotland, Feb. 14, 1816; graduated in arts at the University of Edinburgh, and studied theology at the United Presbyterian Halls of Glasgow and Edinburgh; was pastor in Kilmarnock, 1840–51, and in Glasgow, 1851–84. From the first year of his pastorate he had a hard battle to fight for the doctrine of the universality of Christ's atonement. The battle continued for more than twenty years. The ecclesiastical outcome is a group of about a hundred churches in Scotland, called the Evangelical Union. Since 1843 he has been principal and professor of New-Testament exegesis in Evangelical Union Hall, Glasgow. He holds to 'the three great universalities: (1) God's love to all,' (2) Christ's atonement for all,' (3) the Holy Spirit's influence shed forth on all.' He is the author of The Extent of the Atonement, London, 1842; Saving Faith, 1842; An Exposition of the Ninth Chapter of the Epistle to the Romans, 1849; Vindication of the Universality of the Atonement, 1861; APOLOGY FOR Evangelical DOCTRINES, 1863; A CRITICAL EXPOSITION OF THE THIRD Chapter of the Epistle to the Romans, 1866; A Practical Commentary on the Gospel of St. Matthew, 1870, 5th ed. 1883; Do on St. Mark, 1873, 3d ed. 1882 (the last two republished from last edition, Boston, Mark 1882, Matthew 1883).

MORRIS, Edward Dafydd, D.D. (Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1863), LL.D. (Maryville College, Maryville, Tenn., 1883), Presbyterian; b. at Utica, N.Y., Oct. 31, 1825; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1849, and at Auburn (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1852; was pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Auburn, N.Y., 1852–55; of the Second Church, Columbus, O., 1855–47, superintendent of church history for the Synodical Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O., 1867–74, and since of theology. He was moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly at Cleveland, O., in 1875. Besides review articles, he has published Outlines of Christian Doctrine, Cincinnati, 1859 (only for students' use); Ecclesiology, Treatise on the Church, 1873.

MORRIS, John Gottlieb, D.D. (Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., 1839), LL.D. (do. 1875), Lutheran; b. at York, Penn., Nov. 14, 1803; graduated at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1823, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1826; was pastor of the First English Lutheran Church, Baltimore, Md., 1827–60; librarian of the Peabody Institute in that city, 1860–63; since has been non-resident professor of pulpit eloquence and relations of science and revelation, in the theological seminary, Gettysburg, Penn.; lecturer on natural history in Pennsylvania College; was president of the Maryland State Bible Society, and vice-president of the Maryland Historical Society; has received diplomas from the Ante-Columbian Society of Northern Antiquaries of Denmark, from the Natur historische Gesellschaft of Nuremberg, and from the Royal Historical Society of London; and is a corresponding and honorary member of ten or twelve scientific and historical societies in the United States. He is the author or translator of Henry and Antonio (translated from Breit schneider), Philadelphia, 1851 (2d ed. under title To Rome and Back again, 1883); Von Leonardo's Geology (translated), Philadelphia, 1840; Life of John Arndt, 1853; Martin Behaim, the German Cosmographer, 1853; Life of Catharina von Bora, 1856; The Blind Girl of Wittenberg, Philadelphia, 1856; Quaint Sayings and Doings concerning Luther, 1859; Catalogue of Lepidoptera of North America, 1890, and Synopsis of the Diurnal Lepidoptera of the United States, Smithsonian Institute (both Washington), 1862; The Lords Baltimore, Baltimore, 1874; Bibliotheca Luterana, Philadelphia, 1876; Fifty Years in the Lutheran Ministry, 1875; A Day in Capernaum (trans. from Delitzsch), 1879; The Diet of Augsburg, 1879; Augsburg Confession and the Thirty-nine Articles, 1879; Journeys of Luther: their Relation to the Work of the Reformation, 1880; Luther at Wartburg and Coburg, 1882; Life of Luther (trans. from Köstlin), 1882; Lutheran Doctrine of the Lord's Supper, 1883; Memoirs of the Stark Family, 1886, etc.

MORSE, Richard Gary, Presbyterian; b. at Hudson, N.Y., Sept. 10, 1841; graduated at Yale College, 1862; studied at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1865–66, '67 (graduated), and at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1866–67; was ordained Dec. 21, 1868; was editor in New-York City, 1867–71; has been since of the executive committee of the Young Men's Christian Association of the United States and Canada since 1873.

MOULTON, William Feddian, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1874), Wesleyan; b. at Leek, Staffordshire, Eng., March 14, 1833; graduated at London University, 1856, and gained the gold medal for mathematics, and prizes for scriptural examination and biblical criticism. In 1858 he was appointed classical tutor in the Wesleyan Theological College, Richmond; and in 1874 head master of the Leys School, Cambridge, a Wesleyan institution. In 1872 he was elected a member of the Royal Historical Society; made an honorary M.A. by Cambridge, 1877; and was a member of the New-Westminster Company of Bible-revisers (1870–81). He translated and edited Winer's Grammar of New-Testament Greek, Edinburgh, 1870, 2d ed. 1876; and wrote History of the English Bible, London, 1875.

MUDGE, Elisha, Christian; b. at Blenheim, Canada West, April 17, 1834; was principal of Union School, Edwardsburg, Mich.; minister at Maple Rapids, Mich., twenty years; countysuperintended of schools, Clinton County, Mich., six years; in 1882 became president of the Union Christian College, Merom, Ind.

MUELLER, George (originally Georg Friedrich), Plymouth Brother, founder of the Bristol Orphanage; b. at Kroppenstedt, near Halberstadt, Prussia, Sept. 27, 1803. After preliminary training at the Cathedral classical school at Halberstadt, at Heimmersleben, under a classical tutor, and at the Nordhausen gymnasion, he entered the University of Halle, 1825. His early life had been careless, even profligate, and his reckless course involved him in pecuniary embarrassments. Once (during the Christmas holidays of 1821) he was imprisoned for debt contracted at a hotel in Wollenbüttel. He often told deliberate lies. But shortly after entering the university he was converted, and, declining to receive any further support from his father, entered upon that life of faith in the Lord to supply his needs, which has been so remarkable. He determined to become a missionary, and meanwhile manifested his Christian zeal in visiting the sick, distributing tracts, and in conversing upon the subject of religion with persons whom he casually met. In August, 1826, he began to preach, having obtained license to do so in consequence of the very honorable testimonials he brought with him to the university. For two months he lived in Franke's Orphan House at Halle, in the free lodgings provided for poor divinity students. In March, 1829, having through ill health obtained release from military duty,—an obligation which he had feared would prevent him from accepting the society's appointment received June, 1828,—he went to London to prepare himself for missionary work among the Jews, in the service of the London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews. But after some months of the prescribed study of Hebrew, Chaldee, and German Jewish, he left the society, January, 1830; joined the Plymouth Brethren; became minister at Teignmouth; and married Mary Groves, the daughter of Kitto's friend. Of his own accord he declined to receive any stated salary, abolished pew-rents, and from October, 1830, lived upon voluntary offerings put in the box provided for them in the chapel. This course often reduced himself and wife to great straits; but by prayer and simple faith their wants were always ultimately relieved. In 1832 he became pastor of Gideon's Chapel, Bristol. Impressed by the number of destitute children he found in Bristol, he prayed for divine guidance in doing something for them. Being led thereto, as he believed, he collected the children at 5 A.M., gave them a piece of bread for breakfast, then taught them to read, and read the Bible to them for about an hour and a half. But the plan not working well, he abandoned it, and in 1834 started "The Scriptural Knowledge Institution for Home and Abroad," which was designed to assist day-schools, Sunday schools, and adult-schools; to circulate the Holy Scriptures; to aid missionary work; to board, clothe, and educate scripturally, whole orphan children. The institution, he decided, should have no patron but the Lord, no workers but believers, and no debts. Up to 1884 it had provided for the education of 95,143 children and grown persons in its schools; distributed over 4,000,000 copies or portions of the Bible; spent £104,633.12.5d. on missionary work; and trained up 6,892 orphans at a cost of £661,186.9s.2d. It is still flourishing. He then asked the Lord to give him a suitable house for the orphan children, assistants for the work, and a thousand pounds in money. And he was heard. Provided with assistants and money, he hired a house on Wilson Street, Bristol, and opened his orphanage on April 11, 1836. A second house was opened about eight months after the first. By June, 1837, he had received the asked-for thousand pounds. He then opened a third house; a fourth, March, 1844. He then bought a site on Ashley Down, near Bristol, and put up the first building, 1846. There are now there five immense orphan-houses, containing over two thousand inmates. The last one was opened in 1869. In February, 1870, his wife, who had so faithfully joined him in all his enterprises, died. After a time he re-married. Besides managing his orphanages and the institution, and preaching to his congregation, he has also taken missionary tours through the British Isles, the United States (going across the continent, 1877). In 1881 he visited the East, and in 1882 India. Besides what he does not in the ordinary way advertise any of his enterprises. But the circulation of his Life of Trust: Narrative of the Lord's Dealings with George Müller, first issued in 1837, and continued in 1841, 1844, and 1856, which has been reprinted in repeated editions in New York, translated into German (Stuttgart, 1844, 2 parts), and into French (Paris, 1848), and other books and pamphlets published under his auspices, secures public attention to them. It remains true, however, that the Orphanage has no endowment, and none of the usual machinery of support. Mr. Müller looks to God to supply the thousands of children therein gathered, and to pay all the expenses of their care. Results have justified his confidence. Money comes in, sometimes at very critical moments, and the work is sustained. Besides the Narrative above referred to, Mr. Müller has published seven other addresses. London, 1876; Preaching Tours, 1883, etc. Cf. Mrs. E. R. Pitman, George Müller, London, 1885.

MUHELMAN, Heinrich Ferdinand, Ph.D.
MULFORD, Elisha, LL.D. (Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1872), Episcopalian; b. at Montrose, Susquehanna County, Penn., Nov. 19, 1833; d. at Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 9, 1885. He graduated from Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1855; studied theology at Union Theological Seminary, New York City, at Andover, Mass., and in Halle and Heidelberg; was ordained deacon 1869, priest 1872; had charges at Darien, Conn., 1861; South Orange, N.J., 1861-84; Frienidersville, Penn., 1877-81. From 1884 to 1877 he was without charge at Montrose, Penn.; after 1881 he resided at Cambridge, where he lectured in the Episcopal Divinity School. He wrote The Nation, the Foundation of Civil Order and Political Life in the United States, New York, 1870, 9th ed. 1884; The Republic of God, an Institute of Theology, 1881, 7th ed. 1884.

The main feature of Dr. Mulford's theology, as presented in his Republic of God, is the union of the utmost liberty of philosophic thought with Christian dogmas. He urges the personality of God as the central principle of the universe, but in a form so comprehensive and elevated as to seem no longer incompatible with that conception of Deity, to which modern thought is approximating, of an infinite energy diffused throughout the universe, from whom all things proceed, and in whom they consist. The nature as well as the possibility of a revelation is based upon the postulate, that humanity is endowed potentially with the possibility of a revelation, not as constituting a great objective epoch in human history, finding its highest and absolute expression in a spiritual order, and resurrection is not postponed to a distant future, but is immediate. But the "last things" naturally find no extensive treatment in a theology whose object is to enforce the reality of the life of the spirit in humanity, in this present world. To this life of the spirit, the Bible, the church, and the sacraments bear witness, by this also becoming divine agencies in the education of the race; but they are the symbols of a spiritual order, and not to be identified with the order itself. The Bible witnesses to a revelation, but is not the revelation; sacraments witness to a divine process of purification and feeding, but are not themselves the process; the church bears witness to a life of the spirit in humanity, which goes beyond its boundaries as an organization. So strong is the emphasis laid upon this point,—the reality of the life of the spirit,—that Dr. Mulford has devoted to it a chapter which he regarded as the most important in his book, entitled Christianity not a Religion and not a Philosophy, in which he disclaims the formalism of the one, and the tendency to abstraction of the other. It was the burden of his teaching and conversation, that revelation was co-efficient with the reason; that it was through experience, but not from experience; that theology was the interpretation of life,—an appeal to life closing every theological argument; that the true centre of theology must be the living, present God, not theories about him, not covenants or attributes or doctrines of anthropology. His thought has much that resembles kierkegaard and maurice; and, as in the case of the latter, the difficulty in understanding him springs mainly from what is distinctive in his theology, rather than from obscurity of style. Among German theologians he was most indebted to rothe, with whom he asserts the continuity of the incarnation, the abiding presence of the spiritual or essential Christ as distinguished from the historical Christ. With Hegel he maintains that principle of realism, which was also characteristic of the great theologians of the scholastic age, that the highest and necessary thought of man is identical with reality; as in the condensed expression which forms his argument for the existence of God,—"the idea of God is in, with, and through the being of God." But apart from his kinship with these and other thinkers, his work in theology has a character of its own. It was meditated and conceived in that inspiring epoch in American history which drew from him his book. The treatise he carried theology into statesmanship, finding in the solidarity of the state a divine personality, so in his later work he carried the national principle into theology, expanding the idea of the nation into the Republic of God,—the solidarity of mankind in the incarnate Christ.

MUNGER, Theodore Thornton, D.D. (Illinois College, Jacksonville, Ill., 1883), Congregationalist; b. at Bainbridge, Chenango County, N.Y., March 5, 1830; graduated from Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1851, and the theological seminary there, 1855; was pastor at Dorchester, Mass., 1856-60; Haverhill, 1862-70; Lawrence, 1871-75; lived in San José, Cal., and established a Congregational church, 1875-76; pastor at North Adams, Mass., 1877-85; since, pastor of United Church, New Haven, Conn. He is the author of On the Threshold, Boston, 1881, 20th ed. 1885 (reprinted London, Eng.); The Freedom of Faith, 1883, 15th ed. 1885 (two English reprints); Lamps and Paths, 1885; besides numerous sermons and contributions to literary magazines and religious newspapers.

MURPHY, James Gracey, LL.D., D.D. (both from Trinity College, Dublin, 1842 and 1880 respectively), Presbyterian; b. at Ballyaltikilikan, parish of Comber, county Down, Ireland, Jan. 12, 1808; entered Trinity College, Dublin, as sizar, 1827, became scholar 1830, graduated A.B. 1833; was minister at Ballysharmon, 1836; classical head master at the Royal Belfast Academical Institution, 1841; professor of Hebrew, Presbyterian College, Belfast, 1847. He is the author of A Latin Grammar, London, 1847; A Hebrew Grammar, 1857; Nineteen Impossibilities of Part First of Colenso on the Pentateuch shown to be Possible, Belfast, 1863; The Human Mind, 1873; and of the well-known commentaries upon Genesis (Edinburgh, 1864), Exodus (1866), Leviticus (1872), The Psalms (1875), Revelation (London, 1882), Daniel (1884), all reprinted in United States except Revelation.

MUSTON, Alexis, Lic. Theol., D.D. (both Strassburg, 1834), Reformed Church of France; b. at La Tour (Vallées Vaudoises), Feb. 11, 1810; educated at Lausanne and at Strassburg; ordained at La Tour, 1833; exiled from Piedmont (1835), he went to Nimes, France, where he was naturalized; since 1836 has lived at Bourdeaux, first as assistant (1836-40), then as pastor. He is the author of Histoire des Vaudois, vol. i. Paris, 1834 (the occasion of his exile, it having been put by the Roman-Catholic hierarchy upon the Index); L'Israël des Alpes, Paris, 1851, 4 vols. (a complete history of the Waldenses, English trans. last ed. London, 1875, 2 vols.; German trans. Duisburg, 1857); articles in the Strassburg Revue de théologie, the Revue du protestantisme, etc. Cf. article Waldenses in Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia, vol. iii., p. 2476.

MYRBERG, Otto Ferdinand, Ph.D. (Upsala, 1849), Lic. Theol. (Upsala, 1851), Diet. (by the King of Sweden, 1883), Lutheran; b. at Gothenburg, Sweden, April 26, 1824; studied theology at Upsala, and received holy orders in 1853; became dean of the Trinity Church of Upsala, and professor of exegetical theology at the University of Upsala, 1866. He is the author of In librum qui Joëlis inscriptur brevis commentatio academica, Upsala, 1851; De schismate Donatistarum, dissertatio academ., 1856; Commentarius in epistolam Joanneam, diss. acad., 1859; Om aposteln Petrus och den äldsta kyrkans falska gnosis ("On the Apostle Peter and the False Gnosis of the Early Church"), 1863; Den hel. skrifts lära om försoningen ("The Doctrine of the Holy Scriptures on the Atonement"), 1870; Pauli brev till Romarene i ny översättning med textkritiska nofer ("The Epistle to the Romans, new translation with Textual Critical Notes"), 1871; Salomos ordspråk, Från grundtexten översatt ("The Proverbs, translated from the Hebrew"), 1875; and several pamphlets.
NAVILLE, Jules Ernst, Swiss religious philosopher; b. at Chancy, near Geneva, Dec. 13, 1816; studied at the University of Geneva; became licentiate in theology, and was ordained in 1839; was professor of philosophy in the university, 1844; removed (1846) in consequence of the Geneva revolution, and has since held no official position, except during 1860-61 when he was professor of apologetics in the theological faculty; but he lectures in the department of letters, and is an admired preacher. He has written many books (see Lichtenberger, vol. xiii., pp. 146, 147). The following have been translated: Modern Atheism; or, The Heavenly Father, Boston, 1867, 2d ed. 1882; The Problem of Evil, New York, 1871; The Theory and Practice of Representative Elections, London, 1872; The Christ, Edinburgh, 1880; Modern Physics: Studies Historical and Philosophical, 1883.

NEELY, Right Rev. Henry Adams, D.D. (Iliobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1866; Bishops' College, Quebec, Can., 1875), Episcopalian, bishop of the diocese of Maine; b. at Fayetteville, Onondaga County, N.Y., May 14, 1830; graduated at Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1854; was tutor in the college 1850-52, while studying theology under Bishop De Lancey; became rector of Calvary Church, Utica, N.Y., 1852; of Christ Church, Rochester, 1855; chaplain of Iliobart College, 1862; assistant minister of Trinity Church, with charge of Trinity Chapel, New-York City, 1864; consecrated bishop, 1867. He is a "conservative Anglican." He is the author of occasional sermons, review articles, etc.

NEIL, Charles, Church of England; b. in St. John's Wood, London, May 14, 1811; educated at Trinity Hall, Cambridge; graduated B.A. 1862, M.A. 1866; was ordained deacon 1865, priest 1866; became curate of Bradford Abbas, near Sherborne, Dorset, 1865; vicar of St. Paul's, Bethnal Green, 1868; incumbent of St. Matthias, Poplar, London, 1875. He was called to the bar (Inner Temple), 1864. He is a liberal Evangelical Churchman. He is joint editor of The Clergyman's Magazine, London, 1870, sqq. He is the author of Eleven Diagrams illustrating the Lord's Prayer, London, 1867; Holy Teaching (key to pre- ceding), 1867; The Expositor's Commentary (vol. i. Romans, 1877, 2d ed. 1882); A Classified List of Subjects proposed for Discussion at the Meeting of Ruraleccapal Chapters, 1881; The Christian Visitor's Handbook, 1882; edited John Todd's Index Rerum, London, 1884; with Canon Spence and J. S. Exell, Thirty Thousand Thoughts, 1893, sqq. (to be completed in 6 vols.) Some of his tracts and pamphlets are, Am I answerable for my Belief? 1871; Parochial Reason Why, 1872; Cecilia, or Near the Museum, 1873; The Divine Aspects of Redemption, 1875; The Preaching and Value of the Doctrine of Christ crucified, 1875; Open-air Preaching, or a Common Trust And Reading-marker (No. 1, key to Chronicles and Kings, historical and geographical card), 1884.

NESTLE, (Christoph) Eberhard, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1874), Lic. Theol. (hon., Tübingen, 1883), Evangelical; b. at Stuttgart, Württemberg, May 1, 1851; studied in Stuttgart, at the evangelical theological seminaries at Blaubeuren and Tübingen, and at Leipzig (1874-75), and in England (1875-77); was tutor at the evangelical theological seminary at Tübingen, 1877-80; diaconus at Münstersing, Württemberg, 1880-83; and since has been gymnasia professor at Ulm. He is an adherent of the Vermittingtheologie. He has published Die israelitischen Eigennamen nach ihrer religiösgeschichtlichen Bedeutung (prize essay of the Tyler Society), Haarlem, 1876; Conradi Pellicani de modo legendi atque intelligendi Hebraum, Tübingen, 1877; Psalterium tetratplum (Greek, Syriance, Chaldaische, Latine), Tübingen, London, Leiden, Paris, 1879; Tschendorf's Septuaginta, 6th ed. Leipzig, 1889 (with appendix, Veteris Testamenti græci codices Vaticanus et Sinaiticus cum textu recepto collati); Brevis lingua Syriaca grammatica, litteratura, chresimathia, cum glossario, Carlsruhe and Leipzig, 1881.

NEVIN, Alfred, D.D. (Lafayette College, Easton, Penn.), LL.D. (Western University of Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh, Penn.), Presbyterian; b. at Shippensburg, Penn., March 14, 1816; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1834; admitted to the bar at Carlisle, Penn., 1837; studied theology at the Western (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1837-40 (graduated); was licensed by the presbytery of Carlisle, 1840; became pastor of the Cedar-Grove Church, Lancaster County, Penn., 1840; of the German Reformed Church, Chambersburg, 1845; of the Second Presbyterian Church, Lancaster, Penn., 1852; of the Alexander Church (which he organized), Philadelphia, 1862; resigned 1863; was editor (and proprietor) of The Standard, Philadelphia (now The North-western Presbyterian, Chicago), 1860-63; of The Presbyterian Weekly, Philadelphia (now The Baltimore Observer), 1861-72; and of The Presbyterian Journal, Philadelphia, 1857-80; stated supply of the Union Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, from September, 1855, to January, 1886. He addressed the alumni of Jefferson College, 1855; was lecturer in the National School of Oratory, Philadelphia, 1878-80; was one of the original members of the Presbyterian Historical Society, Philadelphia (organized 1852, incorporated 1857), and trustee 1852-80; member of the Presbyterian Board of Publication, 1858-61; trustee of Lafayette College, 1858-61, and of the Presbyterian Hospital in Philadelphia, 1871-78; has been a number of times a commissioner to the General Assembly, and by its appointment has represented the Presbyterian Church in the Massachusetts Congregational Association (1855), in the synod of the Reformed Dutch Church (1874), and in the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Canada (1879). He was moderator of the synod of Phila-NEVIN, John Williamson, D.D. (Franklin College, New Athens, O., 1870; Presbyterian; b. at Shippensburg, Cumberland County, Penn., May 9, 1814; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1833, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1838; became pastor at Portsmouth, O., 1837; president of Franklin College, New Athens, O., 1841; pastor at Mount Vernon, O., 1845; at Cleveland, O., 1851; Lancaster, Penn., 1855; in Philadelphia (First Reformed), 1857; retired from the pastorate 1875, and joined the Central Presbytery of Philadelphia. He is the author of numerous hymns, which are found in nearly all the evangelical hymn-books in the United States; of several pamphlets; and of Man of God. The Girth, Lancaster, Penn., 1868; The Minister's Handbook, Philadelphia, 1872; Thoughts about Christ, 1892; one of the editors of History of all Religious Denominations, Philadelphia, 1872.

NEVIN, John Williamson, D.D. (Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1830); LL.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1879); Reform'd (German); b. in Franklin County, Penn., Feb. 20, 1808; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., in 1821, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary in 1826, where from 1826 to 1828 he taught Hebrew as substitute for Dr. Charles Hodge, who had gone to Europe to study. During the following year he was stated supply at Big Spring, Penn. From 1829 to 1840 he was professor at Allegheny in the Western Theological Seminary. He then followed a call to the theological seminary of the Reformed (German) Church at Mercersburg, in which he taught theology from that time (1840) until 1861. He was also president of Marshall College, Mercersburg, from 1841 to 1855, and of Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, 1866 to 1876, when he retired to Caernarvon Place, near Lancaster, Penn., where he died June 7, 1886. He was one of the founders of the "Mercersburg theology," for which see the Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia, ii., 1473 sqq. He edited The Mercersburg Review from 1849 to 1853, and wrote the largest part of its contents himself.

Of the articles contributed by him to the Review then and subsequently, especially noteworthy are the following: Doctrine of the Reformed Church on the Lord's Supper, in Reply to Dr. Charles Hodge of Princeton, 1849; The Apostles' Creed: Origin, Constitution, and Plan, 1849; Early Christianity, 1851; Cyprian, 1852; Dutch Crucade, 1854; Review of Dr. Hodge's Commentary on Ephesians, 1857; Introduction to the Tercentenary Edition of the Heidelberg Catechism, 1863; The Liturgical Question, 1868; Vindication of the Revised Liturgy, 1871—. Answer to Professor Dorner, 1865; Revelation and Redemption, 1871. In book form have appeared from him, Biblical Antiquities, Philadelphia, 1828, 2 vols., revised ed. 1849, reprinted Edinburgh, 1853; The Anxious Bench, Chambersburg, Penn., 1842; Dr. Schaff's The Principle of Protestantism, translated with introduction and appendage, 1845; The Mystical Presence, Philadelphia, 1846; History and Genius of the Heidelberg Catechism, Chambersburg, 1847; An Address for the Spirit of Sect and Schism, New York, 1848.

NEWMAN, Albert Henry, D.D. (Mercer University, Macon, Ga., 1883), LL.D. (South-Western Baptist University, Jackson, Tenn., 1888; Baptist; b. in Edgefield County, S.C., Aug. 25, 1832; graduated at Mercer University, Macon, Ga., 1871, and Rochester (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1875; studied Oriental languages in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Greensville, S.C. (now Louisville, Ky.), 1875-76; became acting professor of church history in Rochester (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1877, and professor 1880; professor of church history and comparative religion in the Baptist (Theological) College, Toronto, Ontario, Can., 1881. His theological position is conservative. He translated (with additional notes) Immer's Hermeneutics of the New Testament, Andover, 1877; and has written numerous newspaper and review articles.

NEWMAN, Francis No. X., L.L.D., by: b. in London, June 27, 1805; educated at Worcester College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (double first-class), 1826; was fellow of Balliol, 1826-30, but resigned because unable conscientiously to subscribe to the Thirty-nine Articles, which was then requisite before obtaining a master's degree. From 1830 to 1831 he lived and travelled in the East; became classical tutor at Bristol College, 1834, and in Manchester New College, 1840; professor of Latin in University College, London, 1846. He resigned in 1863, and has since devoted himself to literature. He is the brother of Cardinal Newman, and, like him, has left the Church of England, in which he was born; but, unlike him, he has thrown away all religious belief. His writings are numerous. Of theological interest are, History of Hebrew Monarchy, London, 1847; The Soul, its Senses and Aspirations, 1849; Phases of Faith, Passages from my own Creed, 1850; Catholic Union, Essay toward a Church of the Future, 1854; Theism, Doctrinal and Practical, 1858.

NEWMAN, His Eminence John Henry, cardinal deacon of the Roman-Catholic Church; b. in London, Feb. 21, 1801; educated at Trinity College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (second-class in classics), 1820; in 1822, fellow of Oriel College; in 1825, vice-principal of St Albans's Hall; in 1828, tutor-of his college; in 1828 became incumbent of St. Mary's, Oxford, and chaplain of Littlemore in the next year. In 1831 he resigned for the second time, but retained his incumbency until 1843, standing in the highest esteem for his noble mental and moral qualities, and wielding a great influence upon the undergraduates. He stood with Pusey as recognized leader of the High Church party. He began in the press the Tracts for the Times, and wrote No. 90 (the last of the series), which appeared March, 1841, in which he endeavored to show how the Thirty-nine Articles may be interpreted in the Roman-Catholic sense. In 1842 he established at Littlemore a kind of monastery, of which he was head for three years. At length, in 1845, he took the step to which his avowed principles logically led him: seceded to the Church of Rome, and entered her priesthood. He was in 1847 appointed to found the Oratory of St. Philip Neri, in England; in 1854, rector of the newly founded Catholic University at Dublin; resigned in 1858, and retired to Birmingham to take charge of a school for the sons of Roman-Catholic gentry at Edgbaston, near that city. On May 12, 1879, Pope Leo XIII. created him a cardinal deacon of the Holy Roman Church.

NEWTON, Richard, D.D. (Kenyon College, Gambier, O., 1843), Episcopalian (Low Church); b. in Liverpool, Eng., July 25, 1813; graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1836, and at General Theological Seminary, New York City, 1839; became rector of St. Paul's Church, Philadelphia, 1840; of Church of Epiphany, 1842; of Church of the Covenant, 1882. He has published a great number of volumes in all; some of these have been translated into more than twenty different languages; they are mostly discourses to children and youth. Of those recently issued may be mentioned, Pearls from the East, Stories and Incidents from Bible History, Philadelphia, 1881; Covenanter Names and Privileges, New York, 1882; A Bible Portrait-Gallery, Philadelphia, 1885; Heroes of the Reformation, 1885.

NEWTON, Richard Heber, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1881), Episcopalian (Broad Churchman); b. in Philadelphia, Oct. 31, 1810; studied in the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1827-32; the Master's Seminary, 1833-35; a student in the Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, 1835-36; became pastor at Chambersburg, Penn., 1860; became pastor at Chambersburg, Penn., 1860; of the Second Presbyterian Church, St. Louis, Mo., 1864. He was moderator of the General Assembly of 1872, at St. Louis; in 1883 declined election to professorship of pastoral theology in Western Theological Seminary. Besides many published sermons, he has written The Eastern Question in Prophecy, St. Louis, 1879.

NICHOLSON, Right Rev. William Rufus, D.D. (Theological Seminary of the Diocese of Ohio, Gambier, 1857), Reformed Episcopalian; b. in Green County, Miss., Jan. 8, 1822; graduated at La Grange College, North Ala., 1840; became pastor of the Poydras-street Methodist-Episcopal Church, New Orleans, La., 1842; entered the Protestant Episcopal Church, 1843; M.A., Cincinnati, 1849; of St. Paul's, Boston, 1859; of Trinity Church, Newark, N.J., 1872; of Second Reformed Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, 1874; was consecrated bishop in February, 1876. He is the author of some pamphlets and essays, of which may be mentioned, James the Lord's Brother, and Jesus, were equally the Sons of Mary (in Protestant-Episcopal Quarterly Review, New York, 1880); Reasons why I became a Reformed Episcopalian, Philadelphia, 1875; Concerning Sancification, 1875; The Priesthood of the Church of God, 1870; The Inward Priest, the Church of Our Saviour, 1877; A Call to the Ministry, 1877.

NICOLL, William Robertson, Free Church; b. in Free Church manse, Auchindoir, Aberdeenshire, Oct. 10, 1851; graduated at University of Aberdeen, M.A., 1870; completed curriculum at Free Church College, Aberdeen, and became minister at Mortlach, Banffshire, 1874; at Kelso, 1877. Since 1880 he has edited The Household Library of Exposition; since January, 1885, The Expositor, in succession to Dr. Cox; and since 1886 three new series,—The Foreign Biblical Library, The Theological Educator, and The Expositor's Bible. He has published The Calls to Christ, London, 1877, 2d ed. 1878; Songs of Rest, Edinburgh, 1879, 5th ed. London, 1885 (2d series, 1885); The Incarnate Saviour, A Life of Jesus Christ, Edinburgh, 1881 (reprinted, New York, 1881); The Lamb of God, 1883, 2d ed. London, 1884; English Theology in the Victorian Era, a Biographical and Critical History (announced). Of his works (all in Danish and English) are: Concerning Sanctification, 1875; The Priesthood of the Church of God, 1876; The Priesthood of the Church of God, 2d ed., 1880); The Waldensians in Italy (German trans., Gotha, 1880, pp. 40); Free Church and Masonry (opposed), 1882, 3d ed. 1882 (German trans., Gotha, 1880, pp. 40); Free Church and the Church of Canada; b. at Southborough, near Bromley, Kent, Eng., April 24, 1829; educated at King's College, London, and Exeter College, 1847-59; became priest there, 1862; pastor at Tübingen, Luxemburg, 1865; Jesus, 1858; acting professor at Innsbruck, Austria, 1859; ordinary professor of church law there, 1866, and at the same time regens of the theological convivium; and since 1861 member of the Luxemburg Archaeological Society. Besides numerous popular religious works, he has written, Maria, die mächtige Patronin zur Riehe, oder die grüftliche Kirche und Schule bei Jesuchristus, Luxemburg, 1857; Commentarius in programmum breviarius de cultu ecclesiastic, Arras and Innsbruck, 1864; Commentarii de rationibus festi ss. cordis Jesu et fcontroli juris canon. eratus, Innsbruck, 1867, 5th ed. 1885; De rationibus festorum mobilium ut quae ecclesiae occidentalis atque orientalis commentarius sui clerorum accommodatus, Wien, 1869; Selecta pietatis exercita erga ss. cor Je and pur. cor Maria, Innsbruck, 1869; Kalendarium manuale ut quae ecclesiae occidentalis et orientalis academiae clerorum accommodatum, 1879-85, 2 vols.

NINDE, William Xavier, D.D. ( Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1874), Methodist bishop; b. at Londonderry, N. H., Apr. 21, 1853; graduated at the Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1855; became pastor, 1856; professor of practical theology, Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., 1873; president of same, 1879; bishop of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, 1884.

NITZSCH, Friedrich August Berthold, Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1858), D.D. (kon., Greifswald, 1866), German theologian; b. at Bonn, Feb. 19, 1832; studied at Berlin, Halle, and Bonn, 1850-55; was Collaborator in the Gymnasium of the "Grauen Kloster" in Berlin, 1857-58; became privat-doctor at Berlin, 1859; ordinary professor of theology at Giesengen, 1868; at Kiel, 1872. He is the author of Das System des Boethius und die ihn zugeschriebenen theologischen Schriften, Berlin, 1859; Augustinus Lehre vom Wunder, 1865; Grundriß der christlichen Moraltheologie (all published) 1870; Luhmer und Aristoteles, Kiel, 1883.

NORMAN, Richard Whitmore, D.C.L. (Bishop's College, Lenoxville, Can., 1873), Episcopal Church of Canada; b. at Southborough, near Bromley, Kent, Eng., April 24, 1829; educated at King's College, London, and Exeter College, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. 1851, M.A. 1854; was ordained deacon 1852, and priest 1853; curate of St. Thomas, Oxford, 1852; fellow of St. Peter's College, Radley, 1853-57; head master of St. Michael's College, Tenbury, 1857-61; warden of St. Peter's College, Radley, 1861-66; assistant minister of St. John the Evangelist, Montreal, Can., 1867-72; of St. James the Apostle, Montreal, 1872-83; rector of St. Matthias, Montreal, since 1883. He has been honorary fellow of St. Michael's College, Tenbury, since 1866; honorary canon of Montreal, and vice-chancellor of Bishops' College, Lennoxville, Can., since 1878; fellow of McGill College, Montreal, since 1878; chairman of Protestant school board since 1878; honorary clerical secretary of the Provincial Synod, 1880-86; vice-president of the Montreal Philharmonic Society, 1880, and of the Art Association, Montreal, 1884; chairman of Montreal Botanic Garden Association, 1885; member of the executive committee and many other important diocesan committees. He is a moderate but decided Anglican. He is the author of Manual of Prayers for the Use of Schools, Oxford, 1856, 3d ed. 1862; Occasional Sermons, 1860; Sermons preached in Radley College Chapel, 1861; and the following pamphlets, etc.: Ritualism, Montreal, 1867; Thoughts on the Conversion of the Heathen, 1867; St. John our Example, 1867; Gallio (sermon), 1868; Harvest (two sermons), 1868-69; Anniversary Sermon (Port Hope School, 1869; Dunham Ladies' College, 1884); Confession (three sermons), 1873; Considerations on the Revised New Testament, 1881; Sermon to Young Men, 1882; Sermon to Young Women, 1882; Lecture on Hymnology, 1885.

NYSTROM, Johan Erik, Ph.D. (Upsala, 1868), General Baptist; b. in Stockholm, Sweden, Sept. 8, 1842; graduated at University of Upsala, 1866; was teacher of languages in the New Elementary School of Stockholm, 1867; in Greek and Hebrew in the Baptist Seminary there, 1867-72; secretary of the Swedish Evangelical Alliance, 1872-78; missionary to the Jews at Beirut, Syria, 1878-81. In 1871 he was a member of the Evangelical Alliance deputation to the Russian Emperor on account of the persecuted Lutherans in the Baltic provinces; in 1872 travelled in aid of the Baptist building-fund, through Germany, England, and Scotland; in 1884 was deputy of the Swedish Baptist to the Evangelical Alliance Conference in Copenhagen; in 1885 was elected a member of the Swedish Parliament for three years. He is the translator into Swedish of Sophocles' Antigone, 1. verses 1-383, with commentary (Ph.D. dissertation), Stockholm, 1866; Nicholl's Help to the Reading of the Bible, 1866; Dr. Rudelbach on Civil Marriage, 1868; Lyon's Homo contra Darwin, 1873; Merle d'Aubigné's History of the Reformation in the Time of Calvin, 1874-77; Sankey's Gospel Hymns, 1876; Spurgeon's John Ploughman's Talks, 1880; and of other works; and is the author (in Swedish) of Bible Dictionary, 1868, 2d ed. 1883; Four Letters on Religious Liberty, 1868; Christian Hymns from Ancient and Modern Times, 1870; Lecture on the "Liberi" (i.e., "reading," a nickname for living Christianity), 1872; Library of Biblical Antiquities, 1874; Letters to Brother Olof upon the Doctrine of Atonement, 1876; What is wanting in our Church, 1876; Spiritual Songs for Young Men's Christian Associations, Sunday Schools, and Prayer-meetings, 1877; Illustrated Missionary News, 1877.
ORMISTON, William, D.D. (University of the City of New York, 1865), L.L.D. (University of Victoria College, Cobourg, Can., 1881), Reformed (Dutch); b. in the parish of Symington, Lanark County of Durham, Can., 1849-53; mathematical master, and lecturer in natural philosophy and chemistry, in the normal school. Toronto, 1853-57; examiner in Toronto University 1854-57; super-OETTINGEN, Alexander von, Magister Theol., D.D. (both Dorpat, 1854 and 1856 respectively), Lutheran theologian; b. at Wissau, near Dorpat, Russia (Livonia), Dec. 24, 1827; studied theology at Dorpat, 1845-49, then at Erlangen and Berlin; became privaat-docent at Dorpat, 1854; declined call to Erlangen; became professor extraordinary at Dorpat, 1856, and the same year ordinary professor of systematic theology, history of doctrines, and ethics. During 1851 and 1862 he was at Meran on account of the illness of his wife, a daughter of Professor Karl von Raunier of Erlangen; and, as pastor of the Evangelical Diaspora Congregation, there built its first Protestant chapel. He is the author of Die synago oder Elegik des Volkes Israel insbesondere die Zion-Elegie Judах ха Леви's Ausdruck der Hoffnung Israels im Lichte der heiligen Schrift dargestellt (his Magister dissertation), Dorpat, 1854; De peccato in spiritum sanctum, qua cum eschatologia christianae continetur ratione dispunato (his Doctor dissertation), 1856; Durch Kreuz zum Licht, Predigten gehalten in Meran im Winter 1881-82, Erlangen, 1882; Die Moralstatistik in ihrer Bedeutung für eine Sozialethik, 1868-69, 2 vols., 3d ed. 1882; Die Moralstatistik und die christliche Sittenlehre, Versuch einer Sozialethik auf empirisch-positivistischer Grundlage, 1874; Antikalumantike, Kritische Beleuchtung der Unfahrbareisdoctrin vom Standpunkt evangelischer Glaubenswissenschaft, 1876; Vorlesungen über Goethe's Faust, 1879-80, 2 vols.; Obligatorische und fakultative Civilehre nach den Ergebnissen der Moralstatistik, Leipzig, 1881; Uber akten und chronischen Selbstmord, Ein Zeitbild, Dorpat, 1882; Christliche Religionslehre auf reichgeschichtlicher Grundlage, Erlangen, 1885, 2 vols. He was joint editor of the Dorpater Zeitschrift für Theologie und Kirche, 1859-72, 14 vols.; and editor of Hippel's Lebenslaufs, jubilee ed. Leipzig, 1878, 3 vols., 2d cheap ed. 1879.

OLSÖN, Oluf b. at Karlskoga, Vermland, Sweden, March 31, 1841; studied at Leipzig, and graduated at the University of Upsala; pastor at Persberg, 1864-67, and at Sunnemo, 1867-69, in Sweden; came to America, 1869; pastor at Lindsborg, Kan., 1869-76; professor of Theology in Augustana College and Theological Seminary, 1870-83; professor of church history, symbols, and catechetics in Augustana Theological Seminary (Swedish Lutheran) at Rock Island, Ill., 1883--; editor of various Swedish papers and periodicals, 1873-83. Published in Swedish, Reminiscences of Travel, 1880 (translated into Norwegian, Christiansia, 1882); also in Swedish, At the Cross, 1879 (reprinted in Sweden, 4th ed. 1892); author of many tracts in Swedish, some of which have had a very large circulation.

OLTRAMARE, Marc Jean Hugues, Swiss Protestant theologian; b. at Geneva, Dec. 27, 1813; studied arts and theology at Geneva; was ordained 1836; continued his studies at Tubingen and Berlin, 1841-42; returned home; was a city pastor, 1845-54. Since 1854 he has been professor of New-Testament exegesis in the university. He was a member of the National Consistory, 1851-59; and, under commission of the Venerable Company of Pastors, prepared a new French version of the New Testament, which appeared, Geneva, 1872 (many subsequent editions). He is the author of Commentaire sur l'Eptre aux Romains, Geneva, 1843, 2d ed. 1881-82; Instruction ecclésiastique sur trois questions: Qui est Jésus Christ? Qu'est-il venu faire? Qu'est-il venu faire? Que faire pour être sauvé? 1845; Catéchisme à l'usage des chrétiens réformés, 1856, 4th ed. 1877; Le Salut, les Sacraments (in Conférence sur les principes de la foi réformée, 1853-54, 2 vols.); Calvin (in Calvin: cinq discours, 1864); and sermons, etc.

ORT, Henricus, Dutch Orientalist; b. at Eemnes, Utrecht, Dec. 27, 1836; studied theology at Leiden, and graduated doctor in 1860; was successively pastor of the Reformed Church at Zandpoort 1890, at Harlingen 1867; professor of Oriental literature at the Atheneum, Amsterdam, 1873; and since 1875 has been professor of Hebrew and Jewish antiquities at Leiden. He is the author (in Dutch) of The Religion of the Ba'alim among the Israelites, 1864 (English trans. by Bishop Colenso, 1865); The Last Centuries of Israel, 1877-78, 2 vols.; The Gospel and the Talmud compared (in Dutch); The Hebrew Synonyma der Zeit and Ewigkeit, Leipzig, 1871; Durch die Geschichte der Religion des Volkes Israel in the Evangelische Nachrichten, 1879-80, 2 vols. (translated into Norwegian, Christiansia, 1882); also in Swedish, Obelagherna och Leipzigs, 1883; Under commission of the Venerable Consistory, 1851-59; and, under commission of the Venerable Consistory, 1851-85, editor of various Swedish papers and periodicals, 1873-83. Published in Swedish, Reminiscences of Travel, 1880 (translated into Norwegian, Christiansia, 1882); also in Swedish, At the Cross, 1879 (reprinted in Sweden, 4th ed. 1892); author of many tracts in Swedish, some of which have had a very large circulation.

ORELLI, (Hans) Conrad von, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1871), D.D. (hons., Greifswald, 1885), Swiss Protestant; b. at Zürich, Jan. 25, 1846; studied at Zürich, Lausanne, Erlangen, and Leipzig; became orphan-house preacher at Zürich, 1869; privaat-docent, 1871; professor extraordinary of theology at Basel, 1873; ordinary professor at Basel, 1881. He is the author of Die hebräischen Synonyma der Zeit und Ewigkeit, Leipzig, 1871; Durch die Geschichte der Religion des Volkes Israel in the Evangelische Nachrichten, 1879-80, 2 vols. (translated into Norwegian, Christiansia, 1882); also in Swedish, At the Cross, 1879 (reprinted in Sweden, 4th ed. 1892); author of many tracts in Swedish, some of which have had a very large circulation.
OSBORN,

Henry Stafford, LL.D. (Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1864), Presbyterian; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., Aug. 17, 1823; graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1841, and at Union Theological Seminary, New York City, 1845; was stated supply at Coventry, Ill., 1846—46; pastor at Hanover Court House, Va., 1846—49; Richmond, Va., 1849—53; Liberty, Va., 1853-58; stated supply at Salem, Va., 1858-59; pastor at Belvidere, III., 1859-66; professor in Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1864), Presbyterian; in Rochester (11.1.) Theological Seminary since 1868; in the University of Bonn; became privatdocent of historical theology and exegesis of the New Testament at Jena, 1844; professor extraordinary of theology there, 1848; since 1851 has been ordinary professor of church history in the evangelical theological faculty at Vienna. From 1852-61 he was ordinary professor of New-Testament exegesis; from 1863-67 was member of the imperial educational council. Since 1841 he has contributed to various periodicals, and published a few sermons and addresses.

OSGOOD, Howard, Baptist; b. on Magnolia Plantation, parish of Plaquemines, La., Jan. 4, 1824. He was educated at Harvard at Salem, Va., 1853-58; pastor at Belvidere, III., 1859-66; professor in Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1866-70; since 1870 has been at Oxford, O., stated supply, York City, 1845; was state supply at Coventry, Ill., 1846-46; pastor at Hanover Court House, Va., 1846—49; Richmond, Va., 1849—53; Liberty, Va., 1853-58; stated supply at Salem, Va., 1858-59; pastor at Belvidere, III., 1859-66; professor in Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1866-70; since 1870 has been at Oxford, O., stated supply, 1870-71, 1873 to date; professor in Miami University, Oxford, O., 1871-73. He is the author of Biblical Tables, Philadelphia, 1841, and at Union Theological Seminary, Chester, Penn., 1868-74, and published Lange's general and special Introduction to New Testament (Leipzig, 1870), and has written Questionum OVERBECK, Franz Camillo, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1860), D.D. (kon., Jena, 1870), Swiss Protestant; b. in St. Petersberg, Nov. 4 (10), 1837; studied at Leipzig and Göttingen, 1856-66; became privatdocent at Jena, 1864; at Paderborn, 1866-69; at Dorsten, Westphalia, Germany, June 3, 1817; studied theology in the seminary at Miinster, and at Miinster, then professor in the Semin. Theodorianum at Paderborn; then went to his present professorship at Braunsberg. He is the author of Die theologischen Lehren der heiligen Sacramenten der katholischen Kirche, Miinster, 1835, 2 vols., 4th ed. 1877; Exegetologie, Paderborn, 1868, 4th ed. 1879; Die Lehre von der heiligen Heiligung, 1873, 3d ed. 1885; Die Erlösung in Christo Jesu, 1878, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1886; Die religiöse Umgangs- sprache, in Christo, und der Sprachgebrauch des Katholischen, 1878; Schöpfungsgedanken im allgemeinen und in besonderer Beziehung auf den Menschen, 1885; besides other minor treatises.

OTTO, (Johann) Karl (Theodor), Ritter von Otto (by the Emperor Franz Joseph I. at Vienna, July 18, 1871, raised to the hereditary nobility), Ph.D. (Jena, 1841), Lic. Theol. (kon., Königsberg, 1842), D.D. (kon., Jena, 1847), Swiss Protestant; b. in St. Petersberg, Nov. 4 (10), 1837; studied at Leipzig and Göttingen, 1856-66; became privatdocent at Jena, 1864; at Paderborn, 1866-69; at Dorsten, Westphalia, Germany, June 3, 1817; studied philosophy and theology at Jena, 1838-41; became privatdocent of historical theology and exegesis of the New Testament at Jena, 1841; professor extraordinary of theology there, 1848; since 1851 has been ordinary professor of church history in the evangelical theological faculty at Vienna. From 1852-61 he was ordinary professor of New-Testament exegesis; from 1863-67 was member of the imperial educational council. Since 1841 he has been a member of the Societas Latina Jenensis, since 1848 of the Societas Hagana, since 1870 of the Society for the History of Protestantism in Austria. He is a knight of the Greek Order of the Saviour (1858), of the Austrian Order of the Iron Crown, third class (1871), of the Grand Duke of Saxony Order of the White Hawk, first division (1872), of the Prussian Order of the Red Eagle, third class (1873), received the Austrian (1862) and the Grand Duke of Saxony's (1857) gold Verdienst-Medaille für W. u. K. Since 1860 he has been an Austrian imperial Regierungsrat; since 1876 has been president of the examining commission for Protestant ministers at Vienna. He is the author of De Justinii Martyscripta et doctrina, Jena, 1841; De Victorino Strigelio liberioris mentis in ecclesia lutherica vindicati, 1843; De epistola ad Diognetum S. Justinii philosophi et martiris nomen prse se ferente, 1845, 2d ed. 1848; De Characteri des heiligen Justinus, Philosophen und Martyrs, Wien, 1852; Des Patriarchen Gennadios von Constantinopel Confession, kritisch untersucht u. herausgegeben, Nebst einem Exzurs über Arethas' Zeitalter, 1864; De gaudibus in theologia, 1874. He edited the posthumous commentaries of Baumgarten Crusius upon Matthew, John, and Luke (1845). But his chief work is his edition of the works of the Christian apologists of the second century, Corpus apologistarum Christianorum seculi secundi, Jena, 1842-72, 9 vols. (vols. 1—v., Justin Martyr, 1842-45, 3d ed. 1876-81; vol. vi., Tatian, 1851; vol. vii., Athenagoras, 1857; vol. viii., Theophilus of Antioch, 1861; vol. ix., Hermas, Quodratus, Aristides, Aristo, Miltiades, Melito, Apollinaris, 1872). He shares in editing Jahrbuch der Gesellschaft für die Geschichte des Protestantismus in Oesterreich, Wien and Leipzig, 1880, eqq.; and contributed to it the article, Die Anfänge der Reformation im Erzbistum Oesterreich (1880, 1883). His principal other articles are: Bezieltungcnauf die Johannesischen und Paulinischen Schriften bei Justinus Martyr und dem Verfasser des Briefes an Diogneto (in Illgen's Ztschr. f. d. hist. Theol., 1841, 1842, 1843, 1844, 1858); Der dem Patriarchen Gennadios von Constantinopel beigefügte Dialog über die Hauptstücke des christl. Glaubens (in same, 1850, 1864); Justinus der Apologet (in Ersch. u. Gruber sect. ii., Th. 30); Die inscr. et cetera Apologie Athenagoricarum (in Ztschr. f. d. hist. Theol., 1856); Florianus, etc. (in Piper's Die Zeugen der Wahrheit); über den apostol. Grus (in Jahre B. deutsche Theol., 1867); Haben Barnabas, Justinus und Ireneus den zweiten Petrusbrief (in Ztschr. f. wiss. Theol., 1877); Über das Zeitalter des Erzbischofs Arethas (in same, 1875).
OXENDEN, Right Rev. Ashton, D.D. (by decree of Convocation, 1869), Church of England; b. at Broome, near Canterbury, Sept. 25, 1808; educated at University College, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1833; was ordained deacon 1833, priest 1834; was rector of Pluckley, Kent, 1848-69; lord bishop of Montreal and metropolitan of Canada, 1869-78; rural dean of Canterbury, 1879-84; since 1879, vicar of Hackington (or St. Stephen's), near Canterbury. He is the author of numerous devotional works, many of which have had large sales on both sides of the Atlantic. The following may be mentioned; Cottage Sermons, 1853; The Earnest Communicant, 1858; The Pathway of Safety, 1856; The Christian Life, new ed. 1870; Our Church and its Services, new ed. 1868; The Parables of our Lord, new ed. 1868; Portraits from the Bible, 1872, 2 vols.; The Earnest Churchman, 1878; Short Comments on the Gospels, for Family Worship, 1885.

OXENHAM, Henry Nutcombe, Roman Catholic; b. at Harrow, Eng., Nov. 15, 1829; educated at Balliol College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (second-class in classics) 1850, M.A. 1854; held curacies from 1854 to 1857; joined the Roman-Catholic Church in 1857, and was successively in the London Oratory (1859-60), professor at St. Edmund's College, Ware (1860), and master at the Oratory School, Birmingham, 1861; resigned at Christmas of that year. He is the author of numerous review articles, of the English translation of Döllinger's First Age of the Church (London, 1866, 3d ed. 1877) and Lectures on Re-union of the Churches (1872), and of vol. 2 of Hefele's History of the Councils of the Church (1876); and of the following original works: Poems, 1854, 3d ed. 1871; Church Parties, 1857; Catholic Doctrine of the Atonement, 1865, 3d ed. 1881; Recollections of Oberammergau, 1872, 2d ed. 1880; Catholic Eschatology and Universalism, 1876, 2d ed. 1878; Short Studies in Ecclesiastical History and Biography, 1884; Short Studies, Ethical and Religious, 1885.
PACKARD, Joseph, D.D. (Kenyon College, Gambier, O., 1847), Episcopal; b. at Wiscasset, Me., Dec. 29, 1812; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1831; and studied (1833) in Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary; since 1836 has been professor of biblical learning in the Protestant Episcopal Seminary of Virginia, near Alexandria, and is now dean. He contributed the commentary on Malachi to the American edition of Lange, and was one of the American revisers of the Old Testament (1870-85).

PADDOCK, Right Rev. Benjamin Henry, S.T.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1867), Episcopal; bishop of Massachusetts; b. at Norwich, Conn., Feb. 29, 1828; graduated at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1848, and at the General Theological Seminary, New York City, 1852; was assistant teacher in the Episcopal Academy of Connecticut, Cheshire, 1848-49; assistant minister at the Church of the Epiphany, New York City, while deacon, 1852-53; rector of St. Luke's, Portland, Me., 1855, but withdrew after three months on account of climate; was rector of Trinity, Norwich, Conn., 1853-80; of Christ Church, Detroit, Mich., 1860-69; of Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights, Long Island, N.Y., 1869-73; consecrated bishop, 1873. He is the author of sundry articles in reviews and periodicals, canonical digests, sermons, charges (1870, 1879, 1880), etc.: among which may be mentioned, Ten Years in the Episcopate, 1883; The First Century of the Diocese of Massachusetts, 1883; The Pastoral Relation, etc.

PADDOCK, Right Rev. John Adams, S.T.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1870), Episcopal, missionary bishop of Washington Territory; b. at Norwich, Conn., Jan. 19, 1829; graduated at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1845, and at the General Theological Seminary, New York City, 1849; was rector of Christ Church, Stratford, Conn., 1849-55; of St. Peter's, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1855-60; consecrated bishop, 1890. Since his work began, the number of churches in his diocese has doubled; a Church hospital has been erected; and two Church schools built, costing about sixty thousand dollars, and endowed with one hundred thousand dollars. He is the author of History of Christ Church, Stratford, Conn., 1858; occasional sermons and addresses.

PAINE, Levi Leonard, D.D. (Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1873), Congregationalist; b. at Holbrook (formerly East Randolph), Mass., Oct. 10, 1832; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1856; was tutor there, 1859-61; pastor at Farmington, Conn., 1861-70; and since 1871 has been professor of ecclesiastical history in Bangor (Me.) Theological Seminary; has published some addresses and sermons.

PAINE, Timothy Otis, LL.D. (Colby University, Waterville, Me., 1875), New-Jerusalem Church (Swedenborgian); b. at Winslow, Kennebec County, Me., Oct. 13, 1824; graduated at Waterville College (now Colby University), Me., 1847. Since 1866 he has been pastor of the Swedenborgian Church at Elmwood, Plymouth County, Mass.; since July 3, 1886 (the date of its organization), teacher of Hebrew in the theological school of the General Convention of the New Jerusalem Church in the United States, now located at Boston, Mass. "In all these thirty years he can hardly be said to have taken vacations, or made exchanges with ministers; working through summer, autumn, winter, and spring, again and again, with only one end never for a day out of view, trying to answer the one question: How did the holy forms described in the Scriptures look? He began his study before 1847, but received the first leading thought on the sabbath afternoon of Dec. 26, 1852." He is the author of Solomon's Temple, or the Tabernacle; The First Temple; House of the King, or House of the Forest of Lebanon; Idolatrous High Places; The City on the Mountain (Rev. xxi.); The Oblation of the Holy Portion; and The Last Temple (with 21 plates of 61 figures, accurately copied by the lithographer from careful drawings made by the author), Boston, 1861; Solomon's Temple and Capitol, Ark of the Flood and Tabernacle, or The Holy Houses of the Hebrew, Chaldee, Syriac, Samaritan, Septuagint, Coptic, and Itala Scriptures (with 42 full plates and 120 text-cuts, being photographic reproductions of the original drawings made by the author), Boston and New York, 1885.

PALMER, Benjamin Morgan, D.D. (Oglethorpe University, Milledgeville, Ga., 1852), LL.D. (Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., 1870), Presbyterian (Southern Church); b. in Charleston, S.C., Jan. 28, 1815; graduated at the University of Georgia, 1838, and at the Theological Seminary, Columbia, S.C., 1841; became pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Savannah, Ga., 1841; of the First Presbyterian Church, Columbia, S.C., 1843; of the First Presbyterian Church, New Orleans, La., December, 1856. His church seats fourteen hundred persons, and numbered in 1886 six hundred communicants. He was professor of church history and polity in the Columbia (S.C.) Theological Seminary, 1853-56; was moderator of the First Southern Assembly, Augusta, Ga., 1861. He has declined elections to professorships in three theological seminaries;viz., of Hebrew at Danville, Ky. (1853), of pastoral theology at Princeton, N.J. (1860), of the same at Columbia, S.C. (1881); also the chancellorship of the South-Western Presbyterian University, Clarksville, Tenn. (1874); and calls at different times to churches in Macon (Ga.), Charleston (S.C.), Philadelphia, Baltimore, and New York. He was a director of the Columbia Theological Seminary, S.C., 1842-56, and has been a director in the South-Western Presbyterian University, Clarksville, Tenn., since 1873, and in Tulane University, New Orleans, La., since its organization in 1882. He has been commissioner to ten General Assemblies (three of them before the Civil War); since 1847 one of the editors and contributors of The Southern Presbyterian Review, Columbia, S.C., of which he was one of. the founders. He is the author of The Life and Letters of Rev. James Henley Thornwell, D.D., LL.D., Richmond, 1875; Sermons, New Orleans, La., 1875-76, 2 vols. The Family in its Civil and Churchly Aspects, New York, 1879; and addresses, sermons, pamphlets, etc.

PARK, Ven. Edwin, D.D. (Oxford, 1878), archdeacon of Oxford, Church of England; b. at Mixbury, Oxfordshire, July 18, 1824; entered Balliol College, Oxford, 1842; obtained the Hertford and Ireland scholarships, 1843; the chancellor's prize for Latin verse, 1844, and for the Latin essay, 1847; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1845, M.A. 1850; in Balliol College was fellow, 1845-67; philosophical lecturer, 1858-66, tutor, 1866-70; was Corpus professor of the Latin language and literature in the University of Oxford, 1870-78; ordained deacon 1854, priest 1868; was select preacher to the University of Oxford, 1866-69, 1873-74; became archdeacon of Oxford, and canon of Christ Church, 1878. He was a member of the New-Testament Company of Revisers of the Authorized Version, published by the Clarendon Press, Oxford, 1881.

PARK, Rev. D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1852), Congregationalist; b. at Little Compton, R.I., Nov. 12, 1808; fitted for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1830; taught the higher classes in a private seminary for young ladies in New-York City, 1830-31; was associated with New E. A. Andrews in the New-Haven (Conn.) Young Ladies' Institute (which was one of the earliest attempts in this country to furnish young ladies advantages as nearly as possible equal to those of the other sex), 1831; licensed to preach by the New Haven West Association, 1832; was pastor of the Central Congregational Church, Bath, Me., 1835-50; during this period was on the board of overseers of Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., and took an active interest in education and literature; in 1847 he made a tour through Europe, notes of which were published in The Christian Mirror of Portland, Maine, 1848-49, and a philosophical, historical, and moral philosophy at Amherst College, Massachusetts, 1854-36; professor of sacred rhetoric at Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1854-63; pastor of Trinity Church, Elmiria, N.Y., 1864; of Christ Church, Williamsport, Penn., 1868; of Church of the Epiphany, Washington, D.C., 1870; bishop of Maryland, 1885.

PARK, Edwards Amasa, D.D. (Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., 1844); b. at Providence, R.I., Dec. 29, 1808; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1826; at Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1831; was pastor at Braintree, Mass., 1831-38; professor of mental and moral philosophy at Amherst College, Massachusetts, 1835-36; professor of sacred rhetoric at Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1836-47; professor of Christian theology at Andover, 1847-81. He held a professorship at Andover forty-five years. In theology he has adopted the tenets set forth in the creed of Andover Theological Seminary (see Encyclopedia, vol. ii., p. 169-70). He spent sixteen months in Switzerland and Germany. In 1862-63 he spent the larger part of sixteen months in Germany. In 1862-63 he spent about sixteen months in Switzerland and Germany. In 1862-63 he spent about sixteen months in Switzerland and Germany. He began to write for The American Quarterly Register, The Spirit of the Pilgrims, American Quarterly Observer, American Biblical Repository, The Congregational Quarterly, and other religious periodicals in 1828. Since that time he has written for The American Quarterly Register, The Spirit of the Pilgrims, American Quarterly Observer, American Biblical Repository, The Congregational Quarterly, and other religious periodicals. He has written articles often called "New-England Theology" (see Encyclopedia, vol. ii., pp. 1634-1638). In 1842-43 he spent sixteen months in Switzerland and Germany. In 1862-63 he spent the larger part of sixteen months in Germany. He has published numerous works. Among these are: a Memoir of Rev. Charles B. Storrs, D.D., president of Western Reserve College (Boston, 1833); of Professor Moses Stuart (Andover, 1832); Professor B. B. Edwards (Andover, 1832); Rev. Joseph S. Clark, D.D. (Boston, 1861); Rev. Richard S. Storrs, D.D., pastor at Braintree, Mass. (Boston, 1874); Rev. Samuel C. Jackson, D.D. (Andover, 1878); Rev. Leonard Woods, D.D., LL.D., president of Bowdoin College (Andover, 1880). His last pamphlet was Hints on the Formation of Religious Opinions, New York, 1880, new ed. 1877, republished in London and Edinburgh; Hymns and Sacred Pieces, New York, 1865; Hymns of my Holy Hours, 1868; Home, or the Unlost Paradise, 1868; Earnest Words on True Success in Life, 1873; Complete Poetical Works, 1878; Voices of Hope and Gladness, New York and London, 1880.

PARET, Right Rev. William, D.D. (Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1867), Episcopalian, bishop of Maryland; b. in New-York City, Sept. 23, 1838; graduated at Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1849; studied theology under Bishop De Lanecy; became successively rector of St. John's Church, Clyde, N.Y., 1852; of Zion Church, Pierrepont Manor, N.Y., 1854; of St. Paul's, East Saginaw, Mich., 1864; of Trinity Church, Elmiria, N.Y., 1868; of Christ Church, Williamsport, Penn., 1868; of Church of the Epiphany, Washington, D.C., 1870; bishop of Maryland, 1885.
PARKER, Charles Henry, D.D. (Amherst College, mass., May 21, 1842; 2d ed. with an introductory essay of forty-nine pages, 1849; The Preacher and Pastor (to which he wrote an introduction of thirty-six pages), 1855; The Way of the World, by Professor D. R. Edwards (to which was prefixed a memoir of 370 pages), Boston, 1858; published a Memoir of the Life and Character of Samuel Hopkins, D.D., 1852, 2d ed. 1864 (which was also prefixed to the works of Dr. Hopkins). In connection with Professor Austin Phelps, D.D., and Dr. Lowell Mason, he compiled and edited The Suffolk Hymn-Book, New York, 1858 (between the years 1858 and 1866, with the appendages of tunes for congregational worship, it reached a circulation of about 120,000); in connection with the Hymn Book she, with Dr. Austin Phelps and Daniel L. Furbur, published a volume entitled Hymns and Carols, Andover, 1860 (of this work, an essay of sixty-one pages on The Text of Hymn was written by Professor Park). He edited The Atonement, Discourses and Treatises by Edwards, Smalley, Marcy, Emmons, Griffin, Burke, and Weeks, With an Introductory Essay [of eighty pages]. Boston, 1860; wrote a Memoir of Nathaniel Emmons, 1861 (which was prefixed to the theological works of Dr. Emmons in 6 vols. 8vo.). His last publication is a volume of fourteen Discourses on some Theological Doctrines as related to the Religious Character, Andover, 1885.

PARKER, Edwin Pond, S.T.D. (Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1872), Congregationalist; b. at Castine, Me., Jan. 13, 1850; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1876, and at Bangor Theological Seminary, Me., 1879; since Jan. 11, 1880, has been pastor of the Second Church in Hartford, Conn.

PARKER, Joseph, D.D., Congregationalist; b. at Hexham, Northumberland, Eng., April 10, 1850; educated at University College, London, and privately; entered the Congregational ministry, and became successively pastor at Banbury (Oxfordshire), 1853; Manchester (Cavendish Chapel), 1858; and of the City Temple, London, 1869. In 1884 he was chairman of the Congregational Union. His church contains over three thousand persons, and is largely attended. His sermons are taken down in short-hand. He has published Emmanuel, Lond., 1859; Hidden Springs, 1864; Wednesday Evenings at Cavendish Chapel, Homiletic Hints, 1865; Ecce Deus, Essays on the Life and Doctrine of Jesus Christ, 1868, 5th ed. 1875; Springfield Abbey, Extracts from the Letters and Diaries of an English Preacher, 1869; The Paraclete, 1874, new ed. 1876; The Gospel by Matthew (homiletic analysis), 1869; Ad Clerum, 1870; Pulpit Notes, with Introductory Essay on the Preaching of Jesus Christ, 1873; The Priesthood of Christ, as revealed in the Gospel of Matthew, 1881-82, 3 vols.; Apostolic Life, 1882-84, 3 vols.; The People's Bible: Discourses on Holy Scripture, 1885 sqq., to be completed in 25 vols.; Tyne Chylde, my Life and Ministry, partly in the Daylight of Fact, partly in the Limelight of Fancy, 1883, 2d ed. 1885; Free Church, Free Life, The Ten Commandments, and Health Studies (all in 1880, several thousands sold, republished in 1 vol., Life, Function, and Health, 1884); "In defence:" The Earlier Scriptures, 1883; The Fourfold Life, 1884; Crosses and Crowns, 1884; Christ and Criticism, 1884; Faith and Unfaith, their Claims and Conflicts, 1886.
PATTON, John Brown, D.D. (University of Glasgow, 1882), Congregationalist; b. in London Parish, Ayrshire, Scotland, Dec. 17, 1830; educated at Springhill Theological College, affiliated with London University, where he graduated B.A. 1849 (Old Testament honors examination, 1850); won Dr. Williams divinity scholarship, 1851; graduated M.A. (both in classics and philosophy), and gold medal in philosophy, 1853; became pastor of Congregational Church at Sheffield, 1854; principal of the Congregational Institute, Nottingham, 1863. He was editor of The Eclectic Review, 1859-62; and consulting editor of Contemporary Review since 1882. In theology, especially in apologetic tendencies, he is allied to Dorrer; in his doctrine of the Church, an Independent. He is the author of Evangelization of Town and Country, London, 1861; "Inspiration," Criticism of Theories of J. D. Morell and Professor F. Newman, 1862; A Review of the "vie de Jesus:" containing Discussions on the Doctrine of Miracle, the Mythical Theory, and the Authenticity of the Gospels, 1864; The Origin of the Priesthood in the Church, 1875; Supernatural Religion: a Criticism, 1878; The Inner Mission of Germany, and Its Lessons to Us, 1883; The Inner Movement of the Church (in verse tune with Women's Work in the Church and the Present State of Europe in Relation to the Spread of the Gospel), 1885; The Twofold Alternative (containing Religion or Atheism and A Priesthood or a Brotherhood), 1885; Evening Schools under Healthy Conditions, 1886; Contemporary Controversies on the Doctrine of the Church and the Relations of Church and State, 1886.

PATTON, Alfred Spencer, D.D. (Madison University, Wisconsin, 1866), Presbyterian; b. in Adams County, Penn., May 18, 1843; of the Mass. Senate, and special study) from Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1859; pastor at Great Valley, Penn., 1859; South Church, Philadelphia, 1867; editor of Philadelphia Pan-Presbyterian Council in 1880; member of the Philadelphia and Belfast Councils; editor of Presbytery Journal, 1881; author of several volumes and of review articles, and of various pamphlet reports; visited Great Britain and the Continent on behalf of the freedmen in 1866. He is the author of The Young Man, Hartford, Conn., 1847 (republished as The Young Man's Friend, Auburn, N.Y., 1850); Conscience and Law, New York, 1850; Slavery and Infidelity, Cincinnati, 1854; Spiritual Victory, Boston, 1874; Prayer and its Remarkable Answers, Chicago, 1875, 20th ed. New York, 1885; and numerous articles in the various theological magazines.

PATTON, Francis Landey, D.D. (Hanover College, Ind., 1873), LL.D. (Wooster University, 1878), Presbyterian; b. at Warwick, Island of Bermuda, Jan. 22, 1843; graduated at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1865; pastor Eighty-fourth-Street Church, New-York City, 1865; at N. Y. N. Y., 1865; pastor South Church, Brooklyn, 1871; professor of theology in the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Chicago, Ill., 1871; and of relations of philosophy and science to religion, Theological Seminary, Princeton, 1881. He is also professor of ethics in the College of New Jersey, Princeton. He was pastor elect of the Jefferson-Park Church, Chicago, 1884, and pastor 1879-81; editor of The Interior, 1873-6; and moderator of the General Assembly at Pittsburgh, Penn., in 1878. Besides numerous articles in periodicals, he has published Inspiration of the Scriptures, Philadelphia, 1889; Summary of Christian Doctrine; and is one of the editors of The Presbyterian Review.
PAYNE, Andrew Preston, D.D. (Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1852), LL.D. (University of Rochester, N.Y., 1863), Unitarian; b. at Beverly, Mass., March 19, 1811; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1826, and at the theological seminary in connection with it, 1832; was pastor at Portsmouth, N.H., 1833-60; professor of Christian morals and preacher to Harvard University, 1850-81. He edited The North American Review, 1862-61; and has published, besides articles and pamphlets, his New Testament Doctrine, Boston, 1844, 3d ed. 1857; Christian Consolations, 1846, 6th ed. 1872; Conversation, Its Faults and Graces, 1856, 3d ed. 1882; Christianity the Religion of Nature (Lowell Lectures), 1884; Sermons for Children, 1889, 2d ed. 1887; Reminiscences of European Travel, New York, 1886; Manual of Moral Philosophy, 1873; Christianity and Science (Union Seminary Lectures), 1874; Christian Belief and Life, Boston, 1875; Baccalaurial Sermons, 1885; and translations of Cicero's De officiis (1883) and De senectute (1884); De Amicitia and Scipio's Dream, 1884; Plutarch on the Delay of the Divine Justice, 1885; A Translation of Cicero's Tuscany, 1887; Disputations (On the contemplation of death, On bearing pain, etc.), 1886.

PAYNE, Charles Henry, D.D. (Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1870), L.L.D. (Ohio State University, Athens, O., 1879), Methodist; b. at Taunton, Mass., Oct. 24, 1830; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1856; studied theology in the Biblical Institute, Concord, N.H. (now the Boston School of Theology); was pastor from 1857 until 1878, when he became president of Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, O. He was a member of the committee to revise the hymn-book of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 1870; of the Ecumenical Methodist Conference, London, September, 1881; and of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 1880 and 1884. He is the author of Guides and Guards in Character Building, New York, 1883, 6th ed. 1886, republished London, 1884; and of the pamphlets, The Social Glass and Christian Obligation, 1868; Shall our American Sabbath be a Holiday, or a Holy-day? Philadelphia, 1872; Daniel, the Uncompromising Prophet, 1885; and of the series of reports upon Juvenile Reform and Industrial School for Girls, Lancaster, Mass., 1856-61; edited, by General Eflick, 1857; Conference, Methodist-Episcopal Church, 1848; was pastor of First Church, Pittsburgh, Penn., 1851-60; was pastor at Portsmouth, N.H., 1833-60; professor of Christian morals and preacher to Harvard University, 1850-81. He edited The North American Review, 1862-61; and has published, besides articles and pamphlets, his New Testament Doctrine, Boston, 1844, 3d ed. 1857; Christian Consolations, 1846, 6th ed. 1872; Conversation, Its Faults and Graces, 1856, 3d ed. 1882; Christianity the Religion of Nature (Lowell Lectures), 1884; Sermons for Children, 1889, 2d ed. 1887; Reminiscences of European Travel, New York, 1886; Manual of Moral Philosophy, 1873; Christianity and Science (Union Seminary Lectures), 1874; Christian Belief and Life, Boston, 1875; Baccalaurial Sermons, 1885; and translations of Cicero's De officiis (1883) and De senectute (1884); De Amicitia and Scipio's Dream, 1884; Plutarch on the Delay of the Divine Justice, 1885; A Translation of Cicero's Tuscany, 1887; Disputations (On the contemplation of death, On bearing pain, etc.), 1886.

PAYNE-SMITH, Very Rev. Robert, Dean of Canterbury, Church of England; b. in London, 1857, canon of Christ Church, Oxford, and regius professor of divinity, and rector of Ewelme (1865), and dean of Canterbury (1871). He was Hampton lecturer in 1869, and an Old-Testament reviser (1870-84). He is the author, translator, and editor of S. CYRILLI ALEX. comment. in Luce evaneg. quo super supt. Syrisce, Oxford, 1558; St. Cyri's Commentary on St. Luke's Gospel, in English, 1569, 2 vols.; Ecclesiastical History of John Eichendorff, translated, 1847; The Authenticity and Messianistic Interpretation of the Prophecies of Isaiah vindicated, 1862; Catalogus codicum Syriacorum et Carshunicorum in bibliotheca Bodeliana, 1864; Thesaurus Syriacus, 1868 sqq.; Prophecy a Preparation for Christ (Bampton Lecture), 1859; commentary on Jeremiah, in Bibliographical Society's Journal, 1871; Sermons on P. G. Commentary; and on Genesis, in Bishop Elliott's Commentary.

5 PEROWNE.
Lectures), 1869; Sermons, 1873. He is the editor of the Chaplain with the Children, 1870; Hymns of the Higher Life, 1871; various articles.

PELHAM, Hon. and Right Rev. John Thomas, D.D. (per Literas Regias, 1837), lord bishop of Norwich; b. in London, June 21, 1811; educated at Christ Church, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1832, M.A. 1837; ordained deacon 1834, priest 1835; was rector of Berg Apton, Norfolk, 1837—52; perpetual curate of Christ Church, Hampstead, 1835; was rector of Emmanuel Church, Goodson, Va., 1868—1970; of St. George's Church, Mount Savage, Md., 1870—73; of the Church of the Messiah, Baltimore, Md., 1873—77; bishop of Cape Palms and parts adjacent, Africa, 1877—83; since 1885 has been rector of St. Andrew's Church, Louisville, Ky. He entered the Confederate army in 1861, and served through the war. He founded Cape Palms Mount Station, Liberia, and est. African Church. He is the author of More than a Prophet, New York, 1880.

PENTECOST, George Frederick, D.D. (Lafayettette College, Easton, Penn., 1884), Congregationalist; b. at Albion, Ill., Sept. 23, 1842; apprenticed to a printer at fifteen; went to Kansas Territory at seventeen, was there as printer for a year; then became private secretary to Govs. Denver and Walsh, then clerk in United-States District Court and in Supreme Court of the Territory; studied law; entered Georgetown College, Ky., but left it in 1862, and joined the Eighth Kentucky Union Cavalry under Col. Brinton; subsequently general, and secretary of the treasurer of the Union College (Grant). He left the service in 1864, with the rank of captain. Since 1864 he has held the following pastorates: First Baptist Church, Greenescastle, Ind., 1864—66; First Baptist Church, Evansville, Ind., 1866—69; First Baptist Church, Covington, Ky., 1868—70; Hanson-place Baptist Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1869—72; Warren-avenue Baptist Church, Boston, Mass., 1872—77; evangelist, 1877—81; since 1881 has been pastor of Tompkins-avenue Congregational Church, Brooklyn, N.Y. He has been three times abroad, always on invitation to preach and do evangelistic work, twice with Mr. Moody. He is the author of Angel in Marble, Boston, 1876, 3d ed. 1884, London 1884; In the Volume of the Book, New York, 1879, 3d ed. 1880, London, 1884; Out of Egypt, London, 1884, New York, 1885 (the last two books have had a joint circulation of 40,000 copies); many tracts and pamphlets; since 1886, editor of Words and Wraps for Christian Workers (monthly), New York, 1885 sqq.

