VINCENT OF DE PAUL, b. at Pouy in Gasogne, April 24, 1574; d. in Paris, Sept. 27, 1600; beatified, 1737; and canonized, 1787. He was educated by the Franciscans, and ordained a priest in 1600. On a tour from Toulouse to Narbonne, he was captured by corsairs from Tunis, and sold to a Christian renegade; but the end of the adventure was, that he reconverted his master. After a short stay in Rome, he repaired to Paris, where he became one of the chaplains of Queen Marguerite. The surroundings, however, seem to have bred scepticism in him; but he soon left the court, and through his friend Berulle, who had just founded the order of the Pères de l'Oratoire, he was appointed pastor of Clichy, and tutor in the house of Count Gondy. So great was his success as a pastor of souls, that the countess established a fund of sixteen thousand livres to provide better pastoral care for tenants. Nevertheless, feeling somewhat oppressed by the religious enthusiasm of the countess, Vincent left the house, and was appointed pastor of Chatillon les Dombes, 1617. There he formed the first Confrérie de Charité, an association of women, who personally went to the aid of poor and sick people. Persuaded to return to the Gondy family, he found the head of the order of Pères de l'Oratoire in Chatillon. He also began to visit the prisons, the galleys, and such places; and so irresistible was that message of Christian love he brought, that he melted even those half-petrified hearts. In 1619 Louis XIII. made him Auménier royal des galères de France. In 1623 he founded at Macon the Society of St. Borromeo against beggary; and in a very short time the beggars disappeared. His religious and philanthropic zeal was connected with a wonderful knowledge of human nature and a great practical tact. No wonder, then, that everything he undertook succeeded. His greatest institution was the order of the Priests of the Mission, confirmed by Parliament in 1631, and settled in the House of St. Lazarus in 1632. At first his order did not thrive so very well. After two years' hard work, it counted only nine members. But gradually it became customary for young priests to spend some time at St. Lazarus before they received ordination. In 1632 the Tuesday Conferences were inaugurated, where the younger clergy of Paris gathered for instruction and edification; and before long the priests of the mission were heartily welcomed, and even eagerly sought for, by all kinds of people. As most of the members of the Confréries de Charité were married ladies, whose domestic duties had the first claim on their attention, Vincent instituted a new order,—the so-called Filles de Charité, also called Sœurs Grieses. They were not nunlike. After their novitiate, they took a vow; but it bound them only for one year. "The hospitals were their cloister; the holy discipline, their veil." The influence of these institutions soon spread far beyond France,—to Ireland, Poland, Tunis, Algeria, Madagascar, etc.; and under great crises, as, for instance, during the war between France and the German Empire, it was felt as a great blessing. The life of St. Vincent has been written by Abelly (1664), Noiret (1729), Collet (1748), Capefique (1827), Bussière (1850), Maytrias (1851), Maynard (1860) [Loth (1881).] W. HOLLENBERG.

VINCENT OF SARAGOSSA, one of the most celebrated martyrs of the ancient church; descended from one of the most distinguished families in Arragonia; was archdeacon of the church of Saragossa, and suffered martyrdom at Valencia during the persecution of Diocletian, about 303. Though the Passio S. Vincentii (Act. Sanct., Jan. 12) is the chief of the adventures, it must, nevertheless, be very old, as it was known, at least in all its most prominent features, to Augustine (Sermon, 4; 274; 275; 276), Prudentius (Peristephanon), Paulinus of Nola (Poem., 27), Venantius Fortunatus (Carm., i. 8), and Gregory of Tours (De glor. mart., 90). VINCENT, Samuel, b. at Nimes, Sept. 8, 1787; d. there July 10, 1857. He belonged to a family, which, through several generations, had been attached to the service of the Reformed Church of Nimes; and, after studying at Geneva, he settled in his native city as pastor; and afterwards not even the most tempting offers could induce him to leave it. In 1829 he was made president of its consistory. His spiritual character, however, developed under the influence of English (Paley and Chalmers) and German (Breitmacher and Schleiermacher) Protestantism, rather than under that of French and Swiss Protestantism. After the Reinstatement of the Reformed Church gradually sunk down into the deism of Rousseau, and its theology became mere conventionalism without any true vitality. Vincent felt the evil; and it is his great merit that he procured the remedy. His first original production was an attack on Lamennais' Essai de l'indifférence; and his Observations sur l'Unité religieuse (1820), and Observations sur la voie d'autorité appliquée à la religion, created quite a sensation. From 1820 to 1824 he published Mélanges de religion, 1829, 2 vols., and Méditations religieuses (most complete edition by Fontanes, 1863); which latter work opened up new and rich opportunities to the preacher. His life was written by Antonin (1863) and Corbière (1873), besides a number of monographs by Fontanes, Prévost-Paradol, Coquereil fils, etc.

VINE, Cultivation of the. See Wine.

VINES, Richard, b. at Blason, in Leicester County, Eng., about 1600; d. February, 1655 (9). He was educated in Wycliffe College, Oxford; became teacher of a school at Hinckley in Warwickshire, after finishing his course at the university, and afterwards rector of Weddington. He was appointed a member of the Westminster Assembly of Divines in 1649 from Warwickshire, and was very influential in matters of church government and the sacraments. He was chairman of the Committee of Accommodation with the Independents. He often preached before Parliament. During the session of the Westminster Assembly he was, in 1643, made minister of the parish of Clements Danes, near Essex house; but, this proving too large for him, he removed to the rectory of Walton in Hertfordshire, and soon after became pastor of Lawrence Jewry, London. In 1644 he was also appointed master of Pembroke Hall, Cambridge, and held the position until 1649, when he was turned out for refusing the engagement. In 1653 he was appointed by Parliament one of the Committee of Divines to draw up the Fundamentals as a basis of Toleration. He died on sabbath evening, from bleeding at the nose, which was brought on by excessive labor in preaching, and administering the Lord's Supper. During his life a number of sermons were published; e.g., Impostures of Seducing Teachers Discovered, Commons Sermon, Nov. 30, 1642; Author, Nature, and Danger of Heresy, Commons Sermon, April 23, 1644. After his death a number of posthumous works were published by his friends; e.g., Treatise of the right institution, administration, and receiving of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, 4to, p. 379, London, 1657; God's Drawing and Man's Coming to Christ, 4to, p. 335, 1662. His funeral sermon was preached by Thomas Jacome, entitled Enoch's walk and change, and published 1656, with introductory remarks by Simeon Ashe and Edmund Calamy, followed by poetical epitaphs from William Spurstone, Matthew Newcommen, Matthew Poole, and others, all speaking of him in the warmest terms. He is represented as "a man of extraordinary ability, a smart disputant, well studied, a perfect master of the Greek, a real orator; his ministry solid, pithy, quick, and searching, having a clear head. He could dive deep into a subject, and come up with a good and searching man. He was a man of gracious, tender spirit." Fuller says of him, "He was most charitably moderate to such as disagreed from him, though most constant to his own principles." See Clark: Lives of Eminent Persons, p. 48 sq., 1853; Reid: Memoirs of Westminster Divines, p. 191 sq., 1811; Fuller: Worthies, ii. p. 239. C. A. BRIGGS.

VINET, Alexandre Rodolphe, Swiss theologian; b. at Ouchy, near Lausanne, Switzerland, June 17, 1797; d. at Clarens, on the Lake of Geneva, May 4, 1847. He was educated at Lausanne. In 1817 to 1837 he was teacher of the French language and literature in the gymnasium and pâdagogue at Basel, then extraordinary professor of the same in the university, and finally (1835) ordinary professor. In 1818 he was ordained; but it was not until 1823 that he came under the influence of those deeply spiritual views inculcated by César Malan. It was, indeed, the persecution of the Monmiers (see art.) which aroused Vinet's attention to the subject of freedom of conscience, and led him to write for the Paris Société de la morale chrétienne his prize essay, Mémoire en faveur de la liberté des cultes, Paris, 1819. This book established his reputation as a thinker and writer. Not content with philosophising, he took a prominent part in efforts to secure religious freedom in Switzerland, in consequence of which he was tried (1829), and condemned to pay a fine of eighty francs, and be suspended from his ministerial functions for a year. But of course such persecution had no effect upon his efforts or influence, except to increase both. He received, meanwhile, flattering calls elsewhere; but these he steadily declined, greatly to the delight of the Baselsers, who showed their appreciation of his ability and devotion as preacher, professor, and pamphleteer, by giving him the freedom of the city (1829), and in 1835 creating for him a chair of French language and literature in their university, thus giving him the position of ordinary professor. In 1837, however, he received a call which he could not resist, and went to Lausanne as professor of practical theology. As a parting tribute of respect and regard, Basel gave him that year the degree of doctor of theology. Out of modesty, Vinet made no public use of it; and therefore Berlin, in 1846, bestowed the same degree upon him. The second part of Vinet's career was destined to be shorter, for matters covered, Commons Sermon, Nov. 30, 1842; Author, Nature, and Danger of Heresy, Commons Sermon, April 23, 1644. After his death a number of posthumous works were published by his friends; e.g., Treatise of the right institution, administration, and receiving of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, 4to, p. 379, London, 1657; God's Drawing and Man's Coming to Christ, 4to, p. 335, 1662. His funeral sermon was preached by Thomas Jacome, entitled Enoch's walk and change, and published 1656, with introductory remarks by Simeon Ashe and Edmund Calamy, followed by poetical epitaphs from William Spurstone, Matthew Newcommen, Matthew Poole, and others, all speaking of him in the warmest terms. He is represented as "a man of extraordinary ability, a smart disputant, well studied, a perfect master of the Greek, a real orator; his ministry solid, pithy, quick, and searching, having a clear head. He could dive deep into a subject, and come up with a good and searching man. He was a man of gracious, tender spirit." Fuller says of him, "He was most charitably moderate to such as disagreed from him, though most constant to his own principles." See Clark: Lives became professor of French literature in the Lausanne Academy. In December, 1845, the Free Church of the canton of Vaud was organized; and, after some hesitancy, Vinet joined it. In November, 1846, the teachers of schools in the canton, of all grades, were required to submit to the new church law referred to above, and therefore Vinet was forced to withdraw. He welcomed the leisure; and, full of plans concerning unfinished and projected works, he would fain retire for a couple of years into his country, but his plans could not be carried out. His students besought him to continue his lectures; and, although sadly needing rest, he labored on. On Jan. 28, 1817, he gave his last lecture in theology. On April 19 he was carried to Clarens, and there he died.

VINE.

Vinet won fame in the two departments of theology and literary criticism. The latter does not properly come up here. His theology has to be determined from scattered statements in sermons, etc., for he wrote no formal theological treatise. He held the "evangelical" views respecting the necessity of resistance, and salvation by faith. Christ was the centre of his teaching. He made much of individuality, and dwelt upon the fitness of the gospel to the deepest needs of the heart, as proof of its divine origin. This theology was the staple of his preaching. As his teachers, he acknowledged Pascal and Kant. In practical theology there are several posthumous works derived from his notes and reports of students: Théologie pastorale, ou théorie du ministère ecclésiastique, Paris, 1850; Homilie, ou théorie de la prédication, 1853; and Histoire de la prédication parmi les réformes de France au dix-septième siècle, 1800.

In the first, Vinet shows his fitness to have the care of souls, but takes radical ground; for he teaches that the ministerial office sprang out of the needs of the congregation, and had no formal, divine introduction. The minister, therefore, has no especial priestly character whereby he is separated from other believers: he is simply a Christian who does habitually what all Christians should do occasionally and in their way, but he does these things with that measure of authority which knowledge and practice give. In his Homiletics, Vinet defines a sermon as an address incorporated in public worship, and intended either to lead into Christian truth those ignorant of it, or to apply Christian truth to those familiar with it, or both. He dwells much upon the artistic construction of the sermon. The theme should be chosen first. The text is of much less consequence, as it is not essential to a discourse; yet one should be chosen out of reverence for the word of God. The strong points of the book are its emphasis upon the necessity of laborious preparation of discourses, upon the man behind the sermon, and its Christian warmth and enthusiasm. [It has been extensively used as a text-book and book of reference in American theological seminaries.] Vinet's History of Preaching is an excellent book upon a brief but important period in the history of French preaching. And of his teaching Vinet himself was a fine example. He never was a pastor; yet he preached frequently, on invitation, in the French Church at Basel and in the Free Church of the Vaud canton. Five volumes of these sermons and homilies have been published. He was greatly admired, and very influential. In short, he was a genius, full of ideas, glowing with Christian light, kindling enthusiasm in others, yet cautious, sensitive, learned, and aesthetic.

[The following works of Vinet have appeared in English: Latitude recommended to the Christian Minister, London, 1841; An Essay on the Profession of Personal Religious Conviction, and upon the Separation of Church and State, considered with reference to the Fulfilment of that Duty, 1843; Christian Philosophy, 1846, and, in the same volume, Gospel Studies, 1851; Selected Sermons, 1849; Pastoral Theology, 1852; Homiletics, 1853, again in 1858; History of French Literature in the Eighteenth Century, 1854; Evangelical Meditations, 1858; Studies in Pascal, 1859; Outlines of Philosophy and Literature, 1865; Outlines of Theology.]

VINET. 2462

VIRGILIUS.
try, he could not help coming into opposition to Boniface, who just at that time was active in establishing the strictest hierarchical forms in the German and Frankish churches. Twice Boniface complained of him to the Pope; and the last time he even accused him of heresy, as he held the view of the earth, that it was globular. But in both cases the Pope supported Virgilius, and in 1233 he was even canonized by Gregory IX. See the two letters from Pope Zacharias to Boniface in the Letters of Boniface (62 and 82), edited by Wiirdtwein.

VITALIAN. Pope (657—672), tried in vain to convert Vitalian, Po (657—672), tried in vain to convert Vitalian, who just at that time was active in establishing the strictest hierarchical forms in the German and Frankish churches. Twice Boniface complained of him to the Pope; and the last time he even accused him of heresy, as he held the view of the earth, that it was globular. But in both cases the Pope supported Virgilius, and in 1233 he was even canonized by Gregory IX. See the two letters from Pope Zacharias to Boniface in the Letters of Boniface (62 and 82), edited by Wiirdtwein.

VITALIAN, Po (657—672), tried in vain to convert Vitalian, who just at that time was active in establishing the strictest hierarchical forms in the German and Frankish churches. Twice Boniface complained of him to the Pope; and the last time he even accused him of heresy, as he held the view of the earth, that it was globular. But in both cases the Pope supported Virgilius, and in 1233 he was even canonized by Gregory IX. See the two letters from Pope Zacharias to Boniface in the Letters of Boniface (62 and 82), edited by Wiirdtwein.

VITALIAN, Po (657—672), tried in vain to convert Vitalian, who just at that time was active in establishing the strictest hierarchical forms in the German and Frankish churches. Twice Boniface complained of him to the Pope; and the last time he even accused him of heresy, as he held the view of the earth, that it was globular. But in both cases the Pope supported Virgilius, and in 1233 he was even canonized by Gregory IX. See the two letters from Pope Zacharias to Boniface in the Letters of Boniface (62 and 82), edited by Wiirdtwein.
Rome; and, when Maurus did not come, he put him under the ban. But Maurus answered by putting Vitalian under the ban, and nothing was gained. More successful was his interference in the affairs of the Church of England, where he found a devoted ally in Archbishop Theodore of Canterbury. ROMAN.

VITALIS, properly ORDERICUS, b. at Atten-gesham, near Shrewsbury, Eng., Feb. 16, 1075; d. about 1143. He came of a French family, and was sent to Normandy, where he became a monk at St. Evroul (1086), and assumed the name Vitalis in honor of St. Vital. He took priest's orders 1107. He wrote Historia ecclesiastica, in three parts, from the creation to A.D. 1142. The third part is very interesting and important, especially because of its original information respecting Normandy and England. It was first edited by Duchesne, in his Hist. Norman. scriptores, Paris, 1819, best by A. le Provençal, Paris, 1839–55, 5 vols. Eng. trans. by T. Forester, Bohn's Antiquarian Library, London, 1853–56, 4 vols.

VITRINGA, Campegius, the most important of the older commentators upon Isaiah; b. at Leeuwarden, May 16, 1059; d. at Franeker, of apoplexy, after a long illness, March 31, 1722. He was educated at Franeker and Leyden, and was professor in the former university from 1681 till his death,—first of the Oriental languages, then (1683) of theology, and finally, succeeding Perizonus, of church history (1693). He had only two literary contests,—one with Cocceius, his former teacher at Leyden, upon the form of Ezekiel's temple; and the other with Rhenford upon the so-called "men of leisure" of the synagogue. His principal work is his Commentary on Isaiah (Commentarius in librum prophetiarum Jesaïe, Leeuwarden, 1714–20, 2 vols., new ed., Basel, 1739, 2 vols.), a work of permanent value. Gesenius is especially emphatic in its commendation; declaring that it not only made an epoch in the study of Isaiah, but outweighs the earlier and a good part of the later expositions. Its faults, he says, arise from its following the Cocceian methods, and setting forth just where and how far the prophecies of Isaiah have been fulfilled. But in wealth of philological and exegetical learning, aptness of illustration, and fulness of historical information, he declares it is by no means superseded. [Nagelbach, also, in the Introduction to his Commentary on Isaiah, in the Lange series, says of Vitringa's, "This Commentary is distinguished as much by astounding learning, penetration, and sober sense, as by elegance of style and practical warmth." In a similar strain speak other great critics."

Besides this Commentary, Vitringa wrote an important work upon the old synagogue (which appeared first under the title Archi sacrorum observationum nova monstratur, Franeker, 1655, but subsequently, De synagoga veteris libri tres, 1690), and some other works of less or little interest. H. Venema edited his posthumous Commentary upon Zechariah, Leeuwarden, 1734. ARNOLD.

VITUS (Voit), St., flourished, according to legends, at Decius of Dacia in the province of Illeus Senin, in 1617, and professor of theology at Utrecht in 1634. He was a pupil of Gomarus, and, like his master, he assumed the attitude of an ecclesiastical Hercules, cleansing the Arminian Augean stable. A great scholar and an able dialecticist, though of a somewhat scholastic turn, he was a strict Calvinist both in doctrine (Selecta Disputationes Theol., 1648) and in policy (Polit. Eccles., 1663, 4 vols.). Arminianism, and its alliance with deist and rational party in politics, he considered as the greatest danger to the Dutch-Reformed Church, and he waged war against it to the bitter end. But his violent and protracted controversies with Cocceius (see Max Göbel: Gesc. des christl. Lebens in d. Rhein. Westph. Ercing. Kirche, ii.) and Cartesius (see Diag. hist. theol. de pugna Voetium inter et Cartesium, Leyden, 1861) cannot fail to remind the reader that it is not necessary to belong to the Roman-Catholic Church in order to practise the maxim; that the end justifies the means. Among Voetius's other works are exercitia pietatis (1684), Ditribe de theologica (1686), etc. by J. L. van der Velden.

VIVES, Juan Ludovico de, b. at Valencia, in Spain, in March, 1492; d. at Bruges, in Flanders, May 6, 1540. He began to study philosophy in Paris, but became so disgusted at the empty subtleties of the Nominalists, Caspar Lax and Dollandus, that he left for Louvain, where he devoted himself to the study of classical literature. Soon he also began an open campaign against the reigning scholasticism; and his excellent work, Liber in Pseudo-Dialecticos, attracted general attention. Invited to England, he lectured with great success at Oxford; but, as he refused to support the king's schemes of divorce, he lost his favor, and was even for some time imprisoned. After his release he settled at Bruges, where he wrote his De disciplinis, Antwerp, 1581, and De veritatis fidei christianae, which he intended to dedicate to Paul III. Though externally he remained a devoted son of the Roman-Catholic Church, he was suspected of inclining towards Protestantism; and many of his propositions, especially on morals and ascetics, could, soon after his death, not be repeated any more. The best edition of his works is that of Valenciennes, 1782, in 8 vols. in quarto. Concerning his life his Letters contain much interesting information. See I. Namy: Mémoire sur la vie et les écrits de J. L. V., in the Memoirs of the Royal Academy of Brussels, T. xv. part i. 1841; [W. Franccken: J. L. V. de vriend van Erasmus, Rotterdam, 1853.]

G. H. KILPEL.

VOETIUS, Gysbertus, b. at Heusden, in the province of Holland, March 3, 1588; d. at Utrecht, Nov. 1, 1676. He studied theology at Leyden; and was appointed pastor of Vlymen in 1611, and of Heusden in 1617, and professor of theology at Utrecht in 1634. He was a pupil of Gomarus, and, like his master, he assumed the attitude of an ecclesiastical Hercules, cleansing the Arminian Augean stable. A great scholar and an able dialecticist, though of a somewhat scholastic turn, he was a strict Calvinist both in doctrine (Selecte Disputationes Theol., 1648) and in policy (Polit. Eccles., 1663, 4 vols.). Arminianism, and its alliance with deist and rational party in politics, he considered as the greatest danger to the Dutch-Reformed Church, and he waged war against it to the bitter end. But his violent and protracted controversies with Cocceius (see Max Göbel: Geschichte des christl. Lebens in d. Rhein. Westph. Ercing. Kirche, ii.) and Cartesius (see Diag. hist. theol. de pugna Voetium inter et Cartesium, Leyden, 1861) cannot fail to remind the reader that it is not necessary to belong to the Roman-Catholic Church in order to practise the maxim; that the end justifies the means. Among Voetius's other works are exercitia pietatis (1684), Disputationes theologica (1686), etc. by J. L. van der Velden.

VOLNEY, Constantin François Chassebouf, Comte de, b. Feb. 3, 1757; d. April 25, 1820. After several years' travelling in the East, he wrote his Voyage en Egypte et en Syrie, 1757, which earned a great reputation for him; and in 1794 he was made a peer of France. As a man of the Revolution, he became a senator in 1794; and as an adversary of Napoleon, he was made a peer of France in 1814. In literature he is known as the author of a number of anti-Christian or anti-religious writings: Les Ruines, 1791 (often reprinted, and translated into several foreign languages; into English, New York, 1796, London, 1827); La loi naturelle, 1793; Histoire de Samuel, etc.
VOLTAIRE.

2465 VOLTAIRE.

VOLTAIRE, b. in Paris, Nov. 21, 1694; d. there May 30, 1778. His true name was François Marie Arouet, to which he added in 1718, but from reasons not known, de Voltaire, which occurs among his maternal ancestors.

Voltaire was educated by the Jesuits in Collège Louis-le-Grand in Paris, where he learnt "nothing but Latin and nonsense," and was destined to study law. But his natural talent, no less than the levity of his disposition, drew him with irresistible force into literary life,—the theatre, the pamphlet, the salons, etc., where the efforts were short, and the triumphs rapid. He had wit, taste, a wonderful talent for turning everything into verse, and a still more wonderful talent for dropping innuendoes, malicious or lewd, according to circumstances. He wrote, no less than his verses, satirical or complimentary, and said smart things at the supper-tables of dukes and abbés. In 1718 he obtained a diplomatic position as secretary to the French ambassador to Holland. But in The Hague he was most ridiculously taken in by a lady of semi-standing,—a certain Madame du Noyer, whose daughter he fell in love with, and tried to allure into an elopement. He was discharged, and sent back to Paris; and Madame du Noyer repaid herself for her troubles by publishing his love-letters. In 1714 he competed for the prize of the academy, but failed to obtain it. In 1717 some vicious lampoons on the regent and his household inspired a number of letters to all the most prominent personages in Europe. At the middle of the eighteenth century he stood as the greatest literary celebrity which the European civilization ever had produced, far exceeding Erasmus both in fame and power. And when, in 1750, he set out for Berlin, on the invitation of Friedrich II., it was not a pensioner threading his way to the table of his patron, but the king of the pen coming to visit the king of the sword. Voltaire and Friedrich admired each other. But Voltaire admired in Friedrich only the general, and Friedrich wanted to be admired as a poet; while, in Voltaire, Friedrich admired only the poet, and Voltaire wanted to be admired as a statesman. Ludicrous conflicts arose, almost from the hour of their first meeting; and soon the conflict grew into a continuous warfare. At last Voltaire took to flight, 1758; but Friedrich pursued him, and had him actually arrested at Francfort. All Europe was ringing with laughter. The friendship, natural and necessary between those two men, served only to show to all the world what there was in them of weakness and vice, of frailty and fraud.

The last part of his life Voltaire spent at Ferney, an estate he bought in the county of Gex, conveniently situated near the Swiss frontier; and during this period some of the best features of his personal character came to light. There were forty-six miserable peasants at Ferney when he bought the estate: when he died, there were twelve hundred well-to-do inhabitants engaged in watch-making, silk-weaving, etc., and it was he who built their houses, bought their tools, sold their goods, etc. His defence of Jean Calas shows a courage and perseverance which are most admirable, and contributed more than many volumes could have done to convince people that religious toleration is necessary, not only for the development of truth, but for the very existence of good morals. But his writings — and among them are some of his most prominent works: Essais sur les dieux et l'Étape, De l'Encyclopédie, De l'Éloquence, Philosophe, etc. — show that his polemical passion had become intensified almost to the bursting-point, that his whole mental energy had concentrated itself around the famous motto, Écrases l’infâme, with which he ended every letter he sent to his friends. L’infâme meant, originally, the Roman-Catholic Church, then any church which has the support of the State for the enforcement of its doctrines and discipline, and finally it came to mean all religion, so far as it claims a supernatural origin. On this point his hatred is insatiable. It pervades all his writing, from Candide and Le diner du comte de Bouvilliers to La Prucelle and L’Orpine de la Chine; and in his minor pamphlets, newspaper-articles, letters, etc., it drags him not only below his dignity, but beneath decency. His own time, however, did not think so. When he went up to Paris in 1778, he was received with such enthusiasm and such ovations as the world had hardly ever seen before. But the excitement thereby produced was too much for his strength; he did not live too big a dose of opium, and died in delirium.

Voltaire made his mark in literature as a poet. His Zaire, Mahomet, and Mérope were considered the very acme of tragic art. Now, there cannot from those three long dramas be culled three single sentences in which the true accent of human nature is hit upon and rendered. Their poetical value is null, but their elegance is exquisite and perfect. When conventional rules are fulfilled with the same ease and spontaneity with which natural laws are obeyed, elegance is the result.

To the public for which Voltaire wrote, tragic art was only a maze of intricate conventional rules; but he mastered those rules so completely, that his audience sat enchanted, transported, and gazed upon his tragedies as upon clouds of "woven wind" floating in the sunshine. Of more solid worth are his historical works. Robert Flint, in his The Philosophy of History in France and Germany, Edinburgh, 1874, vindicates him an honorable place in the development of the philosophy of history, and, no doubt, with right. But the true merit of Voltaire as an historian lies, not in his relation to the science, but in his relation to the public. He made history a part of art and fiction. With a few well-directed strokes he swept away the dull dreams and foul deceptions of the monks, and fixed the attention of people upon that which had really taken place. Before him, history was to people in general a kind of moral picture-book, with examples to be imitated, and examples to be avoided; after him it became the principal material for the study of human nature and human affairs. To people in general his historical works opened up a new way to truth.

Finally, the philosophy of Voltaire. Strictly speaking Voltaire was no philosopher at all. The higher methods of extracting truth he had never learned, and he was by natural disposition incapable of that sustained effort of thought without which systematic views cannot be formed. Nevertheless, he is the true representative of the "Age of Reason"; and the great boast of that age was justly pronounced not an atheism, but a satire, a satire always directed against the miserable sects and delusions of human nature. He could sneer as heartily at the atheists as at the fanatics. He was a Deist, and started from the three well-known premises of Deism: God, the world, and between them no relation which can be represented under the form of divine revelation, special providence, etc. But to Voltaire God was only the result of a train of reasoning, an intellectual necessity. God is, because he must be: "if he were not, we would have to invent him." Of a personal relation between himself and God there was no trace; and, what is still worse, he did not understand that such a relation could truly exist. Whenever he met it, he felt inclined to attack it, no matter under what form it presented itself,—Judaism, Romanism, Protestantism, etc.; and of his general conception of God he often spoke with an undercurrent of cold indifference, illuminated now and then with sparks of cynicism, which, to men of strongly marked religious disposition, have made his works an outrage, an abomination. The world, on the contrary, was a very serious affair to Voltaire, and a thing he understood. He was a critic of the very highest rank. His instinct of truth was wonderfully sharp and vivid. He felt at a shamed miles away; and he could make enormous exertions, and submit to exasperating annoyances, in order to hunt it down. With that instinct he combined a never equalled power of statement. Not that his wit is always enjoyable. In the service of his vanity, envy, and malice, and used to cover up deliberate falsehoods and lies, it is often shocking. But the directness, clearness, and precision of his statement of a fact or an idea has still more often made truth irresistible; and without entering into the details of his activity, his victories, and his defeats, it may be generally said that his critical development in modern literature a sense for that which is simple, natural, and clear. His best service was in the case of the Protestant Ca-лас (see art). Outside of France, however, his works, his ideas, his influence, have ceased to act as a living spring. The waters have dried up. And, even within the bounds of French civilization, Voltaireism is an active power only as battling with Jesuitism; the one or the other giving its color to the events, according as anarchism or despotism has the upper hand.

Lit.—Collected editions of Voltaire's works, as well as separate editions of his tragedies, histories, letters, pamphlets, newspaper-articles, etc., have been treated in a great number of special essays, but generally without any definite result. What might be called the anecdotes of his life, more or less authentic, but very instructive with respect to time and place, is found in BUNGENER: Voltaire et son temps, Paris, 1851; and JANIN: Le roi Voltaire, Paris, 1861, 3d ed. General surveys of his life, character, and influence, have been given by PIERSON, CARLYLE, STRAUSS, and MORLEY, and CLEMENS PETRIESEN.

VORSTIUS, Conrad, Arminian theologian, b. at Cologne, July 19, 1569; d. at Tönningen, in Sleswick, Sept. 29, 1622. His parents were Roman Catholics; but he was refused the degree in the college of St. Laurentius in his native city, because he would not subscribe to the Confession of Trent; and soon after he openly embraced the Reformation. He distinguished himself as a student and lecturer in Heidelberg, Basel, and Geneva, and still more as teacher of theology in the gymnasion of Steinfurt. But some treatises he published (De praedestinatione, De trinitate, De persona et officio Christi) made his orthodoxy suspect; and in 1610 he was called upon to defend himself at Heidelberg against the accusation of Socinianism. In 1610 he was appointed the successor of Arminius in the university of Leyden; but on account of his Tractatus de Deo, published in the same year, and containing many peculiar subtleties concerning the nature and attributes of God, his appointment was met with a violent protest by the Gomarists. James I. of England was drawn into the controversy, and made umpire among the contestants. He condemned Vorstius, and succeeded in having him expelled from Leyden. Vorstius settled at Tergow, but the controversy continued to rage. He was condemned by the synod of Dort as a heretic, and banished from the States, 1619. For a couple of years he kept himself concealed, but finally he found a refuge in Sleswick.

NEUDECKER.

VOSSIUS, Gerard, Provost of Tongern, papal prothonotary: d. at Liege, March 25, 1606; acquired a great reputation by his Latin translation of the sermons of Chrysostom, 1580, and his ed.

VOSSIUS. See Buxtorf, Capelleus.

VOWS. The conception of a personal God who has a will as well as the power, and the personal relation which necessarily springs up between God and man on the basis of this conception, naturally call forth the ideas of offerings which could and should be presented to God, and of solemn promises by which man binds himself to present such offerings. Thus arises the religious vow (votum, votum). It may come forth as the simple result of man's desire to give a fit expression to his feeling of gratitude and devotion to God, and no expression could be more fit than the offering of something particularly dear or valuable. Or it may be made with a view to the obtaining of some great benefit, as, for instance, the rescue from some overhanging danger: the vows of the Old Testament very often show this character of conditionality. Or, finally, it may by man be considered as the most effective means by which to keep himself in the closest possible communion with God: no doubt, such a consideration lay at the bottom of the asceticism of the ancient church. But we consider all these forms of the religious vow as a voluntary promise, the offering of something which is not due.

The New Testament gives no direct advice with respect to vows. The Gospels contain only the one sharp utterance from the lips of Jesus concerning gifts to the temple when accompanied with neglect of parents (Matt. xvi. 4; Mark vii. 10). The apostolical Epistles are completely silent on the question; and from Acts xxii. 23 (see Nazarites) and xviii. 18 no positive doctrine can be extracted. The latter passage is, however, very obscure: it seems to refer to Aquila, and not at all to Paul. Thus the question, What position ought to be given to vows in true Christian morals? cannot be answered from the letter of Scripture. The answer must be deduced from the general principles of morality such as they have been laid down in the New Testament, and developed in Christian conscience. But on this point a striking difference reveals itself between the evangelical churches and the Church of Rome.

The idea that the pious feels driven in his conscience to present offerings to his God has not only been recognized by Christianity, but it is one that Christianity has attained its most extensive bearing and its deepest meaning. For what is the offering which Christianity demands? Nothing less than the person himself, his whole life, all his will (comp. Rom. vii. 11, 13, viii. 4, xiii 1; Gal. ii. 20; 2 Cor. v. 16). In this general, expanded sense, the promise made at baptism, and renewed at confirmation, is certainly a vow. But the vow in the narrower and more proper sense of the word, defining the offering as something special, and not due, the evangelical churches do not recognize. Luther, no less than Calvin, held that whatsoever degree of devotion to God a person was able to realize in his life, it was simply his duty, and implicitly contained in his baptismal promise. Quite otherwise with the Roman Catholic Church. Beside the common morality to which all Christians are bound by the commandment of God, she establishes another and higher morality, which is not a divine commandment, and consequently not a moral duty, but which may become an object of a vow.

The Roman-Catholic view of vows is closely VOWS AMONG THE HEBREWS. 2468

VULGATE.

connected with the Roman-Catholic doctrines of Consilia evangelica, Opera supererogationis, and Bonum melius. From Petrus Lombardus, who, however, made a distinction between a votum singulare and the votum commune made at baptism, and down to our time, the Roman-Catholic Church had always defined a vow as a voluntary promise to God of a bonum melius. Classical in this respect is the exposition of Thomas Aquinas (Summa, ii. 2, qu. 88): a vow, strictly speaking, distinguished from the baptismal promise, which is necessary to salvation (ut de bono meliori, dicitur melius bonum quod ad supererogationem pertinet). The bonum melius here appears as synonymous with opus supererogatorium, and Thomas actually defines it as something beyond that which is necessary to salvation, though it is evident that the bonum melius refers exclusively to some special virtues,—poverty, obedience, chastity; while an opus supererogatorium may result also from doing more than is necessary in the ordinary line of morality.

J. KÖSTLIN.

VOWS AMONG THE HEBREWS. Vows (נָדָר, "nedarim") are solemn promises to God, on condition of his granting some benefit, to make an offering in return. The passages in the Pentateuch giving information about them are Lev. xxvii. and Num. xxx. There is no sufficient reason for denying the high antiquity of this practice (Gen. xxviii. 20-22); and the historical books of the Old Testament, the Psalms, and the writings of the Salomonic period, show how prevalent it was in Israel. Vows included persons, animals, and other possessions. Persons, however, were always to be redeemed according to their estimated value. The redemption-price differed according to the age and sex of the person, except in the case of the poor, where it was estimated according to their property. The votive-offerings had the character of compulsory offerings, and differed in this regard from the freewill gifts. Amongst the votive-offerings were the acts of renunciation or abstinence; such as fasting and the obligations of the Nazarite. It is characteristic of the moral tone of the Mosaic legislation, that it excludes all unnatural mortification, such as self-mutilation and other injuries to the body, which were reasons for exclusion from the theocratic congregation (Deut. xxiii. 1; comp. Lev. xix. 18).

The practice of vows corresponds to the condition of minority under the law, but the Mosaic legislation lays no particular stress upon it. "If thou shalt forbear to vow, it shall be no sin in thee" (Deut. xxiii. 22). Nowhere is the vow spoken of as meritorious, nor is there any indication that God was regarded as granting requests with reference to or because of the vows. The motive actuating them was insisted upon (Ps. cxvi. 13 sqq., cxxxvi. 11 sqq.; Mal. i. 14), and the inviolability of the promise was insisted upon (Num. xxx. 2; Deut. xxiii. 21 sqq.). To the simple injunctions of the Old Testament, the Mishna, in the tract Nedarim, adds many rules, which it supports by casuistry, laying particular emphasis upon the language in which they are made. Korban ("it is devoted to God as an offering") was the usual votive-word; and our Lord, in speaking of it (Matt. xv. 5; Mark vii. 11), assumes that a son by its use might even rid himself of the obligation to support his parents. Such cases happened, as is evident from Nedarim, v. 6. De Wette goes too far, when, in commenting upon Matt. xv. 5, he says with reference to Nedarim, ix. 1, "Rabbi Elieser held the law of reverence for parents higher than all vows; but the rabbins declared vows against this law binding." The Mishna does not declare offerings and duties to God arbitrarily assumed, and militating against the law of love, unbinding and worthless. It is, however, true, that the traditional observances condemned by our Lord, the Mishna also disproves. Christianity was not without influence upon Judaism. GELLER (DELTZCHE).

VULGATE. The name for Jerome's version of the Scriptures. See BIBLE VERSIONS, p. 263.

WADDELL, James, D.D., eminent Presbyterian blind pulpit orator; b. at Newry, Ireland, July 1739; d. at Hopewell, Louisa County, Va., Sept. 17, 1805. His parents emigrated to Pennsylvania while he was an infant. He was educated in Dr. Finley’s academy at Nottingham, Penn.; licensed by presbytery of Hanover, April 2, 1751; ordained, June 16, 1762; pastor in Lancaster and Northumberland, Va. He subsequently held other charges. His eloquence was renowned. But by his own request all his manuscripts were burned, so that his reputation rests upon testimony alone. He was blind for the last twenty years of his life. He was the father-in-law of Dr. Archibald Alexander. Wirt gives a picture of him in his British Spy. See Sprague’s Annals, iii. 255 sqq.

WADDINGTON, George, D.D., b. in England, Sept. 7, 1793; d. at Durham, July 20, 1869. He was elected fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge; then travelled extensively in the East; was installed dean of Durham, 1840, and in the following year became first warden of the university of Durham. Besides books of travel in Ethiopia, in connection with Barnard Hanbury (1822), and Greece, during the Greek Revolution (1826), he wrote History of the Church from the Earliest Ages to the Reformation (1833, 3 vols., 2d ed., 1855), and History of the Reformation on the Continent, 1841.

WAFFER, the small circular disk of unleavened bread, stamped either with the figure of Christ or with the initials I.H.S., and use in the celebration of the mass in the Roman-Catholic Church. In form it resembles the Jewish passover bread. The wafer eaten by the priest is larger than that given to the laity. It is supposed that the use of the wafer is not earlier than the eleventh century; previously, ordinary bread was generally used. See art. “Oblaten,” in Würzsn u. Wane.

WAGENSEIL, Johann Christoph, b. at Nuremberg, Nov. 26, 1833; d. at Altdorf, Oct. 9, 1705, where he had been professor since 1687,—first of history, next of Oriental languages (1674), and finally of ecclesiastical law (1697). He wrote the famous works, Sota h.e. libror Mischnicu de usuro adulterii suspicata, Altdorf, 1674 (a translation, with notes, of the Mishnah tractate upon the treatment of a wife suspected of adultery), and Tela Ignea Satanae, sine, arcani et horribiles Jul/120mm adverqu Christum Deum et Christianum religionem libri, Altdorf, 1681 (a translation and refutation, in Latin, of certain anti-Christian Jewish writings).

WAHABEE, the representatives of a reformatory movement which arose within Mohammedanism in the middle of the eighteenth century. The movement, which may be characterized as a Mohammedan rationalism, accepting the Koran as authoritative, but rejecting the worship of Mohammed as idolatry, originated in the tribe of Nedshi in Yemen, and was named, after its originator, Mohammed-ben-Abd-el-Wahab. At the beginning of the present century the Wahabees reached the culminating point of their power. In 1802 they occupied Mecca, and compelled the Turks to pay a yearly tribute in order that they be allowed to enter it as pilgrims; and in 1808 they even threatened Cairo, and invaded Syria. But in 1812 Mehemet Ali invaded Arabia; and in 1815 his son, Ibrahim Pasha, sent Abdullah, the head of the Wahabees, to Constantinople to be executed. Politically their power is now nearly confined to their native tribe in Yemen.

WAINWRIGHT, Jonathan Mayhew, D.D., D.C.L. (Oxon.), Protestant-Episcopal provisional bishop of New York; b. in Liverpool, Eng., Feb. 24, 1792; d. in New-York City, Sept. 21, 1854. He was graduated from Harvard College 1812; ordained 1816; was rector in Hartford (Conn.), Boston, and New York. He was consecrated Nov. 10, 1852. He was for many years secretary of the house of bishops, and the author of several books of travel, controversy (especially one with Dr. Potts on episcopacy, New York, 1844), and biblical exposition. See Memorial Volume (thirty-four of his sermons, and memoir by Bishop Doane, New York, 1856) and his Life, by J. N. Norton, New York, 1858.

WAKE, William, D.D., Archbishop of Canterbury; b. at Blandford, Dorsetshire, Eng., 1657; d. at Lambeth, Jan. 24, 1705. He was educated at Oxford; and was successively D.D. and canon of Christ Church (1689), dean of Exeter (1701), bishop of Lincoln (1705), and archbishop of Canterbury (1716). He was a very learned man, and wrote many works; but probably he is best known as the author, in connection with Dr. J. E. Grabe, of a translation of The Genuine Epistles of the Apostolical Fathers, London, 1693, many editions and reprints. Dr. Wake gives to all these epistles primitive and apostolical antiquity.

WAKEFIELD, Gilbert, English divine; b. at Nottingham, Feb. 22, 1756; d. in London, Sept. 9, 1801. He was graduated at Cambridge, 1776, obtained a fellowship; took holy orders, left (1786), and violently assailed the Established Church. He joined no other communion. From 1779 to 1783 he was classical tutor in the dissenting academy at Warrington, and for a year (1780-91) the same in the dissenting academy at Hackney. His later views were Unitarian. Gentle in domestic life, he yet was acrimonious in controversy. He published editions of Bion and Moschus, Virgil and Lucretius, and many original books, of which may be mentioned, An enquiry into the opinions of the Christian writers of the three first centuries concerning the person of Christ, London, 1754 (only vol. 1 printed); Enquiry into the expediency and propriety of social worship, 1791 (in which he takes strong ground against it); Translation of the New Testament, 1791, 5 vols. (2d ed., 1795, 2 vols.; reprinted, Cambridge, Mass., 1820); An examination of the Age of Reason, by Thomas Paine, 1794.

WALCH is the name of two German theologians of note. — I. Johann Georg Walch, b. at Meiningen in 1693; d. at Jena, Jan. 13, 1775. He studied theology at Leipzig; edited Ovid and Lactantius; published in 1716 his valuable Historia critica Lat. linguae, and was in 1719 appointed professor of eloquence at Jena. He took part in the philosophical controversy between Buddeus and Wolf, and published in 1728 his Philosophisches Lexikon, in which, at every point, the so-called natural theology breaks through the old Lutheran orthodoxy, opening the way on one side for pietism, and on the other for rationalism.

In 1724 he was made professor of theology. His principal theological works are, Einleitung in die Religionstreitigkeiten ausser der evangelisch-luther. Kirche, 1739—30, 5 vols.; and Einleitung in die Religionstreitigkeiten der evang-luther. Kirche, 1739—30, 5 vols., and an edition of Luther's works, Halle, 1740—52, 24 vols.—II. Christian Wilhelm Franz Walch, son of the preceding; b. at Jena, Dec. 25, 1728; d. at Göttingen, March 10, 1784. He studied theology under his father; visited Holland, France, Switzerland, and Germany, and was appointed professor of philosophy in 1750 at Jena, and in 1758 at Göttingen, where, in 1754, he became professor of theology, and worked for thirty years with as much success as energy. He was not a creative genius. He belonged to the same kind of minds as Mosheim and Semler, though without equaling them. His works are, nevertheless, of great importance, especially in the department of church history. He felt that God might be studied in the same way, and with the same advantage, in history as in nature. But even in his Geschicht der evang-luther. Religion, 1753, a work of great interest, if not of great success, he failed in raising that idea—true by itself, and very fertile — into a higher view of the philosophy of history: it sinks down into a merely apologetic application of a rather narrow notion of Providence. His Ketzterhistorie, 1792, 11 vols., is an almost exhaustive collection, and fully methodical arrangement, of the materials; and the conclusions are always drawn with caution and conscientiousness. But that power which penetrates the given materials so as to reproduce the organic developments of history, he entirely lacked.

The book, which is his principal work, is, nevertheless, still an invaluable aid for the student of church history. Prominent among his other works are his Hist. der römischen Päste, Göttingen, 1756; Historie der Kirchenversammlungen, Leipzig, 1759; Biblioth. Symbol. Vetus, Lemgo, 1770, etc. Dissertations on his life and writings were written by Heumann, Less, and Heyne, 1794. W. MÖLLER.

WALDEGRAVE, Samuel, D.D., son of Earl of Waldegrave: b. 1817; d. Oct. 1, 1869. He was graduated at Balliol College, Oxford, as a double first-class, 1839. In 1849 he was elected fellow of All Souls; in 1863 appointed Bampton Lecturer; in 1860 bishop of Carlisle. His writings include New-Testament Millenarianism (his Bampton Lectures), London, 1855, 2d ed., 1866; and the posthumous, Christ the True Altar, and other Sermons, with Introduction by Rev. J. C. Ryle, 1875.

WALDENESSES. As the Latin Church with steadily-increasing force developed those features which specially characterize her as the Church of Rome, the instincts of the ancient Catholic Church, time after time, broke out in open resistance. In the Waldenses this opposition found one of its strongest expressions; and their history is so much the more interesting, as, besides the Bohemian and Moravian Brethren, they are the only party of medieval dissenters who have maintained their existence to this day.

Origin and Earlier History. — Lyons was the cradle of the Waldenses, whence they were often called Leonistae, Leonenses, Lugudunenses, or Pau- peres de Lugduno, and it is worth noticing, that both on account of its excellent cathedral-school, and on account of the ability of its bishops and WALDENSES.

2471

WALDENSES.

archbishops, the Church of Lyons held the most‘ between them and the church.

But the state of prominent position in Gaul, exhibiting in its his affairs which at this time developed in Southern tory many grand examples—Agobard, Amolo, France—the crusades against the Albigenses, etc.—of the true type of ancient Catholicism; instituted b the Pope himself, and executed by while on the other hand the Cathari had met with Louis IX., riedrich lI., Raymund VII., etc.; the very little success there. The originator of the new foundation of the Inquisition b Gregory IX. in movement was Waldus, or Valdesius, or Walden 1232; and the establishment o the Dominican sis, a rich and distinguished citizen of L one, who order as perpetual papal in uisitors—ﬁnally ex ﬂourished in the latter part of the twelft century. ercised its inﬂuence also on t em. The Council of A very natural desire to know what the lectiones, Toulouse (1229) forbade laymen to read the Bible, the recitals from the Vulgate, really contained, whether in Latin or in the vernacular tongue; and led him to procure a translation of them into the the Council of Tarracona (1234) extended the vernacular tongue, the Romaunt, a Provencal dia prohibition to the clergy. Under such circum lect; and, as he felt the great use of a guide in stances the Waldenses could not help becoming stud ing the Bible, the translation of the Bible, aware of the ve sharp differences between them or 0 parts of it, was followed by translations of selves and the c urch, involved in their very ﬁrst extracts from the Fathers. But in all this there principles; and they were thus forced into a posi was nothing extraordinary. The translation and tion of o n anta onism with res ct to the reading of the Bible had not yet been forbidden church.

xcluded rom the rulin c urch by the by the Church. But the reading of the Bible led Fourth Lateran Council of 1216, t ey were by no to the imitation of Christ. Waldus felt com means willing to concede that the were excluded pelled to take the rule of his life from the Gos from the true church. Nor were t ey prepared to pels, and in that point there were many who represent themselves as the true church, and the agreed with him. They gave away their property Church of Rome as a mere fraud.

But they
to the poor, and be an to preach publicly in the claimed to be the true and sound kernel of the city. They preache in the streets, in the houses, church general; and they retested that the per even in the churches, and thev produced a deep version of the Church of libme began with P0

The church tool: fright, and the Sylvester when he accepted riches and world y archbishop ﬁnall forbade them to preach. They power from Constantine the Great.
protested, refuse to obey, and were ex lled from Doctrine and Discipline. —The great informing the city. Taking their wives and children with idea of the Waldensian Church, no less than its impression.

them, they set out on a preaching-mission, and scattered all over the southern part of France, where the soil had been well prepared for them, partly by the Cathari, and partly by the notorious insufﬁciency and immorality of the priests. Trav relation to the rulin church, made the formation of an order of preac ers, and their complete edu cation, an aﬁair of paramount importance. The preachers, who were called perfecti, in contradis tinction from the merely credenles (“faithful”), elling two and two together, clad in woollen ni lived in poverty and celibacy. After due tence-garments, with bare feet or wooden s oes ration and instruction, they were subjecte

repa

to an

(sabol, or zabale, whence they were often called examination concerning the fundamental articles

Salmlali, Xabalenses, etc.), they penetrated into of faith (such as contained in the Apostles' Switzerland and Northern Italy, well received Creed), the princi al points of difference with everywhere as the poor Waldenses from L one. respect to the Cat ari, the seven sacraments, etc.

There was, however, as yet, no breach wit the After promising to obey God, to remain chaste, church.

The Waldenses were not conscious of and to live in voluntary poverty, they received the any decisive difference between themselves and ordination by the laying-on of hands. According the church. \Vhen the were expelled from Lyons, to some accounts, there existed hierarchical dis the appealed to the third council of the Lateran tinctions of bishops, priests, and deacons among (1&9), and by Alexander III. they were treated the perfecti, and the frequently occurring terms with great leniency; but, as they would not stop of majoralis, magmas magisler, major, minor, may reaching, they were put under the ban by Lucius refer to such distinctions. But, according to other II. 1184), and the measure was repeated by the accounts, the Waldenses held that every “good fourt council of the Lateran, under Innocent III. man " could, withoutan charge from any human (1215). Conﬂicts arose: and in some places. as, hand, legitimately pe orm all the ofﬁces of a for instance, in Aragonia, under Alfonso II. (1194), priest, even administer the Lord's Supper (can very harsh proceedings were instituted against cere corpus Chrisli . After the example of t e them; but in other places a spirit of reconcilia seventy disci les, t e preachers were sent out two tion prevailed, not Without prospects of good re. and two.

n order to esca the notice of the sults. At the religious disputation of Pamiers priests, they used various disguises, introducin (1207), between the bishop of Osma and a num themselves as tinkers, peddlers, etc. They carrie ber of Waldenses, a certain Durandus of Huesca books with them,—parts of the Bible translated or Osca, a Waldensian, was induced to rejoin the into Romaunt, devotional treatises consistin of church, together with his friends. on the condi extracts from the Fathers, rithmi, or poetical ex ior tion that they should be allowed to retain the tations of moral import, etc. When ssible, they austere rule of life which they had adopted from gathered the faithful to service in sec uded places:

the W’aldenses. In 1209 Innocent III.
ve his if not, they visited them in the families, preach consent, and thus arose the so-called “ ‘atholic

l‘oor" ( pauperes catholici). Similar movements occurred in other laces: and, generally s leaking, the Waldenses has an aversion to the (.at ari and their heresies, which formed a bond of union

ing to them, hearing their confessions (which were made auricular, and in a kneeling position), and '

giving them absolution. . Genera ly some pen ance (melioramenlum), consisting of praven. fasts, and alms, was added to the a solution, but only in the form of advice. There were, however, congregations among the Waldenses which considered the contrition of the heart and the silent prayer to God as the only confession and penance necessary. The moral teaching was very austere; its object being to penetrate human life in all its details with the principles of Christianity, and make it holy. The whole system was based upon a radical and uncompromising distinction between good and evil: there are only two ways,—one leading to heaven, and the other to hell. The doctrine of purgatory, and all doctrines connected with it,—masses, alms, prayers for the dead, etc.,—they rejected. Certain commandments of the Gospels they enforced literally and with the utmost rigor. All swearing was forbidden. In consequence of Matt. vii. 1, "Judge not, that ye be not judged," they denied the right of civil authorities to inflict capital punishment. Any and every lie was a deadly sin. None had the right to punish those who deviated from the church; for it was in the character of the church to be persecuted, not to persecute. With respect to the saints, they taught to reverence them, and to Roman-Catholic priests, and that no kind of baptism was administered by them. The Lord's Supper to the saints, they taught to reverence them, and to the Roman-Catholic clergy. For a period of thirty years they had been visited only twice a year by Waldensian preachers from Apulia. He succeeded in leading a number of them back into the Church of Rome, but most of them remained faithful. In 1573 new persecutions were instituted by Duchess Iolanta of Savoy; and, a few years later on, Pope Innocent VIII. waged a public war upon them, sending an army of ten thousand men against them under his legate, Albert de Capitanis. Duke Philip VII. took them under his protection, and granted them some privileges; but in 1500 they were again persecuted. On the western slopes of the Cottian Alps, the Waldenses were generally confounded with the Cathari, and suffered immensely in consequence thereof. In 1335 Benedict XII. exorted the bishops of Valence and Vienna to eradicate the sect altogether. In 1380, however, a considerable number of Waldenses came from Piedmont into Provence, and settled at Cabrières, Merindol, and other places in the neighborhood. As they were excellent agriculturists, they were well received and protected by the feudal lords of the land; and, as they exterminally belonged to such a sect, they were always kept in mind's eye as an example. In 1802 the Brethren entered into negotiations with a Waldensian congregation settled in Austria; but the Roman-Catholic clergy became aware of what was going on, and frustrated all attempts at a union. More successful were the Brethren in their ad-


2472 WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.

WALDENSES.
dress to the Waldenses settled in the Mark; a union was actually effected. In 1497 a connection was established between the Brethren and the Waldenses in Piedmont. In that year two Brethren—Lucas of Prague, author of the Bohemian Catechism, and Thomas of Landskron,—were sent out, with letters of recommendation from King Wenceslaw and the Bohemian barons, to the kings and princes and authorities in Italy and France, for the purpose of investigating the state of all dissenting parties in those countries. They found Waldenses everywhere, even in Rome itself, and brought back two letters from them,—one to the king and the barons, and one to the Utraquist ministers, drawn up by Thomas de fonte cicitule. Thus, at the opening of the period of the Reformation, there were numerous Waldensian settlements on the Cottian Alps, in Naples, and in Provence around Cabrières and Merindol, besides scattered congregations in Italy, Switzerland, France, and Germany. Externally they were members of the Roman-Catholic Church, and enjoyed peace; but, as appears from the confessions of G. Morel, their internal state, religious and moral, had at that time fallen below the original standard of the party.

First Period of Literature.—The Waldenses had a literature almost from their very origin. The manuscripts of this literature are chiefly found at Geneva, Cambridge, and Dublin; though single works may also be found at Grenoble, Zurich, and Paris. Of special interest is the collection at Cambridge. It was made by Morland, who in 1658 was sent to Piedmont by Cromwell. On his return he deposited the manuscripts in the university library of Cambridge; but, shortly after, they disappeared, and they were generally considered as lost, until in 1862 they were rediscovered by Mr. Bradsaw. (See H. Bradsaw: On the Recovery of the Long-lost Waldensian Manuscripts, in the memoirs of the Cambridge Antiquarian Society, March 10, 1862, No. XVIII.; and Groome: The Long-lost Waldensian Manuscripts, in the Christian Advocate and Review, January, 1863, No. 23.) The language in which this literature is written is the Romaut, a peculiar idiom, existing only in the manuscripts of the Troubadours, on the other side of that from the Consolamentum of the Cathari, and their translation of the New Testament. As no other monuments of the Romaut idiom have come down to us, it seems to have been confined within rather narrow geographical boundaries, and every thing points to the western slopes of the Cottian Alps as its home. It is nearly identical with that employed by G. Morel, in his Mémoires; and Morel was a native of Fraissières in Dauphiné, and active as a preacher among the Waldenses of Merindol, Cabrières, and other places in Provence; but it differs considerably from that employed in the decree of the synod of Angrogne (1552), which approached very closely to the Italian. The oldest writings of the Waldenses are translations from Scripture and from the Fathers. The translation of the New Testament is complete; but of the Old only the five libri supinentia—Psalmus, Wisdom of Solomon, and Ecclesiasticus—have been translated. Of the manner in which they made extracts and translations from the Fathers, the Vergier de Consolacion, or "Garden of Comfort," is a good specimen, employing with considerable adroitness the words of the great fathers and teachers of the church for the defence of the peculiar Waldensian maxims. The remaining prose literature consists of sermons, treatises, and commentaries, of which especially that on the Canticles is of interest. Among the poetical productions the Nobla Leyzcon (from the Latin lectio, "a portion of Scripture," "an oration") occupies the most prominent place. It is an exhortation to repentance, virtue, good works, etc., carefully avoiding the false manner of quieting conscience employed by the church, and powerfully inculcating the Waldensian principles on the various fields of morality. It dates from the fifteenth century. La paire eternal is a sublime hymn of praise to the Trinity: La barca, La novell confort, etc., are chiefly of moral character. In the beginning of the sixteenth century, however, that is, between the visit of the two emissaries from the Bohemian Brethren to Piedmont in 1497, and the first communication between the Waldenses of Provence and the Swiss and German Reformers, the Waldensian literature took a new departure under Bohemian auspices. The very answers which the Waldenses sent back to King Wenceslaw and the Utraquist ministers, and still more a little original treatise on Antichrist, dating from the same time, show the great commotion which the acquaintance with the Brethren had produced among them. The Waldensian Catechism (Las interrogeticnas menors) was drawn up upon the model of the Bohemian, though containing many features of its own; and a number of treatises on the sacraments, the decalogue, purgatory, worship of the saints, fasts, etc., were translated, or adapted from the Bohemian. The influence of this whole movement was immense. The idea of a complete separation from the Roman-Catholic Church became more familiar to the Waldenses. The biblical principle, that the ordinance of Christ is sufficient to salvation without the ceremonies of the old dispensation, and without the right of modern but merely human institution, was more precisely defined. The doctrine of transubstantiation became hollow, and was dropped. The books of the Troubadours, which before were the papers of Antichrist, dating from the same time, show the great commotion which the acquaintance with the Bohemian Brethren, no less than the fundamental Waldensian principle, to study the Bible, and make it the rule of life, led the Waldenses directly to the Reformation.

Relation to the Reformation.—In 1529, the Waldenses settled on the French side of the Cottian Alps, sent George Morel and Pierre Masson (Burck calls him Pierre Lathen) to the Swiss and German Reformers to lay before them an account of the moral and religious state of the congregation, and to ask explanation of certain doubted points of doctrine and discipline. The two emissaries first visited Neuenburg, Murten, and Bern, and then Basel, where Ecolampadius was teaching, and Strassburg, where he afterwards lived. Fortunately, quite extensive documents concerning this mission have come down to us: the address of Morel to Ecolampadius, and the... answer of the latter in Sculetius. Annals, pp. 295-315; two more letters from Ecolampadius, in Ec. et Zwinglii epistolam libri IV., Basel, 1536; Martini Bucerii responsiones ad questions, etc., in the university library of Strassburg; and the Memoirs of Morel, written in Romaut, and preserved by Dublin. Morel more lately decided to convene a synod, of which, in harmony with the old Waldensian articles de la fe, professes belief in the twelve articles of the Apostle's Creed, the Trinity, and the divinity of Christ; rejects the worship of saints with their festivals and vigils, the doctrine of purgatory, holy water, fasts, and the mass; defines the sacraments as holy symbols, visible tokens of an invisible grace; and finally recommends auricular confession as something useful. To this confession were added no less than forty-seven questions: whether there were only two sacraments, or, as the Roman Catholics say, seven; whether the sacrament of Christ refers to hereditary sin only, as the Roman theologians said, or also to actual sin; which were the canonical books of the Bible; and which not; whether the allegorical interpretation of Holy Writ — one of the main supports of the Church of Rome, and hitherto much used by the Waldenses themselves — was of any use; whether of the words, of Christ, some were only meant for advice (consilia), while others were direct commandments, etc. In speaking of the sacraments which the Waldenses continued to take from the hands of the Roman-Catholic priests, it is evident that Morel never thought of a complete separation from the Church of Rome; and from several other passages it appears that the Waldenses had read the De libero arbitrio of Erasmus and the De serro arbitrio of Luther, but without arriving at any definite result. Nor was their conviction settled with respect to the new doctrine of justification by faith. On all these points the Reformers gave the two emisaries open and clear answers; and Ecolampadius specially emphasized the necessity of complete separation from the Church of Rome. On their return, Masson was seized at Dijon, and decapitated; but Morel succeeded in reaching Merindol, and laid his Memoirs before the congregation. The impression was very deep, and it was immediately decided to convene a synod, to which should be invited some of the most distinguished and most experienced preachers of Apulia and Calabria, and some of the most prominent of the Reformed theologians. The synod assembled at Chanforaus, a village in the Valley of Angrogne, Sept. 12, 1532. Farel and Saunier were present. It lasted five days. The most important of its decrees are, a Christian may swear by the name of God; no work is good but that which is commanded by God, and no work is bad but that which is forbidden by God; in the rest, Bigot's inquiry how far auricular confession is not commanded by God; a Christian is not forbidden to refrain from working on Sundays; the external word is not necessary in prayer, nor the bent knee, the bowed head, the fixed hour; laying on of hands is not necessary; the sacrifice is not bound to be eaten by all; nor is it absolutely forbidden by God to take interest; all who are saved were elected before the creation of the world; he who asserts the existence of freewill denies the predestination and grace of God, etc. The difference between these decrees and the original Waldensian faith is very striking. The instructions of Ecolampadius and Bucer are everywhere visible. The last propositions concerning predestination are, no doubt, due to Farel. Remarkable is the total absence of strictly dogmatical propositions; but already the Bohemian Brethren had noticed the aversion of the Waldenses to doctrinal expositions and formal creeds. Remarkable is also the complete silence concerning one of the most important points, at least from a practical point of view, — the separation from the Church of Rome. Probably this omission was due to a cautious regard to a minority of the synod, which was frightened by the great innovations. Representatives of that minority shortly after repaired to Bohemia, where the Reformation had produced a similar movement, and caused the formation of a corresponding minority, the so-called Pseudo-Hussite. Several letters were exchanged between Bohemia and Piedmont; but a new synod of St. Martin (1533) broke off the negotiations, and confirmed the decrees of the synod of Angrogne.

Separation from the Church of Rome, and Persecutions. — The separation from the Church of Rome was most rapidly effected among the French Waldenses. In 1535 the congregations of Provence numbered several thousand members, and presented to Francis I., their king, a confession of faith wholly reformed. But in 1540 a horrible persecution broke out: twenty-two villages were burnt down, four thousand persons were massacred, and the congregations were all but destroyed. About four thousand persons sought refuge in flight, and returned afterwards to their old abodes, but lived on in a pitiable state. In Dauphine the persecution began in 1560, but was only of short duration. On the eastern side of the Cottian Alps the Reformation was more slow in its progress, but more successful in vindicating itself. The territory which by the peace of Cressy (1544) came under French dominion was returned to Piedmont by the peace of Chateau-Cambresis (1559), and in 1564 the foundation of a new synod was agreed to. The territory which by the peace of Cavour (1556) they obtained freedom of worship within certain confines, — the valleys of St. Martin, Perosa, and Luserna. The agreement was not kept by the government; and in 1571 the Waldenses formed the so-called "Union of Valleys," by which they bound themselves to cling to the Reformed faith, and defend their religious independence. The Reformation also reached the Waldensian congregations in Calabria; and two evangelical preachers, Negrin and Pascal, went thither as missionaries. But the movement was stopped with the most inhuman cruelty. Men, women, and children were slaughtered indiscriminately at fixed terms; men were hanged on board the Spanish galleys, or sold as slaves. Pascal was burnt at the stake in Rome. Thus the valleys of Piedmont were, in fact, the only place where the Waldensian Church succeeded in maintaining itself; and it kept itself alive there for more than two centuries with admirable heroism, but under unceasing suffering. Great internal changes took place. Foreign troops brought the plague into Piedmont; and from May, 1630, to July, 1631, more than ten thousand persons, that is, more than one-half of their Waldensian inhabitants, died from it in the valley. Only two clergymen were left; one of them Gilles, minister of Gresso, and the other, the Roman-Catholic French preacher were sent for, but they did not understand the Waldensian language. The service was celebrated in French, and the Waldensian tongue became mute. Barbe ("uncle"), the original Waldensian designation of a minister, whence the derivative barbet ("poodle"), was changed for Messier ("Mister"). The Liturgy was made to conform in all respects with the French-Reformed Liturgy, and many ancient customs disappeared. The discipline was also altered. The new pastors were disinclined to submit to the control of the elders and the scrutiny of the congregations; and when, in 1689, the Duke of Savoy gave the Waldenses a choice between the mass and exile, and 500 families emigrated, the Waldenses were often stolen or taken from them by force, and they had to pay tithes to the Roman-Catholic clergy. The natural result of this suppression was, of course, not one unbroken persecution; but the intervals of peace were short, and the outbreaks of fanaticism often terrible. That of 1655 seems, indeed, not allowed to have judges, lawyers, and physicians of their own faith, nor to hold any kind of office, nor to own real estate in Roman-Catholic territories, etc. Each congregation had five trustees or directors, but the majority of the board were always Roman Catholics. Their children were often stolen or taken from them by force, in order to be educated in the Roman-Catholic faith in the monastery of Pignerol. On Roman-Catholic feast-days they were not allowed to work, and they had to pay tithes to the Roman-Catholic clergy. The natural result of this suppression was a heavy emigration. As early as 1601 the Duke of Savoy gave the Waldenses the choice between the mass and exile, and 500 families emigrated. In 1685 Amadeus II., compelled by Louis XIV., again threatened them with forced conversion or banishment; but this time they decided to stay and resist. French troops were employed against them; and, after a most heroic defence, they were compelled to surrender. Some about to a mock conversion: others went into exile. About 2,600 settled in Geneva. The great elector offered to receive 2,000. Congregations were formed in the Palatinate, in Hesse, and in Nassau. But home-sickness led many of these emigrants to return; and in August, 1689, about 800 or 900 Waldenses, headed by their pastor, Arnaud, forced their way back to their native valleys under enormous sufferings and dangers. New suppressions followed in 1698, in consequence of a new alliance with France; and Waldensian congregations were settled in Württemberg, at Grossvillars, Dürmz, and Schönberg, though under unspeakable suffering. Great interferences brought with permanent Waldensian residence. The energetic protests, how­ever, of Holland and Prussia, prevented the fatal blow from being struck; and after that time the internal and external development of the Waldensian Church has gone on smoothly, and without interruptions. In Turin a Protestant chapel was opened in the house of the Prussian embassy, and a Waldensian pastor was appointed preacher. In the valleys the Waldensian schools were greatly improved, especially by the exertions of Dr. Gilles and Col. Beckwith. At the synod of St. Jean, in April, 1839, the church-constitution was revised on the basis of the decrees of the synod of Angrogne. The highest legislative authority is the synod. It consists of all pastors in office, two laymen from each congregation (who, however, have only one vote), and all candidates of theology; but the last-mentioned have only a right to make propositions, without the right of voting. It assembled every five years; the place varying between the valleys of St. Martin, Perosa, and Luserna. Besides its legislative power, it also has the power of confirming the pastors elected by the congregations. The highest administrative authority is the Table ("board"), consisting of a moderator, who presides over the synod, a vice-moderator, a secretary, and two lay-members. The Table is appointed by the synod, and its term of office is five years. Every congregation has its own consistory, consisting of the pastor and the elders. In 1848 the prospects of the Waldensian Church became very promising. Immediately after the promulgation of the new constitution, Charles Albert issued a letters-patent, declaring the Waldenses entitled to enjoy exactly the same social and political rights as his other subjects,—to frequent the schools and universities of the State, to acquire academical honors, etc.; and at the great national festival in Turin, in honor of the new constitution, the Waldensian delegates were hailed with enthusiasm whenever they showed themselves. Since that time the persecuted church has been able to carry on propaganda, and her aspirations are not low. She wishes to be to Italy in religion what Piedmont has been in politics; and, even though the present constitution is not so very alluring, she has, at all events, given a powerful impulse to the religious reform-movements in Italy. She has established prosperous missionary stations, not only in Piedmont, but also in other parts of Italy; and she maintains a good theological school in which the valleys there are 41 Waldensian congregations, 34 missionary stations, and 150 insulated places visited by Waldensian preachers.

Second Period of Literature. — As it became of consequence to the Waldenses to prove, that, by adopting the Reformation, they had undergone no essential change, a kind of mythical view of the origin and history of their church gradually developed among them. The government wanted to expel them from their native valleys, on the plea that they had become heretics by adopting the Reformation; and they wanted to justify their resistance by protesting that they had always held the same faith, and always lived in the same valleys. But in order to throw back into antiquity the origin of their church, make the valleys of Piedmont its true cradle, and bring its doctrines before and after the Reformation into perfect harmony, it was necessary to subject their literature to certain manipulations. This was accordingly done, both in the field of doctrine and in that of history. Before the Reformation very few traces are found of an attempt to go behind Waldus, and date the foundation of the Waldensian Church back to antiquity. When the Waldenses spoke of themselves as the descendants of the primitive church, as the small flock, which, through manifold persecutions, had kept the true faith alive since the days of the apostles, this must, no doubt, be understood spiritually. Nevertheless, the myth sprang up, that the sect was formed in the time of Pope Sylvester, when the Church of Rome lost itself in worldly riches and secular business. And when George Morel openly contradicts himself by dating the foundation of the Waldensian Church, now in the twelfth century, and then again far back into antiquity, it is evident that at this time there existed an historical knowledge and a popular opinion in conflict with each other. The latter became victorious. Perrin (Histoire des Vaudois, Geneva, 1619) and Gilles (Histoire ecclesiastique des églises réformées recueillies en quelques valles de Piémont, Geneva, 1648) still date the foundation of the Waldensian Church; but the latter adds that Waldus, when he came to the valleys of Piedmont, found there a population holding exactly the same faith as he. Leger (Histoire générale des églises évangéliques des valées de Piamont ou Vaudois, Leyden, 1609) connects the Waldensian Church immediately with that of the apostles; and Brez (Histoire des Vaudois, Paris, 1796) even makes the apostle Paul the founder. With respect to doctrine, it was quite natural that the Waldenses, when they became attracted by the Reformation, should fix their attention on those points of their doctrinal system which were in harmony with the teachings of the Reformers, and overlook or forget those numerous accommodations which had made it possible for them to remain within the pale of the Roman-Catholic Church. Thus an unconscious transformation began, which finally ended in conscious fabrication. An instance of the former occurs in the Union of Valleys, written in 1571 in England by Matthews (Facts and documents of the Waldenses, Lond., 1862) and Todd (Discourses on the Prophecies relating to Antichrist, Dublin, 1840). Concerning special WALDHAUSEN, Conrad von, one of the precursors of Hus; was a native of Austria, a monk of the Augustinian order, and preached in Vienna from 1345 to 1390. In the latter year the emperor, Charles IV., appointed him pastor at Leitmeritz, whence he afterwards removed to Prague, which he left in 1393. Both in Austria and in Bohemia he produced a powerful impression by his sermons; but he was a revivalist, rather than a reformer. The dogmas and the discipline of the Church of Rome he did not attack; though he attacked the mendicant orders, and mercilessly castigated their follies and frauds. They finally lodged an accusation against him with the archbishop of Prague; but, when he was summoned before the court, no one dared to step forward, and support the accusation. See Jordan: Die Vorläufcr des Hussentumns, Leipzig, 1846. HERZOG.

WALDO, Peter. See WALDENSES.

WALKER, James, D.D., Unitarian divine; b. in Burlington, Mass., Aug. 16, 1794; d. in Cambridge, Dec. 23, 1874. He was graduated at Harvard College, 1814; studied theology; was pastor in Charlestown, 1818-30; Alford Professor of moral and intellectual philosophy in Harvard College, 1839-53; and president, 1853-59, distinguishing himself in each position. He issued Twenty-five Sermons, Boston, 1861; Memoir of Hon. Daniel Appleton White, 1863; Memoir of Josiah Quincy, 1867; and edited Stewart's Active and Moral Powers, 1849, and Reid's Intellectual Powers, 1850. See the posthumous volume of his sermons,—Reason, Faith, and Duty, Sermons preached chiefly in the College Chapel, 1876.

WALL, William, D.D., English divine; b. 1646; d. at Shoreham, 1728, where he had been vicar since 1678. He is famous by reason of his History of Infant Baptism, London, 1705, 2 vols.; reed. 1726. In 1711 John Gare, a learned Baptist minister, issued his Reflections on Mr. Wall's History: to it Wall replied in his Defence of the History, 1720. The three are now commonly printed together; best ed. by Henry Cotton, Oxford, 1836, 4 vols.; new ed., 1892, 2 vols.

WALLAFRID STRABO. See STRABO.

WALLER, Edmund, b. at Coleshill, Hertfordshire, July 5, 1676; d. at Eton, Oct. 21, 1687; was educated at Eton and Cambridge; in Parliament much of the time from 1625 to his death; on both sides during the civil war, and banished for some years; wrote in honor of Cromwell, 1654, and of Charles II., 1660; published volumes, 1645, 1664, etc. His Works in Verse and Prose have been often reprinted, and much admired. His few Divine Poems have enough life, or semblance of life, to justify mention here.

WALLIN, Benjamin, b. in London, 1711; and d. there Feb. 19, 1782. In 1741 he succeeded his father in a Baptist pastorate at Maze Pond, which he held till death. He published several volumes of sermons, Memoirs of a Gentleman, 1774, and a hundred and three Evangelical Hymns and Songs, 1756. Three of these were altered by Toplady in 1776, and have been considerably used. P. M. Bird.

WALLIS, John, D.D., F.R.S., English divine and mathematician; b. at Ashford, Kent, Nov. 28, 1616; d. at Oxford, Oct. 28, 1703. He was educated at Cambridge, where he was for a time fellow of Queen's College. He took holy orders, 1640; in 1644 was secretary to the Westminster Assembly, and pastor in London. In 1648 he became Savilian professor of geometry in Oxford; D.D., 1654; keeper of the archives at Oxford, 1658; was confirmed in his offices, and made one of the royal chaplains at the Restoration; member of the Royal Society, 1662. Besides mathematical works which prove him to have been one of the greatest mathematicians of his day, he published A brief and easy explanation of the Shorter Catechism, presented by the Assembly of Divines at Westminster to both Houses of Parliament, and by them approved, London, 9th ed., 1662; The doctrine of the blessed Trinity briefly explained in a letter to a friend, 1800 (followed by seven other letters on the same subject, these were republished by T. Flintoff, 1840); A defence of the Christian Sabbath, Oxford, 1892; Theological Discourses, London, 1692; Memoirs of the Life of Dr. John Wallis, 1791. The last volume contains a memoir by De Coetlogon.

WALLON CHURCH. See Holland, p. 1004.

WALPURGIS, or WALPURGA, St., a sister of St. Wunnebald and St. Willibald; was a native of England, and went to Germany at the instance of Boniface. She worked as a missionary in Thuringia, and became afterwards abbess of Heidenheim in the diocese of Eichstadt. She died in 776 or 778. Her arrival in Germany is commemorated on Aug. 4; her death, on Feb. 25; and her canonization, on May 1. Her legend is rather meagre, but so much the richer are the traditions. See Act. Sanc., Feb. 25. On Walpurgis Night, May 1, the witches met.

WALSH, Thomas, Methodist, b. at Ballylin, near Limerick, Ireland, 1730; d. in Dublin, April 8, 1759. Brought up in the Roman-Catholic faith, he renounced that creed, and joined the Established Church in his eighteenth year, and two years later commenced itinerating as a Methodist preacher. He met with great success, but also persecution from Roman Catholics and Protestants alike. In 1753 he came to London on Wesley's call, and there began to study Hebrew and Greek so diligently that he won the enthusiastic admiration of Wesley, who pronounced him the best Bible student he knew. But he became chagrined by his incessant toils, and died at an early age. See his Life, by Morgan, London, 1762, New York,
WALTER OF ST. VICTOR. 2478

1843, republished by T. Jackson, Early Methodist Preachers, vol. iii.

WALTER OF ST. VICTOR, prior of the monastery of St. Victor, a pupil of the celebrated Hugo of St. Victor; d. 1180. He left a work, of which large extracts have been printed in Bulevs: Hist. Erir. Pars, T. ii. pp. 391, 402, 562, and 629, and which is generally named, after the words with which it begins, Contra quatuor labyrinthus (Abelard, Petrus Lombardus, Petrus Pictavinus, and Gilbertus Porretanus). The work is a violent but often striking criticism of the prevailing scholasticism, based on the just observation, that dialectics can decide only about formal truth (the correct transition from premises to conclusion), but not about material truth, the correctness of the premises. The author, however, is far from the lofty mysticism of his teacher. When the question arises, How the correct premises are to be found, he at once sinks down to the reigning church. He is often mistaken for Walter of Mauritiania, who taught rhetoric in Paris, was appointed bishop of Laon in 1155, d. in 1174, and wrote against Abelard’s conception of the Holy Trinity.

C. SCHMIDT.

WALther von der Vogelweide.

Among the great German poets of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, who created the first classic period of German literature, Walther von der Vogelweide takes the highest rank as a lyric poet. Not only has he become immortal by his songs of love and spring, which have almost no equal in German literature, but by the power of his verses he has also a great political significance; and the strength of his language against Pope and Church makes him even a forerunner of the Reformation.

We do not know when and where he was born; although his birth falls not long before 1170, as his death can hardly have occurred long after 1230. The principal events of his life we must trace from his poems. At the end of the twelfth century we find him at the court of Austria, the scene of a bright, joyful life, and the home of poets and minstrels of all kinds; and it is probable that most of his beautiful “minnesongs” were produced at that time. But soon with the rise of political troubles in Germany, we find him passionately engaged in politics, taking the part of the different emperors who followed each other at short intervals. And now it is that he becomes the creator of that political poetry which had so great an influence upon the minds of his contemporaries. His clear eye detected the real source of the whole political misery of Germany in the destructive influence of Rome; and therefore he uses all the power of his art and satire against the Pope and his priests, “turning thousands from their duty to Rome,” as a contemporary, Thoma sin, says in his Waelsche Gast. The language of these verses may justly be compared to Luther’s early writings. Here is one of these poems in prose, translated by Bayard Taylor:

“Ye bishops and ye noble priests, you are misled. See how the Devil entangles you in the Devil’s net! If you say to me that he has the keys of St. Peter, then you have forgotten that St. Peter, the fisherman, was a teacher of St. Peter, the fisherman; howbeit the keys are from the Bible. By our baptism it is forbidden to us that God’s sacraments should be bought or sold. But now let him add that in his black book, which the devil gave him, and take his tune from Hell’s pipe, ye cardinals, ye root your choirs well; but our old holy altar stands exposed to evil weather.”

It is very probable that Walther joined the crusade of Frederick II. in 1228, and that he died shortly afterward in Würzburg.

Walther belonged to the poorer of German noblemen, his life, however, shows his gentle birth; but he was one of the better class of minstrels, who went from castle to castle singing to the accompaniment of some musical instrument. He passed the greater part of his life in poverty, and it is touching to hear his joy when finally presented with an estate by Frederick II. It is the picture of a true and great poet which Walther has left to us in his songs. Love, nature, religion, and politics are his principal themes; and here he shows a purity, depth, and richness of feeling, which are equal only to his independent character. Although firm in his religious, political, and moral convictions, he objects slop to the new men of real religious tolerance in the middle age. In this respect respecting the great Emperor Frederick II., he may be called a prophet of the modern spirit as well as a true representative of his age.

The best of the numerous editions of Walther’s poems is that of K. Lachmann, Berlin, 1827, and often since: a more popular one is that of F. Pfeifer, in his German Classics of Middle Ages, translated into modern German by Simrock. [W. Grimm’s theory, that Walther is also the author of the didactic poem Fröndke’s Beschendeinheit, adopted by W. Wackernagel, has been abandoned. Cf. W. Lachmann: Leben Walther’s d. Vogelweide, Bonn, 1858; Volkel: Walther v. d. Vogelweide in seiner Stellung zu Kaiserum u. Hierarchie, Gütersloh, 1877, pp. 35.]

W. Wackernagel (Dr. J. Goebel).

WALTON, Brian, D.D., b. at Seymour, Yorkshire, 1600; d. in London, Nov. 29, 1661. He was graduated M.A. at Cambridge, 1623; curate and also schoolmaster in Suffolk; in 1626 rector of St. Martin’s Orgar, London, to which he was joined in 1636 the rectorship of Sandon, Essex, at which time he was chaplain to the king, and prebend of St. Paul’s; in 1639 he was made D.D. (his thesis was, the Pope not infallible judge in matters of faith); in 1640 he was joined of both reversion, was persecuted for his loyalty, fled to Oxford, and there formed the design of the great Polyglot, by which he immortalized himself. After the surrender of Oxford (1646), he went to London with the materials he had collected, and in 1652 published his prospectus to the Polyglot. Subscriptions were placed at ten pounds a set; the six volumes appeared 1654—57. (For particulars, see Polyglot Bibles.) As a help to the student of his Polyglot, he published, London, 1655, Introductio ad Lect. Orient., republished, Deventer, 1655 and 1658. Owen thought the Polyglot, especially the Prolegomena, contained things injurious to Christian liberty. To him he addressed himself in his Considerator Considered, London, 1860. Walton’s Polyglot is the first book in England published by subscription. Walton was at the Restoration made chaplain to the king, and on Dec. 2, 1660, was consecrated, in Westminster Abbey, bishop of Lincoln. He died Oct. 19, 1690, by Todd, London, 1821, 2 vols. The second volume is a reprint of the Considerator Considered.

WANDELBERT, St., b. in 813; d. in 870. He entered early the monastery of Prüm, near Echternach, in the Eifel Mountains, and was afterwards made director of the cloistral school, which he brought to a very flourishing condition. He also developed a great literary activity; but only two of his works have come down to us.—Vita et Miracula S. Goar, first printed at Mayence, 1498, then by Sarius and Mabilon, in Act. Sanct., July 6, and Manentologum, written in verse, on the basis of the martyrologies of Jerome, Beda, and Florus, and printed first among the works of Beda in 1538, then by D'Achery, in his Spec. et Script. V.

WANDERING IN THE WILDERNESS. See WILDERNESS OF THE WANDERING.

WANDERING JEW. See JEW, WANDERING.

WAR. Though war most certainly is an evil, it may be considered from various points of view. Looking solely at the suffering and loss it entails, the temptations it offers, the passions it awakens, and the habits it engenders, it is not unnatural that some Christian writers, such as the Quakers, etc., should feel themselves justifiably in absolutely condemning it. The view is, nevertheless, one-sided; and the application of Jesus' words in the Sermon on the Mount (Matt. v. 39), as a biblical support of it, is false. It is all very well that in the kingdom of heaven there shall be no war, and that the development of the divine scheme of salvation points directly to the abolition of war; but the future cannot be anticipated, and the tribulations of the present a Christian has to bear with patience (Rom. xii. 12). In the Old Testament we meet with quite another reason why this view should be considered valid only under the old dispensation. The New Testament nowhere rejects war unconditionally. John the Baptist does not demand of the soldiers (Luke iii. 14), nor Jesus of the centurion of Capernaum (Matt. viii. 5), nor Peter of Cornelius (Acts x.), that they shall abandon their profession. Since God has given the sword to the powers to punish any one that does evil (Rom. xiii.; 1 Pet. ii.), there is a right of war; for it is as much a duty to defend the State against external as against internal aggressors. And it is from this point of view that Luther, in his celebrated treatise De Kriegsteute auch in seligem Stande sein können, defines war for the sake of war as sin, but war for the sake of the defense, as duty.

The first Christians abhorred war, partly on account of a misinterpretation of the words of Jesus to Peter, "For all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword" (Matt. xxvi. 52), partly because military service brought them in contact with many idolatrous rites, and the State in general seemed to them an expression of the godlessness of the world and its hostility to Christ. In this spirit Tertullian treated the subject (De idol., 19; De corona militis, 11). Nevertheless, in spite of the reigning aversion, many Christians served in the Roman army, as may also be seen from the writings of Augustine (Apolog., 42; Ad Scap., 4); and when, under the reign of Constantine, the relations between church and 'State' became one of intimate friendship and alliance, the objections of the Christians to war gradually were silenced. Augustine, who maintained intimate personal and epistolary intercourse with many distinguished statesmen, such as Marcellinus and Bonifacius, considered war a social benefit, and military service an employment of a talent agreeable to God (Ep. 207 ad Bonif., and Ep. 135 ad Marc.). In his look against Faustus (lib. 22, cap. 74) he explains, Quistam precent ("What is there bad in war?") Later on, when it became the great task of the Church to convert the Germanic tribes, she was compelled to take the very code of war in hand: and she was compelled, to mitigate its horrors and cruelties by the "truce of God," the sanctity of sacred places, etc. Finally she became herself an instigator of war: from her issued that enthusiasm which sent the Crusaders to the Holy Land. Nor is the attitude which Luther assumed with respect to the Peasants' War and the war against the Turks, different in principle from that which the Roman-Catholic Church originally assumed with respect to the Crusades.

In the ancient church the clergy were absolutely forbidden to participate in war. During the middle ages it was not rare to find great generals among the bishops; such as Christian of Mayence, Abalson of Rockilde, and others. In modern times the question has been raised by the State, and has given occasion to some elaborate researches. See the "Ethics," of Harless, Rothe, Martensen, and others.

Karl Burger.

WAR, Hebrew Methods in. See ARMY.

WARBURTON, William, D.D., Bishop of Gloucester; one of the most learned and prolific prelates of the Church of England; b. at Newark-upon-Trent, Nottinghamshire, Dec. 24, 1698; d. at Gloucester, June 7, 1779. His father was an attorney, and educated him for the law, which he practised from 1719 to 1723; but theology had always been his passion, and therefore he was ordained deacon, 1725, and priest, 1726. His first charge was at Gresley, Nottinghamshire, 1726 to 1728, thence he passed to Brunt-Broughton, Lincolnshire, and there remained until 1746. In the retirement of country life he prosecuted his studies with great diligence, and wrote those works which have perpetuated his memory. The first of these was The Alliance between Church and State, or the necessity and equity of an established religion and a test law demonstrated, from the essence and end of civil society upon the fundamental principles of the laws of nature and nations, 1736, in which, while taking high ground, as the title indicates, he yet maintains that the State Church should tolerate those who differed from it in doctrine and worship. In quick succession came his great work, and one of the great works in English theology,—The Divine Legation of Moses, demonstrated on the principles of a religious duty, from the omission of the doctrine of a future state of rewards and punishments in the Jewish dispensation. Books 1., ii., iii., iv., v., vi., vii., viii., never appeared; book ix. was first published in his Works, 1758, 10th ed. of the entire work, ed. by James Nichols, 1846, 3 vols. The work raised a storm; and Warburton published a reply, Remarks on several occasional refutations of his Deism, 1748. This pamphlet cannot be understood without reference to the deistic controversy which produced it. (See DEISM, INFIDELITY.) The Deists turned their attacks particularly upon the Old Testament, and tried to make a case by alleging the absence of any express statement respecting immortality. Warburton turns the tables upon them by constructing, out of the very absence of such statements, a proof of the divinity of the Mosaic legislation.
The first three books deal with the necessity of the doctrine of a future state of rewards and punishments to civil society from, (1) the nature of the thing, (2) the conduct of the ancient lawgivers and founders of civil policy, and (3) the opinions and conduct of the ancient sages and philosophers.
The fourth book proves the high antiquity of the arts and empire of Egypt, and that such high antiquity illustrates and confirms the truth of the Mosaic history. The fifth book explains the nature of the Jewish theocracy, and proves that the doctrine of a future state is not in,
but makes part of, the Mosaic dispensation.
In the sixth book Warburton examines all the texts brought from the Old and New Testaments to prove a future state of rewards and punishments did make part of the Mosaic dispensation. The ninth book treats of the true nature and genius of the religion of the Jews is briefly this: the Deists said the Jewish religion could lay no claim to divinity, because its sacred books said nothing respecting a future state of rewards and punishments; but for that very reason, Warburton replied, must it be divine, since it did really accomplish the punishment of wrong-doers without such a doctrine, and no other legislation has been able to do so without it. In answer to the question, How could it do this? he re plied, Because the foundation and support of the Mosaic legislation was the theocracy which was peculiar to the Jews, and which dealt out in this life righteous rewards and punishments upon individual and nation. An extraordinary providence conducted the affairs of this people, and consequently the sending of Moses was divinely ordered.
The work is confessedly limited to one line of argument, is defective in exegesis, and does not do justice to the intimations of immortality among the Jews; yet it is brilliant and vigorous, masterly argumentation, and bold imagination. The excursus are particularly admirable; e.g., the hieroglyphs and picture-writing
"The great proof of the discernment of Warburton was his dim second-sight of the modern dis-covetvrs in hieroglyphics." — Denh Milman], the mysteries, the origin of Book of Job (which he calls "an allegorical poem written after the return from Babylon ").
Warburton was a man of uniting energy, wide information, clear insight, and lively fancy. He had a noble, open, guileless heart; yet he was capable of intolerance and unfairness. As a critic he was sharp, and often satirical, resembling Bentley. He was comparatively slow in receiving pre-ferments and honors, although he attracted such great notice. In 1738 he was made chaplain to the Prince of Wales; in 1746, preacher to Linoc's Inn; in 1754, chaplain to the king; in 1755, prebendary of Dunmow and D.D.; in 1754, dean of Bristol; and, in 1760, bishop of Gloucester.
His writings during this period embrace A Vin-dication of Mr. Pope's Essay on Man, 1739, and a Commentary upon the essay, 1742 (by these writings he won Pope's firm friendship); Julian, 1750 (a proof of the numerous providential inferences which defeated Julian's attempt to rebuild the temple); The Doctrine of Grace, or the office and operations of the Holy Spirit vindicated from the inults of infidelity and the abuses of fanaticism, 1762, 2 vols. (a work directed against the Methodists, which did not advance his reputation). His Works were edited by Bishop Hurd, 1788, 7 vols.
(the expense was borne by Warburton's widow), new ed., 1811, 12 vols. [Supplementary to this eedition are the Tracts by Warburton and a Warburtonian, 1799; Letters, Kidderminster, 1808, 2d ed.
Lond., 1809; Selection from the Unpublished Papers of Warburton, Lond., 1841. Bishop Warburton's life was first written by Bishop Hurd, 1794, enlarged edition by F. Kilvert, 1860, but best by J. S. Watson, 1863. Compare the art. on Warbur-2569-2573; and Leslie Stephen's Hist. of Eng.
Thought, chap. vii.] THEODOR CHRISTLIEB

WARBURTONIAN LECTURE was founded by Bishop Warburton in 1768, by the gift of five hundred pounds, for the purpose of proving "the truth of revealed religion in general, and of the Christian, in particular from the complete text of the prophecies of the Old and New Testaments, which relate to the Christian Church, and especially to the apostasy of Papal Rome." The lectures were to be given at Lincoln's Inn, London, upon three Sundays of each year. See lists in DARLINGTON'S Cyclopedia Bibliographica, and Bohn's edition of Lowes's. Of recent lectures may be mentioned the STANLEY LEATHER'S Old Testament Prophecy, its witness as a record of divine foreknowledge, 1880, and EDERSHEIM'S Witness of Hist. to Messiah, 1885.
WARDEN is the name sometimes given to the head of some English colleges, and also to the superior of the chapter in some conventual churches.

WARDLAW. Ralph, D.D., a prominent Scottish divee; b. at Dalkeith, Dec. 29, 1779; d. at Glasgow, Dec. 17, 1853. By birth and education a Presbyterian, he adopted Congregational views before ordination. Educated at Glasgow university, he was appointed minister of George Street Congregational Church (afterwards removed to George Street), which he held for over fifty years. Professor of theology in the Glasgow Theological Academy from 1811 for some forty years.
A good scholar, polished gentleman, and devout Christian; an expository preacher, keen in logic, courteous to opponents, rather diffuse in style, an admirable elocutionist; gathered a large and influential congregation, and was for a long time a leader in the Congregational churches in Scotland. He published largely; his chief works being A Selection of Hymns, 1803, with supplement, 1817 (twelve of his own composition are included these have since been extensively used); Discourses on the Principal Points of the Socinian Contrroversey, 1814; Unitarianism Incapable of Vindication, 1816;
Expository Lectures on the Book of Ecclesiastes, 1821; Dissertation on Infant Baptism, 1825; Two Essays on the Assurance of Faith and on the Extent of the Apostasy from the Christian Religion, 1826;
The Sabbath, 1828; Civil Establishments of Christianity tried by the Word of God, 1832; Christian Ethics, 1833; Congregational Independence, 1848; Essay on the Miracles, 1852; and many occasional discourses. Dr. Wardlaw was a powerful speaker.
on the platform, and took part in many public movements, especially in the anti-slavery controversy and the formation of the Evangelical Alliance in 1846. His System of Theology, 1855-57, 3 vols., and Lectures upon Proverbs (1861, 3 vols.), Romans (1861, 3 vols.), Zechariah (1892), and Jeremiah (1892), have been published after his death, and a Memoir by Rev. W. L. Alexander, D.D. (1856).

F. H. MARLING.

WARE, Henry, D.D., b. at Sherburn, Mass., April 1, 1784; d. at Cambridge, July 12, 1845. He was graduated from Harvard College in 1785; and from Oct. 24, 1787, until 1805, was pastor of the First Church, Hingham, Mass.; was Hollis Professor of divinity in Harvard College, 1805-16, and then in the divinity school, which was that year organized, until, in 1840, loss of sight compelled his resignation. "His election to the Hollis Professorship was the occasion of a memorable controversy. Mr. Ware, his predecessor, had always been regarded as a Trinitarian and a moderate Calvinist; but Mr. Ware was understood to be a decided Arminian and a Unitarian. Vigorous efforts were made to prevent the nomination, when submitted to the overseers, from being confirmed; but it was confirmed by a vote of thirty-three to twenty-three. The 'orthodox' clergy generally were greatly dissatisfied with the result, and Dr. [Eliphalet] Pearson, who had been both a professor and a fellow in the college, next year resigned both these offices, giving as a reason that he considered it a capital offense to introduce the writings of the Reformers, and to translate the Bible into the vernacular, - at best a work of superfluity. He listened to the Holy Maid of Kent (Elizabth Barton), but he persecuted the "heretics" without mercy. See the numerous works upon the English Reformation.

C. SCHOLL.

WASHBURN, Edward Abel, D.D., b. in Boston, Mass., April 16, 1819; d. in New York, Feb. 2, 1881. Dr. Washburn was for nearly forty years a clergyman in the Episcopal Church, of which, in the latter years of his life, he was one of the prominent leaders. Grandson of Gen. Washburn of Massachusetts, and son of a well-known Boston merchant, he passed the early part of his life in the study of literature and philosophy, and, graduating from Harvard College in the year 1838, he entered the Congregational ministry after a year's study in each of the seminaries of Andover and New Haven. He soon found, however, that he could not be satisfied with this communion, and after a short pastorate he entered the Episcopal Church, being ordained to preach in Boston in 1845. From this time, until 1851, he was rector of St. Paul's, Newport; and then he left the foundation of his wide scholarship and learning by constant study. For two years after this time he journeyed in the East, visiting Egypt, Palestine, India, and China, and on his return succeeded Dr. Coxe as rector of St. John's, Hartford. In the same year he was married to Miss H. Lindsly, daughter of Dr. Lindley of Washington. In 1860 he received the degree of doctor of divinity from Trinity College. Two years later he accepted the charge of St. Mark's, Philadelphia, whence, in 1865, he was called to Calvary Church, New York, where for sixteen years he worked with unceasing toil, although contending, in the latter years of his life, with an incurable illness. Dr. Washburn's breadth of mind, and deep love of truth, were united with such power of eloquence, that he was for many years a recognized leader in his church. As a Churchman he belonged neither to the high nor low parties, but advocated most earnestly the position of the New School of Broad Churchmen. His literary works were mainly formed of scattered articles; such as the essays read before the General Conference of the Evangelical Alliance in New York, 1873, on Reason and Faith, and before the Conference in Basel, 1879, on Socialism; essays published about the same time, in different reviews, of which the best known is his review on the Conflict between Religion and Science; and contributions to Dr. Schaff's edition of Lange's Commentaries. He took, also, an active part in the revision of the New Testament, being one of the American Committee. With the exception of a few short articles and poems, his busy life permitted him to publish but one volume, The Social Law of God (1875), a series of sermons on the Ten Commandments, which quickly passed through five editions. After his death another volume of selected sermons was published in 1882; and a third volume of sermons and lectures were in 1888 collected and published by the clerical club of which he was a member. Dr. Washburn was in many respects a remarkable man. The power and influence he possessed in and outside of his own church were due partly to his great abilities as a scholar,—for he was both philosopher, historian, and linguist,—and partly to his eloquence as a preacher; but much of this came also from his character. A close reasoner, and an able defender of his own views, he was at the same time as honest, and free from bigotry, as he was strong and intrepid. His abhorrence of cant, his warmth of heart, and his purity of soul, made him one not only to be admired, but also one to be loved and cultivated as a friend. He took a deep interest in philosophical questions, but he made them subservient to his practical work and the vital problems of Church and State.

E. W. HOPKINS.

WATCH-NIGHT. The Watch-Night is kept by Methodists at the eve of the year; the time until midnight being spent in devotional exercises. The custom of holding night-meetings during the week started among them in Bristol, Eng.; but Wesley brought it into general use. At first they were frequent, but now are restricted to one evening of the year.

WATER, Holy. See Holy Water.

WATER OF JEALOUSY. See Jealousy.

WATERLAND, Daniel, D.D. b. at Waseley, Lincolnshire, Eng., Feb. 14, 1803; d. in London, Dec. 23, 1740. He was educated at Cambridge, fellow of Magdalene College (1704), chaplain in ordinary to George I. (1714), vicar of Twickenham, and archdeacon of Middlesex (1730). He is renowned as the bold defender of the Church doctrine, especially of the Athanasian Creed, and the being of God, and defended the Athanasian Creed in his Critical History of the creed, 1724. He wrote, also, A Review of the Doctrine of the Eucharist as laid down in Scripture and Antiquity (1737), against Hoadley's Zwinglian, and Johnson's and Brett's Romanizing. Waterland always wrote without bitterness or heat, and therefore was a model controversialist. His Works appeared in a complete edition, Oxford, 1823-28, new ed., 1845, 6 vols., prefaced by a Life by Bishop Van Mildert.

THEODOR CHRISTLIES.

WATSON, Richard, Bishop of Llandaff, both chemist and theologian; b. at Heversham, Westmoreland, August, 1782; d. at Calgarth Park, Westmoreland, July 4, 1816. He was successively fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, Oct. 1, 1780; professor of chemistry, Nov. 19, 1784 (when, according to his own confession, he had never read a syllable on the subject, or seen a single experimen; he taught it only from his memory); he was a son of a clergyman, and was at once an informed and excellent teacher; regius professor of divinity, Nov. 14, 1771 (in the seven days previous he took the degrees of bachelor and doctor of theology, and for a second time assumed to teach a subject he confessedly had never studied; his theology, he says, was purely biblical, he cared nothing about "systems"), and rector of Somersham, 1771; prebendary of Ely, 1774; archdeacon of Ely, and rector of Northwold in Norfolk, 1780; bishop of Llandaff, July 26, 1782. He retired from public life, in which he had prominently figured for many years, in 1786, and, retaining his bishopric, spent the rest of his life chiefly in agricultural pursuits. He was rather versatile than deep, yet deserves mention for his two apologetic writings in the form of letters, Apologeticus (1776), addressed to Edward Gibbon, and Apologeticus (1780), addressed to Thomas Paine; and for his very valuable Collection of Theological Tracts, 1785, 6 vols., 2d ed., 1791. See list in Darling. See his autobiography, Anecdotes of the Life of Richard Watson, published by his son, 1817, 2 vols., 2d ed., 1818.

WATSON, Richard, one of the most eminent Methodists; secretary of the Wesleyan Missionary Society; b. at Barton-upon-Humber, Lincolnshire, Feb. 22, 1781; d. in London, Jan. 8, 1833. He received no schooling after his fourteenth year, but at fifteen commenced to preach as a Methodist itinerant. Accused unjustly of Arianism, he joined the Methodist New Connection, 1801, but in 1812 was received back into the Wesleyan body, and the next year zealously labored in the organization of their missionary society, and was one of the secretaries from 1816 to 1830. He also took an active part in the anti slavery movement, and lived to see the preparation for the emancipation of all slaves in the British Colonies. He was a man of restless activity, versatility, conscientiousness, and practical skill. He represents the more thoughtful and moderate form of Methodism, and by his works won and has maintained an honored place among English theologians. His writings embrace A Defence of the Wesleyan Methodist Missions in the West Indies, 1817 (a work which did much to reveal the misery of slavery in the West Indies, and lead to its abolition); Conversations for the Young, 1830 (a good help for young people reading the Bible); Life of John Wesley, 1831 (written by request of congregations). Watts himself did not prepare themselves for their profession ("though not the legal, it has been the moral and scientific standard of Methodism"); Sermons and Sketches of Sermons, 1834, 3 vols., reprinted, N.Y., 1843. Watson's Life was written by Rev. Thomas Jackson, in the first volume of the collected edition of his works, 1834–37, 13 vols., 7th ed., 1837–58. [An Analysis of the Institutes was prepared by Dr. McClintock in 1812, bound with new edition of the work (N.Y., 1850, 2 vols.), and revised by James A. Bastow; published separately, London, 1870.]

THEODOR CHRISTLIEB.

Watson, Thomas, eminent nonconformist divine; d. in Essex about 1689. He was educated at Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and was rector of St. Stephen's, Walbrook, London, 1646; ejected for nonconformity in 1662; preached at Crosby Hall in 1672, but retired after a few years. He was an admired preacher; and one of his sermons, Heaven taken by Storm (often reprinted), was honored by the conversion of Col. Gardiner (cf. Doddridge, Life of Col. Gardiner). He published Three Treatises,—(1) The Christian's Charter, (2) The Art of Divine Contentment, (3) A Discourse on Meditation, London, 8th ed., 1699; A Body of Practical Divinity (Dr. Chauway's) by and with two Catechisms, and the Assembly's Catechism, 1692, last ed., New York, 1871. His Select Works, in which the above and other sermons are contained, appeared in London, 1821, and in New York, 1855.

WATTS, Isaac, the best-known of all English hymn-writers: b. at Southampton, July 17, 1674; d. at Abney Park, Nov. 25, 1748. The son of a zealous nonconformist boarding-school master, he was educated in the little dissenting academy at Newington, near London; studied theology; and in 1695 was chosen assistant minister to the independent congregation (Dr. Chauntry's) of Mark Lane, London; in 1702 became pastor, and held the position nominally until his death, although in 1712 he was compelled by ill health to retire from active service. In the latter year he was invited by Sir Thomas Abney to spend a week at Abney Park, near London, but remained for three years, and was the honored and beloved guest. He never married. In height he was little more than five feet.

At the age of seven he showed poetical talent; but his first volume (Hora Lyrica) did not appear until 1706. It was a promise rather than a performance of excellence. In the next year came his Hymns and Spiritual Songs. His hymns opened a new path: they were without precedent or rival. By them he has won the epithet "the inventor of English hymns" (Montgomery, Christian Psalmist, i. 695). Previous writers had, indeed, written hymns in public worship: he introduced hymns. There is now not a hymn-book published in any denomination which does not contain some of his; and although in some respects excelled by other hymnists, he has been equalled by none in depth of feeling, or in warmth, strength, and simplicity of expression. Yet his hymns are by no means faultless. Ofttimes they are defective in form and contents, prosaic, and carelessly rhymed, or not at all. It should be said, however, that these faults were not so offensive to his day as to ours, and also that "poetical license" allows many imperfect rhymes. Next came The Psalms of David Illustrated in the Language of the New Testament, 1719. Watts considered this his most important work, and indeed it effected the reformation of English psalmody. One noticeable feature of his psalms is their evangelical character. The title exactly describes the work. He never hesitates to read into the Hebrew psalms their New-Testament exegesis. He substitutes everywhere gospel for law. Does the Psalmist speak of sacrifices of bullocks and oxen, he introduces the sacrifice of Christ: does the Psalmist speak of fear, he of faith and love. But this peculiarity was no fault to his audience. With astonishing rapidity his psalms were taken up; and now they are well-nigh universally used, and have had a blessed effect in deepening spirituality, and propagating the Christian religion. In 1729 appeared his excellent Divine and Moral Songs for the Use of Children,— a book of such a noble, genuine, childlike simplicity, that it remains the favorite of its kind among English youth, and has yearly a large sale.

But Watts was more than a hymn-writer. He wrote upon logic, astronomy, geography, English grammar, pedagogics, and ethics. His Logic, or the Right Use of Reason, although now superseded, was used in the academies of Dissenters and in the universities of the Established Church. His Improvement of the Mind: Philosophical Essays (clear proof that metaphysical speculation was not his forte); *First Principles of Geography and Astronomy: and his very characteristic *Religious Juveniles, or Miscellaneous Thoughts in Prose and Verse,—have been widely useful. In 1728 he published his Discourse on Instruction by Catechism, with two Catechisms, and the Assembly's Catechism explained. Watts was considered one of the best preachers of his time. He published three volumes of discourses, 1721, 1726, 1727. The charge of Arianism brought against him is apparently unfounded. He has a monument in the cemetery of Abney Park, where he lies buried, and also in Westminster Abbey [a statue at Southampton (1881), and a memorial hall there (1875)].

His Works were published in London, 1810, 9 vols., and 1812, 9 vols. [additional volumes published in 1812. His Life has been written by Samuel Johnson, Rev. Thomas Milner, Robert Southey, Rev. Samuel Palmer, and Dr. Gibbons.]

THOEDOR CHRISTLIEB.
WAUGH, Beverly, D.D., Bishop of the Methodist-Episcopal Church; b. in Fairfax County, Va., Oct. 25, 1789; d. in Baltimore, Feb. 9, 1858. After a business career of a few years in 1806, he entered the Baltimore Conference, and in 1830 was constituted a bishop.

WAYLAND, Francis, b. in New York, March 11, 1796; d. at Providence, R.I., Sept. 30, 1865; was son of Rev. Francis Wayland; graduated at Union College in 1813; studied medicine, and began practice; was converted, and joined the Baptist Church in 1819; studied at Andover Theological Seminary in 1818 and 1819; was tutor in Union College, 1817-21; pastor of First Baptist Church in Providence, R.I., 1829-36; made professor in Union College in 1826; president of Brown University, 1827-56; degree of LL.D. from Harvard University, 1827-55; received degree of D.D. from Union College in 1827, and from Harvard College in 1852, and degree of LL.D. from Harvard College in 1852.

He is most widely remembered as a college officer. With Arnold of Rugby, and with his own instructors,—Nott of Union, and Stuart of Andover,—he ranks as one of the great teachers of the century. And his influence as an educator went beyond his own lecture-room. The text-books which he prepared for the use of his own classes soon came into general use. In the re-organization, brought about by him, of the courses of study in Brown University, he did much to reform the general system of college education. He was a leader in the organization of the system of public schools in the city of Providence, throughout the State of Rhode Island, and elsewhere. He was one of the founders and the first president of the American Institute of Instruction, for many years presiding over and taking an active part in its deliberations. He did much to secure the founding of free public libraries. Through many publications and addresses, and by extended treatises, he aroused and directed the educational spirit in the country at large.

Eminent as an educator, Dr. Wayland stands hardly less distinguished as a preacher. Some of his sermons, for example, his sermon "The Moral Dignity of the Missionary Enterprise," are prominent in the annals of the American pulpit. His "University Sermons" and other volumes of discourses have been widely read. His Bible-class in the university became widely known; and his preaching was not merely faithful official exhortation, it was the outburst of an earnest desire for the salvation of souls. It was his constant custom to talk individually with his students regarding their spiritual state, and to pray with them singly. In 1857-58, having retired from the college presidency, he acted for more than a year as pastor of the First Baptist Church in Providence, not only preaching each Sunday, but going, in pastoral visiting, from house to house to every family in the congregation, urging his hearers in person to become followers of Christ. He often preached to the inmates of prisons and other public institutions. In all his course of public service, he never ceased to be an earnest and effective preacher of the gospel.

His union of great mental power with strong common sense made him a wise counsellor and trusted guide. In the religious enterprises, both of his own ecclesiastical connection and of united Christian bodies, he was looked up to as an adviser and leader. As a citizen, also, he took a great interest in public affairs, and was continually called on to serve the State in matters which combined civil and moral interests, as, for example, public charities and prison-discipline. He was in the broadest sense a man; and all that pertained to human interests commanded his thoughts and efforts.

Lit. —A Memoir of the Life and Labors of Dr. Wayland, 2 vols. (New York, 1868), by his sons Hon. Francis Wayland, L.L.D., and Rev. H. L. Wayland, D.D., gives a list of his published writings, including Discourses (1832), Elements of Mental Science (1835), the same abridged (1836), the same revised (1865), Elements of Psychological Economy, also abridged (1857), Limits of Human Responsibility (1858), Thoughts on the Present Collegiate System in the United States (1851), A Discussion with Rev. R. Fuller, D.D. (1845), University Sermons (1850), Memoir of the Life and Labors of Rev. A. Judson, D.D. (1853), Elements of Intellectual Philosophy (1854), The Principles and Practices of the Baptist Churches (1856), Sermons to the Churches (1899), Sermons to the Nation (1896), a republication of University Sermons (1858), Letters on the Ministry (1863), Memoir of the Christian Labors of Thomas Chalmers (1864), also many introductions and notes to various works, articles in reviews and other periodicals, with separate discourses, sermons, addresses, orations, reports, tracts, etc. NORMAN FOX.

WAZO, Bishop of Liège; b. about 974; d. July 8, 1048. It was as a driver he first attracted the attention of Notger, bishop of Liège; and, as he showed aptness to learn, he was placed in the cathedral school. In due time he became teacher in the school, dean of the chapter, provost, and in 1041 he was elected bishop of Liège; and after some difficulties he was confirmed by Henry III. He proved a worthy bishop in every respect, and though he is of no great importance, either in history or in theology, his Life, written a few years after his death, by Auselmus, in his Gesta episcoporum Leodiensium, has a great interest to the student of the social state of affairs in those times. See Albrecht Vogel, in the first edition of Herzog's Real-Encyclopädie.

WEEK (_weather, pl._weather's and_weather's; inしばらく; sēpimana). The Greeks and Romans first became acquainted with the seven-day week through Christianity and the scattered Jews. [The Romans adopted it after the reign of Theodosius.] The expression ἦσσως is not found in the New Testament, but rather εἰμι ἐκ τοῦ ἡμερού (e.g., Luke xvi. 25) or εἰμί ἡμέρας (e.g., Matt. xxviii. 1), used, however, in the sense of εἰς, in the Old Testament, ἡμέρα is parallel with ἡμέρας (cf. Lev. xxiii. 15; Dext. xvi. 9). But μια, έδικτυ, etc., τοῦ θεοῦ, the special names for the days of the week, were not used by the Jews. The age of this hebdomadal division among the Jews depends upon the disputed date of the sabbath. (See Sabbath.) But, since the lunar month divides itself naturally into four periods of seven days each, this division must have been very old. It is found among all Semitic peoples. For the peculiar use of the word "week" in Daniel, see Daniel. [See art. "Week" in Smith: Dict. of the Bible. E. NÄCKBACH.
WEIGEL, Valentin, b. at Hayn in Misnia, 1538; studied at Leipzig and Wittenberg from 1654 to 1657; and was in the latter year appointed pas- tor of the community in Saxony, where he died Jan. 10, 1588. He appears to have been a precursor of Böhmé, and, on a basis of mysticism, a decided adversary of the scholasticism in which the Reforma- tion ended. Frightened by the terrorism of his heterodoxies: but privately he elaborated his system; and after his death his canlor, Weikert, passed to Ullmann, Tholuck, and Julius Muller. The scientific worth of the Institutions is very small. It has no originality. All its principal ideas were borrowed from Henke's Lineamenta, and Amnon's Summa, and the manner in which those ideas are combined is always superficial, and sometimes contradictory. See W. Steiger: Kritik des Rationalismus in Wegscheider's Dogmatics, 1830; and Hase: Anstörhr, 1837. THOLUCK.

HILLIGER: Futa et scripta M. Valentini Weigelii, Wittenberg, 1721. - H. SCHMIDT.

WEIGSCHREIDER. 2485 WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

WEIGSCHREIDER, Julius August Ludwig, the representative of rationalistic theology; b. at Kubbe- lingen, Brunswick, Sept. 17, 1771; d. at Halle, Jan. 27, 1849. He studied theology at Helm- stadt, and was from 1795 to 1805 tutor in a merchant's family in Hamburg, where he published Elische studien recentiores, 1796, and Deum cum prin- cipa ethics a Kantio propositis comparata, 1797, and Uebcr die von der neuesten Philosophie geforderte Trennung der Moral von der Religion, 1804. After settling at Göttingen as a student in the university, he published in 1806 his Einführung in das Evange- lium Johannis, and was in the same year appointed professor of theology at Rinteln in Hesse. But in 1810 the university of Rinteln was closed, and he was removed, as professor of theology, to Halle. There he published in 1815 his principal work (Institutiones theologicae dogmaticae), which, in the department of systematic theology, is the true representative of that kind of rationalistic theology that laid the founda- tion of modern agnosticism. His Glaubenskunde, written immediately after the fall of Napoleon, the university of Halle en- tered upon a career of great prosperity; and Weg- scheider, as its most celebrated professor, often gathered more than three hundred students to his lectures. But early in 1830 he and his friend Gesenius were summoned before a committee of investigation, and even threatened with deposi- tion, and even threatened with deposi- tion, on account of the open rationalism of their teaching. The outbreak, however, of the revolu- tion of 1830, made the king of Prussia unwilling to employ rigorous measures of any kind. Weg- scheider remained in office; but his influence was completely lost, and the theological leadership passed to Ullmann, Tholuck, and Julius Muller. The scientific worth of the Institutions is very small. It has no originality. All its principal ideas were borrowed from Henke's Lineamenta, and Amnon's Summa, and the manner in which those ideas are combined is always superficial, and sometimes contradictory. See W. Steiger: Kritik des Rationalismus in Wegscheider's Dogmatics, 1830; and Hase: Anstöhr, 1837. THOLUCK.
WEIGHTS AND MEASURES. 2486

WEIR.

tioned (Exod. xxix. 40; Lev. xxi. 13; Num. xv. 4, 6, 7, 9, 10, xxxviii. 5, [7, 14]; Ezek. iv. 11, [14]). (c) log = ½ hin, ½ bath (Lev. xiv. 10, 12, 15, 21, 24), originally signifying a "basis."

(b) Dry Measures. (a) Letherch = tomer, occurs only in Hoseam ii. 2. (b) Ephah = ¼ homer, of frequent occurrence in the Bible (Exod. xvi. 36; Lev. v. 11, vi. 20, Num. v. 15, xxxviii. 5; Judg. vi. 19; Ruth ii. 17; 1 Sam. i. 24, xvii. 17; Ezek. xiv. 11, 13, 14, xvii. 5, 7, 11, 14): it is probably of Egyptian origin. (c) Sneh = ¼ ephah, denoting "measure" (Gen. xviii. 9; 1 Sam. xxv. 18; 2 Kings vii. 1, 16). The sheqash was otherwise termed shalish, as being the third part of an ephah (Isa. xliii. 12; Ps. lxxxii. 5). (d) Isbtron, the tenth part of an ephah (Exod. xvi. 36; in the Authorized Version, "tenth deal") (Lev. xiv. 10, xxxviii. 13; Num. xvi. 4). The older name seems to have been òmer (Exod. xvi. 16-36). (e) Cob, i.e., hollow or concave, mentioned only 2 Kings vi. 25. Both the liquid and dry measures had one large measure in common, the cor (1 Kings iv. 29; v. 11; 2 Chron. ii. 10, xxxvii. 5; Ez. vii. 22; Ezek. xiv. 14), also called homer, meaning "heap" (Lev. xxvii. 16; Num. xi. 32; Isa. v. 10; Ezek. xiv. 13), and equal to 10 bath. The "homer" was used only as dry measure. For the liquid measures we thus get:

\[
\begin{align*}
1 \text{ cor} & = 10 \text{ bath} = 60 \text{ hin} = 720 \log \\
1 & = 6 = 72 \\
1 & = 12 \\
\end{align*}
\]

or

For the dry measures:

\[
\begin{align*}
1 \text{ homer} & = 10 \text{ ephah} = 30 \text{ seah} = 100 \text{ omer} = 180 \text{ cab} \\
1 & = 3 = 10 = 18 \\
1 & = 35 = 6 \\
1 & = 18 \\ \end{align*}
\]

WEIGHTS. — At a very early period the Hebrews seem to have used scales for determining the weight of things, especially of precious metals. The weights generally consisted of stones. There were five standards of weights, — beka, genius, shkel, maneh, and kikkar. The highest was (a) the kikkar, or talent, literally "a circle," hence any round object, and thus a circular piece of money. It was of gold (1 Kings ix. 14) and of silver (2 Kings v. 22). (b) Maneth, the Greek mna or mna, strictly a portion, i.e., a subdivision of the "talent" = ¼ kikkar. (c) Shkel, properly a weight, the usual unit of estimation applied to coins and weights. It likewise was of two kinds, — the sacred (Lev. v. 15) and the royal (2 Sam. xiv. 26). (b) Bekah, strictly a cleft or fraction (Gen. xxiv. 22); and (e) gerah, properly a kernel or bean, like our "ain" (Ezek. xlv. 12; Ezek. xxx. 13; Lev. xxvii. 26; Num. iii. 47). For the weights we thus get:

\[
\begin{align*}
1 \text{kikkar} & = 60 \text{ maneth} = 3,000 \text{ shkel} = 6,000 \text{ beka} = 60,000 \text{ gerah} \\
1 & = 50 = 100 = 1,000 \\
1 \text{ "} & = 2 = 20 \\
1 \text{ "} & = 10 \\
\end{align*}
\]

WEIR, Duncan Harkness, D.D., Professor of Oriental Languages in the University of Glasgow, and one of the members of the Old-Testament Company of the Revisers of the Authorized Version of the Bible; b. at Greenock in 1822; d. at Glasgow, Nov. 24, 1876. He attained much distinction at college, but first attracted the attention of biblical scholars by his contributions to Kittó's Journal of Biblical Literature. He was appointed to the Glasgow chair in 1850, and in that position assisted very materially to raise in Scotland the too long neglected study of the Hebrew language, as well as of the Old-Testament Scriptures, to its true place in theological science. A strict disciplinarian, he was, above all, a sympathetic and stimulating teacher. To quote the words of one of his colleagues in the funeral sermon delivered in the university after his death, "His familiarity with the Hebrew language is in all its phases, his rational analysis and explanation even of its most peculiar and apparently abnormal phenomena, his delicate perception of his niceties, his sympathetic appreciation of the spirit of Hebrew poetry and Hebrew prophecy, gave to his prelections an interest and charm which were enhanced by the transparent simplicity and earnestness of his character." Another colleague, who had been his friend from his earliest years, thus described in a local periodical his personal character: "The grave has seldom closed over one whose life was more pure and blameless, more uniformly regulated by high principle and motive, and more incapable of an unworthy or ignoble action. A somewhat reserved manner gave, perhaps, to strangers, in their intercourse with him, an impression of coldness; but those who were honored by his friendship knew well . . . how their respect and admiration for the memory of the great scholar, the acute thinker, the sagacious counsellor, are blended with the deeper sorrow for the loss of the true and tender-hearted friend."
Dr. Weir died at a comparatively early age, and unhappily left behind him no adequate results, at least in a permanent form, of the great learning and ability by which, in the knowledge of those who knew him, he was so eminently distinguished. His chief literary works are occasioned by the character of his life and habitually presented in the introduction to his book on Isaiah, expresses his obligations to suggestions of Dr. Weir privately communicated to him. His non-productiveness in the way of authorship was partly due to the exacting nature of the duties of his chair, to which he devoted himself with scrupulous fidelity, and partly to the fact that he was looking forward, as he might reasonably do at his age, to a time of greater leisure, when the immense store of materials on Old-Testament criticism which he had accumulated, might be reduced to shape, and given to the public.

WILLIAM LEE.

WEISS, Charles, b. at Straßburg, Dec. 10, 1812; d. at Vanves, 1881. He was professor of history in the Lycée Bonaparte; and both his L'Espagne depuis le règne de Philippe II. jusqu'à l'extrauvant (Paris, 1844, 2 vols.) and his Histoire des refugia protestants de France (Paris, 1853, 2 vols.) were crowned by the Academy. In 1864 he became insane, and spent the rest of his life in an asylum at Vanves, near Paris.

WEISS, Pantaleon, generally known under the name Candidus; b. at Ips, in Lower Austria, Oct. 7, 1540; d. at Zweibrücken, Feb. 3, 1608. He studied at Wittenberg from 1557 to 1564; and in 1565 appointed rector of the Latin School of Zweibrücken, and, later on, pastor and superintendent of that city. Though he had studied at Wittenberg, and was honored with the friendship of Melanchthon, he was by the strict Lutherans suspected of inclining towards Calvinism; and he became, indeed, instrumental in the conversion of the principality of Zweibrücken from the Lutheran to the Reformed faith. At a theological disputation at Bergzabern, July, 1578, he for the first time divulged his Calvinist views of the person of Christ, which he further developed in his Dialogue de unione personali (laetrualium in Christo personalium, Geneva, 1593. He was immediately met by strong opposition: but the duke took his side; and in July, 1590, the court-preacher, Heilbrunner, one of the leaders of the Lutherans, was banished from the country. In 1586 Candidus published anonymously his Krämer Bericht von heiligen Altenmahn; which, point for point, follows the Reformed doctrine of the Lord's Supper; and in 1588 the Reformed faith was officially established in the country by the introduction of the Catechism of Zweibrücken, which was drawn up in close imitation of that of Heidelberg. Some resistance was offered by the inhabitants, but no serious disturbances took place. Among the other writings of Candidus is a great number of poems in Latin (Elegiae precatioinum, Epigrammatorum sacrorum, libri xii, etc.), but none in German. Edmund Butters: Panteleom Candidus, Zweibrücken, 1865.

WEISSE, Christian Hermann, b. at Leipzig, Aug. 10, 1801; d. there Sept. 19, 1866. He was professor of philosophy in the university of his native city, and wrote on mythology and esthetand Rowlands. These differences were not doctrinal in their nature; for the controversies which divided the English Methodists never affected their Welsh brethren, the latter being almost to a man Calvinists. In 1762-63 a great revival welded the divided church to an inseparable union. The year 1785 was signalized by the accession of the Rev. Thomas Charles of Bala, whose great work was the organizing of the denominational sabbath schools. These were in many respects similar to the circulating-schools established by Griffith Jones, and, like them, included the adults, as well as the children, of the congregations. The study of the Scriptures in these schools, by the whole church, led to two important results,—the one a demand for Welsh Bibles beyond the then means of supply, and as a consequence to the formation, in 1801, of the British and Foreign Bible Society; the other, a new impetus to the cause of Calvinistic Methodism. In fact, the formal act of separation from the Established Church was forced upon the denomination by its rapid growth. Communion in the few parish churches having "Methodistic" rectors became impossible to a body numbering its members by tens of thousands. And in the General Associations held at Bala and at Llandilo Fawr in 1811, twenty-one persons were ordained to the office of the ministry. This step led to the withdrawal of the majority of the episcopally ordained ministers, but their defection did not check the progress of the Welsh Calvinists. In 1813 the Home Mission Society was organized for work in the English districts bordering on Wales. In 1823 a Confession of Faith was adopted. In 1839 an theological seminary was established at Bala, and in 1842 another at Trevecca. The work of foreign missions was carried on, until 1840, in connection with the London Missionary Society; but since that date the church has maintained missions of its own in Khasia, India, in Brittany to the Breton kinsmen of the Welsh, and in London to the Jews. The last step in its organization was taken by the constitution of the General Assembly, at Stevens, in his History of Methodism, graphically describes it as the source to Wales of that "extraordinary religious progress which the thirty dissenting churches of 1715 have increased (1857) to 2,300; by which a chapel now dots nearly every three square miles of the country, and over a million people, nearly the whole Welsh population (seven-eighths), are found attending public worship some part of every sabbath."

Doctrine.—The doctrines of the Confession of Faith of this church are in substantial harmony with the doctrines of the Westminster Confession. The word "Methodist" in its name is, therefore, to be understood as defining, not a form of doctrine, but a mode of Christian life and work. The Confession is published in both English and Welsh.

Worship.—The church uses no Liturgy. Its services are simple, characterized by earnestness, and are conducted, as a rule, in the Welsh language.

United States. History, etc.—The first Calvinistic Methodist in America was the Rev. George Whitefield. Welsh emigrants of the Calvinistic faith began to enter the country about 1776; but being few in number, and unfamiliar with the English language, they worshipped, for many years after that date, with the Welsh Independents. Their first church was organized at Pen-y-caerau, Remsen, Oneida County, N.Y., in the year 1826. Within a year or two after, the first presbytery was formed. In 1838 a denominational magazine, Y Cynfal o'r Hen Wlwl ("The Friend from the Old Country"), was established in New York City by the Rev. William Rowlands, D.D, and aided greatly in furthering the interests of the denomination. In 1845 fraternal relations were entered into with the Old School General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church. The denomination is strongest in the States of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin, and Minnesota; and its synods bear the names of those States respectively. The presbyteries (1882) number eighteen. The General Assembly, established in 1870, meets triennially. In doctrine the Welsh Calvinists in the United States agree with their brethren in Britain. In polity they are, in some particulars, more nearly assimilated to the American Presbyterian churches.

Statistics. England and Wales (1882).—Churches (organizations), 1,179; English churches, 158; chapels and preaching-stations, 1,843; pastors, 610; preachers, 911; elders, 4,917; communicants, 119,653; children under care of the church, 56,452; Sabbath-school members, 158,585; hearers, 274,805; contributions, $818,375. United States (1882).—Churches, 171; ministers, 108; communicants, 11,000; children under care of the church, 5,700; Sabbath-school members, 13,500; hearers, 20,000.
WERKMEISTER, Benedikt Maria von, b. at Allgäu in Upper Swabia, Oct. 22, 1745; d. at Steinhach, near Stuttgart, July 16, 1823. He entered the order of the Benedictines in 1714; studied theology at Neresheim and Benediktbeuren, and was ordained a priest in 1769; and taught philosophy and canon law at various Roman-Catholic seminaries in Württemberg, but was dismissed in 1784 as an adherent of “osephinism” (see art.). In 1796, however, he was made pastor of Steinbach, and later on he had various positions in the administration. He wrote against the callicity of priests, against the worship of Mary, etc.

WENDELIN, or WANDELIN, a saint of the Roman Catholic Church, whose festival falls on Oct. 20. He was a native of Scotland, and flourished in the seventh century. Educated for the church, he went to Germany as a missionary; settled near Treves, and labored with so great success that the monks of Tholey, a convent situated near the Saar, chose him their abbot. Nothing more is known of him with certainty, but he is still devotedly worshipped in many parts of Germany and Switzerland as the protector of the cattle. See Act. Sanct., July 6, p. 171.

WENDELIN, Markus Friedrich, b. at Sandagen, near Heidelberg, 1834; d. at Zerbst, Aug. 7, 1862. He studied theology at Heidelberg; was for several years tutor to the young princess of Anhalt-Dessau; and was in 1811 appointed rector of the gymnasium of Zerbst, which position he retained to his death. His education fell in the period immediately after the contest between the Lutherans and the Reformed in the Palatinate. The Reformed came out victorious; but the contest had compelled them to employ the highest degree of scholastic precision in the exposition of their views: and in his theological works — Compendium christianae theologiae, Hanau, 1834; Christianae theologiae systema majus, published after his death, Cassel, 1856, and translated into Dutch and Hungarian; Exercitationes theologicae contra Erasmum, and Collatio doctrinae reformatorum et lutherorum, Cassel, 1856 — he shows himself to be one of the chief representatives of that Reformed scholasticism. But his great learning and activity outside of the field of theology kept his theological scholasticism in a healthy condition: indeed, scholasticism was with him nothing more than a method. See also EBRARD: Emendation scripturae et Wenden, Halle, 1822; and G. H. KIPPER: Wendische Geschichte aus den Jahren, 786-1182, Berlin, 1843, 3 vols.

WENDLES is the collective name of a number of Slavic tribes which in ancient time inhabited the northern part of Germany, along the Baltic Sea, between the Elbe and the Vistula — Obodrites in Mecklenburg; Ranes, or Ruggina, in the Island of Rügen; Pomeranians; Sorbians in Misnia and Brandenburg, etc. The name was derived from the old German wand (“water”), that is, those who live by the water; but they called themselves Slavenes, from Slaven (“word”), that is, those who were governed by laws understood, while their children the Germans njem, njemeta (the "dumb," the "unintelligible"). Agriculture, cattle-raising, fishing, and piracy, were their general occupations. Their religion was a strongly marked dualism, in which the evil always seemed about to gain the ascendancy. They worshipped their gods in temples and sacred groves, with many superstitions and cruel rites. Their morals were narrow, but not depraved. They were temperate, hospitable, independent, true to their friends, though it was considered fair to break a promise given to a stranger, or to give up their lives for the sake of their gods in temples and sacred groves, with many superstitions and cruel rites. Their morals were narrow, but not depraved.
WERNSDORF. 2490

WESLEY, Charles, youngest son of Samuel Wesley, sen., was b. at Epworth in Lincolnshire, Dec. 18, 1708, O.S. (Dec. 29, N.S.); and d. in London, March 29, 1758. In childhood he declined attending the university; but at the age of 14 he was appointed preacher at Mayence; and, when the plague forced him to leave that place, he obtained a similar position at Worms in 1742. It was at this time that he became the real author of the process instituted against him was hatred of his philosophical views, and not indignation at his theological ideas: for the process was instituted, not by his next superior, the bishop of Worms, but by the archbishop of Mayence; and the tribunal before which he was summoned was composed, not simply of general inquisitors, but also of some professors from Heidelberg, all of whom were realists. The process was opened Feb. 4, 1749, and the very first proceedings showed the ill-will which the judges bore him. The principal charges were, that he denied the procession of the Holy Spirit from the Son, rejected tradition, and disputed the absolute authority of a council legitimately convened. Then followed a number of minor errors. Concerning sin, he said that there was no deadly sin but that which the Bible designated as such; concerning hereditary sin, that it did not exist in the fetus; concerning the procession of the Holy Ghost, that the doctrine of transubstantiation was unnecessary; concerning celibacy, monasticism, fasting, etc., that they were not obligatory; concerning the hierarchical organization, that there was no difference between a bishop and a presbyter. At every point he made as great concessions as he conscientiously could, and by a general recantation he succeeded in escaping the stake; but he was locked up for life in an Augustinian convent at Mayence. From the elaborate report of the trial which has come down to us, as well as from Wesley's writing, it is evident that he mastered the formal principle of Protestantism — Scripture the sole rule of faith — with a greater clearness and completeness than the Reformers themselves, at least in the beginning of the Reformation. But it is also evident that he never actually reached the material principle of Protestantism — justification by faith; though he began his attack at the very same point as the Reformers — the doctrine of indulgences. He knew very well that ecclesiastical penance is very far from being identical with divine punishment, and that the Pope can dispense only from the former. He knew, furthermore, that a treasure of good works at the disposal of the Pope, and the transference by him of merit from one person to another, were empty pretensions. But to his eyes the sale of indulgences was simply an ecclesiastical abuse: that it was a danger to conscience he did not see. LIT. — Wesley was quite a prolific writer, but of his works only the two above mentioned have come down to us. A report of his trial is found in D'ARGENTÉRE: Collectio judiciariun de nonis erro- ribus, Paris, 1728. It consists of three parts, — Paradoxa Joannae de Wesaia (a collection of heretical propositions drawn from his various works), Examnen magistrale (a representation of the trial), and, finally, a survey by the author of the whole affair. See also H. Schmidt, Reformers before the Reformation [Eng. trans., Edinb., 1856, 2 vols.; 2d Ger. ed., 1868]. H. SCHMIDT.
WESLEY. 2491

WESLEY. John, the father of the doctrinal and practical system of Methodism; b. at Epworth, Eng., June 28, 1703; d. in London, March 2, 1791. The Wesley family has been traced, by an indefatigable genealogist in late years, back to a period anterior to the Norman Conquest. In the days of Athelstan the Saxon, Guy Wesley, or Welse-ley, was created a thane, or member of Parliament; and it is claimed that the genealogy of the

WESLEY. John, was educated at Westminster school, under his brother Samuel, 1718; at St. Peter’s College, Westminster, 1721; at Christ Church, Oxford, 1728, where, with his brother John and one or two others, he received the nickname of “Methodist.” In 1735 he was ordained, and went with John Wesley to Georgia, returning 1736. May 21, 1738, he “experienced the witness of adoption,” and at once joined his brother’s evangelical work. The two brothers, while in the books of joint authorship it is not always possible to distinguish with absolute certainty between the two, it is generally agreed that John wrote only the translations (almost wholly from the German, some forty in all) and a very few originals. Their style is the same, save for a little more severity and dignity on John’s part. Their first volume (or perhaps John’s alone, for it bears no name), possibly also the first English Collection of Psalms and Hymns, appeared at Charleston, S.C., 1737. A single copy was found in London, 1879, and reprinted 1882. It contains some pieces by John, but apparently none by Charles, who perhaps had not then begun to write. Another small Collection was published in London, 1738; and in 1740 began the long series of original works which are adapted to public worship. Of these were Hymns and Sacred Poems, 1739, 1740, 1742 (three separate books); the same, 1749, 2 vols.; Hymns on God’s Everlasting Love, 1741; On the Lord’s Supper, 1745; For that Seek and those that have Redemption, 1747; Funeral Hymns, 1746-59; Short Hymns on Select Passages of Holy Scripture, 2 vols. (2,348 pieces), 1762.; Hymns for Children, 1763; For Families, 1767; On the Trinity, 1767. Besides these there are some twenty tracts, minor in size, but containing some of Charles Wesley’s most effective lyrics, and a few elegies and epistles. The work of publication went on, though less vigorously in later years, till 1755, and that of composition till his death, at which he left in manuscript a quantity of verse, chiefly on Bible-texts, equal to one-third of that till 1785, and that of composition till his death, at WESLEY, John and Charles Wesley, as reprinted by the Wesleyan Conference, 1868-72, in thirteen volumes, or near six thousand pages. Of the original publications, the earlier ones bore the names of both brothers, but most were the work of Charles alone. While in the books of joint authorship it is not always possible to distinguish with absolute certainty between the two, it is generally agreed that John wrote only the translations (almost wholly from the German, some forty in all) and a very few originals. Their style is the same, save for a little more severity and dignity on John’s part. Their first volume (or perhaps John’s alone, for it bears no name), possibly also the first English Collection of Psalms and Hymns, appeared at Charleston, S.C., 1737. A single copy was found in London, 1879, and reprinted 1882. It contains some pieces by John, but apparently none by Charles, who perhaps had not then begun to write. Another small Collection was published in London, 1738; and in 1740 began the long series of original works which are adapted to public worship. Of these were Hymns and Sacred Poems, 1739, 1740, 1742 (three separate books); the same, 1749, 2 vols.; Hymns on God’s Everlasting Love, 1741; On the Lord’s Supper, 1745; For that Seek and those that have Redemption, 1747; Funeral Hymns, 1746-59; Short Hymns on Select Passages of Holy Scripture, 2 vols. (2,348 pieces), 1762.; Hymns for Children, 1763; For Families, 1767; On the Trinity, 1767. Besides these there are some twenty tracts, minor in size, but containing some of Charles Wesley’s most effective lyrics, and a few elegies and epistles. The work of publication went on, though less vigorously in later years, till 1755, and that of composition till his death, at which he left in manuscript a quantity of verse, chiefly on Bible-texts, equal to one-third of that printed in his lifetime. His huge fecundity hindered his fame: had he written less, he might be read more; but he had not the gift of condensing. His thoughts, or at least his feelings, flowed more readily in verse than in prose: he wrote on horseback, in a stage-coach, almost in “the article of death.” His fifty-six Hymns for Christian Friends, some of them long and widely used, were dedicated to Miss Gwynne; and his last verse, taken down by her “when he could nearly articulate late,” preserves something of the old fire. He wrote with equal grace In Going to Answer a Charge of Treason, and For a Child Cutting his Teeth. Nearly every occasion and condition of external life is provided for in the vast range of his productions, which have more “variety of matter and manner” than critics have commonly supposed; and, as to feelings and experiences, “he has celebrated them with an affluence of diction and a splendor of coloring rarely surpassed,” or, more accurately, never surpassed in any age, by nearly any poet. Temperament and belief alike inclined him to subjective themes, and, guiding his unique lyrical talent, made him pre-eminent “the poet of Methodism.” To the wonderful growth and success of that system his hymns were no less essential than his brother’s government. They are the main element in most Wesleyan collections, both English and American: probably no school or system in any age or land has owned so mighty an implement in the way of sacred song. For the same reason non-Methodists long suspected and shunned this poetry, and still need to exercise unusual caution in admiring it. Its author was given not only to extravagances of expression (which were sometimes pared down by his brother’s severer taste), but to unrestrained and often violent emotion. His ecstasies and agonies occur too frequently for sober readers, and many of his finest pieces are in this high key. Withal he is too fluent, too rhetorical: his mannerism at times involves a lack of simplicity; his “fatal facility of strong words” is a fault both literary and religious. Yet his intensely sincere and fervent piety, his intellectual strength and acuteness, his unmistakably high culture, and the matchless spontaneity of his eloquence, place him easily at the head of British sacred lyriasts. No collection is complete—probably for a century none has been formed — without his hymns; and they are now perhaps more generally and widely used than of old. He is entitled to rank not merely as a hymn-writer, but among Christian poets. Many of his pieces which are so adapted to public worship, and very little known, possess much literary and human interest: his autobiographic and polemic writings, in the article of death,” preserves something of the old fire. He wrote with equal grace. In Going to Answer a Charge of Treason, and For a Child Cutting his Teeth. Nearly every occasion and condition of external life is provided for in the vast range of his productions, which have more “variety of matter and manner” than critics have commonly supposed; and, as to feelings and experiences, “he has celebrated them with an affluence of diction and a splendor of coloring rarely surpassed,” or, more accurately, never surpassed in any age, by nearly any poet. Temperament and belief alike inclined him to subjective themes, and, guiding his unique lyrical talent, made him pre-eminently “the poet of Methodism.” To the wonderful growth and success of that system his hymns were no less essential than his brother’s government. They are the main element in most Wesleyan collections, both English and American: probably no school or system in any age or land has owned so mighty an implement in the way of sacred song. For the same reason non-Methodists long suspected and shunned this poetry, and still need to exercise unusual caution in admiring it. Its author was given not only to extravagances of expression (which were sometimes pared down by his brother’s severer taste), but to unrestrained and often violent emotion. His ecstasies and agonies occur too frequently for sober readers, and many of his finest pieces are in this high key. Withal he is too fluent, too rhetorical: his mannerism at times involves a lack of simplicity; his “fatal facility of strong words” is a fault both literary and religious. Yet his intensely sincere and fervent piety, his intellectual strength and acuteness, his unmistakably high culture, and the matchless spontaneity of his eloquence, place him easily at the head of British sacred lyriasts. No collection is complete—probably for a century none has been formed — without his hymns; and they are now perhaps more generally and widely used than of old. He is entitled to rank not merely as a hymn-writer, but among Christian poets. Many of his pieces which are so adapted to public worship, and very little known, possess much literary and human interest: his autobiographic and polemic writings, in the article of death,” preserves something of the old fire. He wrote with equal grace.

family may be followed in an unbroken line from Guy to Samuel Wesley, the father of the Reformer. Samuel Wesley was a graduate of Oxford, and a minister of the Church of England. He married in 1689 Susannah, the twenty-fifth child of Dr. Samuel Annesley, who became the mother of nineteen children. In 1698 he was appointed rector of Epworth, where John, the fifteenth child, was born. He was christened John Benjamin, but he never used the second name. An incident of his childhood was his rescue, at the age of six, from the burning rectory. The manner of his escape made a deep impression on his mind; and he spoke of himself as a "brand plucked from the burning," and as a child of Providence. With a small income and a large family, the good rector, with the utmost economy, was most of the time in debt. The early education of all the children was given by Mrs. Wesley, a woman of remarkable intelligence and deep piety, apt in teaching, and wise and firm in government. At the age of ten John was admitted to the Charterhouse School, London, where he lived the studious, methodical, and (for a while) religious life in which he had been trained at home. He entered Christ Church College, Oxford, seven years later, was ordained in 1725, elected fellow of Lincoln College in the following year, and given his degree of M.A. in 1727. He served his father as curate two years, and then returned to Oxford to fulfil his functions as fellow. The year of his return to Oxford (1729) marks the beginning of the rise of Methodism. The famous Holy Club was formed; and its members, including John and Charles Wesley, were derisively called "Methodists," because of their methodical habits. John had enjoyed during his early years a deep religious experience. He went, says his latest and best biographer, Tyerman, to Charterhouse a saint; but he became negligent of his religious duties, and left a sinner. In the year of his ordination he read Thomas a Kempis and Jeremy Taylor, and began to grope after those religious truths which underlay the great revival of the eighteenth century. The reading of Law's Christian Perfection and Serious Call gave him, he said, a sublimer view of the law of God; and he resolved to keep it, inwardly and outwardly, as sacredly as possible, believing that in this obedience he should find salvation. He pursued a rigidly methodical and abstemious life; studied the Scriptures, and performed his religious duties with great diligence; pinched himself that he might have alms to give; and gave his heart, mind, and soul to the effort to live a godly life. When a clergyman "inured to contempt of the ornaments and conveniences of life, to bodily austerities, and to serious thoughts," was wanted to go to Georgia, Wesley responded, and remained in the colony two years, returning to England in 1738, feeling that his mission, which was to convert the Indians, and deepen and regulate the religious life of the colonists, had been a failure. His High-Church notions, his strict enforcement of the regulations of the church, especially concerning the administration of the holy communion and the taking of oaths, hastened his departure. He left Georgia with several indirectiments pending against him (largely due to malice) for alleged violation of church law.

As Wesley's spiritual state is the key to his whole career, an account of his conversion in the year of his return from Georgia must not be omitted. For ten years he had fought against sin, striving to fulfill the law of the gospel, endeavored to manifest his righteousness; but he had not, he wrote, obtained freedom from sin, nor the witness of the Spirit, because he sought it, not by faith, but "by the works of the law." He had learned from the Moravians that true faith was inseparably connected with dominion over sin and constant peace proceeding from a sense of forgiveness, and that saving faith is given in a moment. This saving faith he obtained at a Moravian meeting in Aldersgate Street, London, while listening to the reading of Luther's Preface to the Epistle to the Romans, in which explanation of faith and the doctrine of justification by faith is given. "I felt," he wrote, "my heart strangely warmed. I felt I did trust in Christ Christ alone, for salvation; and an assurance was given me that he had taken away my sins." Two or three weeks later he preached a remarkable sermon, enforcing the doctrine of present personal salvation by faith, which was followed by another, on God's grace "free in all, and free for all." He was never ceased in his whole subsequent career to preach this doctrine and that of the witness of the Spirit. He allied himself with the Moravian society in Fetter Lane, and went to the Moravian headquarters in Germany to learn more of a people to whom he felt deeply indebted. On his return to England he drew up rules for the bands into which the Fetter-Lane society was divided, and published a collection of hymns for them. He met frequently with this and other religious societies in London, but did not preach often in 1738, because most of the parish churches were closed to him. His friend Whitefield, the great evangelist, upon his return from America, was likewise excluded from the churches of Bristol; and, going to the neighboring village of Kingswood, he there preached in the open air, February, 1739, to a company of miners. This was a bold step, and Wesley hesitated to accept Whitefield's earnest request to follow him in this innovation. But he overcame his scruples, and in April preached his first sermon in the open air, near Bristol. He said he could hardly reconcile himself to field-preaching, and would have thought, "till very lately," such a method of saving souls as "almost a sin." These open-air services were very successful; and he never again hesitated to preach in any place where an assembly could be got together, more than once occupying his father's tombstone as a pulpit. He spent upwards of thirty years in field-preaching,—entering churches when he was invited, taking his stand in the fields, in halls, cottages, and chapels, when the churches would not receive him. A rupture with the Moravians in London occurred. Wesley had helped them organize in May, 1738, the Fetter-Lane society; and the converts of the preaching of himself, his brother, and Whitefield, had become members of their bands. But finding, as he said, that they had fallen into heresies, especialmente Quakerism, a sect of colonists, and that at the close of 1739, Wesley was led to form his followers into a separate society. "Thus," he wrote, "without any previous plan, began the Methodist society in England." Similar societies were soon after formed in Bristol and Kingswood, and wherever Wesley and his coadjutors made converts.

From 1739 onward, Wesley and the Methodists were persecuted by clergymen and magistrates, attacked in sermon, tract, and book; mobbed by the populace; often in controversy; always at work among the neglected and needy; and whatever was denounced as promulgators of strange doctrines, fomenters of religious disturbances; as blind fanatics, leading the people astray, claiming miraculous gifts, inveighing against the clergy of the Church of England, and endeavoring to re-establish Popery. Wesley was frequently mobbed, and great violence was done both to the persons and property of Methodists. Seeing, however, that the church failed in its duty to call sinners to repentance, that its clergy were worldly-minded, and that souls were perishing in their sins, he regarded himself as commissioned of God to warn men to flee from the wrath of God; and no opposition, or persecution, or obstacles were permitted by him to prevail against the divine urgency and authority of his commission.

The prejudices of his High-Church training, his strict notion of the methods and proprieties of public worship, his views of the apostolic succession and the prerogatives of the priest, even his most cherished convictions, were not allowed to stand in the way in which Providence seemed to lead. Unwilling that ungodly men should perish in their sins and because they could not be reached from the pulpit, he began field-preaching. Seeing that he and the few clergymen co-operating with him could not do the work that needed to be done, he was led, as early as 1739, to approve seriously, soon after openly, of lay-preaching; and men who were not episcopally ordained were permitted to preach, and do pastoral work. Thus one of the great features of Methodism, to which it has largely owed its success, was adopted by Wesley in answer to a necessity.

As his societies must have houses to worship in, he began in 1739 to provide chapels, first in Bristol, and then in London and elsewhere. The Bristol chapel was at first in the hands of trustees; but as a large debt was contracted, and Wesley's friends urged him to keep its pulpit under his own control, the debt was cancelled, and the trust became vested in himself. Following this precedent, all Methodist chapels were committed in trust to him until, by a "deed of declaration," all his interests in them were transferred to a body of preachers called the "Legal Hundred." When disorderly persons began to manifest themselves among the members of the societies, he adopted the plan of giving ticketstomy regulars, or members, with their names written thereon by his own hand. These were renewed every three months. The debt on the chapel was soon discharged, and thus dropped out of the society without disturbance. The tickets were regarded as commendatory letters. When the debt on the chapel became burdensome, it was proposed that one in every twelve of the members should collect offerings for it regularly from the eleven allotted to him. On the one side, by some of his preachers and societies, and on the other, adopted, the breach between Wesley and his was a figment, and that Wesley was "a scrip-tural episcopus as much as any man in England." Some years later Stilligleed's pamphlet led him to renounce the opinion that Christ or his apostles prescribed any form of church government, and the prevailing ordinance was confirmed by a presbyter. It was not until about forty years after this that he ordained by the imposition of hands; but he considered his appointment (says Watson) of his preachers as an act of ordination. The Conference of 1746 declared that the reason more solemnity in receiving new laborers was not employed was because it savored of state-liness and of haste. "We desire barely to follow Providence as it gradually opened. When, however, he deemed that Providence had opened the way, and the bishop of London had definitely declined to ordain a minister for the American Methodists who were without the ordinances, he ordained by imposition of hands for Scotland and England and America, with power to administer the sacraments. He consecrated, also, by laying on of hands, Dr. Coke, a presbyter of the Church of England, to be superintendent or bishop in America, and a preacher, Alexander Mather, to the same office in England. He designed that both Dr. Coke and Mr. Mather should ordain others. This act alarmed his brother Charles, who besought him to stop and consider before he had "quite broken down the bridge," and not immiter his [Charles's] last moments on earth, nor "leave an indelible blot on our memo-ry." Wesley declared, in reply, that he had not separated from the church, nor did he intend to, but he must and would save as many souls as he could while alive, "without being careful about what may possibly be when I die." Thus, though he rejoiced that the Methodists in America were freed from entanglements with both Church and State, he counselled his English followers to remain in the church; and he himself died in that communion.

Wesley was a strong controversialist. The most notable of his controversies was that on Calvin-ism. His father was of the Arminian school in the church; but John settled the question for others. This act alarmed his brother Charles, who besought him to stop and consider before he had "quite broken down the bridge," and not immiter his [Charles's] last moments on earth, nor "leave an indelible blot on our memo-ry." Wesley declared, in reply, that he had not separated from the church, nor did he intend to, but he must and would save as many souls as he could while alive, "without being careful about what may possibly be when I die." Thus, though he rejoiced that the Methodists in America were freed from entanglements with both Church and State, he counselled his English followers to remain in the church; and he himself died in that communion.

Wesley was the busiest man in England. He travelled almost constantly, generally on horse-back, preaching twice or thrice a day. He formed societies, opened chapels, examined and commis-sioned preachers, administered discipline, raised funds for schools, chapels, and charities, pre-scribed for the sick, superintended schools and orphanages, prepared commentaries and a vast amount of other religious literature, replied to attacks on Methodism, conducted controversies, and carried on a prodigious correspondence. He is believed to have travelled in the course of his life-work more than one hundred thousand miles, and to have preached more than forty thousand sermons. The number of works he wrote, translated, or edited, exceeds two hundred. The list includes sermons, commentaries, hymns, a Christian library of fifty volumes, and other texts-books, political tracts, etc. He is said to have received not less than a hundred thousand dollars for his publications, but he used little of it for himself. His charities were only limited by his means. He died poor. He rose at four in the morning, lived simply and methodically, and was never idle, even for a moment, unless by compul-sion. In person he was rather under the medium height, well proportioned, strong, with a bright eye, a clear complexion, and a saintly, intellectual face. He married very unhappily, at the age of forty-eight, a widow, and had no children. He died, after a short illness, in which he had great spiritual peace and joy, March 2, 1791; leaving as the result of his life-work 158,000 members, and 351 itinerant preachers, owning the name "Methodist." Wesley's mind was of a logical cast. His conceptions were clear, his perceptions quick. His conceptions were clear, his perceptions quick. His thoughts were strong and vigorous. He and his followers were more popular with the middle and upper classes than with the working classes, because of the more refined and more refined and more sugarcoated, less pointed, and more ceremonious character of his and his followers' meetings. Wesley's sermons were marked by a pure, unadulterated, simple, and generally, a strong, vigorous and forceful language. His logical acuteness, self-control, and scholarly acquirements, made him a strong controversialist. He wrote usually currente calamo. His written sermons are characterized by clarity, originality, and thoughtfulness. They are doctrinal, but not dogmatic; expository, argumentative, practical. His "Notes on the New Testament" are luminous and suggestive. Both the "Sermons" (of which there are about a hundred and forty) and the "Notes" are in the Methodist course of study, and are doctrinal standards. He was a fluent, impressive, persuasive, powerful preacher, producing striking effects. He preached generally extemporaneously and briefly, though occasionally at great length, using manuscript only for special occasions. As an organizer, an ecclesiastical general, and statesman, he was pre-eminent. He knew well how to marshal and control men, how to achieve purposes. He had in his hands the powers of a despot; yet he so used them as not only not to provoke rebellion, but to inspire love. His mission was to spread "scriptural holiness;" his means and plans were such as Providence indicated. The course thus marked out for him he pursued with a determination, a fidelity, from which nothing could swerve him.

Wesley's chief prose works have been published in seven octavo volumes by the Methodist Book Concern, New York. Besides his "Sermons" and "Notes" already referred to, are his Journals (originally published in twenty parts), which are of great interest; a "Treatise on Original Sin," in reply to Dr. Taylor of Norwich; an "Appeal to Men of Reason and Religion" (originally published in three parts of 296 12mo pp.), an elaborate defence of Methodism, describing with great vigor the evils of the times (fifth decade of last century) in society and the church; a "Plain Account of Christian Perfection," a duodecimo of 162 pp., published in 1769.

WESLEY, Samuel, sen., the father of John and Charles Wesley, b. at Winterbourne-Wycot church in Dorset, November, 1662; d. at Epworth, April 22, 1735. His early education was received among the dissenters; but in 1683 he renounced nonconformity, and entered Exeter College, Oxford, where he proceeded B.A., 1688. He was ordained deacon that year, and held various precenters, until Queen Mary gave him the living of Epworth in Lincolnshire (1696), in return for the compliment of his dedication to her of his "Life of Christ, an Heroic Poem," 1698. He was a man of learning, benevolence, devotional habits, and liberal sentiments. He wrote largely, and by this means eked out his salary, barely sufficient to support his large family. He had nineteen children, of whom, however, nine died in infancy. Besides prose, he wrote poetry,—"The History of the New Testament Attempted in Verse," 1701; "The History of the Old Testament in Verse," 1704. His learned Latin Commentary on the Book, "Dissertations in utrum Job," in which he was, however, aided by others, appeared posthumously, 1736. His hymn, "Behold the Saviour," rifflanldntl, written in 1709, has been widely used. See Tyerman: "Life and Times of the Rev. Samuel Wesley," London, 1866.

WESLEY, Samuel, jun., elder brother of John and Charles; was b. in London, Feb. 10, 1690, and d. at Tiverton, Nov. 6, 1739; educated at Westminster and Oxford; head usher at Westminster School, 1712 (Vincent Bourne being one of his colleagues), and ordained soon after; head master of the Free School at Tiverton, 1732. He was a man of considerable learning, great talent, and high character. As an old-fashioned Churchman he had no sympathy with the "new faith" of his brothers. His "Poems on Several Occasions," 1736 (reprinted, with additions and Life, 1862), have much merit, and include one or two of our best epigrams, besides hymns to the Trinity, for Sunday, Good Friday, and Easter, and on the death of a young lady. These are of a high order, and show much of Charles Wesley's splendor of diction: they have been largely used in church hymn-books. See F. M. Bird.

WESLEY, Susanah, the mother of John and Charles Wesley; b. in London, Jan. 20, 1669, d. there July 23, 1742. Her father, Samuel Annesley, LL.D., was a prominent nonconformist divine, but she renounced nonconformity in her thirteenth year, and joined the Established Church. In 1699 she married Samuel Wesley (see art.), and bore him nineteen children, of whom nine, however, died in infancy. She was a remarkable woman. Tyerman gives this account of her home discipline: "When the child was one year old, he was taught to fear the rod, and, if he cried at all, to cry in softened tones. The children were permitted to three persons in a day. Eating and drinking between meals was strictly prohibited. All the children were washed and put to bed by eight o'clock, and on no account was a servant to sit by a child till it fell asleep. The children were taught the Lord's Prayer as soon as they could speak, and repeated it every morning and every night. They were on no account allowed to call each other by their proper name without the addition of brother or sister, as the case might be. Six hours a day were spent at school, the..."
parents being the teachers. They were not taught to read till five years old, and then only a single day was allowed wherein to learn the letters of the alphabet, great and small. Psalms were sung every morning; when school was opened, and also every night, when the duties of the day were ended. In addition to all this, at the commencement and close of every day, each of the elder children took one of the younger, and read the psalms appointed for the day, and a chapter in the Bible, after which they severally went to their private devotions" (Life of Wesley, vol. i. pp. 17, 18). Her husband died in 1735, and shortly after, she went to London to live with her son John. See J. KIRK: The Mother of the Wesleyes, London and Cincinnati, 1872.

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE. 2496

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE, located at Macon, Ga., and founded in 1836, is believed to be the first exclusively female college in the world chartered with full powers to confer upon females the usual degrees which had been hitherto conferred only upon males. It is under the control of the Methodist-Episcopal Church South. In 1882 it received from Mr. George I. Seney of Cincinnati, 1872.

WESLEYAN METHODISTS, Theology of. See ARMINIANISM.

WESSEL, Johann, with the surname Qansort or Qangesort, from an estate in Westphalia, the original seat of the family; b. at Groeningen about 1420; d. there Oct. 4, 1489; was in Germany the most prominent of the precursors of the Reformation. He was educated in the school of Zwoll, which at that time was under the control of the Brethren of the Common Life, and came very early in contact with Thomas A Kempis, who resided in the vicinity. From Zwoll he went to Cologne to finish his studies. But he seems not to have found there what he sought. Cologne was the seat of the German Inquisition, and the theological faculty of the university was controlled by the Dominican and Franciscan orders. The philosophical argument and the polemical application, without ever approaching reality so near as to be seized by it, and taken possession of by it. Nevertheless, well might Luther explain, when he became acquainted with Wessel's works, that, if he had written nothing before he read them, people might have thought that he had stolen all his ideas from them. It follows from the peculiar aphoristical character of Wessel's works, that no single idea can be pointed out as the centre of the whole system. In their somewhat mechanical juxtaposition, all its ideas have an equal right, and any one of them might be chosen for an introductory or preliminary characterization of his theological standpoint. Viewed, however, as a Reformer before the Reformation, his idea of the church becomes of special interest; and he has given a very happy definition of it in his Ep. ad Jac. Hoecl. iii. a, where he says, "I believe, and yet I do not believe in her." The church is not a community, the community of saints; not, as Wiclif and Hus have it, a communio sanctorum, but a communio sanctuarum, involving an idea of human personality which the pure doctrine of predestination is incapable of assimilating. The benefits which the individual may derive from this community are great, are invaluable, but at no moment can he become dependent on it for his personal relation to God. An organization and a visible representation of the community are good, are even necessary; but an organization sub uno papa is wholly incidental, and may be changed. The Pope is so far from being infallible, that the right of the church to criticize and correct him is indispensable to safety. And less infallible are the rest of the clergy and the councils too. But where, then, is the authority? In external affairs, and in them alone, the authority rests with the incidental organization, which may be changed. But, with respect to questions of faith, it rests solely with the Bible; and so far as Wessel thought it necessary or expedient to apply any supplementary support, he seems, like a true son of the Sorbonne, to hold the professions of divinity to the priest. There is a ministerium, and its influence may reach into the innermost recesses of religious life; but always that influence depends solely upon the individual, spiritual gifts of the minister: the office has by itself no inherent authority whatever. It is apparent that such an idea of the church must in a very high degree affect the idea of the sacraments. In the middle ages the church was not only the administrator, but also the dispenser, of the means of grace: nay, she was herself the sum total of all means of grace. Consequently, in medieval theology, the doctrine of the church formed the basis for the doctrine of the sacrament; and a radical change of the former necessarily produced a corresponding modification of the latter. To Wessel the sacraments are simply fidei instrumenta, tanto semper efficacia, quando est fides necoscio, as has already been hinted above with respect to the Lord's Supper. The idea of an opus operatum he rejects. The efficacy of the mass does not depend on the intentio of either the administrant or the acceptant, but solely on the disposito of the latter; and this disposito consists in hunger and thirst for the means of grace: the idea of a sacrifice he leaves entirely out of consideration. The consequence of this misunderstanding Wessel's life have been carried on chiefly by Dutch scholars, and brought to a close by W. Muuring: Commentatio historico-theologica de Wesseli, etc., Utrecht, 1831, and De Wessel, principis atque virtutibus, Amsterdam, 1840. See also Ullmann: Johann Wessel, Hamburg, 1854, and Reformatorenr d. Reformation, 1866, 2d ed., 3 vols.; J. Fried- rich: Johann Wessel, Regensburg, 1862; T. Jacob: Johannes Wesselius quo jure Lutheri antecessor appetebi passit, Jena, 1878). H. Schmidt.

Wessenberg, Ignaz Heinrich, b. in Dresden, Nov. 4, 1774; d. at Constance, Aug. 8, 1860; one of the noblest representatives of liberal Catholicism in the beginning of the present century. He was educated at Dillingen, under Sailer, and then studied theology at Würzburg (where he first became acquainted with Dalberg) and in Vienna. In 1800 Dalberg appointed him his vicar-general in the diocese of Constance; and when Dalberg died, 1817, the curia of Constance unanimously elected him bishop. The Roman curia, however, refused in a very harsh manner to confirm the election; and when the curia, on two later occasions, continued to refuse to admit him to office, he retired to private life. The reasons of the curia's aversion to him were, that he advocated the establishment of a national church of Germany (Die Deutsche Kirche, Constance, 1814), and the revival of the general councils (Die grossen Kirchenversammlungen des 15. und 16. Jahrhun- erts, Constance, 1840, 4 vols.), and that, as vicar-general, he had introduced the German language into the Liturgy and choir-singing of the churches of his diocese, and sent his seminarians to Pestalozzi to learn the new method of instruction,—presumptions which could never be forgiven. See his life, by J. Brack, Freiburg, 1892. PALMER.
The Life of the Rev. Samuel Hopkins, D.D., 1806. Two of his pamphlets awakened a notable opposition: they were entitled A Sermon on the Duty and Obligation of Christians to marry in the Lord (1779), A Vindication of the Church in Stockbridge in excommunion against one of its Members. Realizing publishing more than a dozen sermons, and numerous essays in the Theological Magazine and the Connecticut Evangelical Magazine, he was engaged in an elaborate correspondence with the Rev. Dr. John Ryland of England, and many other theologians.

As he read Latin with great facility, was familiar with the Greek of the New Testament, and had a respectable acquaintance with the Hebrew language; as he was an acute metaphysician, and a profound student of the Bible; as he was instructive and often a highly eloquent preacher,—he attracted to himself many theological pupils. They resided in his house, and uniformly spoke of him in terms of the highest admiration. At least five of them became eminent as preachers and writers. Two of them were Samuel Spring, D.D., of Newburyport, and John Thornton Kirkland, L.L.D., president of Harvard College. The latter was not only a man of wonderful diligence in his study, but was also a man of affairs. He exerted a marked influence over jurists. On the sabbath he was regularly listened to by six judges of Massachusetts courts. Of these the most celebrated was Theodore Sedgwick, whose personal intercourse with his pastor was intimate and long-continued. In 1793, when Williams College was incorporated, Dr. West "was named as one of the trustees, and at the first meeting of the board was elected vice-president of the institution." He was one of Dr. Samuel Spring's chief counsellors in forming the Creed and Associate Statutes of Andover Theological Seminary. He was also a pioneer in the work of missionary and various charitable institutions.

EDWARDS A. PARK.

WESTEN, Thomas von, b. at Trondhjem in 1682; d. there April 9, 1727; occupies a prominent place in the history of Protestant missions, on account of his self-sacrificing but very successful labor among the Fins and Lapps of the northernmost part of the Scandinavian peninsula. He studied theology at the university of Copenhagen, and was in 1710 appointed pastor of Wedoen, in the diocese of Trondhjem. Meanwhile, the foul Paganism and moral depravity in which the Finnish and Lappish nomads of Northern Norway lived had begun to attract the attention of the government; and, the Collegium de promovendo cursu evangelii having been founded in 1714, a college for the training of missionaries to the Fins and Lapps was immediately established at Trondhjem, and Westen was appointed its director Feb. 28, 1716. In the same year he made his first missionary tour in Norland and Finnmarken; in 1718–19 his second, during which, churches were built in Tana, Porsanger, and Alten, and some Finnish children were brought to Trondhjem to be educated as missionaries; and in 1722 his third, which already showed good results. He was completely master of the language; translated Luther's Catechism into Lappish; wrote a Grammatica Lapponica, a Specimen vocabularii Lapponici, a Lappish spelling-book, etc.; and he succeeded in educating a number of zealous and devoted disciples. See HAMMOND: Nordl. Missionsgeschichte, Copenhagen, 1787. HERZOG.

WESTERN THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY, The.

The need of a theological seminary for the West had been felt for several years previous to the action on the subject taken by the General Assembly (O.S.) in 1825, which action was as follows: "It is expedient forthwith to establish a theological seminary in the West, to be styled 'The Western Theological Seminary of the Presbyterian Church of the United States.'" In 1827 the location was fixed at Allegheny, Allegheny County, Penn.; and on Nov. 16, 1827, the seminary was opened, with Rev. Joseph Stockton and Rev. Elisha P. Swift, D.D., as instructors. At that time "Alleghenytown, opposite Pittsburgh," was, an unincorporated village, and a part of Ross Township. As one of the inducements to locating the seminary at this place, eighteen acres of "common" had been released for the use of the institution. This grant included what is now known as "Monument Hill;" and on the summit of this hill the first building was erected. This building was occupied from the spring of 1831 until its total destruction by fire on Jan. 23, 1834. The present seminary building, which was dedicated on Jan. 10, 1856, is delightfully situated on Ridge Avenue, with West Park in front, and Monument Hill in the rear. The buildings of the seminary consist of Seminary Hall, containing chapel, lecture-rooms, and dormitories; Memorial Hall, containing dormitories, studies, and gymnasium; Library Hall, fire proof; and five professors' houses.

The government of the seminary is vested in a board of directors and a board of trustees; the former consisting of forty members (twenty-eight ministers, and twelve ruling elders), one-fourth of whom are chosen annually, the Board having the power to fill vacancies, subject to the veto of the General Assembly. The Board of Directors have power to elect, suspend, and remove professors; such election and removal being subject to the veto of the General Assembly. They superintend the curriculum, inspect the fidelity of the professors, and watch over the conduct of the students. The Board of Trustees, incorporated by the Legislature of the State of Pennsylvania on March 29, 1844, consists of thirty members, "nine of whom shall at all times be laymen citizens of the State of Pennsylvania," and to them is committed the management and disbursement of the funds of the institution. The internal management of the seminary is devolved upon the professors as a faculty, with the senior professor as president. Each professor at his inauguration subscribes the following pledge: "In the presence of God and of the directors of this seminary, I do solemnly, and ex animo, adopt, receive, and subscribe the Confession of Faith and Catechisms of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America as the confession of my faith, or as a summary and just exhibition of that system of doctrine and religious belief which is contained in the Holy Scripture, and therein revealed by God to man for his salvation. And I do solemnly ex animo profess to receive the form of government of said church as agreeable to the inspired oracles. And I do solemnly promise and engage not to incul-
WESTMINSTER ABBEY. 2499 WESTMINSTER ASSEMBLY.

Cate, teach, or insinuate any thing which shall appear to me to contradict or contravene, either directly or impliedly, anything taught in the said Confession of Faith or Catechisms, or to oppose, either directly or impliedly, anything expressed in the said Confession of Faith or Catechisms, nor to oppose, either directly or impliedly, any of the fundamental principles of Presbyterian church government, while I shall continue a professor in this seminary."

There are five professorships, all endowed and all filled. The endowment of a chair of eloquence is just about completed. The seminary is open to students from all denominations of Christians. In addition to the regular course, extending over three years, there is a post-graduate course, for those who, from this or any other seminary, wish to pursue advanced studies. Nursed in the lap of the old synod of Pittsburgh, which, as soon as it was conscious of organic life, constituted itself the Western Missionary Society, the seminary inherited the missionary spirit. Her sons are found in all lands, and on the roll of her worthies are found the names of martyrs. The whole number of alumni is 1,415. It will not be deemed invidious to place at the head of the numerous tombs of royalty and the tombs of royalty and the tombs of martyrs. The abbey has been accorded to many whose fame was interred with their bones. See Dean Stanley's brilliant Memorials of Westminster Abbey, London, 1867; 5th ed., 1882.

WESTMINSTER ABBEY. This famous pile, at once cathedral and walhalla, is upon the site of a Saxon church, within the so-called "Thorney Isle," built under King Sebert in the seventh century. Long before the Norman Conquest (eleventh century), it was connected with a Benedictine monastery called the "Western," in contradistinction to St. Paul's, which was east. Hence the name "Western." Given to the church subsequently built upon this site by Edward the Confessor (1055-65), who, though a Saxon, employed the Norman style of architecture. All that is now left of Edward's buildings are a few traces about the choir and the structure of the dormitory, and on the south end of the abbey the Pyx house, or chapel of the Pyx, in which the sacred vessel containing the eucharistic elements was kept. Henry III. (1216-72) is the great name connected with the abbey. It was in his time that the abbey church in the Early-English style, and the present transepts and choir are his; but the greater part of the present building dates from the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries. Henry VII.'s Chapel, in Late Perpendicular, is one of the most beautiful portions of the abbey. The most frequented is the "Poets' Corner," where lie buried Chaucer and Spenser, and where are the monuments to Shakespeare and Milton. The abbey as it now stands is in the form of a Latin cross, 611 feet long by 205 feet wide across the transepts. The nave and aisles are 74 feet wide, the choir 38 feet, and Henry VII.'s Chapel 70 feet.

The abbey passed from the government of an abbot to that of a dean when the monasteries were dissolved. For a short time there was a bishopric of Westminster, the seminary is open to students from all denominations of Christians. In addition to the regular course, extending over three years, there is a post-graduate course, for those who, from this or any other seminary, wish to pursue advanced studies. Nursed in the lap of the old synod of Pittsburgh, which, as soon as it was conscious of organic life, constituted itself the Western Missionary Society, the seminary inherited the missionary spirit. Her sons are found in all lands, and on the roll of her worthies are found the names of martyrs. The whole number of alumni is 1,415. It will not be deemed invidious to place at the head of the numerous tombs of royalty and the tombs of royalty and the tombs of martyrs. The abbey has been accorded to many whose fame was interred with their bones. See Dean Stanley's brilliant Memorials of Westminster Abbey, London, 1867; 5th ed., 1882.

WESTMINSTER ASSEMBLY (1643-52), a synod of Calvinistic and Puritan divines, which was held in the Reformed churches, not excepting even that of Dort, although this was of more importance for the Continent. It grew out of that great movement in English church history which began with the rising of the Scotch nation against the semi-Popish tyranny of Charles I., and Archbishop Laud, rolled like an avalanche all over England, cemented both nations in the "Solemn League and Covenant" (1643), and resulted in the temporary overthrow of the Stuart dynasty and episcopacy and the brilliant reign of Puritanism under Cromwell. The assembly was called together by the Long Parliament (which lasted from 1640 to 1652), to form, on a Calvinistic and Puritan basis, a complete creed, and a system of church polity and worship for the three united kingdoms of England, Scotland, and Ireland. It consisted of a hundred and twenty-one English clergymen (nearly all of them in episcopal orders, but of puritanic tendencies), five Scotch commissioners, and thirty lay assessors, of whom ten were peers, and twenty commoners. The members were all appointed by Parliament. The most distinguished were Lightfoot (the great rabbinic scholar), and others who were the voice of the English Puritans in the assembly. The assembly was directed to meet "at Westminster, in the chappell called King Henry the Seventh's Chappell on the first day of July, in the year of our Lord 1643," to confer and treat amongst themselves of such matters and touching and concerning the liturgy, discipline and government of the Church of England, or the vindicating and clearing of the doctrine of the same from all false aspersions and misrepresentations. The assembly was directed to meet "at Westminster, in the chappell called King Henry the Seventh's Chappell on the first day of July, in the year of our Lord 1643," to confer and treat amongst themselves of such matters and touching and concerning the liturgy, discipline and government of the Church of England, or the vindicating and clearing of the doctrine of the same from all false aspersions and misrepresentations. The assembly was directed to meet "at Westminster, in the chappell called King Henry the Seventh's Chappell on the first day of July, in the year of our Lord 1643," to confer and treat amongst themselves of such matters and touching and concerning the liturgy, discipline and government of the Church of England, or the vindicating and clearing of the doctrine of the same from all false aspersions and misrepresentations.
The Westminster Assembly, 2500 Westminster Assembly.

Henry VII.'s chapel, in the place of his convocation Westminster. about the bounds of the college fore nor anywhere is shortly like to be. The did sit in station; but since the weather grew cold, they did go to Jerusalem chamber, a fair room in the abbey of inscription of the assembly:—

hnll, but wider. At the one end, nearest the door, severe penalties. at the two leading parties, there was a small fraction of pressly instituted or commanded. Beside these importance. The e even hundred and sixty-third '25, 1652. The assembly was not formall dis ecutive body, engaged chiefly in examination of standards (1648), the assembly became an ex public worship there was substantial harmony. On the subject of church government called forth long and earnest debates. Twisse, Gataker, Palmer, Temple, and several other learned members, inclined to what was called primitive episcopacy, or presbyterianism with superintendent. The Scotch commissioners, and the Puritans of the school of Cartwright contended for a pure divina, or high church presbyterianism pure and simple, but had to consent to the compromise phrase "lawful, and agreeable to the word of God," instead of "expressly instituted or commanded." Besides these two leading parties, there was a small fraction of Independents who had strong political influence (Cromwell being on their side), and advocated a limited degree of toleration. On the subject of public worship there was substantial harmony. After completing its doctrinal and disciplinary standards (1648), the assembly became an executive body, engaged chiefly in examination of candidates, and rapidly lost its authority and importance. The eleven hundred and sixty-third session was held Feb. 22, 1648; the last, in March 25, 1652. The assembly was not formally dissolved; but, as Fuller says, "it dwindled by degrees," and "vanished with the Parliament" which called it into existence.

Principal Baillie, the chief of the commissioners of Scotland, gives the following graphic description of the assembly:—

"The like of that Assembly I did never see, and as we hear say, the like was never in England, nor anywhere is shortly like to be. They did sit in Henry VII.'s chapel, in the place of the convocation; but since the weather grew cold, they did go to Jerusalem chamber, a fair room in the abbey of Westminster. From its being a part of the house of commons, it was more comfortable quarters, — the famous Jerusalem chamber, a fair room in the abbey of Westminster. It held all sessions in the west end there is a chair set on a frame, a foot there will be room but for ve or six score. At the one end, nearest the door, and both sides, are stages of seats as in the new assembly-house at Edinburgh, but not so high; for there will be room but for five or six score. At the upmost end there is a chair set on a frame, a foot from the earth, for the Mr. Prolocutor, Dr. Twisse. Before it on the ground stand two chairs for the two Mr. Assessors, Dr. Burgess and Mr. White. Before these two chairs, through the whole length of the house, stands a table at which sit the two scribes, Mr. Ry- field and Mr. Rorerough. The house is all well hung, and has a good fire, which is sound, and we meet every day of the week but Saturday. We sit commonly from nine to one or two afternoon.

"The like of that Assembly I did never see, and as we hear say, the like was never in England, nor anywhere is shortly like to be. They harangue long and very learnedly. They study the questions well beforehand, and prepare their speeches, but within the men are exceedingly prompt and well-spoken. I do marvel at the very accurate and extemporal replies that many of them usually make."

The estimates of the assembly differ widely according to the denominational stand-point of the writer, but all must agree as to its importance and influence. Milton at first praised it highly; but, when it condemned his unauthorized book on Divorce he spoke of it and of the Long Parliament with vindictive scorn. Clarendon disparaged it in his History of the Rebellion. Baxter, who, from his familiarity with the leading members, was more competent to judge than either, thought that the synod compared favorably with any since the days of the apostles, and called its members "men of eminent learning, godliness, ministerial abilities, and fidelity." Stoughton (an Independent) gives the Westminster divines credit for "learning — scriptural, patriotic, scholaistic, and modern — enough and to spare, all solid, substantial, and ready for use." A German historian, Gen. Von Rudloff, judged them "zealous, intelligent, and learned body of divines seldom, if ever, met in Christendom." Dr. Briggs closes his article on the Westminster Assembly with this strong commendation:—

"Looking at the Westminster Assembly as a whole, it is safe to say that there never was a body of divines who labored more conscientiously, carefully, fully, and industriously in writing more important documents, or a richer theological literature, than that remarkably learned, able, and pious body, who, for a score of years, met in the Jerusalem Chamber of Westminster Abbey."
On the Continent it is little known; but, among all the Presbyterian churches of Great Britain, and the United States, it is a familiar household word. It attempted too much, and went on the assumption of one national church, that should embrace all Englishmen, Scotchmen, and Irishmen, and be subject to one creed and one polity. But this was the error of the age, in which Episcopalianism shared alike with the Puritans. Both were equally intolerant, and expelled all nonconformists from their livings. The Independents, Baptists, and Quakers were somewhat in advance; yet the Independents excluded from toleration the Prelatists, Roman Catholics, Quakers, and Unitarians. It was only after a long series of persecutions and failures, that the idea of religious freedom took firm root in English soil. But while the Westminster Assembly and the Long Parliament failed, as far as England and Ireland are concerned, and were succeeded by the restoration of the Stuart dynasty and episcopacy, the doctrinal and disciplinary standards of the assembly have retained their vitality in Scotland and North America to this day. (See Westminster Standards.)

Westminster Standards. The Westminster Assembly of Divines (see preceding article) produced a complete set of church books, relating to doctrine, discipline, and worship. They were subjected to the Long Parliament, which ratified them with certain changes. With the Restoration of the Stuarts they were set aside in England, but retained in Presbyterian Scotland, and in all the American Presbyterian churches. The doctrinal standards were also acknowledged, with some modifications, by the Independents, or Congregationalists, in England and New England.

I. The Doctrinal Standards. 1. The Westminster Confession of Faith. It was completed Dec. 4, 1646, provided with the Scripture passages (by order of Parliament, which had six hundred copies printed), approved in full by the Church of Scotland in 1647, and, with a few changes, by the Long Parliament in 1648, under the title of Articles of Religion, omitting chaps. xxx. and xxxi. and parts of chaps. xx. and xxiv. But in spite of Parliament the Confession continues to be printed in Great Britain in the form in which it left the Assembly, and was adopted by the Church of Scotland. Its original title is, The Humble Advice of the Assembly of Divines now, by Authority of Parliament, concerning a Confession of Faith, with the Quotations and Texts of Scripture annexed. Presented by them lately to both Houses of Parliament. (See the facsimile in Schaff's Creeds, i. 595.) It consists of thirty-three chapters beginning with the doctrine of the Bible as the only rule of faith and practice, and ending with the last judgment. It is the clearest, strongest, most logical, and most carefully symbolic statement of the Calvinistic scheme of Christian doctrine. (See Calvinism.) It is based upon a thorough study of the Scriptures, the Continental Reformed theology, the earlier English and Scotch Confessions, but more particularly (as Dr. Mitchell has shown) upon the Irish Articles, which were probably drawn up by Archbishop Usher, 1615, and form the connecting link between the Thirty-nine Articles and the Westminster Confession. Several sections, especially on the Holy Scriptures, the Holy Trinity, the Divine Decrees, the Fall, the Perseverance of Saints, and the Civil Magistrate, are almost verbatim derived from these Articles, which had been set aside by Archbishop Laud. (See Mitchell: The Westminster Confession, 1867, and Introduction to the Minutes. Schaff: Creeds, i. 762 sqq., and iii. § 20 sqq., where the Irish Articles are given in full.)

The United Presbyterian Church of Scotland has recently adopted an explanatory supplement.
or "Declaratory Act" (May, 1879) which "sets forth more fully and clearly" some doctrines of the Westminster Standards, among which are the following important modifications of the Westminster statements:

1. "That in regard to the doctrine of the Mediation of Christ and the Lord's Prayer, as taught in the Standards, and in consistency with the doctrine of redemption and of salvation, to men without distinction, on the ground of Christ's perfect sacrifice, are matters which have been and continue to be regarded by this church as vital in the system of its gospel truth, and to which due prominence ought ever to be given.

2. "That the doctrine of the divine decrees, including the doctrine of election to eternal life, is held in connection and harmony with the truth that God is not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance, and that he has provided a salvation sufficient for all, adapted to all, and offered to all in the gospel; and also with the responsibility of every one for his dealing with the free and unrestricted offer of eternal life.

3. "That the doctrine of man's total depravity, and of his loss of all ability of will to any spiritual good or acceptable salvation, is held, after such a condition of man's nature as would affect his responsibility under the law of God and the gospel, not that he does not experience the strivings and restraining influences of the Spirit of God, or that he cannot perform actions in any sense good; although actions which do not spring from a renewed heart are not spiritually good or holy, but such as accompany salvation.

4. "That while none are saved except through the Mediation of Christ and by the grace of His Holy Spirit who worketh when and where and how it pleaseth him; while the duty of sending the gospel to the heathen, who are saved in ignorance, sin, and misery, is clear and imperative; and while the outward and ordinary means of salvation for those capable of being called by the Word are the ordinances of the gospel, in accepting the Standards, it is not required to be held that any who die in infancy are lost, or that God may not extend his grace to any who are without the pale of ordinary means, as it may seem good in his sight.

5. "That in regard to the doctrine of the Civil Magistracy and his authority and duty in the sphere of religion as taught in the Standards, this church holds that the Lord Jesus Christ is the only King and Governor of the church, and 'Head over all things to the church, which is his body,' disapproves of all compulsory or persecuting and intolerant principles in religion; and declares that she disapproves of any thing in her Standards that teaches, or may be supposed to teach, such principles."

The American Presbyterian churches adopted the Westminster Confession and Catechisms at first without alteration, but with a liberal construction, "as being, in all the essential and necessary articles, good forms of sound words and systems of Christian doctrine" (Synod of Philadelphia, Sept. 15, 1729). After the Revolution, however, it became necessary to change the articles on church polity, and to adapt them to the volume of opinion and the separation of Church and State. Such changes were made in chaps. xx., xxxii., 3, xxxi., 1 and 2, and adopted in the Synod of Philadelphia, May 29, 1788. (See the changes in Schaff's Creeds, i, 506 sqq.) The Protestant-Episcopal Church had to make similar alterations in the Thirty-nine Articles of the Church of England; for all the creeds of the sixteenth century imply the union of Church and State, and the duty of the civil magistrate to support religion, and to punish heresy.

The Cumberland Presbyterian Church in 1813 made some doctrinal changes by modifying the statement on predetermination in chap. iii. (See Schaff's Creeds, iii. 771.) The same body has subjected its modified confession to another revision in 1888. The Cumberland Presbyterians reject unconditional election, but hold to the perseverance of saints. (See Cumberland Presbyterians.)
the Catechisms by Vincent, Watson, Flavel, Fisher, Allison, Brown, Mair, Green, and many others; Alexander Taylor Innes: The Law of Creeds in Scotland, Edinburgh, 1867; Alexander F. Mitchell (of St. Andrew's); The Westminster Confession of Faith, Edinburgh, 3d ed., 1867 (comp. also the valuable Introduction to his edition of the Minutes, Edinburgh, 1874); Schaff: Creeds of Christendom, i. 783 sqq. and iii. 597 sqq.; the editions of the Confession and the Catechisms published by the Scotch Presbyterian Assemblies and the Presbyterian Board in Philadelphia. Niemeyer published a Latin translation as an appendix to his collection of the Reformed Confessions, 1840.

II. THE DIRECTORY OF PUBLIC WORSHIP. This was prepared during 1644, sanctioned by the English Parliament Jan. 3, 1645, approved by the Scotch Assembly and Parliament in February, 1645, and published in the same year in London and Edinburgh. It was intended to be a substitute for the Anglican Book of Common Prayer; but, instead of prescribing liturgical forms, it gives minute directions and suggestions to the minister how to conduct public worship.

III. THE DIRECTORY OF GOVERNMENT AND DISCIPLINE. This sets forth the principles of Presbyterian church polity, on which see the art. Presbyterianism and the literature there given. The debates of the Assembly on church government will probably be published soon by Professor Mitchell, from the Minutes in Dr. Warden's library. Philip Schaff.

WESTPHAL, Joachim, b. in Hamburg in 1510 or 1511; d. there Jan. 18, 1574. He studied theology at Wittenberg, under Luther and Melanchthon; visited, also, the universities of Jena, Erfurt, Marburg, Heidelberg, Strassburg, and Basel; and was appointed preacher at the Church of St. Catherine, in his native city, in 1541, and superintendent in 1571. He began his polemical activity by partaking in the controversy occasioned by the Leipzig Interim; and siding with Flacius, and attacking Melanchthon, he wrote two pamphlets on the question of true and false adoration, and the right of the prince to reform the confession of faith within the boundaries of his territory.

Leaving entirely out of consideration the merely political elements of the negotiations, and confining ourselves to the purely religious and ecclesiastical questions, the two general points of agreement were the confirmation of the peace with Swedes, and princes of the empire, and of the foreign powers concerned, sat at Osnabrück, a city of Westphalia, and finished its work Aug 8, 1648: the other part, consisting of deputies of the emperor, France, and other foreign powers concerned, sat at Münster, a neighboring city, and finished its work Sept. 17. The complete instrument of peace was finally signed at Münster, Sept. 24, 1648.

Leaving entirely out of consideration the merely political elements of the negotiations, and confining ourselves to the purely religious and ecclesiastical questions, the two general points of agreement were the confirmation of the peace with Swedes, and princes of the empire, and of the foreign powers concerned, sat at Osnabrück, a city of Westphalia, and finished its work Aug 8, 1648: the other part, consisting of deputies of the emperor, France, and other foreign powers concerned, sat at Münster, a neighboring city, and finished its work Sept. 17. The complete instrument of peace was finally signed at Münster, Sept. 24, 1648.

The preliminaries were agreed upon as early as December, 1641; but the treacherous equivocations of the emperor, the jealousy between Sweden and France (who had different and opposite interests to defend), and the almost incredible haggling between the powers concerning rank and ceremony, prevented the congress from actually beginning its work until April, 1645. One part of the congress, consisting of deputies of the emperor, Sweden, and princes of the empire, sat at Osnabrück, a city of Westphalia, and finished its work Aug 8, 1648: the other part, consisting of deputies of the emperor, France, and other foreign powers concerned, sat at Münster, a neighboring city, and finished its work Sept. 17. The complete instrument of peace was finally signed at Münster, Sept. 24, 1648.

Leaving entirely out of consideration the merely political elements of the negotiations, and confining ourselves to the purely religious and ecclesiastical questions, the two general points of agreement were the confirmation of the peace with Swedes, and princes of the empire, and of the foreign powers concerned, sat at Osnabrück, a city of Westphalia, and finished its work Aug 8, 1648: the other part, consisting of deputies of the emperor, France, and other foreign powers concerned, sat at Münster, a neighboring city, and finished its work Sept. 17. The complete instrument of peace was finally signed at Münster, Sept. 24, 1648.

Leaving entirely out of consideration the merely political elements of the negotiations, and confining ourselves to the purely religious and ecclesiastical questions, the two general points of agreement were the confirmation of the peace with Swedes, and princes of the empire, and of the foreign powers concerned, sat at Osnabrück, a city of Westphalia, and finished its work Aug 8, 1648: the other part, consisting of deputies of the emperor, France, and other foreign powers concerned, sat at Münster, a neighboring city, and finished its work Sept. 17. The complete instrument of peace was finally signed at Münster, Sept. 24, 1648.

Leaving entirely out of consideration the merely political elements of the negotiations, and confining ourselves to the purely religious and ecclesiastical questions, the two general points of agreement were the confirmation of the peace with Swedes, and princes of the empire, and of the foreign powers concerned, sat at Osnabrück, a city of Westphalia, and finished its work Aug 8, 1648: the other part, consisting of deputies of the emperor, France, and other foreign powers concerned, sat at Münster, a neighboring city, and finished its work Sept. 17. The complete instrument of peace was finally signed at Münster, Sept. 24, 1648.

Leaving entirely out of consideration the merely political elements of the negotiations, and confining ourselves to the purely religious and ecclesiastical questions, the two general points of agreement were the confirmation of the peace with Swedes, and princes of the empire, and of the foreign powers concerned, sat at Osnabrück, a city of Westphalia, and finished its work Aug 8, 1648: the other part, consisting of deputies of the emperor, France, and other foreign powers concerned, sat at Münster, a neighboring city, and finished its work Sept. 17. The complete instrument of peace was finally signed at Münster, Sept. 24, 1648.

Leaving entirely out of consideration the merely political elements of the negotiations, and confining ourselves to the purely religious and ecclesiastical questions, the two general points of agreement were the confirmation of the peace with Swedes, and princes of the empire, and of the foreign powers concerned, sat at Osnabrück, a city of Westphalia, and finished its work Aug 8, 1648: the other part, consisting of deputies of the emperor, France, and other foreign powers concerned, sat at Münster, a neighboring city, and finished its work Sept. 17. The complete instrument of peace was finally signed at Münster, Sept. 24, 1648.

Leaving entirely out of consideration the merely political elements of the negotiations, and confining ourselves to the purely religious and ecclesiastical questions, the two general points of agreement were the confirmation of the peace with Swedes, and princes of the empire, and of the foreign powers concerned, sat at Osnabrück, a city of Westphalia, and finished its work Aug 8, 1648: the other part, consisting of deputies of the emperor, France, and other foreign powers concerned, sat at Münster, a neighboring city, and finished its work Sept. 17. The complete instrument of peace was finally signed at Münster, Sept. 24, 1648.

Leaving entirely out of consideration the merely political elements of the negotiations, and confining ourselves to the purely religious and ecclesiastical questions, the two general points of agreement were the confirmation of the peace with Swedes, and princes of the empire, and of the foreign powers concerned, sat at Osnabrück, a city of Westphalia, and finished its work Aug 8, 1648: the other part, consisting of deputies of the emperor, France, and other foreign powers concerned, sat at Münster, a neighboring city, and finished its work Sept. 17. The complete instrument of peace was finally signed at Münster, Sept. 24, 1648.
WETSTEIN, 2504

WETTE, DE.

after that date should be returned to the Roman-Catholic Church, and vice versa. Of course, such a rule could not be carried out with any degree of strictness without harshness. It seems, however, that the general result of the negotiations gave satisfaction to both the parties concerned. More difficult was the second point. The maxim, cujus dominium, ejus religia, which forms the basis of the so-called "Territorial System," had in Germany given rise to many despotic acts, entailng much suffering and endless confusion. More than once a prince had, by one stroke of the pen, changed the confession of his country from Lutheranism to Calvinism, or from Calvinism to Lutheranism; and generally the stroke of the pen had to be followed up with exile, confiscation of property, imprisonment, and the stake. It was how decided that those who on the day mentioned held a certain right of worship should continue to hold it, irrespective of the prince's judgement; but people said he wanted to take away a certain right which at that time had acquired no such right were still at the mercy of their prince.

It must be noticed that all these stipulations were valid only for the German Empire, but not for the hereditary Austrian possessions of the emperor. Some of the great feudal lords of Silesia, the dukes of Brieg, Liegnitz, Münsterberg, Oels, and the city of Breslau, obtained certain privileges from the emperor; but with respect to his other subjects no security, not even a promise of toleration, was given. At the signing of the treaty at Münter, the papal legate, Fabius Chigi, formally protested; and the protest was followed up by the bull Zelo Domus Dei, Nov. 20, 1648. But the protest had no influence whatever, nor was it expected to have any. The usual diplomatic formalities were rapidly gone through, and peace was actually restored.

WETSTEIN, Johann Jakob, b. in Basel, March 5, 1693; d. in Amsterdam, March 29, 1754. He early showed his inclination toward biblical-textual studies; and his first dissertation was upon the various readings of the New Testament. His acquaintance with New-Testament manuscripts was greatly increased by his travels in France and England; but in 1729 he returned to Basel to become assistant to his father. He was牧or of St. Leonhard's Church. Although his duties were not congenial, they were faithfully performed. Meanwhile he continued the preparation of his great edition of the Greek New Testament, and gave private lectures upon exegesis and dogmatics. Bengel was preparing his edition, and employed two Basel professors to collate the codices in the Basel Library. Between these two and Wetstein a feud arose respecting the age and value of E (see BIBLE TEXT), which Wetstein did not put so high as they, resting on Mill's authority. The feud became personal; and then the vague rumors of heterodoxy, which had for some time been circulating, assumed the form of charges. To many persons conclusive evidence of this aberration was Wetstein's rejection of the reading of the textus receptus, for which evidence of this he was tried for holding Arian and Socinian views, found guilty, and deposed May 13, 1730. But just then a new career opened to him: he succeeded Clericus in the Remonstrants' College at Amsterdam, and therefore no longer held a rule could not be carried out with any degree of strictness without harshness. It seems, however, that the general result of the negotiations gave satisfaction to both the parties concerned. More difficult was the second point. The maxim, cujus dominium, ejus religia, which forms the basis of the so-called "Territorial System," had in Germany given rise to many despotic acts, entailng much suffering and endless confusion. More than once a prince had, by one stroke of the pen, changed the confession of his country from Lutheranism to Calvinism, or from Calvinism to Lutheranism; and generally the stroke of the pen had to be followed up with exile, confiscation of property, imprisonment, and the stake. It was how decided that those who on the day mentioned held a certain right of worship should continue to hold it, irrespective of the prince's judgement; but people said he wanted to take away a certain right which at that time had acquired no such right were still at the mercy of their prince.