PEROWNE, Very Rev. John James Stewart, D.D. (Cambridge, 1878), Church of England; b. at Burdwan, Bengal, India, March 13, 1823; was a member of the Old-Testament company at Christ's college, and in 1845, was pastor at Bowling Green, Ky., 1837—57; professor of theology, Union University, Murfreesboro', Tenn., 1857—61; was pastor at Hamilton, O., 1862—63, and at Upland, Penn., 1863—65. He has never had a collegiate education, but received an honorary A.M. from Georgetown College, Ky., 1841. He is the author of Three Reasons why I am a Baptist, Cincinnati, O., 1853, last ed. St. Louis, Mo., 1884; Sermons, Nashville, Tenn., 1859; Church Manual, Philadelphia, 1868 (40 editions of 500 copies each); Christian Doctrines, 1878, 13th ed. 1885 (each edition 500 copies); Distinction of Principles of Baptists, 1881, 3d ed. 1885 (each edition 500 copies); with Rev. Dr. G. W. Clark, Brief Notes on the New Testament, 1884; The Atonement of Christ, 1885. His Three Reasons was translated into Welsh.

PENNICK, Right Rev. Charles Clifton, D.D. (King's College, Gambier, O., 1877), Episcopalian, retired bishop; b. in Charlotte County, Va., Dec. 9, 1843; studied in Hampden-Sidney College, Va., and graduated at the Theological Seminary of Virginia, near Alexandria, 1869; was rector of Emmanuel Church, Goodson, Va., 1869—70; of St. George's Church, Mount Savage, Md., 1870—73; of the Church of the Messiah, Baltimore, Md., 1873—77; bishop of Cape Palms and parts adjacent, Africa, 1877—83; since 1885 has been rector of St. Andrew's Church, Louisville, Ky. He entered the Confederate army in 1861, and served through the war. He founded Cape Palms Mount Station, Liberia, and est. African Church. He is the author of More than a Prophet, New York, 1880. of The Cambridge Bible for Schools, 1877 seqq., to which series he contributed the notes on Jonah, 1878.

PERRIN, Lavallette, D.D. (Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1869). Congregationalist; b. at Vernon, Conn., May 15, 1816; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1840, and at Yale Theological Seminary, New Haven, Conn., 1843–57; of First Church, New Britain, Conn., 1858–70; since 1872, pastor of the Third Church, Torrington, Conn.; since 1876, annalist of General Conference of Congregational Churches of Connecticut; since 1880, treasurer of National Council of Congregational Churches; since 1882, member of corporation of Yale College. He took the initiatory steps in organizing the State Conference in 1867, and the Connecticut Congregational Club, Dec. 18, 1876; projected and succeeded to the secretariaship, 1865; was elected the State Convention in 1867, and the Connecticut Convention he was made assistantsecretary; succeeded to the secretariaship, 1865; was elected secretary to the House of Clerical and Lay Deputies in the General Convention, 1868, 1871, and 1874; historiographer of the American Church, 1868; professor of history in Hobart College, 1871–73. With Dr. J. Cotton Smith he edited The Church Monthly, Boston, 1864. A full list of his numerous and valuable writings down to date is given in Batterson's Sketch-book of the American Episcopal, Philadelphia, 2d ed. 1885. Leaving out several volumes of sermons and publications of these may be mentioned, Historical Sketch of the Church Missionary Association of the Eastern District of Massachusetts, Boston, 1859; Journals of the General Convention of the Protestant-Episcopal Church of the United States of America (with illustrative historical notes and appendices by the Rev. Francis L. Hawks and the Rev. William Stevens Perry), vol. 1. (all published), Philadelphia, 1861; Bishop Seabury and Bishop Provoost: an Historical Fragment, privately printed, 1862; Documentary History of the Protestant-Episcopal Church in South Carolina, Francis L. Hawks and William Stevens Perry editors, No. 1 (all published), 1862; The Collects of the Church, privately printed, 1863, 2d ed. 1878; The Connection of the Church of England with Early American Colonization, Portland, 1863; Bishop Seabury and the ‘Episcopal Recorder - a Vindication, privately printed, 1863; A Century of Episcopacy in Portland (a sketch of the history of the Episcopal Church in Portland, Me., from the organization of St. Paul's, Falmouth, Nov. 4, 1763, to the year 1883), Portland, 1863; Documentary History of the Protestant-Episcopal Church in the United States of America (containing numerous hitherto unpublished documents concerning the Church in Connecticut), Francis L. Hawks and William Stevens Perry editors, New York, 1863–64, 2 vols.; Liturgical Worship, Sermons on the Book of Common Prayer, by Bishops and Clergy of the Protestant-Episcopal Church, New York, 1864 (edited, the course planned, and one of the sermons delivered, by William Stevens Perry); A Memorial of the Rev. Thomas Mather Smith, D.D., privately printed, 1866; A History of the Book of Common Prayer, with a Rationale of its Offices, by Francis Proctor (with an introductory chapter on the History of the American Liturgy, by William Stevens Perry), New York, 1868, new London, 1869. New York, 1881, Commentary on the Life and Labors of the Great Apostle, 1889; The Churchman's Year-Book, Hartford, 1870; do., 1871; Historical Collections of the American Colonial Church, vol. i., Virginia, 1871; do., vol. ii., Pennsylvania, 1872; do., vol. iii., Massachusetts, 1873; do., vol. iv., Maryland, 1876; do., vol. v., Delaware, 1878; Life Lessons from the Book of Proverbs, New York, 1872, 4th ed. 1883; A Sunday-school Experiment, 1874, 3d ed. 1877; Handbook of the General Convention, 1874, 4th ed. 1881; Journals of the General Convention, 1855 to 1865, 3 vols.; Historical Notes and Documents of the Organization of the Protestant-Episcopal Church in the United States of America, 1874; The Re-union Conference at Bonn, 1876. A Personal Narrative, 1876; The American Cathedral, 1877; Missions and Missionary Bishops in the American Church (a paper read before the Church Congress held at St. Stephen's, Mines, 1862, at which Mr. Perry was made assistant secretary; succeeded to the secretariaship, 1865; was elected secretary to the House of Clerical and Lay Deputies in the General Convention, 1868, 1871, and 1874; historiographer of the American Church, 1868; professor of history in Hobart College, 1871–73. With Dr. J. Cotton Smith he edited The Church Monthly, Boston, 1864. A full list of his numerous and valuable writings down to date is given in Batterson's Sketch-book of the American Episcopal, Philadelphia, 2d ed. 1885. Leaving out several volumes of sermons and publications of these may be mentioned, Historical Sketch of the Church Missionary Association of the Eastern District of Massachusetts, Boston, 1859; Journals of the General Convention of the Protestant-Episcopal Church of the United States of America (with illustrative historical notes and appendices by the Rev. Francis L. Hawks and the Rev. William Stevens Perry), vol. 1. (all published), Philadelphia, 1861; Bishop Seabury and Bishop Provoost: an Historical Fragment, privately printed, 1862; Documentary History of the Protestant-Episcopal Church in South Carolina, Francis L. Hawks and William Stevens Perry editors, No. 1 (all published), 1862; The Collects of the Church, privately printed, 1863, 2d ed. 1878; The Connection of the Church of England with Early American Colonization, Portland, 1863; Bishop Seabury and the "Episcopal Recorder - a Vindication, privately printed, 1863; A Century of Episcopacy in Portland (a sketch of the history of the Episcopal Church in Portland, Me., from the organization of St. Paul's, Falmouth, Nov. 4, 1763, to the year 1883), Portland, 1863; Documentary History of the Protestant-Episcopal Church in the United States of America (containing numerous hitherto unpublished documents concerning the Church in Connecticut), Francis L. Hawks and William Stevens Perry editors, New York, 1863–64, 2 vols.; Liturgical Worship, Sermons on the Book of Common Prayer, by Bishops and Clergy of the Protestant-Episcopal Church, New York, 1864 (edited, the course planned, and one of the sermons delivered, by William Stevens Perry); A Memorial of the Rev. Thomas Mather Smith, D.D., privately printed, 1866; A History of the Book of Common Prayer, with a Rationale of its Offices, by Francis Proctor (with an introductory chapter on the History of the American Liturgy, by William Stevens Perry), New York, 1868, new London, 1869. New York, 1881, Commentary on the Life and Labors of the Great Apostle, 1889; The Churchman's Year-Book, Hartford, 1870; do., 1871; Historical Collections of the American Colonial Church, vol. i., Virginia, 1871; do., vol. ii., Pennsylvania, 1872; do., vol. iii., Massachusetts, 1873; do., vol. iv., Maryland, 1876; do., vol. v., Delaware, 1878; Life Lessons from the Book of Proverbs, New York, 1872, 4th ed. 1883; A Sunday-school Experiment, 1874, 3d ed. 1877; Handbook of the General Convention, 1874, 4th ed. 1881; Journals of the General Convention, 1855 to 1865, 3 vols.; Historical Notes and Documents of the Organization of the Protestant-Episcopal Church in the United States of America, 1874; The Re-union Conference at Bonn, 1876. A Personal Narrative, 1876; The American Cathedral, 1877; Missions and Missionary Bishops in the American Church (a paper read before the Church Congress held at St. Stephen's, Mines, 1862, at which Mr. Perry was made assistant secretary; succeeded to the secretariaship, 1865; was elected secretary to the House of Clerical and Lay Deputies in the General Convention, 1868, 1871, and
PHILLIPS.

167

PHILLIPS.

PHILPS, Austin, D.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1856), Congregationalist; b. in West Brookfield, Mass., Jan. 7, 1820, graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1837; was pastor of Pine-street Church, Boston, Mass., 1842-46; and professor of sacred rhetoric in Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1846-79. He has published The Still Hour, Boston, 1858; Hymns and Choirs, Andover, 1860; The New Birth, Boston, 1860; Sabbath Hours, 1870; Studies of the Old Testament, 1879; The Theory of Preaching, 1881; Men and Books, 1882; My Portfolio, 1882; English Style, 1883; My Study, 1885; and numerous articles.

PHELPS, Sylvanus Dryden, D.D. (Madison University, Hamilton, N.Y., 1864), Baptist; b. at Suffield, Conn., May 15, 1816; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1844; at Yale Divinity School, New Haven, Conn., 1847; was pastor of First Baptist Church, New Haven, Conn., 1846-74; of Jefferson-street Church, Providence, R.I., 1874-76; and since has been proprietor and editor of The Christian Secretary, Hartford, Conn. He has published Eloquence of Nature, and other Poems, Hartford, 1842; Sunlight and Heartlight (poems), New York, 1856; Holy Land: a Year's Tour, 1863, republished under title, Bible Lands, Chicago, 1869, 11th ed. 1877; The Poet's Song for the Heart and the Home, 1867; Rest Days in a Journey to Bible Lands: Sermons preached in the Four Quarters of the Globe, 1886.

PHILLIPS, Philip, Methodist layman; b. in Chautauqua County, N.Y., Aug. 18, 1833; brought up on the farm of a neighbor; early attracted attention by his singing, received a common-school education at the country singing-school, and later from Dr. Lowell Mason; began his first singing-school at Alleghany, N.Y., in 1853; conducted such schools subsequently in adjacent towns and cities. His parents were Baptists, and he was one himself from 1852 to 1860; but in 1860 he and his wife (whom he had married that year) joined the Methodist Church at Marion, O., and have ever since been in that denomination. He brought out his first musical publication, Early Blossoms, in 1860, and sold twenty thousand copies of it. In 1861 he moved to Cincinnati and opened a music-store. In 1863 his music-store in Cincinnati, 1862, sold to the extent of seven hundred thousand copies. During the war he entered vigorously into the work of the Christian Commission, and raised much money for it by his Home Songs, and his personally conducted "services of song" in different parts of the country. In 1869 he issued The Singing Pilgrim, and since other books. In 1866 his music-store in Cincinnati was burned, and he moved his business to New York. In 1868 he first visited England, and successfully held ser-of song in all parts of the United Kingdom. He prepared The American Sacred Songster for the British Sunday-school Union, of which eleven hundred thousand copies have been sold. He has since held his praise and Bible-reading services in all parts of the world. He is the only man who has belted the entire globe with his voice in song, conducting 574 services during the journey. See Philip Phillips: Song Pilgrimage around and throughout the World, with biographical sketch by Alexander Clark, Chicago, 1880, London, 1883.

PHILPOTT, Right Rev. Henry, D.D. (Cambridge, 1847), lord bishop of Worcester, Church of England; b. at Chichester, Nov. 17, 1807; educated at St. Catarine's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (senior wrangler, and Smith's prizeman, and first-class classical tripos) 1829, M.A. 1832; ordained deacon 1831, priest 1833; was fellow of his college, assistant tutor, then tutor, and then was master with a canonry of Norwich annexed, 1845-60; chaplain to his late Royal Highness the Prince Consort, 1854-60; vice-chancellor of the University of Cambridge, 1856-58; consecrated bishop, 1861; has been since 1861 chancellor of the University, and is also provincial chaplain of Canterbury.

PIECK, Bernhard, Ph.D. (University of New York City, 1877), Lutheran; b. at Kempen, Prussia, Dec. 19, 1842; educated at Breslau and Berlin; graduated at Union Theological Seminary, New York City, 1868; became pastor at New York, 1868; North Buffalo, N.Y., 1869; Syracuse, N.Y., 1870; Rochester, N.Y., 1874; Allegheny, Penn., 1881. He became member of the German Oriental Society of Halle-Leipzig, 1877, and of the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis (U.S.A.), 1881. Since 1872 he has been a constant contributor to McClintock and Strong's Cyclopædia, translated Delitzsch's Jewish Artisan Life in the Time of Jesus, New York, 1883; is author of Luther as a Humanist, Philadelphia, 1875; Jüdisches Volksleben zur Zeit Jesu, Rochester, N.Y., 1880; Luther's "Ein feste Burg" in Nineteen Languages, 1880; 2d ed. (in twenty-one languages) Chicago, 1883; Index to Lutheriana, 1843-1877, New York, 1882; and of articles in reviews, etc.

PIEPER, Franz Augustus Otto, Lutheran (Missouri Synod); b. at Carwitz, Pommerania, Germany, June 27, 1852; graduated at North-western University, Watertown, Wis., 1872, and at Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., 1879; was pastor at Manitowoc, Wis., 1875-78; and since has been professor of theology in Concordia Seminary. He is the author of Das Grundbekenntniss der evangelisch-lutherischen Kirche, St. Louis, Mo., 1880.

PIERCE, George Foster, D.D., bishop of the Methodist-Episcopal Church South; b. in Greene County, Ga., Feb. 3, 1811; d. near Sparta, Ga., Sept. 3, 1884; he was the son of the famous Lovick Pierce; studied law, but abandoned it for the ministry, and in 1831 was received into the Georgia Conference of the Methodist-Episcopal Church. After filling various important appointments in South Carolina and Georgia, he became in 1848 president of Emory College, Ga., and so remained until 1854, when he was elected a bishop. He was a very influential man in his denomination. He was the author of Incidents of Western Travel, edited by T. O. Summers, Nashville, 1867; and numerous sermons.

PIERCE, Right Rev. Henry Niles, D.D. (University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, 1863), LL.D. (William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va., 1869), Episcopalian, bishop of Arkansas; b. at Pawtucket, R.I., Oct. 19, 1820; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1842; was rector of St. John's, Mobile, Ala., 1857-58; of St. Paul's, Springfield, Ill., 1860-70; consecrated bishop, 1870. Besides occasional sermons, essays, addresses, etc., he has written The Agnostic, and other Poems, New York, 1864.

PIERSON, Arthur Tappan, D.D. (Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., 1874), Presbyterian; b. in New York City, March 6, 1837; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1857, and at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1860; pastor at Binghamton, N.Y., 1860; Waterford, N.Y., 1863; Detroit, Mich., 1869; Indianapolis, 1882; and Philadelphia (Bethany Church), 1883. He is a frequent contributor to periodicals.

PIQUO, Francis, D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1873), Church of England; b. at Baden-Baden, Germany, Jan. 8, 1832; educated at Trinity College, Dublin, graduated B.A. 1853, divinity testimonium 1854, M.A. 1857, B.D. 1878; was ordained deacon 1855, priest 1856; curate of Stoke Talmage, Oxfordshire, 1855-56; chaplain to Bishop Spencer at Marborough Chapel, Paris, 1856-58; curate of St. Philip, Regent Street, and of St. Mary, Kensington, London, 1858-60; perpetual curate of St. Philip, Regent Street, London, 1860-62; vicar of Doncaster, 1863-75; rural dean of Doncaster, 1870-75; honorary chaplain in ordinary to the Queen, 1871-74; became chaplain in ordinary, 1874; vicar and rural dean of Halifax, 1873; canon of Ripon Cathedral, 1885. He has held "missions" in England and America (1885), and many "retreats." He is the author of Faith and Practice (sermons), London, 1865; Early Communion, 1877; Addresses to District Visitors and Sunday-school Teachers, 1890; Addresses delivered on Various Occasions, 1883.

PIPER, Karl Wilhelm Ferdinand, German Protestant; b. at Stralsund, May 7, 1811; studied at Berlin and Göttingen, 1831; "priest-docent" at Berlin, 1840; professor extraordinary, 1842; and since 1849 director of the Christian Archæological Museum, which he had himself founded. From 1850 to 1870 he edited the Evangelischer Kalender (Berlin); and has written much upon Christian archeology, of which may be mentioned, Geschichte des Osterfestes, Berlin, 1845; Mythologie der christlichen Kirche, Weimar, 1847-51, 2 vols.; Einleitung in die monumentale Theologie, Gotha, 1867; Evangelischer Kalender, Berlin, 1875.

PIRIE, Very Rev. William Robinson, D.D. (King's College and University of Aberdeen, 1848), principal of Aberdeen University, Church of Scotland; b. in the manse of Slains, Aberdeen-shire, July 26, 1804; d. at Chanonry, Old Aberdeen, Nov. 3, 1885. He matriculated at King's College and University of Aberdeen, 1818, and attended all the classes, but did not graduate, it being unusual at that time to do so; became minister of Dyce, Aberdeen-shire, 1830; professor of divinity at Marischal College and University of Aberdeen, 1843; professor of divinity and church history in Aberdeen University, 1860; principal of the university, 1877.
PITCHER, James, Lutheran; b. at Knox, Albany County, N.Y., Oct. 11, 1845; graduated at Hartwick Seminary, N.Y., 1869, and since 1872 has been president.

PITRA, His Eminence Jean Baptiste, D.D., cardinal of the Roman-Catholic Church; b. at Champsorregue, near Autun, Aug. 31, 1812; was early consecrated; taught rhetoric in the seminary at Autun; entered the order of St. Benedict, and lived in the abbey of Solesme. There he devoted himself to historical research. In 1858 he was sent by the Pope to Russia to study the Slavic liturgy, and on his return was in the service of the Propaganda. On March 16, 1868, he was created a cardinal priest of the Holy Roman Church; in 1869 he became librarian of the Vatican; and in 1879 he was raised to the rank of cardinal bishop of Frascati. He is the author of Histoire de Saint Leger, Paris, 1846; Vie du R. P. Libermann, 1855, 2d ed. 1873; Spicilegium Graecorum historiae et monumenta, Rome, 1864; Triodion katanaocton, 1879 (these two volumes are the result of four years journeys and of special study since 1858, when he was directed by the Pope to devote his attention to the ancient and modern canons of the Oriental churches); Hymnographie de l'Eglise grecque, 1887.

PITZER, Alexander White, D.D. (Arkansas College, Ark., 1876), Presbyterian (Southern Church); b. at Anniston, Ala., Nov. 14, 1833; studied at Virginia Collegiate Institute (now Roanoke College), 1848–51; graduated at Hampden-Sidney College, Prince Edward County, Va., 1854; studied at Union Theological Seminary, Prince Edward County, Va., 1854–55, and at Dauphine Theological Seminary, Ky., 1855–57, and graduated 1857; was pastor at Leavenworth, Kan., 1857–61; Sparta, Ga., 1862–63; Liberty, Va., 1866–67; organized Central Presbyterian Church, Washington, D.C., in 1868, and has since been its pastor; since 1875 has been professor of biblical history and literature in Howard University in the same city. Since 1865 he has been a trustee of Hampden-Sidney College; since 1872, stated clerk of presbytery of Chesapeake; since 1873, president of the Washington-City Bible Society by annual unanimous re-election (was chairman of special committee of the society to report on the Canterbury revision, and reported favorably; under his presidency it had been [1870–1872] held since 1874, secretary of the Washington-City branch of the Evangelical Alliance. He was a member of the Prophetic Conference in New York, 1878, and suggested and aided in preparing the Doctrinal Basis, which was unanimously adopted. He introduced in the Southern General Assembly held at Atlanta, Ga., in 1882, resolutions to establish fraternity with the Northern Assembly, and aided in passage of the same. He favors the union of American Presbyterians on the basis of consensus of Presbyterian creeds. He is the author of Ecce Deus Homo (published anonymously), Philadelphia, 1867; Christ, Teacher of Men, 1871; The New Life not the Higher Life, 1878; contributions to reviews (North-American, Presbyterian, Southern Presbyterian, Southern Homiletic), magazines (Catholic Presbyterian, Pulpit Treasury), and newspapers (New-York Observer, Christian Observer, Presbyterian, New-York Evangelist); Journal, Philadelphia.

PLATH, Karl Heinrich Christian, Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1869), Lutheran; b. at Bromberg, Sept. 8, 1829; educated at Halle (1849–52), Bonn (1852–55), and at Wurzburg Theological Seminary (1854–58); was preacher at Halle, and gymnasial teacher, 1856–63; third secretary of the Berlin Mission, 1863–71; first secretary of Gossner's Mission, Berlin, since 1871; privat-docent in University, 1869; titular professor, 1863. He visited India in 1877–85 on behalf of Gossner's Mission. He is author of Leben des Freiherrn von Camp, Halle, 1881; Sieben Zeugen des Herrn aus allerletzter Volk, Berlin, 1867; Die Erwähnung der Völker in der Lichte der Missionsgeschichte, 1867; Drei Neue Missionsfragen, 1868; Die Missionsbekenntnisse des Freiherrn von Leibnitz, 1869; Missions-Studien, 1870; Die Bedeutung der Atlantik-Pacific Eisenbahnen für das Reich Gottes, 1871; Die kulturhistorische Bedeutung der Kolonisation in Ostindien, 1876; Gossner's Mission unter Hindus und Kolos um Neujahr 1878, 1879; Nordindische Missionseindrücke, 1879, 2d ed. 1881; Eine Reise nach Indien für kleine und grosse Leute beschrieben, 1880; Welche Stellung haben die Glieder der christlichen Kirche dem modernen Judentum gegenüber einzunehmen? 1881; Was machen wir Christen mit unsern Juden? Nördlingen, 1881; Shakespeares Kaufmann von Venedig. Ein Beitrag zum Verständnis der Judenfrage, Greifswald, 1883.

PLUM, Albert Hale, D.D. (Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1882), Congregationalist; b. at Gowanda, Erie County, N.Y., Aug. 23, 1829; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1855, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1858; became pastor of First Church, Chelsea, Mass., 1858; and of Walnut-avenue Church, Boston Highlands, Mass., 1872.

PLUMMER, Alfred, D.D. (Durham, 1882), Church of England; b. at Heworth parsonage, on the Tyne, Feb. 17, 1841; was Gifford exhibitor of Exeter College, Oxford; first-class in moderations in 1861; graduated B.A. (second-class classics) 1863, M.A. (of Trinity College) 1869; ordained deacon 1869; Hollins University College, 1864–74; tutor and dean, 1867–74; master of the schools, 1868; pro-proctor, 1873; master of University College, Durham, 1874; senior proctor, 1877. In June, 1871, he bore the degree of D.D. by diploma sent by the University of Oxford to Dr. von Döllinger, one of whose last students he had been (1870), at the Bonn re-union conferences of 1874 and 1875. Dr. Plummer translated Dollinger's Fables respecting the Popes, London, 1871; Prophecies and the Prophetic Spirit, 1873; and Hippolytus and Calstis, Edinburgh, 1876 (each with additional original matter); and has also published Intemperate Criticism, during 1877; and written on S.S. Peter and Jude, in Ellicott's Commentary, London, 1879; on St. John's Gospel (1880, 2d ed. 1884) and Epistles (1883), in The Cambridge Bible; on St. John's Gospel, in Cambridge Greek Testament, 1882; and the Historical Introduction in The Pulpit Commentary.

PLUMPTRE, Very Rev. Edward Hayes, D.D.
(Glasgow, 1873). Church of England; b. in London, Aug. 6, 1821; was scholar of University College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (double first-class) 1841, M.A. 1847. He was fellow of Brasenose Col-ger every extensively in Palestine, Syria, Arabia, Asia Minor, Turkey, Egypt, North Africa, Europe,
and America, 1849-80. He is the author of Five Years in Damascus, with Travels and Researches in Syria, Arabia, Asia Minor, and America, 1849-80.

POOR, Daniel Warren, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1857), Presbyterian; b. at Tillipally, Ceylon, Aug. 21, 1818; graduated at An-herst (Mass.) College, 1837; studied the next two years in Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary; was pastor (Congregational) at Fairhaven, Mass., 1843-49; Newark, N.J. (Presbyterian), 1849-69; and at Oakland, Cal., 1869-71; professor of church history in the San Francisco (Cal.) Theological Seminary, 1871-76; and since has been Corresponding secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Education, Philadelphia. He translated and dited, in connection with Dr. Wing, King's commentary on Corinthians in the American edition of Lange, New York, 1886.

Methodist; b. at Berkeley, N.J., Feb. 19, 1822; studied theology at Richmond College, Eng.: from 1841 to 1867 was a Methodist pastor; and since 1867 has been professor of theology in Didsbury College, Manchester. In 1877 he was president of the British Wesleyan Conference. He is the author of a translation of Strier's Words of the Lord Jesus, and of the Greek New Testament, Edinb-burgh, 1876 (each with additional original matter); and has also published Intemperate Wine (Fernley Lecture), 1st and 2d ed. 1875; A Compendium of Christian Theology, 1875-76, 3 vols.; The Prayers of St. Paul, 1876; Discourses, chiefly on Lordship of the Incarnate Redeemer, 1st to 3d ed. 1880;
Sermons, Addresses, and Charges of a Year, 1878;
A Higher Catechism of Theology, 1883, 2d ed. 1884.

PORTER, Josia Leslie, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1864), L.L.D. (Glasgow, 1864), D.Litt. (Queen's University, Ireland, 1881), Presbyterian; b. at Burt, County Donegal, Ireland, Oct. 4, 1823; graduated at Glasgow, July 1842; M.A. 1843; studied theology at the Free Church College and University, both Edinburgh, 1843-45; in the Presbyterian Church of England, pastor at Newcastle-on-Tyne, 1846-49; missionary of the Presbyterian Church of Ireland in Damascus, 1849-50; professor of biblical criticism in the Assembly's College, Belfast, Ireland, 1850-77; appointed by the British Parliament commissioner of education in Ireland,
1878; and by the Queen, President of Queen's College, Belfast, and senator of the Queen's University, 1879; and in 1880 senator of the Royal University of Ireland. He was moderator of the Irish General Assembly, 1875; was largely engaged in preparing the great scheme of intermediate education in Ireland, 1875-79, and in framing the constitution and the educational courses of the Royal University, 1881-84. He has travelled very extensively in Palestine, Syria, Arabia, Asia Minor, Turkey, Egypt, North Africa, Europe,
and America. He is the author of Five Years in Damascus, with Travels and Researches in Lebanon, Palmyra, and Hauran, London, 1855,
2 vols., 2d ed. 1870; Hand-book for Syria and Palestine (Murray's), 1858, 2 vols., 3d ed. 1875;
The Pentateuch and the Gospels, Edinburgh, 1864;
The Giant Cities of Bashan, and Holy Places of PORTER, George Lewis, D.D. (Bowdoin College, Hartford, Conn., 1838), LL.D. (Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1856); D.C.L. (Oxford, 1860), Episcopalian, bishop of New York; b. at Beebeinak (now Lagrange), Dutchess County, N.Y., Feb. 9, 1802; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1829; was rector at Saco, Me., 1828-35; at St. Peter's, Albany, 1833-54; provisional bishop of New York 1861, Bishop 1863. He has published numerous sermons, charges, etc.

POWER, Frederick Dungiston, Disciple; b. near Yorktown, York County, Va., Jan. 23, 1851; graduated at Bethany College, Bethany, W. Va., 1871; became pastor at Charlottesville, Va., 1874; adjunct professor of ancient languages, Bethany College, 1874; pastor Vermont-avenue Christian Church, Washington, D.C. (the late President Garfield's church), 1875. He was chaplain of the Forty-seventh Congress.

PREGER, Johann Wilhelm, D.D. (Erlangen, 1874), German Protestant; b. at Schweinfurt, Aug. 25, 1827; studied at Erlangen and Berlin; became professor in the Munich Protestant preachers' seminary, 1859; and since 1851 has been professor of religion and history in the Munich gymnasium. In 1868 he was elected a member of the Bavarian Academy of Sciences. He is the author of Die Geschichte der Lehre vom geistlichen Amte auf Grund der Geschichte der Rechtferigungserlehrung, Nördlingen, 1857; Matthias Flacius Illyricus und seine Zeit, Erlangen, 1859-61, 2 vols.; Die Briefe Heinrich Suos nach ein. Handschrift des XV. Jahrh., Leipzig, 1867; Dantes Matelda, 1873; Das Evangelium aternum und Joachim von Flora, 1874; Geschichte der deutschen Mystik im Mittelalter, 1874-81, 2 vols.; Beiträge zur Geschichte der Waldesier, München, 1876; Tractat des David von Augsburg über den Zweifel in der Tat, 1878; Beiträge u. Erörterungen zur Geschichte des Deutschen Reiches in den Jahren 1830-34, 1880; Ueber die Anfänge d. kirchenpolitischen Kampfes unter Ludwig dem Baier, 1882.

PRENTISS, George Lewis, D.D. (Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1884), Presbyterian; b. at Gorham, Me., May 12, 1816; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1835, and was assistant in Gorham Academy, 1836-37. He studied theology at the universities of Halle and Berlin (1839-41), enjoying the friendship of Tholuck in the former place; and became pastor of the Sixth Trinitarian Church, New Bedford, Mass., April, 1845. In April, 1851, he was installed pastor of the Mercer-street Presbyterian Church, New York City; resigned on account of ill health in the spring of 1858, and sought rest in Europe for the next two years. On his return, the "Church of the Covenant," May 25, 1857, at May Hill, was gathered by him; and he remained its pastor from the spring of 1862 until April, 1873, when he resigned to become Skinner and McAlpin professor of pastoral theology, church polity, and missionwork, in Union Theological Seminary, New-York City; and this position he now occupies. Besides numerous sermons, addresses, and articles in periodicals, he has published A Memoir of Sergent S. Prentiss (his brother), New York, 1855, 2 vols., new ed. 1879; A Discourse in Memory of Thomas Harvey Skinner, D.D., LL.D., 1871; The Life and Letters of Elizabeth Prentiss (his wife), 1882.

PRESSÉNÉ, Édouard (D'Hauteville) de, D.D. (hon., Breslau 1869, Montauban 1876, Edinburgh 1884). French Protestant; b. in Paris, Jan. 24, 1824; studied arts at the University of Paris; theology under Vihet at Lausanne (1842–49), and under Tholuck and Neander at Halle and Berlin (1846–47); was pastor of the Free Evangelical Congregation of the Taitbout at Paris, 1847–70; deputy to the National Assembly from the Department of the Seine, 1871–79; elected a life senator of France, 1883. He is president of the Synodical Commission of the Free Church of France, in whose organization he took a prominent part, and active in the Evangelical Alliance and in the evangelization of France. He is a cheerfulist of the Legion of Honor. Since 1854 he has edited the Revue chrétienne, Paris, which he founded. Of his numerous publications the following may be mentioned: Conférences sur le christianisme dans son application aux questions sociales, Paris, 1849; Du catholicisme en France, 1851; Le Réveilleur, 1854, 2d ed. 1866; Evangelisch Studien, Halle, 1866; Etwas Religium, 1867; Das evangelische Studien, Halle, 1868, 2d ed. 1884; La vraie Liberté (four discourses), 1889; Rome and Italy at the Opening of the Ecumenical Council (trans. from the French), New York, 1870; Le Concile du Vatican, son histoire et ses conséquences politiques et religieuses, 1872 (German trans. by Ed. Fabarius, Leipzig, 1872); La liberté religieuse en Europe depuis 1870, 1874; Le devoir, 1875; La question ecclésiastique en 1877, 1878; L’apostolat missionnaire, 1879; Etudes contemporaines, 1880 (English trans. by A. H. Holmden, Contemporary Portraits, New York, 1880); Les origines, 1882 (English trans., Study of Origins); La question de Dieu (Dutych and Latin ed., 2d ed. 1889); German trans. by Ed. Fabarius, Die Ursprünge, Halle, 1884.

PRÉSTON, Thomas Scott, Roman Catholic; b. at Hartford, Conn., July 23, 1824; graduated at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1843; entered the Protestant-Episcopal ministry, 1846; became a Roman Catholic, 1849, and priest 1850; domestic priest of his Holiness, 1851; and is now vicar-general and chancellor of the diocese of New York, and parish priest of St. Ann’s. He is the author of *Ark of the Covenant, Discourses upon the Joys, Sorrows, and Glories of the Mother of God, New York, 1860; Life of Mary Magdalen, 1861; Sermons for the Seasons, 1864; Lectures on Christian Unity, 1866; Purgatorial Manual, 1867; Reason and Revelation, 1868; Christ and the Church, 1870; Lectures upon the Devotion to the Sacred Heart of Jesus Christ, 18—; The Vicar of Christ, 18—; The Divine Sanctuary: Series of Meditation upon the Most Sacred Heart of Jesus, 1878; Divine Paraclete, 1880; Protestantism and the Bible, 1880; Protestantism and the Church, 1882; God and Reason, 1884; Watch on Calvary, 1885.

PRIME, Edward Dorr Griffin, D.D. (Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1857), Presbyterian; b. at Cambridge, N.Y., Nov. 2, 1814; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1832, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1838; was pastor at Skotchtown, N.Y., 1839–61; American chaplain at Rome, winter of 1854–55; since 1855 has been co-editor of The New-York Observer. He has published Around the World, New York, 1872 (several editions); Forty Years in the Turkish Empire (memoirs of Dr. William Goodell), 1875, 6th ed. 1883.

PRIME, Samuel Ireneeus, D.D. (Hampden Sidney College, Va., 1854) Presbyterian; b. at Ballston, Saratoga County, N.Y., Nov. 4, 1812; d. while on a vacation trip, at Manchester, Vt., Saturday, July 18, 1885. He was educated in the academy at Cambridge, N.Y., and at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass.; graduated from the latter, 1829; and at Union Theology at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1832–33. He ever afterwards remained a firm friend and active supporter of his literary and of his theological alma mater. He was pastor at Ballston Spa 1833–35, and at Matteawan, N.J., 1837–40. He became editor of The New-York Observer in 1840, and continued to be so being at the same time the chief proprietor of this old and influential family paper, which is read in all parts of the United States, as well as in many reading-rooms of Europe. He was for some time corresponding secretary and one of the directors of the American Bible Society, corresponding secretary of the Evangelical Alliance, president of Wells College, and a trustee of Williams College. He took an active and leading part in all the affairs of the Presbyterian Church, and in the Christian and philanthropic enterprises of the age. He repeatedly visited Europe. He wrote a number of books which had an extraordinary circulation at home and abroad (see list below). Among these we mention Travels in Europe and the East; The Bible in the Levant; The Alhambra and the Kremlin; Life of Samuel F. B. Morse; the Irenæus Letters (from The New-York Observer); and especially the Fowler’s Prayer-Book, 1859, and its Answer (1882). The Irenæus Letters are unique, and show an extraordinary faculty of clothing everyday topics and experiences with a fresh interest, and extracting from them lessons of pro-PUENJER.

PUENJER. (Georg Christian) Bernhard, Ph.D. (Jena, 1874), D.D. (Frankfort, 1883), Protestant theologian; b. at Friedrichsagabekoog, Schleswig-Holstein, June 7, 1850; d. at Jena, May 13, 1885. He was educated at Jena, Erlangen, and Zürich; afterwards he turned to theology, and was professor successively at Luneray, Rochefort, and Mulhouse. He has been a voluminous author. Among his works may be mentioned, "Anatomie du papisme," Paris, 1845; "Histoire de la Réformation française," 1857-58, 7 vols.

PUENJERS. (Christian) Bernhard, Ph.D. (Jena, 1874), D.D. (Heidelberg, 1883), Protestant theologian; b. at Friedrichsagabekoog, Schleswig-Holstein, June 7, 1850; d. at Jena, May 13, 1885. He was educated at Jena, Erlangen, and Zürich; became privat-docent in the theological faculty of Jena, 1878; professor of church history, 1880. He was the author of "De M. Serveti doctrina," Jena, 1876; "Geschichte der christlichen Religionsphilosophie seit der Reformation," Braunsweg, 1890-95, 2 vols.; "Die Aufgaben des heutigen Patrolique Bild," Jena, 1893.
PULLMAN, James Minton, D.D. (St. Lawrence University, Canton, N.Y., 1879), Universalist; b. at Portland, Chautauqua County, N.Y., Aug. 21, 1836; graduated at St. Lawrence Divinity School, Canton, N.Y., 1860; was pastor First Universalist Church, Troy, N.Y., 1861-85; of Sixth Universalist Church (Our Saviour), New-York City, 1868-85; since 1885 of First Universalist Church, Lynn, Mass. He organized and was first president of the Young Men's Universalist Association of New-York City, 1869; was secretary of the Universalist General Convention, 1868-77, and chairman of the publication board of the New-York State Convention, 1869-74; trustee of St. Lawrence University, Canton, N.Y., 1870-85; since 1885, trustee of New-England Conservatory of Music, and president of the Associated Charities of Lynn, Mass. Under him the new Church of Our Saviour, New-York City (dedicated 1874), was built. His theological standpoint is “the ethical interpretation of Christianity, as opposed to the magical interpretation; belief in the perfectibility of man (no evil is remediless); the inexorableness of the Divine love; the complete success of Jesus Christ (here and elsewhere), and the final moral harmony of the universe (evil completely eradicated and overcome).” His publications are sermons, lectures, pamphlets, and review articles.

QUINTARD, Right Rev. Charles Todd, M.D. (University of the City of New York, 1849), S.T.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1860), L.L.D. (Cambridge, Eng., 1887), Episcopalian, bishop of Tennessee; b. at Stamford, Conn., Dec. 22, 1824; appointed physician in New-York Dispensary, 1847; professor of physiology and pathological anatomy in the Medical College, Memphis, Tenn., 1851; ordained deacon 1854, priest 1855; became rector of the Church of the Advent, Nashville, Tenn., 1858; was chaplain in the Confederate army during the civil war; consecrated bishop, 1865; was vice-chancellor of the University of the South, 1866-72. He is the author of occasional sermons, charges, tracts, and letters, and of Preparation for Confirmation, New York, 187-.
RADSTOCK, Granville A. W. Waldegrave, lord, Irish peer, lay evangelist, Church of England; b. in England in the year 1833; succeeded to his title in 1857. After graduating from Oxford (Balliol College), he planned a political career for himself; but, being converted, he consecrated his talents and his property to gospel work, and for the past quarter of a century has been a lay evangelist at home and abroad. He carried on an important work among the Russian nobility until his expulsion from the country. He has also labored in Scandinavia. A volume of his addresses was published, London, 1872.

RAEBIGER, Julius Ferdinando, German Protestant; b. at Lohsa, April 20, 1811; studied at Leipzig and Breslau, 1829—34; became privat-docent at Breslau, 1838; professor extraordinary, 1847; ordinary professor, 1859. Among his publications may be mentioned, Ethica librorum apocryphorum V. T., Breslau, 1838; Kritische Unter- suchungen über den Inhalt der korinther Briefe, 1847; De christologia Paulina contra Baurium com- mentatio, 1852; Theologica oder Enzyklopädie der Theologie, Leipzig, 1886, (English trans., Encyclopaedia of Theology, Edinburgh, 1885, 2 vols.).

RAINY, Robert, D.D. (Glasgow, 18—, Edin- burgh, 18—.), Free Church of Scotland; b. in Glasgow, Jan. 1, 1826; graduated at its university, 1843; and studied theology at New College, Edinburgh, completing the course in 1848; became minister of the Free Church at Huntly, 1851; of the Free High Church, Edinburgh, 1854; profes- sor of church history in New College, Edinburgh, 1862; principal, 1874. He is the author of Three Lectures on the Church of Scotland, Edinburgh, 1872, 5th ed. 1884; The Delivery and De- fessor of church history in New College, Edin- burgh, 1862; principal, 1874. He is the author of Elements of Divinity, Louisville, Ky., 1847, several later editions, republished, revised and enlarged by addition of Evidences, Morals, and Institutions of Christianity (also pub- lished separately, 18—), Nashville, Tenn., 1871, 3d ed. 1875 (the book in its first form was translated into Norwegian, 1858, in its enlarged form into Chinese, 1888); (under pseudonym, "Eu- reka") Ecce Unitas; or, A Plea for Christian Unity, Cincinnati, O., 1873; Bible Truths, Nash- ville, Tenn., 1884.

RAND, William Wilberforce, D.D. (University of the City of New York, 1883), Reformed (Dutch); b. at Gorham, Me., Dec. 8, 1816; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1837, and at Bangor Theological Seminary, Me., 1840; licensed by Waldo Congregational Association, Me., 1840; pastor of the Reformed Dutch Church of Cana- tota, N.Y., 1841—44; editor of the American Tract Society, New-York City, 1848—72; publishing secre- tary of the same since 1872. He is the author of Songs of Zion, New York, 1851 (88,000 copies printed), revised and enlarged, 1885 (66,000 copies printed); Dictionary of the Bible for General Use, 1880 (206,000 copies have been printed), en- larged and largely re-written, 1886; other smaller books.

RANDOLPH, Right Rev. Alfred Magill, D.D. (William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va., 1875), Episcopalian, assistant bishop of Virginia; b. at Winchester, Frederick County, Va., Aug. 31, 1836; graduated at William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va., 1855, and at the Theological Seminary of Virginia, 1858; became rector of St. George's, Fredericksburg, Va., 1860; of Emman-uel Church, Baltimore, Md., 1867; bishop, 1875.

RANKE, Ernst, D.D. (hon., Marburg, 1863), P.h.D. (Erlangen, 1848), Evangelical German theologian; b. at Wiehe, Thueringia, Sept. 10, 1814; studied at Leipzig (1834), Berlin (1835—36), and Bonn (1836—37); was private tutor in his brother's family, 1837—39; pastor at Buchau, 1840—50; and professor of theology at Marburg, 1860 to date. He is a Lutheran, but favors the union of Lutheran and Reformed churches. He is consistorial-rath. He is the author of Das kirchliche Perikopensystem aus den ältesten Urkunden der römischen Liturgie, Ber- lin, 1847; Das Buch Tobias metrisch übersetzt, Bay- reuth, 1847; Kritische Zusammenstellung der . . . neuen Pericopenkreise, 1850; Der Fortbestan d der . . . Pericopenkreise, Gotba, 1859; and editor of Fragmenta versionis Latinae antithyomerianae. Prophetae Hoseae, Amos, Micha, et codi- menv. eruit. atque adnotation. crit. instruir, Marburg, 1856—58, 2 parts; Marburger Gesangbuch von 1849 mit verwandten Liedern dekriptus et alleg, historisch- kritisch erlautert, 1862; Codex Fuldensis. N. T.

R. . . prolegomena introducti, commentarii ordion. vii, 1868; Par palimpsestorum Wirceburgensium, Vienna, 1871; Fragmenta antiq. ev. Lucani ver.-

Lat., 1874; Chorgeräte zum Preis der h. Eliza- beth, aus mittelalterl. Antiphonarien hrg., Leipzig, 1888—84, 2 parts. He has also written poems: Gedichte, Erlangen, 1848; Zuruf auf das deutsche Volk, 1849; Carmina academica, Marburg, 1866; Lieder aus grosser Zeit, 1870, 2d ed. 1875; Horae Lyricæ, Vienna, 1874; Die Schlacht im Teutoburger Wald, Marburg, 1876; Rhythmica, Vienna, 1881; De Laude Nivis (a Latin poem), Marburg, 1886.

RANKE, Leopold von, b. at Wiehe, Thuringer, Dec. 30, 1795; d. in Berlin, Sunday, May 23, 1886; studied at Leipzig; was appointed head teacher in the Frankfort (on the Oder) gymnasium in 1818; and since 1825 has been professor of history at the University of Berlin. In 1827 he was sent by the Prussian government to Vienna, Venice, and Rome, to conduct historical researches. In 1841 he was appointed historiographer of the Prussian State; in 1848, elected a member of the Frankfort National Assembly; and in 1866, ennobled. He was an historian of the first rank, and continued his labors till his ninety-first year. Of those more immediately relating to theological study, which have been translated, may be mentioned, The History of the Roman and Germanic Peoples, from 1494 to 1555; The Popes of Rome, their Church and State, especially of the Conflict with Protestantism in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Century, 3 vols.; German History in the Times of the Reformation: A History of England, principally in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Century, 3 vols.; and Church History, vol. 1, trans. 1884 (the sixth part of the Weltgeschichte, extending to the death of Otto the Great, appeared in 1885).

RAUSCHENBUSCH, Augustus, Baptist; b. at Altena, Southern Westphalia, Germany, Feb. 19, 1852; studied at Berlin and Bonn; in 1841 was installed pastor of the Lutheran Church at Altena; in 1850 joined the Baptists in America, and in 1876 was sent by the Prussian government to Vienna, Venice, and Rome, to conduct historical researches. In 1841 he was appointed historiographer of the German department of the Rochester Theological Seminary. From 1848 to 1866 he was editor of the German monthly paper, Der Sentinelle, and to several other Baptist books and tracts for the society. Since he has largely contributed to the German Baptist weekly paper, Der/sendbote, and to several other Baptist periodicals.

RAWLINSON, George, Church of England; b. at Chadlington, Oxfordshire, Eng., Nov. 23, 1816; entered Trinity College, Oxford; wrote the Denyer theological prize essay in 1842 and 1843; graduated B.D. (Great Britain) 1838, M.A. (Exeter College) 1841; ordained deacon 1841, priest 1842; was fellow of Exeter College, 1840–46; tutor, 1842–46; sub-rector, 1841–45; curate of Merton, Oxfordshire, 1846–47; classical master and tutor at Oxford, 1855–57, 1868–79, 1875–79; Bampton lecturer, 1859. Since 1861 he has been Camden professor of ancient history to the university; since 1872, a canon of Canterbury; since 1873, proctor in convocation. Canon Rawlinson is a moderate High Churchman, but anxious in no way to narrow the liberty of opinion which has historically been claimed and allowed within the Anglican communion. In politics he is a moderate (or Conservative) Liberal. He supported Mr. Gladstone in all his Oxford contests, and received his canonry from the Crown on the recommendation of Mr. Gladstone as prime minister. In the elections of 1885, however, he found himself unable to support the (advanced) Liberal candidates. He is well known as a speaker in the Convocation of Canterbury, at church congresses, and elsewhere. Besides numerous articles in reviews and magazines (Contemporary, Prince-

Raymond, Miner, D.D., Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1854, LL.D. (North-western University, Evanston, III., 1884), Methodist; b. in New-York City, Aug. 29, 1811; educated at the Wesleyan Academy, Wilbraham, Mass.; became pastor in the same, 1834; received honorary M.A. from Wesleyan University, 1840; pastor in Massachusetts (Worcester, Boston, and Westfield), 1841; principal of the Wesleyan Academy, 1848; professor of systematic theology in Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., 1864. He has been a member of six general conferences. He published a Systematic Theology, Cincinnati, O., 1875; 3 vols.

REDFORD, Robert Ainslie, Congregationalist; b. at Worcester, Eng., March 21, 1828; studied at Glasgow University, Spring Hill College, Birmingham; and graduated at London University, M.A. 1852, LL.B. 1862; was pastor of Congregational Church at Newcastle-on-Tyne, 1855–66; Hull, 1855–73; Streatham Hill, London, 1876–90; since 1876, of Union Church, Putney, London.
since 1873 he has been professor of systematic theology and apologetics in New College, London. He is the author of Sermons, London, 1869; The Christian's Plea against Modern Unbelief, a Handbook of Christian Evidence, 1881, 2d ed. 1882; Prophecy, its Nature and Evidence, 1882; The Author of Scripture, Methodisms in the Book of Jonah, 1883; Primer of Christian Evidence, 1884; Four Centuries of Silence, or from Malachi to Christ, 1885; has contributed to commentaries upon Genesis, Leviticus, Nehemiah, and Acts, in Pulpit Commentary, 1881 sqq.

REED, Villeroy Dibble, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1856) Presbyterian; b. at Granville, Washington County, N.Y., April 27, 1815; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1835; studied at Auburn (N.Y.) and Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminaries, 1835–36; was pastor at Stillwater, N.Y., 1839–44; Lansingburgh, N.Y., 1844–58; president of Alexander College, Dubuque, Ia., 1858; stated supply at Buffalo, N.Y., 1858–60; Cohoes, N.Y., 1860–61; pastor at Camden, N.J., 1861–84. He was appointed in 1866 one of the Old School Assembly’s Committee of fifteen on Reunion, and it was his secretariat. He has been president of the Presbyterian Board of Ministerial Relief from its organization in 1876. Since 1873 he has been professor of systematic theology and apologetics in New College, London. He is the author of Lectures on the Revelation, Pittsburg, Penn., 1878; United Presbyterianism, 1881, 2d ed. 1883; various sermons and pamphlets.

REICHEL, Right Rev. Charles Parsons, D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1858), lord bishop of Meath, Church of Ireland; b. at Fumec, near Leeds, Yorkshire, Eng., in the year 1816; was scholar of Trinity College, Dublin, Ireland, 1841; graduated B.A. (senior moderator classics) 1843, divinity testimonium (first-class) 1844, M.A. 1847, B.D. 1853; was ordained deacon and priest, 1846; was professor of Latin, Queen’s College, Belfast, 1850–64; Donnellan lecturer at Trinity College, Dublin, 1854; vicar of Mullingar, 1864–75; rector of Trim, and archdeacon of Meath, 1875–85; select preacher at Cambridge, Eng., 1876 and 1883, and at Oxford 1880–82; professor of ecclesiastical history, Trinity College, Dublin, 1878; prebendary of Tipper, and canon of St. Patrick’s Cathedral, Dublin; dean of Clonmacnois, 1882–85; conse- crated bishop of Trim, 1883, b. at Nuremberg, 1825, member of the Senate of Trinity College, Dublin. He is the author of The Nature and Offices of the Church (Donnellan Lectures), London, 1856; Sermons on the Lord’s Prayer; Lectures on the Prayer-book; Sermons on Modern Infidelity, London, 1864; The Resurrection, God or Baal (two sermons), 1878; Origins of Christianity, etc., Sermons before the Universities of Oxford and Dublin, 1882; Short Treatises on the Ordinal; and a number of occasional discourses.

REID, John Morrison, D.D. (University of the City of New York, 1858), L.L.D. (Syracuse University, N.Y., 1859). Presbyterian; b. in New York City, May 30, 1820; graduated at the University of the City of New York, 1839; became principal of Mechanics Institute School of the city, 1839–44; Methodist pastor, 1844; president of Geneseo College, Lima, N.Y., 1858; editor of Western Christian Advocate, Cincinnati, O., 1864; of Northern Advocate, Lebanon, O., 1863; was associate editor of the Beaver County Democrat; editor of the Western Christian Advocate; corresponding secretary of the Missionary Society of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, New York City, 1872. He is the author of Missions and Missionary Societies of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, New York, 1879, 2 vols.; (editor of) Doomed Religions, 1884; multitudinous tracts, magazine and other articles.

REID, William James, D.D. (Monmouth College, Ill., 1874), United Presbyterian; b. at South Argyle, Washington County, N.Y., Aug. 17, 1834; graduated at 1870 College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1855, and at Allegheny (U.P.) Theological Seminary, Penn., 1862; has been pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, Penn., since 1862; principal clerk of the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church since 1875; was corresponding secretary of the United Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, 1869–72. He is the author of Lectures on the Revelation, Pittsburgh, Penn., 1878; United Presbyterianism, 1881, 2d ed. 1883; various sermons and pamphlets.

REIMENSNYDER, Junius Benjamin, D.D. (Newberry College, Newberry, S.C., 1880), Lutheran (General Synod); b. at Staunton, Va., Feb. 24, 1842; graduated at Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., 1881, and at the Gettysburg Theological Seminary, 1885; became pastor at Lewistown, Penn., 1885; Philadelphia (St. Luke’s), 1887; Savannah, Ga. (Ascension), 1874; New-York City (St. James), 1881. He was delegate to General Council of the Lutheran Church, Jamestown, N.Y., 1874; to General Synod (South), Staunton, Va., 1876, and Newberry, S.C., 1878; to General Council (North) from General Synod (South), bearing fraternal greetings, Bethlehem, Penn., 1876; to General Synod (North), Springfield, O., 1883, and Harrisburg, Penn. 1885. He is the author of Heavenward, or The Race for the Crown of Life, Philadelphia, 1874, 4th ed. 1877; Christian Unity (sermon), Savannah, Ga., 1875; Dueling (sermon), 1878; Doom Eternal, the Bible and Church Doctrine of Everlasting Punishment, Philadelphia, 1880; Spiritualism (sermon), New York, 1882; Lutheran Literature, Distinctive Traits and Excellencies, 1888; Luther, Work and Personality of, Biographical Sketch, 1883; Usefulness after Death (sermon), New York, 1885; Six Days of Creation, Lectures on the Mosaic Account of the Creation, Fall, and Deluge, Philadelphia, 1886.

REINEKENS, Joseph Hubert, D.D. (Munich, 1850), Old-Catholic bishop; b. at Burtseidel, near Aachen, Prussia, March 1, 1821; became priest, 1848; privat-doent at Breslau, 1850; professor extraordinary, 1853; ordinary professor, 1867. He joined Dollinger in the Nuremberg declaration (Aug. 26, 1870) against the infallibility dogma; and on Aug. 11, 1874, was ordained an Old-Catholic bishop, with his residence at Bonn. He is the author of De Clemente presbytero Alexandrinio, Breslau, 1851; Hilarius von Poitiers, Schaffhausen, 1861; Martin von Tours, 1866; Die Geschichtsphilosophie des h. Augustinus, 1866; Papst und Papstthum, Minister, 1870; Die päpstlichen Dekrete vom 18. Julii, 1870, 1871; Revolution und Kirche, Bonn, 1876 (3 editions); Ueber Einheit der katholischen Kirche, Würzburg, 1877; Melchior von Diessenbrook, Leipzig, 1881; Lessing über Toleranz, 1883.

REISCHLE, Max Wilhelm Theodor, German Protestant; b. in Vienna, June 18, 1859; educated at the Theological Seminary at Tubingen, 1870–80, and at Berlin and Göttingen, 1882–83; was vicar at Gmünd, 1881–82; repre- tent at Tübingen since 1883. He belongs to the school of Ritschl.
RENAN, Joseph Ernst, b. at Tréguier, Côtes du Nord, Feb. 27, 1823; was educated at the Seminary of St. Sulpice, Paris, where he studied with avidity Hebrew, Arabic, and Syriac, but abandoned the intention of becoming a priest. In 1846 his Étude de la langue grecque au moyen âge was crowned by the institute. In 1848 he gained the Volney prize for a memoir upon the Semitic languages by his Histoire générale et systèmes comparés des langues Sémituques, 1855, 2d ed. 1858, 2 vols. In 1848 he was sent by the Académie des Inscriptions to Italy; in 1856, elected a member; in 1860, sent on a mission to Syria; in 1862, appointed professor of Hebrew at the College of France; in 1863, published his Life of Jesus; was in consequence dismissed from his professorship, and not re-instated until 1870. In 1860 he was appointed to the Legion of Honor; in July, 1884, made a commander. In 1878 he was elected a member of the French Academy; in April, 1881, director; in June, 1888, vice-rector (manager) of the College of France. Of his works may be mentioned, translations of Job (1839), Song of Songs (1800), Ecclesiastes (1882); essays, Essais de morale et de critique, 1853, 3d ed. 1867; Études d'histoire religieuse, 1857, 7th ed. 1864 (English trans. by O. B. Frothingham, Studies of Religious History and Criticism, New York, 1884); his collaboration on vol. xxiv. of Histoire littéraire de la France, Orientalia, Mission en Phénicie, 1865-74, Rapport sur les progrès de la littérature orientale et sur les ouvrages relatifs à l'Orient, 1868; Corpus inscriptionum semitica, 1881 sqq. Of more general interest are his Aveceux et l'averroïsme, 1852, 2d ed. 1860; Les dialogues philosophiques, 1876; Caliban, 1878; and especially the remarkable seies upon the "Histoire des origines du christianisme," Vie de Jésus (1863), Les Apôtres (1860), Saint Paul et sa mission (1889), L'Antichrist (1871), Les évangiles et la connaissance chrétienne (1877), L'Église chrétienne (1879), Marc Aurèle et la fin du monde antique (1881); the Hibbert lectures for 1879, The Influence of the Institutions, Thought, and Culture of Rome on Christianity and the Development of the Catholic Church (English trans. by O. B. Frothingham, Studies of Religious History and Criticism, New York, 1884); his seminary upon the "Histoire des origines du christianisme," Vie de Jésus (1863), Les Apôtres (1860), Saint Paul et sa mission (1889), L'Antichrist (1871), Les évangiles et la connaissance chrétienne (1877), L'Église chrétienne (1879), Marc Aurèle et la fin du monde antique (1881); the Hibbert lectures for 1880, The Influence of the Institutions, Thought, and Culture of Rome on Christianity and the Development of the Catholic Church (English trans., London, 1880, 3d ed. 1885); and his semi-nary upon the "Histoire des origines du christianisme," Vie de Jésus (1863), Les Apôtres (1860), Saint Paul et sa mission (1889), L'Antichrist (1871), Les évangiles et la connaissance chrétienne (1877), L'Église chrétienne (1879), Marc Aurèle et la fin du monde antique (1881); the Hibbert lectures for 1883, Recollections of my Youth, London and New York, 1883).

RENOUF, Peter Le Page, Roman-Catholic layman; b. in the isle of Guernsey, 1824; educated at Pembroke College, Oxford; entered the Church of Rome, 1842; became professor of ancient history and Eastern languages on the opening of the Catholic University of Ireland, 1855, but in 1864 one of her Majesty's inspectors of schools. He is the author of several works in Egyptology, and of The Condemnation of Pope Honorius, London, 1868 ("furiously attacked by the Roman-Catholic press, and placed on the Index"); The Case of Honorius reconsidered with Reference to Recent Apologies, 1869; Lectures on the Origin and Growth of Religion as illustrated by the Religion of Ancient Egypt (Hibbert lectures for 1879), 1880, 2d ed. 1885.

REUSCH, Franz Heinrich, Lic. Theol. (Münster, 1849), D.D. (Münster, 1856), Old Catholic; b. in Munich, 1825; student at Bonn, Tübingen, and Munich, 1843-47; consecrated priest at Cologne, 1849; chaplain in Cologne, 1849-53; became repentin in the theological "convictorium," and privat-dozent at Bonn, 1854; professor extraordinary of theology there, 1858; ordinary professor, 1861. He was suspended, then excommunicated (March, 1872), by the archbishop of Cologne for refusing acceptance to the Vatican Decrees (1871). He played a prominent part in the organization of the Old-Catholic movement, 1871. He was rector of the Bonn University in 1873. From 1866 to 1877 he edited the Theologische Literaturblatt. He is the author of Erklärung des Buches Baruch, Freiburg, 1853; Das Buch Tobias, 1857; Liber Sapienticus greece secundum exemplum Vaticanum, 1858; Lehrbuch der Einleitung in das Alte Testament, 1859, 4th ed. 1870; Observationes criticæ in Librum Sapienticum, 1861; Bibel und Natur, 1862, 4th ed. 1876 (English trans., Nature and the Bible, Edinburgh, 1869, 2 vols.); Libellus Tobit et Codice Sinaitico editus et recentitus, Bonn, 1870; Luis de Leon und die spanische Inquisition, 1873; Berichte über die Unions-Conferenzen zu Bonn, 1874, 1875; Predigten, 1876; Gebetbuch, 1877; Die biblische Schöpfungsgeschichte, 1877; Die deutschen Bischöfe und der Aberglaube, 1879; Der Proces Galilei's und die Jesuiten, 1879; Der Index der verbotenen Bücher, 1889-90, 2 vols.; minor writings, articles in periodicals, etc.

REUSS, Eduard (Wilhelm Eugen), Lic. Theol. (Strassburg, 1829), D.D. (Kon., Jena, 1843), Ph.D. (Kon., Halle, 1875), LL.D. (Georgetown College, Georgetown, Ky.), Protestant theologian; b. at Strassburg, July 16, 1804 (29 Messidor XII.); studied at Strassburg, first philosophy 1810-22, then theology there and at Göttingen and Halle 1822-26, and Oriental literature at Paris under De Sacy 1827-28; became privat-dozent in the theological faculty at Strassburg, 1828; professor extraordinary, 1834; ordinary professor, 1836, and so remains. Of his numerous works may be mentioned, De statu literarum theologorum per secula VII. et VIII., Strassburg, 1825; De libris Veteris Testamenti apocryphis plébí non negandis, 1829; Ideen zur Einleitung in das Evangelium Johannis, 1840; Geschichte der heiligen Schriften, Neues Testament, Halle, 1842, 5th ed. Braunschweig, 1874; Eng. trans. by Edward L. Houghston, Boston, 1844; Les Extraits de la Bible, Paris, 1843-46; La Bible, Traduction nouvelle avec commentaire, Paris, 1874-80, 13 parts in 17 vols.; Reden an Theologie-Studirende, Leipzig, 1875, 2d ed. Braunschweig, 1879. With Professors Baum and Cunitz, he edited the first twenty volumes of the monumental edition of Calvin's Opera, Braunschweig, 1879-90 (since then in twenty volumes (vol. xxxi., 1886).
REUTER, Hermann Ferdinand, Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1843), Ph.D. (hon., Greifswald, 1865), Lutheran; b. at Hildesheim, Aug. 30, 1817; studied at Göttingen and Berlin; became privat-dozent at Berlin, 1843; professor extraordinary of church history at Breslau, 1852; D.D. from Kiel, 1853; ordinary professor at Greifswald, 1855; professor at Breslau, 1866, and at Göttingen, 1870. In 1869 he became a royal consistorial councillor, and in 1881 abbot of Bursfeld. He is the author of Johannes von Salisbury, Berlin, 1842; Abhandlungen zur systematischen Theologie, 1855; Geschichte Alexanders III. und der Kirche seines Zeit, 1848, 1 vol., 2d ed. 1860-64, 3 vols.; Geschichte der Religionsaufklärung im Mittelalter, 1875-77, 2 vols.

REVEL, Albert, Waldensian; b. at Torre Pellice, Waldensian Valley, Italy, Jan. 2, 1837; educated in the Waldensian college of his native place, in the Waldensian theological school at Florence, and in the New College (Free Church), Edinburgh; was ordained in 1861; became professor of Latin and Greek literature in the Waldensian college at Torre Pellice, 1861, and professor of biblical literature and exegesis to the Waldensian Church, Florence, 1870. Since 1890 he has been a member of the Oriental Academy of the Royal Institute of Florence. He is the author of L'Epistola di S. Clemente Romano di Corin, 1869; Anichita biblica, 1872; Teoria del culto, 1875; Le origini del Papato, 1875; Cento lezioni sulla vita di Gesù, 1875; Storia letteraria dell'antico Testamento, Poggibonsi, 1879; Manuale par lo studio della lingua ebraica, Florence, 1879; I Salmi; versione e commento sopra i Salmi, 1880; Il Nuovo Testamento, tradotto sul testo originale, 1881.

REVILLE, Albert, D.D. (Leyden, 1862), French Protestant; b. at Dieppe, Seine-Inférieure, Nov. 4, 1826; studied at Dieppe, Geneva, and Strassburg, and in 1848 became a bachelor in theology; was pastor of the Walloon Church at Rotterdam, 1851-72, and then resided in Dieppe, engaged in philosophical studies, until, in 1880, he was called to the chair of the history of religions in the College of France, Paris. He is the author of Manuel d'histoire comparée de la philosophie et de la religion (after Schollan), 1858 (English trans., Manual of Religious Instruction, London, 1864); De la rédemption, Paris, 1860; Essais de critique religieuse, 1860; Études critiques sur l'Évangile selon Saint Matthieu, 1862; Théodore Parker, sa vie et ses œuvres, 1869; Manuel d'instruction religieuse, 1863, 2d ed. 1866; Apolionius, English trans., London, 1866; Histoire du dogme de la divinité de Jésus Christ, 1868, 2d ed. 1876 (English trans., History of the Doctrine of the Deity of Christ, London, 1870); Le Déliv, his origin, greatness, and decadence, English trans., 1871, 2d ed. 1877; The Song of Songs, English trans., 1873; Proélégomènes de l'histoire des religions, 1881 (English trans., 1884); The Native Religions of Mexico and Peru, English trans., 1884 (Hibbert lectures for 1884).

REYNOLDS, Henry Robert, D.D. (Edinburgh University, 1860), Congregationalist; b. at Romsey, Hampshire, Eng., Feb. 26, 1825; educated at Coward College and University College; graduated at London University B.A. 1841; became pastor at Walworth, 1842-54, and St. James, E.; president of Countess of Huntingdon's College, Cheshunt, Herts, 1860. He is the author of Beginnings of the Divine Life, London, 1858, 3d ed. 1860; Notes of the Christian Life, 1865; John the Baptist (Congregational Union lecture for 1874), 1874, 2d ed. 1876; Philosophy of Prayer, and other Essays, 1882; joint author of Yes and No, Glimpses of the Great Conflict, 1880, and of commentary on Hosea and Amos in Bishop Ellicott's Old-Testament Commentary, 1884; editor of the Pastoral Epistles in Expositor (first series), and of exposition, commentary, and introduction to the Gospel of John in the Pulpit Commentary; joint editor and compiler of Psalms, Hymns, and Passages of Scripture for Christian Worship, 1853; editor of Ecclesia, Church Problems considered in a Series of Essays, 1870, 2d ed. 1871 (contributed essay on "The Forgiveness and Absolution of Sins"); second series, 1871 (essay, The Holy Catholic Church); for eight years (1866-74) edited with Rev. Dr. Allon The British Quarterly Review; for five years, The Evangelical Magazine. Besides his contributions to periodicals, he has written for Kittel's Cyclopaedia and Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography.

RICE, Edwin Wilbur, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1881), Congregationalist; b. at Kingsborough, N.Y., July 24, 1851; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1854; and studied in Union Theological Seminary, New York City, 1855-57; taught, 1857-58; was missionary of American Sunday-school Union, 1859-60; ordained in 1860; superintendent of its missions, 1864-70; assistant secretary of missions, and assistant editor of periodicals, Philadelphia, 1871-78; editor, 1878, and of periodicals and publications since 1879. He planned and prepared the lesson papers of the American Sunday-school Union, 1872 sqq.; the Scholar's Handbook on the International Lessons, 1874 sqq.; wrote the geographical and topographical articles in Schaff's Bible Dictionary, Philadelphia, 1890, 3d ed. 1895; edited Paxton Hood's Great Revival of the Eighteenth Century, 1882; Kennedy's Four Gospels, 1881; and has independently produced, Pictorial Commentary on St. Mark, 1881, 2d ed. 1882; Historical Sketch of Sunday Schools, 1886.

RICHARDSON, Ernest Cushing, Congregationalist; b. at Woburn, Mass., Feb. 8, 1860; graduated at Amherst College, Mass., 1880, and at the Hartford Theological Seminary, Conn., 1883; was assistant librarian of Amherst College, 1879-80; assistant librarian of Hartford Theological Seminary, 1882-84; since 1884 librarian, and since 1888 assistant secretary, of the American Library Association. He is the author of several papers in the Proceedings of the American Library Association (1885 and 1886), one in the Journal of the Society of Biblical Exegesis (1886), and various notes, articles, or reviews in the Library Journal, New York, and Bibliotheca Sacra, Oberlin, O.

RIDDLE, Matthew Brown, D.D. (Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa., 1870), Congregationalist; b. in Pittsburg, Penn., Oct. 17, 1836; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1852, and from New Brunswick (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1859; was chaplain Second New-Jersey Regiment, 1861; Reformed (Dutch) pastor at Hoboken, N.J., 1862-65; at Newark, 1865-69; at Jersey City, 1869-70; has been professor of New-Testament exegesis in Hartford (Conn.) Theological Seminary. He was RIGGENBACH, Bernhard Emil, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1874), Lic. Theol. (Basel, 1878), Swiss Reformed; b. at Karlsruhe, Oct. 25, 1848; studied at Basel and Tübingen, 1867-71; was ordained 1871; pastor at Aristof, Baselland, 1872-81; in the penitentiary, Basel, since 1885; prairie-docent of New Testament and practical theology at Basel since 1892. His theological standpoint is positive biblical. He is the author of Johann Eberlin von Gunsburg und sein Reformprogramm. Ein Beitrag zur Geschichte des zw. Jahrhunderts, Tübingen, 1874; Taschenbuch für die schwäizerischen reformierten Geistlichen, Basel, 1876 sqq. (xi. Jahrgang, 1886); Das Kronikon des Konrad Pellikan, zur vierten Säkularfeier der Universität Tübingen herausgegeben, 1877; Das Armenvesen der Reformation, 1882; Frauengetalten aus der Geschichte des Reiches Gottes, 1st and 2nd ed. 1884 (Danish trans., 1885); numerous articles in Herzog and the Alig.-Deutsche Biograph.
professor of theology at Basel, 1851; and, in 1878, president of the missions committee. Besides many sermons, he has published "Vorträge über das Leben Jesu, Basel, 1858; Der Kirchengesang in Basel seit der Reformation, 1870; Der sogenannte Brief des Barnabas, 1873; and the comments upon Thesauri Regni in Lange’s Commentary."

RIGGS, Elias, D.D. (Hanover College, Ind., 1853), LL.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1871), Presbyterian; b. at New Providence, N.J., Nov. 19, 1810; graduated at Amherst College, Mass., 1829, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1832; was missionary of the A. B. C. F. M. in Greece (at Athens and Argos), 1832–38; in Smyrna, Asia Minor, 1838–53; since that in Constantinople. He has made but one visit to the United States (1856). Being detained in New York for electotyping an Armenian Bible, he taught Hebrew in the Union Theological Seminary (1857–58), and was invited to become professor in that department. The translation of the Scriptures into the Turkish language, after having engaged the labors of many others, was in 1873 placed by the British and Foreign Bible Society and the American Bible Society in the hands of a committee consisting at first of the Revs. W. G. Schauffler, D.D. (of the American Bible Society, formerly of the A. B. C. F. M.), George T. Herrick, Elias Riggs, D.D. (of the A. B. C. F. M.), and Robert H. Weakley (of the Church Missionary Society), as a result of whose labors, and those of native Turkish scholars, the entire Bible was published in both Arabic and Armenian characters in 1878.

Experience having shown the need of retouching this version in a way to render it more intelligible to common readers, the same Bible societies, in 1883, consented to the organization of a larger committee (comprising so far as practicable the members of the former committee), and placed this work in their hands. The revised Turkish version, the work of this large committee, was issued 1886. Dr. Riggs is the author of a Manual of the Chaldee Language, containing a Grammar (chiefly translation of Winer), Christostomy, and a Vocabulary, Andover, Mass., 1892 (revised edition, New York, 1896, and since several editions); The Young Forester, a Brief Memoir of the Early Life of the German Protestant Missionary, Elias Riggs, D.D. (Massachusetts Sabbath-school Society); Grammatical Notes on the Bulgarian Language, Smyrna, 1844; Grammar of the Modern Armenian Language, with a Vocabulary, Smyrna, 1847, second edition, Constantinople, 1856; Grammar of the Turkish Language as written in the Armenian Character, Constantinople, 1856; Translation of the Scriptures into the Modern Armenian Language, completed with the aid of native scholars, Smyrna, 1853 (reprinted in many editions in Constantinople and New York); Translation of the Scriptures into the Bulgar- ian Language, completed with the aid of native scholars throughout, and on the New Testament of the Rev. Dr. Albert L. Long (now professor in Robert College), Constantinople, 1871 (several editions, Constantinople and Vienna); A Harmony of the Gospels (in Bulgarian), Constantinople, 1880; A Bible Dictionary (in Bulgarian), 1884; minor publications, such as tracts, hymns, and collections of hymns, in Greek, Armenian, and Bul- garian.

RIGGS, James Stevenson, Presbyterian; b. in New-York City, July 16, 1853; graduated at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1874; studied at Leipzig, 1875; graduated at Auburn Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1880; became pastor at Fulton, N.Y., 1880; adjunct professor of bibli- cal Greek in Auburn Theological Seminary, 1884.

RITSCHL, Albrecht, Ph.D. (Halle, 1843), Lic. Theol. (Bonn, 1848), D.D. (hon., Bonn, 1855), LL.D. (Göttingen, 1881); b. in Berlin, March 25, 1822; studied at Bonn and Halle; became private- docent at Bonn, 1846; professor extraordinary there, 1852; ordinary professor, 1858; professor at Göttingen, 1864; consistorial councillor, 1874. He thus describes his theological standpoint: "In strictest recognition of the revelation of God through Christ; most accurate use of the Holy Scripture as the fountain of knowledge of the Christian religion; view of Jesus Christ as the ground of knowledge for all parts of the theological system; in accord with the original documents of the Lutheran Reformation respecting those peculiarities which differentiate its type of doctrine from that of the middle ages." 1 He is a determined opponent of Protestant scholasticism, is the only living German theologian who has a "school;" but since 1881, he says, he has been in the position of the prophet Jeremiah (Jer. xviii. 18). He is the author of Doctrina Augustiniana de creatione mundi, peccato, gratia (Diss. inauguralis), Halle, 1843; Das Evangelium Marcianum und das kauonische Evangelium des Lucas, Tubingen, 1846; Die Entstehung der altkatolischen Kirche, Bonn, 1850, 2d ed. (entirely worked over; standpoint of the Tubingen school, adopted in the first, abandoned), 1867; Ueber das Verhaltniss des Bekenntnisses zur Kirche, Ein Votum gegen die neulutherische Doctrin, 1854; Die christliche Lehre von der Rechtfertigung und Ver- sohnung, 1870–74, 3 vols., 2d ed. 1882–83 (English trans., vol. i., A Critical History of the Christian Doctrine of Justification and Reconciliation); Die christliche Vollkommenheit, Gottingen, 1874; Schleiermachers Reden über die Religion und ihre Nachwirkungen auf die evang. Kirche Deutschlands, Bonn, 1874; Unterricht in der christlichen Religion, 1875, 3d ed. 1886; Ueber das Gewissen, 1870; Tholo- gie u. Metaphysik. Zur Verständigung u. Abkehr, 1881; Geschichte des Pietismus, 1890 sqq., 5d and last vol. 1896.

RITSCHL, Otto, Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1885), German Protestant theologian, son of the preceding; b. at Bonn, June 26, 1860; studied at Bonn, Göttingen, and Giessen, 1878–84; became private-docent of theology at Halle, 1885. He is the author of De epistula Cyriaciano, dissertatio inaugu- ralis, Halle, 1885; Cyripan von Karkhago und die Verfassung der Kirche, eine kirchengeschichtliche und kirchenrechtliche Untersuchung, Göttingen, 1885.

ROBERTS, William, D.D. (University of the city of New York, 1863), Welsh Calvinistic Methodist; b. at Llanerchymedd, Wales, Sept. 25, 1809; after education at Presbyterian College; licentiate, Dublin, Ireland, was pastor and principal of academy, Holyhead, Wales; preacher of Countess of Huntingdon's chapel, Runcorn, Eng., 1848-55; pastor of Welsh Presbyterian Church, New-York City, 1855-68; Welsh pastor at Scranton, Penn., 1860-75; and since at Utica, N.Y. He has been several times moderator of the United-States Welsh Presbyterian General Assembly, and representative in councils of the Alliance of Reformed Churches. He edited the Tracteholyd, New York, 1857-61, and since 1871 the Cygniil (denominational organ), Scranton and Utica; and has written, The Abrahamic Covenant, New York, 1858; The Election of Grace, 1859 (both in Welsh).

1 "In strengster Anerkennung der Offenbarung Gottes durch Christus, genauer Bemuthung der heiligen Schrift als Erkenntnissgrund der christlichen Religion, Verwendung Jesu Christi als des Erkenntnissgrundes für alles, was der System, im Klinklang mit den Urkunden der lutherischen Reform- tion in Hinsicht des eigenlichen von der Theologie des Mitstreiters abweichenden Lehrypsum."

ROBERTS, William Charles, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1872), Presbyterian; b. at Alltmai, near Aberystwith, Wales, Sept. 23, 1832; graduated at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1855, and at Princeton Theological Seminary 1858; became pastor of First Church, Wilmington, Del., 1858; First Church, Columbus, Ohio, 1862; Second Church, Elizabeth, N.J., 1864; Westminster Church, Elizabeth, N.J., 1866; elected corresponding secretary of the Board of Home Missions, New-York City, 1881. He was chairman of the committee which laid the foundations of the Wooster University; O. declined the presidency of Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1882; declined a professorship in Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., and accepted the presidency of Lake Forest University, Ill., 1886; was moderator of synods of Ohio (1864) and New Jersey (1879); member of the first (Edinburgh, 1877) and third (Belfast, 1884) councils of the Reformed Churches, and read paper on American colleges; was trustee of Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., from 1859 to 1863, and has been trustee of College of New Jersey, Princeton, since 1866. He is the author of a series of letters on the great preachers of Wales, translation of the Shorter Catechism into Welsh, and a number of occasional sermons.

ROBERTS, William Henry, D.D. (Western University of Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh, 1833), Presbyterian, son of William Roberts; b. at Holyhead, Wales, Jan. 31, 1844; graduated at the College of New York, 1863, was statistician United-States Treasury Department, Washington, D.C., 1863-65; assistant librarian of Congress, 1860-72; graduated at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1873; pastor at Cranford, N.J., 1873-77; from 1877 to 1886 was librarian of Princeton Theological Seminary; became in 1889 professor in Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O.; from 1890 to 1894, permanent clerk of the General Assembly; since 1884 stated clerk. With Rev. Dr. W. E. Schenck, he prepared General Catalogue of Princeton Theological Seminary, 1881, and has published sermons, articles, etc.

ROBERTSON, Right Rev. Charles Franklin, S.T.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1868), D.D. (University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1883), LL.D. (University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo., 1883), Episcopal, bishop of Missouri; b. in New-York City, March 2, 1835; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1858, and at the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1862; became rector of St. Mark's, Malone, N.Y., 1862; of St. James, Batavia, 1868; bishop, 1885; died in St. Louis, Mo., May 1, 1886. He was vice-president of the St. Louis Social Science Association, of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections; member of historical associations and societies. He was the author of papers on Historical Societies in Relation to Local Historical Effort, St. Louis, 1863; The American Revolution and the Mississippi Valley, 1884; The Attempt to separate the West from the American Union, 1885; The Purchase of the Louisiana Territory in its Influence on the American System, 1885; pamphlets, sermons, charges, etc.

ROBINS, Henry Ephraim, D.D. (University of Rochester, N.Y., 1868), Baptist; b. at Hartford, Conn., Sept. 30, 1827; graduated at Newton (Mass.) Theological Institution, 1861; pastor at Newport, R.I., 1862-67; Rochester, N.Y., 1867-73; president of Colby University, Waterville, Me., 1873-82; since 1883 has been professor of Christian ethics in Rochester (N.Y.) Theological Seminary.

ROBINSON, Charles Seymour, D.D. (Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1869), L.L.D. (Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1885), Presbyterian; b. at Bennington, Vt., March 31, 1829; graduated at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1849; studied at Union (New-York City) and Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminaries; was pastor in Troy and Brooklyn, N.Y.; Paris, France; and since 1870 of Memorial Church, New-York City. He has published Songs of the Church, New York, 1892; Songs for the Sanctuary, 1885; Songs for Christian Worship, 1888; Short Studies for Sunday-School Teachers, 1881; Church Songs, 1872; Pauline, Hymns, and Spiritual Songs, 1874; Christian Work (sermons), Bethel and Penuel (do., both 1874); Spiritual Songs, 1875; Spiritual Songs for Social Worship, 1880; Studies in the New Testament, 1880; Spiritual Songs for Sunday School, 1881; Studies of Neglected Texts, 1889; Laudes Dei (a hymn-book), 1884; Simon Peter: Early Life and Times, 1887; Sermons in Songs, 1885. His hymn and tune books sell between seventy-five and eighty thousand a year. His sermons have passed through several editions.

ROBINSON, Ezekiel Gilman, D.D., LL.D. (both Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1853 and 1872), Baptist; b. at Attleborough, Mass., March 23, 1815; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1838, and at Newton (Mass.) Theological Institution, 1842; pastor at Norfolk, Va., 1842-45; professor of Hebrew in Covington (Ky.) Theological Seminary, 1846-49; pastor in Cincinnati, O., 1849-59; professor of theology in Rochester (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1859-72; president, 1864-72; and since 1872 has been president of Brown University. He edited Christian Review, 1859-64; revised Neander's Planting and Sowing, 1883.

ROBINSON, Thomas Hastings, D.D. (Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1865), Presbyterian; b. at North-East, Erie County, Penn., Jan. 30, 1828; graduated at Oberlin College, O., 1850, and at Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1854; pastor in Harrisburg, Penn., 1854-84; and since has been professor of sacred rhetoric, church government, and pastoral theology in the Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn.
ROHLING, Johann Francis Bernard Augustin, Lic. Theol. (Münster, 1865), Ph.D. (Jena, 1867), D.D. (Münster, 1871), Roman Catholic; b. at Neuenkirchen, near Münster, Westphalia, Germany, Feb. 15, 1839; studied theology in the University of Münster, was instructor du comte de Merode en Belgique et en France, 1863–64; chaplain and con-rector at Rheinberg, near Wesel, 1865; repeti of dogmatics and ethics at Münster; vicar of St. Martin's Church, and privat-docent of biblical literature, 1866–70; professor extraordinary of exegesis of the Old and New Testament, 1870–74; professor of theology at St. Francis' Seminary, near Milwaukee, Wis., U.S.A., 1874–75; since April, 1876, ordinary professor of biblical studies and exegesis at the University of Prague, Bohemia. In 1883 he was prohibited by the Austrian Government from writing against the Jews, on account of the so-called “excited times.” He is the author of the German translation of Lamy's book against Renan, Minister, 1864; later a theologian, moralist, D.D. (Münster, 1871), Ph.D. (Jena, 1867), Roman Catholic; b. at Lille, France, May 9, 1830; educated at the Collegium Romanum; under the Jesuit Marchi’s impulse devoted himself to archaeology, particularly to the Catacombs, and in this department is the universally acknowledged chief. In 1886 the emperor of Germany conferred upon him the cross of the Order of Merit. His two monumental works are Inscriptiones christianae urbis Romanae, Rome, 1857–61; La Rota soterranea cristiana, 1869–77, 3 vols. Since 1863 he has issued Bulletin di archeologia cristiana.

ROPE, Charles Joseph Hardy, Congregationalist; b. in St. Petersburg, Russia, Dec. 7, 1851; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1872, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1875; pastor at Ellsworth, Me., 1877–81; and since 1881 professor of New-Testament language and literature in Bangor Theological Seminary, Me. He translated and edited (with Professor Dr. E. C. Smyth) Ullhorn's Conflict of Christianity with Heathenism, New York, 1879.

ROPE, William Ladd, Congregationalist; b. at Newton, Mass., July 19, 1825; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1846, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1852; was pastor at Wrentham, Mass., 1853–62; acting pastor of Crombie-street Church, Salem (residence at Cambridge, Mass.), 1862–65; acting pastor at South Hadley, Mass., and Windsor Locks, Conn., 1865–66; since 1866 has been librarian of Andover Theological Seminary.

ROSS, Giovanni Battista de, Italian archeologist, Roman Catholic; b. in Rome, Feb. 23, 1822; educated at the Collegium Romanum; under the Jesuit Marchi’s impulse devoted himself to archaeology, particularly to the Catacombs, and in this department is the universally acknowledged chief. In 1886 the emperor of Germany conferred upon him the cross of the Order of Merit. His two monumental works are Inscriptiones christianae urbis Romanae, Rome, 1857–61; La Rota soterranea cristiana, 1869–77, 3 vols. Since 1863 he has issued Bulletin di archeologia cristiana.

RUDIN (Eric Georg) Waldemar (Napoleon), Ph.D. (Upsala, 1857), D.D. (by the king’s appointment, 1877, in consequence of a theological examination before the faculty, 1871), Swedish Lutheran theologian; b. at Ö. Ryd, Ostrogothia, Sweden, July 20, 1833; studied at the University of Upsala; ended the course in philosophy 1857, in theology 1859; was sec’y of the National Evangelical Society at Stockholm, 1859–62; director of the Foreign Missionary Institute there, 1862–69; vice-chaplain of the parish of St. Clara, Stockholm, 1869–72; privat-docent in the University of Upsala, 1872 (appointed 1871)–75; adjunct in theology, 1875–77; professor extraordinary of exegetical theology, 1877 to date. He was appointed a court preacher 1873. Since 1884 he has been a member of the committee for the revision of the Swedish translation of the Old Testament. He is a moderate Lutheran, friendly to the biblical theology of Beck, and to the mystics. He is the author in Swedish of “Intimations of Eternity” (sermons on the texts of the Church Year), Stockholm, 1872–73, 2d ed. 1875; “Biblical Psychology,” Upsala, 1st part 1875; “Sören Kierkegaard,” 1880; “Synopsis of the Gospels,” 1881; “Gospel of Mark,” translated, with notes, 1883; “Introduction to Old-Testament Prophecy,” 1884; “Commentary on the Minor Prophets,” 1884 sqq.; “Discussions on Theological and Ecclesiastical Subjects (1. Is it worth while to Instruct our Children in the Old Testament? 2. On the Influence of Personality in Preaching”), 1885–86; several sermons, addresses, tracts, etc.

RÜETSCHI, Albert Rodolph, D.D. (Zürich, Zürich, RUETSCHI, Rudolf, lic. theol. (kon., Bern, 1882), Swiss Reformed; b. at Trub, Canton Bern, Jan. 13, 1831; studied at Bern 1870-74, Berlin 1874-75, Tubingen 1875; became pastor at Reutigen, Canton Bern, 1875; at Munchenbuchsee, 1880; privat-docent at the University of Bern, 1883. He has been since 1880 teacher of religion in the normal school at Hofwil. He is the author of "Welches ist das Princip des evangelischen Protestantismus?" Berlin, 1880; Geschichte und Kritik der kirchlichen Lehre von der ursprünglichen Vollkommenheit und vom Sündenfall (prize essay of the Hague Academy), Leiden, 1881.

RULISON, Right Rev. Nelson Somerville, D.D. (Kensington, London, 1852), Episcopalian; b. in Bremen, Germany, Dec. 8, 1816; educated at Marshall College (1844-45), and Tubingen (1845); became privat-docent at Bern, 1845; pastor at Trub 1848, at Kirchberg 1853; rector of Bern Cathedral since 1867; honorary professor at the University of Bern since 1878. He was president of the Syndod, 1861-72; of the Syndodal ruth, 1878-82. He edited Lutz's Biblische Dogmatik, Pforzheim, 1847; and has written numerous articles in Herzog's Real-Encyclopedia, and in Studien und Kritiken and other theological periodicals.

RÜEL, Hermann, D.D. (Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Penn., 1872), Reformed (German); b. in Bremen, Germany, Dec. 8, 1816; graduated at Marshall College (1848) and Theological Seminary (1850). Mercersburg, Penn.; pastor in Cincinnati, O., 1851-62, and since has been professor of church history and exegesis in Heidelberg University. He is the author of "A History of Christian Scholarship in Pennsylvania," 1880.

RYAN, Most Rev. Patrick John, L.L.D. (University of the State of New York, through Manhattanville College of Christian Brothers, 1880), Roman Catholic, archbishop of Philadelphia; b. at Thurlow, Ireland, Feb. 20, 1831; completed the ecclesiastical course at Carlow College, Ireland, 1852; was professor in Theological Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., 1852-64; rector of the Cathedral in that city, 1855-80; pastor of the Church of the Annunciation, 1860-85, and of St. John's, 1868; vicar-general of the diocese, 1868-84; coadjutor bishop of St. Louis, 1872; archbishop of Philadelphia, Penn., 1884. He preached the English Lenten course in Rome (1886), the dedication sermon of the Cathedral, New-York City (1879), and lectured before the Legislature and University of Missouri. He is the author of published lectures on What Catholics do not believe, St. Louis, 1877; Some of the Causes of Modern Religious Scepticism, 1883; and of occasional sermons.

RYLANE, Joseph Hine, D.D. (Western Reserve College, Hudson, O., 1867), Episcopal; b. near Manchester, Eng., June 16, 1826; educated at King's College, London University; graduated, 1841; curate in London, 1861-63; rector in Cleveland, O., 1863-67; Chicago, Ill., 1867-71; and since 1871 has been rector of St. Mark's, New York City. His theological standpoint is that of Christian rationalism. He is the author of Preachers and Preaching, London, 1882; Social Questions, New York, 1890.

RYLE, Right Rev. John Charles, D.D. (by diploma, 1886, 1897, Ph.D., Oxford); b. at Macclesfield, May 10, 1816; entered Christ Church, Oxford; took Craven University scholarship in 1838; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1837, M.A. 1871; became successively curate of Exbury, Hants, 1841; rector of St. Thomas, Winchester, 1843; of Helmingham, Suffolk, 1844; vicar of Stradbrooke, Suffolk, 1861 (rural dean, 1870; honorary canon of Norwich Cathedral, 1872; select preacher at Cambridge 1873-74, at Oxford 1874-76); dean designate of Salisbury, 1880 (never took possession, because within a short time after nomination he became bishop of Liverpool, upon the formation of the diocese, 1880). He has written about one hundred theological tracts on doctrinal and practical subjects, of which more than two millions have been circulated, and many have been translated into foreign languages (they are now published in six volumes); Coming Events and Present Duties, 1867, 2d ed. 1879; Bishops and Clergy of Other Days, London, 1888; The Christian Leaders of the Last Century (in England), 1869; Expository Thoughts on the Gospels, 1868-69, 7 vols., 11th ed. 1873-79.
SABINE, William Tufnell, Reformed Episcopal; b. in New-York City, Oct. 16, 1838; graduated at Columbia College 1859, and at the General Theological Seminary 1862, both in New-York City; became rector in Philadelphia, Penn., 1863; in New-York City, 1866; pastor of the First Reformed Episcopal Church, New-York City, 1874. He has published various pamphlets.

SAGE, Adoniram Judson, D.D. (Rochester University, N.Y., 1872), Baptist; b. at Massillon, O., March 29, 1839; graduated at the University of Rochester, N.Y., 1860, and at Rochester Theological Seminary, 1863; became pastor at Shelleburne Falls, Mass., 1863-67; in Philadelphia, Penn., 1868-69; Hartford, Conn., 1872-81; professor of Latin, University of Rochester, N.Y., 1870-71; since 1864 has been professor of homiletics in the Baptist Union Theological Seminary, Morgan Park, near Chicago, Ill.

SALMON, George, D.D. (Dublin, 1859; Edinburgh, 1884), D.C.L. (Oxford, 1868), LL.D. (Cambridge, 1874), Church of Ireland; b. in Dublin, Sept. 25, 1819; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; graduated B.A. (senior moderator in mathematics, 1839; M.A. 1843; D.D. 1869); was Vicar from 1841 to 1866; and has been regius professor of divinity since 1886. He was ordained deacon in 1844, priest in 1845. He is fellow of the Royal Societies of London and Edinburgh, corresponding member of the Institute of France, and honorary member of the Royal Academies of Berlin, Göttingen, and Copenhagen. Besides mathematical works, he has issued College Sermons, 1st series, London, 1861; 2d series (Reign of Law), 1873; 3d series (Non-miraculous Christianity), 1881; Introduction to the New Testament, 1885; 2d ed. 1886.

SALMON, Stewart Dingwall Fordyce, D.D. (Aberdeen, 1871), Reformed Episcopal Church, London; b. at Aberdeen, June 22, 1838; educated at King's College and University, Aberdeen; graduated, 1858; was assistant professor, 1861-64; classical examiner, 1864-67; minister at Barry, Forfarshire, 1855-76; since 1876 professor of systematic theology and New-Testament exegesis in the Free Church College, Aberdeen. He translated with notes the works of Hippolytus (except the "Refutation of the Heresies") in the Ante-Nicene Library, vol. v. and ix., Edinburgh, 1868-69; Julius Africanus, etc., in vol. ix.; Theognostus, etc. (fragments), vol. xiv., 1869; Gregory Thaumaturgus, etc., vol. xx., 1871; Augustine's Harmony, etc., in vols. viii. and ix. Augustine's works, 1873; wrote the notes on Epistles of Peter in Schaff's Popular Commentary on the New Testament, vol. iv., 1883; The Life of the Apostle Peter, 1884; edited Bible-Primer, 1881 sqq., and Commentary on the Epistle of Jude, London (in press). He has besides written numerous articles in periodicals.

SAMSON, George Whitefield, D.D. (Columbia University, Washington, D.C., 1858), Baptist; b. at Harvard, Mass., Sept. 29, 1819; graduated at Brown University, 1839, and at Newton Theological Institution, Newton Centre, Mass., 1843; was pastor E-street Church, Washington, D.C., 1848-50; Jamaica Plain, Boston, Mass., 1850-52; E-street, Washington, D.C., 1853-55; president of Columbia College, Washington, D.C., 1860-71; of Rutgers Female Seminary, New-York City, 1871-75; pastor of First (Mount Morris) Church, Harlem, New-York City, 1873-81; since 1883 has been secretary in charge of Liberia College; since 1894 has conducted private collegiate instruction; since 1896 has been acting president of Rutgers Female College, New-York City. He is the author of De daemonio, or the Spiritual Medium, Boston, 1852, 2d ed. (under title Spiritualism Tested) 1860; Thanksgiving Discourse, 1853; Memoir of M. J. Graham (prefaced to ed. of Graham's Testimony of Sages), 1859; Outlines of the History of Ethics, 1860; Elements of Art Criticism, Philadelphia, 1867. Abridged ed. 1868; Physical Media in Spiritual Manifestations, illustrated from Ancient and Modern Testimony, 1869; The Atonement, viewed as Assumed Divine Responsibility, 1875; Divine Law as to Wines, established by the Testimony of Sages, Physicians, and Legislators against the Use of Fermented and Intoxicating Wines, confirmed by Egyptian, Greek, and Roman Methods of preparing Unfermented Wines for Festal, Medicinal, and Sacramental Uses, New York, 1880, 2d ed. 1885; English Revisers' Greek Text shown to be Unauthorized except by Egyptian Copies discredited by the Greeks, 1882; Guide to Self Education, 1886.

SANDAY, William, D.D. (Durham, 1862; Edinburgh, 1877), Church of England; b. at Holme Pierrepont, Nottingham, Aug. 1, 1843; educated at Corpus Christi College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1865, M.A. (Trinity College) 1868; was fellow of Trinity College, Oxford, 1867, professor of natural philosophy and historical character of the fourth gospel, London, 1872; the gospels in the second century, 1876; commentary on romans and galatians in bishop ellicott's commentary, 1878; (joint editor of) variorum bible, 1880; inaugural lecture, Oxford, 1883.

SANDERSON, Joseph, D.D. (University of Kittanning, Penn., 1806), Presbyterian; b. at Bellefont, County Monaghan, Ireland, May 23, 1829; graduated at the Royal College, Belfast, 1845; went to America, 1846; was classical teacher in the Washington Institute, New-York City, 1847-49; studied theology under care of the Associate Presbytery of New-York, by which licensed, 1849; became pastor of Associate Presbyterian Church, Providence, R.I., 1849, and of Stanton-street Presbyterian Church, New York City, 1853; removed with his congregation to their new church, Lexington Avenue and Forty-sixth Street, 1866; resigned, 1889; was prevented from preaching by partial aphonia until 1871; was acting pastor of Saugatuck Congregational Church, Conn., 1872-78; assistant editor of the Homiletic Monthly, New York, 1881-83; editor of the Pulpit Treasury, New York, since 1883. He is the author of Jesus on the Holy Mount, New York, 1869, last ed. 1884; Memorial Tributes, 1885, last ed. 1885.

SANKEY, Ira David, Methodist lay evangelist; b. at Edmund, Lawrence County, Penn., Aug. 28, 1840; in business at New Castle, Penn., 1855-71; joined Mr. Moody in evangelical work in Chicago in the latter year, and has been with him ever since. He leads the singing in the revival meetings, and sings alone, and is a worker in the inquiry-rooms. He has edited several collections of hymns, which have had an enormous circulation, and has written and adapted numerous tunes.

SAPHIR, Adolph, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1878), Presbyterian; b. at Pesth, Hungary, Sept. 26, 1831; received his elementary education at Pesth until 1844; attended the gymnasia of the Graue Kloster, Berlin, till 1845; studied in Glasgow University and Marischal College, 1845-49, 1850-51; in Theological College of the Free Church, Edinburgh, 1851-54; graduated B.B. at University of Glasgow, 1854; became missionary to the Jews in Hamburg, Germany, 1854; German preacher in Glasgow, 1855; minister of English Presbyterian Church, South Shields, 1859; Greenwich, London, 1861; Notting Hill, London, 1872; of Belgrave Presbyterian Church, London, 1881. He was the first convert of the Scotch Jewish mission at Pesth; was baptized in 1843, with father, mother, brother, and three sisters; has devoted himself to promoting interest in Jewish missions by addresses, pamphlets, and in other ways. He holds to the Old Reformation theology, but gives prominence in his pulpit addresses to the exegetical and ethical elements of Scripture. He is the author of Diaries of Philipp Saphir, by his Brother, Edinburgh, 1852; Conversion, 1861, 10th ed. (under title Found by the Good Shepherd) London (1880); Christ and the Scriptures, London, 1864, 26th thousand, 1884 (trans. into Dutch, German, 3d ed. Leipzig, 1892, prefaced by Kegel and Deitze; Italian, Hungarian, Swedish, Norse, Hindi, Slavonian); Lectures on the Lord's Prayer, 1869, 9th ed. 1884; Christ Crucified (lectures on 1 Cor. i.), 1872, 4th ed. 1878; —; Christ and the Church, Lectures on the Apostolic Communion, 1874, 2d ed. 1884; Expository Lectures on Ephesians to the Hebrews, 1877-78. 2 vols., several later editions; The Hidden Life, Thoughts on Communion with God, 1877, later editions; Our Life-Day, Thoughts on John xix., 1878, reprinted, New York, 1879; The Compassion of Jesus, 1890, 2d ed. 1892 (trans. into German); Martin Luther, a Witness for Christ and the Scriptures, 1894, 3d ed.; translation of Albert Daniel and John Tron's Book of Revelation, Edinburgh, 1856; German tracts for the Jews (Der Weihnachtsbaum, Wer ist der Jude? Wer ist der Apostat?), which have passed through many editions since 1854, and been translated into Italian and into Jewish German. Who is the Apostate? into English (1878) and Dutch; All Israel shall be saved, 1878, 3d thousand, 1885 (translated into German, Leipzig, 1884, 2d ed. 1885, and Danish); The Everlasting Nation, 3d ed. 1889; eight tracts for children, Christian Perfection, 1885; many other expository and devotional pamphlets.

SAUSSAYE, Pierre Daniel Chantepr de la, D.D. (Utrecht, 1871), Dutch Protestant; b. at Leuwarden, April 9, 1848; educated at Leiden and Rotterdam. Since 1878 he has been professor of the history of religions at the University of Amsterdam. From 1874 to 1882 he was, with Drs. J. J. P. Valeton, jun., and Ls Van Dyk, editor of Studies, a theological review, and wrote many papers, mostly in the field of biblical theology and history of religion. He has since contributed to other periodicals. His separate publications are, Methodologische bydrage tot het onderzoek naar den oorsprong van den godsdienst (his D.D. dissertation), Utrecht, 1871; Vier Schetsen uit de Godsdienstgeschiedenis, 1883 (German trans. preparing); expects to issue in 1888, at Freiburg-im-Br., in German, a compendious history of religions for the Theologische Lehrbiicher series.

SAVAGE, George Slocum Folger, D.D. (Iowa College, Grinnell, Jo., 1870), Congregationalist; b. at Upper Middletown (now Cromwell), Conn., June 29, 1817; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1844; studied at Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary 1844-45, and at Yale Theological Seminary 1845-47, 1st class graduate; was pastor at St. Charles, Ill., 1847; Western secretary of the American Tract Society, Chicago, Ill., 1860; Western secretary of the Congregational Publishing Society, Chicago, 1870; secretary and treasurer of the Chicago Theological Seminary, 1872; since 1884, Western secretary. He has edited and published The Chicago Theological Seminary since 1854. He was corresponding editor of The Prairie Herald, 1849-52, and of The Congregational Herald, 1852-55; editor and publisher of The Bi-Monthly Congregational Review, 1858-71,—all published in Chicago; and is author of the Religions and Religions of the World, and of the History of the Churches, or Comprehensive History of the Christian World, 4 vols., 1864-68; editor of the Chicago Theological Seminary since 1854. He became American home (Congregational) missionary in California, 1864; was at Framingham, Mass., 1867; became pastor at Hannibal, Mo., 1869; Unitarian pastor in Chicago, 1872; of the "Church of the Unity," Boston, 1874. He is the author of Christianity the Science of Manhood, Boston, 1873, 2d ed. 1874; The Religion of Evolution, 1876; Light on the Cloud, 1876; Bluffton, a Story of To-Day, 1876; Life Questions, 1876; The Morals of Evolution, 1880; Talks about Jesus, 1880; Minister's Hani-book, 1890, 2d ed. 1882; Belief in God, 1881; Beliefs about Man, 1882; Poems, 1882; Beliefs about the Bible, 1883; The Modern Sphinx, 1883; Sacred Songs for Public Worship (edited with H. M. Dow), 1883; Man, Woman, and Child, 1884; The Religious Life, 1889; Social Problems, 1886.

SAVAGE, Minot Judson, Unitarian; b. at Norridgewock, Me., June 10, 1841; graduated at Bangor (Me.) Theological Seminary, 1864; became American home (Congregational) missionary in California, 1864; was at Framingham, Mass., 1867; became pastor at Hannibal, Mo., 1869; Unitarian pastor in Chicago, 1872; of the "Church of the Unity." Boston, 1874. He is the author of Christianity the Science of Manhood, Boston, 1873, 2d ed. 1874; The Religion of Evolution, 1876; Light on the Cloud, 1876; Bluffton, a Story of To-Day, 1876; Life Questions, 1876; The Morals of Evolution, 1880; Talks about Jesus, 1880; Minister's Hani-book, 1890, 2d ed. 1882; Belief in God, 1881; Beliefs about Man, 1882; Poems, 1882; Beliefs about the Bible, 1883; The Modern Sphinx, 1883; Sacred Songs for Public Worship (edited with H. M. Dow), 1883; Man, Woman, and Child, 1884; The Religious Life, 1889; Social Problems, 1886.

SAYCE, Archibald Henry, LL.D. (hon., Trinity College, Dublin, 1881), Church of England; b. at Shirehampton, near Bristol, Sept. 25, 1846; was a scholar and taberdar of Queen's College, Oxford (1865), where he took a first-class in moderations (1866) and again in final classical schools (1868);
SCARBOROUGH. 18

SCHAFF.

graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1859, M.A. 1860, ordained deacon 1870, etc., 1871; became fellow of his college 1869, tutor 1870, and later senior tutor, deputy professor of comparative philology 1876, and was public examiner 1877–79. In 1874 he joined the Old-Testament Revision Company. He is an honorary member of the Royal Academy of Spain, the Asiatic Society of Bengal, and the Anthropological Society of Washington. He edited George Smith's History of Babylon, London, 1877, 2d ed. 1884; Sennacherib, 1878; and Chaldean Genesis, 1880; and has written, Assyrian Grammar for Comparative Purposes, 1872; Principles of Comparative Philology, 1873, 3d ed. 1884 (French trans. 1884); Astronomy and Astrology of the Babylonians, 1874; Elementary Assyrian Grammar, 1875, 2d ed. 1877; Lectures on the Assyrian Syllogism and Grammar, 1877; Babylonian Literature, 1877; Introduction to the Science of Language, 1890, 2d ed. 1883; The Monuments of the Hittites, 1881; The Cuneiform Inscriptions of 1859, 1882; For Tontor's Three Books of Herodotus, edited with Notes and Appendices, 1883; The Ancient Empires of the East, 1884; Fresh Light from the Monuments, 1884; Introduction to the Books of Ezra, Nehemiah, and Esther, 1885.

SCARBOROUGH, Right Rev. John, D.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1872). Episcopalian, bishop of New Jersey; b. in Castle Wellan, Ireland, April 25, 1831; graduated at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1854, and at the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1857; became assistant minister of St. Paul's Church, Troy, N.Y., 1857; rector of the Church of the Holy Comforter, Poughkeepsie, N.Y., 1860; and of Trinity Church, Pittsburgh, Penn., 1867; bishop, 1875.

SCHAFF, Aloys, D.D. (Würzburg, 1879). Roman Catholic; b. at Dingelstadt, Saxon, May 2, 1853; studied philosophy and theology at Prague and Würzburg, 1873–79; became chaplain in the Court Church at Dessau, 1870; professor in the royal lyceum at Dillingen, Bavaria, 1881; professor extraordinary of New-Testament exegesis at Munster, 1885. He is the author of Die biblische Chronologie vom Aauzug aus Ägypten bis zum Beginn des babylonischen Exils, mit Berücksichtigung der Resultate der Ägyptologie und Assyriologie (prize essay at Würzburg), Munster, 1879; essays on biblico-mariology in the Theol. prakt. Quartalschrift, Linz, 1883 sqq.

SCHAFF, Charles William, D.D. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1879). Lutheran (General Council); b. at Hagerstown, Md., May 5, 1813; graduated at University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1832; was pastor in Montgomery County, Penn., 1835–41; at Harrisburg, Penn., 1841–49; at Germantown, Penn., 1849–75; has been professor in the theological seminary of the Lutheran Church, Philadelphia, since 1864; and a member of the Board of Trustees in the University of Pennsylvania since 1857. He is the author of Early History of the Lutheran Church in America, Philadelphia, 1857, 2d ed. 1864; Botzský's Golden Treasury, translated 1858, several later editions; Family Prayer, a Book of Devotions, 1859, 5th ed. 1855; Halle Reports, translated from the German, with extensive historical, critical, and literary annotations, vol. i., 1850; Wackernagel's Life of Luther, translated 1883; Hans Sachs Witweburg Nightingale, translated 1883; numerous articles for review, etc.

SCHAFF, Hermann Moritz, Baptist; b. at Lage, Lippe-Detmold, Germany, Aug. 22, 1839; emigrated in 1854; studied in the German department of Rochester (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1851–64; graduated from the English department, 1897; became pastor of the First German Baptist Church, New York City, 1867; professor of biblical literature in the German department, Rochester Baptist Seminary, 1872.

SCHAFF, David Schley, Presbyterian; b. at Mercersburg, Penn., Octb. 17, 1852; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1873, and at Union Theol. Seminary, N. Y. City, 1875; pastor at Hastings, Neb., 1875–81; associate editor of Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia, N. Y. City, 1881–83; pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Kansas City, Mo., 1883 to date. He contributed to Schaff's (his father's) Bible Dictionary, Phila., 1886; edited, abridged, and adapted to the Revised Version, Howson and Spence's commentary on Acts (originally published in Schaff's Popular Commentary) for the International Revision Commentary, N. Y., 1882.

SCHAFF, Philip, Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1841), D.D. (hon., Berlin, 1854), LL.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1876), Presbyterian; b. at Coire, Switzerland, Jan. 1, 1819; studied at Coire, in the gymnasium at Stuttgart, and in the universities of Tubingen, Halle, and Berlin; travelled as tutor of a Prussian nobleman, through Italy and other countries of Europe, 1841; returned to Berlin, and lectured in the university there as privat-dozent, on exegesis and church history, 1842-44; was called in 1849 (upon the recommendation of Neander, Tholuck, Julius Müller, and others) to a professorship in the theological seminary of the German Reformed Church of the United States, then located at Mercersburg, Penn., and held the position until 1863 (including eleven months spent in Europe, 1864). He was charged with heresy, but acquitted, and at the synod of Philadelphia, 1865, he lectured on all departments of theology, and was chairman of two committees which prepared a new liturgy (1857) and a new hymn-book (1859). During the Civil War, when the seminary at Mercersburg (on the borders of the scene of conflict) was turned into a military hospital, he removed to New-York City, December, 1863, was secretary of the New-York Sabbath Committee, 1864–69; and delivered courses of lectures on church history in the theological seminaries at Andover, Hartford, and New York (Union); made a second visit to Europe (1865), in behalf of Sunday observance and Sunday schools; was called to a professorship in the Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1869; was professor of theological encyclopaedia and Christian symbolics, 1870–72; of Hebrew, 1872–74; since 1875, of sacred literature. He is one of the founders and honorary secretaries of the American branch of the Evangelical Alliance; and was sent three times (1869, 1872, 1878) as commissioner to Europe to make arrangements for the sixth General Conference of the Alliance, which, after a second postponement in consequence of the Franco-German war, was held in New York, October, 1873. He was also one of the Alliance delegates to the emperor of Russia in 1871, to intervene with him in behalf of the religious liberty of his subjects in the Baltic provinces, and prepared the official report. He was sent as a delegate to the General Conferences of the Alliance at Basel (1879), and at Copenhagen (1884). He attended, as a delegate, the meeting in London which organized the Alliance of the Reformed Churches in 1875, and its first General Council in Edinburgh, 1877; and he was chairman of the programme committee for its second General Council in Philadelphia, 1880 (in behalf of which he made the arrangements in Europe). He is president of the American Bible-revision Committee, which he organized in 1871 at the request of the British Committee; and he was sent to England in 1875 to negotiate with the British revisers and university presses about the terms of co-operation and publication of the Anglo-American Revision. He attended several meetings of the British Committee in the Jerusalem Chamber, London, the last in July, 1884. In 1877 he made a tour through Bible lands, in 1878 through Scandinavia and Russia, and in 1888 through Spain, France, and Germany.

His books are mostly historical and exegetical.

II. His earliest books were written and published in Germany; viz., Die Sünde wieder den heiligen Geist, Halle, 1841; and Das Verhältnis des Jakobus, Bruders des Herrn, zu Jakobus Alphäi, Berlin, 1842.

SCHANZ, Paul, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1867), D.D. (Tübingen, 1876), Roman Catholic; b. at Horb, Württemberg, March 4, 1841; studied at Tübingen, 1861-65; in Rottenburg Seminary, 1865-68; became professor of mathematics and the natural sciences in the Rottweil gymnasium, 1870; of New Testament exegesis in the Roman-Catholic theological faculty at Tübingen, 1876; of dogmatics and apologetics in the same, 1883. He is the author of Cardinal Nicolaus von Cusa als Mathematiker (program), Rottweil, 1872; Die astronomischen Anschauungen des Nicolaus von Cusa und seiner Zeit, 1873; Die christliche Weltschauung und die modernen Naturwissenschaften (academic lecture), Tübingen, 1876; Die Composition des Matthaeus evangeliums (program), 1877; Einleitung in das N. T. von Prof. Dr. Aberle (edited), 1877; Galileo Galilei und sein Proces, Würzburg, 1878.

SCHELE, Knut Henning Gezelius von, D.D. (Upsala, 1877), Lutheran; b. in Stockholm, Sweden, May 31, 1818; graduated at Upsala; became privat-docent, 1865; provost, 1877; ordinary member of consistory, 1876; professor, 1879, and inspector of the teachers' seminary (1880), and censor of the denominational universities (1884); in 1885 appointed bishop of Västmanland. He was member of the House of Nobility in the Swedish parliament, 1865-66; president of the General Seminary Meeting in Stockholm, 1860 and 1884; member of the Basel Alliance Conference, 1879, and reported on Scandinavia; also of the General Swedish Clergy Conferences in Stockholm, 1881 and 1884; member of the Basel Alliance Conference, 1879, and reported on Scandinavia; also of the General Swedish Clergy Conferences in Stockholm, 1881 and 1884. He is the author in Swedish of The Ontological Evidence of the Existence of God, Upsala, 1883; The Preparations of the Theological Rationalism, 1886, 2d ed. Stockholm, 1877; The Church Catechising, Upsala, 1869, 4th ed. Stockholm, 1881; The Christmas Cycle of the Second Series of the New Evangelical Pericops (in the Swedish Church), Upsala, 1874; Theological Symbolic, 1877-79, 2 parts (German trans., Gotha, 1881); From the Court into the Sanctuary, Apologetic Essays, Stockholm, 1879 (Norwegian trans., Christiania, 1880); The Fight for the Catholic Communion, 1881; Compendium of Theological Symbolic, Upsala, 1885; sermons, and review articles.

SCHEGG, Peter, Roman Catholic; b. at Kaufbeuren, June 6, 1815; d. at Munich, July 9, 1855. He was professor of biblical hermeneutics and New-Testament exegesis at the University of Munich; founded, with three hundred thousand marks (fifteen thousand pounds), a Roman-Catholic orphan-asylum in his native place; and wrote commentaries on the Psalms (Munich, 2d ed. 1857, 3 vols.), Minor Prophets (1854, 2 vols. 1862), Matthew, Mark, Luke (1850-70, 8 vols., 2d ed. 1863 sqq.); Geschichten der letzten Propheten, Regensburg, 1853-54, 2 parts; Sechs Bücher des Lebens Jesu, Freiburg-im-Br., 1874-75, 2 vols.; Erinnerungen an Dr. Bonifacius, Bischof von Speyer, Munich, 1877; Das Todesjahr des Königs Herodes u. das Todesjahr Jesu Christi, 1882; Jakobus, der Bruder des Herrn, und sein Brief, 1883; Das hohe Lied des Herrn in unserer Zeit, Schaffhausen, 1883; The Christmas Cycle of the Second Series of the New Evangelical Pericopes (in the Swedish Church), Upsala, 1874; Theological Symbolic, 1877-79, 2 parts (German trans., Gotha, 1881); From the Court into the Sanctuary, Apologetic Essays, Stockholm, 1879 (Norwegian trans., Christiania, 1880); The Fight for the Catholic Communion, 1881; Compendium of Theological Symbolic, Upsala, 1885; sermons, and review articles.

SCHELL, Herman, Ph.D. (Freiburg, 1872), D.D. (Tübingen, 1883), Roman Catholic; b. at Freiburg-im-Breisgau, Feb. 28, 1850; educated at Freiburg, 1868-70; at Würzburg, 1870-73; in the College of Anima, Rome, 1875-81; became professor extraordinary of apologetics at Würzburg, 1884. He is the author of Die Einheit des Stellenlebens aus den Principien der aristotelischen Philosophie entwickelt, Freiburg, 1873; Das Wirken des dreieinigen Gottes, Mainz, 1885, 2 vols.

SCHENCK, William Edward, D.D. (Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1861), Presbyterian; b. at Princeton, N.J., March 29, 1819; graduated at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1838, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1841; became pastor at Manchester, N.J., 1842; of Hammond-street Church, New-York City, 1845; of First Church at Princeton, N.J., 1848; superintendent of church extension in Presbytery of Philadelphia, Penn., 1852; corresponding secretary of the Presbyterian board of publication, Philadelphia, 1854. He was editor of the board of publication, 1862-70; permanent clerk of the General Assembly (Old School), 1862-70; has been trustee of the General Assembly (and vice-president of the board of trustees) since 1864; director of Princeton Theological Seminary since 1866. He is the author of A Historical Account of the First Presbyterian Church of Princeton, N.J., Princeton, 1851; Aunt Fanny's Home, Philadelphia, 1865; Children in Heaven, 1866; Nearing Home, 1867; General Catalogue of Princeton Theological Seminary, Trenton, 1881; sermons, tracts (God our Guide, 1867; The Fountain for Sin, 1868 [in German], etc.); necrological report of the Princeton Theological Seminary, 1875-85; minor works.

SCHENKEL, Daniel, D.D., German Protestant theologian; b. at Dägerlen, Canton Zürich, Switzerland, Dec. 21, 1813; d. at Heidelberg, Germany, May 19, 1885. He studied at Basel and Göttingen; became privat-docent at Basel, 1838; pastor in the minster at Schaffhausen, in succession to F. E. von Hurter (see Encyclopaedia), 1841, and kirchenrath, 1842; ordinary professor of theology at Basel, 1849; professor, seminardirector, and university preacher at Heidelberg, 1851; later also a kirchenrath. At twenty-five he was editor of the Basler Zeitung, in which he vigorously opposed Swiss radicalism. He was at first nearly orthodox, but became the head of the Protestantenverein, and from 1860 to 1872 edited in its interest the Allgemeine kirchliche Zeitschrift published at Elberfeld. He was the author of Johannes Schenkel, Pfarrer zu Unterhallau, Hanbourg, 1837; De ecclesia Corinthii primarica factioambus turbata, Basel, 1838; Die Wissenschaft und die Kirche, 1839; Vier und zwanzig Predigten über Grund und Ziel unseres Glaubens, Zürich, 1843, 2 vols.; Die confessionellen Zerwürfnisse in Schaffhausen und Friedrich Hurter's Überbritt zur römisch-katholischen Kirche, Basel, 1844; Die protestantische Geistlichkeit und die Deutsch-Katholiken, Zürich, 1846; Das Wesen des Protestantismus aus den Quellen des Reformationszeitalters beleuchtet, Schaffhausen, 1849-51, 3 vols., 2d ed. 1862; Die religiösen Zeitkämpfe in ihrem Zusammenhange mit dem Wesen der Religion und der religiösen Gesammeinsicht des Protestantismus, 1847; Commen des Herrn in unserer Zeit, Schaffhausen, 1849; W. M. L. de Wette und die Bedeutung seiner Theologie für unsere Zeit, 1849; Predigten, 1850-51, 2 vols.; Das Princip des Protestantismus, 1852; SCHERER.

SCHERER, Edmond Henri Adolphe, B. Theol., Lic. Theol., D.D. (all Strassburg, 1839, 1841, 1843, respectively), French Protestant; b. in Paris, April 8, 1815; studied theology at Strassburg; became professor of exegesis at the Genevan School of Theology, where he had Gassen for his colleague (1845), and where he edited the Reformationen, 1845—48. In 1849 he resigned because of a change of views, and became a leader among the Liberals, and a prolific writer for the religious press. In 1860 he removed to Versailles, has since written many critical and political articles for Le Temps; represented Seine et Oise in the National Assembly, 1871; and on Dec. 15, 1875, was appointed a senator for life. Of his religious works may be mentioned, Prolépomèmes à la dogmatique de l'Eglise réformée, Paris, 1813; Alexandre Vinet, 1855; Lettres à mon curé, 1853, 2d ed. 1859; Melanges d'histoire religieuse, Paris, 1864; Doderer, 1884; besides these he has published several volumes of literary and critical essays.

SCHERESCHESKY, Right Rev. Samuel Issac, D.D. (Kenyon College, Gambier, O., 1876), S.T.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1877); b. at Tanroggen, Russian Lithuania, May 6, 1831; educated at the rabbinical college at Zhitomer (Russia), the University of Berlin, and the General Theological Seminary (New-York City); elected missionary bishop of China, 1875 (declined) and 1877; resigned on account of serious and prolonged illness, 1883. He has translated the Old Testament from Hebrew into Mandarin Chinese, Mark into Mongolian, with Bishop Burdon of Hong Kong the Prayer-Book into Mandarin Chinese, and was one of the committee to translate the New Testament into it.

SCHLÖTTMANN, Konstantin, D.D. (—), German Protestant theologian; b. at Minden, Mark, Germany, Nov. 20, 1814; at Ziirich, 1855, at Bonn 1859, and at Halle 1866. He is one of the revisers of the German Bible. Among his writings may be mentioned, Das Buch Hiob verdeutscht und erläutert, Berlin, 1851; De Philippo Melanchthoni republica literaria et reformator, Bonn, 1860; De reipublica literaria originibus, 1861; David Strauss als Romaniker des Heidentums, Halle, 1878; Erasmus redivivus sive de curta hoc usque roman.a insanabili, 1883; Wider Klößow und Luthard. In Sachen der Luther-Bibel, 1885. — SCHMID, Aloys, D.D. (Munich, 1850), Roman Catholic; b. at Zaumberg, Bavaria, Dec. 22, 1825; studied at Munich, 1844—50; was professor in the Zweibrücken gymnasium, 1852—54; professor of philosophy in the royal lyceum at Dillingen, 1852—68; has been professor of apologetics and dogmatics in the University of Munich since 1868. He is an archiepiscopal ecclesiastical councilor. He is the author of Die Bistumsmysterie, Regensburg, 1850—51, 2 vols.; Entwicklungsgeschichte der Hegelschen Logik, 1868; Thomistische und Scotische Gewissheitslehre, Dillingen, 1859; Wissenschaftliche Richtungen auf dem Gebiete des Katholizismus in neuerer und in gegenwärtiger Zeit, Munich, 1862; Wissenschaft und Autorität, 1868; Untersuchungen über den letzten Grund des Abendmahlsglaubens, 1879.

SCHMID, Andreas, D.D. (Munich, 1860), Roman Catholic; b. at Zaumberg, Bavaria, Jan. 9, 1840; studied theology at Munich, 1860—63; was ordained priest, 1863; became subregens of the Georgianum priests' seminary at Munich, 1863; director of the same, and professor of pastoral theology in the University of Munich, 1877. He is the author of Der christliche Altar und sein Schmuck. Regensburg, 1873.

SCHMID, Heinrich, German Lutheran theologian; b. at Harburg, near Nördlingen, July 31, 1811; studied at Halle, Berlin, and Erlangen; became at the latter repetens 1837, privat-docent 1846, professor extraordinary 1848, and ordinary 1854, and retired in 1881. He has written, Die Dogmatik der evangelisch-lutherischen Kirche dargestellt und aus den Quellen belegt, Erlangen, 1843, 6th ed. Frankfurt-am-Main, 1876 (English trans., The Doctrinal Theology of the Lutheran Church, Philadelphia, 1876); Geschichte der synkretistischen Streitigkeiten in der Zeit des Georg Calixt, Erlangen, 1846; Lehrbuch der Kirchengeschichte, Nördlingen, 1851, 2d ed. 1856; Die Theologie Semlers, 1858; Lehrbuch der Dogmengeschichte, 1859, 3d ed. 1877; Geschichte des Pietismus, 1863; Der Kampf der lutherischen Kirche um Luthers Lehre vom Abendmahl im Reformationsschrifter, Leipzig, 1867, 2d ed. 1873; Handbuch der Dogmen- und Kirchengeschichte, Erlangen, 1880—91, 2 parts. D. 1885.

SCHMIDT, Charles Guillaume Adolphe, Lic. Theol., D.D. (both Strassburg, 1835 and 1836), Lutheran; b. at Strassburg, Alsace. June 20, 1812; studied theology in its university, 1828—33;
Schmidt, Paul Wilhelm, D.D. (hon., Götttingen, 1878). Protestant theologian; b. at Zau keroda, near Dresden, Saxony, Dec. 22, 1851; studied at Leipzig and Göttingen, 1854–57; was "teacher of religion" at Plauen, Zwickau, and St. Afra gymnasia, 1856–66; became professor extraordinary at Leipzig 1866, and ordinary professor 1876. He is the author of Der Lehrgehalt des Jakobusbriefes, Leipzig, 1869; Der Bericht der Apostelgeschichte über Stephanus (Program), 1892; articles and pamphlets upon theological and ecclesiastical subjects, e.g., as in F. von Holtzendorff's Zeit u. Streit fragen.

Schmidt, Woldegmar Gottlob, D.D. (hon., Götttingen, 1878). Protestant theologian; b. at St. Afra in Meissen, Saxony, June 2, 1836; studied at Leipzig and Göttingen, 1854–57; was "teacher of religion" at Plauen, Zwickau, and St. Afra gymnasia, 1856–66; became professor extraordinary at Leipzig 1866, and ordinary professor 1876. He is the author of Der Lehrgehalt des Jakobusbriefes, Leipzig, 1869; Der Bericht der Apostelgeschichte über Stephanus (Program), 1892; articles and pamphlets upon theological and ecclesiastical subjects, e.g., as in F. von Holtzendorff's Zeit u. Streit fragen. theology there 1880; at Basel, 1883. He belongs to the school of Frank of Erlangen. He is the author of "Die Kontroverse des Ludwigs Cappel mit den Bistoren über das Alter der hebr. Puncta-tion" (doctor's dissertation, 1878), Leipzig, 1879;
De fidei notione ethica Paulina (Habilitationsschrift);
1880; Der christliche Glaube und die heilige Schrift (lecture). Basle, 1884; Das Judentum und die crystaline Entscheidung, 1885; Onkologie (doctorate); Beitrag zur Grundlegung der bibl. Theologie und Geschichte, Leipzig, 1884; editor (with Delitzsch) of Weber's System der altsynagogalen palatini-scher Theologie, 1880; has written essays on phases of Pharisaical Judaism for Luthardt's jubilee, 1881; in Luthardt's Zeitschrift, 1883—84, and in the Basel Kirchenfreund, 1883—86.

SCHODDE, George Henry, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1876), Lutheran (General Council); b. at Allegheny City, Penn., April 15, 1854; graduated at Capital University, Columbus, O. (at college 1872, theological seminary 1874); studied at Tübingen 1874—75, Leipzig 1876; Rektor at Wheeling,
W. Va., 1877; professor of Greek in the college of Capital University, 1881 (also has taught in the German language and literature to the theological seminar 1874); studied at Tübingen 1846 assistant minister, and in 1859 pastor of the German Lutheran Church in the Savoy, now Cleveland Street, London. He has been examiner in the German language and literature to the Military Education Division, War Office, London,
since 1855; to the Civil Service Commission,
London, since 1864; and in the University of London
since 1882 (as from 1872—75). He is the author of The Book of Enoch, translated from the Ethiopic, Andover, 1882; and of numerous contributions to the Journal of the German Oriental Society, Bibliotheca Sacra, Lutheran Quarterly, Independent, etc.

SCHOEFL, Carl Wilhelm, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1851), Lutheran; b. at Güglingen, Württemberg, Aug. 4, 1820; educated at Tübingen; became in 1848 assistant minister; and in 1859 pastor of the German Lutheran Church in the Savoy, now
Cleveland Street, London. He has been examiner in the German language and literature to the Military Education Division, War Office, London,
since 1855; to the Civil Service Commission,
London, since 1864; and in the University of London
since 1882 (as from 1872—75). He is the author of De ecclesiastica Britannorum Scotorumque historia,
Basel, 1851; and contributor to Herzog's REAL ORPHEUS D., 1st and 2d editions.

SCHOENFELDER, Josephus Maria, D.D. (Munich, 1860), Roman Catholic; b. at Forchheim, Bavaria, June 16, 1838; educated at Bamberg, Erlangen, and Munich; was sacellarius at Bamberg, 1861—65; professor of theology at Hildesheim, 1866; chorher of St. Cajetan in Munich, 1867—71; court preacher at St. Michael's, Munich,
1871—74; privatactor in the University of Munich,
1869—73; professor extraordinary of theology,
1873—74; since 1874 ordinary professor; since 1880 canon of St. Cajetan's. He is also senator. He is the author of Die Kirchengeschichte des Johannes von Ephesus, Munich, 1862; Solomonic Episcopi
Bassoriensis Libri Apis, Bamberg, 1860; Onkelos und Peschitto, Munich, 1869; treatises and articles in typical periodicals.

SCHOLTEN, Jan Hendrik, Ph.D., D.D. (both Utrecht, 1835 and 1838, respectively), Dutch Protestant theologian; b. at Vleuten, near Utrecht, Aug. 17, 1811; d. at Leiden, April 10, 1885. He studied at the University of Utrecht; became pastor at Meerkert, 1835; professor of theology in the theological school at the University of Würzburg, 1840; the same in the University of Leiden, 1843; retired in 1881. He was rector of the university in 1847, 1857, and 1877. He was the head of the critical school of Dutch theologians, and the author of the so-called "modern theology," which arose about 1858, and which rejects the supernatural; looks upon Christianity as the religion of Jesus, rather than as founded upon Jesus; and God as a transcendent entity, devoid of all anthropomorphic attributes which would limit his infinitude, but the source of all force and all life. Among his numerous writings may be mentioned his theses for his Habilitationsschrift, Leiden, 1843—45, 2 vols., 4th ed. 1861 (French trans. by
C. B. Hult in the Revue de théologie de Strassburg, 1863), Dogmatiques christiennes initiaux, 1853—
54, 2d ed. 1858; Geschichte der gottesdienstlichen en wirtschaftge, 1853, 3d ed. 1863 (French trans. by A. Réville, Paris, 1861, 2d ed. 1864; German trans. by Redepenning, Elberfeld, 1888; English trans., London, 1870), "Historical and Critical Introduction to the New Testament," 1853, 2d ed. 1856 (German trans., Leipzig, 1856); "The Freedom of the Will," 1856 (French trans. in the Revue de théo-logie et philosophie, Lausanne, 1876); "The Causes of Contemporary Materialism," 1859 (French trans. by A. Réville in the Revue, Strassburg, 1860); (German trans. by Lang, Berlin, 1867), "The Oldest Writings to the Writings of the New Testament," 1866 (German trans. by C. Manchot, Bremen, 1867); "Supernaturalism in rapport with the Bible, Christianity, and Protestantism," 1867;
"The Oldest Gospel: Critical Examination of the Relations of the Gospels of Matthew and Mark," 1866 (German trans. by Redepenning, Elberfeld, 1869); "The Formula of Bassetins," 1870 (German trans. by Max Gubalka, Gotha, 1885); "The Pauline Gospel: a Critical Examination of the Gospel of Luke, and its Relation to Mark, Matthew, and the Acts," 1870 (German trans. by Redepenning, Elberfeld, 1881); "The Apostle John in Asia Minor," 1871 (German trans. by B. Spiegel, Berlin, 1872); "Did the Third Evangelist write the Acts?" 1873: Afscfiedrede bij het neerleggen van het hoogleeraarsambt, 1881 (his address on retiring from his professorship, in which he reviews his theological development); Historisch-critische Bijdragen aan Aanleitung can de nauwste Hypothese overaangaande Jezus en den Paulus der vier Hoofd-bruinen, 1882.

SCHOLZ, Anton, Th.D. (Würzburg, 1856),
Roman Catholic; b. at Schmachtenberg, Bavaria,
Feb. 25, 1839; educated at Munich and Würzburg; became co-operator at Zell, 1853; secretary of the late Bishop Anton von Stahl in Würzburg, 1854; pastor at Elisabeth in Würzburg, 1861; professor of Old-Testament exegesis and biblical Oriental languages at Würzburg, 1872. He made an extensive scientific journey through Palestine Schulze. 194

Schulze. 194

in 1870. He is the author of De inhahitatione spirita Saneti (inaugural dissertation), Würzburg, 1872; Der Masoret. Text u. d. LXX. Übersetzung d. Buch. Jeremia, Regensburg, 1875; Commentar zu Jeremiad, Würzburg, 1880; Die alexandrinische Übersetzung des Buch Liesias, 1880; Commentar zu Hoseas, 1882; die Joel, 1884; Das Buch Judit, eine Prophäie, 1885.

Scholz, Paul, lic. theol. (Breslau, 1852), D.D. (hon., Münster, 1892), Roman Catholic; b. at Breslau, Germany, June 29, 1828; was educated at Breslau; became priest and chaplain at Gießen, 1855; repetus of theology in the University of Breslau, and teacher of religion in the Matthias gymnasium in the same city, 1853; privaat-docten of theology in the university, 1857; professor extraordinary, 1864; ordinary professor, 1868. He is the author of Handbuch der Theologie des Alten Bundes in Lichte des Neuen, Regensburg, 1861-82, 2 vols.; Commentar zum codex christianus naturalis, civilitatis ecclesiae fines (4th and last part of Diekhoff's Compend. ethic. christ. cat.), Paderborn, 1864; Die Ehne der Söhne Gottes mit den Töchtern der Menachen, Regensburg, 1885; Die heiligsten Altthürmer des Volkes Israel, 1886-88, 2 vols.; Götzendienst und Zauberei bei den Anienteben und den benachbarten Völkern, 1877.

Schraeder, Eberhard, Ph.D. (Göttingen, 1860), D.D. (hon., Zürich, 1870), German Protestant (critical school of Ewald and De Wette); b. at Brunswick, Jan. 5, 1838; studied at Göttingen; became ordinary professor of theology at Zürich 1865, 1870, at Jena 1875, 1877, 1883; wrote Die Voraussetzungen der christlichen Lehre von der Unsterblichkeit, Göttingen, 1861; Alttestamentliche Theologie, Frankfurt-a.-M., 1869, 3d ed. Göttingen, 1885; Zu den kirchlichen Fragen der Gegenwart, Frankfurt, 1889; Die Stellung des christlichen Glaubens zur heiligen Schrift, Karlsruhe, 1872, 2d ed. 1878; Die Lehre von der Gottheit Christi, Gotta, 1881; Predigten gehalten in der Universität kirche zu Göttingen, 1883.

Schultze, Augustus, Moravian; b. at Now-awas, near Potsdam, Prussia, Feb. 8, 1840; graduated at Moravian College and Theological Seminary, 1st Graduates, 1861; became professor at Niesky, 1862; assistant principal, 1869; professor of exegesis and dogmatics in Moravian College and Theological Seminary at Bethlehem, Penn., 1870, president, 1881; also editor of Der Brüdner Botschafter, and a member of the "Provincial Elders' Conference" of the American Moravian Church, 1891. He has published pamphlets, etc.

Schultze, Maximilian Victor, lic. theol. (Leipzig, 1879), Lutheran theologian; b. at Fürstenberg, Germany, Dec. 13, 1851; studied at Basel, Jena, Strassburg, and Göttingen; became privaat-docten at Leipzig 1879; professor extraordinary of theology at Greifswald, 1884. He is the author of Die Katakomben von S. Gennaro dei Poveri in Neapel, Jena, 1877; Archäologische Studien über altchristliche Monumente, Vienna, 1880; Die Katakomben, ihre Geschichte und ihre Monumente, Leipzig, 1882.

Schulze. 194

Schüler, Emil, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1888), D.D. (Tübingen, honoris causa, 1877), Lutheran; b. at Augsburg, May 2, 1844; studied at Erlangen, Berlin, and Heidelberg, 1852-62; became privaat-docten at Leipzig 1869, professor extraordinary 1873; ordinary professor at Giessen, 1878. He has edited Theologische Literaturzeitung from its foundation in 1876 (with Harnack since 1881), and in the periodical Die Bestoffen und Geschichtsorschung, 1878.

Schulze. 194

in 1870. He is the author of De inhahitatione spirita Saneti (inaugural dissertation), Würzburg, 1872; Der Masoret. Text u. d. LXX. Übersetzung d. Buch. Jeremia, Regensburg, 1875; Commentar zu Jeremiad, Würzburg, 1880; Die alexandrinische Übersetzung des Buch Liesias, 1880; Commentar zu Hoseas, 1882; die Joel, 1884; Das Buch Judit, eine Prophäie, 1885.
tament exegesis and biblical theology there, 1859; professor extraordinary at Königsberg, 1863; inspector and director at Magdeburg, 1866; ordinary professor of theology at Rostock, 1874. He is the author of De fonsibus ex quibus historia Hyscororum haurienda sit, Berlin, 1858; Ueber die Gottesoffenbarungen (Engel des Herrn) im alten Bund (in Studien u. Kritiken, 1859); Ueber die Wunder des Herrn, mit Berichtigungen. Jerusalem, Jesus von Renan, 1882; Martha u. Maria, Gotha, 1886; Ueber die Auferstehung Jesu Christi (In Beisehe des Glaubens, 1867); Das Wunder im Verhältniss zur Sündenvergebung (do., 1888); Ueber die ausrührb-babylichen Ausgrabungen in ihrer Beziehung auf das A. T. (do., 1880); Passions-Ostfeier (sermons), Gotha, 1896: Vom Menschensohn u. vom Logos, 1867; Frie de im Herrn (sermons), 1871; anweisung zum planmassigen Lesen der heiligen Schrift, Leipzig, 1875; Philipp Wockernagel nach seinem Leben u. Wirken, 1879; Friedrich Adolf Philipppii, ein Lebensbild, Nordlinger, 1878, 2d ed. 1885; Staphanum et S.Cyprianum, 1859; Dogmengeschichte und des von der vormischlichen Zeit 1862, der palrislischen Zeit 1869, der mittleren Zeit 1892, De operibus supererogatorios, 1868; Spezielle Moraltheologie, Freiburg, 1., II. 1878, III. 1875, 2d ed. 1885; Allgemeine Moraltheologie, 1875. SCHWARZ, Karl Heinrich Wilhelm, Protestant theologian; b. at Wien auf Rügen, Nov. 19, 1812; became privat-docent in the theological faculty at Münster, 1853; professor extraordinary there, 1859; ordinary professor, 1867. He is the author of Ueber die scientia media in the Tübinger-Quartalschrift, Tübingen, 1850; Das göttliche Vorhersezen, Münster, 1855; De controversia inter S. Stephansen et S. Cyprisanum, 1859; Dogmengeschichte der vormischlichen Zeit 1862, der palrislischen Zeit 1869, der mittleren Zeit 1892, De operibus supererogatorios, 1868; Spezielle Moraltheologie, Freiburg, 1., II. 1878, III. 1875, 2d ed. 1885; Allgemeine Moraltheologie, 1875. SCOTT, Very Rev. Robert, D.D. (Oxford, 1854), Church of England; b. at Bondleigh, Devonshire, Jan. 26, 1811; student of Christ Church, Oxford, 1830; was Craven scholar, 1830; Irish scholar and B.A. (first-class in classics), 1833, 1838; Lessing, 1834; M.A. (Balliol College), 1838; Denyer theologian essayist, 1838; B.D., 1854. He was fellow and tutor of Balliol College, 1835–40; rector of Duloe, Cornwall, 1840–50; prebendary of Exeter Cathedral, 1845–50; rector of S. Lufenham, Rutland, 1853–54, 1874–75; master of Balliol College and member of Hebdomadal Council, 1854–70; University press delegate, 1855–70; became professor of Scripture exegesis, 1861; dean of Rochester, 1870;
SCOTT, William Anderson, D.D. (University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, Ala., 1844), LL.D. (University of New-York City, 1872), Presbyterian; b. at Rock Creek, Bedford County, Tenn., Jan. 31, 1813; d. in San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 14, 1885. He was graduated at Cumberland College, Princeton, Ky., 1833; studied in Princeton (N. J.) Theological Seminary, 1833–34; was missionary in Louisiana and Arkansas, 1833–36; principal of academies in Tennessee, 1836–40; became pastor at Tuscaloosa, Ala., 1840, and in New Orleans, La. (first church), 1843; pastor-elect of Calvary Church, San Francisco, Cal., 1854–61; in Europe, and for a while in charge of the new John-street Presbyterian Church of Birmingham, Eng.; pastor of Forty-second-street Church, New-York City, 1863–70; of St. John's Church, San Francisco, 1870 till his death. He held his latter position along with that of professor of mental and moral philosophy and systematic theology in the San Francisco Theological Seminary from its establishment in 1871. In 1858 he was moderator of the General Assembly (old school). He published Daniel, a Model for Young Men, New York, 1854; Achan in El Dorado, San Francisco, 1855; Trade and Letters, New York, 1856; The Grand Judge, San Francisco, 1858; The Church in the Army, or the Four Centurions of the Gospels, New York, 1862, 2d ed. 1868; The Christ of the Apostles' Creed: the Voice of the Church against Arianism, Sisraus, and Renan, New York, 1867.

SCOLLER, James Brown, D.D. (Muskingum College, New Concord, O., 1880), United Presbyterian; b. near Newville, Cumberland County, Penn., July 12, 1820; graduated at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1839, and at the Associate Reformed Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1842; was pastor of United Presbyterian Churches in Philadelphia (fourth), Penn., 1844–46; Cuylerville, N. Y., 1847–52; Argyle, N. Y., 1852–62; A. N. A. The Catholic Church of the City of New York, 1852–63. He has since 1863 lived as an invalid at Newville, Penn. He is the author of “Forty Letters from Abroad, principally Italy and Egypt,” published in The Christian Instructor, 1860–61; History of the Big Spring Presbytery (U.P.), Harrisburg, Penn., 1879; History of the Presbyterian Church of Argyle (U. P.), 1880; A Manual of the United Presbyterian Church, 1881; Calvinism: its History and Influences, 1885 (pp. 29); a number of pamphlets, lectures, and sermons, and a large amount of miscellaneous matter published in the columns of The Christian Instructor, The United Presbyterian, and The Evangelical Repository, since 1844.

SCRIMGER, John, Canadian Presbyterian; b. at Galt, Ontario, Can., Feb. 10, 1849; graduated at the University of Toronto, B. A. 1869, M. A. 1871, and at Knox College, Toronto, 1873; was pastor of St. Joseph-street Presbyterian Church, Montreal, 1871–73; leader on the exegesis in the Presbyterian College, Montreal, 1874–82; since 1882 has been professor there of the same. Since 1873 he has been member of the General Assembly's board of French evangelization; is convener of General Assembly's committee on religious instruction in the public schools of the Province of Quebec, and of the General Assembly's committee on cooperation with other Protestant churches in sparsely settled districts.

SCRIVENER, Frederick Henry Ambrose, LL.D. (St. Andrew's, 1872), D.C.L. (Oxford, 1876), Church of England; b. at Bermondsey, Surrey, Sept. 29, 1813; educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (third in second-class classical tripos) 1835, M. A. 1838; became assistant master of King's School, Sherborne, 1838; curate of Sandford Orcas, Somerset, 1838; perpetual curate of Penwerris, Cornwall, 1846; rector of St. Gerrans, Cornwall, 1861; vicar of Hensdon, Middlesex, 1876. He was a member of the New Testament Revision Company, received a pension of a hundred pounds in 1872 in recognition of his eminent biblical services, and is the author of Notes on the Authorized Version of the New Testament, London, 1845; Collation of Twenty Greek Manuscripts of the Holy Gospel, 1853; Codex Augensis, and Fifty other Manuscripts, 1859; Novum Testamentum Textus Stephanici, 1860, 4th ed. 1873; Plain Introduction to the Criticism of the New Testament, 1861, 3d ed. much enlarged, 1883; Collation of the Codex Sinaiticus, 1863, 2d ed. revised, 1897; A Manual of Greek Grammar, Philadelphia, 1884; Six Popular Lectures on the Text of the New Testament, 1875; edited The Cambridge Paragraph Bible, 1873 (Introduction, revised separate edition, 1884); Greek Testament, 7th ed. 1877; Greek Testament with Changes of New Testament Revisers, 1881.

SCUDDER, Henry Martyn, M.D. (University of the City of New York, 1853), D.D. (Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N. J., 1859), Congregationalist; b. at Panditipore, Jaffna District, Island of Ceylon, Feb. 5, 1822; studied at New York University and Williams College; graduated at the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, Ala., 1844, and at Union Theological Seminary 1843; was a foreign missionary under American Board at Madras, India, 1844–51, and at Arcot, India, 1851–63; resigned on account of ill-health; was pastor of the Grand-street Reformed Church, Jersey City, N. J., for six months, 1884–85; of the Howard Presbyterian Church, San Francisco, Calif., 1885–71; was pastor of the Park Avenue Presbyterian Church of Brooklyn, N. Y., 1871–82; since has been pastor of Plymouth Congregational Church, Chicago, Ill.

SEABURY, William Jones, D.D. (Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., 1876; General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1885), Episcopal; b. in New York City, Jan. 26, 1837; graduated there at Columbia College, 1856; admitted to the bar, 1859; graduated from General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1866; rector of the Church of the Annunciation, New York, since 1863; in 1873 became professor of ecclesiastical polity and law in the General Theological Seminary. He edited Dr. Samuel Seabury's Memorial, New York, 1873, and Discourses on the Nature and Work of the Holy Spirit, 1874; and, besides occasional pamphlets, has published Suggestions in Aid of Devotion and Godliness, 1878.

SEEGER, Reinhold, Lutheran theologian; b. at Pernau, Livonia, 1859; studied at Dorpat 1878–82 and at Erlangen; became privat-dozent of theology at Dorpat, 1884; extraordinarius-dozent, 1885; since 1884, second pastor of the University Church. He is the author of Der Begriff der christlichen Kirche, vol. 1., Erlangen, 1885; Von Lebensideal (lecture), Dorpat, 1888.
SEELEY, John Robert, M.A., layman; b. in London, Eng., in 1834; graduated at Cambridge, B.A. (first-class in classical tripos), 1857, and was senior chancellor's medallist; became fellow of Christ's College, 1858; a master in City of London School, 1861; professor of Latin, University College, London, 1863; professor of modern history at Cambridge, 1869. He is the author of Economic Survey, 1875; The Expansion of England, 1883; A Short History of Napoleon the First, 1886.

SEELEY, Julius Hawley, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1862), LL.D. (Columbia College, New York City, 1876), Congregationalist; b. at Bethel, Conn., Sept. 14, 1824; graduated from Amherst (Mass.) College 1849, and from Auburn Theological Seminary (Presbyterian), N.Y., 1852; became professor of history, philosophy and metaphysics, Amherst College, 1858; member of Congress, 1875; president of Amherst College, 1877. He is the author of a translation of Schwegler's History of Philosophy, New York, 1859; The Way, the Truth, and the Life; Lectures to Educated Hindus, Bombay and Boston, 1875; Christian Missions, New York, 1877; sermons, addresses, and reviews.

SEQUOY, Jacques Jean Louis, B.D., Lic. Theol., D.D. (all Strasbourg, 1834, 1835, and 1836, respectively), Swiss Protestant theologian; b. at Plainpalais, near Geneva, Oct. 4, 1810; d. in Geneva, June 18, 1886. He was educated at the University of Strasbourg and at Bonn, where he studied Oriental languages under Freytag. On his return to Geneva he founded (1836) a society for the exegetical study of the New Testament, which lasted until 1841; and gave free lectures upon Old-Testament exegesis in the university. From 1840 to 1864 he was pastor at Chênes-Bougères; from 1862 to 1884 lectured upon Old-Testament introduction in Geneva University, where, from 1872 to his death, he was professor of Old-Testament exegesis. He made a trip through Palestine in 1873. His fame rests upon his translation of the Old Testament (Geneva, 1874, 2 vols.; New Testament, 1880, many subsequent editions), which he prepared at the request of the Venerable Company of Pastors of Geneva. It is a remarkably successful work. It was reprinted by the Oxford University Press, first edition fifty thousand copies. His other works are: Ritu, Geneva, 1834; l'Écclésiaste, 1835; De voce Schola et notione Orci apud Hebræos, 1835; De la nature de l'inspiration chez les auteurs et dans les écrits du Nouveau Testament, 1836; Monologues (trans. from Schleiermacher), 1837, 2d ed. 1864; A M. Tabée de Baudry sur son dernier oracle, 1838; Traité élémentaire des accents hébraïques, 1841, 2d ed. 1874; Soiress chrétiennes, 2d series 1850, 3d series 1871; Géographie de la Terre Sainte, 1851; Catéchisme, ou Manuel d'instruction chrétienne, 1858, 2d ed. 1863; Récits bibliques à l'usage de la jeunesse, 1862 (twenty-four thousand copies sold); Souvenir pour mes anciens catéchumènes (four discourses), 1864; Chrismathie biblique, 1864; Le prophète Esaias, 1866; Les réalités du saint ministère (ordination sermon), 1880.

SEISS, Joseph Augustus, D.D. (Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Pa., 1860), L.L.D. (Roanoke College, Salem, Va., 1874), Lutheran (General Council); b. near Brannon, Md., March 15, 1823; was student in Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, 1839-41, but left without graduating; theological study mostly private; became pastor at Martinsburg and Shepherdstown, Va., 1843; Cumberland, Md., 1847; Baltimore, Md., 1852; of St. John's, Philadelphia, 1858; of Holy Communion, Philadelphia, 1874. From 1872 to 1883 he was one of the General Council, and one of the committee which made its Church Book. He edited Prophetic Times, a monthly devoted to prophecy, 1863-75; also The Lutheran, Philadelphia, 1873-79 (was associate editor 1869-73 and 1879-80); travelled in Europe and the East, 1864-65. He is the author of Lectures on Epistle to the Hebrews, Baltimore, 1846; Baptist System examined, 1854, 3d enlarged ed. Philadelphia, 1882; Digest of Christian Doctrine, Baltimore, 1855; Last Times, 1856, 7th ed. Philadelphia, 1890, republished London; Holy Types (Gospel in Leviticus), Philadelphia and London, 1875; Book of Forms (liturgical), Philadelphia, 1890; Evangelical Psalmist, 1880, 2d ed. 1870; Parable of the Ten Virgins, 1862, 2d ed. 1873, also London; Child's Catechism, 1863, 2d ed. 1880; Ecclesia Lutheran, 1867, 2d ed. 1871; A Question in Eschatology, 1869; How shall we Order our Worship? 1869; Plain Words (sermons), 1869; Lectures on the Apocalypse, 1980-94, 3 vols., also London and Basel; The Javelin, by a Lutheran, 1871; Uriel, Occasional Discourses, 1873; Church Song (musical), 1875-81; Lectures on the Gospels, 1875, 2 vols.; A Miracle in Stone (Great Pyramid), 1877, new ed. 1882, also London; Recreation Songs (poetical), 1878; Thirty-three Practical Sermons, 1879; Voices from Babylon (lectures on Daniel), 1879, 2d ed. 1881, also London; Blossoms of Faith (sermons), 1880; The Golden Altar (manual of private devotions), New York, 1882; Gospel in the Stars (primeval astronomy), Philadelphia, 1882, 2d ed. 1885; Luther and the Reformation, 1883; Lectures on the Epistles, 1885, 2 vols.; Right Life, Philadelphia, 1886; also numerous special sermons, addresses, pamphlets, review articles, etc., since 1845.

SELBORNE, The Right Hon. Roundell Palmer, Earl of, D.C.L. (hon., Oxford, 1863); b. in Bury, Nov. 27, 1812; educated at Trinity College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1834, M.A. 1837; called to the bar, 1837; became a queen's counsel, 1849; M.P., 1847-52, 1853-57, 1861-72; solicitor-general, 1846; attorney-general, 1859-69; lord chancellor of England, 1872-74, 1880-85. He was elected lord rector of the University of St. Andrew's, 1877; and president of the first house of laymen of the Church of England, Westminster, February, 1886. He edited the Book of Praise, from the Best English Hymn-Writers, London, 1867.

SEEM, Karl Aenotheus, Protestant theologian; b. at Prettini, Saxony, Dec. 31, 1810; studied at Leipzig, 1829-32; became professor at Greifswald 1844, at Breslau 1853, at Berlin 1868; and is the author of Justin der Märtyrer, Breslau, 1840-42, 2 parts; Die apostolischen Denkwürdigkeiten des Märtyrers Justinus, Hamburg, 1848; Julian der Märtyrer, Breslau, 1862.

SEPP, Johann Nepomuk, Roman Catholic; b. at Tötz, Bavaria, Aug. 7, 1816; studied at Munich; travelled in the East, 1845-46; became professor of history at Munich, 1846; deposed and expelled from the city 1847 for his political opinions; reinstated, 1850; retired, 1867. He has been prominent in politics. He is the author of Das Leben Jesu, Regensburg, 1842–46, 5 vols.; 2d ed. 1853–62, 6 vols.; Das Heidentum und dessen Belehnung für das Christentum, 1853, 3 parts; Jerusalem und die Heilige Land, Schaffhausen, 1862–65, 3 vols. 1862; 2d ed. 1872–74, 4 vols. Jesu mit ihrer weltgeschichtlichen Beglaubigung, 1864; Geschichte des Apostel vom Tod Jesu bis zur Zestörung Jerusalem, 1865, 2d ed. 1869; Kritische Reformationswürfe beginnend mit der Revision des Bibelkanons, Munich, 1870; Das Hebräer Evangelium, 1870; Deutschland und der Vatikan, 1872; Görres u. seine Zeitgenossen, Nördlingen, 1877; Meerfahrt nach Tyron zu Ausgrabung der Kathedrale mit Barbarosas Grab, 1875.