It must be noticed that all these stipulations were valid only for the German Empire, but not for the hereditary Austrian possessions of the emperor. Some of the great feudal lords of Silesia, the dukes of Brieg, Liegnitz, Münsterberg, Oels, and the city of Breslau, obtained certain privileges from the emperor; but with respect to his other subjects no security, not even a promise of toleration, was given. At the signing of the treaty at Münter, the papal legate, Fabius Chigi, formally protested; and the protest was followed up by the bull Zelo Domus Dei, Nov. 20, 1648. But the protest had no influence whatever, nor was it expected to have any. The usual diplomatic formalities were rapidly gone through, and peace was actually restored.

WETSTEIN, Johann Jakob, b. in Basel, March 5, 1693; d. in Amsterdam, March 29, 1754. He early showed his inclination toward biblical-textual studies; and his first dissertation was upon the various readings of the New Testament. His acquaintance with New-Testament manuscripts was greatly increased by his travels in France and England; but in 1729 he returned to Basel to become assistant to his father, who was pastor of St. Leonhard's Church. Although his duties were not congenial, they were faithfully performed. Meanwhile he continued the preparation of his great edition of the Greek New Testament, and gave private lectures upon exegesis and dogmatics. Unlike Bengel and Paulus, De Wette resorted to mythical interpretation of the Bible miracles. Of course, such an interpretation increases in probability, the more remote the narratives are in date from the supposed events. Accordingly, De Wette strove to show in the first-mentioned work that the Pentateuch was not from Moses, but was a collection of several persons and at different times. The earliest collection, Genesis, dates from the time of David; the last, Deuteronomy, from that of Josiah. These views he intended to present at length; but Vater anticipated him, and therefore he modestly made merely an abstract of them, and appended it to his Critical Examination of the Credibility of Chronicles (Jena, 1808) as an avowed supplement to Vater's book on the Pentateuch. De Wette charged intentional alterations and additions in a predomi-natingly levitical and hierarchical spirit upon the Old Testament. He also took a leading part in the so-called Messianic incidents among the Psalmists.

In 1810 he was called to the newly founded university at Berlin. There he had for his colleague Schleiermacher; and the two labored for that "better day" and also then the historical Christ is prophesied anywhere in the collection, referring to the so-called Messianic events and allusions to nearer historical events, although at the same time he granted that the psalmists' descriptions of an ideal future could be practically applied
to nearer historicalevents, although at the same time he granted that the psalmists' descriptions of an ideal future could be practically applied
to nearer historicalevents, although at the
same time he granted that the psalmists' descriptions of an ideal future could be practically applied
to nearer historicalevents, although at the
same time he granted that the psalmists' descriptions of an ideal future could be practically applied
to nearer historicalevents, although at the
same time he granted that the psalmists' descriptions of an ideal future could be practically applied

to nearer historicalevents, although at the
same time he granted that the psalmists' descriptions of an ideal future could be practically applied
to nearer historicalevents, although at the
same time he granted that the psalmists' descriptions of an ideal future could be practically applied

to nearer historicalevents, although at the
same time he granted that the psalmists' descriptions of an ideal future could be practically applied

to nearer historicalevents, although at the
same time he granted that the psalmists' descriptions of an ideal future could be practically applied

to nearer historicalevents, although at the
same time he granted that the psalmists' descriptions of an ideal future could be practically applied

to nearer historicalevents, although at the
same time he granted that the psalmists' descriptions of an ideal future could be practically applied

De Wette's day in Berlin were numbered. Taking a great interest in public affairs, he wrote a letter to the mother of an Erlangen student, Karl Ludwig Sand (who murdered in cold blood August von Kotzebue, a determined foe to liberalism), in which, while expressing deep abhorrence at the crime which took the life of Vitalis Reimarus, he cleared his motives of the suspicions which had been cast upon them, on the ground that the deed was prompted by pure patriotism. For this bold defence he was summarily dismissed from the university by the king (Oct. 2, 1819). He betook himself to Weimar, and there he employed his enforced leisure in preparing the first complete dition of Luther's Letters (1825-26, 5 vols., supplemental volume by Seidemann, 1856), by which, even if he had done nothing else, he would have proved himself a scholar. In 1822 he issued his first romance, Theodore, or the Consecration of the Doubter (Tholuck reediting in his True Consecration of the Doubter, Hamburg, 1823); and his second, Henry Melchthal, in 1829, 2 vols. These stories never found many readers, yet they contain much good writing, and many valuable thoughts upon timey matters. In 1822, quite unexpectedly, he was called to Basel, and there he passed the rest of his days. He did excellent service in advancing the university, and won the hearts of many who had bitterly opposed his coming. There he lectured upon Ethics (Berlin, 1823, 1824, 4 vols.), and upon Religion, its Essence, its Manifestations, and its Influence upon Life (1827). There, also, he preached to a select but highly appreciative audience, and published five collections of sermons (Basel, 1823-29). Another series was published after his death (1849). In 1840 he issued the first part of his unfinished Bible History, or History of Revelation. In 1840 he began, and in 1848 he finished, his renowned Concise Exegetical Commentary on the New Testament,—a work marked by masterly brevity and precision and the most exact and accurate scholarship.

The numerous works already mentioned make up, after all, only a partial list of the writings of this extraordinary and prolific genius. Reviews, criticisms, essays, pamphlets, articles, sermons, addresses, pamphlets, works upon art (Berlin, 1840), even a drama. — The Renunciation (Die Entlassung: Schauspiel in 3 Auf-zügen, Berlin, 1833), and poems, came from his gifted pen. And the fullest record of his literary activity fails to set him forth as he was in himself. He was fond of society, and hospitably inclined; and, although rationalist and "heretic," he took a leading part in all philanthropic movements. He founded (1825) a society in Basel to help the Greeks in their struggle against Turkish tyranny, to send missionaries to Greece, and to educate their children. He took a little Greek boy into his own family, and was a tender foster-father to him. He also founded the Basel branch of the Gustavus Adolphus Union (see art.), to which he gave the name the "Union of Supporters of the Protestant Church."

It remains to mention De Wette's philosophical and theological opinions, early embraced and worked out, and faithfully adhered to through life. These will be best read in his Uber Religion u. Theologie, Erläuterungen zum Lehrbuch der Dogmatik (Berlin, 1815, new edition, 1821). The Theism of the Kantian criticism forms the basis of De Wette's doctrinal system; but he leans visibly towards Jacob's theory of religion as feeling. He makes a sharp distinction between knowledge and feeling. The former is the intellect, and, as he has to do only with finite things; while the infinite must be grasped by faith under the form of feeling.—devotion, enthusiasm, resignation, etc. The infinite is revealed by the finite in a symbolical manner. The whole historical revelation is a symbol in which the eternal and superessential ideas have found their expression. The miracle is a cross to the understanding, but as a symbol it shows its meaning. The dogma is inaccessible to the understanding, but opens itself to the intuition; for intuition is the only means of conception when the object is a symbol. All religious conception is consequently esthetical, and this aesthetical elevation above the merely intelligible is to De Wette the only tenable form of supranaturalism. De Wette was pre-eminently an ethical theologian. He closely connected dogmas with ethics, and made ethical considerations decisive in judging other dogmas. He held fast to the personality of Christ, and in the preface to his Commentary on Revelation made use of the following remarkable language: "I know that there is salvation in no other name but the name of Jesus Christ and him crucified; and that there is nothing higher for humanity than the God-man planted by him. . . . Christianity must become life and deed." This was his dying testimony.

Hagenbach.

Wetzer, Heinrich Joseph, joint editor, with Welte, of the great Roman-Catholic theological encyclopedia; b. at Anzeahr, Hessia, March 19, 1801; d. in Freiburg, Nov. 5, 1853. His favorite study was Oriental philology; and this he prosecuted at Marburg, Tubingen, and Paris. In 1824 he received from Freiburg the degrees of doctor of theology and canon law, and became extraordinary professor of Oriental philology in that university, 1828, and ordinary, 1830. He joined Van Ess in his translation of the Old Testament, Sulzbach, 1840. In 1849 he began the issue of the encyclopedia with which his name and that of the co-editor, Benedikt Welte, are indissolubly connected. The first volume was completed 1847. Wetzer put all his time, strength, and learning at the disposal of the work, and the result was eminently satisfactory. The encyclopedia of Wetzer and Welte is authoritative, fair-minded, and, for a Roman-Catholic work, impartial to a singular degree. (The first volume of a revised edition by Kaulen appeared 1882.) Wetzer was a layman, and married. See his biography in vol. xii. of Wetzer and Welte, pp. 1251-1294.

Whately, Richard, D.D., Archbishop of Dublin; b. in London, Dec. 1, 1787; d. in Dublin, Oct. 8, 1863. He was graduated at Oxford, 1808, and elected fellow of Oriel College, 1811. He did little to cultivate anybody's good will. His inexpressible wit spared neither friend nor foe. Arguing was his passion, and he was as ready to defend his opinions as to form them. He made good use of his time, and laid deep and broad foundations in learning. He also acquired repute as a preacher. The first public exhibition of his peculiar wit was Historic Doubts relative to Napoleon Bonaparte (1819), in which he reduced to absurdity the Hume dictum, that no testimony suffices to prove a miracle, by analyzing the unquestioned facts relative to Napoleon, and pretending to doubt his very existence. The _brochure_ was both his first and his most popular publication. In consequence of his marriage, he resigned his fellowship (1821), and took the rectorship of Halesworth, Suffolk. In 1822 he delivered the Bampton Lectures, On the Use and Abuse of Party Feeling in Religion. In 1825 he was elected principal of St. Alban's Hall, Oxford, and in 1830 professor of political economy. In 1825 he brought out his first series of essays, On some of the Particularities of the Roman-Catholic religion, by which he revived the study of logic in Oxford, and won great fame; for his book was extensively used as a text-book in England and America. But it contained no novelties, rather it was a clear presentation of the Aristotelian-scholastic logic. Next came his _Elements of Rhetoric_ (1829), which likewise has been widely used and much prized. In the same year appeared his second series of essays, On some of the Difficulties in the Writings of the Apostle Paul, and in some of the Other Parts of the New Testament. In the second edition (1830) he inserted an essay, _Thoughts on the Sabbath_, which he also published separately. He gave great offence by opposing the current views. In 1830 appeared his third series of essays, _The Errors of Romanism traced to their Origin in Human Nature_. It is the best antidote to Roman-Catholic error yet published. By these different writings, and by his lectures and sermons, Whately had given evidence of peculiar fitness for the academic life, and had won fame as a liberal theologian of the most independent kind.

To the great astonishment of every one, and in the face of vehement opposition, Professor Whately was in 1831 promoted by the premier, Earl Grey, to the archbishopric of Dublin, and in the autumn of that year began his service. He showed in his new position the same absolute indifference to popular opinion or prejudices, the same delight in stinging wit and biting sarcasm, and the same recklessness in stating his convictions, which had already made him so unpopular. And yet Whately abundantly justified the wisdom of his promotion; for he won his way by the exhibition of a spirit of liberality and kindliness, which has tended to make Ireland better in body and soul. As prime minister of Ireland, he sat in the House of Lords, and made many speeches, which are noticeable for their independence. Thus he advocated a revision of the Liturgy, a revision of the Authorized Version of the Bible, the abrogation of the prohibition to marry a deceased wife's sister, the emancipation of Jews (cf. Speech on Jewish Disabilities, 1833) and Roman Catholics.

Whately's theological standpoint was substantially that of rational supernaturalism. He was, however, no creative genius, but followed, in his usual independent way, the direction of Paley. He left no systematic treatise; yet his principal ideas are easily gathered from his numerous essays, sermons, charges, and speeches; and the living proof of his great influence upon English theology is the Broad Church party. The limpid clearness of his style, and his soberness and impartiality, demand a word of recognition. In his theological writings he ever quietly opposed Tractarianism. The following are the principal points of his distinctive teaching between Reason and Revelation. — What reason can discover is not revealed. What it cannot discover, and yet is not contrary to it, may be made an article of faith by proof from particular passages of Scripture. What is contrary to reason can only be so made by the most indisputable evidence. While believing in the right and necessity of a revelation, he found a place for reason within revelation's limits, and a duty for it,—to find out the truth. Whately was a genuine disciple of the "evidential" school. Faith is to him the conclusion drawn from historical premises. 2. The Scriptures. — Revelation is to be distinguished from mere matters of history, etc. The former is infallible, inspired, if not verbally, at least substantially. The peculiarities of Scripture, its omissions, etc., are to be referred to the special guidance of the Holy Spirit. Its contents are practical truths expressed in popular language. The Bible is to be interpreted as the persons immediately addressed would understand it. There is no infallible interpretation; but the effort should be to get at this primitive understanding by a study of the circumstances and religious ideas and customs of the first Christians. (The method of the "evidential" school of grammatical exegesis.) 3. Doctrine of Election. — In the Old Testament, election is set forth as a "divine" school. There is no infallible interpretation; but the effort should be to get at this primitive understanding by a study of the circumstances and religious ideas and customs of the first Christians. (The method of the "evidential" school of grammatical exegesis.) 3. Doctrine of Election. — In the Old Testament, election is set forth as a "divine" school. There is no infallible interpretation; but the effort should be to get at this primitive understanding by a study of the circumstances and religious ideas and customs of the first Christians. (The method of the "evidential" school of grammatical exegesis.) 4. Christology. — The self-witness of Jesus to his divinity is the strongest proof in the New Testament for the doctrine, and the most important part of it is borne before the Sanhedrin and Pilate. The incarnation is an extraordinary act of revelation, in order (1) to make divinity more intelligible to us, and (2) to give a pattern of human perfection. The death of Christ was sacrificial; but, as circumstances conspired to bring it about, it was not necessarily an unavoidable catastrophe. 5. Doctrine of Justification. — The death of Christ is the only ground of our salvation. There is no such thing as imputed righteousness. 6. Christianity. — (Cf. The Christian's Duty with respect to the Established Government and the Laws, 1821, and The Kingdom of Christ, 1841.) The Christian revelation is substantially a revelation of the truth in the words and example of Christ. Christianity is, on the other hand, a social religion. The kingdom of Christ is a society, whose members may at the same time belong to other societies. Thus the problem of Church and State is solved. Christ has himself given the plan for the society's government, but the execution of this plan lies with the society. It has, like every other society, its officers, who have the right to draw up rules for the admission and expulsion of members. This is the so-called "power of the keys"—a power which does not reach to the forgiveness of sins, but only to ecclesiastical penances. The essentials of Christianity are of universal, the minor matters, only of relative, importance. The authority of ecumenical councils is not justified by the Bible, which rather recognizes independence among churches. There is no such thing as apostolic succession in the sense of its securing the transmission of the Holy Ghost and the efficacy of the sacraments. The true apostolic succession is maintenance of apostolic principles. 7. The Sacraments. — (Cf. Scripture Doctrine concerning the Sacraments, 1857.) Baptism, analogous to circumcision, is the initiatory rite; and infant baptism, with its obligations on the parents, was therefore to be expected, unless it had been expressly prohibited. It is the removal from a state of damnation to a state of grace. The Lord's Supper is symbolic, else the Lord had instructed his disciples otherwise: for they could not have supposed that he gave them his actual body. 8. The transmission of the Holy Ghost.— (Cf. View of the Scripture Revelations concerning a Future State, 1829.) No revelation of immortality in the Old Testament. Belief in it among the Jews first sprang up in the Maccabean period. The only sure ground of it is the express promise of it as a free gift of God through Christ. Resurrection is not to be understood of the atom of the body. 9. The Sabbath. If the Mosaic law has been abrogated, then the law of the sabbath is: if the Mosaic law of the sabbath is still binding, then there is no authority for the change of the day from Saturday to Sunday. Christ himself broke the sabbath, and gave the disciples no command respecting it, but left it to the church to fix a day, precisely as in the case of other festivals. [Whately edited Bacon's Essays, and added annotations, 1858, which have been adjudged worthy of the text; which is very high praise. See the catalogue of Whately's writings appended to his General View of Christianity, New York, 1860.] In 1861 his daughter, Miss E. J. Whately, issued his Miscellaneous Remains. For biography, see his Memoirs by W. J. Fitzpatrick, London, 1864, 2 vols.; Life and Correspondence by E. Jane Whately, 1866, 2 vols., popular edition, 1868, 1 vol.]
WHICHCOTE, Benjamin, one of the most eminent of the "Cambridge Platonists," or, as they were sometimes called, "Latomitarians," of the seventeenth century (a party which also included such men as Cudworth, Wilkins, More, and Worthington); was b. March 11, 1609; and d. May, 1683. He was descended from an ancient family, and was the sixth son of Christopher Whichcote, Esq., of Whichcote Hall in the county of Salop, and parish of Stoke. His mother was Anna, daughter of Edward Fox, Esq., of Greet, in the same county. Of his training in boyhood nothing is known. In 1626 he was sent to Emmanuel College, Cambridge. He took his degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1630, and in the same year he became fellow of his college, where he held the position to his death, except from 1815 to 1817, when, in consequence of an ecclesiastical controversy, he was removed. He published Sketches of Dartmouth College, 1816.

WHEWELL, William, D.D., b. at Lancaster, Eng., May 24, 1796; d. at Cambridge, March 5, 1866. He was an undergraduate, fellow, tutor, and master of Trinity College, Cambridge, 1841, and in 1855 vice-chancellor of the university. He was elected F.R.S., 1829; was professor of mineralogy, 1828-32; professor of moral philosophy, 1835-55. His attainments took a very wide sweep: "Science was his chief forte, and omniscience his foible." Probably his most valuable book is his History of the Inductive Science, 1837; his most widely read, Essay on the Plurality of Worlds, 1853. Valuable also are his Lectures on Systematic Morality (1846), Lectures on the History of Moral Philosophy (1852), and The Platonic Dialogues for English Readers (1859-63, 3 vols.). See Account of his Writings, with Selections from his Literary and Scientific Correspondence, edited by Isaac Todhunter, London, 1876, 2 vols.

WHICHCOTE's appointment to King's College marks the rise of the new philosophical and religious movement with which he is identified. Cambridge Latitudinarianism or Platonism, as a system, must be estimated by the works of its most eminent representative, which may be found here to indicate the Puritan view of the school in question as expressed in the letters of Whichcote's Puritan friend Tuckney, master of Emmanuel. Tuckney does not like Whichcote's "mode of preaching, the philosophical rational style... in contrast to the 'episcopal, plain, powerful ministry,' for which Cambridge had been [formerly] distinguished." He goes on:

"Whilst you were fellow here [in Cambridge], you were cast into the company of very learned and ingenious men, who I fear, at least some of them, studied other authors more than the Scriptures, and Plato and his scholars above others... and here in part hath run a vein of doctrine, which diverges very able and worthy men—whom from my heart I much, and besides— I fear, too much, have to do with, which is too much advanced. Reason hath too much given to it in the mysteries of faith, and often, as I think to much talked of in religious matters... which I fear I cannot tell where to find. Mind and understanding is all heart, and will little spoken of. The decrees of God [are] questioned and quarrelled, because, according to reason, we cannot comprehend how they can stand with his goodness... There our philosophers and other heathens [are] much fairer candidates for heaven than the Scriptures seem to allow of; and they in their virtues [are] preferred before Christians over taken with weaknesses,—a kind of moral divinity minstered only by a little of Christ added. Nor are Platonistic faith suiting to God's righteousness [is] so preached, as if not with the prejudice of iniquity, which sometimes very unseemly language given it; yet much said of the one, and very little of nothing of the other. This was not Paul's manner of preaching."

To this must be added the opinion of Principal Tulloch as to the peculiar position of Whichcote:

"He stood at the head of the Cambridge thought of his time. He moved the university youth with a force which Tuckney and others failed to imitate. He inspired the highest intellect which it was destined to find in the young men of his day; and Cudworth and More and Tillotson looked back to him as their intellectual master."

He continued his university career till the Restoration, when, though clearly distinguished from them in many ways, he shared the fate of the Puritan leaders, and was removed from his prebendary by the special order of the king. When the Act of Uniformity was passed, he adhered; however, to the church, and in 1662 he was appointed to the cure of St. Anne's, Blackfriars, London. This church was burned down in the great fire of 1666, when he returned to a former prebendary at Milton in Cambridgeshire, and in 1668 was promoted to the vicarage of St. Lawrence Jewry, where he passed his last years.

Four volumes of Discourses, and a series of Moral and Religious Aphorisms collected from his manuscripts, and his Correspondence, comprise all his works.

According to the editor of his Correspondence, "he was married, but I cannot learn to whom." He left no children. Tillotson preached his funeral sermon. Baxter numbers him with "the best and ablest of the conformists."
The Council of Whitby, was convened in 664 by King Oswy for the purpose of settling the questions of the time of the celebration of Easter, and the shape of the tonsure, etc., concerning which different opinions and customs prevailed among the Roman and the Iro-Scottish ecclesiastics. On the Roman side, Wilfrid spoke; on the Iro-Scottish, Colman. The former was victorious. The latter left the country with most of his monks. But from that day the English Church took up a new direction in its course of development,—a direction towards Rome,—and the doom of the Iro-Scottish Church was sealed.

WHITBY, Daniel, D.D., b. at Rushden, Northamptonshire, 1638; fellow of Trinity College, Oxford, 1654; prebendary of Salisbury, 1663; rector of St. Edmund's, Salisbury, 1672; d. there March 24, 1726. A man of great learning, he is best remembered for his striking theological changes. He began as an ardent advocate of Protestantism in his book on The Absurdity and Idolatry of Host Worship (1679); and next appeared, as a champion of ecclesiastical union, The Protestant Reconciler humbly pleading for conciliation to Dissenting brethren in things indifferent (1683), in which he expressed very liberal opinions respecting "things indifferent," contending that they should not be made legal barriers to union among Protestants. But the book raised a storm.
High-Church party were loud in protestations. The University of Oxford ordered the book to be publicly burnt by the university marshal; and the bishop of Salisbury, whose chaplain he then was, obliged him to make humble confession of his two principal "errors." (1) That it is not legal for the authorities to require in worship any thing to be said or used which the older custom did not; and (2) That the Christian duty not to offend the weaker brethren was inconsistent with the legal requirement of these "indifferent things." Accordingly, in the same year, Whitby issued a second part of his Protestant Reconciler, in which he commanded the nonconformists to re-enter the Church of England, and endeavored to refute their objections to such a proceeding. His next work of importance was A Paraphrase and Commentary on the New Testament, 1703, in two vols., which now forms part of the familiar Commentary of Patrick, Lowth, and Armistead, commonly called "Patrick, Lowth, and Whitby's Commentary." Whitby says his Commentary was the fruit of fifteen years' study. It belongs to the old orthodox school. But scarcely was it out of the press before its changeable author was upon a new line of thought. Influenced by deistic attacks upon the doctrine of original sin, he issued his Discourse (1710) on the "five points" of Calvinism; viz., (1) election, (2) extent of the atonement, (3) divine grace, (4) liberty of the will, (5) perseverance of the saints. In this he revealed his Arminianism. Four years later his treatise on the patristic interpretation of the Scriptures appeared (Disertatio de S. Scripturærum interpretatione secundum patrum commentarios, in qua probatur, I. S. S. esse regulam fidei unicum II. Patres non esse idoneos S. S. interpres, 1714), in which he maintained, not only that the Scriptures are the only infallible rule of faith, but that the Fathers are mostly very incompetent exegetes and unsafe guides in theological controversies. This book was intended to show that the controversy upon the Trinity could not be decided by appeal to the Fathers, the councils, nor ecclesiastical tradition. By it the public was prepared for his next theological change. Formerly "orthodox," he became an Arian; had a controversy with Waterland, and in his Last Thoughts, containing his Correction of Several Passages in his Commentary on the New Testament, issued after his death by Dr. Sykes, 1727, retracted his exposition of the trinitarian dogma, which he declared to be a tissue of absurdities.

The little thin man spent his whole life in his study, and was a child in all worldly matters. His character is very favorably described by Anthony Wood, in Athenæ Oxonienses, II. See also Dr. Sykes's sketch of him in Last Thoughts, mentioned above.

WHITE, Henry, D.D., Presbyterian; b. at Durham, Greene County, N.Y., June 19, 1800; d. in New-York City, Aug. 25, 1850. He was graduated at Union College, New York, 1824; studied two years in Princeton Theological Seminary. New Jersey, became pastor of Christ Church, New York, 1828-36, when he became professor of theology in the newly founded Union Theological Seminary, and held this position till his death. He was an excellent teacher and a sound theologian, but he never published any thing except a few sermons. See Sprague: Annals of the American Pulpit, iv., 691 sqq.

WHITE, Henry Kirke, whose pathetic history has won him wider fame, perhaps, than his talents might have commanded during a longer life, was born at Nottingham, March 21, 1766; managed to educate himself while apprenticed to a tailor; took to verse at fourteen; published Clifton Grove, 1803; entered St. John's College, Cambridge, 1804; and, after two years of severe and successful study, died of consumption, Oct. 19, 1806. His Remains were published in 2 vols., by Southey, 1807. His few hymns were included in Dr. Collyer's Collection, 1812, and have been extensively used.

WHITE, Joseph, D.D., Church-of-England divine, and Orientalist, b. at Stroud, Gloucestershire, 1746; d. at Oxford, May 22, 1814. He was educated at Oxford, where he was successively fellow of Wadham College, 1774; Laudian Professor of Arabic, 1775; Bampton Lecturer, 1784; Regius Professor of Hebrew, 1802; and canon of Christ Church. His works are of great value. Among them are an edition of the whole Harecan version. 1778-1808, 4 vols. (see Bible Versions, p. 267); A View of Christianity and Mohammedanism (Bampton Lectures), 1784; Dissertation (with Greek text), 1799, new ed., 1856 (see Diatessaron, p. 684).

WHITE, William, D.D. This person, so generally regarded as the "Father" of the Protestant-Episcopal Church, was the son of Col. Thomas White of London, Eng., and Esther Hewlings of Burlington, N.J., having been born in Philadelphia, March 24, 1747 (O.S.), where, also, he died July 17, 1836. He was educated in the schools and College of Philadelphia, graduating in 1765. At the age of sixteen he decided to become a clergyman; and in 1770 he sailed for England to receive orders, having pursued his theological studies under the direction of leading divines of the church in the city of his birth. Dec. 23, 1770, he was ordained deacon in the Royal Chapel, London, by Dr. Young, bishop of Norwich. Being under age with respect to further advancement, he remained, he became, Dec. 1772, when he was ordained priest by Dr. Terrick, bishop of London. Sailing at once for Philadelphia, and arriving there Sept. 13, he entered upon his duties as assistant minister of Christ Church and St. Peter's. Upon the outbreak of the Revolution he promptly sided with the Colonies, and was chosen chaplain to the Continental Congress in September, 1777. April 19, 1779, he was elected rector of Christ Church, Philadelphia. In the year 1782, before the acknowledgment of American independence, he published his celebrated but poorly understood pamphlet, The Case of the Episcopal Churches in the United States considered, proposing a temporary administration by the presbyters of the church; there being no prospect, at the time, of obtaining the episcopate. Shortly after, however, independence was recognized, when he immediately abandoned the plan. The part of the Allen-street Articles was a protestation of the laity into the councils of the church, which, together with the adoption of Articles, was opposed subsequently by Seabury. The counsels of White prevailed when the church was organized. Sept. 14, 1786, he was elected bishop of...
The beginning of his administration was viewed with distrust, one of the most honored institutions in America. Throughout his entire life he bore an unblemished reputation, bearing his high office with that meekness which formed its great adornment. Bishop White was a man of large and comprehensive views, sound in his theology and churchmanship, temperate in opinion, and wise in his administration, occupying a position in the Church similar to that held by Washington in the State. As a writer he evinced usefulness rather than popularity. Some account of his works may be found in Wilson's Memoir (p. 305), and Sprague's American Pulpit (v. 283). His principal work, and one that will always continue a prime necessity for students, is his Memoirs of the Protestant Episcopal Church, first published in 1820. A second edition appeared in 1836, and in 1850, with an introduction and notes by the Rev. B. F. De Costa, D.D. See also, on the Protestant-Episcopal Church, first published in 1820. A second edition appeared in 1836, and in 1850, with an introduction and notes by the Rev. B. F. De Costa, D.D. See also, on

WHITEFIELD, George, a famous evangelist; b. in Gloucester, Eng., Dec. 27, 1714, in Bell Inn (of which his father was keeper); d. in Newburyport, Mass., Sept. 20, 1770. His grandfather and great-grandfather on the paternal side were clergymen of the Established Church. He was the youngest of a family of six sons and one daughter. When he was two years of age, his father died, and his mother kept the inn. His own account of his early years, published in 1740, and severely criticized as imprudent, exaggerated his youthful follies and vices. He speaks of himself as given to various forms of wickedness, fond of cards, despising instruction, and, when larger, exhibiting a great love for plays. He himself as given to various forms of wickedness, fond of cards, despising instruction, and, when larger, exhibiting a great love for plays. He says, however, that his mother was careful of his education, and that his father used to point him out to officers in the Moravian church. He visited Scotland, and great results followed. He travelled through England, attracting extraordinary attention everywhere. His arraignment of the clergy as "blind guides" roused many to oppose him; and in 1730 no less than forty-nine publications for and against him appeared. The hostile feeling preceded him to America. On his second visit to the Colonies, some of the Episcopal churches refused him their pulpit; but other churches were open to him. He preached in Philadelphia and New York, and on his way to Georgia, drawing delighted multitudes everywhere. Visiting New England, the revival which had begun in Northampton in 1736 broke out again, and perhaps Boston never saw a greater awakening. He paid seven visits to America; and the results of his evangelistic tours were shared by the Congregational, the Presbyterian, and the Baptist churches, from Massachusetts to Georgia. When he was not in America, he was stirring by his mighty eloquence the great audiences that greeted him in England, Scotland, and Wales. He early became Calvinistic in his reviews, and his association with Calvinistic divines in America deepened them. He complained to Wesley of his attacks on the doctrine of election; and there was a short, sharp controversy between them, which led to a temporary alienation. But Whitefield had a noble and generous spirit, and his voice were softened with an uncommon degree of sweetness, and he was neat, easy in deportment, and without affectation. He had a strong, musical voice, under wonderful command. Twenty thousand people could hear him. "Every accent of his voice spoke to the ear: every feature of his face, and every motion of his hands, spoke to the eye." His preaching melted Dr. Jonathan Edwards to tears. Benjamin Franklin went to hear him in Philadelphia, and was completely won. He perceived, he wrote, that Whitefield would finish with a collection; and although he had gold, silver, and copper in his pocket, he resolved to give nothing. But, as the preacher proceeded, "I began to soften, and concluded to give the copper. Another stroke of his oratory determined me to give the silver; and he finished so admirably, that I emptied my pocket wholly into the collector's dish,—gold and all." Whitefield was once asked for a copy of a sermon to publish. "I have no objection," said he, "if you will print the lightning, thunder, and rainbow with it." The Franklin incident exhibits his great persuasive power. A scene described by Dr. James Hamilton shows how vivid were some of his pictures. Chesterfield was listening while Whitefield was reading; the orator spattered his face, and was beggared by a dog. The dog leaving him, he was forced to grope his way, guided only by his staff. "Unconsciously he wanders to the edge of a precipice; his staff drops from his hand, down the abyss, too far to send back an echo; he reaches forward cautiously to recover it; for a moment he poises on vacancy, and—"Good God!" shouted Chesterfield, "he is gone," as he sprang from his seat to prevent the catastrophe.

Wesley's sermon on his departed friend contains a high but just estimate of him. He spoke of Whitefield's "unparalleled zeal," "indefatigable activity," "tender-heartedness," "charitableness toward the poor," his "deep gratitude," "tender friendship" (which he himself had tested), his "frankness and openness," "courage and intrepidity," "great plainness of speech," "steadiness," "integrity." "Have we," said Wesley, "read or heard of any person who called so many thousands, so many myriads, of sinners to repentance?"

Whitefield's sermons and journals were published in instalments at different periods during his life. His collected works, — comprising about seventy-five sermons, — his journals, and his letters, together with Memoirs of his Life, by Dr. Gillies, were published in London, in 7 vols. 8vo. 1771-72. Dr. Gillies was his first biographer. His latest, and perhaps best, is Tyerman: Life of George Whitefield, London, 1876, 2 vols. 8vo. Lives have also been written by Robert Philip (Lond., 1838, 8vo), J. R. Andrews (1864, 8vo), D. A. Harsha (Albany, N. Y., 1866, 8vo). See also Life and Times of the Countess of Huntington, Lond., 1840, 2 vols., 8vo; Stevens's History of the Religious Movement of the Eighteenth Century called Methodism, N. Y., 1859-62. H. K. Carroll.

Whitgift, John, D.D., Archbishop of Canterbury; b. at Great Grimsby, Lincolnshire, in or about 1590; d. at Lambeth, Feb. 28, 1654. He was fellow of Peterhouse, Cambridge University, 1555; ordained priest, 1590; appointed Lady Margaret professor of divinity, 1563; master of Pembroke Hall, master of Trinity College, and then regius professor of divinity, all in the same year, 1567; prebendary of Ely, 1598; dean of Lincoln, 1568; bishop of Worcester, 1577; and in 1583 he was raised to the primacy. During Mary's reign he observed a discreet silence, which enabled him to keep his position; but on the succession of Elizabeth he appeared as the defender of the Church of England, and advocate of extreme opinions respecting her authority. He headed the prelatical party, and for years carried on a controversy with Thomas Cartwright, the great champion of Puritanism (see arts.). When raised to the primacy, Whitgift was in position to carry out repressive measures against the detested Puritan party. He obtained the decree (June 23, 1605) of the Star Chamber (to which he belonged) against liberty of printing, by which no one was allowed to print except in London, Oxford, and Cambridge: no new presses were to be set up, but by license of the primates and the bishop of London; and only matter authorized by the archbishop of Canterbury, or the bishop of London, or their chaplains, could be printed. Persons selling or binding an unauthorized book suffered three months' imprisonment. And this decree was a mere specimen of his proceedings. He determined to uproot Puritanism, and to this end drew up several articles which he well knew the Puritans could not and would not subscribe, particularly one declaring that the Book of Common Prayer contained nothing contrary to the word of God; and, because they would not sign, he summarily suspended them, and in their places appointed inferior, and in some cases, probably without his knowledge, even immoral men. He carried out his programme so imperiously that Lord Burleigh once and again remonstrated with him, but to no purpose. The amount of suffering caused he is incalculable. Hundreds of worthy ministers, for no other fault than conscientious scruples against alleged unscriptural and Romanizing practices and doctrines in the Church of England, were deprived of their charges, hurried off to prison, harried by deferred hopes, and, if they left prison at all, were, after their harsh and unjust treatment, ruined in health and property. The incoming of James I. (1603) did not affect his position nor manners. He was shrewd enough to treat that vain monarch with peculiar respect. In the famous Hampton Court conference, he knelt before him, and even told a falsehood concerning the practice of lay baptism in the Church of England, denying its permissibility in order to give the king a higher idea of that church. But, ere the first Parliament of the new reign met, Whitgift died. Whitgift's administration "embodied the worst passions of an intolerant state priest. It knew no mercy; it exercised no compassion. It is in vain to defend the administration of Whitgift on the grounds of the excesses of the Puritans. Those excesses were provoked by his cruelty. Neither can the archbishop be justly accused of being unwise in every measure of severity and intolerance he was fully assured." He acted, doubtless, conscientiously, and is said to have been "personally pious, liberal, and free from harshness." His Works, consisting mostly of polemical tracts, were edited for the Parker Society by Rev. John Ayre, Cambridge, 1851-54, 3 vols.; and Life, written by Sir George Paule, 1612, and by John Strype, 1718. Cf. Neale's History of the Puritans, and Hook's Lives of the Archbishops of Canterbury.

WHITSUNDAY. See Pentecost.

WHITTEMORE, Thomas, D.D., Universalist clergyman; b. at Boston, Jan. 1, 1800; d. at Cambridge, Mass., March 21, 1861. He was pastor in Cambridgeport, 1822 to 1831; editor and proprietor of the Trumpet, a Universalist religious newspaper, for nearly thirty years, from its commencement in 1823. He was prominent in political and railroad affairs, being president of the Vermont and Massachusetts Railroad, and repeatedly a member of the Massachusetts Legislature. He wrote The Modern History of Universalism, 1830, enlarged edition, 1860; Notes and Illustrations of the Parables of the New Testament, 1832; Plain Guide to Universalism, 1838; Commentary on Revelation (1838) and On Daniel: Life of Walter Balfour, 1853; Life of Hosea Ballou, 1855-56, 4 vols.; Autobiography, 1859.

WHITTINGHAM, William Rollinson, D.D., LL.D., D.C.L., b. in New-York City, Dec. 2, 1805; d. at West Orange, N.J., Oct. 15, 1879. He was professor of ecclesiastical history in the General Theological Seminary (where he had been graduated in 1823) from 1835 till 1840, when he was consecrated (Sept. 17) bishop of Maryland. He was one of the scholars of his church, and belonged to the High-Church party. See his Life by W. F. Brand, New York, 1883, 2 vols.

WHITTLESEY, William, Archbishop of Canterbury; b. probably at Whittlesey, near Cambridge; d. at Lambeth, June 6, 1374. He was educated at Cambridge. In 1349, became master of his college, Peterhouse; in 1361, bishop of Rochester; and on Oct. 11, 1368, primate of all England, and metropolitan. He was an unhappy choice, for the times required a vigorous prelate. Edward III. was laying heavy taxes on the people, and especially the clergy, in order to keep up the lavish extravagance of the court, and Whittlesey was weak physically, most of the time an invalid, and destitute of commanding mental gifts. He was, however, sadly conscious of his deficiencies, and conscientiously did his best. See Hook: Lives of the Archbishops of Canterbury, iv. 221 sqq.

WICELIUS, or WITZEL, Georg, b. at Vach, in Hesse, 1501; d. at Mayence, 1673. He studied theology at Erfurt, and went in 1520 to Wittenberg to hear Luther and Melanchthon, but was nevertheless ordained as priest by Bishop Adolph of Merseburg. Appointed vicar in his native town, he preached the doctrine of the Reformation, married, and was expelled in 1526. Driven away by the Peasants' War from Wenigen-Lübnitz in Thuringia, where he had settled, he was, on the recommendation of Luther, appointed pastor of Niemeck, but relapsed into Romanism, began to write with great violence against Luther and Melanchthon, was at last expelled in 1530. After some years of uncertain endeavors, he entered the service of Abbot John of Fulda in 1540, published his principal book, Typus ecclesiae prioris, presented his Querela pacis to Charles V. at the diet of Spire (1544), and took part in the drawing-up of the Augsburg Interim. As the Reformation spread, he felt compelled to leave Fuld, and settled in 1554 at Mayence, where he spent the rest of his life in quiet retirement. See N. SCHRADER: *Georgio Wiclesi, Berlin, 1839; KAMPF- SCHULTE: De G. W., Paderborn, 1856; [SCHMIDT: Georg Wittel, Vienna, 1876].

WICHERN, Johann Heinrich, D.D., the founder of the Inner Mission in Germany (see art.), and one of the foremost Christian philanthropists of the century; b. at Hamburg, April 21, 1808; d. there April 7, 1881. He studied theology in Göttingen and Berlin, and reached the degree of "candidate," and afterwards received the honorary degree of doctor of divinity. On his return home, encouraged by his pious mother, he started a Sunday school for the poorest and wickedest children in the city, and immediately had five hundred children under his care. It was this school which gave him the idea of the institution which he opened on Nov. 1, 1833, at Horn, a suburb of Hamburg. He called it the "Rough House" (Das Rauhe Haus). It has served as the pattern of many similar institutions in Germany, France, England, Holland, etc. It is a house for the correction of juvenile offenders. Here these evil-minded and often weak-minded children are received, portioned off into "families" of twelve, placed under the charge of a young workman, and taught a trade. In connection with the Haus there is a book printing, binding, and selling business carried on. The Haus celebrated its fiftieth anniversary in November, 1883. For the education of persons competent to take charge of similar institutions, or to serve in them, there was started in 1845 a "Brotherhood." In 1844 Wichern sent out his Fliegende Blätter ("Flying Leaves"), now the organ of the Inner Mission, in which he urged the duty of laying to heart the misery of our fellow-mortals, and at the same time told the story of his own institutions. His story was eagerly read, and incited many imitators. In 1848, at the Kirchenjag (see art.) held at Wittenberg, he presented with such extraordinary eloquence the claims of the sick, the suffering, and the sinful who were their countrymen, that from that hour a new movement on their behalf was begun. This was the so-called "Inner Mission" (see art.), the very name of which is due to Wichern. Under Friedrich Wilhelm IV. (who came to the throne in 1840), Wichern found favor in court-circles, and exerted great influence upon the aristocracy. In 1851 he was commissioned by the Prussian Government to visit the reformatory and correctional institutions in all the provinces of the kingdom, and suggest improvements. In 1858 he was made a member of the council in the department of the interior, and also of the highest church council. In the same year he founded in Berlin the Evangelische Johannissitat, —a similar institution to the Rauhe Haus. Its twenty-fifth anniversary was celebrated in 1883. He interested himself particularly in prison reform, and also prepared the Prussian military code of 1866. In 1872 he had a stroke of paralysis, from which he never recovered. It prevented him from visiting America as a delegate to the General Conference of the Evangelical Alliance in New York, 1873, for which he had engaged to prepare an essay. Wichern was of commanding person, full of faith and the Holy Ghost, and always made a powerful impression by his speeches at the Church Diet and in the Annual Congress for Inner Missions. He wrote Die innere Mission der deutschen evangelischen Kirche, Hamburg, 1849; Die Behandlung der Verbrecher u. entlassenen Sträflinge, 1853; Der Dienst der Frauen in der Kirche, 1858, 3d ed., 1880. His biography has been written by F. OLDENBURG, Hamburg, 1882, and by Dr. HERMANN KRUMBACHER, Gotha, 1882.

Wiclif, John, the "Morning Star of the Reformation." b. at Spreswell, one mile from Old Richmond, in the North Riding of Yorkshire, several years, perhaps even ten, earlier than the usual date, 1324; d. at Lutterworth, Dec. 31, 1384.

His Life. He entered Oxford University about 1335; belonged probably to Balliol College; was graduated about 1345, or perhaps not until 1351; became a fellow of Balliol College, and in 1361 appears as its master. On May 18, 1361, he was nominated by his college, rector of Fillingham, ten miles north-north-west from Lincoln, but continued to reside in Oxford. In the same year he became incumbent of Abbotsley. From Dec. 6, 1365, to March, 1367, he was a warden of Canterbury Hall; took the degree of doctor of divinity between 1365 and 1374; and in 1368 exchanged his parish of Fillingham for that of Ludgershall, Buckinghamshire, which he held until his resignation in April, 1374, in order that he might conscientiously accept the rectorship of Lutterworth, Leicestershire, to which he had been nominated by Edward III. But in all these changes he never broke his connection with the university, for there he habitually resided, and there taught and debated. His life up to 1361 is largely conjectural and uncertain, but after that time can be traced by documents. Strangely enough, the first appearance of the learned doctor of theology as a leader was occasioned by politics and patriotism. He defended (1360) before the university of Oxford the action of Edward III. and the entire Parliament, in refusing to pass the papal claim to feudatory tribute made by Clement VI. as an action which was so emphatic, that the claim was never again made. Wiclif maintained on this occasion the political independence of the crown and the country from the Pope. It is very likely that he was a member of this Parliament, for he certainly shows an intimate acquaintance with its proceedings. On July 26, 1374, Wiclif was appointed by Edward III. a royal commissary in Bruges to conclude such a treaty with the papal nuncios on the pending points (viz., the papal reservations in filling English church offices, encroachments upon the electoral rights of cathedral chapters, and the like) as should at once secure the honor of the church, and uphold the rights of the English crown and realm. But the meeting came to nothing material; for, although the Pope abandoned for the future his claim to the reservation of English church livings, it was only on condition that the king abstained in future from conferring church dignities in the way of simple royal command: hence there was no real ecclesiastical reform. But Wiclif was not to blame for this outcome. He had faithfully striven to advance the popular rights; and his efforts had won enthusiastic recognition from the people and the king, who had called him to successive Parliaments. His very position rendered him the object of hatred to the hierarchy, whose designs he had so persistently opposed. At length they proceeded to attack him publicly. He was summoned before convocation, and appeared on Thursday, Feb. 19, 1377, in St. Paul's. He was accompanied, for protection's sake, by the Duke of Lancaster, the grand marshall of England (for the bishop of London) and the duke breaking out, the meeting abruptly terminated, and Wiclif retired without being called upon to say a word. Of course this pace did not put an end to the hierarchical opposition. The Anglican episcopate viewed the prime mover in the next step,—a letter addressed to the Pope, Gregory XI., to put Wiclif down as a heretic. The alleged nineteen heresies were carefully stated; and so well managed was their effort, that the Pope issued (May 22, 1377) no fewer than five bulls against Wiclif. Three of them were addressed to the primate and to the bishop of London, the fourth to the king, and the last to the chancellor, and the university of Oxford. The nineteen theses in which Wiclif's heresies are stated fall into three groups: I. 1-5, concerning rights of property and inheritance, which he maintained were dependent upon God's will and grace; II. 6, 7, 17-19, concerning church property, and its rightful secularization in certain circumstances (e.g., in case the Church should fall into error); III. 8-16, concerning the power of church discipline, which he claimed belonged to every priest, and concerned only God's matters, not temporal goods and revenues. But, ere the five bulls were officially delivered, Edward III. died (June 21, 1377), and so the bull to the king became inept. With his successor, Richard II., Wiclif stood in high favor, and so no adverse action came from the king. It was not until Parliament had been prorogued (Nov. 25, 1377), that a mandate was addressed to the chancellor of Oxford, requiring him to appoint a commission to find out whether Wiclif did advocate the alleged heresies, and also to cite Wiclif within thirty days before the papal commissaries, or their delegates, in St. Paul's Church, London. But since the papal bull had required Wiclif's imprisonment, subject to an address to the Pope by the chancellor of Oxford, Wiclif was not to blame. He summoned an assembly of ten bishops, sixteen doctors of law, thirty doctors of theology, and four bachelors of law, in the hall of the Dominical Monastery, Blackfriars, London, May 17, 1378, and received the expected verdict. During their session a terrific earthquake shook the city.
hence the name, "The Earthquake Council," uniformly applied to it by Wiclif,—an ill omen, in the judgment of Wiclif's party, but favorably interpreted by Courtenay as an emblem of the purification of the kingdom from false doctrine. On the ground of the finding of the council, expressed in twenty-four articles, either heretical or erroneous, of which ten relate to the Lord's Supper, testimony to the interest awakened by Wiclif's attack on the doctrine of transubstantiation,—the archbishop issued mandates to his commissary at Oxford (May 28, 1382) and to the bishop of London (May 30), in which he forbade the public proclamation of the obnoxious doctrines, and even listening to them, on pain of the greater excommunication. But the second step could not be taken without State aid; and the Commons refused to agree with the Lords in giving it, and even compelled the withdrawal of a royal ordinance, which ordered, upon certification of the bishops, the imprisonment of the itinerant Wiclif preachers and their adherents. But armed with a royal patent of June 26, 1382, the archbishop began the persecution, and with such success, that in four months he silenced the Wiclif party at the university of Oxford, and either drove the principal friends of Wiclif out of the country, or to recantation. Meanwhile Wiclif was untouched,—although deprived, in consequence of the mandate, of his offices at the university,—and pursued his quiet, busy, pastoral life at Lutterworth. It was, perhaps, Courtenay's plan, first to strip Wiclif of all his friends, and then to attack him personally. At length, on Nov. 18, 1382, he was summoned to appear before a provincial synod at Oxford; but again he was so intrenched in the popular regard. The council, on the ground of the finding of the council, executed the archbishop's mandate, and declared him a heretic, anathematized forty-five articles drawn from his writings, and ordered that his books be burnt, his bones taken up, and thrown far out of consecrated ground. For thirteen years the command rested on paper; but in 1427 Pope Martin V. laid its execution upon Bishop Fleming of Lincoln, who in the year following (1428) carried it out. His bones were taken up, burnt, and the ashes thrown into the Swift, a branch of the Avon, which runs by the foot of the hill on which Lutterworth is built.

His Preaching.—His activity as a preacher was in two directions,—in the university, where his sermons were in Latin, and followed scholastic forms and ideas; and in Lutterworth church, where he preached in English, and in simple, direct, and vigorous fashion. He occasionally preached in London, and with such effect that the citizens were stirred up to demand the reform of some flagrant omissions of clerical duty. But the principles he not only advocated, but exemplified, remained always the same. He taught that the object of preaching was the edification of the church; the matter of preaching was the Bible itself in all its simplicity, and not, as the evil habit of the times was, stories, fables, and poems, which were pagan, and not biblical, in origin, and served only to amuse and interest. The Bible was Wiclif's standard and staple: his sermons are really saturated with it. He handles, it is true, many subjects which are not by any means biblical (e.g., the mendicant orders); but he judges them according to the Bible. But one cardinal doctrine of modern evangelical Christendom is not found in his sermons: he has not a word to say about justification by faith. The one thing about Wiclif's sermons which gives them now their great value as an indication of his inner life is their fulness of earnest godliness and Christian conscientiousness. They breathe a true zeal for God's glory, a pure love for Christ, and a sincere concern for the salvation of souls. The man who could preach as Wiclif preached could not fail to make a profound impression.

His Itinerants.—Besides being a preacher and pastor, he was organizer of an itinerancy which carried his doctrines over a wide territory. He began this latter work while in uninterrupted connection with Oxford (i.e., before 1382); and his first itinerants were university students and graduates: in short, he taught a theological seminary. These preachers were by no means intended as opponents to the parochial clergy, except as the latter grossly discredited their office: the first itinerants were all priests; hence they were called "poor priests," and under no obligation to remain unsettled, although, as a matter of fact, they could not settle conscientiously, even if the way were open, for the three reasons given in the tract, Why Poor Priests have no Benefices,

(1) Benefices were usually obtainable only by simony, whether collated by a spiritual or tem-
Beneficed priests were compelled to give up to their ecclesiastical superiors all that portion of their revenues in excess of their own necessities, and this was nothing less than a robbery of God's poor; (3) Unbeneficed priests were free to preach the gospel anywhere, and, when opposed by the "clergy of Antichrist," could flee without hindrance. But Wiclif also sent out lay-preachers; and this fact led him to use repeatedly the expression "evangelical" or "apostolical" man in his latest sermons, when referring to his itinerants. They were now not all priests. Oxford was the first centre of this activity, and Leicester the second. Clad in commonest clothing, barefoot, and staff in hand, they wandered through the surrounding country, preaching as they had opportunity. They opened the Scriptures, and summoned their hearers to repent. They exhorted them to live in Christian brotherhood, peace, and beneficence. But they did not stop here. They depicted the sinful lives of too many of the clergy, and so powerfully, that the hierarchy were alarmed. How thoughtful Wiclif was for his itinerants is manifested by the many sermon outlines and tracts for their benefit found among his literary remains.

His Translation of the Bible. — Before Wiclif sent out his translation, the Psalter was the only complete book of Scripture accessible in English, although other parts had been rendered. The credit of producing the first translation which was intended for popular use is due to Wiclif. How long he was engaged upon this work is unknown. He probably began with several single books of the New Testament. As a preliminary labor may be regarded the translation of the Latin Harmony of the Gospels of Prior Clement of Lanthony, Monmouthshire, written in the second half of the twelfth century. Wiclif translated the Bible from the Vulgate, for he was ignorant of Greek. He rendered the entire New Testament into English; but, ere he had finished, Nicholas of Hereford began upon the Vulgate Old Testament far a truce ill. 20, when he was compelled to desist, owing to the sentence of excommunication which had been passed upon him. From there on, another hand may be seen upon it, perhaps Wiclif's. In 1382 the entire translation was finished: copies of it, in whole or in part, were made and circulated. But immediately the important work of revision was begun by Wiclif himself and by John Purvey, who carried it on after the former's death; for it was not until 1388 that the Wyclifite version was given out in its revised and much improved form. This version marks an epoch in the development of the English language. His Bible prose is the earliest classic Middle English.

His Theology. — Of Wiclif's doctrinal system it is somewhat difficult to form a complete and fully satisfactory opinion. The principal of the as yet available sources of his theology is his Trialoyga or Dialogorum Libri IV., written in 1392, and subsequently printed in 1593. It deviates considerably from the common scholastic form, being a dialogue between three allegorical characters,— Alistha, Pseudus, and Phreneis. The first of the interlocutors is a staid theologian; the second, a sophist and infidel; and the third, a ripe and erudite scholar, who decides the questions. The first book treats of the doctrine of God; the second, that of the universe, especially the ideas of matter, man, angels, evil spirits, etc.; the third book contains the Christian morals; and the fourth, which occupies about one-half of the whole work, gives the author's views of the sacraments, the ecclesiastical institutions, eschatology, etc. Besides from the Trialogus, some stray remarks useful for the understanding of Wiclif's doctrinal stand-point may also be gleaned from his minor treatises and popular pamphlets, and from extracts now and then published from his unprinted manuscripts, etc.

The basis of all Wiclif's teaching is his doctrine of the absolute authority of Scripture. He places the Bible infinitely higher than any other book, not only those of the more recent teachers, but also those of the ancient Fathers: yea, he places the Bible infinitely higher than any ordinance of the Roman-Catholic Church. The evidence of this absolute authority is the dignity of Christ as the God-man, and the reason why the Bible is not held to be efficacious in bringing forth in our heart a firm conviction of the authority of the Bible. All other writings, even those of Augustine, are trustworthy only so far as they are founded in Holy Writ: all other truth, except that which depends upon simple observation, can be accepted only so far as it is derived from the Bible. "Even though there were a hundred popes, and all the monks were transformed into cardinals, in matters of faith their opinions would be of no account, unless they were founded on Scripture" (Trial., iv. c. 7). From this maxim sprung the enthusiasm and the energy which produced the first English translation of the Bible.

But Wiclif's doctrine of God is a piece of scholasticism. Instead of planting himself on Scripture, or on the individual Christian self-consciousness, he institutes dialectical processes which develop ideas, defines notions, etc. More closely characterized, his scholasticism is realism. The infinite is to him not an idea, but a reality. He recoils from the conceptions of God as a mere universale, or a mere individuale, both of which sprang from the principle of nominalism. To him, God is the absolute cause, the mysterious source of all. The doctrine of the Trinity he develops after Augustine and Anselm, without adding any thing of his own, and following closely the method of the schoolmen. But already in his christology a curious contest arises between scholastic dialectics, in which he was trained, and an instinctive craving for a biblico-ethical construction of the idea of the God-man. On the one side he cannot free himself from the common questions, categories, definitions, etc., of the scholastic christology. On the other side he sees very well the hollowness and sterility of the whole frame of proceeding. His third book contains the incarnation from a moral point of view. He loves to set forth Christ as the centre of humanity, and he is inexhaustible in varying the expression of that truth by means of the most manifold ideas and figurative illustrations.

In his cosmology, Wiclif broke through the bounds of scholasticism, mixing up the metaphysical researches concerning the materia prima with various anatomical and psychological questions concerning the structure of the brain, the action of the senses, etc. Of greatest interest is his theological anthropology. Hereditary sin he considers as depending on some moral, and not on any physical condition. He denies that the state of sinfulness is propagated from generation to generation with the soul; for the kernel of human nature is the spirit. To this aspect of anthropology corresponds his general view of evil. Who is the originator of evil? Does it come from God? No; for evil has by itself no positive existence: it is only a defectus, a non-ens, a negation of the divine. The single act of sin is certainly a reality, and as certainly an evil, but only so far as it refers to the person who committed it. So far as it enters into the web and woof of objective reality, it ceases to be an evil, and is by God turned into a mediate or secondary good: it becomes a means to an end, something willed by God, so far as it is a reality, an act of the will; and evil results from the freedom of the will, which is misused, and turned into a denial of God; in which latter point Wiclif differs from his older contemporary, Thomas of Bradwardine, who, in his rejection of the reality of evil, ended with rejecting the freedom of the human will. The denial of the will, which is misused, and turned into a denial of God; in which latter point Wiclif differs from his older contemporary, Thomas of Bradwardine, who, in his rejection of the reality of evil, ended with rejecting the freedom of the human will (Lechler: De Thoma Bradwardino, Leipzig, 1862).
WICLIF.

In his doctrine of the church, Wiclif became almost wholly a Protestant. The prevalent ecclesiastical idea of the church as the communion of the clergy, to the exclusion of all non-clergy, he expressly rejected. The church he defines as the communion of the elect; and as he carries back conversion, salvation, and membership of the church, to the election of grace (that is, to the eternal and free counsel of God in Christ), he refutes the assumption, which up till that time was universal, that participation in salvation, and the hope of heaven, were dependent entirely on the mediation of the clergy. His idea of the church, sharply distinguishing between the visible and the invisible church, involves the recognition of the free and immediate access of believers to the grace of God in Christ; in other words, of the general priesthood of believers. The true church is to him invisible, while the visible church is made up of elect and hypocrites. But he acknowledges that it is impossible to distinguish sharply between the true and the false members of the church; and he altogether denies that anybody has a right either to canonize or to condemn any physical condition. He denies that his own positive view is somewhat vague, as far as from Zwingli's conception of a merely symbolic presence of Christ in the elements as from Luther's conception of a real presence. In his Confession he defines the presence of Christ in the bread and wine of the sacrament as simul veritas et figura. The definition is certainly somewhat vague. For the criticism, however, of the absurdities of the Roman-Catholic Church it proved amply sufficient.

His Character. — His contemporaries found his wonderful learning and intellectual ability most admirable. It was this which gave him such commanding influence in the university. His was a many-sided mind; and his sermons and theological treatises contain illustrations corrected from all the sciences of his time. He was eminently gifted with the critical spirit, and so, although he accepted many fictions as truths, he yet subjected the doctrines, ordinances, and usages of the church to rigid scrutiny, and brought them to the test of the Bible. With him the critical genius was not merely an efflux of scientific power and independence, but also a fruit of moral sentiment and of Christian character. He cared very little in what form his ideas were expressed, so long as they were understood. Hence his style is inartistic, and often very bad. But by way of compensation he screamed his whole personality, undissembled, true, and full. He was a man of intellect, not of feeling; yet everywhere we recognize the moral pathos, the holy earnestness, which comes from deep convictions. Curiously, he oftentimes burst out into indignant or horror-stricken denunciation while carrying on a dialectical discussion: an outburst of brilchurch, particularly that of transubstantiation.
WIGAND.

societies of English-speaking lands, especially by Saviour, and Leader, and the church as the whole grace. But in 1883 the Vyclif Society, organized the Bible was celebrated by the Bible probably embraces nearly a third that have at any time appeared: Dialo orum Iibriquatuor, Basel, 1525;

1528; Testamentum Triatogis, et Supplementum Trialogis;

the Church and her members, Of the Apostasy of 1546, Oxford, 1612, 1828); The true copy of a pro-

Right to the priests' meat (Lev. xxii. 13). In property in the temple treasury (2 Macc. iii. 10).

in the front, and attacked the doctrines of the and glossary by W. W. Shirley, London, 1878, 2 vols.; in 1 vol., 1881). This biography supersedes all the others. Compare

Fasciculi Zizaniorum magistri Johannes Wyclif cum

Tractico, to Bishop Netter of Walden, edited by W. W. Shirley, London, 1858; Chronica mostratorii S. Albani, vol. i.; Thomas Walshingham Historia Anglicana, edited by H. T. Riley,

London, 1863. See also R. Vaughan, D.D.,

Wyclif and the first English Bible, N.Y., 1880; BURROWS: Wyclif's Place in History. London,

Samuel M. Jackson.

WIDOWS, Hebrew.

Besides the general law against their hard treatment (Exod. xxii. 22-24), there was special legislation respecting them. 1. Their rights should always be respected (Deut.

x. 18, xxvii. 19); nor should their clothing or cattle be pledged (Deut. xxiv. 17), nor their children be sold for debt (2 Kings iv. 1; Job xxiv. 9). According to Maimonides (Synedr. 21, 9), their cases must be tried next after those of orphans. 2. They must be invited to the feasts accompanying sacrifices and tithe offerings (Deut.

xxiv. 19, xvi. 11, 14, xxvi. 12 sq.). Childless priest-widows living in their fathers' houses had right to the priests' meat (Lev. xxii. 13). In later times the rich sent them presents of wine.

In the Maccabean time they were allowed to deposit their property in the temple treasury (2 Macc. iii. 10). 3. Gleanings were left for them

(Deut. xxiv. 19 sqq.), and they shared in the battle spoils (2 Macc. viii. 28, 30). Their re-marriage was contemplated, but the high priest was forbidden to marry one (Lev. xxii. 14). Only on the childless widow did the Levirate law operate (Deut. xxiv. 5; see art. LEVIRATE). The Jewish doctors greatly facilitated the re-marriage of widows, only stipulating that they must not marry inside of ninety days of their husbands'

dowryl until the expiration of twenty-five years, and therefore high priestswould not marry them.

If they chose to remain in the house of their father-in-law, the must be supported, and their right was derived any benefit from it. In order to get subsistence, they were allowed to sell the property of their husbands, both real and personal. In case a man left widows, the first wife had prior claims. Betrothed women whose prospective husbands died were considered as widows, and therefore high priests could not marry them.

In spite of these laws and regulations, complaints of the unjust treatment of widows were frequent

(ISA. i. 17, 23, x. 2; Jer. xxii. 8; Ezek. xxii. 7; Mal. iii. 5; Matt. xxiii. 14).

LEYRER.

WIDOWS IN THE APOSTOLIC CHURCH.

See DEACONESES.

WIGAN, John, b. at Mansfield in 1598; d. at Jena, Oct. 21, 1597. He studied theology at Wittenberg, and was appointed pastor of his native city in 1546, superintendent of Magdeburg in 1553, professor of theology at Jena in 1569 (from which position he was discharged the next year), superintendent of Wismar in 1602, and again professor at Jena in 1603. He was an ardent Lutheran, an ardent champion of Ficinus, and with important additional notes, by Principal

Lorimer: John Wyclif and his English Precursors,

London, 1878, 2 vols.; in 1 vol., 1881). This biography supersedes all the others. Compare

Wyclif's writings (vol. ii. 337-339). The small number printed has long been considered a disgrace. But in 1883 the Wyclif Society, organized in 1882, began the publication of his Latin works, up to that time in manuscript.

The following list probably embraces nearly all that have at any time

appeared: Dialo orum Iibriquatuor, Basel, 1525;

Wycklif's Wycliffes Wycket, Norenburch, 1546 (later eds., 1546, Oxford, 1612, 1828); The true copy of a pro-

log written about two centuries past by John Wyckliff,

London, 1550; Two short treatises against the orders of the Begging Friars (edited, with glossary, by Thomas James, D.D.), Oxford, 1808; Last Age of

the Church, Dublin, 1840; Apology for Lollard

Doctrine, London, 1842; and Three Treatises, Of

the Church and her Members, Of the Apostasy of

the Church, Of Anti-Christ and his Meyne, 1851

(the above three volumes were edited by J. H.

Todd, D.D.; the first volume and the last treatise have been pronounced spurious); Tracti et Treatures, with Selections and Translations from his Latin Works (edited for the Wyclif Society by R. Vaughan, D.D.), London, 1845; Tractatus de officio pastorali, Leipzig, 1863, Trilogus, and Sup-plementum Triologii sive de donatione ecclesie, Oxford, 1869 (all three edited by Lechler); Some

English Works (edited by T. Arnold), Oxford,

1871, 8 vols.; English Works of Wycliff hitherto unprinted (edited by F. D. Matthew, for the Early English Text Society), London, 1879; De

Christo et suo adversario Antichristo, Ein pole-mischer Tractat Johann Wyclif zum ersten Male herausgegeben (edited by Dr. R. Buddensieg), Gotha, 1869, pp. 60; Polemical Works (edited by Bud-densieg), London, 1883, 2 vols. Some of these pieces were printed in vol. vii. of British Reformers.

Wyclif's translation of the Bible was first edited in a scholarly and satisfactory manner by

Rev. Josiah Forshall and Sir Frederick Madden, portion was separately printed, with introduction and glossary by W. W. Skeat, Cambridge, 1879; and Job. Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and the Song of Solomon, in 1881, with the same apparatus criticus. A monograph by Wyclif's biography has been written by John

Lewis (Oxford, 1719; new ed. with additions,

1820), Robert Vaughan (London, 1829, 2 vols.;

2d ed., 1831; new ed., under title John de Wycliffe,

a Monograph, 1858), Charles Webb Le Bas

(1833), and by Gotthard Victor Lechler: John von Wyclif und die vortrichtliche der Reformation, Leipzig, 1873, 2 vols. (vol. i. translated, into English by Mr. W. E. Ward, 1881; vol. ii.

published posthumously). Wyclif's life and work have been described in three volumes by Professor M. H. Jeremias: Geschichte der Reformation, Leipzig, 1878, 4 vols. (translated into English by Mr. J. A. Neale, 1883; vol. ii.

published posthumously).
took part with great vehemence in all the controversies of the time, persecuting with blind fanaticism anyone who differed from him in opinion. At last he fell out even with his own master, Flicius, with whom he at one time labored for the establishment of a Lutheran popedom. His autobiography in Sammlung von alten und neuen theologischen Sachen (Leipzig, 1738) gives a list of his very numerous writings, of which none, however, has any scientific value. See also Sani's Life of Bisho Capers (Nashville, 1858), which is a most worthy contribution to the religious biography of the church.

W.F. TILLETT.

WILBERFORCE, Samuel, D.D., Bishop of Winchester, was born at Clapham, near London, Sept. 7, 1805; killed by a fall from his horse, near Dorking, July 19, 1873. He was graduated at Oriel College, Oxford, 1826; curate of Checkendon, Berkshire, 1828-30; rector of Brightstone, Isle of Wight, 1830-38; of Alverstoke, Hampshire, 1839; archdeacon of Surry, 1840; and canon of Winchester Cathedral. In 1844 he was appointed sub-almoner to the queen, and in 1845 dean of Westminster, and, later in same year, bishop of Oxford. In 1869 he was transferred to the see of Winchester. As bishop of Oxford he made his mark. He was a man of broad views, genial wit, and ready eloquence, in which latter respect he led all the bishops. He delighted in out-door life. He was a leader of the High-Church party, but in point of doctrine was an evangelical. Besides his work upon his father's life referred to below, he left nothing of importance. See his Life by Ashwell and Wilberforce, London, 1881-82, 3 vols.; abridged edition, New York, 1883. 1 vol.

WILBERFORCE, William, the English philanthropist; b. at Hull, Aug 24, 1759; d. in London, Monday, July 29, 1838. By the death of his father he came at ten years of age into the family of his uncle, whose very pious wife was a great admirer of Whitefield; and although permitted by his grandfather (who feared his becoming a Methodist) to be only two years in his uncle's family, his religious views received a coloring which they permanently retained, and the main principles of his early piety. He was educated at St John's College, Cambridge; left the university at twenty-one (1778), and immediately entered Parliament, where he continued sat as a member of the House of Commons until 1825, when his advanced years obliged him to retire. Being rich, witty, and fond of society, he at first mingled in the world of fashion. But in 1784, and again in 1785, he travelled on the Continent with Isaac Milner (see art.), his former teacher at Hull; and Milner's serious conversation upon religion, little as his conduct was regulated by it, turned Wilberforce to serious thought. His latent piety was aroused. The two read together Dodridge's Rise and Progress, and studied the New Testament in the original. The energies of Wilberforce's soul were set in a new direction. He was converted (1785), and became the Wesley of the upper circles of English society, and the leader of the evangelical party in the English Church. In 1787 he founded a "society for the reformation of manners," and the same year set out upon that great mission which has immortalized him,—the abolition of slavery in the English domains. Henceforth his life was devoted to this cause. His attention had been drawn to the subject in childhood, and in his fifth year he wrote an essay upon it; but his efforts to secure the realization of his youthful dreams date from his twenty-eighth year. The slaveholders quickly perceived the ability and strength of their antagonist, who was determined to fight until the victory was gained. Year after year the struggle went on. At last, after twenty years of tireless exertion, the bill for the abolition of the slave-trade was introduced in the House of Lords by Lord Grenville; passed Feb. 4, 1806; went to the House of Commons, and passed its first reading by a vote of 283 to 16, Feb. 23, and finally, March 23, 1807. It received the royal assent March 25; and after Jan. 1, 1808, slave-trading was illegal. In the carrying-out of this measure Wilberforce was not, of course, unaided. Burke, Pitt, Fox, the Quakers, and especially Thomas Clarkson, gave him powerful support. But Wilberforce was the leader of the abolitionists, and to him the major part of the credit is due. In the prosecution of his mission he met with repeated disappointments; and his schemes, along with other abolitionists, to demonstrate the fitness of the negro race for civilization by the organization of the Sierra Leone Company (1791), for the extension of lawful commerce in Africa, and the promotion of the useful arts among the negroes, lamentably failed. The abolition of the slave-trade legally accomplished, Wilberforce turned his attention to the enforcement of the law and the emancipation of the slave himself. For the rest of his life he keenly watched the interests of the negro race, and toiled for the abolition of slavery in every land. Three days before his death he had the satisfaction of learning that slavery itself was abolished.

The decided religious convictions of this remarkable man find their expression in his book, A Practical View of the Prevailing Religious System of Professed Christians in the Higher and Middle Classes in this Country Contrasted with Real Christianity, London, 1797. Five editions (7,500 copies) were sold in its first half-year; and it has been translated into French, German, Italian, Spanish, and Dutch. It is impossible to overestimate its influence in awakening a warm, practical, determined religious life, and in stemming the tide of infidelity and indifferentism, especially in the upper classes of England. The book consists of seven chapters, treating two questions: first, whether morality without belief can be wholesome and sufficient; second, whether Christianity satisfactorily meets all the demands of life. But not only by this book did he proclaim his Christianity. In 1801, with a few friends, he established The Christian Observer, a religious newspaper, and in 1804 took a prominent part in the formation of the British and Foreign Bible Society.

WILBERFORCE was not, of course, unaided. Burke, Pitt, Fox, the Quakers, and especially Thomas Clarkson, gave him powerful support. But Wilberforce was the leader of the abolitionists, and to him the major part of the credit is due. In the prosecution of his mission he met with repeated disappointments; and his schemes, along with other abolitionists, to demonstrate the fitness of the negro race for civilization by the organization of the Sierra Leone Company (1791), for the extension of lawful commerce in Africa, and the promotion of the useful arts among the negroes, lamentably failed. The abolition of the slave-trade legally accomplished, Wilberforce turned his attention to the enforcement of the law and the emancipation of the slave himself. For the rest of his life he keenly watched the interests of the negro race, and toiled for the abolition of slavery in every land. Three days before his death he had the satisfaction of learning that slavery itself was abolished.

WILBRORD, or WILIBRORD, the apostle of the Frisians; b. in Northumbria about 657; d. in the monastery of Epternach, near Treves, 730. He came to Friesland towards the close of the seventh century; settled at Utrecht, and preached with success among the wild Pagan inhabitants of the country, powerfully supported, however, by the victories of Pepin and Charles Martel. He also visited the Danish Frisians settled on the western coast of Sleswick. See also: Hist. Eccles., v.; and Mabillon : *Ann. Ord. S. B. lib. xviii.

WILDERNESS. The Bible word means, not a mere waste, but rather a tract of country, plain or mountainous, which is not under cultivation, although it may be capable of it, and actually afford rich pasturage. Several such wildernesses are mentioned in the Bible. I. Chief in importance is the "Wilderness of Sinai" (see SINAI). II. "Wilderness of Moab" (Deut. ii. 8), the east boundary of the territory Israel conquered. III. "Wilderness of Beerseba" (Gen. xxii. 14), upon the extreme south-west border. IV. The largest in Palestine is the "Wilderness of Judah," which comprehends the easterly and southerly slopes of the mountain of Judah, and is bounded on the north by the "Wilderness of Jericho" (between the north end of the Dead Sea and Jerusalem), on the east by the Dead Sea, on the west by the mountains of Judah, and on the south runs out into the "Wilderness of Zin" (Josh. xv. 1, 3) and of "Edom" (2 Kings iii. 8), between the mountains of Seir and the southern point of the Dead Sea. Into this wilderness David fled from Saul. As component parts of it are mentioned the wilderness of (a) "Tabor" (1 Sam. xii. 12), (b) "Moab" (1 Sam. xiii. 24 sqq.), (c) "Ziph" (1 Sam. xxxiii. 14), (d) "Teba" (2 Chron. xx. 20), (e) "Jeruel" (2 Chron. xx. 16). V. The northern continuation of the Wilderness of Judah is "the wilderness that goeth up from Jericho throughout Mount Bethel" (Josh. xvi. 1), i.e., the whole stretch along the western slopes of the mountains of Judah, from the neighborhood of Jericho-north to Bethel. Into this wilderness fled David from Absalom (2 Sam. xv. 23), and so did Zedekiah on the capture of Jerusalem (2 Kings xxv. 4). It was the scene of our Lord's temptation (Matt. iv. 1), and the place of the miracle of the Good Samaritan (Luke x. 30). Tradition points out the exact spot of Satan's exhibition to our Lord of "all the kingdoms of the world," the so-called Mount Quarautaua (Jebel Kerentel), and also the exact location of the inn to which the good Samaritan brought the wounded Jew. In the "Wilderness by Jordan" (Mark i. 4) John preached, and the place of Christ's baptism is pointed out to-day. Tradition, however, puts the Wilderness of John six miles south-west of...
Jerusalem; but here is no wilderness at all. VI. "Wilderness of Beth-aven," a northerly part of the Wilderness of Jericho (Josh. xviii. 12). VII. "Wilderness of Gibeon" east of Gibeon. VIII. "Wilderness of Dothan" (Gen. xxxvii. 22).

ARNOLED.

WILDERNESS OF THE WANDERING. The so-called forty-two journeys of the Israelites from Egypt to Canaan are enumerated in Num. xxxiii. On leaving Egypt they bent their steps to Sinai (see EXODUS, SINAI). The general direction was south-east along the Gulf of Suez, until the Wady Feiran was struck, which was followed to Mount Sinai. The stations are not yet fully and unanimously identified. The first was probably Aytn Musa ("the wells of Moses"), seven to eight miles from the Gulf of Suez, where the triumphal song of Moses was sung. Thence the host went three days' journey through the Wilderness of Shur ("fort-wall," derived, according to E. H. Palmer, from the long wall-like range which is the feature of this part of the wilderness), and came to Marah ("bitterness"), generally identified with Ain Hasara ("fountain of destruction"), and after it is interpreted by E. H. Palmer, from the long wall-like range which is the feature of this part of the wilderness), and interpreted it "a small pool"). Here the water was miraculously sweetened (Exod. xv. 25). Thence they journeyed to Elim ("trees"), identified either with Wady Ghurundal or Wady Useit. The next station was upon the shore of the Red Sea, from Wady Taiyibeh; and thence they "encamped in the Wilderness of Sin," now the Plain of Elimarkha. It extends twenty-five miles along the east shore of the Red Sea, from Wady Taiyibeh to Wady Feiran. There the Israelites were first fed with manna and quails (Exod. xvi.). Entering the Wady Feiran, they came, by way of Dophkah and Alush, to Rephidim, usually located in this wady, at the base of Serbal, although some would put it in Wady es-Sheikh. At Rephidim there was "no water for the people to drink," so Moses was instructed to get water by smiting a rock in Horeb (Exod. xvii.). From Rephidim they journeyed to Elim and thence to Sinai. It was the original expectation of Moses to lead the Israelites directly out of Egypt into the Promised Land. But the enormous host, cumbered with flocks and herds, could not travel rapidly; and it was in the third month after leaving Egypt that they arrived at Sinai. By Sinai they tarried until the twentieth day of the second month in the second year, when the cloud above the tabernacle lifted, and went ahead of them. They came, in fourteen stations, to Kadesh (see art.), and sent out the spies, whose almost unanimous report as to the promiscuity of the inhabitants of the Promised Land so disheartened the people, that they rebelled against the Lord's leadership, and in punishment the murmurers were condemned to die in the wilderness.

For some thirty-eight years were the Israelites scattered upon the wilderness, the present Badet el Dabend, the great central limestone plateau between the granite region of Sinai on the south, the sandy desert on the north, and the valley of the Arabah on the east. There are abundant evidences that the country was formerly much more fertile than at present. The host probably lived a nomad life, like the present Bedouin, staying for a while in a place, and then going elsewhere, according as they could find pasture for their flocks. God's object was finally accomplished: the murmurers had all died, and their children were strong for battle. They gathered at Kadesh, whence they had departed fifty centuries before. There Moses and Aaron offended, and were told that they should not enter the Promised Land (Num. xx. 12). The succeeding events may be thus summarized: application for passage through Edom was refused; Aaron died upon Mount Hor; the Israelites suffering from the plague of serpents were healed by the sight of the brazen serpent; Sihon, king of the Amorites, and Og, king of Bashan, were overcome; Balak, king of Moab, in vain used enchantments against Israel, but instead, heard from Balaam the glorious future of that people; the census of Israel was taken on the plains of Moab; the Midianites were slaughtered and spoiled; the Reubenites and Gadites received their inheritance on the east side of Jordan; finally, the host made their last journey prior to the Conquest, and reached the east shore of the Jordan. Moses delivered the Promised Land of the Israelites, and ascended Mount Nebo, and died. Thus ended the Wandering. The Israelites were now on the borders of the Promised Land. See SMITH: Dictionary of the Bible, s. v. "Wilderness of the Wandering;" E. H. PALMER: Desert of the Exodus; GEIKIE: Hours with the Bible, vol. ii., chap. vii., viii., xi., xii.

WILFRID, Bishop of York, b. in Northumbria, 634; d. at York, Oct. 12, 709. He was educated in the monastary of Lindisfarne, but having found out that the way to virtue taught by the Scotch monks was not the perfect one, he set out for Rome, where he arrived in 654. After his return from Rome, he was, by King Aswy of Northumbria, appointed tutor to his son Alchfred, 664; and having, at the synod of Strenseshale (Whitby in Yorkshire), persuaded the king to allow the clergy that the Roman computation of Easter, and the Roman shape of the tombs were the only right ones, he received the episcopal see of York as a reward (665), and held it for forty years. He was one of the most prominent champions of the Church of Rome in England. Several times he was deposed or expelled from his see by the kings; and each time he repaired to Rome, where he was sure to find support. On one of his journeys to Rome he suffered shipwreck on the Frisian coast, and began that missionary work among them which afterwards was so successfully continued by Wilbrord. See HENDBYS: Vita Wlfridi; and Bede: Hist. Eccl., i., iii.—v.

THEODOR CHRISTLIEB.

WILL, THE. A theme of endless debate, and one respecting which there is, apparently, an inconceivable difference of opinion. It illustrates better than almost any other subject the close relation subsisting between philosophy and theology; for it belongs to both departments. Hence it would be better if the psychological and theological aspects of this question were more sharply distinguished than is sometimes done. Difficult as the problem of the will confessedly is, there can be no doubt that much of the confusion that exists regarding it arises from a want of precis-
WILL.

Psychologists of a former day usually distributed mental phenomena under two heads,—understanding and will. In this way the moral and active powers, the desires and affections, as well as the volitions, came under the latter designation. To say that the will was in bondage was only saying that a man's desires and affections are not determined by his volitions. So understood, few would deny the bondage of the will. For whatever power there may be to control appetite, or restrain desire, no one claims that a man may have or not have an appetite or desire at his pleasure. It is common now to distribute the phenomena of the mind under a triple division,—intellect, feeling, will. According to this classification, the emotions are treated separately, and are not embraced in discussions pertaining to the will. Yet even here there is a wider and a narrower sense of the word 'will;' for, as the third term of this triple division, it stands for both desire and volition. Locke's distinction between these two forms of causation is a good one, and the attempt of Edwards to overthrow it is not successful. There is a clear difference between a desire to act that may be vague, spontaneous, and motiveless, and a volition or determination to act that is direct, definite, and deliberate. Indeed, the two may be opposed to each other, as when we so often see desire struggling in the strong grip of volition.

It should be understood, that, when the will is spoken of under the limitations of the freewill controversy, reference is made to volitions, and not to desires. It is not easy, however, to substitute volitions for 'will' at all times; for it is convenient to speak of the will abstractly as the power of choice, in distinction from volitions as the concrete manifestations of choice. But, when the word 'will' is so used, care must be taken not to hypostatize the will,—not to conceive of it as something different from the man, or of the man as divided into three parts, of which the will is a part; the will, as the intellect means the man knowing. It must be remembered, moreover, that no mental state belongs exclusively to any one of these three divisions just referred to. An act of will is likewise an act of the intellect. An act of will may be also very closely related to an emotion. So closely related, in fact, are the feelings and the will, that Bain's attempt to explain the genesis of the will in some respects the most plausible defence of empiricism in print. At the other extreme, but still illustrating the close relation between intellect, feeling, and will, stand those who hold, with Schopenhauer, that the will is the prior of all mental phenomena. We cannot stop to inquire whether the will begat the emotions, or whether the emotions begat the will, or whether (though this is what we believe) intellect, feeling, and will are coordinate elements in man's nature, there being no right of priority in favor of either first. So also, it is evident that the problem of the will occupies to-day, and must continue to occupy, a large place in religious philosophy. It is not necessary to hold, on the one hand, that will is generated out of emotion, or, on the other, that all objective reality is the manifestation of the causal activity of will in order to see that the problem of the will is one that concerns matters of far more importance than the doctrinal differences of Calvinists and Arminians. For however much men may differ in regard to the questions referred to above, it nevertheless, seems to be true: (1) That though there can be no will without intelligence, the manifestation of will is the first sign of intelligence—purposive action is not reflex action; (2) That the will, both in man and in the brutes, is the great barrier to automatism; (3) That physical determinism cannot explain the phenomena of the will, and that in the consciousness of power revealed to us in the exercise of will we have a type of causation to which physical causes furnish no analogy, if, indeed, physical causes be, in the true sense of the word, causes at all.

II. FREEDOM OF THE WILL. — It is impossible in the short space allowed for this article to enter fully into the history of the freewill controversy. It holds such an important place, however, both in philosophy and theology, that some notice must be taken of those who have been the most conspicuous participants in it. Some knowledge of the history of the controversy may greatly help in the consideration of the particular points which it involved.

1. History of the Freewill Controversy. — At first this was altogether a theological question. It was not treated metaphysically. Sharp distinctions between ability and liberty were not known. The question was not, How are individual volitions explained? but, How has sin affected man's ability to do what God commands? Tertullian distinguishes between the will before and the will after the fall. Augustine does the same thing, and says that by the fall Adam lost himself and his freewill. In opposition to Pelagius, he taught that since the fall man is totally depraved, that he can do no spiritual good, and that efficacious grace is a sovereign gift of God. This is what he meant by denying freewill. This is what Luther meant in his controversy with Erasmus, what Calvin meant in his controversy with Pighius, for what the Reformers preached in opposition to the Council of Trent. This, too, is the Calvinistic position in opposition to Arminianism. Total depravity, inability, efficacious grace,—these doctrines are closely related; and they stand opposed to Pelagian or semi-Pelagian error. But the servitude of the will, which Augustinian theologians have always contended for on scriptural grounds, must be distinguished from the doctrine of philosophical necessity that was advocated in the period that follows the one of which we have been speaking.

In the next period the discussion assumed a philosophical form; Hobbes, Collins, Priestley, and Leibnitz defending the necessitarian, while Price and Clarke advocated the libertarian position. Hobbes anticipated Edwards in resolving the doctrine of the self-determination of the will into an infinite series of choices, where the freedom of an act was considered to be independent choice. Leibnitz, in his doctrine of the sufficient reason, furnished the argument that has been made use of ever since in support of determinism.
And it is safe to say that the argument has not advanced much beyond the position it occupied when Clarke urged on the one hand the self-determining power of the will, and Hobbes, on the other hand, claimed that volitions, like all other events, come under the law of causality. Spinoza was a determinist, of course. Descartes argues against Hobbes, but admits all that a determinist could ask. So does Locke, whose discussion of this subject is admirably clear and discriminative.

Jonathan Edwards stands apart and above all others in the discussion of this problem. He is the first, in a long succession of able men in America who have dealt with this and kindred anthropological questions according to a metaphysico-theological method, and who have contributed a most important chapter to the history of opinion. The treatise on The Will was intended as a polemic defence of, or in opposition to, its teaching. Its literary of literature has grown up around it in whatever: but the "self-determining power of the will" has not come back from the trip up the shelf. Edwards holds, that the will is determined by the strongest motive, and the strongest motive is the greatest apparent good. His arguments are, for the most part, philosophical; but the doctrine advocated in his treatise follows also, in his judgment, from the divine foreknowledge. Here he is wrong; for while foreknowledge may insure the certain futurity of a volition, it does not determine the question how it shall be brought about. It would have been better had he followed Locke's example, and, refusing to consider "consequences," confined himself to the psychological study of the will.

The Edwardean doctrine of the will, besides meeting with opposition at the hands of Tappan, Hazard, Upham, Bledsoe, and Whedon, who have all written especially upon the subject, has been strongly objected to by the Scottish philosophers, Reid, Stuart, and Sir William Hamilton. Empirical philosophers are naturally determinists, so are all those who deny the separate personal existence of the individual self. Determinism follows as naturally from the scheme of Hegel as from that of Comte. Kant postulated freedom under the practical reason, when he could not find it by means of the speculative reason. Sir William Hamilton, following the suggestions of Kant's antinomies, found freedom and necessity both inconceivable, but believed in freedom, since, being contradictions, one or the other must be true. This is one form of his doctrine of the conditioned. And a great many who do not follow him may yet be compelled to take comparable agnostic position regarding the whole matter, believing that there is no answer to the question, Why this rather than that volition? but believing, nevertheless, that they are free, and convinced beyond all peradventure that the reign of physical determinism would be the blight of humanity.

2. Points in the Freewill Controversy. — If it were asked what is meant by saying that a man is free, the reply would be, 'He can do as he wills.' Will being the norm of freedom, there seems to be something incongruous in the inquiry whether the will is free. How can we predicate freedom of the will when our only idea of freedom is through the will? How can will be measured and measured at the same time? It would not settle the freewill controversy to discontinue the use of the word 'free' in connection with the will, but it would make it capable of more intelligible statement. If, however, it must be used, let it be said that the man is free in willing. But then what does this mean? 'I will.' That is a simple psychological fact. I at pleasure determine a certain mental state which is attended with a certain expenditure of energy. The mental state is a volition: the muscular change is action. What is meant by calling this volition a free volition? Does it mean that nothing outside of me forced it upon me? that it is free, inasmuch as it is my own? that I am all believer in freewill? To this fact, that I am self-determined, that I am the cause of my volitions, consciousness bears witness; and in this sense the freedom of the will is irrespective altogether of the relation of the volitions to antecedent mental states. But it is commonly maintained, that, in order to believe in freewill, one must hold a particular view of the relation of a given volition to the past. This, however, must not be conceded. The difference among men regarding the will relates to the question how a given volition came to pass, and not to the question whether the will is free. That the problem may be understood, let us take the case of a single volition. When the question arises, What is the cause of a given mental state? there is no doubt that I am the cause; I am the agent, the efficient cause. But while the volition is accounted for by saying, 'I am the cause of it,' the question also arises, Why did I choose this rather than that? the problem is changed. I was forced the west? Is it true that the volition is an effect produced by me, but is it not also an effect produced in me? That I am an agent explains the coming about of a volition, but how does it happen to be such a volition? If this question could be answered, the problem of the will would be solved. There are two generic answers to this question, and it seems impossible that there should be a third. Some hold that each volition is conditioned by antecedents, and in this sense, before it comes into existence, is contingent. Others hold that each volition was anteecedently determined, and therefore certain. Indeterminism and determinism are therefore the two rival theories of the will.

(a) Indeterminism. — Without entering into the discussions suggested by such familiar phrases as "power of contrary choices," "liberty of indifference," etc., "self-determining power of the will," we may say that irrefutability has been presented in two forms. It either means, that, in every free volition, 'I not only do as I choose, but choose as I choose,' or else it means that the whole philosophy of the will is expressed in the two words, 'I choose.' If the free choice is one conditioned on an antecedent choice, then we have the old difficulty of the "infinite series" over again. But if, with Whedon, we cut off the infinite series by saying that each choice is a separate and distinct creation by the soul out of nothing; if to the question, What reason is entail upon us the absurdities that have so often pained at the resent day. Indeed, it is not too phasis at the resent day. Indeed, it is not too
WILL.

The mind simply "projects volitions" blindly, without motive, without reference to past or future: so that, according to the tenets of indeterminism, there is no way of having a free choice, except through an infinite series of choices, or else through a theory that makes all choices purely fortuitous. These difficulties are very serious, and they are not removed by pointing to the evils that are connected with determinism; nay, on the contrary, they are the arguments that are urged in support of indeterminism: so strong, that these difficulties may be safely overlooked. Indeterminism is supported, (1) By appeals to consciousness. But it may be doubted whether consciousness testifies to anything beyond the fact that the Ego is the sole agent in each volition, and is undetermined by any thing out without warrant. We are more accountable, whatever be the true doctrine of the will. The question under discussion is a psychological question, and should be discussed on its proper grounds. The advocates of indeterminism have done great service in magnifying the testimony of consciousness respecting self-determination in all acts of will. This is not only an important, but a vitally important truth, and one that needs special emphasis at the present day. Indeed, it is too much to say, that many who oppose determinism mean only to express their abhorrence of physical determinism, and their belief in the true causal efficiency of the Ego. On these points there is no room for any difference of opinion among those who believe in one personal God and in the separate and perdurable personality of man. But the advocacy of these great truths does not entail upon us the absurdities that have so often been shown to inhere in the theories of indeterminism.

(b) Determinism. — There are two forms of this theory that should be carefully distinguished. It is altogether unfair to represent Spinoza, Priestley, and Huxley as holding the same view of the will as that advocated by Edwards, Chalmers, and Hodge. It is true that these men are all determinists, that they all hold the antecedent certainty of every volition; but they are the poles apart regard to the explanation of that certainty. Physical determinism is simply the application of the doctrine of physical causation to psychical phenomena. According to that doctrine, the phenomenal world of to-day is the necessary result of all the past. Given the world at any one period, and its condition at any subsequent period is mathematically and alterely certain. The craving for unity accounts for the attempt to place mind and matter under one generalization. The law of uniformity, indeed, cannot be true regarding matter, unless it be true regarding mind. To bring mental phenomena under the law of physical causation is simply to blot out mind, and teach materialism in fact, however much materialism in name may be denied. This physical determinism, which is now advocated by so many scientific men, is something which every theist must look upon with abhorrence; and we protest against the unfair attempts of some of its advocates to secure a hearing for itself by pleading in its behalf the support of Jonathan Edwards. Physical determinism is a very different thing from psychical determinism. Physical determinism bloots the soul, the separate personality. It makes man an automaton, and interprets history in the terms of matter and motion. Psychical determinism, as taught by Edwards and others, is simply the determinism of character. It is allowed, that, in defending his position, Edwards is often at fault in the use of such words as "cause," "motive," and "will:" and those who accept his theory would not always employ his phraseology. Taking, then, any given volition for illustration, the advocate of psychical determinism would say that the cause of the volition is the Ego. A great deal can be said for limiting the meaning of cause to agent; and in volition certainly the agent is the Ego. But now the question is, why the agent put forth this and not that volition. And to this the answer must be, "There is no reason," it will be replied, (1) This is inconceivable; (2) This destroys responsibility, for actions are moral as expressing will, and will is moral as expressing character. If volitions are simply "projected" without reason,—if they are separate units, sustaining no relation to the man, other than that the man having the power to shoot out volitions does so, it is hard to see what is to be the subject of moral accountability;—not the volition, certainly; and not the man, for these volitions are not related to him in any other way than that he projected them. If character does not determine conduct, how can we know that it is not the bad man who exhibits good behavior, and the good man who is filling the world with all the bad volitions? (3) Why, then, do the volitions of the same man manifest a general similarity? Why are the mean man's volitions unlike the generous man's volitions? Indeterminism has no answer to this question. (4) We must choose, then, between the theory that affirms that uniformities of conduct which we suppose to reveal character are simply fortuitous, and that which says that character determines conduct. We may express this latter belief by saying that the strongest motive influences the will, or that the will is the greatest apparent good or that the will follows the last dictate of the understanding, or that character determines volitions, or that the mental state in the indivisible moment prior to volition determines the volition. These expressions all mean practically the same thing; and those who hold the view embodied in these words are determinists of the second class above named, as distinguished from those who advocate the doctrine of physical determinism.

1. Difference between Determinism and Inability.

— Without free agency there can be no moral accountability. A man forced to do a bad action is not blamed for it. A man who cannot do as he chooses, or who is forced to do contrary to his choice, is not free, and therefore not responsible. But it is wrong to say that power of contrary choice is essential to moral responsibility, or that volitions that are certain are not free. God cannot will contrary to his holy nature. The volitions of Christ were certainly holy: so are the volitions of the redeemed in heaven. And, more than that, all Christians pray that the Holy Spirit will exert a controlling influence upon their minds so that they may have wise and holy choices. No one feels that a Christian is less holy or less moral because his choices are influenced by the Holy Ghost. The certain connection between a man's nature and his volitions does not deprive the volitions of moral quality. It would be difficult to see how they could have moral quality without such certain connection. The question is not, how a man shall be held accountable whose will is determined by an unholy nature, that the objection to the deterministic theory of the will cannot be met. But on the theory of the determinism does not affect the question raised by the Westminster Confession of Faith, for there the distinction between the will before and the will after the fall is made emphatic. If, however, the distinction between determinism and inability be kept in mind, it will be seen that there is no foundation for this criticism of the deterministic theory. Determinism is simply a theory that affirms of all men, fallen or unfallen, that their volitions stand in necessary relation to antecedent states of mind. The Confession of Faith, on the other hand, teaches, that, so far as holy choices are concerned, there is a great difference between the will before and the will after the fall. Determinism is applicable to all volitions without exception; whereas it is only in respect to any thing spiritually good that the Confession of Faith and the Reformed theology predicate of men, since the fall, an inability of will. The word 'inability' itself expresses an important point of difference. It states, concerning a certain class of volitions, that they are beyond the power of a certain class of men. Determinism, on the other hand, affirms nothing as to the ability or inability of men as to volitions. It is, of course, very natural for those who believe in inability to be determinists: for if all volitions are determined by antecedent mental states, then, assuming that the nature of man since the fall has been corrupt, there is no difficulty in supposing that the volitions correspond to the nature. Determinism will account for inability, but whether we are obliged to adopt determinism in order to account for inability is another question. Principal Cunningham thinks we are not. But, however this may be, determinism does not affect the question raised by the Westminster Confession of Faith; and to the will before and after the fall. And it may be said, that whatever conflict may be supposed to exist between freewill and determinism exists likewise between freewill and inability. There is really no conflict in either case; for we are free in choosing, whatever may be the underlying reason that determines choice; and we are self-determined in every volition, although a certain class of volitions may be out of the power of unregenerate men. But if, on the one hand, determinism be not contrary to the Westminster Confession of Faith, neither, on the other hand, does it necessarily involve the doctrine of a fourfold state of will, which is taught in that Confession; that doctrine belonging altogether to the theological side of the freewill debate.

— To the question, How did the sin of Adam affect his posterity? three generic answers have been given. The Pelagian says that mankind have been practically unaffected, and that men have plenary ability to do all that is required; the semi-Pelagian says that man's moral powers have been weakened, and that there is need of divine grace; the Augustinian says that man is dead in trespasses and sins, and that he is unable to do anything spiritually good before regeneration. Augustine taught, and it has been repeated by Peter Lombard and also by the Reformed theologians, that there is a fourfold state of the human will,—before the fall, when Adam the freedom of sin or evil; after the fall and before regeneration, when there is freedom in sin only, and an inability of will to any thing spiritually good; after regeneration, when there is ability to do both good and evil; and after glorification, when the will is unalterably determined to holy choices. If we are to include, as the freedom of sin or evil; and the will, who reject Pelagian and semi-Pelagian error, we must comprehend under this designation some who cannot be called Augustinians in the strictest sense of the term. That is to say, we must include some, who, while they reject Pelagianism and semi-Pelagianism, would not say that fallen man is "indisposed, disposed, and made opposite to all good," or would not accept the full Augustinian theology on other points of doctrine. The Augustinian (using the word in the broad sense just stated) doctrine of inability is represented in several forms. (a) The Roman-Catholic. The doctrine of the Church of Rome, as taught by representative theologians and the Council of Trent, is substantially Augustinian in regard to original sin, though the full Augustinian doctrine of inability is denied in denying the passivity of the soul in regeneration. (6) The Arminian. Augustinians as to their views regarding total depravity and consequent inability, Arminians nevertheless deny the Augustinian forms of the doctrine of efficacious grace. This denial was one of the "five points" in the "Remonstrance." Wesleyan Arminians hold that a "gracious ability" is given to all men, whereby they may co-operate with the Spirit of God. (c) Lutheran Doctrine of Inability. Lutheran theology is thoroughly Augustinian upon this point. (See Aug. Conf., art. xviii.; Form. Concord., art. ii.) (d) Modified Calvinism. The anthropological discussions among the New England divines turned largely upon the distinction between natural and moral ability. Edwards held that men have "natural ability to repent, and turn to God: they have all the qualifications for doing so, and there is nothing to hinder them if they will. "There are faculties of mind, and a capacity of nature, and every thing else sufficient, but a disposition: nothing is wanting but a will." Moral ability means, then, inability through unwillingness. Edwards will not allow us to ask whether a man can will; for he says that could only be answered by saying, that, if he wills, he can will, or, if he wills to will, he can will. In other words, we must take our choice between an identical proposition and the infinite series. Dr. Taylor, however, pressed the question, Can a man choose God for his portion? and answered it by saying that he was able to do so, but it was certain he would not do so. He had natural ability to will, but moral inability. This he generalized in this formula: "Certainty, with power to the contrary." Moral inability in the theology of Edwards and moral ability in the theology of Calvin is substantially the same thing, as Dr. Taylor, were two different things. In the first case it meant, 'I cannot act, since I am unwilling: in the latter case it meant, 'I shall not will, though I am able to will.' According to this view, inability consists in the certainty, that, without divine grace, man will not make the generic choice of God as his chief good. (e) Symbolical WILLEHAD.

2528 WILLIAM OF CHAMPEAUX.

WILLEHAD, St., b. in Northumbria about 750; d. at Blexen on the mouth of the Weser, Nov. 8, 789. He was educated at York under Alcuin, and went in 770 to Friesland as a missionary. He began his work with great success at Dockum, where Christianity had never been preached before. At Blexen on the mouth of the Weser, where the Frisians and the Saxons met together. Willehad accepted the invitation; but his labor was interrupted, and his work destroyed the vestiture between Abelard, and Bernard of Clairvaux. But for centuries July 13 and Nov. 8, the dates of his consecration and death, were celebrated in the churches of Bremen. See ANGAR: Vita S. Willehadi; PHIL. CORSAER: Tractatus Septentrionis, Cologne, 1649; also found in Act. Sanct. Ben., iii., and in Pertz: Mon. Hist. Ger., ii.; ADAM OF BREMEN: Gesta H. Ecl. Pontifecum. G. H. KLIPPEL.

WILLERAM, or WILTRAMUS, was first teacher in the cloister school of Bomberg, the favorite establishment of Henry I., then monk at Elna, and finally abbot of Elsberg in Bavaria, where he died Jan. 5, 1085. He was very busy in promoting the material welfare of his monastery, exchanging devotional books for good vineyards (Oeefe: Iter Boiar. Script., ii. p. 46). But he won his great reputation as a scholar and poet. His famous translation of the Song of Songs into Latin hexameters and Old-High-German stanzas, accompanied with commentaries extracted from the Fathers, was highly appreciated and often copied. The Latin translation was published by Merula, Liege, 1590; the German, by Hoffman, Breslau, 1827. His life is found in the above collection by Oeefe.

WILLIAM OF AUVERGNE, Archbishop of Paris from 1228; b. at Aurillac about the close of the thirteenth century; d. March 30, 1249; sided with the court and the monks in the contest between the university of Paris and the queen regent, Blanche of Castile. He was a Platonist, having derived his Platonic views from Arabic sources, and opposed realism in philosophy, and mysticism in theology, to the reigning Aristotelian scholasticisms. His works (Cur Deus homo? De Fide et Legibus, De Virtutibus, De Anima, etc.) were praised by Rayn. Review, Berner, and See Valois: Guillaume d’Aurigny, Paris, 1880.

WILLIAM OF CHAMPEAUX, b. at Champa- peaux about 1070; d. at Châlons-sur-Marne, Feb. 15, 1122. He was a pupil of Anselm of Laon, a realist; and, having defeated the nominalist Roselin, he began a brilliant career as a teacher in Paris, until he himself was defeated by Abelard. Tormented by the invectives and sarcasms of Abelard, he retired (1108) to St. Victor (Celia Vitæ); and there he founded a celebrated school, which afterwards became the seat of French mysticism in its opposition to scholasticism. In 1113 he was elected bishop of Châlons-sur-Marne, and as such he took part in the controversies concerning investiture between Abelard, and Bernard of Clairvaux, etc. He was a friend of Bernard, often visited him, and was buried at Clairvaux. Of his works, only fragments, though large fragments, have come down to us: Sententiae, in two main parts; and De anima, and De anima-sur-Marne; De anima, in Martène, v. 879; De eucharistia, etc. From the last-mentioned work it is evident that at that time the Lord’s Supper...
WILLIAM OF MALMESBURY, b. in Somersetshire, probably in 1096; d. at Malmesbury after 1142. He was the son of a Norman father and a Saxon mother; was educated in the monastery of Malines, where he spent his whole life as a monk, and entered on the cantor, and gained a lasting reputation as one of the foremost of the early English historians. His principal works are, De gestis regum, containing the history of England from the Anglo-Saxon Conquest to the end of the reign of Henry I., 1129; Historia novella, a continuation of the preceding; and De gesta pontificum Anglorum, containing the history of the Christian Church in England from the introduction of Christianity to 1123. These three works were first edited by Savile, in his Rerum Anglicarum Scriptores, London, 1596, but after a poor manuscript: the best edition is that of the English Historical Society, 1856, 3 vols. Among his other works are, De vita Aldhelmii and De antiquitate Glastoniem ecclesiae, both in Wharton’s Anglia Sacra, ii.; Vita S. Patricii, of which extracts are found in Leland’s Collectanea, iii.; and several books, Itinerarium Joannis, De miraculis divae Mariae, etc., which seem to have perished. He was a cautious, careful, and accurate writer, using the materials which he drew from other chronicles with discrimination, and showing great impartiality and love of truth in the treatment of his own time. There is an English translation of the Gesta rerum and the Historia nova by J. Sharpe, edited by Dr. Giles, in Bohn’s Antiquarian Library, William of Malines’s Chronicle of the Kings of England, London, 1847. TH. CHRISTLIEB.

WILLIAM OF NASSAU, commonly called William the Silent, b. at Dillenburg, Nassau, April 16, 1533; d. at Delft, Holland, July 10, 1584. As heir of the large possessions of the house of Nassau in the Netherlands, he was educated at the court of the queen-regent, Mary of Hungary, in Brussels; that is to say, he was educated in the Roman-Catholic faith, though both his parents were Lutherans. In his eleventh year he became page to Charles V.; and the emperor soon showed him the extraordinary confidence, employing him in the most difficult positions, diplomatic and military. Philip II. also seemed inclined to use him; but when, after the conclusion of the peace of Cateau-Cambrésis (1559), he, together with the Duke of Alva, was sent to Paris as hostage for the fulfilment of the treaty, the French king, Henry II., one day told him that there existed a treaty between himself and the king of Spain for the extermination by fire and sword of all Protestants in Spain, France, and Netherlands; and from that moment, though the man of silence betrayed no emotion, the policy of his life was completed. Baldwin, the governor of the provinces of Holland and Zeeland, a member of the council at Brussels, he steadily opposed the policy of Philip II., though without declaring openly in favor of the Protestants. But when, in 1566, Philip II. decided to send the Duke of Alva to the Netherlands at the head of a large Spanish army, William resigned all his government offices, retired to his possessions in Nassau, and publicly embraced Calvinism. During the war which ensued, he twice raised an army at his own expense; and, though he achieved no signal military success against the Spaniards, he succeeded in gradually rousing the whole Protestant population of the Netherlands to throw off the Spanish yoke. On Jan. 23, 1579, the Union of Utrecht was signed, by which the northern provinces established themselves as an independent state, intending to admit no prince but some foreign prince. Philip II. answered by putting a prize of twenty-five thousand crowns on the head of William, March 15, 1580; and July 10, 1584, Balthazar Gerard shot him in his house in Delft. Besides his Correspondance, collected and published by Gachard (Brussels, 1847–56, 5 vols.), he wrote an Apologie de Guillaume de Nassau, a most remarkable document, of which there is a recent edition, Brussels and Leipzig, 1858. See Motley: The Rise of the Dutch Republic, New York, 1856, 3 vols.

WILLIAM OF ST. AMOUR, b. in the first decade of the thirteenth century, probably at St. Amour in Burgundy; d. in Paris, probably in 1272. He was professor at the Sorbonne, and became famous on account of his spirited opposition to the Mendicant orders. In 1225 the Dominicans succeeded in penetrating into the university of Paris, and obtaining possession of a chair of theology. And hardly had twenty years elapsed before they claimed to control the whole institution, refusing to obey the laws of the corporation. Their most dangerous opponent was William. He preached against people who taught that labor was a shame, and beggary a glory; that prayer was sufficient to make the corn grow in the field, etc.; and his sarcasms bit. In 1254 he was summoned before the archbishop of Paris; but, as his accusers dared not confront him publicly, he was acquitted. In 1256 he published his De periculis novissimorum temporum, which, put into French verse, became very popular, and consequently very dangerous. Thomas Aquinas and Bonaventura wrote against it. The Pope condemned the book to be burnt, and the author was banished from Paris. He returned, however, in 1258, was received with enthusiasm by the students, and continued his activity till his death, unmolested by the Dominicans. See BULZIES: Hist. Univers. Parsi, iii.; CORNILLE ST. MARC: Etude sur Guillaume de St. Amour, Lons-le-Saunier, 1895.

W. HOLLENBERG.

WILLIAM OF TYRE, b. in Syria in 1130; was educated in Antioch or Jerusalem, but went in 1150 to the Occident, and studied for several years in Italy and France. After his return to Jerusalem he gained the favor of King Amalric, who made him archdeacon of Tyre in 1167, sent him to Constantinople as ambassador in 1168, and in 1169 appointed him tutor to his son Baldwin, the heir-apparent. Baldwin ascended the throne in 1173, and in 1174 made his former tutor archbishop of Tyre. In this quality William was present at the third Lateran synod; but of the last years of his life the accounts are very contradictory, and the date of his death is unknown. Of his two great historical works, Gesta principum orientalium and Belli sacri historiarum, the former has perished. The latter, containing the history of the Crusades from 1100 to 1184, is one of the finest specimens of mediæval historiography, full, accurate, and impartial. It was first printed at Basel, 1549, and then by Bongarsius, in his Gesta dei papes Francos, 1, 1594, reprinted by Migne. The best editions are that in the Recueil des historiens des croisades, etc., vol. 5, ed. by L. Brunet, Paris, Paris, 1879—80, 2 vols. There is an old French translation, Estoire de Eracles (1573), and a modern German, by Kauler, Stuttgart, 1844, 2d edition, 1848. O. H. KLIPPEL.

WILLIAM OF WYKEHAM. 2530

WILLIAMS, Daniel, D.D., Presbyterian; b. at Wrexham in Denbighshire, in North Wales, about 1644; d. in London, Jan. 26, 1716. His education was defective; yet he began to preach at an early age, and, having been consecrated a priest, became a prebendary's stall at Lichfield. At this time he was a thorough moralist, and did much good. In 1679 he was made keeper of the privy seal; secretary of state, 1686; and bishop of Winchester the same year. He was lord-chancellor from 1687 to 1717, when he resigned. He founded New College at Oxford, 1679. In 1705 he was accused of malfeasance in office, and deprived of the temporalities of his see. But the rectitude of the bishop was subsequently established (for the charge was shown to have arisen from his having forgiven half of a fine of eighty pounds); and Richard II. restored him to his offices and dignities, 1739. He was again lord-chancellor from 1890 to 1391. He rebuilt Winchester Cathedral, 1395—1405. See CAMPBELL: Lives of the Lord-Chancellors.

WILLIAMS, John, Archbishop of York; b. at Aberconway, March 25, 1582; d. at Glaston, March 25, 1650. He was graduated at Cambridge, 1603; ordained priest, 1609; dean of Salisbury, 1619; and of Westminster, 1620. From July 10, 1621 (succeeding Lord Bacon) to Oct. 25, 1626, he was lord-keeper of the great seal of England. In 1621 he was elected bishop of Lincoln. He discharged his multifarious and laborious duties as chancellor, statesman, and bishop, with diligence. He lost his chancellorship on the accession of Charles I., and won the enmity of Laud, who instituted three prosecutions against him prior to the Star Chamber; (1) for revealing the king's secrets; (2) for tampering with the king's witnesses; (3) for divulging scandalous libels against the king's privy councilors. He was sentenced to pay fines to the amount of eighteen thousand pounds, to be suspended from his bishopric, and to be kept in the Tower during the king's pleasure. He was in prison from 1638 to 1640. The Long Parliament released him. The king raised him to the archbishopric of York, 1641, and had all records of his trial cancelled. He is said to have died of grief over the king's execution. He was a man of learning and ability, although not equal to the demands of those stormy times. He won the favor of the Puritans by his conduct toward them. In 1641 he was chairman of the parliamentary committee "for innovations," i.e., "to examine all innovations of doctrine and dis-
WILLIAMS.

2531

WILLIAMS.

WILLIAMS, John, "The Apostle of Polynesia," missionary; b. at Tottenham, June 29, 1796; removed to Kew, 1802; entered a tutor's college, 1808, and entered King's College, Cambridge. Tradition has it that he studied law; but it is certain that he soon gave up his attention to theology, was admitted to orders held a benefice in Lincolnshire. His birthplace, whether Wales or Ireland, is uncertain; d. April, 1683, at Providence, R.I. His birthplace, whether Wales or Cornwall, is also in dispute. Pious parentage may be inferred from his remark, "From my childhood, the Father of lights and mercies touched my soul with a love to himself." In London, while he was still a youth, his skill in reporting sermons and also speeches in the Star Chamber attracted the notice of Sir Edward Coke, who sent him to Sutton's Hospital (now Charterhouse) School; and Williams afterwards writes to Sir Edward's daughter, "Your dear father was often pleased to call me his son." His university course, said by some to have been used in Oxford, was probably taken at Pembroke College, Cambridge. Tradition has it that he studied law; but it is certain that he soon gave his attention to theology, was admitted to orders in the Established Church, and, it has been said, held a benefice in Lincolnshire.

But his conscience was persuaded against the national church and ceremonies and bishops." His statement, "Bishop Laud pursued me out of this land," may not refer to any direct persecution; but it is evident that so radical a reformer as he was could find safety and freedom only in exile. Accordingly, he sailed for America, arriving in Boston in February, 1631.

Here he is spoken of by Winthrop as "a godly minister;" and the church in Boston immediately asked for his services. But not even the men of law could find safety and freedom only in exile. Accordingly, he sailed for America, arriving in Boston in February, 1631.

But certain of his opinions brought upon him the displeasure of the authorities of the Colony. He was repeatedly cited to appear before the General Court; and in October, 1635, it was "ordered that the said Mr. Williams shall depart out of this jurisdiction within six weeks now next ensuing." Permission was afterwards given him to remain at Salem until spring; but as it was soon reported, that, at gatherings in his own house, he had continued to utter the objectionable teachings: an officer was sent to Salem in January, 1638, to apprehend him, in order to put him on board ship, and send him back to England. On the officer's arrival at Salem, it was found that Williams had departed three days before, whither could not be learned.

The most noted of the proscribed opinions of Williams was that the civil magistrate should not inflict punishment for purely religious error. It has been urged that it was not simply for his doctrine of religious liberty, but for other opinions also, that Williams was banished. This, however, will not exculpate the General Court; for we find them enacting a law, that: "If any person or persons within this jurisdiction shall deny their [the magistrates'] lawful right or authority to punish the outward breaches of the first table . . . every such person or persons shall be sentenced to banishment." In other words, though it be admitted that Williams was banished for other utterances, together with the proclamation of the doctrine of religious freedom, the court deemed it proper to decree banishment for that teaching alone. Certain others of Williams's opinions were condemned, e.g., those regarding the royal patent, the administration of certain oaths, etc.; and it is declared by some that these doctrines threatened the civil peace, and thus rendered him justly liable to exile. But in Rhode Island, where the teachings of Williams and of all others were freely permitted, life and property and civil order were as secure as in Massachusetts. In other words, the Rhode-Island experiment showed that Williams's teachings were not dangerous to civil order, and that therefore his banishment from Massachusetts was unnecessary, and consequently unjust.

Departing from Salem, Williams, with four companions, made his way to Seekonk, where he began to build and plant. But in a few weeks, finding that this spot was within the jurisdiction of Plymouth Colony, he went on and made a new settlement, to which he gave the name of "Providence."

Three years after Williams's settlement at Providence came a change in his ecclesiastical relations. It should be remarked that the doctrine of religious liberty was not first set forth by Williams, but had been preached for a long time by the Baptists. It is found in their Confession of Faith, put forth in Amsterdam in 1611, when Williams was but a lad; and he must have been familiar with the teachings of the Baptists on this point. Possibly a leaning, on his part, to Baptist views, is revealed in the fear of Brewster at Plymouth, that Williams might "run the course of rigid separation and anabaptistry, which Mr. John Smith, the Se-Baptist at Amsterdam, had done." At any rate, in 1639, Williams, with others, renounced his baptism in infancy, and was baptized again, Ezekiel Holliman baptizing Williams, and Williams in return baptizing Holliman and several others. This reciprocal baptism is generally given as the origin of the First Baptist Church of Providence. Williams, however, remained connected with the new society only some four months; for, becoming dissatisfied with his baptism as not coming down from the apostles, he withdrew, and henceforth renounced all connection with churches.

In 1643 Williams went to England to procure a charter for the Providence and Rhode Island colonists; in which mission he succeeded, returning the following year. In 1651, in company with John Clarke of Newport, he sailed again for England to secure the interests of the Colony, returning in 1654. He lived to advanced years, dying in 1683. Williams's character as a man and a Christian was above reproach. Though he was much engaged in sharp discussion, and the age was one in which disputants indulged in bitter invective, opponents spoke of him personally in terms of high respect. He was an especial friend of the Indians. He studied their language, respected and defended their title to their lands, and, when the Massachusetts Colony and other white settlements were threatened with Indian hostilities, he was able, by his acquaintance and friendship with leading chiefs, to avert the impending dangers.

He was a somewhat copious and a vigorous author. His writings contain many striking passages, and can still be read with interest. He had the intimate friendship of Cromwell, Milton, Vane, and others of the noblest Englishmen of his day.

Williams's extant writings (all published in London except when otherwise designated) are:

— A key into the Language of America, or a help to the language of the Natives, etc., 1645, 12mo, pp. 216; Mr. Cotton's letter examined, etc., 1644, 4to, pp. 87; The Bloody Tenent of Persecution, etc., 1644, 4to, pp. 271; Queries, etc., 1645, pp. 13; Christenings make not Christians, a tract, 1645; The Bloody Tenent yet more Bloody, etc., 1652, 4to, pp. 373; The Hireling Ministry, etc., 1652, 4to, pp. 44; Experiments, etc., 1652, 4to, pp. 69; George Fox Digged out of his Burrowes, Boston, 1676, 4to, pp. 365. Many of his letters are also published, edited by J. Russell Bartlett, Providence, 1882. His works, except one or two of the shorter writings, were republished by the Narraganset Club, in 6 vols., Providence, 1866-74. A seventh volume will complete the set.

Lit.—James D. Knowles: Memoir of Roger Williams, the Founder of the State of Rhode Island, Boston, 1834; William Gammell: Life of Roger Williams, Boston, 1845 (Sparks's American Biography, 2d series, vol. iv.); Romeo Elton: Life of Roger Williams, the Earliest Legislator, and the True Champion for a Full and Absolute Liberty of Conscience, Providence, 1853; Reuben Aldridge: Guild: A Biographical Introduction to the Writings of Roger Williams, Providence, 1886 (publications of the Narraganset Club, vol. 1.); Z. A. Mudge: Footprints of Roger Williams, a Biography, New York, 1871 (for the young); Henry M. Dearborn: As to the Settlers at the Rate, in 1639. Williams, with others, renounced his baptism in infancy, and was baptized again, Ezekiel Holliman baptizing Williams, and Williams in return baptizing Holliman and several others. This reciprocal baptism is generally given as the origin of the First Baptist Church of Providence. Williams, however, remained connected with the new society only some four months; for, becoming dissatisfied with his baptism as not coming down from the apostles, he withdrew, and henceforth renounced all connection with churches.

In 1643 Williams went to England to procure a charter for the Providence and Rhode Island colonists; in which mission he succeeded, returning the following year. In 1651, in company with John Clarke of Newport, he sailed again for England to secure the interests of the Colony, returning in 1654. He lived to advanced years, dying in 1683. Williams's character as a man and a Christian was above reproach. Though he was much engaged in sharp discussion, and the age was one in which disputants indulged in bitter invective, opponents spoke of him personally in terms of high respect. He was an especial friend of the Indians. He studied their language, respected and defended their title to their lands, and, when the Massachusetts Colony and other white settlements were threatened with Indian hostilities, he was able, by his acquaintance and friendship with leading chiefs, to avert the impending dangers.

He was a somewhat copious and a vigorous author. His writings contain many striking passages, and can still be read with interest. He had the intimate friendship of Cromwell, Milton, Vane, and others of the noblest Englishmen of his day.

Williams's extant writings (all published in London except when otherwise designated) are:

— A key into the Language of America, or a help to the language of the Natives, etc., 1645, 12mo, pp. 216; Mr. Cotton's letter examined, etc., 1644, 4to, pp. 87; The Bloody Tenent of Persecution, etc., 1644, 4to, pp. 271; Queries, etc., 1645, pp. 13; Christenings make not Christians, a tract, 1645; The Bloody Tenent yet more Bloody, etc., 1652, 4to, pp. 373; The Hireling Ministry, etc., 1652, 4to, pp. 44; Experiments, etc., 1652, 4to, pp. 69; George Fox Digged out of his Burrowes, Boston, 1676, 4to, pp. 365. Many of his letters are also published, edited by J. Russell Bartlett, Providence, 1882. His works, except one or two of the shorter writings, were republished by the Narraganset Club, in 6 vols., Providence, 1866-74. A seventh volume will complete the set.

Lit.—James D. Knowles: Memoir of Roger Williams, the Founder of the State of Rhode Island, Boston, 1834; William Gammell: Life of Roger Williams, Boston, 1845 (Sparks's American Biography, 2d series, vol. iv.); Romeo Elton: Life of Roger Williams, the Earliest Legislator, and the True Champion for a Full and Absolute Liberty of Conscience, Providence, 1853; Reuben Aldridge: Guild: A Biographical Introduction to the Writings of Roger Williams, Providence, 1886 (publications of the Narraganset Club, vol. 1.); Z. A. Mudge: Footprints of Roger Williams, a Biography, New York, 1871 (for the young); Henry M. Dearborn: As to the Settlers at the Rate, in 1639. Williams, with others, renounced his baptism in infancy, and was baptized again, Ezekiel Holliman baptizing Williams, and Williams in return baptizing Holliman and several others. This reciprocal baptism is generally given as the origin of the First Baptist Church of Providence. Williams, however, remained connected with the new society only some four months; for, becoming dissatisfied with his baptism as not coming down from the apostles, he withdrew, and henceforth renounced all connection with churches.

In 1643 Williams went to England to procure a charter for the Providence and Rhode Island colonists; in which mission he succeeded, returning the following year. In 1651, in company with John Clarke of Newport, he sailed again for England to secure the interests of the Colony, returning in 1654. He lived to advanced years, dying in 1683. Williams's character as a man and a Christian was above reproach. Though he was much engaged in sharp discussion, and the age was one in which disputants indulged in bitter invective, opponents spoke of him personally in terms of high respect. He was an especial friend of the Indians. He studied their language, respected and defended their title to their lands, and, when the Massachusetts Colony and other white settlements were threatened with Indian hostilities, he was able, by his acquaintance and friendship with leading chiefs, to avert the impending dangers. He was a somewhat copious and a vigorous author. His writings contain many striking passages, and can still be read with interest. He had the intimate friendship of Cromwell, Milton, Vane, and others of the noblest Englishmen of his day.
and the articles upon Roger Williams, by REUBEN A. GUILD, in the Biographical Cyclopedia of Rhode Island (Providence, 1881), and in CATHCART’S Baptist Encyclopedia. NORMAN FOX.

WILLIAMS, Rowland, D.D., English divine; b. at Alkyn, Flintshire, Wales, Aug. 16, 1817; d. at Broadchalke, near Salisbury, Wilts, Jan. 18, 1870. He was graduated at King’s College, Cambridge, and chosen fellow of his college, 1839; travelled from August, 1840, till the autumn of 1841, upon the Continent; B.A., 1841; ordained deacon, October, 1842, and priest the next year; classical tutor of King’s College, 1843; M.A., 1844; was elected vice-principal, and professor of Hebrew, in the Welsh theological college of St. David’s, Lampeter, 1849; resigned his tutorship; began his new duties in the spring of 1850; B.D., 1851; appointed select preacher at the University of Cambridge, December, 1854; D.D., 1857; became vicar of Broadchalke, 1859; resigned his of Cambridge, December, 1854; D.D., 1857; became vicar of Broadchalke, 1859; resigned his WILLIAMSON, Isaac Dowd, D.D., Universalist; b. at Pomfret, Vt., April 4, 1807; d. in Cincinnati, Nov. 26, 1876. He began preaching when twenty years old, and was pastor in different parts of the Union. He also edited several religious denominational papers, and published an Exposition and Defence of Universalism, New York, 1840; Examination of the Doctrine of Endless Punishment, Cincinnati, 1854; The Philosophy of Universalism, Cincinnati, 1866.

WILLIBALD, St., the first bishop of Eichstadt, Bavaria; was b. in England, 700; a relative of Boniface, and was educated by Abbot Egibald in the monastery of Waltheim. In 720 he made a pilgrimage to Rome, and thence to the Holy Land; and after his return to Italy he spent ten years in the monastery of Monte Cassino, 729-730. In 740 he met Boniface in Rome, and accompanied him to Germany, where in 741 he was consecrated bishop of the newly founded see of Eichstadt. He built the monastery of Heidenheim, over which his brother Wunnebald presided till 763, and then his sister Walpurgia till 778. The year of his death is given as 751 and as 786 or 787, and the latter is the most probable. His life (‘ Vita Willibaldi, also called Hodoeporiarum) was written by a nun of Heidenheim, and is found in CANISIUS: Lect. Ant., iii.; and MABILLON: Act. S. B., iii.

WILLIBROD. See WILBBROD.

WILLIAMSON, Isaac, D.D., Universalist; b. at Carlisle, Penn., April 11, 1777; d. in New York, April 14, 1859. He was graduated at Pennsylvania College, 1792; studied law, rose to emiperseverance of the scholar to the laborious diligence of the missionary. He went out to India in the service of the Scottish missionary Society, a body of Christian friends that had been formed for the promotion of missions before the Church of Scotland; but, when that church became earnest in the cause, the society was merged, and Dr. Wilson became a missionary of his own church. He was the head of the mission college of Bombay, in which city he spent his whole public life. In 1848, along with all the other missionaries of the Church of Scotland, he adhered to the Free Church. At Bombay he occupied a kind of patriarchal position. Ultimately all missionaries looked on him as a father. He was greatly respected by the natives, and on many important questions of government his advice was eagerly sought by the highest of the British authorities. He was vice-chancellor of Bombay university, and president of the Bombay branch of the Royal Asiatic Society. His chief work was on caste, but lesser publications from his pen were numerous. An important treatise on the Lands of the Bible appeared in 1845. In 1870 he was called to the chair of systematic divinity in the general assembly of the Free Church of Scotland. The record of his laborious and honored life will be found in a volume entitled The Life of John Wilson, D.D., F.R.S., by George Smith, LL.D., London, 1878. W. G. Blairtie.

WILSON, Thomas, D.D., Bishop of Sodor and Man; b. at Burton, Cheshire, Sunday, Dec. 20, 1803; d. on the Isle of Man, March 7, 1876. He was graduated B.A. at Trinity College, Dublin, 1826; and became curate of Newchurch, Kent, Eng., 1828, where he remained until August, 1829, when he was appointed chaplain to the Earl of Derby, who, on Nov. 27, 1829, appointed him bishop of Sodor and Man; the benefice being in his gift as Lord of the Isle of Man. Wilson was consecrated at the Savoy Church, London, Jan. 16, 1829, and thus entered upon fifty-eight years of faithful labor. He accomplished two great reforms in his diocese,—the first (1708) relating to the tenures of landed property, which had been very uncertain; and the second, to the rules and discipline of the church there. He had, indeed, remarkable qualities as an administrator, and was, from his position, compelled to take a great share in secular affairs. He wrote comparatively little. In 1707 he issued his Principles and Duties of Christianity, commonly called the "Manx Catechism," in English and Manx; being the first book ever printed in Manx. In 1708 he shows his interest in the missionary cause by writing his Essay towards an Instruction for the Indians, explaining the most essential Doctrines of Christianity, in several short and plain Dialogues, with Directions and Prayers. The Essay was not published until 1740, and then not by the bishop, but by his son, who, it is noteworthy, subjected both the manuscript and the proofs to the perusal and alteration of the famous Dr. Watts. But Dr. Watts made few changes, since, in large measure, distinctive Church of England teaching had been omitted. The success of the Essay was great; five editions being called for in four years, and eight editions being printed before Bishop Wilson's death. In the fifth edition (1744) the greater part of the bishop's Principles and Duties of Christianity (the English of the Manx Catechism) was incorporated with the Essay, and in 1753 the title was changed to The Knowledge and Practice of Christianity made easy to the Meanest Capacities. It was translated into French, 1744, and into Italian before 1757. In 1749 he accepted from the United Brethren the office of Honorary President of the Reformed Section of the Moravian Church, or, as it was also called, Antistes of the Reformed Tropus in the Unity of the Brethren. His age at the time debarred him from active service, but he was glad of the opportunity of publicly testifying to his interest in that noble people. Keble says of him,—

"As far as man can judge of man, few persons ever went out of this world more thoroughly prepared for the change than Bishop Wilson, not only in heart and conscience, but in comparatively trifling arrangements. He had even provided his coffin long beforehand."

His death occasioned a great outburst of sorrow. He was a model bishop; and, wherever he is now known by his writings, he receives the involuntary tribute, "surely he was a saintly man." The best known of these writings, besides those already mentioned, are, Short and Plain Instructions for the Better Understanding of the Lord's Supper, London, 1736, 32d ed., 1807, repeatedly republished, e.g., New York, 1838; Parochialia, or Instructions for the Clergy, Bath, 1788, several editions and reprints; Maxims of Piety and Christianity, 1788, several reprints, e.g., London, 1889; Sacra privata, Private Meditations, Devotions, and Prayers, London, 1800, new ed., 1873. A translation of the Bible into Maux was begun at his request; but he only lived to see the translation of the Gospels and the printing of Matthew (London, 1748). The Maux Bible was published at Whitehaven, 1772-75, 5 vols. 8vo. His Works were first published in a collected edition, with his Life, by Rev. C. Cruittwell, Bath, 1781, quarto, several times reprinted in different sizes and numbers of volumes; but the best edition is by Rev. John Keble, as part of the Library of Anglo-Catholic Theology, Oxford, 1847-52, 7 vols. in 8 parts, of which vol. i. in 2 parts is the Life,—an elaborate, not to say prolix, account of Bishop Wilson and his surroundings. Keble's Life of Wilson appeared in a new edition, 1863, 2 vols. For a literary judgment upon Wilson, see Matthew Arnold's Culture and Anarchy, London, 1869, Preface.

WIMPHELING, Jakob, b. at Schlletstadt, in Alsace, July 26, 1450; d. there Nov. 17, 1528. The school in which he was educated was controlled by the Brethren of Common Life,—a circumstance which seems to have exercised a decisive influence on his whole life. He studied at Freiburg (1484-71) and at Heidelberg, where he took his degree, and began to lecture. In 1483 he was ordained priest, and appointed preacher at the Cathedral of Spire; but in 1498 he was called to Heidelberg as professor in the facultas artium. That position, however, he gave up in 1500, and joined Geller von Kaisersberg at Strassburg, where for some time he was occupied with the editing of Gerson's works. In 1515 he finally retired to his native city, where he spent the rest of his life in his sister's house. He was one of the best known men of his time, and had a great influence on the religious movement of the day. He was a powerful preacher, a debater of decided ability, and a clear thinker and reasoner. His writings, such as the De integrilata, the De providentia, etc., are remarkable for clearness of analysis and vigor of style, and for a masterly treatment of the individual themes, a depth and compass of thought rarely, if ever, surpassed in sermonic literature. W. F. Tillett.

WINCHESTER, the seat of an English bishopric since 602; is the capital of Hampshire, and is situated on the right bank of the Itchen. It was called by the ancient Britons Caer Gwreut ("The White City"); by the Romans, Venta Belgarum, and by the Anglo-Saxons, Wintunecaster. The Romans are supposed to have built its walls. It has witnessed a number of important events in former times; such as the dedication of the city by the Romans, the marriage of Queen Mary with Philip II., 1554. It was the capital of England from its capture by the Danes till after Henry II., 1104-09. The Danes, after their defeat by Cnut, 1016-18, never returned, but have rebuilt and enlarged several times. The present structure is 545 feet long, with transepts 168 wide, and a tower 139 feet high, but only 26 feet above the roof. The stipend of the bishop is £2,500. See Benham: Winchester, Lond., 1864.

WINCHESTER, Elhanan, Universalist; b. in Brookline, Mass., Sept. 30, 1751; d. in Hartford, Conn., April 18, 1797. In 1765 he joined a Separate Church in his native town, and became a preacher; but the next year he went over to the Ojen-Communion Baptists in Canterbury, Conn.; later, became a close-communionist, and in consequence was excommunicated; but from 1771 to 1780 he preached in various parts of the country. In 1780 he was settled in Philadelphia, and there avowed his belief in Restorationism, and, followed by most of his congregation, established a Universalist Church. From 1797 to 1794 he preached in England. His number upwards of forty volumes. See list (imperfect) in Allibone. His Life has been written by William Vidler (London, 1797) and by E. M. Stone (Boston, 1839).

WINCKLER, Johann, b. at Gößlern in Saxony, July 13, 1842; d. at Hamburg; April 5, 1803. He WINDESHEIM, or WINDESEN, a convent of regular canons, founded in 1386 by the Brethren of Common Life, and situated in the diocese of Utrecht. It was a very prosperous institution. In 1402 it had founded, or entered into connection with, six other convents; towards the end of the sixteenth century, with eighty. In 1435 it was closed towards the end of the sixteenth century, with eighty. In 1435 it was closed towards the end of the sixteenth century, with eighty. In 1435 it was closed towards the end of the sixteenth century, with eighty. It was closed towards the end of the sixteenth century, with eighty. See BUSCH: Chronicon Windeisenense (Antwerp, 1621), and De Reformacione Monasteriorum quorundam Saxonic, in LEIBNITZ: Scriptores Brunsvicensi.

WINE-MAKING AMONG THE HEBREWS.

The vine was brought from Armenia to Palestine at the end of the sixteenth century. See Boson; Chronology.

The grapes were then crushed by treading; and the treading vessels or vats, which were buried up to their necks in the ground. When wine was to be transported, the Persians sometimes decanted it into flasks or bottles; but skins were used in ancient times, just as they are now. But when skins were used to hold new wine, must, care had to be taken that the skin was not new, lest it should be burst asunder by the fermentation (Matt. ix. 17).

WINE, Bible. There are in the Old Testament distinct terms for grape-juice in all states into which it can pass. Among the Hebrews the juice of the grape was expressed by the feet. Hence the word 'asis, which means literally trodden (see the root, Mal. iii. 21, Heb.), is used to denote must, or the newly expressed juice of the grape. A more common term for must is tirosh. For grape-juice when it has undergone the vinous fermentation, the proper word is yasheh. The acetous fermentation converts it into chum, or vinegar. So in Latin, rinum ("wine") stands intermediate between mustum ("must") and aceto ("vinegar"). In Greek we have the same gradation, gleukos ("must"), oinos ("wine"; cf. the definition in Passow, or in Liddell and Scott), and oxos ("vinegar"). The references to wine-making in the Bible let us see that no effort was made to preserve the expressed juice of the grape from exposure to the air; and it was, of course, ferment. But long before it was matured, so as to be proper yagin, it could intoxicating: hence we find an inebriating power ascribed to 'asis (Isa. xlix. 26) and to tirosh (Hos. ii. 11) and to gleukos (Acts ii. 13). Dagkan ("corn") is regularly joined with tirosh ("must"), e.g., Gen. xxvii. 28; while lechem ("bread") is found in conjunction with yagin (e.g., Gen. iv. 18, and not with tirosh. But corn is not eaten in its crude state: it must be prepared in order to be fit for food. So tirosh needs to mature into yagin to be a proper drink. In all wine-producing countries this is acknowledged. Our Lord (Luke v. 38) attests the universal preference for old wine to new (cf. Columella, iii. 4; Ecclus. ix. 10; Pirke Abot, iv. 21). But intemperate Jews of old would not wait till the juice of the grape had fully matured. They could get drunk on it a few days after it had been expressed. So Dr. J. H. Sheed makes" of the drunken Armenians and Nestorians of the present day: "The drinking is usually done up before the wine is exhausted at Easter. Till then drunkenness is too common to excite remark" (Missions and Science, p. 433). If tirosh were, as a few modern writers contend, "the fruit of the vineyard," it would not be "found in the cluster" (Isa. lxxv. 8), but would be the cluster. That it is a fluid is clear from Joel xxvi. 7. To write the use of which was free from peril. In fact, the fact of two kinds of wine—the one fermented and intoxicating and unlawful, and the other unfermented, unintoxicating, and lawful—is a modern hypothesis, devised during the present century, and has no foundation in the Bible, or in Hebrew or classical antiquity. Examples of unfermented wines are, indeed, adduced from Latin and Greek authors; but they do not bear examination. Those who take the pains to study the authorities appealed to must be amazed at the purpose for which they are brought forward. That must pass into wine by fermentation, see Varro, De Re Rustica, i. 65; Columella, De Re Rustica, xii. 25; Pliny, H. N., xiv. 11. These writers mention only one way of trying to hinder must from becoming wine; viz., by keeping the casks containing it in cold water. But no instance of this preserved must be being drunk as a beverage alone, or simply mixed with water, has been pointed out. To complete the evidence against the unfermented wine theory, no trace of such a wine can now be discovered in the lands of the Bible. Missionaries of the highest character and attainments, and long resident in Syria, such as Drs. W. M. Thomson, C. V. A. Van Dyck, H. H. Jessup, and W. Wright, have united with some of the most intelligent natives of Syria in testifying that they have never seen or heard of an unfermented wine in Syria or the Holy Land, nor have found, among Jews, Christians, or Mohammedans, any tradition of such a wine ever having existed in the country. We need not here inquire how certain travellers were led to make mistakes and misstatements on this subject. It is enough to refer to what is written in Dr. T. Laurie's work on Missions and Science, pp. 430-441. No one who duly weighs the evidence there presented can believe that such a thing as unfermented wine is known in the country in which our Saviour lived in the days of his flesh. Diba, which is sometimes referred to as a specimen of an unfermented wine, is simply honey of grapes, the Hebrew debsh. It is not drunk diluted with water, but is used as molasses or jelly. The expression "the fruit of the vine" is employed by our Saviour in the synoptical Gospels to denote the element contained in the cup of the Holy Supper. The fruit of the vine is literally the grape. But the Jews from time immemorial have used this phrase to designate the wine partaken of on sacred occasions, as at the Passover and on the evening of the Sabbath. The Mishnah (De Bened. cap. 8, pars 1.) expressly states, that, in pronouncing blessings, "the fruit of the vine" is the consecrated expression for yavin. For further proof of this usage the Jewish Prayer-Book may be consulted. How naturally the phrase "the fruit of the vine" is put for wine is seen from Herodotus (book i. 212), where Tomyria, the WINE.

Queen of the Massageotae, is made to employ the three synonyms ("the fruit of the vine"), phariskon ("a drug"), and ainoes ("wine"), to denote the wine by which a part of her army was so intoxicated as to fall an easy prey to Cyrus. Wine is not whiskey, but compare the phrase "old rye" for the latter. The Christian Fathers, as well as the Jewish rabbis, have understood "the fruit of the vine" to mean wine in the proper sense. Our Lord, in instituting the Supper after the Passover, availed himself of the expression invariably employed by his countrymen in speaking of the wine of the Passover.
On other occasions, when employing the language of common life, he calls wine by its ordinary name. We have seen, that, according to Old Testament usage, the product of the vine which accompanies bread is not titrath, but proper wine.
The New-Testament corroboration of this usage is found in Luke vii. 33. Hence, when we have bread in the Communion, wine is its fitting scriptural accompaniment. What we read in 1 Cor.
xi. 21, 27, testifies unmistakably to the nature of the wine of the Supper. Those in the Corinthian church who were "drunkent at the Communion partook of the cup of the Lord," though "un-worthily." It is right to state, that, during the Passover, Jews will not taste or touch fermented drinks into which grain has entered (cf. Mishna, Peasakh, part ii). But the fermented juice of the grape prepared by Jews, and kept carefully free from leaven, is the proper Paschal wine.
The truth on this subject can be learned from any intelligent Jew. The wine of the Supper is not different from the wine made by our Lord at Cana. The character of the latter is clear from the remark of the governor of the feast recorded in John ii. 10. It is classed by him with the good wine, which was always served at the begining of a feast, and which could so affect those who partook of it too freely as to blunt their taste, and render them incapable of distinguishing between good wine and bad. It was to the govner, whose judgment is reported, that Christ instructed the servants to bear the wine.
Shekhar (Greek, sikera, Luke i. 15) is rightly translated "strong drink" in the English Version.
The attempt to connect shekhar with Sanskrit ashkrat, saccharum ("sugar"), is inadmissible, as sugar was unknown to the ancient Hebrews.
Numerous are the words of censure and warning uttered in connection with shekhar, the use of it is expressly sanctioned (Deut. xiv. 26; Prov. xxxi. 6). It could be poured out to the Lord as a drink-offering (Num. xxviii. 7). As joyin was the natural, shekhar was the artificial wine. It was prepared from grain, apples, honey, or dates (Jerome, Epist. ad Nepalianum), and included zothos, or beer.
Chemer is in Hebrew a poetic term for wine, and is derived from a verb signifying both "to ferment" and "to be red." Whichever meaning is ascribed to its root, the import of chemer is the same, as the red color of natural wine supposes fermentation. Chemer in its Chaldee form denotes the wine drunk by Belshazzar (Dan. v. 1); yet it appears as a blessing (Isa. xxvii. 2; Deut. xxxi. 14). In the latter place it explains the expression, "the blood of the grape."
Shemardrim (Isa. xxv. 6) is translated in the English Version "wines on the lees." It denotes strictly the lees of wine, which, if left undisturbed, keep long on the lees, and therefore old, and of superior quality (Alexander). It forms, along with "fat things," the provision of a feast (Heb., miskheit, literally "a drinking"). A feast without wine could not be called a mishkhe. It is absurd, therefore, to make shemardrim designate preserves or jellies.
Sobe, in Isa. i. 22, denotes the wine of Jerusalem in its best days, but in Nah. i. 10 the Ninevites appear drunken with their sobe.
Meshek (Isa. lxv. 9, Hebrew text), mimsek (Prov. xxiii. 30), and mezeq (Cant. vii. 3, Hebrew text), all denote literally a mixture, then wine mixed with spices to increase its strength, and render it more agreeable. Some scholars dispute the acquaintance of the Hebrews with spiced wines; but see Cant. viii. 2, and the note on Isa. v. 21, in Lange's Commentary.
Mishraath andonis (Num. vi. 3), rendered in the English "liquor of grapes," is defined by Genesius "drink made of steeped grapes.
Ashkakah, translated "flagon" in the English Version, is now commonly regarded by scholars as a cake of dried grapes pressed together.

LIT. — Critici Sacri, vol. viii. pp. 45-58; Smith: Dictionary of Greek and Roman Antiquities, art.
"Vinos;" the arts, in Winer, Herzog, Smith and especially Kittro's Biblical Cyclopedia, edited by Alexander. That unfermented grape-juice is the approved wine of Scripture is maintained in Buschius by R. B. Grindrod, and in Anti-Buschius by Rev. B. Parsons; in the Temperance Bible Commentary, by Lees and Burns; Dr. Samson's Divine Law as to Wines, and a multitude of pamphlets and essays. Dr. John Maclean criticised Buschius and Anti-Buschius in the April and October issues of the Princeton Review for 1841. The Rev. A. M. Wilson wrote The Wines of the Bible (London, Hamilton Adams & Co.), principally against Drs. Samson and Lees, and especially discussed by Dr. T. Laurie, in Bib. Sac. for January, 1871; by Dr. Atwater, in Princeton Review for October, 1871; by Professor Bumstead, in Bib. Sac.
for January, 1881, and by the writer of the foregoing article, in the Presb. Review for January, 1881, and January, 1882.

WINEBRENNERS, the popular designation of a Baptist denomination officially called "The Church of God." The founder, the Rev. John Winebrenner, was a minister of the German Reformed Church; b. March 25, 1797, in Frederick County, Md.; d. Sept. 12, 1860, in Harrisburg, Penn. He was settled in 1820, in Harrisburg, over four congregations of the German Reformed Church,—one in town, and three in the country.
Soon after his settlement a revival began in his churches, on account of which, as he wrote, he encountered much opposition from members and ministers of the synod. "This state of things," according to his own account, "lasted for the space of almost five years, and then resulted in a separation from the German Reformed Church." "This separation, which must have been in 1825, did not interrupt the revival. On the contrary, it spread, and there were "multitudes happily converted to God." These converts were organized into churches; and, as Mr. Winebrenner's views as to the nature of a scriptural ecclesiast-co-operated with Mr. Vinebrenner, without any definite practical system. The first congregation called "The Church of God" was organized in 1829; and in the following year the ministers met together, and agreed upon the principles upon which the new denomination should be based. Vinebrenner was elected speaker (president) of the conference, and preached a sermon, in which he gave an outline of the faith and practice of New Testament churches. Such churches should be formed, (1) of "believers only;" (2) "without sectarian or human name;" (3) "with no creed and discipline but the Bible;" (4) subject to no foreign jurisdiction; (5) "they should be governed by their own officers, chosen by a majority of the members of each individual church."

Thus originated the Annual Eldership, or Conference. There are now, chiefly in Pennsylvania and the West, fifteen annual elderships, besides a General Eldership (triennial), which adopts general legislation for the conference, and controls its denominational activities and benevolences. The ministers, of whom there are four hundred and fifty, are called elders, and occupy stations, or itinerate in given districts under the control of their respective elderships, or travel as missionaries at large. The number of members is estimated at forty-five thousand. The church was organized by Germans, and the German element enters largely into the membership. One eldership is wholly German. The church holds in biblical language to the general doctrines of evangelical Christianity, but emphasizes the ordinances of baptism, the Lord's Supper, and foot-washing. These are "positive ordinances of perpetual standing in the church." Without faith and immersion, baptism is not valid. Foot-washing is "obligatory upon all Christians."

The Lord's Supper should be administered to Christians only, in a sitting posture, and always in the evening." The Church of God claims that, as distinguished from other Protestant churches, it has a "special, precious, and glorious plea: it is the restoration of primitive Christianity in letter and spirit, in faith and practice." At Harrisburg, the church has a publishing-house. The Church Advocate is the weekly organ of the body, which has no colleges. Its relations with the Free Baptists have been very cordial, and its students have patronized Free-Baptist institutions. It has an academy at Basheyville, Penn., and a college-building is in process of erection in Findlay, O.

There are few denominational publications. Elder Winebrenner wrote a sketch of the denominations for Rupp's Religious Denominations, Philadelphia, 1844; but no denominational history has been written. Elder Winebrenner's Doctrinal and Practical Sermons are published by the Board of Published Works, in volumes of upwards of four hundred pages, together with his treatise on Regeneration, a Revival Hymn-Book, the Reference and Pronouncing Testament. He was several times speaker of the General Eldership, and was for some years editor of The Church Advocate. W. E. CARROLL.
unending arbitrariness of an exposition, which, through decades of use, had become a system, and, claiming to be scientific, had brought this great victory about by proving the truly Greek usage in the New Testament, both in grammatical forms and in style. His work had apparently only a scientific end, but in reality Winer was influenced by moral and religious considerations. He had a great reverence for the Bible; and his labors accomplished much for the end for which he intended the student to get at the truth. In consequence, it may be claimed for him, that he led the way to reform in biblical interpretation, making it less subjective and individual, and more in accordance with the real facts. It is greatly to be regretted, that Winer was not permitted to do for the lexicon of the New Testament a work corresponding to that he had done for the grammar. He did, it is true, prepare a Beitrag zur Verbesserung der neuestamentlichen Lexikographie, 1833, and collect rich materials for such a lexicon; but he did not live to put his work in shape. In 1838 he issued a Specimen lexici hebraici, and in 1839 a revision of the Simon-Eichhorn Dictionary of the Hebrew and Chaldee languages. G. LECHLER.

WINES, Enoch Cobb, D.D., LL.D., Presbyterian, b. at Hanover, N.J., Feb. 17, 1806; d. at Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 10, 1879. He was graduated at Middlebury College, 1827; from 1828 till 1831 was chaplain and teacher in the navy, and subsequently taught and preached in various places, until in 1854 he was appointed professor of ancient languages in Washington College, Pennsylvania, and in 1859 president of the City University, St. Louis. In 1862 he entered publicly upon the great work of prison-reform, with which his name is indissolubly connected. In that year he became corresponding secretary of the New-York Prison Association, and in 1870 the secretary of the National Prison Association, which was formed through his exertions. In 1871 he went to Europe, as a representative of the United-States Government, to make arrangements for an international penitentiary congress, which met in London, July 4, 1872, and through his personal efforts embraced representatives of twenty-six governments. He was on this occasion chosen chairman of the permanent international commission, which met at Brussels, 1874, and at Bruchsal, 1875. He was also the leading spirit in the second congress, called by the commission at Stockholm, 1877. Besides his official reports, which contain much valuable information, and reveal his indefatigable energy and tireless enthusiasm, he was the author of Two Years and a Half in the Navy, Phila., 1832, 2 vols.; Commentaries on the Laws of the Ancient Hebrews, New York, 1852, 6th ed., Phila., 1869; Adam and Christ, or, the Doctrine of Representation stated and explained, Phila., 1855; and The State of Prisons and Child-saving Institutions throughout the World, Cambridge, 1880 (he finished revising for it the last sentence before his death). See In Memoriam, in 35th Annual Report of the Prison Association of New York.

WINFRID. See Boniface.

WINFRED, Miron (often spelled Myron), D.D., LL.D., Congregational missionary, b. at Williamston, N.C., Dec. 11, 1773; died at the Cape of Good Hope, on his way home, Oct. 22, 1824. He was graduated at Middlebury College, 1815, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1818. In June, 1818, he sailed for New York, and after residence in India, and for seventeen years labored at Jaffna and Oodoville in Ceylon, then, 1836, was transferred to Madras; which mission founded a mission, and in 1840 a college, of which he was president. He was the author of Sketch of the Missions, Andover, 1819; Memoir of Harriet Wadsworth, North-Western Mission, New York, 1835 (a very widely read memoir); Hints on Missions to India, New York, 1856. A Comprehensive Tamil and English Dictionary of High and Low Tamil, Madras, 1862 (based partly upon manuscript materials left by Rev. Joseph Knight: upon it he spent from three to four hours a day for thirty years. He was assisted by native scholars. It contains 67,000 Tamil words). Dr. Winslow also translated the Bible into Tamil (Madras, 1855). He was married five times.

WINTERTHUR, Johann of, or Vitoduranus, b. at Winterthur, in the canton of Zurich, towards the close of the thirteenth century; entered the order of the Minorita about 1320, and lived in the various convents of the order, at Basel, Schaffhausen, Lindau, and Zurich. The date and place of his death are unknown. He is the author of a chronicle, reaching from the death of Friedrich II. to 1348, which is of great interest, especially for the history of Switzerland, but also for history in general. The book was first published in Eccard's Corpus hist. mediiævi, 1723: the latest edition is that by Jaffe, in Monumenta Germanica.

WISDOM OF SOLOMON. See APOCRYPHA, p. 105.

WISEMAN, Nicholas Patrick Stephen, S.T.D., Cardinal, and Archbishop of Westminster; b. in Seville, Spain, Aug. 2, 1802; d. in London, Feb. 15, 1865. He was educated in England, then in English College at Rome, where he was graduated S.T.D. in 1824. He was ordained priest, 1826, and made professor of Oriental languages at the Roman University, and vice-rector of the English College, 1837, rector, 1828. In 1835 he returned to England, and won fame as a preacher; in 1840 he was made bishop of Melipotamus, and president of St. Mary's College, Oscott; in 1849, vicar-apostolic of the London district; and on the restoration of the Roman-Catholic hierarchy in England, Sept. 29, 1850, archbishop of Westminster, and cardinal. He was the author of Horæ Syciaca, Rome, 1828, vol. i. (all pub.); Twelve Lectures on the Connection between Science and Revealed Religion, delivered in Rome, London, 1838, 2 vols., 5th ed., 1855, reprinted Andover, 1837, St. Louis, 1878 (a masterly work, although now behind the times); Lectures on the Principal Doctrines and Practices of the Catholic Church, London, 1836, 6th Amer. ed., Baltimore, 1862; Fabiola, a Tale of the Catacombs, London, 1855, 3d ed., 1870, New York, 1855; Recollections of the Last Four Popes, and of Rome in their Times, on the restoration of the Roman-Catholic hierarchy in England, Sept. 29, 1850, archbishop of Westminster, and cardinal. He was the author of Horæ Syciaca, Rome, 1828, vol. i. (all pub.); Twelve Lectures on the Connection between Science and Revealed Religion, delivered in Rome, London, 1838, 2 vols., 5th ed., 1855, reprinted Andover, 1837, St. Louis, 1878 (a masterly work, although now behind the times); Lectures on the Principal Doctrines and Practices of the Catholic Church, London, 1836, 6th Amer. ed., Baltimore, 1862; Fabiola, a Tale of the Catacombs, London, 1855, 3d ed., 1870, New York, 1855; Recollections of the Last Four Popes, and of Rome in their Times, London and Boston, 1858; Daily Meditation, Dublin, 1868. His Works have been published in 14 vols. (New York), including his dramas, one of which, The Hidden Gem, was produced at Liverpool in 1859, and well received.

WISHEART, George, a celebrated Scottish martyr; b. in the early part of the sixteenth century; d. at the stake, March 1, 1546. According to the date on a fine old portrait which is supposed to represent him, and purports to have been painted in 1539, which is dated as having been "at stat. 30." Wishart's birth must have taken place in the year 1513. Calderwood describes him as "a gentleman of the house of Pittarrow" (Hist. i., 185). He is believed to have been a younger son of James Wishart of Pittarow (Knox's Hist. ed. Laing, i. 594); but little or nothing is known with certainty as to his early history.
WISHART.

WISHART.

In 1538 we find him employed as master of the grammar-school, Montrose, — a school which appears to have taken an exceptionally high place in the educational institutions of Scotland at that period. In the year in question Wishart was summoned by John Hepburn, bishop of Brechin, to teach in his school the Greek New Testament (the Greek language being at this period, as appears from James Melville's Diary, and from other sources, practically unknown in Scotland, even in the universities), and to save his life was obliged to flee to England. In 1539 he was in Bristol, while he and his lord got into trouble, — on this occasion for preaching against the worship and mediation of the Virgin Mary, — and where he submitted to the humiliation of making a public recantation by burning his hat at the Church of St. Nicholas in that city. He seems to have lived abroad, and chiefly in Germany and Switzerland, from 1539 to 1542. In 1543 he is again found in England. He spent that year in Cambridge as a member of Corpus Christi College. The next year, or possibly not till the year 1545, he ventured back to his native country, and down to the period of his apprehension by the emissaries of Cardinal Beaton, followed by his martyrdom, occupied himself in preaching, in various parts of Scotland, what he regarded as the fundamental doctrines of Christianity. We find him thus engaged in Montrose, Dundee, Ayrshire, and elsewhere. East Lothian was the scene of his last labors as a preacher; and the crowning result of his evangelistic work was the conversion of John Knox, who (at the time, still a Roman priest, but already strongly prepossessed in favor of the new doctrines) was pedagogue or tutor to the families of two of the landed gentlemen of that county. It was here that Wishart was betrayed into the hands of the cardinal, and not withstanding the manly but futile interposition of Knox, who defended him at great personal danger, was carried off to his doom.

The irresolution of his natural temperament, which betrayed him at Bristol into a denial of the faith, disappeared at this supreme crisis. He suffered martyrdom in the fullness of his days, and at St. Andrew's. He appears to have faced the cruel death by which he perished, without flinching; and, the cardinal showing himself at the castle-window when the martyr was at the stake and amidst the flames, he, with a courage unquenched by the agonies of dissolution, warned his persecutors of the fate which he foresees approached Beaton himself: "He who in such state, from that high place, feedeth his eyes with my torments, within a few days shall be hanged out at the same window, to be seen with as much ignominy as he now leaneth there in pride."

The character of Wishart, as estimated by his contemporaries, appears to have been much higher than at the present day, in the deficiency of information, can easily be understood. He appears to have been one of the most learned and accomplished of the Scotsmen of a period which abounded in instances of the highest scholastic attainments among his countrymen. He had, perhaps, more daring than firmness in the faith which was in him. But he died with true courage. Judging of him on very imperfect data, it seems to have been, upon the whole, little suited for the rough life and the hard fate which became his actual lot in life. A very interesting account of his person and habits will be found in the account of him published in Fox's Book of Martyrs, given in a letter from one of his Cambridge pupils, Emery Tytney, written in 1543.

Tytney writes, about the year of our Lord 1543: —

"There was in the Universitie of Cambrige, one Maister George Wischart, commonly called Maister George of Bennets College, who was a man of tall stature, pemite headed, and on the same a ronde French Cap of the same colour with his black complexion by his physiognome; black haired, long bearded, comely of personage, well spoken after his manner of the countrey of Scotland; courteous, duteous, punch to teach, desirous to learn, and was well travelled; having on him for his habit or clothing never but a Mantell frienze gowne to the shoes, a black Milan fustian doublet, and plain black hosen, coarse new canvasse for his shirts, and white falling bands and cuasses at his hands. All the which apparell he gave to the poor, some to the beggie, some monthly, some quarterly, as hee liked, saving his French Cappe, which he kept the whole years of my being with him. He was a man modest, temperate, fearing God, hating coveteousness ... His learning no lesser sufficient than his desire ... to do good."

Mr. Tytney (History of Scotland, v. 343) brings a charge against Wishart, of some concern with a scheme for the assassination of Cardinal Beaton, and appears to conclude that his execution was justifiable on this ground; but Mr. David Laing has given sufficient grounds for dismissing an imputation against his character which is at variance with all that we know of the martyr. See Laing's edition of Knox, vol. i. p. 536.

WILLIAM LEE.

WISHART, or WISEHEART, George, one of the best known of the Scottish bishops of the Restoration period; was b. in 1609, and d. in 1671. He belonged to the ancient family of the Wisharts of Logie in Forfarshire. He was educated at the University of Edinburgh for the Scottish Church, at that time in a state of transition, or rather of oscillation between presbyterianism and episcopacy, to which last party Wishart, as well from family connection as personal predilection, most inclined. He was a minister of St. Andrew's (not as Keith says, erroneously, of North Leith: see Sir James Balfour, Annals, iii. 261) down to the year 1638, when he was deposed for refusing to sign the covenant, and subjected himself otherwise to his own share of the troubles of the times. He tells us, that, for his attachment to Charles I. and episcopacy, he thrice suffered expulsion, imprisonment, and exile, before the WITCHCRAFT. 2542 WITHER.

In 1645, having been sent to the Marquis of Montrose, then everywhere victorious, with his adherents, the terrified citizens of Edinburgh, to plead for the royal clemency, he appears to have joined the family of Montrose as his chaplain. He continued with him till the close of the campaign, and afterwards, in the same capacity, accompanied him as the deputation from the bulwark of the unfortunate rising, much in his favor. The time appears to have interested himself to obtain mercy for the captive insurgents; and, "having been a prisoner himself," it is added, "he was always careful at each dinner to send away the first mess to the prisoners."

He was an elegant Latinist, and a man of general literary ability. He wrote in two parts a history of the great campaign in Scotland, and the other transactions of the life of his great patron, the Marquis of Montrose. The title of the first part is J. G. De Rebus auspiciis Serenissimae et Potentissimae Caroli, D. G. Mag. Brit. regis, etc., sub imperio illustrissimi Montisrosarum illarchionis, etc., Anno 1644, et duobus sequentibus, praecipue gesta, Commentarius, etc.; and of the second, Pars Secunda, De Ejusdem Marchionis, ab Anno 1647 ad 1650. This work was frequently translated and reprinted.

WITCHCRAFT means the production of an effect by means of spirit-powers, supernatural and yet subordinate, and presupposes belief in the existence of such powers and in the existence of a science (magic) by which they can be controlled. The Mosaic law condemned witchcraft (Deut. xvii. 26); but the very condemnation proves that it recognized its possibility. A similar attitude the Christian Church assumed with respect to the question; and when, in the thirteenth century, the Inquisition was instituted, witchcraft, as a kind of heresy, was laid under its dominion. In the sixteenth century, the major-general for Surrey by Cromwell; was entered the military service of Charles I., and imprisoned for three years, at the Restoration, 1667, for his Abuses Stritibus, 1632, which bore the patent or privilege of the University of Magdalen College, Oxford, 1604-07; went to London, 1608, and read law at Lincoln's Inn; was imprisoned 1613 for his Abuses Stript and Whipt; plunged into the controversies of the time; entered the military service of Charles I., 1638, and that of the Parliament, 1642; was made major-general for punishing it. As a practice, it continued till the Protectorate, but impoverished, and imprisoned for three years, at the Restoration.

He wrote Shepherds Hunting and sundry other poems, but is now chiefly remembered and honored for his Hymns and Songs of the Church (1655), which bore the patronage of the widow of James I., and was published by Jacob Storer, a Dominican inquisitor of Cologne. The first book of this work (the standard text-book of witchcraft) gives the evidences of its existence; the second, the rules for finding it out; and the third, the proceedings in the case of it. It continued to confirm the bull of Innocent VIII., and Protestant princes also showed great zeal in hunting up witches, a perfect mania of witchcraft broke out in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, and continued through the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. A specimen of the reigning view of the subject, wrote, among Roman Catholics, Jean Bodin (Magorum Daemonomania, 1570), Peter Binsfeld (De Confesisonibus maleficarum et sagarum, 1559), and Martin Delrio (Disquisitiones magicæ, 1599); among Protestants, Thomas Erast (De lamiis seu stripigibus, Basel, 1578), James I. of England (Daemonologia), and Benedict Carppzov (Practica nova, 1635). The first who attacked it with any degree of effect were Balthasar Becker (Bezauberter Welt, 1691; Ger. trana., edited by Semler, Leipzig, 1781, 3 vols.), and Thomasius (Theses de crimine magico, 1701); but Becker lost his office, and Thomasius also was actually persecuted. [The great witch process of Salem, Mass., took place in 1692. Nineteen persons were hanged for witchcraft. But a re-action set in; so that, although in 1693 three condemnations took place, there was no execution. Mr. Parris, the chief prosecutor, was dismissed by his church in 1696, although he confessed that he had done wrong. (For history of this event see Lit. below.) The English laws against witchcraft were repealed in 1736. The last witch was officially tried and executed in Prussia, 1796. In 1881 a peasant community in the interior of Russia tried and burnt a witch.]

HENKE. (G. PLITT.)

WITHER, George, b. at Brentworth, Hampshire, June 11, 1588; d. in London, May 2, 1647, studied at Magdalen College, Oxford, 1604-07; went to London, 1608, and read law at Lincoln's Inn; was imprisoned 1613 for his Abuses Stript and Whipt; plunged into the controversies of the time; entered the military service of Charles I., 1638, and that of the Parliament, 1642; was made major-general for punishing it. As a practice, it continued till the Protectorate, but impoverished, and imprisoned for three years, at the Restoration. He wrote Shepherds Hunting and sundry other poems, but is now chiefly remembered and honored for his Hymns and Songs of the Church (1629), which bore the patronage of the widow of James I., and was published by Jacob Storer, a Dominican inquisitor of Cologne. The first book of this work (the standard text-book of witchcraft) gives the evidences of its existence; the second, the rules for finding it out; and the third, the proceedings in the case of it. It continued to confirm the bull of Innocent VIII., and Protestant princes also showed great zeal in hunting up witches, a perfect mania of witchcraft broke out in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, and continued through the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. A specimen of the reigning view of the subject, wrote, among Roman Catholics, Jean Bodin (Magorum Daemonomania, 1570), Peter Binsfeld (De Confesisonibus maleficarum et sagarum, 1559), and Martin Delrio (Disquisitiones magicæ, 1599); among Protestants, Thomas Erast (De lamiis seu stripigibus, Basel, 1578), James I. of England (Daemonologia), and Benedict Carppzov (Practica nova, 1635). The first who attacked it with any degree of effect were Balthasar Becker (Bezauberter Welt, 1691; Ger. trana., edited by Semler, Leipzig, 1781, 3 vols.), and Thomasius (Theses de crimine magico, 1701); but Becker lost his office, and Thomasius also was actually persecuted. [The great witch process of Salem, Mass., took place in 1692. Nineteen persons were hanged for witchcraft. But a re-action set in; so that, although in 1693 three condemnations took place, there was no execution. Mr. Parris, the chief prosecutor, was dismissed by his church in 1696, although he confessed that he had done wrong. (For history of this event see Lit. below.) The English laws against witchcraft were repealed in 1736. The last witch was officially tried and executed in Prussia, 1796. In 1881 a peasant community in the interior of Russia tried and burnt a witch.] by succeeding generations, these have been rescued from obscurity by comparatively recent compilers and editors, and shown to possess a worth which no less than poetry as well as piety. See Mr. Farr's reprint of them, London, 1856-57.

WITHERSPOON, John, D.D., L.L.D., Presbyterian divine, and signer of the Declaration of Independence; b. in the parish of Yester, Haddingtonshire, near Edinburgh, Scotland, Feb. 5, 1721. d. near Princeton, N. J., Nov. 15, 1794. He was graduated from the University of Edinburgh, licensed in the Church of Scotland, 1743, and settled at Beith (1744) and at Paisley (1757), whence he was called to the presidency of the College of New Jersey, 1768. In his new position he was eminently useful. He introduced a number of improvements, particularly the lecture-system, previously unknown in American colleges (lecturing himself upon rhetoric, moral philosophy, and divinity), the study of French and Hebrew, the latter of which he taught, philosophical instruments, among them the first orrery made by Rittenhouse, and additions to the library. His reputation and ability as a teacher, a large number of students. He was pastor of the church at Princeton during his presidency, a New-Jersey representative to the Continental Congress, 1776-82 (with the exception of 1779, when he declined the election), in which body he wrote several important state papers. During the war the college was suspended. In 1780 he became totally blind. He was a versatile man and a voluminous writer. His works were edited by Rev. Dr. Green, Philadelphia, 1803, 3 vols., also Edinburgh, 1815, 9 vols. They include Ecclesiastical Characteristics, 1753 (a satire upon the moderate party in the Church of Scotland); Essay on Justification, 1756 (which has always been regarded as one of the ablest Calvinistic expositions of that doctrine in any language); A Serious Enquiry into the Nature and Effects of the Stage, 1757 (occasioned by the performance of the drama Douglas); Treatise on Regeneration, 1764. For his life, see the editions of his works; also Sprague: Annals American Pulpit, iii. 288-300.

WITNESS-BEARING AMONG THE HEBRIVES. In criminal cases, where life was involved, at least two witnesses were necessary to prove the crime (Deut. xxii. 6, xix. 15). Where there was only one witness, but he was one whose reputation for probity made his testimony weighty, the case must be tried before the priests and the judges (Deut. xix. 17). Witnesses were usually cited in civil cases, even when the matter was purely amicable (Ruth iv. 9 sqq.; Isa. viii. 2; Jer. xxxix. 10 sqq.). Bearing false witness is often mentioned with aversion in the Bible (1 Kings xxi. 10; Ps. xcii. 12, xxxv. 11; Prov. vi. 19, xiv. 5; Matt. xxvi. 59; Acts vii. 13).

The rabbis laid down special enactments respecting witnesses. In criminal cases the testimony of one witness was not sufficient, and indeed, such a person was even considered a slanderer, and one rabbi would have him corporally punished. In civil cases, where movable property was involved, if there was one witness to prove a levy on the same, the person denying it would be obliged to clear himself by a solemn oath. In order to establish the fact of a murder which no one had seen done, and avoid the ceremonies prescribed in Deut. xxii. 1-9, the testimony of only one person was necessary, if he bore a good name, and was able to justify a suspicion of unfaithfulness which would bring the woman before the judges for trial by the waters of jealousy. In both these cases the otherwise inadmissible testimony of slaves, children, and women, was accepted. If any one, asked to testify in regard to a certain fact within his knowledge, declined from any cause whatever of it, where his testimony would have possible weight, he was required to bring an offering according to his ability (Lev. v. 1 sqq.). Each witness must give his testimony by himself, in a language intelligible to the judge (for interpreters were forbidden), and limit himself to what he actually saw or heard. If, upon any considerable point, two witnesses contradict one another, the testimony of both is worthless. The witness must not have any bias, and therefore near relatives could not testify; nor must he belong to any of ten criminal classes, such as robbers, thieves, and usurers; nor must he have any serious bodily defect, such as blindness or dumbness. In civil cases the testimony of otherwise incapacable witnesses could be accepted if the party against whom the testimony was directed had no objection. The king, on account of his exalted rank, could not be cited as a witness; and the high priest was not bound to give evidence in any case, except one affecting the king. If, for any reason, a witness appeared suspicious to a judge, and yet he could not, on examination, find out any good grounds for his suspicion, he must give the case over to some other unprejudiced judge. Witnesses must testify without recompense: if paid, their testimony is inadmissible. Cf. Saalschütz: Mos. Recht., pp. 604 sqq.; O. Bxhr: Das Gesetz über falsche Zeugen nach Bibel und Talmud, Berlin, 1882.

WITSIUS (WITS), Hermann, Dutch theologian of the Cocceian school; b. at Enkhuysen, 1625; d. at Leyden, Oct. 22, 1708. He studied at the universities Gröningen, Leyden, and Utrecht. In the latter university he applied himself to Hebrew, under Leusden's direction, so assiduously, that at the age of eighteen he delivered a learned lecture in Hebrew upon Messianic Prophecy. From 1656 to 1681 he was pastor at Weertvuod; to 1686, at Wormeren; to 1683, at Goezen; to 1675, at Leeuwarden. In 1675 he was called to Franeker University, and in 1680 to Utrecht. In 1685 he visited England as chaplain of the Netherland embassy. In 1698 he left Utrecht for Leyden, induced to leave his beloved city by the release from preaching which he would have in his new professorships; and there he died, after a retirement of eighteen months on account of sickness. Witsius' great work is De aeconomia Fudem Dei cum hominibus, libri iv., Leeuwarden, 1685; 2d ed., Utrecht, 1693; later ed., Basel, 1739 (Eng. trans., The Economy of the Covenants Between God and Man, 3 vols., London, 1837, 2 vols.). It was an earnest effort to still the conflict between the orthodox and the federalists, but as usual pleased neither party, least of all the federalists (to whom he belonged), who accused him of having sinned against the Holy Ghost. As a matter of fact, the book is not strong.
WITTEBERG. 2544

WITTENBERG. The Concord of, signed May 29, 1536, denotes one of the most interesting, as also one of the most important, stages in that long series of negotiations, which, during the first period of the Reformation, was carried on in order to bring about an agreement between the Swiss and the Saxon Reformers. Politically, landgrave Philip of Hesse was the motive power of those negotiations; theologically, Butzer, and the personal meeting which the former brought about in 1534 between the latter and Melanchthon at Cassel, formed the introduction to the larger assembly at Wittenberg one year and a half later. The hard words which Luther let drop in his letter to Albrecht of Brandenburg, immediately after the death of Zwingli, showed the aversion he nourished to him; and it was well known how anxiously he watched that no one who in the Saxon camp. With Melanchthon, however, a change had taken place. He learned from Ecolampadius that many of those passages from the Fathers which he had quoted in his Sententiae veterum aliquot Scriptorum de Cena Domini, were mere interpolations; and, under the influence of Butzer's expositions, he gradually lost all interest in Luther's peculiar conception of the Lord's Supper, and became more and more anxious for the elimination of all elements of discord between the two evangelical churches. The Swiss had also become more susceptible to the idea of a concord. Butzer had succeeded in gaining over to the side of reconciliation Myconius in Basel, Bullinger in Zürich, his colleague Capito, etc.; and in the summer of 1534 an attempt at practical union was made, and proved successful, in Württemberg. Under such circumstances, Butzer and Melanchthon met at Cassel in December, 1534; and, in spite of the very stringent instructions which Luther had given Melanchthon, they succeeded in drawing up a formula of concord which satisfied Luther. He sent it to Urbanus Rhægius, Brenz, Amssdorf, Agricola, etc.; and in October, 1535, he wrote to Strassburg, Augsburg, Ulm, Esslingen, to Gerion Seiler, Huberinus, etc., inviting them to a general discussion of it.

Eisenach was decided upon as the place of rendezvous. In April Butzer left Constance, accompanied by nine preaching. As they progressed, they were joined by Capito, Melanchthon, and many others. Meanwhile Luther had fallen sick, and requested the visitors to come as far as Grimma: they determined to go directly to Wittenberg. May 22, at seven o'clock in the morning, they met in Luther's study, but not under the best auspices, as it would seem. Luther was suffering, irritable, harsh: Butzer became confused. The subject of the debate was the doctrine of the Lord's Supper. Luther demanded that the Swiss should make a formal recantation of what they had hitherto believed and taught, and their refusal made him excited. The next day, however, every thing was changed. Butzer was clear and adroit: Luther was mild and kind. After some debate, the Saxon theologians retired to another room to deliberate in private; and the result was, that the formula proposed by the Swiss was substantially accepted. May 24 the assembly met in the house of Melanchthon. The subjects of the discussion were baptism, absolution, the school, etc.; and the agreement which was arrived at was chiefly due to the tact and resolution of Bugenhagen. On Sunday Butzer preached in the morning, Luther in the afternoon; and all the members of the assembly took the Lord's Supper together. The stubborn Lutheraus, such as Amssdorf, Osiander, etc., were, of course, not satisfied with the result: they continued to demand that Butzer and the other Reformed preachers should recant before they confessed. But Luther himself spoke for a long time with great contentment and confidence of the affair. In Switzerland there were also some difficulties in getting the formulas of the concord accepted; but Butzer succeeded in overcoming them, and hoped that he had really achieved the great work of his life. See BUTZER.

WODROW, Robert, a well-known Scottish ecclesiastical historian; b. in Glasgow, some time in the year 1679; d. at Eastwood, March 21, 1734. He was the son of James Wodrow, professor of divinity in Glasgow University, and the great-grandson of Patrick Wodrow, vicar of Eaglesham, a convert from the Roman-Catholic Church. R. Wodrow was educated in the University of Glasgow; and on the completion of his course — having acted for a time, first as tutor in the family of his relative, Sir J. Maxwell of Pollock, one of the senators of the College of Justice, and afterwards as librarian of the University of Glasgow — was, in October, 1703, called to the pastoral charge of the parish of Eastwood, in the vicinity of the same city, a parish in which he continued to exercise the ministerial office till his death.

He early gave all his leisure hours to the collection of materials for Scottish church history. But he did not confine himself to English institutions which Luther had given Melanchthon, they continued in drawing up a formula of concord which satisfied Luther. He sent it to Urbanus Rhægius, Brenz, Amssdorf, Agricola, etc.; and in October, 1535, he wrote to Strassburg, Augsburg, Ulm, Esslingen, to Gerion Seiler, Huberinus, etc., inviting them to a general discussion of it.
one of the publications of the Maitland Club. — Wodrow's correspondence shows the high estima tion in which he was held by many of the most distinguished men of his day. It likewise fur nishes abundant proof of the extraordinary ac tivity of his mind, of the interest which he took in every subject connected with science or gen eral literature, and of the zeal and fidelity with which he devoted himself to the discharge of the more immediate duties of his sacred profession.
As a historian, he was, if not free from preju dice and credulity, trustworthy, upon the whole.
Charles James Fox, in his History of James 11., refers to Wodrow as a writer "whose veracity is above suspicion;" and speaking especially of the troubles in Scotland, after the restoration of Charles II., and during the reign of James II., says that "no historical facts are better ascer tained than the accounts . . . to be found in Wodrow." His writings, most of them unpub lished, are very numerous, and have earned for him the name of "the indefatigable Wodrow."
The larger portion of his manuscripts are depo sitied in the library of the faculty of Advocates in Edinburgh. A number of others, chiefly bio graphical, form part of the manuscript collect ions of the library of the University of Glasgow.
Wodrow's most important published works are his History of the Sufferings of the Church of Scot tland, from the Restoration to the Revolution (4 vols., Glasgow, 1829), his Analecta (printed for the Maitland Club, 1843, in 4 vols.), and his Collections upon the Lives of the Reformers and most Eminent Ministers of the Church of Scotland (Glas gow, 1834).
LIT. — Analecta (Prefatory Notice), Glasgow, 1843; Sufferings of the Church of Scotland (Mem oir of the author), Glasgow, 1829; Life of James Wodrow, by his son (edited by Rev. Dr. Camp bell), Edinburgh, 1829.
WILLIAM LEE.
WOLF, Johann Christoph, eminent Lutheran bibliographer of Judaism; b. at Wernigerode, Germany, Feb. 21, 1683; d. at Hamburg, July 25, 1739. He was made doctor of theology at Witt tenberg, 1704; in 1712 professor of Oriental lan guages at the Hamburg gymnasium; in 1716 pa tor of St. Catharine's. His greatest work is Bibliotheca hebraea (Hamburg, 1715–33, 4 vols.), which is an inexhaustible mine of bibliographi cal information. The first volume contains no tices of Jewish authors and their works; the second volume is the bibliography proper; the third and fourth supplement and correct the first two.
WOLFBÜTTEL FRAGMENTS is the name of a work written from the deistic point of view, to contest the truth of the gospel history, of which Lessing began to publish fragments in 1774. As early as 1771, during a visit to Berlin, he tried to find a publisher for the work, in spite of the advice of Nicolai and Mendelssohn to the contrary; but, as the royal censor (though he promised not to interfere with the publication) refused to authorize it, he gave up the plan for the time. In 1773, however, he began to issue a kind of periodical publication, Zur Geschichte und Literatur, aus dem Nachlaß der herzoglichen Bibliothek zu Wolfenbüttel, which was exempted from the control of the ducal censor; and in the third number of that publication appeared in 1774 the first instalment of the work, Von Dal zung der Deisten, Fragment eines Ungenannten, accompanied with a few cautious remarks by the editor, but very adroitly introduced by the pre ceding article. The fragment attracted no par ticular attention; but when, in 1777, the whole fourth number was occupied by "fragments," of which some, "Durchgang der Israeliten durch das rothe Meer, Uber die Auferstehungsgeschichte, etc., were of a rather pronounced character, quite a sensation was produced; and Lessing did not fail to deepen the impression by publishing in 1778, in the form of an independent book, a new frag ment, —Von dem Zwecke Jesu und seiner Jünger.
He immediately lost his privilege of publishing anything without the permit of the censor, and a violent controversy with the orthodox party be gan (see the article on Goethe). After the death of Lessing, the seven fragments which he had pub lished appeared in Berlin, 1784, in a collected edition, which was several times reprinted, the last time in 1835. Some more fragments which Lessing had had in his possession, but not pub lished, appeared in Berlin, 1787, edited by C. A. E.
Schmidt, a pseudonym. The anonymous author of the work, which forms one of the most re markable productions of German deism, was Reimarus; which article see. Lessing tried to lead public curiosity on a wrong track by hinting that the author probably was Johann Lorenz Schmidt of the Wertheim Bible fame. But already Hamann mentions Reimarus as author in a letter to Herder, of Oct. 13, 1777; and the authorship was afterwards established beyond any doubt by the declaration of the son of Reimarus, published in the Leipzig Litteratur Zeitschrift, 1827, No. 55, and by numerous pas sages in the correspondence of Lessing and the son and daughter of Reimarus.
LIT. — D. F. STRAUSS: Hermann S. Reimaru
und seine Schutzschriftr für die vernünftigen Verehrer Gottes, Leipzig, 1862; CARL MÜNCKEBERG: Herm
mann S. Reimarus u. J. C. Edelmann, Hamburg, 1867; KUNKO FISCHER: Geschichte der neueren
758–772.
CARL BRETHAUS.
WOLF, Bernard C., D.D., German Reformed theologian; b. at Martinsburg, Va., Dec. 11, 1794; d. at Lancaster, Penn., Nov. 1, 1870. He was graduated from the theological seminary at York, Penn., 1822; was associate (English) pastor in Easton, Penn., 1832–44; pastor in Baltimore, Md., 1844–64; professor of didactic and practical theology in the theological seminary at Mercers burg, 1854–64; when he resigned, and removed to Lancaster, Penn. He was a pure man, a model pastor, and a wise counsellor. He played a prominent part in the development of the Mercersburg Theology (which art. see). "He was," says the late Dr. J. T. Berg, his friend and opponent in the scriptural controversy, "a man of rare tact, of winning manners, and great kindness of heart; and few men exerted a more marked influence on the policy of the German Reformed Church than himself, before years and growing infirmities had weakened his strength."
WOLFF, Caspar, b. in the Electorate of Branden burg, Jan. 14, 1679; d. at Halle, April 9, 1754. He studied theology and mathematics at Jena, and was ap pointed professor at Halle, the chief seat of piest
ism, in 1706. He lectured on metaphysics, logic, and ethics; and his lectures attracted most extraordinary attention. Not only the audiences of the theological professors began to grow thinner, but the students took the liberty to speak slightly on their unscientific method. In 1719 appeared Wolff's great theological work, Vernünftige Gedanken von Gott, der Welt, und der Seele. In 1720 his ethics, Vernünftige Gedanken von den Menschen Thun und Lassen, in 1721, his politics, Vernünftige Gedanken von dem gesellschaftlichen Leben der Menschen. The pietists now became thoroughly alarmed. They felt that a great danger was upon them. Franke prayed; Lange harangued; finally the faculty made a formal complaint of Wolff to the king, stating, that, among other vicious doctrines, he also taught a kind of modern fatalism under the name of pre-established harmony. "What does that mean?" asked the king in his tobacco-congress. "It means," explained the court-fool, Paul Gundling, "that, if your tallest grenadier runs away, he can, properly speaking, not be justly punished, because his running away is, indeed, merely a piece of the pre-established harmony." By a cabinet decree of Nov. 8, 1723, Wolff was ordered to leave the Prussian dominion within forty-eight hours, under penalty of the gibbet; by another, the Prussian people were forbidden to read his books, under a penalty of a hundred ducats for each transgression.

In the same year, however, Wolff was appointed professor at Marburg, and his fame rose rapidly. Acquaintance with his philosophy became an indispensable element of intellectual culture: dictionaries were gotten up to familiarize the public with the technical terms of his system. His method and principles were applied, not only to philosophy and theology, but also to aesthetics, jurisprudence, grammar, etc. His style was introduced in the translation of the Bible, the so-called Wertheim Bible, 1735–37; and before 1739 no less than a hundred and seven German writers of more or less note had declared in his favor, and were working in the same line. Under such circumstances we cannot wonder that it was one of the first acts of Friedrich II., after his accession to the throne, to recall Wolff; and Dec. 6, 1740, he made his triumphal entrance into the city, preceded by trumpet-blasts and a procession of students on horseback, received at the gates by the town-council, waited on by the whole body of professors, etc. The university elected him its perpetual rector, the king made him a baron, etc.

Though a philosopher rather than a theologian, it is Wolff who has given to the rationalistic school of theology its fundamental principle and a great number of its watchwords. The Cartesian dualism between the res cogitans and the res extensa was happily overcome by Spinoza; but the pantheism of Spinoza, in which the two substances of Cartesius were reduced into mere attributes of the one single substance, had no room for true individuality. Spinoza knew only accidental and transitory forms; and it was Leibnitz, who, by splitting up the one compact substance of Spinoza into a harmonious world of monads, made possible a satisfactory explanation of the phenomenon of individuality. But Leibnitz was somewhat desultory and unystematic, and the flights of his mind were too high for the general public. In Wolff, however, he found a perfect exponent of his ideas; for in philosophy he is a systematizer only, not a creative genius. He drew his materials from Leibnitz, and his method he derived from mathematics. To make philosophical truth, by means of its peculiar exposition, as binding to reason as mathematical truth, was the great object of his life; and the toil he bestowed on that task—often ridiculous on account of its pedantry when applied to futile trivialities, often amazing on account of its superficiality when applied to things of great moment—was rewarded with complete success: even Kant considered him the greatest among dogmatic philosophers. Of course, he could not forbear to try his method also on theology; and though the attempts at first encountered much opposition, it finally came out victorious. To give a mathematical demonstration of the mysteries of Christianity—the miracles, the Holy Trinity, etc.—was the problem. But why should such a problem be considered unsolvable? A divine revelation could not possibly contain any thing which was against the principium rationis sufficiens; and how could a more effective barrier be raised against the inflex of English deism and French atheism than by fortifying the Christian doctrines themselves, according to the latest and most approved logic? By many of Wolff's followers the application of his method to theology was, no doubt, considered an excellent safeguard against the irreligious agencies of the time; and the danger was wholly overlooked, that reason, when once admitted into the field, might some day undertake to clear it of any thing for which no "sufficient reason" could be found. People went to work with great enthusiasm and perfect confidence. None of the Christian doctrines caused any anxiety: one by one they were taken forth from the armory, treated with the new polish, and exhibited to admiring spectators on the new pedestals.

Natural theology was the department most zealously cultivated by Wolff's disciples. Tired of pondering the symbolical books, and hunting up heresies in each other's sermons, the Protestant ministers threw themselves upon nature, and began to study the Creator in the creation. The pulpit and the lecture-room resounded with devotional meditations on rain and storm, mountains and rocks, snails and mice; and a ichthyos-, testaeco-, insecto-, a litho-, hydro-, pyro-theology arose. But as high as natural religion rose, so low sunk revealed religion. Some of the most prominent among Wolff's theological disciples were: Jacob Carpov (d. 1750), who recognized reason as the judge only of the falsa theologiae, but not of their veritas; Joachim Georg Darjes (d. 1791), who demonstrated that the doctrine of the Holy Trinity contained no mystery, but only a psychological problem; Johann Peter Reusch (d. 1758), who proved that revealed religion was not necessary to the foundations of religious faith; and last of all revealed religions, Christianity was the only sufficient one; Israel Gottlieb Canz (d. 1753), who made the suggestive remark, that natural religion stood in the same relation to revealed religion as well-water dug up from the ground, cool and clear, by means of philosophy, to rain-water fall lukewarm down from the sky, and gathered up in dirty cisterns; Johann Gustav Reinbeck (d. 1741), whose Betrachtungen über die in der augsburger Confession enthaltenen göttlichen Wahrheiten, 9 vols., were bought, at the expense of the royal treasury, for every church in Prussia; Hermann Samuel Reimarus, the author of the Wolfenbüttel Fragments, etc. All these men were Lutherans. To the Reformed Church belonged: Johann Friedrich Stapfer (d. 1775), who gave an algebraic demonstration of the doctrine of the Holy Trinity, and protested that there was no essential divergence between Lutheranism and Calvinism; Daniel Wytenbach (d. 1779), who used the mathematical method, not only against scepticism, but also against the doctrine of predestination. Jacob Christoph Beck (d. 1785), who emphatically gave natural religion the precedence of revealed religion, etc.

LIT.—Wolff's books are tremendously bulky, and he wrote a book a year, except 1714, the year in which he married. His autobiography was published by Wuttko, Leipzig, 1846. See LUDOVICI: Historie der W. Philosophie, Leipzig, 1787, 3 vols.; Neueste Merkwürdigkeiten d. Leib. W. Philosophie, 1738; Streitschriften wegen d. W. Philosophie, Leipzig, 1737. G. FRANK.

WOLFF, Joseph, D.D., L.L.D., a famous missionary and traveller; b. of Jewish parentage, at Weilersbach, near Bamberg, Germany, 1705; d. at Isle Brewers, Somersetshire, Eng., May 2, 1862. His father was a rabbi. In 1812 he was baptized at Prague by a Benedictine monk; in 1819 he went to Rome; but falling under the suspicion of Inquisition, because of his "heretical" views, he had to leave the city, 1818. He went to England, 1819; joined the Church of England; studied for two years Oriental languages at Cambridge; was sent out as missionary to the Jews, April, 1821, and for the next two years travelled extensively in the East, and again, from 1827 to 1834, and 1838 to 1839, ending up his last journey with a trip through the United States, upon which he was ordained deacon in the Episcopal Church, by Bishop Doane of New Jersey. On his return he was ordained priest, and settled at Linthwaite, near Halifax, 1843. He made a daring journey to Bokhara, to learn the fate of two British officers, and, if possible, to rescue them, and barely escaped being held, but returned safely in 1845, and lived the rest of his days as vicar in Isle Brewers. He has been justly styled "a comet in the missionary heaven." His journeys were essentially missionary in their character. He had a marvellous facility in the acquisition of language, and great coolness and self-possession in the presence of danger. He had abundant need to summon every resource to his aid, for his journeys were full of difficulties and alarms. He has left recitals of them in his Missionary Journal and Memoir, London, 1824–29, 3 vols.; Researches and Missionary Labours among Jews, Mohammedans, and Other Sects, Malta, 1855; Journal of his Missionary Labours, 1827–38, 1839; Narrative of a Mission to Bokhara, 1845–46; New Letters; 5th ed., 1848; Travels and Adventures of J. W., 1860, 2 vols., 2d ed., 1861.

WOLLASTON, William, b. at Coton Clanford, Staffordshire, March 26, 1659; d. in London, Oct. 22, 1724. He took the degree of M.A. at Cambridge, 1681; entered into orders, and from 1681 to 1688 taught school. In the latter year he fell heir to a large estate, moved to London, and passed the rest of his days in learned leisure. He was the author of a famous work, The Religion of Nature Delineated, London, privately printed 1722, anonymously published 1724, 8th ed., 1759. His fundamental principle was, that every action is good which expresses in act a true proposition. He maintained that truth is the supreme good, and the source of all pure morality. In the 6th ed. (1758), and subsequently, will be found a general account of his life and writings by Dean Clarke. In the 7th ed. (1760), for the first time is the author's name given.

WOLLEB, Johannes, b. at Basel, Nov. 30, 1566; d. there Nov. 24, 1628. He was educated in his native city; studied theology, and was appointed pastor of the Church of St. Elizabeth in 1611, and professor of theology in 1618. Besides some sermons, he published only one book (Compendium Theologiae Christianae, 1628); but it procured to him a conspicuous place in the history of Reformed theology, not only on account of its clearness and precision and the perfect order of its arrangement, but also on account of the broad and healthy judgment by which every thing of merely scholastic, formal interest, is left out, and only that is retained which has a living, intrinsic importance. A. EBRAUD.

WOLSEY, Thomas, English prelate and statesman; b. in Ipswich, 1471; d. in Leicester, Nov. 29, 1530. He was graduated at Magdalen College, Oxford, of which he was elected fellow, and where he met Erasmus; entered holy orders, and was successively rector of Lymington, Somersetshire, 1500; chaplain of Henry VII., 1505; rector of Redgrave, 1506; ambassador to the court of Maximilian, 1507; dean of Lincoln, 1508; almoner of Henry VIII., 1509; rector of Torrington, canon of Windsor, and registrar of the Garter, 1510; prebendary, 1511; and, 1512, dean of York, abbot of St. Albans, dean of Hereford, precentor of St. Paul's, London; bishop of Tournay, 1513; bishop of Lincoln, 1514; eight months afterwards, archbishop of York, 1514; cardinal on the nomination of Leo X., and lord-chancellor on the nomination of Henry VIII., 1515; legatus a latere, 1516; bishop of Bath, 1518; ambassador to Charles V., 1521; bishop of Durham, 1523; ambassador to Francis I., 1527; bishop of Winchester, 1529. In his day of glory he lived in great splendor, having once as many as five hundred persons in his train, among them nine or ten lords, fifteen knights, and forty squires. [But in 1529 he was accused of having transgressed, while legate, the statute præsumire, which forbade the introduction of papal influence into England. He pleaded guilty, resigned his chancellorship, transferred all his property to the king, and retired to Esher, in the bishopric of Winchester. The king allowed him to retain his archbishopric, gave him a general pardon, and an annuity of a thousand marks. On Nov. 4, 1530, he was arrested on a charge of heresy, and put in the monastery of Leicester while on his way to London to answer the charge. He is reported to have said during his fatal sickness, “If I had served God as diligently as I have done the king, he would not have given me over in my gray hairs. But this is the just reward that I must receive for my diligent pains and studies that I have had to do him service, not regarding my service to God as sufficient to satisfy him. Let it be the same with me now. He was very proud and ambitious, skilful in diplomacy, a friend and patron of learning, as is attested by his endowment of Christ College, Oxford. He was a theologian of the scholastic pattern, a student of Aquinas, and at the same time a jurist. He was the literary executor of Thomas Woltersdorff, and later his biographer. Woltersdorff published the works of Thomas Wolsey, the Great Cardinal of England, London, 1641; reprinted in 1667 and 1706 under the title The Life and Death of Thomas Wolsey, but for the first time fully and correctly from the manuscripts by Wordsworth in the first volume of his Ecclesiastical Biography, 1810; 4th ed., 1839. The best editions of the Life are by S. W. Singer, Chiwick, 1825, 2 vols., and by John Holmes, London, 1832. Besides it are to be mentioned the biographies by Richard Fiddees, London, 1724, 3d ed., 1726 (valuable for its collection of materials); John Galt, 1812, 3d ed. by Hazlitt, 1849 (dependent upon Fiddees, but containing some new and valuable matter); George Howard (pseud. of F. C. Laird), 1824; Charles Martin, Oxford, 1862 (the Stanhope Prize Essay, interesting and well worked up, but nothing new); C. A. Froude: History of England from the Fall of Wolsey to the Death of Anne Boleyn, vol. i., London, 1856; Williams: Lives of the English Cardinals, 1868; and Calendar of Letters, and Papers, Foreign and Domestic, of the Reign of Henry VIII., preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, etc., edited by J. S. Brewer, vols. i.-iv., 1862-75. Joseph Overbeck.