SERVICE. John, D.D. (Glasgow, 1877), Church of Scotland; b. at Campsie, Feb. 26, 1833; d. in Glasgow, March 15, 1884. He studied at the University of Glasgow irregularly from 1838 to 1862, but did not take a degree; was sub-editor of Mackenzie's Imperial Dictionary of Universal Biography, under P. E. Dove; married in 1859; became minister at Hamilton 1862, and there remained for ten months, when he resigned on account of ill-health, and went to Melbourne, Australia, where he spent two years (1864–66), leaving it for Hobart Town, Tasmania, where he was minister four years (1866–70). In both these colonial charges he exercised a considerable influence. In 1870 he returned home, and in 1872 was appointed to the parish of Inch, Wigtownshire, which he left in 1879 for Hyndland Established Church, Glasgow, of which he was incumbent when he died. His first literary work of mark was a novel, known as Novantia when it was published in Good Words, and afterwards as Lady Hetty, London, 1875, 3 vols. It is full of interesting pictures of Scotch village and rural life, in vivid contrast with wider colonial experiences. The hero is a Scotch clergyman; and the charm of the book lies, not so much in its plot, as in the commander's clerk, United-States Navy, in China, colonial charges he exercised a considerable influence among the leaders of what is known as the "Broad Church" in Scotland. Occasional magazine articles, journalistic contributions, and sermons appeared from his pen from time to time; but Salvation, here and hereafter, has only been followed by two posthumous volumes, — Sermons (1884) and Prayers (1885). — In both of which there is the same note of vigorous unconventionality of opinion, and of deep spiritual life, which has arrested attention in his previous volumes. His personal influence was one element of his powers, and the secret of its charm is easily understood from his books.

SEWALL, John Smith, D.D. (Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1878), Congregationalist; b. at Newcastle, Me., March 20, 1830; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1856; was deacon for Woodstock 1852–55, and in Commodore Perry's expedition (1853–54), 1850–54; graduated at Bangor (Me.) Theological Seminary, 1858; pastor at Wenham, Mass., 1859–67: professor of rhetoric and oratory in Bowdoin College, 1867–75; and since 1875 has been professor of sacred rhetoric and oratory in Bangor Theological Seminary. He has contributed to various periodicals.

SEYERLEN, Karl Rudolf, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1851), D.D. (hon., Jena, 1873), Protestant theologian; b. at Stuttgart, Nov. 18, 1831; studied at Tübingen, 1840–53; was curate at Giengen, 1854–55; student of theology and philology at Paris, 1855–56; teacher of religion in Ulm Gymnasium, 1857–59; repetent at Tübingen, 1859–61; diakonus at Crailsheim 1862–65; at Tübingen 1869–72; archdeacon there, 1872–75; became ordinary professor of practical and systematic theology at Jena, 1875. In theology he belongs to the school of Baur, in philosophy to that of Friedrich Rohmer. He is the author of Aristocron, de materia universali (Fons Vitae), Ein Beirag zur Geschichte der Philosophie des Mittelalters (in Bau and Zeller's Theologische Jahrbücher, 1856–57); Entstehung und Entwicklung der Welt, in Zeitungen, vol. 1, 1874, 1875; Ueber Bedeutung und Aufgabe der Predigt der Gegenwart; Antrittrede an Jena, 1870; Der christliche Cultus im apostolischen Zeitalter i. Bassermann's Zeitschrift für praktische Theologie, 1881; Das System der praktischen Theologie in seinen Grundziigen (do. 1883); editor of Johann Caspar Bluntschi (autobiography), Nördlingen, 1884, 3 vols.; Friedrich Rohmer's Wissenschaft vom Menschen, 1885, 2 vols.; author of numerous articles upon church polity and church law in the Protestantische Kirchenzeitung, Berlin, 1880–85.

SEYMOUR, Right Rev. George Franklin, S.T.D. (Racine College, Wis., 1867), LL.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1878), Episcopalian, bishop of Springfield, Ill.; b. in New-York City, Jan. 5, 1829; graduated head of his class at Columbia College, New-York City, 1850, and from the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1854; was founder and first warden of St. Stephen's College, Annadale, N.Y., 1855–61; rector of St. Mary's Church, Manchesterville, 1861–62; of Christ Church, Hudson, N.Y., 1862–63; of St. John's, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1863–67; professor of ecclesiastical history in the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1865–79; dean of the same, 1872–79; consecrated first bishop of Springfield, Ill., June 11, 1875. In 1868 he was chosen by the clergy of Missouri severa times as their bishop, and was elected bishop of Illinois in 1874, and twice bishop of Springfield in 1878 and 1879. He supervised the Greek text, and translated a portion never before rendered into English, of Fulton's Index Canonum, New York, 1871; Introduction to Papal Claims, 1882; many sermons, addresses, essays, and charges.

SHAFTESBURY, the Right Hon. Anthony Ashley-Cooper, Seventh Earl of, K.G., D.C.L. (Oxford, 1841), Church of England, layman; b. in London, April 28, 1801; d. at Folkestone, Oct. 1, 1880. He was educated at Christ Church, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1822, M.A. 1822; sat as Lord Ashley in the House of Commons, as member for Woodstock 1823–30, Dorchester, N.P., 1831–35, Pembrokeshire 1831–46, Bath 1847–51, when he succeeded his father in the peerage, and took his seat in the House of Lords. He supported the governments of Liverpool and Canning; was commissioner of the board of control.
SHAW. 199 SHERWOOD.

under Wellington; was Lord of the Admiralty in Sir Robert Peel’s administration of 1834-35, but declined to join it in 1841 because Peel would not support the Ten-hours Bill. It was not, however, as a statesman and politician that Lord Shaftesbury distinguished himself, but as a leader in the movement for the amelioration of the working-classes, among whom he was a great favorite; visiting them in their homes, and planning measures for their relief and elevation by reducing their hours of labor, improving their workshops, factories, and lodging-houses, caring for their children, and guarding them against vice. He was a consistent opponent of slavery, and a firm friend of the United States during the late civil war. In religious affairs he was a pronounced Evangelical, and the leader of that party in the Church of England. He was called upon to preside at innumerable public meetings in Exeter Hall, and elsewhere, on behalf of all sorts of enterprises. His name was synonymous with every virtue, and a household word in Great Britain. He was president of many religious and philanthropic societies. Among them may be mentioned, the Church Pastoral Aid Society, The Surgical Aid Society, Field Lane Refuge and Ragged Schools for the Destitute and Homeless Poor, Ragged-school Union, The Victoria Institute, Society for the Conversion of the Jews, Society for the Relief of Persecuted Jews, The British and Foreign Bible Society. His funeral was held on Thursday, Oct. 8, Westminster Abbey, and was attended by enormous crowds. Thousands stood outside in the drenching rain, unable to enter. Delegations came from the different societies which owed to him their prosperity, if not their existence. Noticeable among them was that of the Shoe-black Brigade. Upon his coffin the wreath from the Crown Princess of Germany lay side by side with one from the poor flower-girls of London. He was buried at the family seat of St. Giles, Dorsetshire.

SHELDON, Henry Clay, Methodist; b. at Martinsburg, N. Y., March 12, 1845; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1867, and at the Theological School of Boston University, Mass., 1871; studied at Leipzig, 1874-75; since 1875 has been professor of historical theology in Boston University. He is anti-Romish, but not anti-Catholic, with a strong tendency to the Reformed, or Arminian, as opposed both to strict Calvinism and to Liberalism. He is the author of History of Christian Doctrine, New York, 1886, 2 vols.

SHERATON, James Paterson, D.D. (Queen’s University, Ontario, Can., 1889), Episcopal Church in Canada; b. at St. John, N. B., Nov. 29, 1841; graduated at the University of New Brunswick, 1862; studied theology in the University of King’s College, Windsor, N. S., privately with the bishop of Fredericton; was ordained deacon 1864, priest 1865; became rector of Shediac, N. B., 1865; of Pictou, N. S., 1874; principal and professor of exegetical and systematic theology in Wycliffe College, Toronto, 1877. He became a member of the senate of the University of Toronto in 1885. He was editor of The Evangelical Churchman from 1877-82, since 1882 principal editorial contributor. He is the author of numerous essays on education, the church, the ministry, Christian unity, etc.

SHERWOOD, James Manning, Presbyterian; b. at Fishkill, N. Y., Sept. 29, 1814; educated mainly through private tutors; studied theology under Rev. George Armstrong at Fishkill, N. Y.; was pastor at New Windsor on the Hudson, N. Y., 1835-40; Mendon, N. Y., 1840-45; Bloomfield, N. J., 1852-58; editor of National Preacher and Biblical Repository, New York, 1846-51; Eclectic Magazine, 1854-71; founder and editor of Hours at Home (monthly), 1865-69; editor Presbyterian Review, 1863-71; Presbyterian Quarterly and Princeton Review, 1877-79; Homiletic Review, since September, 1883. During his thirty years of editorial life he has been extensively engaged as a "reader" of manuscripts for publishing-houses, and has critically noticed for the press several thousand volumes, chiefly in the reviews of the country. He is the author of Plans for the Old Foundations, New York, 1856; The Life and Labors of the History of the Cross, 1883, 2d ed. 1884; editor of Memoirs, and two volumes of Sermons of Rev. Ichabod Spencer, D.D., 1855; Brainerd's Memoirs, with new preface, notes, and lengthy introduction on his life and character, 1884. He has in press, 1886, a book entitled Books and Authors, and how to use them.

SHIELDS, Charles Woodruff, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1861), LL.D. (Columbian University, Washington, D.C., 1877), Presbyterian; b. at New Albany, Ind., April 4, 1825; graduated at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1844, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1847; became pastor at Hempstead, Long Island, N.Y., 1849; of Second Church, Philadelphia, Penn., 1850; professor of harmony of science and revealed religion in the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1860 (he projected the first such college professorship). His theological standpoint is Presbyterian, but (1) advocating the restoration of the Presbyterian Prayer Book of 1661 for optional use by any ministers or congregations which desire a liturgy; and (2) also advocating church unity on a liturgical basis, with the hope of an ultimate organic re-union of Presbyterianism with Congregationalism and Episcopacy in the American Protestant Catholic Church of the future. He has published Philosophia ultima, Philadelphia, 1861; The Book of Common Prayer as amended by the Presbyterian Divines of 1661, 1864, 2d ed. New York, 1869; Liturgia expurgata, Philadelphia, 1864, 3d ed. New York, 1874; The Final Philosophy as issuing from the Harmony of Science and Religion, New York, 1877, 2d ed. 1879; Order of the Sciences, 1884.

SHIPP, Albert Micajah, D.D. (Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va., 1859), LL.D. (University of North Carolina, 1869), Southern Methodist; b. at Stanly County, N.C., January 28, 1828; entered at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, 1840; entered the ministry; became president of Greenborough Female College, N.C., 1847; professor of history and French in University of North Carolina, 1849; president of Wofford College, Spartanburg Court-House, S.C., 1859; professor of exegetical and biblical theology in Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., 1874; and dean of the theological faculty, and vice-chancellor of the university, 1882. He originated the policy of biblical chairs for teaching the Bible to the whole body of students in all Methodist institutions of learning, and was one of the first advocates of biblical institutes for the proper education of preachers for the Methodist-Episcopal Church South. He wrote The History of Methodism in South Carolina, Nashville, Tenn., 1882, 2d ed. 1884.

SHONE, Right Rev. Samuel, lord bishop of Kilmore, Elphin, and Ardagh, Church of Ireland, b. in Ireland about the year 1822; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; graduated B.A. and divinity testimonium (second-class) 1843, M.A. 1857; ordained deacon 1843, priest 1844; became curate of Rathlin Island, County Antrim, 1849; of St. John's, Sligo, County Sligo, 1846; incumbent of Calry, County Sligo, 1856; rector of Urney and Annegillif, County Cavan, 1866; bishop, 1884.

SHORE, Thomas Teignmouth, F.R.G.S., Church of England; b. in Dublin, Ireland, Dec. 28, 1841; graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, B.A. 1863, D.D. 1865; became curate at Chelsea 1865, and at Kesington 1867; vicar of St. Mildred's, Lee, 1870; incumbent of Berkeley Chapel, Mayfair, London, 1873. He was honorary chaplain to the Queen from 1878 to 1881, and since has been chaplain in ordinary. He was the religious instructor of the three daughters of the Prince of Wales, and prepared them for confirmation. [He is a noted preacher to children.] He is a moderate High Churchman. He is the author of Some Difficulties of Belief, London, 1879, 8th ed. 1884; The Life of the World to come, and other Subjects, 1879, 4th ed. 1883; The First Epistle to the Corinthians, 1870, 5th ed. 1885 (in Bishop Ellicott's commentary); "St. George for England," and other Sermons preached to Children, 1882, 5th ed. 1885; and Shortened Church Services as used at Children's Services, 1883, 2d ed. 1883; Prayer (a Helpful Manual for Believers), 1886; since 1896 editor of Helps to Belief (a series).

SHORT, Charles, A.M. (Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1849), LL.D. (Kenyon College, Gambier, O., 1868), Episcopal, layman; b. at Haverhill, Mass., May 28, 1821; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1849; taught classical schools in Roxbury, Mass., and Philadelphia; was president of Kenyon College, Gambier, O., and professor of intellectual and moral philosophy, 1863-67; and since 1868 has been professor of Latin in Columbia College, New-York City. He is a director of the American Oriental Society, and was a member of the New Testament Revision Company. He has made numerous contributions of a critical character to reviews and other periodicals, including a series of elaborate articles in The American Journal of Philology on the revision of St. Matthew's Gospel, and the essay "on the order of words in Athenagoras;" he prefixed to A. Hay's English-Greek Lexicon, New York. With Dr. C. T. Lewis he edited and enlarged E. A. Andrews-Friend's Latin Dictionary, 1879.

SHUEY, William John, D.D. (Hartsville University, Ind., 1880, but declined), United Brethren in Christ; b. at Miamisburg, O., Feb. 9, 1827; educated in the common schools and at the academy, Springfield, O.; was pastor at Lewisburg, O., 1849-51, Cincinnati 1851-55; missionary to the West Coast of Africa, between Liberia and Sierra Leone, 1855; pastor at Cincinnati, O., 1855-58; Dayton, O., 1860-62; presiding elder, 1862-64; became general manager of the United Brethren in Christ; Publishing House at Dayton, O., 1864. He has been a member of the United Brethren Board of Missions since 1861, and member of six General Conferences.

SIEFFERT, Friedrich Anton Emil, Protestant Reformed; b. at Königsberg, Prussia, Dec. 24, 1841; studied at Königsberg, Halle, and Berlin; became privats-dozent at Bonn 1871, and professor extraordinary 1873; ordinary professor at Erlangen (Reformed theology), 1878. He is the author of Nonnulla ad apoagryph. libri Henochi.
SIEGFRIED, Cari (Gustav Adolf), Ph.D. (Halle, 1859), D.D. (hon., Jena, 1875), Protestant theologian; b. at Magdeburg, Jan. 22, 1830; studied philology and theology at Halle and Bonn, 1849-53; became teacher in gymnasium at Magdeburg 1857, and at Guben 1860; professor and second minister at Pforta, 1865; ordinary professor of theology at Jena, 1875; appointed ecclesiastical councillor, 1885. He is a Knight of the Red Eagle, fourth class. He is the author of De inscriptione Gerbitana (Program), Magdeburg, 1863; Die hebräischen Worterklärungen des Philo und die Spuren ihrer Einwirkung auf die Kirchenpfitter, 1863; Spinoza als Krüüter und Ausleger des Alten Testaments, Berlin, 1867; Philo von Alexandrien als Ausleger des A. T., Jena, 1875; (with H. Gelzer) Eusebii canonum epitome ex Dionysi Telmaharenus Chronico petita (translated and annotated his Latin translation of the Syriac), Leipzig, 1894; (with H. L. Strack) Der neuhethitishe Sprach und Literatur (wrote the grammar of the new Hebrew), Carlslu, 1884; since 1881 has furnished the Old-Testament division in the Theologischer Jahresbericht (Punjer's, now edited by Lepsius), and has written numerous articles upon Old-Testament subjects.

SIMPSON, David Worthington, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1863), Congregationalist; b. at Hazelgrove, Cheshire, Eng., April 28, 1830; educated in the Lancashire Independent College, Manchester, 1843-44, and at Halle, Germany, 1845-55, and 1857-58; was pastor at Rosyton, Hertfordshire, for nine months of 1850; travelled on the Continent, 1857; was pastor at Rusholme, Manchester, 1858; returned to Germany for study, 1859; was agent of the British and Foreign Bible Society, 1863-69; professor of general theology and philosophy at Springfield College, Birmingham, 1860-84; since 1884 principal and professor of systematic theology and church history in Congregational Theological Hall, Edinburgh. He translated Hengstenberg's Commentary on Ecclesiastes, Edinburgh, 1860; (with W. L. Alexander) Dorner's History of the Development of the Doctrine of the Person of Christ, Edinburgh, 1861-63, 5 vols., etc.; and is the author of The Bible an Outgrowth of Theocratic Life, Edinburgh, 1885, and articles in British Quarterly Review, Bibliotheca Sacra, Expositor, and other publications.

SIMPSON, Matthew, D.D., LL.D., bishop of the Methodist-Episcopal Church; b. at Cadiz, O., June 21, 1811; d. in Philadelphia, Penn., June 17, 1884. He was educated at Madison College (subsequently merged into Alleghany College, Meadville, Penn.), where he was tutor in 1829. He then studied medicine, and commenced its practice in 1833, but abandoned it in 1835, when he was ordained deacon by the Pittsburg Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in 1837 elder. He was vice-president and professor of the school of medicine at Cadiz, 1837-40; president of Indiana Asbury University, Greenscastle, Ind., 1839-48; editor of The Western Christian Advocate, Cincinnati, O., 1848-52; bishop, 1852 till death. He was delegate of the General Conference to the Irish and British Conference 1857, and to the Evangelical Alliance Conference, Berlin, the same year; and during this year and next travelled over Europe and the East. He visited Europe again officially in 1870, 1873, and 1881. He changed his residence in 1859 from Pittsburg, Penn., to Evanston, Ill., and was president of the Garrett Biblical Institute in the latter place. He visited Mexico in 1874. As bishop he held conferences in all the States and in most of the Territories. He was the acknowledged prince of Methodist preachers. By his eloquent addresses he did good service to the Union cause during the Civil War. He enjoyed the personal friendship of President Lincoln. He was the author of Hundred Years of Methodism, New York, 1876; Cyclopedia of Methodism, Philadelphia, 1878, 5th rev. ed. 1892; Lectures on Preaching, New York, 1878; Sermons (posthumous, ed. by Rev. Dr. G. R. Crooks, 1885).

SINKER, Robert, Church of England; b. in Liverpool, July 17, 1838; graduated at Trinity College, Cambridge, B.A. (wrangler and second-class classical tripos), 1852; first-class theological tripos, Scholefield prizeman, and Crosse scholar, 1853; Tywhillt Hebrew and was chaplain to the Imperial Fleet, 1852-53; M.A., 1855; Norrisian prizeman, 1858; B.D., 1859; chaplain of Trinity College, 1865; librarian, 1871. He edited Testamenta xii. Patriarcharum (Cambridge and Oxford Mss.), Camb., 1809, Appendix (collation of Roman and Patmos manuscripts), 1879; Catalogue of Fifteenth-Century Books in Library of Trinity College, 1876; Pearson on the Creed, 1881; Catalogue of English Books printed before 1601 in Library of Trinity College, 1885; and, besides numerous articles in Smith and Cheetham's Dictionary of Christian Antiquities, has published The Characteristic Differences between the Books of the New Testament and the Immediately Preceding Jewish and the Immediately Succeeding Christian Literature, considered as an Evidence of the Divine Authority of the New Testament, 1865; and the translation of the Twelve Patriarchs, in Clark's Ante-Nicene Library, 1872.

SKINNER, Thomas Harvey, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1867), Presbyterian; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., Oct. 6, 1829; graduated at the University of the City of New York, 1840, and Union Theological Seminary, 1843; was (Presbyterian) pastor at Patterson, N.J., 1843-46; New York City, 1846-55; Honesdale, Penn., 1856-59; (Reformed) Stapleton, Staten Island, N.Y., 1859-68; (Presbyterian) Fort Wayne, Ind., 1868-71; Cincinnati, O., 1871-81; has been professor of didactic and polemic theology, North-western (now McCormick) Theological Seminary, Chicago, Ill., since 1881.

SLOANE, James Renwick Wilson, D.D. (Westminster College, New Wilmington, Penn., 1889), Reformed Presbyterian; b. at Topsham, Orange County, Vt., May 29, 1833; d. at Allegheny, Saturday, March 6, 1886. He graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1847; was president of Richmond College, Richmond, Jefferson County, O., 1848-50, of Geneva College, Geneva, O., 1851-56; pastor in New-York City, 1856-68; and since 1868 was professor of systematic theology and homiletics in Alleghany Theological Seminary, Penn. He published various sermons, etc.
SMEND, Rudolf, Ph.D. (Bonn, 1874), Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1875), D.D. (Giessen, 1883), Swiss theologian; b. at Lengerich, Westphalia, Germany, Nov. 5, 1851; educated at Gottingen, Berlin, and Bonn; became privat-docent of theology at Halle, 1875; professor extraordinary at Basel, 1880; ordinary professor of theology there, 1881. He is the author of Der Prophet Ezechiel erklart, Leipzig, 1890.

SMITH, Benjamin Mosby, D.D., LL.D. (Hampden-Sidney College, Prince Edward County, Va., 1854 and 1880, respectively), Presbyterian (Southern Church); b. at Monrose, Powhatan County, Va., June 30, 1811; graduated at Hampden-Sidney College. Prince Edward County, Va., 1829, and at Tinkling Spring and Waynesborough, 1840-45; and at Staunton, 1845-54; and ever since has been professor of Oriental and biblical literature in Union Seminary. From 1858 to 1874 he was with Dr. Dabney pastor of the Hampden-Sidney College Church. Since 1874 he has been trustee of Washington College (now Washington and Lee University). He has published A Commentary on the Psalms and Proverbs, Glasgow, Scotland, 1850, 3d ed. Knoxville, Tenn., 1883; Family Religion, Philadelphia, 1859; Questions on the Gospels, Richmond, vol. 1., 1868; and articles in Southern Presbyterian Review.

SMITH, Charles Strong, Congregationalist; b. at Hardwick, Vt., July 24, 1824; graduated at the University of Vermont, at Burlington, 1848; taught academy at Craftsbury, Vt., 1848-50; studied for a year (1851) at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., but completed the course at East Windsor (now Hartford) Theological Institute, Conn., and graduated 1853; was pastor at New Preston, Conn., 1853-55; North Walton, N.Y., 1855-57; out of health five years; represented the town of Hardwick, Vt., in State legislature in 1853; since 1863 has been secretary of the Vermont Domestic Missionary Society, and written the annual reports; was associate editor of Vermont Chronicle. published in Burlington, 1875-77; since 1885 editor. He is the author of an essay, Systematic Benevolence, Montpelier, Vt., 1877.

SMITH, Charles William, Methodist; b. in Fayette County, Penn., Jan. 30, 1840; entered the ministry of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, 1859; was pastor until 1880; presenting elder, 1880-84; since May, 1884, has been editor of The Pittsburgh Christian Advocate, Penn. In the autumn of 1884 he served one term in the Christian Commission in the Army of the Potomac.

SMITH, George Vance, Ph.D. (Tubingen, 1858), D.D. (Jena, 1873), Unitarian; b. at Portarlington, 1822; educated at Hampden-Sidney College, Prince Edward County, Va., 1858, and 1860, respectively. He was one of the New Testament revisers from the opening of the Vatican Council, Dec. 8, 1869, and for some time afterwards. He is the author of The Prophecies relating to Nineth and the Assyrians, from the Hebrew, with Introductions and Commentary, London, 1857; The Books of Numbers and Deuteronomy, applied to Mr. Gladstone, Dr. Lidodd, etc., 1871; The Spirit and the Word of Christ, and their Permanent Lessons, 1875; The Prophets and their Interpretations, 1878; Texts and Margins of the Revised New Testament, 1881; joint author of The Holy Scriptures of the Old Covenant, a Revised Translation from the Hebrew, 1865, 3 vols.; has written many minor publications (sermons, lectures, tracts, etc.).

SMITH, Henry Preserved, D.D. (Maryville College, Tenn., 1888), Presbyterian; b. at Trov., 0., Oct. 23, 1847; graduated at Amherst College, Mass., 1869, and at Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O., 1872; was student at Berlin (1873-74) and Leipzig (1875-77); instructor in Lane Theological Seminary, 1874-76; and since 1877 has been professor of Hebrew and Old Testament exegesis there.

SMITH, Justin Almerin, D.D. (Shurtleff College, Upper Alton, Ill., 1858), Baptist; b. at Ticonderoga, N.Y., Dec. 29, 1819; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1843; became pastor at North Bennington, Vt., 1844; at Rochester, N.Y., 1849; editor of The Christian Times, now The Standard, Chicago, Ill., since 1858. From 1863 to 1868 he was pastor of the Indiana Avenue Baptist Church; was from 1877 to 1885 lecturer in Baptist Union Theological Seminary, Morgan Park, Chicago, of which institution he has been a trustee from its foundation. He was present at the opening of the Vatican Council, Dec. 6, 1869, and for some time afterwards. He is the author of Memoir of Nathaniel Coler, D.D., Chicago, 1873; Patmos, or the Kingdom and the Patience, 1874; Memoir of Rev. John Bates, Toronto, 1877; A Commentary on the Revelation, Philadelphia, 1884; The New England theology; holds fast to the historical faith of Christendom, with hospitality to all liberal churches and religious journals, etc.

SMITH, Justus Almerin, D.D. (Shurtleff College, Upper Alton, Ill., 1858), Baptist; b. at Ticonderoga, N.Y., Dec. 29, 1819; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1843; became pastor at North Bennington, Vt., 1844; at Rochester, N.Y., 1849; editor of The Christian Times, now The Standard, Chicago, Ill., since 1858. From 1863 to 1868 he was pastor of the Indiana Avenue Baptist Church; was from 1877 to 1885 lecturer in Baptist Union Theological Seminary, Morgan Park, Chicago, of which institution he has been a trustee from its foundation. He was present at the opening of the Vatican Council, Dec. 6, 1869, and for some time afterwards. He is the author of Memoir of Nathaniel Coler, D.D., Chicago, 1873; Patmos, or the Kingdom and the Patience, 1874; Memoir of Rev. John Bates, Toronto, 1877; A Commentary on the Revelation, Philadelphia, 1884; The Hebrew and Old Testament exegesis there.

SMITH, Judson, D.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1877), Congregationalist; b. at Middlefield, Hampshire County, Mass., June 28, 1837; graduated at Amherst College, Mass., 1859; was pastor of the Oberlin Theological Seminary, Oberlin, O., 1863; was tutor in Latin and Greek in Oberlin College, O., 1862-64; instructor in mathematics and metaphysics, Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass. (where he had fitted for college), 1864-65; professor of the Latin language and literature, Oberlin College, 1866-70; professor of ecclesiastical history and positive institutions, and dean of the faculty, Oberlin Theological Seminary, 1870-84; lecturer on modern history, Oberlin College, 1875-84; lecturer on history, Lake Erie Female Seminary, Painesville, O., 1878-84; acting pastor Second Congregational Church, Oberlin, O., 1874-75, 1882-84; editor of Bibliotheca Sacra, Oberlin, O., 1883-84; since associate editor; foreign secretary A.B.C.F.M., Boston, Mass., since 1864. He was president of the board of education, Oberlin, O., 1871-84. His theological standpoint is that of New-England theology; holds fast to the historic faith of Christendom, with hospitality to all liberal churches and religious journals, etc.

SMITH, Justin Almerin, D.D. (Shurtleff College, Upper Alton, Ill., 1858), Baptist; b. at Ticonderoga, N.Y., Dec. 29, 1819; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1843; became pastor at North Bennington, Vt., 1844; at Rochester, N.Y., 1849; editor of The Christian Times, now The Standard, Chicago, Ill., since 1858. From 1863 to 1868 he was pastor of the Indiana Avenue Baptist Church; was from 1877 to 1885 lecturer in Baptist Union Theological Seminary, Morgan Park, Chicago, of which institution he has been a trustee from its foundation. He was present at the opening of the Vatican Council, Dec. 6, 1869, and for some time afterwards. He is the author of Memoir of Nathaniel Coler, D.D., Chicago, 1873; Patmos, or the Kingdom and the Patience, 1874; Memoir of Rev. John Bates, Toronto, 1877; A Commentary on the Revelation, Philadelphia, 1884; The
SMITH, Lucius Edwin, D.D. (Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1869), Baptist; b. at Williamstown, Mass., Jan. 29, 1822; graduated at Williams College, in his native town, 1843, and at Newton Theological Institution, Mass., 1857; was admitted to the bar, 1845; associate editor Hartford (Conn.) Daily Courant, 1847-48; editor Free-soil Advocate, Hartford, Conn., 1848; associate editor Boston Republican, 1849; was assistant Secretary of the American Baptist Missionary Union, editing the Baptist Missionary Magazine 1819-51; pastor at Groton, Mass., 1855-65; professor of rhetoric and pastoral theology, University of Lehigh, Penn., 1865-68; editor of The Baptist Quarterly, New York, 1867-69; literary editor of the New York Examiner, 1868-70; editor of The Watchman, Boston, Mass., 1877-81, and since associate to the editor. He is the author of Heroes and Martyrs of Modern Missionary Enterprise, with an Historical Review of Earlier Missions, Boston, 1852 (some 10,000 copies sold); articles in Baptist Quarterly, Baptist Quarterly Review, Knickerbocker Magazine (1845-49), North American Review (1860), Bibliotheca Sacra (1880), McClure's and Strong's Cyclopedia, Encyclopaedia Americana (Philadelphia, 1886), etc.

SMITH, Matson Meier, S.T.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1863), Episcopalian; b. in New-York City, April 4, 1826; graduated from Columbia College, 1843, and from Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1847; pastor (Congregational) at Brookline, Mass., 1851-55; at Bridgeport, Conn., 1858-65; rector (Episcopal) at Newark, N.J., 1866-71; and at Hartford, Conn., 1872-76, has been since 1876 professor of homiletics and pastoral theology in the divinity school of the Protestant-Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, Penn. He contributed many sermons during our civil war, and articles to the religious journals.

SMITH, Robert Payne.—See Payne-Smith, Robert.

SMITH, Samuel Francis, D.D. (Waterville College, now Colby University, Waterville, Me., 1854), Baptist; b. in Boston, Mass., Oct. 21, 1808; educated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1834-42, and at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., 1829, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1832, was pastor of the First Baptist Church, Waterville, Me., 1834-42, and during the same period professor of modern languages in Waterville College; pastor of First Baptist Church, Newton, Mass., January, 1842, to July 1, 1854, editor of The Christian Review, Boston, January, 1842-48, and of the publications of the American Baptist Missionary Union, 1854-69. He spent a year in Europe, from July, 1875, to July, 1876; also over two years in Europe and Asia, visiting missionary stations of various denominations, from September, 1880, to October, 1882. He resides at Newton Centre, Mass. He is the author of the national hymn, "My country, 'tis of thee" (written at Andover, Mass., in February, 1832, while a student in the theological seminary), and the missionary hymn, "The morning light is breaking" (in same year and place), and many others. Most of the pieces included in Lowell Mason's Juvenile Lyre (Boston, 1832), the first book of children's music, were his translations from the German; about one entire volume of the Encyclopaedia Americana, edited by Francis Lieber (Philadelphia, 1828-32, 13 vols.), is composed of his translations from the German Conversations-Lexicon of Brockhaus. He was editor of Lyric Gems (selections of poetry, with several original pieces), Boston, 1843, The Protestant (chiefly his work, with twenty-seven of his hymns, the hymn-book of the Baptist Churches of the United States for thirty years), 1843, Rock of Ages (selections of poetry, with several original pieces), 1866, new ed. 1877; several volumes for D. Lothrop & Co., Boston; etc.; author of Life of Rev. Joseph Grafton, 1848; Missionary Sketches, 1879, last ed. 1883; History of Newton, Mass., 1880, Rambles in Mission-fields, 1884; contributions to many periodicals. See America: our National Hymn, Boston (1880).

SMITH, William, L.L.D., D.C.L. (Oxford, 1870), layman, Church of England; b. in London, 1813; graduated at London University, in which from 1853 to 1869 he was classical examiner, and since has been a member of the senate, and since 1867 editor of The Quarterly Review. He is famous for his dictionaries of biblical and classical literature, upon which he secured the labor of many eminent and learned men, and for his Greek and Latin text-books. The following are his principal editorial labors: Dictionary of Greek and Roman Antiquities, London, 1810-12; Dictionary of Greek and Roman Biography and Mythology, 1843-49; Dictionary of Greek and Roman Geography, 1852-71; Dictionary of the Bible, 1860-63, 3 vols (American ed. by Hackett and Abbot, Boston, 1869-70, 4 vols.); Atlas of Biblical and Classical Geography, 1875 (with George Grove); Dictionary of Christian Antiquities, 1875-80, 2 vols. (with Professor Cheetham); Dictionary of Christian Biography, 1877-86, 4 vols. (with Dr. Wace); the last two comprise only the first eight centuries.

SMITH, William Robertson, LL.D. (Aberdeen, 1882), Free Church of Scotland; b. at Keig, Aberdeenshire, Nov. 8, 1816; educated at Aberdeen University (M.A., 1845), New College Edinburgh, and at Bonn and Göttingen; was assistant to the chair of physics at Edinburgh, 1868-70; professor of Hebrew in the university, 1870-81, when he was removed by the General Assembly on account of his alleged heretical teaching; and has been since associate editor of the ninth edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, and was (1883-88) Lord Almoner's professor of Arabic at Cambridge; since 1886, librarian to the university. He is the author of The Old Testament in the Jewish Church, London, 1881; The Prophet of Israel, and their Place in History to the Close of the Eighth Century B.C., 1882 (both reprinted, N.Y.); Kinship and Marriage in Early Arabia, 1885.

SMYTH, Egbert Coffin, D.D. (Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1868), Congregationalist; b. at Brunswick, Me., Aug. 24, 1829; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1848, and Bangor (Me.) Theological Seminary, 1853; became professor of rhetoric at Bowdoin College, 1858; of ecclesiastical history in Andover Theological Seminary, 1863; and has also been president of the faculty since 1878. Besides Value of the Study of Church History in Ministerial Education (lecture), Andover, 1874; pamphlet sermons, etc., he has SMYTH. 204

SPLAUDING.

since its foundation (1884) edited the Andover Review, and with Professor Ropes has published a translation of Uhlhorn's Conflict of Christianity with Heathenism, New York, 1879.

SMYTH, (Samuel Phillips) Newman, D.D. (University of the City of New York, 1881, Congregationalist; b. at Brunswick, Me., June 25, 1843; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1863, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1867; was acting pastor of Harrison-street Chapel (now Pilgrim Church), Providence, Rhode Island, 1868; in Europe, 1865—69; pastor of the First Church, Bangor, Me., 1870—75; of the First Presbyterian Church, Quincy, Ill., 1876—82; since of the First Congregational Church, New Haven, Conn. He is the author of The Religious Feeling: a Study for the New Light, 1877; Old Faiths in New Light, 1879; The Orthodox Theology of Today, 1881: The Reality of Faith (sermons), 1884.

SOUTHGATE, Right Rev. Horatio, S.T.D. (Columbia College, New York, 1846), Episcopalian; b. in Portland, Me., July 5, 1812; graduated at Andover (Congregational) Theological Seminary, 1835; was engaged, under appointment by the Episcopal Church, in investigating the state of Mohammedanism in Turkey and Persia, 1839—38; ordained priest, 1839; missionary in Constantinople, as delegate to the Oriental churches, 1840—44; consecrated Episcopalian missionary bishop for the dominions and dependencies of the Sultan of Turkey, Oct. 26, 1844; at Constantinople, 1845—50; resigned his jurisdiction, 1850; was rector of St. Luke's Church, Portland, Me., 1851—52; of the Church of the Advent, Boston, Mass., 1852—58; and of Zion Church, New-York City, 1859—72; retired, 1872; and has since lived at Ravenswood, Long Island, N.Y. He was elected bishop of California, Long Island, and New Mexico and Wyoming; b. at Bel Air, 1863; was tutor in the family of the Duke of Marlborough, near Bardstown, Ky., and adjutorbishop, 1848—50; bisho, 1850—54; chancellor of the diocese of Louisville, Ky., Oct., 1873; consecrated, Dec. 31, 1873. He is the author of Lay Cooperation (in Western Massachusetts), New York, 1869; Christianity and Modern Infidelity, an Essay, Erie, Penn., 1863; Manual of Mothers' Meetings, 1871: Hymns from the Hymnal, with Tunes and Notes, 1872: Congregationalism in the Church, an Essay, New York, 1875; The Catholic and Protestant System (a sermon), Denver, Col., 1880: Commemorative Address of Ten Years' Episcopal Work in Colorado, 1885; Episcopal charges, addresses, reports, review articles, etc.

SPLAUDING, Right Rev. John Lancaster, Roman Catholic; b. at Lebanon, Ky., June 2, 1840; studied at Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md., and at Cincinnati, 0.; became secretary and chancellor of the diocese of Louisville, Ky., 1885; pastor of the congregation for colored Catholics, Louisville, 1886; bishop of Peoria, Ill., 1877. He is president of the Irish Catholic Colonization Society, and of the Roman Catholic State Temperance Union of Illinois. He is the author of Life of Archbishop Spalding of Baltimore, New York, 1872; Essays and Reviews, 1876; Religious Mission of the Irish People, 1880; Lectures and Discourses, 1882.

SPLAUDING, Right Rev. Martin John, D.D., Roman Catholic; b. in Marion County, Ky., May 23, 1810; d. at Baltimore, Md., Feb. 7, 1872. He graduated at St. Mary's College, Lebanon, Ky., 1828; studied theology, and completed his course in the Propaganda College in Rome, where he was ordained priest Aug. 13, 1834. He was pastor of the cathedral at Bardstown, Ky., 1834—58, 1841—48; president of St. Joseph's Theological Seminary, Bardstown, 1838—40; pastor of St. Peter's Church, Lexington, Ky., 1840—41; coadjutor bishop of Louisville, Ky., 1848—50; bishop, 1850—54; archbishop of Baltimore from 1854 till his death. He founded The Catholic Advocate, Louisville, in February, 1835, and was connected with it until 1868; The Louisville Guardian in 1858; was main promoter of the Catholic Publication Society and Catholic World, both New-York City. While coadjutor bishop, he established a colony of Trappist monks at Gethsemane, near Bardstown, Ky., and a house of Magdalens in connection with the Convent of the Good Shepherd. While bishop of Louisville he built a magnificent cathedral in that city. He was at the First Plenary Council of Baltimore, May, 1852, and successfully advocated the erection of a Roman Catholic cathedral. In November, 1851, he obtained in Belgium Xaverian Brothers for the parochial schools of Louisville, Ky., and

He prepared the appendix to the American edition of Buchner's Concordia, 1871; and edited the General Council's German Sunday-school Book 1875, and Church Book 1877.
from Archbishop Zurysen of Utrecht several priests and sisters to instruct deaf-mutes. In 1855 he had a famous debate with George D. Prentice of the Louisville Journal, upon the Know-nothing Movement. Bishop Spalding was the author of D'Au-bugy's History of the Reformation reviewed, Baltimore, 1844, 2d ed. London, 1846, Dublin, 1848 (subsequently enlarged and re-issued as History of the Protestant Reformation in Germany and Switzerland, and in England, Ireland, Scotland, the Netherlands, France, and Northern Europe, Louisville, 1860, 2 vols., 5th ed. Baltimore, 1873); Sketches of the Early Catholic Missions in Kentucky, 1877-1878, Louisville, 1816; Lectures on the General Evidences of Catholicity, 1847, 6th ed. Baltimore, 1866;
Life, Times, and Character of the Right Rev. B. J.
Flugel, Louisville, 1832; Miscellaneous : comprising Reviews, Lectures, and Essays on Historical, Theological, and Miscellaneous Subjects, Louisville, 1853, London, 1855, 6th ed. Baltimore, 1866; Papal Infallibility, Baltimore, 1870; edited, with introduction and notes, Abbé J. E. Dana's, General History of the Catholic Church, New York, 1863-66, 4 vols., and was a frequent contributor to religious periodicals.

SPENCE, Henry Donald Maurice, Church of England; b. in London in the year 1836; educated at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge; took Carus undergraduate university prize, 1862; B.A., 1864;
first-class in the theological tripos, 1865; Carus and Schoefield university prize, 1865, 1866; M.A., 1866;
ordained deacon 1865, priest 1866; became professor of English literature and modern languages,
and Hebrew lecturer, at St. David's College.
Scholefield university prize, 1865, 1866; M.A., 1866;
ordained deacon 1865, priest 1866; became professor of English literature and modern languages,
and Hebrew lecturer, at St. David's College.

SPENCER, Herbert; b. at Derby, Eng., April 27, 1820; began work as a civil engineer, 1837; but since 1850 has been a literary man, and has won recognition as the author of a system of philosophy, in which the doctrine of evolution is applied to the different departments of thought and life. He began the series with his First Principles, London, 1862; then came Principles of Biology, 1867; Principles of Psychology, 1872; Principles of Sociology, 1877, etc.; Principles of Morality, 1891;
and Ecclesiastical Institutions, 1885.

SPITTA, Friedrich (Adolph Wilhelm), Lic.
Theol. (Leipzig, 1879), German theologian; b. at Wittingen, Hanover, Jan. 10, 1852; studied at Göttingen and Erlangen, 1871-75; became teacher in the high school at Hanover, 1876; inspector of the Tholuck convent at Han, 1877; assistant preacher at Bonn, 1879; pastor of Obercassell, near Bonn, 1881; and has also been since 1889 privatdocent of evangelical theology in Bonn University.
He is the author of Der Brief des Julius Africanus an Aristides, Kritisch untersucht und hergestellt, Halle, 1877; Die liturgische Andacht am Luther Jubiläum, Halle, 1883; Der Knabe Jesus, eine biblische Geschichte und ihre apokryphischen Entstellungen, 1883;
Luther und der evangelische Gottesdienst, 1884; Haen-del und Bach, zwei Festreden, Bonn, 1886; Der zweite Brief des Petrus und der Brief des Judas.
Eine geschichtliche Untersuchung, Halle, 1885; Die
Passionen nach den vier Evangelisten von Heinrich Schütz, 1886; Heinrich Schütz, sein Leben und seine Kunst, 1886; numerous articles, popular and scientific, in various periodicals.

SPRECHER, Samuel, D.D. (Washington College, Penn., 1850), L.L.D. (Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, 1874), Lutheran (General Synod);
B. near Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 28, 1810; studied in Pennsylvania College and Theological Semiinary, Gettysburg, Penn., 1830-36; was pastor at Harrisburg, Penn., Martinsburg, Va., and Cham-burg, Penn., 1836-49; president of Wittenberg College, Springfield, O., 1849-74; and since 1874 has been professor of systematic theology there. He is the author of Groundwork of a System of Evangelical Lutheran Theology, Philadelphia, 1875; and various addresses, etc.

SPRINTZ, Sokh., D.D. (Vienna, 1864), Roman Catholic; b. at Linz, Austria, March 9, 1839; studied in the priests' seminary at Linz, 1857-61;
ordained priest, 1861; studied in the priests' institute at Vienna, 1861-64; became professor of theology in the Linz Seminary, 1864; professor of dogmatics at Salzburg University, 1873; ordinary professor of the same at Prague, 1881.
He became geistlicher Rat of bishop of Linz, Feb. 23,
1873, and of the prince bishop of Salzburg, Jan.
28, 1880. From 1865 to 1875 he edited the Linz Theolog. praktische Quartalschrift; in 1868, the Linz Katholisch. Blätter (a tri-weekly). He is the author of Handbuch der evangelischen Dogmatik, Vienna, 1878; Die Theologie der apostolischen Väter, 1890 (trans. into Hungarian); Compendium summarium theologiae dogmaticae in usum protectionum academicorum concinatum, 1882; several minor theological works.

SPROULL, Thomas, D.D. (Westminster College, New Westminster, Penn., 1857), Reformed Presbyterian (Old School); b. near Freeport, Penn., Sept. 15, 1803; graduated at the Western University of Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh, 1829; pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian Congregation of Allegheny and Pittsburgh, 1834-68; professor in Reformed Presbyterian Western Theological Seminary, 1838-40; in Eastern and Western Seminaries united, 1840-45; again since 1856; professor emeitus since 1875. He edited The Reformed Presbyterian, 1855-62, and The Reformed Presbyterian and Covenanter, 1882-74, both published in Pittsburg, Penn. Besides sermons, etc., he is the author of Prelections on Theology, Pittsburgh, 1832.

SPURGEON, Charles Haddon, Baptist; b. at Kelvedon, Essex, Eng., June 19, 1834. He is the grandson of Rev. James Spurgeon, for many years pastor of the Independent Church at Stambourne, Essex, and son of Rev. John Spurgeon, who was also an Independent minister, and who until 1876 was pastor of the Independent Church, Upper Street, Islington, London. When just old enough to leave home, he was removed to his grandfather's, and there remained until 1841, when his father placed him in a school at Colchester, where

Digitized by Google
Mr. Spurgeon's first service, while the building was not under construction, was not aware of his presence, and returned to the house of Mr. Macmillan, the publisher, at Cambridge; but although the two parties were in connection with the Baptist Church meeting in St. Andrew's Street, Cambridge, and the same year preached his first sermon from 1 Pet. ii. 7, at Teversham, a village four miles from Cambridge. He was then a boy of sixteen years, and wore a round jacket and broad turn-down collar. His success was so great that he was encouraged to hold evening services, after his school duties were over, in villages around Cambridge and Water-beach; and this he did in thirteen stations, preaching sometimes in a chapel, sometimes in a cottage, or in the open air. In 1852 he became pastor at Waterbeach, and during the two years he was there the membership increased from forty to nearly a hundred. His father and others strongly advised him to enter Stepney (now Regent's Park) College, but finding that his time was too fully occupied to undertake the extra labor, he put Mr. Medhurst under the care of Rev. George Rogers, an Independent minister, who was long the principal and theological tutor of the Pastors' College. Other students soon presented themselves. These were at first assembled every week in Mr. Spurgeon's house for instruction in theology, pastoral duty, and other practical matters. From 1856 to 1861 the other lectures were delivered by Mr. Rogers in his own house; from 1861 to 1874, in the class-rooms under the Tabernacle; since 1874 in the New College buildings. Mr. Spurgeon lectures to the students every week.

The Stockwell Orphanage was incorporated in 1867, with an endowment of twenty thousand pounds, given by Mrs. Hillyard; and fifty orphan boys were taken in the following year. It now consists of twelve houses, and accommodates near five hundred boys and girls of both sexes, from six to fourteen years old. [Stockwell was formerly a suburb of London, but is now included in its limits.]

In connection with the church there are a Portage Association (started in 1866, which through paid colporteurs sells religious books in neglected villages), and Mrs. Spurgeon's Book Fund (1876), the latter to supply poor ministers with free gifts of valuable books.

Mr. Spurgeon's remarkable constitution yielded, at length, to the tremendous strain of his manifold and multifarious duties and burdens, and since 1867 he has had frequent attacks of illness. In order that the interests of the church might not suffer, his brother, the Rev. James Archer Spurgeon, has been since 1868 co-pastor.

Mr. Spurgeon's pen has been very busy. Aside from his private correspondence, and that arising out of his various enterprises, he has each year since 1867 issued Spurgeon's Illustrated Almanac (containing short articles by him and others). In 1861 and 1862 was joint editor with Revs. D. Katterns and W. G. Lewis of The Baptist Magazine. It has personally conducted since Jan. 1, 1865, The Sword and the Trowel, a monthly magazine, in which he writes copiously, and which is in the interest of his church and of religion generally; since 1872, John Ploughman’s Almanac, and has written the works mentioned below, and done much literary work besides. His first printed sermon, entitled Harvest Time, appeared in the Penny Pulpit, October, 1854; the second, God’s Providence, shortly afterwards, and so a dozen before the end of the year. From the first week of 1855 one has been issued every week. Each of these receives his revision. The average sale is twenty-five thousand copies weekly. A few have approached a hundred thousand copies; two have exceeded it; and one on Baptismal Regeneration, preached in the summer of 1864, sold to the extent of a hundred and ninety-eight thousand copies, and was the occasion of a great controversy on the subject. The sermon Pictures of Life, and Birthday Reflections, in relation to his twenty-first birthday, is accompanied by his portrait, the first issued, and shows that he was then pale and thin. His works embrace a great number of published sermons, more than nineteen hundred; e.g., in The Metropolitan Tabernacle Pulpit (containing his sermons which have been published weekly since the close of 1854), London, 1855 sqq., vol. i, 1855, vol. xxxi, 1885; The Pulpit Library, 1856—58, 3 vols.; Types and Emblems, 1875; Trumpet Calls to Christian Energy, 1875; The Present Truth, 1883 (these three volumes are made up of his Sunday and Thursday evening sermons); Farm Sermons, (nineteen discourses on farming), 1882; and the following, which together with the above have been reprinted in New York, translated into different languages, and circulated in thousands of copies; The Saint and his Saviour, 1857; Smooth Stones taken from Ancient Brooks (sentences from Thomas Brooks), 1859; Morning by Morning, or Daily Readings for the Family or the Closet, 1866, 100th thousand 1885; Our Own Hymn Book (used in many churches, has several original hymns and paraphrases of Psalms), 1868; Even by Evening, or Readings at Eventide for the Family or the Closet, 1868, 75th thousand 1885; John Ploughman’s Talks, or Plain Advice for Plain People, 1869, 340th thousand; The Treasury of David (containing an original exposition of the book of Psalms), a collection of illustrative extracts from the whole range of literature, a series of homiletical hints running comments and suitable hymns), 1872; Lectures to my Students (a selection from addresses delivered to the students of the Pastors’ College, Metropolitan Tabernacle), 1st series 1875, 30th thousand 1885; 2d series 1877, 16th thousand 1885; Commenting and Commentaries (two lectures to his students, with a catalogue of Bible commentaries and expositions), 1876; The Metropolitan Tabernacle: its History and Work (with thirty-two illustrations), New York, 1880; John Ploughman’s Birthday Reflections, in relation to his twentieth year. He has since 1884 has published My Sermon Notes (a selection from outlines of discourses delivered at the Metropolitan Tabernacle), 1884—87, 4 vols. (covering the whole Bible); Storm Signals (sermons), 1886; many minor works, articles, etc.

STADE, Bernhard, Ph.D., Lic. Theol. (Giessen, 1871 and 1873). D.D. (hon., Giessen, 1875), German Lutheran, critical school; b. at Arnstadt, Thuringia, May 11, 1848; studied at Leipzig (1867—70); became assistant librarian at Leipzig, 1871; private-docent there, 1873; ordinary professor of theology at Giessen, 1875. Since 1881 he has edited Die Zeit- schrift für A. T. Wissenschaft. He is the author of Ueber die wahrscheinlichen Thatzwecke der Ge’esezprache, Leipzig, 1871; De Isaeis vatistinis ethiopiscoe diatrise, 1873; Ueber die alttestamentlichen Vorstellungen vom Zutande nach dem Tote, 1877; Lehrbuch der hebratischen Grammatik, 1st part (Schriftlehre, Lautlehre, Formenlehre), 1879; De populo Iavon parergon, Giessen, 1880; Geschichte des Volkes Israel, parts 1—4, Berlin, 1881—85; Ueber die Lage der evangelischen Kirche Deutschlands, Giessen, 1883 (2 eds.).

STAEHELIN, Rudolf, Swiss Protestant; b. at Basel, Sept. 22, 1841; studied at Berlin and Tubingen, 1859—60; became private-docent at Basel 1873, professor extraordinary 1875, and ordinary professor 1876. He has published Erasmus Stellung zur Reformation hauptsächlich von seinen Beziehungen zu Basel aus beleuchtet, Basel, 1873; W. M. L. de Wette nach seiner theologischen Wirksamkeit und Bedeutung geschildert, 1880; Die ersten Märt tyr des evangelischen Glaubens in der Schweiz, Heidelberg, 1883; Hedrich Zwingli und sein Reformati onswerk, Halle, 1883.

STALKER, James, Free Church of Scotland; b. at Crieff, Perthshire, Scotland, Feb. 21, 1846; graduated at Edinburgh University and New College; and since 1874 has been minister of St. Brycedale Free Church, Kirkcaldy. He was Cunningham fellow in 1874; declined principalship of Presbyterian College, Melbourne, 1883, and Edinburgh churches, 1883 and 1884. He is the author of The Life of Jesus Christ, Edinburgh, 1879, 3d ed. 1884; The New Song: Sermons for Children, 1883; The Life of St. Paul, 1884, 2d ed. same year.

STALL, Sylvanus, Lutheran (General Synod); b. at Elizaville, Columbia County, N.Y., Oct. 18, 1847; graduated from Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., 1872; studied theology at Union Theological Seminary, New York City, and at Gettysburg, Penn.; became pastor at Cobleskill, N.Y., 1874; Martin’s Creek, Penn., 1877; Lancaster, Penn., 1880. He is statistical secretary of the General Synod of the Lutheran Church. He is the author of Pastor’s Pocket Record, Albany, N.Y., 1875, 5th thousand Lancaster, Penn., 1883; Ministers’ Handbook to Lutheran Hymns in the Book of Worship, Philadelphia, 1879; How to pay Church Debts, and how to keep Churches out of Debt, New York, 1880; since 1884 has published annually, through different Lutheran publishing houses, Stall’s Lutheran Year-Book, which represents all branches of the Lutheran Church in the United States and in Europe; circulation fifteen thousand copies.
STANFORD, Charles, D.D. (Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1878), Baptist; b. at Northampton, Eng., March 9, 1823; d. in London, March 18, 1886. He studied at Bristol College; became minister at Loughborough, 1845; Deviges, 1847; London (Deurnmark-place Church, Camberwell), 1858. He was president of the London Baptist Association in 1892. He is the author of Friendship with God, London, 1850, last ed. 1882; Power in Weakness: Memorial of Rev. William Rhodes, 1858, 2d ed. 1870; Central Truths, 1858, 12th ed. 1870; Joseph Alleine, his Companions and Times, 1861, 2d ed. 1862; Instrumental Strength, 1862; Symbols of Christ, 1865, 3d ed. 1882; Home and Church, 1870; Homilies on Christian Work, 1878; London (Denmark-place Church, Camberwell), 1878), Baptist; b. at Northbury, Mass., March 10, 1827; graduated at Miami University, Oxford, 1857; professor of Greek there, 1858–59; has been pastor of Fourth Reformed Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, Penn., since 1861; and since 1863 professor in the Reformed Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, Penn., of biblical literature 1863–75, and since of doctrinal theology. He served in the Christian commission, 1862; was moderator of General Synod 1868, and delegate to the Council of Reformed Churches, Philadelphia, 1860. He edited The Reformed Presbyterian Advocate from 1867 to 1877, and has published several discourses.

STEENSTRA, Peter Henry, D.D. (Shurtleff College, Upper Alton, Ill., 1892), Episcopalian; b. near Franeker, Friesland, Netherlands, Jan. 24, 1833; graduated from Shurtleff College, Upper Alton, Ill., 1858; entered the Baptist ministry; but in 1864 became rector of Grace Church, Newton, Mass.; and in 1888 professor of Hebrew and Old and New Testament exegesis, in the then newly founded Episcopalian Theological School at Cambridge, Mass.; since 1893 he has been professor of Hebrew and Old Testament. He translated and edited Judges and Ruth in the American edition of Lange’s Commentary, New York, 1872.

STEINER, Heinrich, Ph.D. (Heidelberg, 1864), Lc. Theol. (Heidelberg, 1866), D.D. (Kon., Bern, 1875), Swiss Protestant; b. at Zürich, Jan. 10, 1841; studied theology there and at Heidelberg, orientalia at Leipzig; became privat-docent at Heidelberg, in the philosophical (1865) and then in the theological (1866) faculties; professor extraordinary in the latter, 1869; ordinary professor at Zürich, 1870. In 1882–84 he was rector of the university. He is in theology a free critic. He is the author of Die Muazzen oder die Freiheiten im Islam, Leipzig, 1865; Uber hebräische Poesie (lecture), Basel, 1873; Ferdinand Hitzig (rector’s address), Zürich, 1882; Zur fünfzig-jährigen Stiftungsfeier der Hochschule Zürich (address), 1883; editor of 4th ed. Hitzig, Die Zwölf kleinen Propheten, Leipzig, 1881; contributor of many articles in Schenkel’s Bibel Lexikon, Leipzig, 1869–75.

STEINMEYER, Franz Ludwig, German Protestant; b. at Beeskow-in-der-Mittelmarch, Nov. 15, 1812; became ordinary professor at Berlin, 1852; at Bonn, 1854; again at Berlin, 1858. He published Zeugnisse von der Herrlichkeit Jesu Christi, Berlin, 1847; Beiträge zum Schriftenverständnis in Predigten, Berlin, 1850–57, 4 vols.; Apologetische Beiträge, 1860–74, 4 vols. (English trans. of 1st vol., Miracles of Our Lord, Edinburgh, 1873; of the 2d and 3d vols. together, Passion and Resurrection of our Lord, 1879); Beiträge zur prädikativen Theologie, 1874–79, 5 vols.; Beiträge zur Christologie, 1890–92, 3 vols.: Die Geschichte der Passion des Herrn in Abwehr des kritischen Angriffs betrachtet, 1st and 2d ed. 1882; Die Wunderthaten des Herrn, 1884; Die Parabeln des Herrn, 1884. • STELLHORN, Frederick William, Lutheran (Synod of Ohio); b. at Brueininghorstedt, Hannover, Germany, Oct. 9, 1844; graduated at Concordia College, Fort Wayne, Ind., and Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo.; became pastor at St. Louis 1885, Fairfied Centre, Ind., 1867; professor at North-western University, Watertown, Wis.
STEWART.

(STEWART, William, D.D. (Denison University, 1882), LL.D. (Rochester University, 1882), Baptist; b. at Granville, O., Feb. 5, 1839; graduated at Denison University, Granville, O., 1859; studied philology and theology at Rochester Theological Seminary (N.Y.), Harvard College, Leipzig, and Berlin, 1862-68; became professor of Greek at Denison University, 1868, and of New Testament exegesis in Rochester Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1877. He published Select Orations of Lyuses, Chicago, 1876, 4th ed. 1882.

STEVENS, Right Rev. William Bacon, D.D. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1848), L.L.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1862), Episcopalian, bishop of Pennsylvania; b. at Bath, Me., July 18, 1815; educated at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. Angell, through the failure of his health, to give up his studies; travelled two years around the world, and on his return graduated M.D. at Dartmouth, Hanover, N.H., 1837; was ordained deacon 1843, priest 1844; was historian of the State of Georgia, 1841; professor of belles-lettres and moral philosophy in the University of Georgia, Athens, Ga., 1844-48; became rector of St. Andrew's, Philadelphia, Penn., 1848; assistant bishop of Pennsylvania, 1862; bishop, 1865. He was in 1868 appointed by the presiding bishop to take charge of the American Episcopal churches on the continent of Europe, and held the position for six years. He edited with prefaces and notes the Georgia Historical Collections, Savannah, vols. i. and ii., 1841, 1842; and is the author of Discourse delivered before the Georgia Historical Society, Savannah, Feb. 12, 1851 (on the history of silk culture in that State), Boston, 1841; A History of Georgia from its First Discovery by Europeans to the Adoption of the Present Constitution in 1797, vol. i., New York, 1847, vol. ii., Philadelphia, 1859; The Parables of the New Testament Practically Unfolded, Philadelphia, 1855; Consolation: the Bow in the Cloud, 1855, 2d ed. 1871; Sunday in the American United Church at Philadelphia, 1856; The Lord's Day, its Obligations and Blessings, 1857; The Past and Present of St. Andrew's [Church], 1858; Sabbath of our Lord, 1872; Sermons, New York, 1879; many addresses, charges, essays, sermons, etc.

STEVENS, John Frederic, D.D. (Queen's University, Kingston, Ontario, Can., 1880), Congregationalist; b. at Loughborough, Eng., March 3, 1833; educated at University College, London, 1849-50; Regent's Park College, London, 1850-54; graduated B.A. London University 1853, LL.B. 1866; became pastor at Long Sutton, 1854; Nottingham, 1856; Sandridge, 1859; Emmanuel Church, Montreal, Can., 1874; since 1882 he has also been principal of the Congregational College of British North America, at Montreal. He is the author of occasional literary and theological articles.

STEWART, William, D.D. (Glasgow, 1874), Church of Scotland; b. at Annan, Dumfriesshire, Aug. 15, 1835; graduated at Glasgow University, B.A. 1861, M.A. 1862, B.D. 1867; was examiner in the same in mental philosophy for degrees in arts, 1867-70; minister of the parish of St. George's-in-the-Fields, Glasgow, 1809–73; since 1873 has been professor of divinity and biblical criticism in the University of Glasgow; since 1876 has been secretary to the university. He is the author of Plan of St. Luke's Gospel, Glasgow, 1873.

STIFLER, James Madison, D.D. (Shurtleff College, 1853), Baptist; b. at Hollidaysburg, Penn., Dec. 8, 1839; graduated at Shurtleff College, upper Alton, Ill., 1866; completed theological course there, 1869; became pastor at Nokomis, Ill., 1868; professor of biblical exegesis in Shurtleff College, 1871; pastor at Hamilton, N.Y., 1875; at New Haven, Conn., 1879; professor of the New Testament in Crozer Theological Seminary, Penn., 1882.

STOCKMEYER, Immanuel, Swiss Protestant; b. at Basel, July 28, 1814; studied at Erlangen and Berlin, 1832–36; became pastor at Ottingen, Baselstadt, 1841; at Basel, 1849 (Antistes, 1871); and ordinary professor of theology at Basel, 1878. He published a volume of sermons, Jesus Christus Gestern und Heute und derselbe in Ewigkeit, Basel, 1860; Der Brief des Jacobus, 1874; Die Struktur des ersten Johannesbriefes, 1875; Rede bei der Lutherfeier, 1884.

STODDARD, Charles Augustus, D.D. (Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1871), Presbyterian; b. in Boston, Mass., May 28, 1833; graduated at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1854; and at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1859; was pastor of Washington Presbyterian Church, New-York City, from 1859 to 1883, and since 1873 an editor of the New-York Observer.

STOECKER, Adolf, United Evangelical; b. at Halberstadt, Germany, Dec. 11, 1835; studied at the Halberstadt gymnasium; at the universities of Halle and Berlin, 1854–57; passed his first clerical examination at Berlin 1858, his second 1859; became pastor at Seggerde and Hamersleben, 1863; chaplain to the division of the German army at Metz, 1871; court and cathedral preacher at Berlin, 1874. He is first assessor in the Branenburg provincial synod, member of the synodical council of the Prussian Church. He is the author of Die Constution der Gemeinde, 1876; Ein Jahrhundert Vorgeschichte der deutsche Texte, Berlin, 1884, 3d ed. 1885; O Land, hör des Herrn Wort, ein Jahrhundert Vorgeschichte der Episelen, 1885, 2d ed. 1886; many addresses and minor publications.

STOKES, George Thomas, Church of England and Ireland; b. at Athlone, County Westmeath, Ireland, Dec. 28, 1843; graduated B.A. Trinity College, Dublin, 1864; 2d class divinity examination, 1865; M.A., 1871; D.D., 1889; became vicar of All Saints, Blackrock, Dublin, 1869; assistant to the regius professor of divinity, 1880; and professor of ecclesiastical history in the University of Dublin, 1883; besides articles in Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography, and in the Contemporary Review and Expositor, he has published Scriptural Authority for a Liturgy, Dublin, 1865; Work of the Day in the Church of Ireland, 1869; English History and Scientific Research, 1883.

STOLZ, Alban, Roman Catholic; b. at Buhl, Baden, Feb. 8, 1808; ordained priest, 1833; was professor of pastoral theology and pedagogik at Freiburg, 1848–80; d. there, Oct. 16, 1883. He was a very popular and prolific writer. His collected works make 15 vols. (Freiburg, 1871–77).

The most widely circulated were his Kalender für Zeit und Ewigkeit, which appeared yearly from 1843 to 1884.

STORR, Richard Salter, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1853; Harvard College, 1859), L.L.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1874), Congregationalist; b. at Brantree, Mass., Aug. 21, 1821; graduated at Amherst College, 1839; entered the law-office of Hon. Rufus Choate, and spent two years in a course of legal study; then studied at Andover Theological Seminary, and graduated there 1843; became pastor of the Harvard Congregational Church, Brookline, Mass., 1843; and of the Church of the Pilgrims, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1846, then recently organized, and in this position has ever since remained. He was one of the editors of The Independent, from 1848 to 1861. Besides numerous occasional discourses and articles in periodicals, he is the author of The Constitution of the Human Soul, New York, 1857; Conditions of Success in Preaching without Notes, 1875; Early American Spirit, and the Genesis of it, 1875; Declaration of Independence, and the Effects of it, 1870; John Wycliffe and the First English Bible, 1880; Recognition of the Supernatural in Letters and in Life, 1881; Manliness in the Scholar, 1883; The Divine Origin of Christianity indicated by its Historical Effects, 1884.

STORY, Robert Herbert, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1874), Church of Scotland; b. at Rosneath, Dunbartonshire, Jan. 28, 1835; studied at the universities of Edinburgh (1849–50), and St. Andrew's (1856–57); ordained as an elder of St. Andrew's Church, Montreal, Can., Sept. 20, 1859; inducted minister of Rosneath, Scotland, in succession to his father, February, 1860, and so remains. He belongs to the "Broad Church." Since 1865 he has been convenor of the editorial committee of the "Church Service Society" of Scotland; and since its foundation in 1885, editor of The Scottish Church (monthly magazine). He was appointed in 1885 the first lecturer under the trust by which the "Lee lectureship" was founded, in memory of Dr. Robert Lee, and in that capacity delivered the first lecture in Edinburgh, on April 11, 1886. He is the author of Robert Story of Rosneath, a Memoir, London, 1892; Christ the Consoler, Edinburgh, 1865; Life and Remains of Robert Lee, D.D., London, 1870; William Carstares, 1874; On Fast Days (a pamphlet), Glasgow, 1876; Creed and Conduct, Sermons preached in Rosneath Church, 1876; Health Haunts of the Riviera, Paisley, 1881; Nuge Ecclesiasticae, Edin- burgh, 1884; many sermons, addresses, articles, etc., published in Good Words, Scottish Church, Sunday Talk, Glasgow Herald, Saturday Review, etc.

STOUTON, John, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1869), Congregationalist; b. in Norwich, Eng., Nov. 15, 1807; educated at Highbury College, Islington, and University College, London; pastor at Windsor 1832–43, at Keinson 1843–75; professor of historical theology and homiletics in New College, St. John's Wood, from 1845, was Congregational lecturer 1855, and chairman of Congregational Union 1856. He edited The Evangelical Magazine for many years; was delegate and speaker in Evangelical Alliance Conferences in New York 1873, and Basel 1879; lectured on missions in Westminster Abbey, 1877; received a testimonial of three thousand pounds on retiring from his pastorate at Kensington, 1875. He is the author of the following works, many of which have passed through several editions: Tractarian Theology, London, 1843; Windsor in the Olden Time, 1844; Spiritual Heroes, 1845; Philip Doddridge, 1851; The Lights of the World, 1855; Theology of the Ancient World, the Palm, and the Pulpit, 1858; The Song of Christ's Flock in the Twenty-third Psalm, 1860; Church and State 200 Years ago, 1862; Shades and Echoes of Old London, 1864; Ecclesiastical History of England, 1867-74, 5 vols.; Religion in England during the Reign of Queen Anne and the Georges, 1875; (the two works revised and republished together, 1881, 6 vols.); Haunts and Homes of Martin Luther, 1873; Lights of the World, 1876; Progress of Divine Revelation, 1878; Our English Bible, 1878; Worthies of Science, 1879; Historical Theology, 1880; William Wilberforce, 1880; Footprints of Italian Reformers, 1881; William Penn, 1882; The Spanish Reformers, 1883; Congregationalism in the Court Suburb (Kensington), 1883; John Howard the Philanthropist, 1884; Religion in England 1800-1850, 1884; Golden Legends of the Olden Time, 1885.

STOWE, Calvin Ellis, D.D. (Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind., and Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., both 1833), Congregationalist; b. at Natick, Mass., April 29, 1822; graduated from Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1824, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1825; became assistant teacher of sacred literature in the seminary, 1825; professor of Latin and Greek, Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., 1831; of biblical literature, Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O., 1833; of natural and revealed religion, Bowdoin College, 1850; of sacred literature, Andover Theological Seminary, 1852; retired, 1894; d. Aug. 22, 1898. His wife was Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of Uncle Tom's Cabin. He translated John's History of the Hebrew Commonwealth, Andover, 1828, 2d ed. 1871, Lond. 1829, 2 vols., 3d ed. 1840; and from the Latin, the Lowth's Lectures on Hebrew Poetry, Andover, 1829 (both with additions); Introduction to the Criticism and Interpretation of the Bible, Oxford, 1834; The Right Interpretation of the Sacred Scriptures (inaugural address), Andover, 1853; Origin and History of the Books of the Bible, both Canonical and Apocryphal, Hartford, 1867.

STRACK, Hermann Lebrecht, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1872), Lic. Theol. (do., 1877), D.D. (do., 1884), Protestant theologian; b. in Berlin, May 6, 1848; studied at Berlin and Leipzig, 1865-70; taught in Kaiser Wilhelm Gymnasium, 1872-73; worked in the Imperial Library, St. Peters burg, Russia, 1873-76 (see below); became professor extraordinary of theology at Berlin, 1877; spent six weeks with Abr. Harkavy; on request of the Polish Government, in the Warsaw University, 1880-81; was professor of biblical literature and acting president of Troy University, 1858-61; and since 1888 has been professor of exegetical theology in Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N.J. In 1874 he travelled in Egypt and Palestine. He is a member of the Old Testament Company of Bible reviewers; and is the author of Harmony and Exposition of the Hebrew Language (in German, in the Crimea), examining Firkowitche's third great collection of manuscripts. (For his monumental labors upon the Codex Babylonicus Petropolitanus, see below.) "One of the tasks of his life is to make the Christians acquainted with the history and literature of the Jews, and to promote Christianity amongst the Jews." He edited Max Strack's Aus Suld und Ost, Reisefruechte aus drei Welten, Leipzig, 1855-58, 2 parts; and edits "Vaterland, Zeitschrift der berliner Gesellschaft zur Befriedung des Christentums unter der Juden," Berlin, 1885 sqq.; and is the author of Vollstandiges Wurterbuch zu Xenophon's Anabasis, Leipzig, 1871, 4th ed. 1884; Prolegomena critica in V.T. Hebraicum, 1873; Katalog der hebräischen Bibliothecskarten der kaiserlichen öffentlichen Bibliothek in St. Petersburg (with A. Harkavy), St. Petersburg and Leipzig, 1875; Prophetae posteriorum codex Babylonicus Petropolitanus, 1876 (edited at an expense of three years' labor, photolithographed and published at the expense of the Emperor Alexander II. of Russia. This codex is dated A.D. 919; the text has the "Babylonian" or "Assyrian" system of vocalization, whose peculiarities consist in having signs of a different shape to represent the vowels, and in putting the vowels in all cases above the letters. The text occupies four hundred and forty-nine folio pages, and is surrounded with Massoretic notes. The Codex occupies the same place in the determination of text for the portion of the Old Testament which it covers, as the Codex Sinaiticus does for the whole New Testament; A. Firkowitsch and seine Entdeckungen, Leipzig, 1876; Die Dikduke hatenmin des Aharon ben Mosche ben Ascher und andere alte grammatisch-massoretische Lehrstücke (with S. Baer), 1879; Vollstandiges Wurterbuch zu Xenophon's Kyropddie 1881; Pirke Aboth, Die Schriefe der Väter, Karlsruhe u. Leipzig, 1882; Lehrbuch der neuhebräischen Sprache u. Literatur (with C. Siegfried) 1882 (various parts of the Mishnah in preparation); Hebräische Grammatik, 1883, 2d ed. 1885 (English trans. New York and London, 1888).

STRONG, Augustus Hopkins, D.D. (Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1870), Baptist; b. at Rochester, N.Y., Aug. 3, 1836; graduated from Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1857; and at Rochester Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1859; studied at Germantown, Pennsylvania, 1859-60; became pastor at Haverhill, Mass., 1881, and at Cleveland, O., 1865; and president and professor of theology in Rochester Theological Seminary, 1872. He has contributed much to the denominational press, and is the author of a Systematic Theology, Rochester, 1886.

STRONG, James, S.T.D., LL.D. (both Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1856 and 1881), Methodist layman; b. in New-York City, Aug. 14, 1822; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1844; teacher of ancient languages in Troy Conference Academy, West Poul tney, Vt., 1844-46; professor of biblical literature, and acting president of Troy University, 1858-61; and since 1868 has been professor of exegetical theology in Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N.J. In 1874 he travelled in Egypt and Palestine. He is a member of the Old Testament Company of Bible reviewers; and is the author of Harmony and Exposition of the Hebrew Language (in German, in the Crimea), examining Firkowitche's third great collection of manuscripts. (For his monumental labors upon the Codex Babylonicus Petropolitanus, see below.) "One of the tasks of his life is to make the Christians acquainted with the history and literature of the Jews, and to promote Christianity amongst the Jews." He edited Max Strack's Aus Suld und Ost, Reisefrüchte aus drei Welten, Leipzig, 1855-58, 2 parts; and edits "Vaterland, Zeitschrift der berliner Gesellschaft zur Befriedung des Christentums unter der Juden," Berlin, 1885 sqq.; and is the author of Vollstandiges Wurterbuch zu Xenophon's Anabasis, Leipzig, 1871, 4th ed. 1884; Prolegomena critica in V.T. Hebraicum, 1873; Katalog der hebräischen Bibliothecskarten der kaiserlichen öffentlichen Bibliothek in St. Petersburg (with A. Harkavy), St. Petersburg and Leipzig, 1875; Prophetae posteriorum codex Babylonicus Petropolitanus, 1876 (edited at an expense of three years' labor, photolithographed and published at the expense of the Emperor Alexander II. of Russia. This codex is dated A.D. 919; the text has the "Babylonian" or "Assyrian" system of vocalization, whose peculiarities consist in having signs of a different shape to represent the vowels, and in putting the vowels in all cases above the letters. The text occupies four hundred and forty-nine folio pages, and is surrounded with Massoretic notes. The Codex occupies the same place in the determination of text for the portion of the Old Testament which it covers, as the Codex Sinaiticus does for the whole New Testament; A. Firkowitsch and seine Entdeckungen, Leipzig, 1876; Die Dikduke hatenmin des Aharon ben Mosche ben Ascher und andere alte grammatisch-massoretische Lehrstücke (with S. Baer), 1879; Vollstandiges Wurterbuch zu Xenophon's Kyropddie 1881; Pirke Aboth, Die Schriefe der Väter, Karlsruhe u. Leipzig, 1882; Lehrbuch der neuhebräischen Sprache u. Literatur (with C. Siegfried) 1882 (various parts of the Mishnah in preparation); Hebräische Grammatik, 1883, 2d ed. 1885 (English trans. New York and London, 1888).
STROSSMAYER, Right Rev. Joseph Georg, D.D., Roman Catholic; b. at Essek, Slavonia, Feb. 4, 1815; studied at Pesth, and was ordained priest in 1838; became professor at the Seminary of Dukovar, and bishop of Bosnia and Servia, May 20, 1850. He earnestly opposed the infallibility dogma in the Vatican Council, and quitted Rome without accepting it, but afterwards submitted. •

STUART, George Hay, Presbyterian layman; b. at Rose Hall, County Down, Ireland, April 2, 1819; educated at Bangor, Ireland; took up his residence in Philadelphia, Penn., went into business; is now president of the Merchants' National Bank of that city. He was the president of the United-States Christian Commission during the civil war (see article Christian Commission in Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia), 1861-66; regius professor of modern history, 1866-84; member of the Philadelphia Branch of the United-States Evangelical Alliance; vice-president of the American Bible Society, of the American Tract Society, of the National Temperance Society; and is prominently connected with other religious and philanthropic associations. See sketch of his life by Rev. Dr. Wylie in A. S. Billingsley's From the Flag to the Cross, Scenes and Incidents of Christianity in the War, Philadelphia, 1872.

STUBBS, Right Rev. William, D.D. (by decree of convocation, 1879), LL.D. (hon., Cambridge, 1879; Edinburgh, 1880), Church of England; b. at Knaresborough, June 21, 1826; graduated at Christ Church College, Oxford, B.A. (first-class classics, third-class mathematics) 1848, M.A. (Trinity College) 1851; was fellow of Trinity College, Oxford, 1848-51; of Oriel, 1851-57; of Balliol, 1876-84; of Brasenose, 1878-84; vicar of Navestock, Essex, 1830-47; librarian at the archbishop of Canterbury, and keeper of the manuscripts at Lambeth, 1862-67; examiner in the schools of law and modern history, Oxford, 1863-66; regius professor of modern history, 1866-84; select preacher, 1870; examiner in the school of theology, 1871-72; and of modern history, 1873, 1876, 1878; rector of Chalderton, Wilts, 1875-79; canon of St. Paul's, London, 1879-84; member of royal commission on ecclesiastical courts, 1881. In 1884 he was appointed bishop of Chester. He is the editor or author of Registri sacram Anglicanum, Oxford, 1858; Mosheim's Church History, 1863; Chronicles and Memorials of the Reign of Richard I., London, 1864-65, 2 vols.; Benedictus Abbas, 1867, 2 vols.; Roger Horsley, 1868-71, 4 vols.; Select Charters, 1871; Councils and Ecclesiastical Documents (vol. iii.), 1871; Walter of Coventry, 1872-73, 2 vols.; Constitutional History of England, 1874-79, 3 vols.; Works of Dunstan, 1874; The Early Plantagenets, 1876; The Historical Works of Ralph de Diceto, 1876, 2 vols.; Works of Gervase of Canterbury, 1879, 2 vols.; Chronicles of Edward I. and II., 1882-83, 2 vols.

STUCKENBERG, John Henry Wilburn, D.D. (Wooster University, O., 1874), Lutheran (General Synod); b. at Bransche, Germany, Jan. 6, 1835; graduated at Wittenberg College, Springfield, O., 1857; studied at Halle, Gottingen, Berlin, and Tubingen; pastor in Iowa and Pennsylvania; chaplain One Hundred and Forty-fifth Pennsylvania Volunteers, September, 1862, to October, 1863; theological professor in Wittenberg College, 1873-80; in charge of American Chapel, Berlin, Germany, since 1881, and contributor to magazines. He belongs to the Philosophical Society of Berlin; translated (with Dr. W. L. Gage) from Hagenbuch, German Rationalism, Edinburgh, 1869; and is author of Ninety-five Theses, Baltimore, 1867; The History of the Augsburg Confession, Philadelphia, 1869; Christian Sociology, New York, 1880 (reprinted, London, 1881); The Life of Immanuel Kant, London, 1882; Introduction to the Study of Philosophy (in preparation).

STUDE, Peter Ludwig, Swiss Protestant; b. at Bern, Jan. 18, 1801; became professor extraordinary of theology at Bern, 1850; ordinary professor, 1863, and was retired 1878. He has published Das Buch der Richter erklärt, Bern, 1835; Mathias Neuburgens chronica, 1868; Die bernische Chronik von Konrad Justinger, 1870; Thüring Friekarhs Zwingherren-Streit und Bend. Tschächlans bernerner Chronik, 1877; Das Buch Hiob erläutert, Bremen, 1881.

SUPER, Henry William, D.D. (Heidelberg College, Tiffin, O., 1874), Reformed (German); b. in Baltimore, Md., Dec. 31, 1824; graduated at Marshall College, Mercersburg, Penn., 1849; pastor at Waynesboro', Penn., 1851-61; Greensborough, 1861-75; professor of mathematics in State Normal School (1867-70), and of church history and biblical literature in Ursinus College, Freeland, Penn., since 1870. He has written various articles.

SWAINSON, Charles Anthony, D.D. (Cambridge, 1864), Church of England; b. in Liverpool, May 29, 1820; educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, graduated B.A. (sixth wrangler) 1841, M.A. (Christ's College) 1844; was ordained deacon 1843, priest 1845, canon of Christ's College, Cambridge (1847-51); Whitehall preacher, 1849-51; Hulsean Lecturer, 1857-58; principal of Chichester Theological College, 1854-64; Norrissian professor of divinity in the University of Cambridge, 1894-79; canon residuary of Chichester, 1863-82; proton of diocese and chapter of Chichester, 1874-83; became prebendary of Firle in Chichester Cathedral, 1856; Lady Margaret professor of divinity in University of Cambridge, 1879; examining chaplain to the bishop of Chichester, 1870; master of Christ's College, Cambridge, 1881; vice-chancellor of the University of Cambridge, 1893-95. He is the author of Commonplaces, read in Christ's College Chapel, London, 1848; Creeds of the Church in their Relation to the Word of God and the Conscience of the Christian (Hulsean Lecture), 1868; The Authority of the New Testament, the Conviction of Righteousness, and the Memorial of Reconciliation (Hulsean Lecture), 1869; Essay on the History of Article xxxix., 1856; Letter to the Dean of Chichester on the Original Object of the Athonian Creed, 1870; A SYDOW, (Karl Leopold) Adolph, Ph.D., German Protestant; b. at Charlottenburg, Nov. 23, 1800; d. in Berlin, Oct. 22, 1882. He studied at Berlin from 1819 to 1823, and became an ardent disciple of Schleiermacher. In 1824 he became retent; in 1828, preacher and ordinary teacher of the cadet corps at Berlin. In 1836 he was called by Frederick William III. to Potsdam as court preacher, and enjoyed also the friendship of Frederick William IV., who sent him in 1841, with others, to Great Britain, to study in London and elsewhere the ecclesiastical arrangements. In consequence he became a defender of the free church system; thus forfeited the king's favor, gave up his position at court, went in 1846 to Berlin as preacher of the New Church, and so remained until he was made emeritus in 1876. In 1872 he was deposed by the Brandenburg consistory, because in a public lecture he declared that Jesus was the legitimate son of Joseph and Mary. He appealed to the upper church council: twenty-six ministers of the province of Brandenburg and twelve of Berlin protested against his deposition; the theological faculty at Jena declared to Dr. Falk, the minister of religious affairs, that his deposition would "endanger the liberty of teaching;" and the council, while sharply rebuking him, ordered his reinstatement on the ground that the objectionable statement was extra-official. See Sydow's Aktenstücke, Berlin, 1873. He made, with F. A. Schulze, a translation of Channing's works, Berlin, 1850-55, 12 vols. His other publications consist of sermons, etc. See M. Sydow: Dr. A. Sydow. Ein Lebensbild, Berlin, 1886.

TALCOTT, Daniel Smith, D.D. (Waterville College, Me., 1853; Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1858), Congregationalist; b. at Newburyport, Mass., March 2, 1813; graduated at Amherst College, Mass., 1831, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1834; became teacher of Hebrew in Andover Theological Seminary, 1833; pastor at Sherborn, Mass., 1836; professor of sacred literature in Bangor Theological Seminary, Me., 1839; retired in 1881. His name, originally Daniel Talcott Smith, was changed in 1863. He is the author of sundry addresses, etc., and of articles in the American edition of Smith's Dictionary of the Bible.

TALMAGE, Thomas DeWitt, D.D., Presbyterian; b. near Bound Brook, N.J., Jan. 7, 1832; graduated at the University of the City of New York, 1853, and at the New Brunswick (Reformed Dutch) Theological Seminary, N.J., 1856; became pastor of the Reformed Dutch Church at Belleville, N.J., 1856; Syracuse, N.Y., 1859; Second Church, Philadelphia, Penn., 1862; Central Presbyterian Church, Schenckerson Street, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1869. In 1870 the congregation erected, on the same street near the old site, a new and much larger church, known as the "Tabernacle." It was burnt Dec. 22, 1872; rebuilt, 1873; dedicated, Feb. 22, 1874. The old church is now used for the Free Lay College, a training-school for Christian workers, of which Dr. Talmage is president; also for reading-rooms and general purposes. The new tabernacle seats some five thousand persons; the church reported in 1886 thirty-three hundred members, and eleven communicants. Dr. Talmage edited Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine. His sermons, lectures, etc., may be mentioned Crumbs of Modern Society, New York, 1872, new ed. 1875; Around the Tea-Table, New York, 1873; The Teaching of the Twelve Apostles, London, 1876; Sir Walter Raleigh and his Colony in America, 1884; Songs and Hymns for Common Life, 1885; Diary of Thomas Robbins, D.D., 1886.

TAYLOR, Barnard Cook, A.M., Baptist; b. at Holmdel, N.J., May 20, 1850; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1874, and at Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester, Penn., 1877; became in the latter institution assistant instructor of Hebrew (1877), assistant professor of biblical interpretation (1880), and professor of Old-Testament exegesis (1883).

TAYLOR, Charles D.D. (Cambridge, 1881), Church of England; b. in London, May 27, 1840; educated in King's College School, London, and at St. John's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (ninth wrangler and second-class classical tripos) 1862, M.A. 1865; was first-class in theology, 1863; Crosse scholar and Trywhitt scholar, 1864; Kaye prize, 1867; ordained deacon 1866, priest 1867; was fellow of St. John's College, 1864-81; examiner at Lampeter, 1874-77; lecturer in theology, Cambridge, 1873-81; became honorary fellow of King's College, London, 1876; master of St. John's College, Cambridge, 1881. He is the author of Geometrical Conics, London, 1883; The Gospel in the Law: A Critical Examination of the Citations from the Old Testament in the New, 1869; Elementary Geometry of Conics, 1872, 4th ed. 1883; The Dirge of Coheleth (in Eccles. xii.) discussed and literally interpreted, 1874; The Sayings of the Jewish Fathers, including Pirke Abot, etc., in Hebrew and English, with Critical and Illustrative Notes, 1877; An Introduction to the Ancient and Modern Geometry of Conics, with Historical Notes and Prolegomena, 1881; The Teaching of the Twelve Apostles, with Illustrations from the Talmud (two lectures delivered at the Royal Institution of Great Britain, May 29 and June 6, 1883), Cambridge, 1886.

TAYLOR, George Lansing, D.D. (Syracuse University, N.Y., 1876), Methodist; b. at Skaneateles, N.Y., Feb. 13, 1835; was freshman and sophomore at Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, O., and junior and senior at Columbia College, New York City; graduated, 1861; was assistant editor of the Christian Advocate, New York, 1861; entered itinerant ministry of the Methodist-Episcopal Church in New-York East Conference in April, 1862, and has ever since been in its pastorate. Since 1870 a trustee of Syracuse University, N.Y. He served in the Christian Commission during the war, in Maryland and Virginia; has always been an ardent temperance laborer, was for years in the National Society's Board, and delivered on the subject many speeches and lectures. He built the Simpson Methodist-Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., and the Jesse Lee Memorial Church, Ridgefield, Conn.; and preached about a hundred camp-meeting sermons. He is the author of Six Centennial Hymns [for the centenary of 1866, pamphlet].
New York, 1868; many pamphlets, sermons, speeches, and tracts; many contributions to the religious and secular press, including several hundred occasional poems and hymns; latest books are, Ulysses S. Grant, Conqueror, Patriot, Hero; and John Brown, the Liberator; Life and Letters of Thomas Jefferson; Eulogy of Robert Ingersoll, and other Poems, 1885. See Alumni Record of Wesleyan University and Alleibone.

TAYLOR, John Phelps, Congregationalist; b. at Andover, Mass., April 6, 1811; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1832, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1838; was pastor at Middletown, Conn., 1838-47; at Newport, R.I., 1874-76; at New London, Conn., 1878-83; and since has been professor of biblical history and oriental archaeology in Andover Theological Seminary.

TAYLOR, Marshall William, D.D. (Central Tennessee College, Nashville, Tenn., 1878), Methodist; b. of free parents at Lexington, Fayette County, Ky., July 1, 1816; taught by white children at Ghent, Ky., 1831-33; by colored and white Methodist preachers, 1833-35; in school for free negroes at Louisville, Ky., 1835-38; was mes- senger for a law-firm in Louisville, Ky., 1839-42; served as steamboat cook, 1842-44; in the Army of the Tennessee in South Africa, 1867; Four Years' Campaign in India, 1872; numerous pamphlets, etc.

TAYLOR, William Mackergo, D.D. (Yale College, New Haven, Conn., and Amherst College, Mass., both 1872), LL.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1883); Congregationalist; b. at Kilmanock, Scotland, Oct. 23, 1829; graduated at University of Glasgow 1849, and at the United Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Edinburgh, 1852; became pastor (United Presbyterian) at Kilmaurs, Scotland, 1852; of Derby-road Church, Liverpool, Eng., 1855; and of the Broadway Tabernacle Church (Congregationalist), New York City, 1872. He was Lyman Beecher lecturer in Yale Seminary, 1876 and 1886; L. P. Stone lecturer in Princeton Seminary, 1880; and editor of the Christian at Work, 1876-80. He is the author of Life Truths (sermons), London, 1864, 2d ed. 1865; The Miserable: Helps to Faith, not Hindrances, Edinburgh, 1865; The Lost found, and the Wanderer welcomed, 1870, last ed. New York, 1884; Memoir of the Rev. Matthew Dickie, Bristol, 1872; Prayer and Business, New York, 1873; David, King of Israel, 1875; Elijah the Prophet, 1876; The Ministry of the Word (Yale Lectures), 1876; Songs in the Night, 1877, last ed. 1884; Peter the Apostle, 1877; Daniel the Beloved, 1878; Moses the Lawgiver, 1879; The Gospel Miracles in their Relation to Christ and Christianity (Princeton Lectures), 1880; The Life and the Missionary, 1881; The Abnormal Life, and other Sermons, 1880; Paul the Missionary, 1882; Contrary Winds, and other Sermons, 1883; Jesus at the Well, 1884; John Knox, a Biography, 1886; Joseph, the Prime Minister, 1888.

TEMPLE, Right Rev. Frederick, D.D. (Oxford, 1856), lord bishop of Lichfield; exemptor of England, b. at Santa Maria Nov. 30, 1821; educated at Letters to a Quaker on Baptism, 1885; Ten Years of Self-supporting Missions in India, 1882; Pauline Methods of Missionary Work, 1885.

TAYLOR, William James Roms n, D.D. (Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1882), Congregationalist; b. at Millwood, Rensselaer County, N.Y., July 31, 1829; graduated at Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1841; and at the theological seminary of the Reformed Church in America, in the same place, 1841; became pastor at New Durham, N.J., 1844; Jersey City, N.J. (Second Church), 1846; Schenectady, N.Y. (First Church), 1849; Jersey City, N.J. (Third Church), 1852; Philadelphia, Penn. (Third Church), 1854; corresponding secretary of the American Bible Society, 1862; pastor of the Clinton-avenue Reformed Church, Newark, N.J., 1869. He edited The Christian Intelligencer (the denominational organ), New York, 1872-76; was president of the General Synod of the denomination, 1871; has been trustee of Rutgers College since 1878. He is the author of Louisa, a Pastor's Memorial, Philadelphia, 1880; many occasional sermons and addresses in pamphlet form; tracts; about two hundred columns. chiefly biographical and historical, in McClintock and Strong's Cyclopaedia; The Bible in the Last Hundred Years: A Historical Discourse for the American Bible Society in the United States Centennial, 1876; Church Extension in Large Cities (1880), and On Co-operation in Foreign Missions (1884), papers in the second and third councils, respectively, of the Alliance of Reformed Churches, etc. See list in Corwin's Manual of Reformed Church, 3d ed. New York, 1879, pp. 480, 481.
Balliol College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (double first class) 1842, M.A. 1849, B.D. 1858; was elected and held the chair of Greek at his college, 1812; ordained deacon 1846, priest 1847; was principal of Kneller Hall Training College, near Twickenham, 1848–55; head master of Rugby School, 1858–69; chaplain-in-ordinary to the Queen; bishop of Exeter, 1869–85; selected preacher at Oxford 1879–74, and Hampton lecturer 1884; translated to London, 1885. He is the author of The Development of the World, in Essays and Reviews, London, 1840; Sermons preached in the Chapel of Rugby School (1858–69), London, 1862–71, 3 series; Relations between Religion and Science (Bampton Lectures), 1884, 2d ed. 1885.

TERRY, Miton Spencer, S.T.D. (Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1879);Methodist: b. at Coeymans, N.Y., Feb. 22, 1840; graduated at Charlotteville (N.Y.) Seminary 1858, and Yale Theological Seminary, New Haven, Conn., 1862; was pastor, 1863–81; and since professor of Old Testament exegesis in Garrett Biblical Institute. He translated, 1868; on the Prophetical Books, and says: On the manuscripts and thechapel of Rugby School (1858–69), London, 1862–71, 3 series; Relations between Religion and Science (Bampton Lectures), 1884, 2d ed. 1885.

THIERSCH, Heinrich Wilhelm Josias, D.D., Irvingite; b. in Munich, Bavaria, Nov. 5, 1817; d. at Basel, Dec. 3, 1885. He studied philosophy at Munich, chiefly with his father, an eminentGreek scholar; and theology at Erlangen and Tübingen; became privat-docent at Erlangen, 1839; professor of theology at Marburg, 1843; resigned in 1850, in order to labor in the interest of the "Catholic Apostolic Church," which then began to be organized in Germany by "Evangelists" from England. He had charge of a small Irvingite congregation at Augsburg, and afterwards at Basel. He was connected by marriage with the Zeller family of Beuggen, and with Bishop Gobat of Jerusalem, who married a sister of his wife.

Dr. Thiersch was a man of sincere and profound piety, of rare classical, theological, and general culture, an enthusiastic teacher, and might have become the successor of Albrecht Neander in Berlin; but, in obedience to what he believed to be a divine call, he sacrificed a brilliant academic career to his religious convictions. He lived in poverty and isolation. He was lame; but had a very striking, highly intellectual and spiritual countenance, and an impressive voice and man-ner. He was the most distinguished German convert to Irvingism. He sincerely believed that the Lord Jesus gave Himself as an average gift to the Apostolic Church in the Irvingite community; and, notwithstanding the apparent failure of the movement, he adhered to it till his death.

His chief writings are, Versuch zur Herstellung des historischen Standpunkts für die Kritik der neutestamentlichen Schriften, Erlangen, 1843 (a very able book, against the Tübingen school of Haur, who answered in Der Kritiker und der Fanatiker, in the Person des Herrn Heinrich W. J. Thiersch. Zur Charakteristik der neuesten Theologie, Stuttgart, 1846); Forstungen über Katholismus und Protestantismus, Erlangen, 1849, 2 vols. (very able, written in an irenic spirit, and in elegant style); Die Kirche im apostolischen Zeitalter, Frankfort-am-Main, 1852, 3d ed. 1879 (English trans. by Carlyle the Irvingites, London, 1852); Ueber christliches Familienleben, 1854, 7th ed. 1877; Döllinger's Aufassung des Urchristenthums beleuchtet, 1861; Die Gleichnisse Christi, Frankfurt-am-Main, 1867, 2d ed. 1875; Die Pforten Christi, Basel, 1867, 2d ed. Augsburg, 1878; Die Symmetrie zum Schutz der Sittlichkeit, 1868; Luther, Gustav Adolf und Max 1 von Bayern, Nordlingen, 1868; Das Verbot der Ehe innerhalb der nahen Verwandtschaft nach der heiligen Schrift und nach den Grundsatzen der christlichen Kirche, 1869; Die Genesis, Basel, 1869 (English trans., The Book of Genesis, London, 1878); Ueber den christlichen Staat, 1875; Christian Heinrich Zeller's Leben, Basel, 1876, 2 vols.; Die Anfunge der heiligen Geschichte, nach dem 1. Buche Mose betrachtet, 1877; Ueber die Gefahren und die Hoffnungen der christlichen Kirche, 1877, 2d ed. 1878, Blicke in die Lebensgeschichte des Propheten Daniel, 1884; Inbegriff der christlichen Lehre, 1886 (his last work, which was published after his death, and contains a manual of Christian doctrine and Christian life which he used in his catechetical instruction). PHILIP SCHAPP.

THOMAS, David, D.D. (Waynesburg College, Penn., 1883); Congregationalist; b. at Hollivushatson, near Tenby, Pembrokeshire, South Wales, Feb. 1, 1813; educated at Newport Pagnel, now Chesnut College, Buckingham, under the Rev. T. Bull, the friend and neighbor of Cowper the poet; entered the Independent ministry, 1841; was minister of Stockwell Independent Church, London, 1844–74. He founded in 1856 the National Newspaper League Company, for cheapening and improving the daily press, which numbered ten thousand members, and of which he was chairman; also the Working Men's Club and Institute Unions, 1861; originated the University for Wales in 1862, when the first letters and resolutions were sent out; the University College was opened at Aberystwith, March 11, 1877. He comes of an old family who have resided upon the same property for upwards of three hundred and fifty years. His grandfather lived to a hundred years; great-grandfather to a hundred and twenty years; great-uncle to a hundred and twelve years. He is a Broad Churchman, in close theological sympathy with Horace Bushnell of United States of America, Dean Stanley of Westminster, F. W. Robertson of Brighton, and Bishop Fraser of Manchester. In all his writings he recognizes the fact, that as Christ is the only revealer of absolute truth, he is not to be interpreted by the Old Testament.
writers or by the apostles, but they are all to be interpreted by him. He is the author of The Crisis of Being, London, 1849; The Core of Creeds, 1851; The Progress of Being, 1854; The Biblical Library, 1855; Journalism and the Pulpit, 1857; Unconsciousness of Persons in Relation to the Pulpit, 1857; Resurrections: Thoughts on Duty and Destiny, 1863; The Genius of the Gospel: a Homiletical Commentary on St. Matthew, 1864; The Augustine Hymn-Book, 1865; The Minister, the Parent, and the Church: Inaugural Addresses, Bristol, 1866; The Philosophy of Happiness (including Crisis and Progress of Being), London, 1889; Homiletic Commentary on Acts of the Apostles, 1889; The Practical Philosopher: a Daily Monitor, 1873; Problematum Mundi, the Book of Job considered, 1878; editor of The Homilist, 1881—82; 50 vols.; and since of The Homiletic Library, in which have appeared his "Book of the Psalms, exegetically and practically considered," 1882—83, 3 vols.; "The Genius of the Fourth Gospel," 1884.

THOMAS, Jesse Burgess, D.D. (University of Chicago, 1869), Baptist; b. at Edwardsville, Ill., July 29, 1833; graduated at Kenyon College, Gambier, O., 1850; was admitted to the bar in Illinois, 1852; studied in Rochester Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1853—54; obliged to abandon his studies through ill health, he engaged in mercantile pursuits at Chicago, Ill., in 1862 he entered the Baptist ministry, and was pastor at Waukegan, Ill., 1862—64; of the Pierrepont-street Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1864—68; of the First Church, San Francisco, Cal., 1868—69; of the Michigan-avenue Church, Chicago, 1869—74; has been pastor of the First Baptist Church of Brooklyn, N.Y., since 1874. He is the author of The Old Bible and the New Science, New York, 1877; The Mould of Doctrine, Philadelphia, 1883.

THOMPSON, Augustus Charles, D.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1860), Congregationalist; b. at Goshen, Litchfield County, Conn., April 30, 1812; educated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., with the class of 1835, but did not graduate; graduated from the Theological Seminary, Hartford, Conn., 1838; studied at the University of Berlin, 1838—39; ordained at Eliot Church, Roxbury, Mass., July 27, 1842; now senior pastor. He was associated with Rev. Dr. Rufus Anderson in a deputation to the missions of the A. B. C. F. M. in India, 1854—55; with Rev. Dr. N. G. Clark, as delegate to the Missionary Conference in London, Eng., 1878; lecturer on foreign missions at Andover Theological Seminary (Mass.), 1877—80; at the Boston University (Mass.), 1882; and at Hartford Theological Seminary (Conn.), 1885—86. He is the author of Songs in the Night, Boston, 1845; Young Marjory, 2d ed. 1848; Lamb's Feud, 1849 (translated into Marathi, Bombay, 1853); Last Hours, 1851; Poor Widow, 1854 (translated into Tamil, Jaffna, Ceylon, 1855); The Better Land, 1854 (republished Edinburgh 1865, new ed. 1869); The Yoke in Youth, 1856; Gathered Lilies, 1858; Eliot's Discourse on Christian Doctrine, 1859; Hours in Patmos, 1860; Lyra Celestis, 1863; The Mercy Seat, 1865 (republished London, 1864); Our Little Ones, 1867; Christus Consolator, 1867; Seeds and Sheaves, 1868; Discourse Commemorative of Rev. Rufus Anderson, D.D., 1880; Moravian Missions, New York, 1882; Happy New Year, 1886; Future Probation and Foreign Missions, 1886; various sermons, addresses, and articles in sundry periodicals.

THOMPSON, Right Rev. Hugh Miller, S.T.D. (Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1863), L.L.D. (University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, 1865), Episcopalian, assistant bishop of the Missionary Conference in London, Ireland, June 5, 1830; graduated B.D. from Nashotah Theological Seminary, Wis., 1852; was missionary and minister in Wisconsin, Illinois, and Kentucky, 1852—60; professor of church history at Nashotah, 1860—71, and during the same period editor of The American Churchman; rector of Christ Church, New-York City, 1872—76; editor of The Church Journal, 1871—79; rector of Trinity Church, New Orleans, 1876—83; consecrated assistant bishop of Mississippi, 1883. He is the author of Unity and its Restoration, New York, 1860, 15th thousand 1885; Sin and Penalty, 1862, 15th thousand 1885; First Principles, 1865, 20th thousand 1885; Absolution, 1872, last ed. 1885; Copy, 1872, 3d ed. 1875; The Kingdom of God, 1873, 15th thousand 1885; The World and the Logos (Bedell Lectures for 1885), 1885.

THOMPSON, William, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1847), Congregationalist; b. at Goshen, Conn., Feb. 17, 1806; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1827; since 1834 has been professor of Hebrew in Hartford Theological Seminary, Conn.; since 1861 emeritus and dean of the faculty.

THOMSON, Right Hon. and Most Rev. William, D.D. (Oxford, 1856), F.R.S., F.R.G.S., archbishop of York, primate of England, and Metropolitan, Church of England; b. at Whitehaven, Cumberland, Feb. 11, 1819; educated at Queen's College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (third-class classics) 1840, M.A. 1843, B.D. 1856; was ordained deacon 1842, priest 1843; was fellow, dean, bursar, tutor, and provost of his college, 1855—62; preacher to the Honorable Society of Lincoln's Inn, London, 1858—61; rector of All Saints, Marylebone, 1855—61; in 1861 was consecrated bishop of Gloucester and Bristol, and in 1863 translated to York. He was selected preacher to the Oxford 1848 and 1856, and Hampton lecturer 1853. He is visitor of Queen's College, Oxford;lector of St. Augustine's College, Cambridge, and one of the lords of her Majesty's Most Honorable Privy Council. He is the author of The Atoning Work of Christ (Bampton Lectures), London, 1854; Sermons preached in Lincoln's Inn Chapel, 1860; Life in the Light of God's Word (sermons), 1868; Word, Work, and Will, 1879; Outline of the Laws of Thought, 1883.

THOMSON, William McClure, D.D. (Wabash College, Crawfordsville, Ind., 1858), Presbyterian; b. at Springfield (now Springvale), near Cincinnati, O., Dec. 31, 1860; graduated at Miami University, Oxford, O., 1826; studied at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1828—27; ordained an evangelist by Presbytery of Cincinnati, O., Oct. 12, 1831; was missionary in Syria and Palestine under A. B. C. F. M. and Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions; 1848—56, 1856—57, 1862—63. He now resides in New-York City. He is the author of The Land and the Book, or Biblical Illustrations Drawn from the Manners and Customs, the Scenes and Scenery, of the Holy Land, New York, 1859, 2 vols. later editions; new ed. thoroughly revised and re-written, with numerous illustrations.
THOROLD.

218

TOORENBERGEN.

TIELE, Cornelis Petrus, D.D. (hon., Leiden, 1853), Dutch theologian; b. at Leiden, Dec. 16, 1830; studied at the Remonstrants' Seminary and at the Athenaeum of Amsterdam; became Remonstrant pastor at Moordrecht, 1853; Rotterdam, 1856; professor in the Remonstrants' Seminary, translated to Leiden, 1873; professor of the history of religions, in the University of Leiden, 1877 (for his inaugural address see below). He edited for a time "The Signs of the Times" (in Dutch), the organ of the so-called "modern theology;" and assisted upon Gids; and since its foundation, in 1867, has been joint editor with A. Kuenen, A. D. Loman, and L. W. Rauwenhoff of the Theologisch Tijdschrift, Leiden. He is the author of Specimen theologicum status annotationum in locos nominatos evangelii Joanni, ad vindicandum hujus evangelii authentiam (publicly defended, Amsterdam), 1853; and in Dutch of "The Gospel of John considered as a source of the Life of Jesus," 1855; "The Religion of Zarathustra," 1864; Vergelijkte Geschiedenis der Egytische en Mesopotamische Godsdiensten ("Comparative History of the Egyptian and Mesopotamian Religions"), 1869-72, 2 parts (French trans., Paris, 1882; English authorized trans. by James Ballinal, part 1, History of the Egyptian Religion, London, 1889); De plaats van de Godsdiensten der Natuurvolken in de Godsdienstgeschiedenis ("The Place of the Religions of the Savages in the History of Religion," inaugural), 1873; Geschiedenis van den Godsdienst tot aan de heerschappij der Wereldgodsdiensten, 1876 (English trans. by J. E. Carpenter, Outlines of the History of Religion to the Spread of the Universal Religions, London, 1876, 3d ed. 1884; French trans., Paris, 1880; German trans., Berlin, 1880); De vrucht der Assyriologie voor de vergelijken gele- schiedenis der Godsdiensten ("The Results of Assyriology for the Comparative History of Religion," inaugural), 1877 (German trans. by K. Friederic, Leipzig, 1878); De Gelijkenis van het Vaderhuis ("The Parable of the Father's House"), 1881, later eds.: Teodol Preken ("Twelve Sermons"), 1873; Huldreich Zwingly (an address at the Zwingly Festival in the Remonstrants' Church at Rotterdam, Dec. 30, 1883), 1884; contributions in the Revue de l'histoire des Religions, Paris, — etc.

TILLETT, Wilbur Fisk, A.M., Methodist (South Carolina); b. at Henderson, N.C., Aug. 25, 1854; graduated at Randolph Macon College, Ashland, Va., 1877, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1880; became member of Virginia Conference, Methodist-Episcopal, South; and pastor at Danville, Va., 1880; chaplain of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., 1882; adjunct professor of systematic theology in the same 1883, and full professor 1884. He is the author of various review articles.

TITCOMB, Right Rev. Jonathan Holt, D.D. (Cambridge, 1877), Church of England; b. in London, in the year 1819; educated at St. Peter's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (junior optime) 1841, M.A. 1844; ordained deacon 1842, priest 1843; was perpetual curate of St. Andrew the Less, Cambridge, 1845—50; secretary to the Christian Vernacular Education Society for India, 1859-61; vicar of St. Stephen, South Lambeth, London, 1861-78; rural dean of Clapham, 1870-76; vicar of Woking, 1876-77; consecrated first lord bishop of Rangoon, British Burmah, 1877; resigned his bishopric, 1882; became bishop coadjutor at Mozambique, Southern and Central Europe, 1884. Since 1874 he has been honorary canon of Winchester. He is the author of Bible Studies as to Divine Teaching, London, 1857; Baptism: its Institution, Privileges, and Responsibilities, 1866; Revelation from Adam toMalachi: Bible Studies, 1871; Church Lessons for Young Churchmen, London, 1878; Before the Cross, 1878; British Burmah, and its Church Mission Work in 1878-79, 1880; Cautions for Doubters, 1880; Short Chapters on Buddhism Past and Present, 1883.

TOLLIN, Henri Guillaume Nathanael, Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1857), M.D. (hon., Bern, 1884), Reformed theologian; b. at Berlin, May 5, 1833; educated at Berlin and Bonn; was teacher in the French gymnasium in Berlin, 1859-62; preacher to the Reformed Church at Frankfort-on-the-Oder, 1862; afterwards at Schulzendorf, near Lindow; since 1879 he has been preacher to the French Reformed Church at Magdeburg. He established at Frankfort-on-the-Oder and at Schulzendorf a fund for poor people, and at Magdeburg an educational union. He is the author of Biographische Beiträge zur Geschichte der Toleranz, Frankfort-on-the-Oder, 1886; Ein Anherr der Hohenzolern, 1886; Geistliche Reden von Hauenstein, nebst Biographie, 1886; Geschichte der Christlichen Gemeinde zu Illagdeburg, Halle, 1886-87; William Harvey, 1880; Realdo Colombo, 1880; Harvey und seine Vorgänger, Erlangen, 1883; Cassiodore, Paris, 1883; Die Entdeckung der Blutkreislaufe, Jena, 1876; das Lehrsystem Michael Servet's, Gieterlohl, vols. i.-iii., 1876-78; Mi. Villanovani: Apologetica discepatio, Berlin, 1880; Mi. Servet und Martin Butzer, 1880; William Harvey, 1880; Mateo Realdo Colombo, 1880; Harvey und seine Vorgänger, Erlangen, 1883; Cassiodore de Reina, Paris, 1883-84; Andreas Vesal, Amsterdam, 1884; Andreas Vesal, Erlangen, 1885; Geschichte der französisch reformierten Gemeinde zu Magdeburg, Italie, 1886-87; numerous articles in the Zeitschriften of Kauhais, Hilgenfeld, Hase, Köttin, Guericke, Zöckler, Lehmann, von Raumer, Virchow, von Holtzendorf, etc.; many on Seneca.

TOORENBERGEN, Johan Justus van, theologian; b. at Utrecht, Feb. 12, 1822; studied at the University of Utrecht; became Reformed pastor at Elspeet 1844, Flessingen 1848; director of studies and secretary of the Mission Institute of Utrecht, 1864; pastor at Rotterdam, 1869; professor of ecclesiastical history in the University of Amsterdam, 1880. He is the author (in Dutch) of two volumes of sermons, minor works, and "A Page of the History of the Confession of the Reformed Church of the Netherlands," Amsterdam, 1861; "Dogmatic Theses relating to the Doctrine of the Reformed Church," 1852-55; "The Symbolical Books of the Reformed Church of the Netherlands" (critical text), 1869; "The Religious and Ecclesiastical Works of Ph. Marnix de Saint Aldegonde," 1871-78, 10 vols.; editor of the Marnix Society ("Documents relating to the History of the Reformed Church of the Netherlands prior to 1618") 1870-85, 10 vols.; Monumenta reformationis Beligicae, tom. i., 1882.

TOWNSEND, Luther Tracy, D.D. (Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., 1871), Methodist; b. at Orono, Me., Sept. 27, 1838; graduated at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., 1859, and An­doorver Theological Seminary, Mass., 1862; was professor of exegetical theology, Boston University, Mass., 1867-85, of historical theology 1869-73, and since of practical theology. He was adjutant of Sixteenth New-Hampshire Volunteers, 1863-64. Of his works may be mentioned, True and Pretended Christianity, Boston, 1869; Sword and Gar­ment, 1871; God-Man, 1872; Credo, 1873; Out­lines of Theology, New York, 1873; Arena and Throne, Boston, 1874; Lost Forever, 1875; The Chinese Problem, 1876; The Supernatural Factor in Revivals, 1877; The Intermediate World, 1878; Elements of General and Christian Theology, New York, 1879; Fate of Republics, Boston, 1880; Art of Speech, vol. i., Studies in Poetry and Prose (1888), vol. ii., Studies in Eloquence and Logic (1881); Mosaic Record and Modern Science, 1881; Bible Theology and Modern Thought, 1883; Faith Work, Christian Science, and other Cures, 1885; Theological Works (collected edition), 1857, 3 vols.; Few Notes from Past Life, 1862; Notes on the Greek of the New Testament, chiefly for English Readers, 1864; Four Amise Sermons (preached in York Minster and Leeds' Parish Church), 1865; Islipiana (miscellanies), 1869-70, 2 series.

TRENCH, Francis Chenewitz, Church of England; b. in Dublin, Ireland, July, 1800; d. at Burnside, Hants, April 3, 1866. He was educated at Harrow and at Oriel College, Oxford (two second-class classics), 1823; B.A. 1834, M.A. 1839; ordained deacon 1835, priest 1836; curate of St. Giles, Reading, 1836; perpetual curate of St. John, Reading, 1837-57; rector of Iliip, Oxfordshire, 1857-64. He was Hulsean lecturer at Cambridge, 1845-64; professor of divinity in King's College, London, 1847-58. He was a devout and conservative High Churchman of the best type, but his theological writings are free from sectional bias. He had no special administrative ability, and therefore was only moderately successful as archbishop. He threw the weight of his influence against disestablishment. As a writer, he showed choice biblical, patristic, and modern Anglo-German learning, original thought, and a reverential and truly Christian spirit. He is one of the chief authorities on the English language.

TRENOH, Francis Chenewitz, D.D. (Cambridge, 1856; Trinity College, Dublin, 1864), lord archbishop of Dublin, Church of Ireland; b. in Dublin, Ireland, Sept. 9, 1807; d. in London, March 28, 1886. He was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. 1829, M.A. 1833, D.D. 1850; was ordained in 1832, priest 1833; became curate of Curridge 1835, and Alverstoke 1840; rector of Itchenstoke, Hants, 1845; dean of Westminster, 1856; archbishop of Dublin, Glandelagh, and Kildare, 1864; retired, 1884. He was Hulsean lecturer at Cambridge, 1845-46; chaplain to the bishop of Oxford (Wilberforce), 1847-64; professor of divinity in King's College, London, 1847-58. He was a devout and conservative High Churchman of the best type, but his theological writings are free from sectional bias. He had no special administrative ability, and therefore was only moderately successful as archbishop. He threw the weight of his influence against disestablishment. As a writer, he showed choice biblical, patristic, and modern Anglo-German learning, original thought, and a reverential and truly Christian spirit. He is one of the chief authorities on the English language.

TRENCH, Most Rev. Richard Cheniewitz, D.D. (Cambridge, 1856; Trinity College, Dublin, 1864), lord archbishop of Dublin, Church of Ireland; b. in Dublin, Ireland, Sept. 9, 1807; d. in London, March 28, 1886. He was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. 1829, M.A. 1833, D.D. 1850; was ordained in 1832, priest 1833; became curate of Curridge 1835, and Alverstoke 1840; rector of Itchenstoke, Hants, 1845; dean of Westminster, 1856; archbishop of Dublin, Glandelagh, and Kildare, 1864; retired, 1884. He was Hulsean lecturer at Cambridge, 1845-46; chaplain to the bishop of Oxford (Wilberforce), 1847-64; professor of divinity in King's College, London, 1847-58. He was a devout and conservative High Churchman of the best type, but his theological writings are free from sectional bias. He had no special administrative ability, and therefore was only moderately successful as archbishop. He threw the weight of his influence against disestablishment. As a writer, he showed choice biblical, patristic, and modern Anglo-German learning, original thought, and a reverential and truly Christian spirit. He is one of the chief authorities on the English language.
TRISTRAM.

the Spiritual Life of Men (Hulsean Lectures for 1845), Cambridge, 1845; The Desire of all Nations, the University of London (Hulsean Lectures for 1846), 1846; together, 5th ed. 1880; Sacred Poems for Mourners, London, 1846; Notes on the Miracles of our Lord, 1846, 19th ed. 1886; Sacred Latin Poetry, 1849, 3d ed. 1874; The Star of the Wise Men, 1850; On the Study of Words, 1851, 19th ed. 1892; On the Lessons in Proverbs, 1853, 7th ed. 1879; Synonymes of the New Testament, Cambridge, 1854, 2d series 1863; together, 10th ed. 1886; Alma and other Poems, 1854; English, Past and Present, London, 1855, 11th ed. 1881; Life's a Dream: the Great Theatre of the World, from the Spanish of Calderon, with an Essay on his Life and Genius, 1856, 2d ed. 1880; Sermons, 1859; On the Authorized Version of the New Testament, in Connection with some Recent Proposals for its Revision, 1858 (reprinted by Dr. Schaff, with Ellicott and Lightfoot's treatises, New York, 1873); A Select Glossary of English Words used formerly in Senses differing from their Present, 1858, 5th ed. 1870; Sermons preached in Westminster Abbey, 1859; Commentary on the Epistles to the Seven Churches in Asia, 1861, 4th ed. 1885; Subjection of the Creature to Vanity (sermons), Cambridge, 1863; Two Sermons, 1864; Gustavus Adolphus: Social Aspects of the Thirty Years' War, 1865, 2d ed. 1872; Poems, collected and arranged anew, 1865, 9th ed. 1896, 1 vol.; Studies on the Gospels, 1867, 4th ed. 1878; Skiprecks of Faith (3 sermons), 1867; A Household Book of English Poetry, selected and arranged, 1868; Plutarch: his life, Lives and Morals, 1873, 2d ed. 1874; Lectures on Medieval Church History, 1877, 2d ed. 1879.

TRISTRAM, Henry Baker, D.D. (Durham, 1862), LL.D. (Edinburgh, 1868), F.R.S., Church of England; b. at Eglingham, Northumberland, May 11, 1822; educated at University College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (second-class classics) 1844, M.A. 1848; was ordained deacon 1845, priest 1846; was chaplain in Bermuda, 1847—49; rector of Castle Eden, County Durham, Eng., 1849—50; master of Greatham Hospital and vicar of Greatham, 1855—73; honorary canon of Durham, 1870—74; rural dean of Stockton, 1872—76; of Chester-le-Street, Western Division, 1876—80; and since 1880 of Durham; since 1874 he has been canon of Durham. He is (1885) proctor in convocation for the archdeaconry of Durham, and honorary association secretary of Church Missionary Society for Durham and Northumberland. He has travelled long and frequently in the East, especially in Syria and Palestine, to which he has made five expeditions. He was offered the bishopric of Jerusalem in 1879. He is the author of The Great Sahara, London, 1860; The Land of Israel, 1865, 4th ed. 1892; Natural History of the Bible, 1867, 5th ed. 1880; Ornithology of Palestine, 1867; Daughters of Syria, 1869, 3d ed. 1874; Seven Golden Candlesticks, 1871; Bible Places, 1872, 11th thousand, 1884; The Land of Moab, 1873, 2d ed. 1874; Pathways of Palestine, 1892, 2 vols.; Fauna and Flora of Palestine, 1896.

TROLLOPE, Right Rev. Edward, D.D. (Oxford, 1877), F.S.A., bishop suffragan of Nottingham, Church of England; b. at Caswick, Eng., April 15, 1817; educated at Christ Church, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1839, M.A. 1845; was ordained deacon 1840, priest 1841; was prebendary of Liddington in Lincoln Cathedral, 1867—74; since 1843 has been rector of Leasingham, with Roxholm, diocese of Lincoln; and bishop suffragan of Nottingham since 1877. He is the author of Illustrations of Ancient Art, London, 1854; Life of Pope Adrian IV., 1856; The Captivity of John, King of France, 1857; A Handbook of Lincoln, 1857; Temple Bruer and the Templars, 1857; The Introduction of Christianity into Lincolnshire, 1857; Labyrinths, Ancient and Medieval, 1858; Sepulchral Monuments, 1859; Fens and Submarine Forests, 1859; The Danes in Lincolnshire, 1859; Memorabilia of Grimsby, 1859; The Use and Abuse of Red Bricks, 1859; The Roman House at Apethorpe, 1859; The History of Workshop Priory, 1860; Monastic Gate-Houses, 1860; The Life of the Saxon Hereward, 1861; History of Anne Askewe, 1862; Battle of Bosworth Field, 1862; Shadows of the Past, 1863; The Raising of the Royal Standard at Nottingham, 1864; Spilsby and other Churches, 1865; Gainsborough and other Churches, 1866; The Norman Sculptures of Lincoln Cathedral, 1869; Grantham and other Churches, 1870; The Roman Ermine Street, 1868; The Norman and Early English Architecture, 1869; Boston and other Churches, 1870; Newark and other Churches, 1870; Newark Castle, 1871; The Battle of Stoke, 1871; Sleaford and the Wapentakes of Flaxwell and Aswardham, 1872; Holbeach and other Churches, 1872; South Park Abbey, South and other Churches, 1873; Churches in the Neighbourhood of Grantham (1875), of Newark (1870), of Southwell (1877), of Grimsby (1878), of Stamford (1879); Church Spires, 1875; Little St. Hugh of Lincoln, 1880; various sermons and charges.

TROUTBECK, John, D.D. (by archbishop of Canterbury, 1883), Church of England; b. at Blencowe, Cumberland, Eng., Nov. 12, 1832; educated at University College, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1856, M.A. 1858; was ordained deacon 1855, priest 1857; curate of St. Cuthbert, Wells, Somerset, 1855—58; vicar of Dacre, Cumberland, 1858—64; precentor and minor canon of Manchester, 1864—80; Sunday-evening lecturer of St. Matthew, Westminster, 1870—72; secretary of the New-Testament Revision Company, 1870—81; has been since 1869 minor canon of Westminster, and since 1883 honorary chaplain to the Queen. He edited The Manchester Psalter and Chant-Book, London, 1887; Westminster Abbey Hymn-Book, 1883.

TRUE, Benjamin Osgood, Baptist; b. at Plainfield, N.H., Dec. 17, 1845; graduated at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., 1866, and at Rochester (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1879; was pastor at Baldwinsville, N.Y., 1870—72; in Europe, 1872; pastor of First Baptist Church, Meriden, Conn., 1873—79; in Europe and the East, 1879—80; pastor of Central Baptist Church, Providence, R.I., 1880—81; since 1881 has been professor of ecclesiastical history in Rochester (N.Y.) Theological Seminary. He is the author of miscellaneous reviews, articles, etc.

TRUMBULL, Henry Clay, D.D. (Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1881; University of the City of New York, 1882); Congregationalist; b. at Stonington, Conn., June 8, 1850; was at Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass., 1844; education chiefly private; received honorary M.A. from Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1886; was TULLOCH, Very Rev. Principal John, D.D. (St. Andrew's, 1854), LL.D. (Glasgow and Edinburgh, 1844), Church of Scotland; b. near Tibermuir, Fife, June 1, 1828; d. at Torquay, Eng., Feb. 13, 1885. He was educated at St. Andrew's and Edinburgh; became parish minister at Dundee 1845, and at Keltins, Forfarshire, 1849; principal and primarius professor of divinity in St. Mary's College, St. Andrew's University, 1854; and senior principal of the university, 1860. His theological standpoint was thus defined by himself: "Broad evangelical. The aim is to see all Christian truth first in its pure historical form,—the mind of Christ, the thought of St. Paul, the teaching of St. James; then its living relation to the Christian consciousness,—what man needs, what God gives. The historic method, rightly applied, is the primary key to all Christian truth; and the renovation of theology is through this method bringing all Christian ideas freshly into the light of consciousness." He studied theology in Germany in 1847-48 and 1863-64. He was "especially attracted by Neander, and much interested by the problems raised by the Tubingen school and the writings of F. C. Bunsen, and attracted in later years by Dean Stanley's historical writings and Bishop Lightfoot's critico-historical essays." He was an ardent student of literature and philosophy, and his writings are very highly prized. He first came into notice when in Dundee, by his frequent contributions in the Dundee Advertiser; but later by his elaborate articles in the British Review, The British Quarterly, and Küto's Journal of Sacred Literature. Two of his articles—one on Carlyle's Life of Sterling (North-British Review, vol. iv., 1845), the other on Bunsen's Hipolytus (the same, vol. xix., 1853)—attracted wide attention; and the latter pleased Baron Busea that he successfully exerted his influence to press the claim of Mr. Tulloch to the then vacant principalship in St. Mary's College. His appointment when barely thirty years old to this position, one of the most dignified and responsible connected with the Established Church of Scotland, was naturally a great surprise and occasion of unfa vorable remark. But he soon proved his superior fitness for the office. In 1856 he was appointed one of the examiners of the Dick bequest, and so continued until his death. In 1858 he was deputed by the General Assembly of the Church to formally open the Scotch Presbyterian Church in Paris, and preached there during the summer. In 1859 he was appointed one of her Majesty's chaplains for Scotland, and often preached before the Queen at Crathie. In 1862 he became deputy clerk of the General Assembly, in 1875 succeeded Rev. Dr. Cook of Haddington as clerk, and in 1878 was elected moderator. The regard in which he was held, and the position he occupied, are authoritatively expressed in the following memorial passed by the senatus of the University of St. Andrew's immediately after his death:—

"The senatus record their deep sense of the severe loss the university has sustained in the death of its honored and revered Rev. Principal Tulloch, who for thirty-two years held the offices of principal and primarius professor of divinity in St. Mary's College, and for twenty-six years the office of senior principal in the university. During the whole of this period, Principal Tulloch devoted himself to the interests of the colleges and university with unwearied zeal and energy. The successful management of university affairs under critical circumstances was largely due to his wisdom and tact, his sound public judgment, commanding influence, and great executive ability. As chairman of the university council, Principal Tulloch's thorough knowledge of academic questions, and capacity for directing their discussion into useful channels, were equally conspicuous. As vice-chancellor, Principal Tulloch represented the university on public occasions with unfailing dignity and distinction. As a permanent member of the university court, his knowledge of official procedure, and scrupulous care and impartiality in dealing with judicial questions, were, in its early years, of the greatest service in helping to define the powers, and develop the functions, of the newly established tribunal; while to the end they constituted an important element in guiding the deliberations of the court, and giving weight to its decisions. As a university reformer, Principal Tulloch combined an enlightened regard for the past with the keenest perception of the newest forces and requirements of social and national life. Having carefully studied the university system of the country, and been familiar with its working for nearly half a century, he was supremely anxious that any changes initiated by the universities, or undertaken by the legislature, should be fully considered in the interest of the public, so as to extend the usefulness, and strengthen the national position, of the universities. While keeping up the standard of attainment, he felt that it was desirable to give greater elasticity to the curriculum, and thus make the whole system more widely fruitful in solid educational results. As a member of the Central Board of Education, Principal Tulloch was engaged for several years in the re-organization and extension of primary schools, and in various efforts for the multiplication of good secondary schools. The removal of so able, earnest, and experienced an adviser and authority is a heavy loss, alike to the universities of which Principal Tulloch was the senior representative, and to the educational interests of the country at large. The senate cannot but feel, indeed, that Principal Tulloch will occupy a foremost place in the history of the time, and has shed an undying lustre on the university he adorned. In placing on record this slight tribute to his worth, the members of the senate cherish with pride and gratitude the inspiring example of their late principal's noble character and life, and will ever hold in affectionate regard the memory of his generous nature, his goodness of heart, the warmth and fidelity of his attachments, his loyal and kindly qualities as a colleague and a friend."

Principal Tulloch was the author of Theism (second Burnett prize essay), Edinburgh, 1855; Leaders of Reformation, 1859, 3d ed. 1863; English Protestants and their Leaders, 1861; Beginning Life, 1862, 15th thousand 1880; The Life of the Gospels, and the Christ of Modern Criticism (against Renan), 1864; Rational Theology and Christian Philosophy, 1872, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1873; The Christian Doctrine of Sin, 1876; Pascal, 1876, 2d ed. 1882; The Christian Doctrine of Sin, 1877; Modern Theories in Philosophy and Religion, 1884; Movements of Religious Thought in Britain during the Nineteenth Century, 1885; numerous contributions to the new paper, press and to periodicals.

TUTTLE, Right Rev. Daniel Sylvester, D.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1857), Episcopal, diocesan bishop of Missouri; b. at Windham, Greene County, N.Y., Jan. 26, 1837; fitted for college in Delaware Academy, Delhi, N.Y.; taught in a boys' boarding-school at Scarsdale, N.Y., 1858-54; entered the sophomore class, and graduated at Columbia College, New-York City, 1857; was special private tutor to many boys preparing for Columbia College, 1857-59; entered the General Theological Seminary in the same city 1859, and graduated 1862; was assistant minister of Zion Church, Morris, N.Y., 1862-63; rector of the same, 1863-67; consecrated missionary bishop of Montana, with jurisdiction in Utah and Idaho, May 1, 1867; lived at Virginia City (1867-68) and Helena (1868-69), both in Montana; since September, 1869, has resided in Salt Lake City; in October, 1880, by the setting apart of Montana for a separate district, became missionary bishop of Utah with jurisdiction in Idaho. In 1868, was elected bishop of Missouri, but declined; in 1886 re-elected and accepted. He is an "old-fashioned High Churchman, of the Bishop Hobart school."

TYERMAN, Luke, Wesleyan; at Osmotherley, North Riding of Yorkshire, Feb. 26, 1829:
TYLER, William Seymour, D.D. (Harvard College, Cambridge, 1857), LL.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1871), Congregationalist; b. at Harford, Penn., Sept. 2, 1810; graduated (second honor) at Amherst College, Mass., 1830; studied theology at Andover, 1831-32, 1834-35; spent winter of 1835-36 with Rev. Dr. Skinner, in the class out of which Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, was developed; was teacher in Amherst Academy, 1830-31; tutor in Amherst College, 1832-34; licensed to preach by the Third Presbyterian of New York, May 29, 1836; ordained without charge by a Congregational Council held at Amherst, Oct. 6, 1839. He was professor of Latin and Greek in Amherst College, 1836-47; and since has been professor of Greek only. He was never a pastor, but has preached in his turn with the president and other professors in college, and often as supply in churches. He is the author of Germania and Agricola of Tacitus, with Notes for Colleges, New York, 1847, carefully revised 1852, revised and enlarged 1878; Histories of Tacitus, 1848; Prayer for Colleges (premium essay), 1854, revised and enlarged repeatedly; Plato's Apology and Crito, 1858, re-written and reprinted 1868; Memoir of Lobdell, Missionary to Assyria, Boston, 1859; Theology of the Greek Poets, 1867; Plutarch on the Delay of the Deity, etc. (with Prof. Hackett), N. Y., 1867; Address at Semi-Centennial of Amherst College, with other Addresses on that Occasion, 1871; History of Amherst College, 1873; Demosthenes, De Corona, Boston, 1874, numerous editions; Demosthenes, Philippica and Olynthiacs, 1875, numerous editions; Homer's Iliad, books xvi.-xxiv., New York, 1886; many articles, discourses, etc.
UHLHORN, Johann Gerhard Wilhelm, German Lutheran; b. at Osnabrück, Feb. 17, 1826; became repetent and privat-docent at Göttingen, 1852; consistorial councilor and court-preacher in Hanover, 1855; member of the consistory 1866, and abbot of Lokkum 1878. He is the author of Exponuntur librorum symbolicorum, Göttingen, 1848; Fundamenta chronologiae Tertulliianae, 1852; Ein Sendbrief von Antonius Corvinus an den Adel von Göttingen... mit einer biographischen Einleitung, 1853; Die Homilien and Recognitiones des Clemens Romanus, 1854; Das basilidianische System mit besonderer Rücksicht auf die Angaben des Hippolytus, 1855; Urbanus Rhegius, Elberfeld, 1861; Zwei Büder aus dem kirchlichen Leben der Stadt Hanover, Hanover, 1867; Das Weihnachtsfest, seine Sitten und Brauche, 1869; Das römische Concil, 1870; Der Kampf des Christenthums mit dem Heidenthum, Stuttgart, 1874, 3d ed. 1879 (English trans. by Profs. E. Smith and C. J. H. Ropes, The Conflict of Christianity with Heathenism, N.Y., 1879); Vermisschte Vorträge über kirchliches Leben der Vorgängenheit und der Gegenwart, 1875; Gnade und Wahrheit (sermons), 1876, 2 vols.; Die christliche Liebestätigkeit: 1 Bd. Die alte Kirche, 1881 (Eng. tr., Edinb., 1883); 2 Bd. Das Mittelalter, 1884.

UPHAM, Francis William, LL.D. (Union College, O., 1872); Methodist; b. at Duxbury, Plymouth County, Mass., May 19, 1834; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1854; pastor of the leading Methodist-Episcopal churches in New England from 1856 to 1881, when he became professor of practical theology in Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N.J.

UPHAN, Samuel Foster, D.D. (Mount Union College, 1872); Methodist; b. at Duxbury, Plymouth County, Mass., May 19, 1834; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1856; pastor of the leading Methodist-Episcopal churches in New England from 1856 to 1881, when he became professor of practical theology in Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N.J.

UPSON, Anson Judd, D.D. (Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1870), LL.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1880), Presbyterian; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., Nov. 7, 1823; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1843, where he was tutor 1845-49; professor of rhetoric, 1849-70; from 1870 to 1880 he was pastor of Second Presbyterian Church, Albany, N.Y.; but since has been professor of sacred rhetoric and pastoral theology in Auburn Theological Seminary, N.Y.; since 1874 he has been a regent in the University of the State of New York. He has published many addresses, sermons, and articles.
VAIL.

VAUGHAN, Right Rev. Thomas Hubbard, D.D. (Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1858), LL.D. (University of Kansas, Lawrence, Kan., 1875), Episcopal; b. in Richmond, Va., Oct. 21, 1812; graduated at Washington (now Trinity) College, Hartford, Conn., 1831, and at the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1835; and after ministerial service in St. James's Church, Philadelphia, and Trinity Church, Boston, he organized All Saints' Church, Worcester, Mass., 1836; became rector of Christ Church, Cambridge, Mass., 1837; of St. John's Church, Essex, Conn., 1839; of Christ Church, Wexterly, R.I., 1844; of St. Thomas's Church, Taunton, Mass., 1857; of Trinity Church, Muscatine, Ia., 1863; first bishop of Kansas, 1864. As a Churchman he is evangelical, liberal, conservative. He edited, with memoir, Rev. Augustus Foster Lyte's Buds of Spring (poems, with additional poems of his own), Boston, 1838; and is the author of Plan and Outline, with Selection of Books under Many Heads, of a Public Library in Rhode Island, 1838; Hannnah: a Sacred Drama (published anonymously), Boston, 1839; The Comprehensive Church, 1841, 3d ed. New York, 1883; Reports (of school committees with taliles), 1873; Mensuration, Surveying and Navigation, 1873; Astronomy, 1874; Physical Diagnosis, 1874; Pathology, 1878; various tracts, etc.

VALENTINE, Milton, D.D. (Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., 1860), Lutheran (General Synod); b. near Uninton, Carroll County, Md., Jan. 1, 1825; graduated at Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., 1850; became tutor in the college, 1850; pastoral supply, Winchester, Va., 1852; missionary at Allegheny, Penn., 1853; pastor at Greensburg, Penn., 1854; principal of Emmaus Institute, Middletown, Penn., 1855; pastor of St. Matthew's, Reading, Penn., 1859; professor of ecclesiastical history and church polity in the theological seminary of the Lutheran Church, Gettysburg, Penn., 1866; president of Pennsylvania College, 1868; has been president and professor of systematic theology in the Gettysburg Theological Seminary since 1884. He edited The Lutheran Quarterly, 1871-75, 1880-88. He is the author of Natural Theology, or Rational Theism, Chicago, 1865; numerous pamphlets and addresses; since 1855, frequent contributions in The Eclectic Review and in The Lutheran Quarterly.

VAN DYCK, Cornelius Van Allen, M.D. (Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, 1839), D.D. (Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1869), Reformed (Dutch); b. at Kinderhook, N.Y., Aug. 13, 1818; educated at Kinderhook Academy, and in medicine at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia; appointed missionary of the A. B. C. F. M. for Syria, 1839; sailed from Boston, January, 1840; arrived at Beirut, April 2, 1840; was ordained by Syrian Mission in council, Jan. 14, 1840; principal of Missionary Seminary, 1845-52; then missionary in the Sidon field till 1857; translated the Bible into Arabic from 1857, and manager of the Mission Press 1857-80; physician to St. John's Hospital, and professor of pathology in the Syrian Protestant College, Beirut, till 1882; since then physician to St. George's Hospital. He is "broad Calvinistic" in his theology. He taught Hebrew in Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, while superintending the printing of his translation of the Arabic Bible at the American Bible Society, 1866-67. He translated into Arabic, the Westminster Assembly's Shorter Catechism, Beirut, 1843, last ed. 1884; Schönberg-Cotta Family, 1886; and is the author in Arabic of School Geography, Beirut, 1850, 3d ed. 1888; Algebra, 1853, 2d ed. 1877; Elements of Euclid, 1857; Treatise on Arabic Vernacular, 1857; Chemistry, Organic and Inorganic, 1859, Trigonometry and Logarithms (with tables), 1873; Mensuration, Surveying and Navigation, 1873; Astronomy, 1874; Physical Diagnosis, 1874; Pathology, 1878; various tracts, etc.

VAN DYKE, Henry Jackson, D.D. (Westminster College, Mo., 1890), Presbyterian; b. at Abington, Montgomery County, Penn., March 2, 1822; graduated at University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1843; studied at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1843-44; became pastor at Bridgeport, N.J., 1845; at Germantown, Penn., 1852; and in Brooklyn, N.Y., 1853. In 1876 he was moderator of the General Assembly at Brooklyn.

VAN DYKE, Henry Jackson, Jun., D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1884), Presbyterian; b. at Germantown, Penn., Nov. 10, 1852; graduated at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1873, and at Princeton Theological Seminary 1877, of which latter institution, since 1884, he has been a director. He studied in Berlin University; became pastor of the United Congregational Church, Newport, R.I., 1879, and of the Brick Presbyterian Church, New-York City, 1882. Besides contributions to various periodicals, he has published The Reality of Religion, N.Y., 1894, 2d ed. 1896.

VAN VLECK, Henry Jacob, bishop of the Unity (Moravian); b. in Philadelphia, Jan. 29, 1822; graduated at Moravian Theological Seminary, Bethlehem, Penn., 1841; was teacher in Nazareth Hall, Northampton County, Penn., 1841-44; in the Moravian Parochial School, Salem, N.C., 1845-48; in Nazareth Hall, 1849-50; principal of the Moravian Parochial School at Nazareth, Penn., 1850-66; was ordained deacon at Nazareth, Penn., 1863; presbyter at Lititz, Penn., 1867; pastor at South Bethlehem, Penn., 1866-74; at Gradenhutten, Fry's Valley, and at Ross, O., 1874-82; at Fry's Valley, O., since 1882; consecrated a bishop, Sept. 18, 1881, being appointed by the Provincial Synod of 1881, and the Unity Elders' Conference in Berthelsdorf, Germany, both appointments being sanctioned by "the Lot." Both his grandfather and father were bishops; a fact unprecedented in the Moravian Church.

VAUGHAN, Very Rev. Charles John, D.D. (Cambridge, 1845), dean of Lindalff, Church of England; b. at Leicester, Aug. 6, 1816; became scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge; Craven University scholar; Porson prizeman, 1836-37; Browne's medallist for Greek ode and epigrams, and Member's prizeman for Latin essay, 1837; chancellor medallist and B.A. (senior classic) 1838, M.A. 1841; was ordained deacon and priest 1841; was fellow of Trinity College, 1839-42; vicar of St. Martin, Leicester, 1841-44; head master of Harrow School, 1844-59; chaplain in ordinary to the Queen, 1851-79; vicar of Doncaster, and rural dean, 1860-69; chancellor of York Cathedral, 1860-71; select preacher at Cambridge 1861-82; and at Oxford 1875 and 1876. Since 1869 he has been master of the Temple, London; since 1878, dean of Llandaff; and since 1892, deputy clerk of the Closet. He was a member of the Cambridge University Commission 1852-62, and of the New Testament Revision Company 1870-81. He is the author of a number of volumes of sermons, parochial, academical, etc., and of St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans, London, 1859, 3d ed. 18-; Memoriais of Harrow Sundays, 1859, 4th ed. 1885 (with Dr. Rawnsley, 1822 Press); In Memoriam, A. H., 188; Revelation of St. John, 1883, 5th ed. 1888; Church of the First Days: Lectures upon the Acts of the Apostles, 1863-65, 3 vols., 3d ed. 1873; Temple Sermons, 1881; Authorized or Revised? Lectures on Texts differing in the Two Versions, 1882; The Church School and its Officers, 1883; The Church of the Covenant, New-York City, 1873.

With Dr. Charlton T. Lewis he translated Bengel's Gnomon of the New Testament, Philadelphia, 1892; and has since written, besides tracts, articles, and the minor volumes, Amusement a Force in Christian Training (1867), The Two Prodiguls (1870), and The Expositor in the Pulpit (1884), Gates into the Psalm-country (expository discourses), 1878, last ed. 1883; Stranger and Guest (five tracts), New York, 1879; The Minister's Handbook, 1882; In the Shadow of the Pyrenees (travels), 1883; God and Bread (sermons), 1884.

VINCENT, Marvin Richardson, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1888), Presbyterian; b. at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., Sept. 11, 1834; graduated at Columbia College, 1854; became professor of Latin in Troy University, N.Y., 1858; pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Troy, 1863, and of the Church of the Covenant, New-York City, 1873.
VOLKMAR, Gustav, Swiss Protestant; b. at Hersfeld, Hessia, Jan. 11, 1809; studied at Marburg, 1829–32; taught in various places; became privat-docent at Zürich 1853, professor extraordinary 1858, and ordinary professor 1863. He is the author of Das Evangelium Marcions, Leipzig, 1852; Ueber Justin den Märtyrer und sein Verhältniss zu unsern Evangelien, Zürich, 1853; Die Quellen der Ketzergeschichte bis zum Nicäum, kritisch untersucht, 1855 (1st vol.); Die Religion Jesu und ihre Entwicklung, Leipzig, 1857; Das vierte Buch Esra und apokalyptische Geheimnisse überhaupt, Zürich, 1858; Handbuch der Einleitung in die Apokryphen, Tübingen, 1860–63 (1st part); Commentar zur Offenbarung Johannis, Zürich, 1862; Der Ursprung unserer Evangelien, 1866; Mose Prophetie und Himmeinsfahrt, Leipzig, 1867; Die Evangelien des Marcus und die Synopse d. kan. u. ausserkan. Evangelien, mit Com., 1869, 2d ed. 1876; Zwingli, sein Leben und Wirken, Zürich, 1870;Die römische Papstmythe, 1873; Die Herkunft Jesu Christi nach der Bibel selbst, 1874; Die neutestamentlichen Briefe erklärt, 1. Bd. 1875; Die Kanon. Synoptiker ... u. das Geschichtliche vom Leben Jesu, 1876; Jesus Nazarenus und die erste christliche Zeit, 1882; Die neunzehntenteilige christliche Schrift "Lehre der Zwölfe Apostel," 1st and 2d ed. 1885; edited Polycorpi Smyrnai epistolae genuine, 1885.

VOYSEY, Charles, theist; b. in London, March 18, 1828; educated at St. Edmund Hall, Oxford; graduated B.A., 1851; held various curacies; was vicar of Healaugh, Yorkshire, 1864–71; deprived Feb. 11, 1871, in consequence of rationalistic views upon the Bible; and has since lectured and preached independently in London. His sermons are published weekly, and in several volumes under title, The Sting and the Stone, London, 1868, sqq., vol. viii., 1881; Mystery of Pain, Death, and Sin, 1879; also Fragments from Reimarus, vol. i., 1879.
W.

WACE, Henry, D.D. (Oxford, 1839, Edinburgh, 1882), Church of England; b. in London, Dec. 10, 1830; educated at Brasenose College, Oxford; graduated B. A. (second class in classics and mathematics) 1860, M.A. 1873, B.D. 1882; was ordained deacon 1861, priest 1862; was curate of St. Luke's (1861-63), and of St. James's (1863-69), London; lecturer of Grosvenor Chapel, 1870-72; chaplain of Lincoln's Inn, 1872-80; Boyle lecturer, 1874-75; professor of ecclesiastical history in King's College, 1875-83; select preacher at Cambridge, 1875; Hampton lecturer at Oxford 1870, and select preacher 1878-82. Since 1880 he has been preacher at Lincoln's Inn; since 1881, prebendary in St. Paul's Cathedral; since 1883, chaplain to the archbishop of Canterbury, and principal of King's College; and since 1884, honorary chaplain in ordinary to the Queen. He is the author of Introduction to the Pastoral Epistles, in the Bible Commentary; and of Christian Biography, Literature, Sects, and Doctrines: some of the Chief Facts in the Life of our Lord, 1883; 2d ed. 1884; The Student's Manual of the Evidences of Christianity, 1889; joint editor with Dr. William Smith of A Dictionary of Christian Biography, Literature, Sects, and Doctrines, from the Time of the Apostles to the Age of Charlemagne, 1880-86, 4 vols.; with Professor Buchheim, of The First Principles of the Reformation, or the Primary Works of Luther, 1884; and alone of The Bible (Speaker's) Commentary on the Apocalypse, 1886, 2 vols.

WADDINGTON, Charles, French Reformed; b. in Paris, June 10, 1819; became doctor of letters in Paris, 1849; taught philosophy in the Sorbonne, 1850-56; at Strassburg, 1856-64; and since in the Paris faculty. Among his works may be mentioned Romans, sa vie, ses écrits, et ses opinions, Paris, 1855; Essais de logique (crowned by) the Academy, 1857; De l'âme humaine, 1862; De la philosophie de la Renaissance, 1872; De l'autorité d'Aristote au moyen âge, 1877. He is a founder of the Société de l'histoire du protestantisme français (1852), and a chevalier of the Legion of Honor (1866).

WAGENMANN, Julius August, German Protestant; b. at Berneck, Württemberg, Nov. 23, 1823; studied at Tubingen, 1841-45; and at Upsala Consistory. His subsequent writings in defence of his position have excited great interest, and stirred up a great controversy. He is also a leader in the Free-Church movement in Sweden, and in consequence frequently prosecuted by the Upsala Consistory. He resigned his clerical position in the State Church in 1880. For baptizing two children in September, 1884, he was prosecuted by the Consistory, but by appeal to the king he was cleared. He is a member of the Swedish Parliament. [His eloquence renders him an attractive and powerful preacher, and the Free-Church movement owes much to him. See M. W. Montgomery, A Wind from the Holy Spirit in Sweden and Norway, New York, 1884.] Of his numerous and highly popular writings, all in Swedish, may be mentioned, Sermons over the New Pericopes of the Swedish Church, Stockholm, 1868-90, 4 vols.; The Lord is Holy, 1876 (reprinted in Chicago, Ill.), and translated into German (Leipzig, 1877); The Eternal Decree of Election, 1880 sqq., 3 vols.; The History of Infant-Baptism; The New Testament, newly translated, with Notes, 1888 sqq.

WALDENBROM, Paul Potter, Swedish Lutheran Church; b. at Luleå, a town in the northern part of Sweden, July 20, 1838; graduated as Ph.D. at the University of Upsala 1863; ordained 1864; became head master of gymnasium at Umeå, and of that at Gelfe 1874. He came into conflict with Lutheran Orthodoxy in 1872, upon the doctrine of the atonement, in regard to which he holds that the reconciliation through Christ is of us to God, not of God to us; not per gratiam propter Christum salvatio, but propter gratiam per Christum. The subject is God, the Father of Christ; the source is the love of God; the object is the whole world; the mediator is Christ, the only begotten Son of God; the end is the restitution of man to God, not the redemption of God to men. His subsequent writings in defence of his position have excited great interest, and stirred up a great controversy. He is also a leader in the Free-Church movement in Sweden, and in consequence frequently prosecuted by the Upsala Consistory. He resigned his clerical position in the State Church in 1880. For baptizing two children in September, 1884, he was prosecuted by the Consistory, but by appeal to the king he was cleared. He is a member of the Swedish Parliament. [His eloquence renders him an attractive and powerful preacher, and the Free-Church movement owes much to him. See M. W. Montgomery, A Wind from the Holy Spirit in Sweden and Norway, New York, 1884.] Of his numerous and highly popular writings, all in Swedish, may be mentioned, Sermons over the New Pericopes of the Swedish Church, Stockholm, 1868-90, 4 vols.; The Lord is Holy, 1876 (reprinted in Chicago, Ill.), and translated into German (Leipzig, 1877); The Eternal Decree of Election, 1880 sqq., 3 vols.; The History of Infant-Baptism; The New Testament, newly translated, with Notes, 1888 sqq.
WALKER, Right Rev. William David, S.T.D. (Racine College, Wis., 1883; Columbia College, New-York City, 1884). Episcopal, missionary bishop of North Dakota; b. in the city of New York, June 29, 1839; graduated at Columbia College, New-York City, 1855, and at the General Theological Seminary there 1862; as deacon, took charge of Calvary Chapel, New-York City, October, 1862; ordained priest, June 29, 1863; remained in charge of Calvary Chapel until Feb. 1, 1884, when he resigned to enter upon his episcopate to which he was elected October, 1883; consecrated bishop, Dec. 20, 1888. He is the author of Funeral Address, New York, 1888; Convocation Address, 1884.

WALSH, Right Rev. William Pakenham, D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1873), lord bishop of Ossory, Ferns, and Leighlin; b. in Ireland, about the year 1820; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; graduated B.A. 1841, M.A. 1853, B.D. 1873; ordained deacon 1843, priest 1844; became curate of Avoca, 1843; of Rathdrum, 1845; chaplain of Sandford, 1853; dean of Cashel, 1873; bishop, 1878. He is the author of Christian Missions (1862),对照 The Lord, or Illusions of Christ, 1875; Daily Readings for Holy Seasons, Advent to Epiphany, 1875; Ancient Monuments and Holy Writ, 1875, 2d ed. 1878; Heroes of the Mission-Field, 1878, 2d ed. 1882; The Decalogue of Charity, 1882.

WALThER, Carl Ferdinand Wilhelm, D.D. (Capital University, Columbus, O., 1877), Lutheran (Missouri Synod); b. at Langenichursdorf, Saxony, Oct. 25, 1811; graduated at the University of Leipzig 1833; emigrated in 1838; and since 1849 has been professor of theology, and president of Concordia Seminary, and pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran joint congregation, St. Louis, Mo. [He is the founder and leader of the Missouri Synod, the most orthodox branch of the Lutheran Church in America, which has grown very rapidly, both numerically and financially, and has become the second largest denomination in the country, Va., and to Cumberland City, Md., 1845; edited The Columbian Fountain, a daily and weekly temperance journal, at Washington, D.C., 1846-47; was pastor in Philadelphia, 1848-50; at Uniontown, Md., 1857-69; Alexandria, Va., 1868-69.; Libertytown, Md., 1869-94; at New York, D.C., 1865-66; president of Western Maryland College, Westminster, Carroll County, Md., 1867-68; since, president of the Western Theological Seminary in the same place. He is the author of A Tribute to the Memory of George Alexander Johnson, Philadelphia, 1853; Thanksgiving Day and Christmas (sermon and poem), Baltimore, 1885; several pamphlets; many contributions to church periodicals, including a series of sketches and reminiscences of ministers in The Methodist Recorder, 1884, etc.

WARD, Julius Hammond, Episcopal: b. at Charlton, Worcester County, Mass., Oct. 12, 1837; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1859; educated at Berkeley Divinity School, Middletown, Conn.; was rector of Christ Church, Ansonia, Conn., 1862-65; of St. Peter's, Cheshire, Conn., 1865-67; missionary at Rockland and Thomaston, Me., 1867-75; rector of St. Michael's, Marblehead, Mass., 1875-78; since then has been a constant writer on religious subjects in the secular and religious press. He is the author of Life and Letters of James Gates Percival, Boston, 1866; The Modern Church, and The Bible in Modern Thought (both prepring); and numerous articles, etc.

WARD, William Hayes, D.D. (University of New-York City, and College of New Jersey, Princeton, both 1873), L.L.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1885), Congregationalist; b. at Abington, Mass., June 25, 1838; educated at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and at Amherst College, Mass.; graduated B.A., 1860; studied in Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1866-57; in the Sheffield Scientific School, New Haven, Conn., 1857; was tutor in Beloit College, Wis., 1887-58; in Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1858-59 (graduated); was pastor at Oakalossa and Grasshopper Falls, Wis., 1869-77; in Wisconsin, east of Lake Michigan; at Easthampton, Mass., 1861; at Utica, N.Y., 1862-66; professor of Latin, Ripon College, Wis., 1865-67; associate editor New-York Independent, 1868-71; has been superintending editor since 1871. He was director of the Wolfe Exploration to Babylonia, 1894-95. He edited (with Mrs. Lanier) Sidney Lanier's Poems, New York, 1884; has contributed to Bibliotheca Sacra, Journal American Oriental Society, Proceedings Palestine Exploration Society, etc.

WARFIELD, Benjamin Breckinridge, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1880); Presbyterian; b. at Lexington, Ky., Nov. 5, 1831; graduated at Princeton College 1871, and Theological Seminary 1876; since 1879 has been professor of New-Testament language and literature at Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn. He has written several review articles.