Woltersdorff, Ernst Gottlieb, b. at Friedrichsfelde, near Berlin, May 31, 1725; d. at Breslau, near Breslau, Dec. 17, 1761. He studied at Halle, and was appointed pastor of Breslau in 1748, and, later on, also director of the Orphan Asylum, an institution modeled after the French institution in Halle. Though not without merit as a preacher and pedagogue, it was principally as hymn-writer Woltersdorff acquired his reputation. The first collected edition of his hymns appeared in 1750; the last, in 1849. Many of his hymns have been translated by Miss Catharine Windisch, and others, and will be found in the Lyra Germanica and elsewhere.

Woman. There is no more striking contrast between the nations which are under the influence of Christianity, and the nations which are not, than the difference in the position of woman.

This article will give a brief statement of the status assigned to her among Pagan nations and Mohammedans, in the Old Testament and under the Christian system.

1. Pagan Nations. In the great ancient monarchies of the Orient the condition of woman was debased and debased only was the status of woman. Polygamy prevailed, and divorce was easy. The penal code of Ashur brings out the inferiority of woman in its statement of the rule of divorce: ‘If a husband say unto his wife, ‘Thou art not my wife,’ he shall pay half a mina, and be free. But, if a woman repudiate her husband, she shall be drowned in the river’ (George Smith: Assyrian Discoveries). In Europe, among the Greeks and the Romans, woman was held in higher respect. Homer casts a halo around the early Greek woman; but, at the period when art and literature were achieving their highest triumphs, the type of woman was the courtesan Aspasia, whom Socrates invited “to talk on the question, how she might ply her occupation with most profit.” Later Roman historians and poets give an attractive picture of the Roman matron of the days of the republic. From the earliest ages, women and females were, at any rate, subject to divorce, and were divorced in order to be married to another. The Teutonic tribes, from the beginning seem to have respected womanhood. Tacitus speaks especially of this fact. But, even among the Teutonic tribes, wives were articles of purchase and sale. Amongst the heathen nations which have survived to the present day, the condition of woman is a degraded one. From the Indian tribes of America, who make their wives do all the slavish work, and the Fiji-Islanders, whose princes were accustomed to lay the four corners of their residences upon the bodies of four women buried alive, to the East Indies, where the practice of the suttee (burning the wives on the funeral-pyre of their husbands) prevailed till English law abolished it, women are still relegated to the languor and inanity of the zenana, and widows (of whom there is estimated to be twenty millions), at however tender an age they are left in that condition, are condemned to perpetual widowhood. Mohammedanism is no better than Paganism in its treatment of woman, practises polygamy, treats woman as an inferior creature, and erects the harem.
portions at the palace under David, especially Solomon and his successors. But monogamy was the rule; and the laws of the Pentateuch, while they do not prohibit polygamy, at least mitigate and discourage it (Exod. xxi. 8; Lev. xv. 18).
The laws designed to alleviate the evil of the practice of forcing female prisoners of war into a state of concubinage witnessed to the Hebrew regard for the rights of woman (Deut. xxi. 11-14).
Divorce was regulated, and the only ground upon which it is granted is indicated in Deut. xiviv. 1.
Marriage evidently came to be regarded as a sacred relation, as is evident from the fact that some of the prophets depict God as occupying the marriage-relation to the theocratic people, as well as from single passages (e.g., Mal. ii. 16). The esteem of the Hebrew people for women isfurther shown in the important part accorded to some of them in their history, and the prominence with which they are mentioned in the patriarchal and Mosaic periods. Sarah's history is not only given at some length, but at her death Abraham, so it is reported, "came to mourn for Sarah, and to weep for her" (Gen. xxiii. 2). The account of the meeting of Isaac and Rebekah still affords language suitable to the marriage-service. Miriam, Deborah, Hannah, Huldah, and others, are illustrations of the freedom which was accorded to women, and the esteem in which they were held.
The picture which is given in Prov. xxxi. of a faithful housewife was only possible where the ideal of womanhood was a high one. There seems to have been comparative freedom of intercourse between the sexes in the early periods of Jewish history (comp. the account of the women meeting Saul and David after victory, 1 Sam.
viii. 6, 7, etc.); but in the later periods it was restricted (2 Macc. iii. 19; 3 Mace. i. 18 sqq.).
The apocryphal Book of Ecclesiasticus implies a waning esteem for woman in such statements as "the unfaithfulness of men is better than the goodness of women."

3. In the New Testament.—It has been under Christianity alone that woman has been able to occupy the position assigned to her at the creation,—of social equality with man. Our Lord, in his intercourse with women, gave back to the institutions of monogamic marriage in Genesis. The spirit of the New Testament is unfavorable to woman's degradation or inferiority, as it is to the cruelties of slavery. The gospel offers to woman an equal right with man to its promises and rewards, and declares that in Christ
there is no distinction of male and female (Gal.
iii. 28). The Lord found some of his intimate friends among women (Mary, Martha, etc.), overcame the barriers of prejudice in holding with a woman of Samaria one of the most refreshing conversations ever recorded (John iv.), allowed mothers to bring their children to him, performed works of mercy upon them (Matt. xv. 21—28, etc.), and pronounced upon the act of one woman the most splendid encomium that ever passed human lips (Mark xiv. 9). Women stood over against the cross (Luke xxiii. 49), were the first to visit the sepulchre, and the first to receive the revelation of the risen Lord (John xx. 1 sqq.). In the history of the early church they took an active part. Women were present at the first meeting of the disciples after the ascension (Acts i. 14).

They were among the early converts of the apostles' preaching (v. 14), received baptism (viii. 12), and were steadfast under persecution (viii. 3).
Paul's first convert in Europe was a woman; and her name (Lydia) is given, while that of the jailer of Philippæ was witheld (xvi.). She is a model of womanly reserve and hospitality (xvi.- 15, 40). Dorcas is a representative of woman's work of charity among the sick and poor (ix. 36—39); and Priscilla, who expounded the way of God more perfectly to Apollos (xviii. 26), is a representative of another kind of labor, recognized in the New Testament as proper to woman,—that of instruction, at least in private; for Paul seems to refuse to woman the right of speaking in the public meetings of the congregation (1 Cor. xiv.
34 sq.; 1 Tim. ii. 9 sqq.). Paul distinctly refers in Rom. xvi. to Phœbe, Persis, and other women as efficient fellow-workers in the spread of the gospel. The annals of the first several centuries include the names of women (Blandina, Perpetua, etc.) among the Christian martyrs, and depict their history and influence (Monica, Paula, etc.).
Pagan society was startled at the freedom with which Christian women went about on errands of charity. "What heathen will suffer his wife to go about from one street to another, to the houses of strangers, to the meanest hovels in indeed, to visit the heathen? What heathen will allow her to steal away to the dungeon to kiss the chain of the martyr?" (Tertullian.) Councils like that of Arles, 314 A.D., emphasized the sacredness of the marriage-tie. The influence of Christianity in producing the conception of the dignity of womanhood in the human mind is attested at a later period by the Madonnas of art and the false honor put upon Mary in the Roman-Catholic system. The Mormon revival of the institution of polygamy is a return (under the cover of the practices of some Old-Testament characters) to Paganism.

See Guizot: History of Civilization; Friedländer: Sittengeschichte, Roma, Leipzig, 1862, 6th ed., 1881; Mannesen: Het Christendom en de Vrouwe, Leiden, 1877; Goeler: Les femmes dans la société chrétienne au IVe siècle, La Flèche, 1878, pp. 85; K. Stolpe: Geschicht der Männer und der Frauen in Deutschland, Gütersloh, 1879; W. Wiseuer: Die Frauen, ihre Geschichte, ihr Beruf u. ihre Bildung in Deutscland, Gütersloh, 1879; L. Backer: Le droit de la femme dans l'antiquité, Paris, 1880; J. G. Manley: Women outside Christendom, London, 1880; J. Hübner: Die christliche Frau in ihrem Leben
u. Wirken, Berlin, 1882; Bracke: Gesta Christi, New York, 1888; Morgan Dix: Lectures on the Calling of a Christian Woman, and her Training to Fulfil it, New York, 1888; H. Schnotte: Das Weib im Alten Testament, Wien, 1883; also arts.
Deaconesses, Divorce, Marriage.
WOODS. 2550

WOODS, Leonard, D.D., Congregationalist; b. at Princeton, Mass., June 19, 1742; d. at Andover, Aug. 24, 1834. He was graduated at Harvard College, 1796, and from 1798 to 1808 was pastor of the church in Newbury, Mass.; and on the formation of Andover Seminary he became professor of theology, and held this position until his retirement in 1846, after which he devoted himself to a history of Andover Seminary, which was published 1854, and to preparing his lectures for the press. He was one of the founders of the American Tract Society, the American Education Society, American Temperance Society, American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions (of whose prudential committee he was a member for twenty-five years). He was a champion of orthodox Calvinism against the assaults of Drs. Ware, Buckminster, and Channing. Dr. H. B. Smith said he was "emphatically the 'judicious' divine of later New-England theology." His writings embrace Letters to Unitarians, Andover, 1822; Lectures on The Inspiration of the Scriptures (1829, Glasgow, 1838), on Church Government (New York, 1843), on Socinianism (1846); Memoirs of American Missionaries, Andover, 1833; Doctrine of Perfection, 1841; Reply to Mr. Mohun (upon this subject), 1841; Theological Lectures, Andover, 1849, 1850, 5 vols.; Theology of the Puritans, 1851. See Sprague's Annals, ii. 434 sqq.

WORCESTER. Theseat of an English bishopric since 880, a city on the left bank of the Severn, 102 miles west-north-west of London, with a population of 33,221. Its cathedral is in the form of a double cross. It was originally built by Bishop Oswald, 985, but since twice burnt and rebuilt. It has since 1859 been restored. It has a central tower 193 feet high. See the dioecesan history of Worcester by Rev. I. Gregory Smith and Rev. Phipps Onslow, London, 1883.

WOODS, Leonard, jun., D.D., LL.D., son of the preceding; b. in Newbury, Mass., Nov. 24, 1807; d. in Boston, Tuesday, Dec. 24, 1878. He was graduated at Union College, 1827, and at Andover Seminary, 1830; taught in the latter institution for a year; was ordained by the Third Presbytery of New York, 1833; editor of the New York Literary and Theological Review, 1834-38; professor of sacred literature in Bangor (Me.) Theological Seminary, 1838-39; and president of Bowdoin College (Me.), 1839-1843. During these years he visited Europe, under a commission to secure materials for a documentary history of Maine. He secured a work by Dr. J. G. Kohl of Bremen, On the Discovery of North America, and a copy of an important unpublished work by Richard Hakluyt, A Discourse on Western Planting, written in 1584. These were published in the second series of the Maine Historical Collections (1869 and 1877). The first he edited; and for the second he had collected much valuable illustrative material, when, in January, 1874, a fire destroyed it all. His only independent theological publication was his translation of George C. Knapp's Lectures on Christian Theology (New York and Andover, 1831-33, 2 vols.), which has been widely used, and is still in print. Dr. Woods received the degree of D.D. from Harvard, 1846, and of LL.D. from Bowdoin, 1890. He never married. He was famous for oratory, and exerted by his peculiar style a decided influence. See the Memorial Discourse of Rev. Dr. C. C. Everett, on July 9, 1879, in Collections Maine Historical Society, vol. viii., Portland, 1881; also memorial sermon by Professor E. A. Park, Andover, 1879.

WOOLSTON, Thomas, English deistic writer; b. at Northampton, 1669; d. in London, Jan. 27, 1722-33. He was elected fellow of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, and took degree of B.D. He wrote several theological works before his six Discourses on the Miracles of our Saviour, London, 1727-29, in which he very coarsely and offensively assailed the historicity of the miracles, declaring that their records are purely allegorical. For this bold theory he was sentenced to one year's imprisonment, and a hundred pounds fine; and, because he could not pay, he died in prison. There is reason to believe that Woolston was insane. His study of Origen doubtless infected him with a love of allegorizing, and may have disordered his mind. See arts. DEISM, p. 621, and INFIDELITY, p. 1084; and Leslie Stephen: History of English Thought, §§ 45-48, vol. i. pp. 228-233.

WORCESTER, Samuel, D.D., b. in Hollis, N.H., Nov. 1, 1770; d. at Brainerd, a mission station in East Tennessee, June 7, 1821, in the fifty-first year of his age. Several of his ancestors were eminent for their piety; two of them were clergymen. Three of his brothers also were clergymen: one of them was the celebrated Noah Worcester, D.D. Dr. Samuel was graduated at Dartmouth College in the year 1795. He pursued his theological studies mainly with his lifelong friend, Rev. Samuel Austin, D.D., a noted Hopkinsian divine, then pastor at Worcester, Mass., afterwards president of the Vermont University. He was ordained at Fitchburg, Mass., Sept. 27, 1797. Here his sermons bore the impress of high literary tone. He and his brother John visited Europe, under a commission to secure materials for a documentary history of Maine. They were pungent in their appeals to the conscience, were delivered with great solemnity, and at length excited an opposition of uncommon violence. He was dismissed Sept. 8, 1802, after a ministry of four years and eleven months. On the 20th of April, 1808, he was installed pastor of the Tabernacle Church in Salem, Mass. Here he was honored as a man of clear mind, positive convictions, firmness of will, steadfastness of Christian principle. In 1804 he received and declined an appointment to the professorship of theology in Dartmouth College. In 1810 he was elected the first corresponding secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. The severe labors of this secretariatship combined with his pastorate shattered his health. In July, 1819, he received the aid of a colleague pastor, Rev. Elias Cornelius. In January, 1821, the state of his health compelled him to seek a southern climate, and he removed to the mission stations among the Cherokee and Chocowin Indians. In a mission family among the Chocowins he died. The eulogies written or spoken in regard to him by Jeremiah Evarts, Esq., Dr. Leonard Woods, and Dr. Elias Cornelius, were admirable specimens of biography. In 1852 his Memoir was published, in two duodecimo volumes, by his son, Rev. Samuel M. Worcester, D.D.

Dr. Worcester was distinguished by the vast amount of labor which he performed in connection with the foreign missionary enterprise. Either he or Dr. Samuel Spring, or both together, originated the idea of forming the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. The detailed plan of the board was doubtless formed mainly by Dr. Worcester. He wrote the first ten, which are in some respects the most important, Annual Reports of this society.

As an author he was noted for his logical acumen, and vigorous, pointed style. Twenty-seven of his sermons were published during his life, and a volume of additional sermons after his death. Besides his sermons, he published nine pamphlets, some of them controversial; three of them being his remarkable Letters to Rev. Dr. William E. Channing. He edited two Hymn-Books, — one in 1814, entitled Christian Psalmody; another in 1818, entitled Watts's Entire and Select Hymns. The latter has been much celebrated. He published many articles in the periodicals of his day. For five years he was editor-in-chief of the Massachusetts Missionary Magazine, which was afterward united with the Panoplist, and still later with the Missionary Herald, the present organ of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. EDWARDS A. PARK.

WORLDWORTH, Christopher, D.D., youngest brother of the poet; b. at Cockermouth, Cumberland, June 9, 1774; d. at Buxted, Sussex, Feb. 2, 1846. He was graduated at Trinity College, Cambridge, of which he was elected fellow, 1795; entered into holy orders, and, after holding various preferments, was master of Trinity College from 1820 till 1841. He then retired to his rectory of Buxted-with-Uckfield, which he had held since 1820. He is best remembered for his Ecclesiastical Biography, or, lives of eminent men connected with the history of religion in England from the commencement of the Reformation to the Revolution (London, 1810, 6 vols.; 4th ed., 1853, 4 vols.), and for his writings in defence of King Charles's claim to be the author of Eikon Basilike.

WORKS, GOOD. The sharp distinction which Paul made between law and gospel, between justification by faith and justification by good works, naturally lost its prominence in Christian teaching with the overthrow of Paganism. From her own experience, and that a dearly-paid-for experience too, the ancient church had gained the double conviction, that nothing but faith is able to keep man in true communion with Christ, and that faith which alone so necessarily must produce a thorough regeneration of practical life. The relation, however, between faith and good works, and between them and salvation, had not yet been made the subject of critical reflection; and was theologically so loosely fixed, that the older Fathers could content themselves with placing the latter in the same family as the former, as equally necessary to salvation; sometimes emphasizing the former, but sometimes also emphasizing the latter.

Meanwhile, Gnosticisms arose, with its dispar-tament of the Old Testament, and its inclination towards an antinomistic libertinism. It became necessary for the church to place the inherent connection between the Old and the New Testament in the right light; but in so doing she happened to adopt a little more of the Old Testament type than was good, and in course of time the gospel itself became a nova lex. The more perfectly Christianity was developed as a social and political institution, the more frequently an external legality took the place of that faith which regenerates man from within: the more firmly the church established herself as the representative of God and Christ on earth, the more easily observance of merely ecclesiastical ordinances, rites, and penances, was mistaken for works of true moral worth. At last faith itself became, in the form of obedience to the church, a meritorious and obligatory work. But a faith, which, according to the definition of the schoolmen, simply consisted in assent to the dogmas of the church (fides informis) could not be vindicated as the alone sufficient power of salvation. On the contrary, it became necessary to define the faith which proves itself in works (fides caritate jussa) as the true condition of salvation; and the distinction which was made between praeceptis and consilii (works) finally brought forth the delusion of a surplus of good works, — opera supererogationis.

The doctrine of the Roman-Catholic Church concerning the insufficiency of faith to salvation, and the necessity of good works, was the point at which the Reformers aimed their arrows; and they hit. The strength of the truth, the clear words of Scripture, and the irrefragable testimony of thousands of people, — to whom their faith was their sole hope, but also their sure confidence, — finally gained the victory; and the words of Paul, "Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law," became the banner around which the evangelical churches rallied their forces. Afterwards Leibnitz and after him several recent theologians have characterized the controversy between the Roman Catholic and Protestant Churches concerning the relation between faith and works, as a mere play of words. But that is certainly a mistake. It is true that both parties agree in the necessity of good works; but the meaningless exaggeration of the principle of the Reformation which appeared in the Majoristic controversy, that good works are detrimental to salvation, found its due rebuke in the Formula Concordiae. But they differ widely in their conceptions of justification and good works. As above mentioned, Roman-Catholic theology transforms the practical realization of an inner, ethical ideal into a mere submission to the ordinances of the church, and it is led to do so by confounding justification and sanctification, between which Protestant theology makes a definite distinction. In Protestant theology, justification means the forgiveness of sin by the grace of God for the sake of Christ; but in Roman-Catholic theology it means something altogether different; a justitia infundendi, a granting of the divine blessing. J. H. FRANZ BEYER.

WORLD. In itself the idea of the world has no religious character. Nevertheless, as the world is the object of the divine will and the theatre of human activity, the idea which man forms of it exercises a powerful influence on all his fundamental religious ideas, — those of God and man, of revelation and salvation, etc. We give below a few remarks illustrative of this idea as it occurs in the Bible.

The Old Testament has no particular word corresponding to our universe. When the Hebrews wanted to express that idea, they used the phrase "heaven and earth." Heaven again they considered from a double point of view, — as connected with the earth, and forming part of a grand totality, and as the abode of God in contradistinction to the earth as the abode of man. Considered from the first point of view, heaven appears to be very closely connected with the earth. It is, indeed, a geogony, and not a cosmogony, which is given in the first chapter of Genesis; and every thing which is said of the firmament serves simply to image forth and explain its immediate appari tion. It must be firmly secured on pillars in order not to fall down (Job xxvi. 11; 2 Sam. xx. 8); gates lead into it (Gen. xxviii. 17); the stars are fixed to its vault (Gen. i.14); light and rain and lightning break through it (Job xxxviii. 24 sqq.). From this view of heaven to that as the abode of God, the transition is made through the observation that the great stars rule the earth (Gen. i. 16). The recognition of fixed seasons, of an established order, etc., shows that the Hebrews had a feeling of the existence of natural laws; but neither they nor any other Shemites ever firmly grasped that idea. Natural laws are to them the "ordinances of heaven" (Job xxxviii. 33; Ps. civ. 19); and the ordinances of heaven shall forever be a secret to man, because the exact knowledge of them is subordinate part as mediators; and this conception, in which the heavenly bodies played only a mighty floods of the ocean (Ps. xxiv. 2, lxxv. 3).

The recognition of fixed seasons, of an established order, etc., shows that the Hebrews had a feeling of the existence of natural laws; but neither they nor any other Shemites ever firmly grasped that idea. Natural laws are to them the "ordinances of heaven" (Job xxxviii. 33; Ps. civ. 19); and the ordinances of heaven shall forever be a secret to man, because the exact knowledge of them is subordinate part as mediators; and this conception, in which the heavenly bodies played only a mighty floods of the ocean (Ps. xxiv. 2, lxxv. 3).

Thought, and found expression in the deism of nature and Divine Providence, which, with an inherent, informing order, which man can learn to know, though onl gradually and approxi mately. On the other hand, they escaped the idea of a fate which might prove a barrier even not be considered as fixed popular opinions. They were simply poetical objects, with which the imagination was at liberty to play, in order to produce a more striking and impressive representation of the grandeur, wisdom, and goodness of God. To the Hebrew, man was the only being on earth of absolute interest: the dead and dumb sphere lay far below him, and was simply his (Ps. i. 28). To the Hebrew, the human world was the real world; and the unity of that world, that is, the unity of the human race and of its relation to God, the Creator and the Judge, was an idea which arose with the religion of Jehovah, culminated in the great prophet, and never died completely out, though it was reduced into a mere caricature of itself by the particularism and pride of the Pharisees. See, concerning the Old Testament view of the world in general, C. von Lengerke: Kenan, 1824; H. König: Die Theologie der Psalmen, 1857.

In the New Testament the idea of the world as the human world received a powerful development by being placed in opposition to the idea of a divine world,— the kingdom of heaven. It then came to mean the history of the human race so far as that history lies outside of the influence of Christ, and grows up the mere product of the forces and spirit of nature. Darkness, that is, blindness, is the chief characteristic of the world in this sense of the word; for by its own strength the world is utterly unable to grasp the truth, and see God (John iii. 27, 31; xvii. 25). But by itself the darkness is not sin or guilt; for it is simply the inherent nature of the world, and not an effect of the fall of the human race and of original sin. It becomes sin, however, and leads to guilt, when it rises into a denial of the light; and, just as the mere love of light develops the faculty of acquiring it, so the hatred of light destroys that very faculty, etc. A comparison between the various ideas of the world which have been developed in the course of Christian civilization, and the typical idea as it is contained in the New Testament, would be a most instructive task, but is beyond the compass of this article. One of the principal points of such an investigation would be the idea of Augustine. It exercised great influence on the Reformers, especially in their more especial four side of the earth, they, like the Greeks, and, indeed, like most other people, began by facing east, and placing north to the left, south to the right. Towards the north was the sombre region: the highest mountains were there, especially the holy mountain, the mount of the congregations (Isa. xiv. 13): the chereb, indicating the divine pres ence, stood there (Ezek. xxviii. 14). As a rule Jehovah came from the north (Ps. xlviii. 3; Ezek. i. 4); and there were the beginnings of the human race, the first time at Eden, the second time at Ararat. Below the earth, was the abode of the dead (see art. HADES). This must not be understood, however, as if in the above passages, and in others of similar import, the sacred writers ever proposed to give a lesson in geography, or geology, or any other department of science. On the contrary, the freedom and manifoldness of the similes employed give irref ragable evidence that this whole group of ideas were never treated as articles of faith. They can even not be considered as fixed popular opinions. They were simply poetical objects, with which the imagination was at liberty to play, in order to produce a more striking and impressive representation of the grandeur, wisdom, and goodness of God. To the Hebrew, man was the only being on earth of absolute interest: the dead and dumb sphere lay far below him, and was simply his (Ps. i. 28). To the Hebrew, the human world was the real world; and the unity of that world, that is, the unity of the human race and of its relation to God, the Creator and the Judge, was an idea which arose with the religion of Jehovah, culminated in the great prophet, and never died completely out, though it was reduced into a mere caricature of itself by the particularism and pride of the Pharisees. See, concerning the Old Testament view of the world in general, C. von Lengerke: Kenan, 1824; H. König: Die Theologie der Psalmen, 1857.
WORMS, one of the oldest towns of Germany, situated on the Rhine, with about fifteen thousand inhabitants; played on four different occasions a very prominent part in the history of the Reformation, as once previously in the religious history of Germany.

1. The first of these occasions was on Sept. 23, 1122, when the terms of the Concordat were read before a vast multitude assembled in a meadow near the city. This Concordat ended the contest between emperor and pope, which had been going on for fifty years. According to this document, the emperor, on his part, gave up all investiture by ring and staff; allowed free election and consecration to all churches, according to canon law. The pope, on his part, conceded that the election of German bishops and abbots should take place in the presence of the emperor, but without simony or violence; that, in case an election was disputed, the emperor, on the advice of the archbishop and bishops, should take the side of the right party. The bishop elect should receive the temporalities of his see by the imperial sceptre, and obliged himself to perform the accompanying duties. In other parts of the empire, the bishop, six months after consecration, should receive his temporalities in like manner, on the same conditions, but without any payment. The Concordat was ratified by the first Lateran Council, March, 1123.

2. The Diet of Worms, 1521, before which Luther was summoned to appear, closed the first period of the Reformation, showing to the world that the movement started by Luther was something greater, and likely to take quite another turn, than that started by Hus. Luther arrived Tuesday, April 16, in the forenoon, and was lodged in the house of the Knights of St. John. Great excitement prevailed in the city: thousands of people thronged the streets through which he passed. The next day (Wednesday, April 17), at six o'clock in the afternoon, he appeared before the diet, assembled in the episcopal palace, where the emperor and King Ferdinand staid. Johann Eck, a brother of the disputant of Leipzig fame, and official to the Bishop of Worms, addressed him in the name of the emperor, and demanded that he should recant. Luther answered by a Latin speech, which has been preserved in his own draught. It is short, and clothed throughout in respectful terms; but every sentence is stamped with that decision which characterizes the action of natural forces, and which, when met with in human life, almost inspires with horror. And it was well delivered: in every corner of the hall it was heard that not one word would be retracted. A short dispute followed between Luther and Eck, ending with the famous words by Luther, "Here I stand. I can do no otherwise. So help me God! Amen!" The emperor left in a rage. It had become quite dark in the hall; and the Spaniards filled the room with their hisses and yells, while outside in the streets the crowd growled and threatened. When Luther passed by the seat of Duke Erick of Brunswick, an inveterate Romanist, the duke saw that the man was exhausted almost to fainting, and handed him his big silver mug with Eimbecker beer. When he came home to his lodgings, he threw up his arms, and cried out with joy. "Now I am through." Some further negotiations with a committee took place, though without any result.

April 28, Luther left Worms. See J. Köstlin: Martin Luther, Elberfeld, 1875. On June 25, 1888, a colossal monument of Luther, with figures of the principal Reformers and of the cities of Spire, Magdeburg, and Augsburg, was unveiled in Worms.

3. 4. Later on, two Colloquies took place in Worms, between Protestant and Roman-Catholic theologians, for the purpose of bringing about a reconciliation between the two parties without having recourse to armed force. The first, January, 1541, was presided over by Cardinal Granvella. On the Protestant side were present Melanchthon, Calvin, Cruciger, Gryneus, Menius, etc.; on the Roman-Catholic side, Calvin, Cochlaeus, Eck, Nausea, etc. Though, no doubt, both parties met with the sincere intention of doing their utmost in order to avoid war, it soon became evident that a compromise was possible unless some very strong influence from without could be brought to bear on the negotiations; and by an imperial decree of Jan. 18, 1541, the assembly was transferred to Ratisbon, where the diet was about to meet. The second colloquy, the so-called "Consultation of Worms," took place in 1557 under the presidency of Julius von Pfug, Bishop of Naumburg; but, beside Melanchthon, the president was probably the only one present who took a real interest in the union. The Protestants were represented by Melanchthon, Prenz, Morin, Schneip, etc.; the Roman Catholics, by Sidonius, Bishop of Merseburg, Canisius, Staphylus, Wizelius, etc. It seems to have been the object of the Roman Catholics to break up the compact unity of the Protestant party; and, if so, they succeeded. In the sixth sitting, Sidonius demanded a formal declaration, whether the whole Protestant Church proceeded on the Calvinist doctrine of the Lord's Supper, the Osianidarian doctrine of justification, the Placian doctrine de servo arbitrio, etc.; and immediately the internal discord of the Protestant party broke out in full blaze. The assembly finally dispersed
WORSHIP. The earliest account we have of Christian worship after the close of the canon is from a Pagan source. When Pliny the Younger entered upon his proconsulship of Bithynia in Asia Minor, about A.D. 110, he found the number of Christians already so great, and the heathen worship so seriously undermined, that he was obliged by the popular clamor to exert himself against the new religion. Even under the cruel application of the torture, he could find out nothing worse than that the Christians were accustomed to meet together on a set day, before dawn, and sing responsive hymns to Christ as their God, and to pledge themselves in a sacrament to abstain from every form of evil, to commit no theft, rapine, or adultery, to falsify no word, and betray no trust. At a later period in the day they met together again, and joined in a harmless supper (Pliny to Trajan, Let. 95). No higher testimony could be desired to the purity of the Christian life and worship. The next account is from a Christian source, and, as might be expected, somewhat more particular. Justin Martyr, in his first Apology, says, that on the day called Sunday, all the Christians of a neighborhood meet together in one place, and listen to the reading of the Gospels and the Prophets. The preaching of the sermon, exhorting them to holy living. All stand up, and pray. Bread is then brought in, with wine and water, the sacramental wine being invariably diluted. After further prayers, to which the people respond with audible "Amen!" the body and blood of Christ are distributed. Portions are sent to the sick; and a collection is taken for the poor. Justin adds, "Sunday is the day on which we all meet together; because it is the first creative day, on which God called forth the light out of darkness, and on which also Jesus Christ our Saviour rose from the dead." The first important change in public worship to be noticed after the close of the canon was the division of the service into two parts,—the service (missa) of the catechumens, which was open to all, and consisted of prayer, reading, and preaching; and the service for church-members (missa fidelium). The central part of this was the Lord's Supper, which was celebrated as a Christian mystery. More and more the "Eucharist" came to be the grand feature in Christian worship, about which all the other parts were grouped. A regular order was formed for its administration, which eventually grew into the liturgies of Basil and Chrysostom, and the Latin Sacramentaries of Gelasius, Leo, and Gregory. It was not till the period of long tranquillity that both preceded and followed the Decian persecution, that the Christian house of worship ventured to confront the heathen temple. During the last half of the century many churches were reared in Egypt, Syria, Asia Minor, Italy, Gaul, and Britain. The defect to which this method is liable are pointed out in the Presbyterian Directory for Worship, in which the minister is charged to "prepare himself carefully for the right conduct of public prayer, that it may be performed with propriety and dignity, as well as to the profit of those who join in it, and that he may not disgrace that important service by mean, irregular, or extravagant effusions." Notwithstanding this admonition, the Presbyterian clergy continued to give so little attention to this part of their duty, that, about the close of the first quarter of the century, the venerable Dr. Miller of Princeton, one of the recognized leaders of that church, pointed out no less than eighteen separate faults into which they were accustomed to fall. This invariable tendency has led, from about the time of the publication of Dr. Miller's treatise, to a reaction in favor of the primitive mode of worship, by means of a partial Liturgy; and various works designed to encourage and assist that movement have been laid before the church.

No marked change, however, in the forms of worship has yet been effected. Among the Scottish Presbyterians, a large and active society, ever bending many resources, lay and clerical, has devoted itself to the improvement of public worship, and has published several excellent liturgical works for that purpose. Their Euchologion, or Book of Common Order, has passed through four editions, and an improved fifth edition is about being issued (1883).

In the Roman-Catholic Church in America a marked change for the better in respect to public worship is to be noticed. Brought into immediate competition with a powerful and vigorous Protestantism, the Roman Church has been obliged to borrow something of its methods in self-defense. Its churches are mostly large, but not too large for the purposes of preaching; and the pews are often upholstered, and rented permanently by the same families. A sermon always makes a part of the service. The children are gathered into Sunday schools, in which the Catechism is taught, and hymns are sung to the popular tunes familiar to Protestant children.

In the department of hymnology a great development of activity has taken place, both in Europe and America, during the last half-century. Many new hymn and tune books have appeared, mostly worthy of high estimation, including from one thousand to fifteen hundred hymns each. A serious fault with some of them is the unauthorized "tinkering" of old and familiar hymns, at the discretion of the individual editor. The intrusion of modern "sentimental" hymns is another fault. The conference of Eisebach (1858) went to the opposite extreme, and adopted the principle of accepting no hymn of a later date than 1750. Many hymns are also objectionable as being too exclusively didactic. A hymn may properly include doctrine, reproof, or warning; but the great function of sacred song is the utterance of the devout emotions in praise to God; preaching hymns, in which the whole object, apparently, is to rouse and terrify the sinner, are illegitimate. The German collections are generally free from these faults. On the whole, the modern church worship must be regarded as more ornate and didactic, appealing more both to the intellect and the taste, than that of the earlier ages, and as having something the same relation to it that modern confessions have to the Apostles' Creed, or a finely constructed and furnished modern church to the bare basilica of the Nicene period. See HOMILETICS, HYMNOLOGY, LITURGY, PRAYER-BOOK, and the literature there given.

Samuel Miles Hopkins.

Wotton, Sir Henry, a traveller, diplomatist, scholar, and poet; b. at Boughton, Malherbe, Kent, March 30, 1658; d. at Eton, December, 1699; was educated at Eton, and Harvard, Mass. He lived mostly abroad; was for a time secretary to the Earl of Essex; knighted by James I. soon after his accession; three times minister to Venice, and in the intervals to Germany, the Netherlands, etc.; provost of Eton, 1625. His tracts, letters, etc., were collected, 1651-72, by Izaak Walton, as Reliquiae Wottonianae, with a memoir. Of his few poems, several, especially How happy is he born or taught, have a place among our sacred classics.

F. M. Bird.

Wotton, William, D.D., English divine; b. at Wrintham, Suffolk, Aug. 15, 1683; d. at Buxted, Sussex, Feb. 13, 1738. He showed remarkable precocity; and when he was twelve years and a half old he was skilled in Hebrew, Chaldee, Syriac, Arabic, Greek, and Latin, besides in logic, philosophy, geography, and the arts and sciences. He entered Catherine Hall, Cambridge, in 1676; was passed B.A., January, 1679; M.A., 1683; and was elected fellow of St. John's College, 1685. He entered holy orders; in 1693 was rector of Middleton Keynes, Buckinghamshire; in 1705 prebendary of Salisbury. Among his learned works may be mentioned, Reflections upon Ancient and Modern Learning, 1694, 3d ed., 1705 (a reply to Sir William Temple's extravagant eulogy of the ancients); Miscellaneous Discourses relating to the Traditions and Usages of the Scribes and Pharisees in our Blessed Saviour Jesus Christ's Time, 1718, 2 vols. (in vol. 2 are translations of the Mishna's Shabbath and Erwin, two books on the sabbath).

Writing Among the Hebrews. The Hebrew word Kadah denotes originally, to "engrave" in stone (Exod. xxxi. 18, xxxii. 15), metal (Exod. xxxix. 39; Job xix. 24; Is. viii. 6; Hab. ii. 2), wood (Num. xvii. 3); then to "write." The discovery and first use of the art of writing is certainly at least as old as Abraham, yet in the patriarchal age we meet with absolutely certain traces of its employment by the Hebrews. But undoubtedly they made this art their own during their stay in Egypt; for here already we find Israelite officers who derived their name, shohrim, from "writing." All the more we may assume that Moses, brought up as he was in the Egyptian court, and instructed in all the wisdom of the Egyptians (Acts vii. 22), not only was acquainted with it, but was so practised in it that he could set down in writing the laws which were given to his people, and so insure them against that disfiguration which is the case of mere tradition. Nay, in the time of Moses, the art of writing is presupposed, and mentioned as being already known and in common use among the people (Exod. xvii. 14, xxiv. 4, xxxv. 27, 28; Lev. xix. 28; Num. v. 25, xi. 26, xxxii. 2); Deut. xvii. 14, 18, xxx. 9, 18, 22, 24). The Shemitic alphabet, of which the Hebrew is merely a branch, was not invented by the Hebrews, neither was it invented by the Phoenicians. It was certainly invented and used by a Semitic race, because it is adapted to the peculiarities of the Semitic languages, and was developed out of the primitive type independently of Egypt in Babylonia, whence the Phenicians got it, and were the instruments of communicating it to other nations.
WRITING AMONG HEBREWS. 2556 WRITING AMONG HEBREWS.

The Semitic primitive alphabet presents itself in a threefold stage of development, while it was contributing to the formation of the present Hebrew character. In its oldest (iconographical) state it exists in Phenician monuments, both stones and coins. The letters, characterized generally by stiff, straight down-strokes, without regularity and beauty, were used among the Samaritans, and on coins struck under the Maccabean princes. While the old character thus continued without much change among the Phenicians and Samaritans, it had gradually altered among the Aramaeans, and assumed somewhat of a cursive, or tachygraphical form, by opening the heads or tops of the letters, which were closed before, so that they presented themselves as two projecting points or ears, and by breaking the stiff down-strokes, which were either upright, or but slightly bent into horizontally inclined ones, to serve for union in writing. This character appears in a twofold form on Aramaean monuments. It is seen as an older and more simple one on the Carpentras stone, where it still inclines to the old writing, and is just beginning to deviate from it by opening the heads of the letters. It is also seen as a younger character, in inscriptions found among the ruins of Palmyra, departing very considerably from the primitive alphabet, by the open heads of the letters and by the horizontal strokes of union. The ancient character also underwent a similar process among the Jews. It is probable that the influence of the later Aramaean character (Palmyrene) contributed most to this effect, until the present Hebrew writing, the עיניך יבש [square writing (so called on account of its angular form)] more commonly, called יסוי יבש [the Assyrian writing], was formed. To give the characters more uniformity and symmetry, the calligraphic principle, or effort to write beautifully and ornamentally, came in use. Letters which had been joined together it divided, and attaches various ornamental flourishes to them, agreeably to current taste.

At what time the Hebrew writing thus altered passed from the Aramaeans, or Syrians, to the Jews, it is very difficult to discover. In the Talmud, Origen, and Jerome, the change of the characters is ascribed to Ezra, who, after the captivity, is said to have introduced the square character for the old. [Here it is often called the Assyrian writing, ננמן יבש.] According to a tradition (Euseb., Chron. ad ann. 4720), Ezra is said to have invented the square writing, that the Jews might not become mixed with the Samaritans. This square writing was also called the "holy," in opposition to the more ancient, the עיניך יבש, i.e., the broken, irregular one, or עיניך יבש [Hebrew writing], which was now regarded as "fornication" and only in use among the Samaritans. But the fact that this character was still retained for a considerable time, and on account of its antiquity was used in the Maccabean coinage, and that the Samaritans may have accepted it along with the Pentateuch, while, out of hatred to the Samaritans, the Jews may then have preferred the running hand, and may have perfected it calligraphically into the square character, shows that the square writing must have been introduced later. The name יסוי יבש cannot, indeed, be held absolutely to determine the origin and history of the square character, since the meaning of the word ננמן יבש is greatly disputed. Thus rabbi Jehudah [surnamed the Holy] explains it, "beautified," "sanctified." The same is to be said of the explanations "rectilinear writing" (Michaelis, Orient. Bibl. xxii. p. 133) and "straight, strong, firm writing" (Hupfeld). Although we cannot determine with precision the time at which the square character was perfected, still there is complete evidence that it cannot have taken place so late as the fourth century of the Christian era (as Kopp, Bilder-Schriften der Vorzeit, ii. 87 sq.). In the New Testament (Matt. v. 18) we find that the yod is referred to as the smallest letter, which suits better the square character. The Talmud and Jerome designate those letters as similar, and exposed to change by mistake, which can only refer to the square character. [Comp. Pick, art. "The Old Testament in the Time of the Talmud," in McClintock and Strong's Cyclopedia, vol. x. p. 187.] During the middle ages we find another kind of cursive writing, the rabbinic, which is also a kind of square writing.

The question whether the Hebrew system of writing was merely a writing of consonants, or not, is still pending. According to Hupfeld, there were from the beginning three vowel-signs for the vowels a, i, and u. Of these, however, the first, the aleph, was used only with a commencing sound, and in a concluding sound it was not written; but every consonant was sounded with the a. Moreover, in the beginning, the a sound was very greatly predominant; and only as the language became developed, the other vowels became more frequent,—i and u, also e, o, ai, and au. Yet the writing was developed less rapidly than the pronunciation; and thus the vowel-marks and i were not applied everywhere, but only in accordance with the sound. In later times, the Old Testament we find a manifest progress in the written symbols for the vowels, as the so-called scriptio plena comes much more frequently into use. At the time of the Alexandrian version the vocalization had not attained to its later perfection, and therefore in many cases it deviates from that which is now adopted. In the Targums it meets us in a much firmer and less variable form; and by the time of the Talmud it is thoroughly fixed, and it agrees essentially with the later vocalization; though it exhibits no traces of vowel-points (Hupfeld: Studien u. Kritiken, 1880, p. 549; Exercit. Ethip. §§ 6 of text in Mar. § 11). The first traces of diacritical signs we find in the marketano, the Samaritan diacritical line, and which is also found on Phenician inscriptions.

The ancient Hebrews, like the ancients generally, had "written words" and only in respect of words, or complete scriptio continua; but they divided the sentences, and, for the most part, the words also, by little spaces, whilst closely connected words were frequently written without any break. But, when the regular square character was introduced, the separation of the individual words by little spaces also became universal. The Semitic, with the exception of the Ethiopic, is written from right to left. The Hebrew has twenty-two letters, which, after the exile, were also used as numbers. In the old Hebrew writing, abbreviations were also used, as in the Phenician.

The Writing-Material. — The earliest was either wood, metal, or stone. According to Herodotus, the skins of animals were the most ancient materials for writing books in Western Asia. Only at a later period the Egyptian paper, made from the coats of the papyrus, came widely into use among the Jews (comp. Hengstenberg: Beiträge ii. 486), and so did parchment afterwards, on which, no doubt, the original form of the Pentateuch was written in the antique form of a roll, with ink (Num. v. 23). According to Josephus (Ant. xii. 2, 10; Ps. cxxi. 8), parchment was used for writing law; and this is customary up to this day. In the form of a roll the parchment seems to have been used in David's time. (Comp. Ps. xi. 7; Jer. xxxvi. 14 sq.; Ezek. ii. 9, 10; Zech. v. 1-4.)

Writing utensils for hard materials were iron instruments, styles, and chisel (Job xix. 24; Ps. xlv. 1; Jer. viii. 6, xvii. 1; Isa. viii. 1); for parchment or papyrus, a pen of reed, and ink, was used (3 John 13; 3 Macc. iv. 20). A penknife is mentioned, Jer. xxxvi. 23; and the inkhorn, in Ezek. ix. 2.

Lit. — WUTTKE: Entstehung und Beschaffenheit des philos.-hebr. Alphabetes, in Zeitschrift für die orient. Gesch. xi. 78; EWALD: Lehrbuch der hebr. Sprache (6th ed.); GESENSIUS: art. "Paläographie," in Ersch and Gruber's Enzyklopädie; the same: Geographie der Sprache, [RENAIN: Histoire générale des langues sémitiques (Paris, 1858); LEPRIUS: Standard Alphabet for reducing Uncriniten Languages and Foreign Graphic Systems (2d ed., London and Berlin, 1868)]; DE VOUGÉ: Mélanges d'archéologie orientale, l'alphabet araméen et l'alphabet hébraique (Paris, 1868); LÖW: Graphische Requisiten u. Erzeugnisse bei den Juden, Leipzig, 1870; LENORMANT: Essai sur la propagation de l'alphabet philénique dans l'ancien monde (Paris, 1871); and so did archment afterwards, on which, no doubt, the original form of the Pentateuch was written in the antique form of a roll, with ink (Num. v. 23). According to Josephus (Ant. xii. 2, 10; Ps. cxxi. 8), parchment was used for writing law; and this is customary up to this day. In the form of a roll the parchment seems to have been used in David's time. (Comp. Ps. xi. 7; Jer. xxxvi. 14 sq.; Ezek. ii. 9, 10; Zech. v. 1-4.)

WULFRAM, St., b. at Milly in 650; d. in the monastery of Fontenelle, according to some in 683, according to others in 720 or 740. He was a monk in Fontenelle, and afterwards bishop of Sens. He was a well-known writer on subjects among the Frisians, of which a fanciful report, highly ornamented with legendary fictions, is found in Act. Sanct., March 20.

WÜRTEMBERG, The Kingdom of, has, according to the census of 1880, a population of 1,971,255 souls, of whom 1,361,412 are Protestants, 590,405 Roman Catholics, 13,326 Jews, etc. The constitution of the Protestant Church is consis-

E. Kingdon, Karl Friedrich Adolf, b. at Breslau, Nov. 10, 1819; d. at Halle, April 12, 1870. He studied theology in his native city, and was appointed professor at Berlin in 1854, and at Halle in 1861. His principal work is his Handbuch der christlichen Sittenlehre, Leipzig, 1860—62; 3d ed., 1874—75; Eng. trans. by Professor John P. La croix, New York, 1873, 2 vols. He also wroteDie Geschichte des Heidenthums, 1851—53, and Der Deutsche Volksaberglaube der Gegenwart, 1865; 2d ed., 1866. As a journalist and politician his motto was, "A Christian cannot be a democrat, nor can a democrat be a Christian."

Wylie, Samuel Brown, D.D., LL.D., Reformed Presbyterian; b. at Moylarg, County Antrim, Ireland, May 21, 1773; d. in Philadelphia, Oct. 13, 1852. He was graduated at the university of Glasgow, 1797; emigrated to America the same year; was tutor in the University of Pennsylvania; was ordained 1800; and from 1801 to 1852 he was pastor of the First Reformed Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia. During this time he was likewise professor in the Philadelphia theological seminary of his denomination (1809—51), of ancient languages in the University of Penn-at Basel, where he had Leo Judæ and Zwingli among his hearers; and was in 1507 made pastor in his native city. He preached openly against indulgences, the mass, the celibacy of priests, etc., and was in reality the first of the Swiss Reformers.

But when, in 1524, he married, he was deposed; and, though a large portion of the inhabitants sided with him, he did not succeed in establishing the Reformation in Biel. See HALLER: Geschicht d. prot. Ref. d. Kantons Bern, Luzern, 1836.
XIMENES DE CISNEROS.

XIMENES DE CISNEROS, Francisco, b. at Torrelaguna in Castile, in 1436; d. at Ros, Nov. 8, 1517. He belonged to a family of old nobility, but without wealth or any other distinction. He was educated at Alcala; studied at Salamanca; took holy orders; visited Rome, and returned in 1473 with an expectative letter from the Pope on the archpriestship of Uzeda. The archbishop of Toledo felt provoked at the Pope’s arrogance in giving away benefices in his diocese; and, as Ximenes would not yield his claim, he locked him up in a convent prison, and held him there for six years. Having been released, Ximenes was in 1480 appointed vicar-general to the bishop of Siguenza, and in that position he gave evidences of an administrative talent of the highest order. But he suddenly broke off the brilliant career which opened before him, and entered the Franciscan monastery of San Juan de los Reyes in Toledo. The austerity of his ascetic practices, and the fervor of his preachings, soon made him a great name in this new field; but again he astonished the world by being appointed confessor to Queen Isabella. The position was of great political importance, as the queen used to confer with her confessors, not only on her private affairs, but also on public business; and Ximenes so completely gained the confidence of the queen, that in 1495 she made him archbishop of Toledo, and shortly after, also grand-inquisitor of Spain. The archbishopric of Toledo was probably, next to the papacy, the richest and most influential position in the church. Ximenes, however, continued to live like a monk; and, even when a bull from Rome ordered him to keep up a certain style answering to the dignity of his position, he continued in secret his ascetic practices, wearing the hair-shirt under his gorgeous robe, and sleeping on a wooden board. Though the relation between him and King Ferdinand had been very cool while Isabella lived, he did not lose his influence after her death: on the contrary, by his will the king made him regent of Spain during the minority of his heir, Charles V.; and Ximenes had the good fortune to die just as Charles landed in Asturia, probably without learning that his deposition was the first act of the king.

Ximenes was an ultramontanist and a fanatic. He opposed with all his might the translation of the Bible into the vernacular tongue, as a profession and a dangerous measure; since common people (vulgus) respect only what they do not understand, while they despise any thing which becomes easily accessible to them. He also opposed the introduction of publicity in the transactions of the Inquisition. And when the newly converted Jews and Moors offered King Ferdinand, who was always in need of money, a considerable sum for the introduction of such a measure, Ximenes paid the king a still larger sum out of his own pocket in order to prevent the establishment of the reform. Against the conquered Moors he advocated the harshest measures, and it was he who persuaded the king and queen to give them the choice between conversion and banishment. On the other hand, he was perfectly sincere. He carried out the necessary reform of the Franciscan order in Spain, in spite of the interference of the general of the order and the Pope himself, and though more than one thousand monks emigrated in order to escape the severe discipline which he established. For the promotion of education and learning he did very much, though he was not himself a scholar. He founded the university of Alcala. There had for more than two centuries been a flourishing school in the place, which he extended into a complete university, with forty-two professors,—six in theology proper, six in canon law, four in medicine, one in anatomy, one in surgery, eight in philosophy, one in moral philosophy, one in mathematics, four in Greek and Hebrew languages, four in rhetoric, and six in grammar. The erection of the many new and splendid buildings began in 1498, and was completed in 1508. Another magnificent undertaking of his was the publication of the Complutensian Polyglot (see Polyglot). But it was chiefly as a statesman that he earned his great fame. He even won the laurels of a general. In 1509, in his seventy-second year, he equipped at his own expense a brilliant armament, consisting of ten thousand foot, four thousand horse, and a fleet; crossed in person the Mediterranean; conquered Oran; and made forever an end of the Moorish piracy on the southern and south-eastern coasts of Spain.

LIT.—The principal source of his life is Alvaro Gomez de Castro: De rebus gestibus F. X., Alcala, 1659. Other biographies have been written in Spanish, by Robles (1604) and Quintanilla (1883); in French, by Baudrier (1836), Marsollier (1884), Flechier (1894), and Richard (1704); in German, by Heffele (1844, translated into English by Dalton, 1860) and Ulrich (1888); in English, by Barrett (1813).
YALE UNIVERSITY, in New Haven, Conn., owes its origin to the action of a few Congregational ministers, principally of the old New-Haven Colony, who met by agreement in 1700, and gave books in a formal way "for founding a college." The action of these ministers, however, at this time, was only the carrying into execution of a plan which had been conceived by the first settlers of New Haven more than sixty years before,—probably before they had left England, their native land. A charter was obtained from the General Court of Connecticut, Oct. 9, 1701, and the location of the college was fixed temporarily at Saybrook. And Samuel Parsons was elected rector; and in March, 1702, instruction was begun. The first Commencement was held at Saybrook, Sept. 13, 1702. As the college grew in importance, it began to be apparent that it would be worth something as a prize; and an attempt was made to capture it, and remove it to Wethersfield. A great struggle ensued, in which New Haven was at last successful. In 1716 the college was permanently established in the town which was its natural home, and where it had been the object of the hopes and efforts of successive generations. Just at this time, a considerable gift having been received from Elihu Yale of London, governor of the East India Company, a son of one of the original colonists, the trustees were enabled to erect a college building, to which, in 1718, at the first public commencement held in New Haven, they gave the name of their benefactor,—a name which was soon transferred to the institution itself.

According to the original charter of 1701, the government of the college was placed in the hands of a rector and ten fellows, all of whom were ministers. A new charter, more ample in its provisions, was obtained in 1745, in which the presiding officer was styled the president. In 1792, in consideration of pecuniary assistance received from the State, the trustees voted that the governor, lieutenant-governor, and the six senior assistants (in 1818 called senators), should be added to their number. In 1866 the Legislature relinquished the privilege of being represented in the corporation by the six senators in favor of as many graduates, to be elected by their fellow-graduates. The arrangement for the terms of office of these members was so made, that there is every year an election of one graduate, who is to serve six years. All the departments of the college are under the control of this corporation, whose legal title is the "President and Fellows of Yale College in New Haven." The president is ex officio the head of each department, but each is practically independent of the others in the management of its internal affairs. The corporation alone has the power to give degrees, which are conferred on candidates, only after passing a satisfactory examination.

The college is thought to have been remarkably fortunate in its presidents, whose terms of office have been as follows: Abraham Pierson, 1701-07; Samuel Andrew, 1707-19; Timothy Cutler, 1719-22; Elisha Williams, 1725-39; Thomas Clap, 1739-66; Naftali Daggett, 1766-77; Ezra Stiles, 1777-95; Timothy Dwight, 1795-1817; Jeremiah Day, 1817-46; Theodore Dwight Woolsey, 1846-71; Noah Porter, 1871-.

At first there was no permanent instructor besides the rector, who was assisted by tutors temporarily employed. In 1755 (public worship having been shortly before commenced on the college ground, and a church established) a professor of divinity was appointed, who was to be college pastor; and not long after, in 1771, a professor of mathematics, and the course occupies three years was added to the corps of instructors. At the end of the first hundred years of the history of the college, its progress had been all that its founders could have anticipated. There had been a steady increase in the number of students and a marked enlargement in the range of studies required. But after 1860, under the presidency of the Rev. Timothy Dwight, a rapid development of the college began. Through the influence of Dr. Dwight, three recent graduates of the college—Jeremiah Day, Benjamin Silliman, and James L. Kingsley—were appointed professors. These three men, for half a century,—first as his co-adjuctors, and after his death as colleagues,—laborcd together with great zeal and unbroken harmony to advance the interests of learning in the institution. As the prosperity of the country advanced, not only was the number of professors enlarged, but new departments were organized, as follows; medicine in 1812, theology in 1822, law in 1824, philosophy and the arts in 1847, the fine arts in 1884, and a department of original research in astronomy in 1871. At last, in 1871, the corporation, recognizing that the college already comprised all the courses of instruction which are usually found in an institution of the highest rank, organized the university with the departments of theology, medicine, law, and philosophy, and the arts; which last was made to consist of four sections, viz., (1) for graduates, (2) for academical undergraduates, (3) for undergraduates of the Sheffield Scientific School, (4) for students of the fine arts; each section having a separate organization.

In the section for graduates, or those who have already taken a bachelor's degree, there are forty-two instructors, and the course of instruction occupies two years. In the section for academical undergraduates there are thirty-one instructors, and the instruction occupies four years. The Sheffield Scientific School is devoted especially to instruction in the mathematical, physical, and natural sciences. The school was established in 1847; but in 1890, through the liberality of Mr. Joseph E. Sheffield, it was re-organized, and received his name. There are twenty-seven instructors, and the course occupies three years. The Street School of the Fine Arts has for its end the cultivation and promotion of the arts of design; viz., painting, sculpture, and architecture, thorough practice, and criticism. The course occupies three years, and is open to persons of both sexes.
YALE UNIVERSITY.

2561

YATES.

The Theological School, as a distinct department, was established in 1822; though, from the origin of the college, the instruction had been specially arranged to favor the education of ministers. But from the establishment of the chair of divinity in 1755, and probably from a much earlier period, classes of graduates had been in the habit of continuing their residence for the purpose of pursuing theological studies; so that, out of the large number of the alumni who had entered the ministry during the hundred years before 1822, a considerable portion had been trained for their duties at the college. Among these may be mentioned Jonathan Edwards of Northampton, Samuel Hopkins of Newport, Nathaniel Emmons of Franklin, Joseph Bellamy of Bethlehem, Timothy Dwight of New Haven, Joseph Buckminster of Portsmouth, John Smalley, Stephen West, Abel Backus, Moses Stuart, Nathaniel W. Taylor, Lyman Beecher, Eleazer T. Fitch, Bennet Tyler, Edward Dorr Griffin, and Edward Robinson. The faculty consisted of Nathaniel V. Taylor, Eleazer T. Fitch, and Josiah W. Gibbs. Chauncey A. Goodrich was subsequently added to their number. The faculty at present consists of the president of the university, a professor of Hebrew literature and biblical theology, a professor of systematic theology, a professor of homiletics and the pastoral charge, a professor of ecclesiastical history, and a professor of sacred literature and New-Testament Greek. There are, besides, eight special lecturers and instructors. Students of every Christian denomination, in case they are possessed of the required qualifications, are admitted. The course of instruction occupies three years; but, at the close of the studies of the second year, students may be licensed to preach. In one of the theological buildings is a library of three thousand volumes in various languages, open several hours each day, which takes the place of a well-selected private library for the students in this department. The library was the property of a gentleman who died leaving a bequest for the establishment of a library at the university, which was collected by Dr. Lowell Mason, was, after his death, presented to the university. There is in this department no charge for instruction, room-rent, or the use of the library. Students whose circumstances require it receive a hundred dollars a year from the income of scholarships, and other funds. In special cases there is additional aid. The Hooker Graduate scholarship, with an annual income of seven hundred dollars for two years after graduation, was established in 1876; and there is another graduate scholarship, yielding five hundred dollars for one year. The term begins in September, and the session continues for eight months, without vacation, to near the close of May. The degree of bachelor of divinity is conferred at the end of the course upon those who pass the required examination. Students in this department have the special advantage of being allowed to attend the lectures in the other departments of the university. At the close of the academic year, students may be licensed to preach. In one course of instruction for two years is also arranged for graduates, or those who have already completed a three-year's course in this or any other theological school.

The faculty of the department of medicine consists of eight professors and ten special lecturers and instructors. The system of instruction is arranged in a graded course for three full years. The faculty of the department of law consists of six professors and eight special lecturers and instructors. The course occupies two years. There is also a graduate course of two additional years, for those who have already taken the degree of bachelor of laws. The Peabody Museum of Natural History was endowed in 1806 by Mr. George Peabody of London, for the preservation of the valuable collection already owned by the college, and of those which may be made hereafter, in the departments of zoology, geology, mineralogy, paleontology, and ethnology. In 1871 the department of astronomy was enlarged in its organization, when, to the former facilities for instruction in this science, were added ample means of original investigation and research. At present there is a corps of eight astronomers connected with the observatory.

According to the report of the treasurer in 1882, the invested funds of the university were $1,833,983.47. The annual income from tuition was $138,815.43. The number of the volumes in the several libraries which are open to students is about 135,000. Over 13,000 degrees have been conferred by the corporation, of which about 1,000 have been pro honore causa. There have been, besides, several thousand students in the academical department of the university who received no degree. The students of the law department before 1843, and of the theological department before 1867, are not included in the catalogue of the alumni, as, till those years, degrees were not conferred in law or theology. About 2,200 of the graduates of the academical department have been ordained as ministers.

The number of students in attendance in 1882-83 was as follows; department of theology, 106; department of medicine, 30; department of law, 85; department of philosophy and the arts (graduate instruction, 41; undergraduate academical department, 611; Sheffield Scientific School, 206; School of the Fine Arts, 40), 808; deduct for names inserted twice, 23. Total, 1,096.

Yates, William, D.D., English Baptist missionary; b. at Loughborough, Leicestershire, Dec. 16, 1792; d. on the Red Sea, July 3, 1845. He went to India in 1815, and settled at Serampore, where he devoted himself to literary work.
and produced a translation of the entire Bible into Bengalee, in continuation of Carey's (d. 1834) labors, a translation of the New Testament into Hindee and Hindostanee, besides large parts of the Bible into Sanscrit. He prepared, also, textbooks,—A Grammar of the Sanscrit Language on a New Plan, Calcutta, 1820, 2d ed., 1845; Sanscrit Vocabulary, 1820; Introduction to the Hindostanee Language, in three parts, 1827, new ed., 1843, printed in Roman characters, 1836; Dictionary, Hindostani and English, 1899; and (posthumous) Introduction to the Bengali Language, ed. J. Wenger, 1847, 2 vols. He visited England and the United States in 1827—29, and was on his second visit home when he died. See James Hoby: Memoir of William Yates, London, 1817.

YEAR, The Church. does not rest upon a commandment of the New Testament, but was the gradual product of the needs of the church. The periods of its development can be readily traced. In the apostolic age, the Jewish Christians seem to have strictly followed the Jewish cycle of feasts; while the Gentile Christians at first seem to have observed no yearly church festivals. In the middle of the second century the two such festivals meet us,—the Paschal and Pentecostal festivals. The former at first commemorated the passion of our Lord (see Paschal Controversies, Easter), and was prolonged to a period of six days, marked by solemnity and fasting. Pentecost commemorated the resurrection and ascension of Christ and the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, comprehended fifty days, and was a period of joyousness, in which there was no fasting, or kneeling in prayer. The second period in the formation of the church year is marked by the elevation of Ascension Day to the rank of a distinct festival, the closer association of the day of resurrection, Easter, with the Christian Passover, Good Friday, and the addition of the festival of Christ's birth,—Christmas,—and Epiphany. There were then three festival cycles,—Christmas, Easter, and Pentecost; the former two being preceded by preparatory periods,—Quadragesima (forty days) and Advent. The ancient church celebrated the anniversaries of the deaths of martyrs as local festivals. The veneration of martyrs was accompanied by the feeling that their intercession made prayer effective. History, however, in this direction, is vitiated by myths. The oldest festivals of Mary, Annunciation, and Purification, were at first festivals of Christ, and were transferred to Mary at a later period, when her worship became prevalent. The Roman-Catholic Church assigns a saint to every day of the year. The culmination and conclusion of its system of festivals is marked by Corpus Christi, the feast of transubstantiation.

Although the church year would properly begin with the first Sunday in Advent, it was a long time before the church came to this conclusion. The most confusing differences occur late in the middle ages. The older church teachers, following the Jewish mode of reckoning, regarded the Easter month as the first month of the year; and in the West it was made to begin with March. Dionysius Exiguus began the year with January; but, in the middle ages, Germany, Italy, and other lands dated it from Dec. 25; or, as in Florence and Pisa down to 1749, from March 25. The Greek Church begins its year with Sept. 1. The custom of dating the church year from the first Sunday in Advent was first in vogue among the Nestorians. All the Reformers, Luther included, at first questioned whether it was not best to return to the simplicity of the apostolic age in regard to church festivals. The Reformed churches never had any sympathy for the church year. In Calvin's time Sunday only was observed at Geneva. Good Friday was not introduced there till 1529. In other lands Christmas was the only church festival observed on a week day. [The Puritans gave up even Christmas: and until very recently it was not observed at all in any of the Congregational churches of New England, or the Presbyterian churches of Scotland and the United States, as a religious festival. The Puritans, however, appointed and observed, from time to time, special fast and thanksgiving days.] The Lutheran Church preserved not only Christmas and Easter, but the days for each of the twelve apostles, Annunciation Day, Purification Day, and the festival of the Archangels in each of the twelve months. Some of these were either not observed, or is gradually going out of vogue. [The Church of England has retained the church year of the Catholic Church, and preserves the names of many of the saints in her Prayer-Book. The Episcopal Church of the United States, however, has discarded the most of these.] Compare the art. Calendar, and the special articles Easter, Advent, etc. See Gretch: De Festa Christian; Lisco: D. chrishlichen Kirchenjahr, Berlin, 1840; Straus: D. evang. Kirchenjahr in seinem Zusammenhang, etc., Berlin, 1850; Bohertag: D. evangelische Kirchenjahr, Breslau, 1853.

YEAR, Hebrew. I. THE YEARS.—The Hebrew word for year, שנה, means "repetition,"—that which runs a circuit. The word countenances the idea that the Hebrews were acquainted with the solar year, which was the year of the Egyptians, who divided it into twelve months of thirty days each, and Advent. The ancient church celebrated the anniversaries of the deaths of martyrs as local festivals. The veneration of martyrs was accompanied by the feeling that their intercession made prayer effective. History, however, in this direction, is vitiated by myths. The oldest festivals of Mary, Annunciation, and Purification, were at first festivals of Christ, and were transferred to Mary at a later period, when her worship became prevalent. The Roman-Catholic Church assigns a saint to every day of the year. The culmination and conclusion of its system of festivals is marked by Corpus Christi, the feast of transubstantiation.

Although the church year would properly begin with the first Sunday in Advent, it was a long time before the church came to this conclusion. The most confusing differences occur late in the middle ages. The older church teachers, following the Jewish mode of reckoning, regarded the Easter month as the first month of the year; and in the West it was made to begin with March. Dionysius Exiguus began the year with January; but, in the middle ages, Germany, Italy, and other lands dated it from Dec. 25; or, as in Florence and Pisa down to 1749, from March 25. The Greek Church begins its year with Sept. 1. The custom of dating the church year from the first Sunday in Advent was first in vogue among the Nestorians. All the Reformers, Luther included, at first questioned whether it was not best to return to the simplicity of the apostolic age in regard to church festivals. The Reformed churches never had any sympathy for the church year. In Calvin's time Sunday only was observed at Geneva. Good Friday was not introduced there till 1529. In other lands Christmas was the only church festival observed on a week day. [The Puritans gave up even Christmas: and until very recently it was not observed at all in any of the Congregational churches of New England, or the Presbyterian churches of Scotland and the United States, as a religious festival. The Puritans, however, appointed and observed, from time to time, special fast and thanksgiving days.] The Lutheran Church preserved not only Christmas and Easter, but the days for each of the twelve apostles, Annunciation Day, Purification Day, and the festival of the Archangels in each of the twelve months. Some of these were either not observed, or is gradually going out of vogue. [The Church of England has retained the church year of the Catholic Church, and preserves the names of many of the saints in her Prayer-Book. The Episcopal Church of the United States, however, has discarded the most of these.] Compare the art. Calendar, and the special articles Easter, Advent, etc. See Gretch: De Festa Christian; Lisco: D. chrishlichen Kirchenjahr, Berlin, 1840; Straus: D. evang. Kirchenjahr in seinem Zusammenhang, etc., Berlin, 1850; Bohertag: D. evangelische Kirchenjahr, Breslau, 1853.

YEAR, Hebrew. I. THE YEARS.—The Hebrew word for year, שנה, means "repetition,"—that which runs a circuit. The word countenances the idea that the Hebrews were acquainted with the solar year, which was the year of the Egyptians, who divided it into twelve months of thirty days each, and Advent. The ancient church celebrated the anniversaries of the deaths of martyrs as local festivals. The veneration of martyrs was accompanied by the feeling that their intercession made prayer effective. History, however, in this direction, is vitiated by myths. The oldest festivals of Mary, Annunciation, and Purification, were at first festivals of Christ, and were transferred to Mary at a later period, when her worship became prevalent. The Roman-Catholic Church assigns a saint to every day of the year. The culmination and conclusion of its system of festivals is marked by Corpus Christi, the feast of transubstantiation.

Although the church year would properly begin with the first Sunday in Advent, it was a long time before the church came to this conclusion. The most confusing differences occur late in the middle ages. The older church teachers, following the Jewish mode of reckoning, regarded the Easter month as the first month of the year; and in the West it was made to begin with March. Dionysius Exiguus began the year with January; but, in the middle ages, Germany, Italy, and other lands dated it from Dec. 25; or, as in Florence and Pisa down to 1749, from March 25. The Greek Church begins its year with Sept. 1. The custom of dating the church year from the first Sunday in Advent was first in vogue among the Nestorians. All the Reformers, Luther included, at first questioned whether it was not best to return to the simplicity of the apostolic age in regard to church festivals. The Reformed churches never had any sympathy for the church year. In Calvin's time Sunday only was observed at Geneva. Good Friday was not introduced there till 1529. In other lands Christmas was the only church festival observed on a week day. [The Puritans gave up even Christmas: and until very recently it was not observed at all in any of the Congregational churches of New England, or the Presbyterian churches of Scotland and the United States, as a religious festival. The Puritans, however, appointed and observed, from time to time, special fast and thanksgiving days.] The Lutheran Church preserved not only Christmas and Easter, but the days for each of the twelve apostles, Annunciation Day, Purification Day, and the festival of the Archangels in each of the twelve months. Some of these were either not observed, or is gradually going out of vogue. [The Church of England has retained the church year of the Catholic Church, and preserves the names of many of the saints in her Prayer-Book. The Episcopal Church of the United States, however, has discarded the most of these.] Compare the art. Calendar, and the special articles Easter, Advent, etc. See Gretch: De Festa Christian; Lisco: D. chrishlichen Kirchenjahr, Berlin, 1840; Straus: D. evang. Kirchenjahr in seinem Zusammenhang, etc., Berlin, 1850; Bohertag: D. evangelische Kirchenjahr, Breslau, 1853.
The ancient Hebrews corrected the discrepancy between the lunar year and the solar by the insertion every two or three years of a month before the last month of the year, except in the sabbatical year. It is true that there is no mention in the pre-exilic Scriptures of a year with thirteen months; but since, in this period, there was such a year among the Babylonians, Assyrians, and the Greeks, the omission may be merely accidental. In later times the sanhedrin determined in the month Adar, according to the state of vegetation, whether a month should be intercalated or not. In the fourth Christian century the Jews adopted the Greek astronomer Menon's 19-year cycle, according to which, in every nineteen years there were seven leap-years,—the 3d, 6th, 8th, 11th, 14th, 17th, 19th. There were two important legal enactments to be allowed for: the Feast of Tabernacles must not end before the autumn equinox, and the full moon of Passover must not precede the spring equinox.

II. The Months.—These were, giving them their pre- and post-exilic names, as follows.

1. Abib (Exod. xii. 2; cf. xl. 2, 17; Lev. xxiii. 5; Num. ix. 1, xxviii. 16, xxix. 3). The "ploughing" month, or Nisan, the month of the "breaking-forth." The year was thus dated from spring, because then the exodus took place; but the Feast of the New Moon was in the seventh month.

2. Zif (1 Kings vi. 1). The "bloom" month, or Iyyar. 3. Sivan (Ezr. ii. 1; Bar. ii. 16).

4. Tammuz, the beginning of the summer solstice, the month of mourning for "Tammuz"—Adonis. 5. Ab (The names of 4 and 5 do not occur in the Scriptures.) 6. Elul (Neh. vi. 15). 7. Ethanim (1 Kings vii. 2), the "month of the overflowing waters," or Tishri.

8. Bul (1 Kings vi. 38), the "rain" or "fruit" month, and Marhashvan, abridged to Heshvan.

12. Adar (Ezr. vi. 15; Esth. iii. 7, 13, viii. 12). There are no known pre-exilic names for the last four months, and the origin of this post-exilic nomenclature is in dispute; but probably it is derived from Babylonia. The names are found on Aramean, Syrian, and Babylonian inscriptions, and names closely similar upon the Nineveh tablet. Before, as well as after the exile, it was customary to give the number rather than the name of the month (e.g., Ez. iii. 1, 6, 8; Hag. i. 1, 15), although sometimes both are given (Zech. i. 7; Esth. ii. 16).

III. The Civil and Ecclesiastical Years.—Besides the ecclesiastical, there was apparently, from the earliest times, a civil year, which began in the autumn. The reasons for believing the existence and antiquity of this state of things are:

1. In Exod. xxiii. 16 and xxiv. 22 the Feast of Ingathering is said to have been "in the end of the year." 2. The sabbath- and jubilee-year began upon the tenth day of the seventh month, according to Lev. xxv. 4, 9 sq. This puts the Feast of Tabernacles in the actual beginning of the civil year. 3. The flood began in Bul, the second month, which was in autumn, according to tradition. 4. By the later Jews the years reckoned from the creation of the world, began in autumn. 5. The day of the new moon in the seventh month was by the later Jews celebrated as New-Year's Day.

(6) The Talmud expressly recognizes two beginnings to the year (Rosh hash., i.). (7) Josephus (Antiq., i. iii. 3) says, "Moses appointed Nisan (i.e., Xanthikos) as the first month of their religious festivals, because upon it he had led the Hebrews out of Egypt . . . but he preserved the original order of the months as to . . . ordinary affairs." (8) The Targum to 1 Kings viii. 2 says that the ancients called Tishri the first month.

IV. The Seasons. — Properly speaking, there are only two seasons in the Holy Land,—summer and winter. The former is characterized by cloudless heavens, heavy dews at night (Strack xvii. 16, xliii. 22), great heat by day, and cool evenings and nights (Gen. xxx. 40; Jer. xxxvi. 30). The winter begins with the sowing-time, and lasts until the later rains of March. It is a period of rain and snow. Reference is made in the Bible to various seasons,—barley-harvest, wine-making, etc.,—as was to be expected in the records of an agricultural people.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>TABLE OF HEBREW MONTHS.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>CIVIL</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>VII.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>VIII.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IX.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>X.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>XI.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>XII.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>II.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>III.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IV.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>V.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>VI.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

YEOMANS, Edward Dorr, D.D., Presbyterian divine; b. at North Adams, Mass., Sept. 27, 1829; d. at Orange, N.J., Aug. 26, 1868. He entered Lafayette College, Pennsylvania, under the presidency of his father, and passed through the junior year, then continued academic and theological studies under his father's direction until his licensure by the presbytery of Northumberland, Penn., April 21, 1847. He was stated supply at New Columbia, Penn., from 1848 to 1854; pastor at Warrior Run, Penn., Nov. 29, 1854 (the date of his ordination), until November, 1858; at Trenton, N.J., until May, 1863; at Rochester, N.Y., until July 7, 1867, when he was installed over the Central Church, Orange, N.J., and was pastor there at his death. In 1864 he received the degree of D.D. from the College of New Jersey. Dr. Yeomans received high praise for his thoroughly idiomatic and elegant translation of Dr. Schaff's History of the Christian Church (New York, 1853) and the first two volumes of his History of the Christian Church, 1858 and 1867. He prepared a book of worship, and collection of hymns, and began the translation of Lange's Commentary on John, but was obliged by failing health to desist in the summer of 1868. See Lange on John, p. xii.

YORK (Eboracum), the capital of Yorkshire, Eng., the seat of an archbishopric, situated on both sides of the river Ouse, a hundred and seventy-two miles north-north-west of London. It was the capital of the old kingdom of Northumbria, and the seat of its bishops, 625. Its first minister was built of wood by Edwin of Northumbria, 627, who also began one in stone before 633. The building was completed in 642, repaired in 669, burnt April 23, 741, and rebuilt 767-780. Since then, it has been burnt several times,—wholly in 1069, partly in Feb. 2, 1829, and May 30, 1840. The present building dates its beginning from the twelfth century, but was not consecrated until July 3, 1472.

"It is in the form of a cross, with a central square tower two hundred and thirteen feet high, and two other towers, each a hundred and ninety-six feet high, flanking the west front, which is highly ornamented. The extreme length is five hundred and twenty-four feet; and the extreme breadth across the transepts, two hundred and forty-nine feet. The east window is seventy-eight feet high, and thirty-two feet wide, and filled with stained glass representing about two hundred historical events. An elaborate screen contains statues of all the kings of England from William I. to Henry VI.; and upon this screen is the organ, one of the finest in the kingdom. The cathedral has a peal of twelve bells, one of which weighs eleven tons and a half, and is the largest in Great Britain."

The archbishop's palace, now the library of the dean and chapter, dates from the twelfth century, and is on the north side of the cathedral. The archbishop now lives at Bishopthorpe, near York. See the Diocesan History of York by Canon George Ormsby, London, [1883]...

YOUNG, Brigham. See Mormons, p. 1577.

YOUNG, Edward, b. at Upham, Hampshire, Dec. 15, 1684; d. at Welwyn, Hertfordshire, April 12, 1765; was educated at Winchester and at Corpus Christi, Oxford; fellow of All Souls; LL.D. there 1719; defeated as a candidate for Parliament; ordained, 1727; rector of Welwyn, 1730. He wrote three tragedies, which were acted at Drury Lane, 1719, etc.; The Centaur not Fabulous, A Vindication of Providence, and letters, essays, etc.; a poem on Resignation, with others; and the Night Thoughts, 1742-46, once extremely popular, and still famous. F. M. BIRD.

YOUNG, Patrick (Patricius Junius), Scotch scholar; b. at Seaton, East Lothian, Aug. 29, 1584; d. at Bromfield, Essex, Eng., Sept. 7, 1652. He was educated at the university of St. Andrews, 1603; M.A. at Oxford, 1605; entered holy orders; became librarian to James I. of England, 1620; and afterwards rector of Hayes and of Llanine, but retired to Bromfield, 1649. His reputation was upon his Commentary of St. Romanus, Oxford, 1633; 2d ed., 1637. Walton published, in sixth volume of his Polyglot, Young's Annotationes on the Codex Alexandrinus.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS. These are undenominational societies of young men, organized upon an evangelical basis, for the promotion of the mental, moral, social, and physical welfare of young men. Their actire, voting membership is confined to Christian young men; but large numbers of unconverted young men, without regard to denominational affiliations, become associate members for the sake of social and educational privileges. The work of the associations is carried on through the personal efforts of Christian young men themselves, laboring individually in the sphere of their daily calling, and collectively in connection with committees having charge of the reading-rooms, libraries, gymnasiums, evening educational classes, lecture-courses, prayer-meetings, and Bible-clubs for young men exclusively, board-house and employment bureaus, visitation of sick young men, etc. The associations also, as opportunity offers, hold undenominational religious services in neglected neighborhoods, in public institutions, and in the open air.

The parent English-speaking association was organized at London, by George Williams, June 6, 1844. Societies formed in Germany earlier than this date have since come into affiliation with the English-speaking associations and those of other lands. The society now bearing the name of the Young Men's Christian Association in Glasgow, Scotland, claims an origin, under a different name, prior to that of London. But the brotherhood bearing the distinctive title of the Young Men's Christian Association, which has developed into provincial, state, national, and international organization, can be traced in its origin and name distinctly to the London association, and cannot be traced behind it. And the societies claiming priority under different names belonged, rather, to the multitude of societies of Christian young men which had been formed in every period of the Christian Church, but which have not developed into the permanent and varied organization just referred to. The Montreal Association was organized Dec. 9, 1851; and that of Boston, Dec. 29, 1851. The first International Convention of the United States and British Provinces met in Buffalo, June 7, 1854. The first World's Conference convened in Paris, Aug. 19, 1855. Here the following test of membership, since known as the "Paris Basis," was adopted:—

"The Young Men's Christian Associations seek to unite those young men, who, regarding Jesus Christ as their God and Saviour, according to the Holy Scriptures, desire to be his disciples in their doctrine and in their life, and to associate their efforts for the extension of his kingdom among young men."

In April, 1860, the associations of North America had about twenty-five thousand members. At the breaking-out of the civil war, many members of the associations entered the armies on both sides, and the associations naturally followed them with efforts for their welfare and that of their comrades. At the instance of the New-York Association, a special convention was called, Nov. 14, 1861, to consider the relations of the associations to the army. This resulted in the organization of the United-States Christian Commission (q.v.); and during the civil war the energies of the associations were largely absorbed in army-work. With the close of the war, a new season of growth and activity began. In 1868 the executive committee of the convention, which had been located from year to year in different cities, was located for a term of years at New-York City (where the working quorum has been continued ever since), and has become known and incorporated as the "International Committee." The convention which met in Detroit, June 24, 1868, adopted the following test and plan of management of all their affairs in the hands of those who profess to love, and publicly avow their faith in Jesus, the Redeemer, as divine, and who testify their faith by becoming and remaining members of churches held to be evangelical; and that such persons, and none others, should be allowed to vote, or hold office."

At the Portland convention, July 14, 1869, the word "evangelical" was thus defined:—

"We hold those churches to be evangelical, which, maintaining the Scriptures to be the only infallible rule of faith and practice, do believe in the Lord Jesus Christ (the only-begotten of the Father, King of kings, and Lord of lords, in whom dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily, and who was made sin for us, though knowing no sin, bearing our sins in his own body on the tree), as the only name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved from everlasting punishment."

All associations organized since the passage of the above resolution, in order to be entitled to representation in the International Convention, must limit their active, voting membership to members of evangelical churches. The formal adoption of this test by the American associations has secured for them the active sympathy of churches and Christian communities. It is only since this time, that the associations have received the real estate and buildings which are now valued at over $3,000,000, and which give the societies a fixed and in the communities where they are located. At the World's Conference of 1878, held in Geneva, Switzerland, forty-one American delegates were present; and, under their influence and leadership, a central international committee, on the plan of the American committee, was appointed, with a working quorum resident in Geneva. The number of associations in the world is now 2,671, with a total membership of about 200,000. They are grouped as follows: United States, 824; Dominion of Canada, 56; Bermuda, 1; South America, 1; England, 198; Scotland, 158; Ireland, 18; France, 65; Germany, 422; Holland, 450; Switzerland, 209; Sweden and Norway, 85; Belgium, 24; Denmark, 3; Spain and Portugal, 19; Italy, 20; Turkey, 25; Austria, 4; Russia, 7; Syria, 5; India, 2; China, 2; Japan, 2; Africa, 15; Australasia, 25; Hawaiian Kingdom, 1.

The affiliated associations of North America have organized a admirable system of intercommunication and mutual help. At the suggestion of the International Convention, and with the co-operation of its committee, about thirty State and Provincial conventions are now held annually. Each of these appoints an executive committee on the plan of the International Committee, whose territory is again subdivided into districts, with a district committee looking after the interests and work of each district. Twelve State and Provincial committees now employ, as general secretaries, whose efforts are essential in the development of this work; and the International Committee is seeking to extend it to the entire sisterhood of States. The expenditure of the international and State committees in 1882 was over $45,000; and 350 associations reported their annual current expenses as $400,370; 650 associations reported an aggregate membership of 82,375; 69 reported the ownership of buildings valued at $2,700,473; and 255 persons were employed as general secretaries or agents of the local associations and of the international and State committees. The number of these officers is increasing rapidly, having, in March, 1883, grown to over 300. The chief aim of the general secretary is to enlist and train volunteer workers, using his tact to discover the post of duty for which each member is specially fitted, and his personal influence to induce him to enter upon it. A gratifying result of this policy is the number of these officers is seen in the development of a larger and more efficient force of helpers on the various committees of the associations. Appropriate methods have been wrought out to meet with timely aid the stranger, the unemployed, the destitute, the sick, and the intemperate. The social and literary appliances have been made more effective for good, and the various religious meetings have been largely increased in number and usefulness.

The International Committee has nine secretaries. Some of these are occupied with the work of correspondence and supervision at the office of the committee, which is also a central bureau for securing and testing young men for the office of secretary in the local associations. Others are engaged in the extension and care of the work in the sections of the continent, destitute of associations, or where they are yet feeble. One secretary is employed in the central office for organizing railroad branches of the associations, and enlisting the railroad companies in their support. The contributions of the companies for this purpose now amount to $65,000 annually. Sixty railroad branches are in operation, and preliminary work is done at over twenty other points. Another secretary labors among college students. One hundred and eighty college institutions have been organized. Other secretaries are busy among German-speaking young men, commercial travellers, and colored young men in the Southern States. The magnitude of these several fields is shown by the fact, that there are, in the United States and Dominion of Canada, 1,000,000 railroad-men, 60,000 college students, 700,000 German-speaking young men, 100,000 commercial travellers, and 500,000 colored young men.

The association cause abroad is strongest in Great Britain, where a national organization has recently been effected. The associations of Germany are grouped together in several Bands. Like organizations exist in Holland and Sweden. The associations are few and feeble in Belgium, France, Russia, Spain, and Italy. Several vigorous organizations have been formed in the cities of Australasia.

The principal publications of the American associations are The Watchman, published in Chicago; the Year-Book and other publications, about fifty in number, of the International Committee, whose office is at 23d Street and Fourth Avenue, New York; and the annual reports of the State and Provincial conventions, and of the local associations.

RICHARD C. MORSE.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS. Upon the general plan of the Young Men’s Christian Associations, Women’s Christian Associations have been organized in various European and American cities. In America this movement dates from the year 1857, when the first association for distinctive work among young women was organized in New-York City. Ten years later a general interest in this subject resulted in the formation of associations in many of the large cities of the United States. There are now fifty-six associations in the United States and British Provinces, with an aggregate membership of about fifteen thousand. A great variety of work in behalf of young women has been undertaken. Many of the associations use their buildings as lodging or boarding houses for women, and a few have restaurants; but there is a growing tendency to emphasize such methods of educational, social, and religious work for women, as the reading-room, library, educational classes, social receptions, Bible-classes, and prayer-meetings. Employment offices are also a very general feature in this work. An effort to organize associations among young women in schools and colleges is meeting with considerable success.

The American associations hold a Biennial International Conference, which has convened six times. The last conference met in St. Louis, Mo., in October, 1881. Eighteen associations were represented by thirty-four delegates: written reports were received from many others. In twenty-two cities buildings have been secured for the purposes of the associations, amounting in value to $849,000. Monthly newspapers devoted to the interests of this specific work are issued by the associations of Cleveland, O., Philadelphia, Penn., Utica, N.Y., and Memphis, Tenn. Other publications of the society are the Conference Journal and reports of the associations.

J. P. CATTELL.

YULE, the old name for Christmas. Skeat connects the word with the Middle English youlen, yollen ("to cry out"), because it was a time of revelry. December was called the "former yule," and January the "latter yule."

YVONETUS, the supposed Dominican author of Tractatus de haeresi pauperum de Lugduno (printed in Thesaurus novus anecdotorum, edited by Martene and Durand, vol. v. pp. 1777 sqq.). Franz Pfeiffer has, however, conclusively demonstrated, that the author was the Franciscan David of Augsburg, who lived in the beginning of the thirteenth century. Manuscripts of this work are found in Stuttgart and Strassburg. It is one of the authorities in Waldensian history.

C. SCHMIDT
ZABARELLA, or DE ZABARELLIS, b. at Padua, 1539; d. at Constance, Sept. 26, 1417. He studied canon law at Bologna; lectured in his native city; was employed in various diplomatic missions; and was by Boniface IX. called to Rome to take part in the negotiations concerning the schism; but when his De schismatibus was printed at Basel, in 1565, it was put on the Index. Having returned to Padua as arch-prior by at the cathedral, he was again summoned to Rome by John XXIII.; made a cardinal, and archbishop of Florence, and sent as a legate to the Council of Constance, on whose transactions he exercised considerable influence. He was a prolific writer, but many of his works have never been printed. It is doubtful whether he is the author of Capita agendorum in concilio generali Constantiensis de formatione ecclesiae.

ZACHÆUS, Roman chief tax-gatherer in Jericho, and a convert of Christ (Luke xix. 2). He was a Jew, and his name is Hebrew מֶשֶׁר, "righteous" (Ez. ii. 9; Neh. vii. 14). In the Talmud there is mentioned a well-known Zacchæus of Jericho, whose son was the celebrated rabbi Yochanan ben Zachai. According to tradition, Zacchæus of the Gospels became bishop of Cassarea in Palestine by the ordination of Peter (Apost. Const., v. 46; cf. Clement: Homilies, iii. 63, 71, 72; Recognition, iii. 65 sqq.). A half-runned tower in Jericho, now used by a Turkish garrison, is pointed out as the house of Zacchæus. See the Bible dictionaries, s.v., and the commentaries upon Luke xix. 2–10.

ZACHARIA, Gotthilf Traugot, b. at Tauchardt, Thuringia, Nov. 17, 1729; d. at Kiel, Feb. 8, 1777. He studied theology at Kiel, Wittenberg, and Halle; and was appointed professor in 1760 at Bützow in Mecklenburg, in 1765 at Göttingen, and in 1775 at Kiel. His Bibliche Theologie (1771–75, 4 vols.) opened a new line of research. His paraphrases of the Epistles to the Romans, Corinthians, etc., were a great success. His stand-point was the supranaturalism of S. J. Baumgarten, though singularly modified by the rising rationalism.

ZACHARIAS, Pope 741–752; carried forward the aspirations of the Roman see with great adroitness and dignity in his relations with the Lombards, the Greeks, Boniface, and Pepin, whom he raised to the throne of the Merovingians. He translated the Dialogues of Gregory the Great into Greek. His lettersto Boniface are found in his Biblische Theologie—Miscellanea. In 1568 he was appointed professor at Heidelberg, where he lectured on his Summa, and gradually acquired a great reputation as one of the most learned theologians of his time. He took part with great energy in the controversy with the Antitrinitarians, and wrote De tribus Elohim (1572), De natura Dei, De operibus Dei, etc. When the Palatinate became Lutheran, he retired to Neustadt-an-der-Hardt, where he spent the rest of his life. A collected edition of his works appeared at Geneva, 1618, 3 vols. (Eng. trans. of his Spiritual Marriage between Christ and the Church (Cambridge, 1592), and of his Confession of the Christian Religion, 1599).

ZEALOT, the epithet given in Luke vi. 18 and Acts i. 13 to Simon called the Canaanite; as in Authorized Version, Matt. x. 4, Mark iii. 18), to distinguish him from Simon Peter. The Greek Καναανης is a mere transliteration of the Aramaic כנעני ("zeal"). The Zealots were one of the parties or factions in Palestine noted for their advocacy of the Mosaic law. Their founder was Judas the Galilean, also called the "Gaulonite" (Acts v. 37); but they degenerated into the Sicarii (from the Latin sicari, "a daguerreotype "), and were then guilty of many a dark deed. They were a prominent cause of the Jewish war, and increased its horrors (Joseph. iv. 3-7).

ZEBULUN. See Tribes of Israel.

ZECARIAH (Jehovah remembers), the eleventh of the Minor Prophets. He describes himself as son of Berechiah, and grandson of Iddo, whence it has been inferred that his father died young, and that he was brought up as Iddo's son and successor (see Neh. xii. 1, 4, 16). In that case Zechariah, like Jeremiah and Ezekiel, was a priest as well as a prophet. He appears to have been born in Babylon, and to have come up, while yet young, with the first company of exiles who returned to Palestine.

I. Date. — In 536 B.C. Cyrus issued a decree permitting the captive Jews to return to their own country. More than forty thousand men with their families and slaves availed themselves of this permission, and re-occupied the land of their forefathers. Barely seven years elapsed before preparations were made for rebuilding the temple; and in the second month of the second year of the return, the foundation was laid with mingled joy and grief (Ez. iii. 11-13). Speedily, however, the work was interrupted by the jealousy of the Samaritans, who continued during the reigns of Cyrus and Cambyses to misrepresent the Jews at the court of Persia. In the reign of Gomates, the pseudo-Smerdis, they obtained a decree absolutely prohibiting the further prosecution of the work. The title turned, however, when Darius Hystaspes came to the throne. In the second year of his reign he renewed and confirmed the original decree of Cyrus, and thenceforth there was no longer any outward difficulty in the way. But by this time (520 B.C.) a great change had occurred in the views and feelings of the people. Their zeal in divine things declined; they were engrossed in the care of their private affairs; and it needed revivifying appeals to rouse them to the toils and sacrifices required for the completion of the temple. These were furnished by the prophets Haggai and Zechariah (Ez. vi. 14), and were successful; so that the building was finished in the sixth year of Darius, B.C. 515. But it is not necessary to suppose that all Zechariah's earlier prophecies were mainly directed to this end. Undoubtedly they had more or less reference to it; but they also looked farther, even to the whole character and condition of the covenant people, their dangers and discouragements, and their influence upon the future prospects of the world. So that the prophet's historical position was simply a background for his delineation of the present and coming fortunes of the kingdom of God.

II. Form and Style. — From the earliest ages, interpreters have complained of the book as obscure and difficult, — a feature which results from the predominance of symbolical and figurative language, and occasionally from the brevity and conciseness of the expressions. But in general the style is easy and flowing. Zechariah leans much upon his predecessors prior to the captivity, and yet not infrequently shows a marked individuality in thought and utterance. Sometimes his oracles are given in direct speech, at others in the relation of visions, and again in the descriptions of symbolical acts. The two latter forms are not to be ascribed to his Chaldaean education, for both are found in the older prophets; e.g., Isa. vi.; Amos vii.–ix.; Hab. iii. There are some orthographic peculiarities; but in the main the Hebrew is pure, and remarkably free from Chaldaisms.

III. Contents. — The first part (chaps. i.–vii.) consists of three portions, the dates of which are distinctly given. 1. (1. 1–6) A general introduction in the shape of a warning not to imitate the sins of their fathers. 2. (i. 7–vi. 15) Three months afterward, a series of visions, all given in one month, closely connected together, and exhibiting an orderly progress of thought in respect to God's dealings with his people. These are appropriately closed by the recital of a symbolical action,—the crowning of the high priest, that is, the glory of the man whose name is Branch. 3. (vii., viii.) Two years later, a long answer to inquiries about the need of continuing to observe fasts commemorating former former calamities. The prophet rebukes the formalism of the people, and then promises such blessings as will change fasts into festivals, and even attract the heathen to their fellowship. The second part of the book, which bears no dates, is divided into two oracles by the title prefixed to chapters nine and twelve. The general theme is the future destiny of the covenant people. (a) The First Burden (ix.–xi.) outlines God's providence toward Israel up to the appearance of the Saviour. The ninth chapter begins by recounting Alexander's conquests, and ends with the triumph of the Maccabees, interposing in the middle a dramatic sketch of Zion's King of peace (9, 10). The tenth chapter describes the increase of the people in means and numbers under native rulers. The eleventh, under the figure of the rejection of a good shepherd by his flock, offers a striking delineation of our Lord's treatment by his own people. (b) The Second Burden (xii.—xiv.) looks forward the outlook upon the future, even to the time of the end. (1) The twelfth chapter, in the first nine verses, tells of Israel's victory over trials, meaning, doubtless, the triumph of the early church over persecuting foes. (2) The remaining verses, with the first one of the following chapter, show the power of Christ's death to awaken and renew. (3) Chapters xii. and xiii. 2–6 illustrates the fruits of penitence in the abolition of false worship and false prophecy, which stand for all forms of sin. (4) Verses 7–9 show the sword drawn against the Shepherd and his flock, or Christ smitten by his Father, and his people suffering also. (5) The last chapter seems to be a general survey of the checkered course of God's kingdom in this world from beginning to end, concluding with a vivid picture of the universal reign of holiness.

IV. Messianic Predictions. — These are six in number, and represent a gradual development. (1) In iii. 8 the lowly servant, as in Isaiah and Jeremiah, is called "Branch." (2) In vii. 12, 13, as priest and king he builds the Lord's spiritual temple. (3) In ix. 9, 10, he reigns as a meek and peaceful but universal monarch. (4) In xi. he appears as a shepherd, scorned, rejected, betrayed, and (by implication) slain. The expressions are obscure, and the New Testament leaves no doubt of the application. (5) In xii. 10 his pierced form, seen by the eye of faith, becomes a means of deep and general repentance, attended by pardon and conversion. (9) Finally (xiii. 7) the prophet, as he] perceives, becomes the redeemer and the pattern of the flock. These predictions are more numerous and emphatic than in any of Zechariah's predecessors, save Isaiah. Their Messianic character is established both by the intrinsic evidence of the utterance themselves, and by the references in the words of our Lord or his apostles.

V. THE GENUINENESS OF THE SECOND PART.

The question on this point was first raised by the learned Joseph Mede, 1653, who was followed by Blayney. Mede's objection was based upon Matthew's quotation (xxvii. 9, 10) of a passage in Zechariah, which he ascribes to Jeremiah, and upon the internal evidence of the chapters (ix.–xiv.) themselves. The former of these is now not much pressed; but the latter has been adopted and enforced by Gesenius, Ewald, Bleek, and many other eminent scholars. There is one passage, however, which was not referred to by Mede, but which has admitted many than that man quoted from one. This was very unlikely that the formers of the Old-Testament canon should have committed the gross error attributed to them.

The objections to the genuineness seem plausible at first sight, but disappear when carefully weighed; for example, Ephraim and Judah are spoken of together, as if they still existed as distinct kingdoms, which they never did after the exile. True, they are so mentioned, but only in the same way as Malachi (ii. 11) uses the name Israel, i.e., merely as designating a part of the existing population. Again: Assyria and Egypt are mentioned as formidable powers, which they were not; Persia having absorbed one, and subdued the other. The answer is, that the prophet uses these names as natural and convenient representatives of the foes existing in his day. Similar is the reply to the objection that false prophecy and idolatry did not exist in the restoration, and therefore could not be rebuked by Zechariah; viz., that in accordance with the prophetic parallelism he represents the present under the forms of the past. It is also urged that Phecenia, Damascus, and Phili stia, are set forth as foes of importance, when their power had long been broken. Here the reference is to the ninth chapter and the tenth. But in view of the liberal view has expressly said that this whole section does not admit of any explanation but that which is gained from the history of Alexander the Great. It describes his victorious march, the subjugation of the whole of Syria, and the conviction of the constant people from harm; all of which was actually accomplished. True, it was two hundred years after Zechariah's time, which is an insuperable difficulty to those who hold that prophecy confines itself to what immediately concerns the existing generation. But a critic of the liberal school has expressly postulate, what was to hinder Zechariah, or the Spirit which guided him, from upholding the small and weak restored people amid their fears of the rapacity of their neighbors, by the assurance of a very marked and specific deliverance in the distant future. Jehovah says the heavy stroke shall fall upon Damascus and all along the seacoast; but "I will encamp about mine house." The safety of the temple amid a wide-spread overthrow in every other direction was well suited to the post-exilian period, but in no sense, and in no degree, to the earlier history. And, if any earthly event merited a place on the prophetic page, it was that rapid conquest by which Alexander changed the face of the world, and paved the way for the triumph of the gospel.

Another objection cites the threatened disruption of the nation (xi. 14), "I cut asunder the staff . . . ; that I might break the brotherhood between Judah and Israel," as a gross anachronism. But, if this is to be taken literally, it will put the composition of the book back to a period prior to the secession of Jeroboam; which is simply absurd. The obvious sense of the passage is the disintegration of the nation, which could not be better expressed than by the use of the old, well-understood rupture in the days of Solomon's successor, which was the first and most serious step in the decline of the monarchy. That calamitous event was a natural figure of the bursting of the bond which united the Jews as a nation.

It is certain that there are numerous references in both parts of the book to the earlier prophets, and several distinct references to the later prophets in the second part. A full and minute conjecture of these may be seen in Wright (Zechariah and his Prophecies, p. xxxv.), an examination of which will confirm the opinion of St'shelin, that it is far more likely that one prophet quoted from many than that many quoted from one. This was so conclusive to such a critic as De Wette, that, after having declared for two authors of Zechariah in three editions of his Einleitung, he returned to the traditional view in the fourth. Upon the whole, then, there seems to be no good reason for departing from the old view, that the entire book came from the same hand. The contrary view yields no aid toward an orderly and reasonable explanation of the successive prophetic utterances, but rather embarrasses the interpretation.

Lit. — The principal writers are Vitringa (Leiden, 1734), Blayney (Oxford, 1787), Baumgarten (Brussels, 1854), T. V. Moore (New York, 1856), A. Köhler (Erlangen, 1860–65), W. F. Pressel (Gottha, 1872), Chambers (in Lange's Commentary, New York, 1874), C. H. H. Wright (Bampton Lecture, London, 1879). See also the Commentaries of Bleek (Berlin, 1837), and W. H. Lowe (Lond., 1882); and E. G. King:
ZEDEKIAH (to whom Jehovah will be just), the last king of Judah, third son of Josiah, and uncle of Jehoiachin. His proper name was Mattaniah (gift of Jehovah). Nebuchadnezzar raised him to the throne (597 B.C.) in the room of Jehoiachin, and altered his name. The new name may have been Zeckiah's own choice, and intended to express his hope of release from the Babylonish yoke. He was twenty-one at this time, and reigned eleven years; but he did not govern, for anarchy prevailed. Instances of his weakness are his bearing towards his princes, and failure to protect Jeremiah (Jer. xxxviii. 6; 29 sq.); his belief in false prophets (Jer. xxviii., xxxvi. 19); and the very striking incident, which sets the king in a very bad light,—that the princes and the people, after obeying the command of Jehovah to free their fellow country men and women from bondage, compelled those persons to return to slavery. Jeremiah announced the speedy downfall of the nation as punishment of this disobedience (Jer. xxxix. 8-22). In the fourth year of his reign, Zedekiah made a journey to Babylon to pay his respects to his lord, to procure the release of the captives, a loosening of the vassal yoke, and very probably to clear himself of suspected infidelity toward the Babylonian king. By his own conduct in his ninth year, he proved how faithless he was. He rebelled, on the strength of his hope of release from the Babylonish yoke. No sooner had this change taken place than he determined to devote his life to the evangelization of the Indians. His work among them began in 1746, and was continued for sixty-two years with unfailing courage and apostolic zeal. He labored in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, and Canada, among the Iroquois, or the Six Nations, the Delaware, the Mohicans and Wampanoags, the Nanticookes, Shawnees, Chippewas, Ottawas, and Wyandots. He established in different parts of the country thirteen Christian Indian towns, which filled both the savages and the settlers with the utmost wonder. He brought many aborigines into the church of Christ and to a consistent practice of Christianity, and was instrumental in the conversion of characters most notorious, fierce, and bloodthirsty. No other Protestant missionary exercised more real influence, and was more sincerely honored among the Indians; and no one, except the Jesuit fathers, excelled him in the frequency and hardships of his journeys through the wilderness. He spoke with great fluency the Delaware, Mohawk, and native tongues. The Six Nations adopted him as a sacheam of their confederacy, gave him the name of Ganoosseracheri, and, during his stay at Onandaga, made him the keeper of their archives. He was naturalized among the Monseys by a formal act of the tribe; and for a number of years he swayed the Grand Council of the Delaware in Ohio, and prevented them from joining the British Indians in the Revolutionary War. In 1781 these Indians broke up the mission in Ohio. Zeisberger and his fellow-missionaries were captured, tried at Detroit as American spies, but acquitted. The massacre of the Christian Indians at Gnadenhütten in the following year nearly broke his heart. He led the survivors from place to place, until they found a refuge in Canada. In 1798 he brought a part of them back to the Tuscarawas Valley of Ohio, where Congress had granted the Moravian Indians a large tract of land, and established a station, which he called Goshen. There he died, a patriarch of eighty-seven years. Zeisberger wrote numerous works. The following were published: A Delaware Indian and English Spelling-Book, Philadelphia, 1776, reprinted 1816; A Delaware Indian Hymn-Book, published at Philadelphia, 1823; Lieber-kün's Harmony of the Four Gospels translated into Delaware Indian, Philadelphia, 1821; and a Collection of Delaware Indian Conjugations, published in Faier's Analeten der Sprachkunde, Leipzig, 1821. Some of his most important works remain in manuscript. For his labors, he received permission to remain in the country which he loved. He hastened back to Bethlehem, and soon after was deeply convicted of sin by a hymn which treated of the love of Christ. In answer to his fervent prayers, he found peace in believing. No sooner had this change taken place than he determined to devote his life to the evangelization of the Indians.
Lexicon, etc. These manuscripts are preserved, partly in the library of the American Philosophical Society at Philadelphia, partly in the library of Harvard University at Cambridge. Biographies: HEIM: D. Zeisberger, Bielefeld, 1849 (inaccurate); FROMMANN: Zeisberger, in Mac-cracken's Leaders of our Church Universal. De Schweinitz: Life and Times of D. Zeisberger, Phila., 1877 in Strassburg, Jan. 10, 1548. He studied successively at Mainz and Erfurt; made a journey into Italy, and served a while as soldier in the imperial army; took the degree of M.A. at Freiburg in Breisgau, 1505; taught theology in that university; was chosen rector, Oct. 31, 1517; and finally was nominated, in 1518, preacher in the Cathedral of Strassburg, and pastor of the parish of St. Lawrence. Under the influence of his own study of the Bible, and the writings of Geiler and Luther, he embraced the Reformation, and commenced in 1521 his evangelistic labors by the exposition of the Epistle to the Romans. He was the first in the city to celebrate mass in the vulgar tongue, and to dispense the Eucharist under both forms. He broke with the ecclesiastical authorities in 1523, and replied to the charge of heresy by his Christian Verantwortung, in which he eloquently pleaded for the religious renovation of Strassburg. In the same year he married Katharina Schütz (b. 1497; d. Sept. 5, 1502), a carpenter's daughter, who made him a faithful and intelligent companion and fellow-laborer. Along with six other married priests, he was summoned by the bishop before the synod at Saverne, and was excommunicated. Zell then issued Apepellatio sacerdotum maritorum, April, 1524. The magistrates continued him in his functions, and he actively engaged in the work of reconstructing the church. His house was a refuge for his persecuted brethren. With singular lar e influence of his own study of the Bible, and the writings of Geiler and Luther, he embraced the Reformation, and commenced in 1521 his evangelistic labors by the exposition of the Epistle to the Romans. He was the first in the city to celebrate mass in the vulgar tongue, and to dispense the Eucharist under both forms. He broke with the ecclesiastical authorities in 1523, and replied to the charge of heresy by his Christian Verantwortung, in which he eloquently pleaded for the religious renovation of Strassburg. In the same year he married Katharina Schütz (b. 1497; d. Sept. 5, 1502), a carpenter's daughter, who made him a faithful and intelligent companion and fellow-laborer. Along with six other married priests, he was summoned by the bishop before the synod at Saverne, and was excommunicated. Zell then issued Apepellatio sacerdotum maritorum, April, 1524. The magistrates continued him in his functions, and he actively engaged in the work of reconstructing the church. His house was a refuge for his persecuted brethren. With singular large heartedness and Christian love he extended his protection to the Anabaptists. In his view of the sacraments he held firmly to Zwingli, but he took little part in theological contests. Besides the writings mentioned, he issued Ein Collation auf die Einführung M. Anthonsi, 1523; Auslegung des Vatter Unsers; Kurze schriftliche Erklärung für die Kinder, 1534 (designed, however, apparently rather for teachers than for children). His wife wrote Entschuldigung K. Schützins für Matthes Zellen, iren Ehegenאל (a defence of her husband, now in manuscript at Zürich); Den legulren christliehen Wegweiser, 1524 (a consolatory letter to disconsolate women in Kehltingen); Klaged und Ermahnung Kath. Zellen zum Volk bey dem Grab M. Matheus Zellen, 1548 (a discourse pronounced at the funeral of her husband, now in manuscript in the University Library at Strassburg); Ein Brief an die ganze Bürgerchaft der Stadt Strassburg, 1548 (in which he defends the memory of her husband against Lutheran attacks, printed in Fussli's Beiträge, vol. v.).

LIT.—LÖSCHER: Epicedion et narratio funebres in mortem venerabilissini Dr. M. Zeelii, Strassburg, 1549; BÖHRICH: M. Zell, in Strassburger Beiträge, 1851, ii. pp. 144 sqq., and in the Mit-
Both announce the approach of punishment (Zeph. i. 2, 3, 18; cf. Jer. iv. 4, 25, vii. 7, ix. 9, xii. 4): both prophecy that the called executioners of this punishment will come from the north (Zeph. i. 10; cf. Jer. i. 15), and that Jerusalem, Judah, and the surrounding peoples, will fall under the avenging strokes of Jehovah (Zeph. i. 10, ii. 3, 8; cf. Jer. v. 2, 7, 9, vi. 12, x. 10, 25). (b) By the position of Zephaniah in the arrangement of the Minor Prophets. This arrangement was chronological (Barat 14 b.), and, in the case of the pre-exilic Minor Prophets, also according to subject-matter. The fact that Zephaniah is put with other prophets of Josiah’s time is therefore proof that he prophesied in that reign. But there remains the settlement of the question, In what portion of this long reign of thirty-one years did he prophecy? or, what is the same thing, When were the words, “I will cut off the remnant of Baal” (i. 4) spoken? Manifestly, when Josiah’s reformation had been long enough in progress to uproot the Baal-worship, all but a “remnant,” and that would not be until the closing period of his reign, when the Jehovah-worship was the only one tolerated in the kingdom, i.e., after his eighteenth year. Additional proof of this is the fact, that, according to 2 Kings xxiii. 26, 27, the prophetic voices announced the oncoming of the day of wrath in spite of the reformation. Zephaniah was probably one of those who foretold the dire event. Another expression of Zephaniah yields the same answer to the question concerning the date of his prophecy. Jehovah says through him, “I will punish the king’s sons” (children) (i. 8). This prophecy was fulfilled in the subsequent history. Jehoahaz died a prisoner in Egypt (Jer. xxii. 11, 12); Jehoiakim was carried in chains to Babylon, and finally was murdered (Jer. xxvi. 19); and Zedekiah died in blindness at Babylon. But since Jehoiakim was born in the sixth year of Josiah’s reign, Jehoahaz in the eighth, and Zedekiah in the twentieth, it will be seen that Zephaniah’s prophecy more properly dates from the close of Josiah’s reign than from any earlier period.

III. CHARACTERISTICS.—Dividing the prophets in the Old Testament into two great classes, the Zedonian kind, Zephaniah is the first of the latter. But his chief peculiarity is his employment of the words of other prophets in the expression of his own prophetic ideas. To quote a striking example (i. 7), “Hold thy peace at the presence of the Lord (Hab. ii. 20); for the day of the Lord is at hand (Joel i. 15); for the Lord bath prepared a sacrifice (Isa. xxxiv. 6), he hath bid his guests” (Isa. xiii. 3). This does not detract from his independence. It only shows, that, when the prophetic spirit impelled him, it brought to mind the former words; and this mingling of old phrases and new became the vehicle of new thoughts, a new body of living words. He was in a sense an epitomizer of his forerunners, even as Martin Butzer says, “If any one desires a compendium of the prophets, let him read through Zephaniah.”

[LIT.—For commentaries upon the Minor Prophets in general, see that art. Special commentary upon Zephaniah by MARTIN BUTZER, Com. in Zephanjam, Strassburg, 1528; LUTHER: Com. in Sophon.; J. A. NOLTEN: Diss. exeget. praefatim. in prophetiam Zephaniam, Frankfurt, a.d.O. 1719; D. V. CÖLLN: Speculumum observatum. exeg. crit. ad Zephaniam vaticiniam, Breslau, 1818; F. A. STRAUSS: Zephaniam vaticiniam commentarius illustrativi, Berlin, 1843; KLEINERT, in Lange, Bielefeld, 1868, English translation, New York, 1874.]

ZEPHYRINUS, Bishop of Rome, 199-218; the successor of Victor; occupied the chair during a dangerous period, when the Church was at once imperilled by Montanism and Monarchianism, but was himself an insignificant person, who exercised very little influence on the course of affairs. The sources of his life are EUSEBIUS: Hist. Eccl., v. vi., and the ninth book of HIPPOLYTUS: Adv. Haer. See CALIXTUS, HIPPOLYTUS, MONARCHISM, and MONARCHIANISM.

ZERUBBABEL (begotten in Babylon), the leader of the first band of returning exiles from Babylon (Ez. ii. 2); the custodian of the sacred vessels (Ez. i. 11); the governor of Judæa (Hag. i. 1). He held these high positions in consequence not only of his personal ability, but of his royal rank; for he was a lineal descendant of David, and the recognized prince of Judah (Ez. i. 8). On assuming the leadership of his people, he laid aside his Babylonish name Shallabazar (Ez. i. 8), and took the other. On arriving at Jerusalem, he and Jeshua (Joshua), the high priest, headed the revival of daily public worship and of the religious festivals, and also began, in the second month of the second year of their return, to rebuild the temple. The adversaries of the Jews stopped the latter work; and it was not for sixteen years, that under the stirring rebukes, counsels, and prophecies of Haggai and Zechariah, the work was resumed, and completed by the joint efforts of Zerubbabel and Jeshua. Zerubbabel was one of our Lord’s ancestors (Matt. i. 12; Luke iii. 27).

ZI’DON, or SI’DON, the present Saida, was situated on the Mediterranean, in lat. 33° 34’ N., about twenty miles north of Tyre, and built on a low promontory, which juts out into the sea from the narrow plain at the foot of Lebanon. In ancient times it was the largest, richest, and most powerful city of the Phœnicians: hence it was called “the mouth of Canaan” (Gen. x. 18; 1 Chron. i. 13), “the mother of Tyre;” and the Phœnicians were often simply called “Zidonians” by the Hebrews, Egyptians, Greeks, and Romans. It continued a prosperous and important place, having its own kings, even after the rise of Tyre. But after its conquest by Alexander, and the foundation of Alexandria, it lost its mercantile prominence, and gradually, also, its national character. It became a Greek city; and only a few of its manufactures, its glass and its perfumes, were known in the world’s market. Christianity early gained a foothold there (Luke vi. 17; Acts xxvii. 3), and in the second century it became the seat of a bishop. During the crusades it was several times taken and fortified by the Christians, and retaken and burnt down by the Moslems. From its ruins, however, many relics, both Christian and Phœnician, of great antiquarian interest, have been dug up; the most remarkable being the marble sarcophagus of MARTIN BUTZER, which in 1806 was brought to Paris. See SCHLOTTMANN: Die Inschrift Esdranuzares, Halle, 1868; PRUZ: Aus Phönicien, Leipzig, 1876.
ZINZENDORF, Nicholas Lewis, Count von, the resuscitator of the Moravian Church, and for many years its leader; b. at Dresden, May 26, 1700; d. at Herrnhut, May 9, 1760. Six weeks after his birth, his father, one of the ministers of the Saxon cabinet, died. His mother took him to her home at Gross Hennersdorf, in Upper Lusatia. When he was four years old, she married the Prussian field-marshal, Von Natzmer, and removed to Berlin. Young Zinzendorf remained with his grandmother, the Baroness von Gersdorf, and a personal friend of Spener. Her unmarried daughter, the Baroness Henrietta, belonged to the same school of thought and practice. These two godly women, with the assistance of a private tutor, educated Zinzendorf until his tenth year, and shaped his religious character. He was an extraordinary child, and manifesteda precocious piety which has rarely been equalled. Christ was the end and aim of his daily life. He loved him with his whole heart, abode in a childlike fellowship with him, wrote letters to him in which he poured out his religious feelings, and threw these letters out of the window, confident that the Lord would receive and read them. What he said of himself in after-years holds good of his childhood also: “I have but one passion; and it is He, only He.” Hence, throughout his whole career, his theology remained a theology of the heart, and he never allowed his understanding to interfere with his faith. When he was ten years old, he entered Francke's grammar-school at Halle. There he met with other pious lads, and took the lead in organizing among them the Order of the Grain of Mustard-Seed,—a juvenile association having in view personal godliness and the spread of the gospel. Baron Frederick de Watteville was his most intimate friend; and with him he made an additional compact, whose aim was the conversion of the heathen, and especially of those for whom no one else would care. In his sixteenth year he entered the university of Wittenberg. His inclina-ZINZENDORF. 2574 ZINZENDORF.

The Guardian, Count Otto Christian Zinzendorf, and his other relatives, including even his pious grandmother, were shocked at the thought that a Christian should become a preacher. In obedience to their express commands, he studied law, with a view to entering the service of the State; privately, however, he devoted himself to theology. After having finished his course at the university, in 1719 he began his travels, as was the custom of young noblemen in that day. He first visited various parts of Germany. In the picture-gallery at Dusseldorf he saw an Ecce Homo, with this inscription, "Hoc feci pro te; quid facies pro me?" He made a deep impression upon him, and induced him to consecrate himself anew to Christ. Continuing his journey to Holland, he spent some time at the university of Utrecht, and then proceeded to Paris. In this city he became intimate with the devout Cardinal Noailles, and formed the acquaintance of other distinguished men. He was introduced at court, where he won the special regard of the regent's mother; but in all places he boldly confessed Christ, and kept himself unsullied from the world. Having returned to Saxony in 1721, he again yielded to the wishes of his family, declined with deep regret the position which Francke offered him at Halle, as the successor of Baron von Canstein in the Bible House, and accepted a judicial councillorship at Dusseldorf, with this inscription, "Ecce Homo," — he took up his abode, now in Germany, then in Holland, and again in England, furthering the gospel, and establishing Moravianism wherever he came. Moreover, he went out on many evangelistic journeys alone, or with only a few companions. In 1739 he visited St. Thomas, and three years later came to America (November, 1741). He spent more than a year in this country, laboring among the Germans, especially the Lutherans; organizing the so-called "Covenant of the Four Brethren." Its object was the spread of the religion of the crucified Saviour (Die Universalreligion des Welthain) in all the world. The means to be employed in accomplishing this work were the preaching of the Word, itinerant evangelists, schools, publications, and correspondence. But, the more Zinzendorf urged this enterprise, the more evident it became that it did not constitute the mission to which he had been called of God; whereas Herrnhut, that settlement of refugees from Moravia and Bohemia which had been established on his estate, continually increased in population and importance, until it comprised a body of several hundred souls. By slow degrees Zinzendorf realized that his work lay among the Moravian Brethren. In 1727 he resigned his office at Dresden, and took up his abode at Berthelsdorf. Soon after, he met with a copy of the Ratio Disciplina of the Bohemian Brethren, as published by Bishop Amos Comenius. This work made a very deep impression upon him, and he now resolved to do all in his power to bring about a resuscitation of the Brethren's church. But the resolution God himself set his seal. In August of the same year a wonderful outpouring of the Holy Spirit took place at Herrnhut. From this time until his death, the biography of Zinzendorf is identical with the history of the Moravians. He became their leader; shaped their development according to that fundamental idea, which he never relinquished, of constituting them "a little church within the Established Church;" introduced nearly all their peculiar usages; furthered in every possible way their foreign missionary work; secured for them the episcopal succession of the Bohemian Brethren, and was himself consecrated a bishop by Bishops Jablonsky and Nitschmann (1737); induced various Continental governments and the Parliament of Great Britain to acknowledge their church; spent nearly his entire property in their behalf; and in all other respects promoted their welfare with a most self-sacrificing spirit. At the same time he embraced every opportunity to labor for Christ's kingdom in general, and never allowed himself to be bound by denominational restraints. His course awakened great hostility. He was often misunderstood and misrepresented; sometimes he gave just cause for offence by his extravagant utterances. A flood of polemical writings was poured out against him, and in 1736 he was banished from Saxony. But this measure helped to spread the cause which he represented. Surrounded by his family and his principal assistants,—constituting together what he called "The Church of the Pilgrims," — he took up his abode, now in Germany, then in Holland, and again in England, furthering the gospel, and establishing Moravianism wherever he came. Moreover, he went out on many evangelistic journeys alone, or with only a few companions. In 1739 he visited St. Thomas, and three years later came to America (November, 1741). He spent more than a year in this country, laboring among the Germans, especially the Lutherans; organizing the so-called "Congregation of God in the Spirit," that is, a sort of evangelical alliance among the German religious denominations of Pennsylvania, which were represented in a union synod, an undertaking that proved to be a total failure; preaching the gospel wherever he found an opportunity; establishing a Moravian church at Bethlehem; and going out on missionary journeys to the Indians, the last of which extended as far as the Wyoming Valley, where, in all probability, he was the first white man to pitch his tent. His work in America was again misunderstood, and led to the most unfortunate complications, especially with the Lutherans. The ideal which inspired him was too lofty for that time of sectarian bigotry and disputes. He was more than a century in advance of his age. And yet he was not victorious from the attack that was made upon him and from all the persecutions to which he was subjected. In 1749 the Saxon Government not only rescinded the decree of banishment against him, but also begged him to establish within its jurisdiction more settlements like that at Herrnhut. Some of his worst enemies became his friends: the assaults of those who remained hostile made no more impression upon him, says his biographer, Bishop Spangenberg, than the waves of the sea beating upon a rock. He died in peace, on the 8th of May, 1760, at Herrnhut, honored by many in many parts of the world. Thirty-two presbyters and deacons, from Germany, Holland, England, Ireland, North America, Greenland, and other countries, bore his remains to their last resting-place. His tombstone describes his work in these brief words: "He was ordained to bring forth fruit, and that his fruit should remain." However great and distinguished a place Zinzendorf occupies in the history of the church of God, he was by no means without faults. His lively imagination and joyous piety often led him to give expression, both in his public discourses and in his writings, to sentiments that were sensuous and objectionable; he occasionally developed biblical doctrines to extremes unwarranted by the Bible; at times he appealed to his feelings for the decision of a question, instead of to the law and the testimony; and, while his love to his fellow-men not unfrequently moved him to yield to human solicitation, he so often let his Lord wonder him too severe and fiery. But all these and other faults were more than counterbalanced by the noble traits of his character. To the day of his death, Christ his Saviour remained to him all, and in all. He lived only to his glory, and in all, he corresponded and conversed with kings and princes, that he might bring them to Christ: to do good to his fellow-men for Christ's sake was his highest joy. He had the rare faculty of knowing how to deal with the highest and the lowest. He corresponded and conversed with earthly possessions, honors, and fame were to him as nothing in comparison with Christ: to do good to his fellow-men for Christ's sake was his highest joy. He had the rare faculty of knowing how to deal with the highest and the lowest. He corresponded and conversed with kings and princes, that he might bring them to the Saviour; and he followed the Indian savage into his wilderness, that he might tell him of Christ. His personal appearance was distinguished and noble. He had a piercing and yet benevolent eye; his countenance reflected the divine peace which filled his heart and the joy which he received from the Lord, and which he gave him. It was impossible to approach him without becoming conscious of an inner life hidden with Christ in God. He was affable and kind in his social intercourse, but no one ever became familiar with him. His public ministrations were in the highest degree priestly, instinct with a dignity and power that never failed to impress. The writings of Zinzendorf, comprising sermons, hymnals, catechisms, historical collections, devotional and controversial works, number more than one hundred and fifty; but the most of them are obsolete. Several years after his death a selection of his sermons was published in 1545, Geistliche Gedichte (les Grafen). Other republications are: JESUS geh' voran ("Jesus still lead on," etc.), etc. Zinzendorf has had numerous biographers. The most important are the following: SPANGENBERG: Leben von Zinzendorf, 1773-75, 3 vols.; SCHRAUTENBACH: Graf v. Zinzendorf, Gadua, 1851; VERBEEK: Graf v. Zinzendorf, Gadua, 1845; DUVERNAY: Kurzgefasste Lebensgeschichte Z., Barby, 1753; VAXHANGEN VON ESE: Leben Z., Berlin, 1810; MÜLLER: Bekennnisse merkwürdiger Männer, Part 3, 1775; THOLUCK: Verschiedene Schriften, i. No. 6, 1839; SCHÜDER: Z. und Herrnhut, Norderhausen, 1857; BOYET: Le Comte de Zinzendorf, Paris, 1860, 2 vols., Eng. trans. entitled The Banished Count, London, 1865; BURKHARDT: Zinzendorf u. die B. G., Gotha, 1866, reprinted, in an enlarged form, from Herzog's Encyclopädie. BISHOP E. DE SCHWEINITZ.

ZION, or SION (sunny), strictly speaking, the south-western hill of Jerusalem, although sometimes used as a synonyme for the entire city, and sometimes symbolically. It was bounded on the south by the Valley of Hinnom; on the west, by the "Valley of Gibon;" a part of Hinnom, originally two deep valleys with precipitous sides, but now partially filled up; while on the north there was no such definite boundary, but the hill extended to the Jaffa gate. It is 2,539 feet above the Mediterranean, and 105 feet higher than Moriah, on which was the temple. Zion is first mentioned in Josh. xv. 63 as a Jebusitic stronghold. David took it, and built upon it his palace; and it was the site of his capital, the "city of David" (2 Sam. v. 7), and eventually the aristocratic portion of Jerusalem. Josephus never speaks of it as Zion, but as "the city of David," "the upper city," and "the upper market-place." Here built a palace upon its north-west corner, which became the praetorium, the residence of the Roman procurator (Mark xv. 16). It was the last part of the city to yield to the Romans under Titus (War, VI., viii.). The name "Zion" occurs six times in the historical, and a hundred and forty-eight times in the poetical and prophetic books of the Old Testament, and seven times in the New Testament; making, in all, a hundred and sixty-one times in the Bible. In the later books it is sometimes used symbolically.

The present wall around Jerusalem includes only half of Mount Zion, but the only building outside it is the tomb of David. Upon the part of the hill from Zion gate, southwards towards the Jaffa gate, are the Christian cemeteries; and another part is under cultivation (cf. Jer. xxxvi. 18; Mic. iii. 12). See JERUSALEM and the Bible dictionaries.

ZIZKA, John. See Hussites, Utraquists.

ZO'AN, the present San, the Avaris of Manetho, and the Tanis of the Greeks; a city of Lower Egypt; was situated on the eastern bank of the ancient Tanitic branch of the Nile, in latitude 31° N. It was an exceedingly old city, built seven years after Hebron (Num. xxxii. 29), and fortified by the shepherd-kings. According to tradition, it was the place of the meeting between Moses and Pharaoh; and in "the field of Zoan" (Ps. lxxviii. 12, 43) God's wonders were wrought. The mounds and ruins which surround the present city are very extensive; and interesting discoveries have recently been made there by Bruges-Bey.
ZWIRY, one of the cities of the plain (Gen. xiii. 10); originally called Boz (Gen. xiv. 2); was spared from the destruction which overtook Sodom; and became the refuge of Lot (Gen. xix. 20-30). Its exact location has not been identified. It was included in the view Moses had from Pisgah (Deut. xxxiv. 9). The prophets place it among the cities of Moab (Isa. xv. 6; Jer. xlviii. 31).
ZO'BA, or ZO'BAH (station), that part of Syria between the north-east of Palestine and the Euphrates; the home of a powerful people who were frequently at war with the Israelites (1 Sam. xiv. 47; 2 Sam. viii. 9 sqq.; x. 6 sqq.; 2 Chron. vii. 9). The region is rich in natural resources, but is now deserted save by the wandering Bedouin.
ZOLLIKOFER, Georg Joachim, b. at St. Gall, Aug. 5, 1730; d. at Leipzig, Jan. 22, 1788. He was educated at Bremen, studied theology at Utrecht, lived from 1748 to 1753 in Francfort as tutor, and was in 1758 appointed pastor of the Reformed Congregation in Leipzig. He was considered one of the greatest preachers of his time. The collected edition of his sermons (1798-1804) comprises fifteen volumes [Eng. trans., London, 1803-15, 10 vols.]. His tombstone characterizes him very aptly by telling us that he is now "conversing in the sphere of the spirit with Socrates and Jesus." He was, however, not one of the common herd of rationalists, though he held that "conversion" was not necessary to everybody, but only improvement and progress. He also published a number of devotional books [some of which have been translated; e.g., Exercises of Piety (London, 1796) and Devotional Exercises and Prayers]. See R. FISCHER: Geitenschrift, and DÖRING: Deutsche Kanzelredner, Neustadt, 1830. PALMER.
ZONARAS, Johannes, b. in the last part of the eleventh century; d. in the middle of the twelfth; was secretary to the Byzantine emperor Alexius Comnenus, but retired in 1118 to the monastery of St. Elijah in Mount Athos, and devoted himself to theological and literary studies. His Chronicle, from the creation, till the death of Alexius (edited by Hieronymus Wolf, Basel, 1557; Du Fresne, Paris, 1866; Pinder, Bonn, 1841-44, 2 vols.), is a mere compilation without interest. Of more value is his Commentary on the Synagoga of Photius, the best edition of which appeared in Paris, 1810, together with a Latin translation. See MORTREUIL: Histoire du droit Byzantin, Paris, 1843, tom. iii. pp. 429-428. He also wrote scholia to the New Testament, Commentaries on the poems of Gregory Nazianzen, etc.
ZOROASTER. See PARSIEISM.
ZOSIMUS, Bishop of Rome, 417-418; the successor of Innocent I.; was a Greek by birth. He began his reign by cancelling the condemnation of St. Pelagius and Celestius, issued by several African synods, and confirmed by his predecessor. But when the African bishops refused to yield, and, after a new synod of Carthage, obtained a sacrum rescriptum against the Pelagians from the Emperor Honorius, Zosimus and Celestius saw fit to retract, and confirmed also Pelagius in an Epistola tractatoria, or encyclical to the Eastern Churches. See SCHROCK: Kirchengeschichte, Leipzig, 1792, viii. 148. NEUDECKER.
ZWICK, Johannes, b. at Constance, 1420; d. at Bischofszell, Oct. 23, 1542. He studied theology and canon law in Constance and Basel, took his degree in Padua, and was considered a rising light in the Roman camp, when he became acquainted with the writings of the Reformers; went to see Zwingli in Zürich, and inaugurated his entrantures upon his first pastoral charge at Riedlingen, by marrying. In 1525 he was expelled from Riedlingen; and then settled in his native city, where he contributed much to the establishment of the Reformation by his preaching, his disputations, his devotional publications, especially hymns, and his re-organization of the whole department of public education. His activity, however, was by no means confined to Constance, but extended to Wurttemberg and the whole of south-western Germany. In the union negotiations he took an active part. A collection of his letters is found in manuscript in Constance.
ZWINGLI, Heinrich, b. at Wildhaus, an Alpine village in the canton of St. Gall, Jan. 1, 1484; d. Oct. 11, 1531, on the battlefield of Kappel, whither he had accompanied the Protestant army as chaplain. Zwingli's parents were peasants, grave and well-to-do people. One of his uncles was deacon of Wesen; another, abbott of Riedlingen. As he was an uncommonly bright boy, eager to learn, and with a talent for music, he was destined for the church, and educated in the schools of Basel and Bern. In 1499 he entered the university of Vienna, where he went through the common course of philosophy, acquired the friendship of Vadian and Glarean, and made the acquaintance of Faber and Eck. In 1502 he returned to Basel, where he taught school, studied theology, lived in intimate intercourse with Leo Jud, and heard Thomas Wytttenbach. In 1506 he was ordained a priest, and appointed pastor of Glarus.
In Glarus, where he lived for ten years, he learned Greek, an arduous task, as he had none to help him along; studied Plutarch and Plato, and the Bible; copied the Epistles of Paul, in order to have them always with him; read Origem, Chrysostom, Jerome, and Augustine, also Wiclif, Petrus Waldus, Hus, and Ficus de Mirandola; and entered into correspondence with Erasmus. He became a learned man; and his scholarship, no less than the earnestness and energy he evinced in the discharge of his pastoral duties, and the great charm of his personal address, attracted attention. From the Pope he received the legend, Cardinal Schinner, a pension of fifty golden a year for the continuation of his studies. As a humanist, and a pupil of Wytttenbach, his relation to the doctrinal and disciplinary system of the Church of Rome was somewhat free; but there was nothing anti-Romanist or distinctly evangelical in his ministration. Its character was moral rather than religious, and so were his first publications,—Der Labyrinthe and Fabelisch Gedicht von einem Ochsen und etlichen Thieren, 1510, 1511. Switzerland was at that time the barracks of Europe. Tens of thousands of young men hired themselves out every year as mercenaries; and foreign powers, France, the emperor, the Pope, inundated the country with enrolling agents, and paid regular pensions to the nobility in every canton in order to control the policy of the council... The result was the gradual decay of the old, stern republican virtues, and a steadily increasing profanity and corruption. Zwingli, who, while pastor of Glarus, several times accompanied such regiments of Swiss mercenaries as their chaplain, saw the evil in all kinds of the soldiers. The result it with the same pertinacity, both in the above publications and in his sermons. More especially he opposed the alliance with France; but, as the French party had the majority in the council of the canton, he was pursued with slander and chicanery to such a degree, that in 1518 he was glad to leave Glarus, and accepted the office of preacher at Einsiedeln.
ZWINGLI. 2577

Einsiedeln, in the canton of Schwyz, was the most celebrated place of pilgrimage in the country. Hic est plena remissio omnium peccatorum ("Full forgiveness of all sins can be had here") was written over its gates; and pilgrims, not only from Switzerland, but from the whole Southern Germany, flocked around Zwingli. Zwingli, who knew what waste of human strength, what disturbance of human life, what suffering to the human heart, is the inevitable result of such superstition, turned away many a pilgrim by his sermons, to seek for consolation in some other way. He made no open attack. But he did not conceal, either, that he was fully aware of the horrible discrepancy between the ordinances of the Church and the ordinances of the Bible. He asked Cardinal Schinner, the papal legate Pucci, the Bishop of Constance, to employ their influence and power for the abolition of gross misuses and the restoration of a pure preaching of God's word. In 1517 he began to discuss with his friends the possibility of abolishing the Papacy; in 1518 he drove the indulgence-seller, Samson, out of the canton by his open denunciations. The cardinal, the legate, the bishop, kept silent. The preparation for the rising which was to come was a titular chaplain to the Pope. But they mistook the man with the large, calm eyes, and the firmly-set mouth. In December, 1518, the "papal chaplain" accepted a call as preacher at the cathedral of Zurich, and the storm drew nearer, slowly but irresistibly.

On New Year's Day, 1519, he entered the pulpit of the cathedral of Zurich for the first time, and announced to his hearers, that, in a continuous series of sermons, he would preach on the life of Christ such as it was set forth in the Gospel of St. Matthew, and such as he had come to understand. It was held in the city-hall of Zurich, Jan. 29, 1523. About six hundred persons were present. The Bishop of Constance was represented by his vicar-general, Faber. For the occasion, Zwingli had drawn up sixty-five theses, in which he maintained that Christ is the only means of reconciliation with God, the only way to salvation, while the whole apparatus gotten up by the Church of Rome—papacy, mass, intercession of the saints, absolution, indulgences, etc.—is a vain thing; that Scripture is the highest, and, indeed, the only authoritative, guide, while the whole scheme laid out by the Church of Rome—priesthood, confession, fasting, penance, pilgrimage, monasticism, etc.—is a dangerous delusion. Both the formal and the material principles of the Reformation are set forth in these theses with great completeness, and applied with merciless logic. But the most characteristic and original feature in them is the new principle which is added,—the principle of ecclesiastical polity, which has exercised so decisive an influence on the whole development and organization of the Reformed Church. The congregation, and not the hierarchy, say the theses, is the representative of the Church; and to the congregation, consequently, and not to the hierarchy, belongs the right of considering the discrepancies which may arise between the doctrine and the practice of the Church. The administration of the Church belongs, like all administration, to the State authorities,—a proposition which at once overthrows the whole fabric of the Church of Rome. But, the theses add, if the State authorities go beyond the ordinances of Christ, let them be deposed. The disputation ended with a complete victory for Zwingli: the Reformation was formally adopted for the territory of Zurich. An artfully written letter was addressed by Pope Adrian VI. to Zwingli, denouncing him as prater sedem papalem ("every thing but the papal chair") was within his reach; but it failed to impress him. He published an explication of his theses, Uelegen und Gründ der Schlussreden oder Artikel, and began the gradual carrying-out of the necessary reforms in practical life. In June the female convents in the city and in the country were closed by the magistrates, without any preliminary conference with the bishop, and the nuns were sent back to their homes. In September the chapter of the cathedral was dissolved, and transformed into an educational establishment for theological students. April 2, 1524, the real but not formal marriage of Zwingli with Anna Reinhard was celebrated in the cathedral; and many of his colleagues followed his example. Meanwhile the question of the necessary reforms of the ritual began to cause considerable excitement. In September, 1523, Zwingli published his De Canone Missae epichiresis, which in August, 1524, was followed by his Antibolon adversus Emserum. In these two pamphlets he for the first time broached his views of the Lord's Supper. It was, however, the question of the admissibility of images which attracted most attention; and in order to calm down the public mind, and prevent a second religious disputation which at one time was threatened, Zwingli promulgated the Peasants' Act (Feb. 26, 1526). About nine hundred persons were present. Vadian presided. The conclusions arrived at were, that images are forbidden by Scripture, and that the mass is not a sacrifice. Shortly after, the images disappeared from the churches, together with the organ and the relics. A number of festivals, processions, and ceremonies, were abolished; and at Easter, 1525, the Lord's Supper was for the first time celebrated in the Reformed manner, with the white spread table instead of the altar, the laity partaking of the cup, etc. In the same year Zwingli published his Commentarius de vera et falsa religione, the most complete, though not a systematic, presentation of his views.

Thus the Reformation had been established in Zurich through a gradual and peaceful development, without violence, almost without disturbances. Nevertheless, the situation was by no means simple, for the Abbot of St. Gall and the Landgrave Philip of Hesse succeeded in gathering together all the principal representatives of the opposing views at the Conference of Marburg, October, 1529, and for a time the controversy subsided; but it did not remain a secret to the world, that there existed a discord between the evangelical and the Roman-Catholic churches.

Meanwhile, the Reformation made rapid progress in Switzerland. By the conference of Jan. 4, 1528, at which Zwingli was present, the city of Bern was gained for the Reformation; and soon after, Basel, St. Gall, and Schaffhausen followed the lead. The Babtists caused much embarrassment, and even some danger. They appeared at Zurich as early as 1523 (during the second disputation), represented by Grebel, Manz, and others, and demanding the formation of a holy congregation, from which all members who were not thoroughly regenerated and sanctified should be excluded. Zwingli held two conferences with them (March 20 and Nov. 30, 1525), and wrote against them, Von Tauf aus Wiedertauft und von Kinderlauff, May 27, 1525. But the peculiar manner in which they blended social and political radicalism with their religious enthusiasm, and their apparent connection with the peasant revolt in Germany, made more energetic measures necessary. By a decree of March 7, 1528, the magistrates put the jealousy of drowning on re-baptisms. At the same time the attacks of the Roman-Catholic Church on the Reformation in Zurich became more and more vehement. They were directed through the union. At a diet of Lucerne, Jan. 26, 1524, the united canton decided to send a solemn embassy to Zurich, warning her from abandoning her old, time-honored traditions, and complaining of certain innovations already introduced. But Zurich answered (March 21), that, in matters referring to the word of God and the salvation of souls, she would brook no interference. A new embassy of July 12, same year, threatened Zurich with excommunication from the union, and the city immediately began to prepare for war. The invitation to the great disputation of Baden, where the Roman-Catholic Church was represented by Faber and Eck, Zwingli declined, as he knew that he could not accept it with safety. The Romanists gained a cheap victory, and the diet put Zwingli under the ban. To these difficulties was added the controversy with Luther, which finally split the whole reformational movement into two hostile camps. It was Carlstadt's exposition of the doctrine of the Lord's Supper which occasioned Zwingli to give a full presentation of his views in the address to Alber, Nov. 16, 1524. All circumlocutions or ambiguous phrases are here avoided, and the symbolical conception of the copula of the words of institution (est = significat) is formally adopted. In the course of the controversy, Zwingli further published, Subsidium niae coronis de Eucharistia (Aug. 17, 1526), Uber Doctor Martin Luthers Buch (Aug., 1528), all distinguished by clearness and moderation; while the rejoinders of Luther are somewhat unattractive, both in form and tone. Finally, Landgrave Philipp of Hesse succeeded in gathering together all the principal representatives of the opposing views at the Conference of Marburg, October, 1529, and for a time the controversy subsided; but it did not remain a secret to the world, that there existed a discord between the two evangelical churches as deep and as passionate as that between the evangelical and the Roman-Catholic churches.

Meanwhile, the Reformation made rapid progress in Switzerland. By the conference of Jan. 4, 1528, at which Zwingli was present, the city of Bern was gained for the Reformation; and soon after, Basel, St. Gall, and Schaffhausen followed the lead. The Babtists caused much embarrassment, and even some danger. They appeared at Zurich as early as 1528.
ZWINGLI.

2579

ZWINGLI.

their head, concluded a separate alliance; and the following spring Archduke Ferdinand of Austria became a member of that alliance. April 21, 1529, Zurich, St. Gall, etc., formally protested against such a mixing-up of foreign princes with the internal politics of the union, but the answer they received was very chilling. A month later on (May 29, 1529), a Protestant pastor from Zurich was seized on the public highway, carried into Schwyz, tried for heresy, and sentenced to be burned. Zurich immediately declared war, and marched her troops into position, according to a plan of operation probably drawn up by Zwingli.
He stood with the bulk of the army at Kappel,
and the battle was about to begin, when mediators succeeded in preventing bloodshed; and a peace was negotiated June 25, 1529. Zwingli was not satisfied with the conditions of the peace, but predicted that they would cause still graver conflicts. During the Conference of Marburg he had by Landgrave Philipp been induced to take up a plan of forming a great coalition against the ambitious schemes of the House of Austria, and preliminary negotiations were opened with Venice, France, and other countries. At the same time he labored with great enthusiasm and energy for a reconstruction of the Swiss Union.
The threads of the different plans became entangled; and at one time Zwingli's position was doubtful, even in Zurich. His theocratic ideas of civil government he had carried through with great severity, and discontent with him was actually brooding in the city. His wide political plans were used against him as a weapon of attack.
He understood the situation very clearly; and on June 26 he appeared before the council, and handed in his resignation. The city was taken by surprise. All opposition grew dumb, and Zwingli's power was again almost without any restrictions. But only a few more moments were left to him. A famine in the Roman-Catholic cantons, and the rigid system of prohibition which Zurich maintained against the advice of Zwingli, brought about the conflict. On Oct. 10, 1531, the army of the Roman-Catholic cantons stood on the frontiers of Zurich. On the following morning Zwingli accompanied the troops of Zurich.
At Kappel it came to a desperate battle. The troops of Zurich were utterly routed. Among the fallen was Zwingli: bending over a dying man, to comfort him, he was hit himself with a spear. His last words were, "They can kill the body, but not the soul."

Huldreich Zwingli was a well-balanced nature, wholly free from eccentricities, with a mind of large dimensions, and a character of great and nobility of a fall and of the propagation of hereditary sin, the ideas of the intercession and royal office of Christ, he rarely touched. He took an active interest only in those doctrines which have a direct and practical bearing on the relation between God and man,—the way in which God communicates himself to man, and through man to the world; the indwelling of the Spirit of God in man, and the unity thereby effected between God and man; Christ as the great example entailing responsibility on every one who looks at it; faith as an organ, not of receptivity, but of spontaneity, etc. His writings have in a literary respect no particular merits; and he himself thought, that, as soon as the Bible was studied as it ought to be studied, they would prove superfluous, and fall into oblivion. The first collected edition of them is that by Guatih, his son-in-law, Zurich, 1545: the last and most complete is that by Schuler and Schulthess, Zurich, 1828—42, supplement, 1881. His correspondence with Ecologus verted to Basei, 1536. Selections from his works have been made by Usteri and Vogelin, Zurich, 1819, 3 vols., and translations into High German by R. Christoffel, Zurich, 1843—46, 11 vols. [The following translations into English are mentioned by Lowndes: The Rekzenyte and Declaration of the Faith and Belefe of Huldrike Szwiny, Zuryk, 1545 (another trans. Geneu, 1555);
Certeigne Precptes, gathered by Hulricus Zwinglius, declaring howe the ingenius Youth ought to be instructed and brought unto Christ, Ipswich, 1548; The Detection of ye Blasphemies and errors of them that say they offer up the Badge of Christ in their Masse, London, 1548; A briefe Rehearsal of the Death, Resurrection and Ascension of Christ, London (n.d.); The Ymage of bothe Pasioners, London, 1550; A short Pathwaye to the ryghte and true Understanding of the holye and sacred Scriptures, Worcester, 1550.]

LIT.—The oldest and reliable sources of Zwingli's life are the biographies by Oswald
Myconius, an intimate friend: Die Huldrich Zwingli fortissimi in eundem obitum, & obit et obit, 1532, republished by Neander in Vita qua-tuor Reform., Berlin, 1841; and that by Heinrich Bullingier: Reformationgeschichte, nach dem Aut ographen herausgegeben von J. J. Hottinger und H.
Vogel, Frauenfeld, 1838, 3 vols. Of modern biographies may be mentioned those by J. M.
Schuler (Zurich, 1819), Sal. Hess (Anna Rein-hard, Guttin u. Wittwe von Zwingli, Zurich, 1819), J. J. Hottinger (Zurich, 1842; Eng. trans., Har-rush, 1857), R. Christoffel (Elberfeld, 1857; Eng. trans., Edinburgh, 1858); [J. C. Mörkofe (Leipzig, 1857—60, 2 parts); G. A. Hoff (Paris, 1882).] For his theological system, see Zeller:
Das theologische System Zwingli's, Tübingen, 1853; Siegwart: U. Zwingli, der Character seiner Theol ologie mit besonderer Rücksicht auf Picas Mirandula, Stutttgart, 1855; [H. Störri: Zwinglistudien, Leipzig, 1895; K. Marthaler: Uber Zwingli's Lehre von der Himmelsmacht, Glauben, Zurich, 1889; H. Bavinck: De ethiek can Ulrich Zwingli, Kampen, 1880. Of recent minor writings may be mentioned, J. Werder: Zwingli als politischer Reformer, Basel, 1882 (pp.
27); H. Störri: Ulrich Zwingli, Hamburg, 1882
(pp. 50); A. Ericsson: Zwingli's Tod u. dessen Beurtheilung durch Zeitgenosse. Zumeist nach un-<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>ZWINGLI.</th>
<th>2580</th>
<th>ZWINGLI.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
APPENDIX.

The unsigned hymnological articles in this Appendix, with the exception of those on the Cary sisters and Gustav Schwab, have been contributed by the Rev. Professor F. M. Bird of Lehigh University, Penn.

AC'CAD. See SHINAR.

ADAMS, Mrs. Sarah Flower, b. at Harlow, Essex, Feb. 22, 1805; d. Aug. 13, 1848; was the second daughter of Benjamin Flower, a well-known Liberal, and long editor of the Cambridge Intelligencer. In 1834 she married William Bridges Adams, an engineer and a writer of some eminence. She published Vivia Perpetua, a dramatic poem, 1841, and The Flock at the Fountain, a catechism with hymns, 1845. Her pastor in London was the able and distinguished William Johnson Fox (1787–1864), who was an Independent, and rather a deist than a Unitarian. To his remarkable Hymns and Anthems (1840–41) she contributed thirteen lyrics, among them the famous “Nearer, my God, to thee.” In later years she is said to have become a Baptist. The story of her supposed residence in America, credited by Sir R. Palmer and Professor Cleveland, had no other basis than a purchase by a cousin of some land in Illinois, whereon her uncle settled in 1822. She has been confounded by Allibone and Dr. Belcher with her elder sister, Eliza Flower (b. at Cambridge, 180—; d. 1847), who set some of Mrs. Adams’s songs to music, wrote sixty-two tunes for Fox’s Hymns and Anthems, and published some poems, called Adoration, Aspiration, and Belief.

ADVENTISTS, the general name of a body, embracing several branches, who look for the proximate personal coming of Christ. William Miller, their founder, was a converted deist, who joined the Baptist church in Low Hampton, N.Y. He became a close student of the Bible, especially of the prophecies, and soon satisfied himself that the advent was to be personal and pre-millennial, and that it was near at hand. He began these studies in 1818, but did not enter upon the work of the ministry until 1831. The year 1843 was the date agreed upon for the advent; subsequent other dates were fixed, the failure of which divided a body of followers which had become quite numerous. In the year of his death (1849) they were estimated at 50,000. Many who had been drawn into the movement by the prevalent excitement left it, and returned to the churches from which they had withdrawn. After the second failure, Mr. Miller and some other leaders discouraged attempts to fix exact dates. On this question and the doctrine of the immortality of the soul, there have been divisions. There are now at least five distinct branches, all of which agree that the second coming of Christ is to be personal and pre-millennial, and that it is near at hand.

The oldest branch is the Evangelical Adventists. They believe in the natural immortality of the soul and in eternal future punishment. They publish a weekly paper in Boston, called Messiah’s Herald. Their number has been estimated at from 5,000 to 9,000.

The most numerous branch is the Advent Christians, who are said to be upwards of 50,000 strong. They have two or three weekly papers, the chief of which is the World’s Crisis of Boston. They also have a few missionary and denominational organizations. They believe that man is material, that the wicked are to be finally destroyed, and that the earth is to be made anew for the abode of the saints.

The third branch, the Seventh-Day Adventists, has a compacted organization, and has grown considerably, especially in the West. Its headquarters are at Battle Creek, Mich., where it has a health-institution, a college, a publishing-house, and other denominational enterprises. It maintains a number of missionaries abroad, and does home missionary work very systematically. It holds that it is still obligatory to observe the seventh day as the sabbath, and believes in visions as seen by Mrs. White, who has published several volumes of visions and testimonies. It numbers 16,000 or 17,000.

The Life and Advent Union, the fourth branch, believe that only the righteous dead will take part in the resurrection. They do not exceed 10,000 in number. They have a weekly paper, published in Springfield, Mass., called the Herald of Life.

The Age-to-come Adventists believe that the Jews are to be re-established in Jerusalem. A weekly paper called The Restitution, published in Plymouth, Ind., represents them. They are not numerous. All these bodies, excepting, perhaps, the Seventh-Day, are Congregational in polity. The latter has a general and annual conference, and is, perhaps, more Presbyterian than Congregational.

The last census credits the Adventists with a total of 90,079 members, including 746 ordained ministers, and with 1,282 churches.

There is no wholly trustworthy literature. History of the Advent Message, by J. D. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me., 1874, is the fullest general history. The Seventh-Day Adventists publish a brief historical sketch of their own branch, with a statement of belief. The literature on the annihilation controversy is abundant. H. K. CARROLL.

ADVOWSON is the right of presentation to a church or ecclesiastical benefice. It is synonymous with patronage. Advowsons are appendant (apart from the possession of the manor), de gross (by legal conveyance separated from such possession), presentative (where the patron has absolute right of presentation), collative (where the bishop is also the patron), donative (where the patron puts the clergyman in possession by a simple written donation). See Dictionary of the English Church, Ancient and Modern, London and New York, 1881, s.v.

ALLATIUS, Leo (Leone Allacci), b. of Greek Catholic parents on the Island of Chios, 1588; d. in Rome, Jan. 19, 1609. He early manifested aptitude for learning, became a Roman Catholic, entered the Greek college at Rome (1600), and was graduated as doctor of theology and philosophy. For the next three years he taught in the seminary of the Bishop of Anglona, then became vicar-general of the Latin bishop of Chios, returned to Rome, took the degree of doctor of medicine (1616), became assistant in the Vatican Library, and professor of rhetoric in the Greek college; which latter position he resigned a few years afterwards. In 1622 Pope Gregory XV. sent him to Heidelberg to superintend the removal to Rome of the Palatinate library, which the Emperor Maximilian had given to the Pope. This he accomplished (arriving at Rome Aug. 5, 1623), best of all with many difficulties; but Gregory XV.'s death (July 8, 1623) prevented his being rewarded for his valuable services, since the new pope, Urban VIII., did not like him. By the influence and assistance of friends—Cardinal Barberini made him his librarian—he was able, however, to continue his work in the Vatican Library and upon his private studies. In 1631 Alexander VII. appointed him custodian of the Vatican. His services to Greek learning, secular and patristic, are inestimable. There is scarcely an author among the Greek Fathers concerning whom he did not do some pioneer work, but his judgment by no means equalled his learning. One of the interests which lay near his heart was the union between the Greek and Latin churches, and his great learning was freely displayed to prove the insignificance of the separating causes. His principal writings upon this subject are De ecclesiae orientalis et orientali persecutae consensione, Cologne, 1648; De utrisque ecclesiae in dogmate de purgatorio consensione, Rome, 1655; De symbolo Athonasii, 1639; Vindiciae Synodi Ephesinae et S. Cyrilli de processione Spiritus Sancto ex Patre et Filio, 1632, 1652. He wrote also upon Johannas Papias (1630), Grosz orthodoxa (1622, 1659, 2 vols.), and innumerable topics connected with church history, philosophy, literary criticism, etc. His correspondence and his literary remains are found in the library of the Oratorians in Rome.

For further information, see Stephn Gradi, Lexicon Allaticum (Anthophylla Allatica), published by A. Mai, in Bibl. nova Patrum VI., ii. 5-28; Tkiner: Schenkung der Heidelb. Bibliothek, München, 1844; Ranke: Gesch. der Ppste, ii. 306, and Appendix.

ALLEINE, Joseph, Nonconformist; b. at Devizes, 1634; d. Nov. 17, 1668. He was educated at Oxford, and took the degree of B.D. July 6, 1653; became chaplain to his college (Corpus Christi); resigned in 1655, to become assistant minister in Taunton. On Aug. 24, 1662, he was ejected from his benefice, but preached whenever he had opportunity to do so; he was imprisoned; released May 26, 1664; again imprisoned, within a year, as violator of the Five Mile Act, and again released. His last few years were troubled by constant danger of arrest for preaching. Before his ejection he had proved himself a model pastor. He had also remarkable learning. He associated as an equal with the fellows of the Royal Society, and concerned himself with scientific study and research. It is, however, as the author of An Alarm to Unconverted Sinners, that he is now remembered. This little book appeared in 1672, and has been ever since a religious classic. It is the fruit of a consecrated life. In 1675 its title was changed to A Sure Guide to Heaven. He wrote also an Explanation of the Assembly's Catechism (1659), and other works. See his Life by Baxter (London, 1672) and by Charles Stanford (1861).

ALLEN, James, b. at Gayle, Yorkshire, June 24, 1734; d. there Oct. 31, 1804; was one of the Inghamite preachers from 1769 to 1761, then associated with Glaz and Sandeman, and during his later years ministered at a chapel which he built on his own estate. He edited the Kendall Hymn-Book, 1737, and, with W. and C. Batty, wrote most of its contents. One or two of his hymns are still used.

ANAN THE KARAITE. See Karaites Jews.

ANDREW, one of the twelve apostles, brother of Peter, like him born in Bethesda (John i. 41, 46), and a member of Peter's family in Capernaum (Mark i. 21, 29). His name, although Greek, was common among Jews (Dio Cassius, 68, 32). According to John (i. 36 sqq.), Andrew was the first one to follow Jesus in consequence of the Baptist's testimony, and the one to introduce Peter to Jesus. In Jesus' later Galilean choice of disciples, the two brothers were the first called to the apostleship (Matt. iv. 18 sqq.; Mark i. 16 sqq.). It is not, therefore, without good grounds that the Greeks give to Andrew the epitaph πρωτοελπιστος. The Gospels evidence, that next to Peter, James, and John, Andrew with Philip occupied a prominent place among the twelve (Mark iii. 16, xii. 3; John vi. 8, xii. 22; Acts i. 13). Yet in the Acts he is, like almost all the other apostles, barely mentioned. The apocryphal Acta of Andrew (Tischendorf: Acta appocr., pp. 105 sqq.), which is distinguished from the other apocryphal Acts by its relatively earlier attestation (Tischendorf, l.c. Proleg. xx. sqq.), relates that he labored in Greece, but Eusebius (H. E., III. 1) says in Scythia. According to tradition he was crucified on Nov. 30, at Patrae in Achaia, by the proconsul Egeas, and upon a Cruz decussata (X), hence called a "St. Andrew's cross." See, on the traditional Andrew, Fabricius, Commentariolus, p. 66 (2d ed.); Scholten: Apok. Apostelgesch., i. pp. 549-527; Karl Schmidt.

ANSTICE, Joseph, b. at Madeley Wood, Shropshire, 1808; d. at Torquay, Feb. 29, 1836; was educated at Westminster and Oxford, where he graduated with great distinction, and when only twenty-two became professor of classical literature at King's College, London. He wrote some prize essays, poems, etc., and translated Selections from the Greek Dramatic Writers, 1832. His fifty-four Hymns appeared posthumously in 1838; and twenty-seven of them were incorporated in Mrs. Yonge's Child's Christian Year, 1841. Several of them are much used.

ANTI-MISSION BAPTISTS (Primitive or Old-School Baptists) agree with the regular Baptists, except in their opposition to missions, Sunday schools, and similar church enterprises. The Chemung Association (New York and Pennsylvania) in September, 1835, withdrew fellowship with those associations which countenanced such enterprises; in May, 1836, the Baltimore Association did the same; and similar divisions ran through other churches and associations, mostly in the South and West. In 1842 he was deposed. From belonging to the Anti-Mission Baptist Associations, 1,622 churches, 900 ministers, 61,162 members; in 1883 The Baptist Year-Book gives these Baptists 900 churches, 400 ministers, and 40,000 members; but the figures are doubtless too high. See Baptist Encyclopedia, pp. 77, 79.

AWTREY, Lyman Hotchkiss, D.D., LL.D., b. at Hadem, Conn., Feb. 23, 1815; d. at Princeton, N.J., Feb. 17, 1883. He was graduated at Yale College, 1831; was a tutor and theological student at Yale, 1832-35; pastor of the First Congregational Church in Fairfield, Conn., 1835-54; and from 1854 till his death a professor in the college at Princeton, N.J., at first of mental and moral philosophy, afterwards of logic and moral and political science. His numerous contributions to the Princeton Review, of which he became an editor in 1856, and to other periodicals, were of marked ability, and gave him a high place among American theologians. In 1867 he published A Manual of Logic, Philadelphia.

AUBER, Henriette, b. in London, Oct. 4, 1778; d. at Huddesdon, Herts, Jan. 20, 1862; lived in retirement at Broxbourne and Hoddesdon, and was reprinted, 1846. It includessome forty hymns remarkable for freshness and fervency, and was reprinted, 1846. It contains the best versions published during the century, although full of learning. He outdid Strauss in that he traced Christianity to the conscience of Roman emperors, and dissuaded by Byron and Lamb from trusting wholly to authorship. He published Metrical Effusions, 1812; Poems, 1820; Napoleon, 1822; Poetic Vigils, 1824; Devotional Verses, 1827; Household Verses, 1845; and others. His muse, if not wise or strong or striking, is pleasing, pure, and pious. One or two of his pieces have been used as hymns, and many of them are found in the collections of sacred poetry. His Memoirs and Letters were edited by his daughter.

BATHURST, William Hiley, b. at Cleve Dale, near Bristol, Aug. 31, 1799; d. at Sydney Park, Gloucestershire, 1877; was educated at Winchester and Oxford, and in 1820 became rector of Barwick-in-Elmet, Yorkshire. This living he resigned, 1852, and retired to Darleydale, Derbyshire, removing in 1863 to his inherited estate of Sydney Park. He published An Essay on the Limits of Human Knowledge, 1827; Metrical Musings, 1849; The Georgics of Virgil translated, 1851; and Psalms and Hymns, 1831, 2d ed., 1842. Of his two hundred and six hymns many have been used in England, and a few are well known in America, especially "Oh for a faith that will not shrink!"

BAUER, Bruno, b. at Eisenberg, Saxony, Sept. 9, 1809; d. near Berlin, April 13, 1882. He was educated at Berlin; became a licentiate of theology there in 1834, privatdozent at Bonn in 1838, and extraordinary professor there in 1839. In 1842 he was deposed. From belonging to the right of the Hegelian school, he turned in 1839 to the left. He undertook the Tubingen school in that he gave up all the Pauline Epistles. He outdid Strauss in that he traced Christianity to the conscience of Roman emperors, and dissuaded by Byron and Lamb from trusting whole to authorship. He published Critik der evange-BEAUMONT. 2584 Begg.

BEAUMONT, Joseph, D.D., b. at Hadleigh in Suffolk, March 13, 1615; d. at Cambridge, Nov. 23, 1659; was educated at Peterhouse, Cambridge, and became a fellow there, but was ejected by the Puritans in 1644. At the Restoration he became a king's chaplain and D.D.; master of Jesus College, 1662, and of Peterhouse, 1663; rector of Feversham near Cambridge, 1663, and of Barley in Hertfordshire, 1664; and professor of divinity, 1674. In 1695 he had a controversy with Henry More, and received the thanks of the university for it. His Psyche, or Love's Mystery, the longest English poem, was begun in April, 1647, finished the following March, and published in folio, 1648. The second edition (1702) has 24 cantos and 38,922 lines, with occasional emendations. Pope said, "There are in it a great many flowers well worth gathering." His shorter Poems in English and Latin, with a memoir, appeared in quarto, 1749. These are extracted from his manuscripts written in the summer of 1652 and earlier. Though little known, and written with small attention to polish, a few of these poems are in the noblest style of that heroic age. If Beaumont had not the pathos of Herbert, he sometimes approaches the bluntness of Viver, the wit of Quarles, and the sublimity of Viller.

BEDDOME, Benjamin, b. at Henley-in-Arden, Warwickshire, Jan. 23, 1717; d. at Bourton, Gloucestershire, Sept. 3, 1795; spent his early years in London and at Bristol, and from 1740 was Baptist pastor at Bourton-on-the-water. Modest and unambitious, he declined a London charge, and left his writings, except an Exposition of the Baptist Catechism (1732), to be published by others. Twenty of his sermons appeared 1805, and sixty-seven, with a memoir, in 1835, forty years after his death. His eight hundred and thirty Hymns were gathered 1818; some sixty-four of them having been included in Rippon's Selection, 1787-1800. Many of these were widely used in former days, and some of them hold place still. Among hymnists of the old sober school—i.e., followers of Watts, with no taint of Wesleyanism and trochaic metres—Beddome stands high, ranking, probably, next to Doddridge and Steele. James Montgomery, in the Introduction to his Christian Psalmist (1825), gave a somewhat exaggerated estimate of his verses, finding them "very agreeable as well as impressive, being, for the most part, brief and fitting," and crediting them with "the terseness and simplicity of the Greek epigram." Other critics have hardly confirmed this judgment, but the lyrics have a modest usefulness yet.

BEGG, James, D.D., a distinguished minister of the Free Church of Scotland; was b. at New Monkland, near Airdrie, in Lanarkshire, where his father was parish minister, Oct. 31, 1808. Having been raised to the ministry at Maxwellton, Dumfriesshire, in May, 1830, and from the first was a powerful and popular preacher. From Maxwellton he was transferred to Edinburgh as assistant to Mr. Jones of Lady Glenorchy's; thence to the Middle Parish, Paisley; thence, in 1835, to Liberton, near Edinburgh; and in 1842 to Edinburgh. In 1817 he had a church built at Newington in Edinburgh. There he ministered till his death, which took place at Edinburgh, Sep. 29, 1888. In 1847 he received the degree of D.D. from Lafayette College, Pennsylvania. In 1865 he was chosen moderator of the General Assembly of the Free Church.

Dr. Begg began his career as an ardent supporter of evangelical views, and a very decided opponent of the "moderate" party in the church. He was strongly opposed to lay patronage, and an enthusiastic supporter of Dr. Chalmers in his church-extension scheme. He was at the same time an opponent of voluntaryism, and contended eagerly for the establishment and support of the Church by the State. When the aggressions of the civil courts on the jurisdiction of the Church took place, he resisted them strenuously, and broke the interdicts of the Court of Session by preaching in the parishes of the suspended ministers of Strathbogie, contrary to the requirements of the civil courts. At the convocation of ministers in 1842, held to deliberate as to the propriety of dissolving the connection with the State, Dr. Begg was disposed to continue to fight the battle within the Establishment; but in May, 1843, he left along with his brethren. In the Free Church, Dr. Begg from the first was a conspicuously powerful man. From an early period he showed a disposition to take his own course on several points, against the course recommended by Drs. Candlish, Buchanan, and other leading men; and this disposition became more and more pronounced, till latterly he was the recognized chief of a party of opposition, usually a somewhat small minority. In the discussion on union with the United Presbyterian and other churches, Dr. Begg's attitude of opposition and that of his friends was so serious and decided, that the project for an incorporating union had to be abandoned. What Dr. Begg was alarmed at was lest the door should be thrown open to voluntary views, and lest the severance of Church and State, and of all religion from matters under the control of the State, should follow. Dr. Begg thought that he saw unwholesome tendencies at work in this direction, and on various other questions he adopted more and more a conservative attitude. He opposed the use of hymns in public worship, and looked with horror on instrumental music. In these movements he found his greatest support in the Highlands, and many in that part of the country looked on him as a barrier set up to prevent the Church and the flood. In the Robertson Smith case he was most strenuous in opposing the views of the new critical school. Dr. Begg took a lively interest in the conflict with Popery, and was a strong advocate for the due observance of the sabbath. In many social questions he strenuously upheld the rights of the people. He was a vigorous advocate of better homes for the working-classes; and one of the last acts of his life was to show his sympathy with Highlanders from Rosebery, who had been imprisoned for preventing a goods' train from running one Lord's Day.
Bellows, Henry Whitney, D.D., prominent Unitarian clergyman; b. in Walpole, N.H., June 10, 1814; d. in New York, Monday, Jan. 30, 1882. He was graduated at Harvard College, 1832, and at the Divinity School, 1837; was called to the First Congregational (Unitarian) Society, subsequently known as All Souls' Unitarian Church, New York, 1838, and remained their pastor till his death. He was faithful, energetic, zealous, and at times eloquent. An indefatigable worker and a man of broad sympathies, he connected himself prominently with all the best movements of art, literature, history, education, and philanthropy in the city. By his connection with the United States Sanitary Commission (1861-66) during the American civil war, of which he was one of the organizers, president, and tireless advocate, he achieved a national reputation, and thereby was given a splendid opportunity to advance the cause of missions, which have proved of great benefit in the labor of these pious sisters; and though every brother could not be said to be without fault, yet of these devout sisters it may be said, not one of them disgraced her sex or the cause of Christ.

After some years, however, from various causes, instead of increasing, the number of female preachers grew less; so that, at the conference of 1882, members grew less; so that, at the conference of 1882, members grew less; so that, at the conference of 1882, the consent of all, Mr. O'Bryan presided at these assemblies, and, without being appointed to any membership had risen to 9,839. For some years the conference consisted of preachers only; and, by the consent of all, Mr. O'Bryan presided at these assemblies, and, without being appointed to any membership had risen to 9,839. For some years the conference consisted of preachers only; and, by the consent of all, Mr. O'Bryan presided at these assemblies, and, without being appointed to any membership had risen to 9,839. For some years the conference consisted of preachers only; and, by the consent of all, Mr. O'Bryan presided at these assemblies, and, without being appointed to any membership had risen to 9,839. For some years the conference consisted of preachers only; and, by the consent of all, Mr. O'Bryan presided at these assemblies, and, without being appointed to any membership had risen to 9,839. For some years the conference consisted of preachers only; and, by the consent of all, Mr. O'Bryan presided at these assemblies, and, without being appointed to any membership had risen to 9,839. For some years the conference consisted of preachers only; and, by the consent of all, Mr. O'Bryan presided at these assemblies, and, without being appointed to any membership had risen to 9,839. For some years the conference consisted of preachers only; and, by the consent of all, Mr. O'Bryan presided at these assemblies, and, without being appointed to any membership had risen to 9,839. For some years the conference consisted of preachers only; and, by the consent of all, Mr. O'Bryan presided at these assemblies, and, without being appointed to any membership had risen to 9,839. For some years the conference consisted of preachers only; and, by the consent of all, Mr. O'Bryan presided at these assemblies, and, without being appointed to any membership had risen to 9,839. For some years the conference consisted of preachers only; and, by the consent of all, Mr. O'Bryan presided at these assemblies, and, without being appointed to any membership had risen to 9,839. For some years the conference consisted of preachers only; and, by the consent of all, Mr. O'Bryan presided at these assemblies, and, without being appointed to any membership had risen to 9,839.
BIBLE CHRISTIANS.

O'Bryan and some others he called out as preachers to assist him. Each party claimed the right of property, and an unhappy conflict and rivalry continued for about two years. God, however, who so greatly blessed Mr. O'Bryan's labors at first, did not prosper him in this movement. Ultimately a reconciliation took place. The members and friends of the preachers withdrew from connection with Mr. O'Bryan, returned to the other party; and Mr. O'Bryan left England for America, and settled in New York, where he died Jan. 8, 1806. He never became nominally united to the Bible Christians after he left; but a friendly intercourse was kept up, and Mr. O'Bryan paid more than one visit to his friends in England. He also once visited the Bible Christians in Canada, and after the re-union he received a liberal annuity from the English conference till his death. His error was one of judgment rather than of principle, for he still lived an exemplary Christian life till his earthly course terminated. Before the separation from Mr. O'Bryan, the work had extended from Devon and Cornwall to the Scilly Islands, the Norman Isles, Somerset, Wales, Isle of Wight, Portsmouth, London, Kent, and Sussex. In 1831 missionaries were sent to Canada and Prince Edward Island, and subsequently to the United States, Australia, Melbourne, New Zealand, and Queensland. In 1865 the jubilee of the denomination was held, and a jubilee volume published at the book-room, 26 Paternoster Row, London, Eng. Before this, in 1854, the American work was organized into a separate conference; and the same privilege was subsequently granted to South Australia. In 1862, under the government of the Canadian conference, there were ten districts,—one in Prince Edward Island, six in Ontario, one in Manitoba, and two in the United States, one of which is in the State of Ohio, and the other in Wisconsin. On these stations there were 81 itinerary preachers, and 7,531 members. The Australian conference has 31 ministers and 2,306 members. Victoria, New Zealand, and Queensland are not as yet invested with confessional powers. The entire denomination as reported in 1882 had a membership of over 34,000, with 200 ministers. The denominational school or college it is not called, situated at Shebearn, in the County of Dev, Eng. It has three publishing-houses, one at 26 Paternoster Row, London, Eng., another in Bowmanville, Ontario, Can., and the third in Adelaide, South Australia. In doctrine the Bible Christian Church is Methodist, according to the recognized standards; and their polity is liberal, admitting to all their church courts the laity as well as ministers. The name "Bible Christian" was not assumed in disrespect to other Christian bodies, as though they were unworthy of the appellation but having seen them first given them because the preachers made so much use of the Bible in their sermons, family visits, and their closets, they adopted it, as they desired that both their faith and practice should be in harmony with divine revelation as contained in the Bible, and they did not wish to be called after any mere sect bearing the same name in the Eastern States of America this denomination has no connection. H. J. Nott (Editor The Observer, Bowmanville, Ont., a B. C. organ).

BLACKLOCK, Thomas, D.D., b. at Annan in Scotland, 1721; d. at Edinburgh, July 7, 1791; lost his sight when six months old, yet became a man of learning and literary activity. He studied at the university of Edinburgh, and was licensed as a preacher in 1759. Among his publications are Poems, 1754; Parables, 1767; A Panaegyric on Great Britain, 1773; The Gavham, 1774; and a few hymns still somewhat used.

BODEN, James, b. at Chester, 1757; d. at Chesterfield, June 4, 1841; was Congregational pastor at Hanley, Staffordshire, for fifteen years, and at Sheffield, 1786—1839. He was one of the founders of the London Missionary Society in 1795, and in 1801, with Edward Williams, D.D., issued a collection of hymns supplementary to Watts, which was one of the most creditable and useful hymnals up to its date. It contained a few of his own.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY, School of Theology of. This oldest of the theological seminaries of the Methodist-Episcopal Church was projected in 1839, the first centennial year of British Methodism. In connection with the then strong academical institution in Newbury, Vt., instruction was commenced in 1840, though for lack of funds the institution could not be independently established and officered until 1847. At this latter date, under a charter from the Legislature of New Hampshire, it was opened at Concord, N. H., as the Methodist General Biblical Institute. Its first faculty included men of marked character, such as the Rev. John Dumpest, D.D., later the projector and organizer of the theological school at Evanston, Ill.; the Rev. John W. Merrill, D.D., who was called from the presidency of McKendree College; the Rev. Osmon C. Baker, D.D., soon to be chosen one of the bishops of the church; the Rev. Stephen M. Vail, D.D., the enthusiastic Hefraist; the Rev. Charles Adams, D.D.; and, a little later, the saintly David Patten, D.D.

In connection with the celebration of the centennial of American Methodism, the school was more adequately endowed; and, as a consequence, it was removed to Boston, re-organized, and opened in the fall of 1876 as the Boston Theological Seminary. In 1871 it was merged into the newly established Boston University, taking the name which it now bears. Its chief benefactors were the same men who founded the university,—Isaac Rich, Lee Claffin, Jacob Sleeper, and Governor William Claffin.

The curriculum of the school is of unusual breadth. In addition to all the branches ordinarily taught in similar institutions, it presents a great variety of elective studies in ancient and modern languages, philosophy, and the moral sciences. It was the first in America to maintain a regular course in the local encyclopaedia and methodology, and another in the science of missions. It has long maintained a required course of one year in the history of Christian philosophy in its relations to Christian doctrine. It was the first to give three hours a week for one year to the study of the ethical relations, comparative theology, and the philosophical nature of religion. It has had advanced classes in which the instruction was wholly in German, with the use of German text-books, and original German lectures. It has maintained missionary classes.
BROWNE, Matthew, D.D., LL.D., b. in Northumberland County, Penn., 1776; d. at Pittsburgh, Penn., July 29, 1853. He was graduated at Dickinson College, 1794; pastor at Millin: called to Washington, D.C., in 1803, and was settled in that city, 1805, and principal of the academy, Oct. 16, 1805. In 1806 a charter was obtained, and Washington College began. Dr. Brown president. Success here in all functions pronounced. Resigned presidency in 1816, continued pastorate until 1822, then called to Jefferson College, Canonsburgh, Penn. He was called to the second pastorate of the church, and was the last president of the college. He was a man of great and growing popular power, told in the rapid development of the institution. In twenty-three years the graduates numbered seven hundred and seventy-two. "Nearly one-half entered the ministry, and not a few went as foreign missionaries." (Brown son.) Six years after leaving Washington he was invited to resume his place there as pastor and president, but declined. Yet at his death he was, according to his own request, buried there.

BROWN, Phoebe (Hinsdale), b. at Canaan, N.Y., May 1, 1783; d. at Marshall, Henry County, Ill., Oct. 10, 1861; was left an orphan at two, and never learned to read or write till eighteen. Her youth was passed under "intense and cruel suffering," and her whole life in poverty and trouble. She married Timothy H. Brown, a painter, and went to Ellington, Conn.; there, in August, 1818, her famous "I love to steal a while away" was written, under circumstances, probably, the most pathetic that have attended the origin of any hymn. It was altered and abridged by Nettleton, or some one else, and appeared, with two more by her, in Village Hymns, 1824. She contributed other hymns, some of them still popular, to later collections, and wrote sundry newspaper articles, tracts, and a volume of tales, The Tree and its Fruits, N.Y., 1836. After living some thirty years at Monson, Mass., her last years were spent with a daughter in Illinois. Her autobiography was "written at the urgent request of her children, at Chicago, in 1849," and, with her poetical manuscripts, is preserved by the family of her son, Dr. S. R. Brown, the first American missionary to Japan, who was not alone in reverently cherishing her memory. (See New-York Independent for Jan. 6, Jan. 20, and April 14, 1881.) "My history," she wrote, "is soon told,—a sinner saved by grace and sanctified by trials.

BROWN, George, the first Protestant archbishop of Dublin; d. about 1586. He was graduated at Oxford, and was an Augustinian friar when he embraced the Reformation. On March 19, 1535, he was consecrated archbishop of Dublin. In consequence of his reformatory labors he was deposed by Queen Mary.

BROWNE, Peter, b. in Ireland about 1680; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; consecrated bishop of Cork and Ross, 1710; d. 1735. His principal works are The procedure, extent, and limits of human understanding, 1728, 2d ed., 1729 (an able critique of Locke's Essay); Things divine and supernatural conceived by analogy with things natural and human, 1733 (asserts that God's essence and attributes can only be expressed analogically).

BROWNE, Simon, b. at Shepton Mallet, Somersetshire, about 1680; d. 1732; was Independent pastor at Portsmouth, and from 1716 at Old Jewry, London. This charge he gave up in 1723, when laboring under a serious illness,—a case long cited in books of mental philosophy. In that year, grief for the deaths of his wife and son, and of a highwayman whom he had killed unintentionally and in self-defence, unhinged his mind, though only in one particular. He maintained that God had "annihilated in him the consciousness," and replied to a friend who instanced his learned and laborious occupations, "I am doing nothing that requires a reasonable soul: I am making a dictionary." Yet, as Toplady said, "instead of having no soul, he wrote and reasoned and prayed as if he had two." His publications numbered twenty-three, including _A Disquisition on the Trinity_, and a defence of Christianity against Woolston, etc. Prior to his misfortunes, he appeared _Sermons_, 1722, and two earlier treatises, besides two hundred and sixty-six _Hymns and Spiritual Songs_, 1720. This last is an important volume, and places him high in the school of Watts, whom he was the first to follow in order of time. His hymns, if not eminently poetical, are unusually solid: their strongly ethical character has caused many of them to be long and largely used by Unitarians, though Browne himself was rigidly Orthodox; and a few of them are still general favorites, as eminently, "Come, gracious Spirit."

BRUCE, Michael, b. at Kinnesswood, Kinross-shire, March 27, 1748; d. there July 5, 1767; is the hero of one of the most pathetic chapters in literary history. The son of a poor weaver, he was designed for the ministry, and managed to study at Edinburgh; but severe labors and privations cut short his promising career. His parents intrusted his poetical manuscripts to his friend Logan, who published a few of them in 1770, and in 1781 printed nine hymns and the famous _Ode to the Cuckoo_ as his own. The Rev. A. B. Grosart, in _The Works of Michael Bruce_, with _Memoir and Notes_, 1855, has done justice to his memory, and exposed Logan's villany. Several of Bruce's lyrics were admitted among the Scotch Para-tential, is always grave, and often devout. His hymns appeared in various collections from 1820 to 1878, beginning with the New-York Unitarian Collection, and ending with the _Methodist Hymnal_; and nineteen were privately printed in 1869. Some of these have been widely used.

BULFINCH, Stephen Greenleaf, D.D., b. in Boston, June 18, 1809; d. at East Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 12, 1870; graduated at Columbia College, Washington, D.C., 1827, and at the Cambridge Theological School, 1830; Unitarian minister at Charleston, S.C. (1831), Pittsburgh (1837), Washington (1838), Nashua, N.H. (1840) and Dorchester (1852), East Cambridge (1865). Besides sundry prose-works, he published _Contemplations of the Saviour_, 1832; _Poems_, Charleston, 1834; _Lays of the Gospel_, 1845; _Harp and Cross_ (a selection), 1857. His hymns possess considerable merit, and have been rather extensively used.

BURNHAM, Richard, b. 1749; d. in London, Oct. 30, 1810; was a Baptist minister, and wrote some three hundred and twenty hymns, which appeared 1783 and 1796. They are of a low order, but have had success in certain quarters.

BYRON, John, b. at Kersall, near Manchester, 1691; d. there Sept. 28, 1763; entered Trinity College, Cambridge, 1708, and became a fellow of it, 1714; contributed to the _Spectator_; invented a system of shorthand, and taught it with much success; became F.R.S., 1724; succeeded to the family estate at Kersall, and spent his later years there in peace and honor. Though a disciple of Jacob Behmen and other mystics, he was a man of great acuteness and equanimity, and combined ardent piety with views then novel. His _Poems_, written in easy, colloquial style, for his own and his friends' amusement, were printed posthumously in 1773 and 1814, and his _Literary Remains_ in 1867. He wrote some of the best epigrams in the language, and a _Christmas-hymn_ which is in almost universal use in England.

CARLYLE, Joseph Dacre, b. at Carlisle, June 4, 1758; d. at Newcastle, April 12, 1804; was professor of Arabic at Cambridge, 1734, and, later, chancellor of Carlisle, and vicar of Newcastle-on-Tyne. He published _Specimens of Arabic Poetry_, 1796, etc. His _Poems_ appeared in quarto, 1805, including a hymn now in nearly universal use.

CARY, the name of two sisters, Alice (b. near Cincinnati, O., April 28, 1820; d. in New-York City, Feb. 12, 1871) and Phoebe (b. Sept. 4, 1824; d. at Newport, R.I., July 31, 1878). They were joint workers in literature, and published a volume of poems in 1850. In 1852 they came to New-York City, and supported themselves by literary work. Their poems and prose-writings are much admired. Phoebe Cary's "One sweetly solemn thought," written when but seventeen years old, has passed into all hymn-books. Her _Poems of Faith, Hope, and Love_ (1898) sold widely. See M. C. Ames: _Alice and Phoebe Cary_, N.Y., 1871.

CASWALL, Edward, b. July 15, 1814, at Yatety, in Hampshire; d. Jan. 2, 1878; was educated at Brasenose College, Oxford; ordained deacon 1838, and priest 1839; perpetual curate of Stratford-sub-Castle, near Salisbury, 1840. In 1846 he resigned this charge, and in January, 1847, exchanged the Church of England for that of Rome. His wife dying in 1849, he entered Dr. J. H. Newman's Congregation of the Oratory in Bir-

BRUCE. 2588  CASWALL.
CHRISTADELPHIANS.

Chandlers, John, b. at Witley, Surrey, June 16, 1806; d. at Putney, July 1, 1876; has a leading place among translators of Latin hymns. He studied at Corpus Christi College, Oxford, graduating, 1827; was ordained, 1831; became vicar of Witney, 1837, and afterwards rural dean. He published Life of William of Wykeham, 1842; Hora Sacra, 1864; and sundry sermons and tracts, besides his great work (in quality, not in size, for it is a moderate 12mo), Hymns of the Primitive Church, 1837. This volume, now rare, contains a hundred and eight Latin hymns, with translations of his own. The renderings are simple and unpretentious, but of such solid merit that a large number of them have attained wide acceptance in the English Church, and not a few have come into use elsewhere. In the important service of adapting to modern use the treasures of Latin hymnody, Chandler had no immediate or notable predecessors, except J. H. Newman. Bishop Mant's Ancient Hymns appeared the same year; and the books of Isaac Williams, Caswall, Cope-land, R. Campbell, Neale, Chambers, and others, later. Chandler's influence on all these must have been great; and none of them has done as good work in this field except Caswall, and perhaps Neale: so that, both directly and indirectly, his modest labors have been very fruitful. It is one of several cases in which very moderate poetical talents have produced eminent hymnic benefactions. A much smaller work, Hymns of the Church, 1841, has its contents mostly selected from the former, but contains some altered or added versions, and a few originals.

CHRISTADELPHIANS, a small sect originating in this country half a century ago. They call themselves Christadelphians because of the belief that all that are in Christ are his brethren, and designate their congregations as "ecclesias" to "distinguish them from the so-called churches of the apostasy." John Thomas, M. D., the founder, seceded from the Disciples of Christ, and established a separate denomination, because he believed, that, though the Disciples were the most "apostolic and scripturally enlightened religious organization in America," the religious teaching of the day was contrary to the teaching of the Bible. It is not known how many "ecclesias" there are in this country. Jersey City has one or two, and there is one in Philadelphia, and one in Washington. A few have been organized in England, where most of the literature of the denomination is printed.

Christadelphians reject the Trinity. They believe in one supreme God, who dwells in unapproachable light; in Jesus Christ, in whom was manifest the eternal spirit of God, and who died for the offenders of sinners, and rose for the justification of believing men and women; in one baptism only,—immersion, the "burial with Christ in water into death to sin," which is essential to salvation; in immortality only in the resurrection of the wicked, but not in eternal torment; in hell, not as a place of torment, but as the grave; in the resurrection of the just and unjust; in the utter annihilation of the wicked, and in the non-resurrection of those who have never heard the gospel, lack in intelligence (as infants), or are sunk in ignorance or brutality; in a second coming of Christ to establish his kingdom on earth, which is to be fitted for the everlasting abode of the saints; in the proximity of this second coming; in Satan as a scriptural personification of sin; in the millennial reign of Christ on earth over the nations during which sin and death will continue in a milder degree, and after which Christ will surrender his position of supremacy, and God will reveal himself, and become Father and Governor of a complete family; in salvation only for those who can understand the faith as taught by the Christadelphians, and become obedient to it.

Lit. — The works of Dr. THOMAS: Eipis Israel, Eureka, also, in pamphlet form, Anastasis, Phen- rosis, The Revealed Mystery, The Apostasy Un-COAN.

Peter, an American manufacturer, inventor, and philanthropist; was b. Feb. 12, 1791, in New York, and d. there April 4, 1883. His grandfather and father were soldiers in the American Revolution, after which his father resumed business as a hatter. Peter was the fifth of nine children, seven of whom were boys. He attended Africa. In 1874 Bishop Colenso visited England, and reported to the Archbishop of Canterbury. He was a warm friend of the Zulus.

Besides the book already mentioned, and which called forth a library of attacks and replies (some of value), Bishop Colenso published Natal Sermons, 1883; The Peucetius and the Moabite Stone, 1873; The New "Bible Commentary" Examined, 1874; and several mathematical text-books, a Zulu grammar, dictionary, and translation of the New Testament, and Prayer-Book.

COLEMAN, Lyman, D.D., Congregationalist; b. at Blackheath, near London, April 14, 1782; d. in London, Jan. 9, 1854; was educated at Homerton College, and for half a century was one of the most eminent and popular dissenting ministers in the metropolis. He published Lectures on Scripture Facts, 1807; Prophecy, 1809; Miracles 1812; Parables, 1815; Doctrines, 1820; Comparisons, 1822; also a large and important Supplement to Watts (1812), containing fifty-eight hymns of his own, and a book of Services (1887), with eighty-nine more. He also contributed thirty-nine to Leifchild's Original Hymns, 1859. His best and most familiar lyrics are among the fifty-eight earliest, which are generally graceful, though sometimes too ornate.

CONDÉR, Josiah, b. in London, 1789; d. Dec. 27, 1855; was a Congregational layman and a voluminous author, memorable for his services to hymnology. Being a publisher in early life, he purchased the Eclectic Review in 1814, and conducted it till 1887. He edited The Patriot from 1832 till his death. His prose-works are, Protestant Nonconformity, 1818-19, 3 vols.; The Village Lecturer, 1822; The Law of the Sabbath, 1830; the Modern Traveller, 1830, 30 vols.; Italy, 1831, 3 vols.; A Dictionary of Geography, Ancient and Modern, 1834; Epistle to the Hebrews, 1834; Life of Bunyan, 1835; View of all Religions, 1838; Exposition of the Apocalypse, Literary History of the New Testament, 1845; Poet of the Sanctuary, 1851. The last is a eulogy on Dr. Watts, read before the Congregational sensation in 1850. In 1856 he published The Associate Ministers (with others), 1910; The Star in the East, etc., 1824; and Choir and Oratory, 1837. His Hymns of Praise, Prayer, and Devout Meditation appeared posthumously in 1856. He edited The Congregational Hymn-Book, a Supplement to Watts, 1839, containing some sixty-two pieces of his own, and four by his wife. Of this meritorious and memorable collection ninety thousand copies were sold in seven years; and ten, in a slight revised form (1844), it remained the official book till 1856. His revised and expurgated edition of Watts (1838) was less successful, as at that date Watts's entire was ceasing to be used. Condér's own hymns always show a devout and cultivated mind, and in elegance and taste are far above the average. Some of them are widely known and used, especially "Bread of heaven, on thee I feed."

COOPER.

The result of the trouble was, that, while Bishop Colenso remained the only bishop of the Church of England in Natal, there was at Cape Town a bishop of Maritzburg for the Province of South school for part of one year only; learned and practiced his father's trade; and at the age of seventeen, the family having left New York, he returned thither, and apprenticed himself for four years to a carriage-maker. Upon a salary of twenty-five dollars a year and board, he kept out of debt, and saved money. His industry and inventive ingenuity won the favor of his employer, who offered to loan him the necessary capital to establish himself in business. Not wishing to assume the burden of debt, he declined this offer, and went as a workman on day-wages to a woolen-factory at Hempstead, L.I. Here he perfected a machine for shearing the nap from cloth, which he patented, and this machine found for a brief period relief of his father, thereby seriously embarrassed.

At the close of the war with England, Mr. Cooper turned his shop at Hempstead into a manufactory of cabinet-ware. A year later he established a grocery in New York; and after another year he sold out this business, and embarked in the manufacture of glue and isinglass, which he carried on with great success, amassing from this and other enterprises the large fortune which he administered with so much generosity and public spirit. Among his business undertakings may be mentioned the establishment of iron-works at Baltimore, New York, Trenton, and Phillipsburg, N.J., and the laying of the Atlantic cable, which he promoted with enthusiastic faith, by large advances of money at critical periods.

Of his genius as an inventor, many instances might be cited: among them, the construction, in 1829, of the first steam locomotive ever made in America; the movement of canal and river boats by means of an endless chain (now revived as the Belgian towing-system); the introduction of rolled wrought-iron beams for fire-proof buildings, etc. His wide acquaintance with trades and handicrafts, the quick interest with which he watched their progress, the fruitful suggestiveness of his mind, and an unconquerably sanguine temper, combined to make him naturally an inventor and pioneer.

But the keynote of Mr. Cooper's character was active benevolence. He was a Unitarian Christian; and through the charities of that denomination, as well as through innumerable channels, public and private, he distributed his beneficence. It is not too much to say that sympathy sometimes overpowered his judgment and reason. Some of his later political views on the subject of finance, views not altogether consistent with those he had advocated in his vigorous manhood, were doubtless the expression of his benevolence, and his measures he unhesitatingly urged to bring immediate relief to the debtor-class. Although the Greenback party, of which he was in 1876 the presidential nominee, was generally distrusted, and overwhelmingly defeated, no one among its opponents questioned the purity and sincerity of its candidate.

As a member of the common council of New York in early days, a trustee of its first public-school society, and subsequently one of its missioners under the present system, he was active in all matters of public and educational improvement. But the great work of his life, and that for which he will be longest remembered with praise and thanks, is the Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art, established and endowed by him in the city of New York at a cost of more than a million dollars. This institution is in many respects unique. It is devoted to the free instruction of working men and women, and comprises day schools of drawing, painting, wood-engraving, modelling, and telegraphy for women; evening classes for both sexes in all branches of art and art-decoration, mathematics, the natural sciences, mechanics, engineering, etc.; a free library and reading-room; and a free course of popular scientific lectures. It may be said in round numbers, that nearly 4,000 students are enrolled annually in the various classes, about 1,500 persons frequent the reading-room daily, and an audience of 2,000 attends the weekly lectures. The expenses of the institution amount to over $50,000 per year, the greater part of which is obtained from the rent of stores and offices in the building. Any deficit has been met by Mr. Cooper, who also left by his will an additional endowment of $100,000. To this, his son and daughter have notified the trustees that they will add another $100,000. This will make the total endowment, apart from building and apparatus, $400,000.

The funeral of Mr. Cooper was an imposing spectacle, testifying the universal love and esteem in which he was held. A popular subscription is in progress for a monument in his honor. This purpose must all applaud. Yet, after all, his best monument is the "Cooper Union." And what epitaph can be better than that inscribed upon the scroll, which, thirty years ago, he deposited within its cornerstone?

"The great object that I desire to accomplish by the erection of this institution is to open the avenues of scientific knowledge to the youth of our city and country, and so unfold the volume of nature that the young may see the beauties of creation, enjoy its blessings, and learn to love the Author from whom cometh every good and perfect gift."

B. W. RAYMOND.

COTTERILL, Thomas, b. at Cannock, Staffordshire, Dec. 4, 1779; d. at Sheffield, Dec. 29, 1823; was educated at St. John's, Cambridge; ordained, 1806; ministered two years at Tutbury, and nine at Lane End, in the Staffordshire potteries; perpetual curate of St. Paul's, Sheffield, from 1817. He published a book of family prayers, and a memorable Selection of Psalms and Hymns, of which the chief edition appeared at Sheffield, 1819. In this he was assisted by James Montgomery, who was the printer. They both contributed numerous originals, and altered or rewrote other people's verses very freely, so that the legitimacy of hymn-singing was not then well established in the English Church; and a suit was brought against the compiler, which ended in the book.
COTTON, Nathaniel, M.D., b. 1705; d. at St. Albans, Aug. 2, 1788; studied medicine at Leyden, and kept a lunatic asylum at St. Albans. He was raised and loved by Cowper, who was for some time (1763-65) his patient. He published two medical books in 1790 and 1749, and Visions in Verse and Prose (1791), containing a few very graceful renderings of psalms.

COWLEY, Abraham, M.D., b. in Dublin, 1618; d. at Chertsey, in Surrey, July 28, 1667; entered Trinity College, Cambridge, 1637, and was ejected as a royalist, 1643. He published various poems, essays, and Libri Plantarum, 1662-78. Once graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, 1819; was graduated at Trinity College, Cambridge, 1637, and was ejected as a royalist, 1643. He published various poems, essays, and Libri Plantarum, 1662-78. Once counted the first poet of his time, he is now mildly valued for his graver strains, which show a sober and studious mind, with moderate inclinations toward religion.

CROLY, George, LL.D., b. in Dublin, August, 1785; d. in London, Nov. 24, 1860; was from 1838 to 1843 rector of St. Stephen's, Wallbrook, London. He published many volumes of prose, mostly on sacred themes, and of verse, chiefly secular, besides a slight collection of Psalms and Hymns (1854), largely made up of unimportant originals. Mrs. Iffl thought him "an almost universal poet, grand and gorgeous, but too cold and stately."

CROSSWELL, William, D.D., b. in Dublin, August, 1785; d. in London, Nov. 24, 1860; was from 1838 to 1843 rector of St. Stephen's, Wallbrook, London. He published many volumes of prose, mostly on sacred themes, and of verse, chiefly secular, besides a slight collection of Psalms and Hymns (1854), largely made up of unimportant originals. Mrs. Iffl thought him "an almost universal poet, grand and gorgeous, but too cold and stately."

CROSSWELL, William, D.D., b. at Bradford, Suffolk, 1824; d. at Bristol, Feb. 4, 1885; was prebendary of Bristol, and published sundry sermons, etc., and The Young Man's Meditation, 1864, reprinted by D. Sedgwick, 1865. This contains nine hymns, one of two of which are meritorious and well known.

CROZY, George, LL.D., b. in Dublin, August, 1785; d. in London, Nov. 24, 1860; was from 1838 to 1843 rector of St. Stephen's, Wallbrook, London. He published many volumes of prose, mostly on sacred themes, and of verse, chiefly secular, besides a slight collection of Psalms and Hymns (1854), largely made up of unimportant originals. Mrs. Iffl thought him "an almost universal poet, grand and gorgeous, but too cold and stately."

COTTON. 2592 DARBY.

being withdrawn, to be succeeded by an abridged and altered edition. Though its life was so short, its influence was great. Cotterill's hymns, while not highly poetical, were judicious, neat, and sometimes impressive. They met a want then widely if not deeply felt, and for a generation were largely copied into most Anglican hymnals; some of the chief favorites being such as were his only in part, for he was the most successful practiser of the doubtful art of "tinkering," or amending. Several of his alterations and originals keep a place still.

The appearance of Newman's Phases of Faith evoked a reply from Darby, The Irrationalism of Infidelity (1858). Nor did the advance made by the young men round him at Lausanne, with whom he studied the Scriptures. The fruit of these conferences was his Etudes sur la Parole, a work which has appeared in English as Synopsis of the Books of the Bible. His associates were not long in beginning missionary enterprise among, not the indifferent or worldly, but awakened souls. Many congregations were formed in Cantons Vaud, Geneva, and Berne. Certain of his followers started a periodical, Le témoignage des disciples de la Parole.

When, by Jesuit intrigues, a revolution broke out in Canton Vaud (February, 1845), the Darbites in some parts of Switzerland suffered persecution. Darby's own life was in jeopardy. He thenceforth took a more active lead among the English Brethren, and in particular, from 1845 to 1848, in respect to the disruption at Plymouth (cf. Plymouth Brethren); but his heart seems ever to have turned towards Switzerland and France.

The appearance of Newman's Phases of Faith evoked a reply from Darby, The Irrationalism of Infidelity (1858). Nor did the advance made by the young men round him at Lausanne, with whom he studied the Scriptures. The fruit of these conferences was his Etudes sur la Parole, a work which has appeared in English as Synopsis of the Books of the Bible. His associates were not long in beginning missionary enterprise among, not the indifferent or worldly, but awakened souls. Many congregations were formed in Cantons Vaud, Geneva, and Berne. Certain of his followers started a periodical, Le témoignage des disciples de la Parole.

The appearance of Newman's Phases of Faith evoked a reply from Darby, The Irrationalism of Infidelity (1858). Nor did the advance made by the young men round him at Lausanne, with whom he studied the Scriptures. The fruit of these conferences was his Etudes sur la Parole, a work which has appeared in English as Synopsis of the Books of the Bible. His associates were not long in beginning missionary enterprise among, not the indifferent or worldly, but awakened souls. Many congregations were formed in Cantons Vaud, Geneva, and Berne. Certain of his followers started a periodical, Le témoignage des disciples de la Parole.
Righteousness of God, which subject also plunged him into controversy. In the latter year he executed a French translation of the New Testament (C. W., XXV.), and in 1870, as made a first visit to Canada, where had been assemblies of Brethren for many years. Shortly after his return to England (1883) appeared his dialogues on the Essays and Reviews. In 1864–65 he was again in Canada; in 1888 he issued his analysis of Dr. Newman's Apology for the Apostles (C. W., XXV.) was composed in Italian. In 1872–73 came a vigorous campaign in the United States. A Boston journal, the Traveller, records at that time his daily meetings at 3 Tremont Row, and says, "Now seventy-two years of age, he is hale and dignified, yet genial and joyful in his life of unclouded faith." At a subsequent period he visited the West Indies. He was again in the States in 1874, and visited, in 1875, the Brethren in New Zealand. Between 1878 and 1890 he was occupied very much with his translation into French of the Old Testament, in connection with which he sojourned long at Pau, after having made several other occasional visits to France.

He had, besides, found time to make known his judgment on several points of scholarship. His view of the Greek article approximated to that expressed by Donaldson. In the Bible Witness and Review (1877–81) appeared several articles by him in apologetics; e.g., a review of W. Robertson Smith's well-known article in the Encyclopaedia Britannica, another of Mill's Logic, and a paper on Miracles, with reference to Hume. In metaphysics, as in theology, he struck out his own path. Well acquainted with Kant's system, he valued the Königsberg philosophy as little as Mill's. We possess papers of his on the Relative and Absolute, Self-consciousness, and the Infinite with reference to the Hampton Lectures of Mansel.

Though his works are largely doctrinal and controversial, his delight was to write anything dealing with his father-in-law, Anson G. Phelps, in the metal trade, and established the firm of Phelps, Dodge, & Co., now one of the oldest houses in America. He was among the originators of the Erie, the New-Jersey Central, the Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western, the Houston and Texas Central, and other railroads. He was largely interested in manufactures, and had extensive lumber operations in different parts of the United States and
MR. DODGE'S chief distinction, however, was his zealous and liberal advocacy of the work of Christian and benevolent societies, not merely in his own city, but in all sections of the country, and throughout the world. Trained by godly parents, and converted during the revival days of Nettleton, it was his delight to engage in direct personal labors for the cause of Christ. He especially loved to take part in general religious awakenings, where all sects and classes united. In his early days he was an efficient promoter of the labors of Finney and other evangelists, and, more recently, of Moody and Sankey. He long held prominent positions in the church. A Presbyterian elder, a sabbath-school superintendent, a manager of the American Bible Society, a vice-president of the Tract Society, a warm supporter of young men's Christian associations, and city missions, he was as conspicuous for his counsels as for his gifts. He was president of the American Branch of the Evangelical Alliance, and frequently represented it at home and abroad. He was also a founder of the Greek Christians society in New York in aid of the Turks, in 1835; and later founded the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, he was as conspicuous for his counsel as for his gifts. He was president of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and was its first president. He stood in a similar relation to the Christian Home for Intemperate Men, and his last work was to aid in creating a like institution for women. During the civil war his patriotic zeal was manifested in a hearty support of the government by both voice and purse, and also in the work of the Christian and the Sanitary Commission.

His peculiar sympathy for the freedmen, and gave largely to institutions and churches for their benefit. He believed in sound Christian education, and aided colleges and schools in every part of the land. He was a trustee of the Union Theological Seminary in New-York City, and a liberal donor to its work. He also gave freely to theological seminaries in other places. His wide railroad and business relations and frequent journeys made him familiar with the growing wants of the West and South. Impressed with the urgency of the need of supporting missions, he constantly maintained at his own expense, in different seminaries and colleges, a number of carefully selected young men, who could make special and somewhat shorter preparation for the ministry. He left a fund to continue this work. In foreign missions he took profound interest. He was a trustee of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and also a member of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions. His regular annual subscriptions to this cause for many years amounted to ten thousand dollars, and his special contributions were frequent. Scarcely a field or station but knew his name, and enjoyed his aid. He was the principal founder of the Syrian Protestant College at Beirut, and himself laid the corner-stone.

But in his sympathies and gifts he never confined himself to his own denomination or immediate relations. Any cause which sought to gain his ear, and, if wisely conducted, to share his bounty, whatever ecclesiastical body it represented, or wherever it was located. His private charities, and his individual exertions to help the needy or degraded, were, perhaps, more generous and characteristic than any acts known to the public; and it was in the family circle, or in dispensing the hospitalities of his own home, that his engaging personal qualities shone most brightly, although in every company, and with all associates, he seemed instinctively to inspire warm and lasting affection. His business insight, industry, and integrity gave him ample means, and also the unfailing confidence of his fellow-merchants. His conscientious and scriptural views of stewardship led him to acquire wealth that he might use it for philanthropic ends, and the same spirit is manifest in the liberal bequests his will contained for the leading religious and charitable organizations. In his will he always found the fullest sympathy and most prudent counsel for all his benevolent undertakings. She and their seven sons survive him.

MRS. DODGE. Mrs. Thomas C. Dodge, b. in New-York City, Aug. 3, 1802; d. there Jan. 29, 1877. Her life was consecrated to Christ and to the relief of sorrow in every form. For thirty-two years she was a manager of the Woman's Missionary Society, and from 1863 its president. For thirty-six years she was a manager of the Woman's Missionary Society, and twenty-eight years of the City Mission Society. In 1850 she was a founder of the House and School of Industry, and since 1867 its president. She was also a founder, and always second directs, of the Nursery and Child's Hospital. In 1855, by her hearty co-operation, she enabled Dr. J. Marion Sims (d. Nov. 18, 1883) to establish the Woman's Hospital in New York City, the first institution of the kind to be founded anywhere. In 1860 she helped to organize the Presbyterian Home for Aged Women, presided at its first meeting, and continued a member. During the civil war she played a prominent part in distributing supplies to all the hospitals in and around the city. All her life she was a Sunday-school teacher, and greatly interested in child-life. Her own family was large, and she never forgot her home duties amid the distractions of her many public enterprises.

But her greatest work was for foreign missions. She was called the "Mother of Missionaries." No missionary entered or left the port of New York without substantial evidence of her interest. At ten years of age she attended, with her mother, meetings held by Mrs. Isabella Graham and other women to pray for the conversion of the world; and from that time on she labored in the great cause. In 1828 she organized a band for the relief of the Greek Christians persecuted by the Turks, in 1835 a society in New York in aid of Madame Keller's hospital at Grand Ligne, Canada. Her memorial is the Woman's Union Missionary Society, which she organized in New York, November, 1860, and which has led to similar organizations all over the country. It is unconnected with any church board, is supported by voluntary contributions, and devoted to work among women in high stations. Mrs. Doremus was a member of the South Reformed (Dutch) Church; but in her love for...
EUCHARIST.

2595

the Master she knew no denominational lines. Among all the women who have advanced the world she has a foremost place.

DRUMMOND. William, of Hawthornden, b. Dec. 15, 1585; d. Dec. 4, 1649; "the first Scottish poet who wrote well in English;" was educated at the university of Edinburgh, and studied civil law in France, whence he returned in 1609 to occupy his beautiful ancestral seat. There Ben Jonson visited him in 1619. He wrote a History of Scotland and other prose-works, besides many poems, which have been published together, 1711, 1719, and, with life by Peter Cunningham, 1833. His Flowers of Zion appeared 1623. His Divine Poems include some of our earliest translations of Latin hymns.

DUNN, Professor Robinson Porter, b. 1825; d. Aug. 28, 1867; was a professor in Brown University, and a distinguished scholar. He translated from the Latin, German, and French a few hymns which are much used.

EDMESTON, James, b. at Wapping, London, Sept. 10, 1791; d. at Homerton, Middlesex, Jan. 7, 1867; was an architect, but better known as a voluminous writer of sacred verse. Besides one or two prose-works he published The Search, and other Poems, 1817; Sacred Lyrics, 1820–22, 3 vols.; The Cottage Minstrel, 1821; a hundred hymns for Sunday schools, 1821; another hundred for particular occasions, and fifty for missionary prayer-meetings, 1822; Patmos, etc., 1824; The Woman of St. Aunem, etc., 1829; Sonnets: Hymns for the Chamber of Sickness, 1844; Closet Hymns and Poems, 1844; Infant Breathings, 1846; Sacred Poetry, 1847. In all he produced near two thousand of these effusions, some of which are spirited and elegant, while many of them have been useful, and one or two are still largely used.

ELLIOTT, Charlotte, b. 1789; d. at Brighton, Sept. 22, 1871; was a daughter of Charles Elliott, and sister of two somewhat eminent clergymen, Henry V. and Edward B.; but her "Just as I am" has been far more widely useful than her brother Edward's Horae Apocalypticae. She wrote Hours of Sorrow, 1836; Morning and Evening Hymns for a Week, 1842; Poems by C. E., 1863; and over a hundred lyrics in The Invalid's Hymn-Book, 1834–64, the last edition of which she edited, as also The Christian Remembrancer, an annual. Several of her hymns have been and are very popular. The earliest of them appeared in the Psalms and Hymns of her brother, Henry Venn, whose wife, Julia Anne Elliott (d. 1841), also contributed to it several of great merit.

ELLIOTT, David, D.D., LL.D., b. at Sherman Valley, Penn., Feb. 6, 1876, of pious ancestry, and carefully educated in religion; d. at Allegheny, Penn., March 18, 1874; diligent at academies; successful teacher at Washington, Penn., in 1802–06; valedictorian at Dickinson College in 1808; licensed, 1811; pastor from 1812 to 1829 at Mersersburg, Penn., from 1829 to 1836 at Washington, Penn. Both pastors were filled with "well-studied, clear, convincing, and persuasive" sermons. He was extraordinary in discipline, organization of Christian activity in various directions, revival-seasons, initiation of prayer-meetings and Sunday schools, and accompanied by a steadily increasing influence in the denomination.

Dr. Elliott's educational life began with the re-organization of Washington College in 1880. Owing to his enterprise, wisdom, and resolution, the new movement rapidly attained success. He was "acting president" two years, president of the Board of Trustees thirty-nine years. His transfer to Allegheny in 1836 brought him to the theological seminary at one critical period, and he continued through many others. He made the burdens of the seminary his own, laid all his gifts and experience upon its altar, pleaded its cause against all opponents, bound it upon the heart of the church, increased the number of its students, often performed the extra duties of its unoccupied chairs, accepted whatever place best suited its needs, proved equal to every exigency in teaching and administration, sustained its work alone in 1840, beggared it out of difficulties in 1850, watched with delight its later rapid growth, saw nearly a thousand men go from its doors to preach the gospel, and when made emeritus in 1870, lived to pray for it and with every student, and still lives as its model of piety and devotedness.

For ecclesiastical usefulness Dr. Elliott was pre-eminent ly fitted by clear thinking, directness in expression, perfect impartiality, and a judicial habit of mind. All these traits were often exhibited, but especially in the disruption assembly of 1837, of which his moderatorship was a marvel of fairness as tested by the feelings of the time, and his decisions unimpeachable in their accuracy as tested by subsequent judicial deliberations. Present and assenting at the re-union of the Presbyterian Church in 1869, he died, leaving to the church and the world the legacy of a great work well done, and of a character wonderfully symmetrical.

SYLVESTER F. SCOVEL.

ENFIELD, William, LL.D., b. at Sudbury in Suffolk, March 29, 1741; d. at Norwich, Nov. 3, 1797; was an eminent Unitarian minister and author. After studying at Daventry, he ministered successively at Liverpool, Warrington, and Norwich. His Speaker, 1774, and History of Philosophy, 1781, passed through several editions, and are well known. He also wrote An Essay towards the History of Liverpool, 1774; Observations on Literary Property, 1774; Exercitiae in Elocution, 1781; Institutes of Natural Philosophy, 1788; and some volumes of sermons; and compiled the Preacher's Directory, 1771, and a Selection of Hymns, 1772 (2d ed., 1797), containing a few of his own.

EPHRAIM. See Tribes of Israel.

ERSKINE, Ralph, b. at Monilaws, Northumberland, March 18, 1855; d. Oct. 6, 1752; was educated at the university of Edinburgh; became minister at Dunfermline 1711, and joined the seceders 1734. His Gospel Sonnets, 1732, which are extraordinary in their own day, were very popular, and went through many editions. They were followed by A Paraphrase on the Song of Solomon, 1738, and Scripture Songs. His entire Poetical Works were printed in one volume, 8vo, Aberdeen, so lately as 1858.

EUCHARIST (Greek eucharistia, "a giving of thanks"). The ancient church-name for the sacrament of the Lord's Supper as a feast of thanksgiving, a thank-offering of the whole church for all the favors of God in creation and redemption. The term denoted in the first place the prayer of thanksgiving, which was part of the communion-service and the service itself. The sacrament is not so called in the New Testament; but the designation quite naturally followed from the use of εὐχαριστία ("he had given thanks") in Matt. xxvii. 27, Mark xiv. 23, Luke xxii. 10, 1 Cor. xi. 24, and is used by Justin Martyr (Apol. i. 65, 66), Irenæus (Adv. haeres. iv. 44), Clement of Alexandria (Pedag. ii. 2), and others. See LORD's Supper.

FAWCETT, John, D.D., b. at Lidget Green, near Bradford, Yorkshire, Jan. 6, 1739; d. at Brearley Hall near Waingate, July 25, 1817; was an eminent hymn-writer of the school of Watts. Converted under Whitefield in 1755, he became in 1764 Baptist minister at Waingate, and there remained through life, rejecting all allurements to larger fields. His most popular hymn, "Blest be the tie that binds," is said to have celebrated his refusal, under touching circumstances, of a London charge in 1772. He also declined the presidency of the Baptist academy at Bristol in 1793, and eked out his scanty income by taking pupils at home, and by his pen. He published The Devotional Family Bible, 1811, 2 vols., and sundry smaller works in prose, besides Poetic Essays, 1707, and a hundred and sixty-six Hymns, 1782, 2d ed., 1817. Many of these had merit enough to be largely used in former days, and some of them still retain a place in our collections. His Life and Letters were published by J. Parker, London, 1818.

FITCH, Eleazar Thompson, D.D., b. at New Haven, Jan. 1, 1791; d. there Jan. 31, 1871; graduated at Yale, 1810; studied theology at Andover; and was professor of divinity, and college pastor, at Yale, 1817-63. He published some sermons, etc., and was one of the compilers of the Connecticut Congregational Psalms and Hymns, for which he wrote a few pieces of merit.

FOLLEN, Eliza Lee (Cabot), b. in Boston, Aug. 16, 1787; d. at Brookline, Mass., Jan. 26, 1860; was a voluminous writer of prose and verse for children and adults. In 1828 she married Prof. Charles Follen, who was exiled from Germany, fled to America, 1825, and was lost on the "Lexington," 1840. Her Poems appeared 1839. Some of her hymns have been popular and are still sometimes used.

FRIENDS, The Society of, commonly called Quakers. Liberal Branch.—Until early in this century, American Friends were generally united on the original ground of the society, viz., "conversion to God, regeneration, and holiness, not schemes of doctrines, and verbal creeds, or new forms of worship" (Penn's Rise and Progress), and did not "require a formal subscription to any articles, either as a condition of membership, or to qualify for the service of the church" (London Summary, 1790).

For more than forty years, Elias Hicks of Long Island had been an eminent minister, and apparently acceptable, when in 1819 he was publicly opposed in Philadelphia. A separation in that Year took place in 1827; one party styling the other "Hickites" and "Separatists," these terms which have ever been repudiated. These Friends constituted the much larger portion of the membership in New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore Yearly Meetings.

The utterances of Elias Hicks will bear comparison with those of ancient Friends; and Job Scott of Rhode Island, who died in 1793, acknowledged to be an acceptable minister and writer, was his contemporary and of a kindred spirit. Facts prove that other causes were potent in producing the difficulties.

The re-organized Philadelphia Yearly Meeting in 1830 wrote to London Yearly Meeting: "We are not sensible of any dereliction on our part from the principles laid down by our blessed Lord. The history of the birth, life, acts, death, and resurrection of the holy Jesus, as in the volume of the book it is written of him, we reverently believe. We are not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, because it is the power of God unto salvation to all them that believe; neither do we hesitate to acknowledge the divinity of its author, because we know from living experience that he is the power of God and the wisdom of God;" and, "under the present glorious dispensation, he is the one holy principle of divine life and light." Neither are we sensible of any departure from the faith or principles of our primitive Friends. We are not ignorant, that, on some points of a speculative nature, they had different views, and expressed themselves diversely. . . . In the fundamental principle of the Christian faith, 'the light of Christ within, as God's gift for man's salvation,' . . . they were all united, and in that which united them we are united with them" (Printed Epitaphs).

The Scriptures, without this divine illumination, "will not give a knowledge of Christ" (Fox's Great Mystery).

"Christ is the substance of all figures, and his flesh is a figure; for every one passeth through the same way as he did who comes to know Christ in the flesh" (George Fox's Great Mystery).

"The true grounds of salvation by Christ . . . in all ages has been a real birth of God in the soul, a substantial union of the human and divine nature,—the Son of God and the Son of man, which is the true Emanuel state" (Job Scott).

The "second covenant is dedicated with the blood, the life of Christ Jesus, which is the alone atonement unto God, by which all his people are washed, sanctified, cleansed, and redeemed to God. . . . The true witnesses of this" are "they only that have drunk of the blood of Christ, and eaten of his flesh, which he gives for the life of the world" (Fox's Doctrinal).

Friends do not believe in imputative righteousness, nor that "Christ died as a substitute for the whole human race in order to satisfy the offended justice of God, and render him propitious to guilty man" (Janney's Conversations).

They do not accept the commonly received doctrine of the Trinity, and hold that children are only sinners by actual transgression of the divine law.

(For other views held by all branches of Friends, see under FRIENDS.)

They have held Yearly Meetings, laboring jointly on behalf of the Indians; and recently four of these agreed to co-operate in a Union for Philanthropic Labor.

First-day schools are maintained in very many localities, and an official sanction to some extent has been extended. Swarthmore College, Pennsylvania, and Friends College, Long Island, are well patronized; and flourishing schools are supported in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and other places.

Lit.—GEORGE FOX: Works, 1804—1706, Philadelphia and New York, 1831, 8 vols., and other early Friends' writings; JOH SCOTT: Journal, New York, 1797; Works, 1831, 2 vols.; ELIAS HICKS: Journal, New York, 1832; Letters, New York, 1834, Philadelphia, 1861; SERMONS, Philadelphia, 1825, New York, 1831; THOMAS WEATHERBANK: Sermons, Philadelphia, 1825, Baltimore, 1864; HUGH JUDGE: Journal, 1841; EDWARD STABLER: Journal, 1846; JESSE KERSEY: Narrative, 1851; THOMAS HUGH: Pious Women, 1777, 2 vols.; Memoir of Dr. Watts, Newmarket, May 31, 1720; d. in London, Feb. 16, 1719; d. in London, Aug. 19, 1783; was educated at Magdalen Hall, Oxford; curate of Abbotts Langley, Herts, 1794; curate to Romaine at St. Ann, Blackfriars, London, 1768; rector of the same, 1795; besides filling several curatehips; was one of the founders of the Church Missionary Society. His New Version of the Book of Psalms (1811, 2 vols.) has been a good deal valued and extracted from. A volume of his sermons appeared, 1812; and his Essays On All the Scriptural Names and Titles of Christ, etc., with a memoir, was published in six volumes by his son in 1829. The Divine Rule of Faith and Practice (1842), and sundry other works against the Tractarians, were written by a later London rector of the same name.

GRAHAM, James, b. at Glasgow, 1765; d. 1811; was educated at the university of Glasgow; was for a time a lawyer; took orders, and served as curate at Shipton, Gloucestershire, at St. Margaret's, Durham, and at Sedgefield, near Durham. He published sundry poems, as The Sabbath (1804), Birds of Scotland, etc. (1806), which were once much valued.

GRANT, Sir Robert, b. 1785; d. at Dapoorie, in Western India, July 8, 1868; graduated at Cambridge, 1802; was admitted to the bar, 1817; member of Parliament for Inverness, 1826; privy-councillor, 1831; governor of Bombay, 1834. He wrote one or two books on India, and twelve Sacred Poems, issued by his brother, Lord Glenelg, in 1839. All of these are moritorious, most of them are more or less used as hymns, and two are of the first rank. "When gathering clouds around I view" appeared in the Christian Observer, February, 1806, and "Saviour, when in dust to thee," November, 1815.

QUIGG, Joseph, d. at Walthamstow, near London, Oct. 29, 1793; was a Presbyterian assistant minister in Silver Street, London, 1744—47, and after that seems to have lived at St. Albans and Stourbridge. He issued a few tracts in prose and verse. His hymns and poems were collected by D. Sedgwick, 1801: two of them have long been very popular. "Jesus, and shall it ever be," was written at the age of ten.

QURNEY, John Hampden, b. in London, Aug. 15, 1802; d. there March 8, 1862; was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; curate at Lutterworth, 1827—44; district rector of St. Mary's, Mary-lebone, 1847. He published sundry historical sketches, lectures, etc., and two hymn-books, 1838 and 1851. These contain several good and useful originals.

HABINGTON, William, b. at Heudlip, Worcestershire, Nov. 5, 1605; d. there Nov. 30, 1654; wrote several books in prose and verse, chief of which is Castara, 1634, reprinted by C. A. Elton, 1812. His Muse was sober and devout.

HAMMOND, William, b. at Battle, Sussex, Jan. 6, 1719; d. in London, Aug. 19, 1783; was educated at St. John's College, Cambridge, but joined...
HANNA, William, D.D., LL.D., author of the Life of Dr. Chalmers, etc.; b. at Belfast in 1808, and d. in London, May 24, 1882. Having studied in Glasgow, he became a licentiate of the Church of Scotland, and was settled at East Kilbride, and subsequently removed to Korking, both in Lanarkshire. He married the eldest daughter of Dr. Chalmers. At the disruption, in 1843, he joined the Free Church. Subsequently he was called to Edinburgh as colleague to the Rev. Dr. Guthrie. He was a very graceful and impressive preacher, but his fame rests chiefly on his book, The Unreasonableness of Religion (1741). He began preaching about 1759, and soon settled at the independent chapel in Jewin Street, where his ministry was most vigorous and effective. He was an advanced Calvinist, but not an Antinomian. Personally he was an original and striking, if not an attractive, character, with a plain and narrow mind, a temper sincere, vehement, and entirely devoted, and an utterance blunt and uncompromising to the last degree. His Hymns, with an Author's Experience, appeared 1756, with additions 1762 and 1765. Like nearly all the lyrics of last century dissent, they are without refinement, or any evidence of culture, but not, like them, commonplace. Hart established a new and strong type of his own. His rudeness often runs into quaint boorishness, but has occasional gleams, not only of good sense and good feeling, but of something like poetry. Such as they are, these hymns have been immensely influential. With the extreme Calvinistic sects they have always been prime favorites, and some of them are still largely used by most English-speaking Christians. But the natural effect on a cultivated man is expressed in the familiar anecdote of Dr. Johnson's giving a crown at church to "a poor girl in a bedgown, though I saw Hart's Hymns in her hand."

HASTINGS, Thomas, Doctor of Music; b. in Washington, Conn., Oct. 15, 1784; d. in New York City, May 15, 1872, in Clinton, Oneida County, N.Y. In early youth he began his musical studies, and prosecuted them without a teacher, mastering every treatise that came within his reach. He began his career as a teacher in singing-schools in 1806, and as an editor in 1816. In connection with Professor Norton of Hamilton College he published two pamphlets (1816), afterwards enlarged, and united with The Springfield Collection, in a volume entitled Musica Sacra. From 1823 to 1832 Mr. Hastings, by special request, was the editor of The Western Recorder, a religious paper published at Utica. In 1832, at the call of twelve churches, he removed to the city of New York. Not only had he studied his favorite art, but with great diligence he had applied himself to the study of English literature, philosophy, and theology, and had acquired facility in public address and in writing. Before leaving Utica he had begun to write hymns, impelled by the lack of variety in those then current, and by the need of adapting suitable words to the music he arranged. In the Spiritual Songs (1832) there are more than thirty of his hymns published anonymously. Among these are some of the best that he wrote; such as, "How calm and beautiful the morn!" "Gently, Lord, oh gently lead us," "Child of sin and sorrow." The popularity of these first attempts led him to continue and cultivate the habit thus early begun. About two hundred of his hymns are in current use, and he left in manuscript about four hundred more. Doubtless his name will live longer as a writer of hymns than as a writer of tunes. His music, with that of Dr. Lowell Mason, did important service in the church, and marks in this country the transition period between the crude and the more cultured periods of psalmody. In his lifetime Mr. Hastings was criticised, as a musician, as too far in advance of the general cultivation: now he is criticised as too far behind the present wants. Both criticisms point to the truth that he aimed to lead higher the people of his own time. His cardinal principle was, that in church music the artistic must be strictly subordinated to the devotional. He was a devout and an earnest Christian, a hard student, a resolute worker, not laying aside his pen till three days before his death, which came to his relief in his eighty-eighth year. A list of his publications, with their dates, is subjoined:

Musica Sacra, 1816—22; The Musical Reader, 1819; A Dissertation on Musical Taste, 1822, revised and republished, 1853; Spiritual Songs (Dr. Lowell Mason, co-editor), 1832—36; Prayer, 1831; The Christian Psalmist (the Rev. Dr. William Patton, co-editor), 1836; Anthems, Motets, and Sentences, 1836; Musical Magazine, 24 numbers, 1837-38; The Manhatten Collection, 1837; Elements of Vocal Music, 1839; Nursery Songs, The Mother's Hymn-book, The Sacred Lyre, 1840; Juvenile Songs, 1842; The Crystal Fount, 1847; The Sunday-School Lyre, 1848. With William B. Nightingale as joint editor from 1844 to 1851—The Psalmist, 1844; The Choralist, 1847; The Mendelssohn Collection, 1849; The Psalmist, 1851; Devotional Hymns and Poems, 1850; The History of Forty Choirs, 1854; Sacred Prize, The Selah, 1856; Church Melodies, 1859; Hastings's Church Music; 1860; The Psalms of David, 1865. Mr. Hastings edited, for the American Tract Society, Sacred Songs (1855) and Songs of Zion (1856), and, for the Presbyterian Church, The Presbyterian Psalmist (1852) and The Juvenile Psalmist.
HERZOG.

Hatfield, Edwin Francis, D.D., b. at Elizabeth-town, N.J., Jan. 9, 1807; d. at Summit, N.J., Sept. 22, 1883. He was graduated at Middlebury College, Vt., 1829; studied two years (1828-31) at Andover Theological Seminary; was pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, New York (1831-55), and of the Seventh Presbyterian Church, New York (1855-56). In 1856 he was elected moderator of the General Assembly, and served on the committee of the New-School Assembly. In 1883 he was elected moderator of the General Assembly. He was a member of the Re-union Committee of the New-School Assembly. He was moderator of the General Assembly in 1888. He was a member of the General Assembly; and, although seventy-six years old, he discharged the onerous duties of the position with surprising freshness and vigor. He was an eminent student of hymnology, and had collected a large and valuable library in this branch, and in 1872 published a collection of hymns, with tunes. His library is now in the Union Theological Seminary, New York. His acquaintance with ecclesiastical polity, with parliamentary law, and methods, as presbyter, as born leader in synod, as presbyter, as born leader in synod, was remarkable. He was the author of:

- Carmina Christa, or Hymns to the Holy Spirit, 1827.
- Hymns of Life, 1834.
- Hymns for Childhood and Scenes, 1839.

His Carmina Christa, or Hymns to the Holy Spirit, is well known. His 'Litanie to the Holy Spirit' is well known. His "Litanie to the Holy Spirit" is well known.

Herbert, Daniel, b. about 1751; d. Aug. 29, 1833; was an illiterate but indefatigable hymnographer, whose Hymns and Poems (1819-27) fill three volumes of over a thousand pages. Despicable from a literary view point, they have been used by extreme Calvinists. He wrote the following hymns:

- "My unapted rhymes, writ in my wild, unhalowed times," rather heavily overweights his occasional sober moods, and but a small proportion of his verses entitle him to be called a sacred poet; but his fresh style and joyous fancy have won as many admirers in our time as he ever had. His "Litanie to the Holy Spirit" is well known.

Herrick, Robert, b. in London, Aug. 20, 1591; d. at Dean Prior's, Devon, October, 1747; one of the most eminent of our lyric poets; was educated at Trinity Hall, Cambridge; M.A., 1617; vicar of Dean Prior's, 1629; ejected by the Puritans, 1649, and reinstated 1660. His The Poetical Works appeared 1647, and Hesperides, or Works both Human and Divine, 1648. The frequent levity or licentiousness of what he calls

"My unapted rhymes, writ in my wild, unhalowed times," rather heavily overweights his occasional sober moods, and but a small proportion of his verses entitle him to be called a sacred poet; but his fresh style and joyous fancy have won as many admirers in our time as he ever had. His "Litanie to the Holy Spirit" is well known.

Herron, Francis, D.D., b. June 28, 1774, near Shippensburgh, Penn.; d. Dec. 6, 1860, at Pittsburgh, Penn. He was born of Scotch-Irish and pious parents, and trained by them and the times to faith and manliness; Dickinson graduate, May, 1794; studied theology with Cooper; licensed Oct. 4, 1797; toughened by severe journey West, 1798-99, kindled by great revivals in progress there; settled at Rocky Springs, Penn., in April, 1800, and, after eleven years' successful pastorate, translated to Pittsburgh First Church.

Here began "labors more abundant." As preacher, he was careful in preparation, impressive, and experimental. The house, too large before, soon became too small. As pastor, he was affectionate, accessible, and progressive in methods. As presbyter, a born leader in synod and presbytery, and moderator of General Assembly in 1827. He was president of the board of directors of the Theological Seminary, Allegheny, from its beginning in 1819 until its location at Allegheny, he carried the institution by force of will, large influence, incessant begging, and indomitable trust in its future. As Pittsburgher, he was devoted to the city's interests, jealous of its morals, helpful in extending the churches, founding the first Moral Association, and holding the first temperance meetings.

He was pre-eminently a man to mould the times. "There are but two things in Pittsburgh," was once said,—"Dr. Herron and the Devil; and the doctor seems to be getting the advantage." In personal influence he was commanding and magnetic (aided by an unequalled majesty of presence), equal to emergencies in church or city, with pronounced opinions and well-understood convictions, sound judgment, and warm sympathies, of remarkable courage, and great practical wisdom.

Sylvester F. Sovrill

Herszog, Johann Jakob, D.D., b. at Basel, Sept. 12, 1805; d. at Erlangen, Sept. 30, 1882. He pursued his university studies (1823-29) at Basel and Berlin. In 1830 he became licentiate in theology, and privatdocent in the university of Basel. In 1835 he was called as provisional, but in 1838 was appointed definitely professor of...
HERZOG.

2600

HURN.

historical theology in the academy at Lausanne. There his colleague was Alexandre Vinet (see art.). He contributed to the Studien u. Kritiken, 1838, an essay on Zwinger's doctrine of providence and election. Four years later he issued his sketch of John Calvin (Basel, 1843), and the same year and place his elaborate Life of Écoulampadius and the Reformation in Basel (Basel, 2 vols.).
In 1845 he criticised the Plymouth Brethren in his Les frères de Plymouth et John Darby, Lausanne, and that year resigned his professorship (November, 1845) in consequence of a radical revolution, and retired into private life, until, on Tholuck's suggestion, he was called in 1847 to Halle as pro-essor of church history. His acquaintance with two Waldensian students at Lausanne had led him to investigate that ancient sect's early history, and he published De Origine et pristino stato Valdensium (Halle, 1848), the first-fruits of such study. His essay attracted great attention; and under the patronage of the Prussian Government he made a journey through Switzerland, France, and Ireland for the inspection of manuscripts bearing upon the Waldenses. In 1853 he published Die romanischen Waldenser (Halle); in which he proved, that both the Waldensian and other historians were mistaken in attributing to the sect direct primitive descent from apostolic times, but, on the contrary, that the Roman-Catholic historians were right in maintaining that it started in the twelfth century. He also showed, that the sect had from the beginning biblical principles, but was first brought by the Hussite movement and the Reformation of the sixteenth century upon truly Protestant ground. His work was based upon comprehensive and careful study of the sources, and written in a friendly spirit.
In 1854 Herzog went to Erlangen as professor of Reformed theology; and there he lectured until 1877, when he retired upon a pension. At the time of his death he had just finished his Abriss der gesammten Kirchengeschichte, Erlangen, 1876—82, 3 vols. Translations into Swedish, French, and Italian have been made, or are in preparation.
It was Dr. Herzog's intention to add a supplementary volume, upon the church history of the nineteenth century.

But Dr. Herzog's greatest service was his Real-Encyclopædie der Kirchlichsen Theologie (Kri.
The idea of a religious encyclopedia of a very comprehensive character had long been in the minds of Protestant theologians, and preparations had been made for it under the editorship of Schneckenburger (q.v.); but the Revolution of 1848 put a temporary end to the enterprise.
After the excitement of that time had passed, and their business again justified it, the publishers revived the project: and Tholuck was asked to take charge of it, Schneckenburger having meanwhile died (1848); but he recommended Herzog, his colleague, and under the latter's care the first volume appeared at Hamburg in 1854, and the second and last volume, which contained the very elaborate index, at Gotha in 1868. The encyclopedia was an extraordinary success. It became at once a standard and indispensable work. Such a display of learning had not been previously made. And Dr. Herzog was just the man for his position,—learned, modest, energetic, wide in his sympathies, and liberal in his theology; for, although of the Reformed Church, he had the friendliest feelings towards Lutherans.
He treated his contributors with uniform courtesy, kindness, and liberality. Besides bearing the burden of responsibility and care necessarily attached to the editing of so extensive a work, he assumed a large part of the authorship, contributing no less than five hundred and twenty-nine articles, some of them quite extensive and elaborate. But within less than ten years after the completion of his encyclopedia he was called upon to edit a second edition. He prudently allied to himself a younger man, Professor G. L.
Plitt, his colleague; and the first volume of the new edition appeared at Leipzig in 1877. Professor Plitt died in 1880, after the completion of the seventh volume. Dr. Herzog then associated with himself another colleague, Professor Albert Hauck, and three volumes appeared under their conduct; but part 103, the third part of the eleventh volume, brought the announcement that
Dr. Herzog had finished his work on earth.

See Professor F. SEIFERT: Wissenschaftlicher Nachruf an Herzog, Erlangen, 1882, and the Beilage zur allgemeinen Zeitung, Jan. 31, 1888.

HORNBLOWER, William Henry, D.D., b.
March 21, 1820, at Newark, N.J.; son of Chief Justice Hornblower; graduated at Princeton College in 1838; led to Christ by a tract written by Dr. Archibald Alexander, and devoted himself to the ministry; graduated from Princeton seminary in 1843; ordained by presbytery of Elizabethtown; missionated some months; ordained and installed pastor of church at Paterson, N.J., Jan.
30, 1844; removed in October, 1871, to become professor of sacred rhetoric, pastoral theology, and church government in the Western Theological Seminary of the Presbyterian Church at Allegheny, Penn.; died in that position, July 16, 1883.

He relinquished brilliant prospects in choosing the ministry, and proved his earnestness by devoteedness. He earned so good a degree in the faith that it is to gratify the principle in him by Dr. Alexander. His diligence in biblical study issued in critical skill in Scripture exegesis. This found expression in the scholarly, discriminating, and difying work done in editing and enlarging the Schaff-Niegebach-Lange Commentary on the Lam-citations, published in 1873-76.

Dr. Hornblower's unvarying characteristics were a firm gentleness, a dignified courtesy, a winning and unselfish interest in others, a tenderness to the suffering which overlooked none. He was the most loving, bright, and genial of friends, the stanchest of advocates where principle was concerned, and eminently spiritually minded and devout.

HOSKINS, Joseph, b. 1745; d. at Bristol, Sept.
28, 1788; was for his last ten years an earnest and successful dissenting minister at Castle-Green Chapel, Bristol. His three hundred and eighty-four hymns, 1770-1822, are of the humblest and most commonplace character; but a few of them are still used.

HURN, William, b. at Breccles Hall, Norfolk,
Dec. 21, 1754; d. at Woodbridge, Oct. 9, 1829;
was ordained, 1781, and became vicar of Debenham, Suffolk, 1799; in 1822 he left the Established Church, and in 1823 became Congregational pastor at Woodbridge. He wrote The Fundamental Principles of the Established Church proved to be the Doctrine of the Scripture, 1790; A Farewell Testimony, 1823; Reasons for Secession, 1830; A Glance at the Stage, A Catechism, and four hundred and twenty Hymns, 1813-24. Most of these are no more than respectable; but a few have merit, and are used.

HYDE, Abby (Bradley), b. at Stockbridge, Mass., Sept. 28, 1790; d. at Andover, Conn., April 7, 1872; married Rev. Lavius Hyde, 1818, and lived at Salisbury (Mass.), Bolton and Ellington (Conn.), Wayland and Becket (Mass.). She contributed to Nettleton's Village Hymns, 1824, nine pieces, three of which have been widely copied and used.

INDIANS OF NORTH AMERICA. 1. Religion.

— The Indians universally believe in God or gods, and in the immortality of the soul, and its existence in a conscious state hereafter. There has never, probably, been an infidel among them. They believe in multitudes of spirits or gods everywhere,— gods of the woods, gods under the lakes, gods everywhere: in fact, the world to them is full of spiritual existence. Every kind of animals even, as the bears, has, according to their belief, its spiritual antitype, of which the body which they see is but the outward expression. In their religious rites, or Grand Medicine, they call all these gods, one by one, in endless numbers to their aid. Besides this, the Algonquin races now acknowledge one of these innumerable gods as God supreme: but whether this was their original belief before their discovery by white people, or whether they have insensibly imbibed this from the missionaries with whom they have come in contact from time to time for the last few hundred years, the writer does not pretend to decide; but he believes the latter to be the case. This Supreme Deity the Algonquin races call sometimes "Kitchi-Manido" ("the Great Spirit"), sometimes "Kije-Manido" ("the Kind, Cherishing Spirit"). The writer is, on the whole, inclined to believe, from all he has heard from the Indians, that their fathers had gradually lost entirely the notion of one supreme God, and had degenerated into that of gods everywhere, among whom Kije-Manido was only one. Even now the heathen Indians occasionally speak of him as such.

They are also worshippers of idols, even to this day. About their villages one may often see a rude image—carved in wood, and dressed up with clothes—placed aloft at the outskirts of their village, to ward off disease and ill luck, to which they pay their devotions. Everywhere, too, if there be a stone of striking shape or size, or naturally resembling the human face or figure, they will bow down in adoration to it, or to the spirit of which it is the outward expression; and one may everywhere see the offerings of tobacco, which, in their veneration, they have laid upon it. As to their great religious rite, the "Grand Medicine," or "Me-da-wi-win," which is common to all the tribes, we quote from one of themselves (an educated mixed-blood, who spent his life in finding out their true beliefs on all subjects) as to its origin and purpose, and which any one can repeat to them and bear them will know to be the truth.

"They fully believe that the red man mortally angered the Great Spirit, which caused the deluge; and at the commencement of the New Earth it was only through the medium and intercession of a powerful being whom they denominate Wa-wen-a-bozho, that they were allowed to exist; and a code of religion was more lately bestowed upon them, whereby they could commune with the offended Great Spirit, and ward off the approach and ravages of death. This they term 'Me-da-wi-win,' or "Grand Medicine."

All the heathen Indians firmly believe, as the above writer states that the Grand Medicine was given them by the Great Spirit. He is also right in saying that they use it in obtaining long life in this world, and warding off the ravages of sickness and death. It has no reference to life in the other world, all the Indian's hopes and fears being bounded by this life. He tries to prolong his life in this world by every means, of which he esteems this the very chief; but beyond that his thoughts do not go. He has no fear or dread of the future, nor any idea that his actions here may influence his state there. Very often, accompanying his most solemn performance of the Grand Medicine, there will be in the same vicinity game and other animals, which is not thought that there is anything out of consonance with what he is engaged in. Very often he is drunk when beginning its performance, and that is thought to be just as proper as if he were sober. Morality is entirely divorced from his religion, and has nothing to do with it.

As to their belief about the immortality of the soul, it cannot be more exactly told than in the words of the writer before quoted, who had it from Indian sources, and was most careful to have it exactly correct.

"When an Ojibway dies, his body is placed in a grave, generally in a sitting posture, facing the west. With his body are buried all the articles needed in life for a journey,—of a man, his gun, blanket, kettle, fire-steel, flint, and mocassons; of a woman, her mocassons, axe, portage-collar, blanket, and kettle. "The soul is supposed to stand, immediately after the death of the body, on a deep beaten path, which leads westward. The first object he comes to in following this path is the great 'Odeiminn' ('Heart-berry'), or strawberry, which stands on the roadside like a huge rock, and from which he takes a handful, and eats on his way. "He travels on until he reaches a deep, rapid stream of water, over which lies the much dreaded 'Go-gogash-o-gunin,' or 'Rolling and Sinking Bridge.' Once safely over this, as the traveller looks back, it assumes the shape of a huge serpent swimming, twisting and unwinding its folds across the stream. "After camping out four nights, and travelling each day through a prairie country, the soul arrives in the land of spirits, where he becomes a spirit, and all the relatives accumulated since mankind were first created. All is rejoicing, singing, and dancing. They live in a beautiful country, interpersed with clear lakes and streams, forests and prairie, and abounding in fruit and game to repletion: in a word, abounding in all that the red man most covets in this life. It is that kind of a paradise which he only by his manner of life in this world is fitted to enjoy."

The Ojibways call the road which leads to this place "Tchi-be-kuna," or "the Road of Souls." They all — good, bad, and indifferent — expect to go there, and to find all their relatives there. There, also, they believe they will be waited on by the souls of those whom they have slain in battle, as slaves.

When entering on manhood, the heathen Indian practises a rigid fast, that he may, if possible, obtain a vision of the Great Spirit, or of some subordinate spirit, and may in consequence be directed to a long and prosperous life. He builds himself a sort of nest in a tree, or on the top of a rock, and there retires, and fasts for from four to ten days, till he obtains the much desired vision, or is compelled by hunger to desist. By this vision, if he obtain it, all his subsequent life is directed. He never mentions it but with the utmost veneration, and even with the sacrifice of tobacco, or some other thing precious to him, to the spirit of the vision he has seen.

They often hang up an offering of tobacco or clothing on poles to the sun (whom they see), and there retire, and fasts for ten days, till he obtains the much desired vision, if he obtain it, all his subsequent life is directed. He builds himself a sort of nest in a tree, or on the top of a rock, and there retires, and fasts for from four to ten days, till he obtains the much desired vision, or is compelled by hunger to desist. By this vision, if he obtain it, all his subsequent life is directed. He never mentions it but with the utmost veneration, and even with the sacrifice of tobacco, or some other thing precious to him, to the spirit of the vision he has seen.

3. Prospect of the Indian.—If the present policy of peaceful Christian missions to civilize and Christianize the Indians be continued and prosecuted, their prospects are brighter than ever before, and not many years will pass till they will be self-sustaining Christian farmers and herdsmen. Experience shows that there is no use trying to make a civilized man out of an Indian, without first making a Christian of him: it is beginning at the wrong end. In our experience, no heathen man ever amounts to anything as a farmer. The two are inseparably bound up together,—to be a farmer Indian and to be a Christian Indian.

Christianity changes the very expression of their faces, especially of the women. One can tell a Christian Indian woman, by her expression, from a heathen as far as one can see her. She has lost that hard, wild, and forbidding expression, more like that of a wild animal than of a human being; and in its place an expression of softness, gentleness, mildness, and love, has crept over her features. She is no longer a wild animal and a slave: she has become human by the gospel.

The Indians are not so quick to adopt Christianity, or any new thing, as the negroes, being very slow and deliberate in the movement of their minds; but, once embraced, they cling faster to it. They seem to value religion, when they do embrace it, far higher than we, as, indeed, it is often all they have. It makes them well dressed, clean, quiet, and industrious.

What the Indian needs now is to have all law extended over him the same as over all the other people of the land, to have schools like little district schools established everywhere by the government wherever there are Indian children, to have their lands allotted to them in severalty the same as white people, to be made to pay taxes as soon as possible, to be made citizens, and allowed to vote.

The system of free rations should cease the earliest possible moment, and in its stead a complete outfit for farming should be offered to every Indian family willing to commence that life; namely, a hundred and sixty acres of land in severalty, a yoke of oxen, wagon, sleigh, cow, plough, harrow, and all necessary farming-implements, seed for his land, and provisions to last until he can raise a crop; and, having once given him this complete outfit, let him then shift for himself. If white people were always so babied, it would take all the manliness and self-reliance out of them.

And, with all this, let missions be sustained among them by the good Christian people; so that Christianity can have an opportunity to do its work among them, and raise them, as it has raised all other people with whom it has come in contact. And, as the chiefest means to this end, let native Indian clergy be raised up and employed, of whom there are now very many, and whose labors have been blessed with abundant success. Thus employing the two powerful arms,—the temporal and the spiritual, education and Christianity,—an end will be reached which will gladden every lover of humanity, and solve the most difficult of problems.

J. A. GILLFILLAN (indorsed by Bishop Whipple).

IRONS, Joseph, b. at Ware, Herts, Nov. 5, 1785; d. in London, April 3, 1852; was originally a builder, but became an Independent minister, and settled at Hoddesdon 1812, Sawston 1815, and Camberwell 1818, where he was pastor of Grove Chapel from 1819. He wrote Jazer, and other works in prose, besides Calvary, Zion's Hymns, 1816; Judah, a paraphrastic version of the Psalms, 1847; and Nymphas, being Canticles similarly treated, 1841. Some of his hymns have been used by advanced Calvinists. A memoir by C. BAYFIELD appeared 1852.

IRONS, William Josiah, D.D., b. at Hoddesdon, Herts, Sept. 12, 1812; d. June 19, 1883; was a son of the above, but became an advanced Anglican. He was educated at Queen's College, Oxford; curate of Newington, 1838; vicar of Walworth, 1837; of Barkway, Herts, 1838; of Brompton, London, 1842; since then prebendary of St. Paul's, and rector of St. Mary Woolnoth. He published many theological works, besides a Metrical Psalter, 1857, and a hundred and ninety original Psalms and Hymns for the Church, 1878. He has made the best version of Dies Irae, now generally used.

JOHNS, John, D.D., b. in New Castle, Del., July 10, 1796; d. April 5, 1876, at the Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia. Bishop Johns entered Princeton College in 1812, and graduated with the first honors in 1815. In 1818 he entered the theological seminary of Princeton. In both the college and seminary he was the classmate of Rev. Dr. Charles Hodge. Their friendship was lasting, and, like that of David and Jonathan, was "wonderful." On hearing of Bishop Johns's death, Dr. Hodge said, "I have no such friend on earth."

He was ordained by Bishop White in 1819. His first charge was in Frederick, Md.; from thence, in 1829, he became rector of Christ Church in Baltimore, where he remained till he was elected assistant bishop of the diocese of Virginia. He was consecrated in 1842, and on the death of Bishop Meade, in 1862, became bishop.

Bishop Johns was no ordinary man. He was by his natural gifts "fashioned to much honor." His classmate, Dr. Hodge, said of him, "He was always first,—first everywhere, and first in every thing." He had a well modulated voice, an earnest and impassioned delivery, a tenacious memory, and extraordinary fluency of language, which made him very popular as a preacher. As bishop, in the administration of his diocese and of the affairs of the church generally, he manifested wisdom, prudence, and gentleness. He was also a professor of homiletics and pastoral theology in the Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia. As a man he was greatly beloved for the indescribable charm of his manner and the warmth of his friendship. His last hours were cheered by the full assurance of faith in that gospel he had always preached. The sting of death was taken away, and the grave robbed of its victory.

JOSEPH PACKARD.

JOYCE, James, b. at Frome, Somersetshire, Nov. 2, 1781; d. at Dorking, Oct. 9, 1850; was vicar of Dorking, and wrote A Treatise on Love to God, 1822, The Lay of Truth, 1823. and some hymns, one of which, on the Jews, is much used.

KENT, John, b. at Bideford, Devonshire, December, 1766; d. at Plymouth, Nov. 16, 1843; was a shipwright in Plymouth dockyard, and a warm believer in the tenets of extreme Calvinism. His Original Gospel Hymns, 1803, were enlarged to two hundred and fifty-nine in 1833, and reached a tenth edition, 1861: they are remarkable for the height of doctrine. Christians of ordinary altitude have found but one or two of them adapted to general use.

KEY, Francis Scott, b. in Frederick County, Md., Aug. 1, 1779; d. in Baltimore, Jan. 11, 1843; is remembered as the author of The Star-spangled Banner, 1814. He was educated at St. John's College, Annapolis; began to practise law at FredericK, Md.; removed to Washington, and became United-States district attorney. His Poema, 1857, include three hymns of some value.

KRAUTH, Charles Porterfield, D.D., L.L.D., b. in Martinsburgh, Va., March 17, 1823; d. in Philadelphia, Jan. 2, 1893. He was the eldest son of Charles Philip Krauth, D.D.; was educated at Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn. (of which his father was president), graduating in 1839, and at the Lutheran Theological Seminary at the same place; was pastor at Baltimore, Md. (1841-47), Shepherdstown, Va. (1847-49), Winchester, and at the head of several churches in Philadelphia after 1859; editor of Lutheran and Missionary, 1861-67; professor of systematic theology in the Lutheran seminary at Philadelphia from its foundation in 1864 until his death; professor of mental and modern science, University of Pennsylvania, from 1868; vice-provost of same institution from 1873. He was a member of the American Oriental Society, of the American Philosophical Society, and of the Old Testament Society of the American Bible Revision Committee. He was by universal acknowledgment the most accomplished scholar and theologian of the Lutheran Church in the United States. Furnished with a well-selected library of fourteen thousand volumes, which, in some of the departments represented, was almost exhaustive with respect to primary sources of information, a most exact and conscientious student of a wide range of learning, especially fond of the most minute and thorough investigations that penetrated all the ramifications and development of a subject concerning which he was searching, endowed with rare powers as a thinker, writer, and debater, and with social gifts that always made him the centre and admiration of every circle in which he moved, he has left a permanent impress on the life and heart of the entire church. His associates in the Bible Revision Committee record their estimate in the words, "America has produced few men who united in their own persons so many of the excellences which distinguish the scholar, the theologian, the exegete, the debater, and leader of his brethren, as did our accomplished associate. His learning did not smother his genius, nor did his philosophical attainments impair the simplicity of his faith." His greatest work, The Conservative Reformation and its Theology (Philadelphia, 1872), is both historical and doctrinal. He translated Tholuck's Commentary on John (1859) and Ulrici's Review of Strauss (1874), and edited Berkeley's Principles of Human Knowledge (1874) and Fleming's Vocabulary of Philosophy (1880), to the last edition of which (1877) he added a Vocabulary of the Philosophical Sciences of almost equal size with the main work. He was an associate editor of Johnson's Cyclopedia. His review articles are numerous. In the controversy in the Lutheran church which resulted in a division in 1868, Dr. Krauth was the leader of the wing, which, after the separation in the General Synod, established the General Council upon the confessional basis he has defended in The Conservative Reformation, viz., that of a strict adherence to the symmetrical books. The revised doctrinal basis of the General Synod (1868) is a modification of a form of subscription to the Augsburg Confession he had prepared for the Pittsburgh synod (1868). Of the General Council he was president for ten years, composed its Fundamental Principles of Faith and Church Polity, co-operated largely in the determination of its liturgical forms, moulded to a great extent all the legislation involving doctrinal questions, while, in the defence of doctrinal theses he at various times presented, all his exalted gifts shone with their fullest brilliancy. Failing health prevented the completion of a life of Luther for the fourth Luther centenary, for which he had made extensive preparations, including a visit to the home of the venerable father in 1880. A memoir is in preparation by his son-in-law and colleague, Dr. A. Spaeth. See also biographical...
LYNCH.

LE QUIEN, Michael, b. at Boulogne-sur-Mer, Oct. 6, 1661; d. in Paris, March 12, 1733. He became a Dominican in his twentieth year, studied particularly Greek, Hebrew, and Arabic, and on account of his learning and services was made librarian of the convent of St. Honoré, Paris. He was a modest, pious, and zealous man, and constantly corresponded with the most learned men of his time. The most important of his writings are Sancti Ioannis Damasceni opera omnia, 1712, Paris, 2 vols.; Stephani de Altamura Pontificis contra schisma Gracorum Panoplia adversus Nestorii patriarch. Hieros, 1718; Oriens Christianus, 1740, 8 vols.

LODI, William Freeman, b. at Uley, Gloucestershire, Dec. 22, 1791; d. at Stanley Hall, in the same county, April 22, 1853; lived mainly in London, and long served as a secretary of the Sunday-school Union and of the Religious Tract Society, editing their publications. He wrote a few good hymns.

LOWRIE, Hon. Walter, b. near Edinburgh, Scotland, Dec. 10, 1784; d. in New-York City, Dec. 14, 1858. He was brought to America at eight years of age, was brought up in Pitts-County, Penn., until after conversion at eighteen; sought the ministry, and studied with marked zeal and swift progress, but providentially hindered from finishing his studies, went into politics, and in 1811 he was chosen to the Senate of Pennsylvania; after seven years' service, elected to the United-States Senate, and, after six years in that office, made secretary of the Senate. This honorable life-station he surrendered in 1836 for a call to the secretarship of the infant missionary society of the synod of Pittsburgh, which became, the year following, the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church.

The place for the man was the result of Christian faith and moral heroism; the man for the place, the result of a long chain of preparatory providences. His public life had proven his ability, integrity, sagacity, practical judgment, systematic study, and thorough mastery of every question considered, and had demonstrated permanency and depth of his Christian convictions and character under the most trying circumstances. The man who had elicited the respect of Webster and Clay as "authority upon all points of political history and constitutional law," and had opposed slavery, studied and befriended the Indians, founded the congressional prayer-meeting and temperance society, was just the man in mental power and furniture, and he who gave three sons to foreign missions, and robbed himself of sleep to study Chinese, was just the man in heart, to undertake the new and difficult cause, to allay the irritations of the times while developing the true principles, to awaken the churches, to enlist the public authorities, to grasp comprehensively the world to be evangelized, and rapidly to develop the latent energies, and shape the hitherto unknown instrumentalities.

That he did all this in simple matter of precious history. Walter Lowrie lives everywhere in missionary zeal and efficiency. In the work he constantly manifested executive energy, unflagging industry, self-sacrificing readiness to endure the exposure of distant journeys, and the utmost patience with minutest detail. His religion of principle, joined with his calm and judicial mind, and enkindled by his ardent love for souls and their Saviour, and supported by unquestioning and invincible faith in the promises of God, made him for thirty years the efficient head of the mission-work.

SALTER, Thomas Toke, was b. at Dunmow, Essex, July 5, 1818, and brought up in Islington, London. He was successively pastor at Highgate, 1847; Mortimer Street, London, 1849; Fitzroy Chapel, 1852; and Mornington Church, Hampstead Road, 1862. Always in feeble health, and in later years able to preach on Sunday mornings only, he died May 9, 1871.

He was a brilliant man, with a vivid and subtle imagination, and a temperament essentially poetical. He wrote Memorials of Theophilus Trinall (which is largely autobiographic), 1850; Essays on Some of the Forms of Literature, 1853; Lectures... in Aid of Self-Improvement, 1854; Among Transgressors, 1860; A Group of Six Sermons, 1869; The Mornington Lecture, 1870; and Sermons for my Curates, 1871, reprinted as The Moral of Accidents, etc. Some of these were not so much written by him, as reported from his delivery.

In 1855 he published The Rivulet, a Contribution to Sacred Song. This was attacked with great virulence by James Grant in the Morning Advertiser, and Dr. John Campbell in The British Banner. Newman Hall, Thomas Binney, and other leading Independents stood by Mr. Lynch; and thus arose the once famous "Rivulet Controversy," which filled some thousand pages, chiefly of closely printed octavo. The most memorable part in it was borne by Lynch himself, as "Silent Long," in Songs Controversial and The Ethics of Quotation, and under his own name in the Christian Spectator for November, 1856. In his puny frame dwelt an indomitable spirit, with the indignation as of a Hebrew prophet for meanesses, shams, compromises. The Rivulet won him many friends, and the assaults upon it many enemies. The book itself is full of fresh thought, delicate poetry, uncomonomplace experience, and quiet devotion: it reached a third edition, much enlarged, in 1868. Selections from it are found in many recent hymnals, both English and American; the most familiar of them beginning, "Gracious Spirit, dwell with me." See Lynch's Memoirs, edited by William White, London, 1874.

MACURDY, Elisha, b. Oct. 15, 1763, in Carlisle, Penn.; d. at Pittsburgh, Penn., July, 1845. Education interrupted by the Revolution and family embarrassment. Character early developed. Total abstainer from boyhood. Advised by presbytery, because of zeal and success, to prepare for the ministry. Cannonsburgh Academy entered at twenty-nine years of age; theology from McMillan; finished in 1769. Ardent piety further developed through Philip Jackson, the "praying elder." Licensed in 1769. Missionary tour to Erie and thereabouts; second one. Decided with difficulty to settle at Cross Roads, Penn., in connection with Three Springs; installed in 1800. Preaching expository, condensed, pithy; was later taught on whiskey at a funeral, and persuaded presbytery to exclude it from its meetings. Missionary tour in 1802.

Most eminent as factor in revivals of 1802. Much in prayer. Originated the sunset, fifteen minute concert of prayer for revival. On fourth sabbath of September, 1802, after sermon on "Choose ye this day," etc., whole night spent by people in prayer; interest deepened; bodily prostrations were experienced. Other neighborhoods stirred. People continued together, despite rain and snow. Enlarged communion seasons. Ten thousand present at Upper Buffalo, 14th November. There Macurdy preached, as if by inspiration, from Ps. ii., the famous "war sermon." Scene at close, says an eye-witness, "like the close of a battle in which every tenth man had fallen, fatally wounded." Revival continued from two to four years; saved the district from infidelity,anja blessing was experienced. Other neighborhoods were influenced by the West. Macurdy's Indian work was remarkable for sagacity, bravery, perseverance, and self-sacrifice. Eight missionary journeys to Wyandottes, Maunees, etc., travelling forty-five hundred miles, all on horseback. Pastorate resigned, 1835, for infirmity. Labored unremittingly in Allegheny City as long as strength endured. SYLVESTER F. SCOVILL.

MACURDY, John, D.D., Presbyterian; b. Nov. 11, 1752, of Scotch-Irish parents, at Fagg's Manor, Penn.; d. at Cannonsburgh, Penn., Nov. 16, 1833. His sisters labored in the field to aid in educating him, first at academy, and then at Princeton College, from 1770. Awakened in the academy when less than seventeen years old, he passed through characteristically strong religious struggles, but finally yielded his will to God's call to the ministry. His theological studies were with Dr. Robert Smith of Poughkeepsie. He was ordained at Chambersburg, Penn., June, 1776, as pastor of Chartiers and Pigeon Creek in Washington County. Revolution intervening, he visited the congregations frequently, but removed with his family only in November, 1778. Once settled among a people grappling with the forests, and surrounded by savages housed in log huts, clothed in linsey-woolley, fed from the products of their own labor, but true to God and their standards, he shared their lot, organized their churches, rebuked rising immorality, kept the generations true to the faith, provided for a needed ministry, visited, catechised, preached and lived the truth through the nearly sixty years' most fruitful ministry, whose fruits remain. He was prominent in the revivals of 1781, when the people spent whole nights in prayer, of 1798, of 1799, of 1802, and of 1823. As ecclesiastic, he was the nucleus of presbyteries, the stern advocate of sound discipline, the most frequent a blessing was experienced. As citizen, he was the defender of law and order during the whiskey rebellion (1794); as educator, he was the father of the "Log-cabin College," the "founder of Jefferson," and the teacher in theology of more than a hundred ministers, who were well taught despite defective apparatus. He resigned his pastoral charge in 1880. SYLVESTER F. SCOVILL.

MEDLEY, Samuel, b. at Cheshunt, Herts, June 23, 1738; d. at Liverpool, July 17, 1799; was apprenticed to an oilman in London, 1752; entered the navy as a midshipman, 1755; was wounded, 1769, and soon after "converted," opened a school in London, 1769 or 1761; became Baptist pastor at Watford, Herts, 1767, and at Liverpool, 1772, where his ministry was earnest and efficient. His Hymns appeared on leaflets or broadsides: seventy-seven of them were gathered in a volume, 1788, and two hundred and thirty-two in 1800. They show some talent, but powerful influence on the West. Many of them have been very popular. He was fond of building a hymn on some text or catchword, repeated as often as possible and usually at the end of of Scotland, and had given to that church in almost unbroken succession a line of most estimable ministers. The baronetcy in the family is one of the oldest in Scotland, having been created in 1626. The grandfather of Sir Henry was long known and widely esteemed as minister of St. Cuthbert's, Edinburgh, and a leader of the evangelical party in the church.

After receiving education at the high school and university of Edinburgh, young Moncreiff entered the university of Oxford, where he was a fellow-student of Mr. Gladstone and other eminent men. Influence was brought to bear on him to join the Church of England; and, as the Archbishop of Canterbury was the husband of his aunt, his prospects there were excellent. But he preferred to labor in the church of his fathers, and, returning to Edinburgh to study at the Divinity Hall, he was ordained to the ministry in the country parish of Baldeaton in 1838, whence he was translated to East Kilbride, near Glasgow, in 1837. At the disruption in 1843 he joined the Free Church, and in 1852 was translated to Free St. Cuthbert's, Edinburgh, in which charge he remained till his death. Sir Henry was one of the principal clerks of the General Assembly of the Free Church; and he likewise held the situation of secretary to the Queen's printers in Scotland, in which capacity it was his duty to see to the correctness of the various editions printed of the Bible. In 1869 he was moderator of the General Assembly of the Free Church. He was the first lecturer under the foundation of the Chalmers Lectureship, and had but recently delivered and published his course of lectures on the Principles of the Free Church.

Sir Henry had quite a genius for ecclesiastical law and ecclesiastical procedure and forms. His services as clerk of the Free-Church Assembly were of great value, not only in promoting the orderly course of business, but likewise in guiding deliberations, and elucidating the principles that were applicable to difficult questions. The whole question of the relation of Church and State in Scotland, especially as it came to a crisis in 1843, was the subject of his very profound and careful study. He published several treatises on the subject, including A Letter to Lord Melbourne, in 1840; The Practice of the Free Church in her Several Courts, 1871; A Letter to the Duke of Argyll, in 1875; Vindication of the Claim of Right of the Free Church, 1877; and, most elaborate of all, his Chalmers Lectures, just referred to. The Practice of the Free Church is the book by which he will probably be most remembered. He deemed it quite competent, in harmony with Free-Church principles, to negotiate for union with the United Presbyterians; although, when the question of disestablishment came up, he thought that step inconsistent with these principles. He equally disapproved of the existing Established Church, and of the attempt to pull it down without rearing a purer establishment in its room.

Sir Henry Moncreiff was an assiduous and faithful minister. His discourses were earnest, evangelical, substantial, and often powerful, though he was not very judicious in the exercise of his authority. He was regular and unwearied in visiting the members of his congregation, and in all the other parts of pastoral duty. Personally he was kind, affable, and obtrusive, ready to do any service to the poorest of the brethren, quite as freely accepting the humble place of a minister of a non-confessional body; and content to see the favors of the state bestowed upon others. His personal earnestness as a Christian, his sympathy with evangelistic work, his desire for the spiritual good of the people and for the presence of God's spirit in the church at large, were very sincere. Few men have enjoyed a more general esteem for integrity and purity of character, for the true bearing of a Christian minister and a Christian gentleman, throughout his whole life.

W. G. BLAIKIE.

MONSELL, John Samuel Bewlcy, LL.D., b. at St. Columb's, Londonderry, March 2, 1811; d. at Guildford, April 9, 1875; was educated at Trinity College, Dublin; B.A., 1832; became examining chaplain to Bishop Mant, rector of Rameoan, and chancellor of the diocese ofConnor; vicar of Egham, Surrey, 1853, and rural dean; rector of St. Nicholas', Guildford, 1870. Besides "Our Natives," 1867, and other prose works, he published "Hymns and Hymns, 1837; Parish Musings, 1850; Hymns of Love and Praise for the Church's Year, 1863; Spiritual Songs; The Parish Hymnal, 1873; Simon the Cyrenian, etc., 1873, and several pamphlets, etc. His devotional verses combine warmth with refinement, and are greatly valued by many of schools widely different from his own.

MOORE, Thomas, b. in Dublin, May 28, 1779; d. at Sloperton, Wilt's, Feb. 25, 1852; enters into religious literature by his Sacred Songs, 1816. These have their full share of the spirited elegance which usually marks his lyrics, and some of them touch deep subjects with apparent feeling; so that a few are much valued and sometimes sung by Christians of almost every denomination.

MORRAN, Edwin Denison, b. in Washington, Berkshire County, Mass., Feb. 8, 1811; d. in New York City, Feb. 14, 1883. He was of genuine New Englanding in the eighth generation of a Connecticut family. His early years were spent in Hartford, where he began his business-life. In 1838 he removed to New-York City, and entered upon a commercial career, which was from the first one of marked and growing success, and gave him a high place among the merchant princes of the metropolis. His political career began with his election, at the age of twenty-one, to the city council of Hartford. In 1849 he was made one of the assistant aldermen of the city of New York, and from this time forward was engaged in public service for twenty years, holding positions of highest honor and responsibility. He was State senator from the Sixth District in 1850 and in 1859, commissioner of migration from 1855 to 1859, governor of New York from 1868 to 1869, and senator of the United States for New York from 1862 to 1869. He was nominated for the secretaryship of the treasury twice by President Lincoln, and in 1861 by President Arthur, but declined the appointment. His services to the country during the first years of the civil war were excelled by none; they are still held in most honorable remembrance: and his name is marked as that of one of our most upright, energetic, and capable public men.

In all this he ever endeavored, and proved his personal adherence to the religion of Jesus Christ.
VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS.

STARK, Johann Friedrich, b. at Hildesheim, Oct. 10, 1806; d. at Frankfort-on-the-Main, July 17, 1876. He was the author of the famous German devotional works, Tägliches Handbuch in guten und bösen Tagen (Frankfort, 1777; 53d ed., 1875; other editions elsewhere; Eng. trans., Philadelphia), Morgen- u. Abend-Andachten vommer Christen auf alle Tage im Jahr (Frankfort, 9th ed., 1882; other editions elsewhere), Gütigenes Schatz-Kästlein, and also of the sermons, Predigten über die Sonn-Fest- u. Feiertags-Evangelien, many editions. Among his other works may be mentioned a commentary (in Latin) upon Ezekiel, Frankfort, 1731. The biography of Stark is found in the modern Frankfort edition of his Handbuch.

STUART, Robert L. (b. in New York City, July 21, 1806; d. there Dec. 12, 1882) and Alexander his brother (b. in New York City, Dec. 8, 1810; d. there Dec. 23, 1879), two philanthropists, whose princely gifts entitle them to lasting honor. From 1828 until 1873 they carried on, under the firm name of R. L. & A. Stuart, an extensive business, at first as candy-manufacturers only (1828-32), then in connection with steam sugar-refining (1832-56), but since 1856 as refiners only. They accumulated large wealth, and their reputation for integrity was such that their name upon an article was a guaranty of its excellent quality. They refined annually about forty million pounds of sugar. They made no concealment of their wealth, and their reputation for integrity was such that their name upon an article was a guaranty of its excellent quality. They refined annually about forty million pounds of sugar. They made no concealment of their wealth.

STARK. From 1552 to 1892 was privadoent at Bonn, and from 1892 to his death professor of philosophy at Königsberg. His principal works are System der Logik und Geschichte der logischen Lehren, Bonn, 1857 (5th ed. by J. B. Meyer, 1882; Eng. trans. from 3d ed., 1868, by T. M. Lindsay, System of Logic and History of Logical Doctrines, London, 1871), and Grundriss der Geschichte der Philosophie, Berlin, 1862-66, 3 vols. (6th ed. by M. Heine, 1880-88; Eng. trans. from 4th ed., 1871, by Professor G. S. Morris, with supplementary chapters by Professor Botta on Italian, and by President Porter on American philosophy, New York, 1871, London, 1872, 2 vols.). The latter work is extensively used as a text-book in Great Britain and the United States, and is also well adapted for general reading. It is noted for its objectivity, and fulness of reference to the literature.

VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS. The authorship of this hymn has been very much disputed. George Brower (1554) assigns it to Amrose and Thomasius and Daniel, to Charlemagne; the Encyclopædia Britannica (art. "Hymns"), to Charles the Bald (Carolus Crassus, grandson of Charlemagne); and More, Wackernagel, and March, to Gregory the Great. It is first mentioned in the Annales Benedictinium in an account of the removal of the relics of St. Marculfus, A.D. 898. The Anglican Church retains it in the offices for ordering of priests, and consecrating of bishops; the Roman Church, additionally, in the consecration of the Pope. Superstitious reverence attached to its repetition as a charm against enemies. It is found, generally, in the German breviaries and missals of the thirteenth to the fourteenth century. Its true author is doubtless Rabanus Maurus, pupil of Alcuin, bishop of Mayence, and poet-laurate of the time of Charlemagne. The arguments in behalf of this view are, (1) The hymn can only be attributable to a scholar, a theologian, and a poet. (2) Its latest date is restricted by the considerations just offered, and its earliest date depends on the doctrinal point of the procession of the Holy Spirit from both the Father and the Son. This was affirmed (by adding Filioque to the Creed) by the Council of Toledo, A.D. 589, and re-affirmed by the synod of Aquisgranum (Aachen), A.D. 606. (3) The word "paracletus" (παρακλήτος) in the hymn is scanned differently from Prudentius and Adam of St.

STARK, Johann Friedrich, b. at Hildesheim, Oct. 10, 1806; d. at Frankfort-on-the-Main, July 17, 1876. He was the author of the famous German devotional works, Tägliches Handbuch in guten und bösen Tagen (Frankfort, 1777; 53d ed., 1875; other editions elsewhere; Eng. trans., Philadelphia), Morgen- u. Abend-Andachten vommer Christen auf alle Tage im Jahr (Frankfort, 9th ed., 1882; other editions elsewhere), Gütigenes Schatz-Kästlein, and also of the sermons, Predigten über die Sonn-Fest- u. Feiertags-Evangelien, many editions. Among his other works may be mentioned a commentary (in Latin) upon Ezekiel, Frankfort, 1731. The biography of Stark is found in the modern Frankfort edition of his Handbuch.

STUART, Robert L. (b. in New York City, July 21, 1806; d. there Dec. 12, 1882) and Alexander his brother (b. in New York City, Dec. 8, 1810; d. there Dec. 23, 1879), two philanthropists, whose princely gifts entitle them to lasting honor. From 1828 until 1873 they carried on, under the firm name of R. L. & A. Stuart, an extensive business, at first as candy-manufacturers only (1828-32), then in connection with steam sugar-refining (1832-56), but since 1856 as refiners only. They accumulated large wealth, and their reputation for integrity was such that their name upon an article was a guaranty of its excellent quality. They refined annually about forty million pounds of sugar. They made no concealment of their religion. To each new employee they presented a Bible. During their long business-experience their workmen never struck once; and when their establishment was threatened by the rioters in 1863, they stood to a man in its defence. They were zealous Presbyterians, but to many an enterprising Presbyterian college and theological seminary of the time of Charlemagne. The arguments in behalf of this view are, (1) The hymn can only be attributable to a scholar, a theologian, and a poet. (2) Its latest date is restricted by the considerations just offered, and its earliest date depends on the doctrinal point of the procession of the Holy Spirit from both the Father and the Son. This was affirmed (by adding Filioque to the Creed) by the Council of Toledo, A.D. 589, and re-affirmed by the synod of Aquisgranum (Aachen), A.D. 606. (3) The word "paracletus" (παρακλήτος) in the hymn is scanned differently from Prudentius and Adam of St.

STARK. From 1552 to 1892 was privadoent at Bonn, and from 1892 to his death professor of philosophy at Königsberg. His principal works are System der Logik und Geschichte der logischen Lehren, Bonn, 1857 (5th ed. by J. B. Meyer, 1882; Eng. trans. from 3d ed., 1868, by T. M. Lindsay, System of Logic and History of Logical Doctrines, London, 1871), and Grundriss der Geschichte der Philosophie, Berlin, 1862-66, 3 vols. (6th ed. by M. Heine, 1880-88; Eng. trans. from 4th ed., 1871, by Professor G. S. Morris, with supplementary chapters by Professor Botta on Italian, and by President Porter on American philosophy, New York, 1871, London, 1872, 2 vols.). The latter work is extensively used as a text-book in Great Britain and the United States, and is also well adapted for general reading. It is noted for its objectivity, and fulness of reference to the literature.

VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS. The authorship of this hymn has been very much disputed. George Brower (1554) assigns it to Amrose and Thomasius and Daniel, to Charlemagne; the Encyclopædia Britannica (art. "Hymns"), to Charles the Bald (Carolus Crassus, grandson of Charlemagne); and More, Wackernagel, and March, to Gregory the Great. It is first mentioned in the Annales Benedictinium in an account of the removal of the relics of St. Marculfus, A.D. 898. The Anglican Church retains it in the offices for ordering of priests, and consecrating of bishops; the Roman Church, additionally, in the consecration of the Pope. Superstitious reverence attached to its repetition as a charm against enemies. It is found, generally, in the German breviaries and missals of the thirteenth to the fourteenth century. Its true author is doubtless Rabanus Maurus, pupil of Alcuin, bishop of Mayence, and poet-laurate of the time of Charlemagne. The arguments in behalf of this view are, (1) The hymn can only be attributable to a scholar, a theologian, and a poet. (2) Its latest date is restricted by the considerations just offered, and its earliest date depends on the doctrinal point of the procession of the Holy Spirit from both the Father and the Son. This was affirmed (by adding Filioque to the Creed) by the Council of Toledo, A.D. 589, and re-affirmed by the synod of Aquisgranum (Aachen), A.D. 606. (3) The word "paracletus" (παρακλήτος) in the hymn is scanned differently from Prudentius and Adam of St. Victor, who in the usual manner make the penultimate syllable short. This would go far to establish the author as a person who pronounced Greek by quantity rather than by accent, and certainly shows him to have understood that language. (4) The hymn (divested of its modern stanza, Da gaudiorum, etc., and of Hincmar of Rheims' doxology, Sit laus, etc.) was found by Christopher Brower (1559-1617) in "an approved English version of Italian authorship. (5) But this hymn does not appear among the hymns which are included in the works of Gregory the Great (cf. Migne: Patrol., 78, 849), and does appear in those of Rabanus Maurus (Migne: Patr., 112, 1657). (8) Charlemagne was not scholar enough to have composed it without Alcuin's help (Vackernagel, i. 75). (7) The hymn is really a paraphrase of Rabanus Maurus' own chapter on the Holy Spirit (Migne, 111, 25); and in his hymn "Eterne recessus conditor, et clara, etc., Rabanus Maurus seems "paracletus" as in the "Feni, Creator." (8) In respect to the lines "Infinna," etc., and its companion, it is noticeable that these are in the "very doubtful" stanza of Ambrose's "Veni, Redemptor gentium," where they probably are an interpolation.
2609  ZSCHOKKE.

For an exhaustive treatment of the point at issue, see the undersigned's book, The Latin Hymn-Writers and their Hymns, New York, 1886; DANIEL: Thesaurus Hymnologicus, i. 213 and iv. 124; and Wackernagel: Das Deutsche Kirchenlied, i. 75.

On Charlemagne's scholarship comp. BERINGTON: Literary History of Middle Ages, London, 1814, p. 102. [Comp. art. VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS, WEVER: Thesaurus Hymnologicus, i. 213 and iv. 124; and Wackernagel: Das Deutsche Kirchenlied, i. 75.]

WHITE, Norman, 3d. New-York merchant and Christian philanthropist; son of Daniel White; was b. at Andover, Conn., Aug. 8, 1805; and d. at New Rochelle, N.Y., June 13, 1883. He was a lineal descendant of John White, one of the original settlers, in 1636, of Hartford, Conn. Mr. White commenced his life as a merchant in New York, in 1827, and for more than fifty years was actively and successfully in business-life. He was principally engaged in the manufacture and sale of paper, but was also interested in various other branches of trade, and was for several years president of the Mercantile National Bank.

During all this period of more than half a century he was prominent in works of benevolence and in the religious movements of the day. He was an active member of the Presbyterian Church, and for more than forty years a ruling elder. He was president of the Young Men's Bible Society, and afterwards an influential manager and vice-president of the American Bible Society. To his wise foresight and practical sagacity when upon its building committee, this latter society is largely indebted for its present site and its model building. He was interested in the Union Theological Seminary from the time of its founding, was for twenty-five years one of the directors upon its board, and for twelve years its vice-president.

The chief public work of Mr. White's life was in connection with the New-York Sabbath Committee. He had long been deeply impressed with the danger to morality and religion from the increasing desecration of the Lord's Day, especially in our larger cities; and, after much thought and prayer, it was at his suggestion that in 1857 a meeting of Christian men was held in New York at which the Sabbath Committee was formed. The details of the work of this organization are given elsewhere (see art. in loco), and need not be repeated. Of this committee Mr. White was made the chairman, a position he held until his death; and, while he was nobly seconded in his efforts by the eminent Christian men who were associated with him, it is beyond doubt that the very successful results of the work were largely due to the wise and patriotic counsel with which for so many years he guided the undertaking. He was also instrumental in the establishment of similar committees in other places, and when abroad in 1871 was invited to address a meeting held in London, and explain the methods of his work for the sabbath, which had attracted the interest of Christians in that city.

Mr. White's character and influence are well expressed in the following words extracted from the resolutions passed at the time of his death by the directors of the Union Theological Seminary:

"While energetic in action, he was eminently sagacious in council. In difficult emergencies his advice was always sought, and had great weight. It may be said with truth that the truth and in society he was characterized by the same union of boldness and wisdom. He was prompt in every good cause, and during his long Christian life was one of the most influential laymen which this city has produced."

WILSON, Samuel Jennings, D.D., LL.D., b. July 18, 1828, in Western Pennsylvania (Washington County), of godly parentage; converted at Washington College (Dr. Brownson, pastor) at twenty-one years of age; graduated thence in 1852; entered the Western Theological Seminary (Presbyterian) the same year; licensed at close of his course, in 1855, by presbytery of Washington; during 1855-57 instructor in Hebrew in the same seminary, elected to its chair of ecclesiastical history and homiletics by the General Assembly in 1857, and ordained sine titulo by presbytery of Washington the same year; relinquished homiletics to Dr. William M. Paxton in 1860; became senior professor in 1876, and about 1879 added history of doctrines; preached as stated supply at Wheeling and at Sharpsburgh; pastor of Sixth Church from 1862 to 1877; president of the latter occasion he read a paper upon "The Distinctive Principles of Presbyterianism." (See Report of Second General Council of the Presbyterian Alliance, Philadelphia, [1880], pp. 148-156.) He contributed the art. WESTERN THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY in the third volume of this ENCYCLOPEDIA.

ZSCHOKKE, Johann Heinrich Daniel, b. at Magdeburg, March 22, 1771; d. at Biberstein, June 27, 1848. He studied at Frankfort-on-the-Oder, and in 1792 began to lecture there upon literary and historical subjects. In 1796 he was refused the appointment as professor, in consequence of his opposition to the Prussian minister's (Wollner) order, that all preachers should conform their discourses to the Confessional statements. He went to Switzerland, and for the rest of his life played a prominent part in Swiss affairs, especially at Aarau. He was a poet, a novelist, an historian (cf. especially his Geschichte fiir das Schwiizer [1836]; Eng. tr. 1842), and in 1792, 6 vols.; twice translated, last in 1862, Meditations on Death.
MARTENSEN.

It is the best devotional volume produced by rationalism, and has received great popularity in England by royal favor. It was partly to counteract its influence that Tholuck wrote his Hours of Christian Devotion

Just as we concluded this volume, the intelligence of Bishop Martensen's death arrived.

MARTENSEN, Hans Lassen, D.D., an eminent Danish theologian and bishop; b. at Flensburg, Aug. 19, 1808; d. in Copenhagen, Feb. 4, 1884. He was brought up in the ideas of Hegel and Franz Baader, and these ideas influenced his Lutheran theology. He obtained the gold medal for his ecclesiastical examination (1832), and, at state expense, studied at Berlin, Munich, Vienna, and Paris, particularly the philosophy of the middle age. On his return, in 1836, he took the degree of licentiate in theology, for which he presented a remarkable thesis on the autonomy of the human conscience, De autonomia conscientiae sui humanae, Copenhagen, 1837 (translated into Danish, 1841, and into German, Kiel, 1844). He began lecturing upon moral philosophy, at the university of Copenhagen, in 1837, and was made ordinary-professor in 1840.

He attracted throngs of hearers. In 1843 he was made bishop of Seeland, and in 1845 court-preacher, but still continued his lectures and writing. He was a man of great spirituality, learning, and ability. He sympathized with the old German mystics, whom he knew so well, and of whom he has written so charmingly. His principal writings (all published in Copenhagen) are Principles of Moral Philosophy, 1841 (German trans., Kiel, 1841); Master Eckart (German trans., Hamburg, 1842); Christian Baptism, 1843 (2d ed., 1847; German trans., 2d ed., 1860); Christian Dogmatics, 1849 (2d ed., 1850; German trans., 4th ed., 1858; English trans., Edinburgh, 1866); Christian Ethics, 1871–78, 2 vols. (German trans., Gotha, 3d ed., 1873–82, 2 vols.; English trans., 1873–82, 3 vols.); Catholicism and Protestantism (German trans., Gütersloh, 1884); Jacob Boehme, 1879 (Eng. trans., London, 1885); Autobiography, 1883 (German trans., Carlsruhe, 1883). Besides these, Bishop Martensen published Sermons (four series, 1849–54), and occasional discourses, in which with great skill he opposed destructive tendencies in the Danish Church, of which he is one of the most distinguished ornaments.
ANALYSIS.

Whole number of writers, 446; number of special contributors to the Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia, 174.

The numerous unsigned articles are by the editors, and are not included in this Analysis.

Bible Text, New Testament.

Moll, Willem.

Alexander, Archibald, Ph.D., New York City.

Acad., Frances.

All, Heinrich, D.D., Berlin.

Advent.

Alc, John.

Alexander, Ascanius, Ph.D., New York, Miss, St. Johnland, N.Y.

Allor, Gains, Mount Lebanon, N.Y.

Alc, Karl.

Archlaard, Arman, Geneva.

Apple, Thelma, Georg, D.D., Lancaster, N.Y.

Arnold, Friedrich, D.D. (D.

Archer, Lewis, Cam., Avan,' D.D. (D.

The numerous unsigned articles are by the editors, and are not included in this Analysis.

Barhmann, Joseph, D.D., Roscoff.

Balogh, Franx, D.D., Prague.

Baudissin, Hans, WiLsLn.

Bacon, Francis.

Bible Text, New Testament.

All-Saints' Day.

Advent.

Exorcism.

Oetinger, Friedrich, Christoph.

Ironchin.

Cities.

All-Souls' Day.

Bernstein, Ernst, Wilhelm.

Hildegard, St.

Karolus, Bartolommeo.

Fleger, Anselm.

Benedict, Gregory, Thurston, D.D., Cleveland, O.

Mullhau, Charles, Pettit.

Beecher, Edward, D.D., Brooklyn, N.Y.

Beecher, Lyman.

Beecher, Willis, Judson, D.D., Auburn, N.Y.

Temperance.

Bennett, Carl, Ph.D., Bonn.

Borromeo, Carlo.

Carranza, Bartolome de.

Wallace, Richard.

Inquisition. See under Neudecker.

John of Avila.

Leon, Luia de.

Loreto, Juan Antonio.

Paezu, Bartolommeo.

Palaor, Aulo.

Paul IV.

Pie, Robert.

Riec, Selpione de'.

Berger, D., D.D., Dayton, O.

United Brethren in Christ.

Bertheau, Carl, D.D., Hamburg.

Rudiger.

Goerz, Johann, Melchior.

Jew, Wandering.

Knautz, Albert.

Lessing, Gotthold, Ephraim.

Mayer, Johann, Friedrich.

Noldenius, Rupertus.

Nomm, Heinrich.

Ramsch.

Wolfenbittel, Friederich.

Berthaud, Ernst, D.D., Göttingen.

Buxtorf.

Cappel, Louis.

Drunius, Johannes.

Ehrenfeucht, Friedrich August, Eduard.

Hebrew Language.

Ginnett, James.

Blinny, Thomas.

Hainry, Robert.

Jay, William.

Beyer, Johann Heinrich, Franz, N.-

Harl.

Wells, Good.

Bergschlag, Willibald, D.D., Hall.

Hundeshagen, Karl, Bernhard.

Ullman, Karl.

Bird, Frederic M., Rev. Professor,

South Bethheim, Penn.

Neale, John, Mason.

Needham, John.

Noel, Baptist, Wiltshire.

Noel, Gerard, Thomas.

Norris, John.

Ogivie, John.

Olivers, Thomas.

Ott, Heinrich, Utica.

Otter, Edward.

Parnell, Thomas.

Peabody, William, Bourne Oliver.

Perronet, Edward.

Pierpont, John.

Pomfret, John.

 Pope, Alexander.

Quarles, Francis.

Raffles, Thomas.

Raleigh, Sir Walter.

Reed, Andrew.

Ripon, John.

Robinson, Robert.

Rous, Francis.

Row, Thomas.

Rowe, Mrs. Elizabeth.

Ryland, John.

Sandv, George.

Scott, Paracelsus.

Scott, K. Ichard.

Scott, Thomas.

Seagrave, Robert.

Scarr, Edmund, Hamilton.

Sedgwick, Daniel.

Shepherd, Thomas.

Shirley, Walter.

Shrubsole, William.

Sidney, Philip.

Sigourney, Lydia, Howard, Huntley.

Smart, Christopher.

Southwell, Robert.

Spenser, Edmund.

Rowe, Anne.

Rost, Elizabeth.

Tate, Jonathan.

Taylor, John.

Taylor, Thomas, Lawson.

Thomson, James.

Toplady, Augustus, Montague.

Turner, Daniel.

Vaughan, Henry.

Very, Jones.

Wall, Edmund.

Wallin, Benjamin.

Ware, Henry, jun.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Institution</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Klose, Cam.</td>
<td>Renown W1 LH'BLI, Ph.D.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kilgutel, GIOBQ Hammca, Ph.D.</td>
<td>Ver</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kihler. C., runn-n, Ph.D.</td>
<td>Go:</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Klrehhofer. G.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kialber. Ksat. anmm-n, Ph.D.</td>
<td>Go:</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kessler. K., i'h.D.</td>
<td>Marburg.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ksim, Cam.</td>
<td>'l'naonon, D.D.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Knutzsch. Ema Faisnmcn, D.D.</td>
<td>'ii</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jundt, A., Strasslinrg.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kihler. M., D.D.</td>
<td>Halle</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jessup, HENRY HARRIS, D.D.</td>
<td>Beirut,</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Klilpiel, Engelbert.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Klostermnnn, Anons'r, D.D.</td>
<td>Kiel.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kleuker, Johann Friedrich.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Corvey.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vicelin.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vandals.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>'irithemius, Johann.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sturm (abbot).</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sta hylns, Friedrich.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Severins, St.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Seckendori. Veit Ludwig von.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Schrockh, Johann Matthias.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Schall, Johann Adam.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sack, Brethren of the.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Schall, Johann Adam.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Schickler, Johann Matthias.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Seckendorf, Velt Ludwig von.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Severinus, St.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Severus, Septimius.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sickingen, Franz von.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spanenberg, Cyriacus.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spitta, Karl Johann Philipp.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Siaghysius, Friedrich.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Siagon, The.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Siburg (abbot).</td>
<td>Theob.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Thedore, Trithemius, Johann.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vandalis.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vlaun.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vives, Juan Leonardo de.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wends.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wilehald, St.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>William of Tyre.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Klose, CARL RUDOLPH WILHELM, Ph.D.</td>
<td>Hamburg.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Klipfel, Engelbert.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Synagogue, The Great.
Synagogues of the Jews.
Tabernacle.
Tetrarch.
Tithes among the Hebrews.
Weights and Measures among the Hebrews.
Widows, Hebrew.
Wine, Bearing among the Hebrews.
Writing, among the Hebrews.
Year, Hebrew.
Zedekiah.
List, FRANZ, Ph.D., Munich.
Littke, Monrrz, Schkemlitz.
Llallet, Hummus, Bitilitfll.
Liihrs, FR.
langgld, WILHELM Jnuus, D.D., Ilann, Wumun JULIUS, D.D., l'hlia
Iatter, Jacques. (D. 1864.)
IcCosh ijns, D.D., LL.D., Prince Icll'arland, HENRY Houses, Rem, ls er,01'1'0.I'll-ll, Giittingen.
Writin among the Hebrews.
Tithcs among the Hebrews.
Tetrarch.
8 nagogues of the Jews.
Synagogue, The Great.
Succoth-Benoth.

Manuel, Niklaus.
Theological School (Unitarian), Mead
Year, ebrew.
"eights and Measures among the He

Copts and the Coptic Church.
Theological Seminary (Baptist), llam Unitarians.
Unitarianlsm.
Gran , rl.
Peucer, Caspar.
Abyssinian Church.
Pezel, Christof.
Krummacher, Friedrich Adolf.
Stark, Johann August.
Scultetus, Abraham.
Ball!!!il-l, Johann vou.
Sty .
Hyperius, Andreas Ger nrd.
Henke, Heinrich Philip Konrad.
Mado natus, Joannes.
MorusI Samuel Friedrich Nathanael.
Rupert of Deutz.
Pius 1V., V.
Pachornius.

Theological Seminary, Evangelical Schmucker, Samuel Simon.
Miihlenber , Heinrich Melchior.
James, John Angeli.
Vardlaw, Ralph.
Gallicanism.

Saltzmann, Friedrich Rudolph.
Sorbonne, The.
Seventh-Day Baptists.
Locke, John.
Hume, David.
Scottish Philosophy.

Mckeand, Henry Horace, Rev.
New York City.
Seamen, Missions to.
McKIN, RANDOLPH H., D.D., New-York City.
Sparrow, William.
Mefjer, Otto, Ph.D., Gttingen.
Apostasy.
Apostolical Constitutions.

Archdeacons and Archpresbyters.
Bernard de Botono.
Bishop, Sce under Jacobson.
Briefs, Bulls, and Bullarium, Papal.
Canonization.
Capitularies.
Cardinal.
Cellency. See under Jacobson.
Censorship of Books.
Chaplain.
Chrodogang.
Coadjutor, See under Jacobson.
Collegia Nationallz.
Collegialism.
Concordat.
Concavi, Ervolo.
Curia Romana.
Del Gratul.
Excommunication (Christian).
Faculty.
Incest.
Indulgences.
Jurisdiction, Ecclesiastical.
Legate and Nuncios in the Roman-Catholic Church.
Marca, Petrus de.
Mense Papales.
Parity.
Penalities.
Placet.
Prebend.
Propaganda, Definition of the.
Taxation, Ecclesiastical.
Merkel, PAUL JOHNS, Ph.D., (D. 1861.)
Asno.

Bibles, Pictured, and Biblical Pictures.
Calendar Broehren.
Candles, Use of, in Divine Service.
Catacombs.
Cross.
Kyrie Eleyson.
Monotone.
New-Year’s Celebration.
Temple at Jerusalem.
Neurer, Moritz, Callenberg, Saxony.
Altar, Hebrew.
Tabernacle, for the Preservation of the Enchast.
Meyer von Knonna, Ph.D., Zirlich.
Einseideln.
Gall, Monastery of St.
Notker.
Michael, Chemenzit.
Liebner, Karl Theodor Albert.
Michelsen, Alexander, Libeck.
Birgitta, St.
Egele, Hans.
Olaf, St.
Reuterdahl, Heinrk.
Mitchell, Alexander F., D.D., St.
Andrews, Scotland.
Columba, St.
Culross.
Hamilton, Patrick.
Jena.
Kettle Church.
Moller, Wilhelm Ernst, D.D., Kiel.
Adoptionism, Adoptionists.
Alcuin.
Antioch, School of.
Athenasius.
Dionysius Areopagita.
Punc, Johann.
Gottks bark (monk).
Regorios Thamaturgoz.
Gregory of Nyssa.
Hosius.
Impostosibua, de Tribus.
Isodore of Pelusium.
Joachim of Fiors.
Juliuz.
Lerins, Convent of.
Libertas.
Lucifer and the Luciferians.
Lupus, Servatus.
Macedonian.
Makrina.
Marcellus, Bishop of Ancyra.
Maximus, Bishop of Turin.
Meletius of Antioch.
Meletius ofLyopola in.
Methodius.
Monophysites.
Monothelites.

Montanism.
Nemestus.
Nepo.
Nestorius and the Nestorian Contro versy to 498.
Origins.
Organistic Controversies.
Osiander, Andreas.
Panphilus.
Pantanes.
Pelagians and the Pelagian Contro versies.
Phidias.
Rufinus, Tyrannus.
Secondus.
Semi-Arians.
Semi-Pelagianism.
Simon Magus.
Synesius.
Tatian.
Theodore of Mopsuestia.
Three-Chapter Controversy.
Walsh.

Montemari, Jacob Isidor, D.D., Paters son, N.J.
Eiel, Johannes Wilhelm.
English Bible Versions.
Prayer, Book of Common.
Schn6r, Johann Heinrich.
Tyndale, William.

Morse, DUNLOP, D.D., New Brighton.
Penn.
Talmud.
Wine, Bible.

Morris, Edward Dapldo, D.D., Cin
n., O.
Lane Theological Seminary.
Soteriology.

Morse, Richard Cary, Rev., New York City.
Young Men’s Christian Associations.

M6ller, Carl, Ph.D., Tfibingen.
Joseph II.
Lee (popes).
Lucius (popes).

Moller, lwan, Ph. D., Enland.
Apolloni of Tyana.

Moller, JANN GEORG, D.D. (D.—) Anim.
Sun, Worship of the.

Niguel, EDUARD, D.D. (D.—) Jeremiah.
Judges of Israel.
Judges, Book of.
Malachi.
Mica.
Oahadiah.
Samuel.
Saul.
Uzziah.
Week.

Nestle, Bernhard, Ph.D., Ulm.
Ibas.
Lady of Antioch.
Jacob Baradieus.
Jacob of Edessa.
Jacob of Nisibis.
Jacob of Sarid.
Jacobite.
See under Ridiger.
John, Bishop of EPHesus.
Marthas.

Neudorfer, CHRISTIAN G., D.D. (C.
1865.)
Corpus Catholicoerum.
Ignorantines.
Inquisition.
Montes Petiolart.
Pilsch, Thomas.
Salas, St.
Sagittarius, Kaspar.
Schei, Samuel.
Scoac, Marlanus.
Sebaldis.
Sebastian.
Sergius (popes).
Servites.
Sndratt (family).
Sidonius, Michael.
Simcon, Archbishop of Thessalonica.
Simplifets.
Sixtus (popes).
Seldan, Johannes.
Siculons.
Soter.
Soto, Dominicus de.
Soto, Petrus de.

Spatian, Georg.
ANALYSIS.

Orelli, Carl von, Basel.
Baking, Bread.

Israel, Biblical History of. See under Oehler and Pick.
Jehovah.

Ott, Henry J., Rem, Bowmanville, Ont.

Seate, Johann.

Biblical Censure.

Goransson, John.

Baptism, The Baptist View of.

Ephraim, Books of.

Garrett Biblical Institute.

Yes, Friedrich von.

Oehler, Gustav Friedrich, D.D. (D. 1875.)

Scherer, J. H. (formerly Bern.)

Moses.

Pipes, a City of Bavaria.

Kings of Israel.

Sabbatical Year and Year of Jubilee.

Testaments.

Sabbath.

Abbati, Johann.

Canticles.

Amorites.

Israel, Biblical History of.

Calvinists.

Sabbath, Biblical Significance of. See under Oehler.

Oehler, Bernhard, D.D., Li.. D., New York.

Willow, W. D., D.D., Princeton, N.J.

Jonas and Jambros.

Joseph, Jesus.

Oehler, Baptist View of.

Jehoshaphat.

Oehler, Baptist View of.

Oehler, Baptist View of.

Oehler, Baptist View of.

Jehovah, Trial of.

Jehovah.

Oehler, Baptist View of.

Jehovah.

Oehler, Baptist View of.

Jehovah.

Oehler, Baptist View of.

Jehovah.

Oehler, Baptist View of.

Jehovah.

Oehler, Baptist View of.

Jehovah.

Oehler, Baptist View of.

Jehovah.
Stearns, Charles, D.D., Bangor.

Smeath, Newnham, D.D., New Haven.

Smeath, Newnham, D.D., New Haven.

Smeath, Newnham, D.D., New Haven.

Smeath, Newnham, D.D., New Haven.

Smeath, Newnham, D.D., New Haven.

Smeath, Newnham, D.D., New Haven.

Smeath, Newnham, D.D., New Haven.

Smeath, Newnham, D.D., New Haven.

Smeath, Newnham, D.D., New Haven.

Smeath, Newnham, D.D., New Haven.

Smeath, Newnham, D.D., New Haven.

Smeath, Newnham, D.D., New Haven.

ANALYSIS.

Microscope.

Noah and the Flood.

Obediah. See under Nielsbach.

Wackernagel, K. H. Wilhem, Ph.D.

Walter. von der Vogelweide

Wagmann, Julius August, D.D.,

Gottingen.

Abelius.

Andrew, Jakob.

Burdian, Leo.

Caroline Books.

Curcio, Calixtus secundus, Lyciares.

Durand of St. Poupart.

Faber, Radulphus.

Faber, Felix.

Faber, Johannes.

Fugger, Paul.

Fulgentius Rejoicins.

Fulgentius of Ruspe.

Gennadius Maiensiensis.

Gonsalvus, Patriarch of Constantinople.

Gottschalk.

Gulbert of Nogent.

Hadrian, P. Alinis.

Hofmann, Matthias.

Hatto, Bishop of Baeol.

Hatto. Archbishop of Mayence.

Hermes.

Hildebert.

Hiller, Philipp Friedrich.

Hoffmann, Daniel.

Holbach, Paul Heinrich Dietrich.

Horatius.

Holzau. David.

Hutter, Elia.

Hutter, Leonard.

Hyaztopus.

Idefoncons, St.

Isidore of Seville.

Ivo of Chartres.

Jacob of Vitry.

John IV.

John of Salisbury.

Jovianus, Flavius Claudius.

Jovinian.

Kajetiaus, Caius Vettius Aquillus.

Konrad of Marburg.

Lange, Joachim.

Laetitia, Johannes.

Laconius, Jacobus and Bartholomeus.

Laurentius Valla.

Lea, Geoffrey.

Leyser, Polykarp.

Loch, Johann Michael von.

Lichbor, Gottfried Christian Friedrich.

Lullius, Raymundus.

Marcus Erenius.

Marinhecke, Philipp Konrad.

Marbellus, Martinus.

Marcellus of Ancyra.

Matthias, Bishop of Augsburg.

Oecumen, St.

Ostendorf, Jacobi.

Patricia, and the Propaganda.

Patanas, Hieronymus.

Petrus, Bishop of Baeol.

Philippus, Bishop of Baeol.

Pflueger, Robert.

Reibung, Friedreich Wilhelm.

Ruba, O.

Wagner, Ph.D., Berlin.

Wander, Johann Friedrich.

Wegelin, Constance, Council of.

Weiss, Samuel.

Welge, Martin, Ph.D., Berlin.

Watten, Boniface.

Waugen, Ph.D., Berlin.

Weise, Karl, Ph.D., Erlangen.

Wiberti, Ph.D., Erningen.

Wiggens, Ph.D., New Haven, Conn.

Wright, George Frederick, Ph.D., Pittsburgh.

Oberlin Theological Seminary.
PRONOUNCING VOCABULARY OF PROPER NAMES

IN THE

SCHAFF-HERZOG ENCYCLOPÆDIA.

_Explanations._—The acute accent (') denotes the accented syllable. The grave accent (') over a, e, and i, denotes that they are pronounced as a in "far," e as a, and i as e respectively. The italicized letters in parentheses immediately utter

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>A.</th>
<th>Ab'd-frith.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Ab'-bo.</td>
<td>A-le-san-dér.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-b'-ló.</td>
<td>Al'i'-rég (ler).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-b'-e-lórd.</td>
<td>Al'i'-zék.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ab'-e-lósa.</td>
<td>Al'mán.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ab'-en-Á-tra.</td>
<td>Al'mó-ni-us Sae-cé-sa.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-b'-er-crom-by (kroms).</td>
<td>Al-phén'-us.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-b'-e-rré-thy (ée).</td>
<td>Al'se'-id.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-b'-gár-us.</td>
<td>Al'se'-id.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ab'-sul-fará-wall (b-oool-fa-ráj).</td>
<td>A-bró-né-us.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-chi'-ri.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ry, d' (duhá-re).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-b'-er-cromby (kroms).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-cé'-ló.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ri.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ry, d' (duhá-re).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-b'-er-cromby (kroms).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-cé'-ló.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ri.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ry, d' (duhá-re).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-b'-er-cromby (kroms).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-cé'-ló.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ri.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ry, d' (duhá-re).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-b'-er-cromby (kroms).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-cé'-ló.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ri.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ry, d' (duhá-re).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-b'-er-cromby (kroms).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-cé'-ló.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ri.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ry, d' (duhá-re).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-b'-er-cromby (kroms).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-cé'-ló.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ri.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ry, d' (duhá-re).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-b'-er-cromby (kroms).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-cé'-ló.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ri.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ry, d' (duhá-re).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-b'-er-cromby (kroms).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-cé'-ló.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ri.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ry, d' (duhá-re).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-b'-er-cromby (kroms).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-cé'-ló.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ri.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ry, d' (duhá-re).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-b'-er-cromby (kroms).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-cé'-ló.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ri.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ry, d' (duhá-re).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-b'-er-cromby (kroms).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-cé'-ló.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ri.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ry, d' (duhá-re).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-b'-er-cromby (kroms).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-cé'-ló.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ri.</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-ché'-ry, d' (duhá-re).</td>
<td>A-bén'-z-ra.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Proper Name</td>
<td>Pronunciation</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-------------</td>
<td>---------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pam'-phl-iua</td>
<td>(pam'-fli-oo-ee)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Parcus (pa-ri-us)</td>
<td>(pa-ri-us)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pug! (pa-zhee)</td>
<td>(pa-zhee)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I'ar-a-cel'-sus</td>
<td>(air-ah-sell-us)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pape Ju'</td>
<td>(pah-pee-yoo)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>X'a'-pI-as</td>
<td>(zah-pee-us)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Palla-fi-cI-uo (clue-no)</td>
<td>(pah-lah-fi-choo-no)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pal-eu-tri'mn</td>
<td>(pah-lay-true-mahn)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I'arls(pi'c-re)</td>
<td>(airlz-pik-ray)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Paleario (pi-li-t'l-re-o)</td>
<td>(pah-leh-ree-o)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oudin (oo-dan)</td>
<td>(oo-dan)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>0u'-en</td>
<td>(ew-en)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ot'-wr-beln (Mn)</td>
<td>(oh-tur-blenn)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Osflwr-wald (rail)</td>
<td>(ohs-fluh-wahl)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pasnionci (pamswo-niflee)</td>
<td>(pah-see-non-shee)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pasjou (pa-zhun)</td>
<td>(pah-zhoon)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>0mt, d' (do-nu)</td>
<td>(oom, dah)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>O-ro'-oI-us</td>
<td>(oh-roe-oh-lee-us)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I'aulus (panua)</td>
<td>(oh-luss)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pau'Ja</td>
<td>(pah-ya)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Per-ron'-6</td>
<td>(per-ron)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pen'-na~forte (fort)</td>
<td>(penn-neh-fort)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pen'-na~forte (fort)</td>
<td>(penn-neh-fort)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pen'-na~forte (fort)</td>
<td>(penn-neh-fort)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pen'-na~forte (fort)</td>
<td>(penn-neh-fort)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pen'-na~forte (fort)</td>
<td>(penn-neh-fort)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

...and many more entries...
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Pronunciation</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Umbrett (comm'brit)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Urs (parg-er)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ur-st'-il-nus</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ur-son-ja</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Usterl (yu'st-eo)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ustenheim (ou-t'en-him)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Uytenbogerd (yu-t'en-bo-gart)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>V.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vas'-di-an.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Val-dèe.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vál'-kens</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Val'-en-tine.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Val-en-t'il-nus.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Val'-é'-ri-an.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Va-t'en-za.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Val'-é'-tui.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Va-tui (f-k-t-er).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Va-tue (k-k-t-er).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ven-a-t'ô'-ri-us.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Venice, de 'deh vones).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Venesa (ven-a-ma).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Veroelloine (ver-eh-lo-'ne).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Verena (ver-a-'na).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ver'-g'-rius.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ver-o'-fi-ca.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vespasian (ves-pa-she-an).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vescull (ves-eh'-lin)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vex'-tor.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vic-to'-ri-us.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vlietridus (victri'-she-us).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vli-gil'-lan'-tus.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vli-gil'-lu.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vignolles (vun-yol).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Villegagnon (vul-gan-yon).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Villers (vul-yer)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vilmar (vil-mar).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Window (van-sen).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vilt (vul-t).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Viret (vul-r).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vli-gil'-lu.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vli-lui.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vli-rin-ga.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vli'-lus.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vlue (vul-e).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Volgey (vol-ga).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Voltaire (vul-tar).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Voritus (for-tu-us).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vosetus (voh'-she-us).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wack'-er-nk-gel.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wag-gen-seil (shi).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Walch (walk).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Waldhauen (wait-ow-sen).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wai-pur'-gila.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Walcher von der Vogelweide (wait-er fon der foh-gel-wi'-de).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wand'-el-bert.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wâ'-no.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wegeselder (wag-sh'-ler).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wig (=g).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Weis (wise).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wides (wi'-she).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wë'-de-lin (lehn).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wâ'-ren-fein.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wer'-mel-ter (mel-ter).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wern'-dorff.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wessel (wei'-sheel).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wes'-e-ll.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wes'-sen-berg.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>West-en.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>West'-phâl.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wes'-te-tn (stân).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wê'-to, de.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wêze'r (wets'-er).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wï'-o'-lu.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wichern (wik-h-ern).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wigmund (wei'-gan).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wil'-broad.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wil'-ter-am.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wil'-di-bald.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wimpeling (wim-fel-ing).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wimpitua (wim-pe-nu).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Winck'-ler.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Winer (wei'-ner).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wintertur (fâr).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wiltius (wit'-she-us).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wol'-leh.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wol'-të-ri-dorff.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wulf-râm.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wuttke (woot'-ke).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wytenbach (wik'-sen-bak).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>X.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Xavier (zav-a-'er).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ximenes (ha-mä'-nee).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Y.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Yvonetus (e-von'-e-tus).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Z.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zabarella (da-va-re'-la).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zachariak (tsak-a'-ree-a).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zach-a'-ri'-us.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zach-a'-ri'-us.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zanchi (zak-m-kwe).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zeiseberger (tais-bur-gar).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zeit (seel).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ze'-no.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zephe-f'-ri'-nua.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zinzendorf (tahn-sen-dorf).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zollkoffer (soh-loh-kô'-fer).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zon'-a-ross.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zow'-t'nu.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zweck (zweck).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zwingli (zwing'-lee).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
ENCYCLOPEDIA OF LIVING DIVINES
AND CHRISTIAN WORKERS OF ALL DENOMINATIONS IN EUROPE AND AMERICA

BEING A SUPPLEMENT TO SCHAFF-HERZOG ENCYCLOPEDIA OF RELIGIOUS KNOWLEDGE.

EDITED BY
REV. PHILIP SCHAFF, D.D., LL.D.,
AND
REV. SAMUEL MACAULEY JACKSON, M.A.

THIRD EDITION. REVISED AND ENLARGED.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY,
TORONTO. 1891.
NEW YORK.
LONDON.
COPYRIGHT, 1886,

BY FUNK & WAGNALLS.
PREFACE TO THE THIRD EDITION.

THIS Encyclopædia of Living Divines was originally a separate and original supplement to the Schaff-Herzog Encyclopædia, but is now incorporated in the large work and improved by a new Appendix, pages 273–296, including biographical and bibliographical data down to December, 1890. See the general preface to Vol. I.

NEW YORK, March, 1891.

PHILIP SCHAFF.
PREFACE.

THIS book contains biographical sketches of contemporary divines, celebrated preachers, Christian workers, theological professors, church dignitaries, and editors of prominent religious periodicals. It is intended as a supplement to the Religious Encyclopaedia published in 1884, in three volumes. The German Encyclopaedia of Herzog excludes living authors.

The value of such a book depends on the extent of its authentic information. In this respect we have been highly favored. When the senior editor resolved, somewhat reluctantly, to undertake the delicate task, he issued a circular letter to distinguished divines of Europe and America, requesting them to furnish for publication exact facts and dates concerning their birth, their education, titles, offices, publications, and other noteworthy incidents. To his great encouragement he received prompt and full replies from nearly all, and takes great pleasure in expressing to them publicly his sincere thanks for their kindness.

The information thus obtained is presented without note or comment. Where the gentlemen chose to indicate their theological standpoint in a distinctive way, it is given in their own words; if not, it is left to be inferred from their reputation and works.

To secure still greater exactness, proof was sent for revision to each living person named; and their corrections and additions have been inserted as far as possible.

Additional information and corrections received too late for insertion in the proper place have been printed in the appendix.

When no response was received to the circular, the dates and facts desired were derived from the best attainable sources, chiefly the following: Holtzmann and Zöpfel's Lexikon für Theologie und Kirchenwesen, for German Protestants; Schäfler's Handlexicon der Katholischen Theologie, for German Roman-Catholics; the thirteenth volume of Lichtenberger's Encyclopédie des sciences religieuses, for French authors; Crockford's Clerical Directory, and the latest (eleventh) edition of the Men of the Time, for English authors and church dignitaries; denominational cyclopædias,—Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, etc.,—manuals, year-books, and catalogues of colleges and theological seminaries, for Americans. The articles thus compiled are marked by a star.
Besides living celebrities, the volume includes notices of divines who have died since the completion of the Religious Encyclopædia (1884), and a few others who were inadvertently omitted.

Simultaneously with this Supplement will be published a new and revised edition of the Religious Encyclopædia, which will embody the corrections made by the authors of the several articles, as well as by the editors. Copies were sent to foreign contributors with the request to correct the translation of their articles, and to bring them down to the latest date, which was done.

As to the distribution of labor, the senior editor has procured the material, and written biographical sketches of departed friends (as Drs. Ezra Abbot, Dorner, Lange, Prime, Thiersch), besides aiding in the final revision; while the junior editor has prepared the material for the press, and devoted himself to the work for nearly two years.

The editors have aimed at the greatest possible accuracy and completeness, as well as strict impartiality, in the desire to make a useful and reliable book of reference for readers of all denominations and theological schools.

PHILIP SCHAFF.

SAMUEL M. JACKSON.

New York, November, 1886.
EXPLANATORY NOTE

The general order of arrangement of the sketches is this: Name in full (where initials instead of middle names are given, it is to be understood that the persons had no middle names, but had introduced initials to distinguish their names from others); honorary titles, other than M.A., with their sources and dates in parenthesis; denomination ("Methodist" means Methodist-Episcopal Church North; "Episcopal" means Protestant-Episcopal Church of the United States; "Presbyterian" means Presbyterian Church in the United States, Northern Assembly; the other divisions which come under these general names are particularly described, e.g., "Methodist Protestant"); places and dates of study and graduation; positions held in chronological order (e.g., when the person held collegiate and clerical positions simultaneously, in which case it has sometimes seemed better to give each class of positions separately); theological standpoint; publications (the place of publication given with the first book is to be understood as that of all subsequent books until another place is given). The following invaluables; namely abbreviations used in this work, and the various honors, prizes, etc., mentioned, may be acceptable to American readers.

I.—CONTRACTIONS.

A.B. or B.A. Bachelor of Arts (Artium Baccalaurae).
A.M. or M.A. Master of Arts (Artium Magister).
B.D. Bachelor of Divinity.
C.I. Order of the Crown of India, member of.
C.M.G. Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.
D. died (followed by place and date).
D.D. Doctor of divinity.
F.R.G.S. Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society.
F.R.S. Fellow of the Royal Society.
F.R.S.E. Fellow of the Royal Society, Edinburgh.
Lic. Theol. Licentiate of Theology (in Germany, one who has passed the examination for a theological professorship in a university).
L.L.D. Doctor of laws.
L.T.D. Doctor of letters.
L.H.D. Doctor of letters.
Ph.D. Doctor of Philosophy.
S.T.D. Doctor of sacred theology (Sacra Theologiae Doctor).
Ven. Venerable; title of an English archdeacon.

II.—PRIZES AND POSITIONS.

Archdeacon. In the English Church, the assistant of the bishop in the government of his diocese.
Arnold’s Historical Prize (Oxford). Open to competition among graduates not older than eight years from matriculation; value £43.
Battie University Scholarship (Cambridge). Founded by William Battie, M.D., Fellow of King’s College, in 1797; competed for by undergraduates, and held for two years; value £200. See Encyclopaedia, vol. i. p. 615.
Battie University Scholarship (Cambridge). Founded by William Battie, M.D., Fellow of King’s College, in 1797; competed for by undergraduates, and held for two years; value £200. See Encyclopaedia, vol. i. p. 615.
Bell University Scholarship (Cambridge). Founded by Rev. William Bell, Fellow of Magdalene; competed for by undergraduates, and held four years.

Berkeley Gold Medals (Dublin). Founded by Bp. Berkeley in 1752, for proficiency in Greek language and literature; they are two in number, and are given to the students ranking first and second in the examination.

Boden Sanscrit Scholarship (Oxford). Competed for by students under twenty-five years old; one elected each year; tenable four years; annual value £250.

Browne Prize (Cambridge). Founded by Sir William Browne, Kt., M.D., who died in 1774; competed for by undergraduates; three prizes, for Greek ode, Latin ode, and Greek and Latin epigrams, respectively.

Burney Prize (Cambridge). Founded in 1845 by Richard Burney, Esq., M.A. of Christ’s College, by gift of £5,000 in three per cent consols; open to graduates of the university of not more than three years standing from admission to first degree; for best English essay "on some moral or metaphysical subject, on the existence, nature, and attributes of God, or on the nature and evidences of the Christian religion."

Carus Greek Testament Prize (Cambridge). Founded in 1853, in honor of and by Rev. William Carus, M.A., canon of Winchester, and late senior fellow of Trinity College, his friends and he each giving £500 at three per cent; the prizes are two in number, one for undergraduates and one for graduates.

Chancellor Medal (Cambridge). For classics; instituted by Thomas Hollis, Duke of Westminister, when chancellor 1751, and continued by his successors; two gold medals, senior and junior, open to competition by B.A.’s.

Class (Oxford). A division according to merit, of those who pass an examination.

Classic (senior). An entertainment for classics.

Convict. Building in which Roman-Catholic divinity students live at State expense.

Consistorial, Chancellor of the Consistory, the governing body in spiritual affairs in German States.

Craven Scholarship (Cambridge). Founded by John, Lord Craven, 1647; open to competition by undergraduates; held seven years; value £90.

Crosse Theological Scholarship (Cambridge). Founded by Rev. John Crosse, vicar of Bradford, Yorkshire, 1816, "for promoting the cause of true religion;" open to competition by B.A.’s; held three years.

Denyer Theological Essay (Oxford). Open to competition among B.A.’s.

Diaconus. The title in Germany of certain assistant clergymen and chaplains of subordinate rank, but equal standing with ordained ministers. See Encyclopaedia, vol. i. p. 615.

Divinity Testimonial (Dublin). Certificate of attendance on whole divinity course of six terms; graduates arranged in three classes according to merit.

Donnellan Lectures (Dublin). Founded by Miss Anne Donnellan. See Encyclopaedia, vol. i. p. 661.

Double First (Oxford). To be in the first division in B.A. examination both in classics and mathematics.

Ellerton Theological Essay (Oxford). Open to competition among members of the university, value of prize £210.

Ephorus (German ecclesiastical dignity). One who preceded over and superintended a number of other clergyman.

Evans Prize (Cambridge). Founded in honor of the Rev. Henry Evans, D.D., archdeacon of Westmoreland, formerly fellow and tutor of Trinity College; awarded to best student in ecclesiastical history and Greek and Latin Fathers, among the candidates for honors in the second part of the theological tripos.

 Fellow, a member of a college who is on the foundation, and receives an income from its revenues.

Gynaecial Professor, Professor in a German gymnasium (college), where students are prepared for the university.

Hall-Houghton Prize (Oxford). Two for work upon the Greek Testament, value £20 and £20 respectively; and two upon the Septuagint, value £25 and £15 respectively.

Inspector (of Stift). Head spiritual officer of a building in which theological students live at State expense. See Stift.

Jeremias Septuagint Prize (Cambridge). Founded in 1870, by gift of £1,000 from the Very Rev. James Amiraux Jeremias, D.D., dean of Lincoln, formerly professor of divinity; two annual prizes; open to all members of the university of not more than three years standing from their first degree.

Johnson Theological Scholarship (Oxford). Open be B.A.'s; tenable a year; value £20.

Kensigctt Hebrew Scholarship (Oxford). Open to B.A.'s; tenable a year.

Law (Bishop) Prize (Dublin). Founded by John, lord bishop of Elphin, in 1756, for proficiency in mathematics; open to competition among undergraduates; there are two prizes.

Les Bas Prizes (Cambridge). Founded by Rev. Charles W. Le Bas, M.A., Fellow of Trinity, 1848; subject of essay, general literature, and occasionally some topic connected with the history and prospects of India.

Lloyd Exhibition (Dublin). Founded in memory of Provost Lloyd, by his friends, in 1839; open to competition among undergraduates; subjects, mathematics and physics.

Maitland Prize (Cambridge). Founded in 1844, by gift of £1,000 in honor of Lieut.-Gen. Sir Peregrine Maitland, K.C.B., late commander-in-chief of the forces in South India; for English essay on some subject connected with the propagation of the gospel through missionary exertion in India, and other parts of the heathen world; awarded every three years; open to graduates of not more than ten years standing. The successful essay is published.

Master of the Charterhouse. Principal of the school of that name.

Master of Christ's Hospital. Principal of the school of that name.

Master of Marlborough College. Principal of the school of that name.

Meadows Prize (Cambridge). Given by the representatives of the University in Parliament; one for English essay on some subject connected with British history or literature, and one for Latin essay; each prize open to all members of the university not of sufficient standing to be created M.A. or M.L.; value £231, 10s. each.

Moderatorship Prize (Cambridge). The second undergraduate examination.

Moderatorship (Dublin). Given at B.A. examination to best students in each of five departments (mathematics, classics, logics and ethics, natural and experimental science, and history); value, a gold medal.

Newdigate Prize Poem (Oxford). Founded by Sir Roger Newdigate; open to competition among members of the university under four years from matriculation; is in English verse; value £21.

Norrisian Prize for Theological Essay (Cambridge). Founded by John Norris in 1777; value £12 (gold medal).

Oberkirchenrath, Member of the highest Protestant Church Council in Prussia and Baden.

Optime (Cambridge). One who stands in the second or third class of final honors in mathematics; called Senior and Junior Optime respectively.

Porson Prize (Cambridge). For translation from any standard English poet into Greek verse, with Laten version of the Greek.

Privat-docent. One who has" habilitated himself," i.e., passed the examination for professor in a German university, and delivers lectures like the professors; but receives, usually, no salary from the State, and therefore depends for support upon lecture-fees or other sources.

Professor Extraordinary. In a German university, has no seat in the faculty or senate, a smaller salary than the regular or ordinary professor, but is in the line of promotion.

Professor Ordinary. In a German university, is a member of the faculty, and salaried by government.

Pusey and Ellerton Hebrew Scholarship (Oxford). Tenable two years; value £45.

Real School. A school in which modern languages and the arts and sciences are taught; corresponds to a public school.

Repent. One who in Tübingen, Marburg, and Erlangen conducts weekly examinations in the lectures of the professors, selected from the best graduate students.

Scholefield Prize (Cambridge). Founded by gift of £200 in 1836, in honor of Rev. James Scholefield, M.A., regius professor of Greek; in promotion of the critical study of Holy Scripture; given to that candidate for honors, in the second part of the theological tripos who shows the best knowledge of the Greek Testament and the Septuagint version of the Old Testament.

Seatonian Prize (Cambridge). Founded by Rev. Thomas Seaton, M.A., fellow of Clare College, who died in 1741; given for best English poem on a sacred subject; open to M.A.'s; value £31, 10s.

Select Prize (Cambridge). Established by Rev. W. Le Bas, B.D., D.D., or B.C.L. of Oxford, Cambridge, or Dublin, five chosen yearly, each serves two years; they preach before the university.

Stift (Tübingen and elsewhere in Germany). A building in which theological students live together at the expense of the State.

Smith's Prize (Cambridge). Founded by Rev. Robert Smith, D.D., master of Trinity College, d. 1708; two annual prizes given to the two commencing B.A.'s who are most proficient in mathematics and natural philosophy; value £23 each.

Tripos (Cambridge). One of the honor lists with its three classes, called in mathematics wranglers, senior optimes, junior optimes.

Tyrwhitt Hebrew Scholarship (Cambridge). Founded by Rev. Robert Tyrwhitt, M.A., Fellow of Jesus College, died 1817; open to competition among B.A.'s or students in civil law or medicine; tenable three years; six scholarships, worth together £150.

Whitehall Preachership (Cambridge). Established by George I. in 1724, tenable two years; filled from the University of Oxford (two from each) by appointment of the Bishop of London.

Wrangler (Cambridge). One of the students who pass the first class of mathematical wranglers; the first in the list being styled senior wrangler, and the others respectively second wrangler, third wrangler, etc.
DICTIONARY OF CONTEMPORARY DIVINES.

A.

ABBOT, Ezra, S.T.D. (Harvard, 1872), LL.D. (Yale, 1889, Bowdoin, 1879), Unitarian layman; b. at Jackson, Waldo County, Me., April 28, 1819; d. at Cambridge, Mass., March 21, 1884, and was buried in Mount Auburn Cemetery, near Boston. He was fitted for college at Phillips Academy, at Exeter (N.H.), and graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick (Me.), 1840. He then taught school in Maine until 1847, when he removed to Cambridge (Mass.). He taught the high school at Cambridgeport, and also rendered service in the Harvard University and Boston Athenæum libraries. In 1856 he was appointed assistant librarian of Harvard University. His studies had long been given to the Greek New Testament, and in 1872 he became Bussey professor of New-Testament criticism and interpretation in the Harvard Divinity School, and so remained until his death.

He was the recipient of many testimonials to his scholarship. In 1852 he was elected a member of the American Oriental Society, and since 1853 was its recording secretary; and in 1861 a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He was University lecturer on the textual criticism of the New Testament, in 1871. He was one of the original members of the American New-Testament Revision Company. In 1880 he aided in organizing the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis. He belonged also to the Harvard Biblical Club. He was the recipient of the degree of D.D. by the University of Edinburgh at its tercentenary (1884), but died shortly before the date of its celebration.

Dr. Abbot, who bore his name Ezra not in vain, was a scholar of rare talents and attainments, who would have done honor to any nation and any university. He was the first textual critic of the Greek Testament in America, and for microscopic accuracy of biblical scholarship he had no superior in the world. His accuracy was proverbial among his friends. He would have accomplished more if he had been less painstaking in minute details. Hence he has hardly done himself justice in his publications; but the results of his labors have gone into other books, to which his scholarship has contributed without regard to reward, being satisfied if only the work was done, no matter by whom. He was the very embodiment of the unselfishness of scholarship. His Literature of the Doctrine of the Future Life, first published as an Appendix to Alger's History of the Doctrine of the Future Life (1864), and afterwards separately, is a model of bibliographical accuracy and completeness, and embraces over fifty-three hundred titles; while Grässle's Bibliotheca Psychologica (1845) contains only ten hundred and twenty-five. He enriched Smith's Bible Dictionary (Am. ed., 1887–70, 4 vols.) with careful bibliographical lists on the most important topics. His most valuable and independent labors, however, were devoted to textual criticism, and are incorporated in Dr. Gregory's Prolegomena to the Ed. viii. critica major of Tischendorf's Greek Testament. He followed the preparation of this work with the deepest interest till his last sickness, but died a few months before the first volume appeared (Leipzig, 1884). The chapter De Versibus (pp. 167–182) is by him, and he read the MS. and proof of all the rest. Dr. Gregory lost in him, as he says, "a constant and proven guide, counselor, and support." Oscar von Gebhardt, the editor of Tischendorf's latest text, declares Abbot's loss to biblical science irreparable. "We all feel it who labor in the same field." His services to the American Bible-Revision Committee were invaluable. He attended the monthly meetings from 1871 to 1881 most punctually, and was always thoroughly prepared. The critical papers which he prepared on disputed passages, at the request of the N. T. Company, and which were forwarded from time to time to the British Company, were uncommonly thorough, and had no small influence in determining the text finally accepted. As a Unitarian, he differed on some points from his fellow-revisers; but he had the most delicate regard for their convictions, never obtruded his own, sought only the truth, and as his friend and successor, Dr. Thayer, says in his memorial paper adopted by the Committee, "his Christlike temper rendered him a brother beloved, and lends a heavenly lustre to his memory." His defence of the Johannean Authorship of the Fourth Gospel (1880, pp. 104) is an invaluable contribution to the solution of that great question: it is the best within the limits of external evidence, and makes one regret that he did not complete it by the internal evidence, which he thought would require two volumes. Godet (in the third ed. of his Com. on the Gospel of St. John, I. 38) says of Abbot's book: "Ce travail me parait épuiser la matière. Connaissance complète des discussions modernes, étude approfondie des témoignages du 16 siècle, mesure et netteté dans le jugement, rien n'y manque." Personally, Dr. Abbot was a kind-hearted, modest, courteous, disinterested, amiable, devout, and conscientious Christian gentleman. From the many testimonials to his worth as a scholar and a man, which are published in a memorial...
ABBOTT, Edwin Abbott, D.D. (by Archbishop Cambridge, 1884); graduated at St. John's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A., 1881 (7th senior optime and senior classic); M.A., 1884;
was fellow of his college; assistant master at King Edward's School, Birmingham (1862), then at Clifton College, Bristol, and since 1865 head master of the City of London School. In 1869, and twice subsequently, he was in America, first at Cambridge, and the same at Oxford (1877). In 1876 he was Hulsean lecturer at Cambridge. His theo logical position is that of the Broad Church School.
He goes "beyond many of them in rejecting the miraculous, but does not go with many of them in rejecting what is generally called dualism,—some kind of a recognition of an Evil contending against the Good." His religious publications include Bible Lessons, London, 1871; Good Voices, a Child's Guide to the Bible, 1872; Parables for Children, 1873; Cambridge Sermons, 1875; Through Nature to Christ, 1877; Oxford Sermons, 1878; (in connection with W. G. Ruchbrooke, editor of the Synoptic), The Common Tradition of the Synoptic Gosp els in the Text of the Revised Version, 1884. He wrote the article Gospels in the 9th ed. of the Encycl. Brit. (1879), and the anonymous religious fictions, Philochristus, Memoirs of a Disciple of Our Lord, 1877; Onesimus, Memoirs of a Disciple of St. Paul, 1882. Among his other works are,
A Shakespearean Grammar, 1869, 2d ed., 1871; an edition of Bacon's Essays, 1876, 2 vols.; Bacon and Essex, 1877; Hints on Home Teaching, 1888, 2d ed. same year; Flatland, a Romance of Many Dimensions, 1884, 2d ed., 1885, republished, Boston, 1885; Francis Bacon, an Account of his Life and Works, 1885; and several instruction-books in English and Latin.

ABBOTT, Lyman, D.D. (New-York University, 1877), Congregationalist; b. at Roxbury, Mass., Dec. 15, 1855; graduated at New-York University, 1878; was for a time partner in his brothers' law-firm, but then studied theology under his uncle, J. S. C. Abbott, and was pastor at Terre Haute, Ind., 1860-65; secretary American Union (Freedmen's) Commission, New York, 1865-68;
pastor of the New-England Church, New York, 1860-68; editor of The Illustrated Christian Weekly, 1871-75; editor 1876 of The Christian Union.
He is the author of The Results of Emanicipation in the United States, New York, 1867; Jesus of Nazareth, 1869, new and illus. ed., 1882; Old-Testament Shadows of New-Testament Truths, 1870; Laicus, or the Experiences of a Layman in a Country Parish, 1872; Commentary upon Matthew and Mark, 1875; Luke, 1875; John, 1877; Acts, 1878; (with R. C.
Gilmore), The Gospel History, Complete Life of Chri-1881; For Family Worship, 1888; Henry Ward
Beecher, a Sketch of his Career, 1883. He edited Beecher's Sermons, 1868, 2 vols.; Morning and Evening Exercises (selections from H. W. Beecher), 1871; and (with T. J. Conant) A Dictionary of Religious Knowledge, 1873.

ABBOTT, Thomas Kingsmill, Episcopal Church in Ireland; b. in Dublin, March 26, 1829; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; graduated B.A.
(senior moderator, large gold medal in mathemat-s), and senior optime in mathematics, June 1851;
M.A., 1855; B.D., 1879. He was Lloyd exhibitor, 1849; Bishop Law's prizeman (first), 1850;
elected fellow, 1854. From 1867 to 1872
he was professor of moral philosophy in Trinity College; since 1875 has been professor of Biblical Greek; and since 1879 also of Hebrew.
olgy he is Broad Church. He is the author of The English Bible, a Plea for Revision, Dublin, 1857, 2d ed., 1871; Sight and Touch, an attempt to disprove the Berkeleyan theory of vision, London, 1864; Kant's Theory of Ethics, translated with memoir, 1873, 3d ed., 1883; Collation of Four MSS. of the Gospels, by Ferrar, edited with introduction, 1877; Codex rescriptus S. Mathaei Dublinensis (Z), Dublin, 1880; Elements of Logic, London, 1883, 2d ed., 1885; Evangelia anteieronymiana ex codice Dublinensi, Dublin, 1884; Kant's Introduction to Logic, translated, London, 1885.

ACHELIS, Ernst Christian, D.D. (hon. Halle, 1882), Reformed; b. at Bremen, Jan. 13, 1838; studied theology at Heidelberg and Halle, 1857–60; became successively assistant preacher at Arsten, near Bremen, 1860; pastor at Hastedt, near Bremen, 1862; pastor at Barmen, 1875; ordinary professor of theology at Marburg, 1882. Besides numerous minor publications, he has issued Die bibliischen Thatsachen und die religiöse Bedeutung ihrer Geschichtlichkeit, Gotha, 1869; Dr. Richard Rothe, 1869; Der Krieg im Lichte der Christlichen Religion, Bielefeld and Leipzig, 1875; Partiewesen und biblischen Thatsachen und ihrer religiö'se Bedeutung, Bielefeld and Leipzig, 1875; Partiewesen und Evangelium, Barmen, 1878; Die Entstehungszeit von dem, near Bremen, 1860; pastor at Hastedt, near Arsten, near Bremen, 1860; became successively assistant preacher at Arsten, near Bremen, 1860; pastor at Hastedt, near Bremen, 1862; pastor at Barmen, 1875; ordinary professor of theology at Marburg, 1882. Besides numerous minor publications, he has issued Die bibliischen Thatsachen und die religiöse Bedeutung ihrer Geschichtlichkeit, Gotha, 1869; Dr. Richard Rothe, 1869; Der Krieg im Lichte der Christlichen Religion, Bielefeld and Leipzig, 1875; Partiewesen und biblischen Thatsachen und ihrer religiö'se Bedeutung, Bielefeld and Leipzig, 1875; Partiewesen und Evangelium, Barmen, 1878; Die Entstehungszeit von die

ADAMS, Right Rev. William Forbes, D.D. (University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1871), Episcopal bishop; b. in Ireland, Jan. 2, 1837; came to United States, 1841; ordained priest, 1860; consecrated first missionary bishop of New Mexico and Arizona, 1875; resigned, 1876; became rector at Vicksburg, Miss.

ADLER, Felix, Ph.D. (Heidelberg, 1873); b. at Alzy, Germany, Aug. 18, 1851; graduated at Columbia College, New-York City, 1870; and at Heidelberg University, 1873. From 1873 to 1876 he was non-resident professor of Oriental languages and literature at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., and since 1876 has been lecturer of the Society for Ethical Culture, New-York City. His "stand-point is not to be classed as theological in a strict sense. Its value consists on the one hand in its regulative application to conduct, on the other hand in its forming the basis for a moral conviction regarding the ultimate good tendencies of the universe." He has published Creed and Deeds (lectures), New York, 1878; and single lectures.

ADLER, Hermann, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1881), Hebrew rabbi; b. at Hanover, May 29, 1859; came to London, 1845; studied at University College, London, and graduated at London University, B.A., 1859; studied subsequently at Prague and Leipzig; became principal of the Jews' College, London, 1863, and chief minister of the Bayswater synagogue, 1864; resigned principalship, 1869; and was school master until 1879; since 1879 has been delegate chief rabbi. He is an Orthodox Jew. Besides many sermons and articles in periodicals, he has published, A Jewish Reply to Colenso, London, 1885; Sermons on the Passages in the Bible adduced by Christian Theolologists in Support of their Faith, 1879.

ADLER, Nathan Marcus, Ph.D. (Erlangen, 1829), Orthodox Jew; b. at Hanover, Dec. 14, 1802; graduated at the University of Würzburg; became chief rabbi of the Grand Duchy of Oldenburg, 1829; of the Kingdom of Hanover, 1830; of the United Hebrew congregations of the British Empire, 1845. He was one of the organizers of Jewish schools in London and the provinces; joined Sir Moses Montefiore in appeal for the Holy Land, by which £20,000 were raised; was one of the founders of the "United Synagogue," a federation of the principal synagogues; founder and first president of the Jews' College, London; one of the original members of the committee of the Metropolitan Hospital Sunday Fund. He is the author of many printed sermons in German and English, among which may be mentioned, Die Liebe zum Vaterlande, Hanover, 1838; his Installation Sermon, London, 1845; Sermon on the Day of Humiliation, 1854 ("pronounced by the English press as the most eloquent of those delivered on that occasion"); The Jewish Faith, 1867; The Claims of Deaf-Mutes (which led to the founding of the Jews' Hospital and Home, The Second Days of the Festivals; and of The Nehina Lager (a Hebrew commentary on the Chaldee paraphrase of the Pentateuch), Wilna, 1874, 2d ed., 1877.

AHLEFELD, Johann Friedrich, D.D., Lutheran; b. at Mehringen, Anhalt, Nov. 1, 1810; d. at Leipzig, March 4, 1884. He studied at the University of Halle, 1830–33; became private tutor, 1833; gymnasial teacher at Zerbst, 1834, and rector at Wörlitz, 1837; pastor at Alisleben, 1838; at Halle, 1847; at Leipzig (St. Nicholas' Church), 1851. In early life he was troubled by scepticism; but before beginning his pastoral career he was rid of it, and distinguished himself ever afterwards by the simplicity, clearness, and beauty of his Christian faith. He was one of Germany's most admired preachers, the greatest pulpit orator of the strict Lutherans, and, especially at Leipzig, wielded a powerful influence. To considerable scholarly learning he united a knowledge of the human heart, good judgment, ready sympathies, and kindly humor, so that he was the friend and counsellor of all classes, and held by every one in affectionate esteem. His sermons were listened to by throngs, and abounded in apt and beautiful illustration. Besides preaching, he taught in the Leipzig Theological Seminary, and for many years did good service upon the commission to revise the Luther version of the Old Testament. In 1881 he was made pastor emeritus and Geheimer Kirchenrat. Of the numerous collections of his discourses may be mentioned, Predigten über die evangelischen Perikopen, Halle, 1848, 10th ed., 1880; Das Leben im Lichte des Worts Gottes, 1861, 6th ed., 1879; Predigten über die epistolischen Perikopen, 1867, 3d ed., 1877; Confirmationssermonen, Leipzig, 1880, 2 series. See his Lebensbild, Halle, 1885.

AIKEN, Charles Augustus, Ph.D. (Princeton, 1878), D.D. (Princeton, 1879), Presbyterian; b. in Manchester, Vt., Oct. 30, 1827; graduated at Dartmouth College, 1846; taught three years in the Lawrence Academy, Groton, Mass., and in Phillips Academy, Andover; entered the Andover Theological Seminary, graduated 1855, having meanwhile studied at the universities of Halle and Berlin (1851–53). He became successively pastor of the Congregational Church at Yarmouth, Me., 1854; professor of Latin in Dartmouth College, 1859; the same in the College of New Jersey at Princeton, 1866; president of Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1869; Archibald Alexander professor of Christian ethics and apologetics in Princeton Theological Seminary, 1871; and since 1892, Archibald Alexander professor of Oriental and Old Testament literature in the same institution. He was a member of the Old Testament Revision Company. He translated Zöckler's commentary on Proverbs in the Lange series, New York, 1869; and has contributed to the Presbyterian and other reviews, etc.

Alten, William Hay Macdowall Hunter, Church of England; b. at Liverpool, Sept. 21, 1841; educated at Wadham College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (2d class classics), 1865; M.A., 1867; was curate of St. Jude's, Mildmay Park, 1866–70; incumbent of Christ Church, Everton, Liverpool, 1871–75; has since devoted himself entirely to mission work and study. In 1884 he has become a general superintendent of the Church of England Parochial Mission Society, which he founded in 1877, with a view to supply competent mission [revival] preachers. His theology is "eclectic. He desires to be a Churchman pure and simple, to belong to no party, but to comprehend what is best in all. He holds evangelical principles strongly, but without Calvinism, and values highly Church order and the sacraments." He conducted a mission in New York City in the winter of 1885. He has published Mission Sermons, Brighton, 1875–76, 3 series, 2d ed., London, 1877; Newness of Life, Brighton, 1877, 2d ed., London, 1878; Difficulties of the Soul, London, 1878; What is your Life? 1878; Manual of Parochial Missions, 1879; The School of Grace, 1879; God's Everlasting "Yea," 1880; The Glory of the Gospel, 1881; The Highway of Holiness, 1883; Around the Cross, 1884; The Reaver revealed, 1885.

Alexander, Edmund Kimball, D.D. (Amherst, 1860), Congregationalist; b. at Randolph, Mass., April 11, 1825; graduated at Amherst College, 1844; and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1848; became pastor of First Church, Yarmouth, Me., 1850; at Lenox, Mass., 1851; of Phillips Church, South Boston, Mass., 1859; secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, Boston, Mass., 1876. He is the author of various sermons and pamphlets.

Alexander, Right Rev. William, D.D. (by diploma, Oxford, 1867), D.G.L. (hon., Oxford, 1870), Lord Bishop of Derry and Raphoe, Episcopalian Church in Ireland; b. at Londonderry, Ireland, April 13, 1824; was a student in Exeter and then in Brasenose College, Oxford University; won the theological prize essay, 1850; graduated B.A., 1854; M.A., 1856; won the sacred prize poem, 1890. He was select preacher, 1870–71, 1882; and Bampton lecturer, 1876. His ministerial life has been spent in Ireland, where he has been pastor of the Church of Ireland at Limavady, and of Camus-juxta-Mourne; dean of Emly, 1863; bishop of Derry and Raphoe, 1867. His wife, Cecil Frances Humphreys, is author of many familiar hymns and poems. He has written, besides numerous articles, etc., Leading Ideas of the Gospels (Oxford sermons, 1870–71), London, 1872; The Witness of the Psalms to Christ and Christianity (Bampton lectures), 1877, 2d ed., 1878, republished, New York, The Great Question and other Sermons, 1883; The New Atlantis and other Poems: introductions to and comments upon Colossians, Thessalonians, Philoemen, and Epistles of John, in Bible (Speaker's) Commentary, vols. ix., x. (1881).

Alexander, William, D.D. (University of Wooster, O., 1870), Presbyterian; b. near Shirley'sburg, Huntingdon County, Penn., Dec. 18, 1831; graduated at Jefferson College, Penn., 1858, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1861; was pastor at Lycoming, Penn. (1862–63); stated supply at Waukesha, Wis., while president of Carroll College in that place (1863–64); pastor at Beloit, Wis. (1864–65); and at San Jose, Cal., 1869–71; president of City College, San Francisco, 1871–74. In October, 1871, he took a leading part in founding the San Francisco Theological Seminary, and was made (1871) its first professor of New Testament literature. In 1876 he was transferred to the chair of ecclesiastical history and church government. He has published several sermons, Commentaries on International Students, 1881, sqq.; Letters (4) to Gen. George Stone man on the Sunday Law, 1881; Letters (9) to Bishop McQuade on Failure of Romanism, 1883, etc.

Alexander, William Lindsay, D.D., F.R.S.E., Scotch Congregationalist; b. at Edinburgh, Aug. 24, 1808; died, Dec. 22, 1884. He was educated in the universities of Edinburgh and St. Andrews; classical tutor in the Lancaster Independent College at Blackburn (now at Manchester) from 1828 to 1835; Congregational pastor in Edinburgh (1835–1854); subsequently professor of theology in the Congregational Theological College, Edinburgh (1854); examiner in philosophy at St. Andrew's University (1861); and member of the Old Testament Revision Company from its formation (1870). He published The Connection and Harmony of the Old and New Testament, London (Congregational lecture for 1840), 2d ed., 1853; Anglo-Catholicism not Apostolical, 1845; Christ and Christianity, 1854; The Orison and Correspondence of Ralph Wardlaw, D.D., 1856; Christian Thought and Work, 1862; St. Paul at Athens, 1865; Sermons, 1875; Zechariah, his Visions and Warnings, 1885; and brought out the third edition of Kitto's Biblical Cyclopaedia, Edinburgh, 1892–96, 3 vols. *

Alger, William Rounsville, Unitarian; b. at Freetown, Mass., Dec. 30, 1822; graduated at Harvard Divinity School, 1847; was pastor at Roxbury, Mass., 1848–55; in Boston, as successor of Theodore Parker, 1855–73; in New York, 1876–79; at Denver, Col. (1880); and Portland, Me. (1881). Since 1882 he has lived without a charge: in Boston. He has written A Symbolic History of the Cross of Christ, Boston, 1851; The Poetry of the Orient, 1856, 5th ed., 1883; A Critical History of the Doctrine of a Future Life, with a Complete Bibliography of the Subject by Ezra Abbot, Philadelphia, 1866, 12th ed., Boston, 1869; The Genius of the Sermone of Hymong, and of Camus-juxta-Mourne; dean of Emly, 1863; bishop of Derry and Raphoe, 1867. His wife, Cecil Frances Humphreys, is author of many familiar hymns and poems. He has written, besides ALLEN, Joseph Henry, Unitarian; b. at Northborough, Mass., Aug. 21, 1820; graduated at Harvard College (1840), and Divinity School (1845); pastor at Roxbury, Mass., 1843-47; Washington, D.C., 1847-50; Bangor, Me., 1850-57; West Newbury, Mass., 1858-60; Northborough, Mass., 1864-66; and Lincoln, Mass., 1868-74; Athens, N.Y., 1883-84; editor (assistant or chief) of the Christian Examiner, 1857-89; lecturer upon ecclesiastical history in Harvard University, 1878-82; delegate (1881) of British and Foreign and of American Unitarian Associations to the Supreme Consistory of Transylvania, held in Kolozsvar, Hungary. He is the author of Memoir of Hirum Wililkinson, Boston, 1849; Ten Discourses on Orthodoxy, 1849; A Manual of Devotions for Yon, 1878), Episcopalian; b. at Otis, Berkshire County, Mass, May 4, 1841; graduated at Kenyon College, Gambier, O., 1862, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1840—41; became tutor in Waterville University, 1866; assistant (1864) of the Christian Examiner, Pittsburg, 1864, of which he had been associate editor since 1856. He has been a member of the Presbyterian Board for Freedmen since its organization in 1865, and its treasurer since 1870.

ALLON, Henry, D.D. (Yale College, 1871; St. Andrew's University, 1885), Congregationalist; b. at Welton, near Hull, Yorkshire, Eng., Oct. 13, 1818; graduated at Cheshunt College, Hertfordshire, 1843; and since January, 1844, has been minister of Union Chapel, Islington, London (for the first eight years as associate of the Rev. Thomas Lewis); and in addition, since 1865, editor of the British Quarterly Review. In 1864, and again in the Jubilee Year, 1881, he was chairman of the Congregational Union. In December, 1877, he built his new church in Compton Terrace, Islington, which had cost £41,466, was opened for service. His congregation numbers nearly two thousand. Although so immersed in pastoral labors, he yet has written much for the periodical press, compiled the Congregational Psalmist, very generally used in his denomination, and published the following volumes: The Life of Rev. James Sherman, London, 1863 (three editions same year); The Vision of God, and other Sermons, 1876, 3d ed., 1877; and edited Thomas Binney's sermons, prefacing a critical sketch, 1875.

ANDERSON, Martin, B.D. (University of Rochester, 1886), LL.D. (both Rochester and Madison Universities, 1888), Baptist; b. at Bergen, Genesee County, N.Y., March 7, 1832; graduated at University of Rochester (1854), and (Baptist) theological seminary (1856); became pastor at Janesville, Wis., 1859; St. Louis (Second Church), 1868; professor of homiletics, church polity, and pastoral duties in Newton (Mass.) Theological Institution, 1866; pastor in Brooklyn (Strong-place Church), 1873; Chicago (Second Church), 1876; president of University of Chicago, 1875; pastor at Salem, Mass., 1885. From 1880-85 he lectured at Morgan Park (Baptist) Theological Seminary.

ANDERSON, Martin Brewster, LL.D. (Colby University, 1853, New-York Board of Regents, 1889), Baptist; b. at Brunswick, Me., Feb. 12, 1815; graduated at Waterville College (now Colby University), Me., 1840; studied in Newton Theological Seminary, 1840-41; became tutor in Waterville College, 1841; professor of rhetoric, 1843; proprietor and editor of the New England Democrat, a denominational weekly, 1850; president of the newly organized University of Rochester, 1853. He was president of the American Baptist Home
ARNOLD, Edwin, M.A., b. at Rochester, Eng.,

Missionary Society, 1864-66; and of the American Bishop and Missionary Union, 1870-72; and in the New-York State Board of Charities (1866-81). He has contributed to the periodic press, and written reports, etc. He was an associate editor of Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia, New York, 1851-54, 4 vols.

ANDREWS, Edward Gayer, D.D. (Genesee College, 1863). L.L.D. (Allegheny College, 1881). Methodist bishop; b. at New Hartford, Oneida County, N.Y., Aug. 7, 1825; was licensed to preach, 1844; graduated at Wesleyan University, Conn., 1847; was principal of the Cazenovia Seminary, New York, 1856-64; then a pastor until his election as bishop, 1872.

ANQUIS, Joseph, D.D. (Brown University, U.S.A., 1852). Baptist; b. at Bolam, Northumberland, Eng., Jan. 16, 1816; educated at King's College, London, Stepney Baptist College, and Edinburgh University, which he entered as a student in 1835. He was graduated M.A. in 1838 after a brilliant course, having taken the first prize in mathematics, in Greek, in logic, and in belles-lettres, the gold medal in ethics and political philosophy, and the students' prize of fifty guineas for the best essay on "The influence of the Bittings of Lord Bacon." He became successively tutor of the New Park-street Baptist Church, Southwark, London, 1858; co-secretary of the Baptist Missionary Society, 1840; sole secretary, 1842; president of Stepney, now Regent's Park, College, which is affiliated with the University of London, 1849. He has seen the college double in numbers since its removal to Regent's Park, and has recently raised £12,000 for college scholarships, and £30,000 for professors' chairs. He was a member of the first London School Board, and of the New-Testament Revision Company from its organization. He is the author of prize essays on The Voluntary System (1838); On the Advantages of a Classical Education as an Auxiliary to a Commercial Education; Christ our Life (this won the prize for an essay adapted for translation into the vernaculars of India); many articles in the periodical press; of editions of Butler's Analogy and Sermons, and Wayland's Moral Science, and Handbook, London, 1854; Christian Churches, 1862; Handbook of the English Tongue, 1862; Handbook of English Literature [1865]; Handbook of Specimens of English Literature [1866], new ed., 1880; commentary on Hebrews in Schaff's International Commentary on the N.T., Edinburgh and New York, vol. 3, 1883.

APPLE, Thomas Gilmore, Ph.D. (Lafayette College, Penn., 1869). D.D. (Franklin and Marshall, 1868). Reformed (German); b. near Easton, Penn., Nov. 14, 1829; graduated at Marshall College, Mercersburg, Penn., 1850; after a pastorate in several places, he became in 1865 president of Mercersburg College; in 1871 professor of Church history and New-Testament exegesis in the theological seminary at Lancaster, with which position he has united, since 1877, the presidency of Franklin and Marshall College. He has been a delegate in attendance on every meeting of the General Synod of the Reformed (German) Church since 1882 (except 1885); a member of the committee that revised the liturgy of the denomination, and of that which restored peace. He was a delegate to the Alliance of the Reformed Churches in 1880 (read paper on The Theology of the Reformed Church) and 1884. He has edited the Reformed Quarterly Review since 1867, and written much for it.

ARGYLL (Duke of). His Grace, George Douglas Campbell, K.T.; b. at Ardencaple Castle, Dunbartonshire, April 30, 1828; succeeded his father April, 1847. He has always been deeply interested in religious questions, and particularly in the affairs of the Church of Scotland. He vindicated that Church's right to legislate for itself, but condemned the Free Church movement. In 1874 he vigorously supported the successful measure in Parliament to transfer patronage in the Church of Scotland from persons to congregations. In politics he has long been numbered among the Liberal peers, and has been a member of the cabinet of the Earl of Aberdeen (1852), Palmerston (1855 and 1859), and Gladstone (1868 and 1880). His publications include, A Letter to the Peers From a Peer's Son, on the Duty and Necessity of Immediate Legislative Interposition in Behalf of the Church of Scotland, as determined by Considerations of Constitutional Law (anonymous), Edinburgh, 1842; A Letter to the Rev. Thomas Chalmers, D.D., on the Present Position of Church Affairs in Scotland, and the Causes which have led to it, 1842; Presbytery examined, London, 1848; The Reign of Law, 1886, 18th ed., 1884; Primeval Man, an Examination of some Recent Speculations, 1869; The Patronage Act of 1874 all that was asked for in 1843, 1874; The Afghan Question, from 1841 to 1878, 1879; The Eastern Question, 1879, 2 vols.; Unity of Nature, 1st and 2d ed., 1884; Geology and the Deluge, Glasgow, 1885.

ARMITAGE, Thomas, D.D. (Georgetown College, Kentucky, 1855). Baptist; b. at Pontefract, Yorkshire, Eng., Aug. 2, 1819; emigrated to America, 1838; from his sixteenth to his twenty-eighth year he was a Methodist preacher, and filled important appointments. Study led him to change his views upon baptism; and he entered the Baptist ministry in 1848, and from that time to this has had one charge in New-York City. He was one of the founders of the American Bible Union (1850), and its president from 1856 to 1875. Besides many miscellaneous issues, he has published,deal and Inner Life (lectures delivered before Hamilton, Rochester, and Crozer theological seminaries), Philadelphia, 1880.

ARMSTRONG, George Dodd, D.D. (William and Mary College, Virginia, 1858), Presbyterian (Southern Church); b. at Mendham, Morris County, N.J., Sept. 15, 1818; graduated at College of New Jersey, 1832; and at Union Theological Seminary, Prince Edward County, Va., 1887; became professor of general and agricultural chemistry and geology in Washington College (now Washington and Lee University), Lexington, Va., 1888; professor of the first Presbyterian Church, Norfolk, Va., 1851, and still retains the position. He is the author of The Summer of the Pestilence (a history of the yellow-fever in Norfolk in 1855), Philadelphia, 1856; The " Doctrine of Baptisms," New York, 1857; The Christian Doctrine of Slavery, 1858; The Theology of Christ's Experience, 1860; The Sacrifices of the New Testament, 1880; The Books of Nature and Revelation collateral, 1886.

ARNOLD, Edwin, M.A., b. at Rochester, Eng., ARNOLD.

June 10, 1832; educated at University College, Oxford; graduated B.A., 1854; became assistant master of Edward VI. School, Birmingham; later, principal of the government Sanscrit College at Poona, Bombay Presidency; an editor of the London Daily Telegraph, 1851. He is a fellow of the Royal Asiatic Society, and of the Royal Geographical Society; 2d class of the imperial order of the Medjidie (Turkish), and companion of the Star of India. He arranged George Smith's first expedition, and Stanley's expedition in search of Livingstone,—both in behalf of the Daily Telegraph. He has made numerous poetical translations from Greek and Sanscrit, and has written many poems, of which the most famous are, The Light of Asia (the life and teaching of Buddha), London, 1879 (28th ed., 1886, and several reprints; in recognition he was decorated by the King of Siam with the Order of the White Elephant); Pearls of the Faith, or Islam's Rosary, 1883, 3d ed., 1884; The Secret of Death, 1885.

ARNOLD, Matthew, D.C.L. (Edinburgh, 1869, Oxford, 1870), son of Thomas Arnold of Rugby; b. at Laleham, near Staines, Dec. 24, 1822; entered Balliol College, Oxford; won the Newdigate prize for English verse (1843); graduated in honors, 1844; became a Fellow of Oriel College (1845); a lay inspector of schools, 1851; was professor of poetry at Oxford from 1857 to 1867. He received the order of Commander of the Crown of India, in recognition he was decorated by the King of Italy in Transition, Public Scenes and Private M.

ATLAY, Right Rev. James, D.D. (Cambridge, 1859), Lord Bishop of Hereford, Church of England; b. at Wakerley, Northamptonshire, Eng., in the year 1817; was scholar of St. John's College, Cambridge; Bell's University scholar, 1837; graduated B.A. (senior optime, 1st class classical tripos), 1840; M.A., 1843; B.D., 1850. He was a fellow of St. John's College, 1842-59; tutor, 1846-59; curate of Warsop, Notts, 1842; vicar of Madingley, Cambridge, 1847-52; Whitehall preacher, 1856-58; vicar of Leeds and rural dean, 1858-59; canon residuary of Ripon Cathedral, 1861-68; consecrated Lord Bishop of Hereford, 1868.

ATTERBURY, William Wallace, Presbyterian; b. at Newark, N.J., Aug. 4, 1823; graduated at Yale College, 1843; was resident for a year, then entered Yale Theological Seminary, and graduated, 1847; was ordained, 1848; established Presbyterian Church at Lansing, Mich., 1848; was pastor there until 1854; at Madison, Ind., 1854-66; in Europe and the East; supplied pulpits at Cleveland, O., and elsewhere; became secretary of the New-York Sabbath Committee, 1866. He is an active member of the United-States Branch of the Evangelical Alliance, and was its secretary in 1875. He has written numerous documents, reports, articles for the press, etc., mostly on the various aspects of the Sunday question.

ATWOOD, Isaac Morgan, D.D. (Tufts, 1879), Universalist; b. at Pembroke, Genesee County, N.Y., March 24, 1838; was educated in the States of New York, Maine, and Massachusetts; editor of the Boston Universalist, 1857-72; since and now associate editor of the Christian Leader; and since 1879 has been president of the Canton (N.Y.) Theological School, and Dockstader professor of theology and ethics. He has published, Have we outgrown Christianity? Boston, 1875; The Word of Universalism, 1878; Walks about Zion, 1882; Episcopalacy, 1884.

BACHMANN, Johannes Franz Julius, German Lutheran theologian; b. in Berlin, Feb. 24, 1832; became privat-docent there, 1856; ordinary professor of theology at Rostock, 1859; and there also university preacher, 1874. Besides sermons, he has issued Die Festgesetze des Pentateuchs, Berlin, 1868; Das Buch der Richter, vol. i., in 2 pts., 1857-70; Ernst Wilhelm Hengstenberg, sein Leben und Wirken, Gütersloh, 1876-80, 2 vols.

BACON, Leonard Woolsey, M.D. (Yale, 1850), D.D. (Yale, 1870), Congregationalist; b. at New Haven, Conn., Jan. 1, 1830; graduated at Yale College, 1850, and at Yale Theological Seminary, 1854; was minister of St. Peter's (Presbyterian) Church, Rochester, N.Y., 1856; of Litchfield Congregational Church, Connecticut, 1857-60; missionary at large for Connecticut, 1861-62; became privat-docent there, 1856; minister at Stamford, Conn., 1863-65; Brooklyn, N.Y., 1865-70; Baltimore, Md., 1871; in Europe, 1872-77; minister at Norwich, Conn., 1878-82; stated supply to Woodland Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, Penn., 1888; chosen pastor of the same, 1885. He has contributed largely in prose and poetry to the press, issued pamphlets and musical compositions, edited Congregational Hymn and Tune Book, New Haven, 1857; The Book of Worship, New York, 1855; The Life, Speeches, and Discourses of Father Hyacinthe, 1872; The Hymns of Martin Luther set to their Original Melodies, with an English Version, 1858; The Church Book: Hymns and Tunes, 1863; and original books, Vatican Council, New York, 1872; Church Papers: Essays on Subjects Ecclesiastical and Social, Geneva, London, and New York, 1876; A Life worth living: Life of Mrs. Emily Bliss Gould, New York, 1878; Sunday Observance and Sunday Law (with six sermons on the Sabbath question, by G. B. Bacon), 1882; The Simplicity that is in Christ (sermons), 1886.

BAETHGEN, Friedrich Wilhelm Adolf, Lice. Theol. (Kiel, 1877), Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1878), Protestant theologian; b. at Lachen, Hannover, Jan. 16, 1849; studied at Göttingen and Kiel; was in the German army in the war against France, 1870-71; was in Russia, 1873-76; in Berlin, 1876-77; in British Museum, London, 1878; became privat-docent at Kiel, 1878; professor extraordinary of theology, 1884. From 1881-84 he was also "adjunctus ministerii" in Kiel. He is the author of Untersuchungen über die Psalmen nach der Peskiä, Kiel, 1878; Sindbani oder die sieben weisen Meister. Syrisch und Deutsch, Leipzig, 1878; Syrische Grammatik des cups Elias von Torkan herausgegeben und übersetzt, 1880; Anmuth und Würde in der alttestamentlichen Poesie, Kiel, 1880 (a lecture); Fragmente syrischer und arabischer Historiker herausgegeben und übersetzt, 1884; Evangelienfragmente: Der griechische Text des Cypriotischen Syryers wiederhergestellt, 1885. Besides these he has written the following articles: Ein Melkithischen Hymnus an die Jungfrau Maria ("Zeitschrift der Deutschen Morgenländischen Gesellschaft," 1879, vol. 33, pp. 666-671 [1879], and in the same the yearly review of matters relating to Syriac, etc., 1879 sqq.); Kritische Bemerkungen über einige Stellen des Psalmentextes ("Theolog. Studien und Kritiken," 1880, pp. 751 sqq.); Philosophie von Mose, Kiel, 1879 ("Zeitschrift für Kirchengeschichte," 1881, vol. 5, pp. 122-138); Der textkritische Werth der alten Übersetzungen zu den Psalmen ("Jahrbücher für protestantische Theologie," 1882, vol. 8, pp. 405-359, 593-607); Nachwort von einer unbekannten Handschrift des Psalterium justa Hebraeo Hieronymi ("Zeitschrift für die alttest. Wissenschaft," 1891, vol. 1, pp. 105-112); Der Psalmenkommentar des Theodor von Mopasenia in syrischer Bearbeitung (d.o., 1885, vol. 5, pp. 53-101).

BAIRD, Charles Washington, D.D. (University, New York City, 1851), Presbyterian; b. at Princeton, N.J., Aug. 29, 1829; graduated at the University of the City of New York, 1848, and at Union Theological Seminary, 1852; was chaplain of the American Chapel at Rome, Italy, 1852-54; and pastor of the Reformed Dutch Church on Bergen Hill, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1859-61; but since 1861 has been pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Rye, Westchester County, N.Y. He is the necrologist of Union Theological Seminary. He has written the following books: Eutaxia, or the Presbyterian Liturgies: Historical Sketches, New York, 1855 (revised and reprinted under title A Chapter on Liturgies, with preface and appendix, Are Dissenters to have a Liturgy? both by Thomas Binney, London, 1859); A Book of Public Prayer, compiled from the Authorized Formularies of Worship of the Presbyterian Church, as prepared by the Reformers Calvin, Knox, Bucer, and others. With Supplementary Forms, New York, 1857; Chronicle of a Border Town [Rye, N.Y.], 1870; History of Bedford Church [Westchester County, N.Y.], 1882; History of the Hugenot Emigration to America (1885), 2 vols., 2d ed. same year. Besides these he has translated Malan's Romanism, New York, 1844; and Discourses and Essays of J. H. Merle d'Aubigné, 1849; and written an arti-
BARBOUR, William McLeod, D.D. (Bowdoin College, 1867), brother of the preceding Presbyterian; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., Jan. 17, 1832; graduated at the University of the City of New York, 1850; studied in the University of Athens, Greece; in the Union Theological Seminary, New York, 1853-55; graduated at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1856; was tutor in the College of New Jersey, Princeton, N.J., 1855-60; and has been since 1850 professor of the Greek language and literature in the University of the City of New York. He is the author of Modern Greece: a Narrative of a Residence and Travel in that Country, New York, 1856; The Life of the Rev. Robert Baird, D.D. (his father), 1866; History of the Rise of the Hospitallers of France, New York, 1879, 2 vols., 2d ed., 1883, London, 1890.

BALLANTINE, James Garfield, Congregationalist; b. at Washington, D.C., Dec. 7, 1848; graduated at Marietta College, Ohio, 1868, and Union Theological Seminary, New York, 1872; professor in Ripon College, 1874-76; in Indiana University, 1876-78; since 1878 connected with the Congregational Theological Seminary of Oberlin, O., first as professor of Greek and Hebrew exegesis (1874-78), and since as professor of Old Testament language and literature. He studied at the University of Leipzig, 1872-73; was with the American Palestine Exploration Expedition in Palestine, March to August, 1873. Since 1884, he has been one of the editors of the Bibbia Sacra.

BALOCH, Francis, Reformed; b. at Nagy Várász (Magnus Varadinum), Hungary, March 30, 1836; graduated there, 1854; continued theological studies at Debreczen, Hungary, until 1858; resided in the college until 1863, when he went to Paris, London, and Edinburgh for further study; in 1865 he returned to Debreczen as assistant professor, and the next year (1866) became ordinary professor of church history, the history of doctrines, and of Hungarian Protestant church history. His theological standpoint is orthodox and evangelical. He defends the Helvetic Confession of Faith of the Hungarian Reformed Church against those who throw away all confessions. He was founder, and editor 1875-78, of the Evangelical Protestant Gazette (Debreczen, weekly), which successfully opposed the Budapest Protestant Union, an imitation of the "Protestanten Verein" of Schenkel. The "Union" has ceased to exist. He was a delegate from his church to the Reformed Alliance Council at Edinburgh, 1877, and made a report; a member of the first general national synod held at Debreczen 1881, again in 1882; and since 1883 has been ecclesiastical assessor of the superintendent (a life office). Besides addresses, translations, articles in Herzog, etc., he has written, all in Hungarian, and published at Debreczen, Peter Melius, the Hungarian Reformer, 1868 (German translation, 1867); The History of the Hungarian Protestant Church, 1872; The History of the Christian Church to the 17th Century, 1872-82, 2 vols.; Points of Information in the Field of Theology against Hungarian modernism (1877); The Literature of the Hungarian Protestant Church History, 1879.
BARCLAY, Joseph, D.D. (Dublin University, 1880); LL.D. (do., 1883); b. near Strabane, County Tyrone, Ireland, Aug. 12, 1831; d. in Jerusalem, Palestine, Jan. 23, 1880. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, but did not distinguish himself; graduated B.A., 1854; M.A., 1857; became curate of Bagnalstown, County Carlow, Ireland, 1854; missionary to the Jews in Constantinople, 1855; minister of Christ Church, Jerusalem, 1861; resigned July 22, 1870; curate of Bagnalstown, 1871-73; rector of Stapleford, near Hertford, 1873; consecrated bishop of Jerusalem, Constantinople, 1858; minister of Christ Church, Ireland, 1854; missionary to the Jews in Constantinople, 1855; graduated B.A., 1854; M.A., 1857; became priest, 1865; became perpetual curate of Dalton, Yorkshire, 1866; rector of East Mersea, Essex, 1871; and rector of Lew Trenchard, Lew Down, North Devonshire, 1881. He has written, "Traditions orientales sur les pyramides d'Egypte, Marseilles, 1841; "Rabbi Yasheph ben Hali Bassoensis Karita in libro Psalmorum commentarii arabici editit et in Latinita convertit, Paris, 1846, and Yapheth's Versio, 1861; "Apercu historique sur l'Eglise d'Afrique, 1848; "Le livre de Ruth, 1854; "Hebrew and Latin Ode to the patriarch Abraham: Tradition et Legen'ees musulmanes rapprochées sur les auteurs arabes, 1863.

BARING-GOULD, Sabine, Church of England; b. at Exeter, Jan. 28, 1834; was student in Clare College, Cambridge; graduated B.A., 1854; M.A., 1856; ordained deacon, 1864; priest, 1865; became perpetual curate of Dalton, Yorkshire, 1868; rector of East Mersea, Essex, 1871; and rector of Lew Trenchard, Lew Down, North Devonshire, 1881. He has written, besides volumes of sermons under various titles, in 1872, 1873, 1875, 1879, 1880, 1881, 1884, 1885, and novels, the following: "The Path of the Just, London, 1850; "Ice-land, its Scenes and its Sagas, 1893; "Post-medieval Preachers, 1865; "The Book of Were-izvols, 1863; "Curious Myths of the Middle Ages, 1868-69, 2 series, new ed., 1881, 1 vol. (reprinted Boston); "The Silver Store, collected from medieval Christian and Jewish Mines, 1868, 2d ed. 1882; "Curiosities of Old Times, 1869, 2d ed. 1875; "The Origin and Development of Religions, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1882 (reprinted New York); "Legends of the Old-Testament Characters, 1871, 2 vols. (reprinted New York); "Lives of the Saints, 1872-77, 15 vols.; "The Lost and Haunted Gospels, 1874; "Yorkshire Oddities, 1874; "Some Modern Difficulties, 1875; "The Vicar of Morecambe (Rev. Robert Stephen Hawker), 1876 (reprinted New York); "Germany, Past and Present, 1879. From 1871 to 1873 he edited "The Sociery, a quarterly review of ecclesiastical art and literature.

BARNARD, Frederick Augustus Porter, S.T.D. (University of Mississippi, 1861), LL.D. (Jefferson College, Miss., 1855, Yale College, 1859), L.H.D. (Regents of the University of the State of New York, 1872), Episcopalian; b. at Sheffield, Mass., May 5, 1809; graduated at Yale College, 1828; was tutor there, 1830; teacher in academies for the deaf and dumb at Hartford, Conn., 1831-33; and New York City, 1833-37; professor of mathematics and natural philosophy in University of Alabama, 1837-48; of chemistry, 1848-54; professor of mathematics, natural philosophy, and civil engineering in the University of Mississippi, 1854-56; president of the same, 1856-58; chancellor, 1858-61; in charge of chart printing and lithography, United-States Coast Survey, 1863-64; since May, 1864, president of Columbia College, New York City. He took deacon's orders in the Protestant-Episcopal Church, 1836. He belongs to many scientific societies, and, aside from text-books, has written many educational treatises, of which may be mentioned "Letters on College Government, and the Evils inseparable from the American College in its Present Form, 1854; "History of the American Coast Survey, 1857; "University Education from 1858; "Undulatory Theory of Light, 1892; "Machinery and Processes of the Industrial Arts, and Apparatus of the Exact Sciences, New York, 1868; "Metric System of Weights and Measures, 1871, 3d ed. 1879; "Imaginary Meteorological System of the Great Pyramid of Gizeh, 1884.

BARRETT, Benjamin Fisk, Swedenborgian; b. at Dresden, Me., June 24, 1808; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1829, and at the Harvard (Unitarian) Divinity School, Cambridge, Mass., 1838; became a Swedenborgian, 1839; was pastor of the New Church Society in New York City, 1840-43; in Cincinnati, 1844-51; in Chicago, 1851-55; retired temporarily from ministerial service because of ill health; was pastor in Philadelphia, Penn., 1864-71; and since has been president and corresponding secretary of the Swedenborgian Publishing Association, Philadelphia. He edited "The Swedenborgian, 1838-60 (when discontinued), and "The New Church Monthly, 1867-70 (when merged in "The New Church Independent). He is the author of "Life of Emanuel Swedenborg, New York, 1841; "Lectures on the Doctrines of the New Church, 1842 (present title, "Lectures on the New Dispensation), 11th ed., Philadelphia, 1878; "The Golden Reed, New York, 1855; "The Question concerning the Visible Church, 1856; "Swedenborg's Education from 1858; "Undulatory Theory of Light, 1892; "Machinery and Processes of the Industrial Arts, and Apparatus of the Exact Sciences, New York, 1868; "Metric System of Weights and Measures, 1871, 3d ed. 1879; "Imaginary Meteorological System of the Great Pyramid of Gizeh, 1884.

BARRETT.
BARROWS.

First Words in Australia, 1884. He commented upon Ephe-sians, Philippians, Colossians, and Philemon, in vol. iii. of Bishop Ellicott's N. T. Commentary for English Readers, 1879, re-issued in the Handy Commentary, 1883.

BARTLETT, Edward Totterson, Episcopalian; b. at Philadelphia, Penn., July 25, 1843; graduated from the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1865, and from Andover Theological Seminary, 1869; became rector at Sharon Springs, N. Y., 1869, and at Matteawan, N. Y., 1874; and since 1884 has been dean of the Divinity School of the Protestant Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, and professor of ecclesiastical history in the same.

BARTLETT, Samuel Colcord, D.D. (Dartmouth College, 1861). L.L.D. (College of New Jersey, 1878), Congregationalist; b. at Salisbury, N. H., Nov. 25, 1817; graduated at Dartmouth College, 1836, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1842; became successively pastor at Monson, Mass., 1843; professor of intellectual philosophy in the Western Reserve Seminary, 1844; rector at Manchester, N. H., 1852; pastor in Chicago, Ill., and professor of biblical literature in the Congregational Theological Seminary, Chicago, Ill., 1857; resigned pastorate, but retained professorship, 1859; president of Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H., 1857. He is in substantial accord with the modified Calvinism of New England, as represented by Andover Seminary in the time of Woods, Stuart, B. B. Edwards, and Park; welcoming all new light, from whatever source, upon the text, composition, or interpretation of the Scriptures, or the doctrines thence legitimately resulting; but resisting all baseless theories, and rash speculations, and, in general, declining to surrender the matured and well-established convictions of the great mass of intelligent evangelical Christians, except on valid evidence." He was the first on the ground to open and organize the Chicago Congregational Theological Seminary, and raised the funds for endowing the chair he occupied. He aided also in the organization of numerous churches in Illinois. He crossed the desert of E'Tih to Palestine (1874) with a view to compare in detail all the circumstances and conditions of the region with the narrative of the journey of the children of Israel. Besides numerous articles in the Bibliotheca Sagra, The New-England, The North-American Review, orations at the centennial of the battle of Bennington, the quarter-millennial celebration of Newburyport, and at literary anniversaries, he has written Life and Death Eternal, a Refutation of the Doctrine of Annihilation, Boston, 1890, 2d ed. 1878; Sketches of the Missions of the A. B. C. F. M., 1872; Future Punishment, 1875; From Egypt to Palestine, Observations of a Journey, New York, 1879; Sources of History in the Pentateuch, 1883.

BARTOL, Cyrus Augustus, D. D. (Harvard, 1859), Independent Congregationalist; b. at Freeport, Me., April 30, 1813; graduated at Bowdoin College, Maine, and the Congregational Theological Institute School, 1835; since 1837 he has been pastor of the West Church, Boston. He has written Discourse on the Christian Spirit and Life, Boston, 1850; Discourse on the Christian Body and Form, 1854; Pictures of Europe, 1853; Church and Congregation, 1858; Radical Problems, 1872; The Rising Faith, 1873; Principles and Portraits, 1880.

BASCOM, John, D.D. (Iowa College, 1875), L.L.D. (Amherst, 1873), Congregationalist; b. at Genoa, N.Y., May 1, 1827; graduated at Williams College, Massachusetts, 1849, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1853; was professor of rhetoric in Williams College from 1855 to 1874, and ever since has been president of the University of Wisconsin. He is the author of A Political Economy, Andover, 1859; Ästhetika, or the Science of Beauty, New York, 1862, revised edition 1881; Rhetoric, 1865; The Principles of Psychology, 1869, revised edition 1877; Science, Philosophy, and Religion (Lowell lectures), 1871; A Philosophy of English Literature, 1874; Philosophy of Religion, or the Rational Grounds of Religious Belief, 1876; Comparative Psychology, or Growth and Grades of Intelligence, 1878; Ethics, or Science of Duty, 1879; Natural Theology, 1880; Science of Mind, 1881; The Words of Christ as Principles of Personal and Social Growth, 1884; Problems in Philosophy, 1885.

BASSERMANN, Heinrich, Lic. Theol. (Jena, 1870), D.D. (kon., Zürich, 1883), German Protestant; b. at Frankfurt-am-Main, July 12, 1849; studied at Jena, Zürich, and Heidelberg, 1867—72; became assistant preacher at Arolsen, Waldeck, 1873; privat-docent at Leipzig, 1874; professor extraordinary at Heidelberg, 1876; ordinary professor of practical theology, 1880; and seminar-director and university preacher, 1884. He is the author of Dreissig christliche Predigten, Leipzig, 1870; Jahre et Moloch sire de ratione intercedente, 1874; Der heurige Stand der alttestamentlichen Weissagung, first part, 1861; studien zur semitischen Religionsgeschichte, 1876; Boë'tius and Dante, Leipzig, 1874. Besides numerous sermons he has announced to furnish the volume on Practical Theology, in the new Freiburg series of theological text-books.

BEATTIE, Francis Robert, Ph.D. (Illinois University, U.S.A., 1884), Presbyterian; b. at Guelph, Ontario, Can., March 31, 1848; graduated at the University of Toronto, B.A., 1875 (medallist in Oriental literature); M.A., 1884; editor of The Western Christian Advocate. He was tutor in the Manchester College, and the theological seminary, Toronto, 1882. He was tutor in the University of Toronto, 1877; examiner, 1877-78, 1882—; tutor in Knox College, 1884; president of General Synod, Baltimore, Md., 1884. He is the author of Sinai and Zion (travels), Philadelphia, 1880, 7th ed. 1883 (German trans., Reading, Penn., 1875, 2d ed. 1885); Wayside Gleanings in Europe, Reading, 1876; editor The Guardian, 1867-82; Harbaugh's Härfe (poems), 1870; founded, and since has edited, Der Reformer Haussfreund, 1867 sqq.

BAYLIS, Jeremiah Henry, D.D. (Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, O., 1873), Methodist; b. at Wednesday, Eng., Dec. 20, 1863; attended Genesee College, L.W., 1883-88, and became pastor in the Genesee (N.Y. Conference, 1857-89; in Chicago, Ill., 1886-71; in Indianapolis, Ind., 1871-79; in Detroit, Mich., 1879-82; at Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, O., 1882-84; elected in May, 1884, editor of The Western Christian Advocate.

BEARD, Charles, Unitarian; b. at Manchester, Eng., July 27, 1827; studied in the Manchester New College, and University of Berlin; graduated B.A. at London University, 1847; became minister at Gee Cross, near Manchester, 1850; and of Renshaw-st. Chapel, Liverpool, 1867. He was the editor of The Theological Review from 1864 to 1879; and is the author of Outlines of Christian Doctrine. London, 1859; Port Royal, a Contribution to the History of Religion and Literature in France, 1861, 2 vols., cheaper ed. 1873; The Soul's Way to God, 1875, 2d ed. 1878; The Reform of the XXVI. Century in its Relation to Modern Thought and Knowledge (Hibbert lectures for 1883), 1885, 2d ed. 1885 (German trans. by F. Halverscheid, Berlin, 1884).

BEATTIE, John, D.D. (Iowa College, 1875), L.L.D. (Amherst, 1873), Congregationalist; b. at Sophienruhe, near Kiel, Sept. 26, 1847; became privat-docent at Leipzig, 1874; professor extraordinary at Strassburg, 1876; ordinary professor, 1880; and at Marburg, 1881. He is the author of Institutiones antiquae libri sub qua superius, Leipzig, 1870; Jakob und Mose sive de ratione inter dum Israelitarum et Molochum intercedente, 1874; Elloquentia et Alcar, ein Abchnitt spanischer Kirchengeschichte aus der Zeit der Maurenherrschaft, 1872; Studien zur semitischen Religionsgeschichte, 1876-78, 2 vols.: Der heurige Stand der alttestamentlichen Wissenschaft, Giessen, 1884.

BAUM, Henry Mason. See page 31.

BAUR, Gustav (Adolf Ludwig), D.D. (German Protestant; b. at Hammelbach, June 14, 1816; became privat-docent at Giessen, 1841; professor extraordinary, 1847; ordinary, 1849; pastor at Hamburg, 1861; ordinary professor of theology at Leipzig, 1870. Besides numerous sermons he has issued Der Prophet Amos erklärt, Giessen, 1847; Grundzüge der Homiletik, 1885; Geschichte der alttestamentlichen Weissagung, first part, 1861; Grundzüge der Erziehungskunde, 1st to 3d ed., 1876; Botius und Dante, Leipzig, 1874.

BAUSMAN, Benjamin, D.D. (Franklin and Marshall College, 1870), Reformed (German); b. at Lancaster, Penn., Jan. 28, 1824; graduated at Marshall College, and the theological seminary, Mercersburg, Penn., 1852; became pastor at Lewisburg, Penn., 1852; editor of The Reformed Messenger, published at Chambersburg, Penn., 1858; pastor there, 1861; at Reading, 1863 (First Reformed Church till 1873, since of St. Paul's, which he organized). He was delegate to German Church Diet at Breslau, 1856, and to Council of Alliance of Reformed Churches held at Belfort, 1884; president of General Synod, Baltimore, Md., 1884. He is the author of Der Prophet Amos erklärt, Giessen, 1847; Grundzüge der Erziehungskunde, 1st to 3d ed., 1876; Botius und Dante, Leipzig, 1874.

BAYLIS, Jeremiah Henry, D.D. (Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, O., 1873), Methodist; b. at Wednesday, Eng., Dec. 20, 1863; attended Genesee College, Lima, Ohio, 1883-88, and became pastor in the Genesee (N.Y. Conference, 1857-89; in Chicago, Ill., 1866-71; in Indianapolis, Ind., 1871-79; in Detroit, Mich., 1879-82; at Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, O., 1882-84; elected in May, 1884, editor of The Western Christian Advocate.
BEECHER, Charles, Congregationalist; b. at Litchfield, Conn., Oct. 7, 1815; graduated at Bowdoin College, Maine, 1834; and at Lane Seminary, Cincinnati, O., 1837; was Presbyterian pastor at Fort Wayne, Ind., 1844–50; Congregational pastor at Newark, O., 1851–54; and at Georgetown, Mass., 1857–58; stated supply of Presbyterian church at Wysox, Penn., 1855. He believes that "the resurrection of The Christ, both head and members, is a true and proper Return to primeval glory in the celestial fatherland, forfeited, but redeemed by the blood of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world." He is the author of The Incarnation, New York, 1849; Review of the Spiritual Manifestations, 1853; David and his Throne, 1855; Redeemer and Redeemed, Boston, 1864; Spiritual Manifestations, 1879; The Eden Tableau, 1880. He was joint editor with John Zundel of the music of the Plymouth Collection of Hymns and Tunes, New York, 1855; and editor of the Autobiography, etc., of his father, Lyman Beecher, 1865, 2 vols.

BEECHER, Edward, D.D. (Marietta College, 1831), Congregationalist; b. at East Hampton, Long Island, N.Y., Aug. 27, 1803; graduated at Yale College, 1822; studied for one year (1825) in Andover Theological Seminary, but did not graduate; was tutor in Yale College, 1825–26; pastor of the Park-street Church, Boston, 1829–30; president of Illinois College, 1830–44; pastor of the Salem-street Church, Boston, 1844–56; senior editor of The Congregationalist, 1849–52; pastor in Galesburg, Ill., 1856–72; professor extraordinary in Congregational Theological Seminary, Chicago, 1877–83; president of the Congregational church, for some years after 1860. Since 1871 he has resided, without pastoral charge, in Brooklyn, preaching often in various churches.

He is "an evangelical Calvinist, except as to the nature and cause of original sin, and the question of the suffering of God and its influence in the atonement. He holds that sin did not come through the material system, and of course not through the fall of Adam, but that the material system by its analogies is adapted to regenerate those who have made themselves sinful in a previous state of existence. The doctrine of divine suffering he holds as presenting the character of God in its most affecting and powerful aspects, and as essential to a true view of the atonement.

"He went to Alton, Ill., in 1837, to aid in defending the freedom of the press in the case of E. P. Lovejoy. Resisted by the mob spirit, he aided in forming the Illinois State Anti-slavery Society, and drew up its constitution and declaration of principles, and published an address to the people of the State. He was with E. P. Lovejoy and Owen..."
Lovejoy, his brother, the night before the former's death, Nov. 6, 1837. He aided in landing the second press, and in storing it in the stone store of Godfrey and Gilman, where in defending it E. P. Lovejoy was slain.

Since 1824, he has published in various religious journals articles on questions of theology and practical reform, amounting in all to many volumes. His books are: On the Kingdom of God, Boston, 1827; History of the Alton Riots, Cincinnati, 1836; Import and Modes of Baptism, New York, 1849; The Conflict of Ages, exposing False Views of the Origin of Sin, False Interpretations on which they are based, the Great Conflict arising, and the Means of the Restoration of Harmony, Boston, 1853, 5th ed. 1855; The Concord of Ages: A Defence of the Historical Statements and the Interpretations of The Conflict of Ages, and a more Full Discussion of the Doctrine of the Suffering of God, and its Wide Range of Influence in harmonizing the Church, New York, 1853; The Papal Conspiracy, exposing the Principles and Plans of the Papacy with respect to this Country, Boston, 1855; History of Opinions on the Scriptural Doctrine of Retribution, New York, 1875.

BEECHER, Henry Ward, Congregationalist; b. at Litchfield, Conn., June 24, 1813; graduated at Amherst College, Mass., 1834; and at Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O., 1837, where his father was professor; became successively pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Lawrenceburg, Ind., 1837; and at Indianapolis, 1839; and of Plymouth Congregational Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1847. The latter building seats nearly 3,000, and the membership is (1885) 2,618. Besides preaching, Mr. Beecher has done much lecturing and political speaking, particularly in behalf of various reform movements. From its start in 1848 to 1861, he was a regular contributor to The Independent, a religious weekly of New-York City, and from 1861 to 1883 its editor. From 1870 to 1890, he was editor of the New-York Christian Union, a paper of the same tendency. Mr. Beecher visited Europe in 1865, and courageously sided the side of the Northern States in the Civil War then raging.

On Oct. 10, 1882, he withdrew from the Association to which he belonged, because he did not wish to compromise it by his alleged heresies. The chief points of his divergence from the orthodox position relate to the person of Christ, whom he considers to be the Divine Spirit under the limitations of time, space, and flesh; miracles, which he considers divine uses of natural laws; and future punishment, whose endlessness he denies, inclining to a modification of the annihilation theory. He calls his standpoint an evangelical progressive: anti-Calvinistic.

His sermons have been published weekly since 1859, and in book form in numerous volumes. He says he is the author of "swarms of books — of which I know less than any other person — of all sorts, some thirty to forty." Of these books may be mentioned, Lectures to Young Men, New York, 1850; Star Thoughts, 1858; Eyes and Ears, 1853; Royal Trusts, 1864; Norwood (a novel), 1867; Lecture-room Talks, 1870; Life of Christ, vol. i., 1871; Yale Lectures on Preaching, 1872-74, 3 vols; A Summer Parish, 1875; Evolution and Religion, 1885. Cf. Lyman Abbott: Henry Ward Beecher, N.Y., 1883.

BEECHER, Thomas Kenrick, brother of the preceding, Congregationalist; b. at Litchfield, Conn., Feb. 10, 1824; graduated at Illinois College, 1843, under his brother Edward; became school-principal in Philadelphia, 1846, and in Hartford, Conn., 1848; pastor in Brooklyn, N.Y., 1852; in Elmira, 1854. His theological standpoint is that of the New Testament, Apostolic Creed, and Catholic faith. He is the author of Our Seven Churches, New York, 1870 [a volume of discourses, in a catholic spirit, upon the denominations represented in Elmira], and various articles in periodicals.

BEECHER, Willis Judson, D.D. (Hamilton College, 1873), Presbyterian; b. at Hampden, O., April 29, 1838; graduated at Hamilton College, N.Y., 1858, and at Auburn Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1864; became pastor at Ovid, N.Y., 1864; professor of moral science and belles-lettres in Knox College, Ill., 1865; acting pastor at Galesburg, Ill., 1869; professor of Hebrew language and literature in Auburn Seminary, 1871. He has written Upon the Farmer Tompkins, Philadelphia, 1874; General Catalogue of Auburn Theological Seminary, Auburn, 1883; Drill Lessons in Hebrew, 1883; and jointly with Mary A. Beecher, Index of Presbyterian Ministers, 1706-1881, Philadelphia, 1883.

BEET, Joseph Agar, Wesleyan Methodist; b. at Sheffield, Eng., Sept. 27, 1840; educated at Wesley College, Sheffield, and Wesleyan Theological College, Richmond, London; for twenty-one years held pastoral charges as a Wesleyan minister; in 1885 entered the faculty of the Wesleyan Theological College at Richmond, as professor of systematic theology. Besides articles, he has published Commentary on the Epistle to the Romans, London, 1877, 5th ed. 1885; Holiness as understood by the Writers of the Bible, 1880, 3d ed. 1883; Commentary on the Epistles to the Corinthians, 1882, 3d ed. 1885; Commentary on the Epistle to the Galatians, 1885. (These works have been republished in New York.)

BEHRENDS, Adolphus Julius Frederick, D.D. (Richmond College, 1873), Congregationalist; b. at Nymegen, Holland, Dec. 18, 1839; graduated at Denison University, O., 1862, and at Rochester (Baptist) Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1865; became pastor of the Baptist Church at Yonkers, N.Y., 1865; of the First Baptist Church, Cleveland, O., 1873; of the Union Congregational Church, Providence, R.I., 1876; and of the Central Congregational Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1883.

BENDER, Wilhelm (Friedrich), Ph.D. (Gottingen, 1868), D.D. (same, kon., 1877), German Protestant; b. at Muenzenberg, Hesse, Jan. 15, 1845; studied at Gottingen and Giessen, 1863-66; and at the theological seminary at Friedberg, 1866-67; became teacher of religion and assistant preacher at Worms, 1868; ordinary professor of theology at Bonn, 1876. He is the author of Schildiemachers philosophische Gotteslehre, Worms, 1868; Der Wunderbegriff des Neuen Testaments, Frankfort a. M., 1871; Schleieimachers Theologie mit ihren philosophischen Grundlagen, Norderlingen, 1876-78, 2 vols.; Friedrich Schleiemacher and the Frage nach dem Wesen der Religion, Bonn, 1877; Johann Conrad Dippel. Der Freigeist aus dem Pie-
BERGER, Daniel, D.D. (Westfield College, Ill., 1873), United Brethren in Christ; b. near Reading, Penn., Feb. 14, 1832; studied privately at Springfield, O.; became a school-teacher, 1852; principal of public high school, Springfield, O., 1853; pastor, 1858; editor of publishing house of United Brethren in Christ, Dayton, O., 1861; edited the leading church weekly, The Religious Telescope, until 1869, and since, the denominational Sunday-school literature.

BERGER, Samuel, French Lutheran theologian; b. at Bernecourt (Haute-Bresse), May 29, 1843; studied at Strasbourg and Tübingen; in 1867 he became assistant preacher in the Lutheran Church in Paris; in 1877, librarian to the Paris faculty of Protestant theology. He is the author of F. C. Baur, les origines de l'école de Tübingue et ses principes, Paris, 1867; La Bible au seizième siècle; Étude sur les origines de la critique, 1879; De glossariis et compendio biblicis qui bisubstantia melii aevi, 1879; Du rôle de la dogmatique...
Bernard, Hugo Johannes, Lic. Theol. (Erlangen, 1877), Ph.D. (Halle, 1884; Lutheran) MARTINIUS, German Protestant theologian; b. at Hamburg, July 6, 1836; studied at Göttingen and Halle; taught in the schools of Hamburg, and has been since 1877 pastor in that city. He has not written any separate works, but has contributed to different periodicals and serials; e.g., to the Theologische Literaturzeitung of Harnack and Schürer, and the Real-encyklopädie of Herzog, Meyer, and Lange.