WARNECK, Gustav, Ph.D. (Jena, 1870), D.D. (hon., Halle, 1883), German Protestant; b. at Naumburg, Germany, March 6, 1834; studied at the University of Halle, 1855-58; became hofprediger at Roitzsch, 1862; archidiakonus at Dommitzsch, 1863; missionariskantor at Barmen, 1871; pastor at Rothenschihrnbach, near Esleben, 1874.
WARNER, Zebedee D.D. (Otterbein University, Westerville, O., 1875); United Brethren in Christ; b. at Pendleton County, Va. (now in "Test Virginia"), Feb. 28, 1833; studied at Clarksburg (Va.) Academy, left in 1852; graduated in Chautauqua Sunday-School Normal Course, 1879; entered on pastoral work, 1854; was presiding elder, 1861-89; in charge of church at Parkersburg, W. Va., 1868; resident elder, 1870-73; was transferred to Philadelphia Conference, 1871; to New-York East, 1874; to Pennsylvania and ancient languages at Wilbraham, Mass., 1858; joined the New-England Conference in 1855; was at Richert's Jesr Christ, Gotha, 1867; at Bethany, Conn., April 8, 1814; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1838; presided at Granby, Conn., 1842; Mt. Carmel, Conn., 1846; Philadelphia, Pa., 1848; was corresponding secretary of the American Seamen's Friend Society, New-York City, 1856; secretaries, American Tract Society, Boston, 1859; editor and book publisher in Boston, 1870; editor of The Christian Mirror, of Maine, October, 1875; editor and proprietor of the same, Portland, Me., April 1, 1877. In 1839, when the controversies on slavery, which at length eventuated in the civil war, were at their height, the American Tract Society of Boston withdrew from its connection with the society of the same name at New York, and commenced a distinct publication work of its own. Mr. Warren, who had sometime earlier, during his experience in connection with his work for seamen, was chosen secretary of the Boston society, in charge of its publication department. In this capacity he served eleven years, until May, 1850, when, the causes which led to the separation of the two societies having disappeared, it was deemed advisable to re-unite them, and transfer the publishing work and material of the Boston society to that of New York. During this period a very large number of tracts, books, and periodicals, were issued under his editorial care. The Tract Journal and Child at Home were for families, and for several years The Sabbath at Home, an illustrated monthly magazine. The Christian Banner was distributed in great numbers in the army and navy. The Freedman and The Freedman's Journal were small monthly sheets for the use of the emancipated blacks. About five hundred different tracts and pamphlets were issued, and five hundred and twenty-five volumes of various sizes, making an aggregate, including periodicals, of 55,672,276 copies. In addition to the ordinary uses of this class of publications, there was a very wide distribution among the soldiers and sailors in service; and another, of matter provided specially for them, among the freedmen, to aid in the incipient stages of their education. The entire cost of these publications, from May 1, 1859 to May 1, 1870, was $1,002,907.00. Dr. Warren is the author of the following publications: Sermons, On Female Education (Hartford, 1852), On the Death of Zarah Mary Langdon of Plymouth (June, 1853), On Finished Work: Pastoral Valedictory (January, 1856). Tracts and pamphlets, A Corpse in a Ball-dress (Boston, 1859), The Pemerton Mill (1860), How to Begin to be a Christian (1861), A Happy New Year (1864), The Flag of Our Country (1864), The Death of the Soul (1867, pp. 28), How to Repent (1867, pp. 31), How to Be Born (1867, pp. 32), Bound volumes, The Seamen's Cause: embracing the History, Results, and Present Condition of the Efforts for the Moral Improvement of Seamen, New York, 1858; The Sisters, a Memoir of Elizabeth H., Abbie A., and Sarah F. Dickerman, Boston, 1858 (often reprinted); Saiduceism, a Refutation of the Doctrine of the Annihilation of the Wicked, 1860, pp. 98 (the same work re-

WARREN, William Fairfield, D.D. (Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, 1862), LL.D. (Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1874), M.D. (University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, 1853); graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1853; entered the Methodist ministry, 1854; studied at Berlin and Halle, and travelled in Europe and the East, 1856-58; was professor of systematic theology in the Methodist Missionary Institute at Bremen, 1861-65; acting president of Boston Theological Seminary, and professor of systematic theology, 1866-71; dean of the School of Theology, Boston University, 1871-73; since 1873 has been president of Boston University, and professor of comparative history of religions, comparative theology, and philosophy of religion. He is the author of Anfangsgriine Parovhria, A Critical Study of the Scripture Doctrines of Christ's Second Coming, his Reign as King, the Resurrection of the Dead, and the General Judgment, Portrait, Me., 1879, 2d ed. (re-written and enlarged) 1884; Our Father's Book, or The Divine Authority and Origin of the Bible, Boston, 1865; The Book of Revelation, a Study, New York, 1868; The Stanley Families in America, 8vo., Portland (in press).

WAYLAND, Heman Lincoln, D.D. (Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1889), Baptist; b. (son of President Francis Wayland) at Providence, R.I., April 23, 1830; graduated in Brown University there, 1849; studied at Newton Theological Institution, Mass., 1849-50; taught the academy at Townsend, Vt., 1850-51; was resident grad-
WEAVER, Jonathan, D.D. (Otterbein University, Westerville, 1873), bishop of the United Brethren in Christ; b. in Carroll County, O., Feb. 29, 1824; raised on a farm; educated in common schools and Hagerstown Academy, O.; began preaching when twenty-one; was pastor, 1847–52; presiding elder, 1852–57; general agent for Otterbein University, 1857–65; bishop since 1865, re-elected five times; now in Ohio diocese. He is the author of Discourses on the Resurrection, Dayton, O., 1871, two editions; Ministerial Salaries, 1873, two editions; The Public Pulpit, 1873, three editions; Universal Restoration not sustained by the Word of God, 1878, two editions.

WEIDNER, Revere Franklin, b. at Centre Valley, Lehigh County, Penn., Nov. 22, 1851; graduated at Muhlenberg College, Allentown, Penn., and at the Evangelical Lutheran Theological Seminary at Philadelphia; pastor at Phillipsburg, N.J., 1854–61; chaplain of the Seventh Connecticut Volunteers, 1861–64; home missionary at Nashua, N.H., 1865–67; professor of rhetoric and logic in Kalamazoo College, Mich., 1865–70; president of Franklin College, Ind., 1870–72; bisho of the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis; Universal Restoration not sustained by the Word of God, 1878, two editions; Divine Providence, 1873, three editions; Das ewige Evangelium und seine Lucas-Parallelen, 1872; Das Matthäusevangelium und seine Lucas-Parallelen, 1872; Die Bibel im nachconstantinischen Zeitalter, Gotha, 1877; Die Revolutionskirchen Englands, 1875; Zur Anleitung zur Kirchengeschichte, Berlin, 1876, 2 vols.; and of numerous contributions to periodicals.

WEISS, Bernhard, D.D., German Protestant; b. at Königsberg, June 20, 1872; studied there and at Halle and Berlin; became privat-docent at Königsberg, 1882; became extraordinary professor of theology, 1883; ordinary professor at Kiel 1883, and at Berlin 1877, where, since 1880, he has been superior consistorial councilor, and councillor to the department of spiritual affairs. He is the author of Der pietistische Lehrbegriff, Berlin, 1855; Der Philippinbrief, 1859; Die johanneische Lehrbegriff, 1862; Lehrbuch der bibliischen Theologie des Neutestaments, 1876, 4th ed. 1884; Das Marcusevangelium u. seine synoptischen Parallelen, 1872; Das Matthäusevangelium und seine Lucas-Parallelen, 1876; Das Leben Jesu, Berlin, 1882, 2 vols. 2d ed. 1894 (Eng. trans. Edinburgh, 1883–84, 3 vols.). Dr. Weiss has revised and rewritten Meyer’s Commentary on Matthew (Göttingen, 1888), Mark and Luke (1878), John (1880), and Romans (1891), Timothy and Titus (1885).

WEISS, Hermann, D.D. (Konstanz, Tübingen, 1877), German Protestant; b. at Rottenburg, Württemberg, Dec. 6, 1833; studied at Tübingen and at the Evangelical Seminary 1847–51, and at Tübingen 1851–55; was rector at Tübingen, 1858–61; die konstitutionellen Auswirkungen der evangelischen Lehre, 1873, two editions; die konstitutionellen Auswirkungen der evangelischen Lehre, 1873, three editions; Universal Restoration not sustained by the Word of God, 1878, two editions.

WEITZSCÄKER, Karl (Heinrich) von, German Protestant; b. at Öhringen, Württemberg, Dec. 11, 1822; became privat-docent of theology 1847, preacher 1848, and court chaplain 1851, at Stuttgart; superior consistorial councilor, 1857; and in 1861 Baur’s successor in the theological faculty at Tübingen. From 1856 to 1878 he edited the Jahrbücher für deutsche Theologie, and in it wrote numerous articles. He is also the author of Zur Kritik des Barnabasbriefes aus dem Codex Sinaiticus, Tübingen, 1863; Untersuchungen über die evangelische Geschichte, Gotha, 1884; Lehrer und Unterricht an der evangelisch-theologischen Facultät der Universität Tübingen von der Reformation bis zur Gegenwart, Tübingen, 1877.

WELCH, Ransom Bethune, D.D. (University of City of N.Y., 1885), LL.D (Maryville College, N.Y., 1872), Presbyterian; b. at Greenville, N.Y.; graduated from Union College 1846, and from Auburn Theological Seminary 1852; was (Reformed Dutch) pastor at Gilboa 1854–56, and at Catskill, N.Y., 1856–59; professor of rhetoric, logic, and English literature in Union College, N.Y., 1866–70, and since 1870 of theology in Auburn Theological Seminary. He is the author of The Church and the State, 1867, 2d ed. 1880; Outlines of Christian Theology, 1881; and numerous articles in periodicals.

WELLES, Right Rev. Edward Randolph, S.T.D. (Racine College, Wis., 1874), Episcopal, bishop of Wisconsin; b. at Waterloo, Seneca County, N.Y., Jan. 10, 1830; graduated at Hobart Col-WESTCOTT.

WELTHAUSEN, Hans Hinrich, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1878), D.D. (Academia, Nova Scotia, 1884), Baptist; b. at Hameln-on-the-Weser, May 17, 1844; studied at Göttingen under Heinrich Ewald, 1862-65; became there privat-dozent of theology, 1870; ordinary professor at Greifswald, 1872; professor in the philosophical faculty at Halle, 1882; at Marburg, 1885. His theological position is "Polytheismus und Monotheismus zugleich." He says that he left the theological faculty at Greifswald in 1882 of his accord ("freiwillig") "in dem Bewusstsein, durchaus nicht mehr auf dem Baden der evangelischen Kirche oder des Protestantismus zu stehen." He is the author of John Lightfoot, or the Religious Office of the Universities, 1873; The Pariser Vortrage, 1874; Protogenomen zur Geschichte Israels, Berlin, 1875, 3d ed. 1886; Skizzen und Vorarbeiten, I. 1884, II. 1885.

WELTON, Daniel Morse, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1878), D.D. (Academia, Nova Scotia, 1884), Baptist; b. at Aylesford, Kings County, Nova Scotia, July 20, 1831; graduated at Acadia College, N.S., 1855; studied as resident graduate there, 1855-56; at Leipzig, Germany, 1857-78; was pastor of the Baptist Church at Windsor, N.S., 1857-74; professor of theology, University of Acadia College, 1874-84; of Semitic languages and Old-Testament interpretation, Toronto Baptist College, Can., 1888 to date. He is the author of John Lightfoot, or the History of Hebrew Learning in England, Leipzig, 1878 (doctor's dissertation).

WENDT, Karl, D.D. (Tübingen, 1879), D.D. (Göttingen, 1883), German Protestant; b. in Hamburg, June 18, 1853; studied at Tübingen; became privat-dozent of theology at Göttingen, 1877; professor extraordinary, 1881; ordinary professor at Kiel, 1888, at Heidelberg, 1885. He is the author of Die Begriffe Fleisch und Geist im biblischen Sprachgebrauch, Göttinga, 1878; (edited 5th edition of Meyer's) Commentar über die Apostelgeschichte, Göttingen, 1880; Die christliche Lehre von der menschlichen Vollkommenheit, 1882; Die Lehre Jesu, first part (Die evangelischen Quellenberichte über die Lehre Jesu), 1886.

WERNER, Karl, D.D. (Vienna, 1845), Roman Catholic; b. at Hafinanbach, Lower Austria, March 8, 1821; graduated at the University of Vienna; taught theology and philosophy in the Episcopal Seminary at St. Pölten, 1847-70, and New-Testament theology in the University of Vienna, 1871-82. He is k.k. Ministerialrat, and member of the Vienna Imperial Academy of Sciences. Besides numerous articles upon medieval scholasticism and recent Italian philosophy, he has written System der christlichen Ethik, Regensburg, 1850-52, 3 vols.; Grundlinien der Philosophie, 1855; Der heilige Thomas von Aquino, 1858-69, 3 vols.; Grundrisse einer Geschichte der Moralphilosophie, Vienna, 1859; Franz Suarez u. die Scholastiker der letzten Jahrhunderte, Regensburg, 1880-81, 2 vols.; Geschichte der apologetischen und polemischen Literatur der christlichen Theolohen, Schaffhausen, 1864, 5 vols.; Exegetisches handbuch, moral. Vierteljahr., 1863; Über Wesen und Begriff der Menschenseele, Brixen, 1865, 3d ed. Schaffhausen, 1867; Geschichte der katholischen Theologie Deutschlands seit dem Triener Concil, Munich, 1868; Speculative Anthropologie, 1864; Religionen und Culte des vorchristlichen Heidentums, Schaffhausen, 1865; Geschichte der ethischen Lehre des Mittelalters und seine Zeit, Vienna, 1875, 3d ed. 1881; Alcin und sein Jahrhundert, 1876, 2d ed. 1881; Gerbert von Aurillac, die Kirche und Wissenschafl seiner Zeit, 1878, 2d ed. 1881; Giambattista Vico als Philosoph und gelehrter Forscher, Brixen, 1880, 2d ed. 1881; Die Scholastik des spätern Mittelelters, 1881 sqq., vol. iii. 1883; Die Italienische Philosophie d. XIX. Jahrhunderts, 1884 sqq., vol. v. 1886.

WEST, Robert, Congregationalist; b. at Coal Run, Washington County, O., Sept. 14, 1845; graduated at Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O., 1870; became pastor of the First Cong. Church, Alton, Ill., 1872; superintendent of home missions in the South-West for the Home Missionary Society, 1876-81; pulpit supply in Boston, 1881-82; editor-in-chief of The Advance (Congregational organ), Chicago, July, 1882.

WESTCOTT, Brooke Foss, D.D. (Cambridge, 1870, hon., Edinburgh, 1884), D.C.L. (hon., Oxford, 1881), Church of England; b. near Birmingham, Jan. 12, 1825; was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; Battie University scholar, 1848; Browne medallist for Greek ode, 1846-47; Latin essay (Undergraduate Bath.), 1847, 1849; B.A. (equal senior classic, twenty-second wrangler, and chancellor's medallist) 1851, B.D. 1854; was ordained deacon and priest, 1851; was elected fellow of Trinity College, 1849; was Norrishian prizerman, 1850; assistant master at Harrow School, 1852-69; examining chaplain to the bishop of Peterborough, 1868-69; canon residiary, 1869-83; rector of Somersham with Felid and Colne, Hunts, 1883-84; honorary chaplain to the Queen, 1875-79; select preacher at Oxford, 1877-80. Since 1870 he has been regius professor of divinity, Cambridge; since 1879, chaplain in ordinary to the Queen; since 1882, fellow of King's College, Cambridge; since 1883, examining chaplain to the archbishop of Canterbury; and since 1884, canon of Westminster. In May, 1885, he declined the deanship of Lincoln. He was a member of the New-Testament Revision Company (1870-81), is a contributor to the Bible (Speaker's) Commentary (Gospel of John), to Smith's Dictionary of the Bible and of Christian Biography; and is the author of Elements of Gospel Harmony, Cambridge, 1851 (Norrisian essay), to A General Survey of the History of the Canon of the New Testament during the first four centuries, London, 1855, 5th ed. 1881; Characteristics of the Gospel Miracles, 1859; Introduction to the Study of the Gospels, 1860, 6th ed. 1882; The Bible in the Church, 1864, 9th ed. 1885; The Gospel of the Resurrection, 1868, 5th ed. 1884; A General View of the History of the English Bible, 1865; Christian Life Manifest and One (sermons), 1872; Some Points in the Religious Office of the Universities, 1873; The Paraphrase Psalter, arranged for the use of choirs, Cambridge, 1879, 2d ed. 1881; The Revelation of the Risen Lord, London, 1892; The Gospel according WESTON.                                        234

WHITON.

...
cesses, all manifested in the world of the past, present, and future. Redemption is essentially a constructive rather than a reconstructive process. Atonement is the Divine process of the reconciliation of man to God, by an expiatory satisfaction — mediated through the historical experience of the Christ, producing an adequate repentance — to that which is of God in conscience. The norm of conscience for faith, duty, and hope, is in the Holy Scriptures, whose authority as a divine revelation centres in the living Word of God, the Christ, speaking therein. The promised advent of the Christ is now being progressively realized in the life of the world that now is, and the resurrection likewise in the life of the world to come. He is the author of Latin Lessons, Boston, 1860; Greek Lessons, New York, 1861; Select Orations of Lysias, Boston, 1875, 2d ed. 1881; "Is Eternal Punishment Endless?" 1876, 2d ed. 1877 (maintaining that endless punishment is not decisively revealed in the New Testament: it raised a question neither by St. Paul, nor by St. John, nor in the Apocrypha; but it is not a dogma of the Church. He was the second son of Pastor Christian Christoph Wieseler, and younger brother of the well-known Friedrich Wieseler, professor of philology and archeology at Göttingen. In his seventh year both his parents died; and he was brought up by near relatives, who first thought to make him a forester. He attended the gymnasium at Salzwedel from 1826 to 1831; then the university of Göttingen, where he was especially influenced by Lücke, from 1831 to 1835. In the latter he became repetens, 1839; privat-docent of Old and New Testament exegesis, 1839; professor extraordinary there, 1843; ordinary professor at Kiel, 1851; at Greifswald, 1863. In 1870 he was made Consistorialrat and member of the Pommeranian Consistory at Stettin, and discharged these latter duties, in connection with those of his professorship, until his death. He was the author of De christiano capitis penas vel admittenda vel repudianda fundamento (prize essay), Göttingen, 1855; Num loci Mk. xvi.9—20 et Jo. 21 genuit sin nec ne indigatur eis, ut aditus ad historiam apparitionum J. Christi sive conscribendam aperiat, 1839; Auslegung und Kritik der apokalyptischen Literatur des A. u. N. T., 1 Teil. The 70 Wochen and the 65 Jahrwochen of the Prophet Daniel, erörtert und erläutert mit steter Rücksicht auf die biblischen Parallelren sowie Geschichte und Chronologie, nebst einer historisch-kritisch Untersuchung über den Sinn, etc., der Worte Jesu von s. Parwies in den Evang., 1839; Chronologische Synopsis der vier Evangelien, ein Beitrag zur Apologie der Evangelien und evangelischen Geschichte vom Standpunkte der Voraussetzungslösung, Hamburg, 1848 (English trans., Chronology of the Four Gospels, London, 1848; another trans. by E. Venables, A Chronological Synopsis of the Four Gospels, London, 1876, 2d ed. 1878. His chief results are: birth of Jesus, 750 A.U.C.; imprisonment of the Baptist, Purim 782 A.U.C.; day of Jesus' death, April 7, 783 A.U.C., or 30 A.L.; Chronologie des apostolischen Zeitalters bis zum Tode

WHITSITT, William Heth, D.D. (Mercer University, Macon, Ga., 1874), Baptist; b. near Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 25, 1841; studied at Union University, 1857-60; was first private, then chaplain, in the 4th United States Artillery, 1861-65; studied at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va., 1866, and at the Southern Baptist Seminary (then at Greenville, S.C., since 1877 at Louisville, Ky.), 1872-74; was pastor at Albany, Ga., February—July, 1872; professor of biblical introduction and ecclesiastical history in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, 1872 to date. He has published The Relation of Baptists to Culture (his inaugural address, published in The Baptist Quarterly, 1872); History of the Rise of Infant Baptism, Louisville, Ky., 1878; History of Communion among Baptists, 1880.

WHITTLE, Right Rev. Francis McNeece, D.D. (Theological Seminary of Ohio, Gambier, O., 1867), LL.D. (College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va., 1873), Episcopalian, bishop of Virginia; b. in Mecklenburg County, Va., July 7, 1828; graduated at the Theological Seminary of Virginia, near Alexandria, 1847; became rector of Kanawha Church, Kanawha County, Va., 1847; St. James's, Northern Parish, Goochland County, 1849; Grace, Berryville, 1852; St. Paul's, Louisville, Ky., 1857; assistant bishop of Virginia, 1869; bishop, 1876.

WIBERG, Andreas, Baptist; b. in the parish of Tune, province of Helsingland, in the North of Sweden, July 17, 1816; graduated at the University of Upsala, 1843, and received holy orders the same year at the same place; took the S.C. "pastoral degree" at Upsala in 1847; received the degree of M.A. from the University of Lewisburg, Penn., U.S.A., in 1854; was minister in the Lutheran State Church of Sweden, 1843-51; colporter evangelist in the service of the American Baptist Publication Society among sailors in New York, and immigrants in the West of the U.S.A., 1852-1858; Baptist missionary in Sweden, 1855 to date. He is the author, in Swedish, of "Who is to be baptized?" Upsala, 1852; "Christian Baptism as set forth in the Holy Scriptures" (published both in English and Swedish), Philadelphia, U.S.A., 1854, 3d ed. Philadelphia, 1873; "Translation of the Gospel according to St. Matthew, with Commentary" Stockholm, 1858; "The Evangelist" (bi-monthly), 1856-73; "The Doctrine of the Holy Scripture on Sanctionification," 1868; "The Doctrine of Justification," 1869; "Come to Jesus," 1870; "Unity of Christians," 1872; "The Church and its Work" and "The Holy Spirit" (pamphlets), London, 1884; Three Months' Preparation for Baptism, 1885; The Divine Satisfaction, London, 1886; frequent contributions to the religious journals, occasional articles in The New-Englander, etc.

WIESELER, Karl, Lic. Theol. (Göttingen, 1839), D.D. (hon., Kiel, 1846), German theologian; b. at Altenzelle, near Celle, Hannover, Feb. 28, 1813; d. at Greifswald, March 11, 1883. He attended the gymnasium at Altenzelle, near Celle, Hannover, Feb. 28, 1813; d. at Greifswald, March 11, 1883. He attended the gymnasium at Altenzelle, near Celle, Hannover, Feb. 28, 1813; then the university of Thiningen, where he was especially influenced by Lücke, from 1831 to 1835. In the latter he became repetens, 1839; privat-docent of Old and New Testament exegesis, 1839; professor extraordinary there, 1843; ordinary professor at Kiel, 1851; at Greifswald, 1863. In 1870 he was made Consistorialrat and member of the Pommeranian Consistory at Stettin, and discharged these latter duties, in connection with those of his professorship, until his death. He was the author of De christiano capitis penas vel admittenda vel repudianda fundamento (prize essay), Göttingen, 1855; Num loci Mk. xvi.9—20 et Jo. 21 genuit sin nec ne indigatur eis, ut aditus ad historiam apparitionum J. Christi sive conscribendam aperiat, 1839; Auslegung und Kritik der apokalyptischen Literatur des A. u. N. T., 1 Teil. The 70 Wochen and the 65 Jahrwochen of the Prophet Daniel, erörtert und erläutert mit steter Rücksicht auf die biblischen Parallelren sowie Geschichte und Chronologie, nebst einer historisch-kritisch Untersuchung über den Sinn, etc., der Worte Jesu von s. Parwies in den Evang., 1839; Chronologische Synopsis der vier Evangelien, ein Beitrag zur Apologie der Evangelien und evangelischen Geschichte vom Standpunkte der Voraussetzungslösung, Hamburg, 1848 (English trans., Chronology of the Four Gospels, London, 1848; another trans. by E. Venables, A Chronological Synopsis of the Four Gospels, London, 1876, 2d ed. 1878. His chief results are: birth of Jesus, 750 A.U.C.; imprisonment of the Baptist, Purim 782 A.U.C.; day of Jesus' death, April 7, 783 A.U.C., or 30 A.L.; Chronologie des apostolischen Zeitalters bis zum Tode WILKINER, William Cleaver, D.D. (University of Rochester, N.Y., 1873). He is the author of the "Internal Administration of the Congregational Churches," Montreal, 1883, 3 editions; numerous sermons, college addresses, etc.

WILLIAMS.

1884; College Latin Course in English, 1885 (the four books constitute "The Afterschool Series," of which, up to 1886, more than a hundred thousand volumes had been sold); Poems, 1883; Edwin Arnold as Poetizer and as Paganizer, 1885.

WILLCOX, Giles Buckingham, D.D. (University of the City of New York, 1881); Congregationalist; b. in New-York City, Aug. 7, 1826; graduated at Yale, 1847; taught in the Theological Seminary, Mass., 1849; became pastor at Fitchburg, Mass., 1853; Lawrence, 1856; New London, Conn., 1859; Jersey City, N.J., 1869; Stamford, Conn., 1875; professor of pastoral theology and special studies in Chicago Theological Seminary, 1879. He has contributed frequently to religious periodicals.

WILLIAMS, Right Rev. Channing Moore, S.T.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1887), Episcopalian, missionary bishop of Yedo, Japan; b. at Richmond, Va., July 15, 1829; graduated from the College of William and Mary, Virginia, 1853, and from the Theological Seminary of Virginia, near Alexandria, 1855; became missionary bishop of China (with jurisdiction in Japan), 1856; removed in 1837, and immediately endeavored to convert in 1843 the first church of Virginia, always maintained to preside; but to him, under God, belongs the credit of being the founder of that organization which has spread all over the world, and to it he has freely given his time and his means. He was the treasurer of the parent association from 1863 to 1885, succeeding Mr. Hitchcock; and is now president, succeeding the late Earl of Shaftesbury. He was taken by Mr. Hitchcock into partnership, and now is the head of the firm of Hitchcock, Williams, & Co., in which establishment he was a clerk. Besides the Young Men's Christian Association, Mr. Williams is the president of the Commercial Travellers' Christian Association, the Christian Community, the Young Men's Foreign Missionary, and of several other societies. He takes an active interest in the British and Foreign Bible Society, the London City Mission, the Sunday-school Union, the Bishop of London's Diocesan Council for Young Men, the Young Women's Christian Association, and many others.

The success of the Young Men's Christian Association was assured from the start. Its membership was twelve on June 6; in five months the association numbered seventy, each of whom had been carefully examined as to his Christian zeal before admittance, and religious services had been founded by it in ten drapers' establishments. On March 6, 1845, the membership was 160; on Nov. 5, 1846, the second annual meeting, branch associations in different places in London and in other cities were reported. In 1848, 480 members in London, and 1,000 in all, were reported. In 1849 the Earl of Shaftesbury became president, and so continued until his death, Oct. 1, 1885, when he was succeeded by Mr. Williams. In September, 1886, it was reported that there were 3,376 branch associations throughout the world, with nearly 200,000 members and associates. For an interesting and trustworthy history of the parent association, see George J. Stevenson's Historical Records of the Young Men's Christian Association from 1844 to 1884, London, 1884; for a brief account of the movement in general, see article, Young Men's Christian Association, in the Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia, vol. iii. 292-296.

WILLIAMS, Right Rev. John, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1847; Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1849; Columbia College, New WILLIAMS, William R., LL.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1850), Congregationalist, layman; b. at Utica, September, 1812; d. at New Haven, Conn., Feb. 17, 1884. He studied at the Rensselaer School, Troy, N.Y.; went to China in 1833 as a printer for the A.B.C.F.M. Mission Board at Canton; published, in 1835, Dr. Marsh's Hokkien Dictionary (Chinese), 1835; visited Japan, 1837, and translated into Japanese Genesis and Matthew; assisted in editing The Chinese Repository, Canton, 1838-51; was interpreter to Commodore Perry's Japan expedition, 1853-55; became secretary and interpreter of the American Legation, Peking, 1855; assisted in negotiating the treaty with China, 1856. He returned to the United States in 1845, where he taught in Chinese in Yale College, New Haven, Conn. He became president of the American Bible Society, 1865-1886. He was the author of Ancient Hymns of Holy Church, Hartford, 1845; Thoughts on the Gospel Miracles, New York, 1848; The English Reformation (Paddock Lectures), 1881; The World's Witness to Jesus Christ (Bedell Lectures), 1882; editor of Bishop Harold Browne's Exposition of the Thirty-nine Articles, 1885; many sermons and review articles.

WILLIAMS, Samuel Wells, LL.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1850), Congregationalist, layman; b. at Utica, September, 1812; d. at New Haven, Conn., Feb. 17, 1884. He studied at the Rensselaer School, Troy, N.Y.; went to China in 1833 as a printer for the A.B.C.F.M. Mission Board at Canton; published, in 1835, Dr. Marsh's Hokkien Dictionary (Chinese), 1835; visited Japan, 1837, and translated into Japanese Genesis and Matthew; assisted in editing The Chinese Repository, Canton, 1838-51; was interpreter to Commodore Perry's Japan expedition, 1853-55; became secretary and interpreter of the American Legation, Peking, 1855; assisted in negotiating the treaty with China, 1856. He visited the United States in 1845, where he taught in Chinese in Yale College, New Haven, Conn. He became president of the American Bible Society, 1865-1886. He was the author of Ancient Hymns of Holy Church, Hartford, 1845; Thoughts on the Gospel Miracles, New York, 1848; The English Reformation (Paddock Lectures), 1881; The World's Witness to Jesus Christ (Bedell Lectures), 1882; editor of Bishop Harold Browne's Exposition of the Thirty-nine Articles, 1885; many sermons and review articles.

WILSON, Henry Rowan, M.D. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1832), D.D. (Washington College, Washington, Penn., 1850), Presbyterian; b. at Bellefonte, Penn., June 10, 1808; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1828; studied at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1830-32; was missionary to the Cherokee and Choctaw Indians, 1832-57; missionary of A.B.C.F.M. to India, stationed at Futtahgur, 1837-42; agent of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions at Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, 1842-43; pastor of Neshaminy Church, Penn., 1843-48; pastor of First Church, Sewicklyville, Allegheny, Penn., 1845-55; pastor of Fairmount Church, Sewickleyville, Penn., 1855-60; stated supply Beansale Church, 1860-66; president of the Springfield (O.) Female College, 1861-63; district secretary of the Board of Domestic Missions, St. Louis, Mo., 1865-69; correspondence secretary of the Board of Church Extension, St. Louis, Mo., 1868-70; corresponding secretary of the Board of Church Extension, N.Y. City, from its organization, 1871, to his death, June 8, 1886. He wrote many articles...
WILSON.

on home and foreign missions and church erection.

WILSON, John Leighton, D.D. (Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1854), Presbyterian (Southern Church); b. in Sumter County, S.C., March 25, 1809; d. near Marysville, S.C., July 13, 1886; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1829, and at Theological Seminary, Columbia, S.C., 1832; was organist in the Presbyterian Church, New York City, 1853-61; the same for the Southern Presbyterian Church, Columbia, S.C. (now Baltimore, Md.), since 1851. He edited The Foreign (Missionary) Record, New York, 1853-61, and The Missionary, Baltimore, since 1858. He is the author of The History, Condition, and Prospects, New York, 1857; between thirty and forty articles in reviews of United States and England, notably one on the slave-trade, written about 1852, in which the proposed withdrawal of the British squadron from the coast of Africa, under the impression that the slave-trade could not be broken up, was opposed. Of the article, Lord Palmerston had many thousand copies printed and circulated to prevent the withdrawal.

WILSON, Joseph Ruggles, D.D. (Oglethorpe University, Milledgeville, Ga., 1837), Presbyterian; b. at Steuben, O., Feb. 28, 1828; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1844; studied at Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1845, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1846-48; was pastor at Chartiers, Penn., 1848-51; professor of natural sciences at Hampden-Sidney College, Va., 1851-53; pastor at Staunton, Va., 1856-58; Augusta, Ga., 1858-70; professor of pastoral theology and homiletics in Columbia Theological Seminary, S.C., 1870-74; pastor at Wilmington, N.C., 1874-85; professor of theology in Southwestern Presbyterian University, Clarkeville, Tenn., 1885 to date. He has been stated clerk of the Southern General Assembly since 1861, and has represented it in other ecclesiastical bodies; was a member of the second general council of the Alliance of the Reformed Churches, Philadelphia, 1880, and read a paper on Evangelism; is a contributor to The South Presbyterian Review, etc.

WILSON, Robert Dick, Presbyterian; b. at Indiana, Penn., Feb. 4, 1836; graduated at College of New Jersey, Princeton, N.J., 1876, and at Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1879; became instructor in the latter institution, 1880; professor of Hebrew, Chaldee, and Old Testament literature in the same, 1886.

WILSON, Right Rev. William Scot, LL.D. (speciali gratia Trinity College, Dublin, 1859), lord bishop of Glasgow and Galloway; b. in Scotland, about the year 1807; graduated at King's College and University of Berneen, M.A., 1827; ordained deacon 1827, priest 1829; was chaplain to the bishop of Ross and Argyle, 1827-32; incumbent of Holy Trinity, Ayr, 1839-84; synodical clerk of the united diocese of Glasgow and Galloway, 1840-45; dean, 1845-59; became bishop 1859.

WING, Conway Phelps, D.D. (Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1857), Presbyterian; b. at Marietta, O., Feb. 12, 1828; graduated from Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1848, and at Auburn Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1851; was pastor at Sodus, N.Y., 1851-54; Ogden, N.Y., 1856-38; Monroe, Mich., 1884-87; Huntsville, Ala., 1842-48; Carlisle, Penn. (First Church), 1848-76. He was active in the revivals of 1832-35, in the anti-slavery agitation in Western New York, zealous in opposition to slavery in Tennessee and Alabama, a member of the Council of Reconstruction for the Presbyterian Church in 1870. He was an adherent of the New-School branch of the Presbyterian Church, but a warm supporter of the re-union in 1869 and 1870. He translated Hase's Manual of Ecclesiastical History (with Professor Blumenthal), New York, 1856; King's Commentary on Second Corinthians (with large additions) in Schaff's edition of Lange's Commentary, 1868; wrote History of the Presbyteries of Donegal and Carlisle, Carlisle, 1876; A History of the First Presbyterian Church of Carlisle, 1877; A History of Cumberland County, Penn., 1879; Historical and Genealogical Register of the Descendants of John Wing of Sandeck, New York, 1886, 2d ed. 1886; eleven elaborate articles in Presbyterian and Methodist Quarterly Review; two extensive articles in McClintock and Strong's Cyclopaedia, vols. iv., v. (1870 and 1872); many articles in New-York Evangelist and in The Christian Observer, etc.

WINGFIELD, Right Rev. John Henry Ducachet, D.D. (William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va., 1869), LL.D. (d. 1874), Episcopal, missionary bishop of Northern California; b. at Portsmouth, Va., Sept. 24, 1839; graduated from St. Timothy's College, Md., 1856, and from William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va. (with gold medal for prize essay), 1853; was tutor at former college, 1850-52, 1853-54; at the Church Military Academy, New York, 1854-55; studied at the Theological Seminary of Virginia, Alexandria, Va., 1855-56; was principal of the Ashley Institute, Little Rock, Ark., 1856-58; ordered deacon 1858, priest 1859; assistant minister in Christ Church, Little Rock, 1858; the same in Trinity Church, Portsmouth, Va. (of which his father was rector), 1858-64; rector of Christ Church, Rockspring, Harford County, Md., 1864-68; assistant minister in Trinity Church, Portsmouth, Va., 1866-68; rector of St. Paul's Church, Petersburg, Va., 1868-74; of Trinity Church, San Francisco, Cal., 1874; returned to Petersburg, Va., 1874; consecrated bishop there, Dec. 2, 1874; had charge of his parish until April 1, 1875, when he removed to his jurisdiction, and now resides at Benicia, Cal. He founded St. Paul's School for Young Ladies, Petersburg, Va., and became rector and professor, 1871; became president of the missionary College of St. Augustine, 1875; rector of St. Paul's Church, and rector of St. Mary's of the Pacific girls' school, 1876,—the three at Benicia, Cal.; declined election to the bishopric of Louisiana, 1879, and to the assistant bishopric of Mississippi, and to the rectorship of Grace Church, San Francisco, Cal., both in 1882. He has published sermons, addresses, pastoral letters, articles, etc.
University of Munich 1837-60; became privat-docent of theology at Munich, 1864; professor of theology at Würzungh, 1867; at Munich, 1874. He is the author of Die Nazorder, Regensburg, 1864; Die Lehre des heiligen Hilarus von Poitiers über die Selbsentäuferung Christi, 1865; Encyclo- pädie der katholischen Theologie, Landskalt, 1874; Ueber das Sittengesetz, Würzburg, 1878; Die moral- istische Lehre der Religion, Freiburg, 1881; Ueber das kath. Priesterthum, Straubing, 1882.

WISE, Daniel, A.M., D.D. (both hon., Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1849, 1859, respectively), Methodist; b. at Portsmouth, Eng., Jan. 10, 1813; educated in Portsmouth Grammar School; removed to the United States, 1835; was pastor of various churches, 1837-52; editor of Zion's Herald, Boston, 1852-56; editor of the Sunday-school publications of the Methodist-Episcopal Church (including editorship of Sunday-school Advocate and Sunday-school Teacher's Journal), and corresponding secretary of the Sunday-school Union 1856-72, and of the Tract Society of said church, and editor of tract publications, including Good News, a tract periodical, New York City, 1860-72; supernumerary preacher, disabled through disease of the throat from much pulpiti work, but engaged in authorship, 1872 to date. He published and edited the first Sunday-school paper ever issued for the Sunday schools of the Methodist-Episcopal Church. It was originally a magazine published by D. S. King in Boston in 1836. He purchased it in 1838, changed it into a paper, and continued his connection with it, either as publisher or editor, until 1844. It was subsequently merged into The Sunday-school Advocate, published in New York by the book-agents of the Methodist-Episcopal Church. He is the author of Life of Lorenzo Dow, Lowell, Mass., 1840 (one edition of four thousand copies); History of Lon- don for Boys and Girls, 1841 (one edition of four thousand copies); Personal Effort, Boston, 1841, last ed. 1864; Questions on Romans, Lowell, 1849, last ed. 1869; Catholic Missionary, New York, 1845, last ed. 1870; McGregor Family, 1845, last ed. 1864; Infant Teacher's Manual, 1845, last ed. 1880; Benevolent Traveller, 1846, last ed. 1867; Lovest Thou Me?, Boston, 1848, last ed. 1882; Guide to the Saviour, New York, 1847, last ed. 1877; The Path of Life, Boston, 1847, last ed. 1885; Bridal Greetings, New York, 1850, last ed. 1884; Life of Ulric Zwingle, 1850, last ed. 1882; Young Man's Counsellor, Boston, 1850, last ed. 1883; Young Lady's Counsellor, 1851, last ed. 1883; Aunt Effie, New York, 1852, last ed. 1885.; My Uncle Toby's Library, 12 vols., nom de plume of Francis Forrester, Boston, 1853; Precious Lessons from the Lips of Jesus, 1854, last ed. 1892; Living Streams from the Fountain of Life, 1854, last ed. 1882; Sacred Echoes from the Harp of David, 1855, last ed. 1882; Popular Objections to Methodism Considered and Answered, 1856, last ed. 1886; God's Morris Stories, 5 vols., nom de plume of Francis Forrester, Esq., Boston, 1857; Pleasant Pathways, 1859, last ed. 1879; Lindendale Stories, 5 vols., nom de plume of Lawrence Lancewood, Boston, 1865, last ed. 1883; Hollywood Stories, 6 vols., nom de plume of Francis Forrester, Esq., Philadelphia, 1872, last ed. 1885; Little Life of Brown, New York, 1873, last ed. 1877; The Square of Walton Hall: a Life of Waterton the

WISE. 240

WITHROW, Thomas, D.D. (Presbyterian Theo- logical Faculty of Ireland, 1883), LL.D. (Royal University of Ireland, 1885), Irish Presbyterian; b. at Ballycastle, County Londonderry, May 29, 1824; educated at Belfast College 1839-43; and at Free Church College, Edinburgh, under Dr. Chalmers, 1843-44; became pastor at Maghera, 1845; and professor of ecclesiastical history, Magee College, Londonderry, 1865. He was moderator of the Irish General Assembly, 1878; became editor of The Londonderry Standard (tri-weekly), 1878; and senator of the Royal University, 1884. He is the author of Three Prophets of our Own, Belfast, 1855, 2d ed. Derry, 1860; Which is the Apostolic Church? an Inquiry, Belfast, 1856 (reprinted Edinburgh, 1884; London, 1889; and Philadelphia, n.d.); The Scriptural Baptism, Bel- fast 1854 (reprinted, Edinburgh, 1884; Italian trans. Florence); Derry and Enniskilen in 1869, Belfast, 1873, 3d ed. 1883; The Thome and Aghrin: Story of Famous Battlefields in Ireland, 1879; His- torical and Literary Memoirs of Irish Presbyte- rianism, London, 1879, 2 vols.; and various smaller works and review articles.

WITHERSON, Thomas Dwight, D.D. (Uni- versity of Mississippi, Oxford, Miss., 1867), LL.D. (the same, 1885), Presbyterian (Southern Church); b. at Greensborough, Hale County, Ala., Jan. 17, 1838; graduated at University of Mississippi, 1858, and at the Columbia Theological Seminary, S.C., 1859; was post-graduate student in the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, 1871-73; pastor at Oxford, Miss., 1859-65; chaplain in the Confederate Army, 1861-65; pastor of the Second Church, Memphis, Tenn., 1865-70; chaplain of the Confederate Army, 1871-73; pastor of Tabb-street Church, Petersburg, Va., 1873-82; of First Church, Louisville, Ky., 1882 to date. He has declined elections to professorships in Columbia Theological Seminary, the presidency of David Dun- son College, Mecklenburg County, N.C., and of other literary institutions. He is the author of Children of the Covenant, Richmond, Va., 1873, 3d ed. 1874, later editions; Letters on Romanism, 1882.

WITHROW, John Lindsay, D.D. (Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1872), Congregationalist; b. at Coatesville, Chester County, Penn., March 19, 1837; graduated at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1840, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1845, became pastor of Presbyterian Church, Abington, Penn., 1853; of the Arch-street Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, Penn., 1868; of the Second Presbyterian Church, Indianapolis, Ind., 1873; of the Park-street Congregational Church, Boston, Mass., 1876. He is consistently conservative, and thoroughly wanting in sympathy with so-called progressive theology.

WITHROW, William Henry, D.D. (University of Victoria College, Cobourg, Can., 1882), Methodist; b. at Toronto, Can., Aug. 6, 1839; educated at Toronto Academy, Victoria College, Cobourg, and Toronto University; graduated at the last, B.A. 1863, M.A. 1864; was in the Methodist ministry at Montreal, Hamilton, Toronto, and Niagara, 1864–73; professor of ethics and metaphysics in Wesleyan Ladies' College, Hamilton, 1873–74; since has been editor of Methodist Magazine and Sunday-school periodicals.

WOERTER, Friedrich, O. (Freiburg, 1855), during college course; declined presidency of Roanoke College, Va., 1877. He has written numerous articles in the religious press, and separately issued The Church's Future, Gettysburg, 1882; The Drama of Providence on the Eve of the Reformation, 1884.

WOOD, John George, Church of England; b. in London, July 21, 1827; educated at Ashbourne Grammar School; entered Merton College, Oxford, 1844; elected Jackson's scholar, 1846; graduated B.A. 1848, M.A. 1851; attached to anatomical museum for two years; ordained deacon 1852, priest 1854; was curate of St. Thomas's, Oxford, 1852–54; assistant chaplain to St. Bartholomew's Hospital, London, 1858–62; reader at Christ Church, Newgate Street, London, 1858–62; elector precentor of the Canterbury Diocesan Choral Union, 1855; resigned, 1876. He was associate commissioner (educational department) International Exhibition, Paris, 1867. In 1880 he began to deliver sketch-lectures on natural history, illustrated by colored pastel drawings, executed before the audience, upon a large sheet of canvas; in October or November, 1883, delivered the opening course of the Lowell Lectures in Boston, Mass.; subsequently delivered many sketch-lectures in America during 1884 and 1885. He is the author of Natural History, London, 1862; Anecdotes of Animal Life, 1854–55, 2 vols.; My Feathered Friends, 1857; Common Objects of the Skin, 1857; Common Objects of the Country, 1858; Illustrated Natural History, 1856–63, 3 vols.; Glimpses into Pet-land, 1863; Homes without Hands, 1865; Bible Animals, 1869; Insects at Home, 1871; Insects Abroad, 1874; Man and Beast, 1874–75, 2 vols.; Pet-land Revisited, 1884; Old and New Testament Histories for Schools, 1894; Nature's Teachings, 1876; Graduated Natural-History Readers for Schools, 5 vols.; Man and his Handiwork, 1895; Horse and Man, 1885, etc. (Most of these works are being continually reprinted, the number of editions not being specified.)

WOODBRIDGE, Samuel Merrill, D.D. (Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1857; Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1858), L.L.D. (Rutgers College, 1883), Reformed (Dutch); b. at Greenfield, Mass., April 5, 1819; graduated at the New-York University, 1838, and at the Theological Seminary at New Brunswick, became pastor at South Brooklyn, N.Y., 1841; Coxackie, 1850; New Brunswick, N.J., 1852; and professor of ecclesiastical history and church government, and dean of the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church, New Brunswick, 1857. He is the author of Analysis of Theology, New York, 1872, 2d ed. 1892.

WOODFORD, Right Rev. James Russell, D.D. (by Archbishop of Canterbury, 1869), lord bishop of Ely, Church of Scotland; b. at Henley-on-Thames, April 30, 1820; d. at Ely, Oct. 24, 1888. He was late scholar of Pembroke College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (senior of the second-class classical tripos) 1842. M.A. 1845; ordained deacon 1848, priest 1845; was second master of Bishop College, Bristol, 1848–49; perpetual curate of St. Saviour's, Coalpit Heath, 1845–48; of St. Mark's, Eaton, Bristol, 1848–55; vicar of Kempshott, Gloucester, 1855–56; examined chaplain to the Bishop of Oxford and Winchester, 1888–73; vicar of Leeds, 1868–73; select preacher at Cambridge, 1894, 1897, 1873, 1875, 1878; honorary chaplain to the Queen, and honorary canon of Christ Church, 1867; consecrated bishop, 1873. He was the author of The Church Past and Present (four lectures), 1852; Sermons, London, 1873, 3 vols.; Six Lectures on the Creed, 1855; Occasional Sermons, 1859-61, 2 series. 2nd ed. 1861-65; Ordination Sermons, 1861; Christian Sacraments (four sermons), Cambridge, 1863; Ordination Sermons, 1872.

WOODROW, James, Ph.D. (Heidelberg, Germany, 1856). M.D. (Hon., Medical College, Augusta, Ga., 1861). D.D. (Hampden-Sidney College, Prince Edward County, Va., 1871). LL.D. (Davidson College, twenty miles from Charlotte, S.C., 1888), Presbyterian (Southern Church); b. at Carlisle, Eng., May 30, 1828; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1849; studied at Heidelberg, Germany, 1856-59, and elsewhere in Europe, 1856; was professor of natural sciences, Oglethorpe University, Atlanta, Ga., 1858-61; in South-Carolina University, whose headquarters are at Columbia, S.C., 1869-72; and in South-Carolina College, Columbia, the chief part of the university, 1880, to the present. In 1861 he became professor of natural science in connection with revelation, in the Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Columbia, S.C.; was removed by board of directors, Dec. 10, 1884, on account of views presented in an address on Evolution, delivered in May, 1884; the act not removed, but was still in office. He then resumed his duties as chairman of the faculty and professor. He was ordained in 1860; since 1861 has edited The Southern Presbyterian, and since 1886 The Southern Presbyterian.

WOODRUFF, Frank Edward, Congregationalist; b. at Eden, Vt., March 30, 1855; graduated at the University of Vermont at Burlington, 1875, and at the Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1881; was fellow of his class, and as such studied two years in Germany and Greece (Tübingen, Berlin, and Athens); was inaugurated as associate professor of literature in Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1883.

WOOLEY, Theodore Dwight, D.D. (Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1847). LL.D. (Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1845), Congregationalist, son of William W. Woolsey, a prosperous merchant of New-York City, and of Eliza Dwight, sister of President Dwight of Yale College, New Haven, Conn.; b. in New-York City, Oct. 31, 1801; entered Yale College 1816, graduated 1820; for a year (1820-21) studied law in New-York City, without a view to practising it, and then theology at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J. for nearly two years (1821-22); was a tutor at Yale College for about two years (1823-25); soon afterwards went to Europe, where he spent three years, chiefly in France and Germany. In Germany he studied Greek; at Leipzig under Godfrid Hermann, at Bonn under Weiker, and at Berlin under Boesck and Bopp. Returning to the United States, 1828, he was tutor of Greek at Yale College in 1831; and held the office actively until 1846, when he was chosen president of Yale College, which position he continued in for twenty-five years, until 1871, when he resigned his connection with the institution, and withdrew from public life. He was a member of the American Company of Revision of the New Testament, and its chairmen (1871-81). He is the author of editions of the Greek text, with English notes, for the use of college students, of the Alestes of Euripides, Cambridge, 1854; the Anthology of Sophocles, 1835; the Prometheus of Eschylus, 1837; the Electra of Sophocles, 1837; and the Gorgias of Plato, 1843; Introduction to the Study of International Law, designed as an Aid in Teaching and in Historical Studies, Boston, 1880, 5th ed. enlarged, New York 1879, London 1875, 2d ed. 1879; Essays on Divorce and Divorce Legislation, with Special Reference to the United States, New York, 1869, 2d ed. revised 1882; Religion of the Present and of the Future: Sermons preached chiefly at Yale College, 1871; Political Science, or the State, theoretically and practically considered, 1877, 2 vols. (originally Boston, 1858-60, 2 vols.); besides, he is the author of smaller works and a number of essays and reviews, e.g., in The North American, Princeton Review, The Century, and especially in The New Englander, of which latter for several years after its first appearance (1843) he was one of a committee of publication.

WOOLSEY, Theodore Dwight, D.D. (Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1847). LL.D. (Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1845), Congregationalist, son of William W. Woolsey, a prosperous merchant of New-York City, and of Eliza Dwight, sister of President Dwight of Yale College, New Haven, Conn.; b. in New-York City, Oct. 31, 1801; entered Yale College 1816, graduated 1820; for a year (1820-21) studied law in New-York City, without a view to practising it, and then theology at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J. for nearly two years (1821-22); was a tutor at Yale College for about two years (1823-25); soon afterwards went to Europe, where he spent three years, chiefly in France and Germany. In Germany he studied Greek; at Leipzig under Godfrid Hermann, at Bonn under Weiker, and at Berlin under Boesck and Bopp. Returning to the United States, 1828, he was tutor of Greek at Yale College in 1831; and held the office actively until 1846, when he was chosen president of Yale College, which position he continued in for twenty-five years, until 1871, when he resigned his connection with the institution, and withdrew from public life. He was a member of the American Company of Revision of the New Testament, and its chairmen (1871-81). He is the author of editions of the Greek text, with English notes, for the use of college students, of the Alestes of Euripides, Cambridge, 1854; the Anthology of Sophocles, 1835; the Prometheus of Eschylus, 1837; the Electra of Sophocles, 1837; and the Gorgias of Plato, 1843; Introduction to the Study of International Law, designed as an Aid in Teaching and in Historical Studies, Boston, 1880, 5th ed. enlarged, New York 1879, London 1875, 2d ed. 1879; Essays on Divorce and Divorce Legislation, with Special Reference to the United States, New York, 1869, 2d ed. revised 1882; Religion of the Present and of the Future: Sermons preached chiefly at Yale College, 1871; Political Science, or the State, theoretically and practically considered, 1877, 2 vols. (originally Boston, 1858-60, 2 vols.); besides, he is the author of smaller works and a number of essays and reviews, e.g., in The North American, Princeton Review, The Century, and especially in The New Englander, of which latter for several years after its first appearance (1843) he was one of a committee of publication.

WOOLSEY, Theodore Dwight, D.D. (Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1847). LL.D. (Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1845), Congregationalist, son of William W. Woolsey, a prosperous merchant of New-York City, and of Eliza Dwight, sister of President Dwight of Yale College, New Haven, Conn.; b. in New-York City, Oct. 31, 1801; entered Yale College 1816, graduated 1820; for a year (1820-21) studied law in New-York City, without a view to practising it, and then theology at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J. for nearly two years (1821-22); was a tutor at Yale College for about two years (1823-25); soon afterwards went to Europe, where he spent three years, chiefly in France and Germany. In Germany he studied Greek; at Leipzig under Godfrid Hermann, at Bonn under Weiker, and at Berlin under Boesck and Bopp. Returning to the United States, 1828, he was tutor of Greek at Yale College in 1831; and held the office actively until 1846, when he was chosen president of Yale College, which position he continued in for twenty-five years, until 1871, when he resigned his connection with the institution, and withdrew from public life. He was a member of the American Company of Revision of the New Testament, and its chairmen (1871-81). He is the author of editions of the Greek text, with English notes, for the use of college students, of the Alestes of Euripides, Cambridge, 1854; the Anthology of Sophocles, 1835; the Prometheus of Eschylus, 1837; the Electra of Sophocles, 1837; and the Gorgias of Plato, 1843; Introduction to the Study of International Law, designed as an Aid in Teaching and in Historical Studies, Boston, 1880, 5th ed. enlarged, New York 1879, London 1875, 2d ed. 1879; Essays on Divorce and Divorce Legislation, with Special Reference to the United States, New York, 1869, 2d ed. revised 1882; Religion of the Present and of the Future: Sermons preached chiefly at Yale College, 1871; Political Science, or the State, theoretically and practically considered, 1877, 2 vols. (originally Boston, 1858-60, 2 vols.); besides, he is the author of smaller works and a number of essays and reviews, e.g., in The North American, Princeton Review, The Century, and especially in The New Englander, of which latter for several years after its first appearance (1843) he was one of a committee of publication.
WRATISLAW.

revealed by Jesus Christ (Bampton Lectures), 1881; The St. Germain St. Matthew (g.), being No. 1 of a Series of Old Latin Biblical Texts, 1883; articles on Constantine the Great and his Sons, and on The Emperor Julian, and others in Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography; various pamphlets and sermons, viz. Brucius sive Thucydides curta (chancellor's Latin prize essay), 1866; Keble College and the Present University Crisis, 1869; The Church and the Universities: A Letter to C. S. Roundell, M.P., with Postscript, 1880; Prayers for Use in College, 1883; Love and Discipline: A Memorial Sermon preached at Lincoln after the Funeral of Christopher Wordsworth, Bishop of Lincoln, 1855 (March); A Farewell Sermon, on Ps. cii. 25, 26, Rochester, September, 1886.

WRATISLAW, Albert Henry, Church of England; b. at Rugby, Warwickshire, Nov. 6, 1852; educated at Christ's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (twenty-fifth senior optime and third in first class classical tripos) 1844, M.A. 1847; was elected fellow of Christ's College; became tutor; was twice examiner for classical tripos; head master of Felstead Grammar School, 1852-55, and of Bury St. Edmonds Grammar School, 1855-79, when he retired on a pension of two hundred pounds a year; and, in the same year, became vicar of Manorbier. His theology is "Broad Church." He is the author of Locis Communis, Common Places (delivered in the chapel of Christ's College, conjointly with Professor Swainson), London, 1848; Bohemian Poems, Ancient and Modern, translated from the Original Slavonic, with an Introductory Essay, 1849; The Queen's Court Manuscript, with other Ancient Bohemian Poems, translated from the Original Slavonic into English Verse, Cambridge, 1852; Barabass the Scapegoat, and other Sermons and Dissertations, London, 1859; Notes and Dissertations, principally on Difficulties in the Scriptures of the New Covenant, 1853; Baron Wratislaw's Adventures, translated out of the Original Bohemian, 1865; Diary of an Embassy from King George of Bohemia to Louis XI. of France in the Year 1464, translated from the MS. London, 1865; The Canonization of St. John Nepomucen, 1873; The Native Literature of Bohemia in the Fourteenth Century (Lichester Lectures, 1877, Oxford), 1878; Biography of John Hus, 1882.

WRITING.

WRIGHT, Charles Henry Hamilton, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1875), D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1879), Church of Ireland; b. in Dublin, March 11, 1838; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; won first-class Hebrew prize, 1854, 1855, 1856; Arabic prize, 1859; first-class divinity testimonium, 1855; graduated B.A. (respondent) 1857, M.A. 1858, B.D. 1873 (at the German Army during the War of 1870-71, a lecture and review, London and Edinburgh, 1876; completed B.D. 1879 (June or July), as M.A., 1879); Ph.D. at Leipzig (thesis: Qui de interpretatione librorum Veteris Testamenti historicorum commentariis editis optime meruit.). He became curate of Middleton-Tyas, Yorkshire, 1859; British chaplain at Dresden, 1863; chaplain of Trinity Church, Boulogne-sur-Mer, 1868; incumbent of St. Mary's, Bideford, 1864; lecturer with teacher's certificate, 1873, Dublin, 1885. He was Bampton lecturer at Oxford, 1878, and Donnellan lecturer, Dublin, 1880-81. He is a member of the German Oriental Society. He has written A Grammar of the Modern Irish Language, designed for the use of the classes in the University of Dublin, Dublin, 1855, 2d ed. revised and enlarged, London, 1860; The Book of Genesis in Hebrew, with a critically revised text, various readings, and grammatical and critical notes, London and Edinburgh, 1859; The Importance and Value of Linguistic Preparation for Missionaries in General, together with pupil's manual literature in Eastern languages, London, Williams and Norgate, 1860 (pamphlet); The Book of Ruth in Hebrew, with a critically revised text, various readings, including a new collation of twenty-eight Hebrew MSS. (most of them not previously collated), and a grammatical and critical commentary, to which is appended the Chaldee Targum, with various readings, and a Chaldee glossary, 1864; The Spiritual Temple of the Spiritual God: being the Substance of Sermons preached in the English Church, Dresden, 1864; Bunyan's Allegorical Works, or the Pilgrim's Progress and the Holy War: together with his Grace Abounding, Divine Emblems, and other Poems, edited with notes original and selected, and a life of Bunyan, 1866; Ritualism and the Gospel: Thoughts upon St. Paul's Epistle to the Galatians, with an appendix, 1866; The Fatherhood of God, and its Relation to the Person and Work of Christ, and the Operations of the Holy Spirit, Edinburgh, 1867; The Pentateuch, or the Five Books of Moses in the Authorized Version, with a critically revised translation, a collation of various readings translated into English, and of various translations, together with a critical and exegetical commentary, for the use of English students of the Bible: Specimen part containing Gen. i.—iv., with commentary, pp. vii., 48, London and Edinburgh, 1868; The Footsteps of Christ, translated from the German of A. Caspers, Church Prowost and Chief Pastor at Husum, by Adelaide E. Rodham (edited), Edinburgh, 1871; Memoir of John Lowering Cooke, formerly Gunner in the Royal Artillery, and late Lay Agent of the British Sailors' Institute, Boulogne: with a Sketch of the Indian Mutiny of 1857-58, up to the Final Capture of Lucknow, London, 1873, 2d ed. 1878; "Born of Water and of the Spirit," no Proof of the Doctrine of Baptismal Regeneration: a Contribution to the Baptismal Controversy, preached before the University of Dublin, Dublin, 1874 (pamphlet); The Church of Ireland, and her Claims to the Title, considered in the Light of History and Recent Legislation, 1877, 2d ed. 1878 (pamphlet); Religious Life in the German Army during the War of 1870-71, a lecture and review, London and Edinburgh, 1876; completed B.D. 1879 (June or July), as M.A., 1879; The Divinity School, four pamphlets, with a general preface and appendix, Dublin, 1879; The Divinity School and the Divinity Degrees of the University of Dublin, 1880 (pamphlet); The Divinity School of Trinity College, Dublin, and its Proposed Improvement, submitted to the General Synod of the Church of Ireland, 1880 (pamphlet) Reform of Koheleth, commonly called Ecclesiastes, considered in Relation to Modern Criticism and to the Doctrines of Modern Pessimism, with a critical and grammatical commentary and a revised translation (the Donnellan Lectures for 1880–81), London, 1883; Biblical Essays; or, Exegetical Studies on the Books of Job and Jonah, Ezekiel’s Prophecy of Gog and Magog, St. Peter’s “Spirits in Prison,” and the Key to the Apocalypse, Edinburgh, 1885; with numerous other pamphlets and articles, for instance, in The Nineteenth Century (for February, 1882), on The Babylonian Account of the Deluge, The Site of Paradise (October, 1882), The Jews and the Malicious Charge of Human Sacrifice (November, 1882).

WRIGHT. George Frederick, F.A.A.S., Congregationalist; b. at Whitehall, N.Y., Jan. 22, 1838; graduated at Oberlin College 1859, and Theological Seminary, Oberlin, O., 1862; was in the Seventh Ohio Volunteer Infantry five months of 1862; became pastor at Bakersfield, Va., 1862; at Andover, Mass., 1872; professor of New Testament language and literature in Oberlin Theological Seminary, 1881; was assistant geologist on Pennsylvania survey 1881, and United-States survey since 1884. He is the author of The Logic of Christian Evidence, Andover, 1860, 4th ed. 1883; Studies in Science and Religion, 1882; The Religion of the Jews in the Near East (Arabic), London, 1888; The Glacial Boundary in Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky, Cleveland, 1884; The Divine Authority of the Bible, Boston, 1884; is an editor of the Bibliotheca Sacra.

WRIGHT, Milton, D.D. (Westfield College, Ill., 1875), United Brethren in Christ; b. in Rush County, Ind., Jan. 17, 1828. Resided at Hartsville, Ind., 1853; became a member of the White River Conference, Ind., 1853; ordained, 1856; was pastor at Indianapolis, 1855–59; at Andersonville, Ind., 1856–57; missionary in Oregon, where he was pastor at Sublimity and most of the time president of Sublimity College (a denominational institution), 1857–59; in the itinerancy in the White River Conference, 1859–69, during which he was presiding elder (1860–64, 1866–88), and pastor at Hartsville, Ind., and teacher of theology in Hartsville College (1868–69); was editor of The Religious Telescope (church organ), December 1876; elected bishop (assigned to West Mississippi District), 1877–81; presiding elder in White River Conference, 1881–85 (editor and publisher of The Richmond Star, Richmond, Ind., 1883–85); re-elected bishop for the term of four years, and sent to the Pacific Coast District, 1885. His writings are wholly journalistic, except a few tracts.

WRIGHT, Theodore Francis, Swedishborean; b. at Dorchester (now Boston), Mass., Aug. 3, 1845; graduated at Harvard College 1866, and at New Church Theological School, Boston, 1869; since 1868 has been pastor at Bridgewater, Mass.; since 1879 editor New Jerusalem Magazine (monthly), Boston; and since 1884 instructor in homiletics and pastoral care, New Church Theological School. During 1884–85, he was first lieutenant One Hundred and Eighth Regiment United-States colored troops. He is the author of Life Eternal, Boston, 1885.

WRIGHT, William, M.A., Ph.D. (kons, Leyden), L.L.D., Cambridge, Dublin, Edinburgh, St. Andrew’s, layman, Church of England; b. in England; President of Bengal, Jan. 17, 1830; educated at St. Andrew’s and Hall; was appointed professor of Arabic in University College, London, 1855; in Trinity College, Dublin, 1856; assistant in department of MSS. in British Museum, 1861; assistant keeper of MSS., 1869; professor of Arabic in the University of Cambridge, 1870. He is a fellow of Queens’ College, Cambridge. He was an Old-Testament reviser (1870–85), and is a corresponding or honorary member of many learned and royal societies. He is the author, translator, or editor of The Travels of Ibn Jubair Arabian, Leyden, 1852; Analestes sur l’histoire et la litterature des Arabes d’Espagne, par a. Makkati, livres i.–iv., 1855; The Book of Jonah in Four Oriental Versions, with Glossaries, London, 1857; Opuscula Arabica, Leyden, 1859; A Grammar of the Arabic Language, London, 1859–63, 2 vols.; _The Kamil of El-Mubarrad (Arabic), Leipzig, 1884–85, 11 parts; Contributions to the Apocryphal Literature of the New Testament (Syriac and English), London, 1865; The Homilies of Aphraates (Syriac), vol. i., 1869; An Arabic Reading Book, Part 1, 1870; Catalogue of the Syriac MSS. in the British Museum, 1870–72, 3 vols.; _Apocryphal Acts of the Apostles (Syriac and English), 1871, 2 vols.; _Catalogue of the Ethiopic MSS. in the British Museum, 1874, 2 vols.; _The Chronicles of St. Gregory (Syriac and English), Cambridge, 1882; _The Book of Kailath and Dimnah (Syriac), Oxford, 1883.

WRONG, George McKinnon, Church of England in Canada; b. at Grovesend, Ontario, Can., June 25, 1860; graduated concurrently at University College and at Wycliffe College, Toronto, Ont., 1880; became chaplain of residence, Wycliffe College, and lecturer in ecclesiastical history and polity, 1883.

WYLIE, James Aitken, LL.D. (Aberdeen, 1850), Free Church; b. at Kirriemuir, Forfarshire, Scotland, Aug. 9, 1868; educated at Marischall College of the University of Aberdeen 1868–25, and at University of St. Andrew’s 1826; received his theological training in Original Secession Hall under Rev. Dr. Paxton, Edinburgh, 1827–30; was minister of Original Secession Congregation at Dollar, 1841–46; associated with Hugh Miller in the editorship of The Witness, Edinburgh, 1846–56; was second editor of Free Church Magazine, and editor of the Free Church’s first periodical, and pastor of a church to Protestant Institute of Scotland, Edinburgh, 1860 to date. The Institute is an extra-mural lectureship, founded by the Protestant churches of Scotland, for the indoctrination of students in the distinctive principles of the Roman-Catholic and Protestant theologies. He wrote the Evangelical Alliance’s first prize essay on Popery. He has travelled over nearly all Europe, and also Asia Minor, Palestine, and Egypt. In 1868 he was examined before the House of Lords, on the working of canon law with reference to the establishment of the papal hierarchy in Great Britain. In 1881, on the occasion of his jubilee, he received a public testimonial, portrait with three hundred guineas, etc. He is the author of The Modern Judenta compared with Ancient Prophecy, Glasgow, 1841 (sale twenty thousand copies); Scenes from the Bible, 1843 (sale fifteen thousand copies), last ed. 1882; On Unfulfilled Prophecy, 1845; Ruins of Bible Lands: Journeys over the Region of Fulfilled Prophecy, 1845, 14th ed. 1892; _The Past and Present of Papal Europe, 1848, 4th ed. 1868; _The Papacy: its History, Dogmas, Genius, and Prospects (The Evangelical Alliance prize essay), 1851, 4th ed. 1890, German trans., Elber-WYLIE. 246 WYLIE.

feld, 1853, 2d ed. 1854; From the Alps to the Tiber 1856 (sale two thousand copies); The Gospel Ministry: Duty and Privilege of Supporting it (first prize essay), 1857 (sale ten thousand copies); Wandering and Musings in the Valley of the Wal-denses, Travels, etc., 1859; The Great Exodus; or, the Time of the End, 1862, 2d ed. 1861; Rome and Civil Liberty, 1884 (sale fifteen thousand copies); The Awakening of Italy and the Crisis of Rome, 1886 (sale two thousand copies); The Road to Rome via Oxford, or Ritualism identified with Romanism, 1888; Daybreak in Spain: a Sketch of Spain and its New Reformation, a Tour of Two Months, 1870; Impending Crisis of the Church and the World, Edinburgh, 1871; The His-sale sixty to eighty thousand copies), Dutch trans. 1876-78, German trans. 18—; The Jesuits:

their Moral Maxims and Plots against Kings, Edinburgh, 1881; Visit to the Land of the Pharaohs, 1882; Over the Holy Land, 1888; editor of new edition of the Scots Worthies, with supplemental biographies; Dictionary of the Bible, 1870, 2 vols.;
besides pamphlets on the Popish controversy.
YERKES, Stephen, D.D. (La Grange College, Tenn., 1857), Presbyterian; b. in Bucks County, Penn., June 27, 1817; graduated at Yale College, 1837; studied theology privately; was pastor and teacher in Baltimore and Harford Counties, Md., 1843-52; professor of ancient languages, Transylvanian University, Lexington, Ky., and pastor of Bethel Church, 1852-57; since 1857, professor in Theological Seminary, Danville, Ky. (of Oriental and biblical literature, 1857-89; of biblical literature and exegetical theology since).

YOUNG, Alexander, D.D. (Jefferson College, Canonburg, Penn., 1858), D.D. (Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1873), United Presbyterian; b. near Glasgow, Scotland, June 4, 1815; graduated from the Western University of Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh, Penn., 1838; professor of Latin and Greek in the same, 1838-40; pastor of Associate Reformed Church at St. Clairsville, O., 1842-84; co-pastor at Monmouth, Ill., 1859-60; sole pastor, 1860-63; was co-pastor of the Second United Presbyterian Church, Monmouth, 1863-66; was sole pastor, 1866-71; was co-pastor at Monmouth, Ill., in the same relations, September, 1858, and so continued until 1864; during this period also professor of Greek and Latin in Monmouth College; professor of apologetics and all departments of theology in the seminary, 1864-76; and of evidences of Christianitv, in Monmouth College, 1864-76; of apologetics and pastoral theology in the United Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1874 to date, changing chairs with other professors as interest or preference required.

YOUNG, Robert, LL.B., F.E.S.L., layman; b. at Edinburgh, Sept. 10, 1822; received education at private schools, 1827-38; served apprenticeship to the printing-business, 1838-45; became a correspondent in 1842; joined the Free Church, and became a sabbath-school teacher, in 1843; commenced book-selling and printing in 1847; married, and went to India as a literary missionary and superintendent of the Mission Press at Surat, in 1856; returned in 1861; conducted “Missionary Institute,” 1864-74; visited New York, Boston, Princeton, Philadelphia, Washington, etc., in 1867; carried the Analytical Concordance through the press in 1875-79; took special interest in the “Aberdeen” attacks on the Bible, 1875-80, and in “Presbyterian Union,” 1884-85. A moderate Calvinist, simple Presbyterian, and strict textual critic and theologian. His works, chronologically arranged, are, Book of the Precepts; or, the Six Hundred and Thirteen Affirmative or Prohibitive Precepts, collected by Rabbi Moses Ben Maimon, with a life of Maimonides, edited in the original Hebrew, with a translation; Chaldee Portions of Daniel (ii. 4-vii. 23) and Ezra (iv. 7-vii. 28) in the Original Chaldee, with corresponding Greek, Syriac, and (Rabbinical) Hebrew; Ethics of the Fathers, collected by Nathan the Babylonian, A. D. 200, in the Original Hebrew, with an English translation, and an introduction to the Talmud; Hexaglot Pentateuch; or, the Five Books of Moses in the Original Hebrew, with the corresponding Samaritan text and version, the Chaldee Targum, the Syriac Peshito, and the Arabic of Saadiah Gaon, arranged interlinearly, with comparative tables of alphabets and word (Gen. i.-v.); Westminster Assembly’s Shorter Catechism, translated into Arabic, French, Hebrew, Gaelic, Samaritan, Spanish, Syriac, also Dutch, German, Greek, Italian, Latin, and Portuguese; Christology of the Targums; or, the Doctrine of Messiah, as unfolded in the Ancient Jewish Paraphrases, or Translations of the Sacred Scriptures into the Chaldee Language, in Hebrew, Chaldee, and English; Rubbinal Vocabulary, with List of Abbreviations and an Analysis of the Grammar, adapted expressly for the Mishna and the Talmud, with introduction; Obadiah’s Prophecy against Edom, in the Original Hebrew, with the corresponding Chaldee, Syriac, and Arabic versions, interlinear; Paradigms (Complete) of the Verbs, Regular and Irregular, in Hebrew, Chaldee, Samaritan, and Syriac; Root-books of the Hebrew, Chaldee, Samaritan, Syriac, Greek, and Latin Languages, containing every root in each, in alphabetical order, with English explanations; Song of a Finlandian Country Girl, in Finnish, with translations into Hebrew, Samaritan (ancient and modern), Chaldee, Syriac, and English; Israelite Gleaner and Biblical Repository, containing rare and interesting poems, tales, and other compositions into Hebrew and from translations from the Targums, etc. (the above were published in Edinburgh, 1849-50); Gujarati Grammar and Exercises; or, a New Mode of Learning to Read, Write, or Speak the Gujarati Language, on the Ollandorban system, with Key: The First and Second Books of Chronicles, translated into the Gujarati Language, from the Original Hebrew (these two were published in Surat, 1857-60); Bible (The Holy), consisting of the Old and New Covenants, translated according to the Letter and Idioms of the Original Languages (do., 2d ed., revised, larger type); Hebrew Tenses, illustrated from the Biblical Text, the Cognate Languages, and the Chief Biblical Critics; Chronological Index to the Bible, Old and New Testaments; Variations of the Alexandrian, Vatican, and Sinaitic MSS. of the New Testament; Marginal (Ten Thousand) Readings for the English Testament, in Addition to those given by the Editors of King James’s Bible, being a series of more literal renderings, derived from an examination of the original Scriptures, when compared with the common version; Concise Critical Comments on the Holy Bible, being a companion to the new translation of the Old and New Covenants, specially designed for those teaching the word of God, whether preachers, catechists, scripture-readers, district-visitors, or sabbath-school teachers; Grammatical Analysis of the Hebrew, Chaldee, and Greek Scriptures, consisting of the original texts unabridged, the parsing of every word, with all its prefixes and affixes, and a literal translation: The Twelve Minor Prophets, complete; Biblical Notes and Queries regarding Biblical Criticism and Interpretation, Ecclesiastical History, Antiquities, Biography and Bibliography, Ancient and Modern Versions, Progress in Theology, Reviews of Religious Works, etc.; Hebrew and Chaldee Vocabulary, consisting of every word in the Old-Testament Scriptures, whether noun, verb, or participle; the verbs with their conjugations, and the nouns with their gender, to which is added the number of times in which each word occurs, with the etymological and idiomatic renderings of the new translation; Introduction to the Hebrew Language, in a Way hitherto unexampled; Biblical Tracts for Every Day in the Year, on the Most Important Facts and Doctrines of Scripture, illustrated from itself; Analytical Concordance to the Bible, on a new plan, with every word in alphabetical order, arranged under its own Hebrew or Greek original, with the literal meaning of each and its pronunciation, exhibiting about 311,000 references, or 118,000 beyond Cruden, marking 30,000 various readings in the Greek New Testament, with the latest information on biblical geography and antiquities of the Palestine Exploration Society, etc.,—all designed for the simplest reader of the English Bible; Appendices to the Analytical Concordance: I. For Sabbath-school Teachers (Analytical surveys of [1] all the “Books,” [2] all the “Facts,” [3] all the “Idioms,” of the Bible, [4] Bible Themes,—questions, canonicity, rationalism, etc.). II. For Divinity Students (reversed indexes to the Analytical Concordance, forming [1] a Hebrew Lexicon [2] Hebrew tenses illustrated, [3] a Greek Lexicon): with 28 pictorial views of Palestine, 16 Bible maps, and 25 fac-similes of biblical MSS.; Contributions to a New Revision; or, A Critical Companion to the New Testament, being a series of notes on the original text, with the view of securing greater uniformity in its English rendering, including the chief alterations of the “Revision” of 1881 and of the American Committee; Concordance to Eight Thousand Changes of the Revised New Testament; Dictionary and Concordance of Bible Words and Synonyms, exhibiting the use of above ten thousand Greek and English words occurring in upwards of eighty thousand passages of the New Testament, so as to form a key to the hidden meanings of the Sacred Scripture; Twofold Concordance to the New Testament, (1) to the Greek New Testament, exhibiting every root and derivative, with their several prefixes and terminations in all their occurrences, with the Hebrew originals of which they are renderings in the Septuagint; (2) a concordance and dictionary of Bible words and synonyms (being a condensation of the New-Testament part of the English Analytical Concordance); also a concise concordance to eight thousand changes of the “Revised” Testament; Grammatical Analysis of the Book of Psalms in Hebrew, the original text unabridged, the parsing of every word, with all its prefixes and affixes, with a literal translation; Paradigms of the Hebrew Verbs, with the Serviles in Large Open-faced Characters.
ZAHN, Theodor, Lic. Theol. (Göttingen, 1867), D.D. (hon., Göttingen, 1872), German Protestant; b. at Mörs, Rhenish Prussia, Oct. 10, 1838; studied at Basel, Erlangen, and Berlin, 1854–58; became teacher in Neustrelitz gymnasium, 1861; repetenti at Göttingen 1865, privat-docent 1869, professor extraordinary 1871; ordinary professor at Kiel 1877, and at Erlangen 1878. He is the author of

2. Marcellus von Ancyra, 1867; Zufall und der altkirchlichen Literatur, 1881 sqq.; I. Tatian's Diatessaron, 1881; II. Der Evangeliencommentar d. Theoph. v. Antiochien, 1883; III. Supplementum Clemeniniunm, 1884; Cyprian v. Antiochien, u. die deutsche Faustage, 1882; Die Anbetung Jesu im Zeitalter der Apostel, Stuttgart, 1885 (lecture); Missionenmethoden im Zeitalter der Apostel, Erlangen, 1886 (2 lectures), pp. 48; numerous articles, etc.