Bernard, Gotthardt Dellmann, D.D. (North Carolina College, 1877), Lutheran (Old Pennsylvania Ministerium); b. at Iserlohn, Westphalia, Prussia, Nov. 8, 1827; graduated at the Lutheran Seminary of the South Carolina synod, Lexington, S.C., 1849; became successively pastor in Charleston, S.C., 1850; at Mount Pleasant, N.C.; and financial secretary of North-Carolina College, 1858; at Charlotte, N.C., 1861; principal of female seminary of the North Carolina Synod, Mount Pleasant, N.C., and pastor of Ebenezer Church in Rowan County, N.C., 1866; pastor of St. Paul's Church, Wilmington, N.C., 1869; an editor and proprietor of At Home and Abroad, monthly, published at Wilmington and Charleston, N.C., 1881; pastor of Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church, Philippi, N.J., 1883. Besides The Success of God's Work (sermon), Wilmington, N.C., 1870, and Localities of the Reformation (pamphlet), 1877, he has published History of the German Settlements and of the Lutheran Church in North and South Carolina, Philadelphia, 1872; The First Twenty Years (of the history of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Wilmington, N.C.), Wilmington, 1870.

Bersier, Eugene Arthur Francois, Reformed Church of France; b. of descendants of Huguenot refugees, at Morce, near Geneva, Switzerland, Feb. 5, 1831; pursued his elementary studies at Geneva and Paris; was in America, 1848-50; studied theology at Geneva, Göttingen, and Halle; became pastor in Paris, 1855, where he has been ever since. He was in the Free Church until 1877 (until 1801, over the Faubourg St. Antoine Church; until 1874, assistant of Pressensé in the Taibout Church; until 1877, over the Etoile Church), when he and his congregation joined the Reformed (established) Church of France. He was made in 1872 a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, in recognition of his services during the siege of Paris. He is the author of Sermons, Paris, 1861-84, 7 vols., several editions apiece (English trans. of selected sermons, Oneness of the Church in its Past and its Future, translated by Annie Harwood, London, 1871). Sermons, 1881; St. Paul's Vision, translated by Marie Stewart, New York, 1881; The Gospel in Paris, Sermons, with Personal Sketch of the Author, by Rev. Frederick Hastings, London, 1884; German trans. of selected sermons, Berlin, 1875, and Bremen, 1881 (also Danish, Swedish, and Russian translations); Solidarity, 1889; Histoire du Synode de 1872, 1872, 2 vols.; Liturgie (now used in the Reformed Church of France), 1874; Mes actes et mes principes, 1878; L'Immortalité de Jésus Christ, 1880; Royauté de Jésus Christ, 1881; Coligny avant les Guerres de religion, 1884, 3d ed. 1885 (Eng. trans., Coligny: the Earlier Life of the Great Huguenot, London, 1885); La Révocation, discours prononcés le 22 Oct., 1885, suivi de notes relatives aux jugements des contemporains sur l'Édit de Révocation, 1886.

Bernhardt, Arthur Marsh, D.D. (hon., Greifswald, 1885), Protestant theologian; b. at Hamburg, Germany, July 6, 1836; studied at Göttingen and Halle; taught in the schools of Hamburg, and has been since 1877 pastor in that city. He has not written any separate works, but has contributed to different periodicals and serials; e.g., to the Theologische Literaturzeitung of Harnack and Schürer, and the Real-encyclopädie of Herzog, Meyer, and Lange. His publications include De secundo libro Maccaboeorum, Göttingen, 1829; Comment. Inest carminis Ephraemi Syri textus Syriacus secundum Cod. bib. Angel. denuo editio ac versione brevi annotatione instructus, 1887; Die sieben Gruppen mosaischen Geneteci in den drei mittleren Büchern des Pentateuchs, 1840; Zur Geschichte der Israeliten, zwei Abhandlungen, 1842; an edition of the Syriac grammar of Bar Hebréus, 1843, and the commentary upon Judges and Ruth (1845, 2d ed. 1883), Chronicles (1854, 2d ed. 1873), Ezra, Nehemiah, and Esther (1882), and Proverbs (1847, 2d ed. 1883), in the Kurzgefasstes exegetisches Handbuch zum Alten Testament, Leipzig, 1841-62, 17 parts.

Bertram, Robert Aitkin, Congregationalist; b. at Hanley, Staffordshire, England, Nov. 8, 1836; ended his studies at Owen's College (now Victoria University), Manchester, 1858; since 1859 has been pastor of several Congregational churches; edited The Christian Age, 1880-88. He is the author of The Caedwind Hymnal, Manchester, 1854; Parable, or Divine Poetry: Illustrations in Theology and Morals, selected from Great Dives, and systematically arranged, London, 1868; The Imprecation Psalms: Six Lectures, with other Discourses, 1867; A Dictionary of Poetical Illustrations, 1877, 3d ed. 1885; A Homiletical Encyclopaedia of Illustrations in Theology and Morals, 1878, 7th ed. 1885; A Homiletical Commentary on the Prophecies of Isaiah, 1884-86, 2 vols.

Bernard, Thomas Dehany, Church of England; b. at Clifton, Bristol, Nov. 11, 1815; entered Exeter College, Oxford; took a second-class in classics, 1837; wrote the Ellerton theological essay, and graduated B.A., 1838; wrote the chancellor's English essay, 1839; graduated M.A., 1840; was ordained deacon, 1840; priest, 1841; became vicar of Great Baddow, Essex, 1841; of Tieling, 1848; rector of Walcot, Bath, 1863. In 1868 he became prebendary of Haselbury, and canon residentiary in Wells Cathedral; in 1879, chancellor of Wells Cathedral; and in 1880, proctor for dean and chapter of Wells. He was select preacher at Oxford, 1866, 1862, and 1882; and Bampton lecturer in 1884. He is the author of The Witness of God (University sermons), Oxford, 1869; The Progress of Doctrine in the New Testament (Bampton lectures), London, 1884, 4th ed. 1878; Before his Presence with a Song, 1885.

Bernstein, Gotthardt Dellmann, D.D. (North Carolina College, 1877), Lutheran (Old Pennsylvania Ministerium); b. at Iserlohn, Westphalia, Prussia, Nov. 8, 1827; graduated at the Lutheran Seminary of the South Carolina synod, Lexington, S.C., 1849; became successively pastor in Charleston, S.C., 1850; at Mount Pleasant, N.C.; and financial secretary of North-Carolina College, 1858; at Charlotte, N.C., 1861; principal of female seminary of the North Carolina Synod, Mount Pleasant, N.C., and pastor of Ebenezer Church in Rowan County, N.C., 1866; pastor of St. Paul's Church, Wilmington, N.C., 1869; an editor and proprietor of At Home and Abroad, monthly, published at Wilmington and Charleston, N.C., 1881; pastor of Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church, Philippi, N.J., 1883. Besides The Success of God's Work (sermon), Wilmington, N.C., 1870, and Localities of the Reformation (pamphlet), 1877, he has published History of the German Settlements and of the Lutheran Church in North and South Carolina, Philadelphia, 1872; The First Twenty Years (of the history of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Wilmington, N.C.), Wilmington, 1870.

Berthieu, Carl, D.D. (hon., Greifswald, 1885), Protestant theologian; b. at Hamburg, Nov. 23, 1812; studied in Berlin and Göttingen; in the latter university became ordinary professor of Oriental philology in 1843. He lectures upon the exegesis, archeology, and theology of the Old Testament, and instructs in Arabic, Chaldee, and Syriac. His publications include De secundo libro Maccaboeorum, Göttingen, 1829; Comment. Inest carminis Ephraemi Syri textus Syriacus secundum Cod. bib. Angel. denuo editio ac versione brevi annotatione instructus, 1887; Die sieben Gruppen mosaischen Geneteci in den drei mittleren Büchern des Pentateuchs, 1840; Zur Geschichte der Israeliten, zwei Abhandlungen, 1842; an edition of the Syriac grammar of Bar Hebréus, 1843, and the commentary upon Judges and Ruth (1845, 2d ed. 1883), Chronicles (1854, 2d ed. 1873), Ezra, Nehemiah, and Esther (1882), and Proverbs (1847, 2d ed. 1883), in the Kurzgefasstes exegetisches Handbuch zum Alten Testament, Leipzig, 1841-62, 17 parts.

Bertram, Robert Aitkin, Congregationalist; b. at Hanley, Staffordshire, England, Nov. 8, 1836; ended his studies at Owen's College (now Victoria University), Manchester, 1858; since 1859 has been pastor of several Congregational churches; edited The Christian Age, 1880-88. He is the author of The Caedwind Hymnal, Manchester, 1854; Parable, or Divine Poetry: Illustrations in Theology and Morals, selected from Great Dives, and systematically arranged, London, 1868; The Imprecation Psalms: Six Lectures, with other Discourses, 1867; A Dictionary of Poetical Illustrations, 1877, 3d ed. 1885; A Homiletical Encyclopaedia of Illustrations in Theology and Morals, 1878, 7th ed. 1885; A Homiletical Commentary on the Prophecies of Isaiah, 1884-86, 2 vols.
BEVAN. 17

BIEDERMANN.

The gymnasia of the Halle orphanage, 1883; in the Mission Seminary, Leipzig, 1884. He is author of Qua ratione Augustinus notionem philosophiae greciae ad dogmata anthropologica descriptam adhibetur, Erlangen, 1877; (edited) J. Ch. K. von Hofmann's Encyclopädie der Theologie, Nördlingen, 1870; Quellen im christlichen Sichte, 1880 sq.; B.D. II. 2te Abt. 1885; Die theologische Wissenschaft und die Rücksichts schule, eine Streitschrift, Nördlingen, 1881; Die Anfänge des Katholischen Christenthums und des Islam, 1884.

BEVAN, Llewelyn David, D.D. (Princeton, 1859), Congregationalist; b. at Llandeilo, Carmarthenshire, South Wales, Sept. 11, 1842; studied at New College, London; graduated at London University, B.A. (an English exhibitor), 1861; with first-class philosophy honors, 1863; L.L.B. (with first-class honors), 1866; became assistant at King's Weigh-house Chapel, London, 1865; minister of the Institute court Road Chapel (Whitefield's), London, 1869; of the Brick Presbyterian Church, New York City, 1876; of Highbury Quadrant Church, London, 1882. He was associated with Rev. F. D. Maurice in the Workingmen's College, London; professor at New College for some years; elected member of the London School Board, 1873. Besides separate sermons and discourses, he has published Sermons to Students, New York, 1880; Christ and the Age, London, 1885.

BEYSCHELAG, Willibald, D.D., German Protestant theologian; b. at Frankfort-on-the-Main, to Students, New York, 1880; Christ and the Age, London, 1885.

BICKELL, Gustav, D.D. (Innsbruck, 1875), Roman-Catholic theologian, the son of a distinguished Protestant jurist; b. in Cassel, July 7, 1859; became in 1892 privat-dozent at Marburg in Indo-Germanic and Semitic philology; the same at Giessen, 1883; but in 1895 went over to the Roman Church, was ordained priest in 1896; and after teaching Oriental languages in the Munster Academy from 1897 till 1874 became professor of the Semitic languages and Christian archaeology at Halle. He is the author of Die Religionsver tionsvorschriften und lateinischen Muttern der griechischen Grammatik, 1889-70, 2 parts, English trans. by Prof. S. T. Curtiss, Ph.D., D.D., Leipzig, 1877. Gründe für die Unfähigkeit des Kirchenober-BINNEY, William, D.D. (Glasgow, 1866), Free Church of Scotland; b. in the parish of Greenlaw, Selkirkshire, 1821; entered the Episcopal ministry, 1848; consecrated, 1868.

BiNNEY, John, Episcopal; b. in Philadelphia, Jan. 26, 1832; graduated at Amherst College, Mass., 1855, and Union Theological Seminary, New York, 1859; was pastor of Congregational churches at Westhampton, Mass. (1859—64); San Francisco, Cal. (1864—69); Winchester, Mass. (1870—73); missionary of the A. B. C. F. M. in Austria, 1873—78; studied the Old Testament in Boston and Leipzig, 1878—81; since 1881 has been professor of Hebrew in the Hartford Theological Seminary. During first pastorate raised and commanded Company K, Fifty-second Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers, which served under Gen. Banks at Port Hudson during 1862—63. For a year (1869—70) he was stated supply at Honolulu, Oahu (Sandwich Islands). He is the author of The Historic Origin of the Bible, New York, 1873; The Apocrypha of the Old Testament (a revised transl., introduction and notes, forms vol. xv. of the American Lange series), 1880; The Pentateuch, its Origin and Structure: an Examination of Recent Theories, 1885.

BISSELL, Right Rev. William Henry, D.D. (Norwich University, 1852; Hobart College, 1868; Vermont University, 1870), Episcopal, bishop of the diocese of Vermont; b. at Randolph, Vt., Nov. 10, 1814; graduated at Vermont University, 1836; successively rector of Trinity, West Troy, N. Y., 1841; Grace, Lyons, 1845; Trinity, Geneva, 1848; consecrated, 1868.

BITTNER, Franz Anton, D.D. (Münster, 1835), Roman-Catholic theologian; b. at Appeln, Silesia, Germany, Sept. 17, 1812; was a noted priest in the clerical seminary at Posen, 1835; the same in the Lyceum Hosianum at Braunsberg, 1849; ordinary professor of moral theology at Breslau, 1850. He is the author of De cunctis at divina commentarii, Mainz, 1845; De Ciceronis et Ambrosiani officiorum libris commentariis, Braunsberg, 1846; De cathol. theologiae Romanae inter precipua philosophia genera salutari ac coelestis mediocratiae, Breslau, 1850; Lehrbuch der Kathol. Moraltheologie, Regensburg, 1855; Uber die Geburt, Aufhebung und Himmelfahrt Jesu Christi, 1859; and the translator of Gousset's Dogmatik, Regensburg, 1855—56, 2 vols.
BJÖRLING, Carl Olof, Swedish theologian; b. at Wester äs, Sweden, Sept. 18, 1804; d. there, Jan. 20, 1884. He was graduated at the University of Upsala, Ph. D., 1830; D. D., 1844. He became bishop of Wester äs, 1866, having long been connected as teacher and rector with the Geffe Gymnasium; was pastor successively of the three largest parishes in the country, and was one of the chief advocates of the Church reform. He translated the Hebréan and Chaldee Portions of the Old Testament, of which he wrote the Latin and German translations, and which shows his firm adherence to the Augustan Confession.

BLACKBURN, William Maxwell, D. D. (Princeton College, 1870), Presbyterian; b. at Carlisle, Ind., Dec. 31, 1828; graduated at Hanover College, 1850, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1854; was pastor of Park (Presbyterian) Church, Erie, Penn., 1856-60; Fourth Church, Trenton, N. J., 1864-68; professor of church history in the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of the Northwest, Chicago, Ill., 1868-81; pastor of the Central Church, Cincinnati, O., 1881-84; president of the Territorial University of North Dakota, 1884-85; since president of Pierre University (Presbyterian), Pierre, S. D., 1885. Besides numerous Sunday-school books, William Foell, Philadelphia, 1865; Aonio Paleario, 1866; Ulrich Zwingli, 1868; St. Patrick and the early Irish Church, 1869; Admiral Colligny, 1869, 2 vols.; A History of the Christian Church from its Origin to the Present Time, New York, 1879.

BLACKWOOD, William, D. D. (Lafayette College, Penn., 1857), LL. D. (New-York University, 1871), Presbyterian; b. at Dromara, County Down, Ireland, June 1, 1804; graduated at the Royal College, Belfast, 1832; became pastor successively of the Presbyterian churches of Holywood, near Belfast, 1833; of Trinity Church, Newcastleton-Tyne, 1843; and of the Ninth Church, Philadelphia, Penn., 1850. He was secretary to the Education Committee of the Irish Presbyterian Church, 1834-40; and mathematical examiner of students under care of the Synod of Ulster, 1839-43; and was moderator of the Presbyterian Church in England, 1846. Besides numerous magazine, review, and newspaper articles, he has written essays on Missions to the Heathen, Belfast, 1830; Attonement, Faith, and Assurance, Philadelphia, 1835; Belalmin's Notes of the Church, 1853; and edited the papers of the late Rev. Richard Webster (which at his death had been left in a fragmentary state), with introduction and indexes, and published them under the title Webster's History of the Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, 1857; also the Biblical, Theological, Biographical, and Literary Encyclopaedia, 1873-76, 2 vols. (4to illust.).

BLAÎKIE, William Garden, D. D. (Edinburgh, 1864), LL. D. (Aberdeen, 1872), F. R. S. E. (1861), Free Church of Scotland; b. at Aberdeen, Feb. 5, 1820; graduated at Aberdeen, M. A., 1837; ordained minister of the Established Church of Scotland at Drumblace, Aberdeenshire, 1842; joined the Free Church of Scotland, May, 1843; was translated to Free Church at Pilrig, Edinburgh, 1844; and appointed professor of apologetics and pastoral theology in New College, Edinburgh, by General Assembly of Free Church, in 1849. He was appointed, along with the Rev. William Arnot, delegate from the Free Church to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States at Philadelphia in 1870, to convey congratulations on union. He took a leading part in the formation of the Alliance of the Reformed Churches; convened a private meeting in Edinburgh in its interest in 1874; was one of the chief leaders of the Conference in London in 1875; from 1875 to 1877 was chairman of the general committee of the Scotch Committee to prepare for the first meeting of the Council; one of the clerks of Council held at Edinburgh, 1877, at Philadelphia, 1880, and at Belfast, 1884. He was editor of the Free Church Magazine, 1849-53; North British Review, 1860-63; Sunday Magazine, 1871-74; Catholic Presbyterian, 1879-83. Besides many articles in British and American periodicals, he has written the following books: David, King of Israel, London, 1830, 2d ed. 1860; Bible History in Connection with General History, 1856, fifth thousand 1868, new revised ed. 1892; Bible Geography, 1860; Better Days for Working People, 1863, seventy-sixth thousand 1881, new ed. 1892; Heads and Hands in the World of Labour, 1865, fifth thousand 1888; Counsel and Cheer for the Battle of Life, 1865; The Work of the Ministry, 1873, 4th ed. 1885; Glimpses of the Inner Life of our Lord, 1870, 3d ed. 1878; Personal Life of David Livingstone, 1880, 4th ed. 1884; "My Body," 1883; Public Ministry and Pastoral Methods of Our Lord, 1883; Leaders in Modern Philanthropy, 1894; Present Day Tracts, 5 nos., 1893-95.

BLAKESLEY, Very Rev. Joseph Williams, dean of Lincoln, Church of England; b. in London, March 6, 1808; d. at Lincoln, April 18, 1885. He studied at Trinity College, Cambridge, and graduated B. A. (twenty-first wrangler, and senior chancellor medallist) 1831; M. A., 1834; B. D., 1850; was fellow of his college, 1831-45; assistant tutor, 1834-39; tutor, 1839-45; select preacher before the university, 1840 and 1843. In 1845, by presentation of his college, he became vicar of Ware; declined, in 1860, the Regius professorship of modern history at Cambridge; was appointed in 1850 a classical examiner, and in 1875 a member of the senate of the University of London; in 1863, a canon of Canterbury; in 1870, a member of the New-Testament Company of the Bible-revision Committee; and in 1872, dean of Lincoln. He was the author of Thoughts on the Recommendations of the Ecclesiastical Commission, London, 1837; Life of Aristotle, Cambridge, 1839; Conciones academicae, London, 1843; Four Months in Algeria, 1850; and edited Herodotus, 1852-54, 2 vols.

BLEDSOE, Albert Taylor, LL. D. (Kenyon College, O., and Mississippi University, both 1834), Methodist; b. at Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 9, 1800; d. at Alexandria, Va., Dec. 8, 1877; graduated at the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., 1830; became lieutenant Seventh Infantry; resigned, 1832; became assistant professor of mathematics, Kenyon College, O., 1834; entered ministry of the Episcopal Church, and was rector at Hamilton, O., and professor of mathematics in Miami University, 1835-36; left the ministry, owing to some theological difficulties, and took up the practice of law in Springfield, Ill., and in the Supreme Court at Washington, D. C., 1840-48; became professor of mathe...
BLUNT.

mathematics in the University of Mississippi, 1848, and in the University of Virginia, 1854. On the breaking-out of the civil war he entered the Confederate service as a colonel, but was soon made assistant secretary of war by Mr. Davis. In 1860 he went to England to prepare a work on the constitutional history of the United States. He returned to America in February, 1866, and in 1867 began, at Baltimore, the publication of The Southern Review.

He became a Methodist in 1871, and preached occasionally in Methodist pulpits, but never took charge of a church. His views on theological subjects are difficult to define, as he was not a strict adherent of any church creed. He was a firm believer in, and strenuous advocate of, the doctrine of free-will,—of the responsibility of men for their belief,—a stern opponent of atheism and scepticism. While always friendly towards predestinarians, he fought all his life the doctrine which he believed tarnished the Divine glory, and drove many into unbelief. His views upon these subjects are given in full in his Review of Edwards on the Will, in his Theodicy, and in the pages of The Southern Review. His views on the Constitution are to be found in Liberty and Slavery, and Is Davis a Traitor?

His literary work was done in a manner somewhat peculiar. He pondered his subject long, revolving it year after year; but when he came to write, the work was done with marvellous rapidity and precision, sometimes thirty or forty pages with scarcely an erasure, and then would come a point where he could not write precisely what he wished to say, and perhaps thirty or forty pages more would be thrown aside, each being an attempt to express one unimportant thought. His memory was prodigious for what he read. Of the six hundred and eighty moral philosophers he had read, he could tell, after the lapse of years, just the precise shade of views each upheld. He was an honest but unsparing controversialist, dealing trenchant blows without mercy, but never once in his long militant career accused of misrepresenting the views of an antagonist. Though he made bitter enemies by his pen, they were made in open fair fight.

After the intellectual labor of authorship was over, he lost all interest in the financial success of his books. If a strict profit-and-loss account could be made, he probably made nothing by his books, which reached a number of editions: An Examination of Edwards on the Will, Philadelphia, 1846; A Theodicy, or Vindication of Divine Glory, New York, 1853; Liberty and Slavery, Philadelphia, 1857; Philosophy of Mathematics, 1865; Is Davis a Traitor? Baltimore (privately published), 1866.

BLISS, Daniel, D.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1864), Congregationalist; b. at Georgia, Vt., Aug. 17, 1823; graduated at Amherst College, 1852, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1858; was missionary of A. B. C. F. M. in Syria, 1855-64; since 1865 president of the University and College, Beirut. He is the author in Arabic of a Mental Philosophy, sermons, etc.

BLISS, George Ripley, D.D. (Madison University, 1860), L.L.D. (Lewisburg University, 1878), Baptist; b. at Sherburne, N.Y., June 20, 1816; graduated at Madison University, Hamilton, N.Y., 1838, and at Hamilton Theological Seminary (Baptist), 1840; became tutor in Madison University, 1840; pastor at New Brunswick, N.J., 1843; professor of Greek in University of Lewisburg, Penn., 1849; professor of biblical exegesis in the Cincinnati Theological Seminary, and professor of biblical literature and theology in the same institution, 1888. He translated, with additions, Fay's Commentary on Joshua and Kleinert's on Obadiah and Micah in the American Lange series, New York; and is the author of the Commentary on the Gospel of Luke (Philadelphia, 1884), in the "Complete Commentary on the New Testament" edited by Dr. A. Hovey.

BLOMFIELD, Right Rev. Alfred, D.D. (London, Oxford, 1882), bishop suffragan of Colchester, Church of England; b. at Fulham, Aug. 31, 1833; was scholar of Balliol College, Oxford, won the chancellor's Latin verse prize, 1854; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1855, M.A. (All Saints' College) 1857; was fellow of All Saints' College, 1856-69; ordained deacon 1857, priest 1858; curate of Kidderminster, 1857-60; perpetual curate of St. Philip's, Stepney, 1862-65; vicar of St. Matthew's, Beverston, Gloucestershire, 1865-71; of Barking, Essex, 1871-72; honorary canon of St. Albans, 1875-82; archdeacon of Essex, 1878-82; archdeacon of Colchester and bishop of Colchester, suffragan to the bishop of St. Albans, since 1882. He is the author of Memoirs of Bishop BломfielD (his father), London, 1803, 2 vols.; Sermons in Town and Country, 1871.

BLUNT, John Henry, D.D. (Durham University, Eng., 1882), Church of England; b. at Cheyne Walk, Chelsea, Aug. 25, 1823; d. in London, April 11, 1884. He was educated at University College, Durham; graduated M.A., 1855; became licentiate in theology, 1859; was ordained deacon, 1832, and priest, 1855; and filled a number of curacies, until in 1868 he was appointed by the warden and fellows of All Souls' College, Oxford, vicar of Kennington; in 1873 he was presented by Mr. Gladstone with the crown living of Beverston, Gloucestershire, and retained it until his death. He was a powerful literary worker, and a High Churchman of pronounced views. Besides numerous contributions in periodicals, he wrote The Atoneinent, London, 1855; Three Essays on the Reformation, 1890; Miscellaneous Sermons, 1860; Directorium pastorale (English), 1864, 4th ed. 1880; Key to the Bible, 1865; Household Theology, 1865, 6th ed. 1886; The Annotated Book of Common Prayer, 1806, 7th ed. 1883 (a standard work); The Sacraments and Sacramental Ordinances of the Church, 1868; The Reformation of the Church of England, vol. 1, 1868, 6th ed. 1886, vol. 2, 1892 ("a solid and careful study of a critical period"); Key to Church History, 1869; Union and Disunion, 1870; Plain Account of the English Bible, 1870; Dictionairy of Doctrinal and Historical Theology, 1870, 2d ed. 1872; Key to the Prayer-Book, 1871; The Condition and Prospects of the Church of England, 1871; The Book of Common Prayer, 1872, 4th ed., by Sir W. G. F. Phillimore, 1885; Mygourre of Our Lady (a reprint of a devotional treatise of great rarity, which originally appeared in 1530), 1873; The Poverty that makes Rich, 1873; Dictionary of Sects, Heresies, Ecclesiastical Parties, and Schools of Religious Thought, 1874; Historic Memorials of BOARDMAN.

BOMBERGER, Paul, Lic. Theol. (hon., Ziirich, 1880), son of the preceding, also of the Tubingen school; b. at Glattfelden, Canton Ziirich, Switzerland, Sept. 1, 1852; studied at Ziirich; became pastor at Niederhau, near Ziirich, 1875; of St. Peter's, Basel, 1879; and privat-dozent for church history in the University of Basel, 1880. He finished the church history of his father, and besides numerous articles in different religious journals, has written Grégoire, Lebensbild aus der französischen Revolution, Basel, 1878. Since 1881, he has prepared the section upon church history from Constantine to the Reformation, in the Theologische Jahresbericht, Leipzig, 1881 sqq.

BOEHL, Edward, Ph.D. (Erlangen, 1860), Lic. Theol. (Basel, 1860), D.D. (Vienna, 1865), Reformed; b. at Lancaster, Penn., Jan. 13, 1817; was tutor there for three years, and then professor of the Greek language; resigned in 1850, and for eighteen months pursued his studies in Germany, Greece, Italy, and France. In 1852 he became professor of the Greek language and literature in the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor; in 1868 the same in the University of Chicago; in 1877 professor of New-Testament interpretation in the Baptist Union Theological Seminary at Morgan Park, near Chicago. Besides Greek text-books for school and college use (including Exercises in Greek Prose Composition, New York, 1849; The First Six Books of Homer's Iliad, Chicago, 1868; First Lessons in Greek, Chicago, 1870; Five Books of Xenophon's Anabasis, New York, 1879), he has published The New Testament Epistle to the Galatians, 1871; Romans, 1885; and to the Ephesians, the Colossians, Philemon, and the Philippians, 1884.

BOEHRINGER, Georg Friedrich, Swis Protessaant (Tübingen school); b. at Maulbronn, Württemberg, Germany, Dec. 28, 1812; d. at Basel, blind and crippled, Sept. 16, 1879. He studied at Tubingen, took part in the insurrectionary movements in 1833, and was in consequence compelled to flee to Switzerland; became pastor at Glattfelden, Canton Ziirich, 1842; resigned, 1853; removed to Ziirich, and then to Basel, from the sources, and in a scholarly manner, a series of biographies which constituted a church history down to pre-Reformation times, under the general title Die Kirche Christi und ihre Zeugen, Ziirich, 1842-58, 2d ed. 1869-79, 24 vols.

BOEHRINGER, Paul, Lic. Theol. (hon., Ziirich, 1880), son of the preceding, also of the Tubingen school; b. at Glattfelden, Canton Ziirich, Switzerland, Sept. 1, 1852; studied at Ziirich; became pastor at Niederhau, near Ziirich, 1875; of St. Peter's, Basel, 1879; and privat-dozent for church history in the University of Basel, 1880. He finished the church history of his father, and besides numerous articles in different religious journals, has written Grégoire, Lebensbild aus der französischen Revolution, Basel, 1878. Since 1881, he has prepared the section upon church history from Constantine to the Reformation, in the Theologische Jahresbericht, Leipzig, 1881 sqq.

BOISE, James Robinson, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1868), LL.D. (Michigan, 1868), D.D. (Brown, 1879), Baptist; b. at Blandford, Hampden County, Mass., Jan. 27, 1815; graduated at Brown University, 1840; was tutor there for three years, and then professor of the Greek language; resigned in 1850, and for eighteen months pursued his studies in Germany, Greece, Italy, and France. In 1852 he became professor of the Greek language and literature in the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor; in 1868 the same in the University of Chicago; in 1877 professor of New-Testament interpretation in the Baptist Union Theological Seminary at Morgan Park, near Chicago. Besides Greek text-books for school and college use (including Exercises in Greek Prose Composition, New York, 1849; The First Six Books of Homer's Iliad, Chicago, 1868; First Lessons in Greek, Chicago, 1870; Five Books of Xenophon's Anabasis, New York, 1879), he has published The New Testament Epistle to the Galatians, 1871; Romans, 1885; and to the Ephesians, the Colossians, Philemon, and the Philippians, 1884.

BOMBERGER, John Henry Augustus, D.D. (Franklin and Marshall College, 1854), Reformed (German); b. at Lancaster, Penn., Jan. 10, 1817; graduated from Marshall College, 1837, and Theological Seminary, Mercersburg, 1838; became tutor in Marshall College, 1836; pastor of the German Reformed Church in Lewistown, Penn., 1838; Waynesborough, Penn., 1840; Easton, Penn., 1843; Philadelphia (Race Street), Penn., 1854; president of Ursinus College and its Theological Department, 1870. From 1856 to 1862 he carried on a condensed translation of the first edition of Herzog's Encyclopaedia, and published two volumes, embracing six of the original; but the war stopped it. He is the author of Infant Salvation in its Relation to [natural] Depravity, to Regeneration, and to Baptism, 1856; Five Lectures or Four Years at the Race-street [Reformed] Church, with an Ecclesiastical Appendix, 1860; a revised translation of Kurtz' Text-Book of Church History, 1860;
The Revised Liturgy, a History and Criticism of the Ritualistic Movement in the Reformed Church, 1896; Reformées not Ritualistes: a Reply to Dr. New's "Vindication," 1867. He edited The Reformed-Church Monthly (chiefly in opposition to "Mercersburg theology") from 1885-77, 9 vols.

BONAR, Andrew Alexander, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1874-77; b. in Edinburgh, May 29, 1810; graduated from the University of Edinburgh, 1839; and until 1856 labored in the parish of Collace, Perthshire, when he removed to his present charge, the Finnieston Church, Glasgow. He left the Established Church in 1843; was moderator of the General Assembly of the Free Church in 1875. He has always sought to identify himself with evangelical and revival movements. He is the author of Mission of Inquiry to the Jews in Palestine and Other Countries, Edinburgh, 1842; Memoir of Rev. R. M. McCheyne, 1844, many editions, republished and translated; Commentary on Lucticus, 1846, 5th ed. 1875; Redemption Drawing Nigh, a Defence of Pre-millenialism, 1847; (edited) Nettleton's Life and Labours, 1850; The Gospel pointing to the Person of Christ, 1852; Christ and His Church, in the Book of Psalms, 1858; (edited) Letters of Samuel Ruther- ford, 1892; Gospel Truths, 1878; The Brook Besor, 1879; James Scott: A Labourer for God, 1880; BONET-MAURY, Amy Gaston Charles Auguste, D.D. (Paris, 1885).

BONAR, Horatius, D.D., Free Church of Scotland; b. in Edinburgh, Dec. 19, 1808; studied at the University of Edinburgh; was pastor at Kelso (1838-60); separated, along with his congregation, from the Kirk, in 1843; since 1846 has been pastor of the Grange Free Church, Edinburgh. His fame mainly rests upon his poems and hymns. He is a diligent student of prophecy, and in 1849 founded the Quarterly Journal of Prophecy. His prose publications embrace Prophetical Landmarks, London, 1847, 4th ed. 1898; The Night of Weeping, or Words for the Suffering Family of God, 1850; The Morning of Joy, 1852; The Desert of Sinai, 1857, 2d ed. 1858; Light and Truth: or, Bible Thoughts and Themes, 1868-72, 6 vols.; The White Fields of France (a history of Mission), 1870; The Life of G. F. Dodds, 1884. The best-known collections of his poems are Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1857-71, 3 vols.; The Song of the New Creation, and other Pieces, 1872; Hymns of the Nativity, 1878.

BONET-MAURY, Amy Gaston Charles Auguste, D.D. (Paris, 1881), French Protestant; b. in Paris, Jan. 2, 1842; was graduated bachelor in theology at Strassburg, 1867; pastor at Dor- drecht, 1869-72; at Beauvais (Oise), 1872-76; and at St. Denis (Seine), 1877; licentiate in theology, 1878, and instructor in ecclesiastical history in the Protestant faculty of Paris; professor of the same, 1881. He has written Les origines de la Réforme à Beauvais, Paris, 1874; Études néerlandaises fontibus hausseri scriptor libri imitatio Christi, 1878; Gédard de Groote, un précurseur de la Réforme au quatorzième siècle, 1878; Les origines du christianisme unitaire chez les Anglais, 1881 (English trans., Early Sources of English Un- itarianism, 1883); Articles de droite, 1884; Arnaud de Bresso- cia, un Réformateur au douzième siècle, 1881; La doctrine des douze Apôtres. Essai de traduction, avec un commentaire critique et historique, 1884.

BONET-MAURY, Amy Gaston Charles Auguste, D.D. (Paris, 1881), French Protestant; b. in Paris, 1881. He has been for many years well known by his works upon Reformation history, and as secretary of the "Sociéte d'histoire du protestantisme fransais," and editor of its valuable publications. He has published Olympia Morata: épisode de la renais- sance protestante (the thesis by which he won the degree of doctor of letters), 1850, 4th ed. 1865, German trans. 1860; Lettres françaises de Calais, 1854 (English trans. of his collection of all Calvin's letters, Edinburgh and Philadelphia, 4 vols.); Aonio I'aleario, 1863 (English trans. London, 1864); Récits du seizième siècle, 1864; Nouveaux récits du seizième siècle, 1869; La Ré- forme au château de St. Prevat, 1873; Notice sur la vie et les écrits de M. Merle d'Aubigné, 1874; Dernier récits du seizième siècle, 1875; edited Mémoires de Claude Partenay Larceuchere, sieur de Soubise, 1879.

BONET-MAURY, Amy Gaston Charles Auguste, D.D. (Paris, 1881), French Protestant; b. at Norka, Russia, Feb. 17 (5), 1848; studied theology at Dorpat, 1860-70; was ordained pastor, 1871; studied at Göttingen, 1874-75; and Bonn, 1877-78; became professor extraordinary of theology at Dorpat, 1882; ordinary professor, 1883. He is the author of Die Schriften Tertullians unter- sucht, Bonn, 1878; Die Geschichte des Montanismus, Erlangen, 1881; Unser Reformator Martin Luther, Dorpat, 1883; Kyrill und Methodius, die Lehrer der Slavren, 1885.

BOONE, Right Rev. William Jones, Episcopalian, missionary bishop of Shanghai, China; b. in China, 1847; graduated at Princeton College, 1865, and at the Theological Seminary, Virginia, 1868; and since 1869 has been a missionary in China; consecrated, 1884.

BOOTH, William, General of the Salvation Army; b. at Nottingham, Eng, April 10, 1829; became a minister of the Methodist New Connec- tion in 1850; resigned in 1861 rather than settle in ordinary circuit work, for which he did not believe himself to be so well adapted as for the evangelistic services which he had held with great success. It was as an independent evan- gelist that he started "The Christian Mission," in the East End of London, in July, 1865, and out of it developed the military religious organiza- tion to which in 1878 he gave the name of "The Salvation Army" (see Encyclopaedia, vol. iii. p. 2089).

BORNEMANN, Friedrich Wilhelm Br. Theol. (Göttingen, 1884), German Protestant theologian; b. at Lüneberg, Hannover, March 2, 1858; studied at Göttingen, 1870-77, 1878-79, and at Leipzig, 1877-78; became private tutor at Bre- men, 1879, at Medingen, 1880; hospes in the convent at Loccum, 1880; inspector of the theological Stift in the University of Göttingen, 1882 (fall); privat-docent for church history there in December, 1884. In his special department he calls himself a pupil of Harnack's, but as a theologian he belongs to the school of Ritschl. He has written Das Taufsymbol Justins des Mâr- tyrers (in Brügger's Zeitschrift für Kirchengeschichte, 11, 1; 1878); In Untersuchungen über Geschichte quibus de causis habenda sit Origines, Götting- gen, 1885.

BOUGER, Ami Auguste Oscar, D.D. (hon., BOYD.

Andrew Kennedy Hutchison, 0.0. (Jefferson College, Penn., 1832-08; editor of Christian Magazine of the South for nine years; associate editor of Associate Reformed Presbyterian since 1870; professor and president of Associate Reformed Presbyterian Theological Seminary, at Due West, S.C., since 1860.

BOYCE, James Petigru, D.D. (Columbian College, Washington, D.C., 1859), LL.D. ('Union University, Murfreesborough, Tenn., 1872), Baptist: b. at Charleston, S.C., Jan. 11, 1827; graduated at Brown University, 1847; studied theology in Princeton Theological Seminary, 1849-51; became pastor of the Baptist Church, Columbia, S.C., 1851; professor of theology in Furman University, Greenville, S.C., 1855; chairman of the faculty, and professor of systematic theology, 1859, in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, then at Greenville, S.C., and of church government and pastoral duties, 1877. In 1877 the seminary was moved to Louisville, Ky. He was chaplain of the Sixteenth South-Carolina Volunteers from 1861 to 1862; member of the South-Carolina Legislature from 1862 to 1865; of the governor's (Magrath) staff and State Council, 1864 and 1865; and of the State convention for reconstruction in 1865; from 1872 to 1879 was annually elected president of the Southern Baptist Convention. He is a trustee of the John F. Slater Fund. Besides speeches, sermons, and articles, he has published Three Changes in Theological Education, Greenville, S.C., 1856 (the principles of which address are embodied in the peculiar plan of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary); Brief Catechism of Christian Doctrine, Greenville, S.C., 1864, last ed. Louisville, Ky., 1884; Abstract of Theology, Louisville, Ky., 1882.

BOYD, Andrew Kennedy Hutchinson, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1864), Church of Scotland; b. in the Aucinhilie Manse, ayrshire, Nov. 3, 1825; educated at King's College, London, and at the University of Glasgow, graduating from the latter as B.A. (taking the highest honors in philosophy and theology), 1846. From November, 1850, to July, 1851, he was assistant in St. George's, Edinburgh; then minister successively of Newton-on-Ayr, September, 1851-January, 1854; Kirkpatrick-Irongray, Abercorn, 1854-1859; St. Bernard's Parish, Edinburgh, April, 1859-September, 1864; and since September, 1865, has been first minister of the city of St. Andrew's. [He is widely known by his signature A. K. II., B. and his sobriquet "The Country Parson."] He has retired from the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church, after sixty years of service, and is now approved for the mission work of the denomination.

BOYD, James, D.D. (Jefferson College, Penn., and Princeton Theological Seminary, S.C., 1854), Associate Reformed Presbyterian; b. at Sardis, Mecklenburg County, N.C., July 13, 1808; graduated at Jefferson College, Penn., 1829; pastor of New Hope, S.C., 1832-09; editor of Christian Magazine of the South for nine years; associate editor of Associate Reformed Presbyterian since 1870; professor and president of Associate Reformed Presbyterian Theological Seminary, at Due West, S.C., since 1860.

BOYD.
BOYLE, Very Rev. George David, Dean of Salisbury, son of the late Lord Chief Justice-General of Scotland; b. in Scotland, in the year 1828; educated at Exeter College, Oxford, graduated B.A., 1851; M.A., 1853; was curate of Kidderminster (the scene of Baxter's labors), 1853-57; of Hagley, 1857-60; perpetual curate of St. Michael, Handssworth, 1861-67; rural dean of Handsworth, 1866-67; vicar of Kidderminster, and chaplain of Kidderminster Union, 1867-80; honorary canon of Worcester Cathedral, 1872-80; rural dean of Kidderminster, 1877-80; appointed dean of Salisbury, 1880; precentor, 1881. He is the author of Confession according to the Rule of the Church of England, London, 1868; Lessons from a Churchyard, 1872; The Trust of the Ministry, 1882; My Aids to the Divine Life, 1883; Richard Baxter, a Sketch, 1885. His publications consist of sermons and review articles.

BREDAKAMP, Conrad Justus, Lic. Theol. (Erlangen, 1880), D.D. (hon., Erlangen, 1883), Lutheran; b. at Baabeck, Hannover, June 26, 1847. He studied at the universities of Erlangen, Bonn, and Göttingen; was pastor at Kempten in Mecklenburg, 1872-78; without official position, 1878-79; president of Handsworth, 1880-83; principal, junior professor of theology at Greifswald, since 1883. He is the author of Der Prophet Sacharja erbläutert, Erlangen, 1879; Vaticinium quod de Immanuele edidit Jesu[sai] [vii. 1-6] explicavit, 1890; Gesetz und Propheten. Ein Beitrag zur alttestamentlichen Kritik, 1891.

BREEDENKAMP, Conrad Justus, Lic. Theol. (Erlangen, 1880), D.D. (hon., Erlangen, 1883), Lutheran; b. at Baabeck, Hannover, June 26, 1847. He studied at the universities of Erlangen, Bonn, and Göttingen; was pastor at Kempten in Mecklenburg, 1872-78; without official position, 1878-79; president of Handsworth, 1880-83; principal, junior professor of theology at Greifswald, since 1883. He is the author of Der Prophet Sacharja erbläutert, Erlangen, 1879; Vaticinium quod de Immanuele edidit Jesu[sai] [vii. 1-6] explicavit, 1890; Gesetz und Propheten. Ein Beitrag zur alttestamentlichen Kritik, 1891.
Since 1876 he has edited the Zeitschrift für Kirchengeschichte. His publications include De formula concordiae Ratisbonensis origine atque indole, Halle, 1870; Gasparo Contarini und das Regensburger Concordiendes Werks des Jahres 1541, Gotha, 1870; Constantin der Grosse als ReligionspolitiKER, 1880; Die angebliche Marburger Kirchenansiehung von 1587 und Luther's erster Katechetischer Unterricht von Abendmahl, 1881; Neue Mitteilungen über Luther in Worms, Marburg, 1883; Luther und sein Werk, 1888; Quellen und Forschungen zur Geschichte der Reformation. 1. Bd. Alexander u. Luther, 1821. Die veröfentlichten Alexender-Depechen, nebst Untersuchungen über den Wormser Reichstag. 1 Abthig, Gotha, 1884.

BRIGHT, William, D.D. (Oxford, 1869), Church of England; b. at Doncaster Dec. 14, 1824; educated at University College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class classics, 1846; fellow of University College, Oxford; tutor of University College, Oxford, 1847; Johnson theological scholar, 1847; Ellerton theological essayist, 1848; M.A., 1849; was theological tutor in Trinity College, Glenalmond, Perthshire, 1851-58; tutor of University College, Oxford, 1862; resigned fellowship on appointment as Regius professor of ecclesiastical history, Oxford University; and canon of Christ Church, 1889; honorary canon of Cathedral of the Isles, Cumbrae, 1883; examining chaplain to the bishop of Lincoln, 1885. He has published Ancient Collects selected from Various Rituals, London, 1857, 4th ed. 1869; A History of the Church from the Edict of Milan, A.D. 315, to the Council of Chalcedon, A.D. 451, Oxford, 1860, 3d ed. 1873; Eighteen Sermons of St. Leo the Great on the Incarnation. With the "Tome," translated with notes, London, 1862, 2d ed. 1886; Faith and Life: Readings compiled from Ancient Writers, 1864, 2d ed. 1868; Hymns and other Verses, 1868, 2d ed. 1874; Chapters of Early English Church History, 1876; Later Treatises of St. Athanasius, translated with notes and an appendix of Churchammu Thers, 1881; Private Prayers, for a Week, 1882; Notes on the Canons of the First Four General Councils, 1889; Family Prayers, 1885; Iona, and other Verses, 1885; edited the original text of Eusebius' Ecclesiastical History, 1872, 2d ed. 1882; St. Athanasius' Orations against the Arians, 1873, 2d ed. 1883; Socrates' Ecclesiastical History, 1878; Select Anti-Pelagian Treatises of St. Augustine, 1889; and St. Athanasius' Historical Writings, 1881; and with the Rev. Peter Medd, M.A., edited a Latin translation of the Prayer-Book, 1865, 3d ed. 1877.

BROADUS, John Albert, D.D. (William and Mary, 1859, also Richmond College, 1859), LL.D. (Wake Forest College, N.C., 1871), Baptist; b. in Culpeper County, Va., Jan. 24, 1827; graduated at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va., 1850; there assistant professor of Latin and Greek, 1851-53, chaplain, 1855-57; pastor in the Baptist Church, 1851-55, 1857-59. Since its organization in 1859 he has been professor of the interpretation of the New Testament and of homiletics in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, then in Greenville, S.C., removed in 1877 to Louisville, Ky. He has for many summers supplied pulpits in New York, Brooklyn, and Orange, N.J. He is a member of the International Sunday-school Lesson Committee. Besides numerous articles in periodicals, he has written The Preparation and Delivery of Sermons, Philadelphia, 1870, many editions, latest 1885, republished in London, much of it translated into Chinese, and used for native ministers of all denominations; Lectures on the History of Preaching, New York, 1876.

BROOKS, Stopford Augustus, Unitarian; b. at Glendooen rectory, Letter Kenny, County Donegal, Ireland, Nov. 14, 1832; was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, graduated M.A. 1858; since 1857 has preached in London, first as curate of St. Matthew, Marylebone, 1857-59; then of Kensington 1860-63; as minister of St. James's Chapel, York Street, 1866-73; and of Bedford Chapel, Bloomsbury, since 1876. In 1872 he was appointed chaplain in ordinary to the Queen. In 1880 he left the Established Church, and connected himself with the Unitarians. He has published The Life and Letters of the Late Frederick W. Robertson, London, 1865 (many subsequent editions and reprints); Theology in the English Poets, 1874, 4th ed. 1880; and the following volumes of sermons: Sermons at St. James's Chapel, 1868, 11th ed. 1880; 2d series, 1874, 5th ed. 1881; Christ in Modern Life, 1872, 14th ed. 1890; Fight of Faith: Sermons on Various Occasions, 1877; Spirit of the Christian Life, 1881. He also edited the sermons of F. W. Robertson.

BROOKS, Phillips, D.D. (Harvard, 1877, Oxford, 1885), Episcopalian; b. in Boston, Dec. 13, 1835; graduated at Harvard College, 1855; and at the Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia, near Alexandria, 1859; was from 1859 to 1862 rector of Christ Church, Philadelphia; till 1869, of the Church of the Holy Trinity in the same city; and since, of Trinity Church, Boston. His church was burned in the Boston fire, November, 1872; and the present imposing structure completed in February, 1877. In 1881 Mr. Brooks declined the Plummer professorship of Church History of the Union Theological Seminary at Glenside, Pa.; and moved to the Divinity School of Yale College. He has published Lectures on Preaching delivered before the Divinity School of Yale
BROWN.

College, January-February, 1877 (Lyman Beecher Foundation), New York, 1877; Sermons, 1878; Influence of Jesus (the Bohlen Lectures for 1879), 1879; Candle of the Lord, and other Sermons, 1881; Sermons preached in English Churches, 1883.

BROWN, Charles Rufus, Baptist; b. at East Kingston, N.H., Feb. 22, 1849; educated at Phillips Exeter Academy, N.H., 1863-65; United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., 1865-69; in the Navy, promoted to master; resigned, and entered Newton Theological Institution in 1874, Harvard College, 1875, and graduated, 1877; studied in Newton Theological Institution, 1877-78, Union Theological Seminary, 1878-79; graduated at Union, May, 1879, and at Newton, June, 1879; studied in Berlin University, 1879-80; in Leipzig, 1880-81; became pastor at Franklin, Massachusetts, 1881; professor of Old-Testament interpretation in Newton Theological Institution, 1883. He has published An Aramaic Method. Part I. Text, Notes, and Vocabulary. Part II. Grammar. Chicago, 1884-86.

BROWN, David, D.D. (Princeton College, 1852, and Aberdeen University, 1872), Free Church of Scotland; b. at Aberdeen, Aug. 17, 1803; graduated at the University of Aberdeen; was assistant to Edward Irving in London, 1838-32; minister of the Established Church of Scotland in Aberdeen, 1836-43; and of the Free Church in Glasgow, 1843-57, when he became principal and professor of divinity in the Free Church College, Aberdeen. He was moderator of the Free Church General Assembly, 1843, and of the Free Church of Scotland; and at the close of 1847 he began his ministry in the Myrtle-street Chapel, Liverpool, being ordained the following January. He soon took a first place in his denomination, and won particular notice by inaugurating the largely attended Sunday-afternoon lectures for working-men,—an idea which was acted upon in many localities. He visited the United States and Canada in 1872; and was elected chairman of the Baptist Union of the United Kingdom. He has published numerous sermons and lectures.

BROWN, James Baldwin, B.A., Congregationalist; b. in the Inner Temple, London, Aug. 19, 1820; d. in London, June 23, 1884. He was educated at University College, London, and graduated at the University, 1848; studied law for the next two years, but then obeyed an inner call to the ministry; studied theology at Highbury College; became an Independent minister, first of London Road Chapel, Derby, 1843; three years later (1846), of Claylands Chapel, Clapham Road, London. In 1857 he went with his congregation to the new church they had built at Brixton, and remained their pastor until his death. His ministry was distinguished by its independence, its high influence was consecrated and wide-spread. He strenuously opposed the doctrine of conditional immortality as a deadly error. The esteem in which his brethren held him is shown by his occupancy of the chair of the Congregational Union in 1875. Besides pamphlets, occasional sermons, newspaper articles, sketches of Rev. Dr. Leifchild (1862) and Raffles (1863), he wrote Studies of First Principles, London, 1849; The Divine Life in Man, 1859, 2d ed. 1860; The Doctrine of the Divine Fatherhood in relation to the Atonement, 1860; The Soul's Exodus and Pilgrimage, 1862, 3d ed. 1869, 4th ed. 1883; The Divine Life, 1862; Divine Mystery of Peace, 1863; Divine Treatment of Sin, 1864 (the two together under title The Divine Mysteries, 1869); The Home Life in the Light of its Divine Idea, 1869, 5th ed. 1870; Idolatries, Old and New: their Cause and Cure, 1867; Mured Passages of Scripture, 1869, 2d series 1871; The Christian Policy of Life, 1870, 2d ed. 1880; The First Principles of Ecclesiastical Truth: Essays on the Church and Society, 1871; The Sunday Afternoon: Fifty-two Brief Sermons, 1871; Buying and Selling and Getting Gain, 1871; Young Men and Maidens, 1871 (the two together under title Our Morals and Manners, 1872); The Higher Life: its Reality, Experience, and Destiny, 1874, 5th ed. 1878; The Battle and the Burden of Life, 1875; The Doctrine of Annihilation in the Light of the Gospel of Love, 1875, 2d ed. 1878; Church and State, 1876; Home: its Relation to Man and Society, 1883, 3d ed. 1894. See In Memoriam: James Baldwin Brown, by his wife, London, 1884.

BROWN, Hugh Stowell, English Baptist; b. at Douglas, Isle of Man, Aug. 10, 1823; d. at Liverpool, Feb. 24, 1886. He learned surveying, then locomotive engineering, but at twenty-one entered King William's College, Castletown, Isle of Man, in order to fit himself for the ministry of the Established Church. But doubts respecting the Church's position toward the State, and on her baptismal teachings, led him ultimately into the Baptist Church; and at the close of 1847 he began his ministry in the Myrtle-street Chapel, Liverpool, being ordained the following January. He soon took a first place in his denomination, and won particular notice by inaugurating the largely attended Sunday-afternoon lectures for working-men,—an idea which was acted upon in many localities. He visited the United States and Canada in 1872; and was elected chairman of the Baptist Union of the United Kingdom. He has published numerous sermons and lectures.

BROWNE.

Edward Harold, D.D.
(Cambridge, 1864), D.C.L. (Oxford, 1877), lord bishop of Winchester, Church of England; b. at Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire, March 6, 1811; educated at Emmanuel College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (wrangler) 1832; obtained the Crosse theological scholarship, 1833; the Tyrrwhitt Hebrew scholarship, 1834; the Norrisian prize for a theological essay, 1835; M.A., 1835; B.D., 1855. He became fellow and tutor in his college, 1837; curate of Stroud, Gloucestershire, 1840; perpetual curate of St. James, Exeter, 1841; perpetual curate of St. Sidwell, Exeter, 1841; vice-principal and professor of Hebrew in St. David's College, Lampeter, Wales, 1843; vicar of Kenwyn, Cornwall, and prebendary of Exeter, 1849; vicar of Heavitree, 1857; canon of Exeter, 1857. In 1854 he became Norrisian professor of divinity at Cambridge; in 1864, bishop of Ely; and in 1873 was translated to Winchester, and made ex officio prelate of the Most Noble Order of the Garter. He has taken great interest in the "Old Catholic" movement, and attended the Old Catholic Congress at Cologne in 1872. He was a member of the Old-Testament Company of Revisers. He is the author of An Exposition of the XXXVI. Articles, London, 1850-55, 2 vols., 12th ed. 1882, 1 vol.; three volumes of sermons,—The Atonement and other Sermons (1856), Messiah Forerouted and Expected (1862), The Strafe, the Victory, and the Kingdom (1872); The Pentateuch and the Elohist Psalms, in reply to Bishop Colenso, 1863; Position and Parties of the English Church, 1875. He was a contributor to Aids to Faith, to Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, and to the Bible (Speaker's) Commentary on Genesis.

BROWNE, John, B.A., Congregationalist; b. at North Walsham, Norfolk, Feb. 6, 1823; studied at Coward College and University College, London, 1839-44; graduated B.A. at London University, 1845; since 1848 he has been pastor at Wrentham, Suffolk. Besides sundry pamphlets he is the author of History of Congregationalism in Norfolk and Suffolk, London, 1877.

BRUCE, Alexander Balmain, D.D. (Glasgow, 1876), Free Church of Scotland; b. in the parish of Aberdalgie near Perth, Jan. 30, 1831; educated at Edinburgh, and was minister in Free Church, Cardross, Dumbartonshire, 1859-68; in Broughty Ferry, Forfarshire, 1868-75; since 1875 he has been professor of theology (apologetics and New-Testament exegesis) in the Free Church College, Glasgow. He declares himself to be "in sympathy with modern religious thought, while maintaining solidarity with all that is best in theology and in the criticism of the Old Testament. Of his works may be mentioned Les Psalms traduits de l'hébreu d'après de nouvelles recherches sur le texte original, Paris, 1865; and particularly Histoire critique de la litterature prophétique (from the beginning to the death of Isaiah), 1869.

BRYCE, George, LL.D. (Queens University, 1884), Canadian Presbyterian; b. at Mount Pleasant, Brant County, Ont., April 22, 1844; graduated at the University of Toronto (1867), and in theology at King's College, Toronto; professor in Manitoba College since 1871, and one of the founders of Manitoba University, 1878; from 1871-81, secretary of home missions for Manitoba; president of Manitoba historical society, 1884-85; and moderator of the first synod of Manitoba and the North-west territories, 1884. He is Delegé Regional de l'Institution ethnographique de Paris (1879), and received a decoration from that body. He is the author of The Presbyterian Church in Canada, Toronto, 1875; Manitoba: its Infancy, Growth, and Present Condition, London, Eng., 1882; and other articles upon Manitoba.

BRYENNIOS, Philotheos, D.D. (Athens, 1880); Edinburgh, 1884), metropolitan of Niocmedia; b. at Constantinople, 1860; graduated in 1856 at the "Theological School in Chalcis of the Great Church of Christ," and having distinguished himself was then sent to Germany for further study, and attended lectures in Leipzig, Berlin, and Munich. In 1861 he became assistant of ecclesiastical history, exegetical and other studies, in his alma mater; and in 1863, master and director. In December, 1867, he was called to Constantinople to be the head of the "Great School of the Nation" in the Phanar, and so remained until in 1875 he was sent by the Most Holy Synod of Metropolitans and Patriarch to the Bonn Old Catholic Conference (Aug. 10–18, 1875), and while there received the patriarchal letter announcing his appointment as metropolitan of Serrae in Macedonia, which position he assumed December, 1875. In 1877 he was transferred to the metropolitan see of Nicomedia. In 1880 he went to Bucharest as commissioner of the Eastern Orthodox Patriarchal and other independent churches, to settle the matter of the plundering of Greek monasteries in Moldavia and Wallachia. In 1882, as instructed by the Holy Synod of Constantinople, and the Patriarch Joachim III., he wrote a reply to the encyclical of the Holy Synod of Metropolitans and Patriarch of the Jerusalem Monastery of the Most Holy Sepulchre in the I'hanar, or Greek portion of Constantinople. His fame called to Constantinople to be the head of the "Great School of the Nation" in the Phanar, and so remained until in 1875 he was sent by the Most Holy Synod of Metropolitans and Patriarch of the Jerusalem Monastery of the Most Holy Sepulchre in the Phanar, or Greek portion of Constantinople. This MS. of two hundred and forty small octavo pages contains (1) A Synopsis of the Old and New Testaments in the order of Books by St. Chrysostom; (2) The Epistle of Barnabas; (3) The First Epistle of Clement of Rome to the Corinthians; (4) The Second Epistle of Clement to the Corinthians; (5) The Teaching of the Twelve Apostles; (6) The juicy letter of Mary of Cassoboti; (7) Twelve pseudo-Ignatian Epistles. The Epistles to the Corinthians were published by him with prolegomena and notes in "Die scholastische Formen in der hebräischen Poesie, in Jahrb. für Deutsche Theologie, 1878, pp. 428–471. He is the author of Beiträge zur Kritik des Buches Hiob, Bonn, 1876; Die Biblische Urgeschichte (Gen. i.–xii. 5) untersucht, Giessen, 1883; and in periodicals has published Ueber vermeintliche merkwürdige Umdeutungen (in die hebräische Poesie, in Theol. Studien u. Kritiken, 1874, pp. 747–764; Ueber die Capitel 50 uml 51 des Buches Jeremia, in Zeitschr für die alttest. Wissenschaft, 1882, pp. 1–52; Die Capitel 27 und 28 des Buches Hiob, do., pp. 193–274; Gen. 48 : 7 und die benachbarten Abschnitte, do., 1883, pp. 59–68; Ein althebräisches Klagelied, do., pp. 299–306; Die hebräische Lektion, in Zeitschr. d. deutschen Palästina-Vereins, Bd. VIII., 1–30; Das hebräische Klagelied in Zeitschr. d. d. alttest. Wissenschaft, 1884, pp. 298–302, 1885, pp. 155–160; Gen. 5: 17; 6: 29; 8: 21, ein Beitrag zur Quellenkritik der Biblischen Urgeschichte, do., 1886, pp. 30–43.
BURNEY, Stanford Guthrie, D.D. (Bethel College, Tenn., 1854), L.L.D. (Wayneburg College, Penn., 1880), Cumberland Presbyterian; b. in Robinson County, Tenn., April 16, 1814; licensed by the Nashville Presbytery of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, October, 1844; ordained, March, 1836; pastor at Franklin, Tenn., 1836-38; at Nashville, Tenn., 1841-43; financial agent of Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tenn. (formerly Princeton College, Ky.) 1843; pastor at Memphis, Tenn., 1845; at Oxford, Miss., 1848-73 (president of Union Female College, 1862-82); professor of English literature, University of Tennessee, 1865-73, both at Oxford); has been professor in the theological department of Cumberland University since its reorganization in 1877, until 1880 professor of biblical literature, since 1880 of systematic theology. He has been a prominent member or chairman of most of the special perpetual curate of Clifton Reynolds, Buckinghamshire, 1851; vicar of St. Andrew's, Whitleysey, near Peterborough, 1851-54; ordained, 1854; became rector in the Evangelical Theological Seminary at Tübingen, 1851; professor of systematic divinity and dogmatic theology in the General Seminary of the Protestant Episcopal Church, New-York City, 1871. He has written, besides numerous articles in periodicals, and a translation from the German of the Report of the Union Conferences held from Aug. 10 to 16, 1875, at Bonn, New York; The Apologetic System of the Church defended in a Reply to Dr. Whately on the Kingdom of Christ, Philadelphia, 1876; The Apostolical System of Theology, Boston University, 1875; held pastorates at King Street, Conn., Great Neck, L.I., in Brooklyn, N.Y., and in Hartford, Conn.; travelled in Europe and the Levant in 1879-80; pursued his studies at the Universities of Cambridge and Berlin, 1881-85; and in 1885 was appointed professor of New Testament Greek and exegesis in the School of Theology, Boston University.

BURGESS, Right Rev. Alexander, S.T.D. (Brown University, 1866; Racine College, 1882), Episcopalian, bishop of Quincy, Ill.; b. in Providence, R.I., Oct. 31, 1819; graduated at Brown University there, 1838; and at the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1841; successively rector of St. Mark's, Augusta, Me., 1843; St. Luke's, Portland, 1852; St. John's, Brooklyn, L.I., 1867; Christ Church, Springfield, Mass., 1869; consecrated, 1878. In 1877 he was president of the House of Deputies. Besides sermons, addresses, carols, and hymns, he has written a memoir of his brother, Bishop George Burgess of Maine (d. April 23, 1866; see Encyclopedia, 1. 341), Philadelphia, 1869.

BURGESS, Henry, Ph.D. (Göttingen, 1852), LL.D. (Glasgow, 1851), Church of England; b. in the parish of St. Mary, Newington, London, Jan. 29, 1808; was educated at the Dissenting Colney Hill (Dialogue und Erfahrungen) himself in Hebrew and the classical languages. After graduation (1830), he became Baptist minister at Suson. But after a time he thought best to alter his church relations (1849), and was ordained deacon 1850, and priest 1851, by the Bishop of Manchester; became curate at Blackburn, 1851; committees of importance appointed by the General Assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church during the past thirty years, notably these three: on revision of form of government, 1854; on union with Presbyterian Church in the United States, 1867; on revision of Confession of Faith, 1860. He was moderator of the General Assembly at Nashville, 1880, and has repeatedly declined re-election. He is the author of articles in periodicals, and The Doctrine of Election, Nashville, Tenn., 1879, and Baptist Regeneration, 1880.

BURNHAM, Sylvester, D.D. (Bowdoin, 1885), Baptist; b. at Exeter, N.H., Feb. 1, 1842; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1862, and from the Newton Theological Institution, Newton Centre, Mass., 1873; and since 1875 has been professor of Hebrew and Old-Testament exegesis in the Baptist Theological Seminary, Hamilton, N.Y.

BURN, Enoch Fitch, D.D. (Amherst, 1868), Congregationalist; b. at Green's Farms, Westport, Conn., Oct. 21, 1818; graduated at Yale College, 1839; carried on for several years in New Haven mingled scientific and theological studies; since 1850 has been pastor in Lyme, Conn.; and since 1868, lecturer in Amherst College on the scientific evidences of religion. In 1874 he delivered by request, in New York and Boston, a course of lectures on "The Latest Astronomy against the Latest Atheism;" and has since lectured on kindred themes at Williams College, the Sheffield Scientific School, and other institutions. He is the author of The Mathematical Theory of Newton, New Haven, 1848; Spiritualism, New York, 1859; Ecce Calum, Boston, 1867; Pater Mundi, 1869; Ad Fidel, 1871; Evolution, 1873; Sunday Afternoons, New York, 1874; Thy Voyage (poem), 1874; Toward the Strait Gate, Boston, 1870; Work in the Vineyard, 1876; From Dark to Day (poem), 1877; Dio the Athenian, New York, 1870; Tempted to Unbelief, 1882; Ecce Terra, Philadelphia, 1881; Celestial Empires, New York, 1885; Theism as a Canon of Science, London, 1886.

BURRELL, Henry Sweetser, D.D. (Brown University, 1889), Baptist; b. at Fitchburg, Mass., Jan. 7, 1857; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1881, and Newton Theological Institution, Newton Centre, Mass., 1867; studied in Halle, Germany, 1868-69; was a Baptist pastor in Waterville, Me., 1869-73; since has been editor and proprietor of Zion's Advocate, a Baptist religious paper published at Portland, Me.; since 1876, recording secretary of the American Baptist Missionary Union; and is also chancellor of the Maine Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States. While a student of theology at Newton he entered (1862), as private, the Thirty-sixth Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry; was promoted sergeant, sergeant-major, second lieutenant, first lieutenant, captain, brevet major; was wounded at Cold Harbor, June 3, 1864; was assistant adjutant general on the staff of the first brigade, second division, Ninth Army Corps; was a prisoner from Nov. 1, 1864, to Feb. 22, 1865; was mustered out of the service June 8, 1865, and returned to his studies at Bowdoin College, entered and graduated in his absence. He has written, besides numerous articles, The Act of Baptism in the History of the Christian Church, Philadelphia, 1879; A History of the Anabaptists in Switzerland, Philadelphia, 1882; and has edited Brown University in the Civil War, Providence, R. I., 1868; Henry Wardsworth Longfellow : Seventy-Fifth Birthday. Proceedings of the Maine Historical Society, Portland, 1892; History of the Thirty-sixth Regiment, Mass., Princeton, 1893.

BURROWS, George, D.D. (Washington College, Washington, New York, 1873, Presbyterian; b. at Trenton, N.J., April 3, 1811, graduated at Nassau Hall (College of New Jersey), Princeton, N.J., 1832, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1835; was pastor at West Nottingham, Md., 1836-50; professor of Latin and Greek, Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1850-55; pastor of Newtown Presbyterian Church, Penn., 1857-59; built up the City College, San Francisco, Cal., 1859, left it 1865; was principal of the University Mount boarding-school near San Francisco, 1860-73; has been, since its origin in 1872, professor of Hebrew and Greek in the San Francisco Presbyterian Theological Seminary. He is the author of A Commentary on the Song of Solomon, Philadelphia, 1853, 3d ed. 1861; Otorara, a Poem, and other Pieces, 1856; Advanced Growth in Grace, San Francisco, 1865.

BURTON, Ernest De Witt, Baptist; b. at Granville, O., Feb. 4, 1856; graduated at Denison University, Granville, O., 1876; and at Rochester (Baptist) Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1882; was instructor in New-Testament Greek in Rochester Seminary, 1882-83; and since has been associate professor of interpretation of the New Testament, Newton Theological Institution, Newton Centre, Mass.

BURWASH, Nathaniel, S.T.D. (Garrett Biblical Institute, 1876), Methodist; b. at Argentuill, Quebec, Can., July 25, 1839; graduated at Victoria University, Cobour, Can., B.A. (valedictorian), 1853; Yale College, 1868; Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., B.D., 1871; was classical tutor in Victoria University, 1890; pastor, 1861-66; professor of natural science, Victoria University, 1867-72; dean of theological faculty, and professor of biblical and systematic theology; Victoria University, since 1875. He is the author of Genesis, Nature, and Results of Sin, 1878; Wesley's Doctrinal Standards, 1881; Relation of Children to the Fall, the Atonement, and the Church, 1882.

BUTLER, Clement Moore, D.D. (Kenyon College, O., 1847), Episcopalian; b. at Troy, N.Y., Oct. 18, 1810; graduated at Trinity College, Hartford, 1833; and at the General Theological Seminary, New York, 1836. Between 1837 and 1861 he was rector of Episcopal churches in New York, District of Columbia, Massachusetts, and Ohio; from 1861 to 1864, chaplain to the United States Embassy at Rome, Italy; from 1864 to 1884, professor of church history in the Protestant Episcopal Divinity School, Philadelphia. While a pastor in Washington, D.C. (1846-54), he was chaplain of the United-States Senate (1849-53), and in that capacity performed the funeral service and preached the sermon upon the death of Mr. Calhoun and Mr. Clay. These sermons and other pieces were published by class and some of his other sermons were published by him. He is the author of forty published occasional sermons, and of The Year of the Church: Hymns and Devotional Verse
BUTLER.

BUTLER, Very Rev. Henry Montague, D.D. (Cambridge, 1867), dean of Gloucester, Church of England; b. at Harrow in the year 1833; educated at Harrow School (of which his father was then head master, afterward dean of Peterborough), and Trinity College, Cambridge; was elected Bell University scholar, 1852, and Battle University scholar, 1853; won Sir W. Browne's medal for the Greek ode, 1853; the Porson prize, the Greek ode, the Camden medal for Latin hexameters, and the members' prize for a Latin essay, 1854; graduated B.A. (senior classic), 1855; M.A., 1858; was fellow of his college, 1855—59; ordained deacon and priest, 1859; was master of Harrow, 1859—65; honorary chaplain to the Queen, 1875—77; chaplain in ordinary, 1877—85; select preacher at Oxford, 1877, 1878, 1882; at Cambridge, 1879; examining chaplain to Archbishop of Canterbury, 1879—85; appointed dean, 1885. He is the author of Sermons preached at Harrow, 1861—69, 2 vols.

BUTLER, James Glentworth, D.D. (Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1864), Presbyterian; b. in Brooklyn, N.Y., Aug. 3, 1821; studied in Union Theological Seminary, New York City, 1846—47, and at the New-Haven (Congregational) Theological Seminary, Conn., 1847—49; was resident licentiate at the latter, 1849—50; Presbyterian pastor in West Philadelphia, Penn., 1852—55; secretary of the American and Foreign Christian Union, New-York City, 1868—71; pastor in Brooklyn (E.D.), N.Y., 1871—78; has been without charge in Brooklyn since 1874. Besides numerous articles, he has issued The Bible Reader's Commentary, New Testament, New York, 1879, 2 vols.; in 1883 title changed to Bible Work (5 vols. on Old Testament in preparation).

BUTLER, William, D.D. (Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1862), Methodist; b. in Dublin, Ireland, Jan. 31, 1818; graduated at Didbury College, near Manchester, Eng., 1844; same year became a member of the Irish Wesleyan Conference; in 1850 joined the New-England Annual Conference; in 1856 went to India to found a mission for the Methodist-Episcopal Church; returned in 1865; succeeded Dr. Mathison as secretary of the American and Foreign Christian Union, 1869; resigned when appointed to found a mission for his denomination in Mexico in 1873; returned, 1879; revisited India, 1883—84. He is the author of Compendium of Missions, Boston, 1852; The Land of the Vedas, New York, 1872; From Boston to Bareilly, and back, 1885.

BUTTZ, Henry Anson, D.D. (Princeton, 1875), LL.D. (Dickinson, 1885), Methodist; b. at Middle Smithfield, Penn., Apr. 18, 1835; graduated at Princeton, 1858; studied theology in New-Brunswick Seminary; became Methodist-Episcopal minister, 1858; adjunct professor of Greek and Hebrew (1870), and then George T. Cobb professor of New-Testament exegesis, in Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N.J.; president of the same, 1880. He edited The Epistle to the Romans in Greek, in which the Text of Robert Stephens, Third Edition, is compared with the Text of the Elzevirs, Lochmann, Alford, Tregelles, Tischendorf, and Westcott, and with the chief uncial and cursive manuscripts, together with references to the New-Testament Grammars of Winer and Bultmann, New York, 1876, 3d ed. 1879; and, with a memoir, B. H. Nadal's Discourses, New York, 1873.

BAUM, Henry Mason, Episcopal; b. at East Schuyler, Herkimer County, N.Y., Feb. 24, 1848; educated at Hudson-river Institute, Claverack, Dutchess County, New York; read law for three years; entered the Protestant-Episcopal Divinity School of Philadelphia, 1869; was ordained deacon 1870, priest 1872; was rector of St. Peter's Church, East Bloomfield, N.Y., 1870—71; and missionary to Allen's Hill, Victor, Lima, and Honoye Falls, N.Y.; rector of St. Matthew's Church, Laramie City, Wyoming Territory, 1872—73; in charge of St. James's Church, Paulsborough, N.J., 1873—74; rector of St. Matthew's Church, Lambertville, N.J., 1875—76; and of Trinity Church, Easton, Penn., 1876—80; travelled in Europe, 1879—80; since January, 1881, has been editor and proprietor of The Church Review. He is the author of Rights and Duties of Rectors, Church Wardens, and Vestrymen, in the American Church (2 vols. 1876), The Law of the Church in the United States, New York, 1886.
CAPEL, Thomas John, D.D., Roman Catholic;

John's Free Church, Glasgow (Dr. Chalmers's congregation) from 1871 to 1882, when he was appointed professor of Hebrew and Oriental languages in the Free Church College, Aberdeen.

CAMPBELL, James Colquhon, D.D. (Cambridge, 1839), lord bishop of Bangor, Church of England; b. at St. Andrews, Argyllshire, Scotland, in the year 1813; educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (senior optime and second-class classical tripos), 1836; M.A., 1839; was ordained deacon, 1837; priest, 1838; was rector of Merthyr Tydfil, Glamorganshire, 1844-59; rural dean of the Upper Deanery of Llandaff, Northern Division, 1844-57; honorary canon of Llandaff Cathedral, 1852-57; archdeacon of Llandaff, 1857-59; consecrated bishop, 1859.

CAMPBELL, John, Presbyterian Church in Canada; b. in Edinburgh, Scotland, June 18, 1840; graduated at the University of Toronto, B.A., 1865; M.A., 1866; studied theology at Knox College, Toronto, and New College, Edinburgh, 1865-68; has been minister of Charlesstreet Church, Toronto, since 1868; member of the senate and examiner in the University of Toronto since 1871; was lecturer in Knox College, Toronto, and in the Presbyterian College, Montreal, 1872-73; has been professor of church history and apologetics in the latter since 1873. He received the Order of Merit, first class, Roumania; is a member of the Society of Biblical Archeology (London); Canadian Institute; Délegue général de l'Institutionethnographique de Paris (received bronze medal); honorary member della Lega Filellenica di Torino, etc., etc.; and has discussed various ethnographical, philological, and kindred matters in the transactions of these societies since 1869, and in various journals; is now issuing decipherments of Etruscan and other Turanian inscriptions relating to the Canaanite population of Palestine.

CAIRD, John, D.D. (University of Glasgow, 1860), LL.D. (University of St. Andrew's, 1883), Established Church of Scotland; b. at Greenock, Dec. 15, 1820; graduated at the University of Glasgow, M.A., 1843; became minister of Newton-on-Ayr, 1843; of Lady Yester's, Edinburgh, 1847; of the parish of Errol, Perthshire, 1849; of Park Church, Glasgow, 1857; professor of divinity, University of Glasgow, 1862; principal and vice-chancellor of the University of Glasgow, 1873. He is one of her Majesty's chaplains for Scotland. He is the author of Semina, Edinburgh, 1859; Introduction to the Philosophy of Religion, Glasgow, 1880; The Philosophy of Spinoza, Edinburgh, 1886.

CAIRNS, John, D.D., LL.D. (both of Edinburgh, 1858 and 1884), United Presbyterian; b. near Ayton, Berwickshire, Scotland, Aug. 23, 1818; entered at Edinburgh University, 1834; studied at Berlin, 1843; minister of the United Presbyterian Church, Berwick-on-Tweed, 1845-76. In 1867 he became professor of apologetics in the United Presbyterian Hall, Edinburgh; in 1876 became professor of systematic theology also; and since 1879 has been principal as well. He has written: Life of John Brown, D.D., Edinburgh, 1860, LL.D. (University of St. Andrew's, 1883), 1881. He wrote the article Schottland, kirchliche Statistik, in the 2d edition of Herzog's Real-Encyclopädie, and the article Religionswissenschaft in the 6th edition; has discussed various ethnographical, philological, and kindred matters in the transactions of these societies since 1869, and in various journals; is now issuing decipherments of Etruscan and other Turanian inscriptions relating to the Canaanite population of Palestine.

CAMPBELL, John, Presbyterian Church in Canada; b. in Edinburgh, Scotland, June 18, 1840; graduated at the University of Toronto, B.A., 1865; M.A., 1866; studied theology at Knox College, Toronto, and New College, Edinburgh, 1865-68; has been minister of Charlesstreet Church, Toronto, since 1868; member of the senate and examiner in the University of Toronto since 1871; was lecturer in Knox College, Toronto, and in the Presbyterian College, Montreal, 1872-73; has been professor of church history and apologetics in the latter since 1873. He received the Order of Merit, first class, Roumania; is a member of the Society of Biblical Archeology (London); Canadian Institute; Délegue général de l'Institutionethnographique de Paris (received bronze medal); honorary member della Lega Filellenica di Torino, etc., etc.; and has discussed various ethnographical, philological, and kindred matters in the transactions of these societies since 1869, and in various journals; is now issuing decipherments of Etruscan and other Turanian inscriptions relating to the Canaanite population of Palestine.

CAIRD, John, D.D. (University of Glasgow, 1860), LL.D. (University of St. Andrew's, 1883), Established Church of Scotland; b. at Greenock, Dec. 15, 1820; graduated at the University of Glasgow, M.A., 1843; became minister of Newton-on-Ayr, 1843; of Lady Yester's, Edinburgh, 1847; of the parish of Errol, Perthshire, 1849; of Park Church, Glasgow, 1857; professor of divinity, University of Glasgow, 1862; principal and vice-chancellor of the University of Glasgow, 1873. He is one of her Majesty's chaplains for Scotland. He is the author of Semina, Edinburgh, 1859; Introduction to the Philosophy of Religion, Glasgow, 1880; The Philosophy of Spinoza, Edinburgh, 1886.
CASPARI, Cari Paul, D.D. (hon., Erlangen, 1880), Lutheran; b. of Jewish parents, at Dessau, Anhalt, Germany, Feb. 8, 1814; studied at Leipzig, 1834-38; and at Berlin, 1839-41; was baptized, 1838; received degree of Ph.D. at Leipzig, 1842. He became professor of theology at Christiansia, Norway, 1847; refused calls to Rostock, 1850, and Erlangen, 1857. His theological position is that of a simple evangelical Christian and theologian. Besides very numerous essays on biblical and ecclesiastical topics, in German and Norwegian, he has published an edition of Bar-han-eddini es Sernulji enchiridion studioi (Arabic text, Latin version, notes, ed.), Leipzig, 1838; commentary on Obadiah (in Delitzsch and Caspari's Exegetisches Handbuch zu den Propheten des alten Bundes), 1842; Grammatica arabica, 1844-48, 2 parts, 4th ed. by August Muller, under title Arabische Grammatik, Halle, 1876 (English trans. and ed. by William Wright, London, 1862, 2d ed. 1875-76, 2 vols.; French trans. of 4th ed., by F. Uricocce, Brussels, 1879-80, 2 vols.); Beiträge zur Einleitung in das Buch Jesaja und zur Geschichte der jpsanischen Zeit, Berlin, 1848 (vol. ii. of Delitzsch and Caspari's Bibliothek-theologische und apologetisch-kritische Studien, 1840-48, 2 vols.); Uber den zyrisch-ephratimtschen Krieg unter Jakob und Ahas, Christiansia, 1849; Uber Michae den Morashiten und seine prophetische Schrift, 1851-52, 2 parts; Unge- druckte, unbeachtete, und wenig beachtete Quellen zur Geschichte des Taufsymbos und der Glaubensregel, 1866, 1867, 1873, 3 vols.; Zur Einführung in das Buch Daniel, Leipzig, 1869; Alte und neue Quellen zur Geschichte des Glaubens und der Glaubensregel, 1879; Martin von Bracera's Schrift "De corrections rusticorum," zum ersten Mal vollständig und in verbessertem Text herausgegeben, 1883; Kirchenhistorische Anecdota, nebst neuen Ausgaben patriotischer und kirchlich-mittelalterlicher Schriften, 1883; Eine pseudaugustinische Homilita "De Sacrispiegis," 1886; BischofFASTIVIUS'pelagianische Briefe, 1886. Besides these, he has written in Norwegian a translation of the Book of Concord, Christiansia, 1861-66, 2d ed. 1882; an essay upon the Wandering Jew, 1862; a commentary upon the first six chapters of Isaiah, 1867; an historical essay on the confession of faith at baptism, 1871; on Abraham's trial, and Jacob's wrestling with God, 1871, 3d ed. 1876; on Abraham's call and meeting with Melchizedek, 1872, 2d ed. 1876; Bible essays, 1884; and since 1857 he has edited the Theologisk Tidsskrift for den evangelisk-lutherske kirke i Norge.

CASSEL, Philip (Stephanus Selig), D.D. (Vienne, 1784), United Evangelical; b. of Jewish parents, at Grossglogau, Silisia, Feb. 27, 1821; educated at the University of Berlin; became a CHAMBERLAIN.

CHAMBERLAIN, Jacob, M.D., D.D. (Rutgers, New Brunswick, N.J., 1827), Presbyterian; b. in Malden, East Indies, April 12, 1812; graduated at Aberdeen, 1829; studied theology in Glasgow and in Edinburgh under Dr. Thomas Chalmers; became minister of the Established Church of Scotland at Aberdeen, Fife-shire, 1838, and at Dalil, Avryshire, 1841; of the Free Church at Dally, 1843; of the Galilee Church in Marybone Presbyterian Church, London, 1845; professor of apologetic and dogmatic theology and church history in the Presbyterian Church of England, 1868; principal of the Presbyterian Theological College, London, 1880. He has been a frequent contributor to periodicals.

CHAMBERLAIN, Jacob, M.D., D.D. (Rutgers, Western Reserve, and Union, all in 1878), Reformed (Dutch); b. at Sharon, Litchfield County, Conn., April 13, 1835; graduated at Western Reserve College, Ohio, 1856, and at Reformed Theological Seminary (New Brunswick, N.J.) and at

CHAMBERLAIN, Jacob, M.D., D.D. (Rutgers, Western Reserve, and Union, all in 1878), Reformed (Dutch); b. at Sharon, Litchfield County, Conn., April 13, 1835; graduated at Western Reserve College, Ohio, 1856, and at Reformed Theological Seminary (New Brunswick, N.J.) and at

CATHCART. William, D.D. (Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., 1875), Presbyterian; b. in parish of Kirkcoulm, Wigtownshire, Scotland, Dec. 26, 1830; graduated at Toronto, Ontario, Can., Seminary of United Presbyterian Church, 1852; became minister at St. Mary's, Ont., 1852; professor of exegetical theology and biblical criticism, Knox College, 1859, and principal of the college, 1873. He was moderator of the General Assembly of the Canada Presbyterian Church, at the union of the Presbyterian Churches in 1875; president of teachers' association of Ontario, in 1877; and member of the General Councils of the Alliance of the Reformed Churches in Edinburgh (1877), Philadelphia (1880), and Belfast (1884). He has published pamphlets, articles, etc.

CATHCART, William, D.D. (Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., 1875), Presbyterian; b. in parish of Kirkcoulm, Wigtownshire, Scotland, Dec. 26, 1830; graduated at Toronto, Ontario, Can., Seminary of United Presbyterian Church, 1852; became minister at St. Mary's, Ont., 1852; professor of exegetical theology and biblical criticism, Knox College, 1859, and principal of the college, 1873. He was moderator of the General Assembly of the Canada Presbyterian Church, at the union of the Presbyterian Churches in 1875; president of teachers' association of Ontario, in 1877; and member of the General Councils of the Alliance of the Reformed Churches in Edinburgh (1877), Philadelphia (1880), and Belfast (1884). He has published pamphlets, articles, etc.

CATHCART. William, D.D. (Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., 1875), Presbyterian; b. in parish of Kirkcoulm, Wigtownshire, Scotland, Dec. 26, 1830; graduated at Toronto, Ontario, Can., Seminary of United Presbyterian Church, 1852; became minister at St. Mary's, Ont., 1852; professor of exegetical theology and biblical criticism, Knox College, 1859, and principal of the college, 1873. He was moderator of the General Assembly of the Canada Presbyterian Church, at the union of the Presbyterian Churches in 1875; president of teachers' association of Ontario, in 1877; and member of the General Councils of the Alliance of the Reformed Churches in Edinburgh (1877), Philadelphia (1880), and Belfast (1884). He has published pamphlets, articles, etc.

CATHCART, William, D.D. (Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., 1875), Presbyterian; b. in parish of Kirkcoulm, Wigtownshire, Scotland, Dec. 26, 1830; graduated at Toronto, Ontario, Can., Seminary of United Presbyterian Church, 1852; became minister at St. Mary's, Ont., 1852; professor of exegetical theology and biblical criticism, Knox College, 1859, and principal of the college, 1873. He was moderator of the General Assembly of the Canada Presbyterian Church, at the union of the Presbyterian Churches in 1875; president of teachers' association of Ontario, in 1877; and member of the General Councils of the Alliance of the Reformed Churches in Edinburgh (1877), Philadelphia (1880), and Belfast (1884). He has published pamphlets, articles, etc.

CATHCART, William, D.D. (Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., 1875), Presbyterian; b. in parish of Kirkcoulm, Wigtownshire, Scotland, Dec. 26, 1830; graduated at Toronto, Ontario, Can., Seminary of United Presbyterian Church, 1852; became minister at St. Mary's, Ont., 1852; professor of exegetical theology and biblical criticism, Knox College, 1859, and principal of the college, 1873. He was moderator of the General Assembly of the Canada Presbyterian Church, at the union of the Presbyterian Churches in 1875; president of teachers' association of Ontario, in 1877; and member of the General Councils of the Alliance of the Reformed Churches in Edinburgh (1877), Philadelphia (1880), and Belfast (1884). He has published pamphlets, articles, etc.
CHAMBERS, Talbot Wilson, S.T.D. (Columbia College, 1853, LL.D. (Rutgers, 1885), Reformed (Dutch); b. at Carlisle, Penn., Feb. 25, 1819; graduated at Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1834; studied theology in both the New Brunswick and Princeton Theological Seminaries; became pastor of the Second Reformed Dutch Church, Somerville, N.J., 1839; and one of the pastors of the Collegiate Dutch Church of New-York City, 1849. He was the Vedder lecturer at New Brunswick in 1875, is chairman of the Committee on Versions of the American Bible Society, and member of the American Bible Revision Committee, Old-Testament Company. He has published, besides numerous articles, addresses, and sermons, The Noon Prayer Meeting in Fulton Street, New York, 1857; Memoir of Theodore Frelinghuysen, 1863; Exposition of Zechariah, in Schaff-Lange Commentary, 1874; The Psalter a Witness to the Divine Origin of the Bible (Vedder Lectures), 1875; Companion to the Revised Version of the Old Testament, 1885.

CHANCE, Frank, Church of England, layman; b. at Highgate, London, June 22, 1829; graduated in arts and in medicine at Cambridge (B. A. 1854, M.B. 1855, licentiate in medicine 1857); became a member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, 1856; of the Royal College of Physicians, London, 1859; fellow of the latter, 1863. He paid special attention to Hebrew while at Cambridge, and was Tyrwhitt's University Hebrew scholar in 1854. Since 1864 his health has prevented his continued practice of medicine. He became a member of the Old-Testament Company of Bible Revisers in 1875. He has translated Virchow's Cellular Pathology, London, 1860; edited H. H. Bernard's Commentary on Job, 1864, re-issued (with appendixes) 1881; and written many philological notes in Notes and Queries.

CHANNING, William Henry, Unitarian, nephew of William Ellery Channing; b. in Boston, May 25, 1810; d. in London, Dec. 23, 1884. He graduated at Harvard College, 1829, and at the Cambridge Divinity School, 1833; and was ordained at Cincinnati, May 10, 1839. After holding various pastorates in America, he went to England in 1857, and succeeded Rev. Dr. James Martin in as minister of the Hope-street Unitarian Chapel in Liverpool. He returned to America in 1866, and became minister of the Unitarian Church in Washington, D.C.; but for the last fourteen years of his life he lived in England. He was an earnest social reformer and eloquent preacher. Besides numerous contributions to periodical literature, he published a translation of Joseph's Introduction to Ethics, Boston, 1840, 2 vols.; Memoirs of William Ellery Channing, 1848, 3 vols.; Memoirs of Rev. James H. Perkins, 1851, 2 vols.; (with R. W. Emerson and J. F. Clarke) Memoirs of Margaret Fuller Ossoli, 1851, 2 vols.; The Christian Church and Social Reform; (edited) W. E. Channing's The Perfect Life (sermons), 1872.

CHANTRY, Daniel Augusta, Lic. Theol. (Geneva, 1860), French Swiss Protestant; b. at Geneva, Dec. 21, 1836; educated at the university there, 1856—60; pastor in the city, 1862; in charge of the course of historical theology in the university, 1881; ordinary professor, 1882. He is a "liberal theologian." He was one of the founders of L'Alliance libérée, 1869, and Etrene chrétienne, 1873, and has written much for them, also a few books and pamphlets.

CHAPONNIERE, Jacques Francois (called Francis), Lic. Theol. (Geneva, 1867), Swiss Protestant theologian; b. at Geneva, April 6, 1842; graduated M.A. at University of Geneva 1862; studied theology there until 1866; was ordained, 1867; continued his studies in Paris, Germany, England, and Scotland, until 1869; returned to Geneva in 1870, and, while auxiliary pastor in the National Church, lectured in the theological faculty of the university nearly every year upon New-Testament exegesis or ecclesiastical statistics, until in 1880 he became chief editor of the Semaine Religieuse, the organ of the evangelical party in the National Church. From 1878 to 1875 he was co-editor of Zertung, a monthly, Paris Christianisme au xixe siècle. Besides numerous articles, he has written La question des confessions de foi au sein du protestantisme contemporain, Geneva, 1867; Affirmations religieuses de quelques physiciens et naturalistes modernes, 1874; Rendez à César ce qui est à César, et à Dieu ce qui est à Dieu (sermon), 1875; Quel doit être, dans la crise actuelle, notre programme ecclésiastique? 1878; La revision constitutionnelle et la lutte protestante, 1878; L'Eglise nationale évangélique au lendemain de la séparation, 1880; and has translated Christlieb's L'incrédulité moderne et les meilleurs moyens de la combattre, 1774, and Orelli's L'immutabilité de l'Evangile après les apostes, 1863.

CHARTERIS, Archibald Hamilton, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1863), Church of Scotland; b. at Wamphray, Dumfriesshire, Dec. 13, 1855; graduated at Edinburgh University, B.A. 1883, M.A. 1884; he became associate and successor minister of St. Quivox, 1888; minister of the Park Parish, Glasgow, 1883; professor of biblical criticism, University of Edinburgh, 1886. He was the originator and first convenor of the General Assembly (Church of Scotland) Committee on Christian Life and Work (1869), which established and edited Life and Work, a journal of now 100,000 circulation, and which also founded the “Church of Scotland’s Young Men’s Guild.” He is one of her Majesty’s chaplains, and a dean of the Chapel Royal. He has written, besides lectures and pamphlets, Life of Professor James Chastel, Chester, Edinburgh, 1845; Christianity: A Collection of Early Texts and the Canonical Books of the New Testament, based on Kirchhof’s Quellensammlung, 1881; The New-Testament Scripture, London, 1883.

CHASE, Thomas, LL.D. (Harvard, 1879), Litt.D. (Haverford, 1880), Friend; b. at Worcester, Mass., June 16, 1827; graduated at Harvard, 1848; studied at Berlin, 1854, and at Collège de France, Paris, 1855; has been successively tutor and acting professor of Latin at Harvard, 1850–53; professor of Greek and Latin at Haverford College, Penn., 1855, and president since 1875. He was a member of the New-Testament Revision Committee. He has edited the Goelihard Commentary, Cambridge, 1851; Vergil’s Æneid, Philadelphia, 1868; Horace, 1869; First Six Books of Æneid, 1870; Four Books of Livy, 1872; Juvenal and Persius, 1876 (new editions of all these in 1888); and has written besides articles, pamphlets, etc., Hellescher Monumenta et Scenxery, Cambridge, 1868; A Latin Grammar, Philadelphia, 1882, 4th ed., 1888; The Charity of the Primitive Church, Philadelphia, 1885; Writings, London, 1888. He is one of her Majesty’s chaplains, and a dean of the Chapel Royal. He has written, besides numerous articles, e.g., on Barrow, Jeremy Taylor, and South, in The Quarterly Review, London, 1866; Colleges and Tests, 1871; and edited, with Dr. William Smith, Dictionary of Christian Antiquities, 1853–90, 2 vols., for which he wrote largely himself.

CHEETHAM, Ven. Samuel, D.D. (Cambridge, 1880), archdeacon of Rochester, Church of England; b. at Hambleton, County of Rutland, March 3, 1827; educated at Christ’s College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics, senior optee, scholar) at Cambridge, 1853, B.D. 1860; ordained deacon 1851, priest 1852. He was vice-principal of the Collegiate Institute, Liverpool, 1851–53; fellow (1850–80) and assistant tutor (1853–58) of Christ’s College, Cambridge; vice-principal of the Theological College, Uichester, 1851–83; professor of pastoral theology in King’s College, London, 1885–92; chaplain of Dulwich College, 1886–84; archdeacon of Southwark 1879–82, and of Rochester since 1882; and since 1883 has been canon of Rochester, and honorary fellow of Christ’s College, Cambridge. He is also honorary fellow of King’s College, London, and since 1888 examining chaplain to the bishop of Rochester. He has written, besides numerous articles, e.g., on Barrow, Jeremy Taylor, and South, in The Quarterly Review, London, 1866; Colleges and Tests, 1871; Chere, etc., and edited, with Dr. William Smith, Dictionary of Christian Antiquities, 1853–90, 2 vols., for which he wrote largely himself.

CHEEVER, George Barrell, D.D. (New-York University, 1844), Congregationalist; b. at Halloowell, Me., April 17, 1807; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1825, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1830. He was pastor of the Howard-street (Congregational) Church, Salem, Mass., 1833–38; in Europe, 1836–38; pastor of the Allen-street Presbyterian Church, New-York City, 1839–44; editor of The New-York Evangelist, 1845; pastor of the (Congregational) Church of the Puritans, New York, 1846–70; since 1871 has lived in England without pastoral charge. He distinguished himself by the advocacy of total abstinence and of the abolition of slavery. Of his numerous writings may be mentioned, Inquire at Amos Giles’s Distillery, Salem, 1835 (this attack upon drink led to his being tried for libel, and imprisoned for thirty days); God’s Hand in America, New York, 1841; Lectures on Hierarchical Despotism, 1842; Lectures on the Pilgrim’s Progress, 1849; Journal and Diary of the Pilgrims of Plymouth, 1848; The Hill Difficulty, with other Miscellanies, 1849; Punishment by Death, London, 1849; Wanderings of a Pilgrim in the Alps, 1850; A Reel in a Bottle, for Jack in the Doldrums, 1850 (revised ed. under title, The Log-Book of a Voyage to the Celestial Country, 1885); Voices of Nature to her Foster-Child, the Soul of Man, 1852; Powers of the World to Come, 1853, 2d ed. 1859; Discipline of Time for Life and Immortality, 1854; Life, Genius and Insanity of Cowper, 1856; God against Slavery, 1857; Right of the Bible in our Public Schools, 1858; Guilt of Slavery demonstrated from the Hebrew and Greek Scriptures, 1860; Faith, Doubt, and Evidence, 1881; God’s Timetpiece for Man’s Eternity, 1883.

CHENERY, Thomas, b. in Barbadoes in the year 1826; d. in London, Feb. 11, 1884. He was educated at Eton and at Caius College, Cambridge; practiced law for a while; became lord almoner’s professor of Arabic at Oxford, 1868; made member of the second class of the Imperial Order of the Medjidieh by the Sultan, 1869; appointed an Old-Testament reviser by the Convocation of Canterbury, 1870; resigned his professorship, 1871, when called by Bishop Van de Velde of Chicago to direct the tide of Roman-Catholic emigration towards the prairies of Illinois; in 1853 left the Church of Rome, with his entire congregation at St. Anne, Kankakee County, Ill., and joined the Canadian Presbyterian Church. He has been six times to lecture in England (1860, 1874, 1882), and in Australia (1878–80). He is the author of Manual of Temperance, in French, Quebec, 1843 (2d and 3d ed., Montreal, 1849; in English, Montreal, 1849); The Priest, the Woman, and the Confessional, in English, St. Anne, Kankakee County, Ill. 1874 (six editions in the United States, five in England, four in Canada, four in Australia; in French, by author, 1876, three editions in Canada, two in Paris, one in Brussels; in Italian, Rome, 1879; in Spanish, 1880; in Danish, 1884); Fifty Years in the Church of Rome, Chicago, 1st and 2d ed., 1885; besides minor treatises, all of which have been widely circulated.

CHINNERY-HALDANE, Right Rev. James Robert Alexander, lord bishop of Argyll and the Isles, Episcopal Church of Scotland; b. in the year 1841; educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he took the degree of L.L.B. 1864; was ordained deacon 1866, priest 1867; curate of Calne, 1866–69; of All Saints, Edinburg, 1867–76; incumbent of St. Bride’s, Netter Lochaber, 1876; of St. John, Ballachulish, and of St. Mary, Glencoe, 1879; honorary canon of the Cathedral of Argyll and the Isles, 1879; dean of Argyll and the Isles, 1881–83; consecrated bishop, 1883.

CHRISTLIEB, Theodor, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1857), D.D. (hon., Berlin, 1870), German Evangelical theologian, b. at Birkenfeld, Württemberg, March 7, 1833; studied at Tübingen, 1851–55; became pastor of the German congregation in Jalington, London, N., 1858, where he built the first German United Church (comprehending Lutherans and Reformed); town-pastor at Friedrichshafen, Lake of Constance, 1865, being called thither by the King of Württemberg, who resides there during the summer; professor of practical theology and university preacher at Bonn, 1868. He is a Knight of the Red Eagle. In 1873 he attended the Evangelical Alliance Conference in New York, and read a paper (Monday, Oct. 6, 1873) upon The Best Methods of counteracting Modern Infidelity, subsequently separately issued in English, New York, 1873; in German, Gütelshof, 1874; in French, Paris, 1874; in Dutch, Swedish, Danish, Italian, and Greek. He has written, tracts, etc., Leben und Lehre des Johannes Scotus Erigena, Gotha, 1860; Moderne Zweifel am christlichen Glauben. St. Gall, 1868; 2d ed. Bonn, 1870 (English trans., Modern Doubt and Christian Belief, Edinburgh and New York, 1874, 4th ed. 1879); Dr. Karl Bernhard Hundeshagen; eine Lebensskizze, Gotha, 1873; (editor) Hundeshagens ausgewählte kleinere Schriften und Abhandlungen, 1874–75, 2 vols.; Der Missionsberuf des evangelischen Deutschen nach Idea und Geschichte, Gütersloh, 1879; Der indoluberchristienlichen Weltanschauung, 2d ed. Berlin, 1878 (English trans., The Indo-British Opinion Trades and its Effects, London, 1879, 2d ed. 1881; French trans., Paris, 1879); Der gegenwärtige Stand der Since 1874 he has been co-editor of the Allgemeine Missionszeitzeitschrift, Gütersloh. He is president of the West German Branch of the Evangelical Alliance, and attended as delegate the General Conferences of New York (1873), Basel (1879), and Copenhagen (1884).

CHURCH, Parcellus, D.D. (Madison University, N.Y., 1847), Baptist; b. at Seneca, near Geneva, Ontario County, N.Y., Sept. 11, 1801; educated for the ministry at Hamilton, N.Y.; became pastor at Poultney, Vt., 1825; in Providence, R.I. (Central Church), 1828; in New Orleans, La., 1834; of the First Church, Rochester, N.Y., 1835; of the Bowdoin-square Church, Boston, 1836; resigned in 1845 on account of disease induced by many years of exciting evangelistic labors, 1852; was occasional supply of destitute churches in Montreal and Williamsburg; from 1855 to 1865 was editor and proprietor of The New-York Chronicle, merged in The Examiner (1863); since 1870 he has lived in retirement at Tarrytown, N.Y. He was baptized in Lake Ontario, June, 1815. During 1848 he devoted himself to the movement which gave birth to the Rochester University and Theological Seminary. In 1846 he attended the Evangelical Alliance meeting in London, and was shipwrecked on his way home, on the coast of Ireland, and compelled to return to Liverpool. He is the author of The Philosophy of Benevolence, New York, 1836; Religious Dissensions, their Cause and Cure (prize essay of $200), 1838; Address at the dedication of Mount Hope Cemetery, Rochester, N.Y., May 5, 1847; New York, 1848; of Power in the Church, 1842; Pentecost (sermon to the Missionary Union at Albany), 1843; Memoir of Theodosia Dean (wife of Dr. William Dean, missionary to China), Boston, 1850; Mapleton, or More Work for the Maine Law (a temperance tale), Montreal, 1853; Seed Truths (written in Bonn on the Rhine), 1870; and of many articles in periodicals.

CHURCH, Very Rev. Richard William, dean of St. Paul's, London, Church of England; b. at Cintra, April 25, 1815; educated at Wadham College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1836, M.A. 1839, Hon. D.C.L. 1875. He was fellow of Oriel College, 1838–53; junior proctor, 1841–45; was ordained deacon 1838, priest 1850; rector of Whatley, near Frome-Selwood, 1853–71; select preacher at Oxford, 1869, 1873, 1881; on Sept. 6, 1871, appointed dean of St. Paul's; elected honorary fellow of Oriel College, 1873. He published before those lectures and sermons, The Catechetical Lectures of St. Cyril, translated with Notes (Library of the Fathers), London, 1841; Essays and Reviews, 1854; Sermons preached before the University of Oxford, 1868, 2d ed. 1889; Life of St. Anselm, 1871, 2d ed. 1877; The Beginnings of the Middle Ages, 1877; Human Life and its Conditions: Sermons preached before the University of Oxford in 1876–78, with three Ordination Sermons, 1878; Dante: an Essay (with translation of De Monarchia by G. Inchbald), 1878 (first issued, without the translation, in 1850); Spenser, 1879; Gifts of Civilization, and other Sermons and Lectures, 1880 (includes the separately published lectures, Civilization before and after Christianity, 1872; On some Influences of Christianity upon National Character, 1873; On the Sacred Poetry of Early Religions, 1874); Bacon, 1884; The Discipline of the Christian Character, 1885.

CHURCHILL, John Wesley, Congregationalist; b. at Fairlee, Vt., May 26, 1836; graduated at Harvard College, 1855; and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1865, in which he has been since 1868 Jones professor of pulpit delivery, and co-pastor of the chapel church. He is co-editor of The Andover Review.

CLAPP, Alexander Huntington, D.D. (Iowa College, 1868), Congregationalist; b. at Worthington, Mass., Sept. 1, 1818; graduated at Yale College, 1842, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1845 (studied 1842–44 at Yale Theological Seminary); was pastor at Brattleborough, Vt., 1846–53; of the Beneficent Church, Providence, R.I., 1855–65; secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, New York City, 1865–73; since 1875 its treasurer; and since 1875 New-York editor of The Congregationalist, Boston, Mass. He has published occasional sermons, etc.

CLARK, George Whitfield, D.D. (Rochester University, 1872), Baptist; b. at South Orange, N.J., Feb. 15, 1851; graduated at Amherst College 1853, and at Rochester Theological Seminary 1855; became pastor at New Market, N.J., 1855; at Elizabeth, N.J., 1858; at Ballston, N.Y., 1868; at Somerville, N.J., 1873; retired broken in health, 1877; since 1880 has been doing missionary, collecting, and literary work for the American Baptist Publication Society. He is the author of History of the First Baptist Church, Elizabeth, N.J., Increase of Missions to the Heathen, 1871, 2d ed. 1872; of Notes on the Gospels, 1873; on Matthew, New York, 1870, Philadelphia, 1873; Notes on Matthew, New York, 1870, Philadelphia, 1873; do. on Mark, Philadelphia, 1873; do. on Luke, Philadelphia, 1873; do. on John, Philadelphia, 1873; Harmonic Arrangement of the Acts, 1884; Brief Notes on the Gospels, 1884.

CLARK, Joseph Bourne, D.D. (Amherst College, 1884), Congregationalist; b. at Sturbridge, Mass., Oct. 7, 1836; graduated at Amherst College, Mass., 1853, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1861; became pastor at Yarmouth, Mass., 1861; Newton, 1868; Jamaica Plain (Central Church), Boston, 1872; secretary of the Massachusetts Home Missionary Society, 1879; secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, 1882. He is the author of seven occasional sermons, printed by request while pastor at Yarmouth, Newton, and Boston; twelve sermons in the Monday Club volumes, Boston, 1875–80; three papers read before the Annual Meetings of the American Home Missionary Society at Saratoga, 1883, 1884, 1885.

CLARK, Nathaniel George, D.D. (Union College, New York, 1869), LL.D. (University of Vermont, 1870), Congregationalist; b. at Calais, Vt., COE, David Benton, D.D. (Middlebury College, Vt., 1857), Congregationalist; b. at Granville, Mass., Aug. 16, 1814; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1837, and at Yale Divinity School, 1840; was tutor in Yale College, 1841-48; pluginium in district (Congregational) at Milford, Conn., 1840-44; of Allen-street Presbyterian Church, New York City, 1844-49; district secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, 1851-82, and since has been honorary secretary. He is a moderate Calvinist.

COIT, Thomas Winthrop, D.D. (Columbia College, New York City, 1834). LL.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1833), Episcopalian; b. at New London, Conn., June 28, 1803; d. at Middletown, Conn., June 21, 1883. He graduated at Yale College, 1821; was rector of St. Peter's Church, New York City, 1834), LL.D. (Trinity College, Lexington, Ky., 1834-37; rector of Trinity College, New Rochelle, N.Y., 1837-49; professor of moral philosophy, Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky., 1834-37; rector of Trinity Church, New Rochelle, N.Y., 1837-49; professor of ecclesiastical history in Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1849-54; rector of St. Paul's Church, Hartford, Conn., 1854-71; historian of ecclesiastical history in the Berkeley (Episcopal) Divinity School, Middletown, Conn., 1872 till his death. He edited The Bible in Paragraphs and Parallelisms, Boston, 1831; Townsend's Chronological Bible (with notes), 1837-38, 2 vols.; and wrote The Theological Commonsense Book, Boston, 1832, revised ed. 1837; Renewal on North's Statement of Reasons, 1833; Puritanism or, a Churchman's Defence against its Aspersions, 1814; Exclusiveness (a lecture). Troy, 1855, 3d ed. — Lectures on the Early History of Christianity in England, with Sermons on Several Occasions, 1860; Necessity of preaching Doctrine: Sermons, 1860; Sameness of Words no Hindrance to Devotion (a sermon), 3d ed.

COLLIER, Robert Laird, D.D. (Iowa State University, 1865), Unitarian; b. at Salisbury, Md., Aug. 7, 1837; graduated at Boston University, 1858; was pastor of the Church of the Messiah, Chicago, 1861-74; Second Church, Boston, 1876-80; First Church, Boston, 1880-97; Leicester, Bradford, and Birmingham, Eng., 1880-95; and since has been pastor in Kansas City, Mo. He is a "Channing, or conservative, Unitarian, holding to free reasoning in religion and in the use of the evangelical spirit and methods." For the past twenty years has lectured on literary and social topics in the United States and Great Britain, and has written for the press and periodicals of these countries. He is the author of Every-day Subjects in Sunday Sermons, Boston, 1874, several editions; Meditations on the Essence of Christianity, 1878, several editions; English Home Life, 1883.

CONANT, Thomas Jefferson, D.D. (Middlebury, 1844), Baptist; b. at Brandon, Vt., Dec. 13, 1862; studied at Middlebury College, Vt. (Hebrew and German in addition to usual course), graduated 1823; took a post-graduate course of two years in Greek and Hebrew with Professor Robert H. Patton; was tutor in Columbia College (now Columbia University), Washington, D.C., 1825-27; successively professor of the Latin, Greek, and German languages in Waterville College (now Colby University), Waterville, Me., 1827-33; of languages and biblical literature in Hamilton Literary and Theological Institution (now Madison University and Theological Seminary), Hamilton, N.Y., 1835-51; and of the Hebrew language and biblical exegesis in Rochester (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1851-57. In 1857 he resigned his professorship in order to revise the English Version of the Bible for the American Bible Union, and in this work was engaged many years. He is a member of the American Bible Union and Testament Revision Company. He is the author of a translation of the eleventh edition of Gesenius' Hebrew Grammar, Boston, 1839; and of the seventeenth edition (by Rödiger) with grammatical exercises and a chrestomathy by the trans-CONRAD, Frederick William, D.D. (Wittenberg College, Springfield, O., 1864), Lutheran; b. at Pinegrove, Schuylkill County, Penn., Jan. 3, 1816; studied at Mount Airy College, Germantown, 1825-31; was collector of tolls on the Union Canal and Railroad at Pinegrove, 1834-41; student of theology at Gettysburg, 1837-39; pulpitsupply in and around Pinegrove, 1839-41; pastor at Wayneboro, 1841-44; at Hagerstown, Md. (St. John's), 1844-50; professor of modern languages in Wittenberg College, and of church history and homiletics in the theological department, 1850-55; associate editor, with his brother Professor V. L. Conrad, of The Evangelical Lutheran Church, 1851-55; pastor at Dayton, O. (Zion's English Lutheran Church), 1855-62; at Lancaster, Penn. (Holy Trinity), 1862-64 (joint owner and editor Lutheran Observer, Baltimore, Md., 1862-66); at Chambersburg, 1864-66; pastor of Messiah Lutheran Church, Philadelphia, 1866-72; editor-in-chief of The Lutheran Observer, Philadelphia, since 1867. Through his exertions he increased the endowments of Pennsylvania College, and of the theological seminary at Gettysburg, and of the theological colleges, $250,000. He has frequently lectured in these colleges, contributed to The Evangelical Review and The Lutheran Quarterly. Several of these latter contributions have been republished: e.g., The Lutheran Doctrine of Baptism, 1874; An Analysis of Luther's Small Catechism, 1875; The Evangelical Lutheran Church, 1883; The Call to the Ministry, 1883, The Liturgical Question, 1884.

CONVERSE, Francis Bartlett, Presbyterian (Southern Church); b. in Richmond, Va., June 23, 1830; graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1856; studied for two years (1859) in Princeton Theological Seminary; was supplied vacant pulpits, and continued studies, 1865-70; acting pastor First (Congregational) Church, Lynn, Mass., 1870-71; not ordained; studied under Tholuck and Müller, and travelled in Europe, 1871-73; began lecturing, 1874; delivered the Monday Lectures upon scientific, philosophic, religious, and social topics, in Boston during the winter of each successive year from 1875 till 1880; in England, Italy, India, Japan, and Australia, as lecturer, 1880-82; resumed his Monday Lectures in 1883. His publications consist of his lectures, and these have been widely circulated: Biology, Boston, 1877 (10th ed.); Tracts on the Social and Ethical Questions of the Age, 1877-78; Orthodoxy, 1877 (7th ed.); Conciseness, 1878; Heresy, 1878; Marriage, 1878; Labor, 1879; Socialism, 1880; Occident, 1884; Orient, 1886.
COOPER, Thomas, Baptist, b. at Leicester, Eng., March 28, 1805; was in youth a shoemaker at Gainsborough, Lincolnshire, and employed his leisure time to acquire Latin, Greek, Hebrew, and French. When twenty-three, he taught a school, then was a reporter for several country newspapers. In 1841 he led the Chartists of Leicester, lectured in the Potteries during the “riots” of August, 1842; was convicted of conspiracy and sedition, and for two years was confined in Stafford Jail, where he began his literary career, and on his release became a journalist. In 1848 he first appeared prominently in London as political and historical lecturer; in 1849 edited The Plain Speaker, a weekly penny journal of radical politics; and in 1850 started Cooper’s Journal, a sceptical weekly penny periodical. In 1855 he renounced infidelity, and has since defended and preached Christian truth with the same energy with which he formerly attacked it. In 1850 he was immersed, and ordained as a Baptist preacher. In 1866 he retired in broken health, upon an annuity of one hundred pounds purchased for him by friends. He has published, besides fiction and poetry, The Triumphs of Perseverance and Enterprise, London, 1847, new ed. 1879; The Bridge of History over the Gulf of Time: a Popular View of the Historical Evidence for the Truth of Christianity, 1871, 3d ed. 1872, reprinted, N.Y. 1876; Plain Pulpit Talk, London, 1872, 2d ed. 1873; Life, written by himself, 1872, 2d ed. 1880; God, the Soul, and a Future State, 1873; The Verity of Christ’s Resurrection from the Dead: an Appeal to the Common Sense of the People, 1875, new ed. 1884; The Verity and Value of the Miracles of Christ, 1877; Evolution: the Stone Book and the Mosaic Record of Creation, 1878; The Atonement, 1880; Thoughts at Fourscore and Earlier, 1885.

CORNISH, George Henry, Methodist, b. at Exeter, Eng., June 26, 1834; educated at Victoria University, Cobourg, Can., 1855-58; was in youth an ardent Chartist, and in 1850 he was immersed, and ordained as a Baptist preacher. In 1866 he retired in broken health, upon an annuity of one hundred pounds purchased for him by friends. He has published, besides fiction and poetry, The Triumphs of Perseverance and Enterprise, London, 1847, new ed. 1879; The Bridge of History over the Gulf of Time: a Popular View of the Historical Evidence for the Truth of Christianity, 1871, 3d ed. 1872, reprinted, N.Y. 1876; Plain Pulpit Talk, London, 1872, 2d ed. 1873; Life, written by himself, 1872, 2d ed. 1880; God, the Soul, and a Future State, 1873; The Verity of Christ’s Resurrection from the Dead: an Appeal to the Common Sense of the People, 1875, new ed. 1884; The Verity and Value of the Miracles of Christ, 1877; Evolution: the Stone Book and the Mosaic Record of Creation, 1878; The Atonement, 1880; Thoughts at Fourscore and Earlier, 1885.

COUCHARIGAN, Most Rev. Michael Augustine, D.D. (Propaganda College, Rome, 1864), Roman Catholic archbishop of New York; b. at Newark, N.J., Aug. 13, 1830; graduated at Mount St. Mary’s College, Emmitsburg, Md., 1859; was one of thirteen students with whom the American College in Rome was opened (1859); ordained priest at Cardinal Patrizi, Rome, Sept. 19, 1863; appointed by Archbishop Bayley professor of dogmatic theology and Sacred Scripture in the ecclesiastical seminary of Seton Hall College, 1865; succeeded to the presidency, 1868; resigned, 1878; appointed by the Pope bishop of Newark, N.J., 1873; made titular archbishop of Petra, and appointed coadjutor to the archbishop of New York, with the right of succession, 1880; succeeded the late Cardinal McClokey, 1885.

CORWIN, Edward Tanjore, D.D. (Rutgers College, 1871), Reformed (Dutch); b. in New-York City, July 12, 1854; graduated in the first class of the New-York Free Academy (since 1866, the College of the City of New York) 1880; and at the theological seminary of the Reformed Dutch Church, New Brunswick, N.J., 1856; was resident licentiate, 1856-57; became pastor at Parsons, N.J., 1857, and at Millstone 1863. He is the author of Manual and Record of Church of Parsons, New York, 1858, 2d ed. 1859; Manual of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church in North America, 1859, 3d ed. 1879; Millstone Centennial, 1866; Corein Genealogy, 1872; and of sundry sermons and articles.

COTTERILL, Right Rev. Henry, D.D. (Cambridge, 1850), lord bishop of Edinburgh, Episcopal Church in Scotland; b. at Ampton, Suffolk, Eng., Jan. 6, 1812; educated at St. John’s College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (first Smith’s prize senior wrangler, and first-class classical tripus) 1833, and was elected a fellow; M.A. by royal mandate, 1836; was ordained deacon 1835, priest 1836; was successively chaplain in the Honourable East-India Company’s service in the Madras Presidency, 1836; vice-principal of Brighton College, 1847; principal, 1851; bishop of Grahamstown, South Africa, 1856; bishop coadjutor of Edinburgh, Scotland, 1871; bishop, 1872. He is the author of The Seven Ages of the Church, London, 1849; and Polygamy among Candidates for Baptism, 1881; The Epistle to the Galatians, with Explanatory Notes, 1862; The Genesis of the Church, 1872; Does Science aid Faith in Regard to Creation? 1883; wrote the introduction to the Pentateuch in The Pulpit Commentary, 1880.

COULIN, Frank, French Swiss Protestant; b. in Geneva, Nov. 17, 1828, the son of one of the most distinguished Swiss preachers; was ordained 1851, and since 1853 has been pastor of the parish of Gentilod, on the shores of the Lake of Geneva; was delegate to the Evangelical Alliance Conference in New-York City, 1873; made D.D. by the University of St. Andrew’s, Scotland, 1882. He wrote several volumes of sermons and other edifying works, e.g., Les Œuvres chrétiennes, Geneva, 1853; Le Fils de l’homme, 1866 (English trans., Son of Man, London, 1869); Homélies, 1872-74, 2 series,—which have passed through successive editions, and been translated into German, Dutch, Swedish, Russian, and English.

COUSSIRAT, Daniel, Canadian Presbyterian; b. at Nérac, France, March 5, 1841; graduated at Toulouse 1859, and in theology at Montauban 1864; became suffragant at Belloq (Basses-Pyrénées), 1864 (ordained in the Reformed Church, France, 1864); pastor of the Evangelical Church at Philadelphia, Penn., 1865; professor of divinity, Montreal, Can., 1867; pastor of the Reformed Church at Orthez, Basses-Pyrénées, France, 1875; French professor of divinity, Presbyterian College, Montreal, Can., 1880. Since 1882 he has been lecturer in oriental languages, McGill University, Montreal. He was one of the revisers of the French translation of the Old Testament under the auspices of the Société Biblique de France, Paris, 1881. He published a thesis on Election.
COWIE. 43. CRAFTS.

Rom. ix.—xii. Toulouse, 1864; and has contributed to the Revue des deux mondes, Montauban, and the Revue chrétienne, Paris (1870—77). He became an officier d'Académie, Paris, 1885.

COWIE, Very Rev. Benjamin Morgan, D.D. (Cambridge, 1880), dean of Exeter, Church of England; b. in England upon June 8, 1816; educated at St. John's College, Cambridge; graduated (B.A.) 1832, M.A. 1833; ordained deacon 1841, priest 1842; was elected fellow of his college 1830, moderator 1843; principal of the Engineers' College, Putney, 1841—51; select preacher, Cambridge, 1852, 1856; Huslean lecturer, 1858—59; minor canon of St. Paul's, London, 1856—73; vicar of St. Lawrence-Jewry with St. Mary Magdalene, Milk Street, London, 1857—73: one of her Majesty's inspectors of schools, 1857—72; Warburtonian lecturer, 1866; dean of Manchester, 1872—53; prolocutor of the Lower House of Convocation of York, 1872—83; prolocutor of the General Baptist Church, Mansfield Road, Nottingham, 1863, where he still remains. He attended the second Lambeth Conference, 1873. He is the author of Catalogue of MSS. and Scarce Books in St. John's College, Cambridge Library, Cambridge, 1842: Scripture Difficulties (Huslean Lectures), London, 1854, 2 vols.; Sacrifice and Atonement (five Cambridge University sermons), 1858; On "Essays and Reviews," 1851; Remains, races of a City Church, 1867; The Voice of God: Chapters on Foreknowledge, Inspiration, and Prophecy, 1870; Ministerial Work, Manchester, 1872.

COX, Samuel, D.D. (St. Andrew's, 1882), Baptist theologian; b. in London, Eng., April 19, 1826; graduated at the Stepney Baptist Theological College, London, 1851, and was ordained pastor of St. Paul's Square Baptist Church, Southsea: was pastor at Ryde, 1855—59; and pastor of the General Baptist Church, Mansfield Road, Nottingham, 1863, where he still remains. He was president of the British General Baptist Association in 1873, and in 1874 began in Thousand Island Park, 1876—77; spoke in many cities of Great Britain in connection with the centennial of Sunday schools (1880). He is a vice-president of the National Temperance Society. Besides numerous articles he has written Through the Eye to the Heart, New York, 1873; Childhood and the Textbook of the Age, Boston, 1875 (Mrs. Crafts joint author of both); the latter appeared in enlarged form as a subscription-book under the title, The Coming Man is the Present Child, Chicago, 1879; The Bible and the Sunday School, (Toronto, 1876, Chicago, 1878; The Rescue of Child Soul, London, 1880: Plain Uses of the Blackboard, 1880, New York, 1881; Teachers' Edition of the Revised Version of the New Testament, New York, 1881; Talks to Boys and Girls about Jesus, 1881; Must the Old Testament go! Boston, 1883; Successful Men of To-day, Toronto, 1883; Memorable Men, 1885; Rhetoric made Racy, Chicago, 1884 (Prof. H. F. Fisk joint author); The Sabbath for Man, New-York City, 1883; bishop of Western New York, 1865. From 1872 to 1874 he was provisional bishop of the church in Haiti, which he visited officially. He was prominent in the formation of the Anglo-Continental Society (1858), and gave it its name. He vigorously and successfully opposed the attempt of the American Bible Society to make slight alterations in the text and punctuation of the Bible (1875). His work on the Text and Text-Critics, vol. i. p. 265 sq.) and, consistently, also the work of the Revision Committee, but was among the first to advocate the revision of the Prayer Book. He has taken great interest in all that concerns Gallicanism and Anglo-Catholicism. He attended the second Lambeth Conference, 1873. He has written much on behalf of the many interests which have claimed his attention. In collaboration with the late Bishop Wilberforce he began in 1873 the issue of a serial in defence of Anglo-Catholicism as against Romanism. Among his separate publications may be mentioned his volumes of poetry, Adven tus, a Mystery, New York, 1837; Athwoold, 1838; Christian B a l - lards, 1840; Athanasion, and other Poems, 1842; Halloween, 1844; Saul, a Mystery, 1845. In prose, Sermons on Doctrine and Duty, 1854; Impressions of England, 1856; The Criter ion, 1858 (in which he defines his position in the Oxford movement); Moral Reforms, 1869; An Open Letter to Pius IX. (in answer to his brief convoking the Vatican Council), 1869 (widely circulated, and translated into various European languages); L'Epicopat de l'Occident, Paris, 1872 (widely circulated by the Anglo-Continental Society); Apollos, or the Way of God, New York, 1874; Covenant Prayers, 1875; The Penitential, 1882. He is the editor of the American reprint of Clark's Ante-Nicene Library, Buffalo, 1885—86, 8 vols. CRAFTS, Wilbur Fisk, B.D., Presbyterian; b. at Fryeburg, Me., Jan. 12, 1850; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1880, and at the School of Theology, Boston (Mass.) University, 1872; was Methodist minister until 1880, his last pastorate in that denomination being Trinity, Chicago, Ill.; became pastor of the Lee Avenue Congregational Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1880; and pastor of the First Union Presbyterian Church of New-York City, 1883. He has paid particular attention to Sunday-school work, and conducted the "Sunday-school Parliament" in Thousand Island Park, 1876—77; spoke in many cities of Great Britain in connection with the centennial of Sunday schools (1880). He is a vice-president of the National Temperance Society. Besides numerous articles he has written Through the Eye to the Heart, New York, 1873; Childhood and the Textbook of the Age, Boston, 1875 (Mrs. Crafts joint author of both); the latter appeared in enlarged form as a subscription-book under the title, The Coming Man is the Present Child, Chicago, 1879; The Bible and the Sunday School, Toronto, 1876, Chicago, 1878; The Rescue of Child Soul, London, 1880: Plain Uses of the Blackboard, 1880, New York, 1881; Teachers' Edition of the Revised Version of the New Testament, New York, 1881; Talks to Boys and Girls about Jesus, 1881; Must the Old Testament go! Boston, 1883; Successful Men of To-day, Toronto, 1883; Memorable Men, 1885; Rhetoric made Racy, Chicago, 1884 (Prof. H. F. Fisk joint author); The Sabbath for Man, New-York City, 1883; bishop of Western New York, 1865. From 1872 to 1874 he was provisional bishop of the church in Haiti, which he visited officially. He was prominent in the formation of the Anglo-Continental Society (1858), and gave it its name. He vigorously and successfully opposed the attempt of the American Bible Society to make slight alterations in the text and punctuation of the Bible (1875). His work on the Text and Text-Critics, vol. i. p. 265 sq.) and, consistently, also the work of the Revision Committee, but was among the first to advocate the revision of the Prayer Book. He has taken great interest in all that concerns Gallicanism and Anglo-Catholicism. He attended the second Lambeth Conference, 1873. He has written much on behalf of the many interests which have claimed his attention. In collaboration with the late Bishop Wilberforce he began in 1873 the issue of a serial in defence of Anglo-Catholicism as against Romanism. Among his separate publications may be mentioned his volumes of poetry, Adven tus, a Mystery, New York, 1837; Athwoold, 1838; Christian B a l - lards, 1840; Athanasion, and other Poems, 1842; Halloween, 1844; Saul, a Mystery, 1845. In prose, Sermons on Doctrine and Duty, 1854; Impressions of England, 1856; The Criter ion, 1858 (in which he defines his position in the Oxford movement); Moral Reforms, 1869; An Open Letter to Pius IX. (in answer to his brief convoking the Vatican Council), 1869 (widely circulated, and translated into various European languages); L'Epicopat de l'Occident, Paris, 1872 (widely circulated by the Anglo-Continental Society); Apollos, or the Way of God, New York, 1874; Covenant Prayers, 1875; The Penitential, 1882. He is the editor of the American reprint of Clark's Ante-Nicene Library, Buffalo, 1885—86, 8 vols. CRAFTS, Wilbur Fisk, B.D., Presbyterian; b. at Fryeburg, Me., Jan. 12, 1850; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1880, and at the School of Theology, Boston (Mass.) University, 1872; was Methodist minister until 1880, his last pastorate in that denomination being Trinity, Chicago, Ill.; became pastor of the Lee Avenue Congregational Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1880; and pastor of the First Union Presbyterian Church of New-York City, 1883. He has paid particular attention to Sunday-school work, and conducted the "Sunday-school Parliament" in Thousand Island Park, 1876—77; spoke in many cities of Great Britain in connection with the centennial of Sunday schools (1880). He is a vice-president of the National Temperance Society. Besides numerous articles he has written Through the Eye to the Heart, New York, 1873; Childhood and the Textbook of the Age, Boston, 1875 (Mrs. Crafts joint author of both); the latter appeared in enlarged form as a subscription-book under the title, The Coming Man is the Present Child, Chicago, 1879; The Bible and the Sunday School, Toronto, 1876, Chicago, 1878; The Rescue of Child Soul, London, 1880: Plain Uses of the Blackboard, 1880, New York, 1881; Teachers' Edition of the Revised Version of the New Testament, New York, 1881; Talks to Boys and Girls about Jesus, 1881; Must the Old Testament go! Boston, 1883; Successful Men of To-day, Toronto, 1883; Memorable Men, 1885; Rhetoric made Racy, Chicago, 1884 (Prof. H. F. Fisk joint author); The Sabbath for Man, CRAIG, Willis Green, D.D. (Centre College, 1873), Presbyterian; b. near Danville, Ky., Sept. 27, 1844; graduated at Centre College, Danville, 1851, studied at the Danville Theological Seminary until 1861; became pastor at Keokuk, Ia., 1862; professor of biblical and ecclesiastical history, of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of the North-West, Chicago, Ill., 1882.

CRAIG, Michael John, D.D. (Syracuse University, N.Y., 1873), Methodist; b. at Schaffhausen, Switzerland, Feb. 6, 1835; emigrated to the United States of America, 1847; educated at the Ohio Wesleyan University, 1860; became pastor in Cincinnati, 0., 1860; in Nashville, Tenn., 1864; chaplain U.S.A., 1864; consul at Leipzig, 1867; attended lectures in theology and philosophy at Leipsic and Berlin, 1867-70; United States minister at Copenhagen, Denmark, 1870 (appointed by Gen. Grant, his brother-in-law); at Bern, Switzerland, 1881; professor of systematic theology, School of Theology, Boston University, 1885. He has published a large number of essays of an isogogical, exegetical, and biblicocritical character, in Methodist periodicals.

CRAIY, Benjamin Franklin, D.D. (Iowa Wesleyan University, 1858, Indiana State University, 1860), Methodist; b. in Jennings County, Ind., Dec. 12, 1821; educated at Pleasant Hill Academy, Cincinnati, 1849-51; admitted to the bar in Indiana, 1854; was successively pastor in Indiana Conference, 1845; president H党风aine University, Minn., 1857; superintendent of public instruction, Minnesota, 1861; chaplain in the army, 1862-65; editor Central Christian Advocate, St. Louis, Mo., 1864; presiding elder in Colorado, 1872; editor California Christian Advocate, San Francisco, 1875. He was in the campaign against the Sioux Indians after the massacre, 1862; in 1863 visited the soldiers in every hospital from Keokuk, Ia., to Memphis, Tenn.; was in every General Conference from 1856-1890. He has written addresses, etc.

CRAWFORD, Elijah Richardson, D.D. (Princeton, 1857), Methodist; b. in Philadelphia, 1826; pastor of various Methodist churches in Pennsylvania, Delaware, and New York, 1848-83; pastor of various Methodist churches in Pennsylvania, Delaware, and New York, 1848-83; editor of The Methodist, 1880-89; edited The Methodist, 1880-89; was professor of church history in Drew Methodist-Episcopal Theological Seminary, Madison, N.J. He published, with Dr. McClintock, CROSBY, Howard, S.T.D. (Harvard, 1859), L.L.D. (Columbia College, 1872), Presbyterian; b. in New-York City, Feb. 27, 1826; graduated at the University of the City of New York, 1844; became professor of Greek in this institution, 1851; went in the same capacity to Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., in 1859. He was president of the Young Men's Christian Association of the city, 1852-53; licenced by North Berkshire Association, Mass. (Congregational), 1859; received as licentiate by Classis of New Brunswick (Reformed Dutch), Oct. 16, 1860; dismissed to presbytery of New Brunswick, and by it ordained, April 10, 1861; was pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick, in connection with his professorship, 1861-63; since 1869 pastor of the Fourth-avenue Presbyterian Church, New-York City. He was described as one of the men of the New-York University, 1870-81; member of the American Bible Revision Committee, 1870-81; moderator of the General Assembly at Baltimore, Md., 1873; since 1877 he has been president of the Society for the Prevention of Crime, and takes an active part in temperance and other moral reforms in New-York City. Besides occasional pamphlets, articles, etc., he has written Lands of the Moslem (travels), New York, 1851; (Epitius Tyrannus, 1852; New-Testament Scholia, 1863; Social Hints for Young Christians, 1866; Bible Manual, 1870; Jesus, His Life and Work, 1871; Healthy Church, Vars Thoughts on the Decalogue, Philadelphia, 1873; Expository Notes on the Book of Joshua, New York, 1875; Nehemiah (in American Lange series), 1877; The Christian Preacher (Yale Lectures), 1880; True Humanity of Christ, 1880; Commentary on the New Testament, 1885.

CROSKERY, Thomas, D.D. (Derry and Belfast Presbyterians, 1883), Presbyterian; b. at Carrowdore, County Down, Ireland, May 26, 1830; graduated at Belfast College, 1848; became a minister, 1860 (served in various places); professor of logic and rhetoric in Magee College, Londonderry, 1873, and of systematic theology, 1879. He wrote Treatise on the Doctrines of the Plymouth Brethren, Belfast, 1880.
CURCI.

other Curci have distinguished themselves by the abundance of their writings. In 1850, he founded, in Naples, the Civiltà Cattolica, a religious and political review, which soon became the organ of the Society of Jesus, and of the Vatican. As the Review upheld the rights of the Pope over kings and emperors, it soon fell under the ban of Ferdinand II., the despot-king of Naples, and Father Curci was forced to remove it to Rome. But the Civiltà Cattolica still pursuing its course, Ferdinand urged upon Pope Pius IX. the necessity of stopping its publication; and as the Pope was reluctant to take this course, the King threatened to expel the Jesuits from his kingdom if his request was not complied with; whereupon the Review was suppressed, and Curci went to Bologna, but only for a year (1855-56), and on the death of the King (1859) he returned to Rome to continue his work. With the beginning of the national movement in 1850, Father Curci seemed to have somewhat changed his opinions, and to have taken a more liberal direction; and his associates continued to hold the old anti-national doctrines of the Church, he gradually separated himself from the Review, becoming more reconciled with the progress of the times, so far at least as it involved the reconciliation of the Church with the new Kingdom of Italy. He remains, however, entirely devoted to the interests of the Church; and even when he urges the reconciliation of the papacy with Italy, he does so more as a matter of political necessity than as a moral obligation.

The following are the works of Father Curci:

La questione romana nell'Assemblea francese, Rome, 1849; La demagogia italiana et il Papa, 1849; La natura e la grazia, 1865, 2 vols.; Lezioni esegìetiche e morali sopra i quattro Evangelì, dette in Firenze dal 1 Novembre 1873 al 29 Giugno 1874, Florence, 1874-75, 5 vols. [these lectures attracted a good deal of attention, for in them he expressed his progressive views, e.g., he urged the priests to take part in the elections]; Le virtù domestiche: il libro di Tobia esposto in lezioni, 1877; Il moderno dissidio tra la Chiesa e lo Stato, considerato per occasione di un fatto particolare ("The modern disension between Church and State, examined on the occurrence of a personal affair"), December, 1877 (it escaped being put upon the Index, was widely circulated in original and translation, e.g., in German, Vienna, 1878, and brought the author before the world as an enlightened priest); Il nuovo Testamento volgarizzato ed esposto in note esegìetiche e morali, Naples, 1878-80, 3 vols.; La Nuova Italia ed i vecchi zelanti ("The New Italy and the old zealots"), Florence, 1881, German trans., Leipzig, 1882, 2 vols. [in this work, promptly put upon the Index, he attempts to mediate between Church and State in Italy, and to re-organize the parliamentary parties]; Il santo volgarizzato dell'Ebreo ed esposto in note esegìetiche e morali, Rome, 1883; Il Vaticano Regno, torno superstite della Chiesa Cattolica, Florence, 1883; Lo scandalo del Vaticano Regno, 1884; Di un socialismo cristiano nella questione operaia e nel concerto selvaggio degli stati civilì, 1885.

[Advanced in the study of the Scriptures more than any Jesuit of his day, he still moves within the narrow limits of Catholic philosophy. His mind, logically trained, is more in sympathy with scholastic theology than with modern philosophy. Hence his writings, which are prolix and heavy in style, lack the strength, freshness, and breadth of truly scholarly compositions, and have neither artistic nor scholarly qualities. His biblical works have no originality, but are substantially only repetitions of mediæval notions; and his polemical books have only a personal interest, simply expressing a conscientious protest against old abuses in the Church, which neither in strength nor in influence can be compared with the protests of Arnaldo da Brescia, of Savonarola, and in more modern times, of Gioberti or Rosmini. Yet as an example of a noble self-sacrifice, renouncing the favors of a powerful association, and condemning himself to poverty, rather than bend his knee before the idol of vapid temporal authority, Father Curci deserves to be revered by all who hold in honor truth and independence. — V. B.]

CURRIE, George, D.D. (Cambridge, 1862), Church of England; b. near Peekskill, N.Y., Nov. 26, 1809; graduated from the Wesleyan University, 1837; M.A. 1841, B.D. 1850. He was elected fellow of his college, 1839; appointed lecturer, 1840; tutor, 1844; Whitehall preacher, 1845; preacher at the Charterhouse, 1849-71; Hulsean lecturer, 1851-52; Boyle lecturer, 1851; master of the Charterhouse, London, 1871, until his death; since 1872, prebendary of Brownwood in St. Paul's Cathedral; and since 1877, examining chaplain to the bishop of Rochester. He edited Tertullian's De Spectacula, de idolatria, et de corona militis, Cambridge, 1854; and prepared the commentary upon Ezekiel in the Bible (Speaker's Commentary) and that on Ecclesiastes and The Revelation in the S. P. C. K. Commentary.

CURRIER, Albert Henry, D.D. (Bowdoin College, 1883), Congregationalist; b. at Skowhegan, Me., Nov. 15, 1827; became principal of the Troy Conference Academy, 1849; was president of the Indiana Asbury University, 1854; became pastor of the Congregational churches of Ashland (1862) and Lynn, Mass. (1865), and professor of homiletics and pastoral theology in Oberlin Theological Seminary, Oberlin, O., 1868. He contributed to the successive volumes of the Monday Club, Germans upon the International Sunday-school Lessons (Boston), from 1876 to 1882, and articles to The Boston Review, 1865-67.

CURRY, Daniel, D.D. (Wesleyan University, 1852), LL.D. (Syracuse University, 1878), Methodist; b. near Pesekkill, N.Y., Nov. 26, 1809, graduated from the Wesleyan University, 1837; became principal of the Troy Conference Academy, West Point, N.Y., 1837; professor in the Georgia Female College at Macon, Ga., 1839; member of the Georgia Conference, and pastor at Athens, Savannah, and Columbus, 1841; in similar work in the New York Conference 1844; was president of the Indiana Asbury University, Greenscastle, Ind., 1854; member of New-York East Conference, 1857; was editor of the Christian Advocate, 1864-76; of the National Repository, 1876-80; pastor, 1880-84; since 1884 editor of the Metropolitan News, New York. He has written A Life of Wycliffe (New York, 1846); The Metropolitan City of America, 1852; Life Story of CUYLER.

CURRY, Jabez Lamar Monroe, D.D. (Rochester University, 1871), LL.D. (Mercer University, 1867), Baptist; b. in Lincoln County, Ga., June 5, 1825; graduated from the University of Georgia, 1843, and the Harvard Law School, Mass., 1853; was representative in Alabama legislature, 1817-46, 1853–54, 1855–56; Buchanan elector, 1856; member of 35th and 36th United-States Congress, and of the Confederate Congress; president of Howard College, Alabama, 1866–68; professor of English and mental philosophy in Richmond College, Va., 1868–81; general agent of Peabody Education Fund, 1881–85. In October, 1885, he was appointed by President Cleveland, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States of America to Spain. He never has accepted a pastoral charge, although he has been ordained, and has preached frequently. He has issued numerous addresses on political, educational, literary, and religious topics; and one on the Evils of a Union of Church and State, before the General Conference of the Evangelical Alliance in New-York City, 1873 (cf. Proceedings, pp. 544 sqq.).

CURTIS, Edward Lewis, A.B., Presbyterian; b. at Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 13, 1853; graduated at Yale College, 1874, and at the Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1879; was appointed fellow of the seminary; spent two years in study abroad, chiefly at Berlin; in 1881 he was appointed instructor, and in 1884 associate professor of Old-Testament literature, in the Presbyterian Seminary of the North-West, Chicago, Ill.

CURTIS, Samuel Ives, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1876), Lic. Theol. (hon., Berlin, 1878), D.D. (Iowa College, 1878, Amherst, 1881), Congregationalist; b. at Union, Conn., Feb. 5, 1844; graduated at Amherst College, 1867, and at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1870; was pastor of the Alexander Mission, King Street, New York, connected with the Fifth-avenue Presbyterian Church, 1870–72; and of the American Chapel, Leipzig, 1874–78. In 1872 he went to Germany, studied nine months in Bonn (1872–73), and then at Leipzig (1873–78), and received private instruction from Prof. Franz Delitzsch (four years) and Dr. J. H. R. Biesenthal. From 1878–79 he was New-England professor of biblical literature in Chicago (Congregational) Theological Seminary, and since 1879 has been New-England professor of Old-Testament literature and interpretation. He is the translator of Bickell’s Outlines of Hebrew Grammar, Leipzig, 1877; and of Delitzsch’s Messianic Prophecies, Edinburgh, 1880, and Old-Testament History of Redemption, 1881; and author of The Name Machebee, Leipzig, 1878 (his doctor’s thesis); The Lexical Priest, Edinburgh, 1877; De Aaronitici sacerdotii auge theo Elaisthice origine, Leipzig, 1878 (his licentiate thesis); Ingersoll and Moses, Chicago, 1879; and of contributions to Current Discussions in Theology, 1883 sqq. and in periodicals. He is associate editor of the Bibliotheca Sacra.

CUYLER, Theodore Ledyard, D.D. (Princeton, 1866), Presbyterian; b. at Aurora, Cayuga County, N.Y., Jan. 10, 1822; graduated at the College of New Jersey, 1841, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1846; became stated supply at Burlington, N.J., 1846; pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Trenton, 1849; of the Market-street Reformed Church, New-York City, 1853; and of the Lafayette-avenue Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1860. His church reported in 1885 a membership of 2,012. He has contributed 2,700 articles to leading religious papers of America and Europe, and been active in temperance work. He is the author of Stray Arrows, New York, 1852, new ed. 1860; The Cedar Christian, 1858, new ed. 1881; The Empty Crib: A Memorial, 1868; Heart Life, 1871; Thought Hives, 1872; Pointed Papers for the Christian Life, 1879; From the Nile to Norway, 1881; God’s Light on Dark Clouds, 1882; Wayside Springs from the Fountain of Life, 1883; Right to the Point, 1884; Lafayette-avenue Church, 1885 (exercises connected with the celebration of the 25th anniversary of his pastorate, April 6 and 8, 1888).
DABNEY, Robert Lewis, D.D. (Hampden-Sidney College, 1853), LL.D. (do., 1872), Presbyterian (Southern); b. in Louisa County, Va., March 5, 1820; after studying in Hampden-Sidney College, Va., to the beginning of senior year, he entered the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, took the whole M.A. course, then the full theological course in Union Theological Seminary, Va., and graduated in 1840; became missionary in Virginia, 1846; pastor of Tinkling-Spring Church, Augusta County, Va., 1847; professor of church history in the Union Theological Seminary, Va., 1853, and of theology in the same institution, 1859; professor of philosophy, mental, moral, and political, in the State University of Texas, Austin, 1883 (his health requiring a milder climate). From 1858 till 1874 he was co-pastor of the Hampden-Sidney College Church. In 1880 he was a chaplain in the Confederate army, with the Virginia troops; in 1862, chief of staff of the Second Corps under Gen. T. J. Jackson. In 1870 he was moderator of the Southern General Assembly. He has published Memoir of Dr. F. S. Sampson, Richmond, 1854: Life of Gen. Thomas J. Jackson, New York, 1860; Defence of Christianity and the State, 1867; Treatise on Sacred Rhetoric, Richmond, 1870, 3d ed. 1881; Sensualistic Philosophy of the Nineteenth Century examined, New York, 1873; Theology, Dogmatic and Polemic, Richmond, 1874, 3d ed. 1885.

DALE, Robert William, D.D. (Yale, 1877), LL.D. (Glasgow, 1883), Congregationalist; b. in London, Dec. 1, 1829; educated at Spring Hill College, Birmingham (1847-53), graduated M.A. (with gold medal) at the University of London, 1853; and in June of that year was ordained and installed as co-pastor with John Angell James of the Carr's-lane (Congregational) Church, Birmingham, and since Mr. James's death in 1859 sole pastor. In 1880 he was chairman of the Congregational Union of England and Wales. In 1877 he was lecturer at Yale Seminary on the Lyman Beecher foundation. He is governor of King Edward VI.'s School, Birmingham, on appointment of the Senate of the University of London. He takes an active part in religious, political (radical), and educational matters. As for his theology, he is in "general agreement with evangelical theologians, but claims freedom in relation to inspiration of the Scriptures, and differs widely from the traditional evangelical school in principles of criticism and exegesis." His views are most fully set forth in his Epistle to the Ephesians. He "assigns a fundamental position to the relations of the human race to the Eternal Son of God, in whom the race was created. Only by the free consent of the individual man to God's eternal election of him in Christ can he actually realize union with God and the possession of eternal life. The potency of immortality is in the race, and all men survive death and will be judged; but that only those who consent to find the root of their life in Christ will live forever: the rest of the race will sooner or later cease to exist." Besides many articles of importance, addresses separately published, and an edition of Reuss's History of Christian Theology in the Apostolic Age (translated by Annie Harwood, London, 1872-74, 2 vols.), he has issued Life and Letters of the Rev. J. A. James, London, 1861, 5th ed. 1862; The Jewish Temple and the Christian Church, 1865, 7th ed. 1886; Discourses delivered on Special Occasions, 1866; Week-day Sermons, 1867, 4th ed. 1883; The Ten Commandments, 1871, 5th ed. 1885; Protestantism: its Ultimate Principles, 1874, 2d ed. 1875; The Atonement (the Congregational Union lecture for 1875), 1875, 9th ed. 1883 (German trans. from 7th ed., Goth, 1880, also French trans. and New-York reprint); Nine Lectures on Preaching (Lyman Beecher lectures, referred to above), 1877, 5th ed. 1880; The Evangelical Revival, and other Sermons, 1880, 2d ed. 1881; Epistle to the Ephesians: its Doctrine and Ethics, 1882, 3d ed. 1884; The Laws of Christ for Common Life, 1884, 2d ed. 1885; Manual of Congregational Principles, 1884. He edited The English Hymn-book, Birmingham, 1873, containing 1,280 hymns. For a time he was joint editor of The Eclectic Review, and for seven years sole editor of The Congregationalist.

DALES, John Blakely, D.D. (Franklin College, O., 1853), United Presbyterian; b. at Kortright, Delaware County, N.Y., Aug. 6, 1815; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1836, and at the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Newburgh, N.Y., 1839; has been pastor of the First Associate Reformed (now Second United) Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, Penn., since June 4, 1840, and held the following positions: editor in part of Christian Instructor (1840-79); professor of church history and pastoral theology in Newburgh Theological Seminary (1857-76); moderator of the General Assembly (1867); recording secretary of the Presbyterian Historical Society (Philadelphia) since 1851; corresponding secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the United Presbyterian Church, since its organization in 1858; stated clerk of the United Presbyterian Synod of New York since 1863. He is the author of Roman Catholicism, Philadelphia, 1842; Introduction to Lectures on Odd Fellowship, 1851; The Dangers and Duties of Young Men, 1857; History of the Associate Reformed Church and its Missions in the Church Memorials, Xenia, O., 1859; A Memorial Discourse on the fortieth anniversary of his pastorate, Philadelphia, 1882; a Church Manual, 1884.

DALTON, Hermann, D.D. (Kon., Marburg, 1888), German Reformed; b. at Offenbach, near Frankfurt-am-Main, Aug. 20, 1863 (his father was an Englishman); studied at the universities of Marburg, Berlin, and Heidelberg, 1853-56; has been since 1858 pastor of the German Reformed Church in St. Petersburg, Russia, and member of the ecclesiastical council of the Reformed Church.
in Russia; since 1876 founder and chairman of the evangelical city mission. He has published, besides minor works, Nathanael, Vorträge über das Christentum, St. Petersburg, 1861, 3d ed. 1886; Geschichte der reformirten Kirche in Russland, Gotha, 1865; Das Gebet des Herrn in den Sprachen Russlands, Linguistische Studie mit Text in 108 Sprachen, St. Petersburg, 1870; Immannuel, Heidelberger Katechismus als Bekenntniss- u. Erbauungsbuch, der evangel. Gemeinde erklärt und ans Herz gelegt, Wiesbaden, 1870, 2d ed. 1883 (translated into Dutch); Reisebilder aus dem Orient, St. Petersburg, 1871; Die evangelische Bezügung in Spanien, Wiesbaden, 1872 (translated into Dutch); Johannes Gassner, Berlin, 1874, 2d ed. 1876 (translated into Dutch); Reisebilder aus London und Holland, Wiesbaden, 1875; Johannes von Muralt, 1876; Die evangelischen Strömungen in der russischen Kirche der Gegenwart, Heilbronn, 1881 (translated into Dutch, French, and English); Johannes a Luno, Gotha, 1881 (translated into Dutch and English); Reisebilder aus Griechenland und Kleinasiien, Randzeichnungen zu einigen Stellen des Neuen Testaments, Bremen, 1884; Fürerienreise eines evangelischen Predigers, 1885 (with an account of the Royal Academical Institution, Belfast, containing the course in 1832. From 1833 to 1841, when he resigned, he was professor of biblical criticism at Belfast to the Presbyterian body called the General Synod of Ulster. In 1842 he became professor of biblical literature and ecclesiastical history in the Lancaster Independent College at Manchester. In 1857 he resigned this position in consequence of an adverse vote of the managing committee, apparently founded upon the view of inspiration expressed in the second volume of the tenth edition of Horne's Introduction (see below). Dr. Davidson enjoyed the friendship of Tholuck, Hofstedt, Roediger, Erdmann, Bleek, Lucke, Gieseler, Neander, Ewald, Tischendorf, and other distinguished German theologians. His own theological standpoint is rationalistic. His biblical scholarship is evinced by the following works: (1) Lectures on Biblical Criticism, Edinburgh, 1839; (2) Sacred Hermeneutics, 1843; (3) Gieseler's Compendium of Ecclesiastical History, translated from the German, 1846-47, 2 vols.; (4) Ecclesiastical Polity of the New Testament, London, 1848, 2d ed. 1854; (5) Introduction to the New Testament, 1848, 1850, 1851, 5 vols.; (6) A Treatise on Biblical Criticism (superseding No. 1), Edinburgh, 1832, 2 vols.; (7) The Hebrew Text of the Old Testament revised from Critical Sources, London, 1855; The Text of the Old Testament considered; with a Treatise on Sacred Interpretation, and a brief Introduction to the Old Testament Books and the Apocrypha (forming vol. 2 of the tenth edition of Horne's Introduction), 1856, 2d ed. 1859; (9) An Introduction to the Old Testament, critical, historical, and theological, 1862-63, 3 vols.; (10) Fürst's Hebrew and Chaldee Lexicon, translated from the German, 1863, 4th ed. 1871; (11) An Introduction to the New Testament (superseding No. 5), 1868, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1882; (12) On Fresh Revision of the Enthusiasts, 1873; (13) The New Testament, translated from the Critical Text of von Tischendorf, with an Introduction on the Criticism, Traculusion, and Interpretation of the Book, 1875, 2d ed. 1876; (14) The Canon of the Bible, 1876, 3d ed. 1880; (15) The Doctrine of Last Things contained in the New Testament, compared with the Notions of the Jews and the Statements of the Church Creeds, 1885.

DAVIES, John Llewelyn, Church of England; b. at Chichester, Feb. 26, 1826; educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (senior optime and fifth in first-class classical tripos) 1848, M.A. 1851; elected fellow of his college in 1850; was ordained deacon 1851, priest 1852; from 1853 till 1856, incumbent of St. Mark’s, Whitechapel, and since has been rector of Christ Church, Marylebone, London. In 1881 he was appointed a chaplain in ordinary to the Queen, and select preacher at Oxford, and the next year rural dean of St. Marylebone. He was a contributor to Smith’s Dictionary of the Bible, and to Smith and Wace’s Dictionary of Christian Biography. Besides five volumes of sermons, he has published (with Rev. D. J. Vaughan) a translation of Plato’s Republic, London, 3d ed. 1866; The Epistles to the Ephesians, Colossians, and Philemon, with Introduction and Notes, and an Essay on the Traces of Foreign Elements in the Theology of these Epistles, London, 1866, 2d ed. 1884; Theology and Morality, 1873; Social Questions from the Point of View of Christian Theology, 1885.

DAVIS, Peter Selbert, D.D. (Franklin and Marshall College, Penn., 1874), Reformed (German); b. at Funkstown, Md., March 21, 1829; graduated at Marshall College, Mercersburg, 1849; studied in Mercersburg Seminary, and at Princeton; became pastor at Winchester, Va., 1853; teacher at Mount Washington College, 1857; pastor at Norristown, Penn., 1858, and at Chambersburg, Penn., 1864; editor of The Messenger (official organ of the Reformed Church), Philadelphia, 1875. He is the author of The Young Parson, Philadelphia, 1862, 7th ed. 1885, and of review and magazine articles.

DAWSON, Sir John William, G.H.Q. (i.e., Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George), M.A. (London, 1875), LL.D. (McGill 1857, and Edinburgh 1884), F.R.S. (1862), F.G.S. (1854), etc., Presbyterian layman; b. at Picton, Nova Scotia, Oct. 13, 1820; studied at the College of Picton, and at the University of Edinburgh, finishing in 1846; became superintendent of education for Nova Scotia, 1851; principal, and professor of geology, McGill University, 1855. In 1881 he received the Lyell medal of the Geological Society of London for eminent geological discoveries; in 1882 was the first president of the Royal Society of Canada; in 1888, president of the American Association; in 1883 travelled in Egypt and Syria; in 1884 was knighted; in 1885 was president-elect of the British Association for 1886. He became correspondent of the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences, 1846; fellow of Boston Academy Arts and Sciences 1860, of Philadelphia American Philosophical Society 1882; honorary member of the American Geographical Society 1887, and of the New-York Academy of Sciences 1876. He is the author of Acadian Geology, London, 1855, 3d ed. 1868; Archæa, or Studies of Creation in the Bible, 1860; Story of the Earth and Man, 1873; Nature and the Bible (Morse lectures before Union Theological Seminary, New-York City), 1875; Dawn of Life, 1875; Origin of the World, 1877, 4th ed. 1880; Fossil Man, 1880; Chain of Life in Geological Time, 1883; Egypt and Syria, Physical Features in Relation to the Bible, 1885; besides many scientific memoirs in proceedings of societies, etc.

DAY, George Edward, D.D. (Marietta College, 1850), Congregationalist; b. at Pittsfield, Mass., March 19, 1815; graduated at Yale College 1833; was instructor two years in the New-York Institution for the Deaf and Dumb; graduated at the Yale Divinity School 1838, in which he was assistant instructor in sacred literature from 1838 to 1840. For the next ten years he was a Congregational pastor, first in Marlborough, and then Northampton, Mass. From 1851 to 1866 he was professor of biblical literature in Lane (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O.; and since then has been professor of the Hebrew language and biblical theology in the Yale Divinity School (Congregational), New Haven, Conn.; was secretary, from its organization, of the American Bible Revision Committee, in which he served as a member of the Old-Testament Company. He published two extended reports of his personal examination of the condition of deaf-mute instruction in Europe, especially in regard to mechanical articulation, 1845 and 1861; established and edited The Theological Eclectic, a repertory of foreign theological literature, 1863–70, for which he translated from the Dutch, and also published separately, Van Oosterzee’s Biblical Theology of the New Testament, 1871. He also translated, with additions, Van Oosterzee on Titus, for Dr. Schaff’s edition of Lange’s Commentary, New York; and edited the American issue of Oehler’s Biblical Theology of the Old Testament, with an introduction and additional notes, 1883.

DAY, Right Rev. Maurice Fitzgerald, D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1867), Lord Bishop of Cashel, Emily, Waterford, and Lismore, Church of Ireland; b. at Killullah, County Kerry, Ireland, in the year 1816; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; graduated B.A. 1838, M.A. 1855, B.D. 1857; was vicar of St. Matthias, Dublin, 1843–48; dean of Limerick, 1868–72; prebendary of Glauskeel in Cashel Cathedral since 1872; consecrated bishop, 1872. He is the author of The Gospel at Philippi: Sermons preached in St. Matthias Church, Dublin, 1865, 3d ed. 1876; The Church: Sermons preached in Limerick Cathedral, 1870.

DEANE, Henry, Church of England; b. at Gillingham, Dorset, July 27, 1838; was scholar of Winchester College, 1851; fellow of St. John’s College, Oxford, 1856; graduated B.A. (first-class mathematics) 1860, M.A. 1864, B.D. 1869; was ordained deacon 1869, priest 1870; was curate of St. Thomas, Salisbury, 1863–67; of St. Giles, Oxford, 1867–74; mathematical public examiner at Oxford 1888–90, theological 1873–74; senior proctor of the university, 1870–71; vicar of St. Giles, Oxford, since 1874; since 1874 has been assistant lecturer to the regius professor of Hebrew; has been examiner in the law, since 1876, at Trinity College, Dublin; and since 1885, examiner in theology at the University of Durham. He is a fellow of the Society of Antiquaries. He edited the third book of Irenæus, Oxford, 1874; contribu-

DE COSTA, Benjamin Franklin, D.D. (William and Mary College, 1881), Episcopal; b. at Charlestown, Mass., July 10, 1831; graduated at Wibraham Seminary and Biblical Institute, Concord, N.H. (now part of Boston University), 1855; studied and travelled three years on the Continent; was rector in Massachusetts; chaplain of the 5th and 18th Mass. Vol. Infantry, 1861–62; became rector of St. John Evangelist's, New York City, 1880. He edited The Christian Times, 1863, and The Magazine of American History, 1882–83, both published in New-York City. He was first secretary of the Church Temperance Society, 1881; inaugurated the White Cross movement, 1884; and belongs to many learned societies at home and abroad. He is a quite voluminous author, mostly in American history. Among his publications in book form may be mentioned Pre-Columbian Discovery of America by the Northmen, Albany, 1889; The Mound Site, New York, 1870; The Rector (a novel under name of de plume of William Hickling), 1873; edited White's Memoirs of the Protestant-Episcopal Church, 1881; contributed to Bishop Perry's History of the American Episcopal Church 1857–1883, Boston, 1885, 2 vols.; and to The Narrative and Critical History of America, 1886, 2d ed. 1890.

DEEMS, Charles Force, D.D. (Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va., 1850), LL.D. (University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, 1877); b. at Baltimore, Md., Dec. 4, 1820; graduated from Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1839; entered the ministry of the Methodist Church (South); was general agent of the American Bible Society in Europe, 1849–41; professor of logic and rhetoric in the University of North Carolina, 1842–45; and of chemistry in Randolph-Macon College, Va., 1845–46; president of Greensborough Female College, 1850–55; and since 1868 pastor of the Church of the Strangers, an Independent congregation, in New-York City. He edited The Southern Methodist-Episcopal Pulpit from 1846–51, and The Annals of Southern Methodism, 1849–52; The Sunday Magazine, published by Frank Leslie, 1876–79; and since 1883 Christian Thought, the organ of the American Institute of Christian Philosophy, of which he was principal founder, and has been from the beginning (1881) president. He has published Triumph of Peace, and other Poems, New York, 1840; Life of Adam Clarke, LL.D., 1840; Devotional Melodies, Raleigh, N.C., 1842; Twelve College Sermons, Philadelphia, 1844; The Home Altar, New York, 1850, 3d ed. 1881; What Now? New York, 1853; Hymns for all Christians, 1869, new ed. 1881; Forty Sermons preached in the Church of the Strangers, 1871; Jesus, 1872, new ed. (with title, The Light of the Nations), 1880; Weights and Wings, 1872, new ed. 1878; Sermons, 1885.

DE HOOP SCHEFFER.—See HOOP SCHEFFER.

DELTZSCH, Franz, D.D., German Lutheran theologian; b. at Leipzig, Feb. 23, 1813 (of Hebrew descent); studied there, took degree of Ph.D., and became privat-dozent; went thence as ordinary professor to Rostock 1846, thence to Erlangen 1850, and back to Leipzig in 1867, and has since been of that faculty. By reason of his prominent attainments in biblical and post-biblical Hebrew, he has been styled "the Christian Talmudist." His writings are of great value, especially his commentaries. — Der Prophet Habakuk, Leipzig, 1843; in the Keil and Delitzsch series, Job, 1864, 2d ed. 1876 (English trans., Edinburgh, 1866, 2 vols.); Die Psalmen, 1869, 3d ed. 1874 (English trans. 1871, 3 vols.); Das Salomonische Spruchbuch, 1878 (English trans. 1875, 2 vols.); Hosea and Kohah, 1875 (English trans. 1877); Jesaja, 1866, 3d ed. 1879 (English trans. 1867, 2 vols.); independently, Genesis, 1852, 4th ed. 1872; Hebrews, 1857 (English trans. 1870, 2 vols.). His other publications include Zur Gesch. d. jüd. Poesie u. Abschluss d. A. B. bis auf die neueste Zeit, 1839; Jesurun sine prophetenin in Concordianus V. T. a Fuerstia, Grimma, 1838; Anekdoten zur Geschichte der mittelalterlichen Scholastik unter Juden und Moslemen, Leipzig, 1841; Das Sacrament des wahren Leibes und Blutes Jesu Christi, Dresden, 1844, 7th ed. Leipzig, 1886; Die biblisch-prophetische Theologie, Leipzig, 1843; Vier Bücher von der Kirche und der Leviten (English trans., Leipzig, 1877); *Was D. Aug. Rahbing beschworen hat and he dessen will, 1883 (2d ed. same year); Schachmacht, den Blutliingen Mohlinga. Justus entbitten, Irlang, 1847. He has issued with S. Baer, he has issued revised Hebrew texts of Genesis, Ezra, Nehemia, Psalms, Proverbs, Isaiah, Ezekiel, Daniel, and the minor prophets. Dr. Delitzsch's excellent translation of the entire New Testament into Hebrew (1877, 4th ed. 1882) is circulated by the British and Foreign Bible Society. See art. CERTIUS, p. 47. His son is DELITZSCH, Friedrich, Ph.D. (Leipzig); b. at Erlangen, Sept. 3, 1850; became professor of Assyriology at Leipzig, 1877. He is the author of Assyrische Studien, Leipzig, 1874; Assyrische Lexicentücks, 1878; Wo lag das Paradies? 1881; The Hebrew Language viewed in the Light of Assyrian Research, London, 1883; Die Sprache der Kasser, 1884; Studien über indo-germanisch-semitsche Würzeln und verwandtheit, 1884.

DEMAREST, David D., D.D. (College of New Jersey, 1857), Reformed (Dutch); b. in Harrington township, Bergen County, N.J., July 30, 1819; graduated from Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1837, and from the Reformed Dutch Theological Seminary there, 1840; became pastor of the Reformed Dutch Church of Flatbush, Ulster County, N.Y., 1841; (the second) of New Brunswick, N.J., 1843; of Hudson, N.Y., 1852; professor of pastoral theology and sacred rhetoric in the Theological Seminary of New Brunswick, 1855. He has published, besides occasional addresses, History and Characteristics of the Reformed Dutch Church, New York, 1856, 3d ed. n. d.; Practical Catechetics, 1882.

DEMAREST, John Terheun, D.D. (Rutgers College, N.J., 1851), Reformed (Dutch); b. at Teaneck, near Hackensack, N.J., Feb. 20, 1813; graduated from Rutgers College 1846, and at the New Brunswick Theological Seminary 1853; was pastor at New Prospect, N.Y., 1853-49, 1869-71, 1873-85 (emeritus, April 21, 1885); at Minsi-tink, N.J., 1850-52; at Passack, N.J., 1854-67; principal of Harrisburg Academy, 1852-54. He is a Calvinistic presbyterian. He has written Exposition of the Efficient Cause of Regeneration, the Duty and Danger of Negliging the Church's Calling, and the Doctrine of Election, New Brunswick, N.J., 1842; Translation and Exposition of the First Epistle of Peter, New York, 1851; Commentary on the Second Epistle of Peter, 1862; (with W. R. Gordon) Christocracy, or Essays on the Consecration and Kingdom of Christ, with Answers to the Principal Objections of Post-Millarians, 1867, 2d ed. 1878; A Commentary on the Catholic Epistles, 1879.

DENIO, Francis Brigham, Congregationalist; b. at Enosburg, Franklin County, Vt., May 4, 1848; graduated at Middlebury College, Vt., 1871, and at Andover Theological Seminary, 1875; became instructor in New Testament Greek in Bangor Theological Seminary, Me., 1876, and professor of Old Testament language and literature in the same institution, 1882.

DENISON, Ven. George Anthony, archdeacon of Taunton, Church of England; b. at Ossington, Nottinghamshire, Eng., Dec. 11, 1855; educated at Christ Church, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first class in classics) 1882; M.A., fellow of Oriel, and Latin essayist (University prize), 1828; English essayist (d.), 1829; was ordained deacon and priest, 1832; from 1832 till 1838 was curate to the bishop of Oxford; in the latter year he resigned his living because of Broadwine, Dorset, and so remained until 1845, when he became vicar of East Brent, and also examining chaplain to the bishop of Bath and Wells, who in 1851 made him archdeacon of Taunton, and these two positions he held ever since. The archdeacon is an "English Catholic," or, as such are commonly called, an "ultra High Churchman." From 1839 to 1870 he was prominent as a Church champion in the school controversy as between the Church of England and the civil power, which resulted in the Elementary Education Act, the final and decisive victory of the latter; was from 1854 to 1858 publicly prosecuted for maintaining the real presence, but the prosecution ultimately failed. His publications consist of a large number of pamphlets, sermons, charges, letters, etc., and the following volumes: Proceedings against the Archdeacon of Taunton, London, 1854, 1855, 1856; Defence of the Archdeacon of Taunton, 1856; Final Paper put in in Defence, October, 1856; Church Rate a National Trust, 1861; Notes of my Life, 1865-78, 1878, 3d ed. 1879. He translated from the manuscript in the British Museum Saravia on the Holy Eucharist, 1855.

DENTON, William, Church of England; b. at Carisbrook, Isle of Wight, March 1, 1815; educated at Worcester College, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1844, M.A. 1848; was ordained deacon 1844, priest 1845; curate from 1844-50, and since 1850 vicar of St. Bartholomews, Carisbrook, London. His writings upon the condition of the Christian people of Servia and Montenegro, the results of personal investigations, won him the recognition of the Servian king, who gave him the grand cross of the Order of St. Saba (Servia), and cross of the Saviour of Takova (Servia). He has published Commentary on the Sunday and Saints'-Day Gospels in the Communion Office, London, 1861-63, 3 vols., 3d ed. 1875-80; Servia and the Servians, 1862; The Christians under Mussulman Rule, 1863, 3d ed. 1877; Commentary on the Lord's Prayer, 1881; Commentary on the Sunday and Saints'-Day Prayers in the Communion Office, 1870—71, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1873-77; Commentary on the Acts of the Apostles, 1874-76, 2 vols.; Montenegro: its People and their History, 1877; Records of St. Giles's, Cripplegate, 1883; The Antient Church in Egypt, 1883.

DE PUY, William Harrison, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1889), LL.D. (Mount Union College, Ohio, 1884), Methodist; b. at Penn Yan, N.Y., Oct. 31, 1821; graduated at Genesee College, Lima, N.Y.; taught in several institutions; was professor of mathematics and natural philosophy in Genesee Wesleyan Seminary 1851-55, being before and after a pastor; was associate editor of The Christian Advocate, New York, 1865-84. He edits The Methodist Year Book, and has published Thirteen Years and Beyond, or Experiences of the Aged, New York, 1872; and the valuable Methodist Centennial Year Book, 1873-1884, 1894. He is also the author of Home and Health and Home Economics, 1880 (170,000 copies sold up to 1886); editor of The People's Cyclopedia of Universal Knowledge, 3 vols., super royal 8vo, 1882 (100,000 sets sold up to 1886) and The People's Atlas of the World, 1886.

DE SCHWEINITZ. See SCHWEINITZ.

DEUTSCH, Samuel Martin, Lic. THEO. (Jena, 1866), United Evangelical; b. at Warsaw, Feb. 19, 1837; studied at Erlangen 1854-56, Rostock
DEWITT, John, D.D. (Princeton, 1877), Presbyterian; b. at Harrisburg, Penn., Oct. 10, 1842; graduated at the College of New Jersey, 1861; at Princeton and Union Theological Seminary, 1861-65; became pastor of Presbyterian Central Church, Boston, 1869; of Tenth Presbyterian, Cincinnati, 1882. He is the author of Sermons on the Christian Life, New York, 1885.

DEWITT, John, D.D. (Iowa College, 1865), S.T.D. (Yale, 1880), Congregationalist; b. at Plymouth, Mass., Aug. 13, 1821; graduated at Yale College 1840, and at Andover Theological School; at the College of New Jersey, 1861; studied at Princeton and Union Theological Seminaries, 1861-65; became pastor of Presbyterian Church, Irvington, N.Y., 1865; of Congregational Central Church, Boston, 1869; of Tenth Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, 1876; professor of church history in Lane Theological Seminary (Presbyterian), Cincinnati, O., 1882. He is the author of "Sermone on the Christian Life," New York, 1885.

DICKSON, William Purdle, D.D. (St. Andrew's, 1865), LL.D. (Edinburgh, 1885), Church of Scotland; b. at Pettinan Manse, Lanarkshire, Scotland, Oct. 22, 1823; graduated at the University of St. Andrew's, 1851; became minister of the parish of Cameron, Fife, 1851; professor in the University of Glasgow, of biblical criticism 1863, and of divinity 1873. Since 1874 he has been convener of the Education Committee of the Church of Scotland, having charge of the training colleges in Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Aberdeen; and since 1866 the curator of the university library of Glasgow, and hence superintendent of the preparation of the new printed catalogue, of which the alphabetic form was completed in 1885, in twenty volumes, and of the seventeen volumes of the subject catalogue already issued. Besides various articles in Fairbairn's "Imperial Bible Dictionary," Smith's "Dictionary of Christian Biography," "The Academy," "The Expositor," etc., he has published a translation of Momsen's "History of Rome," London, 1862-66, 4 vols., revised ed. 1868; and of Meyer's "Commentary on the New Testament," Edinburgh, 1873-80, 10 vols. (of which ten were revised by him throughout); "St. Paul's Use of the Terms Flesh and Spirit" (fairly lecture for 1853), Glasgow, 1883.

Dike, Samuel Fuller, D.D. (Bowdoin, 1872), Swedenborgian; b. at North Bridgewater (now Brockton), Mass., March 17, 1815; graduated at Brown University, Rhode Island, 1838; has been pastor of the Society of the New Jerusalem, Bath, Me., since 1840; is teacher of church history in the Theological School of the General Convention of the New Church, Boston, and has always taken a prominent part in Maine educational interests. He has published Doctrine of the Lord in the Primitive Christian Church, Boston, 1870, and various occasional and fugitive pieces.

Dike, Samuel Warren, Congregationalist; b. at Thompson, Conn., Feb. 13, 1839; graduated at Williams College 1863, and at Andover 1866; was pastor of the Congregational churches at West Randolph (1868-77) and at Royalton, Vt. (1889-93); since 1891 secretary first of the New- England, and 1899 to the General Theological Reform League. He lectured at Andover Theological Seminary in 1885, upon the family and social problems. He is the author of Some Aspects of the Divorce Question, in The Andover Review, 1884- 85; The Family in the History of Christianity, N. Y., 1885; and in charge of the department of "Sociological Notes" in the Andover Review, 1896, sqq.

Dillmann, Christian Friedrich, August, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1846), D.D. (Heidelberg, 1862), Evangelical Lutheran; b. at Illingen, Württemberg, April 25, 1823; studied in the seminary at Schon- thal, 1836-40; at Tübingen, 1840-45; was assistant pastor at Sersheim, Württemberg, 1845-46; travelled and studied, especially in the philosophical faculties at Paris, London, and Oxford, 1846-48; became repetent (i.e., tutor for three years) at Tübingen, 1849; privat-dozent for the Old Testament exegesis in the theological faculty, 1852; professor extraordinary of theology, 1853; professor of the Oriental languages in the philosophical faculty at Kiel, 1854; professor of theology at Giessen, 1864; and at Berlin, 1869. He has published Catalogus codicum orientalium MSS. qui in Museo Britannico asservantur. P. III. Codices Æthiopici amplectens, London, 1847; Catalogus codicum manusciptorum Bibliothecæ Bodleianæ Oxoniensis. P. VII. Codices Æthiopici, digestis A. Dillmann, Oxford, 1848; Liber Henochi, Æthiopicus, Leipzig, 1851; Das Buch Henoch übersetzt u. erklärt, 1853; Das christliche Ablassbucheck des Morgenlandes, aus den Æthiopischen übersetzt (reprinted from Ewald's Jahrbücher), 1858; Biblia Veternis Testamenti Æthi- topica, Tomus I. Octateuchus. Fasc. 1, Genesis, Ezodum, Lcuiticm (1853). Fasc. 2, Numeros et Deuteronomium (1854). Fasc. 3, Josua, Judicium et Ruth (1855). Tomus II. Fasc. 1 et 2, Libri Regum (1861 and 1871); Grammatik der Æthiopi- schen Sprache, 1857; Liber Jubilæorum, Æthiopicus, 1859; Lexicon linguæ Æthiopicus, 1863; Christo- mathia Æthiopica cum glossario, 1866; Erklärung des B. Hiob (1899), Genesis (1875, 3d ed. 1886), Ezodus u. Leviticus (1890), and Numeri, Deute- ronomium u. Josua (1866),—these commentaries are all in the Kurzgefassten exegetischen Handbuch series; Ascensio Isaia, Æthiopica et Latine, 1877; Verzeichniss d. abessinischen Hilschr. d. k. Bibliothek zu Berlin, Berlin, 1878; Verhandlungen des V. ten internationalen Orientalistenten Congresses in Berlin, 1881; Das Buch der Jubiläen oder die kleine Gene- sis, aus dem Æthiopischen übersetzt (in Ewald's Jahr- bücher der bibl. Wissenschaft, Göttingen, 1849-51); numerous articles, academical addresses, etc.

Dittrich, Franz, D.D. (Munich, 1865), Roman Catholic; b. at Thegsten near Heilsberg, East Prussia, Jan. 26, 1839; studied philosophy and theology at Braunsberg; became priest, 1863; continued his theological studies at Rome and Munich; became privat-dozent at Braunsberg 1866, professor extraordinary 1868, ordinary professor of theology 1873. He is the author of Dionysius der Grosse von Alexandrien, Freiburg-im-Breisgau, 1867.

Dix, Morgan, S.T.D. (Columbia, 1862), D.C.L. (University of the South, 1885), Episcopalian; b. in New York City, Nov. 1, 1827; graduated at Columbia College, N.Y., 1848, and at the General Theological Seminary, 1852; became assistant minister of St. Mark's Church, Philadelphia, 1855, and of Trinity Church, New York, 1855; assistant rector of the Trinity Church, 1856, and rector, 1859. He is president of the Standing Committee of the Diocese of New York; deputy to General Con- vention; trustee (ex officio) of Sailors' Snug Harbor, and of Leake and Watts Orphan House, and president of the board; trustee of General Theo- logical Seminary (and chairman of Standing Committee) of Columbia College, of the Society.
for promoting Religion and Learning, of House of Mercy, Church Orphan Home, Home for Incurables, St. Stephen's College (Amandale, N.Y.), Hobart College (Geneva, N.Y.), Corporation for Relief of Widows and Orphans of Clergymen, Home for Old Men and Aged Couples; vice-president of N. Y. P. E. Public School; executor of three estates and two private trusts, etc. He has published, besides many single sermons, lectures, and articles, Manual of the Christian Life, New York, 1860, new ed. (1867), Manual of the Christian Woman, and her Training to fulfil it, Hamilton, N.Y., 1853, 2d ed. 1855; Second Peek Prize Essay on the Maintenance of the Church of England as an Established Church, 1879; Life of James Dixon, D.D. (his father), Wesleyan Minister, 1874; History of the Church of England from the Abolition of the Roman Jurisdic-1880, vol. iii. (1349-53) 1888; Mano, a Poetical History, 1883; Odes and Eclogues, Oxford, 1884.

DOANE, Right Rev. William Croswell, D.D.
(Columbia College, New York City, 1869). LL.D.
(Union College, New York, 1880), the son of Bishop G. W. Doane of New Jersey, Episcopalian, bishop of Albany; b. in Boston, Mass.,
March 2, 1822; graduated at Burlington
College, N.J., 1859; was professor in the college, 1850-63; rector of St. Mark's, flock, Des Moines, Iowa, 1863-67; rector of St. John's, Hartford, Conn., 1863-67; of St. Peter's, Albany, N.Y., 1867-69; consecrated bishop 1869.
Besides many sermons and pamphlets, he has issued The Life and Writings of Bishop Doane of New Jersey, New York, 1890, 4 vols.; Questions on Collections, Epistles, and Gospels of the Church's Year; and their Connection, Philadelphia, 18—;
Songs by the Way (poems by Bishop G. W. Doane), Albany, 1875; Mosaics; or, The Harmony of Col-cist, Epistle, and Gospel for the Christian Year,
New York, 1882.

DOOD, Thomas John, D.D. (Centre College, Danville, Ky., 1873—), Methodist; b. at Harper's Ferry, Va., Aug. 4, 1837; graduated at Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky., 1857; became Methodist pastor, 1860; president Kentucky
Wesleyan College, 1873; professor of Hebrew, Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., 1876; resigned in 1885, and took charge of a select high school of collegiate course in that city.

DOODGE, Ebenzer, D.D. (Brown University, 1861), LL.D. (University of Chicago, 1869), Baptist; b. at Salem, Mass., April 22, 1819; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1840, and at Newton Theological Institute, Mass., 1845; became pastor at New London, N.H., 1846; professor of biblical criticism in Hamilton Theological Seminary, 1853, of Christian theology 1851, president since 1874; professor of evidences of Christianity in Madison University, Hamilton, N.Y., 1853-61, president since 1868. He has published Evidences of Christianity, Boston, 1860, last ed. 1876; Christian Theology, Hamilton, N.Y., last ed. 1884.

DOODS, Marcus, D.D. (Edinburgh University, 1872), Free Church of Scotland; b. at Belford, Northumberland, Eng., Nov. 20, 1817; educated at the Reformed Church at Hall, near Zutfen, 1843; professor of Hebrew, Yale College, 1852, of Theology in Free Church College, Edinburgh, 1854–58; was licensed to preach the same year, and for the next six years preached in various places, but was not settled or ordained until he came to his present charge, the Renfield Free Church, Glasgow, August, 1864. He has been nominated for chairs of systematic theology and of apologetics in Free Church College, Edinburgh. He has published The Prayer that teaches to pray, Edinburgh, 1863, 5th ed. 1885; The Epistles to the Seven Churches, 1865, 2d ed. 1885; Israel's Iron Age, London, 1883; in issuing The Oxford and Cambridge Magazine, in 1856, which advocated pre-Raphaelite principles. He is the author of Christ's Company, and other Poems, London, 1861; Historical Odes, and other Poems, 1883; Second Peak Prize Essay on the Maintenance of the Church of England as an Established Church, 1879; The Parables of our Lord, 1st series 1883, 2d ed. 1884, 2d series 1885. He edited the English translation of Lange's Life of Christ, Edinburgh, 1864 sq., 6 vols., and of Augustin's works, 1872-76; and Clark's series of Handbooks for Bible Classes, 1879 sq. ; contributed translation of Justin Martyr's Apologies, and other portions of Greek writers, to Clark's Ante-Nicene Christian Library, and the articles Pelagius and Predestina-tion to the 9th ed. Encyclopaedia Britannica.

DOODES, Jacobus Izaäc, D.D. (Utrecht, 1841), Reformed; b. at Langerak, Zuid Holland, Nederlnds, Nov. 20, 1817; educated at the Latin school of Amsterdam, 1838-40; of the University of Utrecht, 1834-41; graduated as doctor of theology, June 16, 1841; became preacher in the Reformed Church at Hall, near Zutfen, 1843; at Rotterdam, 1847; professor of theology in the University of Utrecht, 1859. He teaches New Testament exegesis, hermeneutics, and encyclo-DOELLINGER, Johann Joseph Ignaz, Ph.D. (hon.), Vienna, Marburg, 1873; D.D. (Oxford, 1881), LL.D. (Oxford and Edinburgh, 1873), Old Catholic; b. at Baumberg, Bavaria, Feb. 28, 1799; became chaplain in the diocese of Bamberg, 1822; teacher in the Lyceum at Aschaffenburg, 1829; and since 1829 has been professor of church history in the University of Munich, except from 1847 to 1849, to which position has been added those of Prosp of St. Cajetan, Reichstruth, member of the Academy of Sciences, 1855 (president since 1873 on nomination of the king, which makes him chief keeper of the Bavarian scientific collections). He represented the University of Munich in the Bavarian Parliament of 1845 and 1819, and a Bavarian election district in the Frankfurt Diet in 1848. After 1848 he gradually became an anti-Ultramontanist. In 1857 he made a journey to Rome; and what he saw there, and subsequently learned in the Italian war, 1859, had the effect of confirming him in the views to which his historical studies had brought him. In 1861 he delivered three lectures in Munich, in which he advocated the abandonment by the Pope of all temporal power. The lectures were published as an appendix to Kirche und Kirchen (see list).

He obtained what was the result of his vigorous attack, before and during the Vatican Council, upon the infallibility dogma. He, with his fellow-professor Johannes Huber, wrote Janus, Leipzig, 1869, and Römische Briefe von Concil, von Quirinus, originally in the Augsburg Allgemeine Zeitung. When the dogma was passed, he refused to accept it, and was in consequence excommuni cated April 17, 1871. On July 29, 1873, he was elected rector of the University of Munich, by a vote of fifty-four to six, nor has his excommuni cation decreased his popularity in Bavaria. He presided over the Munich Old-Catholic congress (1871), and was at that of Cologne (1872), but has taken no part in the movement, since he opposes the formation of a separate church. He was president of the Bonn Conferences of 1875 and 1876. Among his numerous books may be mentioned, Lehrbuch der Kirchengeschichte, Regensburg, vol. i, 1836, vol. ii, 1st pt. 1836 (Eng.
lings); By: D. L. P. M. (Berlin, 1838, 2 vols.); Die Reformation, 1846-48, 3 vols., vol. i, 2nd ed. 1851; Luther, eine Skizze, Freiburg-im-Breisgau, 1851; Hippolytus u. Kallistus, Regensburg, 1853 (English translation by Alfred Plummer, Edin DONALDSON.

of the Temple of Christ, London, 1862, 2 vols.; Chri
onic of Tübingen, where he studied philosophy and theology. He visited England and North Germany. In 1834 he became repentin (teaching tutor, or fellow, in the theological department of the university), having two years previous acted as assistant to his father; and in 1837, professor extraordinary of theology in Tübingen. In 1835 David Friedrich Strauss, a colleague of Dorner, published his Life of Jesus, and Dorner issued the first pages of his work of directly opposite tendency, History of the Development of the Doctrine of the Person of Christ, in which the historical Christ of the Gospels is traced through the ages of the Church as the greatest fact in Christian thought and experience. His teacher, Christian Friedrich Schmid, had incited him to take up the work, into which he put his thought and study until its completion in 1838. This work determined Dorner's place among theologians and doctrinal historians, and was a most effectual, though indirect, answer to Strauss and his mythical theory. The work was afterwards greatly enlarged and improved by an exhaustive study of the sources from the apostolic age down to the recent Kenosis controversy. In 1839 he was called to the University of Kiel as ordinary professor, and there remained until 1843. He formed an intimate friendship with Bishop Martensen, the greatest theologian of Denmark; and even the Schleswigs-Holstein difficulty did not disturb it. His principal writing during his Kiel residence is his dogmatic treatise upon the Foundation Ideas of the Protestant Church, in which he maintained that the so-called material and formal principles of the Reformation — i.e., justification by faith, and the supreme authority of Scripture, respectively — were to be considered as two pillars inseparably joined, so that each stands with and through the other. This was his word of comfort to those distressed by Strauss: No criticism can alter the fact that the primitive Church did record in the New Testament, by means of the Spirit proceeding from Christ, its impressions and experiences of Christ's salvation. On the other hand, faith holds fast to the written word. For the Christ who appears in experiences is the Christ of Scripture, which alone enables the Christian to understand and assert faith and the mystery of his new personality. Justification, he used to say, is the only completed fact in the Christian: everything else is growth.

DORNER, August Johannes, Ph.D., Lic. Theol. (both Berlin, 1867 and 1869), D.D. (Hon., Halle, 1883), Protestant (son of the late I. A. Dorner); b. at Schiltach, Baden, May 13, 1846; studied at Berlin; was repentin in Göttingen, 1870-73; since then has been professor of theology and co-director of the theological seminary at Wittenberg. He is the author of De Bacoonis philosophia, Berlin, 1867; Augustinus, sein theologisches System und seine religions-philosoph. Anschauung, 1873; Predigten vom Reiche Gottes, 1880; Kirche u. Reich Gottes, 1888, besides minor publications and review articles.

DORNER, Isaac August, D.D., one of the greatest modern divines and teachers of Germany; b. at Neuhausen, in the kingdom of Württemberg, June 20, 1809; d. at Wiesbaden, July 8, 1884; buried, July 27, in the family vault at Neuhausen, where a plain monument is erected to his memory. He was the sixth of twelve children born to the pastor of Neuhausen, and was educated first by a private tutor, then in the Latin school at Tuttingen. In 1823 he entered the collegiate seminary at Maulbronn; in 1827, ble recollections, and heartily welcomed American students in his hospitable home. The last years of his life were clouded by a painful cancerous affection of his face, and the incurable malady of one of his sons, a promising youth, who lost his mind while studying at college. He bore his trial with meek resignation, and never complained. He continued to work on his Christian Ethics till the last weeks of his life, which he spent at Wittenberg, in view of the Luther house. Then, feeble as he was, he set out with his wife on a journey to Switzerland for rest, and proposed visiting, on the way, the national monument of Germany on the Niederwald, by the Rhine; but was seized with a hemorrhage, and died suddenly at Wiesbaden. His wife followed him a few months afterwards to his eternal rest.

Dr. Dorner was one of the profoundest and most learned theologians of the nineteenth century, and ranks with Schleiermacher, Neander, Nitzsch, Julius Müller, and Richard Rothe. He mastered the theology of Schleiermacher and the philosophy of Hegel, appropriated the best elements of both, infused into them a positive evangelical faith and a historical spirit. The central idea of his system was the divine-human personality of Christ, as the highest revealer of God, the perfect ideal of humanity, and the Saviour from sin and death. His theology is pre-eminently christological, and his monumental history of christology will long remain the richest mine of study in that department. He lectured on exegesis, on New Testament theology, on symbolism, and especially on dogmatics and ethics, in which he excelled all his contemporaries. He was one of the revisers of the Luther Bible, and proposed a correspondence with the Anglo-American Revision Committee, while in New York, 1873, which was carried on for a short time. He was alive to all the practical church questions, and labored in the Oberkirchenratf for synodical church government, and the development of the lay agency and the voluntary principle. He had a deep interest in the work of "inner missions," and was one of its directors.

He was, with Wichern and von Bethmann-Hollweg, one of the founders of the German Church at Wiesbaden; a prominent church leader, and a favorite among students. The Johanneum and the Melanchthon House in Berlin are memorials of his active interest in indigent students. The leading traits in his personal character were purity, simplicity, courtesy, gentleness, humility, and love. Decan Jäger and Dionicus Knapp paid noble testimonies to his virtues, at the funeral (Zur Erinnerung an Dr. Isaak August Dorner, Tuttlingen, 1884); and Dr. Kleinert, as dean of the theological faculty, delivered a eulogy before the University of Berlin, July 26, 1884 (Zum Gedächtniss I. A. D.'s, Berlin, 1884), in which he places him next to Schleiermacher, and calls him "a leader and prophet in the highest sense of the word.

The following is a list of Dorner's publications:

1. Die Lehre von der Person Christi in den ersten vier Jahrhunderten, Stuttgart, 1845; 2d part, Die Lehre von der Person Christi vom Ende des vierten Jahrhunderts bis zur Gegenwart, 3 divisions (bis zur Reformation, 1833; in dem Reformationszeitalter, 1864; bis zur Gegenwart, 1836), Berlin, 1853-56 (English trans., by W. L. Alexander and D. W. Simon, History of the Development of the Doctrine of the Person of Christ, Edinburgh, 1881-82. 3 vols.);
2. Das Christi, insbesondere in Württemberg, and seine spekulativen Gegner, Binder and Märklin, with special reference to the Verhältniss des Priesters und der Kirche, Hamburg, 1840; Das Prinzip unserer Kirche nach dem inneren Verhältniss seiner zwei Seiten betrachtet, Kiel, 1841; De oratione Christi eschatologica Matt. xix. 1-8; Luc. xvi. 5-8; Mark. xii. 1-9; asservata Stuttgart, 1844; Das Verhältniss zwischen Kirche und Staat, aus dem Gesichtspunkte evangelischer Wissenschaft, Bonn, 1847; Sendeschreiben über Reform der evangelischen Landeskirchen im Zusammenhang mit der Herstellung einer evangelisch-deutschen Nationalkirche an Herrn C. I. Nitzsch in Berlin and Herrn Julius Müller in Halle, Bonn, 1848; Über Jesu stündliche Vollkommenheit, Göth, 1862 (translated into English by H. B. Smith, New York); Geschicht der protestantischen Theologie, Munich, 1867 (English trans., History of Protestant Theology, particularly in Germany, viewed according to its fundamental movement and in connection with the religious, moral, and intellectual life, Edinburgh, 1871, 2 vols.); System der christlichen Glaubenslehre, Berlin, 1879-80, 2d ed. 1886, 2 vols. (English trans., by Rev. Prof. Alfred Cave and J. S. Banks, A System of Christian Doctrine, Edinburgh, 1880-82, 4 vols.);
3. Gesammelte Schriften auf dem Gebiete der christlichen Theologie, Exegese und Geschichte, Berlin, 1883 contains his valuable metaphysical essays on the unchangeability of God, and criticism of the Kenotic theory of the incarnation); System der christlichen Sittenlehre (500 pp., edited by August Dorner, his son), Berlin, 1895. He founded and edited, with Lhember, the valuable theological quarterly, Jahrbücher für deutsche Theologie, Gotha, 1866-1878.
DOUGLAS, Hon. and Right Rev. Arthur Gascoigne, D.D. (Durham, 1838), lond bishop of Aberdeen and Orkney, Episcopal Church of Scotland; son of the nineteenth Earl of Morton; b. in Scotland, Jan. 5, 1827; educated at University College, Durham University; graduated B.A. 1848, Lic. theol. and M.A. 1850; was ordained deacon 1850, priest 1852; curate of Kidderminster, 1850-52; rector of St. Olave, Southwark, 1855-56; of Scaldwell, Northamptonshire, 1856-72; vicar of Shapwick, 1872-83; consecrated bishop, 1885.

DOUGLAS, George, LLD. (McGill University, Montreal, 1869), D.D. (Victoria University, Ontâ®rio, 1881), Wesleyan Methodist; b. near Abbotsford, Roxburghshire, Scotland, Oct. 14, 1825; educated in Scotland and Canada; entered the ministry of British Conference, 1848; went as missionary to the West Indies, 1848; entered Methodist Church of Canada, 1854; has been principal of the Wesleyan Theological College, Montreal, since its foundation in 1873. He was president of the General Conference, 1878-82; delegate to Evangelical Alliance Conference in New-York City, 1873, and the (Ecumenical Council of Methodism in London, 1881. He has published various sermons and addresses.

DOUGLAS, George Cunningham Monteaeth, D.D. (University of Glasgow, 1867), Free Church of Scotland; b. at Kilbarchan, Renfrewshire, Scotland, March 2, 1826; graduated B.A. at the University of Glasgow; entered the ministry of the Free Church; and after being pastor as Bridge of Weir, Renfrewshire, was appointed professor of Hebrew and Old-Testament exegesis, later also principal, in the Free Church College, Glasgow. He was one of the Old-Testament revisers, 1870-84. Besides articles in Fairbairn's Imperial Bible Dictionary (London, 1886, 2 vols.), and in The Monthly Interpreter (Edinburgh, 1885, sq.), and a translation with notes of Kell's Introduction to the Old Testament, in Clark's Library (1869-70, 2 vols.), he has published, Why I still believe that Moses wrote Deuteronomy, 1878; and notes on Judges and Joshua, in Dods and Whyte's Handbook for Bible Classes, 1881, 1882.

DOW, Naas, lay-deacon; b. Quaker parents at Portland, Me., March 20, 1804; educated at Friends' Academy, New Bedford, Mass.; was chief engineer of the Portland Fire Department 1888-44, mayor of the city 1851-54; and in 1851 drew up the bill "for the suppression of drinking-houses and tippling-shops," since widely known as the "Maine Law." He immediately set up a public hearing before the committee of the legislature, "which unanimously adopted it, without change. It was printed during the night; and the next day, Saturday, May 31, the bill, being the last day of the session, it was passed without change through all its stages; and on Monday, June 2, it was approved by the governor, and took effect by special provision from that day." It has since been upheld as the settled policy of the State. He was subsequently, for two terms in the Maine Legislature, 1858-59. "In September, 1881, by a popular vote, the prohibition of the liquor-traffic was incorporated into the Constitution of the State by a very large majority, the affirmative vote being nearly three times larger than the negative." He has been three times in England and in Britain as the guest of the United-kingdom Alliance, the largest and most influential temperance society in the world, and has advocated the cause in all parts of the kingdom. He was commissioned by Gov. Washburn colonel of the Thirteenth Maine Volunteers in September, 1881; went immediately to the Department of the Gulf, where he had three separate commands at different times, having been commissioned brigadier-general by President Lincoln soon after his arrival at the Gulf of Mexico, April, 1882. He was twice wounded at Port Hudson, and, being taken to a plantation-house in the rear of the army, was captured in the night by a detachment of Logans cavalry (June 30, 1863), and was taken by many successive stages to Richmond, Va., where he was confined six months in Libby Prison. He was also confined two months at Mobile, being exchanged afterwards for Fitz Henry Lee, March 14, 1864. His health was so far broken down by his experiences at Richmond, that he was not able to resume his duties in the field until the war was practically closed. Since the war he has advocated publicly all over the country "the policy of prohibition of the liquor-traffic as a political necessity and a public duty."

DRIVER, Samuel Rolles, D.D. (by decree of Convocation, 1883), Church of England; b. at Southampton, Oct. 2, 1846; was scholar of New College, Oxford; Pusey and Ellerton Hebrew scholar, 1866; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics), 1868; Kennicott Hebrew scholar, 1870; fellow of New College 1870-82, and tutor 1876-82; Hall and Houghton Syriac prizeman, 1871; Houghton Syriac prizeman, M.A., 1872; ordained deacon 1881, priest 1882; succeeded Dr. Pusey as regius professor of Hebrew and as a canon of Christ Church, Oxford, 1882. In 1884 he was appointed examining chaplain to the bishop of Southwell. In 1875 he became a member of the Old-Testament Revision Company. He has published the following papers: in The Philological Journal (Cambridge), On the Linguistic Affinities of the Elohit (1882), On Gen. zilir. 10, an Exegetical Study (1885); in Studia Biblica (Oxford, 1885), On Recent Theories of the Origin and Nature of the Tetragrammaton; and the following books: A Treatise on the Use of the Tenses in Hebrew, Oxford, 1874, 2d ed. improved and enlarged 1881; (jointly with Ad. Neubauer) The Fifty-third Chapter of Isaiah according to Jewish Interpreters, London, vol. ii. 1877 (translations); (jointly with T. K. Cheyne) The Holy Bible, with Various Readings, 1870, 2d ed. under title Variorum Bible 1880; (as editor) A Commentary on Jeremiah and Ezekiel by Mosheh ben Shesheth, with Translation and Notes, 1871; A Rabbinical Commentary on the Book of Proverbs attributed to Abraham ben Ezra, Oxford, 1880.

DRUMMOND, Henry, B.Sc. F.Q.S., F.R.S.E., Free Church of Scotland; b. at Stirling, Scot-DUCKWORTH, Robinson, D.D. (Oxford, 1879), Church of England; b. at Liverpool, Eng., in the year 1834; was scholar and exhibitor of University College, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1857, M.A. 1859, B.D. 1879; was chaplain-in-ordinary to the Queen, 1867—70; since 1870 he has held the crown living of St. Mark's, Marylebone, London, and been chaplain in ordinary to the Queen; since land, in the year 1852; educated at Edinburgh and Tübingen; in 1879 appointed professor of natural history and science in the Free Church College, Glasgow. He is the author of Natural Law in the Spiritual World, London and New York, 1883, numerous editions.

DUCKWORTH, James, L.L.D. (University of Dublin, 1882), Liberal Christian; b. in Dublin, May 14, 1835; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; graduated B.A. (first gold medal in classics), 1855; studied theology at Manchester New College, London, under Revs. J. J. Taylor and J. Martineau; became minister of the Cross-street Unitarian Chapel, Manchester, 1860; professor of (chiefly New-Testament) theology in Manchester New College, 1870 (as successor of J. J. Taylor, d. 1869), principal, 1885 (on retirement of James Martineau). He is the author of Spiritual Religion: Sermons on Christian Faith and Life, London, 1881; Truths and Untruths of Evolution, Historical Sketch of the First Church of Ghent, N. Y., 1881; The Jewish Messiah: A Critical History of the Messianic Idea among the Jews from the rise of the Maccabees to the closing years of the Talmud, 1877; Introduction to the Study of Theology, 1884; and articles and addresses, e.g., Philo and the Principles of the Jewish Alexandrine Philosophy, 1877; Religion and Liberty, 1882; Retrospect and Prospect, 1885; On the readingStored of St. John's, in John i. 18, Justin Martyr and the Fourth Gospel (in Theological Review, October, 1871, and October, 1875, April and July, 1877, respectively).

DRURY, John Benjamin, D.D. (Rutgers College, 1880), Reformed (Dutch); b. at Rhinebeck, N.Y., Aug. 15, 1838; graduated at Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1858, and at the theological seminary there, 1861; was missionary at Davenport, Ia., 1861—62; has been since 1863 pastor of First Reformed Church, Ghent, N. Y.; was a subscribing member of New- Brunswick Theological Seminary, 1874—76, 1883—85; president particular synod of Albany, 1881; Vedder lecturer, 1883; lecturer in summer school of American Institute of Christian Philosophy, 1885. He has written extensively for the periodical press, and the volumes, Historical Sketch of the First Church of Ghent, 1879; Reformed (Dutch) Church of Rhinebeck, N.Y., 1881; Truths and Untruths of Evolution (Vedder lectures), New York, 1884.

DUBBS, Joseph Henry, D.D. (Urinus College, Penn., 1878), Reformed (German); b. at North White Hall, Lehigh County, Penn., Oct. 5, 1838; graduated at Franklin and Marshall College, Penn., 1856, and at the Mercersburg Theological Seminary, 1859; became pastor of Zion Church, Allentown, Penn., 1859; Trinity Church, Pottstown, 1863; and Christ Church, Philadelphia, 1871; professor of history and archaeology in Franklin and Marshall College, 1875. In 1872 he was elected an honorary member of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, and in 1876 he became a corresponding member of the Ethnographic Society of France; in 1885, a fellow of the Royal Historical Society of Great Britain. From 1882 to 1886 he edited The Guardian. Besides numerous articles in prose and verse, he has published Historic Manual of the Reformed Church in the United States, Lancaster, Penn., 1885 (the fruit of much original research).

DU BOSE, William Porcher, S.T.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1875), Episcopalian; b. at Winnsborough, S.C., April 11, 1836; graduated M.A. at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va., 1859; and studied at the theological School, Camden, S.C., 1859—61; was rector at Winnsborough, S.C., 1865—67; at Abbeville, S.C., 1868—71; chaplain of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1872—83; and since 1872 professor of moral science and also of New-Testament exegesis in the same institution.

DUCHESSÉ, Louis, Roman Catholic; b. at St. Servais (Ille-et-Vilaine), Sept. 18, 1843; studied at Paris, and then, devoting himself particularly to church history, continued his studies in the French school at Rome under teachers for three years (1873—76), during which time, however, he made two journeys,—in 1874 to the Epirus, Thessaly, and Macedonia, and for a time lived on Mount Athos; and in 1876 to Asia Minor. In 1877 he was made a doctor of letters by the Faculty of Paris; and has since been professor of ecclesiastical history in the Catholic Institute at Paris; and since 1880 editor of the Bulletin critique, which he founded. Besides numerous learned articles, he has published the following important books: Mission au Jézéthos et en Macedoine (with Bayet), Paris, 1875; De Macrario Magnete et scriptis ejus, 1877; Étude sur le Liber Pontificalis, 1877; De codicibus MSS. graecis scribitur II., 1880; Vita S. Polycarpi auctore Pionio, 1881; Les origines chrétiennes, 1882. He is now (1885) issuing an edition of the Liber Pontificalis, with introduction and a commentary, in 2 vols. Of his review articles may be mentioned: in Revue des questions historiques, La question de la Pâque au concile de Nicée (July, 1880), Vérité et Étage (October, 1881); in Revue des sciences ecclésiastiques, Les témoins antéchristiens du dogma de la Trinité (December, 1882); in Mémanges d'archéologie et d'histoire ecclésiastiques, 1882; and in the memoirs of the society des antiquaires de France, t. xllii. (1883), La civitas Rhojagenium et l'évêché de Nice.

DUMB, Augustus Waldo, United Brethren in Christ; b. in Madison County, Ind., March 2, 1851; graduated at Western College, 1872, and at Union Biblical Seminary, Dayton, O., 1877; became professor of Latin and Greek, Western College, 1872; pastor, 1877; professor of church history, Union Biblical Seminary, 1880. He has published Life of Rev. Philip William Otterbein, Dayton, O., 1884.

268x461]French sch001 at Rome under teachers for three years (1873—76), during which time, however, he made two journeys,—in 1874 to the Epirus, Thessaly, and Macedonia, and for a time lived on Mount Athos; and in 1876 to Asia Minor. In 1877 he was made a doctor of letters by the Faculty of Paris; and has since been professor of ecclesiastical history in the Catholic Institute at Paris; and since 1880 editor of the Bulletin critique, which he founded. Besides numerous learned articles, he has published the following important books: Mission au Jézéthos et en Macedoine (with Bayet), Paris, 1875; De Macrario Magnete et scriptis ejus, 1877; Étude sur le Liber Pontificalis, 1877; De codicibus MSS. graecis scribitur II., 1880; Vita S. Polycarpi auctore Pionio, 1881; Les origines chrétiennes, 1882. He is now (1885) issuing an edition of the Liber Pontificalis, with introduction and a commentary, in 2 vols. Of his review articles may be mentioned: in Revue des questions historiques, La question de la Pâque au concile de Nicée (July, 1880), Vérité et Étage (October, 1881); in Revue des sciences ecclésiastiques, Les témoins antéchristiens du dogma de la Trinité (December, 1882); in Mémanges d'archéologie et d'histoire ecclésiastiques, 1882; and in the memoirs of the society des antiquaires de France, t. xllii. (1883), La civitas Rhojagenium et l'évêché de Nice.

DUMB, Augustus Waldo, United Brethren in Christ; b. in Madison County, Ind., March 2, 1851; graduated at Western College, 1872, and at Union Biblical Seminary, Dayton, O., 1877; became professor of Latin and Greek, Western College, 1872; pastor, 1877; professor of church history, Union Biblical Seminary, 1880. He has published Life of Rev. Philip William Otterbein, Dayton, O., 1884.
DUDLEY, Charles Densmore, Freewill Baptist; b. at Agency, Wakello County, Io., June 14, 1852; graduated at Hillsdale College, Hillsdale, Mich., 1873, and from the Bates Theological School, Lewiston, Me., 1877; was pastor of Freewill Baptist churches at Scoituate, R. I., 1877-78; Ashland, N. H., 1878-80; Great Falls, N. H., 1881-88; since June, 1883, has been Burr professor of systematic theology, Hillsdale College, Mich.

DUDLEY, Right Rev. Thomas Underwood, D.D. (St. John's College, Annapolis, Md., 1874, and University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1889), Episcopal, bishop of Kentucky; b. in Richmond, Va., Sept. 26, 1837; graduated M.A. at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, 1858; became assistant professor of Latin in it; during the war was major in the commissary department of the Confederate Army; was rector of Christ Church, Baltimore, 1865-71; became professor of systematic theology, Hillsdale College, Mich., 1873, professor extraordinary 1877. He is the author of Paulus apostoli de Judaeorum lege judicia, Gottingen, 1873; Die Theologie der Propheten, 1875.

DULES, John Welsh, D.D. (College of New Jersey, 1872), Presbyterian; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., Nov. 4, 1823; graduated at Yale College, 1844, and at Union Theological Seminary, New York City, 1848; was a missionary of the American Board at Madras, India, 1848-53; secretary American Sunday-school Union, Philadelphia, 1853-57; of the Presbyterian Publication Committee (New School), 1867-70; since 1870 he has been editorial secretary of the Board of Publication of the re-united Presbyterian Church. He has published Life in India, Philadelphia, 1854; Ride through Palestine, 1881.

DUNLOP, Right Rev. George Kelly, S.T.D. (Racine College, Wis., 1880), Episcopal, missionary bishop of New Mexico and Arizona; b. in County Tyrone, Ireland, Nov. 10, 1830; graduated at Queen's University, Galway, 1852, taking the second classical scholarship; became rector of Christ Church, Lexington, Mo., 1856; and of Grace Church, Kirkwood, Miss., 1863; was consecrated bishop, 1880.

DUNN, Ransom, D.D. (Bates College, Lewiston, Me., 1873), Freewill Baptist; b. at Bakersfield, Cal., 1852; graduated at Yale College, 1876, and at Union Theological Seminary, New York City, 1878; professor of church history in the denomination's theological hall, Edinburgh, 1878. He was chairman of the first school board of Row, 1873-76; and since 1882, of that of Edinburgh.

DUFFFIELD, George, D.D. (Knox College, Ill., 1872), Presbyterian; b. at Carlisle, Penn., Sept. 12, 1818; graduated at Yale College, 1837, and at the Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1840; was successively pastor at Brooklyn, N. Y., 1840; Bloomfield, N. J., 1847; Philadelphia, Penn., 1852; Adrian, Mich., 1861; Galesburg, Ill., 1865; Saginaw City, Mich., 1869; evangelist, Ann Arbor, 1874; pastor at Lansing, 1877-80; since 1884 without charge at Detroit. He is one of the regents of the University of Michigan. He has written many hymns, among them the familiar Blessed Saviour, thee I love (1851), and Stand up, stand up for Jesus (1858).
DURNFORD, Right Rev. Richard, D.D. (Oxford, 1870), Lord Bishop of Chichester, Church of England; b. at Sandleford, Berkshire, in the year 1802; educated at Magdalen College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1826, M.A. 1829; was elected fellow of his college; ordained deacon 1830, priest 1831; was rector of Middleton, Lancashire, and also rural dean of Manchester, and surrogate of the diocese, 1835–70; honorary canon of Manchester, 1854–68; archdeacon of Manchester, 1867–70; canon residentiary, 1868–70; consecrated bishop, 1870. He is a leader in educational and philanthropic movements in the Church of England.

DURIEA, Joseph Tuthill, D.D. (College of New Jersey, 1866), Congregationalist; b. at Jamaica, L.I., N.Y., c. 1832; graduated at the College of New Jersey 1856, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1859; became pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Troy, N.Y., 1859; of the Collegiate Reformed Dutch Church, New York City, 1862; of the Classon-avenue Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1867; and of the Central Congregational Church, Boston, Mass., 1879. In 1873 he was elected a director of Princeton Theological Seminary. In 1885 he declined the presidency of Union College, Schenectady, N. Y.

DwIGHT, Timothy, D.D. (Chicago Theological Seminary, Ill., 1869), Congregationalist; b. at Norwich, Conn., Nov. 16, 1828; graduated at Kenyon College, Gambier, O., 1851; tutor there, 1852–54; principal of Milnor Hall, 1855–56; professor in its Western University of Pennsylvania 1844–45, and chancellor 1845–49; since 1854 secretary and editor of "The Evangelical Knowledge Society," and since 1856 corresponding secretary of "The American Church Missionary Society," both of which have their headquarters in New-York City. During the war he was actively engaged in the Christian Commission.

DYKES, James Oswald, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1873), Presbyterian; b. at Port Glasgow, near Greenock, Scotland, Aug. 14, 1835; graduated at University of Edinburgh, M.A., 1854; and studied theology at New College, Edinburgh, 1854–58, and at Heidelberg and Erlangen 1856. In 1859 he was ordained, and installed minister of the Free Church at East Kilbride, County Lanark, Scotland. In 1861 he became colleague of the Rev. Dr. R. S. Candlish, in the pastorate of Free St. George's, Edinburgh; but compelled to resign (1864) by reason of his health, he was from 1864 to 1877 in Australia, and in Victoria delivered theological lectures, and filled other temporary posts in the Presbyterian Church. In 1869 he became minister of the Regent-square Presbyterian Church, London, which position he still holds. He is the author of On the Written Word, London, 1868; The Beuitudes of the Kingdom, 1872; The Laws of the Kingdom, 1873; The Relations of the Kingdom, 1874; (these three were collected in one vol., under title, The Manifesto of the King: an Exposition of the Sermon on the Mount, 1881); From Jerusalem to Antioch: Sketches of the Primitive Church, 1875, 2d ed. 1880; Abraham, the Friend of God: a Study from Old-Testament History, 1877, 3d ed. 1879; Sermons, 1892; The Law of the Ten Words, 1894.
EBRARD, Richard, S.T.D. (Tufts, 1883), University of Pennsylvania, 1882-85; a member of the peace for the county of Essex, and inspector of schools. During his episcopate the episcopal residence has been removed from Elgin to Inverness (1853), and an official residence (1879) and new cathedral built (begun 1866, opened 1869, consecrated 1873). He has published various sermons, charges, pamphlets, etc.

EDERSHEIM, Alfred, Ph.D. (Kiel, 1855), D.D. (Vienna, Berlin, and New College, Edinburgh), Church of England; b. of Jewish parents at Vienna, March 7, 1825. He studied in the gymnasium and university at Vienna; was baptized in Pest, Hungary; pursued his studies at Berlin; in 1843 entered New College, Edinburgh; and in 1849 became minister of the Free Church, Old Aberdeen. Being compelled by ill health to seek a warmer climate, he went to Torquay, southwest England, in 1861, where he gathered a congregation, which built him a church (St. Andrew's). His health again obliging him temporarily to give up preaching, he lived for a while in literary retirement at Bournemouth. In 1875 he was ordained deacon and priest of the Church of England, and for a year was the (unsalaried) curate of the Abbey Church, Christchurch, Hants, near Bournemouth. In 1876 he became vicar of Lodgers, Dorsetshire; resigned in 1883, and removed to Oxford, where he is still living. From 1889 to 1894 he was Warburtonian lecturer at Lincoln's Inn, London. In 1881 he was made honorary M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford; in 1883 M.A. by decree of Convocation of the University of Oxford; and 1894-96 was select preacher to the university. He has also been lecturing in its "Honours School of Theology," upon prophecy. His publications as author, translator, editor, and contributor to dictionaries and serial works, are very numerous (cf. list in Crockford's Clerical

EDKINS, Joseph, D.D. (Edinburgh University, 1875), Congregationalist; b. at Nailsworth, Gloucestershire, Eng., Dec. 19, 1823; studied at Coward College and St. Andrews College, London; graduated at London University, B.A., 1843; was missionary of London Missionary Society in China, 1848—80; translator of scientific and other books into the Chinese language, in the Chinese Imperial Maritime Customs service, 1880—85. He was a member of the committee for translating the New Testament into Chinese. He is the author of the following works in Chinese: Rufutation of the Principal Errors of Buddhism; General View of Western Knowledge, 1885; sixteen scientific and historical primers rendered into Chinese. In English: Grammar of the Shanghai Dialect, Shanghai, 1858; Grammar of the Mandarin Colloquial Language, 1857, 2d ed. 1863; Religious Condition of the Chinese, London, 1859 (2d ed., entitled Religion in China, 1878; 3d ed. 1884); Progressive Lessons in the Chinese Language, 1862, 4th ed. 1886; Vocabulary of the Shanghai Dialect, Shanghai, 1869; China's Place in Philology, London, 1870; Introduction to the Study of the Chinese Characters, 1876; Chinese Buddhism, 1880.

EDMOND, John, D.D. (Glasgow University, 1861), Presbyterian; b. at Balfron, Stirlingshire, Scotland, Aug. 12, 1816; studied in Glasgow University, 1832—35, and in Anderson's University, 1835—38, and was ordained as colleague of Dr. James Stark, Dennyloanhead, 1841; inducted to Regent Place, Glasgow, 1850; to Islington (now Highbury), London, 1860. He was moderator of the United Presbyterian Synod, 1871; and of the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of England, 1883; with Dr. Norman McLeod, represented the United Presbyterian Synod at the First General Assembly of the re-united Presbyterian Church in the United States, at the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church of America, Pittsburgh, and the first General Assembly of the Canada Presbyterian Church, Toronto, — all in 1870. He is a "liberal Calvinist,—a disciple of the Marrow school." He is the author of The Children's Charter, Glasgow, 1859; The Children's Church at Home, London, 1861—63, 2 vols., 4th ed. 1872, 1 vol.; Scripture Stories in Verse, with Sacred Songs and Miscellaneous Pieces. Edinburgh, 1871.

EDWARDS, William, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1865), Welsh Calvinistic Methodist; b. at Pwllcewanon, near Aberystwyth, Wales, Oct. 27, 1809; graduated M.A. at the University of Edinburgh, 1836; has been principal of the Welsh Calvinistic Methodist College, Bala, Wales, since its foundation in 1837; was moderator of the General Assembly of the denomination, 1866 and 1876.

EELLS, James, D.D. (New-York University, 1861), LL.D. (Marietta College, O., 1881), Presbyterian; b. at Westmoreland, Oneida County, N.Y., Aug. 27, 1832; graduated at Marietta College, 1844, and from Auburn Theological Seminary, 1851; pastor (N. S.), Penn Yan, N.Y., 1851—54; Cleveland (Second Church), O., 1855—59, 1870—74; Brooklyn (Reformed Dutch Church, Brooklyn Heights), N.Y., 1858—67; San Francisco, Cal. (Presbyterian Church), 1867—70; Oakland, Cal., 1874—79; professor of practical theology and apologetics in San-Francisco Theological Seminary, 1877—79; and of practical theology and church polity in Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O., from 1879 till his death, March 9, 1886. He was moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly in 1877, at Chicago; he has written Memorial of Samuel Eells, 1872, occasional sermons, etc.

EGLI, Emil, Lic. Theol. (Konstanz, Zürich, 1884), Swiss Protestant; b. at Flasch, Canton Zürich, Jan. 9, 1848; studied theology at Zürich, 1866—70; was curate at Cappel, 1870—71; pastor at Dynourd, 1871—76; Assenswil, since 1885 (all these places are in Canton Zürich); since 1880 he has been privatdozent of church history in the University of Zürich. Since 1873 he has been a member of the Volkmar Theological and Historical Society at Zürich. He is the author of Feldzüge in Armenien, Beiträg zur Kritik des Tacitus (in Büdinger's Untersuchungen zur Röm. Kaisergeschichte, Leipzig, 1868); Schrift von Cappel, Zürich, 1873; Les origines du Nouveau Testament, Geneva, 1873; Züricher Wiedertäufer zur Reformationszeit, Zürich, 1875; Actensammlung zur Züricher Reformationsgeschichte, 1879; Martirium des Polycarp und seine Zeit (in Hilgenfeld's Zeitschrift f. wissenschaftl. Theol. 1881); Lucian und Polycarp (ib., 1883); edited Zweigls Lehrbüchlein, Zürich, 1884; Luther und Zwingli in Marburg (in the Theol. Zeitschrift a. d. Schweiz, 1884).

EHRENFELD, Charles Lewis, Ph.D. (Wittenberg College, 1877), Evangelical Lutheran; b. near Milton, Ind., as colt; graduated at Wittenberg College (1856) and Seminary (1860), Springfield, O.; was tutor in Wittenberg College, 1857—59; pastor at Altoona, Penn., 1860—63; Shippensburg, 1863—65; Hollidaysburg, 1865—71; principal S.W. Pennsylvania State Normal School, 1871—77; financial secretary State (Penn.) department of public instruction, 1877—78; State librarian, 1878—82; and since has been professor of English literature and Latin at Wittenberg College.

EKMAN, Erik Jakob, Swedish Congregationalist; b. at Strömshoro, a suburb of Gefe, Sweden, Jan. 8, 1842; graduated at Upsala, 1862; ordained minister in the Lutheran State Church, 1864; was promoted to komminister at Ogkelö, 1868; passed pastoral examination at the University of Upsala, 1871; resigned his office in the State Church, Sept. 1, 1879, and became director of the Mission Institute at Kristinehamn, and president of the Swedish Mission Association. He is the author of the following works in Swedish: The Lord is my Light, Stockholm, 1877, 3d ed. 1881; God has done it, 1878, 3d ed. 1881; The Obedience of Faith, Gefe, 1878; The Suffering and Crucified...
ELLICOTT. 65 ELLIS.

ELLICOTT, Right Rev. Robert Woodward Barnwell, D.D. (University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1874), Episcopal, missionary bishop of Western Texas; b. at Beaufort, S.C., Aug. 16, 1840; graduated at South-Carolina College, Columbia, 1861; was missionary in Georgia, 1868; assistant minister in Church of the Incarnation, New York, 1870; rector of St. Philip's, Atlanta, Ga., 1871; consecrated, 1874. He was aide-de-camp to Gen. Ar. R. Lawton, C.S.A., 1861-63; wounded at second battle of Manassas, Aug. 28, 1862; promoted to be assistant adjutant-general of division, October, 1863; surrendered at Greensborough, N.C., with Gen. J. E. Johnston's forces, May 10, 1865.

ELLIS, George Edward, D.D. (Harvard University, 1857), LL.D. (the same, 1883); b. in Boston, Mass., Aug. 8, 1814; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1833, and at the Harvard Divinity School 1857; pastor of the Harvard Church, Charlestown, Mass., 1840-43; professor of doctrinal theology in Harvard Divinity School, 1857-63. He is the president of the Massachusetts Historical Society. He edited for many years the Christian Register and Christian Examiner. He has delivered several courses of lectures before the Lowell Institute. He has published The Half-Century of the Unitarian Controversy, Boston, 1857; Aims and Purposes of the Founders of Massachusetts, 1869; Memoir of Jared Sparks (1869), of Count Rumford (1871), of Jacob Bigelow, M.D. (1881), and of Nathaniel Thayer; History of the Battle of bunker's Hill, 1875; Introduction to the History of the First Church in Boston, 1880-1886, 1882; The Real Man and the Wax Man, 1882; Lives of Anne Hutchinson, John Mason, and William Penn, in Sparks's American Biographies; Address at the Consecration of Woodlawn Cemetery, 1851; Oration before the City Government, on the Centennial of the Evacuation of Boston by the British Army, 1876; A History of the Unveiling of the Statue of John Harvard, Cambridge, 1884; Address on a Memorial of Chief Justice Sewall, in Old South Church, Boston, 1884; and several chapters in the Church party. He is the author of Sermons on Subjects of the Day, London, 1871-74.
ELMSLIE, William Gray, M.A., English Presbyteriant; b. at Inshie, Aboyne, Scotland, Oct. 5, 1818; graduated with first-class honors at the University of Aberdeen, 1838; studied theology at New College, Edinburgh, Berlin, and in Paris; became assistant professor of natural philosophy at Aberdeen, 1869; minister of Willesden Church, 1873; and professor of Hebrew in London Presbytery College, 1883.

EMERTON, Ephraim, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1870), Unitarian; b. at Salem, Mass., Feb. 18, 1851; graduated at Harvard College, 1871; became instructor in history in Harvard University, 1878; and Winn professor of ecclesiastical history, 1882.

ENDERS, Ernst Ludwig, D.D. (Erlangen, 1883), Lutheran; b. at Frankfurt-am-Main, Germany, Dec. 27, 1838; studied at Heidelberg, Erlangen, and Tubingen, 1852-55; has been pastor at Ober-rad, near Frankfurt-am-Main, since 1863. He is the editor of the second edition of the Erlangen edition of Luther's works (1. Predigten, 1862-81, 21 vols.; 2. Reformatiions-historische und polemische deutsche Schriften, 1883-85, 3 vols.; 3. Briefwechsel, vol. i., 1507—March, 1519), 1884, all published at Frankfurt-am-Main, except the first six vols.

ENGLISH, John Mahan, Baptist; b. at Tully-town, Bucks County, Penn., Oct. 20, 1845; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1870, and at Newton Theological Institution, 1875; became pastor in Gloucester, Mass., 1873; in Boston, 1882; and professor of homiletics, pastoral duties, and church policy, in Newton Theological Institution, Mass., 1882.

ERDMANN, (Christian Friedrich) David, D.D., German Protestant theologian; b. at Goeßebiesie, July 28, 1821; studied at Berlin, 1843-47; became priester-docent there of theology 1853, ordinary professor at Königsberg 1856, and general superintendent and honorary professor at Breslau 1864. He is the author of Lieben und Leiden der ersten Christen, Berlin, 1854; Prima Joannis epistola argumentum nezus et consilium, 1855; Die Reformatio und ihre Märtyner in Italien, 1855; Der Brief des Jakobus, erklärt, 1881; Luther und die Hohenzollern, 1882.

ERRETT, Isaac, M.A. (hon., Bethany College, Bethany, W. Va., 1867), Disciple; b. in New York City, Jan. 2, 1820; self-educated since his tenth year; has labored as farmer, miller, lumberman, bookseller, printer, school-teacher, pastor, preacher, and editor; became pastor of the Church of the Disciples at Pittsbug, Penn., 1840; New Lisbon, O., 1844; North Bloomfield, 1849; Warren, 1851; Muir and Ionia, Mich., 1856; Detroit, 1863; Muir and Ionia, 1865; Cleveland, 1866; retired, 1868; Chicago, 1870-71. He was corresponding secretary of Ohio Christian Missionary Society 1853-56, and president 1856-71; corresponding secretary of the American Christian Missionary Society 1857-60, and president 1874-76; president of the Foreign Christian Missionary Society since 1875. He was president of Alliance College, Alliance, O., 1868-69; declined elections to the presidency of Agricultural and Mechanic College, Kentucky University, Lexington, Ky. (1869), and to the presidency of historical literature in Bethany College, Bethany, W. Va. (1869), and to the professorship of homiletics in the College of the Bible, Kentucky University, Lexington, Ky. (1880). In 1884 he became a member of the International Sunday-school Committee; in 1885, one of the Council of the American Congress of Churches; in 1886, one of the executive committee of the Law and Order League of Cincinnati, O., where he has resided since 1869. He was associated with Alexander Campbell (d. 1866) in editing The Millennial Harbinger: since 1866 he has been editor-in-chief of The Christian Standard, the denominational organ. He is the author of Modern Spiritualism compared with Christianity: a Debate between Joel Tiffany, Esq., of Painsville, O., and Rev. Isaac Errett of Warren, O. (a Phonomorphic Report by J. D. Cox, Esq.), Warren, O., 1855; Brief View of Christian Missions, Ancient and Modern, Cincinnati, 1857; First Principles; or, The Elements of the Gospel, 1867 (twenty thousand copies issued); Walks about Jerusalem; a Search after the Landmarks of Primitive Christianity, 1883, 2d ed. 1885; Life and Writings of George Edward Flower, 1885; Our Position: a Brief Statement of the Plea urged by the People known as Disciples of Christ, 1885 (about seventy-five thousand have been issued).

EVANS, Llewelyn Ioan, D.D. (Wabash College, O., 1872), Presbyterian; b. at Teeudrnn, near Mold, North Wales, June 27, 1833; studied at Welah Presbyterian College, Bala, 1846-49; graduated at Racine College, Wis., B.S. 1854, B.A. 1856, and at Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O., 1860; became successively pastor of the Seminary Church, 1860; professor of church history, 1863; of biblical literature and exegesis, 1867; of New Testament Greek and exegesis, 1875. He was a member of the Wisconsin legislature, 1856-57; and corresponding editor of The Central Christian Herald, 1863-66. He translated and edited Zockler's commentary on Job, in the American Lange series, New York, 1874; and has published pamphlets, discussions, and books.

EVANS, Thomas Saunders, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1885), Church of England; b. at Belper, Derbyshire, March 8, 1816; entered St. John's College, Cambridge; received Porson prize 1838; graduated B.A. 1839, M.A. 1845; was ordained deacon 1844, priest 1846; was assistant master of Rugby School; since 1862 canon residentiary of Durham, and professor of Greek and classical literature in the University of Durham. He has contributed to the Sabrina Corolla and to The Expositor (1882-88, on the Revised Version of the New Testament); and published Tennyson's (Ervine translated into Latin Hexameters, Cambridge, 1873; Commentary on Dame Corinne in The Speaker's Commentary, London, 1881; The Nihilist in the Hayfield: a Latin poem, 1882.)

EVERETT, Charles Carroll, D.D. (Bowdoin, 1870, Harvard, 1874), Unitarian; b. at Brunswick, Me., June 19, 1829; graduated at Bowdoin College 1850, and at the Harvard Divinity School 1858; tutor (1853-55) and professor of modern languages at Bowdoin (1855-57); minister of Unitarian Church, Bangor, Me., 1859-69; since 1869 has been Bussey professor of theology in Harvard University, and since 1878 dean of the Harvard Divinity School. He has published The Science of Thought, Boston, 1869; Religions before Christianity: a Manual for Sunday Schools, 1883; Fichte's Science of Knowledge, Chicago, 1884.

EWALD. (Heinrich August) Paul, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1881), Lic. Theol. (Leipzig, 1883), German Protestant; b. at Leipzig, Jan. 13, 1857; studied at Leipzig and Erlangen, 1875-79; member of the Prediger Collegium of St. Paul's, Leipzig, 1880-82; became privat-docent of theology at Leipzig, 1883. He is the author of Der Einfluss der stoisch ciceronianischen Moral auf die Darstellung der Ethik bei Ambrosius, Leipzig, 1881; De vocis Metr in apud scriptores novi testamenti, commentatio et biblico-historica et biblico-theologica, 1883; edited the 4th ed. of Winer's Comparative Darstellung des Lehrbegriffs der verschiedenen christlichen Kirchenparteien, 1882.

EXCELL, Joseph Samuel, M.A., Church of England; b. at Melksham, Wilts, May 29, 1849; educated at Taunton and Sheffield Colleges; was ordained deacon 1881, priest 1882; was curate of Weston-super-Mare, 1881-84; and since vicar of Townstall with St. Saviour, Dartmouth, Devonshire. He is, with Canon Spence, joint editor of The Pulpit Commentary, London, 1880 sqq., and of The Homiletical Library, 1882 sqq.; and, with Canon Spence and Rev. C. Neil, of Thirty Thousand Thoughts, 1883 sqq.; sole editor of The Homiletical Quarterly since 1880; of Heart Chords, 1883 sqq.; and of The Monthly Interpreter, 1883 sqq. He has independently published Practical Readings in the Book of Jonah, and Homiletical Commentary on the Book of Genesis, 1885.

EYRE, Most Rev. Charles, archbishop of Glasgow, Roman Catholic; b. at Askam Bryan Hall, York, in the year 1817; educated at Ushaw College, Durham, and at Rome; was senior priest at St. Mary's Cathedral, Newcastle, 1847-68; appointed in 1868 archbishop for the western district and delegate apostolic for Scotland; consecrated at Rome, Jan. 31, 1869, by the title of Archbishop of Anazarba in partibus infidelium; but when the Roman-Catholic hierarchy was restored in Scotland, March 4, 1873, he was appointed archbishop of Glasgow. He published History of St. Cuthbert, London, 1849, 8d ed. 1888.
FAIRBAIRN, Andrew Martin, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1878), Congregationalist; b. in the neighborhood of Edinburgh, Nov. 4, 1838; graduated from Edinburgh University, 1860; studied theology at the Evangelical Union Theological Hall, Glasgow, 1860-61, and at Berlin under Dorner, 1866-67; became pastor of Independent Church at Bathgate, Scotland, 1861 (during 1866 and 1867 absent in Berlin to study under Dorner); at Aberdeen, 1872; principal and professor of theology in the Congregational Theological Institution, Airdale College, Bradford, Eng., 1877; principal of Mansfield College, Oxford, 1886. He was Mair lecturer on the science of religion in the University of Edinburgh, 1878-83. He is the author of "Studies in the Philosophy of Religion and History," London, 1876, New York, 1877; "Studies in the Life of Christ," 1880, 4th ed. 1885, New York, 1882; "The City of God, a Series of Discussions in Religion," 1883, 2d ed. 1885; "Religion in History and in Life of To-day," 1884, 2d ed. 1885; and since 1871 has constantly contributed to the "Contemporary Review" on philosophical and theological subjects, his special field of work being the philosophy and history of religion.

FAIRCILD, James Harris, D.D. (Hillsdale College, Mich., 1864), Congregationalist; b. at Stockbridge, Mass., Nov. 25, 1817; graduated at Oberlin College, O., 1838, and has been connected with it since 1839, as professor of languages, 1842-47; of mathematics, 1847-58; of moral philosophy and theology, 1858-66, which chair has since 1866 been held by him along with the presidency. He has published "Moral Philosophy," New York, 1869; "Oberlin, the College and the Colony," 1883; "Oberlin, and edited Memoirs of Rev. C. G. Finney," New York, 1876, and Finney's "Systematic Theology," Oberlin, 1876.

FALLOWS, Right Rev. Samuel, D.D. (Lawrence University, Wis., 1864), Congregationalist; b. at Pemberton, near Manchester, Eng., Dec. 15, 1835; graduated at Lawrence University, Wis., and at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis., graduated as valedictorian at the latter, 1859; was vice-president of Galesville University, Wis., 1856-61; chaplain of the 32d Regiment Wis. Vols., 1862; professor elect of natural sciences, Lawrence University, Wis., 1863; lieutenant-colonel 40th Wis. Vol. Infantry, and colonel 49th, 1864-65; promoted brevet-brigadier-general for meritorious services; was State superintendent of public instruction for the State of Wisconsin, 1870-73; professor elect of logic and rhetoric in the University of Wisconsin, 1873; president of Illinois Wesleyan University, Bloomington, Ill., 1874-75. From 1857 to 1875 he was a minister of the Methodist-Episcopal Church; in 1875 he became rector of St. Paul's Reformed Episcopal Church, Chicago; in 1876 was elected bishop, and given the missionary jurisdiction of the West, and still unites this with his rectorship. While superintendent of public instruction of Wisconsin he devised, and carried out through legislative action, the plan of bringing all the high and common schools of the State into direct connection with the University of Wisconsin. He also perfected the institute plan of instruction for teachers, now in operation in that State. While president of the Illinois Wesleyan University, he inaugurated in America the plan of conferring collegiate degrees, especially the higher ones, upon non-resident students and graduates, based upon a thorough written as well as oral examination on a prescribed course of study, akin to the plan pursued by the London University. He delivered, as the representative of the West, one of the addresses before the American Bible Society in Philadelphia, 1872; as fraternal delegate, addressed the General Conference of the Methodist-Episcopal Church at Cincinnati, O., 1880; delivered the annual oration before the Society of the Army of the Tennessee, at Cleveland, O., 1883. In theology he is an Arminian. He founded in 1876, and for four years edited, "The Appeal," the first distinctively Reformed Episcopal Church paper, published in Chicago, Ill. (now incorporated with "The Episcopal Recorder," New York). He is the compiler and editor of "Bright and Happy Homes," Chicago, Ill., 1881 (several editions); "Synonyms and Antonyms," 1883; "Abbreviations and Contractions," 1883; "Britannica, Americanism, Colloquial and Provincial Words and Phrases," 1883 (all three in the "Standard Handbook Series"); "Liberty and Union," Madison, Wis., 1883; "The Home Beyond," Chicago, Ill., 1884, last ed. 1886; "The Progressive Dictionary" (a supplement to all the standard dictionaries of the English language), 1885; "Past Noon," Cincinnati, O., 1886.

FARRAR, Adam Storey, D.D. (Oxford, 1864), F.G.S., F.R.A.S., Church of England; b. in London, April 20, 1826; educated at St. Mary's Hall, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class classics and second-class mathematics), 1849; Arnold historical prizeman, Denyer's theological prizeman, 1850; M.A. (Queen's College), 1852; B.D., 1864. He was ordained deacon 1852, and priest 1853; was Michel fellow of Queen's College, Oxford, 1852-68; public examiner in classics and mathematics, 1854-66; tutor of Wadham College, 1855-64; select preacher at Oxford, 1862-67, 1869-70; preacher at Whitehall, 1858-60; Bampton lecturer, 1862; select preacher at Cambridge, 1875 and 1881. Since 1864 he has been professor of divinity and of ecclesiastical history in the University of Durham; since 1868 an examining chaplain to the bishop of Peterborough; since 1878 a canon of Durham. He has published "Science in Theology" (university sermons), London, 1859; "Critical History of Free Thought" (Bampton lectures), 1862; and miscellaneous sermons and lectures.
FARRAR.

69

FFOULKES.

ated B.A. from University of London, and was appointed university scholar, 1852. He went to Cambridge, entered Trinity College, took the chancellor's prize for English verse (see below), 1852; graduated B.A. (fourth in first-class classical tripos, 21st in mathematics, 1854); was elected fellow; was Le Bas classical prizeman 1856, and Norrissian prizeman 1857; graduated M.A. 1857, B.D. 1872. He was ordained deacon 1854, and priest 1857; was assistant master in Harrow School, 1854-71; and head master of Marlborough College, 1871-76. He was select preacher at Cambridge, 1865-68, 1872, 1874, and frequently since; honorary chaplain to the Queen, 1869-73, and since 1873 chaplain in ordinary; Hulsean lecturer (Cambridge) 1870, and Hampton lecturer (Oxford) 1885. In 1870 he was installed rector of St. Margaret, Westminster, and canon of Westminster; and on April 24, 1885, was appointed archdeacon of Westminster, and rural dean of St. Margaret and St. John the Evangelist, Westminster. Archdeacon Farrar has done much to improve public-school instruction and to promote total abstinence.

He is the author of the following works: The Arctic Regions (chancellor's prize, 1848); History of Language, 1865, and Families of Speech, 1867; Christian Doctrine of the Atonement (Norrissian prize, 1857); the three works of fiction for boys: Eric, or Little by Little, 1857, 20th ed.; Julian Home, 1859, 10th ed. 1882; and Winifred's, or the World of School, 1863, 13th ed.; the three works of fiction on the New Testament: Gospel according to St. Matthew, 1876, 4th ed.; Gospel according to St. Mark, Harper, 1868; bishop; 1885. He is the author of the following works: The History of the Lower Animals, 1858; vols. ii. and iv. of the Critical and Explanatory Pocket-Bible, Glasgow, 1862, 4 vols.; vols. iii., iv., and vi. of the Critical, Experimental, and Practical Commentary (Jameson, Fausset, and Brown's), 1868; Hulsean Lectures, London, 1877, 2d ed. 1885; The Church and the World, 1878; The Englishman's Bible Cyclopedia, 1879; The Millennium, 1880; The Signs of the Times, 1881; Prophecy a Sure Light, 1882; The Latter Rain, 1888; True Science confirming Genesis, 1884; The Personal Antichrist, 1889; Spiritualism, 1885: Expository Commentary on the Book of Judges, 1885.

FERGUSSON, Right Rev. Samuel D., Episcopalian, missionary bishop of West Africa; b. in Charleston, S.C., Jan. 1, 1842; emigrated to Liberia, 1848; educated in the mission schools; became rector of St. Mark's, Harper, 1868; bishop, 1885. He was editor of The Christian Intelligencer, New York (the denominational organ), 1885; editor of The Christian Intelligencer, New York (the denominational organ), 1883.

FFOULKES, Edmund Salisbury, Church of England; b. at Erith, Kent, Jan. 12, 1819; educated at Jesus College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (second-class classics) 1841, M.A. 1844, B.D. 1851; was appointed fellow and tutor of his college; entered the Roman-Catholic Church, 1855; returned to Church of England, 1870; was select preacher at Oxford, 1875-76; became rector of Grand Rapids (First), Mich., 1892; corresponding secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed Church in America, 1865; editor of The Christian Intelligencer, New York (the denominational organ), 1883.
FIELD, Frederick, Church of England; b. in London, in the year 1801; d. at Norwich, April 19, 1885. He was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he graduated B.A. (Tyrwhitt's Hebrew scholar, tenth wrangler, and chancellor's medallist) 1825, M.A. 1828, hon. LL.D. 1875; was fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, 1824-49; rector of Reepham, Norwich, 1849-63; and held honorary fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, 1875. He was a member of the Old Testament Revision Company. He edited the Greek text of Chrysostom's Homilies on Matthew, Cambridge, 1839, 3 vols., and all the Pauline Epistles, 1849-62, 7 vols.; Barrow's Treatise on the Pope's Supremacy, London, 1851; Grabe's text of the Septuagint, Oxford; Oium Norvicensis (I. Tenlemen de reliquis Aquilia, Symmachia, Theodotionis et lingu Syriaca in Graecam convertendis; II., Tenaman de quibusdam vocabulis Syro-Grtecis; I11., Notes on Select Passages of the Greek Testament, 3 parts, 1884, 1876, 1881; Origines Heretaorum qua supersunt, 1876-74, 2 vols.; Sermons, 1878.

FIELD, Henry Martyn, D.D. (Williams College, 1862), Presbyterian; b. at Stockbridge, Mass., April 3, 1822; graduated at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1838, and at West Windsor Hill (now Hartford) Theological Seminary, Conn., 1841; studied at Yale Divinity School, New Haven, Conn., 1841-42; was pastor in St. Louis, Mo., 1842-47; at West Springfield, Mass., 1850-54; from 1864 has been an editor and proprietor of The Evangelist, a Presbyterian denominational weekly, published in New York City; since 1870, sole editor and proprietor. He has been an extensive traveller, having been five times in Europe, twice in the East, and once round the world. He has written The Irish Confederates, and the Rebellion of 1798, New York, 1861; Summer Pictures from Copenhagen to Venice, 1859; History of the Atlantic Telegraph, 1859; From the Lakes of Kilbarny to the Golden Horn, 1876; From Egypt to Japan, 1877 (of the two last named, fifteen editions have been issued); On the Desert; with Review of Events in Egypt, 1883; Among the Holy Hills (Palestine), 1884; The Greek Islands and Turkey after the War, 1888; Gedichte (Heidelberg, 1885).

FITZGERALD, Oscar Penn, D.D. (Southern University, Greensborough, Ala., 1868), Methodistic (Southern branch); b. in Caswell County, N.C., Aug. 24, 1829; was missionary in the California mines, 1855-57; editor of Pacific Methodist, Christian Spectator, and California Teacher, in San Francisco; was superintendent of public instruction of California, 1867-71, and under his administration the State University was founded, and the Normal School fully organized and permanently located; president of Pacific Methodist College, Santa Rosa, Cal., 1872; editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, since 1878. He is the author of California Sketches, Nashville, Tenn., 1879, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1879; The Class Meeting, 1880, 2d ed. 1880; Christian Growth, 1881, 2d ed. 1881; Glimpses of Truth, 1883, 2d ed. 1885; Dr. Summers: A Life-Study, 1894, 2d ed. 1895; Centenary Cameos, 1895.

FLICKINGER, Daniel Kumler, D.D. (Otterbein University, Westerville, O., 1875), United Brethren in Christ; b. at Sevenmile, O., May 25, 1824; educated in common schools and Germantown Academy; elected corresponding secretary of the United-Brethren Church Missionary Society, 1857, and quadrennially re-elected until 1885, when he was elected foreign missionary bishop. He has been to Africa eight times, and to Germany five times, on missionary business; has done much work upon the frontiers of the United States, and among the Chinese. He is the author of Off-hand Sketches in Africa, Dayton, O., 1857; Sermons (jointly with Rev. W. J. Shuey), 1859; Ethiopia, or Twenty-six Years of Missionary Life in Western Africa, 1877, 3d ed. 1886; The Church's Marching Orders, 1879.

FLIEDNER, Fritz, German pastor; b. at Kaiserswerth on the Rhine, June 10, 1846; studied at Halle 1864-66, and at Tubingen 1866-67; became professor in the boarding school for young ladies at Hilden, 1868; chaplain to the legation of the German Empire at Madrid, and evangelist in Spain, 1870. Since 1870 he has edited Leaves from Spain, a German periodical devoted to evangelization in Spain; has written articles in different reviews, newspapers, and encyclopedias (Hertzog and Brockhaus), and Blätter und Blüten, Gedichte, Heidelberg, 1885.

FLINT, Robert, B.D., L.L.D., Church of Scotland; b. near Dumfries, Scotland, in the year 1838; studied at Glasgow; was pastor from 1859 until 1864, when he became professor of moral philosophy and political economy at the University of St. Andrew's, and in 1866 professor of divinity in the University of Edinburgh. He is the author of The Philosophy of History in France and Germany, Edinburgh, 1874; Theism (Baird lectures for 1876), 1877, 6th ed. 1886; Anti-Thesis Theories (Baird lectures for 1877), 1879.

FOOTMAN, Henry, M.A., Church of England; b. at Ipswich, Feb. 10, 1831; educated at St. Peter's College, Cambridge, where, after having taken a second-class in the moral science tripos, 1870, he graduated B.A. 1871, M.A. 1874; ordained (both deacon and priest) 1871, standing first in the examination for orders; vicar of Lambourne, Hungerford, 1875–76; in charge of St. George's, Campden Hill, 1876–80; select preacher at Cambridge, 1879–81, vicar of Oxford, 1880–81; since 1881 has been vicar of Nootka, Lincoln. Although from early years a student of theology, he pursued a commercial career, and prior to entering Cambridge was partner in a large firm. He is the author of Life, its Friends and Foes (Lent lectures), London, 1873; From Home and Back (Lenten sermons), 1876; The Eloquence of the Cross, 1877; Nature and Prevalence of Modern Unbelief, 1880; Reasonable Apprehensions and Assist-assuring Illusions, 1883, 2d ed. 1884, reprinted, New York, 1885.

FORBES, John, L.L.D. (King's College, 1837), D.D. (Edinburgh, 1879) (nunnery at Boharn, Banffshire, July 5, 1802; graduated A.M. at Marischal College, 1819; studied theology for four years at Marischal and Kin's College, and later at Göttingen, 1828–29; became successively head master and governor of John Watson's Institution, Edinburgh, 1846, and of Donaldson's Hospital, 1856; professor of oriental languages at Aberdeen University, 1860. He is the author of Symmetrical Structure of Scripture, or Principles of Scripture Parallelism exemplified in an Analysis of the Decalogue, Sermon on the Mount, etc., Edinburgh, 1854; Analytical Commentary on the Romans, Being the Train of Thought by the Aid of Parallelism, 1856; Predestination and Free Will reconciled; or Calvinism and Arminianism united in the Westminster Confession, 1878, 2d ed. 1879.

FOSS, Cyrus David, D.D. (Wesleyan University, 1870), LL.D. (Cornell College, Iowa, 1879) Methodist-Episcopal bishop; b. at Kingston, N.Y., Jan. 17, 1834; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1854; became teacher 1854, and principal 1856, of Amenia Seminary, N.Y.; pastor (in Chester, N.Y., Brooklyn, and New York, 1857; president of Wesleyan University, 1875; bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 1877–79; died at Washington, D.C., Aug. 27, 1884.

FOSTER, Frank Hugh, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1882), Congregationalist; b. at Springfield, Mass., June 18, 1851; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1873; from 1873 to 1874 was assistant professor of mathematics in the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md.; graduated at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1877; from 1877 to 1879 was Congregational pastor at North Reading, Mass.; from 1879 to 1882 in Germany, studying at Göttingen (1879–80) under Lotze, and at Leipzig (1880–82) under Luthardt, Delitzsch, and Kahnis; from 1882 to 1884, professor of philosophy at the Middlebury College, Vt.; and since 1884 has been professor of church history in Oberlin Theological Seminary. He translated Grotius' Defence of the Catholic Faith concerning the Satisfaction of Christ, and has contributed other articles to the Bibliotheca Sacra, of which he has been editor since 1884.

FOSTER, Randolph Sinks, D.D. (Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, O., 1853), LL.D. (the same, 1858), Methodist-Episcopal bishop; b. at Williamsburg, Claremont County, O., Feb. 22, 1830; studied at Augusta College, Millersburg, Ky., 1835–37, but did not graduate; entered the ministry of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, 1837; served in the Ohio Conference until 1850, when he was transferred to New York; in 1856 became president of the North-western University, Evanston, Ill.; resigned in 1860, and returned to the pastorate; in 1865 entered the ministry in the New Theological Seminary, Madison, N.J. (successor Dr. McClintock in the presidency of the same, 1870), and in 1872 a bishop. He was delegate to the Wesleyan body in England, 1879; visited the Methodist-Episcopal missions in South America, 1874; Europe (Germany and Scandinavia), 1874; India, 1882; Italy, Germany, and Scandinavia, 1885; Mexico, 1886. He is the author of Objections to Calvinism as it is (letters to Rev. J. N. L. Rice), Cincinnati, 1848 (many editions to date); Christian Purity, New York, 1851 (many editions to date); Ministry for the Times, 1852; Beyond the Grave, 1859 (many editions); Centenary Thoughts for the Pew and Pulpit of Methodism in 1884, 1884; Studies in Theology, 1889.

FOSTER, Robert Verrell, D.D. (Trinity University, Texas, 1884), Cumberland Presbyterian; b. in Wilson County, Tenn., Aug. 12, 1845; graduated A.B. and A.M. from Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tenn.; studied theology under Rev. Dr. Richard Beard; graduated from Union Theological Seminary, New York City, in 1877; and has been ever since professor of Hebrew and biblical theology and exegesis in the theological school of Cumberland University. In 1881 he declined the chief editorialship of The Cumberland Presbyterian, the principal denominational organ, and later the presidency of Trinity University, Tehuacana, Tex., and the professorship of Greek and Latin in Lincoln University, Ill. He is a frequent contributor to his denominational papers.

Fowler, Charles Henry, D.D. (Garrett Biblical Institute, 1866–), LL.D. (Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1875) Methodist-Episcopal bishop; b. at Burford, Canada, Aug. 11, 1837; graduated at Genesee College, N.Y., 1859, and at the Garrett' Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., 1861; entered the ministry; became president of North-western University, Evanston, Ill., 1872; editor of The Christian Advocate, 1878; missionary secretary, 1880; bishop, 1894.

Fox, Norman, Baptist; b. at Glen Falls, N.Y., Feb. 13, 1856; graduated at the University of Rochester, N.Y., 1856, and at Rochester Baptist Theological Seminary 1857; was pastor at Whitehall, N.Y., 1856–92; chaplain of the 77th Regiment N.Y. Vols., 1862–64; professor in the theological department of William Jewell College, Liberty, Mo., 1868–72. He has been editorially connected with the Central Baptist, National Baptist, and Independent, and also given voluntary service to different churches. He is the author of George Fox and the Early Friends, republished from Baptist Quarterly Review, 1878; Rise of the Use of Pouring and Sprinkling for Baptism, from the same, 1882; Inspiration of Apostles in Speaking and Writing, do., 1885; A Layman's Ministry: Notes on the Basis of the Hon. Nathan Bishop, LL.D., New York, 1888.

Frank, Franz Hermann Reinhold, Ph.D., Lic. Theol. (both Leipzig, 1851), D.D. (from Erlangen, 1859), German Evangelical Lutheran theologian; b. at Altenburg, March 25, 1827; studied at Leipzig, FREPPEL, Right Rev. Charles Emile, Roman Catholic; b. at Obernai (Bas Rhin), France, July 1, 1827; studied at Strasbourg; was ordained priest, 1849; taught philosophy in Paris, 1850–53; was chaplain of St. Geneviève, 1853; dean, 1857; professor of sacred eloquence in the faculty of Catholic theology at Paris, 1854–70; and greatly distinguished himself. Father Freppel was called in 1869 to Rome, to assist in the preliminary arrangements for the Vatican Council, and was pronounced in favor of the papal-infallibility dogma. He was consecrated bishop of Angers in 1870, and has made a vigorous prelate, being FRASER, Right Rev. James, D.D. (Oxford, 1870), lord bishop of Manchester, Church of England; b. at Prestbury, near Cheltenham, Aug. 18, 1818; d. at Manchester, Thursday, Oct. 22, 1885. He was scholar of Lincoln College, Oxford, 1839–39; Irish scholar, and in the first class in classics, 1838; graduated B.A. 1840, M.A. (Oriel) 1842. He was fellow of Oriel College, 1840–60; tutor, 1842–47; ordained deacon 1846, priest 1847; was rector of Cholderton, Wilshire, 1847–60; select preacher, Oxford, 1854, 1862, 1872, 1877; chancellor of Sarum Cathedral, 1858–60; rector of Ufton-Nevet, Berkshire, 1860–70; rector of Ufton-Nevet, Berkshire, 1860; 1870. He was consecrated bishop of Manchester. He is the author of *Siz Sermona preached before the date of the Ecclesiastical Judgments of Privy Council, London, 1869; The Doctrine of Reconciliation to God through Jesus Christ, 1870; The Gospel of the Secular Life, 1872; The World as the Subject of Redemption (Bampton lectures), 1885; and various separate sermons, pamphlets, and articles in the Contemporary and Edinburgh Reviews.

2d vol. 1881, 2d ed. 1st vol. 1884; Aus dem Leben christlicher Frauen, Gütersloh, 1873; System der christlichen Wahrheit, 1875–80, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1885–86; System der christlichen Sittenlehr, 1st vol. 1884, and also of many long articles of dogmatic and ethical contents in Zeitschrift für Protestantismus und Kirche, 1869–70, which he edited.

FRANK, Gustav (Wilhelm), Lic. Theol. (Jena, 1858), D.D. (hon., Jena, 1887), German theologian; b. at Schleiz, Germany, Sept. 25, 1832; studied at Jena, habilitated himself there 1859; became professor extraordinary of theology, 1864; ordinary professor of dogmatics and systematics of the Gospels, 1885–86; stem der christlichen Sitte, lst vol. 1858; De Malthia: his editorial work, 1859; De Flacii Illyrici in libros sacros meritis, 1859; Ge... active in organizing the pilgrimages to Paray-le-Monial, Puy, and elsewhere, in 1872 and 1873, and in founding a Catholic university at Angers. In 1880 he was returned as deputy from Brest, and attracted great notice by the frequency and violence of his opposition to the government, and by his outspoken ultramontanism. His works are numerous. Among them are, Les Pères apostoliques et leur époque, Paris, 1859, 2d ed. 1870; Les apologistes chrétiens au deuxième siecle, 1860, 3d ed. 1886; St. Irénée, 1880; Examen critique de la vie de Jésus, de M. Renan, 1863 (numerous editions); Conférences sur la divinité de Jésus Christ, 1863; Tertullien, 1864, 2 vols.; St. Cyrrien, 1865, 3d ed. 1875; Clément d'Alexandrie, 1865, 3d ed. 1873; Examen critique des apôtres de M. Renan, 1866; Origine, 1868; Œuvres pastorales oratoires, 1860—80, 4 vols.; Œuvres poétiques, 1874—80, 2 vols.; L'Eglise et les ouvriers, 1876; Les devoirs du chrétien dans la vie civile, 1876; La vie chrétienne, 1879 (Lenten sermons delivered in the chapel of the Tuileries, 1862).

FRICKE, Gustav Adolf, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1844), D.D. (Kiel, 1851), Evangelical Lutheran theologian; b. at Leipzig, Aug. 23, 1822; studied at the university of Leipsic; was ordained priest in 1845; has held himself to the theological and philosophical faculties, 1848; became professor extraordinary of theology, 1849; ordinary professor of theology at Kiel, 1851; obernatekecht in St. Peter's Church, Leipzig, 1853; ordinary professor of theology in the University of Leipzig, 1857. He is also pastor of St. Peter's, consistorialrat, member of the synodical committee of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Saxony. He has received the royal Saxon Albrecht order second class, the Prussian crown order second class, the Prussian eagle order third class. Besides numerous sermons, of his writings may be mentioned, Argumenta pro Dei existentia, Leipzig, 1847; Die Erhebung zum Herrn im Gebete, Reichenbach, 1850, 2d ed. 1861; Lehrbuch der Kirchengeschichte, 1. Thl., Leipzig, 1850; Das exegetische Problem im Briefe Pauli an die Galater c. 3, 8, auf Grund v. Gal. 3, 15—25 geprüft, 1890; De codicibus Sibyllinorum manusc. et codicis sibyllinorum manuscrip. Denuo et emendatus typis expressum, 1880; Meta-physik und Dogmatik in ihrem gegenseitigen Verhältnisse, unter besonder. Bezieh. auf die Rätsel'sche Theologie, 1882.

FRIELANDER, Michael, Ph.D. (Halle, 1882), Hebrew; b. at Introschin, Prussia, April 29, 1833; studied at Berlin under Protestant and Hebrew teachers; was director of the Institute for Talmudic instruction, in Berlin, and since 1865 has been principal of the Jews' College, London; and under the auspices of the Society of Hebrew Literature, he has published The Commentary of Ibn Ezra on Jesusah, edited from M.S., and translated, with Notes, Introductions, and Glossary, London, 1873—77, 3 vols.; The Guide of the Perplexed of Maimonides, translated from the original text and annotated, 1882—85, 3 vols.; and a revision of the Authorized Version with the Hebrew text, The Jewish Family Bible, 1882.

FRIEDLAENDER, Michael, Lic. Theol. (Bonn, 1840), D.D. (Breslau, 1848), Roman Catholic; b. at Meisenheim, Germany, Sept. 1, 1810; became priest 1837, repetent at Bonn 1839, and privac-doctor 1840; professor extraordinary of ethics and of New-Testament exegesis at Breslau, 1845; ordinary professor, 1847. He is the author of Archäologie der Leidensgeschichte unserns Herrn JESU CHRISTI, BONN, 1843; Synopsis Evangeliorum, Breslau, 1847; De codicibus sibyllinorum manuscrip. in usum critici nonum ad divinitatis, 1847; Oracula Sibyllina rec. proleg. illustr. vers. germ. inulicit, Leipzig, 1852; Schrifft, Tradition und kirkliche Schriftauslegung, oder die katholische Lehre von den Quellen der christlichen Heilsverh. an den Zeugnissen der fünf ersten christlichen Jahrhunderte geprüft, Breslau, 1854; Geschichte des Lebens Jesu Christi mit chronolog. u. anderem histor. Unter- suchungen, 1855, 3d ed. Münster, 1886; Erinnerungen und Kritiken, Sonderhebungen an Dr. Sepp, 1857; Prolegomena zur bibl. Hermeneutik, 1868.

FRIEDRICH, Johann, D.D. (Munich, 1862), Old Catholic; b. at Potsdorf, Upper Franconia, Bavaria, May 3, 1836; studied at Bamberg and Munich; was ordained priest, June 4, 1859; became privac-doctor 1862, and in 1865 professor extraordinary of theology in the University of Munich. In 1869 he accompanied Cardinal Hoffman to the Vatican Council, in the capacity of "theologian;" was there severely criticized because he took Dühringer's position of hostility to the infallibility dogma, and left Rome before the council closed. He flatly refused to accept the dogma; and therefore, by archiepiscopal orders, attendance upon his lectures was forbidden, April 13, 1871, and he was excommunicated, April 17. Nevertheless, he continued to exercise priestly functions, kept his academic position, indeed was promoted, for in June, 1872, he became ordinary professor of doctrinal history, symbols, patrology, Christian archaeology, and literature; but in 1882 was removed to the philosophical faculty as professor of history, by request of the Ultramontanes. Although prominent in the organization of the Old Catholic Church, he has kept aloof from it since 1878, because opposed to its abolition of enforced celibacy. His writings embrace Johann Wessel, Regensburg, 1862; Die Lehre des Johann Haus u. seine Bedeutung für die Entwicklung der neueren Zeit, 1872; Astrologie und Reformationsphilosophie, Munich, 1872; books on the life of St. Peter, Munich, 1864; Das wahre Zeitalter des h. Kaiser, Bamberg (1867, 1. Bd. 1 Thl., Die Römerzeit; 1899, 2. Bd. 1 Thl., Die Merowingerzeit); Drei (bisher unedelirte) Concilia aus der Merowingzeit, 1887; Tagebuch während des Vatican. Concils geführt, Nördlingen, 1871, 2d ed. 1873; Documenta ad illustrandum concilium Vaticanum anno 1870, 1871, 2 vols.; Joannis de Torquemadai, De potestate papae et concilii generalis tracitatus, Innsbruck, 1871; Zur Verteidigung meines Tagebuch, 1872; Der Mechanismus der Vatican. Religion, 1st and 2d ed. 1876; Beiträge zur Kirchengeschichte des 18. Jahrh., Munich, 1870; Geschichte der Vatican. Concils, Bonn, 1. Bd. 1877, 2. Bd. 1883, 3. Bd. 1886; Zur ältesten Geschichte des Primates in der Kirche, 1879; Beiträge zur Geschichte des Jesuitenordens, Munich, 1881.

FRITZSCHE, Otto Fridolin, Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1836), D.D. (Bon., Halle, 1841), Reformed; b. at Dobrilugk, Sept. 1812; studied at Heidel- berg and university of Halle, 1826—35; became privac-doctor at Halle 1836, and then professor extraordinary in 1837, and professor ordinary in 1842, at Zurich. He has also been chief librarian

FRY, Benjamin St. James, D.D. (Quincy, now Chaddock, College, 1871), Methodist; b. at Rutledge, Grainger County, Tenn., June 16, 1824; studied at Howard College, 1846-48, but did not graduate; entered the ministry, and the Ohio Conference, 1847; was president of the Worthington Female College, O., 1856-60; chaplain 63d Regiment Ohio Volunteers, 1861-64; in charge of St. Louis branch of the Western Methodist Book Concern, 1865-72; and since has been editor of The Central Christian Advocate, St. Louis. He was member of the London Methodist Ecumenical Conference, and of the Centennial Conference at Baltimore, and read an essay on the Methodist press. He is the author of "Property Consecrated" (prize essay on systematic beneficence), New York, 1856; last ed. 1884; "Lives of Bishops Whatcoat, McKendree, George, and Roberts, 4 vols.; besides articles in reviews, etc.

FULLER, John Moo, Church of England; b. in London, Dec. 4, 1855; entered St. John's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. and Crosse University scholar, and was elected to a fellowship in his college, 1858; took a first-class in the theological tripos, 1859; was Tyrwhitt's University scholar, 1860; graduated M.A., 1862; took Kaye prize essay), Cambridge, 1864; "Harmony of the Gospels, 1872; "The Book of Daniel, in The Speaker's Commentary, 1875, 2d ed. 1880; "The Student's Commentary" (founded on The Speaker's Commentary, 1879 sqq.

FULLONTON, John, D.D. (Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., 1862), Free Baptist; b. at Raymond, N.H., Aug. 3, 1862; graduated at Dartmouth College, 1840, and from the Biblical School, Whitestown, N.Y., 1849; became principal of North Parkersfield Academy, Me., 1840; of the Whitestown Seminary, N.Y., 1843; professor in the Free Baptist Theological School since 1851 (the school, then at Whitestown, in 1854 was removed to New Hampton, N.H., but since 1870 has been a department of Bates College, Lewiston, Me.). He was member of the House in that legislature, 1867.

FUNKE, Otto, German Protestant; b. at Wulfbur, near Elberfeld, Germany, March 9, 1836; studied at Halle, Tubingen, and Boun; was pastor at Halpe, in the Rheine Mountains, 1862-68; and since 1868 has been pastor of the Friedens Kirche, Bremen. He is the author of "Reisgebilder und Heimathklüinge, Bremen, 3 series, 1860 (11th ed. 1889), 1871 (6th ed. 1885), 1872 (5th ed. 1880); "Die Schule des Lebens; oder, christliche Lebensbilder im Lichte des Buches Jonas, 1871, 6th ed. 1885, reprinted New York (American Tract Society), 1879; "Die christlichen Fragen und Weisungen in der Kirche, Bremen, 1881, 5th ed. 1884; "Die Welt des Glaubens und das Leben der Welt, 1886.

FUNK, Franz Xaver, Ph.D., Lie, Theol. D.D. (all Tubingen, 1863, 1871, 1875, respectively), Roman Catholic; b. at Atsbäumling, Württemberg, Germany, Oct. 12, 1840; studied theology and philosophy at Tubingen, 1859-63, and theology in the priests' seminary at Rotenburg, 1863-64; was curate at Waldsee, 1864-65; studied political economy in Paris, 1865-66; became rector in Tubingen, 1866; professor extraordinary of church history, patrology, and archaeology, 1870; ordinary professor, 1875. He is the author of "Zins und Wucher, eine moraltheologische Abhandlung, Tubingen, 1863; "Die nationalökonomie, Anschauungen der mittelalterlichen Theologen, 1889; "Die Geschichste des kirchlichen Zinswesens, 1876; "Die Echtheit der Ignatianischen Briefe auf neue Art verfeinrt. Mit e. literar. Beilage: Die alte Lateinische Übersetzung der Überlieferung der Ignatiusbriefe u. a. Polykarbbriefes, 1883; "Lehrbuch der Kirchengeschichte, Rotenburg, 1880; and many articles. He edited the 5th ed. of Hefele's Opera patrum apostolorum, 1873-81, 2 vols.
FUNK, Isaac Kauffman, D.D. (Wittenberg College, Springfield, O., 1882), Lutheran (General Synod); b. at Clifton, Greene County, O., Sept.
10, 1839; graduated at Wittenberg College, 1860;
entered the ministry of the Lutheran Church, 1861; was pastor at Carey, O., 1862-64; in Brooklyn, N. Y. (St. Matthew's Evangelical Lutheran), 1865-72; resigned, and went to Egypt, Egypt, and Palestine; on return was associate editor of Christian Radical, Pittsburg, Penn., 1872-73;
editor of The Union Advocate, N. Y., 1873-75;
started The Metropolitan Pulpit, October, 1876; Complete Preacher, 1877; changed the name of the former to Homiletic Monthly, and combined it with the second, October, 1878; enlarged the Monthly, and called it Homiletic Review, January, 1885; began book-publishing in 1877.
FUNKHOUSE, George Absalom, D.D. (Otterbein University, 1879), United Brethren; b. at Mount Jackson, Shenandoah County, Va., June 7, 1841; graduated from Otterbein University, Westerville, O., 1868, and from Western (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, Alleghany, Penn., 1871; and since has been professor of New-Testament exegesis in Union Biblical Seminary, Dayton, O.
FURMAN, James Clement, D.D., Baptist; b. in Charleston, S.C., Dec. 5, 1809; was educated in Charleston College, ——; studied medicine, but in 1828 was baptized, and began to preach; conducted revival services; was pastor at Society Hill, S.C.; in 1843 became professor in Furman Theological Institution, now Furman University, Greenvile, S.C., of which he was president many years, and is now professor of intellectual and moral philosophy, logic, and rhetoric.
FURNESS, William Henry, D.D. (Harvard, 1847), Unitarian; b. in Boston, Mass., April 20, 1802; graduated from Harvard College, 1820;
studied theology, and was ordained pastor of the First Unitarian Congregational Church, Philadelphia, Penn., Jan. 12, 1825, and held the office until his retirement in 1875. He was a leading abolitionist, and is the author of Remarks on the Four Gospels, Philadelphia, 1885, London, 1887; Jesus and his Biographers, 1888; Domestic Worship (a volume of prayers), 1842, new ed. 1856;
A History of Jesus, Philadelphia and London, 1850, new ed. 1853; Discourse, 1855; Thoughts on the Life and Character of Jesus of Nazareth, Boston, 1859; Veil partly uplifted, 1864; The Unconscious Truth of the Four Gospels, Philadelphia, 1888; Jesus, 1871; The Power of Spirit manifest in Jesus of Nazareth, 1877; The Story of the Resurrection told once more, 1885; Verses: Translations and Hymns, Boston, 1886; numerous discourses, mostly on abolition, both in pamphlet form and in the Pennsylvania Freeman and Anti-slavery Standard. He has also translated from the German Schubert's Mirror of Nature, 1842; Gems of German Verse, 1851; Julius, and other Tales, 1856;
and Schenkel's Character of Jesus portrayed, Boston, 1866, 2 vols. He edited The Diadem, an annual published in Philadelphia, 1843-47.
FURRER, Konrad, D.D. (Bern, 1879), Swiss Protestant theologian; b. at Fluntern, near Zurich, Nov. 5, 1838; studied at Zurich, 1857-62; was ordained, 1862; from 1864 to 1876, pastor in various places of the canton of Zurich:
since 1876, pastor of St. Peter's, Zurich. In 1863 he made an exploring tour through Palestine; in 1869 he became privat-docent for biblical archaeology in the University of Zurich, but did not lecture from 1871 until 1885, when on the death of Biedermann he resumed his position, and now lectures upon the history of religion. He is also a Kirchenrath of the canton (since 1885), and teacher of religion in the Zurich female seminary.
In theology he is a liberal, right wing. He is the author of Rudolph Collin, der Freund Zwinglis, Halle, 1862; Wanderungen durch Palae-stina, Zurich, 1865 (French trans., Geneva, 1866);
Die Bedeutung der biblischen Geographie für die biblische Exegese, Zurich, 1870; of the majority of the diographical, zoological, and botanical articles in Schenkel's Bibl-Lexicon, Leipzig, 1869-75; of many e ssays, e.g., Die religionsgeschichtliche Bedeutung Jerusalems (in Zeitstimmen, 1868); Israel als Volk des Morgenlandes (in the same, 1867); Die Religion im Jugendalter der Menschheit (in Reform, 1878);
Die allgemeine Religiongeschichte und die religiöse Bildung (in Meili's theolog. Zeitschrift, 1884); has in preparation an entire reconstruction of Raumer's Palaeastina.

CAILEY, Matthew, Reformed Presbyterian; b. at Rathdonnell, near Letterkenny, County Donegal, Ireland, Dec. 16, 1833; graduated at Queen's College, Belfast, 1858; studied theology in Belfast and Edinburgh; b. 1878 pasteur Third Reformed Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, U.S.A.; and since 1876 professor of biblical literature in the Reformed Presbyterian Seminary, Philadelphia. He was moderator of the General Synod, 1885; and has published Christian Patriotism (a sermon), Philadelphia, 1873, 2 editions; Wreaths and Gems (poems), 1882.

GAILOR, Thomas Frank, Episcopalian; b. at Jackson, Miss., Sept. 17, 1856; graduated at Racine College, Wis., 1876, and at the General (Episcopal) Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1879; became pastor of the Church of the Messiah, Pulaski, Tenn., 1879; professor of ecclesiastical history in the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1882, and has been chaplain of the university since 1883. He is in hearty sympathy with the "Oxford movement" in the English Church, as represented by Canon Liddon in England, and Dr. DeKoven in the United States. He is the author of occasional sermons, and articles in reviews; and of Manual of Devotions for Schoolboys, New York, 1886.

GALLEHER, Right Rev. John Nicholas, S.T.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1875), Episcopalian, bishop of Louisiana; b. at Washington, Ky., Feb. 17, 1839; educated at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville; studied law, and graduated at the Brockenborough Law School at Lexington, Va.; began practice at Louisville, Ky.; was successively rector in New Orleans, La.; Baltimore, Md.; Zion Church, New-York City; consecrated, 1880. He served in the Confederate Army during the war, enlisting as a private in 1861; was captured at Fort Donelson, and imprisoned several months; when exchanged, he was made aide-de-camp to General Buckner, and first lieutenant, afterwards captain and lieutenant-colonel in the Adjutant General's department, and served until the final surrender. He has published occasional sermons, essays, and episcopal charges.

GANDELL, Robert, Church of England; b. in London, Jan. 27, 1818; educated at St. John's and Queen's Colleges, Oxford; graduated B.A. (second-class classics) 1843, Kennicott scholar 1844, Pusey and Elles scholar 1845, M.A. 1846; was ordained deacon 1846, priest 1847; Michel fellow of Queen's College, 1845-50; tutor of Magdalen Hall, 1845-72; lecturer in Hebrew for Dr. Pusey, 1848-82; chaplain of Corpus Christi College, 1852-77; select preacher, 1859; Grinfield lecturer on the Septuagint, 1859; senior proctor, 1860-61; examiner in "Rud. Fid. et Relig." 1861-62; since 1856 he has been one of the four city lecturers at St. Martin Carfax, Oxford; since 1861, Laudian professor of Arabic; since 1870, examining chaplain to the bishop of Bath and Wells; since 1874, fellow of Hertford College, Oxford, and prebendary of Ashill in Wells Cathedral; since 1880 canon of Wells Cathedral, since 1884 precentor. He is the author of The Prophecy of Joel, in Hebrew, poetically arranged, London, 1849; Jehovah Goalenu (sermon), 1853; The Greater Glory of the Second Temple (sermon), 1858; edited Lightfoot's Hora Hebraica et Talmudica, 1859, 4 vols.; contributed commentary on Amos, Nahum, and Zephaniah to The Bible (Speaker's Commentary), 1876.

GANSE, Hervey Doddridge, Presbyterian; b. at Fishkill, Dutchess County, N.Y., Feb. 27, 1822; studied at the New-York University, 1835-38; graduated at Columbia College in the same city, 1839, and at the Reformed Dutch Theological Seminary, New Brunswick, N.J., 1843; became pastor of Reformed Dutch Church, Freehold, N.J., 1843; of the North-west (afterwards Madison-avenue) Reformed Church, New-York City, 1856; of the First Presbyterian Church, St. Louis, Mo., 1875; corresponding secretary of the Presbyterian Board for colleges and academies, 1883 (the year of its establishment). He is the author of printed sermons, addresses, review articles; a pamphlet, Bible Slaveholding, New York, 1853; a discussion of The Sabbath's Claim on Christian Consciences (read before the General Council of the Reformed Churches, Philadelphia, 1880), and of a number of hymns.

GARDINER, Frederic, D.D. (Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1869), Episcopalian; b. at Gardiner, Me., Sept. 11, 1822; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1842; was rector of Trinity Church, Saco, Me., 1845-47; assistant minister, St. Luke's, Philadelphia, Penn., 1847-48; rector of Grace Church, Bath, Me., 1848-53; and of Trinity Church, Lewiston, Me., 1855-56. In 1865 he became professor of the literature and interpretation of Scripture in Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary, Gambier, O.; in 1867, assistant rector at Middletown, Conn.; and the next year a professor in the Berkeley (Episcopalian) Divinity School there (1868-82 of Old Testament literature and language; and since 1883 of New-Testament literature and interpretation). He is the author of The Island of Life, an Allegory, Boston, 1851; Commentary on the Epistle of St. Jude, 1856; Harmony of the Gospels in Greek, Andover, 1871, 7th ed. 1884; Harmony of the Gospels in English, 1871, 3d ed. subsequently; Diatessaron, The Life of our Lord in the Words of the Gospel, 1871, 2d ed. subsequently; The Principles of Textual Criticism, 1870; The Old and New Testaments in their Mutual Relations, New York, 1885. He wrote the commentary on Leviticus (incorporating that of...
GARLAND, Landon Cabell, LL.D. (Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky., 1846), Methodist-Episcopal Church South, layman; b. in Nelson County, Va., March 21, 1810; graduated at Hampden-Sidney College, Prince Edward County, Va., 1829; became professor of chemistry and natural philosophy in Washington College, Lexington, Va., 1830; professor of the same in Randolph-Macon College, then in Mecklenburg County, Va., 1833; president of the college, 1837; professor of mathematics and physics in the University of Alabama, at Tuscaloosa, 1817; president of the same, 1857; professor of physics and astronomy in the University of Mississippi, at Oxford, 1866; professor of physics and astronomy in Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., and chancellor, 1875. He is the author of numerous pamphlets, and of a treatise on Plane and Spherical Trigonometry.

GARRETT, Right Rev. Alexander Charles, D.D. (Nebraska College, Nebraska City, Neb., 1872; Trinity College, Dublin, 1882), LL.D. (University of Mississippi, Oxford, Miss., 1876), Episcopal, missionary bishop of Northern Texas; b. at Ballymote, County Sligo, Ireland, Nov. 4, 1832; graduated at and chaplain at Trinity College, Dublin, 1853, and took the divinity testimonium, Dec. 19, 1855; was successively curate of East Worldham, Hampshire, Eng., 1857; missionary in British Columbia, 1859; rector in California, 1869; of Trinity Cathedral, Omaha, Neb., 1872; consecrated, 1874. He has published occasional sermons, etc.

GARRISON, Joseph Fithian, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1879), Episcopal; b. at Fairton, Cumberland County, N. J., Jan. 20, 1823; graduated from the College of New Jersey at Princeton, 1842, and M.D. from the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, 1845; entered the Episcopal ministry 1855, and became rector of St. Paul's Church, Camden, N. J.; but since 1841 has been professor of liturgics and canon law in the Episcopal Divinity School in Philadelphia, Penn. He has published numerous sermons, also articles upon ecclesiastical history and canon law. He was a member of the commission for the revision of the Prayer Book.

GARRUCCI, Raffaele, Roman Catholic; b. at Naples, Jan. 23, 1812; d. at Rome, May 5, 1885. He was a Jesuit, and a famous archaeologist, especially in iconography. He devoted himself almost entirely to the history of early Christian art, but at the time of his death he had just completed a history of Italian coinage from its origin to the present time. Of his other great works may be mentioned, Monumenta reipublicae Liguriae Bobinarianae, Rome, 1847; Monumenti del Museo Lateranense, 1881; Storia dell'Arte Cristiana nell' anno i suoi secoli della Chiesa, Prato, 1872-74, 6 vols. He was also an able connoisseur on minor subjects. See American Journal of Archaeology, i. 309.

GASS, Friedrich Wilhelm Johann Heinrich, Ph.D. (Berlin, 1838), Lic. Theol. (Breslau, 1839), D.D. (Greifswald, 1844), German Protestant (United Evangelical Church); b. at Breslau, Nov. 28, 1813; studied at Breslau, Halle, and Berlin, 1832-36; became privat-docent of theology at Breslau, 1839; professor extraordinary, 1846; the same at Greifswald, 1847; ordinary professor, 1855; at Giessen, 1861; at Heidelberg, 1868. In 1885 he was made an ecclesiastical councillor. In theology he is a moderate Liberal. Besides numerous articles in reviews, etc., he has written Gennadius und Plietho, Aristotelismus und Platonismus in d. griechischen Kirche, parts 1 and 2, Breslau, 1844; Georg Calixt u. d. Synkretismus, 1846; Die Mystik d. Nikolaus Kabanias vom Leben in Christo, Erste Ausgabe u. einleitende Darstellung, Greifswald, 1849; Schleiermachers Briefwechsel mit J. Chr. Franke herausgegeben, 1852; Geschichte d. prot. Dogmatik, Berlin, 1851-67, 4 vols.; Zur Geschichte d. Athosklüster, Giessen, 1865; Die Lehre vom Geowissen, Berlin, 1869; Symbolik d. griechischen Kirche, 1872; Geschichte d. christlichen Ethik, Berlin, Bd. i. 1881, Bd. 2. 1888. In connection with A. Viali, he edited E. L. T. Henke's posthumous Neure Heilige Engelsgeschichte (from the Reformation to 1870), Halle, 1874-80, 3 vols.

GAST, Frederick Augustus, D.D. (Waynesburg College, Waynesburg, Penn., 1877), Reformed (German); b. at Lancaster, Penn., Oct. 17, 1835; graduated from Franklin and Marshall College, in his native town, 1856; studied theology in the Mercersburg (Reformed) Theological Seminary (now at Lancaster), 1856-57; taught for a year, and from 1859 to 1865 was pastor of the New Holland charge, Penn.; chaplain 45th Penn. Vols., March-July, 1865; pastor of Loudon and St. Thomas charge, Penn., 1865-67; principal of academy of Franklin and Marshall College, 1867-71; assistant professor in the college, 1871-72; tutor in Lancaster Theological Seminary, 1872-74; and since 1874 has been professor of Hebrew and Old-Testament theology. He has written articles upon Old-Testament science, etc.

GAVAZZI, Alessandro, Free Christian Church of Italy; b. of Roman-Catholic parents, March 24, 1809, in Bologna, but his father was professor of law, a famous advocate, noted for his antipathy to the Jesuits; entered the Barnabite Order in the Church of Rome, 1825; made rapid strides in knowledge; became professor of rhetoric and belles-lettres in the public college of Caravaggio, at Naples, 1829; entered the priesthood, and was welcomed with almost entire freedom by Pius, whom he appointed his almoner of the Roman legion which was despatched to Vicenza. The people called him "Pater the Hermit," the leader of the new crusade, the rebellion against Austria, 1848. But the change in the papal policy, through Jesuitical influence, compelled Gavazzi to break with him, and he hastened to Rome, to live under a stone out of which the French reinstated the Pope in Rome, July, 1849. He then renounced Roman Catholicism, and has since in Great Britain and America repeatedly lectured upon the evils of the papal system. In 1860 he went with Garibaldi to Sicily. In 1870 he was again in Italy; in 1881 he made GEROK, Karl (Friedrich), D.D. (h. Tübingen, 1837). Pastor of Argyle-street Presbyterian Church, Halifax, N.S., 1851–54; Argyle-street, Sunderland, Eng., 1860–67; Islington Chapel, London, 1867–73. In 1876 he was ordained deacon in the Church of England, and priest the following year. From 1876 to 1879 he was curate of St. Peter's, Lordship Lane, Dulwich, near London; from 1879 to 1881, rector of Christ Church, Paris; from 1881 to 1883, vicar of St. Mary Magdalene, Barnstaple; and since has been vicar of St. Martin-at-Palace, Norwich. He holds the old "evangelical" views of Christianity, with the right to the fullest investigation in every direction. He is the author of Entering on Life, a Book for Young Men, London, 1874, 4th ed. 1884; The Great and Precious Promises, or Light beyond, 1875, 4th ed. 1884; The English Reformation, 1875, 11th ed. 1883; The Life and Words of Christ, 1876, 30th ed. 1884; Old-Testament Characters, 1877, 2d ed. 1884; Hours with the Bible, 1880–85, 6 vols. (completing the Old Testament).

GERHART, Emanuel Vogel, D.D. (Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1837), Reformed (German); b. at Freeburg, Penn., June 13, 1817; graduated from Marshall College, 1838, and from Mercersburg (Penn.) Theological Seminary, 1841; became successively pastor at Gettysburg, Penn., 1843; missionary among A. Harnack and Zahn, 1877–78; The Life of Work, 1879, 2d ed. 1882; Texte u. Untersuchungen zur Geschichte der altchristlichen Literatur (in connection with A. Harnack), since 1882; Das Ministerialstudium und der Hebraeisch-Apostolische Unterricht in christlichen Schulen, 1852, 2d ed. 1855; The Life of Work, 1879, 2d ed. 1882; The Great and Precious Promises, or Light beyond, 1875, 4th ed. 1884; Hours with the Bible, 1880–85, 6 vols. (completing the Old Testament).

GERKIE, Cunningham, D.D. (Queen's University, Hamilton, Canada, 1871), Church of England; b. in Edinburgh, Scotland, Oct. 26, 1824; educated at Queen's College, Toronto; and was pastor of Argyle-street Presbyterian Church, Halifax, N.S., 1851–54; Argyle-street, Sunderland, Eng., 1860–67; Islington Chapel, London, 1867–73. In 1876 he was ordained deacon in the Church of England, and priest the following year. From 1876 to 1879 he was curate of St. Peter's, Lordship Lane, Dulwich, near London; from 1879 to 1881, rector of Christ Church, Paris; from 1881 to 1883, vicar of St. Mary Magdalene, Barnstaple; and since has been vicar of St. Martin-at-Palace, Norwich. He holds the old "evangelical" views of Christianity, with the right to the fullest investigation in every direction. He is the author of Entering on Life, a Book for Young Men, London, 1874, 4th ed. 1884; The Great and Precious Promises, or Light beyond, 1875, 4th ed. 1884; The English Reformation, 1875, 11th ed. 1883; The Life and Words of Christ, 1876, 30th ed. 1884; Old-Testament Characters, 1877, 2d ed. 1884; Hours with the Bible, 1880–85, 6 vols. (completing the Old Testament).
GESS, Wolfgang Friedrich, D.D. (Basel, 1864), Lutheran; b. at Kirchenheim in Württemberg, July 27, 1819; studied in Tubingen, 1837-41; was assistant pastor, repetens, and pastor in Würtemberg, 1841-50; theological tutor in the Mission House at Basel, and member of the board of directors, 1850-64; ordinary professor of theology at Göttingen, 1864-71; the same at Breslau, and member of the Silesian Consistory, 1871-80; general superintendent of the province of Posen, 1880; emeritus, 1885. He is the author of Christi Person und Werk, Basel, 1870-80, 3 parts; Bibel- stunden über Joh. xii.-xiv., 1871, 4th ed. 1886; Be- bistunden über Rom. i.-xiv., 1885, and minor works.

GIBSON, His Eminence James, Cardinal, D.D. (St. Mary's University, Baltimore, 1868), Roman Catholic; b. at Baltimore, Md., July 23, 1834; graduated at St. Charles's College, Ellicott City, Md., 1857; studied philosophy and theology at St. Mary's Seminary of St. Sulpice, Baltimore, where he was ordained a priest, June 30, 1861; was successively assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Baltimore, 1861; pastor of St. Bridget's, Canton, fall of 1861; assistant pastor of the cathedral of Baltimore, and secretary to the archbishop (Dr. Spalding), 1865; vicar apostolic of North Carolina, 1866; consecrated bishop, Aug. 16, 1868; translated to see of Richmond, Va., on the death of Dr. McGuin, 1872; coadjutor of Dr. Bayley, archbishop of Baltimore, with right of succession, 1877; on Oct. 3, 1877, became archbishop of Baltimore; and in 1886 was created cardinal. He was present at the Vatican Council, Rome, 1869-70; went to Rome for the preparation of the questions to be treated in the third plenary council of Baltimore, Nov. 2-Dec. 7, 1884, over which he presided as apostolic delegate. Besides various articles in Roman-Catholic magazines, sermons, and lectures, he has written The Faith of our Fathers, New York, 1876; The Young Man and the Churches, Boston, 1884; The Ages before Moses, New York, 1885; trans. by J. E. A. Broom, London, 2d ed. 1856; 2d series 1882, 9th ed. 1885; Pfingstrosen, 1866, 9th ed. 1888; Blumen und Sterne, 1868, 10th ed. 1888; Der letzte Strauss, 1884, 3d ed. 1886; Deutsche Ostern, 1871, 6th ed. 1883.

GESS, James, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1853), Presbyterian; b. in parish of Dunaghy, near Ballymena, County Antrim, Ireland, May 27, 1805; graduated at Royal Belfast College, 1832; licensed, 1834; ordained in the Congregation of Castledown, County Londonderry. 1839; was missionary in Bombay, India, 1840-91; since 1846 he has been the Royal Assembly professor of living Oriental languages in Belfast and in Magee College, Londonderry. He was elected a member of the Bombay branch of the Royal...
GOOD, Jeremiah Haak, D.D. (Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Penn., 1888), Reformed; b. at Neuchâtel, Switzerland, Oct. 25, 1812; educated in his native city, and studied theology at Bonn and Berlin (under Neander); was ordained in 1836; was assistant of the pastor of Valangin, near Neuchâtel, for a year; then preceptor of the Crown Prince of Prussia from 1838 to 1844; from 1845 to 1851 supplied churches in the Val-de-Ruy; from 1851 to 1860 was pastor in Neuchâtel. From 1850 to 1873 he was professor of exegetical and critical theology in the theological school of the National Church of the canton, and since has been in the same capacity in the independent faculty of the Church of Neuchâtel. He is the author of Histoire de la Réformation et du Refuge dans le Canton de Neuchâtel, Neuchâtel, 1856; Commentaire sur l'évangile de Saint Jean, 1863-65, 2 vols., 3rd ed. 1881-85, 3 vols. (Eng. trans. by F. Crombie and M. D. Cusin, Edinburgh, 1877, 3 vols.; translated from 3d ed. by Professor T. Dwight, New York, 1886, 2 vols.; also translated into German, Danish, and Dutch); do. sur l'épître aux Romains, 1879-80, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1st vol. 1883 (Eng. trans. by A. Cusin, Edinburgh, 1880-81, 2 vols., revised by T. W. Chambers, D.D., New York, 1883); do. sur la première épître aux Corinthiens, 1886, 2 vols.; Conférences apologétiques, 1889 (Eng. trans. by W. H. Lyttleton, Lectures in Defence of the Christian Faith, Edinburgh, 1881, 2d ed. 1883); do. sur l'Épître aux Hébreux, Bonn, 1870, 2 vols.; and articles in reviews and other periodicals.

GOOD, Joseph, D.D. (Otterbein University, Westerville, O., and Lebanon-Valley College, Annville, Penn., both 1873, and declined; Lebanon-Valley College, 1884), a bishop of the United Brethren in Christ; b. at Hagerstown, Md., July 24, 1813; educated in common schools; apprenticed to a silversmith; converted in 1831, and began reading theological books; was licensed to preach by the Virginia Annual Conference, 1835, and continued to preach as an itinerant missionary, circuit preacher, and presiding elder, till May, 1849, when he was first elected bishop; re-elected for ten quadrennial terms; in May, 1855, elected bishop emeritus, and is now settled without any assigned district of labor. Several of his occasional sermons have been published in the denominational organ, The Religious Telescope, Dayton, O.

GOOD, Thomas, D.D. (Central University of Iowa, Pella, Ia., 1880; Bates College, Lewiston, Me., 1881), General Baptist; b. at Leicester, Eng., Dec. 24, 1829; studied at the Baptist College, Leicester, and graduated at Glasgow University as B.A. 1856; became minister of churches at Coventry, 1856; Commercial Road, East, London, 1861; Oswestry Road, Derby, 1868; president of Nottingham General Baptist College, 1873. He is evangelical and non-Calvinistic. He has been since 1861 the English correspondent of the Boston (U. S. A.) Morning Star, the weekly organ of the Freewill Baptists. He is the author of sermons and addresses published at Leicester in 1863, 1868, 1872; of The Day of Death, a Poem, Leicester, 1893; article in British Quarterly, April, 1871; The New Testament by the Modern Spirit; translator of Ewald's Revelation: its Nature and Record, Edinburgh, 1881.

GOOD, Frederic (Louis), D.D. (hon., Basel, 1888), Reformed; b. at Neuchâtel, Switzerland, Oct. 25, 1812; educated in his native city, and studied theology at Bonn and Berlin (under Neander); was ordained in 1836; was assistant of the pastor of Valangin, near Neuchâtel, for a year; then preceptor of the Crown Prince of Prussia from 1838 to 1844; from 1845 to 1851 supplied churches in the Val-de-Ruy; from 1851 to 1860 was pastor in Neuchâtel. From 1850 to 1873 he was professor of exegetical and critical theology in the theological school of the National Church of the canton, and since has been in the same capacity in the independent faculty of the Church of Neuchâtel. He is the author of Histoire de la Réformation et du Refuge dans le Canton de Neuchâtel, Neuchâtel, 1856; Commentaire sur l'évangile de Saint Jean, 1863-65, 2 vols., 3rd ed. 1881-85, 3 vols. (Eng. trans. by F. Crombie and M. D. Cusin, Edinburgh, 1877, 3 vols.; translated from 3d ed. by Professor T. Dwight, New York, 1886, 2 vols.; also translated into German, Danish, and Dutch); do. sur l'épître aux Romains, 1879-80, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1st vol. 1883 (Eng. trans. by A. Cusin, Edinburgh, 1880-81, 2 vols., revised by T. W. Chambers, D.D., New York, 1883); do. sur la première épître aux Corinthiens, 1886, 2 vols.; Conférences apologétiques, 1889 (Eng. trans. by W. H. Lyttleton, Lectures in Defence of the Christian Faith, Edinburgh, 1881, 2d ed. 1883); do. sur l'Épître aux Hébreux, Bonn, 1870, 2 vols.; and articles in reviews and other periodicals.

GOOD, Thomas, D.D. (Central University of Iowa, Pella, Ia., 1880; Bates College, Lewiston, Me., 1881), General Baptist; b. at Leicester, Eng., Dec. 24, 1829; studied at the Baptist College, Leicester, and graduated at Glasgow University as B.A. 1856; became minister of churches at Coventry, 1856; Commercial Road, East, London, 1861; Oswestry Road, Derby, 1868; president of Nottingham General Baptist College, 1873. He is evangelical and non-Calvinistic. He has been since 1861 the English correspondent of the Boston (U. S. A.) Morning Star, the weekly organ of the Freewill Baptists. He is the author of sermons and addresses published at Leicester in 1863, 1868, 1872; of The Day of Death, a Poem, Leicester, 1893; article in British Quarterly, April, 1871; The New Testament by the Modern Spirit; translator of Ewald's Revelation: its Nature and Record, Edinburgh, 1881.

GOOD, Frederic (Louis), D.D. (hon., Basel, 1888), Reformed; b. at Neuchâtel, Switzerland, Oct. 25, 1812; educated in his native city, and studied theology at Bonn and Berlin (under Neander); was ordained in 1836; was assistant of the pastor of Valangin, near Neuchâtel, for a year; then preceptor of the Crown Prince of Prussia from 1838 to 1844; from 1845 to 1851 supplied churches in the Val-de-Ruy; from 1851 to 1860 was pastor in Neuchâtel. From 1850 to 1873 he was professor of exegetical and critical theology in the theological school of the National Church of the canton, and since has been in the same capacity in the independent faculty of the Church of Neuchâtel. He is the author of Histoire de la Réformation et du Refuge dans le Canton de Neuchâtel, Neuchâtel, 1856; Commentaire sur l'évangile de Saint Jean, 1863-65, 2 vols., 3rd ed. 1881-85, 3 vols. (Eng. trans. by F. Crombie and M. D. Cusin, Edinburgh, 1877, 3 vols.; translated from 3d ed. by Professor T. Dwight, New York, 1886, 2 vols.; also translated into German, Danish, and Dutch); do. sur l'épître aux Romains, 1879-80, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1st vol. 1883 (Eng. trans. by A. Cusin, Edinburgh, 1880-81, 2 vols., revised by T. W. Chambers, D.D., New York, 1883); do. sur la première épître aux Corinthiens, 1886, 2 vols.; Conférences apologétiques, 1889 (Eng. trans. by W. H. Lyttleton, Lectures in Defence of the Christian Faith, Edinburgh, 1881, 2d ed. 1883); do. sur l'Épître aux Hébreux, Bonn, 1870, 2 vols.; and articles in reviews and other periodicals.

GOOD, Thomas, D.D. (Central University of Iowa, Pella, Ia., 1880; Bates College, Lewiston, Me., 1881), General Baptist; b. at Leicester, Eng., Dec. 24, 1829; studied at the Baptist College, Leicester, and graduated at Glasgow University as B.A. 1856; became minister of churches at Coventry, 1856; Commercial Road, East, London, 1861; Oswestry Road, Derby, 1868; president of Nottingham General Baptist College, 1873. He is evangelical and non-Calvinistic. He has been since 1861 the English correspondent of the Boston (U. S. A.) Morning Star, the weekly organ of the Freewill Baptists. He is the author of sermons and addresses published at Leicester in 1863, 1868, 1872; of The Day of Death, a Poem, Leicester, 1893; article in British Quarterly, April, 1871; The New Testament by the Modern Spirit; translator of Ewald's Revelation: its Nature and Record, Edinburgh, 1881.
GOODWIN. 81

1840-48; professor of mathematics in Heidelberg College, Tiffin, O., 1850-68; and since 1869 has been professor of dogmatic theology in the theological department. He was founder (1848) and editor of The Western Missionary, now called The Christian World, Columbus, O. He also was largely instrumental in founding Heidelberg College and Theological Seminary (1850). He is the author of The Reformed Church Hymnal, with Tunes, 1873, 20 editions; The Heidelberg Catechism, newly arranged, Tiffin, O., 1879, several editions; The Children's Catechism, 1881, several editions; Prayer-book and Aids to Private Devotions, 1881; The Church-Member's Handbook, 1882.

GOODWIN, Daniel Raynes, D.D. (Boudow College, Brunswick, Me., 1858), L.L.D. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1868), Episcopalian; b. at North Berwick, Me., April 12, 1811; graduated from Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1832; became professor in it of modern languages, 1834; president of Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1833; provost of the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1860; resigned, 1868. Since 1863 he has been Holy Trinity professor of systematic divinity in the Episcopal Divinity School of Philadelphia. He is the author of Christianity neither Ascetic nor Fanatical, New Haven, 1838; The Christian Ministry, Middletown, Conn., 1860; Southern Slavery: A Reply to Bishop Hopkins, Philadelphia, 1864; The Perpetuity of the Sabbath, 1867; The New Ritualistic Divinity, 1879, 2d ed. same year; Memorial Discourse on H. W. Longfellow (before the alumni of Bowdoin College), Portland, 1882; Notes on the Late Revision of the New Testament Version, New York, 1883; Christian Eschatology, Philadelphia, 1885.

GOODWIN, Edward Payson, D.D. (Western Reserve College, Hudson, O., 1857; Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., 1868), Congregationalist; b. at Rome, N.Y., July 31, 1832; graduated from Amherst (Mass.) College, 1856, and the Union (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, New York City, 1859; became Congregational minister at Burke, Vt., 1859; Columbia, O., 1860; Chicago, Ill., 1865.

GOODWIN, Right Rev. Harvey, D.D. (Cambridge, 1858), lord bishop of Carlisle, Church of England; b. at King's Lynn, Norfolk, in the year 1818: entered Caius College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (second wrangler and Smith's prizesman), 1840, M.A. 1843; was fellow and mathematical lecturer of his college; ordained deacon 1842, priest 1844; was perpetual curate of St. Edward, Cambridge, 1845-58; Hulsean lecturer at Cambridge, 1855-57; dean of Ely, 1858-69; consecrated bishop, 1869. He became visitor of St. Bee's College, 1869; honorary fellow of Caius College, Cambridge, 1881. Besides mathematical works he is the author of Parish Sermons, London, 1847-52, 5 vols., several editions; University Sermons at Oxford and Cambridge, 1853, 1855, 1878, 3 vols.; Guide to the Parish Church, 1855, 4th ed. 1879; Hulsean Lectures for 1855-56 (1. Doctrines and Difficulties of the Christian Faith, etc.; 2. The Glory of the Only Begotten of the Father seen in the Church of God), 1857; The Doctrine of the Lord's Supper, 1856; Commentary on St. Matthew (1857), St. Mark (1856-60), and St. Luke (1856-64); Essays on the Pentateuch, 1867; Plain Sermons on Ordination and Ministry of the Church, 1875; Walks in Regions of Science and Faith, 1883.

GORDON, Adoniram Judson, D.D. (Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1877), Baptist; b. at New Hampton, N.H., April 10, 1836; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1860, and at Newton (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1863; became pastor of St. Andrew's Church, Boston, 1863, of the Clarendon-street Church, Boston, 1869. He is "a prohibitionist in temperament reform; a supporter and co-laborer with Mr. Moody in his evangelistic movement; low church in ecclesi-ology; and pre-millennial in eschatology." He is the author of In Christ or, The Believer's Union with his Lord, Boston, 1872, 5th ed. 1885; Congregational Worship, 1872; Grace and Glory (sermons), 1881; Ministry of Healing, 1882, 2d ed. 1883; The Two-fold Life, 1884, 2d ed. 1884.

GORDON, William Robert, D.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1859) Reformed (Dutch); b. in New-York City, March 10, 1811; graduated from the University of the City of New York (the first class publicly graduated; the exercises were held in the Middle Dutch Church, subsequently the New-York Post-Office), 1834, and at New Brunswick (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1837; became pastor at North Hempstead, Long Island, N.Y., 1838; Flushing, L.I., 1843; New York City (Houstou Street), 1849; Schraalenburgh, N.J., 1858; and since 1881 has lived in literary retirement. He is the author of A Rebuke to High Churchism, New York, 1844; The Supreme Godhead of Christ, 1848, 2d ed. 1858; A Guide to Children in Reading the Scriptures, 1852; Particular Providence, illustrated in the Life of Joseph, 1855, 3d ed. 1863; A Threefold Test of Modern Spiritualism, 1856; Reformation (a sermon in behalf of domestic missions preached before General Synod, 30,000 copies distributed), 1857; The Peril of our Ship of State, 1861; Christocracy (with J. T. Demarest), 1867, 2d ed. 1879; The Reformed Church in America: its History, Doctrines, and Government, 1869; Life of Henry Ostrander, D.D., 1875; Revealed Truth impregnable (Vedder Lectures), 1875.

GOODMAN, Abraham, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1822), Presbyterian; b. at Danby, N.Y., July 25, 1819; graduated from Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1843, and from Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1847, in which for a year (1850-51) was instructor in Hebrew; since 1851 he has been pastor at Lawrenceville, N.J. He partly translated and edited Genesis and Numbers; and entirely, with special introduction, Deuteronomy, in the American Lange series.

GOTCH, Frederic William, L.L.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1859), Baptist; b. at Kettering, Northamptonshire, Eng., in the year 1807; studied at Bristol Baptist College; 1822, graduated B.A. at Trinity College, Dublin, 1888; became pastor, Baptist Church at Boxmoor, Hertfordshire, Eng., 1838; philosophical tutor at Stepney College, London, 1856—; professor at Bristol College 1846, president 1868; resigned 1863; chairman of the Baptist Synod 1868—; minister of St. Luke and Short Street, Boston, 1870. He edited the Pentateuch in a Revised English Bible, London, 1877; is author of Supplement to the Fragments of the Codex Cottonianus, 1881.

GOTTHEIL, Gustav, Ph.D. (Jena University, 1853), Jewish rabbi; b. at Pinne, Prussia, May 28, 1827; educated at Posen and Berlin; graduated 1853; became rabbi of the Berlin Reform-gemeinde, 1853; at Manchester, Eng., 1856; of Temple Emanuel, New-York City, 1873. His theological standpoint is that of Reformed Judaism. He was a delegate to the Leipzig Synod in 1871, and has repeatedly lectured on Jewish topics in Christian pulpits, and has contributed articles to periodicals.

GOTTSCHICK. Johannes, D.D. (kon., Giessen, 1822). Lutheran; b. at Rochau, Prussia, Nov.
24, 1847; studied theology at Erlangen and Halle,
1863–68; became teacher in Halle gymnasmium,
1871; at Wernigerode, 1873; conrector at Torgau, 1876; religious inspector of the Pädagogium at Magdeburg, and vorsteher of the theological seminary, with title of professor, 1878; professor of practical theology at Giessen, 1882. He is in substantial agreement with the school of Ritschel of Göttingen. He has written Ueber Schleiermacher's Verklimmung zu Kant, Wernigerode, 1875; Kant's Beweis für das Dasein Gottes, Torgau, 1878; Luther als Katechet, Giessen, 1883; Ueber den evangelischen Religionsunterricht auf den höheren Schulen, 1882.)

GOUGH, John Bartholomew, Congregationalist, layman, famous temperance orator; b. at Sandgate, Kent, Eng., Aug. 22, 1817; d. in Philadelphia, Penn., Feb. 18, 1886. His father had been a soldier from 1798 to 1823, and had been honorably discharged on a pension of twenty pounds per annum. He was of a stern disposition; yet his heart was tender, and his children loved him. In church connections he was a Methodist. Mr. Gough's mother was a Baptist, an intelligent, sober-minded, gentle, and loving woman, who had been for twenty years the village school-mistress. He was taken from school at ten, and put to service in a gentleman's family. In his boyhood he enjoyed a village reputation as a good reader. About this time he was struck on the head by a spade, and rendered insensible. His life was for a time despaired of, and then his reason; and indeed he never fully recovered from the injury. When he was excited from any cause, he felt pricking and darting sensations in his head. One of his earliest amusements was to personate characters, as in amateur Punch-and-Judy shows, and otherwise, showing his rare talent for mimicry and acting. There seeming to be small prospect of his advancement at home, his parents accepted the offer of a Sandgate family about to emigrate to America, who engaged for ten guineas to take him with them, have him taught a trade, and provide for him until he was twenty-one. He sailed from London, June 10, 1829, and arrived in New York, Aug. 3; went with the family to the farm they had purchased in Oneida County, N.Y., and staid with them for two years; and then, having received his father's permission, he left them, and made his way to New-York City, where he arrived in the latter part of December, 1831, friendless, and with only a half-dollar in his pocket. He was then a member of the Methodist-Episcopal Church on probation, and so was induced to lay his case before Mr. Dund, the agent of the Christian Advocate and Journal, upon whom he made so favorable an impression, that he secured him a place as errand-boy and apprentice in the book-bindery in the Methodist Book Concern, where he had for a companion John McClintock, who afterwards became the well-known Methodist theologian. Young Gough was taught book-binding, and soon became remarkably skilful. Some of his Methodist friends proposed to educate him for the ministry, but the project was abandoned,—indeed, he withdrew from the denomination. (He later on joined the Congregational Church.) In 1832 he left the Book Concern, and secured elsewhere such good wages by his trade, that he sent for his father, mother, and only sister, who was two years his junior, to join him in New York; and the latter two arrived in August, 1833. His father remained behind, so as not to lose his pension. His sister was a straw-bonnet maker, and worked at her trade in the city. But in November, 1832, he and his sister lost their positions, owing to the hard times, and did not secure regular employment.
Thus the family was reduced to such straits,—that when his mother died, July 8, 1834, there was no money for a funeral, and her body was buried in the potter's field. After a brief visit to his former home in Oneida County, he returned to work in the city in September. It was then, when he was about eighteen years old, that he began to drink. His fund of amusing stories, and his wonderful ability to tell them, naturally made him a favorite among the young men he met.
Under the name of Gilbert, he sang a comic song entitled "The Water Party" at the Franklin Theatre in Chatham Street, New York. In 1836 he went to Bristol, R. I., and then to Providence.
His intemperance was now noticeable, and led to his discharge by successive employers. Once, while out of work, he played low-comedy parts in a theatre in Providence, and then in Boston, where, strangely enough, he personated the keeper of a temperance inn in a play entitled Departed Spirits, or the Temperance Hoax (in which Deacon Moses Grant and Dr. Lyman Beecher were ridiculed), but his engagement lasted only a few weeks. He frequently sang comic songs in public. In 1838 he married at Newburyport, Mass.; but his wife and child died, and his debts were so heavy on Sunday of October, 1842, at the age of twenty-five; by invitation of Joel Dudley Stratton, who at the time was a waiter in the American Temperance House at Worcester, Mass.; but later was a boot-crimper (see sketch of Stratton in Gough's Autobiog., p. 522), he signed the pledge of totalabstinence from all intoxicating liquors, at Worcester. The next week he was called upon to relate his experience as a drunkard; and the way in which he told his story of wretchedness, disease, and want, led to frequent requests to repeat it in public, and so he gradually became prominent as a temperance orator. Within five months (April, 1843) he thoughtlessly violated his pledge in Boston, when, almost insane in consequence of a drug taken to relieve his nervous exhaustion, he was offered, by an old companion, a glass of brandy. Again on Friday, Sept. 5, 1843, in New-York City, he was tricked into drinking liquor in a glass at a Temperance Inn, and imprisoned for a single glass aroused his craving, and he drank until intoxicated. His second fall was the more deplorable because he was then a widely known advocate of total abstinence. But he retained the confidence of the public, and showed true tentation. On Nov. 24, 1843, at Worcester, he married Miss Mary Whitcomb, his second wife. In 1853 he was invited by the Scottish Temperance League, and the British Temperance Association, to lecture on temperance in Great Britain for a few weeks; but he stayed two years, and returned in 1857, and remained three years. On Nov. 21, 1860, he delivered at New Haven, Conn., his first lecture not directly upon temperance ("Street Life in London"), and thus entered a broader field in which, by his lectures on "London," "El-quenoe and Orators," "Peculiar People," "Habit," and other topics, he has delighted thousands on both sides of the ocean. But he never lost interest in temperance work, and introduced the theme prominently in every lecture.
Mr. Gough was one of the most remarkable natural orators of this century. He was endowed with a musical and flexible voice, a winning man-nor, and a fine presence. He had both laughter and tears at his disposal. No one was superior to him as a story-teller. In proof of his popu-ist in temperance work, and introduced the theme prominently in every lecture.
Mr. Gough was one of the most remarkable natural orators of this century. He was endowed with a musical and flexible voice, a winning man-
nor, and a fine presence. He had both laughter
and tears at his disposal. No one was superior to him as a story-teller. In proof of his popu-

Since its beginning, in 1865, he has been joint editor of the Beweis des Glaubens. He is the author of Semiten and Indoeuromenainhrer Bezie

Since its beginning, in 1865, he has been joint editor of the Beweis des Glaubens. He is the author of Semiten and Indoeuromenainhrer Bezie

Since its beginning, in 1865, he has been joint editor of the Beweis des Glaubens. He is the author of Semiten and Indoeuromenainhrer Bezie

Since its beginning, in 1865, he has been joint editor of the Beweis des Glaubens. He is the author of Semiten and Indoeuromenainhrer Bezie

Since its beginning, in 1865, he has been joint editor of the Beweis des Glaubens. He is the author of Semiten and Indoeuromenainhrer Bezie

Since its beginning, in 1865, he has been joint editor of the Beweis des Glaubens. He is the author of Semiten and Indoeuromenainhrer Bezie
GRAVES.

GREEN.

GREEN, William Henry, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1857), LL.D. (Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1873), Presbyterian; b. at Groveville, near Bordentown, N.J., Jan. 27, 1825; graduated at Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1840; was tutor there for two years, then entered Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, and took the full course, interrupted by one year's teaching of mathematics (1843–44) at Lafayette, graduating in 1846. He was appointed instructor in Hebrew in the Seminary from 1846 to 1849, during which time (1847) he was stated supply to the Second Church of Princeton. From 1849 to 1851 he was pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia; and since 1851 he has been a professor in Princeton Theological Semi- nary. Until 1859 his chair was styled "Biblical and Oriental literature;" since 1859, "Oriental and Old-Testament literature." He was the chair- man of the American Old-Testament Company of the Anglo-American Bible-Revision Commit- tee; and is the author of A Grammar of the Hebrew Language, New York, 1881, 4th ed. 1885; A Hebrew Chrestomathy, 1883; and of other books, e.g., regarding Jewish literature, and the Aspersions of Bishop Colenso, vindicated from the Aspersions of Bishop Colenso, 1863; Elementary Hebrew Grammar, 1866, 2d ed. 1871; The Argument of the Book of Job unfolded, 1874; Moses and the Prophets, 1883; The Hebrew Feasts in their Relation to Recent Critical Hypoth- eses concerning the Pentateuch, 1885. He edited The Song of Solomon, in the American Lange series (1870).

GREEN, Right Rev. William Mercer, D.D. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1845), LL.D. (University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, 1880). Episcopalian, b. at Pleasant Run, Butler County, O., Oct. 17, 1828; graduated at Colgate in 1848, at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, and took the degree of D.D. in 1865. He was professor in the University of North Carolina, 1881; ordained deacon 1821, priest 1822; became rector of St. John's, Williamsburgh, N.C., 1821; of St. Matthew's, Hillsborough, 1825; chaplain and professor of belles-lettres in his alma mater; LL.D., College of New Jersey, 1850. Since 1866 he has been chancellor of the University of the South. He is "an anti-Calvinist, and a Churchman of the old school." Besides sermons and addresses as chancellor, he has writ-GREGG, Right Rev. Alexander, D.D. (South Carolina College, Columbia, S.C., 1859), Episcopal, bishop of Texas; b. at Society Hill, Darlington District, S.C., Oct. 8, 1819; graduated head of his class, South Carolina College, Columbia, 1838; president of Charyaw, S.C., until 1843; was rector of St. David's, Charyaw, 1846; consecrated, 1859. He attended the first Lambeth Conference, 1874. He has published, besides sermons, etc., History of Old Charyaw, 1867.

GREGG, Right Rev. Robert Samuel, D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1873), lord bishop of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross, Church of Ireland; son of Bishop Gregg; b. in Dublin, Ireland, in the year 1834; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; graduated B.A. and Divinity Theismmum (second class) 1857, M.A. 1860, B.D. 1873; ordained deacon 1857, priest 1858; rector of Carriglahane; vicar of St. Fin Barre; dean of Cork, 1874–75; bishop of Ossory, Ferns, and Leighlin, 1875–78; succeeded his father as bishop of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross, 1878. He is a member of the senate of Trinity College. He is the author of Memoirs of the Life of John Gregg, D.D. (his father), Dublin, 1879; sermons, pamphlets, etc.

GREGG, William, D.D. (Hanover College, Hanover, Ind., 1878), Canadian Presbyterian; b. at Killycreeen, near Ramelton, County Donegal, Ireland, July 5, 1817; graduated B.A. at the University of Glasgow, 1843, and M.A. at that of Edinburgh, 1844; studied theology in Free Church College, Edinburgh, 1843–46; became pastor at Belleville, Canada West, 1847; of Cooke's Church, Toronto, 1857; professor of apologetics and church history, Knox College, Toronto, 1872 (having taught apologetics in the college since 1864). He was moderator in 1861, when union was effected between the Presbyterian Church and the United Presbyterian Church in Canada. He edited Book of Passages for Family Worship, Toronto, 1878, 3d ed. 1885; wrote History of Presbyterian Church in Canada from the Earliest Times to 1834 (with chronological tables of subsequent leading events), 1885.

GREGORY, Caspar Rene, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1879), Lic. Theol. (Leipzig, 1884), Presbyterian; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., Nov. 6, 1846; graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1864, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1870; was Dr. Charles Hodge's literary assistant in preparing for and in carrying through the press his Systematic Theology, 1870–73 (of which he made the separately printed elaborate Index); sub-editor (bibliographer) of Schürer and Harnack, Theologische Literaturzeitung, 1870–84; pastor of the American Chapel in Leipzig, 1875–79; privat-doent at Leipzig University, May 23, 1884; elected professor of New Testament Greek, Johns Hopkins University, 1883. Besides several articles, notably upon Tischendorf, and translations of Luther's St. John the Author of the Fourth Gospel (Edinburgh, 1873, 2d ed. 1883), and Commentary on St. John's Gospel (1876–78, 3 vols., Philadelphia), he has published, Bemerkungen in N. T. Tischendorfanum ed. viii., maior, Leipzig, pars prima 1884.

GREGORY, Daniel Seely, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1878), Presbyterian; b. at Carmel, N.Y., Aug. 21, 1832; graduated at the College of New Jersey, 1857, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1860; was tutor of rhetoric and belles-lettres in the College of New Jersey, 1858–60; became pastor (elect) of the South Church, Geneva, Ill., 1860; of the Second Church, Troy, N.Y., 1863; of the Second Congregational Church, New Haven, Conn., 1866; pastor there, 1867; at South Salem, N.Y., 1869; professor of metaphysics and logic in Wooster University, Wooster, O., 1871; of mental science and English literature in the same institution, 1873; president of Lake Forest University, Ill., 1875–86. He is the author of Christian Ethics; or, the True Moral Mankind and Life of Duty, Philadelphia, 1875, seventh thousand 1886; Why Four Gospels? or, the Gospel for All the World, New York, 1876, 3d ed. 1885; Practical Logic, or, the Art of Thinking, Philadelphia, 1881, third thousand 1886; The Tests of Philosophic Systems, or a Natural Philosophy, being the L. P. Stone Lectures (enlarged) before Princeton Theological Seminary, 1885, 1886. He has also written, besides much else, the following review articles: 1. In The Princeton Review: The Preaching for the Times (1866), The Pastorate for the Times, and Studies in the Gospels—Matthew the Gospel for the Jews (1868), The Novel and Novel-reading (1869), The Christian Giving for the Times (1870), Mark the Gospel for the Romans (1871), Works by Professor March on Anglo-Saxon and English (1874). 2. In The Presbyterian Quarterly and Princeton Review: The True Theory and Practice of Education, and Studies in the Gospels—Luke the Gospel for the Greek (1873), A Grammar of the Hindi Language (1877). 3. In The Princeton Review (new series): The Eastern Problem, and John Stuart Mill and the Destruction of Theism (1878). 4. In The Presbyterian Review: A New Principle in Education (1874).

GRIER, William Moffatt, D.D. (Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill., 1873), Associate Reformed Presbyterian; b. near Yorkville, S.C., Feb. 11, 1843; graduated at Erskine College, Due West, S.C., 1869; pastor in Wilcox County, Ala., 1867–71; since 1871 president of Erskine College, and since 1884 professor of pastoral theology in Erskine Theological Seminary. Since 1881 he has been principal editor of The Associate Reformed Presbyterian.

GRIFFIS, William Elliot, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1884), Congregationalist; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., Sept. 17, 1843; graduated at Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1869, and at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1877; became pastor of the First Reformed Church, Schenectady, N.Y., 1877; of the Shawmut Congregational Church, Malden, Mass., 1886; was in the 44th Penn. Vols. during Lee's invasion of Pennsylvania, 1863; editor of Our Messenger, Philadelphia, Penn., 1864; in the educational service of the Japanese Government at Fukui and...
Okio, organizing schools and teaching physical science, 1871-74. He is the author of The New Japan Series of Reading-Books, San Francisco and Yokohama, 1872—73, 4 vols.; The Tokio Guide, The Yokohama Guide, Map of Tokio with Notes, Yokohama, 1874; The Mikado's Empire, New York, 1876, 4th ed. 1886; Japanese Fairy World, Schenevucty, 1880; Schenevucty First Church Memorial, Schenevucty, 1880; Asiatic History, China, Corea, and Japan (Chautauqua series, No. 34), New York, 1881; Corea, the Hermit Nation, New York, 1882, 2d ed. 1883; Corea, Without and Within, Philadelphia, 2d ed. 1885; Life of Commodore Matthew Calbraith Perry, New York, 1886.

GRIFFITH, Benjamin, D.D. (University of Lewisburg, Lewisburg, Penn., 1863), Baptist; b. in Juniata County, Penn., Oct. 13, 1821; graduated at Madison University, Hamilton, N.Y., 1841; became a “Methodist,” 1852; in Philadelphia, Penn., 1850; corresponding secretary of the American Baptist Publication Society, May, 1857, whose office is in Philadelphia.

GRIMM, Carl Ludwig Willibald, Ph.D. (Jena, 1832), Lic. Theol. (Giessen, 1833), D.D. (hon., Giessen, 1835), Lutheran; b. at Jena, Nov. 1, 1809; educated there 1827-32, and has ever since been connected with her university, as privat-docent. 1833; professor extraordinary, 1837; honorary ordinary professor, 1844. He became grand ducal ecclesiastical councillor in 1871, and privy ecclesiastical councillor 1885. His theological standpoint is of the “Mittelpartei.” His writings embrace, De Joanne cia logiae leonitanae indole paula, comparata, Leipzig, 1833; De libro sapientiae, Jena, 1833; De Lutheri indole, 1833; Oratio a Stoaputio, 1836; Commentar über das Buch der Weisheit, Leipzig, 1837; Die Glaubwürdigkeit der evangelischen Geschichte (against Strauss), Jena, 1845; Institutio theologica dogmatica evangelica historico critica, 1848, 2d ed. 1869; Die Lutherbibel und ihre Textrevision, Berlin, 1874; Kurzgefasste Geschichte der lutherischen Bibelübersetzung bis zur Gegenwart, Jena, 1884. He so edited Wilke’s Clavis N. T. philosophica (Leipzig, 1867), that it became a new work. He also bears the name. Latinum in libros N. T., 2d ed. 1879. With O. F. Fritzche he edited the Kurzgefasste exegeisches Handbuch zu den Apostelgeschichten d. A. T., Leipzig, 1851-60 (1st Macabees, 1853; 2d, 3d, 4th Macabees, 1857; Wisdom, 1860).

GRIMM, Joseph, D.D. (Munich, 1834), Roman Catholic; b. at Freising, Bavaria, Jan. 23, 1827; studied at the University of Munich, 1845-50; became a teacher 1852, chaplain 1854; professor of Old and New Testament exegesis in the royal lyceum at Regensburg, 1856; ordinary professor of New-Testament exegesis at Würzburg, 1874. He is bishop ofidentity, and since 1888 bishop of the Order of St. Michael. He is the author of Die Samariter und ihre Stellung in der Weltgeschichte, Regensburg, 1884; Der kärizi des zweiten Thessalonicher-Briefes (Programm zum Jahresbericht des Lyceums u. Gymnasi ums in Regensburg, 1881; Die Einheit der Lukas Evangelien, 1883; Das Leben Jesu, 1876, 8 sq. vols. (vol. 1, 1889).”

GRISAR, Hermann, Roman Catholic; b. at Coblenz; became a priest at Rome, 1868 (shortly after entered the Society of Jesus); professor of church history at Innsbruck, 1871. He has written essays in his department, in the Innsbruck Zeitschrift für kathol. Theologie, and edited from the MS. and annotated Iago Laiuer’s (1512—1565) Disputations Tridentinae, Innsbruck, 1880, 2 vols.

GRUBBS, Isaiah Boone, A.M., Disciple; b. near Trenton, Todd County, Ky., May 24, 1833; graduated at Bethany (West Va.) College, 1857; became pastor at Eminence, Ky., 1869; at Louisville, Ky., 1873; editor of The Apostolic Times, published in Lexington, Ky., 1876; professor of sacred literature in the College of the Bible, Kentucky University, in that place, 1877. He has written much for denominational journals.

GRUNDEMANN, Peter Reinhold, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1858), D.D. (hon., Berlin, 1885), German Protestant; b. at Bärwalde, Brandenburg, Jan. 9, 1836; studied at the universities of Tübingen, Halle, and Berlin, 1854-58; became assistant preacher at Fouch, near Bitterfeld, 1851; Gefangensprecher in Frankfurt-on-the-Oder, 1863; cartographer at Gotha, 1865; pastor at Mörz, near Belzig, 1869. He was in Greece 1858-59, Norway 1860, Holland 1863, 1865, 1867, England 1856-57, United States 1868. He is a member of the Berlin and Jena Geographical Society; and the author of Allgemener Missionsatlas, Gotha, 1876, 71; J. F. Riedel, ein Lebensbild, Gütersloh, 1873; Kleiner Missionsatlas, Calw and Stuttgart, 1883, 2d ed. 1888; and edited the second edition of Buckhardt’s Kleine Missionsbibliothek, Bielefeld, 1876-81, 4 vols.

GRUNERT, Maximilian Eugene, Moravian; b. at Niesky, Silesia, Feb. 28, 1828; educated at Niesky, and in the theological seminary at Gnadendorf; after being principal of the Female Academy, Salem, N.C., and pastor at Emmaus, Penn., he became in 1879 professor in the Moravian Theological Seminary, Bethlehem, Penn.

GRUMBELMANN, Jacob Samuel, D.D. (Richmond College, Va., 1855), Baptist; b. in Bern, Switzerland, Nov. 27, 1838; graduated at University of Rochester, N.Y., 1858, and at Rochester Theological Seminary, 1860; became pastor of German Baptist Church at Janesville, Wisc. 1862; established Moravian Seminary at Niesky, Saxony, Dec. 4, 1823; and since 1878 he has been professor of theology in the Concordia Theological Seminary, St. Louis, Mo. He is the author of Populäre Symbolik, St. Louis, 1862; Philadelphia, 1868; professor of systematic theology and homiletics in the German department of the Rochester Theological Seminary, 1884.

GUENTHER, Martin, Lutheran; b. at Dresden, Saxony, Dec. 4, 1831; graduated at Altenburg (Mo.) College, 1849, and at Concordia Theological Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., 1853; held charges in Wisconsin (1853-60), Michigan (1860-72), and in Chicago, Ill. (1872-73); and since 1873 has been professor of theology in the Concordia Theological Seminary, St. Louis, Mo. He is the author of Populäre Symbolik, St. Louis, Mo., 1872-73, 2d ed. 1881; and editor of Lutheraner: Magazin für ev. luth. Homiletik, etc.

GULLIVER, John Putnam, Congregationalist; b. in Boston, Mass., May 12, 1819; graduated from Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1840, and from Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1845. He was pastor of churches in Norwich, Conn. (1845-48), Chicago, Ill. (1865-68), Binghamton, N.Y. (1872-78); president of Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., 1868-72; and since 1878 he has been professor of the relations of Christianity. and secular science in Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary.

GUTHE.

Hermann, Lic. Theol. (Leipzig, 1876), German Protestant; b. at Westerlinde, Braunschweig, May 10, 1849; studied at Göttingen from 1867 to 1869, and at Erlangen 1869 and 1870; became private tutor in Livonia, 1870; assistant of theology at Göttingen, 1873; privat-dozent at Leipzig, 1877; professor extraordinary there, 1884. As member of the business committee of the German Palestine Exploration Society, he conducted the excavations at Jerusalem in 1881. His theological standpoint is "Ethischer Supranaturalismus mit völliger Freiheit der historischen Forschung." Since 1877 he has edited the Zeitschrift des Deutschen Palästina Vereins, Leipzig (1877–85, 8 vols.), and in it written numerous articles upon biblical geography, topography, and archaeology. Besides these and articles in Herzog's Real-Encyklopädie, 2d ed., and Harnack-Schürer Theolog. Literaturzeitung, he has written De fœderis notione jeremiannae (Habilitationsschrift), Leipzig, 1877; Ausgrabungen bei Jerusalem, 1883; Die Siloahinschrift (Z. D. M. Bd. xxxvi.); Fragmente einer Lederhandschrift (Shapira's Deuteronomy) mitgeteilt und geprüft, 1883; Das Zukunftsbild des Jesaja (Antrittsvorlesung enlarged), 1885; and with Georg Ebers made the German edition of Pictoresque Palestine, London and New York, 1881–84, 2 vols. (Palästina in Bild u. Wort, Stuttgart und Leipzig, 1883–84, 2 vols.).

GWYNN, John, D.D. (Dublin, 1880), Church of Ireland; b. at Larne, County Antrim, Ireland, Aug. 28, 1827; graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, B.A. (senior moderator in mathematics) 1850, M.A. 1854, B.D. 1861. He became fellow of Trinity College, 1853; warden of St. Columba's College, Dublin, 1856; was rector of Tullyaghnish, 1858–82; dean of Raphoe, 1873–82; dean of Derry, 1882; and rector of Templemore, Derry, 1882–83; Archbishop King's lecturer in divinity, University of Dublin, 1883, and is a member of the senate. He wrote the commentary (with introduction) on the Epistle to Philippians, in The Bible (Speaker's) Commentary, London, 1881.
HAERING, Theodor, German theologian; b. in Stuttgart, Württemburg, April 22, 1848; studied in the Stuttgart gymnasium, and in the evangelical theological seminaries of Ulm (1862-66) and of Tübingen (1866-70), and at the University of Berlin (1871); became repetend in the Evangelical Theological Seminary at Tübingen, 1873; diaconus in Calw 1876, and in Stuttgart, 1881; ordinary professor of theology at Zürich, 1886. His theological position is the biblico-positive, particularly influenced by Ritschl and Kaftan and his deceased teachers Landerer and Beck. He is the author of Das Bischofliche im Glauben an Christus, Stuttgart, 1880; and since 1880 has edited the Theologische Studien aus Württemberg.

HALE, Charles Reuben, S.T.D. (Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1870), Episcopal; b. at Lewistown, Mifflin County, Penn.; graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1858; was assistant minister of All Saints' Church, Lower Dublin, Philadelphia, 1861; chaplain in United States Navy, 1863; rector of St. John's Church, Auburn, N.Y., 1870; rector of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, Baltimore County, Md., 1874; one of the Vicars of Christ Church, Beth- more, Md., 1877; since 1896 dean of Davenport, Ia. He was secretary to the Italian Church Reforma tion Commission, 1869; secretary to the Russo-Greek Committee, 1871; clerk to the Commission of the House of Bishops on Correspondence with the Hierarchs of the Eastern Churches, 1874; and with the Old Catholics, 1874; secretary (for America) of the Anglo-Continental Society of England, 1874; secretary to the Commission of the General Convention on Ecclesiastical Relations, 1877. In theology he is an Anglican. His published writings consist of Reports (of the House of Bishops) for the years 1870 and 1873; of the Committee on Ecclesiastical Relations, N.Y., 1881 and 1884), a Paper on the Russian Church (read before the Church Congress, Leices ter, Eng., 1880; republished, Baltimore, 1881), Speeches and Addresses (in Baltimore, 1881; two in Church Congress at Carlisle, Eng., 1884, On Foreign Chaplaincies, and England's Duty towards Egypt; two in Church Congress at Portsmouth, Eng., 1885, The Prayer Book, and The Attitude of the Church towards Movements in Foreign Churches), Sermons (in St. Timothy's Church, N.Y. City, 1874; in Inverness Cathedral, by appointment of the Primus of Scotland, Oct. 5, 1884), and the following: Report of the Committee appointed by the Philomathean Society of the Unio, of Pennsylvania to translate the Inscription on the Rosetta Stone (the committee consisted of S. H. Jones, H. Morton, and himself), Philadelphia (privately printed), 1838, 2d ed. 1850; A List of the Sees and Bishops of the Holy Eastern Church, 1870; A List of all the Sees and Eparchs of the Illyrican Orthodox Church in the East, New York, 1872; An Eastern View of the Bonn Conference, Utica, N.Y., 1876; The Mozarabic Liturgy, and the Mexican Branch of the Catholic Church of our Lord Jesus Christ Militant upon Earth, New York, 1876; Innocent of Moscow, the Apostle of Kamchatka and Alaska, 1877; The Orthodox Missionary Society of Russia, 1878; Russian Missions in China and Japan, 1878; An Order for the Holy Communion, arranged from the Mozarabic Liturgy, Baltimore, 1879 (two supplements to the above, 1879); An Office for Holy Baptism, arranged from the Mozarabic and Cognate Sources, 1879; Mozarabic Collects, translated and arranged from the Ancient Liturgy of the Spanish Church, New York, 1881; The Universal Episcopate, or List of the Sees and Bishops in the Holy Catholic Church throughout the World, Baltimore, 1882; The Eucharistic Office of the Christian Catholic Church of Switzerland, translated and compared with that in the Missale Romanum, New York, 1882.

HALE, Edward Everett, S.T.D. (Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., 1879), Unitarian; b. in Boston, Mass., April 3, 1822; educated at the Boston Latin School, and at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., where he graduated in 1849; studied theology privately; was pastor at Worces ter from 1846 to 1866, and since that time has been pastor of the South Congregational (Uni tarian) Church of Southfield, Mass., was chosen a member of the National Unitarian Council of American Churches, 1882-84; and since 1881 president of the Suffolk Conference of Unitarian Churches. He edited The Christian Examiner, the organ of his denomination, 1857–63; Old and New, a semi theological magazine, 1870–72; and since 1886, Send a Hand. Of his many volumes may be mentioned, Kansas and Nebraska, Boston, 1856; Ten Times One is Ten, 1870; What Career? 1878; four volumes of sermons, 1879–81. He was one of the writers of Bryant and Gay's History of the United States, New York, 1876–96.

HALEY, John William, Congregationalist; b. at Tuftonborough, N.H., June 8, 1834; graduated at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., 1850, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1861; was pastor of the Christian Church, Eastport, Me., 1864–66; professor of metaphysics, Union College, Merom, Ind., 1865; pastor at Somerset, Mass., 1860–69; acting pastor of the Congregational Church, Duxbury, Mass., 1869–70; resident licentiate at Andover, Mass., 1870–71, 1872; acting pastor at Dudley, Mass., 1872. Since 1874 has been engaged in literary work at Tyngsborough, Mass. (1874–80), at Lowell, Mass. (1880–84), and since at Amherst; he has also preached in these places and their vicinity. He took an active part in the Lowell Hebrew Club, organized in 1875. He is the author of Examination of Alleged Discrepancies of the Bible, Andover, 1874, 3d ed. 1882; The Hereafter of Sin: What it will be; with Answers to Certain Questions and Ob jections, 1881; edited The Book of Esther, a New Translation, with Notes, Excerpts, Illustrations, and Indexes, by a Hebrew Club, 1883. He taught Hebrew in 1885, and Hebrew and Greek in 1886, in the Amherst Summer School of Languages. He has also lectured on different topics.
HALLOCK, Isaac Hollister, A.M., L.L.B., Ph.D. (Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1876), Presbyterian layman; b. at Norwalk, Conn., Dec. 12, 1837; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1859, and at Columbia Law School, New-York City, 1860; practised law in the city until 1875; was associate editor of the New-York Independent, 1875; professor in the Beirait Protestant College, 1875-77; associate editor of The Sunday School Times, Philadelphia, 1877-81; since then has been connected with the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New-York City, and lecturer on New-Testament Greek in Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md. He was an original decipherer of the Cypriote inscriptions; discoverer of the Pre-Harklensian Syriac version in the Beirait MS., and of the Antilegomena Epistles in the Williams MS. of Acts and Epistles. He is the author of American Greek Testaments, A Critical Bibliography of the Greek New Testament as published in America, Philadelphia, 1883; Reproduction in Phototype of 3 Pages of the Beirait MS., 1883; Reproduction in Phototype of 17 Pages of a Syriac MS. containing the Epistles known as Antilegomena, Baltimore; Minutes of Proceedings of the General Assembly of the Greek New Testament, based upon Reuss' Bibliotheca N. T. Graeca, in Schaff's Companion to the Greek Testament and English Version, New York, 1883; and of articles in the Journals and Transactions of learned societies, particularly of the American Oriental Society (chiefly decipherment of Cypriote and other inscriptions, Syriac MSS., etc.), Society of Biblical Archaeology (London), American Philological Association, Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis, etc.

HALLOCK, John, D.D. (Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1866). LL.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1860, and from Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., 1885), Presbyterian; b. in County Armagh, Ireland, July 31, 1829; graduated from the Royal College, and the General Assembly's Theological College, both in Belfast; and was licensed to preach in 1849. For the next three years he labored as the Students' Missionary in the West. In 1852 he came as a delegate from the Presbyterian Church in Ireland to the Presbyterian Church in America. In 1882 he was elected chancellor of the University of the City of New York, and in 1885 accepted the position, having meanwhile been chancellor ad interim. He receives, however, no salary, and is assisted by a vice-chancellor. In 1874 his congregation removed from the corner of Fifth Avenue and Nineteenth Street to that of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, where they had erected a spacious building at the cost of a million dollars. Dr. Hall is the author of Family Prayers for Four Weeks, New York, 1868: Papers for Home Reading, 1871; Familiar Talks to Boys, n. d.; Questions of the Day, 1873; God's Word through Preaching, 1875 (Lyman Beecher Lectures at Yale Seminary); Foundation Scenes for Young Builders, New Year's Book for the Boys and Girls of America, Philadelphia, 1880; A Christian Home, How to make and how to maintain it, 1883.

HALLOCK, Newman, LL.B. (London University, 1855), Congregationalist; b. at Maidstone, Kent, near London, Eng., May 22, 1816; educated at Totteridge and at Highbury College; and graduated B.A. at the University of London, 1841. From 1842 to 1854 he was minister of the Albion Congregational Church, Hull. In 1854 he went to London, to his present charge. The congregation then worshipped in the Surrey Chapel (Rowland Hill's), Blackfriars Road; but in 1876 they removed to their new building, Christ Church, on the Westminster-Bridge road. Mr. Hall's ministry has been an eventful one, on account of the independence and vigor of his work. He was among the earliest advocates of total abstinence in England, a depurator of the fears of Roman-Catholic aggression in 1850, and a faithful friend of the North in the late Civil War. After that war he made an extensive tour through the Northern States, with the design of allaying the popular bitterness against Great Britain, and preached before both houses of Congress assembled in the House of Representatives, on a Sunday in November, 1867. As a memorial of this visit, there was built the Lincoln Tower, as part of his new church, by joint subscription of the British and Americans. This church cost £60,000, and seats two thousand persons. The Church-of-England service is used in a slightly modified form. Mr. Hall is the author of the tract Come to Jesus, London, 1846 (of which nearly 3,000,000 copies have been circulated, in upwards of twenty languages): It is I, 1848 (139,000 copies of the English ed. up to 1885); Antidote to Fear, 1850, new ed. 1869; The Land of the Forum and the Vatican (travels), 1852, new ed. 1859; Sacrifice, or Pardon and Purity through the Cross, 1857; Conflict and Victory (a biography of his father), 1859; Home-bound Bound, and other Sermons, 1868; From Liverpool to St. Louis, 1868; Pilgrim Songs in Cloud and Sunshine (poems), 1871; Prayer, its Reasonableness and Efficacy, 1875; The Lord's Prayer: A Practical Meditation, 1883; Songs of Earth and Heaven, 1885; besides several tracts and minor treatises, of which may be mentioned, My Friends; Follow Jesus (246,000 copies of the English ed. up to 1885); Now; Quench not the Spirit; Memoir of Rowland Hill; Grace and Glory; Scriptural Claims of Total Abstinence.

HALLOCK, Randall Cook, S.T.D. (Racine College, Racine, Wis., 1881; General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1885), Episcopalian; b. at Wallingford, Conn.; Dec. 18, 1842; graduated from Columbia College, 1863, and from the General Theological Seminary (both in New-York City), 1866; and since 1871 has been Clement C. Moore professor of the Hebrew and Greek languages in the latter institution. He is examining chaplain of the diocese of New York.

HALLOCK, Joseph Newton, Congregationalist; b. at Jamesport, N.Y., July 4, 1834; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1857, and at Yale Theological Seminary, 1860; suceed Rev. Dr. W. M. Taylor as editor-in-chief of The Christian at Work, New-York City, 1880. He edited Tacitus, with Notes, New Haven, Conn., 1851.

HALSEY, Leroy Jones, D.D. (Hanover College, Ind., 1853), LL.D. (South-western University, Clarksville, Tenn., 1880), Presbyterian; b. in Goochland County, Va., Jan. 28, 1812; graduated at Nashville (Tenn.) University in 1834, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary in 1840; from 1844 to 1849 was pastor in Jackson, Miss.; until 1859, in Louisville, Ky.; until 1892 professor of pastoral theology, church government, and homiletics, in the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of the North-west, Chicago, Ill. (being one of the four original professors); and since 1882 has been professor emeritus. From 1876 to 1884 he was associate editor of The Interior, a religious weekly, published at Chicago; and since, contributing editor. He is the author of Literary Attractions of the Bible, New York, 1858 (3 editions); Life Pictures from the Bible, Philadelphia, 1859; Beauty of Immanuel, 1860; Life and Works of Dr. D.D., 1861; Lewis Warner Green, D.D., New York, 1867; Living Christianity, Philadelphia, 1882; Scotland's Place in Civilization, 1885.

HAMBURGER, Jakob, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1852), Hebrew rabbi; b. at Loslau, Upper Silesia, Nov. 10, 1829; studied philosophy and philology, especially oriental, at Breslau and Berlin, 1849-52; pursued his Talmud studies at Pressburg, Hungary, and at Nikolobur, Moravia; since 1859 he has been rabbi of Mecklenburg-Strelitz. He has written Geist und Ursprung der aramaischen Uebersetzung des Pentateuchs, bekannt unter dem Namen, Targum Onkelos, Leipzig, 1852 (his doctor's dissertation); Geist der Hagada, 1857; Real-Encyclopädie für Bibel und Talmud, Strelitz, 1865-83, 2 parts (i. biblical articles, A-Z, 1865-70; ii. articles on the Talmud and Midrash, 1870-83), 2d ed. enlarged and improved, Leipzig, 1884, sqq., supplement preparing. Cf. Encyclopaedia, p. 635. In 1873 he was a professor of Jewish Literature at the College of Wrangel, Crawfordsville, Ind., 1877, S.T.D. (Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill., 1877), Presbyterian; b. in Belfast, Ireland, Nov. 29, 1834; graduated at Hanover (Ind.) College, 1853, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1858; was pastor at Oyster Bay, Long Island, N.Y., 1858-61; in charge of congregation at Dromore Place in Civilization, 1885.

HAMILTON, Edward John, D.D. (Wabash College, Crawfordsville, Ind., 1877), S.T.D. (Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill., 1877), Presbyterian; b. in Bath, Somersetshire, Eng., Jan. 24, 1837; was a student in Exeter College, Oxford, took double first-class in modern schools, 1880-81; was ordained deacon 1861, priest 1862, chaplain of the Oxford Female Penitentiary, 1870-82; since 1882 has been rector of Wootton, Northamptonshire, Eng. He is the author of Outlines of Textual Criticism applied to the New Testament, Oxford, 1872, 4th ed. 1884; Liturgies, Eastern and Western, 1878; (Appendix), The Ancient Liturgy of Antioch, and other Liturgical Fragments, 1879.

HAMMOND, Charles Edward, Church of England; b. at Bath, Somersetshire, Eng., Jan. 24, 1837; was a student in Exeter College, Oxford, took double first-class in modern schools, 1880-81; was ordained deacon 1861, priest 1862, chaplain of the Oxford Female Penitentiary, 1870-82; since 1882 has been rector of Wootton, Northamptonshire, Eng. He is the author of Outlines of Textual Criticism applied to the New Testament, Oxford, 1872, 4th ed. 1884; Liturgies, Eastern and Western, 1878; (Appendix), The Ancient Liturgy of Antioch, and other Liturgical Fragments, 1879.

HAMMOND, Edward Payson, Presbyterian; b. at Ellington, Conn., Sept. 1, 1818; graduated at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1838; studied in Union Theological Seminary, New York City, 1858-59, and in the Free Church College, Edinburgh, 1860-61; was ordained in 1863, and ever since has been an evangelist and revivalist, in which capacity he has travelled extensively. Among his publications are Jesus the Way, London, 1868; Conversion of Children, New York, 1878, new ed. 1882; Gathered Lambs, 1882; and a volume of verse, Sketches of Palestine, Boston, 1868, re-issue 1874.

HANHE, Johann Wilhelm, D.D., German Protestant theologian; b. at Harber, Lüneburg, Dec. 29, 1813; was pastor at Braunschweig (Brunswick) and Hannover; became ordinary professor of theology, and pastor of St. James at Greifswald, 1861. He is the author of Rationalismus und speculative Theologie in Braunschweig, Braunschweig, 1838; Festreden an Gieudete über das Wesen des christlichen Glaubens, insbesondere über das Verhältnis der gesichtlichen Person Christi zu der Idee des Gottesreiches, 1859; Friedrich Schleierschererwacher als religiöser Genius Deutschlands, 1840; Sokrates als Geniuus der Humanität (compansion volume to the preceding), 1841; Der moderne Nihilismus und die Straßensche Glaubenslehre im Verhältniss zur Idee der christlichen Religion, Bielefeld, HAPPER. 91

HAPPER, Andrew Patton, M.D. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1844), D.D. (Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1845), Presbyterian; b. near Monongahela City, Penn., Oct. 29, 1818; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1835; taught school, 1835-40; studied in Western Theological Seminary, Alleghany, Penn., 1840-43; and graduated; since 1844 has been a foreign missionary in China. He visited America 1867-68, 1885-86.

HARE, Right Rev. William Hobart, D.D. (Kenyon College, Gambier, O., 1872), S.T.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., and Columbia College, New-York City, both 1872), Episcopalian, missionary bishop of South Dakota; b. at Princeton, N.J., May 17, 1838; studied at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, but serious eye-trouble compelled him to withdraw at the close of junior year; was assistant minister at St. Luke's, 1859-62; rector of St. Paul's, Chestnut Hill, 1862-63; in charge of St. Luke's, 1863-64; in charge of, and later rector of, the Church of the Ascension, 1864-70 (all in Philadelphia); secretary and general agent of the Foreign Committee of the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South; b. in Pickens County, Ala., Sept. 17, 1829; graduated at the State University of Alabama, at Tuscaloosa, 1852; was itinerant preacher in the Alabama Conference, 1857-58; in the Kentucky Conference, 1868; in the Tennessee Conference, 1868-82; professor of mathematics in the University of Alabama, 1853-77; chaplain in the Confederate army; president of the Centenary Institute, Summerville, Ala., 1865-67; of the Tennessee Female College at Franklin, 1869-73, member of Cape May Commission for adjudicating differences between Methodism North and South, 1876; elected bishop, 1882.

HARKAVY, A. (Hebrew name Abraham Elias, in ordinary life Albert), Hebrew rabbi; b. in St. Petersburg, Russia, Oct. 29, 1839; educated in the Wilna Rabbinical School, Russia, and at the University of St. Petersburg (1863-67); pursued studies at Berlin (under Rodiger and Dümichen) and at Paris (under Oppert) 1868-70; graduated a rabbi at Wilna, 1863; magister (1868) and doctor (1872) of the history of the Orient; was unanimously chosen a docent in the Oriental faculty at St. Petersburg in 1870, after delivering test lectures upon the history of the Semitic nations, but prevented by the efforts of a personal enemy from receiving the position; is a member of the Imperial Russian State Council, knight of several orders, librarian of the Imperial Public Library at St. Petersburg, and honorary member of the Hellenic Philological Synagogue of Constantinople, member of the Society of the Friends of Natural Science and Anthropology of Moscow, corresponding member of the Geographical Society of Tiibis, and member of the Imperial Russian Archaeological Society, etc. He is a moderate conservative in political matters. His literary activity in Hebrew and Russian dates from 1860. Besides different articles in learned periodicals, he has written in Russian "The Jews and the Slavonic Languages," St. Petersburg, 1867; "Information concerning the Mussulman Writers upon Slavs and Russians," appendix to same 1871; "The Historical Importance of the Moabite Inscription of King Moab," 1871; "The Original Home of the Semites, Hamites, and Japhethites," 1872; "Information concerning the Arabs under Thulè," 1873; "Information concerning Jewish Writers upon the Chaldee and their Kingdom," 1874; "Catalogue of the Samaritan MSS. in the Imperial Public Library," 1874-75; "The Origin of some Geographical Names on the Taurian Peninsula," 1876; "The Information of Abraham of Kertah upon the Embassy of St. Wladimir to the Chaldeans," 1876; "Biography of Peter Lorch," 1885; "Biography of Cetalan Czasowics, Professor of Hebrew at the University," 1885. In French, Les mots égyptiens de la Bible, 1870; Sur un passage des "Prairies d'o" resigne(Macouli concernant l'historique ancien des Slaves, 1876. In German, Catalog der hebräischen Bibli-
HARMAN, Henry Martyn, D.D. (Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1866), Methodist; b. in Anne Arundel County, Md., March 22, 1822; graduated at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1848; was professor in Baltimore (Md.) Female College, 1853–55; professor of languages in West Virginia University, 1855–63; wrote, Die Kirche, ihr Aml, ihr Regiment, Nurnberg, 1862; was pastor of several churches prior to and subsequent to his theological course; from 1882 to 1883 was professor in Lombard University, Galesburg, Ill.; and since 1883, has been professor of theology in Tufts Divinity School, College Hill, Mass.

HARMAN, George Milford, Universalist; b. at Thorndike, Waldo County, Me., Nov. 28, 1842; graduated at Tufts College, College Hill, Mass., 1867, and at its divinity school, 1875; was pastor of several churches prior to and subsequent to his theological course; from 1882 to 1883 was professor in Lombard University, Galesburg, Ill.; and since 1883, has been professor of theology in Tufts Divinity School, College Hill, Mass.

HARNACK, Karl Gustav Adolf, Ph.D. (Leipzig, February, 1873), Lic. Theol. (Gottingen, February, 1874). D.D. (Bon., Marburg, 1879), German Protestant; b. at Dorpat, Livland, May 7, 1851; studied at Dorpat, 1869—72; became privat-docent at Leipzig, July, 1874; professor extraordinary, May, 1876; ordinary professor of church history at Giessen, April, 1879; at Marburg, 1883. His theological standpoint is historico-critical. A large part of his literary work is scattered in journals. The following have appeared separately: Zur Quellenkritik der Geschichte des Gnosticismus, Leipzig, 1873; De Apellis gnosti monarchica, 1874; Patrum Apostolorum opera (ed. with von Gebhardt and Zahn), 1875—77, 2 vols. (vol. I, 2d ed. 1876—78, 2 parts); Patrum Apost. opp. ed. minor, 1877; Die Zeit des Ignatius und die Chronologie der antiken Bischofs bis Tyrannus nach Julius Africanus and den späteren Historikern, Nebst einer Untersuchung über die Verbreitung der Passio S. Polycarp im Abendlande, 1875; Das Münchhüm, seine Ideale und seine Geschichte, Giessen, 1891, 3d ed. 1896; Texte und Untersuchungen zur Geschichte der altchristlichen Literatur, 1883, sqq. (ed. with von Gebhardt; to the series Harnack has contributed Die Ueberlieferung der griechischen Apologeten des zweiten Jahrhunderts in der alten Kirche und im Mittelalter, Bd. I, Hft. 1 u. 2, 1882; Die Altereatio Simonis Judaei et Theophilus Christianus nebst Untersuchungen über die aufjudische Polemik in der alten Kirche; and Die Acta Archelai und das Diatessaron Taitians, Bd. I. Hft. 3, 1888; Der angebliche Evangelienkommentar des Theophilius von Antiochien, Bd. I., Hft. 4, 1888; Le zwey Apostel. Text und Übersetzung, Anmerkungen, Einleitung und Prolegomena, Hft. 1 u. 2, 1894); Martin Luther in seiner Bedeutung für die Geschichte der Wissenschaft und der Bildung, Giessen, 1883, 2d ed. 1886; Lehrbuch der Dogmengeschichte, Freiburg-im-Breisgau, 1888—88, 2 vols. He edited, with notes and excursus, the German translation of Hatch's Organization of the Early Christian Churches (Die Gesellschaftsverfassung der christlichen Kirchen im Alterthum), Giessen, 1883; Tatian's Rebe an die Grieche übersetzt und eingeleitet, 1884. Since 1881 he has edited with Schürer the Theologische Literaturzeitung, Leipzig, 1876, sqq.
edited The Hebrew Student (Chicago, 1882-84), and edits Hebraica (Chicago, 1884, sqq.), Old Testament Student (1882, sqq.).

HARRIS, George, D.D. (Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., 1856), Congregationalist; b. at East Machias, Me., April 1, 1844; graduated from Amherst College, Mass., 1866, and from Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1869; was pastor at Auburn, Me., 1869-72; at Providence, R.I., 1872-83; and since 1883 has been Abbott professor of Christian theology in the Andover Theological Seminary.

HARRIS, Samuel, D.D. (Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1855), LL.D. (Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1871), Congregationalist; b. at East Machias, Me., June 14, 1814; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1833, and at Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1838; was principal of Limerick Academy, Me., 1833-34, and of Washington Academy, East Machias, Me., 1834-35, 1838-41; pastor at Conway, Mass., 1841-51, and at Pittsfield, Mass., 1851-55; professor of systematic theology in the Bangor Theological Seminary, 1855-67 (from 1855 to 1863, jointly with Rev. Prof. George Shepard, D.D., acting pastor of the Center Church in Bangor); president of the Center Church in Bangor; president of the Andover Theological Seminary.

HARRIS, Samuel, D.D. (Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1855), LL.D. (Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1871), Congregationalist; b. at East Machias, Me., June 14, 1814; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1833, and at Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1838; was pastor at Auburn, Me., 1869-72; at Providence, R.I., 1872-83; and since 1883 has been Abbott professor of Christian theology in the Andover Theological Seminary.

HARRIS, Samuel, D.D. (Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1855), LL.D. (Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1871), Congregationalist; b. at East Machias, Me., June 14, 1814; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1833, and at Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1838; was principal of Limerick Academy, Me., 1833-34, and of Washington Academy, East Machias, Me., 1834-35, 1838-41; pastor at Conway, Mass., 1841-51, and at Pittsfield, Mass., 1851-55; professor of systematic theology in the Bangor Theological Seminary, 1855-67 (from 1855 to 1863, jointly with Rev. Prof. George Shepard, D.D., acting pastor of the Center Church in Bangor); president of the Center Church in Bangor; president of the Andover Theological Seminary.

HARRIS, Right Rev. Samuel Smith, D.D. (William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va., 1875), LL.D. (University of Alabama, at Tuscaloosa, 1879), Episcopal, bishop of Michigan; b. in Autauga County, Ala., Sept. 14, 1841; graduated at the University of Alabama, at Tuscaloosa, 1859; studied law at the University Law School, Montgomery, Ala., and admitted to the bar in 1861; being a minor; after practising law for some years, was admitted to holy orders in the Protestant Episcopal Church, at Montgomery, Ala., 1869; became rector of Trinity Church, Columbus, Ga., 1869; of Trinity Church, New Orleans, La., 1871; of St. James's Church, Chicago, Ill., 1875; consecrated bishop, 1879. He is "in sympathy with the liberal school of thought in the Protestant Episcopal Church." In 1876, with Rev. Dr. John Fulton, he founded the Living Church newspaper, and was editor for six months. Besides many occasional sermons, pamphlets, and articles in reviews, he has published Zaccheus, the Sacred Plan of Beneficence, Boston, 1844; Christ's Prayer for the Death of his Redeemed, 1883; The Kingdom of Christ on Earth, New York, 1883.

HARRIS, Karl August, D.D., Lutheran; b. at New York, 1883.

HARRIS, Karl August, D.D., Lutheran; b. at New York, 1883.

HARRIS. 93

HASE.

national law. He was one of the founders of the Positivist School, in 1870; and in 1871, of Newton Hall, London, where the religious services of the Positivists are held. He has in articles, lectures, and addresses advocated his faith. He has been a frequent contributor to The Westminster Review, the Contemporary, the Nineteenth Century, and Fortnightly Reviews; and in book form have been issued of his writings, Order and Progress (Pt. 1, On Government; Pt. 2, Studies of Political Crisis), London, 1875; 2d vol. of English Trans. of A. Comte's Positive Philosophy, 1875; Present and Future: a Positivist Address, 1880; The Choice of Books, and other Literary Pieces, 1886. A reprint, unauthorized by him, of his and Herbert Spencer's articles upon The Nature and Reality of Religion, appeared in New York, 1885.

HARTANFT, Chester David, D.D. (Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1878), Congregationalist; b. at Frederick, Montgomery County, Penn., Oct. 15, 1839; graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1861, and at the New Brunswick (N. J.) Theological Seminary, 1871; was pastor of Reformed (Dutch) churches at South Bushwick, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1864-66, and New Brunswick, N.J., 1867-78; and since 1878 has been professor of biblical and ecclesiastical history in the Hartford, Conn. (Congregational) Theological Seminary. He received the degree of Doctor of Music from Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., in 1861.

HARVEY, Hezekiah, D.D. (Colby University, Waterville, Me., 1861), Baptist; b. at Hulver, Suffolk County, Eng., Nov. 27, 1821; came to America, 1830; graduated at Madison University, 1845, and at Hamilton Theological Seminary (both at Hamilton, N.Y.), 1847; was successively tutor of languages in Madison University until 1849; pastor at Wellington, Ohio, 1857, and Hamilton, N.Y., until 1858; professor of ecclesiastical history in Hamilton Theological Seminary until 1861, professor of biblical criticism and interpretation and pastoral theology until 1884; pastor at Dayton, O., until 1869; and since has been professor of New-Testament exegesis and pastoral theology in Hamilton Theological Seminary.

HARWOOD, Edwin, D.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1862), Episcopal; b. in Philadelphia, Aug. 21, 1822; graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1840, and at the General (Episcopal) Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1844; became rector of Christ Church, Oyster Bay, Long Island, N.Y., 1844; of St. Paul's, East Chester, N.Y., 1846; of St. James's, Hamilton Square, New York, 1847; and of the Incarnation, New York, 1852. He is professor in the Berkeley Divinity School, Middletown, Conn., 1851; and since 1859 rector of Trinity Church, New Haven, Conn. He is "a liberal of the school of Coleridge, perhaps, more than any other." He translated Bahr's commentary on First Kings, and The Life of Christ and History of the World, in the American Lange series (both New York, 1872); and is the author of several essays (Marcion; Was St. Peter ever in Rome? Gnosticism).

HASE, Karl August, D.D., Lutheran; b. at HASELQUIST, Tuvey Nelson, D.D. (Muhlenberg College, Allentown, Penn., 1871), Lutheran; b. at Ousby, Skåne, Sweden, March 2, 1810; ordained at Lund, 1839; came to America 1852, and was one of the founders of the Swedish Lutheran Church in the United States. He was pastor at Galesburg, Ill., 1852-63; president of Augustana College and Theological Seminary when it was located at Paxton, Ill. (1863-75), and since its removal to Rock Island, Ill. (1875-). He has edited the most important religious periodicals published in Swedish in the United States in the interest of the Lutheran Church, for the last thirty years, and is still the editor of Augustana and Missions. He is the author of Der erste Brief des Johannes, College, Clinton, N.Y., 1848, and at Union Theological Seminary, New York City, 1851; was teacher at Mendellon, N.Y., 1852-54, and of the West Presbyterian Church, New York City, 1856-81; since 1881, he has been professor of sacred rhetoric in Union Theological Seminary, New York.

HATCH, Edwin, D.D. (University of Edinburgh, 1883); Church of England; b. at Derby, Eng., Sept. 4, 1855; educated at Pembroke College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (second-class classics) 1875, M.A. 1867; won theological prize essay, 1858; was ordained deacon 1858, priest 1859; between 1850 and 1866 was professor of classics in Trinity College, Toronto, Can.; rector of the High School, Quebec; fellow of McGill University, Montreal; became vice-principal of St. Mary Hall, Oxford, Eng., 1867; in addition, since 1853 has been rector of Purleigh, and since 1884 secretary to the boards of faculties, and reader in ecclesiastical history, Oxford. He was master of the schools, 1869, 1871, 1873, 1877; Bamton lecturer, 1890; Greenfield lecturer in the Septuagint, 1892-84. He is the author of The Student's Handbook to the University and Colleges of Oxford, London, 1873, 7th ed. 1883; Organization of the Early Christian Church (Bampton Lectures), 1881, 2d ed. 1882 (German trans., Die Gesellschaftsformen der christlichen Kirche im Altertum, Von Verfasser autoritas. Übersetzt, d. d. durchgesch. Aufl. besorgt u. m. Excerzen versehen von D. Adl. Harrack, Giessen, 1883); Unity in Variety, the Law of Spiritual Life (sermon), 1881; Progress in Theology (address to the Edinburgh University Theological Society on Friday, Nov. 14, 1884), Edinburgh, 1885.

HAUCK, Albert, D.D., Lutheran; b. at Wassertürtingen, Dec. 9, 1845; studied at Erlangen and Berlin; became pastor in Frankenheim, 1875; professor extraordinary of theology at Erlangen, 1878; ordinary professor, 1882. He has been since 1859 editor of Herzog's Real-Encyclopädie, which was begun by Professors Herzog and Plitt, 1877. Professor Plitt died in 1880, and Professor Hauck succeeded him as joint editor. Professor Herzog died in 1882, and Professor Hauck has since carried on the work alone. He is the author of Tertullian's Leben und Schriften, Erlangen, 1877; Die Bischofswahlen unter den Meisterg, 1883 (pp. 55).

HAUP, Erich, D.D. (Han., Greifswald, 1875), German Protestant; b. at Stralsund, July 8, 1811; studied at Berlin, 1838-61; became gymnasial teacher at Colberg 1864, and at Trettow 1866; ordinary professor of theology at Kiel 1878, and at Greifswald 1883. He is a Consistorialrat. He is the author of Der erste Brief des Johannes, Collberg, 1869; Das attestamentliche Catechumen in den vier Evangelien, 1871; Johannes der Täufer, Gütersloh, 1874; Der Sonntag und die Bibel, Hamburg, 1877; Die Kirche und die theologische Lehrfreiheit, Kiel, 1881; Pflegerschaft und Vaterhaus, Sechs Predigten, 1881.

HAUP, Herman, Ph.D. (Würzburg, 1875); b. in Markt-Bibart, Bavaria, June 9, 1854; studied at Erlangen and Munich; became professor of classics in the University of the City of N.Y., became at Union College, Clinton, N.Y., 1848, and at Union College, Clinton, N.Y., 1848, and at Union College, Clinton, N.Y., 1848, and at Union logische Literaturzeitung. He is the author of Die religiösen Sekt en in Franken vor der Reformation, Würzburg, 1882; Die deutsche Bibelübersetzung der mittelalterlichen Waldenser in dem Codex Tepensis und den ersten gedruckten deutschen Bibli en nachgewiesen, 1885; Zur Geschichte des Joachimismus, Got h a, 1885; Beiträge zur Geschichte des B e k h a r d en thums und der Sekt von dem freien Geiste, 1885 (both separately printed from the Zeitschrift für Kir chengeschichte, Band vii.); Der waldenserische Ursprung der Codex Tepensis und der vorlutherischen deutschen Bibli drucke gegen die Angriffe des Dr. Frantz Jostes vertheidigt, Würzburg, 1886; and of various articles in the Zeitschrift für Kirchengeschichte, Bd. v. - vii. He has in preparation a collection of printed and untranslated sources of the history of the Waldenses in Germany.

Hau r éau, Jean Barthélemy, Roman Catho lic; b. in Paris, Nov. 9, 1812; was first a jour nalist, sat in the constitutional assembly of 1848; became librarian for the lawyers' corporation of Paris. He is a member of the Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-lettres, and has published many learned works, among which may be mentioned the 14th, 16th, and 18th vols. of Gallia Christiana; Histoire de la philosophie scolastique, Paris, 1850, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1881; Hugo de S. Victor, 1850; Bernard Délitieux et l'Inquisition Albigois, 1877.

Haur sa th, Adolph, Lic. Theol. (Heidelberg, 1881), D.D. (v., Vienna, 1871), Reformed; b. at Carlshuhe, Jan. 19, 1857; studied at Jens, Göt- tingen, Berlin, and Heidelberg; was privat-dozent at Heidelberg in 1861; “assessor” of the upper consistory at Carlshuhe in 1864; returned to Heidelberg as professor extraordinary in 1867, and became ordinary professor in 1872. He belongs to the Tübingen school, and is the author of Der Apostel Paulus, Heidelberg, 1865, 2d ed. 1872; Neuentstehende Zeitg esichte, 1868-73, 4 parts, 2d ed. 1873-77, 3d ed. 1st part, Die Zeit Jesu, 1879; Religiöse Reiten und Betrachtungen, Leipzig, 1873, 2d ed. 1882; David Friedrich Straus und die Theologie seiner Zeit, Munich, 1876-78, 2 vols.; Kleine Schriften religionsgeschichtlichen Inhalts, Leipzig, 1883. Under the pseudonyme “George Taylor” he has written several historical romances: Antinous (from the time of the Roman em perors), Leipzig, 1880, 5th ed. 1884; Klytia (from the 16th century), 1883, 5th ed. 1884; Jutta (from the time of the great immigrations), 1884, 3d ed. same year.

Heaw es, Hugh Reginald, Church of England; b. at Egham, Surrey, April 3, 1838; educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. 1859, M.A. 1864; was curate of St. Peter’s, Bethnal Green, 1860-63; of St. James the Less, Westminster, 1863-66; and since 1866 has been incumbent of St. James, Marylebone,—all Lon don. He is an ardent friend of the hum ble classes; and for their benefit he organized the penny readings, and holds Sunday-evening ser vices in which by means of orchestral music, oratories, pictures of sacred scenes, he seeks to impress religious truth. He is a voluminous writer, and in his Moral Philoso phy of the Present Age, London, 1871, 14th ed. 1886; Thoughts for the Times, London, 1872, 14th ed. 1887; Pet (a child’s book), 1873; Unsectarian Family Prayers, 1874, 4th ed. 1886; Speech in Season, 1874, 4th ed. 1886; Ashes to Ashes (an argument for cremation), 1874; Neo Pet, 1875; Current Coin, 1876, 4th ed. 1881; Arrows in the Air, 1878, 4th ed. 1881; Shakespeare and the Stage, 1878; American Humanists, 1882; Poets in the Pulpit, 1883; Key of Doctrine and Practice, 1884, 15th thousand same year; My Musical Life, 1894; Winged Words; or, Truks re-told, 1885.

Hay, Charles Augustus, D.D. (Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., 1859), Lutheran (General Synod); b. at York, Penn., Feb. 11, 1821, graduated at Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., and studied in Germany at Berlin and Halle. After a nine-months’ pastorate at Mid dletown, Md., he became in 1845 professor of Hebrew, German, and New-Testament exegesis, in the Gettysburg Theological Seminary, and served until 1848, and again from 1865 to the present time. From 1848 to 1849 he was pastor at Hanover, Penn., and from 1850 to 1853, at Harrisburg. He is the author of Life of Captain Sells, Harrisburg, 1867; and, with Prof. Dr. H. E. Jacobs, translated Schmid’s Doctrinal Theology of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, Philadelphia, 1875.

Hayes, Benjamin Francis, D.D. (Hillsdale College, Hillsdale, Mich., 1871), Free Baptist; b. at New Gloucester, Me., March 28, 1830; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1853, and from the Freewill Baptist Theological Seminary, New Hampton, N.H. (now at Lewiston, Me.), 1858; was teacher of sciences and German in New Hampton Literary Institution, 1855-59; pastor of Free Baptist Church at Olneyville, R.I., 1859-63; principal of Lapham Institute, North Scituate, R.I., 1863-65; since 1865 has been professor in Bates College, Lewiston, Me. (professor of modern languages, 1865-96; of intellectual and moral philosophy, 1896-1899); and since 1873 professor of exegetical theology in the Free Baptist Theological Seminary at Lewiston, Me. He studied at Halle, Germany, with Ulrici, 1873-74. He has published since 1860 various articles in the Freewill Baptist Quarterly, Centennial Record, etc., Dover, N.H.; also Questions and Notes, with an Analysis of Butler’s Analogy, Lewiston, Me.

Hay good, Atticus Greene, D.D. (Emory Co lleg e, Oxford, Ga., 1870), LL.D. (South-Western University, Georgetown, Tex., 1884), Methodist (Southern Church); b. at Watkinsville, Ga., Nov. 19, 1838; graduated at Emory College, Oxford, Ga., 1859; entered the ministry, was Sunday-school secretary M. E. Church South, 1870-75; president of Emory College, 1876-84; agent of the “John F. Slater Fund” since 1885. He declined election as bishop in 1882; was member of General Conference in 1870, 1874, 1878, and 1882. He is the author of Our Children, New York, 1879; Our Books = Bl Lk, 1881; Sermons and Speeches, Nashville, Tenn., 1888.

Heard, John Bickford, Church of England; b. in Dublin, Ireland, Oct. 26, 1828; entered Cai us College, Cambridge, obtained a scholarship, wrote the Hulsean theological prize essay, took the Whewell prize in moral philosophy, and graduated with a B.A. (first class in moral philoso phy) 1852, M.A. 1862. He was ordained deacon and priest, 1852; vicar of Bilton, Harrogate, 1864-68; editor
HECKER.

Religious Tract Society, 1866-73; curate of St. Andrew's, Westminster, London, 1878-80; and since 1890 has been vicar of St. John's, Caterham, Surrey. His stand point is that of Tholuck and the German "Vermittelung" school. He holds firmly the katholic faith as summed up in the Apostles' Creed, but classes inspiration, as he does that of church authority, among the inquiring rather than credenda. His principal aim as a writer has been to trace the lines of a Christian psychology which should form a support and not a conflict with theology as at present. The reigning Cartesianism of body and soul seems to him to be a defective draught of human nature; and the error being a root one has affected the whole of theology, at least of the Western Church and since Augustine. To this extent he describes himself as anti-Augustine, not as opposing Augustine's doctrines of grace, but as showing that Paulinism is a much deeper, truer, and broader draught of the purposes of God than the theology of the fifth century. He is the author of The Pastor and Parish (a £100 prize essay on pastoral theology), London, 1865; The Tripartite Nature of Man, Edinburgh, 1870, 5th ed. 1883; Old and New-Theology, London, 1884; and over a hundred other essays, of which the most important are Christian Social and Political Questions, 1881 (the last two are pamphlets).

HEMANN.

HEDGE, Frederic Henry, D.D. (Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1832), Unitarian; b. at Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 12, 1835; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1853, and at its divinity school, 1858; became pastor at West Cambridge (now Arlington), 1829; at Bangor, Me., 1835; at Providence, R.I., 1850; and at Brookline, Mass., 1856; retired, 1872. He was teacher of ecclesiastical history (1857-77), and professor of German (1872-81), in Harvard University. "As a preacher he is connected with the Unitarians. In his personal character he was born attached to it rather by the absence in that body of any compulsory creed, than by sympathy with its distinctive doctrine. His view of Christ is essentially that of the two natures, as defined by the Council of Chalcedon (A.D. 451)." He was for some years president of the American Unitarian Association. He is the author of Prose Writers of Germany, Philadelphia, 1848, 3d ed. 1871; Christian Liturgy for the Use of the Church, Boston, 1833; Reason in Religion, 1865, 2d ed. 1875 (repub., London); The Primitive World of Hebrew Tradition, 1870: The Ways of the Spirit, and other Essays, 1877; Atheism in Philosophy, and other Essays, 1884: Hours with German Classics, 1886.

HEFELE, Right Rev. Carl Joseph von, Ph.D. (kon., Bonn, 1869), D.D. (Tübingen, 1898), Roman-Catholic bishop; b. at Unterkothen, Württemberg, March 10, 1809; studied philosophy and theology at Tübingen from 1827 to 1832, and then for a year in theological seminary at Rottenburg; was ordained a priest, Aug. 14, 1833; was repriest at Tübingen in 1834; taught in the Rottweil gymnasium in 1835; in 1836 became tutor for Möhler, at Tübingen; there in 1837 professor extraordinary, and in 1840 professor ordinary, of church history and patrology, in the Roman-Catholic faculty. He was ennobled in 1853; was a member of the Württemburg House of Representatives from 1842-49; in 1858 and 1859 was one of the council to prepare for the Vatican Council, which he attended, and in which he opposed the infallibility dogma. On Dec. 29, 1869, he was at Rottenburg enthroned bishop of Rottenburg; and on April 21, 1871, he promulgated the new dogma in his diocese, and in 1872 publicly announced his acceptance of it. He is the author of Geschicht der Kirche in Süddeutschland, besonders in Württemberg, Tübingen, 1837; Patrum Apostolicorum Opera, 1839, 4th ed. 1853; Das Sendschreiben des Apostels Barnabas, 1840; Der Cardinal Ximenes und die kirchlichen Zustände Spaniens am Ende des 15. u. Anfang des 16. Jahrh., 1844, 2d ed. 1851; S. Bonasus breviloquium et itinerarium mentis ad Deum, 1845, 3d ed. 1861; Chrysostomus-Postille, 1845, 3d ed. 1857; Beiträge zur Kirchengeschichte, Archäologie und Liturgik, 1864-65, 2 vols.; Causa honorii papae, Naples, 1870 (German trans. by Rump, Die Honorius-frage, Münster, 1870 (pp. 28); Honorius und das sekulare Erbe, 1875); Honors und das sekulare Erbe, 1875); Causa honorii papae, Naples, 1870 (Germ. trans. by Rump, Die Honoriusfrage, Münster, 1870 (pp. 28); Honorius und das sekulare Erbe, 1875); Christian Liturgy for the Use of the Church, London, 1871; Hours with German Classics, 1886. He was at Rottenburg enthroned bishop of Rottenburg; and on April 21, 1871, he promulgated the new dogma in his diocese, and in 1872 publicly announced his acceptance of it. He is one of the greatest books in modern times, is his Concilienliegeschichte (from the first council to that of Ferrara Florence; the work is to be continued by other hands), Freiburg, 1855-74, 7 vols. 2d ed. 1873 sqq., vol. 5, 1896 (Eng. trans., History of the Councils of the Church, Edinburgh, 1871, sqq., vol. 5 [To 451], 1892).

HEMANN, Carl Friedrich, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1870), Lic. Theol. (Basel, 1883), Swiss Protestant theo-
HEMPHILL, Charles Robert, Presbyterian, Southern Church; b. at Chester Court House, S.C., April 18, 1852; was educated at the University of South Carolina (1868), and at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va. (1869-70); graduated at Columbia (S.C.) Theological Seminary, 1874; became pastor in the Chowan Female College, Murfreesboro, N.C., 1853; pastor of Fluvanna Baptist Church, Lausanne, Va., 1855; road-street Church, Philadelphia, Mo., 1856—72; since 1881, has been professor of biblical literature in the Columbia (S.C.) Theological Seminary.

HENDRIX, Eugene Russell, D.D. (Emory College, Oxford, Ga., 1878), Methodist-Episcopal Church South; b. at Fayette, Mo., May 17, 1847; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1867, and at Union Theological Seminary (Presbyterian), New York City, 1869; was minister (Southern Church) stated supply at Lebanon, Kan., 1869-70; pastor at Macon, Mo., 1870-72; St. Joseph, 1872-76; Glasgow, 1877; became president of Central College, Fayette, Mo., 1878; bishop, 1886. In 1876-77 he made a missionary tour of the world, with Bishop Marvin of St. Louis. In 1885 he declined the vice-chancellorship of Vanderbilt University, and also the presidency of the University of Missouri. He is the author of Around the World, Nashville, Tenn., 1878, 5th ed. 1892.

HENSON, Poindexter Smith, D.D. (Lewisburg University, Lewisburg, Penn., 1867), Baptist; b. in Fluvanna County, Va., Dec. 7, 1811; graduated at Richmond (Va.) College, 1849, and the University of Virginia, at Charlottesville, 1851; became principal of the Milton (N.C.) Classical Institute, 1851; professor of natural science in the Chowan Female College, Murfreesborough, N.C., 1853; pastor of Fluvanna Baptist Church, Va., 1855; Broad-street Church, Philadelphia, 1860; Memorial Church, Philadelphia, 1867 (which he organized); First Church, Chicago, 1882. Since 1870 he has been editor of The Baptist Teacher (American Baptist Publication Society, Philadelphia), a published numerous articles, occasional sermons, etc.

HERGENROETHER, His Eminence Joseph, Cardinal, D.D. (Munich, 1850), Roman Catholic; b. at Wurzburg, Bavaria, Sept. 15, 1824; studied at Wurzburg and in Rome, there ordained priest in 1848; became in the University of Munich, successively privat-docent (1851), professor extraordinary (1852), and ordinary professor of ecclesiastical law and history (1855). In 1868-69 he was one of the committee to prepare for the Vatican Council. He has been a consistent defender of the infallibility dogma. Pius IX. made him one of his domestic prelates; and Leo XIII. on May 12, 1879, a cardinal deacon, with the title of St. Nicola in Carcere, and residence in Rome, where he is prefect of the apostolic archives. His publications are numerous: of especial interest are, Der Kirchenstaat seit der französischen Revolution, Freiburg-im-BR., 1869; Lehrbuch der Konstitution, Regensburg, 1867-69, 3 vols. (this is one of the great monographs of modern times; in vol. 3 in Monumenta Graeca et Romana ejusque historiam spectanti, also separately issued, 1869); Anti-janua, Freiburg-im-BR., 1870 (English trans., Dublin, 1870, a reply to Döllinger's Jansen); Katholische Kirche und christlicher Staat in ihrer geschichtlichen Entwicklung und in Beziehung auf die Fragen der Gegenwart, 1872, abridged ed. 1873 (English trans., Catholic Church and Christian State, London, 1876, 2 vols.); Literaturebelege und Nachdrucke dazu, 1876; Piemonts Unterhandlungen mit dem heiligen Stuhl im 18. Jahrh., Würzburg, 1876; Historische allgemeinen Kirchengeschichte, Freiburg-im-BR., 1878—80, 3 vols., 3d ed. 1884-85; Cardinal Maury, Würzburg, 1878.

HERING, Hermann, D.D., German Protestant theologian; b. at Dallmin in the Westprignitz, Feb. 26, 1838; studied at Halle, 1853-61; became a diakonus at Weissee, 1853; archi-diakonus at Weissenfels-a.-d.-S., 1869; chief pastor at Lützen, 1874; superintendent of the diocese of Lützen, 1875; ordinary professor of practical theology at Halle, 1878. He is the author of Die Mystik Luthers im Zusammenhange seiner Theologie and in ihrem Verhältniss zur älteren Mystik, Leipzig, 1879.

HERMINYARD, Aimé Louis, Reformed; b. at Vevey, Switzerland, Nov. 7, 1817; studied at Lausanne; for many years was a teacher in Russia, France, and Germany, but latterly has lived at Lausanne. After thirty years' labor, he began the publication, with full annotations, of the correspondence of the French Reformers, in a series of volumes of unique and priceless value, for which he has the profoundest gratitude of all students of the period: Correspondance des réformateurs dans les Pays de langue française, Geneva, 1866 sqq. (vol. 6, 1883).

HERRMANN, Johann Georg Wilhelm, Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1874), Ph.D, D.D. (both Marburg, 1880), German Protestant; b. at Melkow, Magdeburg, Dec. 6, 1846; studied at Halle, 1869-70; became privat-docent there, 1874; ordinary professor of theology at Marburg, 1879. He is the author of Die Metaphysik in der Theologie, Halle, 1774; Die Religion im Verhältniss zum Welterkennen und zur Sittlichkeit, 1879; Die Bedeutung der Inspirationslehre für die evangelische Kirche, 1882; Warum der Herrmannsche, a. d. Glaube geschichtlicher Thatsachen, 1884.

HERSHON, Paul Isaac, Nonconformist; b. of Jewish parents, at Buczacz (pronounced boo-church), Galicia, Austrian Poland, in May (6th day of the Jewish month Iyyar), 1818; studied at the then Hebrew College in Jerusalem, under the auspices of the "London Society for promoting Christianity amongst the Jews," 1842-46; was superintendent of the society's house of industry in that city, 1847; resigned, was reinstated 1848 after visit to England, retained position till 1853, resigned again; became the society's missionary to the Jews at Manchester, Eng.; was superintendent of the Palestine model farm at Jaffa, started by a committee of Hebrew Christians; resigned through ill health, and returned to England, 1859. He has published Extracts from the Talmud, Being Specimens of Wis, Wisdom, Learning, etc., of the Wise and Learned Rabbits, London, 1846; Extracts according to the Talmud, Genesis, 1874 (Hebrew; in English, 1883); an improved edition of the New Testament, in Judeo-Polish, published by the British and Foreign Bible Society, 1874; A Talmudic Miscellany, 1880; Treasures of the Talmud, 1882; A Rabbincal Commentary on Genesis, 1885;...
HEWIT, Augustine Francis, Roman Catholic; b. at Fairfield, Conn., Nov. 27, 1829; graduated at Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., 1853; was ordained in the Roman-Catholic Church, March 25, 1847; vicar-principal of Cathedral Collegiate Institute, Charleston, S. C., 1847-49; missionary (i.e., engaged in preaching missions at large in parochial churches), 1851-65; since 1865 has been professor in the Paulist Seminary, New York City. He is the author of Memoir of Rev. Francis A. Baker, New York, 1865; Problems of the Age. With Scripture for the Age, 1864; The Christian Doctrine of Miracles, 1862; The Doctrine of the Law in the prechristian, 1867; Inquiry into the Scriptural Warrant for addressing Prayer to Christ, 1867; The Doctrine of the Church of England touching the Real Objectness Presence, 1867; De fide et symbolo: documenta SS. Patrum tractata, 1869, 3d ed. 1884; The Athanarian Creed: Reasons for rejecting Mr. Fyoulkes' Theory of its Age and Author, 1872.

HEWIT, William, New York, 1865; Problems of the Age. With Scripture for the Age, 1864; The Christian Doctrine of Miracles, 1862; The Doctrine of the Law in the prechristian, 1867; Inquiry into the Scriptural Warrant for addressing Prayer to Christ, 1867; The Doctrine of the Church of England touching the Real Objectness Presence, 1867; De fide et symbolo: documenta SS. Patrum tractata, 1869, 3d ed. 1884; The Athanarian Creed: Reasons for rejecting Mr. Fyoulkes' Theory of its Age and Author, 1872.

HILL, David Jayne, LL.D. (Madison University, Hamilton, N.Y., 1888), Baptist; b. at Plainfield, N.J., June 10, 1850; graduated at the University of Lewisburg, Penn., 1874; became professor of rhetoric there, 1875; has been professor of rhetoric here, 1879; is the author of The Science of Rhetoric, New York, 1877; Elements of Rhetoric and Composition, 1878; Biography of William Cullen Bryant, 1879; The Ultimate HODGE, Archibald Alexander, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1862), L.L.D. (Wesley University, Wooster, O., 1876), eldest son of the late Dr. Charles Hodge, Presbyterian; b. at Princeton, N.J., July 18, 1823; graduated from the College of New Jersey, Princeton (1841), and Princeton Theological Seminary (1847); was missionary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions (Old-school) at Allahabad, India, 1847—50; pastor at Lower West Nottingham, Md., 1851—55; Fredericksburg, Va., 1856—59; and at Wilkesbarre (First Church), Penn., 1859—64. In 1864 he became professor of didactic and polemic theology in the Western (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, Alleghany, Penn. In connection with his professorship he held the pastorate of the North Church, Alleghany, from 1866 to 1877. In 1877 he removed to Princeton, first as associate professor, and since 1879 he has been full professor, of didactic and polemic theology. He is the author of Outlines of Theology, New York, 1860, rewritten and enlarged ed. 1878 (translated into Welsh, modern Greek, and Hindustani); The Atonement, Philadelphia, 1868; Commentary on Confession of Faith, 1869; Presbyterian Forms, Philadelphia, 1876. Hodge (Westminster) 1882; Life of Charles Hodge, New York, 1880.

HODGE, Caspar Wistar, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1865), son of the late Dr. Charles Hodge, Presbyterian; b. at Princeton, N.J., Feb. 21, 1830; graduated from the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1848, and from the theological seminary 1850—51; teacher in the College, 1850—51; teacher in Princeton, 1852—54; stated supply of Ainslie-street Church, Williamsburg, N.Y., 1853—54; pastor, 1854—56; at Oxford, Penn., 1856—60. Since 1860 he has been professor of New-Testament literature and biblical Greek in Princeton Theological Seminary.
HOGLON, Teifair, D.D. (University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1878), Episcopalian; b. at Columbia, Va., March 14, 1840; graduated at College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1859; chaplain in the Confederate Army, 1863-65; rector of Keyport, N.J., 1866-74; professor in the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, 1871-73; assistant at Christ Church, Baltimore, Md., 1873-74; rector of Trinity Church, Hoboken, N.J., 1874-78; since 1878 vice-chancellor of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn. He has published occasional sermons, addresses, and reports.

HOLDEN, Henry Scott, Church of England; b. at Underdown, Ledbury, Herefordshire, Jan. 29, 1847; educated at Eton College, and Balliol College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1870, M.A. (Christ Church) 1873; was elected a senior student (i.e., fellow) of Christ Church College, Oxford, 1870; tutor, 1872-84; ordained deacon 1872, priest 1874; became curate of St. Mary's Chapel, Reading, 1874; of Shanklin, Isle of Wight, 1858; rector of Luxbeare, Devonshire, 1868; resigned, 1878; lecturer in ecclesiastical history since 1879, and in English history since 1881, at King's College, London; since 1883 chaplain to Lord Sackville. He is the author of A Brief Biographical Dictionary, London, 1863, 2d ed. 1866; Life of Archdeacon Phelps, 1871, 2 vols.; Maintenance of the Church of England as an Established Church (first Peck prize essay), 1874; editor of The Christian Observer, 1877; contributor to Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography, 1877-86, 4 vols., and Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Antiquities, 1877-80, 2 vols.
HOLT. 102

HOPKINS.

the Rostock Gymnasium, 1845; professor extraordinary of theology at Bern, 1870; ordinary professor, 1871; at Heidelberg, 1876. He is the author of Zum Evangelium d. Paulus u. d. Petrus, Rostock, 1867; Das Evangelium des Paulus dar gestellt, Berlin, 1880, sqq.

HOLT, Levi Herbert, Baptist; b. at Topsham, Me., Aug. 14, 1849; graduated at University of Chicago, Ill., 1874, and at Morgan-Park Baptist Theological Seminary, Ill., 1877; became pastor at De Kalb, Ill., 1877; at Clay Center, Kan., 1881, editor Western Baptist, Topeka, Kan., 1884.

HOLTZMANN, Heinrich Julius, Lic. Theol. (Heidelberg, 1858), D.D. (hon., Vienna, 1882), German Protestant; b. at Carlsruhe, May 17, 1832; studied theology at Heidelberg and Berlin; was in the service of the Baden Church, 1854—57; became privat-dozent at Heidelberg, 1858; professor extraordinary, 1861; ordinary professor, 1865; at Strassburg, 1874. He is the author of Kanon und Tradition, Ludwigsburg, 1858; Die synoptischen Evangelien, ihr Ursprung und geschichtlicher Charakter, Leipzig, 1863; Christenthum und Judenthum im 19. Jahrhundert, Leipzig, 1867; Der mittelalterschen Literatur, 1867; (vol. 2 of Weber's Geschichte des Volks Israel u. der Entstehung des Christenthums, 1867, 2 vols.); Kritik der Ephemer und Coloverbriefe, 1873; Die Pastoralbriefe, 1880; (with R. O. Zöpfel) Lexikon für Theologie u. Kirchengesch., 1882; Hist. kritische Einleitung in das N.T., Freiburg, 1885.

HOOD, Edward Paxton, English Congregationalist: b. in Westminster, London, Dec. 18, 1820, and educated privately; began his ministry in 1822; was for many years a preacher in London, and, at the time of his death, was pastor of Falcon-square Independent Chapel. He died in Paris, France, Friday, June 12, 1886. He was for many years the editor of The Eclectic Review, and of The Preacher's Lantern from 1871 to 1875. He lectured on social, literary, and religious subjects in Great Britain, and also on his visit to the United States in 1851. He was rather an industrious collector of anecdotes and curious and miscellaneous information and extracts, than an original author; still his works are instructive, and his Lamps, Pitchers, and Trumpets, his best-known work, is a valuable history of homiletics. He is the author of The Age and its Architects, Victorian Literature of Labour, and of St. John's Church, Essex, N. Y.; or Tusties of the Path Meadow, 1870, 2d ed. 1885; 'illayes of the Dusted Woer quod, 1885; The Throne of Eloquence: Nlurp: Sermons, 1813—, 2d ed. 1870; 1Vorld of��alPhilosophy of Laughter, 1851; Old England's Historic Pictures, 1851; Self-education, 1851; Common-sense Argume-, 1851; The Poet and the Popular, 1852; A Book for the Labourer, 1852; Uses of Biography, 1852; Dreamland and Ghostland, 1852; Seele, borg, a Biography, 1856; Wordsworth, a Biography, 1856; An Earnest Ministry: Record of Life and Writings of B. Parsons, 1853; Havelock, the Brond Stone of Honour, 1833; Book of Temperance Melody, 1835, new ed. 1838; and 4th ed. 1838; Blind Amos and his Velvet Cap, 1855; 4th ed. 1855; 5th ed. 1856; Peerage of Poverty, 1st ed. 1858; Poems by the Wayside, 1883; collected Collected Works of Rev. Milo Makan, D.D., with Memoir, 2d ed. 1885.

HOPKINS, John Henry, S.T.D. (Raceine College, Racine, Wis., 1878), Episcopalian; b. at Pitts burg, Penn., Oct. 28, 1850; graduated at the University of Vermont, Burlington, 1839, and at the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1850; ordained deacon, 1850; was assistant in Zion Church, Greensburg, in St. George the Martyr, and then in St. Timothy's Church, New-York City; in charge of St. Paul's Church, Vergeennes, Vt., and of St. John's Church, Essex, N. Y.; ordained priest, 1872; became rector of Trinity Church, Plattsburg, N. Y., 1872; of Christ Church, Williamsport, Penn., 1876. He founded the New York Church Journal, February, 1853, and edited it until May, 1869. He has written articles, etc., he has written Carols, Hymns, and Songs, New York, 1863, 3d ed. (enlarged) 1882; Gregorian Canticles, etc., 1866; Life of Bishop Hopkins of Vermont, 1873, 2d ed. 1875; Poems by the Wayside, 1883; collected Collected Works of Rev. Milo Makan, D.D., with Memoir, 2d ed. 1885.