ZELLER, Eduard, German Protestant; b. at Kleinbottwar, Württemberg, Jan. 22, 1814; studied at Tübingen and Berlin; became privat-docent of theology at Tübingen 1840; professor extraordinary at Bern, 1847, ordinary, 1849; of the philosophical faculty, at Marburg 1849, at Heidelberg 1862, and Berlin 1872. He is the author of

ZIMMER, Friedrich Karl, Ph.D. (Halle, 1877), Lic. Theol. (Bonn, 1880), German Protestant; b. at Gardelegen, Prussia, Sept. 22, 1855; educated at Tübingen and Berlin; became privat-docent of theology at Bonn 1880, the same at Königsberg, and pastor at Mahnsfeld 1883; professor extraordinary, and pastor of the Deaconesses' hospital, Königsberg, 1884. He edited Halleluja, 1880–85. He is the author of

1. J. G. Fichte's Religionsphilosophie, Berlin, 1878; Der Spruch vom Jonazaichen, Hildburghausen, 1881; Galaterbrief und Apostelgeschichte, 1882; Exegetische Probleme des Hebräer und Galaterbrief, 1882; Concordien supplementaria omnium volum N. T., Gotha, 1882; Die deutschen evangelischen Kirchengesangvereine der Gegenwart, Quedlinburg, 1882; Der Verfall des Kantoreu- u. Organistenamtes in der evangelischen Landeskirche, Preussen's, seine Ursachen u. Vorschrifte zur Besserung, 1885; several minor articles on church music and exegesis.

ZIECKLICK, Otto, Ph.D. (Giessen, 1854), Lic. Theol. (do., 1856), D.D. (hon., do., 1886), Lutheran; b. at Grünberg, Hesse, May 27, 1833; studied at Giessen, Erlangen, and Berlin, 1851–56; became privat-docent at Giessen, 1857; professor extraordinary, 1863; ordinary professor at Greifswald, 1866. He became consistorialrat at Greifswald, January, 1885. He edited the Allgemeine literarische Anzeiger für das Ev. Deutschland, 1867–74; and since 1882, has edited the Evangelische Kirchenzeitung (founded by Hengstenberg); and since 1866, been principal editor of Der Beweis des Glaubens. He is the author of De viac notions vocabulii in N. T. (inaugural dissertation), Giessen, 1857; Theologia naturalis: Entwurf einer systematischen Naturtheologie vom offenbarungsgläubigen Standpunkt, vol. i., Frankfurt-a.-M., 1860; Kritische Geschichte der Äskese, 1863; Hieronymus, sein Leben und Wirken aus seinen Schriften dargestellt, Gotha, 1864; commentary on Chronicles, Job, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, Canticles, and Daniel, in Lange's Bibelwerk, Bielefeld, 1866–72 (translated New York, 1870 sqq.); Die Urgeschichte der Erde und des Menschen, Gütersloh, 1866; Das Kreuz Christi, 1870 (English trans., The Cross of Christ, ZOEPFFEL, Richard Otto, Ph.D., D.D. (both from Göttingen, 1871 and 1878), Protestant theologian (school of Ritschl); b. at Arensburg Livland (Russia), June 14, 1843; studied theology at Dorpat, 1862–68 (with interruptions); history at Göttingen, 1869–70; became repenter of theology at Göttingen, 1870; professor extraordinary of theology at Strassburg, 1872; ordinary professor there, 1877. He is the author of Die Päpste wählen und die mit ihnen im nächsten Zusammenhang stehenden Ceremonien in ihrer Entwicklung vom 11. bis zum 14. Jahrhundert, Göttingen, 1871; (with Holtzmann) Lexikon für Theologie und Kirchenwesen, Leipzig, 1882.

ZUNZ, Leopold, Ph.D., Hebrew; b. at Detmold, Germany, Aug. 10, 1794; d. at Berlin, March 21, 1886. He was educated at the University of Berlin; became rabbi to the new synagogue there, 1829, but retired after two years, and started a society for Jewish culture and science, to which Heinrich Heine belonged. But the society, which was nicknamed "Young Jerusalem," although embracing many men of talent, soon broke up, perhaps because of Zunz's radicalism. Many of its members became Christians. From 1824 to 1832, Zunz was director of the New Jewish Congregational School. From 1825 to 1835 he edited the Spengler'sche Zeitung. From 1835 to 1839, at Prague, he again undertook ministerial functions. From 1839 to 1850 he was director of the Normal Seminary in Berlin. Since 1845 he was a member of the Board of Commissioners for the educational interests of the Jews in Prussia. His long life was one of great literary activity. His works are distinguished by learning and by beauty and clearness of style. Among them may be mentioned, Etwas über die rabbinische Literatur, Berlin, 1818 (which first brought him into notice); Predigten, 1823, 2d ed. 1846; Die gottesdienstlichen Vorträge der Juden, historisch entwickelt, 1832 (his most valuable book); Namen der Juden, Leipzig, 1837; Zeitafel über die gesammte heilige Schrift, Berlin, 1839; Zur Geschichte und Literatur, Bd. 1., 1843; Damaskus, ein Wort zu Abwehr, 2d ed. 1859; Die synagogale Poesie des Mittelalters, 1855–59, 2 parts; Die Vorschriften über Eidesleistigung der Juden, 1859; Wahlrede, 1861; 2. Wahlrede, 1861; Politisch und nicht politisch (lecture), 1881; Selbstregierung (lecture), 1884; Der Beruf der Juden (lecture), 1884; Die hebräischen Handschriften in Italien, 1884; Literaturgeschichte der synagogalen Poesie, 1885; Nachtrag dazu, 1887; Israel's gottesdienstliche Poesie (lecture), 1870; Deutsche Briefe, Leipzig, 1872.
FIRST APPENDIX:

Mostly additions sent by the writers too late for insertion in the proper place.
New book-titles follow directly after the authors' names.

ACHELIS, E. C. Aus dem akademischen Gottesdienst in Marburg, Predigten, Marburg, 1886.

AHLFELD, J. F. Cf. art. Herzog XVI. 673 sqq.

ALLEN, A. V. O., received the degree of D.D. at Harvard's 250th anniversary, Nov. 8, 1886.

ALEXANDER, Bishop W. The Divinity of our Lord, London, 1886.

ALEXANDER, Henry Carrington, D.D. (Hampden-Sidney College, Va., 1869), Presbyterian; at Princeton, N. J., Sept. 27, 1835; graduated at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, N.J., 1854, and at the Theological Seminary in that place, 1858; was stated supply of the Eighty-fourth street Church, New-York City, for six months in 1858; the same in the village church of Charlotte Court-House, Va., from Oct. 1, 1859, to May, 1861, pastor until Jan. 1, 1870; since professor of biblical literature and interpretation of the N. T., Union Theological Seminary, Va. Author of Life of Joseph Addison Alexander, D.D., N.Y., 1870, 2 vols.

ARNOLD, M., resigned his inspectorship, Nov., 1886.

BARING-GOULD is lord of the Manor of Lew Trenchard and Waddleton; eldest son of Edward Baring-Gould, J. P. and D. L. for County Devon, representative of the ancient family of Gould of Devon, which has occupied estates in the county since the reign of Henry III. Lew Trenchard became the property of the Goulds in 1625, and has continued in the family since. He is J. P. for County of Devon. To the list of his books add: The Trials of Jesus, London, 1886; Nazareth and Capernaum: Ten Lectures on the Beginning of our Lord's Ministry, 1886; Our Parish Church: Twenty Addresses to Children on the Great Truths of the Christian Faith, 1886.

BAUR, Q. A. L., D.D. (hon., —, 18—); was member of commission for revising Luther's Bible. Add to list of books: Sechs Tabellen über die israelitische Geschichte, Giessen, 1848; (edited) Andreas Kemper's Selbstbiographie, Leipzig, 1882; (with Dr. Karl A. Schmid), Geschichte der Erziehung, Stuttgart, 1884.

BEECHER, H. W., made a brilliant lecturing tour in England in the summer of 1886, and was offered a public reception by the Common Council of Brooklyn, but declined it (November, 1886).

BEETS, Nicolaas, D.D. (Leiden 1839, Edinburgh 1884), Phil. Mag. and Litt. D. (Utrecht, 1865), Dutch Protestant, religious poet; at Haarlem, Sept. 13, 1814; studied theology at Leiden; became Reformed pastor at Heemstede 1840, at Utrecht 1854; professor of theology at Utrecht, 1875. He is the author in Dutch of Camera obscura (under the pseudonyme of Hildebrand), Haarlem, 1839, 16th ed. 1886 (translated into different languages of Europe; the French title is, Scènes de la vie hollandaise, Paris, 1856); "Biography of J. H. van der Palm," 1842 (English trans. New York, 1866); "Hours of Devotion," 1846-75, 8 vols. (German select trans. Bonn, 1858); "St. Paul, at the Most Important Times of his Life and Activity," 18—, 3d ed. 1859 (German trans. Gotha, 1857, Danish trans. Copenhagen, 1838); "Literary Recreations," 1856, 2d ed. 1873; collected edition of his poems, 1864-83, 4 vols.; "Literary Miscellanies," 1876, 2 vols.; editor of the complete works of Staring and Bogaers (Dutch poets of the nineteenth century), 1862 and 1871 respectively; and of Anna Römer Visscher (seventeenth century), 1881; translator into Dutch of Emblèmes chretiens by Georgette de Montenay, lady of honor to Jeanne d'Albret, Queen of Navarre, 18—.

BELL, Frederik Willem Bernard van, D.D. (Leiden, 1849), Dutch Protestant theologian; b. at Rotterdam in the year 1822; studied at Leiden; became Reformed pastor at Noordwykhorst 1849, at Hoorn 1853, at Amsterdam 1858; professor of theological encyclopedia, interpretation of the Greek Testament, and moral philosophy, at Groningen. He is one of the founders and editors of the Theologisch Tijdschrift, Amsterdam and Leid BENDER, George Nye, D.D. (Middlebury College, Vt., 1847, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1852; was resident licentiate, 1852-53; professor of rhetoric and English literature in Middlebury College, 1853-59; pastor of Presbyterian Church at Binghamton, N.Y., 1859-72; since 1872 he has been professor of systematic theology in the Chicago Congregational Theological Seminary. He is the author of The Will, Virtue (two essays), Chicago, 1882; (with others) Current Discussions in Theology, 1883 sqq.

BONAR, H. Hymns of Faith and Hope, new ed. 1886.

BONNET, J., is a professor in the University of France. His Olympia Morata has been translated into several languages, besides the German (Hamburg, 1860); his Aonio Paleario into German (Hamburg, 1868), Italian (Florence, 18—); his Récits, etc., into German (Berlin, 1864). He edited the admirable Mémoires de Louis de Marolles, from the time of the Revocation, Paris, 1882; and a third series of Récits du seizième siècle, 1886.

BORDIER, Henri Léonard, Reformed Church of France, layman; b. in Paris, in the year 1817; educated at the École de droit and the École des Chartes in Paris, and licensed in law, and as paleographic archivist in 1840; but has ever since devoted himself to historical studies. He was successively, for a time, assistant to the historian Augustin Thierry; assistant in the Academy of Inscriptions; secretary par interim of the École des Chartes; a member of the commission on the departmental archives of the minister of the interior (1846), archivist of the national archives (1850), dismissed on the establishment of the Empire. He was, during the siege of Paris, on the commission upon the papers of the Tuileries; and in 1872 was created honorary secretary of the Department of manuscripts in the National Library. He has been for many years on the committee, of the "Société d'histoire du protestantisme français." He is the author of numerous works, noted for their great accuracy. Among them may be mentioned: various notices in the Bibliothèque de l'École des Chartes, Paris, 1841-88: Histoire générale de tous les dépôts d'archives existant en France, 1855; Les églises et monastères de Paris, 1856; an edition of Libri miraculorum aliqua opera minora of Gregory of Tours, Latin text with French translation, 1857-64, 4 vols.; a French translation of the Historia Francorum de Gregorio of Tours, 1859-61, 2 vols.; (with Ed. Charton) Histoire de France, 1859-61; Les inventaires des archives de l'Empire, 1867; Une fabrique de faux autographes, 1869; Chansonnier huguenot du seizième siècle, 1869; L'Allemagne aux Tuileries, de 1850 à 1870, 1872; La Saint-Barthélémy et la critique moderne, Geneva, 1879; L'Écrit historique de l'Ermité Blosseville, Paris, 1880; Nicolas Castelin de Tournay, réfugié à Genève (1564-1576), 1881; is re-issuing with enlargements and corrections, the brothers Eugène and Émile Haag's La France protestante (original ed., Paris, 1848-59, 10 vols.), Paris, 1877 sqq.
BREDENKAMP, C. J. Der Prophet Jesaia erliuterit, Erlangen, 1886 sq.

BRIGHT, W., was educated at Rugby School; ordained deacon 1848, priest 1850; appointed proctor of the chapter in convocation, 1879.

BROOKE, A. The Unity of God and Man, and Other Sermons, London, 1886.

BRUCKNER, B. B. is Ph.D. and LL.D. as well as D.D. He is Propst of St. Nicholas and St. Mary, vice-president of the Berlin Ober-consistorialrat, Mitglied des Staatsrats, and Domherr in Brandenburg. His Predigten 1853-60, 6th ed. Leipzig, 1886.

BRUSTON, C. A. Der tritt primitif des Psalmen, 1873; Etudes sur l'Apocalypse, 1884; Les deux Jehovistes, études sur les sources de l'Histoire sainte, 1885.

BUCHWALD, O. Landeskirche und Freikirchen (lecture), Zwickau, 1886; Die Luther/den der neueren Zeit insbesondere in der zwickauer Ratschulbibliothek (lecture), Zwickau, 1886, contributed to Blütter für Hymnologie.

BURGON, J. W. The list of Dean Burgon's publications, as given by himself, is as follows: Mémoire sur les cases Panathaiques par le Chev. Brönsted (translated), London, 1833; The Life and Times of Sir Thomas Gresham, 1839, 2 vols.; Petra, a Poem, 1846; Some Remarks on Art, 1846; (edited with Rev. J. J. Rose) Fifty Cottage Prints, 1851; Thirty-six Cottage Wall-prints, 1853; The Pictorial Bible, Nuremberg, 1854; The History of our Lord (with 72 engravings): A Plain Commentary on the Four Holy Gospels, 1855, 8 vols. new ed. 1877, 4 vols., reprinted Philadelphia, 1856 and 1868, 2 vols.; Ninety Short Sermons, for Family Reading, 1855, 2 vols.; Historical Notices of the Colleges of Oxford, 1837; One Sou'eth, and Another Reapeth (ordination sermon), 1859; Portrait of a Christian Gentleman: a Memoir of P. F. Tytler, Esq., 1859; Inspiration and Interpretation (answer to Essays and Reviews), 1861; Letters from Rome to Friends in England, 1862; A Treatise on the Pastoral Office, 1864; Zaccheus, 1864; Work of the Christian Author (translated by F. B. 1865; Ninety-one Short Sermons, 3rd series, 1867, 2 vols.; The Lambeth Conference and the Encyclical, 1867; Plea for a Fifth School, 1868; Disestablishment, The Nation's Formal Rejection of God and Denial of the Faith, 1868; England and Rome: Three Letters to a Pervert, 1869; The Roman Council, 1866, First and Second Protest against Dr. Temple's Consecration, 1869; Protests of the Bishops, 1870; Dr. Temple's Explanation examined, 1870; The Last 12 Verses of the Gospel according to St. Mark, vindicated against Recent Critical Objectors and established, 1871; The Review of a Year, 1871; Woman's Place, 1871; An Unwritten Report of Servants of Scripture Version, Intolerable, 1872; The New Lectorary, 1872; The Athanasian Creed to be retained in its Integrity, and why, 1872; The Oxford Diocesan Conference, and Romanism, A Historical, Psychological, and Political Study of England (2 sermons), 1st to 3d ed. 1873; A Plea for the Study of Divinity in Oxford, 1875; Home Missions and Sensational Religion: also Humility, Ad Clerum, 1876; The New Lectorary examined, with Reasons for its Amendment (jointly with the Bishop of Lincoln and Dean Goulbourn), 1877; Nehemiah, A Map Pattern for Biblical History, 1879; The Sacrifice, 1878; The Disestablishment of Religion in Oxford, the Betrayal of a Sacred Trust: Words of Warning to the University, 1880; Prophecy. — not "Forecast," but in the words of Bishop Butler "The History of Events before they come to pass," 1880; Divergent Ritual Practice, 1881; Canon Robert Gregory, A Letter from Friedly Remembrance, 1st and 2d ed. 1881; The Revision Revised: Three Articles from the Quarterly Review, with a Reply to Bishop Eliot's Pamphlet, and a Vindication of the Traditional Reading of 1 Tim. iii. 16, 1883; To Educate Young Women like Young Men, and with Young Men, a Thing Inexpedient and Immodest, 1884; Poems (1840-78), 1885.

CARROLL, Henry King, LL.D. (Syracuse University, N. Y., 1885), Methodist layman; b. at Dennisville, N.J., Nov. 15, 1847; was self-taught; became editor of The Haare Republican, Maryland, 1865; assistant editor of The Methodist, New York, 1869; of The Weekly Register and Home, New York, 1870; night agent of the New-York Associated Press, 1871; special correspondent of the Boston (Mass.) Traveller, 1873; religious editor of the New-York Independent, 1876. He was a delegate from the Methodist-Episcopal Church to the Ecumenical Methodist Conference in London, 1881; organizing secretary of the Methodist Centennial Conference, 1884. He was the chief editor of the Proceedings of the Centennial Methodist Conference, New York, 1886; is the author of the pamphlets, World of Missions, New York, 1892; Catholic Dogma of Church Authority, New York, 1884; and is a frequent contributor to the Methodist Quarterly Review, New York.

CASSÉL, P. Kritisches Sendschreiben über die Probeibel, Berlin, 1885 (Heft I., Mit e. wissenschaftl. Anmerkungen über Hellenismen in den Psalmen; Heft II., Messianische Stellen des alten Testaments. Anhängt sind Anmerkungen über Megillath Taanith): Aus dem Lande des Sonnenaufgangs, 1885; Zoroaster, sein Name und seine Zeit, 1886 (pp. 24).

CHESTER, Right Rev. William Bennet, D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1883), lord bishop of Killaloe, Church of Ireland; b. at Ballyclough, County Cork, Ireland, in the year 1820; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; graduated B.A. and divinity testimonium (second-class) 1846, M.A. 1856, B.D. 1883; ordained deacon and priest, 1846; became curate of the Church of Ireland 1849; canon of Kilkee 1847, of Killkenny 1849; rector of Ballymackey and chancellor of Killaloe, 1855; rector of Nenagh 1859, of Birr 1875 (prebendary of Tipperkerin or canon of St. Patrick's, 1877-84; archdeacon of Kilkeel, 1890-94); bishop of Killaloe, Kilfenora, Clewfort, and Kilmeadeach, 1894.

CHEYNE, T. K., Job and Solomon; or, the Wisdom of the Old Testament (an introduction to the criticism and exegesis of Job, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and Ecclesiasticus, 1886. He also contributed to the Queen's Printers' Teacher's Bible: and art. Histories in the 9th ed. of the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

CLARKE, J. F. Vested Questions in Theology, 1886; The Fourth Gospel, 1886.

COMBA, E. Vera Narrazione del Massacro di Vallettina di V. Parracivino, 1886; Parafraesi sopra l' Ep. di S. Paolo ai Romani di F. Virgilio, 1886. He is editing the Histoire des Vaudois d'Italie depuis leurs origines jusqu'à nos jours, 2 vols.

CONDER, Eustace Rogers, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1882), Congregationalist; b. near St. Albans (the ancient Verulam), Eng., April 5, 1820; educated for the Christian ministry at Spring Hill College, Birmingham; entered, 1838; graduated M.A. in philosophy, with gold medal, at the University of London, 1844; became Congregational pastor at Poole, Dorset, 1844; at Leeds (East Parade Congregational Church), 1845-1849; a译or of the Congregational Union in 1837. He is "distinctly and strongly evangelical, with high views of authority of Scripture; but of broad sympathies, unpledged to any party formula or narrow creed." He is the author of Memoir of Josiah Conder (his father, see Encyclopædia, iii. 2980), London, 1856; Commentary on St. Matthew's Gospel, 1886; Sleepy Forest, and other Tales for Children, 1872; The Basis of Faith, Critical Survey of Christian Theism (Congregational lecture for 1877), 1877, 3d ed. 1886; Outlines of the Life of Christ, 1881; Drops and Rocks, and other Talks with the Children, 1872; a great number of articles in reviews and magazines, lectures, etc.

CORNILL, Carl Heinrich, Lic. Theol. (Marburg, 1886 [?]), D.D. (hon., Heidelberg, 1886), German Protestant theologian; b. in Germany, April 26, 1833; educated at Utrecht; became adjunct to the director of the Missionary Society of Rotterdam, 1858; Reformed pastor at Ouwe Wetering near St. Albans (the ancient Verulam), Eng., April 5, 1820; educated for the Christian ministry at Spring Hill College, Birmingham; entered, 1838; graduated M.A. in philosophy, with gold medal, at the University of London, 1844; became Congregational pastor at Poole, Dorset, 1844; at Leeds (East Parade Congregational Church), 1845-1849; a member of a commission for inquiring into the working of the English system of elementary education. He has written A Preliminary Essay to a translation of Carl Schmidt's Social Results of Early Christianity, London, 1885.

DALE, R. W., in 1885 was appointed by the Crown a member of a commission for inquiring into the working of the English system of elementary education. He has written A Preliminary Essay to a translation of Carl Schmidt's Social Results of Early Christianity, London, 1885.

D'ALVIELLA, Count E. Goblet. Harrison contre Spencer (trans. into English by Prof. E. L. Youmans, as appendix to the reprint of Harrison and Spencer's The Nature and Reality of Religion, New York, 1885): Cours d'introduction à l'histoire générale des religions, Ghent, 1886; articles in Revue de l'instruction publique.

DAVIDSON, R. L., was educated at Harrow.
DAVIES, J. L., contributed Peaks, Passes, and Glaciers, to Tracts for Priests and People.

DEANE, H., was Grinfield lecturer in the University of Oxford, 1884–86. He has also written various sermons and articles.

DEANE, W. J., was educated at Rugby. Catechism, 3d ed., 1886.

DEFOETE, Auguste Louis, Reformed Church of France; b. in Paris, Feb. 4, 1836; studied at the preparatory school of theology of Batignolles; became professor of history and French literature in the Royal College of Noorthey, Holland, where the Prince of Orange studied, 1858; determining on a ministerial career, he entered the theological seminary of Montauban, and graduated B.D. 1863; became pastor at Alais 1863; pastor of the Reformed Church of Paris 1869, and is now at the Oratoire. Among his works may be mentioned, Catechisme elementaire, Paris, 1875; Paris protestant, 1876; Sermons, 1876; Sermons pour les enfants, 3 series, 3d 1880 (translated into Danish, Hungarian, German [Gütersloh, 1883], and English; Méditations pratiques, 1881.

DENISON, Ven. G. A., is brother of the late Lord Ossington, speaker of the House of Commons, 1857–72; of the Bishop of Salisbury, 1857–54; and of Sir William Denison, K.C.B., Governor of Tasmania, Sydney, Madras, 1846–66. The archdeacon, as member of the Lower House of Convocation from revival of Convocation in 1852, was chairman of committees reporting in condemnation of Essays and Reviews, and of Bishop Colenso’s writings on the Old Testament. The Elementary Education Act conditioned the public grant upon the change of the schools of the Church of England into state schools, and in the attendant controversy he bore a prominent part. In December, 1885, after his general editorship he issued a pamphlet, Mr. Gladstone, in its 7th thousand, March, 1886.

DERENBOURG, Joseph, Ph.D. (Giessen, 1834); b. at Mayence, Aug. 21, 1811; studied at the Talmudical School and in the gymnasium of Mayence, and at the universities of Giessen and Bonn. He came to Paris in 1839; became a corrector of the press in the National Printing House (1852), especially of Hebrew (1856); professor of rabbinic and Talmudic Hebrew in the University of Paris, 1877. In 1871 he was elected a member of the Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-lettres. He is one of the most frequent contributors to the Journal scientifique de la théologie juive, and to the Revue juive scientifique et pratique, Journal asiatique, Revue critique; editor of Lokmann’s Fables, Paris, 1846; the second edition (with M. Reinaud) of the Scéances de Hariri, 1847–53; author of Essai sur l’histoire de la Palestine, 1867, etc.

DIECKHOFF, A. W., was professor extraordinary at Göttingen, 1854, before becoming ordinary professor at Rostock, 1860. He has written Zur Lehre von der Bekehrung und von der Prädestination: Zwei Entgegnung auf missionarische Ausflüchte, Rostock, 1886; Der Alkoholstreit, Dogmengeschichtlich dargestellt, Gotta, 1896.

DITTRICH, F., was professor of moral theology, 1872; of ecclesiastical history, 1873. He has published Observationes quodam de ordine naturali et moralis, Braunschweig, 1866; Breviarium des Cardinals Gasparo Contarini (1483–1551), 1881; Gasparo Contarini, eine Monographie, 1885. In the Indice Lectionum Lecesi Brunsebense he wrote the following articles: De Socratissententia, virtem esse scientiam, 1882; Quid e S. Pauli sententia lex monstra in moribus spectaverit, 1871; De Tertullianae christianae veritatis regular contra hareticorum licentiam vindice, 1877; Quae partes fuerunt Petri Pauli Vergeri in colloquio Wurmannensi, 1879; Siziti IV. Summi Pontificis ad Paulum III. Op. Pontif. Max. compositionum defensio, 1883. He edited the Mittheilungen des erlauternden Kunstvereins, Braunschweig, 1870, 1871, 1875; has also contributed to the Zeitschrift für Geschichte und Alterthumskunde Ermlands; to the Historisches Jahrbuch der Görres-Gesellschaft (Die Nuntiaturbericht von Giovanni Morone’s vom Reichstage zu Regensburg 1841, 1883); and to the Beiträge zur Geschichte der katholischen Reformation im ersten Drittel des 16 Jahrhunderts, in 1884 and 1886.

DIXON, R. W., is the son of James Dixon, a celebrated Wesleyan preacher. He has written Lyric Poems, Oxford, 1886.

DODS, M., wrote other articles in the Encyclopædia Britannica, besides those mentioned; Paradepartments, 1st series, 3d ed. 1886.

DOEDES, J. J., teaches also natural theology and textual criticism. Page 56, l. 14, r. Kerkelijker; l. 19, supply de before Jesu.

DONALDSON, J., rector of the University of St. Andrews, 1889.

DRUMMOND, Henry, has made scientific expeditions in Europe, America, and Central Africa, and is the author of various scientific papers.

DUCHESNE, A., since 1855 has been "Maître de conférences d'histoire à l'École des Hautes-Études de la Sorbonne," Paris.

DUNS, J., became a fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, 1859; wrote Memor. of Sir James Simpson, Bart., M.D., Edinburgh, 1873.

DYER, H. Records of an Active Life, New York, 1886.

EATON, Samuel John Mills, D.D. (Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1868). Presbyterian; b. at Fairview, Erie County, Penn., April 15, 1820; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1845; studied at the Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1846-48; was stated supply and pastor at Franklin, Penn., 1848-82; at Mt. Pleasant, Penn., 1848-55. In 1855, he removed to Allegheny, 1850-70; stated clerk, synod of Erie, 1870-81; has been stated clerk, presbytery of Erie, since 1853; trustee of Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., since 1879; director of the Western Theological Seminary since 1850. He was a delegate in the Christian Commission, 1863, traveled in the East, 1871. He is the author of History of Petroleum, Philadelphia, 1864; History of the Presbytery of Erie, New York, 1868; Ecclesiastical History (in Centennial Memorials of Presbyterianism in Western Pennsylvania, Harrisburg, 1869); History of Venango County, Penn., 1876; Lakeside, Pittsburgh, 1889; Memoir of Rev. Cyrus Dickson, D.D., New York, 1883; Jerusalem, 1883; Palestine, 1884; Lamberton Memorial, Pittsburgh, 1885.

EDDY, Z., removed to Detroit, Mich., in 1886.

EDEN, R., d. at Inverness, Thursday, Aug. 28, 1886.

EDERSHEIM, A., was the first Jew to carry off a prize at the gymnasium of Vienna. He was educated in Hungary as well as in Austria (Vienna). He wrote articles Josephus and Philo in Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography; and commentary on Ecclesiastes, in the Christian Antiquities and Biography.

EDWARDS,* L.,* collected works were published in Welsh at Wrexham. The most important are, "The Doctrine of the Atonement," and "The Harmony of the Faith."

ELLICOTT, Bishop. Are We to Modify Fundamental Doctrine? 2d ed. 1886.

ELLICOTT, C., is a member of the Victoria Institute, London.

Eyre, C., went to Newcastle-on-Tyne, 1843; was canon theologian and vicar-general; is a member of the Order of the Knights of Malta, and also of the Holy Sepulchre.

Fairchild, J. H., was tutor in languages in Oberlin College, 1839-42.

FARRAR, A. S., was select preacher at Oxford, 1885-86; examined chaplain to the Bishop of Exeter, 1885-86.

FARRAR, F. W., travelled in the United States in 1885, and lectured on Dante, Browning, and the Talmud; contributed commentary on Judges in Bishop Ellcott's Commentary, and on Book of Wisdom in Bible (Speaker's) Commentary on the Apocrypha.

FAUSTET, A. R., B.D. and D.D. (by special grace of the Board of Trinity College and University, Dublin, 1866), became canon of York Minster, 1885.

FERGUSON, Samuel David, D.D. (Theological Seminary, Gambier, O., 1885).

FoutuKES, E. S., was examiner in the Hon. School of Theology, Oxford, 1873-75; wrote Primitive Consecration of the Eucharist Oblation, London, 1886; numerous articles on church history and theology in Smith's Dictionary of Christian Antiquities and Biography.

FIELD, H. M. Blood thicker than Water: a few Days among our Southern Brethren, New York, 1886. Starting Point, of the School of the East Parish, Aberdeen, and in 1861 to that of Kilconquhar, Fife. He is a corresponding member of the Institute of France, and a fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh. Author of Vico, Edinburgh, 1884.

FLEIDNER, F., edits also Blätter aus Spanien; and the periodicals, Christian Review (fortnightly) and Children's Friend (monthly); has prepared, in Spanish, the work of M. Sellier, Life of St. Peter the Apostle (this father), John Howard, Elizabeth Fry, Hymn-book for Sunday Schools, and various other books for the Spanish Christian literature.

FLINT, R., was appointed in 1859 to the pastorate of the East Parish, Aberdeen, and in 1861 to that of Kileouqhar, Fife. He is a corresponding member of the Institute of France, and a fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh. Author of Vico, Edinburgh, 1884.

FOSTER, R. V., was chief editor of the comments on the International Lessons, and other Sunday-school literature of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, from 1880 to 1884; and for three years, since 1877, he was in charge of the belles-lettres department of Cumberland University, at the same time discharging the duties of his theological professorship. — Trinity University is at Tehuacana, Tex.

FRANKÉ, A. H., D.D. (Halle, 1885).

FREPPEL, C. E. St. Irénée, 3d ed. 1886.

Froicke, G. A., became Consistorialrat in 1882.

Friedrich, J., died in summer of 1886.

Fritzsche, O. F. Confsessio helvetica posterior, Zürich, 1839; Duopoly libri Eospi, textus græcæ 1848; Specimen ed.-crit. interpr. veter. lat. N. T., 1887; Epistola Clem. ad Jacob. et Rufini interpret. 1873.

Funk, F. X. Kirchengeschichte, 1886 sqq.

Gams, Bonifaz, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1888); D.D. (kon., Tübingen, 18—). Roman Catholic; b. at Mittelbuch, Jan. 23, 1816; studied at Tübingen, where he received the prize of the theological faculty, and the first homiletical prize, 1838; became rirker at Aichstetten and Gmünd, 1839; acting preceptor at Horb, 1841; made a scientific journey at the expense of the State, 1842-43; became acting pastor at Wurmingen, 1844; acting pastor at Greiz, 1844; chief preceptor at Gmünd, 1845; professor of theology at Hildesheim, 1847; novice m the Benedictine Abbey of St. Boniface in Munich 1855, monk there 1856; rose to be superior, but later resigned.

GANDELL, R. His fellowship of Hertford College is undeniaw. The edition of Lightfoot’s Hora was published by the Clarendon Press, Oxford.

GERHARDT, E. V. was editor of Rauch’s Inner Life of the Christian, Philadelphia, 1856.

GIBB, John, D.D. (Aberdeen, 1886), Presbyterian; b. at Aberdeen, Scotland, in the year 1835; graduated at the University of Aberdeen, at Heidelberg and Berlin, and also at the Divinity Hall of the Free Church in Aberdeen; became colleague of Rev. G. Waely at Malta, 1866; theological tutor in the College of the Presbyterian Church of England, London, 1881; professor of New Testament exegesis in the same, 1877. He is the author of the translation of Augustine’s Lectures on the Gospel according to John, vol. i. (in Clark’s series), Edinburgh, 1873; Biblical Studies, and their Influence upon the Church, London, 1877; Guérin and Other Stories, 1881 (2d ed. Guérin, Beaufuf, and the Song of Roland, 1884); Luther’s Table-Talk (selected and edited), 1883; articles on theological and historical subjects, in Contemporary Review, British and Foreign Evangelical Review, British Quarterly Review, etc.

GLOAG, P. J. Introduction to the Catholic Epistles, Edinburgh, 1886.

GORDON, W. R. Peter Never in Rome, New York, 1847; several tracts and sermons on various subjects, 1848-49; The Iniquity of Secession, 1862; The Assassination of President Lincoln, 1865; An Answer to the Roman Tract, “Is it Honest”? 1867; Controversial Letters in Defence of [the same], Youngtown, 1868.

GREEN, S. Q. What Do I Believe? 1881; Christian Ministry to the Young, 1883.

GRUNDEMANN, P. R., has been, since 1882, president of the Missions-Conferenz in the Province of Brandenburg; has written, Zur Statistik der evangelischen Mission, Gutersloh, 1886.

GUTHIE, W., new ed. Patrística, 1886.

HAERING, T. Die Theologie und der Vorwurf der „doppelten Wahrheit.“ Rede zum Antritt des akademischen Lehramts an der Universität Zürich, Zürich, 1886 (pp. 31). He is joint editor of the Theologische Studien aus Württemberg, and belongs to the right or conservative wing of the school of Ritschl.

HALE, E. E. Of Mr. Hale’s other works may be mentioned, The Man Without a Country, Boston, 1861; If, Yes, and Perhaps, 1868; Ingham Papers, 1870; How To Do It, 1871; Christmas Eve and Christmas Day, 1872; His Level Best, and other stories, 1872; Workingmen’s Hames, 1873; In His Name, 1874; Seven Spanish Cities, and the Way to them, 1883; Sermons and Easter Poems, Boston, 1886; (with Susan Hale) The Story of Spain, N. Y., 1886 (several editions of each).

Haley, J. W., is translating Eusebius’ Preparatio Evangelica from the original Greek, a work which has never yet been accomplished.

HALL, N. His church has a membership of nine hundred and Sunday School with six thousand children. The Lincoln Tower is a hundred and twenty feet in height; the spire is formed of red and white stone representing the stars and stripes. It has two class-rooms called “Washington” and “Willerforce. To his list of works add: Family Prayers in the Words of Scripture.

HANNE, J. W., gave public lectures upon history and philosophy, Protestantism, etc., at Brunswick, 1840-50; was pastor in different places of the Kingdom of Hannover, 1851-61.

HARNACK, A. Codex Rossanensis, Leipzig, 1880; Der Ursprung des Lectorats und der anderen niederen Weichen, Giessen, 1886; Die Quellen der sogenannten apostolischen Kirchenordnung, Leipzig, 1886; Die Apostellehre u. die jüdischen beiden Wege (enlarged reprint of art. on the subject in the Appendix to Herzog?), 1886.

HARNACK, T. Luther’s Theology. 2. Abth. Luther’s Lehre von dem Erlöser und der Erlösung, Erlangen, 1886.

HARPER, W. R. has been since 1885 principal of the schools of the Institute of Hebrew.

HARRISON, Ven. Benjamin, Church of England; b. in England about the year 1810; was a student of Christ Church, Oxford University, graduated B.A. (1st-class classics and 2d-class mathematics) 1830; Ellerton theological prize, HATCH.

HATCHE.

and Kennicott Hebrew scholar, 1831; English essay, and Pusey and Ellerton Hebrew scholar, 1832; M.A., 1833; was ordained deacon, 1832; priest, 1833; select preacher at Oxford, 1835-37; domestic chaplain to the archbishop of Canterbury, 1838-45; six preacher in Canterbury Cathedral, 1842; took a seat in the Maidstone with canony in Canterbury Cathedral, annexed 1845. He was a member of the Old Testament Company of the Anglo-American Bible-Revision Committee from its organization in 1870. He is the author of An Historical Inquiry into the True Interpretation of the Rubrics respecting the Minister and the Communion Service, London, 1845; Prospects of Peace for the Church, 1875; The Church in its Divine Constitution and Relation with the Civil Power, 1877; The More Excellent Way, 1878; Memories of Departed Brethren, 1878, Church's Work and Wants, 1881; Disestablishment and Disendowment, 1883; Legacy of Peace, 1883; Address to the Archbishopric of Maidstone, 1885; The Continuity of the Church, and its Present Position in England, 1886.

HATCH, E. Individualism and Ecclesiasticism, Their Common Place in the Church of Christ (sermon), London, 1886.

HAURÉAU, J.B. HugodeSaintVictor, 2d ed. 1886.

HAWES, H. R., visited America in 1885, and preached at New York and Boston, also before Harvard and Cornell Universities, addressing immense congregations. He also delivered seven lectures at the Lowell Institute, Boston, which drew together the largest audiences ever known to have assembled there. In the same year he visited Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington (where he was received by the President of the United States) and, after lecturing at Montreal and Kingston, Canada, returned to London in the spring of 1886. My Musical Life, 2d ed. 1886.

HEDGEC, F. H., received the degree of LL.D. at Harvard's 250th anniversary, Nov. 8, 1886.

HEIDENHEIM, Moritz, Ph.D. (Giessen, 1851), Anglican theologian; b. at Worms, Sept. 23, 1824; educated at the gymnasium at Worms, and at the universities of Würzburg and Giessen; studied theology subsequently at King's College, London, and was elected associate of the college 1855. He worked for several years in the library of the British Museum, and in the Vatican and other libraries at Rome and elsewhere. He has been since 1864 "English chaplain" of the Anglican Church at Zürich, and privoet-docent in the theological faculty of the university there. He has published Deutsche Vierteljahrschrift für deutsche und englische theologische Forschung und Kräfte, 2d ed. 1873; Beiträge, 1876-83, 18 vols.; Bibliotheca Samaritana: (text and annotations), Leipzig, 1884 seq. 3d part, 1886.

HEINRICI, K. F. G. Wesen und Aufgabe der evangelisch-theologischen Facultäten, Marburg, 1885.
HOECELSCHMANN, Ferdinand, D.D. (hon., Erlangen, 18—); became pastor adjunctus at Fel- lin, Livonia, 1855; pastor ordinarius, 1861; ordinary professor of practical theology, and university preacher, at Dorpat, 1875. He received the order of St. Stanislaus (2d class) and St. Anna (2d class). Besides books in the Estonian language, e.g., Introduction to the New Testament, Dorpat, 1861; Matthias Zell and his Friends, 1874; Lectures, 1875; 3d ed. 1884,—he has published various German addresses, etc.

HOFSTEDE DE GROOT, Cornelis Philippus, D.D. (Groningen, 1855), Dutch Protestant theologian, son of the succeeding; b. at Groningen, in the year 1829; educated at Groningen; became Reformed pastor at Rottum 1856, at Dwingeloo 1860, at Purmerend 1864, at Kampen 1869; the appointee of the synod of the National Church to be professor of systematic theology, ecclesiastical history, and civil law, in Groningen, 1878; and died there Aug. 11, 1884. He is the author of Paulus concorsi ascendentis theologiae Paulinae fons (his D.D. thesis, Groningen, 1853), and in Dutch of “Letters upon the Bible,” Amsterdam, 1860; (with L. van Cleeff) The Apocalypse of Wylie’s History of Protestantism, 1877; the Dutch translation of Wylie’s History of Protestantism, 1878–80; “One Hundred Years of the History of the Reformation in the Netherlands (1518–1619),” 1891; History of the Brothers’ Church at Groningen, 1883.

HOFSTEDE DE GROOT, Petrus, D.D. (Groningen, 1829), Dutch theologian; b. at Leer, in the year 1802; studied at the gymnasium and University of Groningen; became Reformed pastor at Ulrum, 1826; professor of theology at Groningen, and university preacher, 1829; emeritus, 1872. He inaugurated the Groningen school of theology, which is the opponent of the so-called “modern theology.” In his interest he edited the review, Recensio, 1825–72. From 1849 to 1852 he was a member of the synod of the National Church. He is the author of Disputatio, qua ep. ad Hebr. cum Paulin. epistolam comparatur, Utrecht, 1826; Disputatio de Clemente Al., philos-christ. sive de vico quor huius philosophia imprin. Platonis habuit ad Cler. Al. Saevan. religiosus christ. doctorem inforamandum (his D.D. thesis), Groningen, 1829; Institutiones historico-criticaecharacterarum saurarum breviter delineatae, 1835, 2d ed. 1852; Institutio theologica naturalis, Utrecht, 1842, 4th ed. 1861; (with L. Pareau) Encyclopaedia theologica christiani, 1844; in Dutch, “History of the Brothers’ Church at Groningen,” Groningen, 1832; “The Agitations in the Reformed Church of the Netherlands from 1833 to 1839,” 1840 (issued anonymously as from X; German trans. ed. by Gieseler, Hamburg, 1840); “Jesus Christ the Foundation of the Unity of the Christian Church,” 1846; “The Divine Education of Humanity up to the Coming of Jesus Christ,” 1840; 3 vols., 3d ed. 1st 2 vols. 1855, 2d ed. 3d vol. 1885; “The Groningen Theologians,” 1854 (German trans., Gotha, 1893); Kort overzigt van de leer der zonde (“Brief Examination of the Doctrine of Sin”), 1858; “Divine and the Church in the Future,” 1861; The Nature and the Church Ministry, 1858; De zondvloed, eene vooruitgaande uiteering van God (“On Missions as a Progressive Revelation of God”), Rotterdam, 1860; Mededelingen omtreffling Matthias Claudius (“Information concerning Matthias Claudius”), Groningen, 1861; Het evangelie der apostelen tegenover de twijfelingen en de wijsheid der wereld (“The Apostolic Gospel over against the Doubts and the Wisdom of the World”), The Hague, 1861; Arz Scheffler, 1882, 2d ed. 1872 (German trans. 1864, 2d ed. 1870); “Baalides considered as the First Witness in Favor of the Authenticity of the Writings of the Old Testament and of the Fourth Gospel,” 1860 (German trans., Leipzig, 1867); “The Modern Theology” of the Netherlands described according to the Principal Writings of its Most Illustrious Representatives,” 1869 (German trans., Bonn, 1870); Johan Wessel Ganzwoort, 1871; “The Course of the Schism in the Reformed Church of the Netherlands,” 1874; “The Old-Catholic Movement,” 1877.

HOLSTEN, K. L. Die drei ursprünglichen noch ungeschriebenen Evangelien, Karlsruhe und Leipzig, 1883; Die synoptischen Evangelien nach der Form ihres Inhalts, Leipzig, 1886; Ursprung und Wesen der Religion (lecture), Berlin, 1886.

HOPKINS, M., received the degree of LL.D. at Harvard’s 250th anniversary, Nov. 8, 1886.

HOW, W. W. Commentary on the Four Gospels, 18—; Cambridge Pastoral Lectures, 1894.

HOBSON, J. S. To the Diocesan of Women in the Anglican Church (with a short biographical sketch by his son), 1886.

HUNTINGDON, W. R. Joint author of the so-called “Book Animized.”

HURST, J. F., made a tour through Egypt, Syria, and Greece, 1871; made an official tour through India, and the Methodist missions in Europe and Turkey, 1884; edited (in connection with Prof. H. C. Whitney) Moral Essays of Seneca, 1877; wrote Christian Union, 1880; The Gospel a COMBATIVE FORCE, 1884; Short History of the Early Church, 1886.

HURTER, H. Nomenclator, etc., Innsbruck, 1871–86, 3 vols. He is the son of Antiates Hurter, who joined the Roman-Catholic Church. See Encyclopaedia, p. 1043.

IMMER, Heinrich Albert, D.D. (Basel, 1860), Swiss Reformed theologian; b. at Untersen, Aug. 10, 1804; d. at Bern, March 23, 1884. His father was pastor of Untersen, Canton Bern. There was a clumsiness about him which his father mistook for stupidity, and severely punished. The effect of such treatment was to retard his mental development. He learned bookbinding at Lausanne and Zurich, and began business at Thun; but the reading, in 1834, of Schleiermacher's
Rede über die Religion so powerful and moved him, that he determined to study theology. He entered, after a brilliant examination, the University of Bern in 1835, passed his theological examination in 1838, and continued his studies at Bonn and Berlin 1838-40. He then returned home, became a pastor, and, after ten years' service, became professor extraordinaire of theology at Bern in 1856, ordinary professor of New-Testament exegesis and of theology there 1856, and so remained until his retirement as professor emeritus in 1881. He exerted a great and wide influence. He was the author of Schfieiermacher als religiöser Character (lecture), Bern, 1858; "Der Unübertreflichkeitzweile Kritik", Münster, 1886. L. 14, r. Germania im imp. ies.

JACOB, C. J. H. Luther vorreformatorische Predig, 1512-1517, Königssberg, 1883.

JENNINGS, A. C., became rector of King's Stanley, Gloucestershire, 1886.

JOSTES, F. Die Teipfer Bibelübersetzung, eine zweite Kritik, Münster, 1886. L. 14, r. Germania xxxi. 1—41; 164—204.

KAEHLER, C. M. A. Die Versöhnung durch Christum, Halle, 1885 (pp. 42).

KAFTAN, J. W. M., belongs to the conservative wing of the school of Ritschl, and succeeded Dr. Dornier.

KATTEBUSCH, F. W. F. His ßecumenise Symbole is not yet ready, nor does he now contemplate so extensive a work as the title seems to imply.

KAUFEN, F. P., edited the 12th and succeeding editions of C. H. Vosen's Kurze Anleitung zum Erlebnen der hebräischen Sprache (which is not a translation of the Latin work by the same author), Freiburg, 1874 sqq.

KEIL, J. C. F. The Einleitung in d. kanon. Schriften, etc., the 2d ed. in the 4th by He and the title was changed to its present form: Einleitung in die kanonischen und apokryphischen Schriften des Alten Testaments.

KELLER, L. Die Waldenser und die deutschen Bibelübersetzungen. Leipzig, 1886 (pp. 189).

KENNEDY, B. H., fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, 1828-30; elected fellow, 1885; edited Vergil's Works, with Commentary, 1876.

KILLEN, W. D., wrote the continuation (vol. iii.) of James Kenyon Reid's History of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland, Belfast, vol. i. 1834, vol. ii. 1837, vol. iii. 1853, 3d ed. 1867; The Ignatian Epistles entirely spurious (a reply to Bp. Lightfoot), Edinburgh, 1886.

KIRKPATRICK, A. F., until 1882, was assistant tutor and junior dean of Trinity College, Cambridge.

KOENIG, A., has written recensions, apologetical articles in English and German. He exerted a great an wide influence. He was the author of Schleiennacher als religioser Character (lecture), Erlangen, 1886. L. 17, after Beyriindung supply syriacia servataquinque.

KOESSLING, F. Der reiche Jüngling, 1868.

KOESTLIN, J. T., new ed. Lutheris Theologie, 1883.

KOLDE, Th. Der Methodismus und seine Belangung (lecture), Erlangen, 1886.

KRAFFT, W. L., D.D. (Bonn, 1852), travelled with F. A. Strauss (author of Sinai and Golgota) in the East, for the sake of studying biblical antiquities and ancient history (1844); took part in the Evangelical Alliance meeting in New York in 1873; wrote a draught of the Consensus of the Reformed Confessions for the first General Council of the Alliance of Ref. Churches, Edinburgh, 1877 (printed in Report of Proceedings, etc., Edinburgh, 1877, pp. 41—48). To the list of his books add, Carl Küpper, Lebensbild aus der rhein. Kirche, Bonn, 1860; Briefe und Documente aus der Zeit der Reformation, Elberfeld, 1876; Die deutsche Bibel vor Luther, Bonn, 1883. Since 1849 he has edited the Bonner Monatschrift für die evangel. Kirche der Rheinprov. u. Westfalen; and since 1858, Die Mission unter Israel, Cologne.

KUENEN, A., is also LL.D. The first chapter (The Hexateuch) of the 2d ed. of his Historisch-kritisch Onderzoek was translated by Philip H. Wicksteed, with his assistance, and published under title: An Historico-Critical Enquiry into the Origin and Composition of the Hexateuch, London, 1886.

KURTZ, J. H. L. 17, after Begründung supply der Einheit u. Echtheit (d. Pentateuch).

LORIMER, George Cheney, D.D. (Bethel College, 1884), American Baptist Home Missionary Society; member of the American Baptist Home Mission Society; edited many of the publications of the National Temperance Society; was in 1897 elected honorary fellow of Jesus College, Cambridge.

LORIMER, George Cheney, D.D. (Bethel College, 1884), American Baptist Home Mission Society; member of the American Baptist Home Mission Society; edited many of the publications of the National Temperance Society; was in 1897 elected honorary fellow of Jesus College, Cambridge.

LORIMER, George Cheney, D.D. (Bethel College, 1884), American Baptist Home Mission Society; member of the American Baptist Home Mission Society; edited many of the publications of the National Temperance Society; was in 1897 elected honorary fellow of Jesus College, Cambridge.

LORIMER, George Cheney, D.D. (Bethel College, 1884), American Baptist Home Mission Society; member of the American Baptist Home Mission Society; edited many of the publications of the National Temperance Society; was in 1897 elected honorary fellow of Jesus College, Cambridge.
lowe.

MERRILL. 262

lege, Russelville, Ky., 186–); Baptist; b. near Edinburgh, Scotland, in the year 1838; came to the United States in the year 1856; studied at Georgetown College, Ky.; was ordained pastor at Har-rodsburg, Ky., 1859; from there went to Paducah, Ky., and thence to Louisville, Ky., where he remained eight years; then went to Albany, N.Y., and was there two years; thence to Shawmut-avenue Church, Boston; thence to Tremont Temple Church in the same city; thence to the First Church, Chicago, Ill., and is now pastor of the Michigan-avenue Church of that city. He is the author of Under the Evergreens; or, A Night with Discourse concerning Baptists and Religious Belief, why He came, and what He did, 1883; Studies in Social Life, New York, 1886.

LOWE, W. H., was educated at Durham school; rowed in Cambridge University boat against Oxford, 1868, 1870, 1871; was curate of St. John's, London, 1882—86. He edited Tiszii i Jinping, 1886.

LUCKOCK, H. M. The Bishops in the Tower,
London, 1886.

LUTHARDT, C. E., became canon of Meissen, 1870.

MAISON, W. A. V. V., was in Hudson County, N.J., superintendent of public schools (1848–55), examiner of all the teachers of public schools (1848– 65), and commissioner for the equalization of taxes, 1876–81. The New Durham Church under him (1846–81) was not only prosperous, but the parent of several other churches.

MACDUFF, J. R. Brighter than the Sun, 1888; Morning Family Prayers for a Year, 1886; Ripples in the Twilight: Fragments of Sunday Thought and Teaching, 1888.

McCULLAINE, J. H. The Wisdom of the Apoc-alyse, N.Y., 1886.

MACKARES, J. F., was educated at Eton.

MACKARNESS, J. F., was educated at Eton.

MACLEAR, Q. F., was appointed honorary canon of Canterbury in 1885.

MACMILLAN, H., F.S.A. Scot. (1883). The MCDOON, Elias Lyman, D.D. (Rochester University, N.Y., 1885), Baptist; b. at Lebanon, N.H., Oct. 20, 1810; d. in Philadelphia, Penn., Nov. 25, 1886. He was educated at New Hampton Academy (1830–32), Waterville College, Me., now Colby University (1832–30), and at the Newton (Mass.) Theological Institution (1836–39); became pastor of the Second Baptist Church, Richmond, Va., 1839; resigned on account of the division in the denomination on the question of slavery, and became pastor of the Ninth-street Baptist Church, Cincinnati, O., 1843; of the Oliver-street Baptist Church, New York, 1849; of the First Baptist Church, Albany, N.Y., 1857;

of the Broad-street Baptist Church, Philadelphia, Penn., 1887. He was apprenticed to the brick-layer's trade in 1826, worked at it until 1830; and by means of it during vacations and at other times supported himself through his academy, college, and seminary life. Because of it he early took interest in ecclesiastical architecture, and gathered in the course of years a large and valuable library upon the subject. He was a man of catholic tastes, wide reading, and great personal charm.
A few years before his death he sold for twenty thousand dollars his art collection to Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, and at the same time presented his Protestant literature collection to Newton (Mass.) Theological Institution, his illustrated art works to Rochester (N.Y.) University, many of his miscellaneous works to Colby University and to Bates College (Maine), a collection of water-colors to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City, and his Roman-Catholic theological works to Cardinal McCloskey. He is the author of Orators of the American Revolution,
New York, 1848; Proverbs for the People, Boston,
1848; Living Orators in America, New York, 1849;
Republican Christianity, Boston, 1849; Westward Empire, The Great Drama of Human Progress,
New York, 1856.

MAHAN, A. Out of Darkness into Light, London and Boston, 1875; Autobiography: Intellectual,

MAIER, A., is commander of the Order of the Zähringian Lion with the Star. He wrote Historisch-kritische Untersuchungen über den Hebräer-brief, Freiburg, 1851; Die Glossolalie des apostolischen Zeitalters, 1855; Exegetisch-kritische Untersuch-ungen über die Christologie, 1871.

MANN, W. J. Life of Melichior Mühlenberg, 1896.

MANNING, H. E. Petri Privilegium, Miscellanea, MARQUIS, David Calhoun, D.D. (Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1875), Presbyterian; b. in Lawrence County, Penn.,

Nov. 15, 1854; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1857; taught, 1857–60; studied in Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1860–62, and in the Theological Seminary of the North-west, Chicago, Ill., 1862–63; became pastor at Decatur, Ill., 1863; of North Church, Chicago, Ill., 1866; of Westminster Church, Baltimore, Md., 1870; of Lafayette-park Church, St.
Louis, Mo., 1871; professor of New Testament literature and exegesis in the Theological Semiinary of the North-west (since 1856, McCormick Theological Seminary), Chicago, Ill., 1883. He was moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church at Minneapolis, Minn., 1886.

MARTI, Karl, Lic. Theol. (Basel, 1879), Swiss
Reformed; b. at Bubendorf, Baselland, Switzerland,
April 25, 1855; studied at Basel, Göttingen, and Leipzig; became pastor at Buns, Baselland 1889, at Muttenz 1885; has been privat-docent at Basel since 1881. He belongs, in general, to the school of Ritschl. He is the author of the articles "Die Spuren der so. Grundschrift des Hex-vateuchs in den vorexilisc1en Propheten des Allen Testaments," in Jahrb. fü r prot. Theol., 1880;
"Die alten Lauren und Kloster in der Wiiste
Testaments," in Jahrb. für prot. Theol., 1880;
"Die alten Lauren und Kloster in der Wiiste
Juda (on basis of information from Baurath Schick in Jerusalem), in Zeitsch. d. deutsch.Pales-inerevue, 1882; Thai Zehoim [F. Sam. xii.
18], in same, 1884; and minor articles in the Swiss Kirchenblatt.

MERRILL, S., has visited Palestine three differ-tent times, and has made the largest collection of birds and animals from that country that at present exists. He published The Site of Calvary, Jerusalem, 1886.

MERX, E. O. A., Ph.D. (Breslau, Aug. 9, 1861), Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1864), D.D. (hon., Jena, 1872); at Tübingen was professor of Semitic languages, at Giessen of Old Testament exegesis, and now at Heidelberg. List of books add: Grammatica syriaca, vol. i., Halle, 1867; Vocabulary of the Tigré Language written down by Moritz von Beurmann, 1868; (with Arnold) the 2d ed. of Tuck's Commentar über die Genesis, 1871; Neußisches Lesebuch, Texte im Dialect von Urmiſa, Giessen, 1871; Türkische Sprichwörter in Deutsche übersetzt, Venice, 1872; Zur Religionsphilosophie, Giessen, 1872; Die Saaljäneische Übersetzung des Hohen Liedes in's Arabische, nebst andern auf das Hohe Lied bezügl. arab. Texten, Heidelberg, 1882; Wissenschaft. Gutachten über die Stellen aus Sohar und Vital auf die H. Prof. Rohling seine Blutbeleidigung gründen, Vienna, 1883; Christenmathia turgumica vocalibus babylonica instituta quam e cod. Mstps. edidit, lexicon adjecit, Historia artis grammaticae apud Syros, accedit interpretatio Dionysii Thracis et Seceri bar Shakku grammatica syriaca, 1887; also articles, e.g., in the transactions of the Fourth Oriental Congress, Florence, 1880; De Eusebian Histories ecclesiastica versionibus syriaca et armencia (with Professor Wright of Cambridge, he has undertaken a revision of the Syriac text of Eusebius with a translation); in those of the Fifth Congress, Berlin, 1882, Bemerkungen über die Vocaalisation der Targum, mit Anhang über die Tuchufutkalischen Fragmente; in Uhlig, "G. Dionysii Thracis ars grammatica," Leipzig, 1883, De versione armencia Dionysii Thracis disputatio; in "Deutsche morgenl. Zeitschrift," 1885, Proben der syr. Übersetzung von Galenus' Schrift über die einfachen Heilmittel; in "Protestant Kirche," Ztg., 1885, Eine mittelalterliche Kritik der Offenbarung, and Zum 200 jährigen Geburtstage Sebastian Bach's ("Bach als religiöser Componist").

MESSNER, K. F. H., d. in Berlin, Nov. 7, 1886. The paper he edited was suspended Nov. 13.

MITCHELL, A. F., was moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland in 1885.

MOFFAT, J. C. Comparative Religions has passed through several editions.

MOMBERT, Jacob Iisidor, D.D. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1860), Episcopalian; b. at Cassel, Germany, Nov. 6, 1829; received his first education in the schools there; spent several years in business, which gave him opportunity of an early residence in England; there he passed through college, and after studies continued at Leipzig and Heidelberg, and extensive travels, took orders in the Church of England in 1857; was curate in Quebec, Canada, 1857–59; assistant (1859), and then rector of St. James's Church, Lancaster, Penn., 1860–69; American chaplain, Dresden, Saxony, 1869–75; since which time he has only partially exercised his ministry, having been engaged with literary labors. Theologically he holds catholic and non-partisan ground, alike reformed and reviving the old distinction of the Church of Rome, now wholly lost sight of in the Roman Church; and the daring negotiations of the followers of Reuss. His studies have ranged over many fields in theology, philosophy, philosophy, history, and art. He has written many scholarly articles in different religious periodicals; translated Tholuck's Commentary on the Psalms (London, 1856, Philadelphia 1857), and the Commentary on the Catholic Epistles in the American Lange Series, New York, 1867; edited with prolegomena (containing a Life of Tyndale) and various collations, William Tyndale's Five Books of Moses being a verbatim reprint, copied by his own hand, of the edition of 1530 in the Lenox Library, New York, and compared with Tyndale's Genesis of 1534, and the Pentateuch in the Vulgate, Luther, and Matthew's Bible, New York [1844]; and is the author of the following independent works: Faut Victimus: Account of the Venerable Dr. Johann Ebel, Late Archbishop of the Old Town Church of Königsberg, in Prussia, London and New York, 1882; Handbook of the English Version of the Bible, with Copious Examples illustrating the Ancestry and Relationship of the Several Versions, and Comparative Tables (1883); Great Lives: A Course of History in Biographies, Boston, 1886, 2d ed. 1886.

MOORHOUSE, J., was chaplain in ordinary to the Queen, 1874–76.

MORISON, James. The Extent of the Atonement has been often reprinted; Saving Faith, 9th ed. 1886; St. Paul's Teaching on Sanctification, a Practical Exposition of Rom. vii., 1886.

MORRIS, J. Q., was the first editor of The Lutheran Observer, Philadelphia, Penn.

MOULTON, W. F., with Milligan, wrote the commentary on John, in Schaff's Popular Commentary.

MYRBORG, O. F. L. 19, add after Notes: and various independent works. "The Basis of Freemasonry," 1883; several pamphlets; founded in 1884, Biblioforskaren, a journal for critical and practical Bible studies.

NIELSEN, F. K., was a member of the commission for a new hymn-book for the Danish Church, which appeared in 1885. To list of books (in Danish) add: The Ethics of Tertullian, 1879; Scandinavian Free-Masonry and its History, 1882; The Basis of Free-Masonry, 1883; Lodge and Church, 1883 (German translation, Leipzig, 1883); Essays and Criticisms, 1884.

NILLES, N. Selecte disputationes academicae juris ecclesiastici, Innsbruck, 1886 sqq.

OETTINGEN, A. Was heisst christlich-social? Zeitschriften, Leipzig, 1884.

OORT, H. The Human Sacrifices in Israel (Dutch), 1865; his Gospel and Talmud was translated with many additions in The Modern Review, London, 1883 (July and October); Atlas for Biblical and Ecclesiastical History, 1884, editor.

OSGOOD, H., is the author of articles in The Baptist Review, and other periodicals.

ÖVERTON, John Henry, Church of England; canon of Stow Longa in Lincoln Cathedral; was scholar of Lincoln College, Oxford; first class moderation, 1855; B.A., 1856; M.A., 1860; was ordained deacon 1858, priest 1859; was curate of Quedgeley, Gloucestershire, 1858-60; rector of Legbourne, Lincolnshire, 1860-83; since 1879 has been canon of Stow Longa in Lincoln Cathedral; and since 1883 rector of Epworth, Diocese of Lincoln. With Rev. C. J. Abbey he wrote, The English Church in the Eighteenth Century, London, 1878, 2 vols.; and separately, William Law, Nonjuror and Mystic, 1880; Life in the English Church, 1860-1714, 1885; The Evangelical Revival in the Eighteenth Century, 1886; and contributed to the Encyclopedia Britannica (9th edition) and The Dictionary of National Biography.

PARK, E. A., received the degree of LL.D. at the 250th anniversary of Harvard University, Nov. 8, 1886.

PARRY, E., in 1882 declined election by the Australian bishops, as bishop of Sydney and metropolitan.

PAXTON, John R. The "R." is a mere initial.

PAYNE-SMITH, R., wrote commentary on the books of Samuel, in the Pulpit Commentary.

PEROWNE, J. J., was educated at Norwich Grammar School; was Bell's University scholar, 1842; Crosse Divinity scholar, 1843; prebendary of St. David's Cathedral, 1867-72. He is the author of Remarks on Dr. Donaldson's "Janhar;" The Church, the Ministry, the Sacraments (sermons), 1882; The Athanasian Creed (a sermon); Considerations on the 250th anniversary of Harvard University, 1886; The Philosophy of Religion on the Basis of its History (vol. i., Spinoza to Schleiermacher), London, 1887, 2 vols.

PHILPOTT, H., was chancellor of the Univer-sity of Cambridge in 1847.

Pierce, H. N., was ordained deacon 1848; or-dained priest, 1849; planted the Episcopal Church in Washington County, Tex.; was rector at Matagorda, Tex., 1852-64; took temporary charge of Trinity Church, New Orleans, last half of 1864; rector of St. Paul's, Rahway, N.J., 1855-57; of St. John's, Mobile, Ala., 1857-60; of St. Paul's, Springfield, Mobile, Ala., 1870-71; consecrated bishop, 1870.

PIGOU, F. Full title of work cited as Early Communion is Early Communion Addresses at Huddersfield, Liverpool, etc., London, 1877.

PITRA, J. B., transferred in 1884 to the see of Porto et Santa Rufina. The second series of the Spicilegium is under title Analecta Sororae Spicilegii Solomensis; and the third, Analecta No- scanners, has already begun.

PLATH, K. H. C. Fünfzig Jahre Gossenmer- Mission, Berlin, 1886; The Subject of Missions con-sidered under Three New Aspects (the Church and missions; the representation of the science of missions at the universities; commerce and the Church), Eng. trans., Edinburgh, 1873.

PLUMMER, A., was educated at Lancing College, Sussex, 1852-58; wrote on Epistles of St. John, in Cambridge Greek Testament, 1886; also The Church of the Early Fathers, London, 1887.

PORTER, J. L. Jerusalem, Bethany, and Beth-lehem, London, 1886. Dr. Porter was missionary in Syria, 1849-59.

PRESSENGÉ, E., is a corresponding member of the Lowell Institute, Boston, taking the place of Victor Cousin; takes an active part in the French Senate as a liberal; wrote Variétés morales et politiques, Paris, 1865.

PRÉGÉR, J. W., Die Entwicklung der Idee des Menschen durch die Weltgeschichte, Munich, 1879; Der kirchenpol. Kampf unter Ludwig d. Bai er u. sein Einfluss auf d. öffentl. Meinung in Deutschland, 1877; Die Verträge Ludwigs d. Baiern und Friedrich dem Schüler 1825 u. 1826, 1883; Die Politik-Johannes XXII. in Bezug auf Italien und Deutschland, 1885; Psalmbuchlein Bibl. Psalmen in deutschen Liebelszeiten, Rothenburg, 1886; articles on R. Merswin, J. Tauler, Mystische Theologie, in Herzog's Realencyclopädie.

PRESSENGÉ, E., is a corresponding member of the Lowell Institute, Boston, taking the place of Victor Cousin; takes an active part in the French Senate as a liberal; wrote Variétés morales et politiques, Paris, 1865.

PRIME, Wendell, D.D. (Union College, Schenec-tady, N.Y., 1860), Presbyterian, son of the late Samuel Ireneus Prime; b. at Maitland, N.Y., Aug. 3, 1837; graduated at Columbia College, New-York City, 1856; studied theology for one year in Union Theological Seminary, Hampden Sidney, Va., and for two at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, where he graduated 1861; was pastor of Westminster Church, Detroit, Mich., 1861-87; of Union Church, Newburgh, N.Y., 1869-75; and since 1876 has been an editor of The New York Observer.

PRINCE, J. J., became emeritus professor, 1888; wrote Commentatio de loco difficilti, 1 Pet. ii. 18-22, premo ornata, 1838; Specimen de loco Luc. ii. 23-33, 1839.

RAEBIGER, J. F. Kritische Untersuchungen, 2d ed. 1886.

RAINY, R., takes a leading part in all the affairs of the Free Church of Scotland.

RAND, W. W. Dictionary of the Bible was upon the basis of Edward Robinson's.

RANKE, E. Specimen codicum Novi Test. Fulda, Marburg, 1890.
REICHEL. 265

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.

REICHEL, C. P., was first senior moderator of classics, 1843.
defeated; but a Government bill enjoining that children's labor in factories to ten hours a day. It was defeated, but the agitation, while under nine were to be employed in the factories, while those under thirteen were to work between eight and thirteen years of age must not do their work between ten and six o'clock. In 1840 he secured a royal commission to inquire into the condition of the children not protected by the Factory Act, e.g., those in mines; and, on the strength of its revelations, introduced two bills in 1842, one removing female children from the mines and collieries, and the other providing for the care and education of children in calico-print works. In 1844 he founded the Ragged School Union in London, which has done so much for the outcast children there. In 1864 he introduced in Parliament measures which ultimately led to the prohibition of chimney-sweeping by boys, and the compulsory employment of children in factories. He was president of the British and Foreign Bible Society from 1851 till his death, as also of the Young Men's Christian Association. He was largely instrumental in reforming the treatment of lunatics. He did much to elevate the costermonger class. But it would be impossible to estimate the good he did in the course of his long and active life. He was connected with nearly three hundred religious societies, and with many other philanthropic institutions. In 1884 the freedom of the City of London was presented to him. The success of his mission was his humble piety. For a full account of his extraordinary usefulness, see Edwin Hodder: The Life and Work of the Seventh Earl of Shaftesbury, K.G., London, 1886, 3 vols. •

SHORT, C., d. in New-York City, Dec. 24, 1886.

SMYTH, E. O., received the degree of D.D. at the 250th anniversary of Harvard University, Nov. 8, 1886.

SMYTH, N., edited, with introduction and notes, the eschatological portion of Dr. I. A. Dorner's Theology, separately in an English translation, Dorner on the Future State, New York, 1883.

SPALDING, J. F. For three years his jurisdiction included New Mexico, and for three years more New Mexico and Arizona. He was a member of the House of Deputies of General Convocation in 1865, 1868, and 1871.

SPENCER, Jesse Ames, D.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1852), Episcopalian; b. at Hyde Park, Dutchess County, N.Y., June 17, 1816; graduated at Columbia College, New-York City, 1837; studied theology at the (Episcopal) General Theological Seminary, New-York City; became rector of St. James, Gothen, N.Y., 1840; resigned on account of ill health 1842; went to Europe; on his return taught, and engaged in literary work; travelled in Europe and the East, 1848-49; became professor of Latin and Oriental languages in Burlington College, N.J., 1849; was editor and secretary of the Episcopal Sunday-school Union and Church Book Society, New-York City, 1851-57; declined election as vice-president of Troy University, 1858; was rector of St. Paul's, Flatbush, Long Island, he carried this foundation to the highest point; and in 1853 Lord Palmerston gave the measure its present shape, viz., that children between eight and thirteen years of age must not be employed more than six hours and a half daily, or ten hours on alternate days, while those of tender years must do their work between ten and six o'clock. In 1840 he secured a royal commission to inquire into the condition of the children not protected by the Factory Act, e.g., those in mines; and, on the strength of its revelations, introduced two bills in 1842, one removing female children from the mines and collieries, and the other providing for the care and education of children in calico-print works. In 1844 he founded the Ragged School Union in London, which has done so much for the outcast children there. In 1864 he introduced in Parliament measures which ultimately led to the prohibition of chimney-sweeping by boys, and the compulsory employment of children in factories. He was president of the British and Foreign Bible Society from 1851 till his death, as also of the Young Men's Christian Association. He was largely instrumental in reforming the treatment of lunatics. He did much to elevate the costermonger class. But it would be impossible to estimate the good he did in the course of his long and active life. He was connected with nearly three hundred religious societies, and with many other philanthropic institutions. In 1884 the freedom of the City of London was presented to him. The success of his mission was his humble piety. For a full account of his extraordinary usefulness, see Edwin Hodder: The Life and Work of the Seventh Earl of Shaftesbury, K.G., London, 1886, 3 vols. •

SHORT, C., d. in New-York City, Dec. 24, 1886.

SMYTH, E. O., received the degree of D.D. at the 250th anniversary of Harvard University, Nov. 8, 1886.

SMYTH, N., edited, with introduction and notes, the eschatological portion of Dr. I. A. Dorner's Theology, separately in an English translation, Dorner on the Future State, New York, 1883.

SPALDING, J. F. For three years his jurisdiction included New Mexico, and for three years more New Mexico and Arizona. He was a member of the House of Deputies of General Convocation in 1865, 1868, and 1871.

SPENCER, Jesse Ames, D.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1852), Episcopalian; b. at Hyde Park, Dutchess County, N.Y., June 17, 1816; graduated at Columbia College, New-York City, 1837; studied theology at the (Episcopal) General Theological Seminary, New-York City; became rector of St. James, Gothen, N.Y., 1840; resigned on account of ill health 1842; went to Europe; on his return taught, and engaged in literary work; travelled in Europe and the East, 1848-49; became professor of Latin and Oriental languages in Burlington College, N.J., 1849; was editor and secretary of the Episcopal Sunday-school Union and Church Book Society, New-York City, 1851-57; declined election as vice-president of Troy University, 1858; was rector of St. Paul's, Flatbush, Long Island, he carried this foundation to the highest point; and in 1853 Lord Palmerston gave the measure its present shape, viz., that children between eight and thirteen years of age must not be employed more than six hours and a half daily, or ten hours on alternate days, while those of tender years must do their work between ten and six o'clock. In 1840 he secured a royal commission to inquire into the condition of the children not protected by the Factory Act, e.g., those in mines; and, on the strength of its revelations, introduced two bills in 1842, one removing female children from the mines and collieries, and the other providing for the care and education of children in calico-print works. In 1844 he founded the Ragged School Union in London, which has done so much for the outcast children there. In 1864 he introduced in Parliament measures which ultimately led to the prohibition of chimney-sweeping by boys, and the compulsory employment of children in factories. He was president of the British and Foreign Bible Society from 1851 till his death, as also of the Young Men's Christian Association. He was largely instrumental in reforming the treatment of lunatics. He did much to elevate the costermonger class. But it would be impossible to estimate the good he did in the course of his long and active life. He was connected with nearly three hundred religious societies, and with many other philanthropic institutions. In 1884 the freedom of the City of London was presented to him. The success of his mission was his humble piety. For a full account of his extraordinary usefulness, see Edwin Hodder: The Life and Work of the Seventh Earl of Shaftesbury, K.G., London, 1886, 3 vols. •

SHORT, C., d. in New-York City, Dec. 24, 1886.

SMYTH, E. O., received the degree of D.D. at the 250th anniversary of Harvard University, Nov. 8, 1886.

SMYTH, N., edited, with introduction and notes, the eschatological portion of Dr. I. A. Dorner's Theology, separately in an English translation, Dorner on the Future State, New York, 1883.

SPALDING, J. F. For three years his jurisdiction included New Mexico, and for three years more New Mexico and Arizona. He was a member of the House of Deputies of General Convocation in 1865, 1868, and 1871.

SPENCER, Jesse Ames, D.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1852), Episcopalian; b. at Hyde Park, Dutchess County, N.Y., June 17, 1816; graduated at Columbia College, New-York City, 1837; studied theology at the (Episcopal) General Theological Seminary, New-York City; became rector of St. James, Gothen, N.Y., 1840; resigned on account of ill health 1842; went to Europe; on his return taught, and engaged in literary work; travelled in Europe and the East, 1848-49; became professor of Latin and Oriental languages in Burlington College, N.J., 1849; was editor and secretary of the Episcopal Sunday-school Union and Church Book Society, New-York City, 1851-57; declined election as vice-president of Troy University, 1858; was rector of St. Paul's, Flatbush, Long Island, he carried this foundation to the highest point; and in 1853 Lord Palmerston gave the measure its present shape, viz., that children between eight and thirteen years of age must not be employed more than six hours and a half daily, or ten hours on alternate days, while those of tender years must do their work between ten and six o'clock. In 1840 he secured a royal commission to inquire into the condition of the children not protected by the Factory Act, e.g., those in mines; and, on the strength of its revelations, introduced two bills in 1842, one removing female children from the mines and collieries, and the other providing for the care and education of children in calico-print works. In 1844 he founded the Ragged School Union in London, which has done so much for the outcast children there. In 1864 he introduced in Parliament measures which ultimately led to the prohibition of chimney-sweeping by boys, and the compulsory employment of children in factories. He was president of the British and Foreign Bible Society from 1851 till his death, as also of the Young Men's Christian Association. He was largely instrumental in reforming the treatment of lunatics. He did much to elevate the costermonger class. But it would be impossible to estimate the good he did in the course of his long and active life. He was connected with nearly three hundred religious societies, and with many other philanthropic institutions. In 1884 the freedom of the City of London was presented to him. The success of his mission was his humble piety. For a full account of his extraordinary usefulness, see Edwin Hodder: The Life and Work of the Seventh Earl of Shaftesbury, K.G., London, 1886, 3 vols. • was of that Ulster Presbyterian stock, which has given a special character to the northern province of Ireland. He graduated M.A. at the University of Glasgow, and finished his theological studies in the University of Berlin. His writings show that while interested in the speculative and critical sides of German theology, it was the warm, spiritual, Christian life of Germany, as displayed in German hymns and missions, which attracted him most. In 1856 he was licensed to preach by the Presbytery of Strabane, and in 1860 he accepted the call of the newly organized Rathgar-road Presbyterian Church, situated in a suburb of Dublin. Mr. Stevenson was the first minister of this church, and it was his first and only regular charge. On the 2d of February, 1862, the present church building was dedicated, Dr. Norman McLeod preaching the opening sermon. Literary work, especially about this time, occupied much of Mr. Stevenson's attention. His contributions to Good Words, Dr. McLeod's periodical, were numerous, and dealt mainly with the religious life and practical Christianity. In Germany, Praying and Working, London, 1862, is of interest to the student of social problems, as well as to the friends of missions. Lives and Deeds worth knowing, New York, 1870, composed of collected articles, and published without authority, is not less interesting. Hymns for Church and Home, London, 1873, has a scholarly accuracy and thoroughness which make it very valuable to hymnologists.