HOPKINS, Mark, D.D. (Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H., 1837; Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1841), LL.D. (University of State of New York, 1857), Congregationalist; b. at Stockbridge, Mass., Feb. 4, 1802; graduated from Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1824; was tutor for two years; studied medicine, and graduated M.D. at the Berkshire Medical College, 1829, and began (1829) practice in New-York City; but in 1830 accepted the call to the professorship of moral philosophy and rhetoric in Williams, and has ever since been connected with the college, as professor, 1830-36; as president, 1836-72; since, as professor of intellectual and moral philosophy. From 1836 until 1883 he was the pastor of the college church. Since 1857 he has been president of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. Besides many occasional sermons and addresses, he has published The Evidence of Christianity (Lowell Lectures of 1844), Boston, 1846, 3d ed. (revised) 1873; Miscellaneous Essays and Reviews, 1847; Moral Science (Lowell Lectures), 1862; The Law of Love, and Love as a Law, New York, 1869, rev. ed. 1881; An Outline Study of Man, 1873, new ed. 1876; Strength and Beauty, 1874 (re-issued with modifications and additions, under title Teachings and Counsels, 1894); Missionary Letters of 1883.

HOPKINS, Samuel Miles, D.D. (Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., 1854), Presbyterian; b. at Geneseo, N. Y., Aug. 8, 1813; graduated from Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., 1832; studied theology at Auburn (N. Y.) Theological Seminary, 1834-36, and at Princeton (N. J.) Theological Seminary, 1836-38; pastor at Corning, N. Y., 1839-43; at Fredonia, 1843-46; and at Avon, 1846-47; since 1847 he has been professor of church history in Auburn Theological Seminary. He was moderator of General Assembly (N. S.) at St. Louis, Mo., 1886. He is the author of A Manual of Church Policy, Auburn, 1873; A Liturgy and Book of Common Prayer for the Presbyterian Church, New York, 1883, 2d ed. 1886.

HOPKINS, James Mason, D.D. (Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., 1870), Congregationalist; b. at Providence, R.I., Jan. 17, 1830; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1852; studied law at school, Cambridge, Mass., 1840-42; Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1842-44; at Andover Theological Seminary, 1844-45 (graduated); at Berlin University, 1846-47; was pastor at Salem, Mass., 1850-59; professor of homiletics and pastoral theology in Yale College, 1861-79 (active, 1861-63; lecturer on forensic eloquence in its law school, 1872-75); since 1879 has been professor of the history of art in Yale College. He taught homiletics in Union Theological Seminary, New York, in 1880. He is the author of Notes of a Theological Student, New York, 1854; Old England: its Art, Scenery, and People, Boston, 1867, 8th ed. 1886; Office and Work of the Christian Ministry, New York, 1869; Life of Rear-Admiral Andrew Hull Fiske, 1871; Memoir of Henry Armitt Brown, Philadelphia, 1880; Homiletics, New York, 1851, 2d ed. 1883; Pastoral Theology, 1884 (these two books are revised and reissued as a single volume, 1887); The Religious Telescope, New York, 1878-82; and many sermons, addresses, and essays. He was a member of the Pan Methodist Congress, London, 1881; and of each General Conference of his denomination since 1869, representing the Virginia Conference, to which he belongs. He is the author of Journeys in the Old World: or, Europe, Palestine, and Egypt, Dayton, O., 1884, 4th ed. 1892.

HOVEY, Alvah, D.D. (Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1850), LL.D. (Denison University, Granville, O., and Richmond (Va.) College, 1876), Baptist; b. at Greene, Chenango County, N.Y., March 5, 1820; graduated from Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H., 1844, and from Newton Theological Institution, Newton Centre, Mass., 1848; with the latter has been connected since 1849, as assistant teacher of Hebrew (1849-55), and as professor, first of church history (1853-55), and then of theology and Christian ethics since 1855, president since 1868. For one year (1848-49) he preached at New London, Mass.; for four years (1861-65) was in Europe. From 1868 to 1883, was member of the executive committee of the American Baptist Missionary Union. With Rev. D. B. Ford, he translated F. M. Perthes' Life of Chrysostom, Boston, 1854. He is author of Life and Book of Common Prayer or the Presbyterian Church, New York, 1883, 2d ed. 1885, pp. 268-282.

HOTT, James William, D.D. (Avalon College, Avalon, Mo., and Western College, Toledo, O., both 1882), United Brethren in Christ; b. at Winchester, Va., Nov. 15, 1844; self-educated; became pastor in Virginia and Maryland, 1861; treasurer of the Home Frontier and Foreign Missionary Society of his denomination, 1873; editor of The Religious Telescope, the denominational organ); Dayton, O., 1887. He was a member of the Pan Methodist Congress, London, 1881; and of each General Conference of his denomination since 1869, representing the Virginia Conference, to which he belongs. He is the author of Journeys in the Old World: or, Europe, Palestine, and Egypt, Dayton, O., 1884, 4th ed. 1892. of Rev. Isaac Backus, Boston, 1858; The State of the Impe~ent Dead, 1859; The Miracles of Christ as attested by the Evangelists, 1861; The Scriptural Law of Divorce, 1860; God with us, or the Person and Work of Christ, 1872; Normal Class Manual, Part I. What to Teach, 1873; Religion and the State, 1874: The Doctrine of the Higher Christian Life compared with the Teachings of the Holy Scriptures, 1876; Manual of Systematic Theology and Christian Ethics, 1877; re-issued, Philadelphia, 1880.

He is general editor of The Complete Commentary on the New Testament, Philadelphia, 1881 sqq., in which series he contributed the commentary on The Gospel of John, 1883.

HOWE, Right Rev. Mark Antony DeWolfe, D.D. (Brown University, Providence, R. I., 1849), LL.D. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1875), Episcopal bishop of Central Pennsylvania; b. at Bristol, R.I., April 5, 1809; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1828; taught in Boston public schools, 1829-30; was classical tutor in Brown University, 1831-32; entered the ministry, and after three months service in St. Matthew's, South Boston, became rector of St. James's, Roxbury, 1832; editor of The Christian Witness, and rector of Christ Church, Cambridge, 1838-39; of St. James's again, 1837-46; of St. Luke's, Philadelphia, Penn., 1846-72; consecrated bishop, Dec. 28, 1871. He had declined his election as missionary bishop of Nevada in 1865. He stands "on the doctrines of God's Word, as recognized in the Catholic creeds, and in the Articles and Liturgy of the Protestant-Episcopal Church." He is author of A Critique on the Annual Report of the Boston School Committee, Boston, 1816; an Introduction to Butler's edition of the poetical works of Bishop Reginald Heber, 1858; Memoirs of Bishop Alonzo Potter, 1871: and of various occasional sermons, essays, and controversial pamphlets.

HOW, Right Rev. William Bell White, D.D. (University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1871), S.T.D. (Columbia Coll., N.Y. City, 1872), Episcopal bishop of South Carolina; b. at Claremont, N.H., March 31, 1833; graduated at the University of Vermont, Burlington, 1844; was successively rector of St. John's, Berkeley, S.C., 1848-60; of St. Philip's, Charleston, 1863-71; bishop, 1871.

HOWSON, Very Rev. John Saul, D.D. (Cambridge, 1861), dean of Chester, Church of England; b. at Giggleswick, Yorkshire, Eng., May 5, 1816; d. at Bournemouth, Dec. 15, 1883. He was a student in Trinity College, Cambridge, and graduated B.A. (wants and first-class classical tripus) 1837, M.A. 1841; won the member's prize in 1837 and 1838, and wrote the Norrisian prize essay in 1840. He was ordained deacon in 1845, and priest in 1846, and in 1848 was appointed tutor in Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1828; taught in Brown public schools, 1829-30; was classical teacher of Bishop Reginald Heber, 1858; Memoirs of Bishop Alonzo Potter, 1871: and of various occasional sermons, essays, and controversial pamphlets.

HOWARD, His Eminence Edward, Roman Catholic; b. at Nottingham, Eng., Feb. 13, 1829; was an officer of the 2d Life Guards when he left the army to become a priest. In 1853 he entered the personal service of Pius IX. In 1872 he was appointed archbishop of Neoscesaria in partibus infidelum; and on March 12, 1877, a cardinal priest, with the "title" of SS. John and Paul on the Caelian Hill, Rome. On March 24, 1878, he became protector of the English College at Rome; and in December, 1881, arch-priest of the Basilica of St. Peter's, and prefect of the congregation in charge of the building. His Eminence is an extraordinary linguist.

HUNTER, Albert Sanford, D.D. (Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1873), Methodist; b. at Amenia, N.Y., July 3, 1857; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1873; was tutor (1851-53) and adjunct professor of moral science there (1853-55); joined the New-York Conference of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, 1859; a candidate for the episcopacy, 1864; was consecrated bishop in Brooklyn, N.Y., by Bishop John H. Vincent, 1880; since 1851 has been secretary of the General Conference of the Methodist-Episcopal Church South; in 1886, fraternal delegate from, the General Conference of the Methodist-Episcopal Church to British Wesleyan Conference. He has published several occasional sermons.

HULL, William Gibson, Church of England; b. at Sudbury, Suffolk, Jan. 30, 1815; educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (twenty-seventh wrangler, senior classic, second chancellor medallist) 1837, MA. 1840, B.D. 1850; ordained deacon 1842, priest 1843; was elected fellow of his college (1837), and assistant tutor. From 1847 to 1850 he was examining chaplain to the bishop of London; in 1849 and 1850, Hulsean lecturer; in 1857 and 1858, Boyle lecturer; and from 1852 to 1855 he was vicar of Northolt, Middlesex. In 1852 he became prebendary of Twyford in St. Paul's Cathedral, and in 1855 vicar of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, London, and was rural dean of St. Martin-in-the-Fields deanery. He sat upon the Clerical Subscription Commission in 1865, and upon the Ritual Commission in 1869. He was a member of the New-Testament Company of the Bible-revision Committee; and the thanksgiving service of the company was held in his church, Nov. 11, 1880. He is the author of A Commentary on Acts, London, 1847, 2d ed. 1854; The Doctrine of a Future State (Hulsean Lecture for 1849), 1850; The Early Progress of the Gospel (Hulsean Lecture for 1851), 1851; An Historical and Explanatory Treatise on the Book of Common Prayer, 1853, 5th ed. 1874; The Miracles (Boyle Lectures for 1857), 1858; The Character of St. Paul (Boyle Lectures for 1858), 1859; A Commentary on a Revised Version of the N.T., for English Readers, 1882; edited Theophilus of Antioch, 1852, and Theophylact on St. Matthew, 1854; one of the authors of A Revised Version of St. John's Gospel and the Epistles to the Romans and Corinthians, 1837-38. Died Jan. 10, 1863.

HUNT, Albert Sanford, D.D. (Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1873), Methodist; b. at Amenia, N.Y., July 3, 1827; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1851; was tutor (1851-53) and adjunct professor of moral science there (1853-55); joined the New-York Conference of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, 1859; was pastor in Brooklyn, N.Y., 1868; since, has been corresponding secretary of the American Bible Society, New-York City. In 1874 he was chairman of fraternal delegation from General Conference of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, to General Conference of Methodist-Episcopal Church South; in 1886, from the General Conference of the Methodist-Episcopal Church to British Wesleyan Conference. He has published several occasional sermons.
HYACINTHE.

HUNT, John, D.D. (University of St. Andrew's, Scotland, 1878). Church of England; b. at Bridgend, parish of Kinnoor, Perth, Scotland, Jan. 21, 1827; matriculated at St. Andrew's, 1847; was ordained deacon 1855, and priest 1857; was curate of Deptford, Sunderland, Eng., 1855–59; and in churches in and about London until 1877, when, on nomination of Dean Stanley, he was appointed vicar of Otford, in Kent. In theology he is "liberal." He was on the staff of The Contemporary Review, 1867–77, and has been contributor to other periodicals. He is the author of Poems from the German. London, 1832; Luther's Spiritual Songs, translated, 1853; Essay on Pantheism, 1868; Religious Thought in England, 1870–73; 3 vols.; Contemporary Essays in Theology, 1873; Pantheism and Christianity, 1884 (the Essay on Pantheism revised, and the argument brought to a more definite issue).

HUNT, Sandford, D.D. (Allegany College, Meadville, Penn., 1871). Methodist; b. in Erie County, N.Y., April 1, 1825; graduated at Alleghany College, Meadville, Penn., 1847; became pastor in Genesee Conference, presiding elder, and since 1879 has been agent of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which he organized, until he was consecrated bishop of Central New York, April 8, 1869. He was editor of The Church Monthly, Boston, 1861 sqq., and of The Christian Register and The Monthly Religious Magazine, both Boston. He is the author of Lessons on the Parables of our Saviour, Boston, 1856; Sermons for the People, Boston, 1856, 11th ed. New York, 1879; Christian Believing and Living (sermons), 1860, 7th ed. New York, 1867; Ehun (a collection of ancient and modern sacred poems), Boston, 1865; Divine Aspects of Human Society (Lowell and Graham Lectures), N.Y., 1890; Helps to a Holy Lent, 1872; New Helps to a Holy Lent, 1876; Christ in the Christian Year, and in the Life of Man, 1878; The Fitness of Christianity to Man (Bohlen Lectures for 1878), 1878; Sermons on the Christian Year, 1881, 2 vols.; numerous articles in periodicals, minor works, etc.

HUNTINGTON, William Reed, D.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1873). Episcopalian; b. at Lowell, Mass., Sept. 20, 1838; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1859; instructor there in chemistry, 1859–60; assistant at Emmanuel Church, Boston, 1861–62; rector of All-Wright's Woman's, 1861–68; was rector of Grace Church, New York. He was the class poet (1859) and F.B.K. poet at Harvard (1870); and secretary of the joint committee of the General Convention of the Episcopal Church, on the enrichment and better adaptation to American needs of the Book of Common Prayer. Besides various Sunday-school textbooks and manuals, he has published The Church Idea: an Essay towards Unity, New York, 1870, 3d ed. 1884; Conditional Immortality, 1876.

HURST, John Nathan, D.D., LL.D. (both from Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1866 and 1877 respectively). Methodist; b. at Salem, Md., Aug. 17, 1834; graduated at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1854; taught ancient languages in New York, 1854–56; then studied theology at Hall and Heidelberg, 1856–57; was a Methodist pastor in New Jersey and on Staten Island, N.Y., 1858–68; professor of theology in the Mission Institute of the Methodist-Episcopal Church (for the training of ministers for the German Methodist Church) at Bremen, 1866–69; institute removed to Frankfort-on-the-Main, and re-endowed as the Martin Mission Institute; was professor there, 1869–71; professor of historical theology in Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N.Y., 1871–80, and president from 1873; elected a bishop of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, 1880. Besides translations of Hagenbach's History of the Church in the 18th and 19th Centuries (New York, 1869, 2 vols.), Van Gosse's Apologetical Lectures on John's Gospel (Edinburgh, 1869), and of Lange's Commentary on Romans (New York, 1870), he has written Why America love Shakespeare, Catalki, N.Y., 1855; History of Rationalism, New York, 1866, London, 1867; Martyrs to the Tract Cause, New York, 1872; Outlines of Bible History, 1873; Outlines of Church History, 1874, 3d ed. 1880; Life and Literature in the Fatherland, 1876; Our Theological Century, 1877; Bibliotheca theologica (a bibliography of theology), 1883; Short History of the Reformation, 1884; (jointly with Prof. Dr. G. R. Crooks) an adaptation of Hagenbach's Theological Encyclopedia and Methodology, 1884, as part of The Library of Theological and Biblical Literature begun in 1879.

HURTER, Hugo, Ph.D. (Rome, 1851). D.D. ( dod, 1855). Roman Catholic; b. at Schachthausen, Switzerland, Jan. 11, 1832; studied in Rome, partly in the Propaganda and partly in the German College; and since 1858 has been professor of dogmatic theology in the University of Innsbruck. On Oct. 30, 1845, entered the Roman Catholic Church, and on June 15, 1857, the Jesuit Order. He is the author of Über die Rechte der Vernunft und des Glaubens, Innsbruck, 1863; Opuscula selecta SS. Patrum ad usum praeceptorium studiorum theologian, 1865–85, 48 vols., 2d series 1884 sqq.; Leonardis Lessi S. J. de summa bono et aeterna beatitudine hominum, libri 4, newly edited, Freiburg-im-Br., 1869; Nomenclator litterarius recentioria theologiae catholicae, Innsbruck, 1871–78; D. Thomas Aq. sermones, newly edited, 1871; Theologia dogmatica compendium, 1876, 3 vols. 5th ed. 1885; Multiplex theologica dogmatice, 1880, 2d ed. 1885.

HYACINTHE, Father (whose full name is Charles Jean Marie Augustin Hyacinthe Loyson); b. at Orleans, France, March 10, 1827, and educated at Orleans, Paris, and Miremont; was ordained priest in 1858; since 1869 he has been rector of the University of Paris, attached to the Academy of Pau. After taking his degree of B.A. he entered (1845) the Seminary of St. Sulpice, Paris, and there studied philosophy and theology under the first masters of religious science. He was ordained a priest at Notre Dame de Paris, June 14, 1851, and for the next five years was a professor, first of philosophy at the Grand Seminary of Avignon (1851-54), then of dogmatic theology at the Seminary of Nantes (1854-56). In 1856-57 he was curate of St. Sulpice, Paris, being member of the company of the priests of St. Sulpice, and was made honorary canon of Troy. In 1858 he decided upon a monastic life, and made a six-months' novitiate in the Dominican Order (as reformed by La Pietre, Paris, being member of the company of the earliest child, his theology is that of the Bible and of the Fathers. Always a devoted, liberal, and evangelical Catholic, he accepts the Primacy of the early Church, but rejects the Papacy. He holds to the faith of the undivided church, i.e., the Episcopate, as expressed in the Nicene Creed, which he believes to be the broad yet firm basis of all social and scientific progress, as well as the adaptation of all spiritual truth; and his aim is the unity (not uniformity) of all Christians.
HYACINTHE.

Among his numerous publications are the following: Poèmes, Paris, 1841-43; La société civile dans ses rapports avec le Christianisme (Conférences de Notre Dame), Paris, 1867, 5th ed. — La famille (Conférences de Notre Dame), 1867, 2d ed. — Education des classes ouvrières, 1867; Profession de la foi Catholique d'une protestante convertie, 1869; De la Réforme Catholique: lettres, fragments, discours, 1869-72, 2d ed. (English trans., Catholic reform: Letters, Fragments, etc., by Madame Loyson, introd. by Dean Stanley, London, 1874); L'Église Catholique en Suisse, Geneva, 1875; Réforme Catholique, II. Catholicisme et Protestantisme, Paris, 1873; L'Ultramontanisme et la Révolution, 1873; Trois conférences au Cirque d'Hiver (April 15, 22, and 29, 1877), 1877; Les principes de la Réforme Catholique (Conférences au Cirque d'Hiver, 1878), 1878 (English trans., London, 1879); Programme de la Réforme Catholique, 1879; Liturgie Gallicane, 1879, 5th ed. 1883; L'Inquisition, 1882. In 1880 Madame Hyacinthe Loyson translated into French, and he published, Dölinger's Réunion des Églises. His son, Paul Emmanuel Hyacinthe Loyson, was born at Geneva, Oct. 19, 1873.

HYDE, James Thomas, D.D. (Yale, New Haven, Conn., and Beloit College, Mich., 1870), Congregationalist; b. at Norwich, Conn., Jan. 28, 1827; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1847, and at Yale Divinity School 1850; tutor in Yale College, 1849-52; became colleague of Rev. Dr. John Fiske at New Brantree, Mass., 1853; acting pastor of North Church (Rev. Dr. Horace Bushnell's), Hartford, Conn., 1855; pastor at Middlebury, Vt., 1857; inaugurated Iowa professor of pastoral theology and special studies in the Chicago (Congregational) Theological Seminary, Ill., 1870; transferred to the chair of New Testament literature and interpretation, 1879. He is the author of New Testament Introduction, Chicago, 1881; A New Catechism, or Manual of Instruction for Students and other Thoughtful Inquirers, 1884.
JACOB, George Andrew, D.D. (Oxford, 1852), lord bishop of London; b. in London, Feb. 22, 1811; d. there Jan. 6, 1885. He was educated at Pembroke College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1833, M.A. 1836, B.D. 1853; was Ellerton theological prize essayist, 1834; ordained deacon 1835, priest 1836; was head master of the proprietary school at Islington, 1836-46; selected preacher to the University of Oxford, 1845, 1850, 1862, 1868; Boyle lecturer in London, 1853; rector of St. James, Westminster, London, 1849-53; bishop of Lincoln, 1853-69; translated to London, 1869. He was one of her Majesty's Most Honorable Privy Council; dean of her Majesty's Chapels Royal; provincial dean of Canterbury; official trustee of the British Museum; official governor of King's College, London; visitor of Harrow and Highgate schools, and of Balliol College; a governor of the Charterhouse. He was the author of The Leading Points of the Christian Character (six sermons), London, 1844; Sanctifying Grace, and the Grace of the Ministry, 1847; The Day of Prayer and the Day of Thanksgiving (two sermons), 1849; The Sinfulness of Little Sins, 1849, 20th ed. 1875; Rome and her Claims (a sermon), 1850; The Spirit of the World, and the Spirit which is of God, 1850; Repentance, its Necessity, Nature, and Aids (a course of Lent sermons), 1851, 9th ed. 1866; An Address to the Needy Confirmed, preparatory to the Holy Communion, 1852; Sunday a Day of Rest or a Day of Work (a few words to workingmen), 1853; War, its Evils and Duties (a sermon), 1854; The Witness of the Spirit, 1854, 3d ed. 1870; God's Word and Man's Heart, 1864 (the latter two volumes consist of sermons preached before the University of Oxford); The Parochial System (a charge), 1871; Five Years in the Diocese of London, 1884; Commentary on Timothy and Titus in Bible (Speaker's Commentary, 1881.

JACOBS, Lewis Evens, Presbyterian layman; b. on Staten Island, Richmond County, N.Y., Aug. 31, 1822; educated in the common schools of New-York City; has been identified with Christian and charitable work in the city since 1846; having been first a city missionary, and since 1863 corresponding secretary and treasurer of the New-York City Missionary and Tract Society. He is the author of Gospel Work, a Semi-centennial of City Missions, New York, 1878; and of Christian Work in New York: being the Annual Report of the New-York City Missionary and Tract Society, with Brief Notices of the Operations of other Societies, Church Directory, List of Benevolent Societies, and Statistics of Population, etc. (since 1863).

JACKSON, Samuel Macauley, Presbyterian; b. in New-York City, June 10, 1851; graduated at the College of the City of New York, 1870, and at Union Theological Seminary, in the same city, 1873; studied and traveled, 1873-79; pastor at Norwood, N.J., 1875-80; since in literary work; contributor to Schaff's Bible Dictionary, 1878-80; associate editor of the Schafler-Herzog Encyclopaedia, 1880-84.
JACOBI.

of Romanists and Ritualists, 1874; Sabbath made for Man, 1880; The Lord's Supper historically considered, 1884.

JACOBS, Henry Eyster, D.D. (Thiel College, Carthage, Ill., 1877), Lutheran; b. at Gettysburg, Penn., Nov. 10, 1844; graduated at Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., 1862, and at the Gettysburg Theological Seminary, 1863; was tutor in Pennsylvania College, 1864–67; home missionary at Pittsburg, Penn., 1867–68; pastor and principal of Thiel Hall, Phillipsburg, Penn. (now Thiel College, Greenville, Penn.), 1868–70; professor in Pennsylvania College, of Latin 1870–80, of Latin and Greek 1880–81, of Greek 1881–83; and since 1883 has been editor of Lutheran Church Review. He was a number of charges and single sermons. He is the author of Das Christenthum und seine Beziehung zur christlicher Erkenntnis (sermons), Gütersloh, 1870; Liturgik der Reformierten, Gotta, 1871–76, 2 vols.; Staatskirche, Freikirche, Landeskirche, Leipzig, 1875; Die Gestalt des evangelischen Hauptgottesdienst, Gotta, 1879; Allgemeine Palalogik auf Grund der christlichen Ethik, 1883; Christliche Tugenden (sermons), 1885.

JACOB, Abraham, D.D. (University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1880), Episcopal; b. at Stanislaw, Austria, March 25, 1835; educated at rabbinical schools, and was rabbi at Selma and Mobile, Ala., 1870–72. In the spring of 1872 he was converted from Judaism, and in May joined the Baptist Church, and studied Christian theology in the Southern Baptist Seminary, Greenville, S.C. (now at Louisville, Ky.), and was there honorary professor 1875–76. In 1877 he joined the Episcopal Church; was ordained deacon, 1878; and ordained priest, 1880. From 1875 to 1880 he was professor in the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn.; and since has been professor in the theological seminary of the Protestant-Episcopal dioce of Ohio, at Gambier. He is the author of Mind and Heart in Religion, or Judaism and Christianity, Chicago, 1873; Infant Baptism versus Conformity of Conscientious Baptists to the Book and Standards (anonymous); Modern Conception of the Development of the Religion of Israel (in preparation).

JAGGAR, Right Rev. Thomas Augustus, D.D. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1874), Episcopal, bishop of Southern Ohio; b. in New-York City, June 2, 1839; studied at General Theological Seminary in New-York City, 1859; became rector of Anthon Memorial (now All Souls') Church, New-York City, 1864; St. John's, Yonkers, 1868; Holy Trinity, Philadelphia, 1870; bishop, 1875. He is the author of occasional sermons, addresses, etc.

JAMES, Fleming, D.D. (Protestant-Episcopal Seminary of Ohio, Gambier, 1878); b. at Richmond, Va., Dec. 7, 1835; graduated M.A. at Uni-JANSSEN.  110  JESSUP.

University of Virginia at Charlottesville, 1856, and at General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1868; was assistant minister in New-York City, and Baltimore, Md., 1868-70; rector of St. Mark's, Baltimore, 1870-75, and of Calvary, Louisville, Ky., 1875-78; and since 1876 has been professor in the theological seminary of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Ohio, and pastor of Harcourt parish, both at Gambier.

JANSSSEN, Johannes, Ph.D. (Bonn, 1853). D.D. (Kon., Wurzburg, 1882, Louvain, 1884), Roman Catholic; b. at Xanten, Germany, April 10, 1829; studied at the universities of Louvain, Belgium (1850-51), and Bonn, Germany (1851-53); became privat-docentin the academy at Miinster, 1854; the same year, professor of history in the gymnasium at Frankfort-am-Main, and so remains. He is now papal domestic prelate, apostolic protonotar, and archiepiscopal ecclesiastical councillor of Freiburg. His literary work has been often interrupted by illness. He is the author of Wibald von Stablo und Corvey, Miinster, 1854; vol. 3 of Geschichtsquellen des Bisthums Miinster, 1856; Frankreichs Rheingebiete, Frankfurt, 1861, 2d ed. Freiburg, 1883; Frankfruits Reichsadresse von 1765 bis 1799, Freiburg, 1865-69, 2 vols.; Schiller als Historiker, 1869, 2d ed. 1879; Joh. Friedr. Böhm's Leben, Briefe und kleine Schriften, 1868, 3 vols.; Zur Geneset der ersten Thatlung Polens, 1869; Zeit-und Lebensbilder, 1875, 3d ed. 1879; Friedrich Leopold Graf zu Stolberg, 1875-76, 2 vols. (in 1 vol. 1879, 3d ed. 1885); Geschichte des deutschen Vatik. zes seit dem Ausgang des Mittelalters, 1879, seq. vols. 1-iv. (12th ed. of the first 4 vols. 1884-85, 19th ed. vol. ii. 1886). In defence of his history, which has been vigorously attacked by Protestant scholars, he has published An meine Krücker, Nebst Ergänzungen und Erläuterungen zu den 8 Bänden. meiner Geschichte, 1882, 14th thousand 1884; Ein zweites Wort über meine Krücker, 1883, 18th thousand 1886.

JEBB, John, D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1860), Episcopal Church in Ireland; b. in Dublin, Ireland, in the year 1805; d. at Peterstow, Eng., January, 1888; graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, B.A. 1827, M.A. 1829, B.D. 1860; ordained deacon 1829, priest 1830; was rector of Dununllin, Ireland, 1831-32; prebendary of Travey more in Limerick Cathedral, 1832-43; proctor of the diocese of Hereford, Eng., 1857-80; prelector of Hereford Cathedral, 1863-70. Since 1843 he was the rector of Peterstow; since 1858, prebendary of Preston Wyne; since 1870, canon-residency; since 1875, chancellor of the choir of Hereford Cathedral. He was one of the revisers of the Old Testament, and the author of The Three Lectures on the Cathedral Service, London, 1841; The Choral Service of the United Church of England and Ireland, 1843; A Literal Translation of the Book of Psalms, with Dissertations, 1846, 2 vols.; The Choral Responses and Litany of the United Churches of England and Ireland, 1847-57, 2 vols.; The Principle of Ritualism defended, 1856; The Ritual Law and Custom of the Church Universal, 1866; The Rights of the Irish Branch of the United Church of England and Ireland considered, 1868.

JEFFERS, William Hamilton, D.D. (Western Reserve College, Hudson, Ohio, 1874), LL.D. (University of Wooster, Wooster, Ohio, 1879), Presbyterian; b. near Cadiz, O., May 1, 1838; graduated at Geneva College, Northwood, Penn. (now Beaver Falls, O.), 1855; and at Xenia (United Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, O., 1860. From 1862 to 1886 he was pastor of the United Presbyterian united churches of Bellefontaine and Northwood, O.; in 1868 became professor of Latin and Hebrew in Westminster College, New Wilmington, Penn.; in 1869, professor of Greek in the University of Wooster, O.; in 1875, pastor of the Euclid-avenue Presbyterian Church, Cleveland, O.; and since 1877 has been professor of Old Testament literature and exegesis in the Western (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn. While pastor at Bellefontaine, he was put on the committee to revise the United Presbyterian metrical version of the Psalms.

JENNINGS, Arthur Charles, Church of England; b. in London, Dec. 19, 1847; educated at Eton and Radley; entered Jesus College, Cambridge; took the Carus prize in 1869; graduated B.A. 1872; Carus Bachelor's prizeman, and Jeremiah Septuagint prizeman, and Crosse scholar, 1872; took a first-class in the theological tripus, the university Hebrew prize, Evan's prize, and Scholastic field's prize; was Tyndall's scholar and Fry's scholar (St. John's), 1873; M.A. 1875. He was ordained deacon 1873, priest 1874; was curate of St. Edward, Cambridge, 1873-74; became vicar of Whittingford, near Cambridge, 1877. He is broad representative of the Church of England, and accommodates herself to the modern views on such points as the inspiration of the Scriptures, doctrinal development, etc. He advocates a limitation of episcopal authority by the revival of a truly representative Convocation. He is a moderate high Churchman in his view of public worship, but desires a revision of the Prayer Book. He is the author of Commentary on the Psalms (jointly with W. H. Lowe), published in parts, London, 1875-77, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1884; Ecclesia Anglicana, A History of the Church of Christ in England, from the Earliest to the Present Times, 1882; Synopsis of Ancient Chronology, 1888. He contributed the comments on Nahum, Haggai, Habakkuk, and Zephaniah, in Eliott's Old-Testament Commentary (vol. v., 1884).

JERMYN, Right Rev. Hugh Willoughby, D.D. (Cambridge, 1871), lord bishop of Brechin, Episcopal Church of Scotland; b. about the year 1820; educated at Trinity Hall, Cambridge; graduated B.A. 1841, M.A. 1847; was ordained deacon 1843, priest 1845; archdeacon of St. Christopher's, West Indies, 1851-58; rector of Nettlecombe, near Taunton, 1858-70; vicar of Barking, Essex, 1870-71; lord bishop of Colombo, 1871-75; elected to Brechin, 1875.

ton, 1865), Presbyterian; b. at Montrose, Penn., April 19, 1832; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1851, and Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1855. In 1856 he went as a missionary to Tripoli, Syria, and there remained until 1860, when he removed to Beirut, which has ever since been the centre of his operations. He paid several times more than brief home visits, and during one of these in 1879 was elected moderator of the General Assembly at Saratoga, N.Y. He is the author of The Mohammedan Missionary Problem, Philadelphia, 1879.

JOHNSON, Elias Henry, D.D. (University of Rochester, N.Y., 1875), Baptist; b. at Troy, N.Y., Oct. 15, 1841; graduated at the University of Rochester, N.Y., 1862, and at the Rochester Theological Seminary, 1871; was pastor at Le Sueur, Minn., 1866-68; Ballston Spa, N.Y., 1873-75; and at Providence, R.I., 1875-82; in 1883 became professor of systematic theology in Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester, Penn. He published (jointly with W. H. Doane, Mus. D.) Baptist Hymnal, Philadelphia, 1883; (alone) Songs of Praise for Sunday Schools, 1882; Select Sunday-school Songs, 1885; articles in reviews and other periodicals.

JOHNSON, Herrick, D.D. (Western Reserve College, Hudson, O., 1867), L.L.D. (Wooster University, Wooster, O., 1880), Presbyterian; b. near Fonda, Montgomery County, N.Y., Sept. 21, 1832; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1857; and from Auburn (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1860. He was colleague pastor of the First Church, Troy, N.Y., 1860-62; pastor of the Third Church, Troy, N.Y., 1863-68; and of the First Church, Philadelphia, Penn., 1868-74. In 1874 he went to Auburn as professor of homiletics and pastoral theology; in 1880 he removed to Chicago, where he is pastor of the Fourth Church, and professor of sacred rhetoric in the Theological Seminary of the North-west. He was moderator of the General Assembly at Springfield, III., 1882. He is president of the Presbyterian Church Board of Aid for Colleges and Academies, and of the board of trustees of Lake Forest University. He was chairman of the committee on higher education, which reported to the General Assembly of 1885 a plan for the organization of the former. The report was unanimously adopted. Besides many sermons, articles, etc., he has published Christianity's Challenge, Chicago, Ill., 1882, 4th ed. 1884; *Plain Talks about the Theater, 1883; Revivals, their Place and Power, 1883; Visitation Charges; papers in literary and antiquarian journals; contributions to Smith's Dictionary of the Bible.

JOHNSON, William Allen, Episcopalian; b. at Hyde Park, Dutchess County, N.Y., Aug. 4, 1833; graduated at Columbia College, New-York City, 1853, and at the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1857. He was successively rector at Bainbridge, N.Y., 1857-62; missionary in Upper Michigan, 1862-64; rector at Burlington, N.J., 1864-70, and at Salisbury, Conn., 1871-82. On Jan. 1, 1888, he went to his present position, the professorship of Christian evidences and homiletics in the Berkeley Divinity School, Middletown, Conn.

JONES, Samuel P., the "Mountain Evangelist," Methodist Church South; b. in Chambers County, Ala., Oct. 16, 1847; received a good academic education; entered the legal profession, to which his father belonged, in 1870, and practised law for three years in his native county, with indifferent success, owing to his bad habits. He was, however, converted, joined the Methodist Church, and became a preacher under the sanction of the North Georgia Conference. At first he did not go outside of his State; but in 1881 he went into Alabama, and has since been not only all over the South, but also through the Newer, and has always labored with remarkable success. He uses the plainest speech, and abounds in witty and pregnant sayings. Some of his sermons have been printed, New York, 1885.

JONES, Right Rev. William Basil, D.D. (University of Oxford, 1874), lord bishop of St. David's, Church of England; b. at Cheltenham, Gloucestershire, Eng. In the year 1822; was scholar of Trinity College, Oxford, 1840; Ireland scholar, 1842; graduated B.A. (second-class classics) 1844, M.A. (Queen's College) 1847; was ordained deacon 1848, priest 1853; was Michel fellow of Queen's College, Oxford, 1848-51; fellow of University College, 1851-57; master of the schools, 1848; tutor of University College, 1854-65; classical moderator, 1856 and 1860; select preacher at Oxford, 1860-62, 1867-76; at Cambridge, 1861; senior proctor, Oxford, 1861-62; examining chaplain to the archbishop of York, 1861-74; public examiner in theology, 1870; curate of St. David's Cathedral, 1859-65; prebendary of Grindal in York Cathedral, 1863-71; perpetual curate of Hasby, Yorkshire, 1868-65; vicar of Bishopthorpe with Middlethorpe, 1865-74; archdeacon of York, 1870-74; rural dean of Bishopthorpe, 1869-74, and of the city of York, 1873-74; chancellor of York Cathedral, and prebendary of Laughton-en-le-Morthen, 1871-74; canon residentiary of York, 1873-74; consecrated bishop, 1874. He is the author of Vestiges of the Gael in Guernsey, London, 1851; Christ College, Brecon, its History and Capabilities considered with Reference to a Measure now before Parliament, 1853; The History and Antiquities of St. David's (conjointly with E. A. Freeman, L.L.D.), 1856; Notes on the Edipus Tyrannus of Sophocles, adapted to the Text of Dindorf, 1862, 2nd ed. 1869; *The Clergyman's Office (a sermon), 1868; The New Testament illustrated with a Plain Explanatory Commentary for Private Reading (with Archdeacon Churton), 1865; Judgment, Mercy, and Faith (University sermon), 1866; The Mystery of Iniquity (University sermons), 1867; The Peace of God, Sermons on the Reconciliation of God and Man, 1869, 2d ed. 1885; Commentary on St. Luke in The Bible (Speaker's) Commentary, 1878; visitation charges; papers in literary and antiquarian journals; contributions to Smith's Dictionary of the Bible.

JOSTES, Franz (Ludwig), Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1852), Roman Catholic; b. at Giandorf, Hannover, Germany, July 12, 1838; studied history and German at Freiburg (as intern, studied medicine), Berlin, Strassburg, and Leipzig, 1878-82; became privat-dozent of the German language and literature in the Royal Academy of Münster, in Westphalia, 1884. He is the author of Johannes Veghe, Halle, 1892; Johannes Veghe, ein deutsche Studie-Prediger, 16. Jahrsbuch der Geschichts- und Literaturwissenschaften, 1893; Drei unbekannte deutsche Schriften von Johannes Veghe (in Histor. Jahrbuch, 1885, pp. 345-412); *Beiträge zur Kennnis der JOWETT, Benjamin, LL.D. (University of Leiden, 1875), Church of England; b. at Camberwell, Eng., in the year 1817; scholar of Balliol College, Oxford, 1835; Hertford university scholar, 1837; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1839, M.A. 1842; was ordained deacon 1842, priest 1845. In 1838 he was elected to a fellowship at Balliol College; was tutor from 1842 to 1870; public examiner in classics, 1849-50, 1853-54; classical moderator, 1859-60. In 1854 he was a member of the commission appointed to arrange the examinations for admission to the East-Indian Civil Service; and in 1855, on the recommendation of Lord Palmerston, he was appointed regius professor of Greek. In 1870 he resigned his fellowship, and took the mastership of Balliol College, which he still holds along with his professorship. In 1875 he became a member of the Hebdomadal Council of the university, and in 1882 was vice-chancellor. He is the author of St. Paul's Epistles to the Thessalonians, Galatians, and Romans; Critical Notes and Dissertations, London, 1855, 2d ed. 1859; On the Interpretation of Scripture (an essay in Essays and Reviews), 1860; The Dialogues of Plato translated into English, with Analyses and Essays, 1871, 4 vols., 2d ed. 1875, 5 vols.; Thucydides translated into English, with Introduction, Marginal Analysis, Notes, and Indices, 1881, 2 vols. (American reprint, preface by Rev. A. P. Peabody, Boston, 1883, 1 vol.); The Politics of Aristotle (trans. with notes, etc.), 1885, 2 vols.

JUNGMANN, Joseph, Roman Catholic; b. at Münster, Germany, Nov. 11, 1830; d. at Innsbruck, Nov. 25, 1885. He studied theology there, and in the Collegium Germanicum at Rome, Italy, 1850-56; became priest there, 1855; Jesuit, 1857; ordinary professor of sacred rhetoric and catechetics in the University of Innsbruck, and professor of liturgies in the theological convexit there. He was the author of Die Schönheit und ihre schöne Kunst, Innsbruck, 1886, 2 parts; Das Gemüt und das Gefühlswirungen der neueren Psychologie, 1866, 2d ed., Freiburg-im-Br., 1885; Theorie der geistlichen Beredsamkeit, Freiburg-im-Br., 1877-78, 4 parts, 2d ed. 1884; Die Andacht zum heiligsten Herzen Jesu und die Bedenken gegen dieselbe, 1885 (pp. 51).
KAELHER, (Carl) Martin (August), Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1860), D.D. (kon., Halle, 1878), German Protestant theologian; b. at Neuhausen, near Königberg, East Prussia, Jan. 6, 1835; studied law at Königsberg, 1853–54; theology at Heidelberg 1854–55, Halle 1855–58, Tubingen 1858–59; became privat-docent at Halle, 1860; professor extraordi-

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER, (Carl) Martin (August), Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1860), D.D. (kon., Halle, 1878), German Protestant theologian; b. at Neuhausen, near Königberg, East Prussia, Jan. 6, 1835; studied law at Königsberg, 1853–54; theology at Heidelberg 1854–55, Halle 1855–58, Tubingen 1858–59; became privat-docent at Halle, 1860; professor extra-

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER, (Carl) Martin (August), Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1860), D.D. (kon., Halle, 1878), German Protestant theologian; b. at Neuhausen, near Königberg, East Prussia, Jan. 6, 1835; studied law at Königsberg, 1853–54; theology at Heidelberg 1854–55, Halle 1855–58, Tubingen 1858–59; became privat-docent at Halle, 1860; professor extra-

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER, (Carl) Martin (August), Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1860), D.D. (kon., Halle, 1878), German Protestant theologian; b. at Neuhausen, near Königberg, East Prussia, Jan. 6, 1835; studied law at Königsberg, 1853–54; theology at Heidelberg 1854–55, Halle 1855–58, Tubingen 1858–59; became privat-docent at Halle, 1860; professor extra-

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER, (Carl) Martin (August), Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1860), D.D. (kon., Halle, 1878), German Protestant theologian; b. at Neuhausen, near Königberg, East Prussia, Jan. 6, 1835; studied law at Königsberg, 1853–54; theology at Heidelberg 1854–55, Halle 1855–58, Tubingen 1858–59; became privat-docent at Halle, 1860; professor extra-

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER, (Carl) Martin (August), Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1860), D.D. (kon., Halle, 1878), German Protestant theologian; b. at Neuhausen, near Königberg, East Prussia, Jan. 6, 1835; studied law at Königsberg, 1853–54; theology at Heidelberg 1854–55, Halle 1855–58, Tubingen 1858–59; became privat-docent at Halle, 1860; professor extra-

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER, (Carl) Martin (August), Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1860), D.D. (kon., Halle, 1878), German Protestant theologian; b. at Neuhausen, near Königberg, East Prussia, Jan. 6, 1835; studied law at Königsberg, 1853–54; theology at Heidelberg 1854–55, Halle 1855–58, Tubingen 1858–59; became privat-docent at Halle, 1860; professor extra-

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER, (Carl) Martin (August), Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1860), D.D. (kon., Halle, 1878), German Protestant theologian; b. at Neuhausen, near Königberg, East Prussia, Jan. 6, 1835; studied law at Königsberg, 1853–54; theology at Heidelberg 1854–55, Halle 1855–58, Tubingen 1858–59; became privat-docent at Halle, 1860; professor extra-

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER, (Carl) Martin (August), Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1860), D.D. (kon., Halle, 1878), German Protestant theologian; b. at Neuhausen, near Königberg, East Prussia, Jan. 6, 1835; studied law at Königsberg, 1853–54; theology at Heidelberg 1854–55, Halle 1855–58, Tubingen 1858–59; became privat-docent at Halle, 1860; professor extra-

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER, (Carl) Martin (August), Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1860), D.D. (kon., Halle, 1878), German Protestant theologian; b. at Neuhausen, near Königberg, East Prussia, Jan. 6, 1835; studied law at Königsberg, 1853–54; theology at Heidelberg 1854–55, Halle 1855–58, Tubingen 1858–59; became privat-docent at Halle, 1860; professor extra-

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER, (Carl) Martin (August), Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1860), D.D. (kon., Halle, 1878), German Protestant theologian; b. at Neuhausen, near Königberg, East Prussia, Jan. 6, 1835; studied law at Königsberg, 1853–54; theology at Heidelberg 1854–55, Halle 1855–58, Tubingen 1858–59; became privat-docent at Halle, 1860; professor extra-

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER, (Carl) Martin (August), Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1860), D.D. (kon., Halle, 1878), German Protestant theologian; b. at Neuhausen, near Königberg, East Prussia, Jan. 6, 1835; studied law at Königsberg, 1853–54; theology at Heidelberg 1854–55, Halle 1855–58, Tubingen 1858–59; became privat-docent at Halle, 1860; professor extra-

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.

KAELHER, (Carl) Martin (August), Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1860), D.D. (kon., Halle, 1878), German Protestant theologian; b. at Neuhausen, near Königberg, East Prussia, Jan. 6, 1835; studied law at Königsberg, 1853–54; theology at Heidelberg 1854–55, Halle 1855–58, Tubingen 1858–59; became privat-docent at Halle, 1860; professor extra-

K.

KAELHER. 113 KALISCH.

K.
KAMPHAUSEN, Adolf (Hermann Heinrich), D.D. (hon., Halle, 1867), German Protestant theologian; b. at Solingen, Rhenish Prussia, Sept. 10, 1829; studied at Bonn, 1849-55; became there privat-docent, August, 1855; in October went to Heidelberg to be Bunsen's private secretary, and to work on his Bibelwerk, and taught as privat-docent in the university there; removed with Bunsen to Bonn in 1859, and there became professor extraordinary of theology in 1863, and ordinary professor in 1868. He has taken prominent part in the revision of the German Bible, 1871, sqq. He is the author of Das Lied Moses, Leipzig, 1862; Das Gebeu des Herrn, Elberfeld, 1860; Die Hagiographien des Alten Bundes nach den überliefernten Grundzüsten übersetzt und mit erklärenden Anmerkungen versehen, Leipzig, 1863; Die Chronologie der hebräischen Könige, Bonn, 1883. He contributed to Riehm's Handwörterbuch des biblischen Alterthums (Bielefeld, 1885), and edited Bleek's Einleitung ins Alte Testament, Berlin, 1890, 3d ed. 1870.

KARR, William Stevens, D.D. (Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., 1876), Congregationalist; b. at Newark, N.J., Jan. 6, 1829; graduated at Amherst (Mass.) College, 1851, and at Union Theological Seminary, New York City, 1854; was Presbyterian pastor at Brooklyn, N.Y. (1854-57), and Congregational pastor at Chicopee, Mass. (1856-67), Keene, N.H. (1868-72), Cambridge, Mass. (1873-76); and since 1876 has been professor of systematic theology in the Hartford (Conn.) Theological Seminary. He edited Dr. H. B. Smith's Apologetics (New York, 1882), Introduction to Christian Theology (1883), and System of Christian Theology, 1884.

KATTENBUSCH, (Friedrich Wilhelm) Ferdinand, Lic. Theol. (Göttingen, 1875), D.D. (hon., Göttingen, 1879), German Protestant; b. at Kettwig-on-the-Ruhr, Rhenish Prussia, Oct. 3, 1851; studied at Bonn, Berlin, and Halle; became rector at Göttingen 1873, privat-docent there 1876; professor of systematic theology at Giessen, 1879. He belongs to the school of A. Ritschl of Göttingen. He is the author of Luthers Lehre vom unfreien Willen und der Freiwilligen Bestimmung, Göttingen, 1875; Der freie Uterherrn, Darmstadt, 1881; Luthers Stellung zu den oecumenischen Symbolen, Giessen, 1883; Die oecumenischen Symbole, Geschichte ihrer Entstehung und Geltung in der christlichen Kirche, 1886.

KAULEN, Franz Philipp, D.D. (Würzburg, 1862), Roman Catholic: b. at Düsseldorf, Germany, March 20, 1827; studied theology and philosophy at Bonn, 1846-49; in the theological seminary at Cologne, 1849; became priest, 1850; chaplain at Duisdorf, 1850; at Dottendorf, 1862; rector and prison chaplain at Pütschen, near Bonn, 1869; tutor in Count Mirbach's family at Harff, proprietor in the theological convict at Bonn, 1859; privat-docent for Old-Testament exegesis at Bonn, 1863; professor extraordinary of the same, 1880; ordinary professor of Catholic theology, 1883. He succeeded Dr. Hergenrother as editor of the 2d edition of Wetzer and Weite's Kirchenlexicon, Freiburg in the Br., 1872, sqq. He made cardinal and called to Rome, 1879. He translated from the Spanish Vieira's Ausgew. Reden auf d. Festage U. L. Frau, Paderborn, 1896; from the Italian, St. Francisci Bluthengartlein, Mainz, 1860, 2d ed. 1880; from the Latin, St. Thomas of Villanova's Ein Büchlein von der Liebe, Freiburg-im-Br., 1872; edited the fifth and succeeding editions of C. H. Vosken's Rudimenta linguae hebraice, Freiburg, 1872, sqq. (now in German). He is the author of Linguæ Mandshuricæ Institutiones, Freiburg, 1876; Die Sprachverw. zu Babel, Mainz, 1861; Liberum Jonas, Prophetia exposuit, 1862; Legende des sel. Herrrnk Joseph, 1862, 2d ed. 1880; Geschichte der Vulgata, 1890; Handbuch zur Vulgata, 1870; Einleitung in die kl. Schriften des A. v. N. T., Freiburg, 1870, sqq.; Ausgren und Babylonien nach den neuesten Entdeckungen, Cologne, 1877, 3d ed. Freiburg, 1885; and numerous theological and linguistic essays.

KAUTZSCH, Emil Friedrich, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1863), D.D. (hon., Basel, 1873), German Protestant; b. at Plauen, Saxony, Sept. 4, 1841; studied at Leipzig, 1859-63; was adjunct of the Nicolai-gymnasion, 1863-66; head master, 1866-72; privat-docent in the university, 1869-71; professor extraordinary, 1871; ordinary professor at Basel, 1872-80; since 1880 at Tubingen. In 1877 he founded, with A. Sozin and Zimmermann, the German Palestine Exploration Society. He prepared, with F. Mühlan, an edition of the unpointed text of Genesis, Leipzig, 1869, 2d ed. 1885; brought out the second edition of H. Scholz's Abriß der Hebr. Laut- und Formenlehre, 1874, 5th ed. 1883; the 22d to the 24th editions of Gesenius' Hebräischer Grammatik, 1878-85, to which he added an Übungsbuch, 1881, 2d ed. 1884; and the 10th and 11th editions of Hagenbach's Encyklopädie und Methodologie, 1880, 1884; and has written De Veteris Testamenti locis a Paulo apostolo allegatis, 1869; (with Sozin) Die Aehchheit der moabitiischen Alterthümer geprüft, 1870; Johannes Boettzer der Adlere, Basel, 1874; Ueber die Derivate des Stammes P'V im alttestamentlichen Sprachgebrauch, Tubingen, 1881 (pp. 59); Grammatik des Biblic-Aramäischen. Mit einer kritischen Erörterung der aramäischen Wörter im N. T., Leipzig, 1884.

KAWERAU, Gustav, D.D. (hon., Halle and Tübingen, 1888), German theologian; b. at Bunzlau, Silesia, Feb. 25, 1847; studied at Berlin, 1863-66; became assistant preacher in St. Lucas', Berlin, 1867; pastor at Langheinersdorf, Brandenburg, 1871; at Klemzig, 1876; professor and geistlicher Inspector am Kloster u. l. Frauen, and president of the theological seminary, Magdeburg, 1892; ordinary professor of pastoral theology, Kiel, 1856. In 1883 he participated with the archivist Jacobs and Prof. Dr. Koestlin in founding the Verein für Reformations Geschichte, of which he has since been the editor. He is the author of Johann Agricola von Eiselen, Berlin, 1881; Caspar Gütal: Ein Leben, heraus aus Luther's Freundkreis, Halle, 1882; five articles against Jansenism in Zeitschrift für kirs. Wissenschaft und kirch. Leben, 1882 and 1883; the introduction to the reprint of Von der Winckelmesse und Pfaffen Weihe. D. Martin Luther, Halle, 1883; and that of Passional Christi und Antichrist, Berlin, 1885; edited the Briefwechsel des Luther's. In 1890 he published the third (1885) and fourth (1886) volumes of the Weimar edition of Luther's works.

KAY, William, D.D. (Oxford, 1885), Church of England; b. at Pickering, Yorkshire, April 8, KAYSER.

1820; educated at Lincoln College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics, second-class in mathematics), 1839; Pusey and Ellerton Hebrew scholar and M.A. 1842, B.D. 1849; ordained deacon 1843, priest 1844; was fellow of Lincoln College, 1840–96; tutor, 1842–49; principal of Bishop’s College, Calcutta, 1872–79, and since 1868 has been rector of Great Leghs, and since 1877 chaplain to the bishop of St. Alban’s, and honorary canon of St. Alban’s. He is the author of On Pantheism, Calcutta, 1853, 2d ed., Madras, 1879; Promises of Christianity, Oxford, 1855; The Psalms, translated with Notes, Calcutta, 1868, 2d ed., London, 1871, 4th ed. 1877; Crizia Hupfeldiana, Oxford, 1865; contributed commentary on Isaiah and Hebrews to The Bible (Speaker’s Commentary, and on Ezekiel in S. P. C. K. Commentary.

KAYSER, August, Lic. Theol. (Strassburg, 1850), German theologian; b. at Strassburg, Feb. 14, 1821; d. there, June 17, 1885. He was educated in his native city; became pastor at Stossweier 1858, at Neuhof-in-Aisace 1868; professor extraordinary of theology at the newly organized University of Strassburg, 1873; ordinary professor, 1879. He was the author of De Justini Martyri doctrina, Strassburg, 1850; Das vorzeitliche Buch der Urgeschichte Israels und seine Erweiterungen, Ein Beitrag zur Pentateuch-Kritik, 1874; Die Theologie des Alten Testaments, in ihrer geschichtlichen Entwicklung dargestellt (posthumous, ed. by E. Reuss), 1888.

KEENER, John Christian, D.D. (Florence College, Ala., 1855). LL.D. (Southern University, Greensborough, Ala., 1880), Methodist bishop (Southern Church); b. in Baltimore, Md., Feb. 7, 1819; educated at Wesleyan University, Middle- town, Conn., 1836; went into business, but became a preacher in 1843, and was a preacher in charge until 1852, when he became a presiding elder; was in the war, 1861–65; editor New-Orleans Christian Advocate, 1865–70, when he was elected a bishop. He visited the City of Mexico in 1873, bought property there, and established a mission of the Methodist-Episcopal Church South. He is the author of Post-Ord Circuit, Nashville, 1857, 13th thousand 1860, many since; edited William Elbirt Munsey’s Sermons and Lectures, Macon, Ga., 1878, 3d ed. 1879; to 9th thousand 1885, Nashville, Tenn.

KEIL, Johann Carl Friedrich, Lic. Theol., Ph.D., D.D. (all Berlin, 1822, 1834, and 1836, respectively), Lutheran; b. at Oelnitz, Saxony, Feb. 26, 1807; studied at Dorpat 1827–30) and at Berlin (1831–33); became privat-doent at Dorpat, 1833; professor extraordinary, 1838; ordinary professor, 1839; since 1859 has been professor emeritus, and has lived at Leipzig. He is the author of Apologetischer Versuch üb. d. BB. d. Chronik u. üb. d. Integrität d. B. Ezra, Berlin, 1833; Ueber d. Hiram-Salomonische Schifflit. Ophir u. Taris, Dorpat, 1834; Der Tempel Salomos’s, 1839; Commentar üb. d. BB. d. Könige, Leipzig, 1845; Josua, Erlangen, 1847; 3d part of Hävnick’s Einleitung A. T., 1849; Biblische Archæologie, Frankfort, 1857, 2d ed. 1861; Das Testament von der jüdischen Christen, 1850; 2d ed. 1853, 3d ed. 1873; in the series edited jointly with Delitzsch, has contributed commentaries upon Genesis and Exodus, Leipzig, 1861, 3d ed. 1878; Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy, 1889, 2d ed. 1870; Joshua, Judges, and Ruth, 1863, 2d ed. 1874; Samuel, 1865, 2d ed. 1875; Kings, 1866, 2d ed. 1878; Chronicles, Ezra, Nehemiah, and Esther, 1870; Jeremiah and Lamentations, 1872; Ezekiel, 1868, 2d ed. 1881; Daniel, 1869; Minor Prophets, 1867, 2d ed. 1873 (these are all translated in Clark’s Library); separately, commentaries on Maccabees, 1875; Mal.2, 1877; Mic, and Luke, 1879; John, 1881; Peter and Jude, 1883; Hebrews, 1885.

KELLNER, Karl Adam Heinrich, D.D. (Munich, 1862), Roman Catholic; b. at Heiligenstadt, Thueringa, Germany, Aug. 26, 1837; studied at Münster, Tubingen, and Trier; became chaplain at Trier; pastor at Billburg; professor of church law in the theological seminary at Hildesheim, Hain- nover, 1867; professor of church history in the University of Bonn, 1882. He is the author of Das Buss- und Strafverfahren gegen Klerikerinden der kath. Kirche am Rhein (in the Historisches Taschenbuch, VI. Folge, Bd. 1., 1885).

KELLOGG, Samuel Henry, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1877), Presbyterian; b. at Quiogue, Long Island, N.Y., Sept. 6, 1839; graduated at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1861, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1864; was missionary in India.1864–76 (1872–76, theological instructor in synod’s school at Allahabad); pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, Penn.; professor of systematic theology, and lecturer on comparative religion, in Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1877–85; since 1888 pastor in Toronto, Ontario, Can. He is the author of A Grammar of the Hindi Language, London, 1879; Kiendrick, Asahel Clark, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1845), L.L.D. (Lewisburg University, Lewisburg, Penn., 1879), Baptist; b. at Poulney, Vt., Dec. 7, 1809; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1831; professor of Greek in Madison University, Hamilton, N.Y., 1832-50; and since 1850 has held similar position in Rochester (Sauken University, and taught intervals Hebrew and New-Testament Greek in Rochester (Baptist) Theological Seminary. He was a member of the New-Testament Company of the Anglo-American Bible-revision Committee (1871-81). He is the author of a Greek Introduction, New York, 1833; Greek Ollendorff; 1851; Echoes, or Leisure Hours with the German Poets, Rochester, 1855; Life and Letters of Mrs. Emily C. Jutilon, New York, 1860; Our Poetical Favorites (selected poems), 1873, 2 series, new ed. Boston, 1883; The Analysis of Xenophon, with Notes and Vocabulary, New York, 1879; revised and in part translated Olschuysohn's Commentary, New York, 1856-58, 4 vols.; trans. Moll on Hebrews in American ed. of Lange's Commentary, 1868; revised and edited trans. of Meyer's Commentary on John, 1884; besides has written various magazine articles, a series of exegetical articles under the title of Biblical Hours, and aided in several publications of the American Bible Union.

Kennedy, Benjamin Hall, D.D. (Cambridge, 1836), Church of England; b. at Summer Hill, near Birmingham, Nov. 8, 1804; entered St. John's College, Cambridge; gained the Porson prize, and Bridge's medal; an old scholarship, Browne's medals for Greek and Latin odes, and the Porson prize, in 1824; Browne's medal for epigrams in 1825, the Porson prize in 1826; graduated B.A. (senior optime, and first in the first class of the classical tripos, and senior chancellor's medallist) 1827, M.A. 1830; gained the member's prize for a Latin essay, De origine scriptura alphabeticæ; was fellow of his college, and classical lecturer, 1828-36; assistant master at Harrow, 1830-36; head master of Shrewsbury School, 1836-66; was ordained deacon 1829, priest 1830; was prebendary of Gaia Major in Lichfield Cathedral, 1843-67; select preacher to the university, 1860; rector of West Felton, Salop, 1865-67; became regius professor of Greek in the University of Cambridge, and canon of Ely, 1867. In 1870 he was elected a member of the council of the university; appointed Lady Margaret's preacher for 1876; elected honorary fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, 1872; and since 1877 has been a member of the New-Testament Company of Bible Revisers (1870-81). His works are mostly Latin school-books or translations of classic authors: e.g., Birds of Aristophanes (London, 1874), Agamemnon of Eschylus (1878, 2d ed. 1882), Edipus Tyrrannus of Sophocles; but he has also published Between Whiles: Wayside Amusements of a Working Life, 1877; Occasional Sermons, 1877; and Elly Lectures on the Revised Translation of the New Testament, 1882.

Kenrick, Most Rev. Peter Richard, D.D., Roman Catholic; b. in Dublin, Ireland, in the year 1809; was educated at Maynooth, and ordained; he came to Philadelphia, U.S.A., where his brother, F. P. Kenrick (see title in Encyclopaedia), was coadjutor bishop; there he edited The Catholic Herald, and was made vicar-general. From 1841 to 1843 he was bishop of Drasa, and coadjutor bishop of St. Louis; and since 1848 bishop, and since 1847 the first archbishop. He sat in the Vatican Council, and vigorously opposed the infallibility dogma, but acquiesced. He is author of numerous translations, and of The Holy House of Loreto, Philadelphia, and Anglican Ordinations.

Kephart, Ezekiel Boring, D.D. (Otterbein University, Westerville, O., 1881), bishop of the United Brethren in Christ; b. at Decatur, Penn., Nov. 6, 1834; graduated at Otterbein University, Westerville, O., in the English scientific course, 1855; in the regular classical course, 1870; was licensed to preach, 1857; received as a minister into the Allegheny Conference, Penn., January, 1858; became principal of Michigan Collegiate Institute, Leon, Mich., 1865; a pastor in Pennsylvania, 1886; president of Western College (now at Toledo, To.), 1868; bishop, 1881. He was State senator of Iowa, 1871-75.

Kesselring, Heinrich, D.D., Swiss Protestant theologian; b. at Frauenfeld, Canton Thurgau, Switzerland, July 15, 1832; studied theology at Zurich, Tubingen, and Berlin, 1850-56; was vicar at Horgen, Switzerland, 1856-57; pastor at Wipkingen, near Zurich, 1859-64; became privydocent at Zurich, 1858; professor extraordinary of theology there, 1864; ordinary professor of New Testament and practical theology, 1874. He is author of contributions to different periodicals, sermons, etc.

Kiddon, Daniel Parish, D.D. (McKendree College, Lebanon, Ill., 1861), Methodist; b. at Darien, N.Y., Oct. 14, 1836; was in 1855; the Pitts Theological School, Philadelphia, and Anglican Ordinations.translation of the New Testament, 1882. In 1865, he was elected secretary of the M.E. Board of Education, New-York City. He is author of Mormonism and Mormons, N.Y., 1841; Sketches of Residence in Brazil, 1847-40; pastor at home, 1840-44; was Sunday-school editor and secretary, 1844-56; profe of practical theology in Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., 1856-71; held the same chair in Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J., 1871-80, when he was elected secretary of the E. Board of Education, New-York City. He is author of Mormonism and Mormons, N.Y., 1841; Sketches of Residence in Brazil, 1845, 2 vols.; The Christian Pastorite, Cincinnati, 1871; A Treatise on Homilies, New York, 1894; Helps to Prayer, 1884; with Rev. J. C. Fletcher, of the standard work, Brazil and the Brazilians, Philadelphia, 1857, 9th ed. Boston, 1880; translated from the Portuguese, Feijo's Necessity of abolishing a Constrained Clerical Celibacy, New York, 1844.

Kinn, Heinrich, D.D. (Würzburg, 1886), Roman Catholic; b. at Michelbach, Bavaria, April 20, 1835; studied at the lycæum at Aschaffenburg, and at the University of Würzburg, philosophy and theology, 1846-54; entered the Episcopal Seminary at Würzburg, 1855; won the prize for the best essay on Die Bedeutung der Antiochenischen Schule auf dem exegetischen Gebiete, 1857; was or...
KILLEN.

D. D. (Glasgow, 1843),
Irish Presbyterian; b. at Ballymena, County Antrim, Ireland, April 5, 1806; educated at Royal Academical Institution, Belfast; became minister of Raphoe, County Donegal, 1829; minister of Raphoe, County Donegal, 1829; rector of St. Peter's, Morristown, N.J., 1835; became a Baptist, 1850, M.A. 1853; was ordained deacon in 1852, priest 1859; 'tutor of Christ Church (classics), 1863; principal of Manitoba College, Winnipeg, 1883. He has published occasional sermons.

KIRKPATRICK, John Dillard, D.D. (Bethel College, McKinzie, Tenn., 1884), Cumberland Presbyterian; b. in Wilson County, Tenn., July 13, 1851; graduated at Pennsylvania College and Theological Seminary, both at Gettysburg, Penn.; since 1876 has been professor of Greek and mathematics in the classical department, and of New Testament exegesis in the theological department, of Hartwick Seminary, Otsego County, N.Y.

KITCHIN, Very Rev. George William, D.D. (by decree of Convocation, 1882), dean of Winchester, Church of England; b. at Naughton Rectory, Suffolk, Eng., Dec. 7, 1827; student of Christ Church, Oxford, 1846; graduated B.A. (double first-class) 1850, M.A. 1853; was ordained deacon 1852, priest 1855; tutor of Christ Church (classical), 1858; public examiner for honors in mathematics (1855), in classics (1862-63), and in modern history (twice); select reader, Oxford, 1863-64; censor of Christ Church, 1863; Oxford Whitehall preacher, 1866-67; lecturer and tutor in history, Christ Church, 1870-83; examining chaplain to the late bishop of Chester, 1865-84; censor of non-collegiate students, Oxford, 1888-83; became dean, 1883. In theology he is "moderate and liberal." He has edited Bacon's Novum Organum (Latin text and English translation, with notes), Oxford, 1855, 2 vols.; Bacon's Advance of Learning, London, 1867; Spencer's Fuses, Books 2 and 3, Oxford, 1866-69; compiled Catalogue of M.S.s. in the Library of Christ Church, Oxford, 1887; translated Brachet's Grammar of the French Tongue, 1869, 5th ed. 1884; Brachet's Etymological Dictionary of the French Language.
 Tongue, 1873, 3d ed. 1883; is author of A History of France down to the Year 1789, 1873-77, 3 vols., 3d ed. 1884; A Memoir of Pope Pius II. (written for the Arundel Society, to accompany their issue of the frescos by Pinturicchio in the libraries at Siena), 1881.

KNOX, Charles Eugene, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1874), Presbyterian; b. at Knoxboro, N.Y., Dec. 27, 1853; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1856, and at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1859; was tutor in Hamilton College, 1859-60; pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Port Jervis, N.Y., 1860-62; pastor (Presbyterian), Bloomfield, N.J., 1864-73; president of the German Theological School, Newark, N.J., since 1873. He is the author of A Year with St. Paul, New York, 1863; a series of graded Sunday-school text-books, 1864-70; Love to the End, 1866; David the King, 1874.

KNOX, Charles Eugene, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1874), Presbyterian; b. at Knoxboro, N.Y., Dec. 27, 1853; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1856, and at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1859; was tutor in Hamilton College, 1859-60; pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Port Jervis, N.Y., 1860-62; pastor (Presbyterian), Bloomfield, N.J., 1864-73; president of the German Theological School, Newark, N.J., since 1873. He is the author of A Year with St. Paul, New York, 1863; a series of graded Sunday-school text-books, 1864-70; Love to the End, 1866; David the King, 1874.
KNOX, Right Rev. Robert Bent, D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1849). Lord bishop of Down, Connor, and Dromore, Church of Ireland; b. in Ireland, in the year 1808; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; graduated B.A. 1829, M.A. 1834, D.D. 1849; was chancellor of Arild, 1834—41; professor of dogmatics in Limerick Cathedral, 1841—49; became bishop, 1849; primate, and archbishop of Armagh, 1886.

KOBÉR, Franz, Lic. Theol. (Tübingen, 1856), D.D. (Tübingen, 1857), Roman Catholic; b. at Warthhausen, near Biberach, Germany, March 6, 1821; studied theology and philosophy at Tübingen; became priest there, 1845; and successively in its university, repetent to the Wilhelmsstift (1846), privat-dozent of pedagogics, didactics, and the exegesis of the N. T. Epistles (1851), professor extraordinary (1853), ordinary professor of church law, pedagogics, and the exegesis of the Epistles (1853), the author of Der Kirchenbann nach den Grundstücken des kanonischen Rechts, Tübingen, 1857, 2d ed. 1903; Die Suspension der Kirchendiener, 1862; Die Deposition und Degradation, 1867.

KÖGEL, Rudolf, D.D., German Protestant theologian; b. at Birnbaum, Posen, Feb. 18, 1829; studied at Breslau, 1855—65, and in England, 1856; became pastor at The Hague, 1857—63, and since court preacher at Berlin; and since 1860 general superintendent of the Kurmark. He is the author of commentaries on First Peter (Mainz, 1863, 2d ed. Berlin, 1872) and Romans (1876, 2d ed. 1883); Aus dem Vorhof ins Heiligthum (sermons), Bremen, 1874—77; 2 vols., 2d ed. 1875—80. Since 1890 he has, with W. Baur and E. Frommel, edited Neue Christoterre.

KOHLEHR, August, Ph.D. (Jena, 1859), Lic. Theol. (Erlangen, 1857), D.D. (Erlangen, 1864), Roman Catholic; b. at Schneidemburg, Rheinpfalz, Germany, Feb. 8, 1835; educated at Bonn, Erlangen, and Utrecht, 1851—55; made a scientific journey in Holland, 1856; became privat-dozent at Erlangen, 1857; professor extraordinary of theology, 1862; ordinary professor at Jena 1864, at Bonn 1866, at Erlangen 1868. He is the author of Das merzändische reformierte Kriche, Erlangen, 1856 (Dutch trans, De Nederlandsche Kerk, Amsterdam, 1857); Principiu doctrine de regeneratione in novo testamento obviet, 1857; Die nachezelischen Propheten erklärt, 1860—65, 4 parts; Commentatio de ac pronunciatione sacroscripti Tetragrammaticis, 1857; Lehrbuch der biblischen Geschichts altentestamentes (down to the disruption of the kingdom), 1st vol., 2d vol. 1st pt., 1875—84; Über die Grundansoehungen des Buch Koheleth, 1883; Über die Berichtigung der Lutherischen Bibelübersetzung, 1888; numerous articles in theological periodicals, etc.

KOLESNÍC, Arthur, D.D. (Breslau, Germany, 1873), Roman Catholic; b. at Neisse, Germany, June 4, 1843; studied at Breslau 1861—65, and in the episcopal priests’ seminary there 1866—67; became priest, 1867; teacher of religion in the Gross Glogau gymnasium, soon after in the Realschule at Neisse (1868); chief teacher in the latter, 1880; ordinary professor of dogmatics in the university of Breslau, Germany, 1882. He is the author of Das Kalendarium des Breslauer Kreuzstiftes (in the Zeitschrift für Geschichts u. Alterthumer Schlesiens, 1866), Die Echtheit der Apostelgeschichte, Breslau, 1867; Das Zeusnx der Natur für Gottes Dasein, Freiburg-im-B., 1870 (Hungarian trans., Caloces, 1871, 2d ed. Pesth, 1872); Die Bibel und die Sklaverei (Programm der Neisser Realsschule, 1874); Lehrbuch für den katholischen Religionsunterricht in den oberen Klassen der Gymnasien und Realschulen, Freiburg-im-B., 1879, 4th ed. 1883; Handbuch für den katholischen Religionsunterricht in den mittleren Klassen der Gymnasien und Realschulen, 1881; articles in the homiletical monthly, St. Hedwigblatt, Breslau, etc.

KÖNIG, Friedrich Eduard, Ph.D., Lic. Theol. (both Leipzig, 1872 and 1879), German Protestant; b. at Reichenbach, Saxony, Nov. 15, 1846; studied at Leipzig, 1867—71; became privat-dozent there, 1879; professor extraordinary of theology, 1885. His theological standpoint is that of a be, liever in revelation. He is the author of Gelehrte Laut und Accent, als die drei Faktoren der Sprachbildung, comparativ und physiologisch am Hebräischen dargestellt, Verlag, 1874; Neue Studien über Schrift, Aussprache und allgemeine Formenlehre des Aethiopischen, Leipzig, 1877; De critica sacre argumento e lingue legibus repetito, 1879; Historisch-kritisches Lehrgebäude der Hebräischen Sprache, 1. Theil, 1881; Der Giffenbarungsbegriff des Allen Testaments, 1882; Die Hauptsprobleme des Alterthümers der Religionsgeschichte, 1884 (English trans., The Religious History of Israel, Edinburgh, 1885); Falsche Extreeme in der neueren Kritik des Allen Testaments, 1885.

KÖNIG, Joseph, D.D. (Freiburg-im-B., 1840), Roman Catholic; b. at Hausen-on-the-Aach, Germany, Sept. 7, 1819; studied philosophy and theology at Freiburg-im-B.; became priest and repetent in the theological convicte there, 1845; and successively in this university, privat-dozent (1847), professor extraordinary (1854), ordinary professor of Old-Testament literature (1857). He is the author of Die Theologie der Psalmen, Freiburg-im-B., 1857; Das alttestamentl. Königthum, 1863; Das Ätze u. die Entwieklung des Pentateuchs, 1884; Beiträge zur Geschichte der theologischen Facultät in Freiburg am Schlusse des vorigen und im Beginne des jetzigen Jahrhunderts, 1884.

KOESSING, Friedrich, Roman Catholic; b. at Memminghausen, Germany, Feb. 15, 1825; was chief teacher at Donaueschingen, 1851; in the lyceum at Heidelberg, 1853; professor of moral theology and theological encyclopedia at Freiburg-im-B., 1863. He is the author of De suprema Christi causa, Heidelberg, 1858; Das christ. Gesetz, 1862.

KÖSTLIN, Julius Theodor, Ph.D., Lic. Theol. (both Tübingen, 1855), D.D. (hon., Göttingen, 1880), LL.D. (hon., Marburg, 1883); b. at Stuttgart, May 17, 1826; studied in Tübingen 1844—48, and Berlin 1849—50; became repetent in the evangelical seminary in Tübingen, 1850; professor extraordinary, especially of New-Testament theology, and university preacher, in Göttingen, 1855; ordinary professor, especially of systematic theology, at Breslau 1860, at Halle 1870; since 1883 consistorial councillor, and since 1877 member of the Magdebod curistsy. His theological standpoint is that of an all-critical one, a new German theology, with critical reference to the biblical revelation and the facts of the moral and religious Christian consciousness, and effort after the union of the Lutheran and Reformed confessions. He studied Presbyterianism in Scot-KOLDE, Theodor (Hermann Friedrich), Ph.D. (Halle, 1874), Lic. Theol. (Marburg, 1876), D.D. (hon., Marburg, 1881), German Protestant theologian; b. at Baden, Ed I., 1836; studied at Heidelberg (1855—56), Marburg (1856—57), and Zürich (1857—58); passed the state theological examination, 1858; served as private tutor to the Rev. Mr. V., 1858—59; passed the theological examination, 1859; became pastor of Stettfurt, Canton Thurgau, Switzerland, March 19, 1860; was ordained priest, 1861; became privat-docentin church history, 1865; professor extraordinary, 1869; ordinary professor of church history at Erlangen, 1881. He is a pupil of Hermann Reuter's. He is the author of Der Kanzler Briick u. seine Bedeutung für die Entwicklung der Reformation, 1878; De visione beati Petri, 1879; Kunst und Alterthum in Elsas-Lothringen, Strassburg, 1876—87, 3 vols.; Gedächtnissrede auf Joh. Alzog, Freiburg, 1879; Synchronistische Tabellen zur christlichen Kirchengeschichte, 1880; Realencyclopädie der christlichen Alterthümer, 1880—86, 2 vols.; Ludwig Spach, Strassburg, 1890; Miniatures des Codex Ezébius zu Trier, Freiburg, 1884; Die Wandgemälde in Oberzell auf der Reichsacht, 1884; Die Kunstdenkmäler des Grossherzogthums Baden, Bd. I., 1887. He edited the 10th edition of Alzog's Handbuch der allgemeinen Kirchengeschichte, Mainz, 1892, 2 vols.; and Lettere di Benedetto X., 1884, and has contributed to numerous periodicals.

KRAUSS, Alfred (Eduard), Lic. Theol. (Basel, 1866), D.D. (hon., Basel, 1885), Reformed; b. at Rheineck, Canton St. Gallen, Switzerland, March 19, 1839; studied at Heidelberg (1855—56), Halle (1856—57), and Zürich (1857—58); passed the state theological examination, 1858; served as private tutor, 1858—59; became pastor of Stettfurt, Canton Thurgau, Switzerland, 1859; professor extraordinary at Marburg, 1870; ordinary professor, 1871; at Strassburg, 1873. He belongs to the school of Schleiermacher. He lectures upon comparative symbols, dogmatics, ethics, homiletics, catechetics, pastoral theology, liturgics, practical exegesis, and conducts a homiletical and catechetical seminar. He is the author of Die Lehre von der Offenbarung, ein Beitrag zur Philosophie des Christenthums, 1875; Predigt über die Pfingstereignisse des Jahres, Strassburg, 1874; Das protestantische Dogma von der unsichtbaren Kirche, Gotha, 1876; Leibruck der Homiletie, 1883; various articles upon doctrinal and practical theology in different Swiss and German periodicals.

KRAUTZCKY, Adam, D.D. (Munich, 1865), Roman Catholic; b. at Neustadt, Upper Silesia, March 2, 1842; studied in the universities of Breslau (1860—82), Tübingen (1863—84), and Munich (1864), and in the priest-seminary in Breslau (1864—65), and was ordained priest in 1865. He became sub-regens in the seminary, and priest-docent in the university of Breslau, 1868; on April 1, 1885, he was appointed professor extraordinary of theology. He is the author of Zählung u. Ordnung d. hl. Sacramente in ihrer geschichtlichen Entwicklung, Breslau, 1865 (pp. 60); De visione beatica in Benedicti XII. constitutionem "Benedictus Deus" commentatio historica, 1869 (pp. 40); Petrische Studien, 1872; "Des Beilarm in kleinen Katechismus mit Kommentar, 1873; essays in periodicals, especially Ueber die Bedeutung d. "Aufdrucks Mensechson (in Tübinger Theol. Quartalschrift, 1889, pp. 600—652); Uber das allkirchliche Unterrichtsbuch "Die zwei Wege" (do., LAGARDE, Paul Anthony de, Ph.D. (Berlin, 1848), Lic. Theol. (hon., Erlangen, 1851), D.D. (hon., Halle, 1869), German Protestant; b. in Berlin, Nov. 2, 1827; studied in Berlin University from Easter, 1844, to Easter, 1846, and in Halle from Easter, 1846, to Easter, 1847; taught in schools in Berlin from Easter, 1856, to Easter, 1868; and since Easter, 1869, has been professor of Oriental languages at Göttingen. "He accepts nothing but what is proved, but accepts every thing that has been proved." He is the author of the following works: Didascalia apostolorum syriacae, 1854; Zur urgeschichte der Armentier, 1854; Reliquiae fisci ecclesiastici antiquissima syriacae, 1856, graece, 1856; Analecta Syriaca, 1858; Appendix arabica, 1858; Hippolyti romani qui furantur omnia graece, 1858; Titii bostrenici contra Manichoeos libri quatuor syriacae, 1859; Titii bostrenici qui operae contra Manichoeos in cod. hamburgeni servata sunt graece accedunt Iulii romani epistulae et Gregorii Thaumaturgi sararum graece, 1859; Geoponicon in sermonem syriacum versorum qua supersunt, 1860; Clementis romanii recogniciones syriacae, 1861; Libri V. T. apostrophysi syriacae, 1861; Constitutiones apostolorum graece, 1862; Anmerkungen zur griechischen übersetzung der Proverben, 1863; Die vier evangelien arabisch aus der Wiener handschrift herausgegeben, 1864; Josephi Scaligerti poema omnia ex museo Petri Scribneri, 1864; Clementina, 1864; Gesammelte abhandlungen, 1866; Der pentateuch koptisch, 1867; V. T. ab Origene recognitionem graece, 1867; Prima et secunda libri Syriacae der alphabetiurium versorum quarum qua supersunt, 1868; Hieronymi questiones hebraice in libro Genesae, 1868; Beitrag zur bairischen lexicographie, 1859; Onomastica sacra, 1870; Prophetiae chaldaicae, 1872; Hagiographia chaldaica, 1874; Psalterium insulae Hierosolymitae, 1874; Psalms 1—49 in usum scholarum arab., 1875; Psalterii versio nephrimtica, etc., 1875; Psalterium jubaeum arabische, 1876; Armenische studien, 1877; Symmicta, 1. 1877, II. 1880; Semitica, 1. 1878, II. 1879; Deutsche Schriften, 1878—80; Prateinusorum libri duo syriacae, 1879; Orientalia, 1. 1879, II. 1880; Aus dem deutschen gelehrten, 1881; Die lateinischen übersetzung des Ignatius, 1882; Ankündigung einer neuen ausgabe der griechischen übersetzung des alten testaments, 1882; Ignatii antiocheni qui sunt furantur graece. Sapienti uraque et Psalterium latinae. Beschreibung des in Granada üblich genossen dialects der arabischen sprache. Ioahannis Euchaldorums metropolitan quo in codice vaticanico graeco 676 superatus Johannes Bollig descripsit, 1882; Iudaei Hariziis macaram hebraice, 1883; Egyptianca, 1883; Librorum V. T. P. I. grace, 1883; Isaias persicae, 1883; Programm für die konursive Partie Precusae, 1884; Persische studien, 1884; Mittheilungen, 1884; Probe einer neuen ausgabe der lateinischen übersetzung des alten Test. L. LADD.
LAILDLAW, John, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1880), Free Church of Scotland; b. in Edinburgh, April 7, 1832; graduated as M.A. at Edinburgh University, 1855; studied theology in Reformed Presbyterian Divinity Hall, Glasgow, and then in New College (the Free Church College), Edinburgh; became Free Church minister at Ottano, 1866; successively minister of the East Parish, Aberfeldy; commissioner of systematic theology, New College, Edinburgh, 1881. He is the author of The Bible Doctrine of Man (Cunningham Lectures), Edinburgh, 1879; and editor of Memorials of the Late Rev. John Hamilton, Glasgow, 1881.

LAKE, Very Rev. William Charles, D.D. (Durham, 1882), dean of Durham, Church of England; b. in England, in January of the year 1817; was scholar at Balliol College, Oxford, 1834; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1838, M.A. 1841; obtained the Latin essay, 1840; was ordained deacon 1842, priest 1844; fellow and tutor of his college, a professor and university preacher, public examiner in classics and in modern history, 1853-54; preacher at the Chapel Royal, Whitehall; commissioner of army education 1856, and of popular education 1858; rector of Huntley, Norfolk, 1858-69; prebendary of Combe the 10th in Wells Cathedral, 1860-69; became dean of Durham, 1869.

LANG, John Marshall, D.D. (Glasgow, 1874), Church of Scotland; b. in the manse of Glassford, Lanarkshire, May 14, 1834; graduated at the University of Glasgow (prizeman in theology and philosophy, and historical medallist), 1856; was successively minister of the East Parish, Aberdeen, 1856; Fyvie Parish, Aberdeen, 1858; Anderston Church, Glasgow, 1865; Morningside Parish, Edinburgh, 1868; and since January, 1873, of the Barony Parish, Glasgow. He was associated with the earlier movements in the Church of Scotland, for improvement in modes of worship; was appointed in 1871 his colleague (as a professor and university preacher) of the Rev. Dr. Frederick William Krummacher, his professorship of theology in the University of Bonn. In 1860 he became consistorialraith. He labored incessantly as academic teacher and writer, and retained his faculties to the end. He ceased to lecture five days before his death. An American student (Bossard) to whom he showed great kindness, and who informed me of the fact, called, and found him suffering from a cold, but perceiving his end of nearness, and left a large and interesting constituted, a benignant face, and bright eye circumstances, and left a large and interesting family. He was simple in his tastes and habits, of unblemished character, genial, agreeable, full of kindness, wit, and humor, and even in his old age fully alive to all the religious, literary, and social questions of the day. He was at once a LANGE, Johann Peter, D.D., United Evangelical; b. on the Bier, a small farm in the parish of Sonborn, near Bonn, Prussia, April 10, 1862; d. at Bonn, July 8, 1884. His father was a farmer and wagoner, and brought his son up in the same occupations, but allowed him at the same time to indulge his passion for reading. He was instructed in the Heidelberg Catechism, which is still used in the Reformed congregations of Prussia, although having been included in the Lutheran under the name of the United Evangelical Church. His Latin teacher, the Rev. Hermann Kalthof, who discovered in him unusual talents, induced him to study theology. He attended the gymnasium at Düsseldorf, from Easter, 1821, till autumn, 1822; and the University of Bonn, where he was particularly influenced by Professor Nitzsch, from 1822 till 1825. For a year after leaving the university he was at Langenbergen, near Elberfeld, as assistant minister to the Rev. Emil Krummacher (brother of the celebrated Rev. Dr. Frederick William Krummacher), 1825-26; then became successively Reformed pastor of Wald, near Solingen, 1826; of Langenberg, 1828; and of Duisburg, 1832. While at Duisburg, he attracted attention by his brilliant articles in Hengstenberg's Evangelische Kirchenzeitung and other periodicals, by his poems, and by his able work upon the history of the Saviour's infancy (see below) in refutation of Strauss. In 1841, after Strauss had been prevented from taking his professorship of theology in the University of Zürich, Dr. Lange was called to the position. Here he elaborated his Life of Jesus (1844-47, see below), which is a positive refutation of the famous work of Strauss, and had a wide circulation in German and English, and a marked effect upon the large subsequent literature on the subject. He remained in Zürich until 1854, when he was called to a professorial chair in the University of Bonn. In 1860 he became consistorialraith. He labored incessantly as academic teacher and writer, and retained his faculties to the end. He ceased to lecture five days before his death. An American student (Bossard) to whom he showed great kindness, and who informed me of the fact, called, and found him suffering from a cold, but reading and writing as usual, and full of animation and pleasant humor. Even a day before his death, he spoke of the beautiful summer and the beautiful Rhine, and hoped to resume his lectures shortly. "I never saw Lange appear happier than on this day; his eyes were brighter than ever, his countenance was serene, he was all kindness and friendliness, and seemed at peace with the whole world." On the 8th of July he arose as usual, spent the morning among his books, and after dinner, while his daughter went down-stairs to get him his cup of coffee, he quietly fell asleep in his arm-chair, to awake no more on earth.

Dr. Lange was small of stature, had a strong constitution, a benignant face, and bright eye which retained its strength to the last. He was twice happily married, lived in comfortable circumstances, and left a large and interesting family. He was simple in his tastes and habits, of unblemished character, genial, agreeable, full of kindness, wit, and humor, and even in his old age fully alive to all the religious, literary, and social questions of the day. He was at once a LANGWORTHY, Isaac Pendleton, D.D. (Iowa College, Grinnell, i0, 1878), Congregationalist; b. at Stonington (now North Stonington), Conn., Jan. 19, 1806; educated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1829, and at Yale Theological Seminary 1841; became pastor at Chelsea, Mass., 1841; corresponding secretary of the American Congregational Union, New York, 1868; corresponding secretary of the American Congregational Association, Boston, 1899. He inaugurated the church-building work of the American Congregational poet and a theologian, teeming with new ideas, often fanciful, but always interesting and suggestive. He indulged in postico-philosophical speculations, and sometimes soared high above the clouds. He was one of the most original and fertile theological authors of the nineteenth century. His theology is biblical and evangelical catholic. His most useful publication is his 'Religion of the Christian during the Life of Jesus,' which has probably a larger circulation in Germany and America than any commentary of the same school and is especially helpful to ministers. He organized the plan, engaged about twenty contributors, and commented himself on Matthew, Mark, John, Romans, Revelation, Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi, giving original and brilliant homiletical hints.

He was the author of Die Lehre der heiligen Schrift von der freien und allgemeinen Gnade Gottes, Elberfeld, 1851; Biblische Dichtungen, 1832-34, 2 vols.; Zehn Predigten, 1833; Kleine polemische Gedichte, Duisburg, 1835; Gedichte und Sprüche aus dem Leben christlicher Naturbetrachtung, 1835; Die Weisheit und Herrlichkeit des Heidenbrautgesang, Essen, 1833; Über den geschäftlichen Charakter der kanonischen Evangelien, insbesondere der Kindheitsgeschichte Jesu, mit Beziehung auf das Leben Jesu von D. F. Strauss, Duisburg, 1838; Das Land der Herrlichkeit, oder die christliche Lehre vom Himmel Meurs, 1839; Die Verständigung der Welt, dargestellt in einem Cylkus von Lehrgedichten and Liedern, Berlin, 1838; Grundzüge der unchristlichen freien Botschaft, Duisburg, 1839; Homilien über Col. iii. 1-17. Eine praktische Auslegung dieses apostolischen Aufrufs zum neuen Leben, Barmen, 1839, 4th ed. 1844; Vermischte Schriften, Meurs, 1840-41, 4 vols.; neue series, Bielefeld, 1860-64, 3 vols.; Christliche Betrachtungen über zusammenhängende biblische Ab- schnitte, für die häusliche Erbauung, Duisburg, 1914; Welche Geltung gehört der Eigenthümlichkeit der reformirten Kirche immer noch in der wissenschaftlichen Glaubenslehre unserer Zeit? Eine Abhandlung als freie Uberarbeitung seiner Amtrittsrede, Zürich, 1843; Die Kirchensongsprache, praktische Abtheilung, 1843; Die kirchliche Hymnologie, oder die Lehre vom Kirchengesang, theoretische Abtheilung, 1843. Einleitung in das deutsche Kirchenliederbuch, 1848 (these two books were reprinted in the form of one work, under the title 'Geistliches Liederbuch,' 1854); Gedichte, Essen, 1843; Die Lehre Jesu nach den Evangelien, Heidelberg (Book 1, 1844; Book 2, 3 parts, 1844-46; Book 3, 1847; English translation, Edinburgh, 1845, in 6 vols., new ed. Philadelphia, 1872); Worte der Abwehr (in Beziehung auf das Leben Jesu), Zürich, 1844; Ueber die Neugestaltung des Verhältnisses zwischen dem Staat und Kirche, Heidelberg, 1848; Christliche Dogmatik, Heidelberg, 1849-50, 3 parts (i. Philosophical Dogmaties; ii. Positive Dogmaties; iii. Dogmaties and Ireneis); Neuestamentliche Zeitgedichte, Frankfurt-am-Main, 1849; Brief eines kommunistischen Propheten, Breslau, 1850; Goethes romantische Poetik, 1850; Auseinandersetzung mit der Kirchenherrschafft, Brunswick, 1853-54 (1. Theil, 'Das apostolische Zeitalter, 2 vols.); Von Oelberge. Geistliche Dichtungen, Frankfurt-am-Main, 1853, 2d ed. 1858; Auswahl von Gast- und Gelegenheits-Predigten aus meinem Zürcherischen Lebensjahren, Bonn, 1855, 2d ed. 1857; edited (and contributed commentaries on Matthew, Mark, John, Romans, James (critical LEATHES, James, D.D. (Theology, University of Cambridge, 1848); teacher of Latin and geology in the Genesee Wesleyan Seminary, Lima, N.Y., 1849; principal of seminary, Northfield, N.H., 1851; principal of Fort Plain Seminary, 1852; published 180000 words in languages in Elmira (N.Y.) Female College, 1859; pastor of the First Methodist-Episcopal Church, Elmira, 1861-62; of the Asbury Church, Rochester, N.Y., 1863-64; of the First Church, Rochester, 1865-67; in Europe, 1868; pastor at Penn Yan, N.Y., 1869; professor of historic theology in the school of theology of Boston University, Mass., 1870-74; dean and professor of systematic theology in said school, 1874-84. He published only review articles and occasional sermons.

LAWRENCE, William, Episcopalian; b. in Boston, May 30, 1850; graduated from Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., 1871, and from the Episcopal Theological School of Cambridge, Mass.; rector in Lawrence, Mass., 1878-83; and since then professor of homiletics and pastoral care in the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass.

LAWSON, Albert Gallatin, D.D. (Madison University, Hamilton, N.Y., 1883). Baptist; b. at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., June 5, 1842; studied in New-York Free Academy (now College of the City of New York), 1856-59, and in Madison University, Hamilton, N.Y., 1859-60, but did not graduate; became pastor of First Baptist Church, Perth Amboy, N.J., 1862; at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., 1866; of the Greenwood Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1867; secretary of the American Baptist Missionary Union, Boston, Mass., 1884. He was clerk of the Long-Island Baptist Association, 1870-84; was active on the boards of the Brooklyn Young Men's Christian Association, and of the National Temperance and Publication Society. Besides addresses and sermons, he has written for the National Temperance Society a number of widely circulated temperance leaflets, principal of which are The Threefold Cord (1874), and Methods of Church Temperance Work (1877).
LECHLER. 126

LEGOE.

upon the Ten Commandments, 1852; The Characteristics of Christianity, 1853; Christ and the Bible, 1857; and he also wrote the commentary upon Daniel, the Minor Prophets, and the New Testament, to the commentary published by Eyre and Spottiswoode.

LECHLER, Gotthard Victor, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1840). D.D. (kon., Göttingen, 1858). German Lutheran, b. at Kloster Reichenbach, Württemberg, April 18, 1811; studied at Tübingen, 1829-34; became diakonus at Waiblingen, Württemberg, 1841; dean and city pastor at Knittlingen, Württemberg, 1853; pastor of St. Thomas's and superintendent at Leipzig, 1858; emeritus, 1886; has been since 1858 professor of theology in the University of Leipzig, and since 1860 Geheimer Kirchenrat. He is the author of Geschichte des Engischen Deismus, Stuttgart, 1841; Das apostolische und das nachapostolische Zeitalter, mit Rücksicht auf Unterschied und Einheit in Lehre und Leben dargestellt (the Teyler prize essay), Haarlem, 1851 (3d ed., thoroughly revised and re-written, Karlsruhe and Leipzig, 1883); Der Kirchenstaat und die Opposition gegen den päpstlichen Absolutismus im Anfange des 16. Jahrhunderts, 1870; Johann von Wiclif und die Vorgeschichte der Reformation, 1873, 2 vols. (Eng. trans, of vol. I. by Principal Lorimer, John Wyclif and his English Precursors, London, 1878, 2 vols.); contributor of commentary on Acts in Lange's Bibelwerk, Bielefeld, 1859, 4th ed. 1881 (Eng. trans. by C. F. Schaeffer, D.D., in the American Lange series, N.Y., 1890); editor of Wiclif's Tractatus de officio pastorali (Leipzig, 1853); Triatogus, and Supplementum Triatogus sive de dioce- sitate ecclesiae (Oxford, 1860); and, with Dibelius, of Beiträge zur säckischen Kirchengeschichte, Leipzig (part 1, 1882; part 2, 1883; part 3, 1885).

LEE, Right Rev. Alfred, S.T.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., and Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1841; Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1860), LL.D. (Delaware College, Newark, Del., 1877), Episcopalian, bishop of Delaware and presiding bishop; b. at Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 9, 1807; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1827; studied law, and practised two years in Norwich, Conn.; graduated at the General Theological Seminary, New York City, 1837; was rector of Calvary, Rockdale, Penn., until his elevation to the episcopate, Oct. 12, 1841; became presiding bishop on death of Bishop B. B. Smith, May 31, 1884. He is a moderate Episcopalian. He was a member of the New Testament Revision Company, 1870-71. Besides charges, addresses, etc., he has written Life of the Apostle Peter, New York, 1852; The Beloved Disciple, 1854; Life of Suan Allibone, Philadelphia, 1855; The Voice in the Wilderness, New York, 1857; Co-operative Revision of the New Testament, 1861; Eventful Nights in Bible History, 1868;

LEWIS, Right Rev. Richard, D.D. (by diploma, 1883), lord bishop of Llandaff, Church of England; b. in Wales, in the year 1821; was scholar of Worcester College, Oxford; honorary fourth-class classics, 1842; graduated B.A. 1843, M.A. 1846; was ordained deacon 1844, priest 1846; rector of Lampeter Velfry, 1851-83; prebendary of the American Sabbath Tract Society, Westerly, R.I., 1884-85; in New-York City, 1867-68; since 1868 pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist Church, Westerly, R.I., 1884-57; in New-York City, 1867-68; since 1868 professor of church history and homiletics in Alfred University; general agent of the American Sabbath Tract Society, 1869-72; pastor at Plainfield, N.J., since 1880. He was president of the New-Jersey State Sunday-school Association, 1881-82. He is the author of Sabbath and Sunday, Alfred Centre, N.Y., 1870; Biblical Teachings concerning the Sabbath and the Sunday, 1884; Critical History of the Sabbath and the Sunday in the Christian Church, 1886, 2 vols. *LEWIS, Abram Herbert, D.D. (Alfred University, Alfred Centre, N.Y., 1881), Seventh-day Baptist; b. at Scott, Cortland County, N.Y., Nov. 17, 1836; graduated at Milton College, Milton, Wis., 1861, and at Alfred University, Alfred Centre, N.Y., 1863; took post-graduate lectures at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1868; was pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist Church, Westerly, R.I., 1864-57; in New-York City, 1867-68; since 1869 professor of church history and homiletics in Alfred University; general agent of the American Sabbath Tract Society, 1869-72; pastor at Plainfield, N.J., since 1880. He was president of the New-Jersey State Sunday-school Association, 1881-82. He is the author of Sabbath and Sunday, Alfred Centre, N.Y., 1870; Biblical Teachings concerning the Sabbath and the Sunday, 1884; Critical History of the Sabbath and the Sunday in the Christian Church, 1886, 2 vols. *
LIAS, John James, Church of England; b. in London, Nov. 30, 1834; studied at King's College, London, 1830-53, and was scholar of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, where he graduated as B.A. 1857, M.A. 1861; was ordained deacon 1858, priest 1860; was curate of Shaftesbury 1858-60, of Folkestone 1866-67; vicar of Albury, Herk, 1867-82; vicar of Llandaff, 1868-71; professor of modern literature, and lecturer in theology and Hebrew, at St. David's College, Lampeter, 1871-80; select preacher at Cambridge, 1876 and 1880; Hulsean lecturer there, 1884; Lady Margaret's preacher, 1884; Whitehall preacher, 1884-86; since 1890 has been vicar of St. Edmund's, Cambridge. He is the author of The Rector and his Friends: Dialogues on the Religious Questions of the Day, London, 1869; The Doctrinal System of St. John considered as Evidence for the Date of his Gospel, 1875; Commentary on First Corinthians (in Cambridge Bible for Schools), Cambridge, 1870; do. on Second Corinthians, 1879; Sermons preached at Lampeter, St. David's College, London, 1880; Commentary on Joshua (in Pulpit Commentary), 1881; Commentary on Judges (in Cambridge Bible for Schools), Cambridge, 1882; The Atoneinent in the Light of Certain Modern Difficulties (Hulsean Lectures), 1887, reprinted, 1894; The Resurrection, 1885, 2 vols. He has edited Bishop Andrews' Manual for the Sick, 1880, 4th ed. 1888; Pusey's Prayers for a Young Schoolboy (1883, 2d ed. 1884), and Private Prayers (1883, 2d ed. 1884); Antonio Rosmini's Of the Five Wounds of the Church (trans. from Italian) 1889.

LIGHTFOOT, Right Rev. Joseph Barber, D.D. (Cambridge, 1834; Durham, 1879), D.C.L. (Oxford, 1879), LL.D. (Glasgow, 1879), lord bishop of Durham, Church of England; b. at Liverpool, April 13, 1828; entered Trinity College, Cambridge; obtained a scholarship in 1849; graduated B.A. (wrangler, senior classic, and senior medalist) 1851, M.A. 1854; elected fellow of his college, 1859; in 1853 he was Norrissian prizeman. He was ordained deacon in 1854, and priest in 1858. In 1857 he was appointed tutor in his college; in 1858 was select preacher to the University of Cambridge; in 1861 became chaplain to the late Prince Consort, and Hulsean professor of divinity at Cambridge; in 1862, examining chaplain to the bishop of London (Dr. Tait), and honorary chaplain in ordinary to the Queen; in 1866 and 1867 was Whitehall preacher. In 1860, Dr. Tait being elevated to the see of Canterbury, he became one of his examining chaplains, and remained so until 1879. From 1871 to 1879 he was canon residiency of St. Paul's Cathedral, London; in 1874 and 1875 he was select preacher at Oxford. In 1875 he resigned his Hulsean professorship, and became Lady Margaret professor of divinity, Cambridge, and in the same year his works were presented to her Majesty. In 1879 he was recommended by the Earl of Beaconsfield to the then vacant see of Durham, and was consecrated bishop in Westminster Abbey. His remarkable scholarship is shown in his commentaries on Galatians (London, 1865, 5th ed. 1894), Philippians (1868, 7th ed. 1883), Colossians, and Philemon (1875, 8th ed. 1886), and on the Apostolic Fathers, S. Clement of Rome (1869; appendix volume, containing the complete second epistle discovered by Bryennios, 1877), S. Ignatius, and S. Polycarp (1855, 2 vols.). Each of these commentaries contains a revised Greek text, introductory notes, and dissertations. The last is a peculiar feature of great interest and value. Dr. Lightfoot was one of the original members of the New Testament Company of Bible Revisers, and wrote On a Fresh Revision of the English New Testament, 1871, 2d ed. 1872 (republished, with permission, by Dr. Schaff, N.Y. 1873).
LITTLEJOHN, Right Rev. Abram Newkirk, D.D. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1855), LL.D. (University of Cambridge, Eng., 1876); b. at Waterbury, Vt., April 7, 1838; graduated in the School of Theology, Boston University, Boston, Mass., 1860, and has since been a pastor in various towns of New York, Vermont, and New Jersey. He is the author of Biblical Lights and Side Lights, New York, 1883, 2d ed. 1884 (each two thousand copies); Historical Lights, 1888.

LITTLEDALE, Richard Frederick, LL.D. (Dublin, 1862), D.C.L. (Oxford, 1862), Church of England; b. in Dublin, Sept. 14, 1833; graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, B.A. (first-class in classics) 1854, M.A. 1858, LL.D. 1862. In 1855 he won the second biblical Greek prize, and the first Berkeley gold medal, and a first divinity testimonium in 1856. He was a London curate from 1856 to 1861; but, being compelled by ill health to abandon parochial work, he has devoted himself to religious literature, and been a voluminous writer. As an opponent of the Church of Rome, he has attracted much attention. Among his works may be mentioned, Religious Communities of Women in the Hermetic Literature, London, 1862, 2 editions; Offices of the Holy Eastern Church; The Mixed Chalice, 1863, 4th ed. 1867; The North Side of the Altar, 1864, 5 editions; Catholic Ritual in the Church of England, 1865, 13 editions; The Elevation of the Host, 1865, 2 editions; Early Christian Ritual, 1867, 2 editions; The Children's Bread: a Communion Office for the Young, 1868, 4 editions; Commentary on the Psalms (in continuation of Dr. Naile's), vol. ii.-iv., 1868-74; Commentary on the Song of Songs, 1869; Religious Education of Women, 1872; At the Old Catholic Congress, 1872; Papers on Sisterhoods, 1874-78; Last Attempt to Reform the Church of Rome from within, 1876; Ultramontane Popular Literature, 1878; An Inner View of the Vatican Council, 1877; Why Ritualists do not become Roman Catholics, 1878; Plain Reasons against Joining the Church of Rome, 1879, 40th thousand 1886. He is contributor to the Encyclopedia Britannica (4th ed.); edited Anselm's Cur Deus Homo? (1863); and shared in editing The Priests' Prayer-Book, 1864, 6th ed. 1884; The People's Hymnal, 1867, 8 editions; Primitive Liturgies and Translations, 1868-69; The Altar Manual, 1877 (45th thousand).

LIPSCOMB, Andrew Adgate, D.D. (University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, 1830; Emory College, Oxford, Ga., 1870), Methodist Protestant; b. at Georgetown, D.C., Sept. 6, 1816; licensed to preach, 1834; united with the Maryland Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, 1833; removed to Montgomery, Ala., 1842; became president of the Alabama Conference; founded the Metropolitan Female College, Methodist-Episcopal Church South, 1850-59; chancellor of the University of Georgia, at Athens, 1860-74; professor of philosophy and criticism in Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., 1875-84. He is the author of Our Country's Danger and Duty (a prize essay), N. Y., 1844; The Social Spirit of Christianity, Phila., 1853; Commentaries, 1856 to 1861; but, being compelled by ill health to abandon parochial work, he has devoted himself to religious literature, and been a voluminous writer. As an opponent of the Church of Rome, he has attracted much attention. Among his works may be mentioned, Religious Communities of Women in the Hermetic Literature, London, 1862, 2 editions; Offices of the Holy Eastern Church, 1863; The Mixed Chalice, 1863, 4th ed. 1867; The North Side of the Altar, 1864, 5 editions; Catholic Ritual in the Church of England, 1865, 13 editions; The Elevation of the Host, 1865, 2 editions; Early Christian Ritual, 1867, 2 editions; The Children's Bread: a Communion Office for the Young, 1868, 4 editions; Commentary on the Psalms (in continuation of Dr. Naile's), vol. ii.-iv., 1868-74; Commentary on the Song of Songs, 1869; Religious Education of Women, 1872; At the Old Catholic Congress, 1872; Papers on Sisterhoods, 1874-78; Last Attempt to Reform the Church of Rome from within, 1876; Ultramontane Popular Literature, 1878; An Inner View of the Vatican Council, 1877; Why Ritualists do not become Roman Catholics, 1878; Plain Reasons against Joining the Church of Rome, 1879, 40th thousand 1886. He is contributor to the Encyclopedia Britannica (4th ed.); edited Anselm's Cur Deus Homo? (1863); and shared in editing The Priests' Prayer-Book, 1864, 6th ed. 1884; The People's Hymnal, 1867, 8 editions; Primitive Liturgies and Translations, 1868-69; The Altar Manual, 1877 (45th thousand).

LIPSIUS, Richard Adelbert, Ph.D., Lic. Theol. (both Leipzig, 1858 and 1854); D.D. (kon., Jena, 1858) b. at Gera, Feb. 14, 1830; studied at Leipzig, 1848-51; became privat-dozent there, 1855; professor extraordinary, 1859; ordinary professor at Vienna 1861, at Kiel 1863, and at Jena 1871, where he is also Geheimer Kirchenrat. As a philosophical adherent of Kant's, and as a theological follower of Schleiermacher's, he seeks, while retaining the religious experience of the Christian communion and of the individual believer. In 1875 he founded, and has ever since edited, the Jahrbücher für protestantische Theologie, and since 1865 has edited the Theologischer Jahresbericht. Besides his numerous writings in periodicals and encyclopaedias, including that of Smith and Wace, he has published De Paulinischen Rechtfertigungskreide, Leipzig, 1853; De Clemenis Romani epistola ad Corinhiou priore disquisitione, 1855; Uber das Verhältniss der drei syrischen Briefe des Ignatius zu den übrigen Recen-
LIVERMORE, 130

LOOMIS. 132

(1880), Episcopal, bishop of Long Island; b. at Florida, Montgomery County, N.Y., Dec. 18, 1824; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1845; studied at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1845-46; became rector of Christ Church, Springfield, Mass., 1850; of St. Paul's, New Haven, Conn., 1851; of Holy Trinity, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1860; bishop, 1869. He lectured on pastoral theology in the Berkeley Divinity School, Middletown, Conn., 1853-58; declined presidency of Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1858, and bishopric of Central New York, 1868. In 1874 he was appointed by the presiding bishop to take charge of the American Episcopal churches on the Continent of Europe. Besides charges, addresses, and occasional sermons, his contributions to current literature embrace critiques, essays, etc., on Philosophy of Religion; The Metaphysics of Coast; The Life and Writings of S. T. Coleridge; The Poetry of Goethe; Sir James Stephen's Lectures on the History of France; Rogers's Eclipse of Faith; The Bible and Common Sense; The Outwardness of Popular Religion; Human Progress dependent on Tradition rather than Invention; Thoughts and Enquiries on the Alt-Catholic Movement; Discourse at the Consecration of St. Paul's Church within the Walls, Rome, Italy; Essay before the Church Congress, New York, 1877; Conciones ad Clerum, 1879-80, 1881; Individualism: its Growth and Tendencies, with some Suggestions as to the Remedy for its Evils, being Sermons preached before the University of Cambridge, Eng., November, 1880, 1881; The Christian Ministry at the Close of the Nineteenth Century, being Lectures before the General Theological Seminary, New York, on the "Bishop Paddock Foundation," 1884.

LIVERMORE, Abel Abbot, A.M., Unitarian; b. at Wilton, N.H., Oct. 30, 1811; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1833, and at the Harvard Divinity School, 1838; was pastor in Keene, N.H. (1838-50), Cincinnati, O. (1850-56), Yonkers, N.Y. (1856-83); editor of The Christian Inquirer, New- ork City, 1856-63; and since 1863 editor of The Christian Examiner, New York. He has written upon subjects connected with Bulgaria, as a mark of personal appreciation, conferred upon him the Cross of Commander of the Order of St. Alexander. He is a corresponding member of the National Literary Society of Bulgaria; in 1884 Prince Alexander of Bulgaria conferred on him the title of Commander of the Romanic ecclesia causa aquae vivi, 1882.

LOOMIS, Augustus Ward, D.D. (Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1873), Presbyterian; b. at An- dover, Conn., Sept. 4, 1816; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1841, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1844; was missionary in China until 1851, and from 1851 to 1858 in Mongolia; was missionary in China; at Matsue, Japan, 1851, and at Matsue, Japan, 1853-55; became principal of the English and Chinese School at Jap, 1857-63; became principal of the Berlin Theological Institution, 1864-69; was pastor in Berlin, Aug. 22, 1855; educated at Bonn, Tubingen, and Berlin; became preacher to the German Church in Florence, Italy, 1880; professor of church history in the University of Berlin, 1885. He is an adherent of the critical school in theology. He is the author of De Augustino Plotinianus in doctrina de den disserente, Halle, 1850; Florenzuer Predigten, 1884; Ernst Moritz Arndt, der deutsche Reichsherold, Gotha, 1884. He has been president of the Meadville (Penn.) Theological Seminary, 1874; became privat-docent of church history in the University of Leipzig, 1882. He is the author of Zur Chronologie der auf die fränkischen Synoden des h. Bonifatius bezüglichen Briefe der bonifazianischen Briefsammlung, Leipzig, 1881; Antiquae Britanniae Scotorumque ecclesiae quales fuerunt mores, que rationes et usus, que controversia cum Romana ecclesia causa aquae vivi, 1882.

LOOSCH, Georg (Carl David), Ph.D. (Jena, 1880), Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1883), German Protestant; b. in Berlin, Aug. 22, 1855; educated at Bonn, Tubingen, and Berlin; became preacher to the German Church in Florence, Italy, 1880; privat-docent in the University of Berlin, 1885. He is an adherent of the critical school in theology. He is the author of De Augustino Plotinianus in doctrina de den disserente, Halle, 1850; Florenzuer Predigten, 1884; Ernst Moritz Arndt, der deutsche Reichsherold, Gotha, 1884. He has been president of the Meadville (Penn.) Theological Seminary, 1874; became privat-docent of church history in the University of Leipzig, 1882. He is the author of Zur Chronologie der auf die fränkischen Synoden des h. Bonifatius bezüglichen Briefe der bonifazianischen Briefsammlung, Leipzig, 1881; Antiquae Britanniae Scotorumque ecclesiae quales fuerunt mores, que rationes et usus, que controversia cum Romana ecclesia causa aquae vivi, 1882.
LOY. 131

LORD, Willis, D.D. (Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1846), LL.D. (University of Wooster, Wooster, O., 1874), Presbyterian; b. at Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 15, 1809; graduated at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1833; studied theology in Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1838—84; became pastor of the Congregational Church of New Hartford, Conn., 1834; of the Richmond-street Congregational Church, Providence, R.I., 1838; of the Penn-square Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, Penn., 1840; of the Broadway Presbyterian Church, Cincinnati, O., and professor of biblical literature and pastoral theology in the theological seminary there, 1850; pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1854; professor of biblical and ecclesiastical history, and then of didactic and polemic theology, in the Theological Seminary of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, 1855, 3d ed. 1882; Missionary Papers, 1882.

LOWRY, Samuel Thompson, D.D. (Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1874), Presbyterian; b. at Pittsburgh, Penn., Feb. 8, 1855; graduated at Miami University, Oxford, O., 1852, and at Western (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1855; took a fourth year; studied two semesters at Heidelberg, Germany; was pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Alexandria, Penn., December, 1858, to April, 1863; then nine months in Europe; pastor of the Bethany Church, near Cincinnati, 1863—70; of the Abington Church, 1869—74; professor of New-Testament exegesis and literature in Western Theological Seminary, 1874—78; from April, 1879, to October, 1888, he was pastor of the Ewing Presbyterian Church, near Trenton, N. J. He assisted Rev. Dr. D. Moore upon Israël in the American Lange series (New York, 1878), and Rev. Dr. A. Gosman upon Numbers in the same series (1879); wrote An Explanation of the Epistle to the Hebrews, 1884; and translated Cremer's (of Greiffswald) Uber den Zustand nach dem Tode, Güttersloh, 1883, under the title Beyond the Grave, 1885.

LOWRY, Robert, D.D. (Lewisburg University, Lewisburg, Penn., 1875), Baptist; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., March 12, 1826; graduated at the head of his class at Lewisburg University, Lewisburg, Penn., 1854; was pastor at West Chester, Penn., 1854—58; in New-York City, 1858—61; in Brooklyn, 1861—69; at Lewisburg, Penn., and professor of classics, 1869—75; pastor at Plainfield, N. J., 1876—85; president of the New-Jersey Baptist Sunday-school Union, 1880—86. He participated in the Robert Raikes centennial, London, 1880; travelled in Europe 1880, in Mexico 1885; was poet before the Grand Arch Council of the Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity, 1885. He is a composer and hymn-writer, and has edited Chapel Melodies, N.Y., 1868; Bright Jewels, 1869; Pure Gold, 1871; Hymn Service, 1871; Royal Diadem, 1873; Temple Anthems, 1873; Tidcal Wace, 1874; Brightest and Best, 1875; Welcome Tidings, 1877; Fountain of Song, 1877; Chorauqua Carols, 1878; Gospel Hymn and Tune Book, 1879; Good as Gold, 1880; Our Glad Hosanna, 1882; Joyful Lays, 1884; Glad Refraims, 1886; with Christmas and Easter services annually, and numerous single songs; over 3,000,000 of these books have been issued.

LOY, Matthias, Confessional Lutheran; b. in Cumberland County, Penn., March 17, 1828; studied in Columbus (O.) Theological Seminary, and was pastor at Delaware, O., 1849—65; since 1864 has edited Luthers Stanund; since 1865 has been professor of theology in the Evangelical Lutheran Theological Seminary, Columbus, O.; and since 1880 been president of Capital University. He established the Columbus (O.) Theological Magazine in 1881. Since 1860, with the exception of 1878–80, when out of health, he has been yearly president of the Evangelical Lutheran Joint Synod of Ohio and other States. He edited the translation of Luther's House-postils, Columbus, 1864, 3 vols.; translated Life and Deeds of Dr. M. Luther, 1869; The Doctrine of Justification, 1890, 2d ed. 1891; Essay on the Ministry and Its Office, 1870.

LUARD, Henry Richards, D.D. (Cambridge, 1878); Church of England; b. in London, Aug. 17, 1825; studied at Trinity College, Cambridge (1843–47), where he graduated B.A. (fourteenth wrangler) 1847, M.A. 1850, B.D. 1875; became fellow of Trinity College, 1849; was assistant tutor, 1855–65; ordained deacon and priest, 1855; became vicar of St. Mary the Great, Cambridge, 1860; registrar of the University of Cambridge, 1862; honorary canon of Ely, 1884. He is the author of Catalogue of the MSS. in the Cambridge University Library (the theological portion and the index), 1856–87; Life of Richard Porson (in Cambridge Essays), Cambridge, 1857; editor of Lives of Edward the Confessor (in the Master of the Rolls series of Chronicles and Memorials), 1858; Bartholomaei de Cotton Historia Anglica (same series), 1859; Diary of Edward Rut, 1860; Epistolae Roberti Grosseteste (Rolls series), 1861; Annales Monastici (the same), 1864–69, 5 vols.; The Correspondence of Porson, 1867; List of Documents, etc., concerning the Cambridge University Library, 1870; Matthiae Parisiensis Chronica Majora (Rolls series), 1872–83, 7 vols.; Graduati Cantabrigienses, 1800–72, 1873, 1880–84, 1894; author of On the Relations between England and Rome during the Earlier Period of the Reign of Henry III., 1878; occasional pamphlets, reviews, sermons, etc.

LUCIUS, Paul Ernst, Lic. Theol. (Strassburg, 1879), German Protestant; b. at Ernolhsheim, Elsass, Oct. 16, 1832; studied theology at Strassburg, 1871–79; afterwards at Zürich (1879), Paris (1877), Jesus (1877), Berlin (1878); was assistant at Sessenheim, 1878; assistant pastor in Strassburg, 1879; privat-docent there, 1880; professor extraordinary, 1883. He is the author of Die Therapeuten and ihre Stellung in der Geschichte der Askese, Eine kritische Untersuchung der Schrift "De vita contemplativa," Strassburg, 1879; Der Christian. Gedanken und seelenroman Vom Ruhme des Lobens, 1881; Die Quellen der älteren Geschichte des apographischen Märchens (in Zeitschrift für K agon, 1884); Die Kräftigung des Missionssinns in der Gemeinde, 1885.

LUCKOCK, Herbert Mortimer, D.D. (Cambridge, 1879), Church of England; b. at Great Barr, Staffordshire, July 11, 1838; educated at Jesus College, Cambridge; graduated as B.A. (second-class classical tripos, and first-class theological tripos) 1858, M.A. 1862; was fellow of Jesus College, Crosse divinity scholar, Tywhitt Hebrew scholar; took Carus and Scholefield prizes 1860, member's prize 1860–61–62; was ordained deacon 1860, priest 1862; chaplain to Lord Carrington, examining chaplain to bishop of Ely since 1873; honorary canon of Ely, 1874–75; canon of Ely since 1875; principal of Ely Theological College since 1876; select preacher in the University of Cambridge, 1865, 1874–75, 1883; vicar of All Saints', Cambridge, 1862–65, and again 1865–75; rector of St. Katharine's, Cambridge, 1881–86; vicar of St. George's, Cambridge, 1886–93. His theological standpoint is Anglo-Catholic. He is the author of Tables of Stone: a Course of Sermons, London, 1867; After Death, the State of the Faithful Dead, and their Relationship to the Living, 1879, 5th ed. 1885; Studies in the History of the Prayer-book, 1881, 2d ed. 1882; An Appeal to the Church not to withdraw her Clergy from the Universities, 1882; Footprints of the Son of Man as traced by St. Mark, being Eighty Portions for Private Study, Family Reading, and Instruction in Church, 1884, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1885.

LUDOW, James Meeker, D.D. (Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1872), Presbyterian; b. at Elizabeth, N.J., March 15, 1841; graduated at College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1861, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1864; was pastor First Church, Albany, N.Y., 1864–68; Collegiate Reformed Dutch Church, New-York City, 1868–77; Westminster Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1877–80; East Orange since 1886. He is the inventor and compiler of the Concentric Chart of History, New York, 1885; author of The Captain of the Janizaries, 1886; and contributor to periodicals, secular and religious.

LUEDDEMAN, Hermann, Ph.D., Lic. Theol. (both Kiel, 1870 and 1871), D.D. (Heidelberg, 1883), German Protestant theologian; b. (son of the succeeding) at Kiel, Prussia, Sept. 15, 1842; studied at Kiel, Heidelberg, and Berlin, 1851–67; became privat-docent at Kiel, 1867, and taught at a private school, 1872; professor extraordinary of the New Testament at Kiel, 1878; ordinary professor of church history at Bern, Switzerland, 1884. He is a critical and liberal theologian, in sympathy with the Jena school. He is the author of Die Anthropologie des Apostel Paulus und ihre Stellung innerhalb seiner Heilelre, Nach den vier Hauptbriefen darge stellt, Kiel, 1872; Zur Erklärung des Papistenfragments Euseb. H. E. iii. 39 (in Jähr. f. prof. Theol., 1879); Die "Eidbrichtigkeit" unserer neukirchlichen (freiminnigen) Gesetzen, Kiel, 1881, 5d ed. 1884; Die neuere Entwicklung der protestantischen Theologie, Bremen, 1884; from 1873 to 1883 he contributed to the Literarisches Centralblatt, Jaenar Literaturzeitung, Protestantische Kirchenzeitung, and political journals; since 1881 he has contributed the section on church history down to the Council of Nicea, in Füniger's Theologischer Jahresbericht.

LUEDDEMAN, Karl, D.D., German Protestant theologian; b. at Kiel, July 6, 1805; studied there, 1823–28; became preacher in St. Nicholas' Church there, 1831; convent and garrison preacher, and privat-docent, 1834; professor extraordinary, 1839; ordinary professor, 1841. In 1856 he was made Kirchenrat. He is the author of Die städtische Motive des Christenthums, Kiel, 1841; Uber das Wesen des protestantischen Cultus, 1846; Das Wort des Lebens (sermons), 1883; Erinnerung an Claus Harms und seine Zeit, 1878.

LUENEMANN, Georg Conrad Gottlieb, Lic. Theol. (Göttingen, 1847), D.D. (hom., Göttingen, 1860), German Protestant theologian; b. at Göt tin gen, April 17, 1812; studied at its university; became repetent there, 1844; privat-docent, 1847; professor extraordinary of theology, 1851. He is the author of De epistulae, quam Paulus aedepisdeside disseritam, authenticna, prinsis lectoribus, argumento summo ac consilio (Preisschrift), Göt tin gen, 1852; Paulii ad Philippenses epistola, Contra F. Ch. Baurium, 1847; Kristus und die Welt (in Göttingen), 1851; Handbuch über die Briefe an die Thessalonicer (Abtikel X. des Meyer'schen Kommentars), 1850, 4th LUTHARDT, Christoph Ernst, Lic. Theol., Ph.D., D.D. (all Erlangen, 1852, 1854, and 1856 respectively), Lutheran; b. at Maroldsweisach, Bavaria, March 22, 1823; studied at Erlangen and Berlin, 1841-45; was ordained at Münden, 1846; from 1846 till 1851 was teacher in the Munich gymnasion; until 1854 rector at Erlangen, and privat-docent 1853-54; for the next two years professor extraordinary at Marburg; since 1856 has been professor of systematic theology and New Testament exegesis at Leipzig; and since 1865 a consistorial councillor. In theology he is orthodox, and in general belongs to the Erlangen school. He is renowned as a university lecturer and pulpit orator. Since 1868 he has edited the Allgemeine evangel. Kirchenzeitung, and since 1870 Das Theologisch-Literaturblatt und Die Zeitschrift für Kirchl. Wissenschaft und Kirchl. Leben. Of his numerous publications, which include nine volumes of collected sermons (1861-86), and lectures and articles upon many topics, may be mentioned, De compositione evangelii Joannei, Nuremberg, 1852; Das johanneische Evangelium nach seiner Eigen tümlichkeit geschildert u. erklärt, 1852-53, 2 vols.; De compositione evangelii Matthaei, Leipzig, 1854; De compositione evangelii Mathicei, Leipzig, 1855; Die Ethik Luthers in ihren Grundzügen, 1867, 2d ed. 1875; Apologetische Vorträge über die Heils wahrheiten des Christenthums, 1867, 5th ed. 1883 (Eng. trans., The Saving Truths of Christianity, Edinburgh, 1868); Die Ethik d. Aristoteles in ihr. Unterschied von der Moral des Christenthums, 1872, 3d ed. 1882 (Eng. trans., The Moral Truths of Christianity, Edinburgh, 1878); Der johannitische Ursprung des vierten Evangeliums, 1874 (Eng. trans., with enlarged literature, by C. R. Gregory, St. John the Author of the Fourth Gospel, Edinburgh, 1875, 2d ed. 1885); Gesammelte Vorträge verschaffener Inhalts, 1876; Die modernen Weltanschauungen u. ihre praktischen Konsequenzen, 1880, 2d ed. same year; Licht und Leben (sermons), 1885.

LYMAN, Right Rev. Theodore Benedict, S.T.D. (College of St. James, Washington County, Md., 1856), Episcopal, bishop of North Carolina; b. at Brighton, near Boston, Mass., Nov. 27, 1815; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1837, and at the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1840; became rector of St. John's Parish, Hagerstown, Md., 1840; chaplain to the American embassy (1865), organized what is now St. Paul's Church, Rome, Italy (1860), and continued in charge four years; became rector of Trinity Church, San Francisco, Cal., 1870; assistant bishop of North Carolina, 1873; bishop, on the death of Bishop Atkinson, 1881. He declined the deanery of the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, to which office he was elected during his residence in Europe; appointed to the care and jurisdiction of the American Episcopal Churches, which have been established on the Continent of Europe, 1886. He is the author of several ser mons and addresses.

LYON, David Gordon, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1882), Baptist; b. at Benton, Ala., May 24, 1852; graduated at Howard College, Marion, Ala., 1875; studied at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., 1876-79, and at Leipzig, 1879-82, and in the latter year became Hollis professor of divinity at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass. His specialty is Assyrian. He has issued Keilschrift-texte Sargons Königs von Assyrien (722-705 v. Chr.) nach den Originalien neu herausgegeben, umschrieben, übersetzt und erklärt, Leipzig, 1888.
M.

McAULEY, Robert Whitaker, F.L.S., Congregationalist; b. at Macclesfield, Cheshire, Eng., Dec. 17, 1821; studied architecture under Mr. Walters, architect of the Free Trade Hall, Manchester, and Sir Gilbert Scott, R.A.; afterwards turned his attention to theology, and studied in the Lancashire Independent (Congregational and theological) College, Manchester; graduated B.A. at Leiden University, 1847; abroad for twenty-four years was a Congregational pastor in England, during which time he ministered to four churches. In 1871, while pastor at Hadleigh, Suffolk, he and his wife made a brief holiday visit to Paris, and were so struck with the spiritual destitution of the working classes there, that they resolved to devote themselves to the effort to evangelize them. Accordingly he left his charge, much to its regret, and single-handed they began their mission. Their success has been beyond their hopes. In 1885 there were a hundred stations in Paris and throughout France. The money required to carry on their operations comes from France, from Great Britain, and from America. See article McCall Mission, in Encyclopaedia.

MacARTHUR, Robert Stuart, D.D. (University of Rochester, N.Y., 1880), Baptist; b. at Dalesville, Argenteuil County, Province of Quebec, Can., Aug. 91, 1841; graduated from the University of Rochester, N.Y., 1867, and from the Rochester Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1870; and since June, 1870, has been pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, New York City, which in 1883 erected a new church at an expense of nearly five hundred thousand dollars. He is the regular weekly New-York correspondent of the Chicago Standard, one of the editors of The Baptist Quarterly Review (since 1885), and with Rev. Dr. C. S. Robinson of the Calvary Selection of Hymns and Spiritual Songs, New York, 1879.

McAULEY, Jeremiah (better known as "Jerry McAuley"), layman; b. in Ireland, in the year 1839; d. in New-York City, Sept. 15, 1894. His father was a counterfeiter, who fled the country to escape arrest while his son was an infant. Jerry was brought up by his grandmother, who was a devout Romanist; but he never received any schooling. At the age of thirteen he came to New-York City, and lived with a married sister for a time. Soon he became as great a rogue as one of his years could be. On leaving his sister he boarded in Water Street, and supported himself by stealing from vessels lying in the river. The money procured by selling the articles stolen was spent in all sorts of wickedness. He became a prize-fighter, and a terror and a nuisance in the Fourth Ward. When nineteen years old he was arrested for highway robbery, an offence he had not committed. But he had no one to defend him; and so bad was his character, that he was condemned, in January, 1857, on circumstantial evidence, to fifteen years imprisonment at Sing-Sing. On his way thither he determined to be obedient to prison rules, do the best he could under the circumstances, and trust that somebody would be raised up to help him. He was set at carpet-weaving, and for two years had the approbation of his keepers. For the next three years he was, in consequence of illness, uneasy and intractable, and hence often severely punished, without being anywise improved. On one Sunday, when he had been some five years in prison, Orville Gardner (known as "Awful" Gardner), a former confederate in sin, addressed the convicts, and made a profound impression upon Jerry. On returning to his cell he took down the Bible, with which each cell is supplied, to find a verse which Gardner had quoted. He soon became a constant Bible-reader; and so, although he never found the verse he sought, he stored in his mind with the Word of God. A great desire to be saved was awakened within him. But weeks of anxiety and struggle passed before the "words were distinctly spoken to his soul" which assured him that he was forgiven. Then the Lord began to use him in the prison among his felo de sicus, and several were led to Christ by him. On March 8, 1864, he was pardoned. Like many another one, he had no one to help him to an honest living on leaving prison, so fell back into his former evil courses. He went into the bounty business, and made a great deal of money, which he spent freely. He became a sporting man, and often attended the races. After the war he dealt in stolen and smuggled goods, which he paid for in counterfeit money, until, being found out, no one would steal for him. He then became once more a river thief. But he could not shake off the religious impressions received in prison, although he tried to deaden conscience by drink. This wretched life continued until 1875, when he found Christian friends who manfully stood by him, notwithstanding his frequent falls, until he was confirmed in the Christian life. In October, 1872, he opened his "Helping Hand for Men," at 316 Water Street, as a resort for the forlorn wayfarers, sailors, and others who frequented the locality. From the start the work was remarkably blessed. He manifested extraordinary aptitude for dealing with the degraded. His kindly ways drew them to him; while his simple-minded, whole-hearted piety, and his burning zeal, deeply impressed them. The result was, that many were converted. In 1876 the old building was replaced.
McCABE.

by a far better one, and the mission incorporated under the title of "The McAuley Water-street Mission," in 1859, ordaining him a priest in 1862. Failing for two years to work in Water Street was done, he began a similar work at 104 West Thirty-second Street, called "The Cremorne Mission," from its contiguity to the notorious Cremorne Garden. In June, 1888, he began the publication of Jerry McAuley's newspaper, which is still issued every other Thursday. Some time before his death, his health began to fail, but he continued his work. His end came suddenly. On Wednesday, Sept. 17, 1884, he had a hemorrhage of the lungs, and on Thursday afternoon at four o'clock another, and in a few minutes he was dead. On Sunday, Sept. 21, at half-past two P.M., he was buried from the Broadway Tabernacle, Thirty-fourth Street and Sixth Avenue. The spacious church was crowded in every part long before the services began, and a great multitude stood all around the building. For nearly two hours after the conclusion of the services, the procession of mourners filed past the coffin. In the throng were many of the very clasps among whom the Christian life had been spent,—the criminal, the vicious, the immoral.

By competent testimony and common acknowledgment Jerry McAuley was one of the most useful, remarkable, and indeed wonderful men in the city of New York. Himself for many years a criminal and an outcast, he knew from bitter experience that the way of transgressors is hard. Himself the subject of the Saviour's infinite love, he knew that God had mercy for even the vilest. When, therefore, he spoke to those who had fallen, it was with a thorough knowledge which they could not fail to recognize. His work was, however, not carried on without many hindrances and difficulties; but he triumphed over all. Liberal and wealthy friends supported his enterprises, and in his wife he found a devoted and efficient helper. See Jerry McAuley, His Life and Work, ed. Rev. B. M. Offord, New York, 1885.

McCABE, Charles Gardiner, D.D. (Central Tennessee College, Nashville, Tenn., 1873), Methodist; b. at Athens, O., Oct. 11, 1836; studied at Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, O., but did not graduate; was pastor in the Ohio Conference, 1860-61; chaplain of the 122d Ohio Infantry, 1862-63; was taken prisoner at the battle of Winchester, Va., and was in Libby Prison, Richmond, Va., for four months; on his release rejoined his regiment; agent of the Christian Com.

McCABE, Charles Gardiner, D.D. (Central Tennessee College, Nashville, Tenn., 1873), Methodist; b. at Athens, O., Oct. 11, 1836; studied at Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, O., but did not graduate; was pastor in the Ohio Conference, 1860-61; chaplain of the 122d Ohio Infantry, 1862-63; was taken prisoner at the battle of Winchester, Va., and was in Libby Prison, Richmond, Va., for four months; on his release rejoined his regiment; agent of the Christian Com.

McCLellan, John Brown, 1830, priest 1861; was vicar of Bottenham, diocese of Ely, 1861-79; rural dean of first division of Camp's deaneary, 1871-77; since 1860 he has been principal of the Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester. He is a moderate High Churchman, in favor of disestablishment and of freedom of the Church. He is the author of Fourth Nicene Canon, and Election and Consecration of Bishops, London, 1870; A New Translation of the Greek Testament, revised Greek Text, a Contribution to Christian Evidence, vol. i. (The Four Gospels, with notes and dissertations, and a new chronological harmony) 1875.

McCLOSKEY, His Eminence John, Cardinal, D.D., Roman Catholic; b. in Brooklyn, N.Y., March 10, 1810; d. in New York, Oct. 10, 1885. He was graduated with the highest honors at St. Mary's College, Emmittsburg, Md., 1828; ordained priest at New York, Jan. 9, 1834; studied for two years at the Collegium Romanum in Rome, and a year in France. Returning to America in 1837, he was appointed pastor of St. Joseph's Church, New York City. On March 10, 1844, he was consecrated bishop of Axierie in partibus, and co-adjutor to the bishop (later archbishop) of New York (John Hughes); translated to the new see of Albany, May 21, 1847; after the death of Archbishop Hughes (Jan. 8, 1864) he was appointed his successor, Mar. 28, 1864. He attended the Vatican Council (1869-70), and was a member of the committee on Discipline. He was by Pius IX. created cardinal priest of the Most Holy Roman Church, March 15, 1875, under the title of "Sancta Maria sopra Minerva." He was the first American cardinal. He received the red hat from Leo XIII. in the consistory held in Rome on March 28, 1878. He enjoyed the respect of Protestant and Roman Catholic alike; and did much for his Church, as by buildings (e.g., the Fifth-avenue Cathedral) and new institutions, and by the introduction of the Capuchins, Franciscans, Sisters and Little Sisters of the Poor, who had previously no houses in his diocese. Under him the number of churches in New York increased from seventy to a hundred and seventy, and the number of clergy from a hundred and fifty to four hundred. Archbishop Gibbons, in his funeral oration, said of him: "He [the cardinal] has left you . . . the legacy of a pure and unsullied life, as priest, bishop, arch- bishop, and cardinal. He never tarnished the surplice of the priest, nor the rochet of the bishop, nor the pallium of the archbishop, nor the scarlet robes of the cardinal. After spending upwards of half a century in the exercise of the ministry, he goes down to his honored grave without a stain upon his moral character."

McCook, Henry Christopher, D.D. (Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1880), Presbyterian; b. at New Lisbon, O., July 3, 1837; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1859; studied at the Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1859-61; was first lieutenant Company F, Forty-first Regiment Illinois Volunteers, 1861; chaplain of the regiment, 1861-62; acting pastor, Clinton, Ill., 1861, 1862-63; home missionary, St. Louis, Mo., 1863-70; since 1870 has been pastor of the Tabernacle Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia. He is vice-president of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia (in whose proceedings he has published numerous papers upon the habits and industry of American ants and spiders), and vice-director of the American Entomological Society. He is the author of Object and Outline Teaching, St. Louis, 1871; The Last Year of Christ's Ministry, Philadelphia, 1871; The Last Days of Jesus, 1872; The Tercentenary Book.
McCOSH.  136  McFERRIN.

 McCOSH, James, S.T.D. (Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1868); L.D. (Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1868; Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1868), D.Lit. (Queen's University, Ireland), Presbyterian; b. at Carnkeoch, Banks of the Doon, Ayrshire, Scotland, April 1, 1811; was educated at the universities of Glasgow (1824–29), and Edinburgh (1829–34), and from the latter received, while a student, the honorary degree of M.A. in recognition of the ability of his essay upon the Stoic philosophy. He was licensed as probationer in 1833, and in 1835 was ordained and appointed minister of Arbrought, Scotland, and was connected to the so-called non-intrusion party, whose leader was Thomas Guthrie. In 1839 he became minister in first charge in his district, Brechin; and in 1843, when the disruption came, he entered the Free Church. In 1851 was appointed professor of logic and metaphysics in Queen's College, Belfast, Ireland, and entered his labors there the next year. In the spring of 1868 he was elected president of the College of New Jersey, at Princeton, and in the autumn was inaugurated. He has greatly increased the resources of the institution. He has been a voluminous writer. Besides contributions to various periodicals, and other minor papers, he has published The Method of the Divine Government, Physical and Moral, Edinburgh, 1850, 5th ed. revised, London, 1856; (with George Dickie, M.D., professor of natural history in the Queen's University, Ireland) Typical Forms and Special Ends in Creation, 1855; The Intuitions of the Mind inductively investigated, Edinburgh, 1861; The Supernatural in Relation to the Natural, 1862; Examination of Mill's Philosophy, being a Defence of Fundamental Truth, 1866; The Laws of Discursive Thought, being a Treatise on Formal Logic, New York, 1869; Christianity and Positivism, 1871; The Scottish Philosophy, Biographical, Expository, Critical; from Hutchison to Hamilton, Edinburgh, 1874; The Emotions, 1880; and completed in 1886 the "Philosophical Series" (1882, seq.), in which he has short papers upon Criteria of Diverse Kinds of Truth as opposed to Agnosticism (1882); Energy, Efficient and Final Cause (1883); Development: what it can do, and what it can not do (1883); Certitude, Providence, and Prayer (1883); Locke's Theory of Knowledge, with Notice of Berkeley (1884); Agnosticism of Hume and Huxley, with Notice of the Scottish School (1884); Criticism of the Critical Philosophy (1884); Herbert Spencer's Philosophy as Culminating in his Ethics (1885); Psychology, The Cognitive Powers (1889).

MacCRACKEN, Henry Mitchell, D.D. (Wittenberg College, Springfield, O., 1877), Presbyterian; b. at Oxford, O., Sept. 28, 1840; graduated at Miami University, Oxford, O., 1857; was teacher of classics, and school principal, 1857–80; studied at United Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Xenia, Ohio, 1880–81; at Princeton (N.J.) Presbyterian Theological Seminary, 1863 (graduated); and at Tübingen and Berlin universities, 1867–88; was pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Columbus, O., 1868–67; of the First Presbyterian Church, Toledo, O., 1868–81; chancellor of Western University, Pittsburgh, Penn., 1881–84; since 1884 has been professor of philosophy, and also vice-chancellor of the University of the City of New York. He was deputy to the Free Church Assembly of Scotland, and to the Irish Presbyterian General Assembly, 1867; proposer of the observance of 1872 as tercentenary year of Presbyterianism, 1870 (see Minutes of General Assembly, 1870, p. 29, 1871, p. 588); delivered historical oration at re-union of the Scotch-Irish race in Belfast, Ireland, July 4, 1884. He is the editor, translator, and author of Leaders of the Church Universal, 1879 (published by Presbyterian Board, Philadelphia, by the official publication boards of ten other denominations, and by T. & T. Clark, Edinburgh), from the German of Piper's Evangelische Calendere, Berlin, 1875.

McCURDY, James Frederick, Ph.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, N.J., 1878), Canadian Presbyterian; b. at Chatham, New Brunswick, Can., Feb. 18, 1847; graduated at University of New Brunswick, Fredericton, N.B., 1866, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1871; in the latter was instructor in Hebrew and cognate languages, 1873–82; studied in Germany, 1882–84; lectured on the Stone foundation, Princeton, N.J., 1883–86; became professor of Oriental languages in University College, Toronto, Can., 1886. Besides review of Gesenius' Handworterbuch, 9th ed. (Am. Jour. Philology, July, 1883); a paper on The Semitic Perfect in Assyrian, in Transactions of the Sixth Congress of Orientalists, Leyden, September, 1883; Agyro-Semitic Speech, a Study in Linguistic Archeology, Andover and London, 1881; The Assyrian and Babylonian Inscriptons, with Special Reference to the Old Testament, N.Y., 1888; he has also written the exposition of Haggai (N.Y., 1870), and translated, edited, and annotated the position of Ps. Lxxii.—lxxv. (1872), and Schmoller's of Hosea (1876); all three in the American Lange series.

MACDUFF, John Ross, D.D. (University of City of New York, 1857; Glasgow, 1860), Church of Scotland; b. at Bonhard, Perthshire, May 23, 1818; studied at the University of Edinburgh, 1835–42; was minister of parishes of Keittins, Firthshire, 1843–49, and of St. Madoes, 1849–55; of Sandyford church and parish, Glasgow, 1855–70. He now resides in England. He is the author of Morning and Night Watches, London, 1852; Mind and Words of Jesus, 1855; Memories of Bethany (1857), of Genesisaret (1858), of Olivet (1867), and of Patmos (1870); Grapes of Eschel, 1860; Senses on Hebrew Mountains, 1862; Prophet of Fire, 1863; Noonide at Sycar, 1868; Comfort Ye, 1872; Brighter than the Sun, 1877, 4th ed. 1886; Eventide at Bethel, 1878; Palms of Elin, 1879; In Christo, 1880; Porish of Tazweed, 1883; Communion Memories, 1855; Parables of the Lake, 1885; and numerous other books, all of which have passed through several, many through numerous, editions, been promptly reprinted in America, and widely circulated.

McFERRIN, John Berry, D.D. (LaGrange College, Ala., and Randolph Macon College, Ashland, Va., both in 1851), Methodist (Southern Church); b. in Randolph Co., N.C., 1832; entered Tennessee Conference, 1855; edited Christian Advocate, Nashville, Tenn., 1840–48; was book-agent of the Southern Church, 1858-66; secretary of Board of Missions, 1866-78; since 1878 has been book-agent at Nashville, Tenn. He is the author of Methodism in Tennessee, Nashville, 1870-72, 3 vols. (several later editions).

McGARVEY, John William, Christian; b. at Hopkinsville, Ky., March 1, 1829, graduated at Bethany (W. Va.) College; preached at Dover, Mo., and Lexington, Ky. (1862-65), and since 1865 has been professor of sacred history and evidences in the College of the Bible, Kentucky University, Lexington, Ky. He is the author of a commentary on Acts (Cincinnati, O., 1863), and on Matthew and Mark (1873); Lands of the Bible (visited 1878), Philadelphia, 1881 (16th thousand, 1882); Evidences of Christianity, Cincinnati, 1880.

McGILL, Alexander Taggart, D.D. (Marshall College, Lancaster, Penn., 1812), L.L.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1868), Presbyterian; b. at Canonsburg, Penn., Feb. 24, 1807; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1826; was admitted to the bar in Georgia, and elected by the Legislature of that State, to travel over the inter-State lines, and divide into sections the Cherokee lands within her chartered limits. In 1831 he turned to theology, took the full course of four years in the theological seminary of the Associate (now United) Presbyterian Church, at Canonsburg; was ordained at Carlisle, Penn., in 1834, and until 1838 ministered to the Associate Presbyterian churches in Cumberland, Perry, and York counties. In 1838 he entered the Old-School branch of the Presbyterian Church, and until 1842 was pastor of the Second Church, Carlisle, Penn. From 1842 till 1844 (except 1852-53, when professor in Columbia Theological Seminary, S.C.), he was professor in the Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., when he was transferred by the General Assembly to Princeton, and remained as professor of ecclesiastical, homiletic, and pastoral theology, until in 1883 he resigned from active service, and became professor emeritus of New Testament in Carpenters’ Institution, Baltimore. He has published Hist. First Church, Cambridge, 1854; rector of Ilionton, 1855-69; prebendary of the Cathedral, 1854; rector of Hinton, 1855-69; prebendary of Exeter, 1856-69; consecrated bishop, 1870. He was a chancellor of the Most Noble Order of the Garter; visitor of Cuddesdon, Bradfield, and Radley Colleges.

McKENZIE, Alexander, D.D. (Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., 1879), Congregationalist; b. at New Bedford, Mass., Dec. 13, 1830; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1855, and at Andover (Massachusetts Theological Seminary, 1854), pastor of South Church, Augusta, Me., 1861-67; since, pastor of First Church, Cambridge, Mass.; since 1888, preacher to Harvard University. In 1882 he was lecturer on theology of the New Testament, in Andover Theological Seminary (of which he became trustee in 1876) and in Harvard Divinity School. He has published Hist. First Church, Cambridge, Boston, 1873; Cambridge Sermons, 1883.

McKNIGHT, Harvey Washington, D.D. (Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill., 1888), Lutheran (General Synod); b. at McKnightstown, Adams County, Penn., April 5, 1849; graduated at Pennsylvania College, 1865, and since 1865 has been book-agent at Nashville, Tenn. He is the author of Methodism in Tennessee, Nashville, 1870-72, 3 vols. (several later editions). He was second lieutenant Company B, 138th Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, Aug. 10 to Dec. 17, 1862; adjutant 26th Regiment during Lee’s invasion of Pennsylvania; captain Company D, 210th Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, Sept. 24, 1864, to June 9, 1865. He delivered an address before the alumni of the Gettysburg Theological Seminary, June, 1874, and an historical address at the semi-centennial of Pennsylvania College, June, 1882.

MACLAGAN, Right Rev. William Dalrymple, D.D. (jure dignitatis, Cambridge, 1875), lord bishop of Lichfield, Church of England; b. at Edinburgh in the year 1826; educated at St. Peter’s College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (junior optime) 1856, M.A. 1859; was ordained deacon 1856, priest 1857; curate of St. Saviour, Paddington, London, 1856-58; of St. Stephen, Marylebone, London, 1858-60; secretary of the London Diocesan Church Building Society, 1860-65; curate in charge of Enfield, 1865-69; rector of Newington, 1860-75; vicar of Kensington, 1875-78; honorary chaplain in ordinary to the Queen, 1877-78; prebendary of York, 1845; Elocution, the Sources and Elements of its Power, New York, 1870, 2d ed. 1874; The Wisdom of Holy Scripture, with reference to Sceptical Objections, 1836; The Wisdom of the Apocalypse, 1886; and articles in reviews on religious and scientific subjects, etc.

MACKARNESS, John Fielder, D.D. (Oxford, 1870), lord bishop of Oxford, Church of England; b. in London, Dec. 3, 1820; was educated at Merton College, Oxford, of which he was postmaster; graduated B.A. (second-class classics) 1844, M.A. (Exeter College) 1847; was ordained deacon 1844, priest 1845; fellow of Exeter College, 1844-46; vicar of Tardebigge, Worcestershire, 1845-55; honorary canon of Worcester Cathedral, 1854; rector of Hinton, 1855-69; prebendary of Exeter, 1856-69; consecrated bishop, 1870. He was a chancellor of the Most Noble Order of the Garter; visitor of Cuddesdon, Bradfield, and Radley Colleges.

MoGARVEY, John William, Christian; b. at New Bedford, Mass., Dec. 13, 1830; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1855, and at Andover (Massachusetts Theological Seminary, 1854), pastor of South Church, Augusta, Me., 1861-67; since, pastor of First Church, Cambridge, Mass.; since 1888, preacher to Harvard University. In 1882 he was lecturer on theology of the New Testament, in Andover Theological Seminary (of which he became trustee in 1876) and in Harvard Divinity School. He has published Hist. First Church, Cambridge, Boston, 1873; Cambridge Sermons, 1883.
of Reculverland in St. Paul's Cathedral, 1878; consecrated bishop, 1878. He edited, with Dr. Archibald Weir, The Church and the Age, Essays on the Principles and Present Position of the Anglican Church, London, 1870; and has published sermons, etc.

MCLAREN, Alexander, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1875). Baptist; b. at Glasgow, Feb. 11, 1826; educated at Stepney (now Regent's Park) College, and graduated B.A. in London University; was minister of Portland Chapel, Southwark, from 1846 to 1858; since which time he has been minister of Union Chapel, Manchester. He was chairman of the Baptist Union of England in 1875. He has published Sermons preached in Manchester, (1st series 1864, 10th ed. 1883; 2d series 1869, 7th ed. 1883; 3d series 1873, 6th ed. 1883); A Spring Holiday in Italy, 1865, 2d ed. 1866; Week-day Evening Addresses, 1877, 5th ed. 1885; Life of David as reflected in his Psalms, 1880; Secret of Power, and other Sermons, 1882, 2d ed. 1883; A Year's Ministry, 1884, 2 series, 2d ed. 1885.

MCLAREN, Right Rev. William Edward, S.T.D. (Racine College, Racine, Wis., 1875). D.C.L. (University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1888). Episcopalian, bishop of Chicago; b. at Geneva, N. Y., Dec. 13, 1831; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1851; was an editor until 1857, when he entered the Western (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn.; graduated there 1860, and became a Presbyterian minister; entered the Protestant Episcopal ministry, 1872; and became rector of Trinity Church, Cleveland, O., 1872; bishop of Illinois, 1875; diocese divided into that of Illinois, Quincy, and Springfield, he retaining that of Illinois, which included Chicago and the northern part of the State, 1877; in 1883 the name of this diocese was changed to that of Chicago. He is the author of Catholic Dogma the Antidote of Doubt, 1883; and numerous sermons, addresses, articles, etc.

MCLAREN, Alexander, D.D. (Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1874). Presbyterian; b. in Glasgow, Scotland, Oct. 1, 1833; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1853, and at Union Theological (Presbyterian) Seminary, New-York City, 1856; was priest of the Congregational Church, Fairfield, Conn., 1857; of the Calvary Presbyterian Church, Buffalo, N. Y., 1860; corresponding secretary of the American Bible Society, 1874.

MACLEAR, George Frederick, D.D. (Cambridge, 1872). Church of England; b. at Bedford, Eng., Feb. 5, 1833; was scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (second-class classical tripos, first-class theological tripos) 1855, M.A. 1860, B.D. 1867; won the Carus (1854 and 1855), Burney University (1857), Hulsean (1857), Maitland University (1868 and 1890), and Norrisian (1883) prizes (see below); was ordained deacon 1860, priest 1867; was assistant minister of Cuzcon Chapel, Mayfair, and of St. Mark, Notting-hill, London; assistant preacher at the Temple Church, 1865-70; head master of King's College School, 1868-80; Boyle lecturer, 1879-80; select preacher at Cambridge, 1868 and 1880; examiner for the Lightfoot scholarships there, 1870-77; select preacher at Oxford 1874-45; was since 1880 bishop of Nuneaton. He has published numerous sermons and other works, and has been warden of St. Augustine's College, Canterbury. He is the author of the following prize essays: Incentives to Virtue, Natural and Revealed (Burney), 1855; The Cross and the Nations (Hulsean), 1857; The Christian Statesman and our Indian Empire (Maitland), 1858, 2d ed. 1859; Missions of the Middle Ages (Maitland), 1861; The Witness of the Eucharist (Norrisian), 1863; also of Class Books of Old and New Testament History, 1861, 2 vols. 15th ed. 1890; Class Book of the Catechism, 1868, 6th ed. 1878; Class Book of the Confirmation, 1869, many editions; Apostles of Medieval Europe, 1889, 2d ed. 18.—; The Gospel according to St. Mark (English), 1877; The Book of Joshua, 1878 (both in Cambridge Bible for Schools series); The Greek Gospel of St. Mark, 1878 (in Cambridge Greek Testament for Schools); The Conversion of the Celts, the English, the Northmen, and the Slavs, 1878-79 (S. P. C. K.), 4 vols.; The Evidential Value of the Holy Eucharist (Boyle Lectures), 1883; articles in Smith and Cheetham's Dictionary of Christian Antiquities, and in Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography, The Bible Educator, and Encyclopaedia Britannica.?

MACLEOD, Donald, D.D. (Glasgow, 1876). Church of Scotland; b. in the manse of Campsie, March 18, 1831; the son of the late Norman Macleod, sen. (dean of the Chapel Royal, Celtic scholar, and writer of Celtic literature), and the brother of Norman Macleod, D.D., late of Bury Park, Parish, Glasgow (dean of Chapel Royal, dean of the Thistle, etc.); educated at the University of Glasgow; and was minister of Lanark, Berwickshire, 1858-62; Linlithgow, 1862-4; and since 1869 of the parish of the Park, Glasgow. He is one of her Majesty's chaplains for Scotland, and since 1873 has edited Good Words, a monthly magazine. He is the author of Memoir of Norman Macleod, London, 1872, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1876, 1 vol.; The Sunday Home Service, 1885.

MACMILLAN, Hugh, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1879). LL.D. (St. Andrew's, 1871). F.R.S.E. (1871). Free Church of Scotland; b. at Aberfeldy, Perthshire, Sept. 17, 1833; educated at Edinburgh University; was minister of Kirkmichael, Perthshire, 1859-64; of Free St. Peter's, Glasgow, 1864-78; and since 1878 has been minister of Free West Church, Greenock. He is the author of numerous contributions to periodicals, and the following books: Bible Teachings in Nature, 1865, 2d ed. 1866; The Lord's Three Raisings from the Dead, 1875; Sabbath of the Fields (Danish and Norwegian translations), 1875, 5th ed. 1888; Two Worlds are Ours, 1880, 4th ed. 1880; The Christmas in Cana of Galilee, 1882, 2d ed. 1886; The Riviera, 1885.

MCTYRE, Holland Nimmons, D.D. (Emory College, Oxford, Ga., 1858). Methodist-Episcopal bishop (Southern Church); b. in Barnwell District, S.C., July 28, 1824; graduated at Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va., 1844; was tutor, 1844-45; since then he has been stationed at Mobile and New Orleans; was first editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate (1851); editor of Christian Advocate, Nashville, MALAN, Solomon Cesar, D.D. (University of Edinburgh, 1860), Church of England; b. in Geneva, Switzerland, April 22, 1812; educated at St. Edmund Hall, Oxford; Boden Sanscrit scholar, 1834; Pusey and Ellerton Hebrew scholar, B.A. (second-class classics), 1837; M.A., and member of Balliol College, 1843; ordained deacon 1838, priest 1843; was senior classical professor at Bishop's College, Calcutta, 1859-60; at the Asiatic Society of Bengal, 1860; rector of Enniskillen, Ireland, 1861; dean of the Vice-Regal Chapel, Dublin, 1865-66; dean of the Octagon Chapel, Bath, 1848; of Queen's College, London, 1860; rector of Broadwindsor, Dorsetshire, 1861; vicar of Cork, 1864; lord bishop of Peterborough, 1868. He was Donellan lecturer, Trinity College, Dublin, 1865-66; dean of the Vice-Regal Chapel, Dublin, 1866-69; select preacher at Oxford, 1880-82. He is the author of Sermons at St. Saviour's Church, Bath, London, 1852; Sermons at the Octagon Chapel, Bath, 1853, 2d ed. 1859; The Enti-

MAGEE, Right Rev. William Connor, D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1860), D.C.L., lord bishop of Peterborough, Church of England; b. at Cork, Dec. 17, 1821; graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, B.A. 1842, B.D. 1854. He was first a curate of St. Thomas's, Dublin; then of St. Saviour's, Bath, 1848; then minister of the Octagon Chapel, Bath, 1850; of Queen's College, London, 1860; rector of Broadwindsor, Dorsetshire, 1861; vicar of Cork, 1864; lord bishop of Peterborough, 1868. He was Donellan lecturer, Trinity College, Dublin, 1865-66; dean of the Vice-Regal Chapel, Dublin, 1866-69; select preacher at Oxford, 1880-82. He is the author of Sermons at St. Saviour's Church, Bath, London, 1852; Sermons at the Octagon Chapel, Bath, 1853, 2d ed. 1859; The Enti-

MACVICAR, Malcolm, Ph.D. (University of the State of New York, 1870), LL.D. (University of Rochester, N.Y., 1870), Baptist; b. in Argyshire, Scotland, Sept. 30, 1829; graduated at the University of Rochester, N.Y., 1858; became professor of mathematics, Brockport Collegiate Institute, N.Y., 1859; principal of the same, 1863; principal of the State Normal School, Brockport, 1867; superintendent of public schools, Leavenworth, Kan., 1868; principal of State Normal School, Potsdam, N.Y., 1869; principal of the State Normal School, Ypsilanti, Mich., 1868; professor of apologetics and biblical interpretation in English, in the Baptist College, Toronto, Ontario, Can., 1881. He was the principal mover in securing a law to establish four new normal schools in the State of New York, 1868. He is the inventor of the MacVicar tellurian globe, and of various devices to illustrate principles in arithmetic, geometry, and astronomy; and author of text-books in arithmetic.
Family Prayers, 1844; A Plain Exposition of the Apostles' Creed, 1847; A Systematic Catalogue of the Eggs of British Birds, 1848; List of British Birds, 1849; Who is God in China — Shin or Shang—Te? Remarks on the Etymology of Elohim and of Theos, and on the rendering of those terms into Chinese, 1853; A Vindication of the Authorised Version, 1856; A Letter to the Earl of Shaftesbury on the Bodonican and Christian Papal Systems, 1856; To the Author of the Chinese and Mongolian Versions of the Bible published by the British and Foreign Bible Society, 1856; The Threefold San-tsze King, or Trilingual Classic of China, translated into English, with notes, 1856; Aphorisms on Drunkenness, 1856; Maydula and Bethany, a Pilgrimage, 1857; The Coast of Tyre and Sidon, 1857; Letters to a Young Missionary, 1858; Prayers and Thanksgivings for the Holy Communion, translated from Armenian, Coptic, and other Eastern originals, for the use of the clergy, 1859; Meditations on a Prayer of S. Ephrem, translated from the Russian, 1859; The Gospel according to S. John, translated from the several oldest versions, except the Latin (viz., Syriac, Ethiopic, Armenian, Sahidic, Memphitic, Gothic, Georgian, Slavonic, Anglo-Saxon, Arabic, and Persian), 1862; Preparation for the Holy Communion, translated from Coptic, Armenian, and other Eastern originals, for the use of the laity, 1863; Meditations on our Lord's Passion, translated from the Armenian of Matthew Vartabed, 1863; A Manual of Daily Prayers, translated from Armenian and other Eastern originals, 1863; Philosophy, or Truth? Remarks on the First Five Lectures by the Dean of Westminster on the Jewish Church, with Plain Words on Questions of the Day, regarding Faith, the Bible, and the Church, 1865; History of the Georgian Church, translated from the Russian of P. Joselian, 1866; Sermons by Gabriel, Bishop of Imereth, translated from the Georgian, 1867; Reflections on Questions of the Day, regarding Faith, the Bible, and oratory in the same, 1864-72; trustee of the Trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church, translated from the Armenian, 1868; The Holy Sacrament of the Lord's Supper according to Scripture, Grammar, and the Faith, translated from the Russian, 1859; The Book of Adam and Eve with Satan, a Book of the Early Eastern Church, translated from the Ethiopic, with notes from the Kufale, Talmud, Midrashim, and other Eastern works, 1882; Morning and Evening Prayers for Day and Sunday Schools in the Parish of Broadwindsor, 1884.

MALLAULIEU, WILLARD FRANCIS, D.D. (East Tennessee Wesleyan University, Athens, Tenn., 1874). Methodist bishop; b. at Sutton, Worcester County, Mass., Dec. 11, 1829, graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1857; joined the New-England Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 1858; became presiding elder, Boston district, 1882; bishop, 1884.

MALLORY, GEORGE SCOVILL, D.D. (Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1874). Episcopalian; b. at Watertown, Conn., June 5, 1831, graduated at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1858; travelled in Europe, 1858; entered the Berkeley Divinity School, Middletown, Conn., 1858, and graduated 1862; was assistant professor of ancient languages in Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1862-64; Brownell professor of literature and oratory in the same, 1864-72; trustee of the same since 1872; editor of The Churchman, New York, since 1866.

MANGOLD, WILHELM JULIUS, LIC. THEOL. (Marburg, 1852). D.D. (hon., Vienna, 1852); b. at Cassel, Nov. 20, 1825; studied at Halle (1845-47), Marburg (1847-49), and Göttingen (1849-50); became rector at Marburg, 1851; private lecturer there, 1852; professor extraordinary, 1857; ordinary professor of theology, 1863; at Bonn, 1872. He declined calls to professorships at Vienna (1863) and Basel (1866); was member for Marburg of the Prussian Landtag, 1871-72. He became consistorial bishop of the critical school. He is the author of De monachatus origini et causis, Marburg, 1852; Die Irrlehrer der Pastoralbriefe, 1856; Jean Calas und Voltaire, 1861; Julian der Ahtriinnige, 1862; Drei Predigten über Johanneische Texte, 1864; Der Römerbrief u. die Anfänge der römischen Gemeinde, 1861; Andreas Hyperici Evangelium, translated from an old Coptic MS., and compared with the same liturgy as arranged by S. Cyril, 1872; The Coptic Calendar, translated from an Arabic MS., with notes, 1873; A History of the Copts, and of their Church, translated from the Arabic of Tāqī ed-Dīn El-Maqzūt, with notes, 1873; The Holy Gospel and Versicles, for every Sunday and other Feast Day in the Year, as used in the Coptic Church, translated from a Coptic MS., 1874; The Divine Eklogēs and the Divine Liturgy of S. Gregory the Theologian, translated, with the additions found in the Roman ed. of 1737, 1875; Prayers and Thanksgivings for the Use of my Parishioners, Beamish, 1878; The Two Holy Sacraments of Baptism and of the Lord's Supper according to Scripture, Grammar, and the Faith, London, 1880; The Miracles of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ explained to Country Children, 1881; Seven Chapters (St. Matt. i.-vi., St. Luke xii.) of the Revision of 1881 revised, 1881; Selected Readings in the Greek Text of S. Matthew, lately published by the Rev. Drs. Westcott and Hort, reissued, with a Postscript on the Pamphlet, "The Revised Version and the Greek Text of the New Testament," by two members of the Revision Company, 1882; The Book of Adam and Eve, also called The Conflict of Adam and Eve with Satan, a Book of the Early Eastern Church, translated from the Ethiopic, with notes from the Kufale, Talmud, Midrashim, and other Eastern works, 1882; Harmony and oratory in the same, 1864-72; trustee of the same since 1872; editor of The Churchman, New York, since 1866.

MANLY, Basil, D.D. (University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, Ala., 1859; LL.D. Agricultural College, Auburn, Ala., 1874), Baptist; b. in Edgefield County, S.C., Dec. 19, 1825; graduated at University of Alabama (at Tuscaloa), 1843, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1847; became pastor at Providence, Ala., 1848; Richmond, Va., 1850; president Richmond Female Institute, 1854; professor of biblical introduction and Old Testament interpretation in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, 1859; president of Georgetown College, Ky., 1871; professor in Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, 1879. He compiled, with his father, The Baptist Pulpit, a Selection of Hymns (about twenty original), Charleston, S.C., 1850 (some forty thousand copies sold); and has, in addition to pamphlets and occasional sermons, issued A Call to the Ministry, Philadelphia, 1867.

MANN, William Julius, D.D. (Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., 1857), Lutheran (General Council); b. at Stuttgart, Germany, May 29, 1819; graduated at Tuebingen, 1841; was from 1850 to 1884 pastor of Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church, Philadelphia; now pastor emeritus; since 1864 has been professor of Hebrew, ethics, and symbology in the Philadelphia Theological Seminary of the Lutheran Church. He edited the Kirchenfreund, Philadelphia, 1854-60; and is the author of Lutheranism in America, 1857; General Principles of Christian Ethics, 1872 (abridgment of Dr. Ch. Fr. Schmid's Ethics); Heilbashakespeare (sermons), 1851; Leben und Wirken William Penn's, Reading, Penn., 1882; Ein Aufsatz in Abenland (evangelical missions in America), 1869; Das Buch der Bücher und seiner Geschicht, 1884; Halle Reports (new and enlarged ed.), Allentown, Penn., vol. 1, 1885.

MANNING, His Eminence Henry Edward, Cardinal, D.D. (Rome, Italy, 1854), Roman Catholic; b. at Tottenridge, Hertfordshire, Eng., July 15, 1808; educated at Harrow and at Balliol College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics), 1830, and was elected fellow of Merton College, and for some time a select preacher to the university. In 1834 he became rector of Lavington and Earlham, Sussex, and married. In 1840 he was appointed archdeacon of Chichester. He was a leader in the so-called "Oxford movement" and in 1851 resigned his ecclesiastical preferments. On April 20, 1851, entered the Roman-Catholic Church, and (his wife having died some time previously), a little later, the priesthood. He then repaired to Rome, where he studied theology until 1854, when he received the degree of D.D. Returning to England, he entered upon a career of great activity. In 1857 he founded at Bayswater a congregation of the "Oblates of St. Charles Borromeo," and became its first superior; summoned Zion Sisters from Paris to teach the girls' schools; erected a presbytery; founded a Roman-Catholic university at Kensington (Oct. 15, 1874), and in other ways greatly increased the influence of his Church. In recognition of his eminent services, Pius IX. appointed him successively provost of the Roman-Catholic archdiocese of Westminster (1857), prothonotary apostolic and his domestic prelate (1860), archbishop of Westminster (consecrated June 8, 1865), and cardinal priest, with the title of SS. Andrew and Gregory on the Colliin Hill, March 15, 1873; received his hat in a consistory held at the Vatican, Dec. 31, 1870. Cardinal Manning sat in the Vatican Council, 1869-70. Of his publications may be mentioned, The Grounds of Faith, London, 1852; Temporal Sovereignty of the Popes, 1860; The Present Crisis of the Holy See tested by Prophecy, 1861; The Temporal Power of the Vicar of Jesus Christ, 1862, 2d ed. 1862; Sermons on Ecclesiastical Subjects, 1863-73, 3 vols.; The Temporal Mission of the Holy Ghost, 1865, 3d ed. 1877; The Vatican Council and its Definitions, 1870; The Four Great Evils of the Day, 1871, 2d ed. 1871; Cesarism and Ultramontanism, 1874; The Internal Mission of the Holy Ghost, 1875; Vatican Decrees in Their Bearing on Civil Allegiance, 1875; True Story of the Vatican Council, 1877; Miscellanies, 1877, 2 vols.; The Catholic Church and Modern Society, 1880; The Eternal Priesthood, 1883. See W. S. Lilly's Cardinal Manning's Characteristics, Political, Philosophical, and Religious, 1885.

MARQUIS, David Calhoun, D.D. (Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1875), Presbyterian; b. at Lawrence County, Penn., Nov. 15, 1834; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1857, and at the Theological Seminary of the North-west, Chicago, Ill., 1863; and after pastorates in Decatur, Ill. (1863), Chicago (1866), Baltimore, Md. (1870), and St. Louis, Mo. (1878), was in 1883 called to the Theological Seminary of the North-west, Chicago, Ill. (since 1886 called the McCormick Theological Seminary of the Presbyterian Church), as professor of New Testament literature and exegesis.

MARTIGNY, Joseph Alexandre, Roman Catholic; b. at Sauvenn (Ain), in the year 1808; ordained priest in the Diocese of Geneva at Chatel Belley; then was arch-priest of Bagé-le-Châtel in 1849, and later titular cano of the cathedral of Belley. He was a member of a great number of learned societies, and noted for archeological researches. He died in 1860. His greatest work is Dictionnaire des antiquités chrétiennes, Paris, 1866 (270 engravings), 2d ed. 1877 (975 engravings).

MARTIN, William Alexander Parsons, D.D. (Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1860), LL.D. (University of the City of New York, 1870), Presbyterian; b. at Livonia, Ind., April 10, 1827; graduated at the State University at Bloomington, Ind., and at the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of New Albany (now removed to Chicago); from 1850-60 was a missionary at Ningo, China; from 1863-68 was missionary at Peking; in 1869 became president of the Imperial Tungwen College of Peking, and professor of international law. He visited the United States in 1860, 1866, and 1870. He is a member of the European Institute of International Law, and of other learned societies. His position in China is of the highest importance. During his long life there he has had several unusual experiences. In 1855 he was captured by Chinese pirates; in 1856 he served as interpreter to the United States minister in negotiating the treaty of Tientsin; in 1859 he accompanied the United-States minister to Peking, and to Yedo, Japan; in 1866 he visited a colony of Jews in Honan, visiting also the tomb of Confucius, and was the first foreigner in recent times to make the journey from Peking to Shanghai by the grand canal (for account of this journey, see Journal North China Branch Royal Asiatic Society, 1866); in the conflict with France, 1894-95, as well as in former disputes, acted as adviser to the Chinese Government on questions of international law, and in 1885 was made a mandarin of the third rank, by imperial decree. In February, 1885, he was elected first president of the newly organized Oriental Society of Peking. Dr. Martin edited The Peking Scientific Magazine from 1875 to 1878 (printed in Chinese); and has written in Chinese, Evidences of Christianity, 1855, 10th ed. 1885 (translated into Japanese, and widely circulated in Japan); The Three Principles (1859), and Religious Allegories (1857), and numerous small tracts which have been widely distributed.

In English, besides his correspondence with the learned societies to which he belongs, and his contributions to reviews and other periodicals, he has published The Education and Philosophy of the Chinese, Shanghai and London, 1880, new ed. under title, The Chinese: their Education, Philosophy, and Letters, New York, 1881. In French he has written much. But his largest works have been his translations into Chinese, of Wheaton (1863) and of Woolsey (1873) and Bluntschi (1879) on International Law, De Marten's Guide diplomatique (1874), and the compilation in Chinese of courses of natural philosophy (1880) and mathematical physics (1885).

MARTINEAU, James, LL.D. (Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., U.S.A., 1872), Th.D. (Leiden, Holland, 1875), D.D. (Edinburgh, Scotland, 1884), Unitarian; b. at Norwich, Eng., April 21, 1805; educated at Norwich grammar school until 1819; Dr. Lant Carpenter's, Bristol, 1819-21; studied civil engineering, 1821-22; took course in Manchester New College, York, 1822-27 (degrees in England were then inaccessible to Non-conformists); 1827-28, master of Dr. Lant Carpenter's school, Bristol, during his absence from illness; 1828-29, junior minister of Eu stace-street Presbyterian Meeting-house, Dublin; 1832-57, minister (at first junior, then sole) of congregation of Protestant Non-conformists worshipping in Paradise-street Chapel, and since 1849 in Hope-street Church, Liverpool; with simultaneous professorship in philosophy in Manchester New College, first in Manchester, then in London, from 1840: 1857-83, professor of philosophy in said college, London, and principal 1869-85; with ministry of Little Portland-street Chapel (two years with Rev. J. J. Tayler) from 1859-72. He was the younger brother of Harriet Martineau. He is the author of The Rationale of Religious Enquiry, or the Questions Stated and Reasoned, The Bible, and the Church, London, 1836, 4th ed. 1853; Unitarianism Fended (five lectures of thirteen in the Liverpool controversy, delivered in connection with J. H. Thom and H. Giles), 1859; Hymns for the Christian Church and Home, 1840, 23d ed. 1885; Endeavours after the Christian Life, 1843-47, 2 vols.; in 1 vol. of Sermons on Sacred Things, 1876-80, 2 vols.; A Study of Spinoza, 1882, 2d ed. 1883; Types of Ethical The-MESSNER, (Karl Ferdinand) Hermann, Lic. Theol. (Göttingen, 1856), D.D. (hon., Wien, 1875), German theologian; b. at Östfeldes (Altmark), Prussia, Oct. 26, 1824; studied at Halle and Berlin, 1844–50; became privat-docent of theology at Göttingen, 1850; adjunct, 1856; later inspector of the Domkandidatensift in Berlin; and since 1860 has been professor extraord. of theology in his university. From 1860 to 1876 he was a member of the Royal Wissenschaftlichen Prüfungs Commission in Berlin. His theological standpoint is that of "the Church of the Revolution,"—the platform of the Tilloen and Burnet. He is the author of History of the Romans under the Empire, London, 1850–62; 7 vols., new ed. 1855, 8 vols. (with re-issues); Sallust's Catiline and Jugurthina, 1854; His theological standpoint is that of "the Church of the Revolution,"—the platform of the Tilloen and Burnet. He is the author of History of the Romans under the Empire, London, 1850–62; 7 vols., new ed. 1855, 8 vols. (with re-issues); Sallust's Catiline and Jugurthina, 1854; Four Lectures on Epochs of Early Church History, 1879.

MERRILL, Selah, D.D. (Iowa College, Grinnell, Io., 1875), LL.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1884), Congregationalist; b. at Canton Centre, Hartford County, Conn., May 2, 1837; entered Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1858; left the class, but later received honorary M.S. from the college "for special services in biblical learning;" studied theology in New Haven (Conn.) Theological Seminary; preached at Chester (Mass.), Le Roy (N.Y.), San Francisco (Cal.), and Salmon Falls (N.H.); was chaplain of the Forty-ninth U.S. Colored Infantry at Vicksburg, Miss., 1864–65; student in Germany, 1866–70; archdeacon of the American Palestine Exploration Society, 1874–77, working in Moab, Gilead, and Bashan, east of the Jordan; United-States consul in Jerusalem from 1882 to 1886. In 1872, and again in 1878, taught Hebrew in Andover Theological Seminary. He is a member of the American Oriental Society, of the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis, and of the Society of Biblical Archæology (British). He is the author of several articles in the Bibliotheca Sacra and other periodicals, on biblical geography, the cuneiform inscriptions, and other oriental topics; and of East of the Jordan, New York, 1881, 2d ed. 1883, reprinted London, 1881; Galilee in the Time of Christ, Boston 1881, London 1885; several parts of Picturesque Palestine, New York and London, 1882–83; he published Greek Inscriptions collected in the Years 1875–77, in the Country East of the Jordan, 1885 (these were revised by Professor F. W. Allen of Cambridge, Mass.).

MERX, (Ernst Otto) Adalbert, D.D., German Protestant theologian and Orientalist; b. at Bleicherode, Nov. 2, 1838; studied at Marburg, Halle, and Berlin, 1857–61; became privat-docent of theology at Jena, 1865; professor extraordinary there, 1869; ordinary professor in the philosophical faculty at Tübingen, 1869; ordinary professor of theology at Giessen, 1873; at Heidelberg, 1875. He is the author of Meletemata Ignatianorum Critica de epistolarii Ignatianarum versamentum, Edinburgh, 1884; and other Latin academic dissertations. He died at Bonn, Aug. 5, 1886.

MERVIN, Very Rev. Charles, D.D. (Cambridge, 1870; Durham, ad eund., 1871), D.C.L. (Cambridge, 1880), D.D. (Aberdeen, 1889). He was fellow of Eton, 1848; became vicar of Braunschberg, 1841; stipendiary in the Episcopal Seminary at Braunschweig, 1845; professor extraordinary of theology in the University there, 1850; ordinary professor of systematic theology, 1853; at Bonn, 1847. In 1851 and 1852 he was member of the House of Deputies in Berlin. Since 1870, although an ordinary professor of theology, he has had no students, because he was excommunicated for refusing to accept the Vatican decrees. He has always striven to make Catholicism, in the spirit of the New Testament, accord with the requirements and conceptions of our time. He is the author of De natura conscientiae, Braunschweig, 1852; Traducianismus an Creaturismus? 1856; and other Latin academic dissertations. He died at Bonn, Aug. 5, 1886.

MEINHOLD, Johannes, Lic. Theol. (Greifswald, 1884), Lutheran; b. at Cammin, Pomerania, Germany, Aug. 12, 1861; studied at the universities of Leipzig, Berlin, Tübingen, and Greifswald; became privates-docent of theology at Greifswald, Dec. 17, 1874. He is the author of Die Composition des Buches Daniel (Habilitationsschrift), 1884.

MENZEL, Andreas, Lic. Theol. (Breslau, 1843), D.D. (Breslau, 1857), Old Catholic; b. at Mehlbach, East Prussia, Nov. 25, 1815; studied theology at Braunsberg, 1837–41; was ordained priest, 1841; became vicar at Braunsberg, 1841; stipendiar in the city of Braunsberg, 1845; professor extraordinary of theology in the University there, 1850; ordinary professor of systematic theology, 1853; at Bonn, 1847. In 1851 and 1852 he was member of the House of Deputies in Berlin. Since 1870, although an ordinary professor of theology, he has had no students, because he was excommunicated for refusing to accept the Vatican decrees. He has always striven to make Catholicism, in the spirit of the New Testament, accord with the requirements and conceptions of our time. He is the author of De natura conscientiae, Brauns-} proctor in convocation for diocese of Gloucester and Bristol; since 1851, examining chaplain to bishop of Rochester (afterwards St. Alban's); since 1870, member of governing council of Keble College, Oxford. He was select preacher to the University of Oxford, 1881–82; Bampton lecturer, 1882; examiner in theology at Oxford, 1877–79, and private professor of the English language. He is the author of Christian Meaning of the Psalms, and Supernatural Character of Christian Truth, Oxford, 1862; Fundamental Principle of the Christian Ministry, 1867 (two volumes of university sermons); Household Prayer, London, 1884; Parish Sermons, 1877; The One Mediator (Bampton Lectures), 1894. With Dr. William Bright he edited Latin Version of the Prayer-Book, 1885, 3d ed. 1877.

MESSNER, (Karl Ferdinand) Hermann, Lic. Theol. (Göttingen, 1856), D.D. (hon., Wien, 1875), German theologian; b. at Östfeldes (Altmark), Prussia, Oct. 26, 1824; studied at Halle and Berlin, 1857–61; became privat-docent of theology at Jena, 1865; professor extraordinary there, 1869; ordinary professor in the philosophical faculty at Tübingen, 1869; ordinary professor of theology at Giessen, 1873; at Heidelberg, 1875. He is the author of Meletemata Ignatianorum, Critica de epistolarii Ignatianarum versamentum, Edinburgh, 1884; and other Latin academical dissertations. He died at Bonn, Aug. 5, 1886.
MEUSS, Eduard, Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1854), D.D. (Berlin, 1860), Protestant theologian; b. at Ramsbury, Wilts., Jan. 28, 1827; entered Trinity College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (second-class in classics) 1847, M.A. 1850; ordained deacon 1851, priest 1852; was a fellow of Trinity College, Oxford, 1847-60, and tutor in it, 1851-59; in 1856 published classics in examiners; preacher at the Chapel Royal, Whitehall, 1856; select preacher before the University of Oxford, 1855-56, 1856-59, 1857-70; examiner for the Johnson theological scholarship at Oxford, 1850; one of her Majesty's inspectors of schools from 1859 to 1869; examining chaplain to Bishop Christopher Wordsworth, 1869-85; since 1868 rector of Bickling, Norfolk; and since 1869 non-residentiary canon of Lincoln. He was tutor to the late and present Marquis of Lothian from 1847-53, when the rest of the family, with their exception, joined the Church of Rome. In 1853 he founded the Anglo-Continental Society (now numbering six hundred, with two hundred publications), for making known upon the Continent the principles of the Anglican Church, and promoting the members of the Episcopal Church abroad. As secretary of this society he has edited many dogmatic and controversial treatises in Latin, Italian, Spanish, etc. He attended the Bonn Conference of 1873, and formed one of the Committee on the Doctrine of the Procession of the Holy Spirit. His theological standpoint is that of the historical school of Anglican divines, commencing with Bishop Andrews, and ending with Dean Hook and Bishop Christopher Wordsworth." Since 1877 he has edited The Foreign Church Chronicle and Review. His writings are very numerous (see list in Crockford's Clerical Directory for 1899), and include contributions to Smith's Dictionaries of the Bible and of Christian Antiquities, The Bible (Speaker's Commentary) (Joel and Obadiah, 1878; Ephesians, 1850), The Pulpit Commentary (Leticticus, 1882), Theological Library (Is Dogma a Necessity? 1883), etc. Of general interest may be mentioned, The Practical Theology of the Church of Rome, London, 1856; Correspondence with Old Catholics and Orientals, 1877-78, 4 series; The Old Catholic Movement, 1877; Sketches of Dillinger (1879) and of Hyacinthe (1880); The Doctrine of the Church of England on the Holy Communion, 1885; editions of works of Bishop Cosin, Andrews, Hall, etc.

MICHAUD, Philibert Eugène, Christian Catho- lical. b. at Romans-sur-Isère, Aug. 9, 1839; in 1879, March 13, 1889; studied theology in the seminary at Dijon and at the Dominican College of St. Maximin in Provence; became curate of St. Roch, and then of the Madeleine, Paris; refused to accept the infallibility dogma, and so was dismissed; was Old-Catholic minister at Paris, but since 1876 has been professor of theology at Bern, Switzerland. He is the author of Guillaume de Champeaux et les écoles de Paris au XII siècle, d'après des documents inédits, Paris, 1867, 2d ed. 1867; L'Esprit et la Lettre dans la morale religieuse, 2 series, 1889 and 1870; Guignol et la Révolution dans l'Église romaine, M. Veysser son parti con- tinués par les archevêques et évêques de Paris, Tours, Vierges, Orléans, Verdun, Chartres, Moulins, etc., 1872, 2d ed. 1872; Plutôt la mort que le désordre, Appel aux anciens-catholiques de France, contre les révolutionnaires romanistes, 1872; Comment l'Église romaine n'est plus une Église catholique, 1872; Programme de réforme de l'Église d'Occident, proposé aux anciens-catholiques et aux autres communions chrétiennes, 1872; Les faux libéraux de l'Église romaine, Réponse au R. P. Perraud (depuis évêque d'Autun), et Lettres de polémique, 1872; De la falsification des catéchismes français et des manuels de théologie par le parti romaniste, de 1870 à 1888, 1872; La Papauté antichrétienne, 1873; Le mouvement contemporain des Églises, Études religieuses et politiques: I. La nouvelle Église romaine; II. Decours des gouvernements et des peuples encers la nouvelle Église romaine; III. Les anciens-catho- liques et la réunion des Églises; IV. La situation morale et religieuse en France, 1874; De l'état présent de l'Église catholique-romaine en France, ouvrage in- terdit en France sous le ministère de M. Buffet (de l'ordre moral), 1875, 2d ed. Bonn, 1876; Étude stratic qui contre Rome, Paris, 1876; Catéchisme catholique, Bern, 1876; Discussion sur les sept conciles du parti réformé, tradition- nel et libéral, 1878; Louis XIV. et Innocent XI., Paris, 1882-83, 4 vols.; Quelques Réformes scolaires, Chaux-de-fonds, 1884; Almé. Steck et ses Poésies, Bern, 1885; numerous critical, literary, historical, and philosophical articles in Swiss periodicals.

MICHIELSEN, Alexander, Ph.D., Lutheran; b. in the year 1802; pastor at Lübeck; d. at Schwerin, June 3, 1885. He was the brother-in-law of the poet Geibel, and noted as the translator of the writings of Bishop Martensen and other Danish authors into German.

MILLIGAN, William, D.D. (St. Andrew's, 1822), Church of Scotland; b. at Edinburgh, March 15, 1831; graduated at St. Andrew's University, April, 1839; was settled at Cameron, Fife, 1844; at Kilconquhar, 1850; and appointed professor of divinity and biblical criticism in the University of Aberdeen, 1880. He was moderator of the General Assembly in 1882, and is now principal clerk of the Assembly of the Church of Scotland. He has engaged in theological reviews and other periodicals, he has published Words of the New Testament as altered by Transmission and ascertained by Modern Criticism (with Dr. Roberts), Edinburgh, 1878; Resurrection MINER. 145

MITCHELL.

of our Lord, London, 1881, 3d thousand 1884; The Revelation of St. John (Baird Lecture, 1883), 1886; and commentaries on the Gospel (with Dr. Moulton, 1880) and on the Revelation of John (1883), in Schaff's Popular Commentary, New York and Edinburgh.

MINER, Alonzo Ames, S.T.D. (Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1863); LL.D. (Tufts College, College Hill, Mass., 1875), Universalist; b. at Lempster, N.H., Aug. 14, 1814; was public-school teacher at intervals, 1830-35; became principal of Unity (N.H.) scientific and military academy, 1835; pastor at Methuen, Mass., 1839; Lowell, 1842; Boston, since 1848. He was president of Tufts College, College Hill, Mass., 1862-76; since 1869 has been a member of the State Board of Education; since 1873, chairman of the board of visitors of the State Normal Art School; is president of the State Temperance Alliance; was Prohibition candidate for governor, 1878; was original projector of the Universalist Publishing House, Boston. He delivered the 10th Sunday lecture before the municipal authorities of Boston, 1855; was elected by the Legislature an overseer of Harvard College, 1863; was chaplain of the Massachusetts Senate, 1864. Besides numerous pamphlets, he has published Bible Exercises, Boston, 1854, last ed. 1856; Old Forts taken, 1878, last ed. 1885.

M itchell, Alexander Ferrier, D.D. (St. Andrew's, 1858, 9), Church of Scotland; b. at Brechin, Sept. 10, 1822; studied literature, philosophy, and theology at University of St. Andrews, 1837-41; graduated M.A., 1841; became minister of the parish of Durnoch, in the presbytery and county of Forfar, 1847; professor of Hebrew and Oriental languages in the College of St. Mary in the University of St. Andrew's, 1848; transferred to the chair of ecclesiastical history and divinity in the same college, 1860. From 1856 to 1874 he was convener (chairman) of the Church of Scotland's Jewish Mission; visited the religions of the mission in Turkey, and recommended the occupation of Alexandria, Beyrouth, and Constantinople; has been convener of the Assembly's committee on the minutes of the Westminster Assembly since its institution; has been one of the Church of Scotland's representatives at all the General Councils of the Reformed Churches, and is the convener of its committee on the desiderata of Presbyterian history. He is the author of The Westminster Confession of Faith, a Contribution to the Study of its History and the Defence of its Teaching, Edinburgh, 1866, 3d ed. 1887; The Wadderburns and their Work, or the Sacred Poetry of the Scottish Reformation in its Relation to that of Germany, 1887; Minutes of the Westminster Assembly from November, 1644, to March, 1649, with Historical Introduction, 1874; Historical Notice of Archbishop Hamilton's Catechism (prefixed to black-letter reprint of the same), 1882; The Westminster Assembly, its History and Standards (Baird Lecture for 1882), London, 1883; The Catechisms of the Second Reformation, 1886. He edited in 1860 the Sum of Saving Knowledge, translated into Modern Greek by the late Professor Edward Masson, and in 1876 the late Professor Crawford's The Preaching of the Cross, and other Sermons; and has contributed to journals and encyclopedias articles on historical topics.

Mitchell, Arthur, D.D. (Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1876), Presbyterian; b. at Hudson, N.Y., Aug. 13, 1855; graduated at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1883, and at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1884; was tutor in Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1853-54; became pastor of Third Church, Richmond, Va., 1859; of Second Church, Morris-town, N.J., 1881; of First Church, Chicago, Ill., 1886; of First Church, Cleveland, O., 1881; secretary of Board of Foreign Missions, New-York City, 1884. He has published many discourses in pamphlet form.

Mitchell, Edward Cushing, D.D. (Colby University, Waterville, Me., 1870), Baptist; b. at East Bridgewater, Mass., Sept. 20, 1829; graduated at Waterville College (now Colby University), Me., 1849, and at Newton (Mass.) Theological Institution, 1853; was resident graduate for a year; pastor at Calais, Me., 1854-56; Brockport, N.Y., 1857-58; Rockford, Ill., 1858-63; professor of biblical interpretation, Alton, Ill., 1863-70; of Hebrew and Old-Testament Literature, the University of Chicago, 1870-77; of Hebrew, Regent's Park College, London, Eng., 1877; president Baptist Theological School, Paris, France, 1878-82; president Roger Williams University, Nashville, Tenn., 1884-85. He edited The Present Age, Chicago, 1868-84; and delivered the Lowell Institute lectures for 1884, upon Biblical Science and Modern Discovery; during the same year, courses at the Hebrew school in Morgan Park, Ill., and Worcester, Mass.; and during 1885 in Brooklyn, N.Y. He edited and enlarged Benjamin Davies' Hebrew Lexicon, Andover, 1880; and revised and re-edited Davies' Gesenius' Hebrew Grammar (4th ed. of Kautzsch), 1881; and has written A Critical Handbook: A Guide to the Authenticity, Canon, and Text of the New Testament, Andover, 1881; Les sources du Nouveau Testament, Recherches sur l'authenticite, le canon, et le texte du Nouveau Testament, Paris, 1882; Hebrew Introduction, An Elementary Hebrew Grammar and Reading Book, Andover, 1883.

Mitchell, Hinckley Gilbert, Ph.D. (Leipzig University, 1879), Methodist; b. at Lee, Oneida County, N.Y., Feb. 22, 1846; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1873, and B.D. at Boston (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1876; studied in Germany, 1876-79; joined Central New-York Conference, 1879; became pastor at Fayette, N.Y., 1879; tutor of Latin, and instructor in Hebrew, Wesleyan University, 1880; instructor of Hebrew and Old-Testament exegesis in Boston University, 1883; professor of the same, 1884. He is the secretary of the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis; and is the author of Final Constructions of Biblical Hebrew, Leipzig, 1879; Hebrew Lessons, Boston, 1884, 2d ed. 1885.

Mitchell, Samuel Thomas, African Methodist-Episcopal layman; b. at Toledo, O., Sept. 24, 1851; graduated at Wilberforce University, Xenia, O., 1870; was principal of Prentiss-street School, Springfield, O., 1875-78; dean of the Lincoln Institute, State Normal School, Jefferson City, Mo., 1879-84; since June 20, 1884, has been president of Wilberforce University. He presided over the Missouri State Teachers' Association at Jefferson City, 1873; was member of General Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, 1878; is founder of the present educational system in that denomination.
MOBERLY, Right Rev. George, D.C.L. (Oxford, 1836), lord bishop of Salisbury (Sarum), Church of England; b. in St. Petersburg, Russia, Oct. 10, 1803; d. at Salisbury, July 6, 1885. He was educated at Balliol College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1825, M.A. 1829; won English essay prize, 1826; was ordained deacon 1829, priest 1828; was fellow and tutor of Balliol College; public examiner in the university, 1830 and 1833–35; select preacher, 1833, 1858, 1863; head master of Winchester College, 1835–66; rector of Brightstone, Isle of Wight, 1866–69; fellow of Winchester College, 1890–70; Davenport lecturer, 1895; canon of Chester, 1863–90; consecrated bishop, 1869. He was the author of Practical Sermons, London, 1838; Sermons preached at Winchester College, 1844, 2d series (with a preface on fagging) 1848; The Sayings of the Great Forty Days between the Resurrection and Ascension, regarded as Outlines of the Kingdom of God (five sermons) 1844, 2d ed. (with An Examination of Mr. Newman's Theory of Development) 1846; The Proposed Degradation and Declaration considered (a letter addressed to the master of Balliol), Oxford, 1849; All Saints, Kings, and Priests (two sermons on papal aggression, preached at Winchester), London, 1850; The Law of the Love of God revealed (sermons) 1854; Sermon on the Beatitudes, Oxford, 1860; Five Short Letters to Sir William Harcourt, on the Studies and Discipline of Public Schools, London, 1861; The Administration of the Holy Spirit in the Body of Christ (Bampton Lectures), 1868; Sermons at Brightstone, 1868, 3d ed. 1874. He was one of the "five clergymen" (Henry Alford, John Barrow, Charles John Ellicott, William Gilson Humphry), who published a revised version of John, Romans, Corinthians, Galatians, and James; and a member of the New-Testament Revision Company.

MOELLER, Ernst Wilhelm, Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1854), D.D. (kon. Halle, 1888), German theologian; b. at Erfurt, Oct. 1, 1827; studied at Berlin, Halle, and Bonn, 1847–51; became privat-docent at Halle, 1854; pastor near Halle, 1863; ordinary professor of church history at Kiel, 1873. He holds to the Vermittlungstheologie. He is the author of Gregorii Nysseni, doctrinæ et illustrativæ sum Origieniana comparativum, Halle, 1854; Geschichte der Kostomologie in der griechischen Kirche bis auf Origenes, 1860; Andreae Osianer, Leben und ausgewählte Schriften, Elberfeld, 1870, Ueber die Religion Plutaruchs, Kiel, 1891 (pp. 14); edited the 3d ed. of De Wette's commentaries on Galatians and Thessalonians (Leipzig, 1864), and the Pastoral Epistles and Hebrews (1897).