In 1871 Mr. Stevenson was called to the work which, in some sense, was the most important of his life, for in that year he became co-adjetor with Rev. Dr. James Morgan, the convener of the Assembly's Foreign Mission; and in 1873 he became sole convener, while retaining the pastorate of his church. Successful as a preacher and a pastor, he seemed even better fitted for this new work, which he had assumed with great diffidence. In 1873 he visited America on the occasion of the meeting of the Evangelical Alliance in New York. In 1877 he undertook a journey round the world, in the interests of missions; some papers from his pen appeared on the subject of this journey, in Good Words. In 1881 he was unanimously chosen as moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland, which met in Dublin. Of course many offers came to him from fields of work wider than the comparatively narrow one of Irish Presbyterianism; but he simply could not leave his beloved people. His life had now been carried on for many years, under the highest pressure from his double duties as a pastor, and as an organizer and administrator of mission-work. His death, hastened by overwork, occurred suddenly, painedly, and almost without warning, from heart-disease, in the full tide of his activity. As a pulpit orator, Dr. Stevenson belonged to the first class. His writings give a good idea of his pulpit style. His broadly tolerant spirit won the victory over even Irish party feeling, which runs almost as high in matters ecclesiastical as political. He was a member of the Senate of the Royal University; and his appointment as chaplain to the vice-regal court, under Lord Aberdeen's administration, was regarded as marking a change in the attitude of the government towards Presbyterianism, as the attendance at his funeral of the clergy and highest dignitaries of the Episcopal and other churches, was regarded as an indication of the beginning of a better relation between the Church Catholic in Ireland than has existed in the past.

ROBERT W. HALL.

STOCKMEYER, I. Die persönliche Aneignung des in Christo gegebenen Heiles, 1878.

STOECKER, A., is a member of the Reichstag and of the Prussian Chambers. He combines political with religious activity as a leader of the anti-Semitic movement, and of Christian socialism.

STOKES, Q. T. Ireland and the Celtic Church, a History of Ireland from St. Patrick to the English Conquest in 1178, London, 1888; Synopsis of Medieval History, 1888.

STORY, R. H., was appointed second clerk of the General Assembly, in succession to Professor Milligan, in May, 1886; and one of her Majesty's chaplains in September, 1886.

STRACK, H. L., "while acknowledging the full right of critical investigation, is convinced that such investigation ought to be combined with reverence for the Holy Scriptures and an earnest Christian faith. That Christ died for us, and rose again, is an irrefutable fact, nay, one inaccessible to criticism." The Kaiser Wilhelm Gymnasium, where he taught in 1872-73, is in Berlin. The title of the monthly Nathanael, which he edits, has been changed, as also its place of publication; it is now called Nathanael. Zeitschrift für die Arbeit der evangelischen Kirche an Israel, Karlsruhe u. Leipzig. He edits, with Professor Zöckler of Greifswald, the Kurzegefasster Kommentar zu den heiligen Schriften Allen und Neuen Testamentes, sowie zu den Apostrophys, Nördlingen, 1886 sqq.

STRONG, Josiah, D.D. (Adelbert College of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, O., 1888), Congregationalist; b. at Naperville, Du Page County, Ill., Jan. 19, 1847; graduated at Western Reserve College, Hudson, O., 1869; studied theology at Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O., 1869-71, but did not graduate because of failure in health; was pastor of a home-missionary church at Cheyenne, Wyoming Territory, 1871-73; of the Western Reserve College Church, Hudson, O., 1873-74, when the college church, having united with the village church, no longer needed a pastor; of the Congregational Church at Sandusky, O., 1876-81; secretary of the Ohio Home Missionary Society, 1881-84; pastor of the Central Congregational Church, Cincinnati, O., 1884-86, when he became general agent of the Evangelical Alliance for the United States of America. He is the author of Our Country, published by the American Home Missionary Society, New York, 1885, 8th ed. (29,000th) 1886.

STUART, George Hay, Presbyterian layman; b. at Rose Hall, County Down, Ireland, April 2, 1816; educated at Banbridge, Ireland; took up his residence in Philadelphia in 1831; went into business, became president of the Mechanics' National Bank of that city; afterwards the Merchants' National Bank of Philadelphia was organized for him, and he became its president. He was the president of the United-States Christian Commission during the civil war; became editor, "Christian Commission," in Schaff-Herzog Encyespecially of Hebrews (Wrexham, 1885, 2 vols.).

THOMAS, Owen, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1877), Welsh Calvinistic Methodist; b. at Holyhead, Anglesea, North Wales, Dec. 16, 1812; attended the Edin Calvinistic Methodist College from 1833 to October, 1841; then for two sessions the University of Edinburgh, but was unable, owing to circumstances, to finish the curriculum; became minister at Pwllheli, Caernarvonshire, 1844; (of the English Church) at Newtown, Montgomeryshire, 1846; in London, 1850; of the Welsh Presbyterian Church, Prince's Road, Liverpool, 1865. He was moderator of North Wales Association in 1863 and 1882; moderator of General Assembly, 1888; has been repeatedly sent as a deputation to visit the Scotch (Free), Irish, and English Assemblies, as well as to the Council of the Reformed Churches. His father was a stonecutter by trade, and he worked at this trade from his fourteenth to his twentieth year. He has been for years joint editor of the Traethyrdydd, the oldest and ablest Welsh quarterly, and is the author of a large number of articles on theological, philosophical, historical, and other subjects; many articles in the Welsh Encyclopedia; Life of John Jones (Talsarn) (containing a large account of the Welsh preachers, and theological controversies in Wales), Wrexham, 1874, 2 vols.; and a translation of Kitto's Pictorial New Testament into Welsh, with very extensive additions, forming a full commentary, containing 500 pages, on the Old and New Testaments, the Psalms of Euphemias, Colossians, and Filipiian, especially of Hebrews (Wrexham, 1885, 2 vols.).
THOROLD, A. W., was canon residentiary of York, 1874-77.

TIELE, C. P. De godsdienst der liefelie ("The Religion of Love"), Amsterdam, 1868; Baby- lonisch-assyrische Geschichte, vol. 1., Gottha, 1886; 2d ed., much enlarged, French translation of Geschiedenis van den Godsdienst, 1886; Danish translation of same, Copenhagen, 1884.

TITCOMB, J. H., resigned his bishopric in consequence of a terrible mountain accident. He is now vicar of St. Peter's, Brockley, London.

TOLLIN, H. G.N. Die hohenzollernischen Kolonisationen, 1876; Die magdeburger Wallonen, 1876; Die französischen Colonisten in Orosienburg, Köpen- nick and Rheinsberg, 1876; Albrecht von Mainz und Hans von Schenitz, 1876; Bürgermeister Aug. Wilh. Franke, 1884.

TOORENBERGEN, J. J. van. The first tom. of the Monumenta, etc., contains a reprint of the excessively rare Economica Christiana, whence the Summe of Holy Scripture is drawn.

TOWNSEND, L. T. The Bible and other Ancient Literature in the Nineteenth Century, 1886; Pulpit Rhetorica, 1888.

TROLLOPE, J., was educated at Rugby School.

TROWBECK, J., was educated at Rugby School.

TUCKER, Henry William, Church of England; prebendary of Wenlocksbam in St. Paul's Cathedral; educated at Magdalen Hall, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1854, M.A. 1859; ordained deacon 1854, priest 1855; was curate of Chantry, Somersetshire, 1854-56; West Buckland, 1856-60; Dew- ran, Cornwall, 1860-65; assistant secretary of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, 1865-79; since 1875 has been secretary to the Associates of the late Rev. Dr. Bray; since 1879, secretary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, and also honorary secretary of the Colonial Bishops' Fund. He is the author of The Life and Episcopate of George Augustus Selwyn, D.D. (bishop of Lichfield), 1879, 4 vols., 4th ed. 1891; The English Church in Other Lands; or, the Spiritual Expansion of England, London and New York, 1886.

TUCKER, W. J. One of the founders and editor of The Andover Review.

TWING, Kinsley, D.D. (Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1884). Congregationalist; b. at West Point, N.Y., July 18, 1822; graduated at Yale College 1853, and at Yale Theological Seminary 1856; was resident licentiate at Andover Seminary 1854-56, and was acting pastor of the First Congregational Church, Hinsdale, Mich., 1857-63; acting pastor of the First Congregational Church, San Francisco, Cal., 1863-64; and then for nearly two years out of ministerial service in poor health; pastor of Prospect-street Congregational Church, Cambridgeport, Mass., 1867-72; of the Union Congregational Church, Providence, R.I., 1872- 78; in Europe, 1876-78; became literary editor of the New-York Independent, 1880.

TYLER, W. S. Homer's Iliad, Books xvi.-xxii. New York, 1886. He received the degree of L.L.D. at Harvard's 250th anniversary, Nov. 8, 1886.

VALENTINE, M., LL.D. (Wittenberg College, Springfield, O., 1886).

VAN DYKE, Joseph Smith, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, N.J., 1884), Presbyterian; b. at Bound Brook, N.J., Nov. 2, 1832; graduated at the College of New Jersey 1857, and at the theological seminary 1861, both in Princeton, N.J.; was tutor of Greek in the college there, 1859-61; pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Bloomsbury, N.J., 1861-69; and since has been pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Cranbury, N.J. During 1859 and 1860 he was engaged in lecturing upon education, in conjunction with the superintendent of public schools in New Jersey. He is the author of Popery the Foe of the Church and of the Republic, Philadelphia, 1871, 12th thousand, New York, 1886; The Legal Prohibition of the Liquor Traffic (Tract No. 174 of the National Temperance Society), New York, 1879; The Prison to the Throne, Illustrations of Life from the Biography of Washington, New York, 1881, 8d ed. 1886; From Gloom to Gladness, Illustrations of Life from the Biography of Esther, 1883, 3d ed. 1886; Giving or Entertainment — Which? (pamphlet recommending giving, in preference to other modes of raising money for church and charitable purposes), 1888, 11th thousand, 10 cents (ten thousand sold); Theism and Evolution: an Examination of Modern Speculative Theories as related to Theistic Conceptions of the Universe, 1888 (April), 2d ed. (October) 1888.

VINCENT, M. R. Christ as a Teacher, 1886; Bible Words (in preparation).

VOELTER, Daniel Erhardt Johannes, Ph.D., Lic. Thok (both Tübingen, 1880 and 1883 respectively), Protestant theologian; b. at Easingen, Württem- berg, Sept. 14, 1855; studied at Tübingen (Evangelical Theological Seminary and University); became regent in the theological seminary there, 1880; privat-docent of theology in the university 1884; ordinary professor of theology in the Luth- eran Seminary in Amsterdam, 1885; and since February, 1886, has also held the same position in the University at Amsterdam. He is the author of Die Entstehung der Apokalypse, Frei- burg, 1882, 2d ed. 1885; Der Ursprung des Donatismus, 1885.

VOCK, W., edited not only the ninth but the tenth and eleventh volumes of Hofmann's Die A. Schrift N. T., Nördlingen, 1883, 1886. In the 10th ed. of Gesenius the title reads: Hebraisches und aramäisches Handwörterbuch.

WACE, Henry, was curate of St. Luke's, Bor-WADDINGTON.

270

WILLIAMS.

wick Street, London, 1861-63. King's College, of which he is principal, is in London.

WADDINGTON, C., discovered the true date of Polycarp's martyrdom (A.D. 155).

WALDENSTRÖM, P. P. "On the Meaning of the Atonement" (Om försonings Betydelse, Stockholm, 1873, reprinted Chicago, Ill., U.S.A.). A sermon preached in 1872 first gave impetus to the theological movement with which he is identified, and the book was written to defend and explain his views which had attracted so much attention.

He prefers to put his distinctive teaching thus: Non per gratiam propter Christo propitiatorem, sed propter gratiam per Christum mediareum, redemptionem. He is commonly accused in Sweden of denying the divinity of Christ; but this is a slander, for just the contrary is the case. In his translation of the New Testament, he accepts and defends the reading ὁ μαρτυρος τὸς in John i. 18.

WANAMAKER, John, Presbyterian layman; b. at La Croix-aux-Mines, near Saint Die (Vosges), March 27, 1845; studied at the Protestant Gymnasium at Strassburg, and finished course of the Collège Impérial de Paris, and spent some months in Germany, as well as in the chief centres of art in Italy.

He started, in 1858, a Sunday school over a shoe-maker's shop in the south-western part of Philadelphia, out of which has grown Bethany Presbyterian Church, with a seating capacity of 1,900, and Bethany Sunday School, numbering in 1886 2971 members. He was one of the founders of the Christian Commission; president of the Young Men's Christian Association of Philadelphia from 1870 to 1883; and has been prominent in many other Christian enterprises. He was chairman of the Bureau of Revenue and of the Press Committee, which did such efficient service in starting the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876. Approved by Mr. Wanamaker.

WATTS, R., established the Westminster Church in Philadelphia 1862, and was ordained pastor of it 1853; was installed in the Gloucester-street Church, Dublin, 1863.

WEED, Edwin Gardner, D.D. (University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1858), S.T.D. (Racine College, Wis., 1860), Episcopal bishop of Florida; b. at Savannah, Ga., July 23, 1837; graduated from the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1870; became rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Summerville, Ga., 1871; bishop, 1888.

WEBSTON, Mrs. (Charlotte Phillips), Bernhard, Ph.D. (Jena, 1852), Lic. Theol. (Königsberg, 1852), D.D. (Konigberg, 1852); studied at Königsberg, Halle, and Berlin, 1844-48; was Diözesanpfarrer at Königsberg, 1861-63; Consistorialrat und Mitglied des Consistoriums at Kiel, 1874-77; Mitglied des Consistoriums at Berlin, 1879-80; since 1890, Ober-Consistorialrat und vortragender Rat im Ministerium der geistlichen u. Unterrichts-Angangekommen.

WEISS, Nathan, Reformed Church of France; b. at La Croix-aux-Mines, near Saint Die (Vosges), March 27, 1845; studied at the Protestant gymnasium at Strassburg, and finished course of theology with Protestant faculty of that university, 1867; was private tutor in Alsace and Paris, 1867-69; won the Schmutz prize by thesis, Exposition, comparaison et critique du système ecclésiastique de Schleiermacher et de celui de Vinet, 1868; was Reformed pastor at Glaciere, 1869-71; missionary agent of the French Sunday-school Society, 1871-75; pastor of the Reformed Church of Boulogne-sur-Seine since 1876; and is now adjutant librarian of the church, and early went into business. He has displayed similar energy in Christian work. He started, in 1858, a Sunday school over a shoe-maker's shop in the south-western part of Philadelphia, out of which has grown Bethany Presbyterian Church, with a seating capacity of 1,900, and Bethany Sunday School, numbering in 1886 2971 members. He was one of the founders of the Christian Commission; president of the Young Men's Christian Association of Philadelphia from 1870 to 1883; and has been prominent in many other Christian enterprises. He was chairman of the Bureau of Revenue and of the Press Committee, which did such efficient service in starting the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876. Approved by Mr. Wanamaker.

WELLAHUSEN, J., English translation of Prolegomena, with introduction by Prof. W. Robinson Smith, under title Prolegomena to the History of Israel, with a reprint of the article Israel from the "Encycl Britannica," Edinburgh, 1885.

WENDT, H. M., studied at Leipzig and Göttingen, as well as at Tübingen.

WESTCOTT, B. F., was a member of the Royal Commission on ecclesiastical courts, 1881-83; 2d ed. of General View Hist. Eng. Bible, 1872; Christus Consummator: Some Aspects of the Work and Person of Christ in Relation to Modern Thought (sermons) 1886.

WHEDON, D. D., studied law at Rochester and Rome, N.Y.; became teacher in the Oneida Seminary, 1830. Two additional volumes of his collected writings appeared in 1886. Emory and Henry College is at Emory, Washington Co., Va.

WILKES, Henry, d. in Montreal, Wednesday, Nov. 17, 1885.

WILKINSON, W. C. The Baptist Principle, 1881; Webster: an Ode, 1882; Classic French Course in English, 1886. He has been several seasons "adjunct lecturer" on English literature in Wellesley College. He is at present (1886) conductor of a department (Pastoral Theology) in The Homiletic Review. He has twice travelled in Europe, attending listening lectures during one winter at the University of Paris, and spending some months in Germany, as well as visiting the chief centres of art in Italy.

WILLIAMS, O., is on the committee of the British and Foreign Bible Society; is ex-president of the Sunday-school Union.
WILLIAMS, William R. Mr. Mornay Williams, his son, sends this additional information: "Dr. Williams had no middle name; the initial 'R' having been assumed by him, in early life, because of the annoying mistakes constantly arising from the simple appellation William Williams. He was ordained and installed as pastor of the Amity Baptist Church on the same evening on which the church itself was recognized, Dec. 17, 1832, remaining pastor to the time of his death, never having had another charge, nor his people another pastor. He was the first secretary of the American Baptist Home Missionary Society (1832); the first secretary, and one of the drauthers, of the constitution of the Baptist Ministers’ Conference, in January, 1833; for many years a member of the board of trustees of Rochester Theological Seminary, in the formation of which, as also of the University of Rochester (both established in 1850), he was actively concerned. He was also for many years on the publishing committee of the American Tract Society, and in that position corrected the proofs of their foreign publications (viz., French, German, Italian, and Spanish); he was one of the vice-presidents of that society, as also of the American Bible Society. He wrote the introduction to [the American reprint of John] Harris’s Great Commission; or, the Christian Church constituted and charged to convey the Gospel to the World, Boston, 1842; to that of Miss Grigg’s Jacqueline Pascal, or Convent Life at Port Royal, New York, 1854; and to [W. W.] Evarts’s William Colgate: a Christian Layman, Philadelphia, 1881. His Religious Progress, and Lectures on the Lord’s Prayer, were both republished in Scotland [in one volume, Edinburgh and London, 1851]."

WISE, D. Young Knights of the Cross, New York, 1886.

WITHEROW, T. Italian translation of Scriptural Baptism, Florence, 1877.

WITHEROW, J. L. preached the opening sermon at the Des Moines meeting of the A. B. F. M. Board of Trustees of Rochester Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1863; became assistant at St. Paul’s Church, Troy, N.Y., 1863; rector of Christ Church, Ballston Spa, N.Y., 1885; rector of St. John’s Church, Detroit, Mich., 1888. He was in 1879 twice elected by the clergy bishop of Michigan, but the laity refused to confirm. In 1888 he declined election by the General Convention as missionary bishop of Shanghai. In May, 1884, he was elected bishop of Nebraska, and declined; in November, 1884, was elected a second time, accepted, and was consecrated in St. John’s Church, Detroit, Mich., Feb. 24, 1885.

WRIGHT, C. H. H. The Divinity-school Question, Dublin, 1886 (pp. 9); Biblical Essays: or, Exegetical Studies on the Books of Job and Jonah, Ezekiel’s Prophecy of God and Magoq, St. Peter’s “Spirits in Prison,” and the Key to the Apocalypse, Edinburgh, 1886.

WRIGHT, W., M. A. History of the Scottish Nation, 1886, 2 vols.

YOUNG, R. Materials for Bible Revision (drawn from the Analytical Concordance), 1886.

ZAHN, T. Hermas Pastor u. N. T. illustr., Göttingen, 1867; Missionmethoden im Zeitalter der Apostel, Erlangen, 1888 (two lectures).

ZEBBSCHWITZ, Gerhard von, was pastor at Grosszschöchner near Leipzig, 1852–56; lived at Neuendettelsau without office, 1861–63; lectured at Frankfurt, Basel, and Darmstadt, 1865–66; out of these lectures came Zur Apologie des Christians nach Geschichte und Lehre, Leipzig, 1866.

SECOND APPENDIX

TO ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF LIVING DIVINES.

Containing Additions to Biography and Literature from 1886 to 1890.

The titles of books are those produced by the respective persons since the appearance of the original edition of this Encyclopædia. As a rule, the place of publication is that last mentioned under the article in the body of the work.

ABBOTT, E. A. The Kernel and the Husk, 1887.

ABBOTT, L., elected pastor of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, as successor of Henry Ward Beecher, 1889; installed Jan. 16, 1890. Commentary on Romans, 1888; Signs of Promise (sermons), 1889.

ADLER, N. M., d. in London, Tuesday, Jan. 21, 1890.

ALEXANDER, W. The Epistles of John, n. e., 1890.

ANDERSON, Q., president Denison University, 1888.

ANDERSON, M. B., L.H.D. (Columbia Centennial, 1887); retired, May, 1888; d. at Lake Helen, Florida, Wed., Feb. 26, 1890.

APPLE, Theodore. Life of John Williamson Nevin, Phila., 1890.

APPLE, Tho. C., retired from the presidency of Franklin and Marshall College, 1889, but retains professorship of Church History in the Theological Seminary at Lancaster. Was delegate of the German Reformed Church to conference with the Dutch Reformed for forming a federative union, at Catskill, N. Y., Aug., 1890.

ARGYLL. Scotland as it Was and as it Is, Edinburgh, 1st and 2d ed. 1887, 2 vols., repr. New York, 1887; New British Constitution and its Master Builders, 1887; What is Truth? 1889; Iona, 3d ed. 1889.

ARNOLD, M., d. at Liverpool, April 15, 1888.

ARTHUR, W. Life of Gideon Ouseley, 1876; God without Religion: Deism and Sir James Stephen, 1887.

ASTIE, J. F. Louis Fourteenth and the Writers of his Age; being a Course of Lectures (delivered in French). Trans. G. N. Kirk, Boston, 1885; Le Vinet de la legende et celui de l'histoire, 1883.

BACHMANN, d. at Rostock, April 13, 1888. Left the biography of Hengstenberg unfinished. Letzte Predigten, Gütersloh, 1888; Blätter zu seinem Gedächtnis, nebst einer Auswahl seiner Gedichte, Rostock (by H. Behm), 1889.

BACON, L. W., pastor in Augusta, Ga., 1886; without charge, 1888.

BAIRD, C. W., d. at Rye, N. Y., Thursday, Feb. 10, 1887.

BARBOUR, W. M., became professor of Theology, Congregational College, Montreal, 1887.

BARQES, J. J. L. Homelies sur saint Marc, apôtre et évangeliste, par Anba Seeor. Texte arabe avec traduction et notes, 1877; Recherches archéologiques sur les colonies phéniciennes établies sur le littoral de la Célo-Ligurie, Paris, 1878; notices sur les Antiquités de Belcordene, 1888; Rabbi Yapheth Abu Aly in Canticum Canticorum Commentarius, 1884; Vie du célèbre marabout cédî Abu-Medien, 1884.

BARING-GOULD. The Way of Sorrows, 1887; Death and Resurrection of Jesus, 1888; Our Inheritance [on the Eucharist], 1888; Richard Cable, the Lightshipman, 1888, 3 vols.; Arminian: A Social Romance, 1889, 3 vols.; Grettir, the Outlaw: A Story of Ireland, 1889; Historic Oddities and Strange Events, 1st series, 1889, 2d ed. 1890; Old Country Life, 1889; Pennygeography: A Novel, 1889, 2d ed. 1890; Conscience and Sin, 1890; Ecco: A Novel, 1890; Joagutta, and Other Stories, 1890 [with H. F. Sheppard]; Songs and Ballads of the West, 1890.

BARNARD, F. A. P., retired, 1888; d. in New York, Sat., April 27, 1889.

BASSOON, resigned, 1887.

BECKX, P. J., d. in Rome, March 4, 1887.

BECKER, H. W., d. in Brooklyn, March 8, 1887.

BEHRENS, A. J. F. The Philosophy of Preaching, New York, 1890.

BENNETT, C. W. Christian Archaeology, N. Y., 1888.

BERTEAUX, E., d. at Göttingen, May 17, 1888.

BEYCHLA, J. H. C., W. Der Friedensschluss zwischen Deutschland u. Rom, Halle, 1887; Ziele der Erfinder Vor-Conferen des evangelischen Bundes, 1888; Der Brief des Jakobus [in Meyer's Kommentar], 1888; Godofred. Ein Münchens fürs deutsche Haus, 1888; Luther's Hausstand in seiner reformatorischen Bedeutung, Bärn, 1888; Die Reformation des Italien, 1888; Uber echte u. falsche Toleranz, 1888; Die römisch-katholischen Ansprüche an die preussische Volksschule, 1889; Aus dem Leben d. Frühholländern, d. evangel. Pfarrers Franz Beyschlag, 6th ed. 1889; Zur Verständigung über den christlichen Versuchungsprozeß, Halle, 1889; Erkenntnisse über die Christi, 1889; Rede im Wartburghofe, 1889; Die evangelische Kirche als Bundesgenossin wider die Socialdemokratie, Berlin, 1890.

BICKELL, G. Goethe's Untersuchung über den Wert des Dantein, Innsbruck, 1886.

BIEHNER, F. A., d. at Breslau, Jan. 21, 1888.

BOARDMAN, Q. D. The Divine Man from the Nativity to the Temptation, New York, 1887, new ed. 1888; The Ten Commandments, Philadelphia, 1889.

BÖRNER, H., D.D. (Aberdeen, 1853), d. in Edinburgh, July 31, 1889. Songs of Love and Joy, 1888; Until the Daybreak, and Other Hymns Left Behind, 1890.

BOYCE, W. B., Wesleyan, d. at Sydney, N. S. Wales, March, 1889; twice president of the Australasian Wesleyan Conference; once president Eastern British American Conference. Higher Criticism of the Bible, London, 1881.

BOYD, A. K. H. What Set him Right, with Other Chapters to Help, 1895, 2d ed. 1899; Our Homely
BRACE, A. B. Parabolic Teaching of Christ, 1887; Best Last, with Other Papers, 1888; East Coast Days and Memories, 1889; To Meet the Day, Through the Christian Year, 1889.

BRACE, C. L., d. at Campfer, in the Engadin, Switzerland, Oct. 11, 1900. The Unknown God; or, Inspiration Among Pre-Christian Races, New York. He was succeeded by his son as secretary of the Children's Aid Society.

BRADLEY, C. Q. Lectures on the Book of Job, 1837, 2d ed., 1888; Address on Death of Frederick III. of Germany, 1888.

BRATKE, Lc. Dr. Eduard, f. Feb. 28, 1861, (Prof. extraordinary of Church History in Bonn). Wegweiser zur Quellen- and Literaturkunde der Kirchengeschichte, Gothc, 1890.

BREDENKAMP, C. J. Ordinary honorary professor at Kiel. Der Prophet Jesaia, 1887.

BRIGHT, Wm. Chapters of English Church History, 1875, 2d ed. 1888; The Seven Sayings of the Cross: Addresses, 1887; Incarnation as a Motive Power: Sermons, 1889.

BROOKS, Ph.D. (Columbia Centennial, April 13, 1887). Tolerance, 1887; Twenty Sermons, 1887.

BROWN, C. R., Ph.D. (Colby Univ., 1887).

BROWN, Francis, became Davenport professor of Hebrew and the cognate languages, Nov., 1890.

BROWN, J. B. The Risen Christ, the King of Men, 1888; pop. ed. 1890.

BROWN, J. H. d. at Fond du Lac, Wis., May 3, 1888.

BROWN, E. H., resigned 1890.

BRUCE, A. B. Parabiblic Teaching of Christ, 3d ed. 1887; The Kingdom of God; or, Christ's Teaching according to the Synoptical Gospels, New York, 1889; The Miraculous Element in the Gospels, New York, 1887; The Unknown God, 1890. (In preparation: Apologetics.)

BRUSTON, C. A. L'Eide de l'immortalité de l'ame chez les Pheniciens et chez les Hebreus (Discours), 1879; Les quatre sources des lois de l'Isoda, 1889.

BUCHWALD, C. A. Böhmische Ezulanten im sächsischen Erzbistum, zur Zeit des dreissigjährigen Krieges, 1888; Allerlei aus drei Jahrhunderten. Beiträge zur Kirchen-, Schul-, und Sittengeschichte der Epherie Ruzwicka, Auerbach, Bärnsteine, Becken, Crason, Cuxhach, 1888; Der Evangelische Bund und seine zweite Generalversammlung zu Dussburg im Lichte der ultramontanen Presse, 1888; Eine sächsische Pilgerfahrt nach Palastina vor 400 Jahren, 1890.

BUCKLEY, J. W. The Midnight Sun; The Tsar, and the Nihilist, Boston, 1887.

BUDEE, K. (F. R.), ordinary professor at Strassburg, 1889.

BUELL, M. D., D.D. (University of New York City, 1889).

BURR, E. F. Long Ago; as Interpreted by the Nineteenth Century, New York, 1888.

BURRAGE, H. S. Baptist Hymn Writers and their Hymns, Boston, 1888.

BURTON, E. D. Syntox of the Moods and Tenses in New Testament Greek, Boston, 1889.

BUTLER, J. G. The Fourfold Gospel; The Four Gospels Consolidated in a Continuous Narrative, 1890.

CALDERWOOD, H. Handbook of Moral Philosophy, 1873, 14th ed. 1888.

CAMPBELL, J. C., resigned, 1890. A Charge to the Clergy of Bangor, London, 1887.

CAMPBELL, W. H., d. at New Brunswick, Sunday, Dec. 7, 1890.

CASPARI, C. P. Grammatica Arabic, 1844-48, 2 parts, 5th ed. by August Müller, 1887; Augustin's falschlich beigelegte Homiliae "De Sacris Legibus," 1886.

CAMPBELL, W., resided, 1890. A Charge to the Clergy of Bangor, London, 1887.

CAMPBELL, W. H., d. at New Brunswick, Sunday, Dec. 7, 1890.

CASPARI, C. P. Grammatica Arabic, 1844-48, 2 parts, 5th ed. by August Müller, 1887; Augustin's falschlich beigelegte Homiliae "De Sacris Legibus," 1886.

Mythen und Kunst, 1890; Paulus oder Phol, Ein Schreiber an Prof. Bugge in Christiania, 1890.

Cave, A. The Scriptural Doctrine of Sacrifices, Edinburgh, 1877, new ed., revised throughout 1880.

Chadwick, J. W. A Book of Poems, 1876, 8th ed. 1888; Charles Robert Darwin, 1889; Evolution as Related to Religious Thought, 1889.

Channing, Wm. H. Life by O. B. Frothingham, Boston, 1886.

Chase, Th. President Haverford College, 1875; resigned, 1887.

Chastel, E. (L.) Posthumously, Melanges historiques et religieux, 1889.

Cheever, Q. B., d. at Englewood, N. J., Oct. 1, 1890.

Cheyne, T. K. The Book of Psalms (1884), new ed. 1888; Job and Solomon; or, the Wisdom of the Old Testament, 1887; Balancing of Criticisms: Nine Sermons on Elijah, 1888; Jeremiah: His Life and Times (1889), in vols. of the Bible series.

Church, Ph., d. at Tarrytown, N. Y., June 5, 1886.

Church, W., d. in London, Tuesday, Dec. 9, 1900. Christian Church (Oxford House Papers), 1887.

Clark, T. M. Readings and Prayers, 1888.

Clarke, Jas. F., d. in Boston, June 8, 1888. Bequests and Bequests in Religious History, 1881, new ed. 1887; Legend of Thomas Didymus, the Jewish historian, 1881; revised as new book under title: The Life and Times of Jesus, as Related by Thomas Didymus, Boston, 1887.

Collier, R. L., d. near Salisbury, Md., July 26, 1890.

Collyer, R. Talks to Young Men, with Aides to Young Women, Boston, 1887; Pine and Palm (Leisure Hour series), 1887; Omitted Chapters of History Disclosed in the Life and Papers of Edmund Randolph, Governor of Virginia, 1898.

Comba, E. Henri Arnaud, sa Vie et ses Lettres, L'Exemple, 1890.

Conder, C. G. Palestine, New York, 1890.

Cook, Jos. Current Religious Periods, 1888; Sermons in St. Andrew's Church, Montreal, 1889; God in the Bible, 1889.

Cooper, Thomas. Bridge of History over the Gulf of Time, 1871, 4th ed. 1889; The Birds Next, and Other Sermons for Children of all Ages, 1887; Expositions: third series, 1887; Expositions: fourth series, 1888; The House and its Builder, with Other Discourses: A Book for the Doubtful, 1889.

Craig, James Alexander, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1886); Presbyterian; b. at Fitzroy Harbor, Ontario, Canada, March 5, 1854; graduated at McGill University, Montreal, 1889, and at Yale Divinity School, 1889; was pastor of the First Congregational Church at Grand Haven, Mich., June to Oct., 1883; studied at Leipzig and in the British Museum, 1888—89; became instructor in Hebrew and Greek in Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O., 1886; adjunct professor of Biblical Exegesis, 1890. He has published The Throne of Shalmanesser II., Leipzig, 1889; The Monolith Inscription of Shalmanesser II., 1887; Hebrew Word Manual, Cincinnati, 1890, besides articles and reviews.

Crooks, Geo. R. Life of Bishop Matthew Simpson, New York, 1890.

Crosby, H. The Bible View of the Jewish Church, in Thirteen Lectures, New York, 1889; The Good and Evil of Calvinism, 1890; The Seven Churches of Asia; or, Worldliness in the Church, 1890; The Seven Churches of Asia, 1890; Will and Providence, 1890.

Culross, J., president of the Scottish Union, 1870; president of the Baptist Union of Great Britain and Ireland, 1876.

Curry, Dan'l, d. in New York City, Aug. 17, 1887. The Book of Job according to the Revised Version, with an Expository and Practical Commentary, with Illustrations from some of the Most Eminent Expositors, and a Critical Introduction, 1888; Christian Education: Five Lectures before the Wesleyan University on the Merrick Foundation, 1st series, 1889.

Cuyler, Th. L. Resigned his charge, April, 1890. Newly Enlisted: A Series of Talks with Young Converts, New York, 1888.

Dabney, R. L. Seminastic Philosophy of the Nineteenth Century Examined, 1875, new ed. 1888.

Dalton, H., moved to Berlin, 1889. Der Heidelberger Katechismus, Heilbronn, 1886; Verfassungsgeschichte der evangelisch-lutherischen Kirche in Russland, vol. i., Gotha, 1887; Offenes Senden...
schreiben an den Oberprokureur des Russischen Synodes, Herrn Konstantin Podedowskg. (Zur Gesinnungsfreiheit in Russland), Leipzig, 1889; 8th
d. ed. 1890; translated into English: Die Evangelisschen Kirchen in Russland, 3 Vorträge, 1890; Auf zum Kampfe wider die Unzueht , Vortrag, Berlin, 1890. Edita since 1890 the German Sunday-School Monthly.

D'ALVIALLA, Count Goblet. Introduction à l'histoire générale des religions, 1887; Histoire religieuse du feu. Verrvets, 1887.

DAVIDSON, R. T., bishop of Rochester, 1890.

DEEMS, Chas. F. Hymns for all Christians,
1869, 6th ed. 1887; Weights and Wings, 1872,
new ed. 1897; A Scotch Verdict in re Evolution, 1880; The Thirty-nine Articles of Religion Explained and Established, 1890.

DEANE, Henry. Bible, 1885, 2d ed. 1887; Fossil
Men and their Modern Representatives, 1891;
Chain of Life in Geological History, trans. by
Prof. Harms, 1890; (in Men of the Bible series).

DEANE, Wm. J. Samuel and Saul: Their Lives and Times, London, 1888; David: His Life and Times, trans. from the German of F. D. by William Cuyler, Walker, and others, see "The Congregationalist," Boston, for Nov. 20, 1890. He left in manuscript A Bibliography of the Church Struggle in England during the 16th Century, with 1,800 titles; and an unfinished History of the Pilgrims.

DECOPPET, A. L. Meditations pratiques à l'usage du culte domestique des églises sans parteurs. 3. serie, Paris, 1887; 8. serie, 1889; Sermons pour les enfants, 1889.

DECOSTA, B. F. The White Cross: Its Origin and Progress, Chicago, 1888.

DEEMS, Chas. F. Hymns for all Christians,
1869, 6th ed. 1887; Weights and Wings, 1872,
new ed. 1897; A Scotch Verdict in re Evolution,
1880; The Thirty-nine Articles of Religion Explained and Established, 1890.

DEANE, Henry. Bible, 1885, 2d ed. 1887; Fossil
Men and their Modern Representatives, 1891;
Chain of Life in Geological History, trans. by
Prof. Harms, 1890; (in Men of the Bible series).

DECOPPET, A. L. Meditations pratiques à l'usage du culte domestique des églises sans parteurs. 3. serie, Paris, 1887; 8. serie, 1889; Sermons pour les enfants, 1889.

DEWITT, John, Reformed (Dutch), L.H.D.
(Columbia College Centennial, Apr. 18, 1887).

DIECKHOFF, A. W. Das gepredigte Wort und die heilige Schrift, Rostock, 1868; Luther's Lehr-in ihrer ersten Gestalt, 1887; Leitnize Stellung zur Offenbarung, 1889; Das Wort Gottes. Gegen L.

DIKE, S. W., LL.D.

DILLMANN (C. F.), A. Der Prophet Jesaia, Leipzig, 1890 (in Kurzgefasstes exegetisches Handbuch).

DIX, Morgan. The Seven Deadly Sins: Sermons preached in Trinity Chapel during Lent, 1888.

DODS, W., elected professor of New Testament Exegesis in the New College, Edinburgh,
May 28, 1889. The Book of Genesis, London and New York, 1888; The First Epistle to the Corinthians, 1889; An Introduction to the New Testament, 1889.

DOELLINGER, J. J. L. v., d. at Munich,
Jan. 10, 1900. Cardinal Bellarmine's Selbstdio-graphie, lateinisch und deutsch, mit geschichtlichen Döllinger u. F. H. Reusch, Bonn, 1887; Akad. emische Vorträge, 1. Bd. 1888, 2d ed. 1890, 2. Bd.
1889; Über die Wiedererwürdigung der christlichen
Kirchen, 1872, new ed. 1889; with Fr. Heinr.

DORNER, A. J., professor extraordinary at Königsberg, 1889.

DUGAN, J. Home Ballads and Metrical Verses, Philadelphia, 1888.

DUFFIELD, C. d. at Bloomfield, N. J., July 6, 1888.

DULLES, J. W. d. at Philadelphia, Apr. 18, 1890.

DURYEA, J. T. compiled The Presbyterian Hymnal, Philadelphia, 1874; A Vesper Service for the Use of Congregations, Colleges, Schools, and Academies for Sunday Evening Worship, Boston, 1887; A Morning Service (for the same), 1888; Selections from the Psalms and other Scriptures in the Revised Version for Responsive Reading, Philadelphia, 1888.

DWINELL, I. E. d. at Oakland, Cal., June 7, 1890.

DYER, H. Records of an Active Life (autobiography), New York, 1890.

DYKES, Jas. O. Gospel according to St. Paul: Studies in the Epistle to the Romans, London, 1888. (He is the chief author of the New Creed which was unanimously adopted by the Presbyterian Church of England in 1890.)

EATON, S. J. M. d. at Franklin, Pa., July 16, 1889.

EDDY, R. The Universalist Register for 1888, 1889, and 1890, Boston, 1888, 1889, 1890.

EDEN, R. d. at Inverness, Aug. 26, 1886.

EDERSHEIM, A. d. at Mentone, France, March 16, 1889. History of Israel and Judah, from the Decline to the Assyrian Captivity, London, 1887; Jesus the Messiah; Abridged ed. of Life and Times of Jesus the Messiah, 1889.

EDWARDS, L. D.D. (Edinburgh, 1863), d. at Bala, Wales, July 19, 1887.

EGLI, E., professor ex.at Zurich, 1889. Alchistische Studien. Martyrien und Martyrologien älterer Zeit. Mit Textausgaben im Anhang, Zurich, 1887; Dis St. Galler Tagy, 1887.

ELLIOTT, R. W. B., d. at Sewanee, Tenn., Aug. 26, 1887.

ELLIS, G. E. The Puritan Age and Rule in the Colony of the Massachusetts Bay, 1839–85, Boston, 1888.

EMERTON, E. Introduction to the Study of the Middle Ages (375–814.) Boston, 1888.

ERDMANN (C. F.), D. Luther und seine Beziehungen zu Schlesien, insbesondere zu Breslau, 1887 (in Schriften des Vereins für Reformationsschichte).

EVERETT, C. C. Poetry, Comedy, and Duty, Boston, 1888.

FAIRBAIRN, A. M. D.D. (Yale, 1889). Delivered lectures on Newman, Strauss, etc., at Chautauqua, and elsewhere, 1890.

FALLOWS, S. The Supplemental Dictionary, Boston, 1887; A Complete Dictionary of Synonyms and Antonyms; with an Appendix embracing a Dictionary of Britishisms, Americanisms, Colloquial Phrases, etc., in Common Use; the Grammatical Uses of Prepositions and Prepositions Discriminated; a List of Homonyms and Homophonous Words, New York, 1888, new issue, 1890.

FARRAR, F. W. Every-Day Christian Life; or, Sermons by the Way, London, 1887, new ed. 1888; Solomon: His Life and Times (in Men of the Bible series), 1887; Africa and the Drink Trade, 1888; Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Hebrews [new ed.], 1889; Lives of the Fathers: Church History; or, Biography, 2 vols., London and New York, 1889; The Gospel according to St. Luke, with Introduction and Notes (in Smaller Cambridge GARDINER.

Bible for Schools), 1889; The Passion Play at Ober-Ammergau, 1890; The Minor Prophets, 1890.

FAUSSET, A. R. The Englishman's Critical and Expository Bible Cyclopaedia, 2d. ed. London, 1887, repr. New York, 1889.

FFOUKES, E. S. The Sea of St. Peter at Rome and his Succession, London, 1887.

FIELD, H. M. Old Spain and New Spain,
New York, 1888; Gibraltar, 1889; The Field-Ingersoll Diagnosis; Faith or Agnosticism! A Series of Articles from the North American Review, 1888; Bright Skies and Dark Shadows, New York, 1890.

FISHER, Q. P. History of the Christian Church,
New York, 1887; Manual of Christian Evidences, 1889; The Nature and Method of Revelation, 1890.

FLIEDNER, F. Römische Missionspräfe auf den Karolinen, Heidelberg, 1889.

FLINT, R. Theism, 7th ed. 1889.

FOOTMAN, H. Ethics and Theology, Papers and Discourses, London, 1887, new ed. 1888; Reasonable Apprehensions and Rassuring Hints, 3d
ed. 1889.

FORBES, J. The Servant of the Lord in Isa.
12.-Lxxii. Reclaimed to Isaiah as the Author, from Argument, Structure, and Date, Edinburgh, 1890.

FOSTER, F. H. The Seminary Method of Original Study in the Historical Sciences; Illustrated from Church History, New York, 1889; trans. Hugo Grotius : A Defence of the Catholic Faustus Socinus. With notes and an historical Introduction, Andover, 1889.

Foster, R. V. A Brief Introduction to the Study of Theology, New York and Chicago, 1889;
Old Testament Studies, 1890.

FOX, Norman, D.D. (University of Rochester, 1887).

FRANK, F. H. R. System der christlichen
Stiftlichkeit, 2. Hälfte, Erlangen, 1887; Über die durchmischte Bedeutung der Theologie A. Ritchl.
Conferenctvorträge, Nebst zwei Beiblagen, 1888.

FRANK, K. (J. H. St. Germaine, Geistliche Lieder und Gedichte, Gotia, 1889.

FRASER, J. Seven Promises Expounded,
London, 1889.

FRASER, Jas. Parochial and Other Sermons and University and Other Sermons, edited by John Diggle, London, 1889, 2 vols. See also Memoir, 1818-85, by Thomas Hughes, London, 1887, new
ed. 1888, and Lancashire Life, by J. W. Diggle, 1889.

FREMANTLE, W. H. Eighty-eights: Sermons on Armanda and Revolution, London, 1888; The Present Work of the Anglican Communion: Sermons, 1889. (In preparation : The Writings of St. Jerome, translated into English, in the second series of the Nicene and Post-Nicene Library.)

FREPPLE, C. E. La Revolution française à propos du centenaire de 1789, Paris, 1888; Œuvres polémiques, 1889.

FRICKE, O. A. Das Kommen und Scheiden d.
Apostelverwandten. Abschied von gehalten am 2
Osterfeiertage, 1887, Leipzig, 1887; Der paulinische Grundbegriff der diakonie im erörtert auf

FRIEDRICH, J. Die Constantinische Schenkung, Nordlingen, 1889; Drei unerlaubten Cevilen aus der Merovingierzeit, Bamberg, 1889.

FRIEDRICH, O. F. Ph.D. (hon., Halle, 1887), Gleanies, sein Leben und seine Schriften, Fraufeld, 1890.

FROTHINGHAM, O. B. W. H. Channing,
Boston, 1888; Boston Unitarianism, 1890-50; A Study of the Life and Work of Nathaniel Long-don Frothingham (his father), 1890.

FRY, B. St. J. An Appeal to Facts, Cincinnati, 1890.

FULLER, J. M. Students' Commentary, New
London, 1887.

FUNCKE, O. Tägliche Andachten, 6th ed.
Bremen, 1887; Wie der Hirten schreiet. Predigten und Betrachtungen, 1887, 3d ed. 1888; St.
Paulus zu Wasser und zu Land, 6th ed. 1887;
Wom ist der Mensch in der Welt? Vortrag, 1st und 2d ed. 1887, 4th ed. 1888; Christliche Frageseile, 15th ed. 1888; translated Selig Will und God's Will in the Questions of Life, London, 1st and 2d ed. 1887, and New York, 1888; Die
Schule des Lebens oder christliche Lebensbilder im Lichte des Buches Jonas, 7th ed. 1888; Drei und vierte; 1st, 2d, and 3d ed. 1887, 1888.

GARDINER, F. b. at "Oaklands," his father's place, Gardiner, Me., Sept. 11, 1822; studied at school of Dr. Muhlenberg, Flushing; two years at Hobart College, 1889-40; graduated at Bowdoin College, 1842, and General Theological Semiinary, New York City, 1845; ordained deacon by Bishop Henahaw, of Rhode Island, at Christ Church, Gardiner, July 6, 1845; advanced to priesthood, Sept. 20, 1846; Rector of Trinity Church, Saco, Me., Nov. 1845 to Nov. 1847; Assistant at St. Luke's, Philadelphia, Jan. to July, 1848; Rector Christ Church, Bath, Oct. 1848 to
Nov. 1854; in Europe, Nov. 1854 to June, 1856;
Rector Trinity Church, Lewiston, Me., July 1856 to Nov. 1857; in charge of his father's estate, Nov.
1857 to Nov. 1868, during which time he had charge of St. Matthew's Church, Hallowell, and assisted Bishop Burgess at Christ Church, Gardiner, and acted as professor of Hebrew, Greek, Systematic Divinity, and Ecclesiastical History in the tentative school of Bishop Burgess; elected to chair of Literature and Interpretation of the New Testament in Theological Seminary, Gambier,
O., Nov. 1865; resigned, Sept. 1867; General
Missionary in diocese of Mass., 1867; Associate-Rector, Trinity Church, Middletown, Conn., 1867-68; professor of Old Testament and Christian Evidences, and librarian, in Berkeley Divinity School, Middletown, 1889-92; president of Connecticut Industrial School and Middletown Board of Education, 1873-80; professor of Literature and Interpretation of New Testament and librarian, Berkeley Divinity School, 1882; delegate to General Convention from Diocese of Maine, 1851, 1853, 1856, 1859, 1862, and 1865; d. at Middletown, Conn., July 18, 1889; Old and New Testament in their Mutual Relations, 1885; Was the Religion of Israel a Revelation or merely a Development; being No. 2 of Essays on Pentateuchal Criticism? 1887; Aids to Scripture Study, 1890. He also supplied articles in Smith's Dictionary of the Bible and the Dictionary of Biblical Biography, for Johnson's Encyclopædia and for the Church Dictionary. He edited Chrysostom's Homilies on Hébreus in vol. xiv. of the Nicene and Post-Nicene Library of the Fathers, New York, 1890.

GEIKIE, C. The Holy Land and the Bible, Illustrations Gathered in Palestine, London, 1887, 2 vols, new ed. 1888; Short Life of Christ, for Old and Young, 1888.

GEROK, K., d. at Stuttgart, Jan. 14, 1890. Christliches Blumenjahr. Spruch und Lied für alle Tage, Nürnberg, 1887; In treuer Liebe. Fromme Lieder für die Lebensereignisse; Der barmherzige Samariter. Predigt, Stuttgart, 1887; Unter dem Abendstern. Gedichte, 1886, 6th ed. 1889; Jugendgerinnen, 4th ed. 1889; Der letzte Strauss; Vermischte Gedichte, 10th ed. 1890; Trot und Weis. Reden und Predigten, 1890; Die Psalmen, 1890.

GIBBONS, Jas. Our Christian Heritage, Baltimore, 1889.

GLADDEN, Wash'n. Parish Problems, New York, 1887; Burning Questions of the Life that Now is, and that which is to Come, London, 1889, New York, 1890.

GIOAQ, P., moderator of the General Assembly of the Established Church of Scotland, 1889. Introduction to the Catholic Epistles, Edinburgh, 1887. (Has in preparation Life and Times of St. John.)

GOADBY, T., d. at Nottingham, March 18, 1880.

GOODWIN, D. R., d. in Philadelphia, Saturday, March 15, 1890.

GOODWIN, H. The Foundations of the Creed: Being a Discussion of the Grounds upon which the Articles of the Apostles' Creed may be held by Earnest and Thoughtful Minds in the Nineteenth Century, London, 1890.

GORDON, A. J. Eeoe Venit; Behold, He cometh, New York and Chicago, 1889.

GORDON, Andrew, D.D. (Franklin College, New Athens, O., 1878), United Presbyterian; b. at Putnam, Washington Co., N. Y., Sept. 17, 1853; graduated at Franklin College, 1860, and at U. P. Theological Seminary at Cannonsburgh, Pa., 1853; appointed by Synod missionary to Scalcoite, North India; sailed, Sept., 1854; returned, 1863, broken in health; went into business, 1863-75; regained his health and resumed mission work at Gurgaon, 1875; returned, 1885, and devoted himself to history; d. in Philadelphia, Aug. 13, 1889. He published Our Mission in India, Philadelphia, 1887, and translated a version of the Psalms into Urdu.

GOTCH, F. W., b. at Kettering, Aug. 31, 1807; d. at Clifton, May 17, 1890.

GOTTHEIL, G. Edited Hymns and Anthems, New York, 1887.

GOTTSCHEICK, J. Luthers Anschauungen vom christlichen Gottesdienst und seine theologische Reform desselben, Freiburg, i. Br., 1887; Die Glaubensinheit der Evangelisch gegenuber Rom., Gieson, 1888.

GOUGH, J. B. Platform Echoes, with Life of the Author, by Dr. Lyman Abbott, Hartford, 1887.

GRAFE, E., D.D. (hon.), Strasburg, 1889, ordinary professor at Bonn, 1890.

GRAY, A. Z., D.D. (Columbia College Centennial, Apr. 12, 1887), d. in Chicago, Feb. 16, 1883.

GRAY, Q. Z., d. at Sharon Springs, N. Y., Aug. 4, 1889. The Church's Certain Faith (Baldwin Lectures), New York, 1890; The Scriptural Doctrine of Recognition in the World to Come, New York, 1890.

GREEN, W. M., d. at Sewance, Tenn., Feb. 18, 1887.

GRIFFIS, W. E. Corea, the Hermit Nation, 3d
ed., revised throughout, New York, 1888; The Lily among Thorns: A Study of the Biblical Drama, entitled the Song of Songs, Boston, 1889; Matthew Calbraith Perry, 2d ed. 1890; The Mikado's Empire, 6th ed., 1890; Honda, 1890.

HALEY, J. W. Panaceas and Follies of the Middle Ages: A Study in Medieval History, 1888.

HAMMOND, E. P. Roger's Travels; or, Scenes and Incidents Connected with the Journey of Two Boys in Foreign Lands, Philadelphia, 1887.

HARE, O., with W. J. Tucker and E. K. Hale, E. E. History of the United States; Written for the Chautauqua Reading Circles, New York, 1889; My Musical Life, 2d ed. 1890.

HARRENROETHER, J., Cardinal, d. in Rom., Oct. 3, 1890.

HARNACK, Th. (father of Adolf), d. at Dorpat, Sept. 23, 1889; 2d Abth. Luther's Lehre von dem Erlöser und der Erlösung, Erlangen, 1886.

HARRIS, S. The Self-revelation of God, New York, 1867.

HARRIS, S. S., d. in England, Aug. 21, 1888.

HASE, K., d. at Jena, Jan. 3, 1890. A complete edition of his works is now in course of publication at Leipzig, 1890, sqq.

HAYGOOD, A. G. The Man of Galilee, New York, 1889; Pless for Progress, 1889.

HEMANN, C. F. Zur Geschichte der Lehre von der Freiheit des menschlichen Willens, 2d ed. 1889; Das Aristoteles Lehren von der Freiheit, etc., Leipzig, 1888.

HERGENROETHER, J., Cardinal, d. in Rom., Oct. 3, 1890.

HOPKINS, M., d. at Williamstown, Mass., June 17, 1887. Art. on piety receiv'd by the Church History Society's publications, New York, 1887.

KAWERAU, Q. Edited Passional Christi und Antichristi, illustrations by Lucas Kranach, text by Melanchthon, Berlin, 1889; Ueber Berechtigung und Bedeutung des landesherrlichen Kirchenregiments, Kiel, 1897; De dignitate episcoporum. Ein Beitrag zur Lutherforschung, 1890; Sobald das Geld im Kasten klingt, die Seele aus dem Fegerfeuer springt [No. 19 of Freundschaf'tliche Streit-schriften], Barmen, 1890.

KELLOG, S. H. From Death to Resurrection; or, Scripture Testimony Concerning the Sainted Dead, New York, 1885; The Jesus; or, Prediction and Fulfilment, an Argument for the Times, new ed. with an appendix, New York, 1888.

KENDRICK, A. C. Commentary on the Epistle to the Hebrews, Philadelphia, 1889.

KLEIFOTH, T. F. D. Christliche Eschatologie, Leipzig, 1886.

KOESTLIN, Heinrich Adolf (professor in the KOESTLIN, J. T. Worin hat die evangelische Kirche in der gegenwärtigen kirchen-politischen Lage ihre unentbehrliche Stärke zu suchen? Halle, 1887; Martin Luther, sein Leben und seine Schriften, 4th ed. 1889; Luther's Leben, 7th ed. 1890.

KOLE, Th. (H. F.) Martin Luther, der Reformer der Kirche, Erlangen, 1888; Martin Luther. Eine Biographie, 3. Bd. 1. Hälfte, Gotth, 1889; Beiträge zur Reformationsgeschichte, Leipzig, 1890; Luther's Selbstmord. Eine geschichtliche P. Majunke's beleuchtet, 1st-3d eds. 1890; Noch einmal Luther's Selbstmord. Erweiterung auf Majunke's neueste Schrift, 1890.

KRAWUTZKY, A., ordinary professor at Breslau, 1886. Einleitung in das Studium der katholischen Moraltheologie, Breslau, 1890.

KRUeGER, Hermann Quseb (Edward), Ph.D. (Jena, 1884), Lic. Theol. (Giessen, 1886), German Protestant theologian; b. at Bremen, June 29, 1863; studied at Heidelberg, Jena, Giessen, 1881-86; became privat-dozent of theology at Giessen, 1886; professor extraordinary, 1889. He is the author of Monophysitische Streitigkeiten im Zusammenhang mit der Reichspolitik, Jena, 1884; Lucifer, Bischof von Calaris und das Schisma der Lueiferianer, Leipzig, 1886; translated Réville's La Religión de Jésus Christus sous les Sécrètes, 1887; Die Apologie Justin des Martyrs (in Greek with an introduction), Freiburg i. Br., 1891 sqq.: Die Entstehung der kirchen-und dogmengeschichtlichen Quellschriften, 1891 sqq.

KURZ, Edward the Sixth, Supreme Head, 1889; Manual of Politics, 3 chapters, 1889.

KOESTLIN, J. T. Shortly before his death Kurtz published the eleventh revised edition of his Kirchengeschichte, Leipzig, 1890, 2 vols.

LANGMANN, Jos. Die Kreuzigung. Ihre Entstehung und ihre Tendenz aufs neue untersucht, Gottha, 1890.

LANGHANS, E. Die Götter Griechenlands im Zusammenhang der allgemeinen Religionsgeschichte, Bern, 1889.

LEE, A., d. at Wilmington, Del., Apr. 12, 1887.

LEMME, L., called to Heidelberg, 1890. Die Macht des Gезеits, mit besonderer Besprechung auf Krankheit, Barmen, 1887; Der Erfolg der Predigt, Leipzig, 1888.

LEO XIII. See Life of Leo XII., by Dr. Bernard O'Reilly, London and New York, 1887. His Encyclicals of 1885 (Immortales Dei), 1886, and 1887, treat of liberty, church and state, and the political duties of Catholics. See Acta Leoni.
Pope XIII., Parisis (Roger et Chernovitz), an annual.

Lichtenberger, F. A. History of German Theology in the Nineteenth Century. Translated by W. Hustie, Edinburgh and New York, 1890.

Lincoln, H., d. at Newton, Mass., Oct. 19, 1887.

Link, Adolf, Lie. Thel. (Marburg, 1889), German Protestant theologian; b. at Coblenz, April 20, 1860; studied at Bonn, Göttingen, and Marburg, 1876-82; was regent at Marburg, 1889-88; private-docent of New Testament, 1889; professor extraordinary at Königberg, 1890. He is the author of Christi Person und Werk im Hin- ten des Hermas, Marburg, 1886, and of several articles in the Allgemeine Deutsche Biographie, vol. xxiii., seq., Leipzig, 1890 seq.

Linsenmann, F. X. Die sittlichen Grundlagen der akademischen Freiheit, Tübingen, 1888.

Livermore, A. A., retired from presidency of the Western Theological Seminary, 1887.

Lobstein, P. La Doctrine de la sainte Cène. Essai dogmatique, Lausanne, 1889; Études chrétien- logiques. Le dogme de la naissance miraculeuse du Christ, Paris, 1890.

Loman, A. D. Has written also "The Symbolic Explication of the Evangelical History; Being a Criticism of Dr. J. Cramer's Inaugural Oration," 1884. In the Theologische Tidschrift for 1882, 1883, 1886, Dr. Loman published a series of "Questiones Paulinae," containing an inquiry into the origin and character of the epistles attributed to the Apostle Paul.

Loy, M. Sermonss on the Gospels for the Sundays and Chief Festivals of the Church Year, Columbus, O., 1888.

Lucius, P. E., ordinary professor at Strass- burg, 1889.

Luckock, H. M. Divine Liturgy: Order for Holy Communion in 50 portions, London, 1889; Postprints of the Son of Man as traced by St. Mark, 1889.

Luedemann, K., d. at Kiel, Prussia, Feb. 18, 1889.

Lyne, Joseph Leycester, Church of England, b. in London, Nov. 23, 1875; educated at Trinity College, Glenalmond, Perth; ordained deacon, 1886; for a while was mission curate to Charles Lowder (see art. in the Schaff-Herzog), but in 1882 began his revival of the monastic Order of St. Benedict, which now has an abbey and priory at Llanthony in Wales. His monastic name is "Ignatius of Jesus," and he is popularly known as Father Ignatius. He is a noted revivalist and the author of many hymns and tunes, besides tales, etc. He wears the old English Benedictine dress. He visited the United States in the winter of 1890-91, and held "missions" or revival services in various cities.

MacArthur, R. S. Christ and Him Crucified, New York, 1890.

McCosh, J., retired from presidency of the MILLER, John, b. at Princeton, N. J., Apr. 6, 1819; graduated at College of N. J., 1836, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1841; pastor of Presbyterian churches at Frederick, Md., Philadelphia, and Petersburg, Va. Author of Commentary on Proverbs, New York, 1873, 2d ed., Princeton, N. J., 1887; Fetiche in Theology, 1874; Metaphysics, or Science of Perception, 1874; Questions Awakened by the Bible, Philadelphia, 1877; Commentary on the Epistle to the Romans, Princeton, 1887; Theology, 1887 (all the above now published at Princeton, N. J.).

MOFFAT, J. C., d. at Princeton, N. J., June 7, 1900; Church History in Brief, Philadelphia, 1888.

MÖNDOR, Th., since 1878 pastor in the Reformed Church of Paris. He has published besides those mentioned supra (p. 146), the following: Denying Self; Le Christ et sa Croix; De Quoi il s'agit (on the “Holiness” movement of 1874), 1875; Loin du Nil, poésies, 1882; A cells: qui, 1882; A ceux qui souffrent, Lausanne, 1888; Crucifixus avec Christ, 1883.

MORPHUSE, J. A. A Charge to the Diocese of Manchester, 1889; A Charge to the Clergy and Churchwardens of the Diocese of Manchester, 1889; Christ and His Surroundings, 1889.

MORRIS, E. D. Scripture Readings for Teachers and Schools, Cincinnati, 1887; Is there Salvation after Death? New York, 1889.

MUNGER, T. T. The Appeal to Life, Boston, 1887.

NAVILLE, J. E. La Phibsophie et la religion, Paris, 1887; Le libre abrité, 1890.

NEVIN, A., d. at Lancaster, Pa., Sept. 2, 1890.

NEWTON, J. P., elected a bishop of the M. E. Church, 1888; The Supremacy of Law, New York, 1890.

NEWTON, R. d. at Philadelphia, Pa., May 23, 1887. Bible Animals and the Lessons Taught by Them, New York, 1889; The Heath in the Wilderness; or, Sermons to the People; to which is added the Story of His Life and Ministry, by W. W. N., 1888; Illustrated Rambles in Bible Lands, 1890.

NEWTON, R. H. Social Studies, New York, 1887; Heroes of the Early Church, Philadelphia, 1888.

NICOLL, W. R., editor of the British Weekly, which he started in 1887, having been compelled previously to give up preaching, owing to the loss of his voice.

NILLES, N. Varia pietatis exercitata, Innsbruck, 1889.

ORELLI, (H.) C. die Propheten Jesaja und Jeremia [kurzgefasster Kommentar], Nördlingen, 1886; Das Buch Jeschaj und die ersten Propheten [kurzgefasster Kommentar]

ORMISTON, W., resigned the pastorate of the Collegiate Reformed Dutch Church, New York City, Feb., 1888; was Presbyterian pastor at Pasadena, Cal., 1888-90; since 1890 has lived in Florida.

OSBORN, H. S. A Class Book of Biblical History and Geography, New York, 1890.

PARKER, J. Henry Ward Beecher: Eulogy in the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, N. Y., London, 1887; Every Morning Dost He Bring His Story and Geography, New York, 1890.

PARKER, J. K. The Formation of Character; Twelve Lectures in the First Presbyterian Church, New Orleans, La., 1890.

PALMER, R., d. at Newark, N. J., Mar. 29, 1887.

PARRY, E., d. at St. Leonards, Apr. 11, 1890.

PASSAQIA, C., d. at Turin, Mar. 12, 1887.

PATTERTON, R., LL.D. (Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., 1888.)

PATTON, W. W., d. at Westfield, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1889.

PERRIN, L., d. at Hartford, Conn., Feb. 18, 1889.

PERRY, J., president of Griswold College from 1876; Anthon professor of Systematic Divinity, Griswold College, since 1876; unanimously elected Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia, Dominion of Canada, 1887, but declined.

PFLEIDERER, G. Das Urchristenthum, seine Schriften und Lehren, Berlin, 1887; The Philosophy of Religion on the Basis of its History (translation of Die Religionphilosophie, mentioned on p. 167), London, 1889—90, 4 vols.; The Development of Theology in Germany since Kant, and its Progress in Great Britain since 1825, trans. from unpublished ms., 1890.

PHELPS, W., resigned the pastorate of St. Mark's Church, Philadelphia, 1889, to go to Europe for a year. Evangelistic Work in Principle and Practice. New York, 1887; Keys to the Word; or, Help to Bible Study, 1887, new and cheaper ed., 1889; The Crisis of Missions, 1888; The Inspired Word, 1888; Many Infallible Proofs, new ed., 1890; The One Gospel; or, the Combination of the Narrative of the Four Evangelists in One Complete Record, 1890.

PITRA, J. B., d. in Rome, Feb. 11, 1889.

PITZER, A. W. Confidence in Christ; or, Faith that Sustains, Philadelphia, 1889.

PLUMMER, A. Church of the Early Fathers, London, 1887; Pastoral Epistles [in Expositor's Bible], 1888.

PORTER, N. Fifteen Years in the Chapel of Yale College [Sermons.] 1871—86. New York, 1887.

POTT, H., d. in New York City, Jan. 2, 1887.

POTTER, M. E., became pastor of Broadway Church, Norwich, Conn., 1888.

POTTER, W. W., Ueber die Verfasung der französischen Waldesier in der älteren Zeit, München, 1890.

RANKE, E. d. at Marburg, 1888. Stuttgartianus Versionis Sacrarum Scripturarum Latinae antehieronymiana fragmenta, Wien, 1887.

RAUSCHENBUSCH, A., resigned professorship in Rochester Theological Seminary, May, 1888, to return to Germany.

RIAWILSON, G., resigned Camden professorship at Oxford, 1886. Bible Topography, London, 1887; Ancient Egypt In Story of the Nations series, 1887; Ancient History, 1887; Moses: His Life and Times [in Men of the Bible series], 1887; Phoenicia [in Story of the Nations series], 1889; History of Phoenicia, 1889; Kings of Israel and Judah [in Men of the Bible series], 1889; Isaac and Jacob: Their Lives and Times [in the same series], 1890.

REUSCH, F. H. In company with Dr. Doellinger he edited Die Selbstbiographie des Cardinale Bellarmin, Bonn, 1887; and Geschichte der Moralstetigkeiten in der römisch-katholischen Kirche seit dem 16. Jahrhundert, Nürlingen, 1888, 2 vols. He also published Die pulsungen in dem Tractatus de Thomas v. Aquin gegen die Griechen (Opusculum contra errores Graecorum ad Urbanum IV.), München, 1889; Index librorum prohibitorum, gedruckt zu Parma, 1850, nach dem einzigen bekannten Exemplare herausgegeben, Bonn, 1889, and Briefe und Erklärungen von J. von Doellinger über die Vaticanischen Decrete, München, 1890.

REUTER, H. F., D.D. (hon., Kiel, 1853); d. at Göttingen, Sept. 18, 1889; Augustinische Studien, Gotha, 1887.

RIGGENBACH, B. E. Johann Tobias Beck. Ein Schriftengelehrter zum Himmelreich gelehrt, Basel, 1887; Unterwegs in deutsche Universitäten, 1887; "Jesus nimmt die Säuber an." Predigten, 1889; Die Wurzeln der Vergehen und Verbrechen im Familien- und Völkischen, 2d ed. 1890.

RIGGENBACH, Chr. John, d. at Basel, Sept. 5, 1890.

RITSCHL, O., ordinary professor at Kiel, 1889. Schlesiermacher's Stellung zum Christentum in seinen Reden über die Religion, Gotha.
ROBERTS, W., d. at Utica, N. Y., Oct. 2, 1887.
ROBERTS, W. C. Moderator of the General Assembly, 1886.
ROBERTS, W. H., LL.D. (Miami University, Oxford, O., 1888.) Chairman of Committee on Revision of the Westminster Confession of Faith, 1890.
ROBINSON, C. S., resigned pastorate of Memorial Church, New York City, 1887; editor of Every Thursday, a weekly religious family journal, New York, 1890; The Pharisees and the Scribes, New York, 1887; Studies in Mark’s Gospel, 1888; Modern Biblical Criticism, Historical Introduction, 1888.
ROBINSON, E. G. Principles and Practice of Morality; or Ethical Principles Discussed and Applied, Boston, 1888.
SANDERSON, Jos., LL.D. (Bellevue College, Wash., 1890). The Key in the Clouds, New York, 1887.
SAVAJE, M. J. My Creed, Boston, 1887; These Degenerate Days, 1887; Bluffton: A Story of To-day, 2d ed. 1887; Religious Reconstruction, 1888; The Effects of Evolution on the Coming Civilization, 1889; Helps for Daily Living, 1889; The Signs of the Times, 1890.
SAYCE, A. H. Origin and Growth of Religion, Illustrated by the Ancient Babylonians, London, 1887; Hittites; or, the Story of a Forgotten People, 1888; The Times of Iswah, Illustrated from Contemporary Monuments, 1889.
SCHAEFFER, A. Die Gottesmutter in der heiligen Schrift, Münster, 1887; Das Bücher des Neuen Testaments erklärt, 1. Bd., 1890.

SCHWARZ, K. H. W., studied at Halle, 1890; Bonn, 1881; Berlin, 1832–34; Greifswald, 1834–36; Lic. Theol. (Greifswald, 1841), priwall-docent at Halle, 1843, d. at Gotha, Mar. 23, 1885; his body was burned at his request. Grundrisse der christlichen Lehre, Leitfaden für den Religionsunterricht in Schule und Kirche, Gotha, 1890, 6th ed. 1886.

SCHWEINITZ, E. de, d. of apocalypt at S. Bethlehem, Pa., Dec. 18, 1887.

SCHWEIZER, Alex, d. at Zürich, July 3, 1888; see Biographische Aufzeichnungen von ihm selbst entworfen. Herausgegeben von Dr. Paul Schweizer (his son), Zürich, 1889.

SCOTT, R., d. at Rochester, Dec. 2, 1887.

SCUDDER, H. M., resigned pastorate of Plymouth Congregational Church, Chicago, Ill., in spring of 1887 to be a volunteer missionary in Japan.

SEEBERG, R., became ordinary professor at Dorpat, 1889. Ein Kampf um menschliches Leben, Dorpat, 1889.

SEISS, J. A. The Children of Silence; or, the Story of the Deaf, Philadelphia, 1887.

SEPP, J. N. Leben und Thaten des Feldhauptmanns Kaspar von Winzer, München, 1887; Kritische Beiträge zum Leben Jesu und zur neutestamentlichen Topographia Palatinas, 1890; Die Religion der alten Deutschen und ihr Fortbestand in Volksglauben, Aufzügen und Festbräuchen bis zur Gegenwart, München, 1890.

SHAFTSBURY, A. A. See His Life and Work, by Edwin Hodder, n. e. London, 1889, 1 vol.

SHEDD, W. Q. T., resigned professorship in union Theological Seminary, 1890; but fills his chair temporarily till 1891; Dogmatische Theologie, New York, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1899; The Proposed Revision of the Westminster Standards, New York, 1890.

SIEGFRIED, G. (Q.A.). Die Theologie und die SIMON.

honorische Betrachtung des alten Testaments. Vortrag, Frankfurt, 1890.

SLOANE, J. R. W. See his Life, by his son, New York, 1887.

SMITH, M. M., d. in Philadelphia, Mar. 20, 1887.

SMITH, S. F. Discourse in Memory of William Huyse, Boston, 1889.

SMYTH (S. P.), N. Christian Facts and Forces [Discourses], New York, 1887; Old Faiths in New Light; rev. ed., 1887; Personal Creeds; or, How to Form a Working Theory of Life, 1890.

SPROULL, Thomas, LL.D. (Western University, Pa., 1886.)

SPURGEON, C. H. According to Promise: The Lord and His Chosen People, London, 1887; Golden Alphabet; or, Praises of Holy Scripture, 1887; Metropolitan Tabernacle Pulpit, Sermons during 1889-90, 3 vols.; My Sermon Notes: CXXX. to April 19, 1887; My Sermon Notes: Romans to Revelation, 1897; According to Promise, New York, 1897; Pleading for Prayer, and other Sermons preached in 1886-87; Cheque Book of Precious Promises, Arranged for Daily Use, London, 1888; The Best Bread, and other Sermons preached in 1887, New York, 1889; Around the Wicket Gate, London and New York, 1889; The Old Church and the Leper, and other Sermons preached in 1888, New York, 1889; Twelve Striking Sermons, New York and Chicago, 1890; Metropolitan Tabernacle Pulpit during 1889, London, 1890.

STADE, B. Geschichte des Volkes Israel, 1 Bd., part 5, Berlin, 1887, 2 Bd., part 1, 1888. (Has in preparation, with Dr. Siegfried, a Hebrew Lexicon.)

STAEHELIN, R. Briefe aus der Reformationzeit, Basel, 1887; Zwingli als Prediger, 1887.

STALKE, J. Imago Christi: The Example of Jesus Christ, Edinburgh, 1889, New York, 1890.

STOLL, G., editor of the Lutheran Evangelist in the Blackbird [Nos. 2 of Schriften des Institutum Judaicum in Berlin], Leipzig, 1887; Aboda Zara, der Mischnatraktat "Gottesdiensst," Die Sprich der Vater, ein ethisches Mischnatraektat, and Jowa, der Mischnatraektat "Versohnungstag" [Nos. 5, 6, and 3, respectively of Schriften des Institutum Judaicum in Berlin], Leipzig, 1889.

STEVENSON, W. A. Commentary on the Epistles to the Thessalonians, Philadelphia, 1890.

STOCKMAYER, N. Jewish precept, am 1. Jan., 1889 in München, München, 1890; Das Gebet des Herrn, in neun Predigten ausgelegt, Basel, 1890.

STOKES, G. T. In connection with C. H. H. Wright, edited The Writings of St. Patrick, with Notes, London, 1887; he also wrote Ireland and the Celtic Church, 2d ed. 1887; Medieval History, 1887; Ireland and the Anglo Norman Church, 1889.

STORRS, R. S., L.H.D. (Columbia College, Centennial, Apr. 13, 1887) elected to and accepted the presidency of the A. B. C. F. M., succeeding Dr. Hopkins, 1887. The Puritan Spirit: An Oration, Boston and Chicago, 1890.

STORRS, R. B., L.H.D. (Columbia College, Centennial, Apr. 13, 1887); elected to and accepted the presidency of the A. B. C. F. M., succeeding Dr. Hopkins, 1887. The Puritan Spirit: An Oration, Boston and Chicago, 1890.

STORRS, R. B., L.H.D. (Columbia College, Centennial, Apr. 13, 1887); elected to and accepted the presidency of the A. B. C. F. M., succeeding Dr. Hopkins, 1887. The Puritan Spirit: An Oration, Boston and Chicago, 1890.

THOMPSON, William, d. at Hartford, Conn., Feb. 27, 1889.

THOROLD, A. W., translated to Winchester, 1891.

TRUE, B. O., D.D. (Rochester, 1888.)

TUCKER, H. H., d. at Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 9, 1899.

TUTTLE, D. S., D.D. (University of the South, 1897).

TYERMAN, L. d. at Clapham Park, London, Mar. 21, 1889.

VAIL, T. H., d. at Bryn Mawr, Pa., Oct. 6, 1889.

WEISS, H. Einleitung in die christliche Ethik, Freiburg i. Br., 1899.

WEISS, W. Ueber Ad. Harnack's Dogmen-Geschichte, 1889; Der Anhalt der Lehre Jesu. 1889.

WELCH, R. B., d. at Healing Springs, Va., June 29, 1890, in his 65th year. His last work was on the revision of the Westminster Standard. He was succeeded in Auburn Seminary by Dr. Darling.

WELLHUBER, J. Skizzen und Vorarbeiten, iii., Berlin, 1887, iv., 1889; Die Composition des Heiligen und der historischen Bücher des Alten Testamentes, 2d ed., Berlin, 1890.

WYLIE, J. A., d. in Edinburgh, May 1, 1890. The Ice Age in North America and its Bearings upon the Antiquity of Man, New York, 1889.

WRIGHT, G. F., D.D., LL.D., F.G.S.A. The Ice Age in North America and its Bearings upon the Antiquity of Man, New York, 1889.

ZIMMER, F. (K.) Der Römerbrief, übersetzt und kurz erklärt, Quedlinburg, 1887; Der Galaterbrief im Altlateinischen Text, und Das Gebet nach den Paulinischen Schriften [Hefte 1 and 3 of The-ZOECKLER.

ZOECKLER, O. Wider die unfehlbare Wissenschaft, Nördlingen, 1887; Die Briefe Pauli an die Thessalonicher, Galater, Korinther, und Römer, ausgelegt, 1888, and Die Apokryphen des Alten Testaments, 1890 [all in Kurzgefasster Kommentar]; Der Jesuitenorden nach seiner Stellung in der Entwicklungsgeschichte des Mönchthums, Barmen, 1888; Geschichte der Theologischen Litteratur, München, 1889. Editor of the Evangelische Kirchenzeitung; and of Handbuch der theologischen Wissenschaften, Nördlingen, 1885, sqq., and with Strack, of Kurzgefasster Kommentar zum A. und N. Testament und d. Apokryphen, 1886 sqq.

ZOEPFFEL, R. O. Johannes Sturm, der erste Rektor der Strassburger Akademie, Strassburg, 1887; in connection with Dr. H. Holtzmann, Lexicon für Theologie und Kirchenwesen, Braunschweig, 2d ed. 1890, sqq.