MOFFAT, James Clement, D.D. (Miami University, Oxford, O., 1853), Presbyterian; b. at Glencree, in the South of Scotland, May 30, 1811; graduated at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, N.J., 1835; tutor in Greek there, 1837; professor of Greek and Latin, Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1839; of Latin and modern history, Miami University, Oxford, Butler County, O., 1841; of Greek and Hebrew in a theological seminary, Cincinnati, O., 1852; of Latin and history, College of New Jersey (Princeton), 1853; and Thessalonians, 1858. Since 1861 he has been professor of church history in the Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, retaining Greek literary history until 1877. He is the author of Life of Dr. Chalmers, Cincinnati, 1853; Introduction to the Study of Esthetics, 1856, new ed. 1860; Comparative History of Religions, New York, 1871–73, 2 vols.; Song and Scenery, or a Summer Ramble in Scotland, London, 1874; Albyn, a Romance of Study (a poem) 1875; The Church in Scotland: History . . . to the First Assembly of the Reformed Church, Philadelphia, 1882; Church History in Brief, 1885.

MOFFAT, James David, D.D. (Hanover College, Ind., 1882; College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1886), Presbyterian; b. at New Lisbon, O., March 15, 1848; graduated at Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1869; studied at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1869–71; was stated supply of the Second Presbyterian Church, Wheeling, Va., 1871–73; pastor of the same, 1873–82; since has been president of Washington and Jefferson College.

MONOD, Guillaume, the son of Jean Monod, Reformed; b. at Copenhague, March 10, 1860; studied theology at Geneva; began his ministry at St. Quentin; in 1846 went to Lausanne; in 1849 to Alger; in 1853 to Rouen; in 1856 to Paris, and preached there as his brother Adolph's successor until 1874, when he opened a free church where he still preaches. Of his numerous publications may be mentioned, Vues nouvelles sur le christianisme, 1874; Mémoires de l'auteur des Vues nouvelles: Suite des mémoires du même, 1874.

MONOD, Jean Paul Fédéric, Reformed; b. at Paris, the son of preceding, Nov. 20, 1822; pastor at Marseilles, 1848–51; in 1848, professor of dogmatic theology at Montauban. He was made chevalier of the Legion of Honor, July 14, 1880. He has written many articles, and translated Neander's commentaries upon the Epistles of James and John, 1851 and 1854.

MONOD, Theodore, Reformed; b. in Paris, the son of Frederick Monod, Nov. 6, 1836; studied law, 1855–58; but, converted in New York, April, 1858, he turned to the ministry, and studied theology in the Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1858–60; until 1863 he preached among the French Canadians in Illinois; from 1864 till 1874 he was his father's successor in Paris; from 1875 till 1878 he was travelling agent of the Inner Mission work in France; but since 1878 he has been the successor of M. Montandon in Paris. From 1875 to 1879 he edited Le Libérateur, now absorbed in the Bulletin de la mission intérieure. His writings embrace Regardant à Jesus, 1862 (English trans., Looking unto Jesus, New York, 1864); The Gift of God (published in English), London, 1876 (in French, Paris, 1877); Life more Abundant, 1881.

MONRAD, Dittev Gothard, Danish Lutheran; b. at Copenhagen, Nov. 24, 1811; graduated at Copenhagen University in theology from its university; b. at New Lisbon, O., March 15, 1848; graduated at Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1869; studied at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1869–71; was stated supply of the Second Presbyterian Church, Wheeling, Va., 1871–73; pastor of the same, 1873–82; since has been president of Washington and Jefferson College.

MONRAD, Dittev Gothard, Danish Lutheran; b. at Copenhagen, Nov. 24, 1811; graduated in theology from its university; b. at New Lisbon, O., March 15, 1848; graduated at Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1869; studied at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1869–71; was stated supply of the Second Presbyterian Church, Wheeling, Va., 1871–73; pastor of the same, 1873–82; since has been president of Washington and Jefferson College.
been bishop of Lolland. His writings are numerous, but very many are of political, temporary, or local interest. He is best known by his World of Prayer, 1851 (English trans., Edinburgh, 1879). Of his later writings may be mentioned Laurentius Valla und das Konzil zu Florence, German trans., Goth., 1882; Festklange, Ger. trans., 1888.

MOORHOUSE, George, D.D. (Williams College, Williams-town, Mass., 1868), Congregationalist; b. in Andover, Mass., May 29, 1839; graduated at Williams College, Williams-town, Mass., 1851, and at Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1855; was pastor at Andover, Mass., 1855—61; at Oakland, Cal., 1861—72, and since 1874; professor of systematic theology and church history in the Pacific Theological Seminary, Oakland, since 1870; associate editor of The Pacific since 1863. He was one of the commission of twenty-five appointed by the National Council of Congregational Churches to prepare a statement of doctrine and a catechism (1881—84). He is the author of Historical Manual of the South Church, Andover, 1859; Handbook of the Congregational Church of California, 1863, 4th ed. 1882; The Religion of Loyalty, Oakland, 1865; The Prominent Characteristics of the Congregational Churches, San Francisco, 1866.

MOODY, Dwight Lyman, Congregational layman; b. at Northfield, Feb. 5, 1837; worked on a farm until seventeen years old, then became clerk in a store in Boston; joined a Congregational church; in 1856 went to Chicago; during the Civil War was employed by the Christian Commission, and after by the Young Men's Christian Association of Chicago as lay missionary. A church was the result of his efforts. This was burned in the great Chicago fire in 1871; but a new one, accommodating twenty-five hundred persons, has since been erected. From 1873 to 1875 he and Mr. I. D. Sankey (see title) held revival meetings in Great Britain, and they have since been associated in revival work upon an extensive scale there (again in 1883) and in America. Mr. Moody has published The Second Coming of the Christ, Chicago, 1877; The Way and the Word, 1877; Secret Power; or, The Secret of Success in Christian Life and Work, 1881; The Way to God, and how to find it, 1884. Several collections of his sermons have been published; e.g., Glad Tidings (New York, 1876), Great Joy (1877), To all People (1877); Best Thoughts and Discourses (with sketch of life and Sankey's), 1877. Arrows and Anecdotes (with sketch of his life and Sankey's), 1876; also Arrows and Anecdotes (with sketch of life), 1877.

MOORE, Dunlop, D.D. (Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1877), Presbyterian; b. at Lurgan, County Armagh, Ireland, July 25, 1830; studied at Edinburgh and Belfast, graduated 1854; was missionary of the Irish Presbyterian Church to Gujurat, India, 1855—67; to the Jews, Vienna, 1869—74; since 1875 has been pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, New Brighton, Penn. He assisted in translating the Scriptures into the Gujurati language; composed tracts on Mohammedanism and Jainism; and edited a monthly periodical, The Gyanupidpaka, in the same tongue; translated with Dr. S. T. Lowrie Nagelsbach's Isaiah, in the American Lange series (New York, 1878); and has contributed to various reviews.

MOORE, George Foot, D.D. (Marietta College, Marietta, O., 1885), Presbyterian; b. at West Chester, Penn., Oct. 15, 1851; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1872; and at Union (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, New York City, 1877; became pastor of the Putnam Presbyterian Church, Zanesville, O., 1878; Hitchcock professor of the Hebrew language and literature, Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1883.

MOORE, William Eves, D.D. (Marietta College, Marietta, O., 1873), Presbyterian; b. at Strauburg, Penn., April 21, 1837, and educated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1847; studied theology with Rev. Dr. Lyman H. Atwater at Fairfield, Conn.; became pastor at West Chester, Penn., 1850, and at Columbus, O., 1872. Since 1884 he has been permanent clerk of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church. He is the author of the New Digest of the Acts and Deliverances of the Presbyterian Church (New School), Philadelphia, 1881; Presbyterian Digest (United Church), 1873, new ed. 1886.

MOORE, William Walter, Presbyterian (Southern Church); b. at Charlotte, N.C., June 14, 1867; graduated at Davidson College, N.C., 1883, and at Union Theological Seminary, Hampden-Sidney, Va., 1881; became evangelist of Mecklenburg Presbyterian, N.C., 1881; pastor at Millersburg, Ky., 1882; associate professor of Oriental literature in that seminary, 1883.

MORAN, Most Rev. Patrick Francis, D.D., Roman Catholic; b. at Leighlinbridge, County Carlow, Ireland, Sept. 10, 1830; was graduated at the Irish College of St. Agatha, Rome, and made vice-president of it, and professor of Hebrew in the College of the Propaganda, 1866; became private secretary to Cardinal Cullen at Dublin, 1869, and bishop of Ossory, 1872. He is the author of Memoir of the Most Rev. Oliver Plunkett, Dublin, 1861; Essays on the Origin . . . of the Early Irish Church, 1864; History of the Catholic Archbishops of Dublin, 1865; History of the Persecution of William Cavendish and the Puritans, 1865; Acta S. Brendani, 1872; Monasticon Hibernicum, 1873; Spicilegium Ossoriense, being a Collection of Documents to illustrate the History of the Irish Church from the Reformation to the Year 1800, 1874—75, 2 vols.

MOREHOUSE, Henry Lyman, D.D. (University of Rochester, N.Y., 1879), Baptist; b. at Stanford, Dutchess County, N.Y., Oct. 2, 1834; graduated at the University of Rochester, N.Y., 1858, and at Rochester (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1864; became pastor of the First Baptist Church, East Saginaw, Mich., 1864; of East Avenue Baptist Church, Rochester, N.Y., 1873; corresponding secretary of the American Baptist Home Mission Society, and editor of the Baptist Home Mission Magazine.
MORISON. 148

MORISON, James, D.D. (Adrian College, Adrian, Mich., 1862; University of Glasgow, 1882), Evangelical Union; b. at Bathgate, Linlithgowshire, Scotland, Feb. 14, 1816; graduated in arts at the University of Edinburgh, and studied theology at the United Presbyterian Halls of Glasgow and Edinburgh; was pastor in Kilmarnock, 1840–51, and in Glasgow, 1851–84. From the first year of his pastorate he had a hard battle to fight for the doctrine of the universality of Christ's atonement. The battle continued for more than twenty years. The ecclesiastical outcome is a group of about six hundred adherents of the theory of 'the three great universalities:' (1) God's love to 'all,' (2) Christ's atonement for 'all,' (3) the Holy Spirit's influence shed forth on 'all.' He is the author of The Extent of the Atonement, London, 1842; Saving Faith, 1842; An Exposition of the Ninth Chapter of the Epistle to the Romans, 1849; Vindication of the University of the Atonement, 1861; A Polity for Evangelical Churches, 1863; A Critical Exposition of the Third Chapter of the Epistle to the Romans, 1866; A Practical Commentary on the Gospel of St. Matthew, 1870, 5th ed. 1883; do. on St. Mark, 1873, 3d ed. 1882 (the last two republished from last edition, Boston, Mark 1882, Matthew 1883).

MORRIS, Edward Daffydd, D.D. (Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1863), L.L.D. (Maryville College, Maryville, Tenn., 1853), Presbyterian; b. at Utica, N.Y., Oct. 31, 1825; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1849, and at Auburn (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1852; was pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Auster, N.Y., 1852–55; of the Second Church, Columbus, O., 1855–57; of the church historian of the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O., 1867–74, and since of theology. He was moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly at Cleveland, O., in 1875. Besides review articles, he has published Outlines of Christian Doctrine, Cincinnati, 1880 (only for students' use); Ecclesiastical, Treatise on the Church of Christ, Philadelphia, 1886.

MORRIS, John Gottlieb, D.D. (Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., 1839), L.L.D. (do. 1875), Lutheran; b. at York, Penn., Nov. 14, 1808; graduated at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1823, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1826; was pastor of the First English Lutheran Church, Baltimore, Md., 1827–60; librarian of the Peabody Institute in that city, 1860–63; since has been non-resident professor of pupil elecution and relations of science and revelation, in the theological seminary, Gettysburg, Penn.; lecturer on natural history in Pennsylvania College; was president of the Maryland State Bible Society, and vice-president of the Maryland Historical Society; has received diplomas from the Ante-Columbian Society of Northern Antiquaries of Denmark, from the Natur historische Gesellschaft of Nuremberg, and from the Royal Historical Society of London; and is a corresponding and honorary member of ten or twelve scientific and historical societies in the United States. He is the author or translator of Henry and Antonio (translated from Breitschneider), Philadelphia, 1851 (2d ed. under title To Rome and Back again, 1883); Von Leonhard's Geology (translated), New-York, 1840; Life of John Arndt, 1853; Martin Behaim, the German Cosmographer, 1853; Life of Catharine von Bora, 1856; The Blind Girl of Wittenberg, Philadelphia, 1856; Quaint Sayings and Doings concerning Luther, 1859; Catalogue of Lepidoptera of North America, 1890, and Synopsis of the Diurnal Lepidoptera of the United States, Smithsonian Institute (both Washington), 1862; The Lords Baltimore, Baltimore, 1874; Bibliotheca Lutherana, Philadelphia, 1876; Fifty Years in the Lutheran Ministry, 1878; A Day in Capernaum (trans. from Delitzsch), 1879; The Diet of Augsburg, 1879; Augsburg Confession and the Thirty-nine Articles, 1879; Journeys of Luther: their Relation to the Work of the Reformation, 1880; Luther at Wartburg and Coburg, 1882; Life of Luther (trans. from Kostlin), 1882; Lutheran Doctrine of the Lord's Supper, 1883; Memoirs of the Stark Family, 1886, etc.

MORSE, Richard Cary, Presbyterian; b. at Hudson, N.Y., Sept. 19, 1841; graduated at Yale College, 1862; studied at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1865–66, '67 (graduated), and at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1866–67; was ordained Dec. 21, 1868; was editor in New-York City, 1867–71; has been secretary of the executive committee of the Young Men's Christian Association of the United States and Canada since 1873.

MOULTON, William Feddian, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1874), Wesleyan; b. at Leek, Staffordshire, Eng., March 14, 1833; graduated at London University, 1856, and gained the gold medal for mathematics, and prizes for scriptural examination and bibli- cal criticism. In 1858 he was appointed classical tutor in the Wesleyan Theological College, Richmond; and in 1874 head master of the Leys School, Cambridge, a Wesleyan institution. In 1872 he was elected a member of the Royal Historical Society, made an honorary M.A. by Cambridge, 1877; and was a member of the New-Testament Company of Bible-revisers(1870–81). He translated and edited Winer's Grammar of New-Testament Greek, Edinburgh, 1870, 2d ed. 1876; and wrote History of the English Bible, London, 1875.

MUDGE, John, Christian; b. at Vauxhall, Canada West, April 17, 1834; was principal of Union School, Edwardsville, Mich.; minister at Maple Rapids, Mich., twenty years; county supe-intended of schools, Clinton County, Mich., six years; in 1882 became president of the Union Christian College, Merom, Ind.

MUELLER, George (originally Georg Friedrich), Plymouth Brother, founder of the Bristol Orphanage; b. at Kroppenstadt, near Halberstadt, Prussia, Sept. 27, 1805. After preliminary training at the Cathedral classical school at Halberstadt, at Heimersleben, under a classical tutor, and at the Nordhausen gymnasium, he entered the University of Halle, 1825. His early life had been careless, even profligate, and his reckless course involved him in pecuniary embarrassments. Once (during the Christmas holidays of 1821) he was imprisoned for debt contracted at a hotel in Wolfenbüttel. He often told deliberate lies. But shortly after entering the university he was converted, and, declining to receive any further support from his father, entered upon that life of faith in the Lord to supply his needs, which has been so remarkable. He determined to become a missionary, and meanwhile manifested his Christian zeal in visiting the sick, distributing tracts, and in conversing upon the subject of religion with his fellow-students. In August, 1826, he began to preach, having obtained license to do so in consequence of the very honorable testimonials he brought with him to the university. For two months he lived in Franke's Orphan House at Halle, in the free lodgings provided for poor divinity students. In March, 1829, having through ill health obtained release from military duty,—an obligation which he had feared would prevent him from accepting the society's appointment received June, 1828,—he went to London to prepare himself for missionary work among the Jews, in the service of the London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews. But after some months of the prescribed study of Hebrew, Chaldee, and German Jewish, he left the society, January, 1830; joined the Plymouth Brethren; became minister at Teignmouth; and married Mary Groves, the daughter of Kito's friend. Of his own accord he declined to receive any stated salary, abolished pew-rents, and from October, 1830, lived upon voluntary offerings put in the box provided for them in the chapel. This course often reduced himself and wife to great straits; but by prayer and simple faith their wants were always ultimately relieved. In 1832 he became pastor of Gideon Chapel, Bristol. Impressed by the number of destitute children he found in Bristol, he prayed for divine guidance in doing something for them. Being led thereto, as he believed, he collected the children at 8 A.M., gave them a piece of bread for breakfast, then taught them to read, and read the Bible to them for about an hour and a half. But the plan not working well, he abandoned it, and in 1834 started "The Scriptural Knowledge Institution for Home and Abroad," which was designed to assist day-schools, Sunday schools, and adult-schools; to circulate the Holy Scriptures; to aid missionary work; to board, clothes, and educate scripturally, whole orphan children. The institution, he decided, should have no patron but the Lord, no workers but believers, and no debts. Up to 1884 it had provided for the education of 95,143 children and grown persons in its schools; circulated over 1,000,000 copies or portions of the Bible; spent £108,633.12.s.5d. on missionary work; and trained up 6,892 orphans at a cost of £661,186.9s.2d. It is still flourishing. He then asked the Lord to give him a suitable house for the orphan children, assistants for the work, and a thousand pounds in money. And he was heard. Provided with assistants and money, he hired a house on Wilson Street, Bristol, and opened his orphanage on April 11, 1836. A second house was opened about eight months after the first. By June, 1837, he had received the asked-for thousand pounds. He then opened a third house; a fourth, March, 1844. He then bought a site on Ashley Down, near Bristol, and put up the first building, 1846. There are now there five immense orphan-houses, containing over two thousand inmates. The last one was opened in 1869. In February, 1870, his wife, who had so faithfully joined him in all his enterprises, died. After a time he re-married. Besides managing his orphanages and the institution, and preaching to his congregation, he has also taken missionary tours through the British Isles, the United States (going across the continent), and Canada (1877). In 1881 he visited the East, and in 1882 India. His work has been so successful that it does not in the ordinary way advertise any of his enterprises. But the circulation of his Life of Trust: Narrative of the Lord's Dealings with George Müller, first issued in 1857, and continued in 1841, 1844, and 1856, which has been reprinted in repeated editions in New York, translated into German (Stuttgart, 1844), and into French (Paris, 1848), and other books and pamphlets published under his auspices, secures public attention to them. It remains true, however, that the Orphanage has no endowment, and none of the usual machinery of support. Mr. Müller looks to God to supply all the thousands of children therein gathered, and to pay all the expenses of their care. Results have justified his confidence. Money comes in, sometimes at very critical moments, and the work is sustained. Besides the Narrative above referred to, Mr. Müller has published several addresses, London, 1876; Preaching Tours, 1883, etc. Cf. Mrs. E. R. Pitman, George Müller, London, 1885.
MULFORD. Elisha, LL.D. (Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1872); Episcopalian; b. at Montrose, Susquehanna County, Penn., Nov. 19, 1833; d. at Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 9, 1885. He graduated from Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1855; studied theology at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, at Andover, Mass., and in Halle und der Bussbriillerschafien, Freiburg-im-Br., 1880; professor, 1882; at Halle, 1884; at Giessen, 1886. He is the author of Der Kampf Ludwigs des Baiern mil der rb'mischen Kurie, Tübingen, 1879–80, 2 vols.; Die Anfänge des Minoritenordens und der Bussbrüderschaften, Freiburg-im-Br., 1885; The Nation, the Foundation of Civil Order and Political Life in the United States, New York, 1870, 9th ed. 1884; The Republic of God, an Institute of Theology, 1881, 7th ed. 1884.

The main feature of Dr. Mulford's theology, as presented in his Republic of God, is the union of the utmost liberty of philosophic thought with Christian dogmas. He urges the personality of God as the central principle of the universe, but in a form so comprehensive and elevated as to seem no longer incompatible with that conception of Deity, to which modern thought is approximating, of an infinite energy diffused throughout the universe, from whom all things proceed, and in whom they consist. The nature as well as the possibility of a revelation is based upon the posulate, that humanity is endowed potentially with personality as it exists in God. Revelation is the manifestation of the Divine personality in history, finding its highest and absolute expression in Christ. The organic relation of Christ to humanity involves the principle of the solidarity of the one, and the tendency to abstraction of the other. It was the burden of his teaching and conversation, that revelation was co-efficient with the reason; that it was through experience, but not from experience; that theology was the interpretation of life,—an appeal to life closing every theological argument; that the true centre of theology must be the living, present God, not every theological argument; that the true centre of theology must be the living, present God, not theological principles. Its own. It was meditated and conceived in that style. Among German theologians he was most indebted to Rothe, with whom he asserts the continuity of the Incarnation, the abiding presence of the spiritual or essential Christ as distinguished from the historical Christ. With Hegel he maintains that principle of realism, which was also characteristic of the great theologians of the scholastic age, that the highest and necessary thought of man is identical with reality; as in the case of the latter, the difficulty in understanding him springs mainly from what is distinctive in his theology, rather than from obscurity of style. Among German theologians he was most indebted to Rothe, with whom he asserts the continuity of the Incarnation, the abiding presence of the spiritual or essential Christ as distinguished from the historical Christ. With Hegel he maintains that principle of realism, which was also characteristic of the great theologians of the scholastic age, that the highest and necessary thought of man is identical with reality; as in the case of the latter, the difficulty in understanding him springs mainly from what is distinctive in his theology, rather than from obscurity of style. Among German theologians he was most indebted to Rothe, with whom he asserts the continuity of the Incarnation, the abiding presence of the spiritual or essential Christ as distinguished from the historical Christ. With Hegel he maintains that principle of realism, which was also characteristic of the great theologians of the scholastic age, that the highest and necessary thought of man is identical with reality; as in the case of the latter, the difficulty in understanding him springs mainly from what is distinctive in his theology, rather than from obscurity of style.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>MUNGER.</th>
<th>MYRBERG.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>national principle into theology, expanding the idea of the nation into the Republic of God,—the solidarity of mankind in the incarnate Christ.</td>
<td>MUSTON, Alexis, Lic. Theol., D.D. (both Strassburg, 1834), Reformed Church of France; b. at La Tour (Vallées Vaudoises), Feb. 11, 1810; educated at Lausanne and at Strassburg; ordained at La Tour, 1833; exiled from Piedmont (1835), he went to Nîmes, France, where he was naturalized; since 1836 has lived at Bourdeaux, first as assistant (1836—40), then as pastor. He is the author of Histoire des Vaudois, vol. i. Paris, 1834 (the occasion of his exile, it having been put by the Roman-Catholic hierarchy upon the Index); L'Israel des Alpes, Paris, 1851, 4 vols. (a complete history of the Waldenses, English trans. last ed. London, 1875, 2 vols.; German trans. Duisburg, 1857); articles in the Strassburg Revue de théologie, la Revue du protestantisme, etc. Cf. article Waldenses in Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia, vol. iii., p. 2476.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>MUNGER, Theodore Thornton, D.D. (Illinois College, Jacksonville, III., 1883), Congregationalist; b. at Bainbridge, Chenango County, N.Y., March 5, 1830; graduated from Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1851, and the theological seminary there, 1855; was pastor at Dorchester, Mass., 1856—60; Haverhill, 1862—70; Lawrence, 1871—75; lived in San José, Cal., and established a Congregational church, 1875—76; pastor at North Adams, Mass., 1877—85; since, pastor of United Church, New Haven, Conn. He is the author of On the Threshold, Boston, 1881, 30th ed. 1889 (reprinted London, Eng.); The Freedom of Faith, 1883, 16th ed. 1885 (two English reprints); Lamps and Paths, 1885; besides numerous sermons and contributions to literary magazines and religious newspapers.</td>
<td>MYRBERG, Otto Ferdinand, Ph.D. (Upsala, 1849), Lic. Theol. (Upsala, 1851), D.D. (by the King of Sweden, 1885), Lutheran; b. at Gothenburg, Sweden, April 26, 1824; studied theology at Upsala, and received holy orders in 1850; became dean of the Trinity Church of Upsala, and professor of exegetical theology at the University of Upsala, 1866. He is the author of In librum quod Joella inscribitur brevia commentatio academica, Upsala, 1851; De schismate Donatistarum, dissertatio academ., 1856; Commentarius in epistolam Johanneum, diss. acad., 1859; Om aposteln Petrus och den äldsta kyrkans falska gnosis (&quot;On the Apostle Peter and the False Gnosis of the Early Church&quot;), 1863; Den hel. skrifts lära om försoningen (&quot;The Doctrine of the Holy Scriptures on the Atonement&quot;), 1870; Pauli bref till Romarne i ny översättning med textkritiska noter (&quot;The Epistle to the Romans, a new translation with Textual Critical Notes&quot;), 1871; Salomos ordsprak, Från grundtexten översatt (&quot;The Proverbs, translated from the Hebrew&quot;), 1875; and several pamphlets.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>MURPHY, James Gracey, LL.D., D.D. (both from Trinity College, Dublin, 1842 and 1880 respectively), Presbyterian; b. at Ballyaltikilikan, parish of Comber, County Down, Ireland, Jan. 12, 1808; entered Trinity College, Dublin, as sizar, 1827, became scholar 1830, graduated A.B. 1833; was minister at Ballysharmon, 1836; classical head master at the Royal Belfast Academical Institution, 1841; professor of Hebrew, Presbyterian College, Belfast, 1847. He is the author of A Latin Grammar, London, 1847; A Hebrew Grammar, 1857; Nineteen Impossibilities of Part First of Colenso on the Pentateuch shown to be Possible, Belfast, 1868; The Human Mind, 1873; and of the well-known commentaries upon Genesis (Edinburgh, 1864), Exodus (1866), Leviticus (1873), The Psalms (1875), Revelation (London, 1882), Daniel (1884), all reprinted in United States except Revelation.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
NEVIN, Alfred, D.D. (Lafayette College, Easton, Penn.), LL.D. (Western University of Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh, Penn.), Presbyterian; b. at Shippensburg, Penn., March 14, 1816; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1834; admitted to the bar at Carlisle, Penn., 1837; studied theology at the Western (Presbyterian) Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1837–40; was licensed by the presbytery of Carlisle, 1840; became pastor of the Cedar-Grove Church, Lancaster County, Penn., 1840; of the German Reformed Church, Chambersburg, 1845; of the Second Presbyterian Church, Lancaster, Penn., 1852; of the Alexander Church (which he organized), Philadelphia, 1860, resigned 1861; was editor (and proprietor) of The Standard, Philadelphia (now The North-western Presbyterian, Chicago), 1860–63; of The Presbyterian Weekly, Philadelphia (now The Baltimore Observer), 1872–74; and of The Presbyterian Journal, Philadelphia, 1875–80; stated supply of the Union Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, from September, 1855, to January, 1886. He addressed the alumni of Jefferson College, 1858; was lecturer in the National School of Oratory, Philadelphia, 1878–80; was one of the original members of the Presbyterian Historical Society, Philadelphia (organized 1852, incorporated 1857), and trustee 1858–60; member of the Presbyterian Board of Publication, 1858–61; trustee of Lafayette College, 1858–61, and of the Presbyterian Hospital in Philadelphia, 1871–78; has been a number of times a commissioner to the General Assembly, and by its appointment has represented the Presbyterian Church in the Massachusetts Congregational Association (1855), in the synod of the Reformed Dutch Church (1874), and in the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Canada (1875). He was moderator of the synod of Phila-

NEVILLE, Jules Ernst, Swiss religious philosopher; b. at Chancy, near Geneva, Dec. 13, 1816; studied at the University of Geneva; became licentiate in theology, and was ordained in 1839; was professor of philosophy in the university, 1844; removed (1846) in consequence of the Genevan revolution, and has since held no official position, except during 1860–61 when he was professor of apologetics in the theological faculty; but he lectures in the department of letters, and is an admired preacher. He has written many books (see Lichtenberger, vol. xiii., pp. 140, 147). The following have been translated: Modern Atheism; or, The Heavenly Father, Boston, 1867, 2d ed. 1882; The Problem of Evil, New York, 1871; The Theory and Practice of Representative Elections, London, 1872; The Christ, Edinburgh, 1880; Modern Physics: Studies Historical and Philosophical, 1883.

NEELY, Right Rev. Henry Adams, D.D. (Ilobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1806; Bishops' College, Quebec, Can., 1875), Episcopalian, bishop of the diocese of Maine; b. at Fayetteville, Oneida County, N.Y., May 14, 1830; graduated at Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1859; was tutor in the college 1850–52, while studying theology under Bishop De Lancey; became rector of Calvary Church, Utica, N.Y., 1852; of Christ Church, Rochester, 1855; chaplain of Ilobart College, 1862; assistant minister of Trinity Church, with charge of Trinity Chapel, New-York City, 1864; consecrated bishop, 1867. He is a "conservative Anglican." He is the author of occasional sermons, review articles, etc.

NEIL, Charles, Church of England; b. in St. John's Wood, London, May 14, 1811; educated at Trinity Hall, Cambridge; graduated B.A. 1832, M.A. 1836; was ordained deacon 1836, priest 1839; became curate of Bradford Abbas, near Sherborne, 1841, 1845; vicar of St. Paul's, Bethnal Green, 1868; incumbent of St. Matthias, Poplar, London, 1875. He was called to the bar (Inner Temple), 1864. He is a liberal Evangelical Churchman. He is joint editor of The Clergyman's Magazine, London, 1870, sqq. He is the author of Eleven Diagrams illustrating the Lord's Prayer, London, 1867; Holy Teaching (key to preceding), 1867; The Expositor's Commentary (vol i. Romans, 1877, 2d ed. 1882); A Classified List of Subjects proposed for Discussion at the Meeting of Rudicopai Chapelfs, 1881; The Christian Visitor's Handbook, 1882; edited John Todd's Index Rerum, London, 1884; with Canon Spence and J. S. Exell, Thirty Thousand Thoughts, 1883, sqq. (to be completed in 6 vols.). Some of his tracts and pamphlets are, Am I answerable for my Belief? 1871; Parochial Reason Why, 1872; Cecilia, or Near the Museum, 1873; The Divine Aspects of Redemption, 1875; The Preaching and Divine Aspects of Redemption, 1875; The Preaching and Divine Aspects of Redemption, 1875; Open-air Preaching, or a Common Sense Answer to the Common Cry of the illuseum, 1873; The Preaching and Value of the Doctrine of Christ crucified, 1875; Open-air Preaching, or a Common Sense Answer to the Common Cry of the illuseum, 1873; The Preaching and Value of the Doctrine of Christ crucified, 1875; Open-air Preaching, or a Common Sense Answer to the Common Cry of the illuseum, 1873; The Preaching and Value of the Doctrine of Christ crucified, 1875; Open-air Preaching, or a Common Sense Answer to the Common Cry of the illuseum, 1873; The Preaching and Value of the Doctrine of Christ crucified, 1875; Open-air Preaching, or a Common Sense Answer to the Common Cry of the illuseum, 1873; The Preaching and Value of the Doctrine of Christ crucified, 1875; Open-air Preaching, or a Common Sense Answer to the Common Cry of Chronicles and Kings, historical and geographical card), 1884.

NESTLE, (Christoph) Eberhard, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1874), Lic. Theol. (hyn., Tübingen, 1883), Evangelical; b. at Stuttgart, Württemberg, May 1, 1851; studied in Stuttgart, at the evangelical theological seminaries at Blaubeuren and Tübingen, and at Leipzig (1874–75), and in England (1875–77); was tutor at the evangelical theological seminary at Tübingen, 1877–80; diaconus at Münzingen, Württemberg, 1880–83; and since has been gymnasia professor at Ulm. He is an adherent of the Vermittlungstheologie. He has published Die israelitischen Eigennamen nach ihren religiösgeschichtlichen Bedeutung (prize essay of the Tyler Society), Haarlem, 1876; Conradi Pellicani de modo legendi atque intelligendi Hebrarum, Tübingen, 1877; Psalterium tetratum (Greece, Syriac, Chaldais, Latin), Tübingen, London, Leiden, Paris, 1879; Tischendorf's Septuaginta, 6th ed. Leipzig, 1889 (with appendix, Veteris Testamenti graeci codices Vaticanus et Sinaiticus cum textu recepto collati); Brevis lingua Syriaca grammatica, litteratura, chresistoma, cum glossario, Carlsruhe and Leipzig, 1881.

NEVIN, Right Rev. Henry Adams, D.D. (Ilobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1806; Bishops' College, Quebec, Can., 1875), Episcopalian, bishop of the diocese of Maine; b. at Fayetteville, Oneida County, N.Y., May 14, 1830; graduated at Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1859; was tutor in the college 1850–52, while studying theology under Bishop De Lancey; became rector of Calvary Church, Utica, N.Y., 1852; of Christ Church, Rochester, 1855; chaplain of Ilobart College, 1862; assistant minister of Trinity Church, with charge of Trinity Chapel, New-York City, 1864; consecrated bishop, 1867. He is a "conservative Anglican." He is the author of occasional sermons, review articles, etc.

NAVILLE, Jules Ernst, Swiss religious philosopher; b. at Chancy, near Geneva, Dec. 13, 1816; studied at the University of Geneva; became licentiate in theology, and was ordained in 1839; was professor of philosophy in the university, 1844; removed (1846) in consequence of the Genevan revolution, and has since held no official position, except during 1860–61 when he was professor of apologetics in the theological faculty; but he lectures in the department of letters, and is an admired preacher. He has written many books (see Lichtenberger, vol. xiii., pp. 140, 147). The following have been translated: Modern Atheism; or, The Heavenly Father, Boston, 1867, 2d ed. 1882; The Problem of Evil, New York, 1871; The Theory and Practice of Representative Elections, London, 1872; The Christ, Edinburgh, 1880; Modern Physics: Studies Historical and Philosophical, 1883.

NAVILLE, Jules Ernst, Swiss religious philosopher; b. at Chancy, near Geneva, Dec. 13, 1816; studied at the University of Geneva; became licentiate in theology, and was ordained in 1839; was professor of philosophy in the university, 1844; removed (1846) in consequence of the Genevan revolution, and has since held no official position, except during 1860–61 when he was professor of apologetics in the theological faculty; but he lectures in the department of letters, and is an admired preacher. He has written many books (see Lichtenberger, vol. xiii., pp. 140, 147). The following have been translated: Modern Atheism; or, The Heavenly Father, Boston, 1867, 2d ed. 1882; The Problem of Evil, New York, 1871; The Theory and Practice of Representative Elections, London, 1872; The Christ, Edinburgh, 1880; Modern Physics: Studies Historical and Philosophical, 1883.
NEWMAN.

NEVIN, Edwin Henry, D.D. (Franklin College, New Athens, O., 1870), Presbyterian; b. at Shippensburg, Cumberland County, Penn., May 9, 1814; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1833, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1838; became pastor at Portsmouth, O., 1837; president of Franklin College, New Athens, O., 1841; pastor at Mount Vernon, O., 1845; at Cleveland, O., 1851; Lancaster, Penn., 1853; in Philadelphia (First Reformed), 1870; retired from the pastorate in 1875, and joined the Central Presbyterian Church. He is the author of numerous hymns, which are found in nearly all the evangelical hymn-books in the United States; of several pamphlets; and of "Man of Prayer," a Manual, and, like him, has left the Church of England, in which he was born; but, unlike him, he has thrown away all religious belief. His writings are numerous. Of theological interest are, "History of Hebrew Monarchy," London, 1847: "The Soul, its Sources and Aspirations," 1849; Phases of Faith, Passages from my own Creed, 1850; Catholic Union, Essay toward a Church of the Future, 1854; Theism, Doctrinal and Practical, 1858.

NEWMAN, His Eminence John Henry, cardinal deacon of the Roman-Catholic Church; b. in London, June 27, 1805; educated at Worcester College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (double first-class), 1826; was fellow of Balliol, 1826-30, but resigned because unable conscientiously to subscribe to the Thirty-nine Articles, which was then requisite before obtaining a master's degree. From 1830 to 1831 he lived and travelled in the East; became classical tutor at Bristol College, 1834, and in Manchester New College, 1840; professor of Latin in University College, London, 1846. He resigned in 1863, and has since devoted himself to literature. He is the brother of Cardinal Newman, and, like him, has left the Church of England, in which he was born; but, unlike him, he has thrown away all religious belief. His writings are numerous. Of theological interest are, History of Hebrew Monarchy, London, 1847: The Soul, its Sources and Aspirations, 1849; Phases of Faith, Passages from my own Creed, 1850; Catholic Union, Essay toward a Church of the Future, 1854; Theism, Doctrinal and Practical, 1858.
of his college; in 1828 became incumbent of St. Mary's, Oxford, and chaplain of Littlemore in the neighborhood of Oxford until 1832, but retained his incumbency until 1843, standing in the highest esteem for his noble mental and moral qualities, and wielding a great influence upon the undergraduates. He stood with Pusey as recognized leader of the High Church party. He suggested in the present of the Tracts for the Times, and wrote No. 90 (the last of the series), which appeared March, 1841, in which he endeavored to show how the Thirty-nine Articles may be interpreted in the Roman-Catholic sense.

In 1842 he established at Littlemore a kind of monastery, of which he was head for three years. At length, in 1845, he took the step to which his avowed principles logically led him: seceded to the Church of Rome, and entered her priesthood. He was in 1847 appointed to found the Oratory of St. Philip Neri, in England; in 1854, rector of the newly founded Catholic University at Dublin; resigned in 1858, and returned to Birmingham to take charge of a school for the sons of Roman-Catholic gentry at Edgbaston, near that city. On May 12, 1879, Pope Leo XIII. created him a cardinal deacon of the Holy Roman Church.

In 1870-79, 36 vols.; these include Parochial and Plain Sermons, 8 vols.; and three other volumes of sermons; five volumes of miscellanies; two religious novels, Loss and Gain, or The Story of a Convert, 1848; Calista, a Sketch of the Third Century, 1856; his autobiography, Apologia pro vita sua, 1864; Arias of the Fourth Century, 1885; Lectures on Justification, 1863; Two Essays on Biblical and on Ecclesiastical Miracles, 1845; Essay on the Development of Christian Doctrine, 1845; Difficulties of Anglicans, 1850, 2 vols.; Essay in Aid of the Grammar of Assent, 1870. He wrote "Lead, Kindly Light," and other hymns. Cf. Jennings: Story of Cardinal Newman's Life, London, 1882.

NEWTH, Samuel, D.D. (Rochester Seminary, N.Y., 1884), LL.D. (Wesleyan University, Athens, Tenn., 1882); b. in New York City, Sept. 1, 1829; graduated at Cazenovia Seminary, 1848; entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 1848; was editor of The New-Orleans Advocate, 1850-51; pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist-Episcopal Church, Washington, D.C., 1869-73, 1875-78; and chaplain to the United States Senate, 1869-75. He visited Greenland in 1870. In December, 1873, he was appointed by President Grant inspector of United States consulates, and in this capacity made a tour of the world, 1873-74. From 1882 to 1884 he preached in the Madison-ave. Congregational Church, New York City. He was Gen. Grant's pastor, 1869-85. He is a member of the British Society of Biblical Archæology. He is the author of From Dan to Beersheba, or The Land of Promise as it now appears, New York, 1844; The Thrones and Palaces of Babylon and Nineveh, from the Persian Gulf to the Mediterranean, 1870; Sermons preached in the Metropolitan Church, Washington, D.C., 1876; Christianity Triumphant, New York, 1884.

NEWTH, Samuel, D.D. (Glasgow, 1875), Congregationalist; b. in London, Feb. 15, 1821; graduated at Cazenovia Seminary, 1842; was pastor at Broseley, Salop, 1842; professor of classics and mathematics, Western College, Plymouth, 1845; of mathematics and ecclesiastical history, New College, London, 1854; and since 1872 has been professor of New-Testament exegesis and ecclesiastical history. He was a member of the New-Testament Revision Company, 1870-81; and chairman of the Congregational Union of England and Wales, 1890. He is the author of Elements of Mechanics, London, 1850, 6th ed. 1884; The Book of Natural Philosophy, 1854, 40th thousand 1885; Mathematical Examples, 1850, 3d ed. 1871; Memoir of Rev. Alfred Neve, 1878; Lectures on Bible Revision, 1851.

NEWTON, Richard, D.D. (Kenyon College, Gambier, O., 1845), Episcopal (Low Church); b. in Liverpool, Eng., July 25, 1818; graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1836, and at General Theological Seminary, New York City, 1839; became rector of St. Paul's Church, Philadelphia, 1840; of Church of Epiphany, 1882; of Church of the Covenant, 1882. He has published twenty-three volumes in all; some of these have been translated into more than twenty different languages; they are mostly discourses to children and youth. Of those recently issued may be mentioned, Pearls from the East, Stories and Incidents from Bible History, Philadelphia, 1884; Covenant Names and Privileges, New York, 1882; A Bible Portrait-Gallery, Philadelphia, 1885; Heroes of the Reformation, 1885.

NEWTON, Richard Heber, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1881), Episcopal (Broad Churchman); b. in Philadelphia, Oct. 31, 1810; studied in the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1826-28, and at General Theological Seminary, New York, 1832-34; A Book of the Beginnings, 1884; l'hislistin of the Hebrew of the Bible, 1885; Problems, 1886.

NEWTON, Richard Heber, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1881), Episcopal (Broad Churchman); b. in Philadelphia, Oct. 31, 1810; studied in the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1826-28, and at General Theological Seminary, New York, 1832-34; A Book of the Beginnings, 1884; l'hislistin of the Hebrew of the Bible, 1885; Problems, 1886.

NEWMAN, John Philip, D.D. (Rochester Seminary, N.Y., 1884), LL.D. (Wesleyan University, Athens, Tenn., 1882); b. in New York City, Sept. 1, 1829; graduated at Cazenovia Seminary, 1848; entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 1848; was editor of The New-Orleans Advocate, 1850-51; pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist-Episcopal Church, Washington, D.C., 1869-73, 1875-78; and chaplain to the United States Senate, 1869-75. He visited Greenland in 1870. In December, 1873, he was appointed by President Grant inspector of United States consulates, and in this capacity made a tour of the world, 1873-74. From 1882 to 1884 he preached in the Madison-ave. Congregational Church, New York City. He was Gen. Grant's pastor, 1869-85. He is a member of the British Society of Biblical Archæology. He is the author of From Dan to Beersheba, or The Land of Promise as it now appears, New York, 1844; The Thrones and Palaces of Babylon and Nineveh, from the Persian Gulf to the Mediterranean, 1870; Sermons preached in the Metropolitan Church, Washington, D.C., 1876; Christianity Triumphant, New York, 1884.

NEWTON, Richard Heber, D.D. (Union College, Danville, Ky., 1867), LL.D. (Illawarra College, Wollongong, Australia, 1875); b. in Westmoreland County, Penn., Aug. 3, 1838; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1857, and at Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1860; became pastor at Chambersburg, Penn., 1860; of the Second Presbyterian Church, St. Louis, Mo., 1864. He was moderator of the General Assembly of 1872, at St. Louis; in 1883 declined election to professorship of pastoral theology in Western Theological Seminary. Besides many published sermons, he has written The Eastern Question in Prophecy, St. Louis, 1875.

NICHOLSON, Right Rev. William Rufus, D.D. (Theological Seminary of the Diocese of Ohio, Gambier, 1857), Reformed Episcopal; b. in Green County, Miss., Jan. 8, 1822; graduated at La Grange College, North Ala., 1840; became pastor of the Poydras-street Methodist-Episcopal Church, New Orleans, La., 1842; entered the Protestant Episcopal Church, 1843; of Grace, 1844, of Grace, 1845; of Trinity Church, Newark, N.J., 1845.
Reformed Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, 1874; was consecrated bishop in February, 1876. He is the author of some pamphlets and essays, of which may be mentioned, James the Lord’s Brother, and Jesus, were equally the Sons of Mary (in Protestant-Episcopal Quarterly Review, New York, 1860); Reasons why I became a Reformed Episcopalian, Philadelphia, 1875; Concerning Sanctionification, 1875; The Priesthood of the Church of God, 1876; The Call to the Ministry, 1877.

NICOLL, William Robertson, Free Church; b. in Free Church manse, Auchindoir, Aberdeen, Oct. 10, 1851; graduated at University of Aberdeen, M.A., 1870; completed curriculum at Free Church College, Aberdeen, and became minister at Mortlach, Banffshire, 1874; at Kelso, 1877. Since 1880 he has edited The Householder Library of Exposition; since January, 1885, The Expositor, in succession to Dr. Cox; and since 1886 three new series,—The Foreign Biblical Library, The Theological Educator, and The Expositor’s Bible. He has published Calls to Christ, London, 1877, 2d ed. 1878; Songs of Praise, New York, 1881; (2d series, 1885); The Incarnate Saviour, A Life of Jesus Christ, Edinburgh, 1881 (reprinted, New York, 1881); The Lamb of God, 1888, 2d ed. London, 1884; English Theology in the Victorian Era, a Biographical and Critical History (announced). Ifiograhicaland CriticalHistory (announced).

NILES, Right Rev. William Woodruff, S.T.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1870; Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., 1879), Episcopal, bishop of New Hampshire; b. at Hatley, Province of Lower Canada (now Quebec), May 24, 1832; graduated at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1857; and at the Berkeley Divinity School, Middletown, Conn., 1861; tutor in his alma mater, 1857–8; rector of St. Philip’s, Wiscasset, Me., 1862–64; professor of the Latin language and literature in his alma mater, 1864–70; rector of St. John’s, Warehouse Point, Conn., 1868–70; bishop, 1870. At the time of his consecration he was a British subject, was not naturalized until December, 1873. He edited The Churchman, Hartford, Conn., 1866–67. He is the author of addresses, essays, etc.

NILES, Nikolaus, Roman Catholic; b. at Rupprecht, Luxembourg, Germany, June 21, 1828; studied at the Collegium Germanicum at Rome, 1847–59; became priest there, 1852; pastor at Tübingen, Luxemburg, 1855; Jesuit, 1858; acting professor at Innsbruck, Austria, 1859; ordinary professor of church law there, 1866, and at the same time regens of the theological college; and since 1861 member of the Luxemburg Archaeological Society. Besides numerous popular religious works, he has written, Maria, die mächtige Patronin zur Erde, oder die gründe Kirche und Schule bei Jesu (Innsbruck, Luxemburg, 1857; Commentaria in psalmos divi missali de communicante, and a number of pamphlets and essays, of which may be mentioned, The Christian Faith and Jesus, were equally the Sons of Mary (in Protestant-Episcopal Quarterly Review, New York, 1860); De rationibus festorum mobilium ulteriusque sionis esti s. cordis Jesu et funitis juris canon. erudit, Innsbruck, 1867, 5th ed. 1865; De rationibus festorum mobilibus usus ecclesiae occidentalis atque orientalis commentarys suis clerorum accommodatus, Wien, 1869; Selecta pietatis exercitca erga ss. cor Jeshu et puriss. cor Mariae, Innsbruck, 1889; Kalendarium manuale ususrice ecclesiae orientalis et occidentalis academiae clerorum accommodatum, 1879–85, 2 vols.

NINDE, William Xavier, D.D. (Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1874), Methodist bishop; b. at Cortland, N.Y., June 21, 1832; graduated at the Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1855; became pastor, 1856; professor of practical theology, Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, III., 1873; president of same, 1879; bishop of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, 1884.

NIPPOLD, Friedrich Wilhelm Franz, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1869); Added Theod. (Heidelberg, 1869, 1871); added Theod., b. at Emmerich, Sept. 15, 1838; studied at Halle and Bonn; travelled in the East, 1860; became privat-docent at Heidelberg, 1865; professor extraordinary there, 1870; ordinary professor at Bern 1871, and at Jena 1884. He belongs to the school of Rother, and is in friendly relations with the Old Catholics. He is the author of Handbuch der neuesten Kirchengeschichte seit der Restaurierung von 1814, Elberfeld, vol. 1. 1867, 3d ed. 1880, vol. ii. 1883; Welche Wege fühnen nach Rom? Geschichte der römischen Illusionen über die Keife der erlichen und kirchlichen Kirche, 1864; Das Reich Jesu, Berlin, 1874; Kirchengeschichte (edited with original contributions), Berlin, 1884; Zur geschichtlichen Würdigung der Religion Jesu, Vortrage, Predigten, Abhandlungen, 1884; edita the new edition of Hagenbach’s Kirchengeschichte, Leipzig, 1883, sqq.

NITZSCH, Friedrich August Berthold, Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1858), D.D. (kon., Greifswald, 1869), German theologian; b. at Bonn, Feb. 19, 1832; studied at Berlin, Halle, and Bonn, 1850–55; was collaborator in the gymnasium of the "Grauen Kloster" in Berlin, 1857–58; became privat-docent at Berlin, 1859; ordinary professor of theology at Giesens, 1868; at Kiel, 1872. He is the author of Das System des Boethius und die ihm zugeschriebenen theologischen Schriften, Berlin, 1890; Augustinus Lehre vom Wunder, 1865; Grundriss der christlichen Dogmatik (all published), 1870; Luther und Aristoteles, Kiel, 1883.

NORMAN, Richard Whitmore, D.C.L. (Bishops’ College, Lenoxville, Can., 1878), Episcopal Church of Canada; b. at Southborough, near Bromley, Kent, Eng., April 24, 1829; educated at King’s College, London, and Exeter College, NORTHRUP.  156  NYSTROM.

Oxford, where he graduated B.A. 1851, M.A. 1854; was ordained deacon 1852, and priest 1853; curate of St. Thomas, Oxford, 1852; fellow of St. Peter's College, Radley, 1853-57; head master of St. Michael's College, Tenbury, 1857-61; warden of St. Peter's College, Radley, 1861-66; assistant minister of St. John the Evangelist, Montreal, Can., 1867-72; of St. James the Apostle, Montreal, 1872-83; rector of St. Matthias, Montreal, since 1883. He has been honorary fellow of St. Michael's College, Tenbury, since 1856; honorary canon of Montreal, and vice-chancellor of Bishops' College, Lennoxville, Can., since 1878; fellow of McGill College, Montreal, since 1884; chairman of Protestant school board since 1850; honorary clerical secretary of the Provincial Synod, 1880; vice-president of the Montreal Philharmonic Society, 1880, and of the Art Association, Montreal, 1884; chairman of Montreal Botanic Garden Association, 1885; member of the executive committee and many other important diocesan committees. He is a moderate but decided Anglican. He is the author of Manual of Prayers for the Use of Schools, Oxford, 1856, 3d ed. 1862; Occasional Sermons, 1860; Sermons preached in Radley College Chapel, 1861; and the following pamphlets, etc.: Ritualism, Montreal, 1867; Thoughts on the Conversion of the Heathen, 1867; St. John Our Example, 1867; Galileo (sermon), 1868; Harvest (two sermons), 1868-69; Anniversary Sermon (Port Hope School, 1869; Dunham Ladies' College, 1884); Confession (three sermons), 1873; Considerations on the Revised New Testament, 1881; Sermon to Young Men, 1882; Sermon to Young Women, 1882; Lecture on Hymnology, 1885.

NORTHRUP, George Washington, D.D. (University of Rochester, N.Y., 1864), LL.D. (Kalamazoo College, Kalamazoo, Mich., 1879), Baptist; b. at Antwerp, Jefferson County, N.Y., Oct. 8, 1842; graduated at University of Upsala, 1866; was teacher of languages in the New Elementary School of Stockholm, 1867; in Greek and Hebrew in the Baptist Seminary there, 1867-72; secretary of the Swedish Evangelical Alliance, 1872-78; missionary to the Jews at Beirut, Syria, 1878-81. In 1871 he was a member of the Evangelical Alliance deputation to the Russian Emperor on account of the persecuted Lutherans in the Baltic provinces; in 1872 travelled in aid of the Baptist building-fund, through Germany, England, and Scotland; in 1884 was deputy of the Swedish Baptist to the Evangelical Alliance Conference in Copenhagen; in 1885 was elected a member of the Swedish Parliament for three years. He is the translator into Swedish of Sophocles' Antigone, I, verses 1-383, with commentary (Ph.D. dissertation), Stockholm, 1866; Nicholl's Help to the Reading of the Bible, 1866; Dr. Rudelbach on Civil Marriage, 1868; Lyon's Homo contra Darwin, 1873; Merle d'Aubigné's History of the Reformation in the Time of Calvin, 1874-77; Sankey's Gospel Hymns, 1876; Spurgeon's John Ploughman's Talks, 1880; Spurgeon's Clue of the Maze, 1884; and of other works; and is the author (in Swedish) of Bible Dictionary, 1868, 2d ed. 1883; Letters on Religious Liberty, 1868; Christian Hymns from Ancient and Modern Times, 1870; Lecture on the "Liberi" (i.e., "reading," a nickname for living Christianity), 1872; Library of Biblical Antiquities, 1874; Letters to Brother Oluf upon the Doctrine of Atonement, 1876; What is wanting in our Church, 1876; Spiritual Songs for Young Men's Christian Associations, Sunday Schools, and Prayer-meetings, 1877; Illustrated Missionary News, 1877.

NYSTROM, Johan Erik, Ph.D. (Upsala, 1866), General Baptist; b. in Stockholm, Sweden, Sept. 8, 1842; graduated at University of Upsala, 1866; teacher of languages in the New Elementary School of Stockholm, 1867; in Greek and Hebrew in the Baptist Seminary there, 1867-72; secretary of the Swedish Evangelical Alliance, 1872-78; missionary to the Jews at Beirut, Syria, 1878-81. In 1871 he was a member of the Evangelical Alliance deputation to the Russian Emperor on account of the persecuted Lutherans in the Baltic provinces; in 1872 travelled in aid of the Baptist building-fund, through Germany, England, and Scotland; in 1884 was deputy of the Swedish Baptist to the Evangelical Alliance Conference in Copenhagen; in 1885 was elected a member of the Swedish Parliament for three years. He is the translator into Swedish of Sophocles' Antigone, I, verses 1-383, with commentary (Ph.D. dissertation), Stockholm, 1866; Nicholl's Help to the Reading of the Bible, 1866; Dr. Rudelbach on Civil Marriage, 1868; Lyon's Homo contra Darwin, 1873; Merle d'Aubigné's History of the Reformation in the Time of Calvin, 1874-77; Sankey's Gospel Hymns, 1876; Spurgeon's John Ploughman's Talks, 1880; Spurgeon's Clue of the Maze, 1884; and of other works; and is the author (in Swedish) of Bible Dictionary, 1868, 2d ed. 1883; Four Letters on Religious Liberty, 1868; Christian Hymns from Ancient and Modern Times, 1870; Lecture on the "Liberi" (i.e., "reading," a nickname for living Christianity), 1872; Library of Biblical Antiquities, 1874; Letters to Brother Oluf upon the Doctrine of Atonement, 1876; What is wanting in our Church, 1876; Spiritual Songs for Young Men's Christian Associations, Sunday Schools, and Prayer-meetings, 1877; Illustrated Missionary News, 1877.
ORMISTON, William, D.D. (University of the City of New York, 1865), LL.D. (University of Victoria College, Cobourg, Can., 1881), Reformed (Dutch); b. in the parish of Symington, Lanarkshire, Scotland, April 23, 1821; went to Canada in 1834; graduated at the University of Victoria College, Cobourg, Can., B.A. 1848, M.A. 1856; was classical tutor in Victoria College, 1845-47, and professor of moral philosophy in the same, 1847-48; pastor of Presbyterian church at Clarke, County of Durham, Can., 1849-53; mathematical master, and lecturer in natural philosophy and chemistry, in the normal school, Toronto, 1858-57; examiner in Toronto University 1854-67; super-OSBORN, Henry Stafford, LL.D. (Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1864; Presbyterian; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., Aug. 17, 1823; graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1841, and at Union Theological Seminary, New York City, 1845; was stated supply at Coventry, R.I., 1845–48; pastor at Hanover Court House, Va., 1846–49; Richmond, Va., 1849–53; Liberty, Va., 1853–58; studied at Harvard at Salem, Va., 1858–59; pastor at Belvidere, N.J., 1859–66; professor in Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1864–70, 1873 to date; professor in Miami University, Oxford, O., 1871–73. He is the author of Past and Present, 1858; Little Pilgrim in the Holy Land, 1859; Teachers' Guide to Palestine, 1868; Discoveries, Chicago, 1883. He translated Lange's general and special Introduction to the Prussian Order of the Red Eagle, third class (1873), received the Austrian (1862) and the Grand Duke of Saxony's (1857) gold Verdiens-Medaille für W. u. K. Since 1860 he has been an Austrian Imperial Regierungsrath; since 1876 he has been president of the examining commission for Protestant ministers at Vienna. He is the author of De Justinii Martyrn scriptis et doctrina, Jena, 1841; De Victorino Strigelio liberiori mentis in ecclesia lutherica vindici, 1843; De epistola ad Diognetum S. Justinii philosophi et martyris nomen pro se ferente, 1845, 2d ed. 1847; Des Patriarchen Gennadios von Constantinopel Confession, kritisch untersucht u. herausgegeben, Nebst einem Excerpts aus Arethas' Zeitalter, 1864; De gradibus in theologian, 1874. He edited the posthumous commentaries of Baungarten Coursius upon Matthew (Jena, 1844), Luke and John (Jena, 1845). But his chief work is his edition of the works of the Christian apologists of the second century, Corpus apologistarum Christianorum secundi secoli, Jena, 1842–72, 9 vols. (vols. 1–7, 1842–48, 3d ed. 1876–81; vol. vi., Talain, 1861; vol. vii., Athenaeorum, 1857; vol. viii., Theophilus of Antioch; 1861; vol. ix., Hermias, Quadratus, Aristides, Aristo, Miltiades, Melito, Apollinaris, 1872). He shares in editing Jahrbuch der Gesellschaft für die Geschichte des Protestantismus in Oesterreich, Wien and Leipzig, 1880, sqq.; and contributed to it the article, Die Anfänge der Reformation im Erzherzogthum Oesterreich (1880, 1883). His principal other articles are: Beziehungen auf die Johannesischen und Paulinischen Schriften bei Justinus Martyr und dem Verfasser des Briefes an Diognetus (in Iflon's Ztschr. f. d. hist. Theol., 1841, 1842, 1843, 1844, 1858): Der dem Patriarchen Gennadios von Constantinopel beigegleitete Dialog über die Hauptstücke des christl. Glaubens (in same, 1850, 1864): Justinus der Apologist (in Ersch. u. Gruber sect. ii., Th. 30): De inscriptione et etatate Apologie Athenagoricarum (in Zschr. f. d. hist. Theol., 1856): Florianus, etc. (in Piper's Die Zeugen der Wahrheit); Ueber den apostol. Grus (in Jahrb. f. deutsche Theol., 1887): Haben Barnabas, Justinus und Irenaeus den zweiten Petrusbrief (3, 8) benutzt? (in Zschr. f. wis. Theol., 1877): Ueber das Zeitalter des Erzbischofs Arethas (in same, 1875). OVERBECK, Franz Camillo, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1860), D.D. (hon., Jena, 1870), Swiss Protestant; b. in St. Petersburg, Nov. 4 (19), 1837; studied at Leipzig and Göttingen, 1856–66; became private-doctor at Jena, 1864; professor of theology at Basel, 1870; ordinary professor, Basel, 1871. He edited the fourth edition of De Wette on Acts (Leipzig, 1870), and has written Questionum

OSWALD, Johann Heinrich, Lic. Theol., D.D. (both Münster, 1843 and 1855), Roman Catholic; b. at Dorsten, Westphalia, Germany, June 3, 1817; studied theology in the seminary at Miinster, and in the University of Bonn; became privatdocent of historical theology and exegesis of the Roman Catholic; b. Oct. 4, 1816; studied philosophy and theology at Jena, 1838–41; became privadocten of historical theology and exegesis of the New Testament at Jena, 1841; professor extraordinary of theology there, 1848; since 1851 has been ordinary professor of church history in the evangelical theological faculty at Vienna. From 1852–61 he was ordinary professor of New Testament exegesis; from 1863–67 was member of the imperial educational council. Since 1841 he has been a member of the Societas Latina Jenensis, since 1848 of the Societas Hagnana, since 1879 of the Society for the History of Protestantism in Austria. He is a knight of the Greek Order of the Saviour (1858), of the Austrian Order of the Iron Crown, third class (1871), of the Grand Duke of Saxony's Order of the White Hawk, first division (1872), of the Prussian Order of the Red Eagle, third class (1873), received the Austrian (1862) and the Grand Duke of Saxony's (1864) gold Verdiens-Medaille für W. u. K. Since 1860 he has been an Austrian Imperial Regierungsrath; since 1876 he has been president of the examining commission for Protestant ministers at Vienna. He is the author of De Justinii Martyrn scriptis et doctrina, Jena, 1841; De Victorino Strigelio liberiori mentis in ecclesia lutherica vindici, 1843; De epistola ad Diognetum S. Justinii philosophi et martyris nomen pro se ferente, 1845, 2d ed. 1847; Des Patriarchen Gennadios von Constantinopel Confession, kritisch untersucht u. herausgegeben, Nebst einem Excerpts aus Arethas' Zeitalter, 1864; De gradibus in theologian, 1874. He edited the posthumous commentaries of Baungarten Coursius upon Matthew (Jena, 1844), Luke and John (Jena, 1845). But his chief work is his edition of the works of the Christian apologists of the second century, Corpus apologistarum Christianorum secundi secoli, Jena, 1842–72, 9 vols. (vols. 1–7, 1842–48, 3d ed. 1876–81; vol. vi., Talain, 1861; vol. vii., Athenaeorum, 1857; vol. viii., Theophilus of Antioch; 1861; vol. ix., Hermias, Quadratus, Aristides, Aristo, Miltiades, Melito, Apollinaris, 1872). He shares in editing Jahrbuch der Gesellschaft für die Geschichte des Protestantismus in Oesterreich, Wien and Leipzig, 1880, sqq.; and contributed to it the article, Die Anfänge der Reformation im Erzherzogthum Oesterreich (1880, 1883). His principal other articles are: Beziehungen auf die Johannesischen und Paulinischen Schriften bei Justinus Martyr und dem Verfasser des Briefes an Diognetus (in Iflon's Ztschr. f. d. hist. Theol., 1841, 1842, 1843, 1844, 1858): Der dem Patriarchen Gennadios von Constantinopel beigegleitete Dialog über die Hauptstücke des christl. Glaubens (in same, 1850, 1864): Justinus der Apologist (in Ersch. u. Gruber sect. ii., Th. 30): De inscriptions et etatate Apologie Athenagoricarum (in Zschr. f. d. hist. Theol., 1856): Florianus, etc. (in Piper's Die Zeugen der Wahrheit); Ueber den apostol. Grus (in Jahrb. f. deutsche Theol., 1887): Haben Barnabas, Justinus und Irenaeus den zweiten Petrusbrief (3, 8) benutzt? (in Zschr. f. wis. Theol., 1877): Ueber das Zeitalter des Erzbischofs Arethas (in same, 1875). OVERBECK, Franz Camillo, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1860), D.D. (hon., Jena, 1870), Swiss Protestant; b. in St. Petersburg, Nov. 4 (19), 1837; studied at Leipzig and Göttingen, 1856–66; became private-doctor at Jena, 1864; professor of theology at Basel, 1870; ordinary professor, Basel, 1871. He edited the fourth edition of De Wette on Acts (Leipzig, 1870), and has written Questionum OXENDEN, Right Rev. Ashton, D.D. (by decree of Convocation, 1869), Church of England; b. at Broome, near Canterbury, Sept. 25, 1808; educated at University College, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1833; was ordained deacon 1833, priest 1834; was rector of Pluckley, Kent, 1848-69; lord bishop of Montreal and metropolitan of Canada, 1869-78; rural dean of Canterbury, 1879-84; since 1879, vicar of Hackington (or St. Stephen’s), near Canterbury. He is the author of numerous devotional works, many of which have had large sales on both sides of the Atlantic. The following may be mentioned; Cottage Sermons, 1853; The Earnest Communicant, 1855; The Pathway of Safety, 1856; The Christian Life, new ed. 1870; Our Church and its Services, new ed. 1868; The Parables of our Lord, new ed. 1868; Portraits from the Bible, 1872, 2 vols.; The Earnest Churchman, 1878; Short Comments on the Gospels, for Family Worship, 1885.

OXENHAM, Henry Nutcombe, Roman Catholic; b. at Harrow, Eng., Nov. 15, 1829; educated at Balliol College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (second-class in classics) 1850, M.A. 1854; held curacies from 1854 to 1857; joined the Roman-Catholic Church in 1857, and was successively in the London Oratory (1859-60), professor at St. Edmund’s College, Ware (1860), and master at the Oratory School, Birmingham, 1861; resigned at Christmas of that year. He is the author of numerous review articles, of the English translation of Döllinger’s First Age of the Church (London, 1866, 3d ed. 1877) and Lectures on Re-union of the Churches (1872), and of vol. 2 of Hefele’s History of the Councils of the Church (1876); and of the following original works: Poems, 1854, 3d ed. 1871; Church Parties, 1857; Catholic Doctrine of the Atonement, 1865, 3d ed. 1881; Recollections of Oberammergau, 1872, 2d ed. 1880; Catholic Eschatology and Universalism, 1876, 2d ed. 1878; Short Studies in Ecclesiastical History and Biography, 1884; Short Studies, Ethical and Religious, 1885.
PACKARD, Joseph, D.D. (Kenyon College, Gambier, O., 1847), Episcopal; b. at Wiscasset, Me., Dec. 29, 1812; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1831, and studied (1833) in Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary; since 1836 has been professor of biblical learning in the Protestant-Episcopal Seminary of Virginia, near Alexandria, and is now dean. He contributed the commentary on Malachi to the American edition of Lange, and was one of the American revisers of the Old Testament (1870-85).

PADDOCK, Right Rev. Benjamin Henry, S.T.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1867), Episcopal, bishop of Massachusetts; b. at Norwich, Conn., Feb. 29, 1828; graduated at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1848, and at the General Theological Seminary, New York City, 1852; was assistant teacher in the Episcopal Academy of Connecticut, Cheshire, 1848-49; assistant minister at the Church of the Epiphany, New York City, while deacon, 1852-53; rector of St. Luke's, Portland, Me., 1853, but withdrew after three months on account of climate; was rector of Trinity, Norwich, Conn., 1853-80; of Christ Church, Detroit, Mich., 1860-69; of Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights, Long Island, N.Y., 1869-73; consecrated bishop, 1873. He is the author of sundry articles in reviews and periodicals, canonical digest, sermons, charges (1870, 1879, 1880), etc.: among which may be mentioned, Ten Years in the Episcopal Church, 1883; The First Century of the Diocese of Massachusetts, 1885; The Pastoral Relation, etc.

PADDOCK, Right Rev. John Adams, S.T.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1870), Episcopal, missionary bishop of Washington Territory; b. at Norwich, Conn., Jan. 19, 1829; graduated at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1845, and at the General Theological Seminary, New York City, 1849; was rector of Christ Church, Stratford, Conn., 1849-55; of St. Peter's, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1855-60; consecrated bishop, 1860. Since his work began, the number of churches in his diocese has doubled; a Church hospital has been erected; and two Church schools built, costing about sixty thousand dollars, and endowed with one hundred thousand dollars. He is the author of History of Christ Church, Stratford, Conn., 1858; occasional sermons and addresses.

PAINE, Levi Leonard, D.D. (Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1875), Congregationalist; b. at Holbrook (formerly East Randolph), Mass., Oct. 10, 1832; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1856; was tutor there, 1859-61; pastor at Farmington, Conn., 1861-70; and since 1871 has been professor of ecclesiastical history in Bangor (Me.) Theological Seminary; has published some addresses and sermons.

PAINE, Timothy Otis, LL.D. (Colby University, Waterville, Me., 1875), New-Jerusalem Church (Swedenborgian); b. at Winslow, Kennebec County, Me., Oct. 13, 1824; graduated at Waterville College (now Colby University), Me., 1847. Since 1866 he has been pastor of the Swedenborgian Church at Elmwood, Plymouth County, Mass.; since July 3, 1886 (the date of its organization), teacher of Hebrew in the theological school of the General Convention of the New Jerusalem Church in the United States, now located at Boston, Mass. "In all these thirty years he can hardly be said to have taken vacations, or made exchanges with ministers; working through summer, autumn, winter, and spring, again and again, with only one end never for a day out of view, trying to answer the one question: How did the holy forms described in the Scriptures look? He began his study before 1847, but received the first leading thought on the sabbath afternoon of Dec. 26, 1852." He is the author of Solomon's Temple, or the Tabernacle; The First Temple; House of the King, or House of the Forest of Lebanon; Idolatrous High Places; The City on the Mountain (Rev. xxi.); The Oblation of the Holy Portion; and The Last Temple (with 21 plates of 61 figures, accurately copied by the lithographer from careful drawings made by the author), Boston, 1861; Solomon's Temple and Capitol, Ark of the Flood and Tabernacle, or The Holy Houses of the Hebrew, Chaldee, Syriac, Samaritan, Septuagint, Coptic, and Itala Scriptures (with 42 full plates and 120 text-cuts, being photographic reproductions of the original drawings made by the author), Boston and New York, 1885.

PALMER, Benjamin Morgan, D.D. (Oglethorpe University, Milledgeville, Ga., 1852), LL.D. (Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., 1870), Presbyterian (Southern Church); b. in Charleston, S.C., Jan. 25, 1818; graduated at the University of Georgia, 1838, and at the Theological Seminary, Columbia, S.C., 1841; became pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Savannah, Ga., 1841; of the First Presbyterian Church, Columbia, S.C., 1843; of the First Presbyterian Church, New Orleans, La., December, 1856. His church seats fourteen hundred persons, and numbered in 1886 six hundred communicants. He was professor of church history and polity in the Columbia (S.C.) Theological Seminary, 1853-56; was moderator of the First Southern Assembly, Augusta, Ga., 1861. He has declined elections to professorships in three theological seminaries; viz., of Hebrew at Danville, Ky. (1853), of pastoral theology at Princeton, N.J. (1860), of the same at Columbia, S.C. (1881); also the chancellorship of the South-Western Presbyterian University, Clarksville, Tenn. (1874); and calls at different times to churches in Macon (Ga.), Charleston (S.C.), Philadelphia, Baltimore, and New York. He was a director of the Columbia Theological Seminary, S.C., 1842-56; and has been a director in the South-Western Presbyterian University, Clarksville, Tenn., since 1873, and in Tulane University, New Orleans, La., since its organization in 1882. He has been commissioner to ten General Assemblies (three of them before the Civil War); since 1847 one of the editors and contributors of The Southern Presbyterian Review, Columbia, S.C., of which he was one of
PALMER, Ray, O.O. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1852); Congregationalist; b. at Little Compton, R.I., Nov. 12, 1808; fitted for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1830; taught the higher classes in a private seminary for young ladies in New-York City, 1830—31; was associated with Rev. F. E. Andrews in the New Haven (Conn.) Young Ladies' Institute (which was one of the earliest attempts in this country to furnish young ladies advantages as nearly as possible equal to those of the other sex), 1831; licensed to preach by the New Haven West Association, 1832; was pastor of the Central Congregational Church, Bath, Me., 1835—50; during this period was on the board of overseers of Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., and took an active interest in education and literature; in 1847 he made a tour through Europe, notes of which were published in The Christian Mirror of Portland, Me.; was pastor of the Central Congregational Church, Albany, N.Y., 1850—66; secretary of the American Congregational Union at New York, 1866—78, during which time more than six hundred church edifices were erected by the aid of the society. He was on the board of visitors of the Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1865—75, and regularly attended its examinations and business meetings. He has of late years lived in literary retirement at Newark, N.J. His printed discourses and other publications in pamphlet form are quite numerous. He has often written for the higher periodicals articles critical, philosophical, and miscellaneous, and very widely for the leading religious papers. His hymns are familiar to the whole English-speaking world, and some of them have been translated into many languages; his best known hymn, "My faith looks up to Thee," into twenty or more. Not to mention some smaller early volumes, he has written: Spiritual Grotto, and to Groote's Grotto, Philadelphia, 1839, republished and entitled Closet Hours, Albany, 1851; Remember Me, or The Holy Communion, Boston, 1855, new ed. New York, 1873; Hints on the Formation of Religious Opinions, New York, 1880, new ed. 1877, republished in London and Edinburgh; Hymns and Sacred Pieces, New York, 1865; Hymns of my Holy Hours, 1868; Home, or the Unlost Paradise, 1868; Earnest Words on True Success in Life, 1873; Complete Poetical Works, 1878; Voices of Hope and Gladness, New York and London, 1880.

PARET, Right Rev. William, D.D. (Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1867), Episcopalian, bishop of Maryland; b. in New-York City, Sept. 23, 1838; graduated at Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1849; studied theology under Bishop De Lancey; became successively rector of St. John's Church, Clyde, N.Y., 1852; of Zion Church, Pierrepont Manor, N.Y., 1854; of St. Paul's, East Saginaw, Mich., 1864; of Trinity Church, Elmira, N.Y., 1868; of Christ Church, Williamsport, Penn., 1868; of Church of the Epiphany, Washington, D.C., 1875; bishop of Maryland, 1885.

PARK, Edwards Amasa, D.D. (Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., 1844); b. at Providence, R.I., Dec. 29, 1808; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1826; at Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1831; was pastor at Braintree, Mass., 1831—36; professor of mental and moral philosophy at Amherst College, Mass., 1835—36; professor of sacred rhetoric at Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1836—47; professor of Christian theology at Andover, 1847—81. He held a professorship at Andover forty-five years. In theology he has adopted the tenets set forth in the creed of Andover Theological Seminary (see article "Andover Theological Seminary," Nauck-Herzog Encyclopedia, vol. i., pp. 81, 82). These articles are often called "New-England Theology" (see Encyclopedia, vol. ii., pp. 1634—1638). In 1842—43 he spent sixteen months in Switzerland and Germany. In 1862—63 he spent the larger part of sixteen months in Great Britain. In 1866—70 he spent about sixteen months in Italy, Egypt, Palestine, and Greece. He began to write for the religious periodicals in 1828. Since that time he has written for The American Quarterly Register, The Spirit of the Pilgrims, American Quarterly Observer, American Biblical Repository, The Congregational Quarterly, and the Philadelphia Presbyterian. He is the author of the following books: Smith's Dictionary of the Bible (American edition), McClintock and Strong's Cyclopedia, Schaaf-Herzog Encyclopedia. In 1844 Professor B. B. Edwards and Professor Park founded the Bibliotheca Sacra: Professor Edwards was editor-in-chief from 1844 to 1851; Professor Park was editor-in-chief from 1851 till 1884. Thus he was an editor of the work for forty years, and was concerned in the publication of forty volumes. He has published sixteen pamphlets. Among these are: a Memoir of Rev. Charles B. Storrs, D.D., president of Western Reserve College (Boston, 1833); of Professor Moses Stuart (Andover, 1852); Professor B. B. Edwards (Andover, 1852); Rev. Joseph S. Clark, D.D. (Boston, 1861); Rev. Richard S. Storrs, D.D., pastor at Braintree, Mass. (Boston, 1874); Rev. Samuel C. Jackson, D.D. (Andover, 1878); Rev. Leonard Woods, D.D., LL.D., president of Bowdoin College (Andover, 1880). His last pamphlet was Heroes of Philadelphia, Andover Theological Seminary (Boston, 1888, pp. 98). He was one of the editors and translators of Selections from German Literature, Andover, 1889; edited The Writings of Rev. William Bradford
PARKER, Hugh Sinclair, D.D. (Glasgow, 1862), Presbyterian; b. at Cambelltown, Argyllshire, Feb. 26, 1832; educated at the University of Glasgow; entered the ministry of the Free Church, 1854; became minister of Free St. Mark's, Glasgow, 1854; removed to London in 1872 as minister of Belgrave Presbyterian Church; in 1880 came to his present charge, Trinity Presbyterian Church, Notting Hill, London. He has edited Dickinson's Quarterly (1878–81); since January, 1880, The British and Foreign Evangelical Review (quarterly); and since Nov. 3, 1881, Word and Work (weekly). He is the author of Studies in Ethics and its Functions, and Health Studies (all in 1880, several thousands sold, republished in 1 vol., Life, Function, and Health, 1884); "In defence: "The Earlier Scriptures, 1883; The Fourfold Life, 1884; Crosses and Crowns, 1884; Christ and Criticism, 1884; Faith and Unfaith, their Claims and Conflicts, 1885.

Homer, 1842, 2d ed. with an introductory essay of forty-nine pages, 1849; The Preacher and Pastor (to which he wrote an introduction of thirty-six pages), 1853; The Works of Professor D. D. Edwards (to which he prefixed a memoir of 370 pages), Boston, 1853; published a Memoir of the Life and Character of Samuel Hopkins, D.D., 1852, 2d ed. 1854 (which was also prefixed to the works of Dr. Hopkins). In connection with Professor Austin Phelps, D.D., and Dr. Lowell Mason, he compiled and edited The Student's Hymn-Book, New York, 1858 (between the years 1858 and 1896, with the appendages of tunes for congregational worship, it reached a circulation of about 120,000) in connection with the Hymn Book he, with Drs. Austin Phelps and Daniel L. Furber, published a volume entitled Hymns and Chants, Andover, 1860 (of this work, an essay of sixty-one pages on The Text of Hymns was written by Professor Park). He edited The Ateneum, Discourses and Treatises by Edwards, Smalley, Marcy, Emmons, Griffin, Burge, and Weeks, With an Introductory Essay [of eighty pages], Boston, 1860; wrote a Memoir of Nathanael Emmons, 1861 (which was prefixed to the theological works of Dr. Emmons in 6 vols. 8vo.). His last publication is a volume of fourteen Discourses on some Theological Doctrines as related to the Religious Character, Andover, 1885.

PARKER, Edwin Pond, S.T.D. (Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1872), Congregationalist; b. at Castine, Me., Jan. 13, 1838; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1860, and at Bangor Theological Seminary, Me., 1856; since Jan. 11, 1860, has been pastor of the Second Church in Hartford, Conn.

PARKER, Joseph, D.D., Congregationalist; b. at Hexham, Northumberland, Eng., April 9, 1860; educated at University College, London, and privately; entered the Congregational ministry, and became successively pastor at Banbury (Oxfordshire), 1858; Manchester (Cavendish Chapel), 1858; and of the City Temple, London, 1869. In 1894 he was chairman of the Congregational Union. His church seats more than two thousand persons, and is largely attended. His sermons are taken down in shorthand. He has published Emmanuel, Lond., 1859; Hidden Springs, 1864; Wednesday Evenings at Cavendish Chapel, Homiletic Hints, 1865; Ecce Deus, Essays on the Life and Doctrine of Jesus Christ, 1868, 5th ed. 1875; Springdale Abbey, Extracts from the Letters and Diaries of an English Preacher, 1869; The Paraclete, 1874, new ed. 1876; The Gospel by Homer (homiletic analysis), 1869; Ad Clerum, 1870; Pulpit Notes, with Introductory Essay on the Preaching of Jesus Christ, 1873; The Priesthood of Matthew (homiletic analysis), 1869; Ad Clerum, 1870; Pulpit Notes, with Introductory Essay on the Preaching of Jesus Christ, 1873; The Priesthood

PARKER, Joseph, D.D., Congregationalist; b. at Hexham, Northumberland, Eng., April 9, 1860; educated at University College, London, and privately; entered the Congregational ministry, and became successively pastor at Banbury (Oxfordshire), 1858; Manchester (Cavendish Chapel), 1858; and of the City Temple, London, 1869. In 1894 he was chairman of the Congregational Union. His church seats more than two thousand persons, and is largely attended. His sermons are taken down in shorthand. He has published Emmanuel, Lond., 1859; Hidden Springs, 1864; Wednesday Evenings at Cavendish Chapel, Homiletic Hints, 1865; Ecce Deus, Essays on the Life and Doctrine of Jesus Christ, 1868, 5th ed. 1875; Springdale Abbey, Extracts from the Letters and Diaries of an English Preacher, 1869; The Paraclete, 1874, new ed. 1876; The Gospel by Homer (homiletic analysis), 1869; Ad Clerum, 1870; Pulpit Notes, with Introductory Essay on the Preaching of Jesus Christ, 1873; The Priesthood of Matthew (homiletic analysis), 1869; Ad Clerum, 1870; Pulpit Notes, with Introductory Essay on the Preaching of Jesus Christ, 1873; The Priesthood

PARKHURST, Charles Henry, D.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1880), Presbyterian; b. at Framingham, Mass., April 17, 1842; graduated at Amherst College, Mass., 1866; studied theology in Halle (1869) and Leipzig (1872–73); was principal of high school, Amherst, 1867; professor in Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass., 1870–71; pastor (Congregational) at Lenox, Mass., 1874–80; and since 1880 has been pastor of the Madison-square Presbyterian Church, New-York City. He is the author of articles in different periodicals; and Forms of the Latin Verb illustrated by the Sanscrit, Boston, 1870; The Blind Man's Creed, and other Sermons, New York, 1883; Pattern in the Mount, and other Sermons, 1886.

PARRY, Right Rev. Edward, D.D. (Oxford, 1870), bishop suffragan of Dover (suffragan to the archbishop of Canterbury), Church of England; b. at Government House, Sydney, New South Wales, in the year 1830; entered Balliol College, Oxford, 1849; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1852; M.A. 1853; ordained deacon 1854, priest 1855; was tutor of the University of Durham, 1853–56; curate of Sonning, Berkshire, 1856; domestic chaplain to the bishop of London, 1857–59; rector of Acton, Middlesex, and rural dean, 1856–69; bishop suffragan, 1870 (one of the first two bishops suffragan of the diocese of London). In 1871 a volume entitled Ilymm and Choirs, Andover, 1860 (of this work, an essay of sixty-one pages on The Text of Hymns was written by Professor Park). He edited The Ateneum, Discourses and Treatises by Edwards, Smalley, Marcy, Emmons, Griffin, Burge, and Weeks, With an Introductory Essay [of eighty pages], Boston, 1860; wrote a Memoir of Nathanael Emmons, 1861 (which was prefixed to the theological works of Dr. Emmons in 6 vols. 8vo.). His last publication is a volume of fourteen Discourses on some Theological Doctrines as related to the Religious Character, Andover, 1885.

PASSAQILIA, the Abbé Carlo, D.D., Roman Catholic; b. at Prive de San Paolo, near Lucca, Italy, in the year 1814; educated at Rome; became a Jesuit, and professor of theology in the Roman University. He edited the dogmatic theology of Petavius; wrote A Commentary on the Prerogatives of St. Peter, Ratisbon, 1850; On the Eternity of Future Punishment; in defence of the immaculate conception; but particularly a Latin pamphlet urging the Pope to renounce the temporal power of Acton, Middlesex, and rural dean, 1856–69; bishop suffragan, 1870 (one of the first two bishops suffragan of the diocese of London). In 1871 a volume entitled Ilymm and Choirs, Andover, 1860 (of this work, an essay of sixty-one pages on The Text of Hymns was written by Professor Park). He edited The Ateneum, Discourses and Treatises by Edwards, Smalley, Marcy, Emmons, Griffin, Burge, and Weeks, With an Introductory Essay [of eighty pages], Boston, 1860; wrote a Memoir of Nathanael Emmons, 1861 (which was prefixed to the theological works of Dr. Emmons in 6 vols. 8vo.). His last publication is a volume of fourteen Discourses on some Theological Doctrines as related to the Religious Character, Andover, 1885.

PATTERSON, Hugh Sinclair, D.D. (Glasgow, 1862), Presbyterian; b. at Cambelltown, Argyllshire, Feb. 26, 1832; educated at the University of Glasgow; entered the ministry of the Free Church, 1854; became minister of Free St. Mark's, Glasgow, 1854; removed to London in 1872 as minister of Belgrave Presbyterian Church; in 1880 came to his present charge, Trinity Presbyterian Church, Notting Hill, London. He has edited Dickinson's Quarterly (1878–81); since January, 1880, The British and Foreign Evangelical Review (quarterly); and since Nov. 3, 1881, Word and Work (weekly). He is the author of Studies in Ethics and its Functions, and Health Studies (all in 1880, several thousands sold, republished in 1 vol., Life, Function, and Health, 1884); "In defence: "The Earlier Scriptures, 1883; The Fourfold Life, 1884; Crosses and Crowns, 1884; Christ and Criticism, 1884; Faith and Unfaith, their Claims and Conflicts, 1885.
PAXTON, John Brown, D.D. (University of Glasgow, 1882), Congregationalist; b. in London Parish, Ayrshire, Scotland, Dec. 17, 1830; educated at Springhill Theological College, affiliated with London University, where he graduated B.A. 1849 (Old Testament honors examination, 1850); won Dr. Williams divinity scholarship, 1851; graduated M.A. (both in classics and philosophy), and gold medal in philosophy, 1853; became pastor of Congregational Church at Sheffield, 1854; principal of the Congregational Institute, Nottingham, 1863. He was editor of The Eclectic Review, 1859-62; and consulting editor of Contemporaneous Review since 1882. In theology, especially in apologetic tendencies, he is allied to Dorrer; in his doctrine of the Church, an Independent. He is the author of Evangelization of Town and Country, London, 1861; "Inspiration," Criticism of Theories of J. D. Morell and Professor F. Newm, 1862; A Review of the "Vie de Jesus:" containing Discussions on the Doctrine of Miracle, the Mythical Theory, and the Authenticity of the Gospels, 1864; The Origin of the Priesthood in the Church, 1875; Supernatural Religion: a Criticism, 1876; The Inner Mission of Germany, and its Lessons to us, 1883; The Inner Motion of the Church (in connexion with Women's Work in the Church and The Present State of Europe in Relation to the Spread of the Gospel), 1885; The Twofold Alternative (containing Religion or Atheism and A Priesthood or a Brotherhood), 1885; Evening Schools under Healthy Conditions, 1886; Contemporary Controversies on the Doctrine of the Church and the Relations of Church and State, 1886.

PATTERSON, Robert Mayne, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1880), Presbyterian; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., July 17, 1822; graduated from the Philadelphia High School, 1840, and (after five years' reporting in United-States Senate, and special study) from Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1859; pastor at Great Valley, Penn., 1850; South Church, Philadelphia, 1867; editor of Philadelphia Pan-Presbyterian Council in 1880; member of the Philadelphia and Belfast Councils; editor of Presbyterian Journal, 1881; author of several pamphlets and review articles, and of several addresses read to Philadelphia and Belfast pulpits. He is the author of Religious Republics, London, 1869; published Present-Day Lectures, 1872; and is the American correspondent of The Freeman, a London Baptist journal.

PAXTON, Alfred Spencer, D.D. (Madison University, Hamilton, N.Y., 1880), Baptist; b. at Launceston, Cornwall, Eng., Dec. 14, 1838; graduated at Regent's Park Baptist College, London, 1862; pastor at Newcastle-on-Tyne and Rochdale, Eng., 1855; New Haven, Conn., 1875; Albany, N.Y., 1879; professor of homiletics and pastoral theology in Rochester (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1891. He contributed to Religious Republics, London, 1869; published Present-Day Lectures, 1872; and is the American correspondent of The Freeman, a London Baptist journal.

PAXTON, Alfred Spencer, D.D. (Madison University, Hamilton, N.Y., 1863), Baptist; b. in Suffolk, Eng., Dec. 12, 1822; came to America when a child; graduated at Columbia University, Washington, D.C., 1848; became pastor at West Chester, Pa., 1848; Haddonfield, N.J., 1850; Hoboken, N.J., 1853; New York, N.Y., 1858; retired from pastorate, 1872, and has ever since been editor and proprietor of The Baptist Weekly, New-York City. In 1862 and 1863 he was chaplain of the Massachusetts Senate.

PAXTON, Francis Landey, D.D. (Hanover College, Ind., 1873), LL.D. (Wooster University, O., 1878), Presbyterian; b. at Warwick, Island of Bermuda, Jan. 22, 1843; graduated at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1863; pastor Eighty-fourth-Street Church, New-York City, 1865; at Nyack, 1867; pastor Soh Church, Brooklyn, 1871; professor of theology in the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Chicago, Ill., 1871; and of relations of philosophy and science to religion, Theological Seminary, Princeton, 1881. He is also professor of ethics in the College of New Jersey, Princeton. He was pastor elect of the Jefferson-Park Church, Chicago, 1874, and pastor 1879-81; editor of The Interior, 1873-86; and moderator of the General Assembly at Pittsburgh, Penn., in 1878. Besides numerous articles in periodicals, he has published Inspiration of the Scriptures, Philadelphia, 1889; Summary of Christian Doctrine; and is one of the editors of The Presbyterian Review.

PAXTON, William Weston, D.D. (Indiana Asbury University, Greenscastle, Ind., 1863), L.L.D. (University of the City of New York, 1882), Congregationalist; b. in New-York City, Oct. 19, 1821; graduated at the University of the City of New York, 1849, and at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1842; became pastor of Phillips Congregational Church, Boston, Mass., 1843; of the Fourth Church, Hartford, Conn., 1846; of the First Church, Chicago, Ill., 1857; was editor of The Advance, Chicago, Ill., 1867-72; lecturer on modern scepticism at Oberlin (O.) and Chicago (II.) Congregational theological seminaries, 1874-77; since 1877, president of Howard University, Washington, D.C., and in its theological department professor of natural theology and evidences of Christianity. He took an earnest part in the anti-slavery movement; was chairman of the committee which presented to President Lincoln, Sept. 13, 1862, the famous memorial from Chicago asking for a proclamation of emancipation; was vice-president of the North-Western Sanitary Commission during the Civil War, and as such made repeated visitations of the Eastern and Western armies, and published various papers on the condition of Great Britain and the Continent on behalf of the freed men in 1866. He is the author of The Young Man, Hartford, Conn., 1847 (republished as The Young Man's Friend, Auburn, N.Y., 1850); Conscience and Law, New York, 1850; Slavery and Infidelity, Cincinnati, 1856; Spiritual Victory, Boston, 1874; Prayer and its Remarkable Answers, Chicago, 1875, 20th ed. New York, 1885; and numerous articles in the various theological magazines.

PAXTON, John R., D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1882), Presbyterian; b. at Canonsburg, Penn., Sept. 18, 1843; graduated at Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1869, and at Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1869; became pastor at Churchville, Md., 1871; of Pine-street Church, Harrisburg, Penn., 1874; of New-York-avenue Church, Washington, D.C., 1878; of West Church, New-York City, 1892.

PAXTON, William Miller, D.D. (Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1860), L.L.D. (Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1883), Presbyterian; b. in Adams County, Penn., July 7, 1824; graduated at Pennsylvania College, PAYNE, Charles Henry, D.D. (Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1870). L.L.D. (Ohio State University, Athens, Ohio, 1879). Methodist; b. at Taunton, Mass., Oct. 24, 1830; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1856; studied theology in the Biblical Institute, Concord, N.H. (now the Boston School of Theology); was pastor from 1857 until 1876, when he became president of Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio. He was a member of the committee to revise the hymn-book of the Methodistic Episcopal Church, 1876; of the Ecumenical Methodist Conference, London, September, 1881; and of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 1890 and 1894. He is the author of Guides and Guards in Character Building, New York, 1883, 6th ed. 1886, republished London, 1884; and of the pamphlets, The Social Glass and Christian Obligation, 1868; Shall our American Sabbath be a Holiday, or a Holy-day? Philadelphia, 1872; Daniel, the Uncompromising Prophet, New York, 1872.

PAYNE-SMITH, Very Rev. Robert, Dean of Canterbury, Church of England; b. in Cheshire, in November, 1818; educated at Pembroke College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (second-class in classics) 1841, M.A. 1843; Boden Sanscrit scholar, 1840; Pusey and Ellerton Hebrew scholar, 1843; was pleased with himself 1843, passed down successively head master of the Kensington proprietary school (1853), sub-librarian of the Bodleian Library, Oxford (1857), canon of Christ Church, Oxford, and regius professor of divinity, and rector of Ewelme (1865), and dean of Canterbury (1871). He was bishop in 1859, and an Old-Testament reviser (1870-84). He is the author, translator, and editor of S. Cyrillic Alex. comment. in Luca evangel. quae supersunt Syriac, Oxford, 1858; St. Cyril's Commentary on St. Luke's Gospel, in English, 1859, 2 vols.; Ecclesiastical History of John, Bishop of Jerusalem (translated), 1887; The Authenticity and Messianic Interpretation of the Prophecies of Isaiah vindicated, 1862; Catalogus codicum Syriacorum et Carshunicorum in bibliotheca Bodleiana, 1864; Thesaurus Syriacus, 1868 sqq.; Prophecy a Preparation for Christ (Bampton Lecture), 1868; commentary on Jeremiah, in Bible (Speaker's) Commentary, 1871; on Genesis, in Bishop Elliott's Commentary.

PAYNE-SMITH, Very Rev. Robert, Dean of Canterbury, Church of England; b. in Cheshire, in November, 1818; educated at Pembroke College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (second-class in classics) 1841, M.A. 1843; Boden Sanscrit scholar, 1840; Pusey and Ellerton Hebrew scholar, 1843; was pleased with himself 1843, passed down successively head master of the Kensington proprietary school (1853), sub-librarian of the Bodleian Library, Oxford (1857), canon of Christ Church, Oxford, and regius professor of divinity, and rector of Ewelme (1865), and dean of Canterbury (1871). He was bishop in 1859, and an Old-Testament reviser (1870-84). He is the author, translator, and editor of S. Cyrillic Alex. comment. in Luca evangel. quae supersunt Syriac, Oxford, 1858; St. Cyril's Commentary on St. Luke's Gospel, in English, 1859, 2 vols.; Ecclesiastical History of John, Bishop of Jerusalem (translated), 1887; The Authenticity and Messianic Interpretation of the Prophecies of Isaiah vindicated, 1862; Catalogus codicum Syriacorum et Carshunicorum in bibliotheca Bodleiana, 1864; Thesaurus Syriacus, 1868 sqq.; Prophecy a Preparation for Christ (Bampton Lecture), 1868; commentary on Jeremiah, in Bible (Speaker's) Commentary, 1871; on Genesis, in Bishop Elliott's Commentary.

PEACOXY, Andrew Preston, D.D. (Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1852). L.L.D. (University of Rochester, N.Y., 1863). Unitarian; b. at Beverly, Mass., March 19, 1811; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1829, and at the theological seminary in connection with it, 1832; was pastor at Portsmouth, N.H., 1833-60; professor of Christian morals, and preacher to Harvard University, 1860-81. He edited The North-American Review, 1852-61; and has published, besides the above, Addresses and Sermons (1860); Sermons, Boston, 1854, 3d ed. 1857; Christian Consolations, Boston, 1844, 3d ed. 1857; Christian Consolations, 1846, 6th ed. 1872; Conversation, its Faults and Graces, 1856, 3d ed. 1882; Christianity the Religion of Nature (Lowell Lectures), 1884; Sermons for Children, 1860, 2d ed. 1887; Reminiscences of American Travel, New York, 1866; Manual of Moral Philosophy, 1873; Christianity and Science (Union Seminary Lectures), 1874; Christian Belief and Life, Boston, 1875; Baccalaureate Sermons, 1885; and translations of Cicero's De officiis (1883) and De senectute (1884); De Amicitia and Scipio's Dream, 1884; Plutarch on the Delay of the Divine Justice, 1885; A translation of Cicero's Tactician Disputations (On the contemplation of death, On bearing pain, etc.), 1886.

PECK, Thomas Ephraim, D.D. (Hampden-Sidney College, Prince-Edward County, Va., 1867). LL.D. (Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., 1889). Presbyterian; b. at Royalton, Windsor County, Vt., Feb. 3, 1819; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1841; received into New-England Conference, Methodist-Episcopal Church, 1849; was editor Sunday-school Messenger and Sunday-school Teacher, Boston, 1844-45; agent of American Sunday-School Union, 1854-56; senator from Norfolk County in Massachusetts Legislature, 1856-68; superintendent and chaplain of State Institutions, 1868-69; president of the Ely Training School, 1862; chaplain of House of Refuge, New York City, 1863-72; and since has been editor of Zion's Herald, Boston. He is a trustee of Boston University (since 1874), of Wellesley College (since 1870), and of Cushings Academy, Ashburnham, Mass. (since 1877), and was of Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., from 1870 to 1881. He is the author of Temptation, Boston, 1840, 2d ed. New York, 1844; One Talent improved, New York, 1845; The Eminent Dead, Boston, 1846 (second and subsequent editions at Nashville, Tenn.); Bible Scholar's Manual, New York, 1847; Notes on the Acts, 1848; Questions upon Acts, Genesis, and Exodus, 1848; The Token of Friendship, Boston, 1850; a series of reports upon Juvenile Reform and Industrial School, Lancaster, Mass., 1856-61; edited, by order of Legislature of Massachusetts, in 1856, a new edition, with additional notes and newspaper articles; published at the time, of the debates and proceedings of the convention of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, held in the year 1788, which ratified the Constitution of the United States, octavo, printed by the State; a series of chaplain's reports of House of Refuge, 1862-72; Life in Woods, or Adventures of Audubon, N.Y.
PELHAM, Hon. and Right Rev. John Thomas, D.D. (per Literas Regian, 1857), lord bishop of Norwich; b. in London, June 21, 1811; educated at Christ Church, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1832, M.A. 1835; ordained deacon 1834, priest 1835; was rector of Berg Apton, Norfolk, 1837-52; perpetual curate of Christ Church, Hampstead, 1852-53; rector of Bishopstone, London, 1855-57; consecrated bishop, 1857.

PELHAM. 165

PEROWNE.

1863; collection of hymns and ritual for House of Refuge, New York, 1864; Trials of an Inventor: Life and Discoveries of Charles Goodyear, 1866; Stories from Life which the Chaplain Told, Boston, 1866; Sequel to Stories from Life, 1867; The Word of God Opened, New York, 1868, 2d ed. 1874; A Half-Century with Juvenile Offenders, New York, 1869; The Sheltaner and His Home: Biographical Sketch of Thomas Edmontson, New York, 1870; The Chaplain with the Children, 1870; Hymns of the Higher Life, 1871; various articles.

PELHAM, Hon. and Right Rev. John Thomas, D.D. (per Literas Regian, 1857), lord bishop of Norwich; b. in London, June 21, 1811; educated at Christ Church, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1832, M.A. 1835; ordained deacon 1834, priest 1835; was rector of Berg Apton, Norfolk, 1837-52; perpetual curate of Christ Church, Hampstead, 1852-53; rector of Bishopstone, London, 1855-57; consecrated bishop, 1857.

PELHAM, Francis Nathan, D.D. (University of East Tennessee, Knoxville, Tenn., 1884), Congregationalist; b. in New-York City, Dec. 2, 1831; graduated at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1858, and from the theological seminary, Bangor, Me., 1857; was pastor of Congregational church at Lanesville (1857-60), Oakham (1861-66), Attiebore' (1866-71), and Natick (1871-83), all in Massachusetts. He is the author (with Mrs. Mary A. Peloubet) of Select Notes on the International Sunday-school Lessons, Boston, 1875 sqq. (13 vols. to 1896 inclusive, circulation over 230,000 vols.); International Question Book, 1874 sqq. (two grades, senior and intermediate, 20 vols.); Sunday-school Quarterly, 1880 sqq.; Intermediate Quarterly, 1881 sqq. (circulation of question-books and quarterlies over 1,370,000); Smith-Peloubet Bible Dictionary (a revision, with additions to date, of Smith's Condensed Bible Dictionary), Philadelphia, 1884; Select Songs for the Sunday School and Social Meetings, New York, 1884; occasional discourses, and temperance lesson-leafs.

PENDLETON, James Madison, D.D. (Denison University, Granville, O., 1865), Baptist; b. in St. Louis, Mo., 1831; was pastor at Bowling Green, Ky., 1837-57; professor of theology, Union University, Murfreesboro', Tenn., 1857-61; pastor at Hamilton, O., 1862-63, and at Upland, Tenn., 1863-65. He has never had a collegiate education, but received an honorary A.M. from Georgetown College, Ky., 1841. He is the author of Three Reasons why I am a Baptist, Cincinnati, O., 1853, last ed. St. Louis, Mo., 1884; Sermons, Nashville, Tenn., 1859; Church Manual, Philadelphia, 1868 (40 editions of 500 copies each); Christain Doctrines, 1878, 13th ed. 1885 (each edition 500 copies); Distinctive Principles of Baptists, 1881, 3d ed. 1885 (each edition 500 copies); with Rev. Dr. G. W. Clark, Brief Notes on the New Testament, 1884; The Atonement of Christ, 1885. His Three Reasons was translated into Welsh.

PENTEOOST, George Frederick, D.D. (Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1884), Congregationalist; b. at Albion, Ill., Sept. 23, 1842; apprenticed to a printer at fifteen; went to Kansas Territory at seventeen, was there as printer for a year; then became private secretary to Govs. Denver and Walsh, then clerk in United-States District Court and in Supreme Court of the Territory; studied law; entered Georgetown College, Ky., but left it in 1862, and joined the Eighth Kentucky Union Cavalry under Col. Haller (subsequently general, and secretary of the treasury under President Grant). He left the service in 1864, with the rank of captain. Since 1864 he has held the following pastorates: First Baptist Church, Greencastle, Ind., 1864-66; First Baptist Church, Evansville, Ind., 1866-69; First Baptist Church, Covington, Ky., 1869-80; Hanson-place Baptist Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1880-82; Warren-avenue Baptist Church, Boston, Mass., 1872-77; evangelist, 1877-81; since 1881 has been pastor of Tompkins-avenue Congregational Church, Brooklyn, N.Y. He has been three times abroad, always on invitation to preach and do evangelistic work, twice with Mr. Moody. He is the author of Angel in Marble, Boston, 1876, 3d ed. 1884, London 1884; In the Volume of the Book, New York, 1879, 3d ed. 1880, London, 1884; Out of Egypt, London, 1884, New York, 1885 (the last two books have had a joint circulation of 40,000 copies); many tracts and pamphlets; since 1885, editor of Words and Weapons for Christian Workers (monthly), New York, 1885 sqq.

PELPHES, Austin, D.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1856), Congregationalist; b. in West Brookfield, Mass., Jan. 7, 1820; graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1837; was pastor of Pine-street Church, Boston, Mass., 1842—46; and professor of sacred rhetoric in Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary, 1848—79. He has published The Still Hour, Boston, 1858; Hymns and Choirs, Andover, 1890; The New Birth, Boston, 1867; Sabbath Hours, 1870; Studies of the Old Testament, 1879; The Theory of Preaching, 1881; Men and Books, 1882; My Portfolio, 1882; English Style, 1883; My Study, 1885; and numerous articles.

PELPHES, Sylvanus Dryden, D.D. (Madison University, Hamilton, N.Y., 1864), Baptist; b. at Suffield, Conn., May 15, 1816; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1844; at Yale Divinity School, New Haven, Conn., 1847; was pastor of First Baptist Church, New Haven, Conn., 1846—74; of Jefferson-street Church, Providence, R.I., 1874—76; and since has been proprietor and editor of The Christian Secretary, Hartford, Conn. He has published Eloquence of Nature, and other Poems, Hartford, 1842; Sunlight and Heartlight (poems), New York, 1859; Holy Land: a Year's Tour, 1863, republished under title, Bible Lands, Chicago, 1869, 11th ed. 1877; The Poet's Song for the Heart and the Home, 1867; Rest Days in a Journey to Bible Lands: Sermons preached in the Four Quarters of the Globe, 1886.

PELPHES, Philip, Methodist layman; b. in Chautauqua County, N.Y., Aug. 18, 1834; brought up on the farm of a neighbor; early attracted attention by his singing, received educational training at the country singing-school, and later from Dr. Lowell Mason; began his first singing-school at Alleghany, N.Y., in 1833; conducted such schools subsequently in adjacent towns and cities. His parents were Baptists, and he was one himself from 1852 to 1860; but in 1860 he and his wife (whom he had married that year) joined the Methodist Church at Marion, O., and have ever since been in that denomination. He brought out his first musical publication, Early Blossoms, in 1880, and sold twenty thousand copies of it. In 1861 he moved to Cincinnati and opened a music-store. In 1869 his music-store in Cincinnati, 1862, sold to the extent of seven hundred thousand copies. During the war he entered vigorously into the work of the Christian Commission, and raised much money for it by his Home Songs, and his personally conducted "services of song" in different parts of the country. In 1877 he was appointed Missionary of the American Baptist Home Mission Society, and issued The Singing Pilgrim, and since other books. In 1866 his music-store in Cincinnati was burned, and he moved his business to New York. In 1868 he first visited England, and successfully held ser-PHILPOTT.

168

Pierce.

Pierce, Right Rev. Henry Niles, D.D. (University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, 1862), LL.D. (William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va., 1869), Episcopal, bishop of Arkansas; b. at Pawtucket, R.I., Oct. 19, 1820; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R. I., 1842; was rector of St. John's, Mobile, Ala., 1857-88; of St. Paul's, Springfielxl, III., 1868-70; consecrated bishop, 1870. Besides occasional sermons, essays, addresses, etc., he has written The Agnostic, and other Poems, New York, 1864.

PIERSON, Arthur Tappan, D.D. (Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., 1874), Presbyterian; b. in New York City, March 6, 1837; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., 1857, and at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1860; pastor at Binghamton, N. Y., 1860; Waterford, N. Y., 1863; Detroit, Mich., 1869; Indianapolis, 1882; and Philadelphia (Bethany Church), 1883. He is a frequent contributor to periodicals.

PIQUO, Francis, D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1873), Church of England; b. at Baden-Baden, Germany, Jan. 8, 1832; educated at Trinity College, Dublin, 1859; graduated B. A. 1858, divinity master at the Queen's College, 1857-89; was ordained deacon 1855, priest 1856; curate of Stoke Talmage, Oxfordshire, 1855-56; chaplain to Bishop Spencer at Marborough Chapel, Paris, 1856-58; curate of St. Philip, Regent Street, and of St. Mary, Kensington, London, 1858-60; perpetual curate of St. Philip, Regent Street, London, 1860-69; vicar of Doncaster, 1869-75; rural dean of Doncaster, 1870-75; honorary chaplain in ordinary to the Queen, 1871-74; became chaplain in ordinary, 1874; vicar and rural dean of Halifax, 1875; canon of Ripon Cathedral, 1885. He has held "missions" in England and America (1885), and many "retreats." He is the author of Faith and Practice (sermons), London, 1895; Early Communion, 1877; Addresses to District Visitors and Sunday-school Teachers, 1890; Addresses delivered on Various Occasions, 1883.

PIPER, Karl Wilhelm Ferdinand, German Protestant; b. at Stralsund, May 7, 1811; studied at Berlin and Halle, 1829-35; professor of the Old Testament, Göttingen, 1833; pribr-dozent at Berlin, 1840; professor extraordinary, 1842; and since 1849 director of the Christian Archaeological Museum, which he had himself founded. From 1850 to 1870 he edited the Evangelischer Kalender (Berlin); and has written much upon Christian archeology, of which may be mentioned, Geschichte des Ostertestes, Berlin, 1845; Mythologie der christlichen Kirche, Weimar, 1847-51, 2 vols.; Einleitung in die monumentale Theologie, Gottha, 1867; Evangelischer Kalender, Berlin, 1875.

PIRIE, Very Rev. William Robinson, D.D. (King's College and University of Aberdeen, 1848), principal of Aberdeen University, Church of Scotland; b. in the manse of Slains, Aberdeenshire, July 26, 1804; d. at Chanonry, Old Aberdeen, Nov. 3, 1885. He matriculated at King's College and University of Aberdeen, 1818, and attended all the classes, but did not graduate, it being unusual at that time to do so; became minister of Dyce, Aberdeenshire, 1830; professor of divinity at Marischal College and University of Aberdeen, 1843; professor of divinity and church history in Aberdeen University, 1860; principal of the university, 1877.
He was moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, 1864; author of the Patronage Abolition Act in Church of Scotland; first chairman of school board of Aberdeen under Education Act of 1872. He was a conservative in politics. He was the author of Inquiry into the Constitution of the Human Mind, Aberdeen, 1856; Natural Theology, Edinburgh, 1868; Philosophy of Christianity, 1872; pamphlets upon Position, Principles, and Prospects of the Church of Scotland (Edinburgh, 1864), and upon other church questions, which went through many editions.

PITCHER, James, Lutheran; b. at Knox, Albany County, N.Y., Oct. 11, 1845; graduated at Hartwick Seminary, N.Y., 1869, and since 1872 has been president.

PITZER, Alexander White, D.D. (Arkansas College, Ark., 1876), Presbyterian (Southern Church); b. at Fowlerville, Livingston Co., N.Y., July 14, 1850; studied at Virginia Collegiate Institute (now Roanoke College), 1868–71; graduated at Hampden-Sidney College, Prince Edward County, Va., 1874; studied at Union Theological Seminary, Prince Edward County, Va., 1874–55, and at Dauphin Theological Seminary, Ky., 1855–57, and graduated 1857; was pastor at Leavenworth, Kan., 1857–61; Sparta, Ga., 1862–63; Liberty, Va., 1866–67; organized Central Presbyterian Church, Washington, D.C., in 1868, and has since been its pastor; since 1875 has been professor of biblical history and literature in Howard University in the same city. Since 1865 he has been a trustee of Hampden-Sidney College; since 1872, stated clerk of presbytery of Chesapeake; since 1873, president of the Washington-City Bible Society by annual unanimous re-election (was chairman of special committee of the society to report on the Canterbury revision, and reported favorably; under his presidency it had been (1870) 2,967, in 1872 3,552); and since 1874, secretary of the Washington-City branch of the Evangelical Alliance. He was a member of the Prophetic Conference in New York, 1878, and suggested and aided in preparing the Doctrinal Basis, which was unanimously adopted. He introduced in the Southern General Assembly held at Atlanta, Ga., in 1882, resolutions to establish fraternity with the Northern Assembly, and aided in passage of the same. He favors the union of American Presbyterians on the basis of consensus of Presbyterian creeds. He is the author of Ecce Deus Homo (published anonymously), Philadelphia, 1867; Christ, Teacher of Men, 1871; The New Life Not the Higher Life, 1878; contributions to reviews (North-American, Presbyterian, Southern Presbyterian, Southern Homiletic), magazines (Catholic Presbyterian, Pulpit Treasury), and newspapers (New-York Observer, Christian Observer, Presbyterian, New-York Evangelist); Journal, Philadelphia.

PLATH, Karl Heinrich Christian, Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1869), Lutheran; b. at Bromberg, Sept. 8, 1829; educated at Halle (1849–52), Bonn (1852–53), and at Wittenberg Theological Seminary (1854–58); was preacher at Halle, and gymnasium teacher, 1856–63; third secretary of the Berlin Mission, 1863–71; first secretary of Gossner's Mission, Berlin, since 1871; privat-docent in University, 1869; titular professor, 1883. He visited India in winter of 1877–78 on behalf of Gossner's Mission.

He is author of Leben des Freiherrn von Canstein, Halle, 1881; Sieben Zeugen des Herren aus allerer Volk, Berlin, 1867; Die Erzählung der Völker im Lichte der Missionsgeschichte, 1867; Drei Neue Missionserfahren, 1868; Die Missionsgeheimnisse des Freiherrn von Leibnitz, 1869; Missions-Studien, 1870; Die Bedeutung der Atlantik-Pacific Eisenbahnen für das Reich Gottes, 1871; Die Kulturhistorische Bedeutung der Kolonisation in Ostindien, 1876; Gossner's Mission unter Hindus und Kolhs um Neujahr 1878, 1879; Nordindische Missionseindrücke, 1879, 2d ed. 1881; Eine Reise nach Indien für kleine und grosse Leute beschrieben, 1890; Welche Stellung haben die Glieder der christlichen Kirche dem modernen Judenthum gegenüber einzunehmen? 1881; Was machen wir Christen mit unseren Juden? Nördlingen, 1881; Shakespeare's Kaufmann von Venedig. Ein Beitrag zum Verständniss der Judenfrage, Greifswald, 1883.

PLUM, Albert Hale, D.D. (Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1889), Congregationalist; b. at Gowanda, Erie County, N.Y., Aug. 23, 1829; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1855, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1858; became pastor of First Church, Chelsea, Mass., 1858; and of Walnut-avenue Church, Boston Highlands, Mass., 1872.

PLUMMER, Alfred D.D. (Durham, 1883), Church of England; b. at Heworth parsonage, on the Tyne, Feb. 17, 1841; was Gifford exhibitor of Exeter College, Oxford; first-class in moderations in 1861; graduated B.A. (second-class classics) 1863, M.A. (of Trinity College) 1869; ordained deacon 1869; Hilary lecturer of Oxford University, 1864–74; and ordained priest, 1867–74; master of the schools, 1868; pro-proctor, 1873; master of University College, Durham, 1874; senior proctor, 1877. In June, 1871, he bore the degree of D.D. by diploma sent by the University of Oxford to Dr. von Dollinger, one of whose last students he had been (1870–72). He met at the Bonn re-union conferences of 1874 and 1875. Dr. Plummer translated Dollinger's Fables respecting the Popes, London, 1871; Prophecies and the Prophetic Spirit, 1873; and Hippolytus and Callistus, Edinburgh, 1876 (with additional original matter); and has also published Intemperate Criticism, Durham, 1876; and written on SS. Peter and Jude, in Ellicott's Commentary, London, 1879; on St. John's Gospel (1880, 2d ed. 1884) and Epistles (1883), in The Cambridge Bible; on St. John's Gospel, in Cambridge Greek Testament, 1882; and the Historical Introduction in The Pulpit Commentary, 1883.

PLUMPTRE, Very Rev. Edward Hayes, D.D. (Glasgow, 1873). Church of England; b. in London, Aug. 6, 1821; was scholar of University College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (double first-class) 1841, M.A. 1847. He was a fellow of Brasenose College, Oxford, 1844-47; assistant preacher at Lincoln's Inn, 1851-53; select preacher at Oxford, 1851-53, 1864-66, 1872-73; chaplain of King's College, London, 1847-68; professor of pastoral theology there, 1853-63; dean of Queen's College, London, 1853-75; prebendary of Portpool, in St. Paul's Cathedral, 1863-81; professor of exegesis in King's College, London, 1863-81; examining chaplain in the archbishop of Canterbury, 1870-81. On Dec. 21, 1881, he was installed dean of Wells. He was a member of the Old Testament company of revisers, 1870-74. He has been a frequent contributor to theological and literary journals. In Smith's Dictionary he wrote many articles; for The Bible (Speaker's) Commentary he wrote the comments on The Book of Proverbs (1873); for Bishop Ellicott's New Testament Commentary for English Readers, those on the first three gospels, the Acts, and Second Corinthians (1877); for the same's Old Testament Commentary, those on Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Lamentations (1883-84); for The Cambridge Bible, those on Ecclesiastes, James, Peter, and Jude, and for Dr. Schaff's Popular Commentary on the New Testament, those on First and Second Timothy (1883). He edited The Bible Educator, 1875. He has likewise published The Calling of a Medical Student (4 sermons), 1849; The Study of Theology and the Ministry of Souls (5 sermons), 1851; King's College Sermons, 1854-56; Spirits of Prayer, and other Sermons on Life after Death, 1881, 3d thousand 1885; Life and Letters of Thomas Ken, Bishop of Bath and Wells, 1888, 2 vols.

PLUNKET, Right Hon. and Most Rev. William Plunket, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1837), Presbyterian; b. at Tilloolly, Ceylon, Aug. 21, 1815; graduated at Amherst (Mass.) College, 1837; studied the next two years in Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary; was pastor (Congregational) at Fairhaven, Mass., 1843-49; Newark, N.J. (Presbyterian), 1849-69; and at Oakland, Calif., 1869-71; professor of church history in the San Francisco (Cal.) Theological Seminary, 1871-76; and since has been corresponding secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Education, Philadelphia. He translated and edited, in connection with Dr. Wing, King's commentary on Corinthians in the American edition of Lange, New York, 1868.

POPE, William Burt, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1879). Methodist; b. at llorton, N.S., Feb. 19, 1822; studied theology at Richmond College, Eng.; from 1841 to 1867 was a Methodist pastor; and since 1867 has been professor of theology in Didsbury College, Manchester. In 1877 he was president of the British Wesleyan Conference. He is the author of a translation of Stier's Words of the Lord Jesus, and of the Seven Signs, Edinburgh, 1876; 4 vols.; also of Discourses on the Kingdom and Reign of Christ, London, 1869; Person of Christ (Fernley Lecture), 1st and 2d ed. 1875; A Compendium of Christian Theology, 1875-76, 3 vols.; The Prayers of St. Paul, 1876; Discourses, chiefly on Lordship and the Incarnate Redeemer, 1st to 3d ed. 1880; Sermons, Addresses, and Charges of a Year, 1878; A Higher Catechism of Theology, 1883, 2d ed. 1884.

PORTER, Josias Leslie, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1864), L.L.D. (Glasgow, 1884), D.Litt. (Queen's University, Ireland, 1881), Presbyterian; b. at Burt, County Donegal, Ireland, Oct. 4, 1823; graduated at Glasgow University, 1843; studied theology at the Free Church College and University, both Edinburgh, 1843-45; in the Presbyterian Church of England, pastor at Newcastle-on-Tyne, 1846-49; missionary of the Presbyterian Church of Ireland in Damascus, 1849-50; professor of bibliical criticism in the Assembly's College, Belfast, Ireland, 1860-77; appointed by the British Parliament commissioner of education in Ireland, 1878; and by the Queen, president of Queen's College, Belfast, and senator of the Queen's University, 1879; and in 1880 senator of the Royal University of Ireland. He was moderator of the Irish General Assembly, 1875; was largely engaged in preparing the great scheme of intermediate education in Ireland, 1878-79, and in framing the constitution and the educational courses of the Royal University, 1881-84. He has travelled very extensively in Palestine, Syria, Arabia, Asia Minor, Turkey, Egypt, North Africa, Europe, and America. He is a member of the British, American, and Foreign Historical Societies; has published Five Years in Damascus, with Travels and Researches in Lebanon, Palmyra, and Hauran, London, 1855, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1870; Hand-book for Syria and Palestine (Murray's), 1858, 2 vols., 3d ed. 1873; The Pentateuch and the Gospels, Edinburgh, 1864; The Giant Cities of Bashan, and Holy Places of...
PORTER, Noah, D.D. (University of New-York City 1858, Edinb. 1880), LL.D. (Western Reserve College, Ohio, 1870; Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1883), LL.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1865; Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1881), Congregationalist; b. in Farmington, Conn., Dec. 14, 1811; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1831-33; tutor at Yale, 1833-35; pastor at New Milford, Conn., 1836-43; at Springfield, Mass., 1843-46; Clark professor of metaphysics and mathematics at Yale College, 1846-71; president of Yale College, 1871-86. He is the author of Historical Discourse at Farmington, Nov. 4, 1840 (commemorating two-hundredth anniversary of its settlement), Hartford, 1841; The Educational Systems of the Puritans and Jesuits compared, New York, 1851; The Human Inte1lect, 1869, 3d ed. 1876; Books and Reading, 1876, 3d ed. 1877; American Colleges and the American Public, 1870, 2d ed. 1878; Elements of Intellectual Science, 1871, 2d ed. 1876; Sciences of Nature versus the Science of Man, 1871; Evangelion: the Place, the Story, and the Poem, 1882; Science and Sentiment, 1892; The Elements of Moral Science, Theoretical and Practical, 1886; Bishop Berkeley, 1885; Kant's Ethics, a Critical Exposition, Chicago, 1886. He was the principal editor of the revised editions of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, Springfield, Mass., 1884 and 1886.

PORTER, Right Rev. Henry Codman, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1865; Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1883), L.L.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1881), Episcopalian, assistant bishop of New York; b. at Schenectady, N.Y., May 25, 1835; graduated from the Protestant-Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia, 1858; at Grace Church, Greenburgh, N.Y., 1857; St. John's Church, Troy, N.Y., 1859; assistant minister of Trinity Church, Boston, 1866; rector of Grace Church, New York City, 1886; assistant bishop of New York (with the right of succession), October, 1883. He has published Simplicities and Deaconsesses at Home and Abroad, New York, 1871; Gates of the East, A Winter in Egypt and Syria, 1876; Sermons of the City, 1881. work, in Union Theological Seminary, New-York City; and this position he now occupies. Besides numerous sermons, addresses, and articles in periodicals, he has published A Memoir of Seerenty S. Prentiss (his brother), New York, 1865, 2 vols., new ed. 1879; A Discourse in Memory of Thomas Harvey Skinner, D.D., LL.D., 1871; The Life and Letters of Elizabeth Prentiss (his wife), 1882.

PRESSENSÉ, Edmond (Dechaillot) de, D.D. (hon., Breslau 1869, Montauban 1879, Edinburgh 1884). French Protestant; b. in Paris, Jan. 24, 1824; studied arts at the University of Paris; theology under Vinet at Lausanne (1842-45), and under Tholuck and Neander at Halle and Berlin (1846-47); was pastor of the Free Evangelical Congregation of the Taiffbout at Paris, 1847-70; deputy to the National Assembly from the Department of the Seine, 1871-79; elected a life senator of France, 1883. He is president of the Synodical Commission of the Free Church of France, in whose organization he took a prominent part, and active in the Evangelical Alliance and in the evangelization of France. He is a chevalier of the Legion of Honor. Since 1854 he has edited the Reue chrétienne, Paris, which he founded. Of his numerous publications may be mentioned, Conférences sur le christianisme dans son application aux questions sociales, Paris, 1849; Du catholicisme en France, 1851; Le Redempteur, 1854, 2d ed. 186- (English trans., The Redeemer, Discourses, Edinburgh, 1884, Boston, 1867; German trans., Der Erlöser, Gotha, 1883; also in Swedish and Dutch); La Famille chrétienne, 1856, 2d ed. 1880 (German trans., Leipzig, 1864); Histoire des trois premieres siècles de l'Eglise chrétienne, 1858-77, 4 vols. (German trans. by Ed. Fabarius, Leipzig, 1862-78, 6 parts); Discours religieux, 1859; L'Ecole critique et Jésus Christ, 1863; Le pays de l'Evangile, 1864, 3d ed. 187- (English trans., The Land of the Gospel, Notes of a Journey in the East, London, 1863); L'Eglise et la Révolution française, 1864, 2d ed. 1867 (English trans., Religion and the Reign of Terror: or, The Church during the French Revolution, trans. by J. P. Lacroux, New York, 1866); Le Christ et son temps, sa vie, son œuvre, 1866, 7th ed. 1884 (English trans. by Annie Harwood, London, 1868, 4th ed. 1871; German trans. by Ed. Fabarius, Halle, 1866); Études évangélistes, 1867-68, 2 series (English trans. by Annie Harwood, Mystery of Suffering, and other Discourses, London, 1868; German trans., Evangelische Studien, Halle, 1869, 2d ed. 1884); La vraie Liberté (four discourses), 1869; Rome and Italy at the Opening of the Ecumenical Council (trans. from the French), New York, 1870; Le Concile du Vatican, son histoire et ses conséquences politiques et religieuses, 1872 (German trans. by Ed. Fabarius, Das Vatikanische Concil, Niödingen, 1872); La liberté religieuse en Europe depuis 1870, 1874; Le devoir, 1875; La question ecclésiastique en 1877, 1878; L'apostolat missionnaire, 1879; Études contemporaines, 1880 (English trans. by A. H. Holmden, Contemporary Portraits, New York, 1880); Les origines, 1882 (English trans., Study of Origins); L'histoire de Dieu: Doctrine, Duties, 1879; German trans. by Ed. Fabarius, Die Ursprüngte, Halle, 1884.

PRESTON, Thomas Scott, Roman Catholic; b. at Hartford, Conn., July 23, 1824; graduated at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1843; entered the Protestant-Episcopal ministry, 1846; became a Roman Catholic, 1849, and priest 1850; domestic prelate of his Holiness, 1881; and is now vicar-general and chancellor of the diocese of New York, and parish priest of St. Ann's. He is the author of Ark of the Covenant, Discourses upon the Joys, Sorrows, and Glories of the Mother of God, New York, 1860; Life of Mary Magdalen, 1861; Sermons for the Seasons, 1884; Lectures on Christian Unity, 1868; Purgatorial Manual, 1867; Reason and Revelation, 1868; Christ and the Church, 1870; Lectures upon the Devotion to the Sacred Heart of Jesus Christ, 1872; The Vicar of Christ, 1872; The Divine Sanctuary: Series of Meditations upon the Most Sacred Heart of Jesus, 1878; Divine Paraclete, 1880; Protestantism and the Bible, 1880; Protestantism and the Church, 1882; God and Reason, 1884; Watch on Calvary, 1885.

PRIME, Edward Dorr Griffin, D.D. (Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1857), Presbyterian; b. at Cambridge, N.Y., Nov. 2, 1814; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1832, and at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1838; was pastor at Oxford, N.Y., 1839-41; at Saratoga Springs, N.Y., 1842-43; in Rome, 1844-45; at Saratoga Springs, N.Y., 1846-51; American chaplain at Rome, winter of 1854-55; since 1853 has been co-editor of The New York Observer. He has published Around the World, New York, 1872 (several editions); Forty Years in the Turkish Empire (memoirs of Dr. William Goodell), 1875, 6th ed. 1883.

PRIME, Samuel Irenæus, D.D. (Hampden Sidney College, Va., 1854) Presbyterian; b. at Ballston, Saratoga County, N.Y., Nov. 4, 1812; d. while on a vacation trip, at Manchester, Vt., Saturday, July 18, 1885. He was educated in the academy at Cambridge, N.Y., and at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass.; graduated from the latter, 1839; and at Union Theology at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, 1832-33. He ever afterwards remained a firm friend and active supporter of his literary and of his theological alma mater. He was pastor at Ballston Spa 1833-35, and at Matteawan, N.J., 1837-40. He became editor of The New-York Observer in 1840, and continued to fill this office until his death. He held the position of the chief proprietor of this old and influential family paper, which is read in all parts of the United States, as well as in many reading-rooms of Europe. He was for some time corresponding secretary and one of the directors of the American Bible Society, corresponding secretary of the Evangelical Alliance, president of Wells College, and a trustee of Williams College. He took an active and leading part in all the affairs of the Presbyterian Church, and in the Christian and philanthropic enterprises of the age. He repeatedly visited Europe. He wrote a number of books which had an extraordinary circulation at home and abroad (see list below). Among these we mention Travels in Europe and the East; The Bible in the Levant; The Alhambra and the Kremlin; Life of Samuel F. B. Morse; the Irenæus Letters (from The New-York Observer); and especially the Fower Keys of Prayer and Duty, 1839, and its Answer (1882). The Irenæus Letters are unique, and show an extraordinary faculty of clothing every-day topics and experiences with a fresh interest, and extracting from them lessons of pro-PUENJER.

PUENJER, (Georg Christian) Bernhard, Ph.D. (Jena, 1874), D.D. (hons., Heidelberg, 1883), was educated at Jena, Erlangen, Freiburg, and Berlin. He was a voluminous author. Among his works may be mentioned, "Anatomie des papismus, Paris, 1845; Histoire de la Réformation française, 1857-58;" etc. PRUENJER, (Christian) Bernard, Ph.D. (Jena, 1874), D.D. (hons., Heidelberg, 1883), Protestant theologian; b. at Friedrichsagaboeckog, Schleswig-Holstein, June 7, 1850; d. at Jena, May 13, 1885. He was educated at Jena, Erlangen, Zürich, and Berlin. He was a voluminous author. Among his works may be mentioned, "Anatomie des papismus, Paris, 1845; Histoire de la Réformation française, 1857-58;" etc. PRUENJER, (Christian) Bernard, Ph.D. (Jena, 1874), D.D. (hons., Heidelberg, 1883), Protestant theologian; b. at Friedrichsagaboeckog, Schleswig-Holstein, June 7, 1850; d. at Jena, May 13, 1885. He was educated at Jena, Erlangen, Zürich, and Berlin. He was a voluminous author. Among his works may be mentioned, "Anatomie des papismus, Paris, 1845; Histoire de la Réformation française, 1857-58;" etc. PRUENJER, (Christian) Bernard, Ph.D. (Jena, 1874), D.D. (hons., Heidelberg, 1883), Protestant theologian; b. at Friedrichsagaboeckog, Schleswig-Holstein, June 7, 1850; d. at Jena, May 13, 1885. He was educated at Jena, Erlangen, Zürich, and Berlin. He was a voluminous author. Among his works may be mentioned, "Anatomie des papismus, Paris, 1845; Histoire de la Réformation française, 1857-58;" etc. PRUENJER, (Christian) Bernard, Ph.D. (Jena, 1874), D.D. (hons., Heidelberg, 1883), Protestant theologian; b. at Friedrichsagaboeckog, Schleswig-Holstein, June 7, 1850; d. at Jena, May 13, 1885. He was educated at Jena, Erlangen, Zürich, and Berlin. He was a voluminous author. Among his works may be mentioned, "Anatomie des papismus, Paris, 1845; Histoire de la Réformation française, 1857-58;" etc. PRUENJER, (Christian) Bernard, Ph.D. (Jena, 1874), D.D. (hons., Heidelberg, 1883), Protestant theologian; b. at Friedrichsagaboeckog, Schleswig-Holstein, June 7, 1850; d. at Jena, May 13, 1885. He was educated at Jena, Erlangen, Zürich, and Berlin. He was a voluminous author. Among his works may be mentioned, "Anatomie des papismus, Paris, 1845; Histoire de la Réformation française, 1857-58;" etc. PRUENJER, (Christian) Bernard, Ph.D. (Jena, 1874), D.D. (hons., Heidelberg, 1883), Protestant theologian; b. at Friedrichsagaboeckog, Schleswig-Holstein, June 7, 1850; d. at Jena, May 13, 1885. He was educated at Jena, Erlangen, Zürich, and Berlin. He was a voluminous author. Among his works may be mentioned, "Anatomie des papismus, Paris, 1845; Histoire de la Réformation française, 1857-58;" etc. PRUENJER, (Christian) Bernard, Ph.D. (Jena, 1874), D.D. (hons., Heidelberg, 1883), Protestant theologian; b. at Friedrichsagaboeckog, Schleswig-Holstein, June 7, 1850; d. at Jena, May 13, 1885. He was educated at Jena, Erlangen, Zürich, and Berlin. He was a voluminous author. Among his works may be mentioned, "Anatomie des papismus, Paris, 1845; Histoire de la Réformation française, 1857-58;" etc. PRUENJER, (Christian) Bernard, Ph.D. (Jena, 1874), D.D. (hons., Heidelberg, 1883), Protestant theologian; b. at Friedrichsagaboeckog, Schleswig-Holstein, June 7, 1850; d. at Jena, May 13, 1885. He was educated at Jena, Erlangen, Zürich, and Berlin. He was a voluminous author. Among his works may be mentioned, "Anatomie des papismus, Paris, 1845; Histoire de la Réformation française, 1857-58;" etc.
PULLMAN, James Minton, D.D. (St. Lawrence University, Canton, N.Y., 1879), Universalist; b. at Portland, Chautauqua County, N.Y., Aug. 21, 1836; graduated at St. Lawrence Divinity School, Canton, N.Y., 1860; was pastor First Universalist Church, Troy, N.Y., 1861-68; of Sixth Universalist Church (Our Saviour), New-York City, 1868-85; since 1885 of First Universalist Church, Lynn, Mass. He organized and was first president of the Young Men's Universalist Association of New-York City, 1869; was secretary of the Universalist General Convention, 1868-77, and chairman of the publication board of the New-York State Convention, 1869-74; trustee of St. Lawrence University, Canton, N.Y., 1870-85; since 1885 of First Universalist Church, Lynn, Mass. Under him the new Church of Our Saviour, New-York City (dedicated 1874), was built. His theological standpoint is "the ethical interpretation of Christianity, as opposed to the magical interpretation; belief in the perfectibility of man (no evil is remediless); the inexorableness of the Divine love; the complete success of Jesus Christ (here and elsewhere), and the final moral harmony of the universe (evil completely eradicated and overcome)." His publications are sermons, lectures, pamphlets, and review articles.

QUINTARD, Right Rev. Charles Todd, M.D. (University of the City of New York, 1849), S.T.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1866), LL.D. (Cambridge, Eng., 1887), Episcopalian, bishop of Tennessee; b. at Stamford, Conn., Dec. 22, 1824; appointed physician in New-York Dispensary, 1847; professor of physiology and pathological anatomy in the Medical College, Memphis, Tenn., 1851; ordained deacon 1854, priest 1855; became rector of the Church of the Advent, Nashville, Tenn., 1858; was chaplain in the Confederate army during the civil war; consecrated bishop, 1865; was vice-chancellor of the University of the South, 1866-72. He is the author of occasional sermons, charges, tracts, and letters, and of Preparation for Confirmation, New York, 187--.
RAINE, Robert, D.D. (Glasgow, 18—, Edinburgh, 1843; and studied theology at New College, Edinburgh, completing the course in 1848; became minister of the Free Church at Huntly, 1851; of the Free High Church, Edinburgh, 1854; professor of church history in New College, Edinburgh, 1862; principal, 1874. He is the author of Three Lectures on the Church of Scotland, Edinburgh, 1872, 5th ed. 1884; The Delivery and De-fessor of church history in New College, Edinburgh, 1874; The Bible and Criticism, London, 1878; various pamphlets, and occasional publications may be mentioned, Ethice librorum apo-cyphorum V. T., Breslau, 1838; Kritische Untersuchungen über den Inhalt der korinther Briefe, 1847; De christologia Paulina contra Baurium commentatio, 1852; Theologica oder Encyclopaedie der Theologie, Leipzig, 1880 (English trans., Encyclopaedia of Theology, Edinburgh, 1885, 2 vols.).

RAEBIGER, Julius Ferdinand, German Protestant; b. at Losa, April 20, 1811; studied at Leipzig and Breslau, 1829—34; became privatdocent at Breslau, 1838; professor extraordinary, 1847; ordinary professor, 1859. Among his publications may be mentioned, Elhice librorum apo-
cyphorum V. T., Breslau, 1838; Kritische Untersuchungen aber den Inhalt der korinther Briefe, 1847; De christologia Paulina contra Baurium commentatio, 1852; Theologica oder Encyclopaedie der Theologie, Leipzig, 1880 (English trans., Encyclopaedia of Theology, Edinburgh, 1885, 2 vols.).

RAENNE, Ernst, D.D. (hon., Marburg, 1850), Ph.D.
(1848), Evangelical German theologian; b. at Wiehe, Thuringia, Sept. 10, 1814; studied at Leipzig (1834), Berlin (1835–39), and Bonn (1836–37); was private tutor in his brother's family, 1837–
39; pastor at Buchau, 1840–50; and professor of theology at Marburg, 1850 to date. He is a Lutheran, but favors the union of the Lutheran and Reformed churches. He is consistorialrath. He is the author of Das kirchliche Perikopensystem aus
den ältesten Urkunden der römischen Liturgie, Berlin, 1847; Das Buch Tobias metrisch übersetzt, Bayreuth, 1847; Kritische Zusammenstellung der...

RANKE, Ernst, D.D. (hon., Marburg, 1850), Ph.D.
(1848), Evangelical German theologian; b. at Wiehe, Thuringia, Sept. 10, 1814; studied at Leipzig (1834), Berlin (1835–39), and Bonn (1836–37); was private tutor in his brother's family, 1837–
39; pastor at Buchau, 1840–50; and professor of theology at Marburg, 1850 to date. He is a Lutheran, but favors the union of the Lutheran and Reformed churches. He is consistorialrath. He is the author of Das kirchliche Perikopensystem aus
den ältesten Urkunden der römischen Liturgie, Berlin, 1847; Das Buch Tobias metrisch übersetzt, Bayreuth, 1847; Kritische Zusammenstellung der...

RANDON, William Wilberforce, D.D. (University of the City of New York, 1883; Reformer (Dutch);
B. at Gorham, Me., Dec. 8, 1816; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1837, and at bangor Theological Seminary, Me., 1840; licensed
by Waldo Congregational Association, Me., 1840;
pastor of the Reformed Dutch Church of Canasa-
tota, N.Y., 1841–44; editor of the American Tract Society, New-York City, 1848–72; publishing secretary of the same since 1872. He is the author of Songs of Zion, New York, 1851 (88,000 copies printed), revised and enlarged, 1885 (86,000 copies printed); Dictionary of the Bible for General Use, 1890 (206,000 copies have been printed), enlarged and largely re-written, 1886; other smaller books.

RANDOLPH, Right Rev. Alfred Magill, D.D.
(William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va., 1875), Episcopalian, assistant bishop of Virginia;
b. at Winchester, Frederick County, Va., Aug. 31, 1836; graduated at William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va., 1855, and at the Theological Seminary of Virginia, 1858; became rector of St.
George's, Fredericksburg, Va., 1860; of Emmanuel Church, Baltimore, Md., 1867; bishop, 1875.

RANKE, Ernst, D.D. (hon., Marburg, 1850), Ph.D.
(1848), Evangelical German theologian; b. at Wiehe, Thuringia, Sept. 10, 1814; studied at Leipzig (1834), Berlin (1835–39), and Bonn (1836–37); was private tutor in his brother's family, 1837–
39; pastor at Buchau, 1840–50; and professor of theology at Marburg, 1850 to date. He is a Lutheran, but favors the union of the Lutheran and Reformed churches. He is consistorialrath. He is the author of Das kirchliche Perikopensystem aus
den ältesten Urkunden der römischen Liturgie, Berlin, 1847; Das Buch Tobias metrisch übersetzt, Bayreuth, 1847; Kritische Zusammenstellung der...

RALSTON, Thomas Neely, D.D. (Wesleyan University, Florence, Ala., 1857), Methodist Church South; b. in Bourbon County, Ky., March 21, 1806; studied at the Baptist College of Georgetown, Ky., but did not graduate; was received into the Kentucky Conference in 1827; was a member of the General Conference of the Methodist-Episcopal Church at Baltimore in 1840, before the division; member of the Convention at Louisville, Ky., in 1845, which organized the Methodist-Episcopal Church South, and of the general conferences of that church at Petersburg, Va., in 1846 (was secretary), at St. Louis, Mo., in 1850, and at Columbus, Ga., in 1854. He was chairman of the committee to revise the Discipline of the Methodist-Episcopal Church South; was principal of the Methodist Female Collegiate High School at Lexington, Ky., 1843–47. He edited
The Methodist Monthly (Lexington, Ky.), for 1851. He is the author of Elements of Divinity, Louisville, Ky., 1847, several later editions, republished, revised and enlarged by addition of Evidences, Moralis, and Institutions of Christianity (also published separately, 18—), Nashville, Tenn., 1871, 3d ed. 1875 (the book in its first form was translated into Norwegian, 1858, in its enlarged form into Chinese, 1888); (under pseudonym, "Eureka") Ecce Unitas; or, A Plea for Christian Unity, Cincinnati, O., 1873; Bible Truths, Nashville, Tenn., 1884.

RAND, William Wilberforce, D.D. (University
of the City of New York, 1883; Reformer (Dutch);
b. at Gorham, Me., Dec. 8, 1816; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1837, and at bangor Theological Seminary, Me., 1840; licensed
by Waldo Congregational Association, Me., 1840;
pastor of the Reformed Dutch Church of Canasa-
tota, N.Y., 1841–44; editor of the American Tract Society, New-York City, 1848–72; publishing secretary of the same since 1872. He is the author of Songs of Zion, New York, 1851 (88,000 copies printed), revised and enlarged, 1885 (86,000 copies
printed); Dictionary of the Bible for General Use, 1890 (206,000 copies have been printed), enlarged and largely re-written, 1886; other smaller
books.
Wald, Marburg, 1876; Rhythmica, Vienna, 1881; De Laude Nivis (a Latin poem), Marburg, 1886.

RANKE, Leopold von, b. at Wiehe, Thuringia, Dec. 21, 1795; d. at Oxford, May 23, 1866; studied at Leipzig; was appointed head teacher in the Frankfort (on the Oder) gymnasi- num in 1818; and since 1825 has been professor of history at the University of Berlin. In 1827 he was sent by the Prussian government to Vienna, Venice, and Rome, to conduct historical researches. In 1841 he was appointed historiographer of the National Assembly; and in 1866, ennobled. He was an historian of the first rank, and continued his labors till his ninety-first year. Of those more immediately relating to theological study, which have been translated, may be mentioned, The History of the Roman and Germanic Peoples, from 1494 to 1555; The Popes of Rome, their Church and State, especially of the Conflict with Protestantism in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Century, 3 vols.; German History in the Times of the Reformation; A History of England, principally in the times of the Roman and Germanic Peoples, from 1494 to 1585; The Old Testament, London, 1877; he Origin of Nations, 1878; A History of Herodatus, a new English version with copious notes (in conjunction with Sir Henry Rawlinson and Sir Gardner Wilkinson), London, 1855-60, 4 vols., 5th ed. 1881; The Historical Evidences of the Truth of the Scripture Records (Bampton lectures), 1859, 2d ed. 1860; The Contrasts of Christianity with Heathen and Jewish Systems (in nine sermons), 1861; The Five Great Monarchies of the Ancient World, 1862-67, 4 vols., 2d ed. 1870; A Manual of Ancient History, Oxford, 1870, 2d ed. 1880; Historical Illustrations of the Old Testament, London, 1871; The Sixth Great Oriental Monarchy (Parthia), 1873; The Seventh (the Sassanians), 1876; St. Paul in Damaucus and Arabia, 1877; The Origin of Nations, 1878; A History of Egypt, 1881, 2 vols.; The Religions of the Ancient World, 1882; Egypt and Babylon from Scripture and Profane Sources, 1884.

RAWLINSON, George, Church of England; b. at Chaddington, Essex, Nov. 23, 1816; entered Trinity College, Oxford; wrote the Denyer theological prize essay in 1842 and 1843; graduated B. (Great Classics) 1838, M. A. (Exeter College) 1841; ordained deacon 1841, priest 1842; was fellow of Exeter College, 1840-46; tutor, 1842-46; sub-rector, 1844-45; curate of Merton, Oxfordshire, 1846-47; classical modern at Oxford, 1855-57, 1868-79, 1875-79; Bampton lecturer, 1859. Since 1861 he has been Camden professor of ancient history to the university; since 1872, a canon of Canterbury; since 1873, proctor in convocation. Canon Rawlinson is a moderate High Churchman, but anxious in no way to narrow the liberty of opinion which has historically been claimed and allowed within the Anglican communion. In politics he is a moderate (or Conservative) Liberal. He supported Mr. Gladstone in all his Oxford contests, and received his canonicry from the Crown on the recommendation of Mr. Gladstone as prime minister. In the elections of 1885, however, he found himself unable to support the (advanced) Liberal candidates. He is well known as a speaker in the Convocation of Canterbury, at church congresses, and elsewhere. Besides numerous articles in reviews and magazines (Contemporary, Prince- ton, etc.), in Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, Cassell's Bible Dictionary; Unin in Encyclopedia Britannica, commentaries on Kings, Ezra, Nehemiah, and Esther in The Bible (Speaker's Commentary) (1872-73), on Exodus in Bishop Elliott's Commentary (1882), and on Exodus, Ezra, Nehemiah, and Esther in The Pulpit Commentary (1880-82), he is the author of The History of the Roman and Germanic Peoples, from 1494 to 1555; The Popes of Rome, their Church and State, especially of the Conflict with Protestantism in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Century, 3 vols.; German History in the Times of the Reformation; A History of England, principally in the times of the Roman and Germanic Peoples, from 1494 to 1585; The Old Testament, London, 1877; he Origin of Nations, 1878; A History of Herodatus, a new English version with copious notes (in conjunction with Sir Henry Rawlinson and Sir Gardner Wilkinson), London, 1855-60, 4 vols., 5th ed. 1881; The Historical Evidences of the Truth of the Scripture Records (Bampton lectures), 1859, 2d ed. 1860; The Contrasts of Christianity with Heathen and Jewish Systems (in nine sermons), 1861; The Five Great Monarchies of the Ancient World, 1862-67, 4 vols., 2d ed. 1870; A Manual of Ancient History, Oxford, 1870, 2d ed. 1880; Historical Illustrations of the Old Testament, London, 1871; The Sixth Great Oriental Monarchy (Parthia), 1873; The Seventh (the Sassanians), 1876; St. Paul in Damaucus and Arabia, 1877; The Origin of Nations, 1878; A History of Egypt, 1881, 2 vols.; The Religions of the Ancient World, 1882; Egypt and Babylon from Scripture and Profane Sources, 1884.

RANKE, Leopold von, b. at Wiehe, Thuringia, Dec. 21, 1795; d. at Oxford, May 23, 1866; studied at Leipzig; was appointed head teacher in the Frankfort (on the Oder) gymnasium in 1818; and since 1825 has been professor of history at the University of Berlin. In 1827 he was sent by the Prussian government to Vienna, Venice, and Rome, to conduct historical researches. In 1841 he was appointed historiographer of the National Assembly; and in 1866, ennobled. He was an historian of the first rank, and continued his labors till his ninety-first year. Of those more immediately relating to theological study, which have been translated, may be mentioned, The History of the Roman and Germanic Peoples, from 1494 to 1555; The Popes of Rome, their Church and State, especially of the Conflict with Protestantism in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Century, 3 vols.; German History in the Times of the Reformation; A History of England, principally in the times of the Roman and Germanic Peoples, from 1494 to 1585; The Old Testament, London, 1877; he Origin of Nations, 1878; A History of Herodatus, a new English version with copious notes (in conjunction with Sir Henry Rawlinson and Sir Gardner Wilkinson), London, 1855-60, 4 vols., 5th ed. 1881; The Historical Evidences of the Truth of the Scripture Records (Bampton lectures), 1859, 2d ed. 1860; The Contrasts of Christianity with Heathen and Jewish Systems (in nine sermons), 1861; The Five Great Monarchies of the Ancient World, 1862-67, 4 vols., 2d ed. 1870; A Manual of Ancient History, Oxford, 1870, 2d ed. 1880; Historical Illustrations of the Old Testament, London, 1871; The Sixth Great Oriental Monarchy (Parthia), 1873; The Seventh (the Sassanians), 1876; St. Paul in Damaucus and Arabia, 1877; The Origin of Nations, 1878; A History of Egypt, 1881, 2 vols.; The Religions of the Ancient World, 1882; Egypt and Babylon from Scripture and Profane Sources, 1884.
since 1873 he has been professor of systematic theology and apologetics in New College, London. He is the author of Sermons, London, 1869; The Christian's Plea against Modern Unbelief, a Handbook of Christian Evidence, 1881, 2d ed. 1882; Prophecy, its Nature and Evidence, 1882; The Author of Scripture, Metaphysical Studies in the Book of Genesis, 1883; Jonah, 1883; Primer of Christian Evidence, 1884; Four Centuries of Silence, or from Malachi to Christ, 1885; has contributed to commentaries upon Genesis, Leviticus, Nehemiah, and Acts, in Pulpit Commentary, 1881 sqq.

REED, Villeroy Dibble, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1858), Presbyterian; b. at Granville, Washington County, N.Y., April 27, 1815; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1835; studied at Auburn (N.Y.) and Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminaries, 1835–36; was pastor at Stillwater, N.Y., 1839–44; Lansingburgh, N.Y., 1844–58; president of Alexander College, Dubuque, Ia., 1858; stated supply at Buffalo, N.Y., 1858–60; Cohoes, N.Y., 1860–61; pastor at Camden, N.J., 1861–84. He was appointed in 1866 one of the Old School Assembly's Committee of fifteen on Re-union, and was its secretary. He has been president of the Presbyterian Board of Ministerial Relief from its organization in 1876. He is the author of Lectures on the Revelation, Pittsburg, Penn., 1878; United Presbyterianism, 1881, 2d ed. 1883; various sermons and pamphlets.

REIMENNSYNDER, Junius Benjamin, D.D. (Newberry College, Newberry, S.C., 1880), Lutheran (General Synod); b. at Staunton, Va., Feb. 24, 1842; graduated at Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., 1861, and at the Gettysburg Theological Seminary, 1865; became pastor at Lewistown, Penn., 1865; Philadelphia (St. Luke's), 1867; Savannah, Ga. (Ascension), 1874; New-York City (St. James), 1881. He was delegate to General Council of the Lutheran Church, Jamestown, N.Y., 1874; to General Synod (South), Staunton, Va., 1876, and Newberry, S.C., 1878; to General Council (North) from General Synod (South), bearing fraternal greetings, Bethlehem, Penn., 1876; to General Synod (North), Springfield, O., 1883, and Harrisburg, Penn. 1885. He is the author of Heavenward, or the Race for the Crown of Life, Philadelphia, 1874, 4th ed. 1877; Christian Unity (sermon), Savannah, Ga., 1875; Dwelling (sermon), 1878; Doom Eternal, the Bible and Church Doctrine of Everlasting Punishment, Philadelphia, 1880; Spiritualism (sermon), New York, 1882; Lutheran Literature, Distinctive Traits and Excellencies, 1883; Luther, Work and Personality of, Biographical Sketch, 1883; Usefulness after Death (sermon), New York, 1885; Six Days of Creation, Lectures on the Mosaic Account of the Creation, Fall, and Deluge, Philadelphia, 1886.

REINCKENS, Joseph Hubert, D.D. (Munich, 1850), Old-Catholic bishop; b. at Burtscheid, near Aachen, Prussia, March 1, 1821; became priest, 1848; privat-docent at Breslau, 1850; professor extraordinary, 1853; ordinary professor, 1867. He joined Dollinger in the Nuremberg declaration (Aug. 26, 1870) against the infallibility dogma; and on Aug. 11, 1873, was ordained an Old-Catholic bishop, with his residence at Bonn. He is the author of De Clemente presbytero Alexandrino, Breslau, 1851; *Hilarius von Poitiers, Schaffhausen, 1861; Martin von Tours, 1866; Die Geschichtsphilosophie des h. Augustinus, 1866; Papst und Papstthum, Munster, 1870; Die päpstlichen Dekrete vom 18. Juli, 1870, 1871; Revolution und Kirche, Bonn, 1876 (3 editions); Ueber Einheit der katholischen Kirche, Würzburg, 1877; Melchior von Diessenbrock, Leipzig, 1881; Lessing über Toleranz, 1883.

REICHEL, Right Rev. Charles Parsons, D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1858), lord bishop of Meath, Church of Ireland; b. at Fulneck, near Leeds, Yorkshire, Eng., in the year 1816; was scholar of Trinity College, Dublin, Ireland, 1841; graduated B.A. (senior moderator classis) 1843, divinity testimonium (first-class) 1844, M.A. 1847, B.D. 1853; was ordained deacon and priest, 1846; was professor of Latin, Queen's College, Belfast, 1850–56; Donellan lecturer at Trinity College, Dublin, 1851; vicar of Mullingar, 1854–73; rector of Trim, and archdeacon of Meath, 1873–85; select preacher at Cambridge, Eng., 1876 and 1888, and at Oxford 1880–82; professor of ecclesiastical history, Trinity College, Dublin, 1875; prebendary of Tipper, and canon of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin; dean of Clonmacnois, 1882–85; consecrated bishop, 1885; member of the Irish Senate of Trinity College, Dublin. He is the author of The Nature and Offices of the Church (Donellan Lectures), London, 1856; Sermons on the Lord's Prayer; Lectures on the Prayer-book; Sermons on Modern Infidelity, London, 1864; The Resurrection, God or Baal (two sermons), 1876; Origins of Christianity, etc., Sermons before the Universities of Oxford and Dublin, 1882; Short Treatises on the Ordinal; and a number of occasional discourses.

REID, John Morrison, D.D. (University of the City of New York, 1858), LL.D. (Syracuse University, N.Y., 1859); b. in New York City, May 30, 1820; graduated at the University of the City of New York, 1839; became principal of Mechanics Institute School of the city, 1839–44; Methodist pastor, 1844; president of Geneseo College, Lima, N.Y., 1858; editor of Western Christian Advocate, Cincinnati, O., 1864; of Northwestern Christian Advocate, 1864; of the Presbyterian Board of Ministerial Relief, 1876; was its corresponding secretary of the Missionary Society of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, New York, since 1873 he has been professor of systematic theology and apologetics in New College, London. He is the author of Sermons, London, 1869; The Christian's Plea against Modern Unbelief, a Handbook of Christian Evidence, 1881, 2d ed. 1882; Prophecy, its Nature and Evidence, 1882; The Author of Scripture, Metaphysical Studies in the Book of Genesis, 1883; Jonah, 1883; Primer of Christian Evidence, 1884; Four Centuries of Silence, or from Malachi to Christ, 1885; has contributed to commentaries upon Genesis, Leviticus, Nehemiah, and Acts, in Pulpit Commentary, 1881 sqq.

REID, William James, D.D. (Monmouth College, Ill., 1874), United Presbyterian; b. at South Argyile, Washington County, N.Y., Aug. 17, 1834; graduated at Princeton College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1855, and at Allegheny (U.P.) Theological Seminary, Penn., 1862; has been pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church, Pittsburg, Penn., since 1862; principal clerk of the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church since 1875; was corresponding secretary of the United Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, 1889–72. He is the author of Lectures on the Revelation, Pittsburg, Penn., 1878; United Presbyterianism, 1881, 2d ed. 1883; various sermons and pamphlets.

REISENBERG, Max Wilhelm Theodor, German Protestant; b. in Vienna, June 18, 1859; educated at the theological seminary at Tübingen, 1870–80, and at Berlin and Göttingen, 1882–83; was vicar at Gmünd, 1881–82; rector at Tübingen since 1883. He belongs to the school of Ritschl.

REISCHLE, Max Wilhelm Theodor, German Protestant; b. in Vienna, June 18, 1859; educated at the theological seminary at Tübingen, 1870–80, and at Berlin and Göttingen, 1882–83; was vicar at Gmünd, 1881–82; rector at Tübingen since 1883. He belongs to the school of Ritschl.
REUSS, Eduard (Wilhelm Eugen), Lic. Theol.

(Strassburg, 1829), D.D. (kon., Jena, 1843), Ph.D. (kon., Halle, 1875), LL.D. (Georgetown College, Georgetown, Ky.), Protestant theologian; b. at Strasbourg, July 16, 1804 (29 Messidor XII.); studied at Strasbourg, first philology 1819-22, then theology there and at Gottingen and Halle 1822-26, and Oriental literature at Paris under De Sacy 1827-28; became privat-docent in the theological faculty at Strasbourg, 1828; professor extraordinary, 1834; ordinary professor, 1836, and so remains. Of his numerous works may be mentioned, De statu literarum theologicae per secula VII. et VIII., Strassburg, 1825; De libris Veteris Testamenti apocryphis pleni non negandis, 1829; Ideen zur Einleitung in das Evangelium Johannis, 1840; Geschichte der heiligen Schriften, Neues Testament, Halle, 1842, 5th ed. Braunschweig, 1874 (Eng. trans. by Edward L. Hough, Boston, 1884, 2 vols.); Altes Testament, 3 vols. (Eng. trans., London, 1883). Reuss' work on the historical development of the Old Testament, and his various contributions to the understanding of ancient Near Eastern languages and literature, were influential in the field of Biblical studies. His lifelong commitment to the study of ancient texts and his distinctive approach to the interpretation of religious texts have left a lasting impact on the field of theology and biblical scholarship.
REUTER. Hermann Ferdinand, Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1843), Ph.D. (bon., Greifswald, 1865), Lutheran; b. at Hildesheim, Aug. 30, 1817; studied at Göttingen and Berlin; became privat-dozent at Berlin. 1843; professor extraordinary of church history at Breslau, 1852; D.D. from Kiel, 1853; ordinary professor at Greifswald, 1855; professor at Breslau 1866, and at Göttingen 1870. In 1869 he became a royal consistorial councillor, and in 1881 abbot of Bursfeld. He is the author of Johannes von Salisbury, Berlin, 1842; Abhandlungen zur systematischen Theologie, 1855; Geschichte Alexanders III. und der Kirche seiner Zeit, 1848, 1 vol., 2d ed. 1859-64, 3 vols.; Geschichte der Religionsauflösung im Mittelalter, 1875-77, 2 vols.

REVÉL, Albert, Waldensian; b. at Torre Pellice, Waldensian Valley, Italy, Jan. 2, 1837; educated in the Waldensian college of his native place, in the Waldensian theological school at Florence, and in the New College (Free Church), Edinburgh; was ordained in 1861; became professor of Latin and Greek literature in the Waldensian college at Torre Pellice, 1881, and professor of biblical literature and exegesis to the Waldensian Church, Florence, 1870. Since 1880 he has been a member of the Oriental Academy of the Royal Institute of Florence. He is the author of L'Epistola di San Clemente Romano e Corinzi, 1869; Anichita biblica, 1872; Teoria del culto, 1875; Le origini del Papato, 1875; Cento lezioni sulla vita di Gesù, 1875; Storia letteraria dell'antico Testamento, Poggibonsi, 1879; Manuale par lo studio della lingua ebraica, Florence, 1879; I Salmi; versione e commento sopra i Salmi i—xix, 1880; Il Nuovo Testamento, tradotto sul testo originale, 1881.

REVÉLLE, Albert D.D. (Leyden, 1862), French Protestant; b. at Dieppe, Seine-Inférieure, Nov. 4, 1826; studied at Dieppe, Geneva, and Strassburg, and in 1848 became a bachelor in theology; was pastor of the Walloon Church at Rotterdam, 1851-72, and then resided near Dieppe, engaged in philosophical studies, until, in 1880, he was called to the chair of the history of religions in the College of France, Paris. He is the author of Manuel d'histoire comparée de la philosophie et de la religion (after Scholten), 1859 (English trans., Manual of Religious Instruction, London, 1864); De la rédemption, Paris, 1860; Essais de critique religieuse, 1869; Études critiques sur l'Evangile selon Saint Matthieu, 1862; Théodore Parker, sa vie et ses œuvres, 1869; Manuel d'instruction religieuse, 1863, 2d ed. 1866; Apollosion, English trans., London, 1866; Histoire du dogme de la divinité de Jésus Christ, 1869, 2d ed. 1872 (English trans., History of the Doctrine of the Deity of Christ, London, 1870); The Devil, his origin, greatness, and decadence, English trans., 1871, 2d ed. 1877; The Song of Songs, English trans., 1873; Prolégômenes de l'Histoire des religions, 1881 (English trans., 1884); The Native Religions of Mexico and Peru, English trans., 1884 (Hibbert lectures for 1884).

REYNOLDS, Henry Robert, D.D. (Edinburgh University, 1869), Congregationalist; b. at Romsey, Hampshire, Eng., Feb. 26, 1825; educated at Coward College and University College; graduated at London University B.A. 1843; became pastor at Shrewsbury, 1844; at Shengham, 1845-52; in 1853-60; president of Countess of Huntingdon's College, Cheshunt, Herts, 1860. He is the author of Beginnings of the Divine Life, London, 1858, 3d ed. 1860; Notes of the Christian Life, 1865; John the Baptist (Congregational Union lecture for 1874), 1874, 2d ed. 1876; Philosophy of Prayer, and other Essays, 1882; joint author of Yes and No, Glimpses of the Great Conflict, 1880, and of commentary on Hosea and Amos in Bishop Eliot's Old-Testament Commentary, 1884; author of commentary on the Pastoral Epistles in Expositor (first series), and of exposition, commentary, and introduction to the Gospel of John in the Pulpit Commentary; joint editor and compiler of Psalms, Hymns, and Passages of Scripture for Christian Worship, 1853; editor of Ecclesia, Church Problems considered in a Series of Essays, 1870, 2d ed. 1871 (contributed essay on "The Forgiveness and Absolution of Sins"); second series, 1871 (essay, The Holy Catholic Church); for eight years (1866-74) edited with Rev. Dr. Allon, The British Quarterly Review; for five years, The Evangelical Magazine. Besides his contributions to periodicals, he has written for Kitch's Cyclopaedia and Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography.

RICE, Edwin Wilbur, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1884), Congregationalist; b. at Kingsborough, N.Y., July 24, 1851; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1874; and studied in Union Theological Seminary, New York City, 1874-75; taught, 1857-58; was missionary of American Sunday-school Union, 1850-64; ordained in 1860; superintendent of its missions, 1864-70; assistant secretary of missions, and assistant editor of periodicals, Philadelphia, 1871-78; editor, 1878, and of periodicals and publications since 1879. He planned and prepared the lesson papers of the American Sunday-school Union, 1872 sqq.; the Scholar's Handbook on the International Lessons, 1874 sqq.; wrote the geographical and topographical articles in Schaff's Bible Dictionary, Philadelphia, 1880, 3d ed. 1883; edited Paxton Hood's Great Revival of the Eighteenth Century, 1882; Kennedy's Four Gospels, 1881, and has independently produced, Pictorial Commentary on St. Mark, 1881, 2d ed. 1882; Historical Sketch of Sunday Schools, 1886.

RICHARDSON, Ernest Cushing, Congregationalist; b. at Woburn, Mass., Feb. 8, 1860; graduated at Amherst College, Mass., 1880, and at the Hartford Theological Seminary, Conn., 1883; was assistant librarian of Amherst College, 1879-80; assistant librarian of Hartford Theological Seminary, 1882-84; since 1884 librarian, and since 1885 assistant secretary, of the American Library Association. He is the author of several papers in the Proceedings of the American Library Association (1886 and 1888), one in the Journal of the Society of Biblical Exegesis (1888), and various notes, articles, or reviews in the Library Journal, New York, and Bibliotheca Sacra, Oberlin, O.

RIDDLE, Matthew Brown, D.D. (Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, P. I., 1870), Congregationalist; b. in Pittsburg, Penn., Oct. 17, 1836; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1852, and from New Brunswick (N. J.) Theological Seminary, 1859; was chaplain Second New-Jersey Regiment, 1861; Reformed (Dutch) pastor at Hoboken, N.J., 1862-68; at Newark, 1865-66; at Burlington, N.J., 1866-70; has been professor of New-Testament exegesis in Hartford (Conn.) Theological Seminary. He was RIDGEWAY, Henry Bascom, D.D. (Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1869), Methodist; b. in Talbot County, Maryland, Sept. 7, 1830; graduated at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1849; was successively pastor in Virginia, Baltimore (Md.), Portland (Me.), New York City, and Cincinnati (O.); professor of historical theology in Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., 1882–84, and since of practical theology. He was fraternal delegate to the Methodist-Episcopal Church South, 1882; and one of the regular speakers in the Methodist Centennial Conference at Baltimore, 1888. He is the author of The Life of Alfred Cookman, New York, 1871; The Lord's Land, a Narrative of Travels in Sinai and Palestine (1873, 1874), 1876; The Life of Bishop Edward S. Janes, 1882; Bishop Beverly Waugh, 1883; Bishop Matthew Simpson, 1885.

RIEMH, Eduard (Carl August), Lic. Theol. (Heidelberg, 1853), D.D. (hon., Halle, 1864), German Protestant theologian; b. at Diersburg, in Baden, Dec. 20, 1830; studied at Heidelberg and Halle; became city curate at Durlach, 1853; garrison preacher at Mannheim, 1854; priral-doent of the Lutheran Church at Mannheim, 1854; priral-doent of the Luther Bible Revision Company. He was successively pastor in Vir inia, Baltimore (Md.), Portland (Me.), New York City, and Cincinnati (O.); professor of historical theology in Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., 1882–84, and since of practical theology. He was fraternal delegate to the Methodist-Episcopal Church South, 1882; and one of the regular speakers in the Methodist Centennial Conference at Baltimore, 1888. He is the author of The Life of Alfred Cookman, New York, 1871; The Lord's Land, a Narrative of Travels in Sinai and Palestine (1873, 1874), 1876; The Life of Bishop Edward S. Janes, 1882; Bishop Beverly Waugh, 1883; Bishop Matthew Simpson, 1885.

RIGGENBACH, Bernhard Emil, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1874), Lic. Theol. (Basel, 1878), Swiss Reformed; b. at Karlsruhe, Oct. 25, 1848; studied at Basel and Tübingen, 1867–71; was ordained 1871; pastor at Arisdorf, Baselland, 1872–81; in the penitentiary, Basel, since 1885; priral-doent of New Testament and practical theology at Basel since 1882. His theological standpoint is positive biblical. He is the author of Johann Eberlin von Gunzburg and sein Reformprogramm. Ein Beitrag zur Geschichte des xvi. Jahrhunderts, Tübingen, 1874; Taschenbuch für die schweizerischen reformierten Geistlichen, Basel, 1876 sqq. (xi. Jahrgang, 1886); Das Chronikon des Konrad Pelikan, zur vierten Säkularfeier der Universität Tübingen herausgegeben, 1877; Das Armenwesen der Reformation, 1882; Frauengestalten aus der Geschichte des Reiches Gottes, 1st and 2d ed. 1884 (Danish trans., 1885); numerous articles in Herzog and the Allg.-Deutsche Biographien.
H. B. Weakley (of the Church Missionary Society),"A Vocabulary, Andover, Mass., 1832 (revised edition, 1839), Elias Riggs, D.D. (of the American Bible Society, formerly of the A. B. C. F. M.), and Robert H. Weakley (of the Church Missionary Society), as a result of whose labors, and those of native Turkish scholars, the entire Bible was published in both Arabic and Armenian characters in 1873. Experience having shown the need of retouching this version in a way to render it more intelligible to common readers, the same Bible societies, in 1883, consented to the organization of a larger committee (comprising so far as practicable the members of the former committee), and placed this work in their hands. The revised Turkish version, the work of this large committee, was issued 1886. Dr. Riggs is the author of aManual of the Chaldee Language, containing a Grammar (chiefly translation of Winer), Christomathy, and a Vocabulary, Andover, Mass., 1832 (revised edition, New York, 1856, and since several editions; The Young Forester, a Brief Memoir of the Early Life of Dr. Samuel H. Bross, (Massachusetts Sabbath-school Society); Grammatical Notes on the Bulgarian Language, Smyrna, 1844; Grammar of the Modern Armenian Language, with a Vocabulary, Smyrna, 1847, second edition, Constantinople, 1856; Grammar of the Turkish Language as written in the Armenian Character, Constantinople, 1856; Translation of the Scriptures into the Modern Armenian Language, completed with the aid of native scholars, Smyrna, 1853 (reprinted in many editions in Constantinople and New York); Translation of the Scriptures into the Bulgarian Language, completed with the aid of native scholars throughout, and on the New Testament of the Rev. Dr. Albert L. Long (now professor in Robert College), Constantinople, 1871 (several editions, Constantinople and Vienna); A Harmony of the Gospels (in Bulgarian), Constantinople, 1880; A Bible Dictionary (in Bulgarian), 1884; minor publications, such as tracts, hymns, and collections of hymns, in Greek, Armenian, and Bulgarian.

RITSOHL, Otto, Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1885), German Protestant theologian, son of the preceding; b. at Bonn, June 20, 1860; studied at Bonn, Göttingen, and Giessen, 1878-84; became privatdocent of theology at Halle, 1885. He is the author of De epistula Cyriaciani, dissertatio inaugu- ralis, Halle, 1885; Cyprian von Karthago und die Verfassung der Kirche, eine kirchengeschichtliche und kirchenrechtliche Untersuchung, Göttingen, 1885.

ROBERTS, William, D.D. (University of the city of New York, 1863), Welsh Calvinistic Methodist; b. at Llanerchymedd, Wales, Sept. 25, 1809; after education at Presbyterian College, graduated at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1874; studied at Leipzig, 1875; graduated at Auburn Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1880; became pastor at Fulton, N.Y., 1880; adjunct professor of biblical Greek in Auburn Theological Seminary, 1884.

ROBERTS, William Charles, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1872), Presbyterian; b. at Alltimu, near Aberystwith, Wales, Sept. 23, 1832; graduated at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1855, and at Princeton Theological Seminary 1858; became pastor of First Church, Wilmington, Del., 1858; First Church, Columbia, O., 1862; Second Church, Elizabeth, N.J., 1864; Westminster Church, Elizabeth, N.J., 1866; elected corresponding secretary of the Board of Home Missions, New-York City, 1881. He was chairman of the committee which laid the foundations of the Wooster University, O.; declined the presidency of Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1882; declined a professorship in Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., and accepted the presidency of Lake Forest University, Ill., 1886; was moderator of synods of Ohio (1864) and New Jersey (1870); member of the first (Edinburgh, 1877) and third (Belfast, 1884) councils of the Reformed Churches, and read paper on American colleges; was trustee of Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., from 1859 to 1863, and has been trustee of College of New Jersey, Princeton, since 1866. He is the author of a series of letters on the great preachers of Wales, translation of the Shorter Catechism into Welsh, and a number of occasional sermons.

ROBERTS, Henry Ephraim, D.D. (University of Rochester, N.Y., 1868), Baptist; b. at Hartford, Conn., Sept. 30, 1827; graduated at Newton (Mass.) Theological Institution, 1861; pastor at Newport, R.I., 1862-67; Rochester, N.Y., 1867-73; president of Colby University, Waterville, Me., 1873-82; since 1883 has been professor of Christian ethics in Rochester (N.Y.) Theological Seminary.

ROBINSON, Henry Ephraim, D.D. (University of Rochester, N.Y., 1868), Baptist; b. at Attleborough, Mass., March 31, 1829; graduated at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1849; studied at Union (New-York City) and Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminaries; was pastor in Troy and Brooklyn, N.Y.; Paris, France; and since 1870 of Memorial Church, New-York City. He has published Songs of the Church, New York, 1882; Songs for the Sanctuary, 1885; Songs for Christian Worship, 1886; Short Studies for Sunday-School Teachers, 1886; Chapel Songs, 1872; Psalms, Hymns, and Spiritual Songs, 1874; Christian Work (sermons), Bethel and Peniel (do., both 1874); Spiritual Songs, 1878; Spiritual Songs for Social Worship, 1880; Studies in the New Testament, 1880; Spiritual Songs for Sunday School, 1881; Studies of Neglected Psalms, 1883; Laudes Domini (in manuscript), 1884; Simon Peter: Early Life and Times, 1887; Sermons in Songs, 1885. His hymn and tune books sell between seventy-five and eighty thousand a year. His sermons have passed through several editions.

ROBINSON, Ezekiel Gilman, D.D., LL.D. (both Brown, R.I., 1853 and 1872), Baptist; b. at Attleborough, Mass., March 23, 1815; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1838, and at Newton (Mass.) Theological Institution, 1842; pastor at Norfolk, Va., 1842-45; professor of Hebrew in Covington (Ky.) Theological Seminary, 1846-49; pastor in Cincinnati, O., 1849-52; professor of theology in Rochester (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1852-72; president, 1873-76; in 1882 he was president of Brown University. He edited Christian Review, 1859-61; revised Neander's Planting and Training of the Christian Church, 1861; published Yale Lectures, 1863.

ROBINSON, Thomas Hastings, D.D. (Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1885), Presbyterian; b. at North-East, Erie County, Penn., Jan. 30, 1828; graduated at Oberlin College, O., 1850, and at Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1854; pastor in Harrisburg, Penn., 1854-94; and since has been professor of sacred rhetoric, church government, and pastoral theology in the Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn.
ROHLING, Johann Francis Bernard Augustin, Lic. Theol. (Münster, 1865), Ph.D. (Jena, 1867), D.D. (Münster, 1871), Roman Catholic; b. at Neuenkirchen, near Münster, Westphalia, Germany, Feb. 15, 1839; studied theology in the University of Münster, was instituteur du comte de Merode en Belgique et en France, 1863–64; chaplain and rector at Rheinberg, near Wesel, 1865; repeti of dogmatics and ethics at Münster; vicar of St. Martin's Church, and privi-docent of biblical literature, 1866–70; professor extraordinarily of exegesis of the Old and New Testament, 1870–74; professor of theology at St. Francis' Seminary, near Milwaukee, Wis., U.S.A., 1874–75; since April, 1876, ordinary professor of biblical studies and exegesis at the University of Prague, Bohemia. In 1883 he was prohibited by the Austrian Government from writing against the Jews, on account of the so-called "excited times." He is the author of the German translation of Lamy's book against Renan, Minister, 1864; of the Excursion to the valley of the Jordan, 1873; of the "Judaism, St. Louis, 1875; of the Theologian and Moralist, Tübingen, 1863; Der Jehova-Augel, 1865; Hosea's Elie, Tiibingen, 1865; Der Jerusalem, Münster, 1871, 6th ed. 1876; Louise Lateau, Paderborn, 1873, 9 editions; Der Anti-christ, St. Louis, 1875; Medula theologica moralis, 1875; Keyez of the 19. Jahrhundert für Juden, Protestanten und Katholiken, Mainz, 1878; Fünf Briefe über den Talmudismus und das Blutritual der Juden, Paderborn, 1st to 5th thousand 1883.

ROLLER, Théophile, French Protestant; b. at Aubusson (Creuse), April 5, 1850; educated at Paris and Montauban; Reformed pastor at Bolbec (Seine-Infrérieure), 1883–87; at Naples, Italy, 1857–63; in different parts of France and Italy, 1864–66; at Rome, 1867–73; in 1874 he retired, because of his health, to Tocqueville (Seine-Infrérieure), and devoted himself entirely to the composition of his great work, Les catacombes de Rome: histoire de l'art et des croyances religieuses pendant les premiers siecles du christianisme, Paris, 1879–80, 2 vols. folio, with a hundred plates.

ROMESTIN, Augustus Henry Eugene de, Church of England; b. in Paris, France, May 9, 1830; scholar of Winchester College, Eng. 1845–48, of St. John's College, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1862, M.A. 1854; was ordained deacon 1852, priest 1854; was curate of Mells, Somerset, 1853; of St. Thomas Martyr, Oxford, 1853–54; English chaplain at Freiburg-im-Breisgau 1863–65, and at Baden-Baden 1865–69; chaplain of Woolland, Dorset, 1868–69; perpetual curate of Freeland, Oxford, 1871–83; rural dean of Woodstock, 1870–85; vicar of Stony Stratford, Buckinghamshire, 1855; warden of House of Mercy, Great Maplestead, Essex, since 1885. His theological standpoint is that of the school of Dr. Pusey. He is the author of Sketch of Primary Education in Germany, London, 1886; Last Hours of Jesus, 1888; Teaching of the Twelve Apostles, 1883; of Institutions of the Unlearned, Concerning Faith of Things not seen, On the Advantages of Believing, The En-chirdion to Laurenius, and Concerning Faith, Hope, and Charity, Latin and English, 1883; articles in newspapers, magazines, etc., on various subjects, 1856–86.

ROPES, Charles Joseph Hardy, Congregationalist; b. in St. Petersburg, Russia, Dec. 7, 1851; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1872, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1875; pastor at Ellsworth, Me., 1877–81; and since 1881 professor of New-Testament language and literature in Bangor Theological Seminary, Me. He translated and edited (with Professor Dr. E. C. Smyth) Uhhorn's Conflict of Chris-tiinity with Heathenism, New York, 1879.

ROPES, William Ladd, Congregationalist; b. at Newton, Mass., July 19, 1825; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1846, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1852; was pastor at Wrentham, Mass., 1853–62; acting pastor of Crombie-street Church, Salem (residence at Cam-bridge, Mass.), 1862–65; acting pastor at South Hadley, Mass., and Windsor Locks, Conn., 1865–66; since 1866 has been librarian of Andover Theological Seminary.

ROSSI, Giovanni Battista de', Italian archaeologist, Roman Catholic; b. in Rome, Feb. 23, 1822; educated at the Collegium Romanum; under the Jesuit Marchi's impulse devoted himself to archaeology, particularly to the Catacombs, and in this department is the universally acknowledged chief. In 1886 the emperor of Germany conferred upon him the cross of the Order of Merit. His two monumental works are Inscriptiones christianae urbis Romanae, Rome, 1871–81; La Rota soterranea christiana, 1869–77, 3 vols. Since 1863 he has issued Bulletino di archeologia christiana.

ROPES, Charles Joseph Hardy, Congregationalist; b. in St. Petersburg, Russia, Dec. 7, 1851; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1872, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1875; pastor at Ellsworth, Me., 1877–81; and since 1881 professor of New-Testament language and literature in Bangor Theological Seminary, Me. He translated and edited (with Professor Dr. E. C. Smyth) Uhhorn's Conflict of Chris-tiinity with Heathenism, New York, 1879.

ROPES, William Ladd, Congregationalist; b. at Newton, Mass., July 19, 1825; graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1846, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1852; was pastor at Wrentham, Mass., 1853–62; acting pastor of Crombie-street Church, Salem (residence at Cam-bridge, Mass.), 1862–65; acting pastor at South Hadley, Mass., and Windsor Locks, Conn., 1865–66; since 1866 has been librarian of Andover Theological Seminary.

ROSSI, Giovanni Battista de', Italian archaeologist, Roman Catholic; b. in Rome, Feb. 23, 1822; educated at the Collegium Romanum; un-der the Jesuit Marchi's impulse devoted himself to archaeology, particularly to the Catacombs, and in this department is the universally acknowledged chief. In 1886 the emperor of Germany conferred upon him the cross of the Order of Merit. His two monumental works are Inscriptiones christianae urbis Romanae, Rome, 1871–81; La Rota soterranea christiana, 1869–77, 3 vols. Since 1863 he has issued Bulletino di archeologia christiana.

RUDIN (Eric Georg) Waldemar (Napoleo), Ph.D. (Upsala, 1857), D.D. (by the king's appointment, 1877, in consequence of a theological examination before the faculty of Upsala), Swedish Lutheran theologian; b. at O. Ryd, Ostrogothia, Sweden, July 20, 1833; studied at the University of Upsala; ended the course in philosophy 1857, in theology 1859; was sec'y of the National Evangelical Society at Stockholm, 1859–62; director of the Foreign Missionary Institute there, 1862–69; vice-chaplain of the parish of St. Clara, Stockholm, 1869–72; privat-docent in the University of Upsala, 1872 (appointed 1871–75; adjunct in theology, 1875–77; professor extraordinary of exegetical theology, 1877 to date. He was appointed a court preacher 1873. Since 1884 he has been a member of the committee for the revision of the Swedish translation of the Old Testament. He is a moderate Lutheran, friendly to the biblical theology of Beck, and to the mystics. He is the author in Swedish of "Intimations of Eternity" (sermons on the texts of the Church Year), Stockholm, 1872–73, 2d ed. 1878; "Biblical Psychology," Upsala, 1st part 1875; "Soren Kierkegaard," 1880; "Synopsis of the Gospels," 1881; "Gospel of Mark," translated, with notes, 1883; "Introduction to Old-Testament Prophecy," 1884; "Commentary on the Minor Prophets," 1884 sqq.; "Discussions on Theological and Ecclesiastical Subjects (1. Is it worth while to Instruct our Children in the Old Testament? 2. On the Influence of Personality in Preaching?)," 1885–86; several sermons, addresses, tracts, etc.

RÜETSCHI, Albert Rodolph, D.D. (kor., Zürich,
RYE, Right Rev. John Charles, D.D. (by diploma, 1868), LL.D. (London, 1868), Bern, Dec. 18, 1859; studied philosophy at the University of Lund, 1848–52; was literary editor of Göteborgs Handelsblad ("The Gothenburg Daily Commercial"), 1855–56; lay representative at the Church Congress of the Swedish State Church, 1868; member of the lower house of the Swedish Parliament; rector of St. Paul's Church, Gothenburg, 1870–72; has been professor at the high school of Stockholm since 1884. He was elected as member of the Swedish Academy in 1877; made knight of the Order of the North Star in 1879. Nominally a Lutheran, he is in reality Unitarian. He is the author (in Swedish) of "Romans"; Gothenburg, 1856, 2d ed. 1859; "The Freebooter on the Baltic," Gothenburg, 1857, 2d ed. Gefle, 1866; "Magic of the Middle Ages," Stockholm, 1865 (English trans., New York, 1867); "On the Pre-existence of Man," Stockholm, 1868; "The Jehovah Worship among the Hebrews before the Babylonian Captivity," Gothenburg, 1869, 2d ed. Gefle, 1870; "The Last Star in 1879."

RYEN, Most Rev. Patrick John, LL.D. (University of the State of New York, through Manhattanville College of Christian Brothers, 1880), Roman Catholic, archbishop of Philadelphia; b. at Thurlow, Ireland, Feb. 20, 1831; completed the ecclesiastical course at Carlow College, Ireland, 1852; was professor in Theological Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., 1852–64; rector of the Cathedral in that city, 1855–60; pastor of the Church of the Annunciation, 1860–68, and of St. John's, 1868; vicar-general of the diocese, 1868–84; coadjutor bishop of St. Louis, 1872; archbishop of Philadelphia, Penn., 1884. He preached the English Lenten course in Rome (1868), the dedication sermon of the Cathedral, New-York City (1879), and lectured before the Legislature and University of Missouri. He is the author of published lectures on What Catholics do not believe, St. Louis, 1877; Some of the Causes of Modern Religious Scepticism, 1883; and of occasional sermons.

RYDER, Abraham Viktor, D.D. (Upsala, 1870); b. at Jönköping, Province of Småland, Sweden, Dec. 18, 1859; studied philosophy at the University of Lund, 1848–52; was literary editor of Göteborgs Handelsblad ("The Gothenburg Daily Commercial"), 1855–56; was representative of the city of Gothenburg, 1870–72; has been professor at the high school of Stockholm since 1884. He was elected as member of the Swedish Academy in 1877; made knight of the Order of the North Star in 1879. Nominally a Lutheran, he is in reality Unitarian. He is the author (in Swedish) of "Romans," Gothenburg, 1856, 2d ed. Gefle, 1866; "The Freebooter on the Baltic," Gothenburg, 1857, 2d ed. Gefle, 1866; "The Last Star in 1879.")

RYLANCE, Joseph Hine, D.D. (Western Reserve College, Hudson, O., 1867), Episcopalian; b. near Manchester, Eng., June 16, 1826; educated at King's College, London University; graduated, 1841; curate in London, 1841–63; rector in Cleveland, O., 1863–67; Chicago, Ill., 1867–71; and since 1871 has been rector of St. Mark's, New-York City. His theological standpoint is that of Christian rationalism. He is the author of Preachers and Preaching, London, 1882; Social Questions, New York, 1880.

RYLE, Right Rev. John Charles, D.D. (by diploma, 1868), LL.D. (London, 1869), F.R.I., archbishop of Liverpool, Church of England; b. at Macclesfield, May 10, 1816; entered Christ Church, Oxford; took Craven University scholarship in 1836; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1837, M.A. 1871; became successively curate of Exbury, Hants, 1841; rector of St. Thomas, Winchester, 1843; of Helmingham, Suffolk, 1844; vicar of Stradbroke, Suffolk, 1861 (rural dean, 1870; honorary canon of Norwich Cathedral, 1872; select preacher at Cambridge 1873–74, at Oxford 1874–76); dean designate of Salisbury, 1880 (never took possession, because within a short time after nomination he became bishop of Liverpool, upon the formation of the diocese, 1880). He has written about one hundred theological tracts on doctrinal and practical subjects, of which more than two millions have been circulated, and many have been translated into foreign languages (they are now published in six volumes); Coming Events and Present Duties, 1867, 2d ed. 1879; Bishops and Clergy of Other Days, London, 1868; The Christian Leaders of the Last Century (in England), 1869; Expository Thoughts on the Gospels, 1866–69, 7 vols., 11th ed. 1873–79.
SABINE, William Tufnell, Reformed Episcopal; b. in New-York City, Oct. 16, 1838; graduated at Columbia College 1859, and at the General Theological Seminary 1862, both in New-York City; became rector in Philadelphia, Penn., 1863; in New-York City, 1866; pastor of the First Reformed Episcopal Church, New-York City, 1874. He has published various pamphlets.

SAGE, Adoniram Judson, D.D. (Rochester University, N.Y., 1872), Baptist; b. at Massillon, O., March 29, 1839; graduated at the University of Rochester, N.Y., 1860, and at Rochester Theological Seminary, 1863; became pastor at Shuburne Falls, Mass., 1863-67; in Philadelphia, Penn., 1868-69; Hartford, Conn., 1872-81; professor of Latin, University of Rochester, N.Y., 1870-71; since 1864 has been professor of homiletics in the Baptist Union Theological Seminary, Morgan Park, near Chicago, Ill.

SALMON, George, D.D. (Dublin, 1859; Edinburgh, 1884), D.C.L. (Oxford, 1868), LL.D. (Cambridge, 1874), Church of Ireland; b. in Dublin, Sept. 25, 1819; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; graduated B.A. (senior moderator in mathematics, 1839, M.A. 1843); was Fellow from 1841 to 1866; and has been regius professor of divinity since 1866. He was ordained deacon in 1844, priest in 1845. He is fellow of the Royal Societies of London and Edinburgh, corresponding member of the Institute of France, and honorary member of the Royal Academies of Berlin, Gottingen, and Copenhagen. Besides mathematical works, he has issued College Sermons, 1st series, London, 1861; 2d series (Reign of Law), 1873; 3d series (Non-miraculous Christianity), 1881; Introduction to the New Testament, 1885; 2d ed. 1886.

SALMOND, Stewart Dingwall Fordyce, D.D. (Aberdeen, 1843; Lampeter, 1848), D.D. (Aberdeen, 1877), Baptist; b. at Aberdeen, June 22, 1838; educated at King's College and University, Aberdeen; graduated, 1868; was assistant professor, 1861-64; classical examiner, 1864-67; minister at Barry, Forfarshire, 1855-76; since 1876 professor of systematic theology and New-Testament exegesis in the Free Church College, Aberdeen. He translated with notes the works of Hippolytus (except the "Refutation of the Heresies") in the Ante-Nicene Library, vols. v. and ix., Edinburgh, 1868-69; Julius Africanus, etc., in vol. ix.; Theognostus, etc. (fragments), vol. xiv., 1869; Gregory Thaumaturgus, etc., vol. xx., 1871; Augustine's Har-mony, etc., in vols. viii. and ix. Augustine's works, 1873; wrote the notes on Epistles of Peter in Schaff's Popular Commentary on the New Testament, vol. iv., 1883; The Life of the Apostle Peter, 1884; edited Bible-class Primers, 1881 sqq., and Commentary on the Epistle of Jude, London (in press). He has besides written numerous articles in periodicals.

SAMSON, George Whitefield, D.D. (Columbia University, Washington, D.C., 1858), Baptist; b. at Harvard, Mass., Sept. 29, 1819; graduated at Brown University, 1839, and at Newton Theological Institution, Newton Centre, Mass., 1843; was pastor E-street Church, Washington, D.C., 1843-50; Jamaica Plain, Boston, Mass., 1850-52; E-street, Washington, D.C., 1853-56; president of Columbian College, Washington, D.C., 1858-71; of Rutgers Female Seminary, New-York City, 1871-75; pastor of First (Mount Morris) Church, Harlem, New-York City, 1873-81; since 1883 has been secretary in charge of Liberia College; since 1884 has conducted private collegiate instruction; since 1886 has been acting president of Rutgers Female College, New-York City. He is the author of To daimonion, or the Spiritual Medium, Boston, 1852, 2d ed. (under title Spiritualism Tested) 1860; Thanksgiving Discourse, 1852; Memoir of M. J. Graham (prefaced to ed. of Graham's Test of Truth), 1859; Outlines of the History of Ethics, 1860; Elements of Art Criticism, Philadelphia, 1867. Abridged ed. 1869; Physical Media in Spiritual Manifestations, illustrated from Ancient and Modern Testimony, 1869; The Atone ment, viewed as Assumed Divine Responsibility, 1878; Divine Law as to Wines, established by the Testimony of Sages, Physicians, and Legislators against the Use of Fermented and Intoxicating Wines, confirmed by Egyptian, Greek, and Roman Methods of preparing Unfermented Wines for Festal, Medicinal, and Sacramental Uses, New York, 1880, 2d ed. 1885; English Revisers' Greek Text shown to be Unauthorized except by Egyptian Copies discovered by the Greeks, 1882; Guide to Self Education, 1886.

SANDAY, William, D.D. (Durham, 1862; Edinburgh, 1877), Church of England; b. at Holme Pierpoint, Nottingham, Aug. 1, 1843; educated at Corpus Christi College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1865, M.A. (Trinity College) 1869; was fellow of Trinity College. Oxford, 1866-69; professor of divinity in New York, 1867-73, New York Theological Seminary, 1874-75; pastor of First (Mount Morris) Church, Harlem, New-York City, 1876-77; principal of Bishop Hatfield's Hall, Durham, 1876-83; examining chap lain to the bishop of Durham, 1879-81; select preacher at Cambridge, 1880; became Dean Ireland's professor of exegesis of Holy Scripture. Oxford, 1882; and tutorial fellow of Exeter College, Oxford, 1883. He is the author of Authorship and Historical Character of the Fourth Gospel, London, 1869; The Gospels in the Second Century, 1876; commentary on Romans and Galatians in Bishop Ellicott's Commentary, 1878; (joint editor of) Variorum Bible, 1880; Inaugural Lecture, Oxford, 1883.

SANDERSON, Joseph, D.D. (University of Kintzaming, Penn., 1869), Presbyterian; b. at Bal biey, County Monaghan, Ireland, May 23, 1823; graduated at the Royal College, Belfast, 1845; went to America, 1846; was classical teacher in the Washington Institute, New-York City, 1847-49; studied theology under care of the Associate Presbytery of New York, by which licensed, 1849; began pastor of Associate Presbyterian Church, Providence, R.I., 1849, and of Stanton-street Presbyterian Church, New York City, 1853; removed with his congregation to their new church, Lexington Avenue and Forty-sixth Street, 1866; resigned, 1889; was prevented from preaching by partial aphasis until 1871; was acting pastor of Saugatuck Congregational Church, Conn., 1872—75; assistant editor of the Homiletic Monthly, New York, 1881—83; editor of the Pulpit Treasury, New York, since 1893. He is the author of Jesus on the Holy Mount, New York, 1869, last ed. 1884; The Christ and the Scriptures, London, 1864, 8th thousand, 1884; The Religions of the World, 2d ed., 1874; The Religion of Evolution, 1876; The Christ and the Church, Lectures on the Apostolic Commission, 1874; 2d ed. 1884; Expository Lectures on the Epistle to the Hebrews, 1875—76. 2 vols., several later editions; The Hidden Life, Thoughts on Communion with God, 1877, later editions; Our Life-Day, Thoughts on John xix., 4, 1878, reprinted, New York, 1879; The Compassion of Jesus, 1890, 2d ed. 1882 (trans. into German); Martin Luther, a Witness for Christ and the Scriptures, 1884, 3d ed.; translation of A. B. Daniel and Sayce, The Book of Revelation, Edinburgh, 1856; German tracts for the Jews (Der Weihnachtsbaum, Wer ist der Jude? Wer ist der Apostat?), which have passed through many editions since 1854, and been translated into Italian and into Jewish German. Who is the Apostate? into English (1878) and Dutch; All Israel shall be saved, 1885—88, 3d thousand, 1885 (translated into German, Leipzig, 1884, 2d ed. 1885, and Dutch); The Everlasting Nation, 3d ed. 1889; eight tracts for children, Christian Perfection, 1885; many other expository and devotional pamphlets.

SAUSSAYE, Pierre Daniel Chantepie de la, D.D. (Utrecht, 1871), Dutch Protestant; b. at Leuwarden, April 9, 1848; educated at Leiden and Rotterdam. Since 1873 he has been professor of the history of religions at the University of Amsterdam. From 1874 to 1882 he was, with Drs. J. J. P. Valeton, jun., and Is Van Dyk, editor of Studies, a theological review, and wrote many papers, mostly in the field of bibliological theology and history of religion. He has since contributed to other periodicals. His separate publications are: Methodologische hybride tot het onderzoek naar den oorsprong van den godsdienst (his D.D. dissertation), Utrecht, 1871; Vier Schetsen uit de Godsdienstgeschiedenis, 1883 (German trans. preparing); expects to issue in 1888, at Freiburg-im-Br., in German, a compendious history of religions for the Theologische Vortrager series.

SAYCE, George Slocum Folger, D.D. (Iowa College, Grinnell, Io., 1870), Congregationalist; b. at Upper Middletown (now Cromwell), Conn., June 29, 1817; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1844; studied at Andover (Mass.) Theological Seminary 1844—45; and at Yale Theological Seminary 1845—47; graduated B. D. and B. Th. at the University of Glasgow, 1854; became missionary to the Jews in Hamburg, Germany, 1854; German preacher in Glasgow, 1855; minister of English Presbyterian Church, South Shields, 1856; Greenwich, London, 1861; Notting Hill, London, 1872; of Belgrave Presbyterian Church, London, 1881. He was the first convert of the Scotch Jewish mission at Pest; was baptized in 1843, with father, mother, brother, and three sisters; has devoted himself to promoting interest in Jewish missions by addresses, pamphlets, and in other ways. He holds to the Old Reformation theology, but gives prominence to the historical and prophetical elements of Scripture. He is the author of Diaries of Philipp Saphir, by his brother, Edinburgh, 1852; Conviction, 1861, 10th ed. (under title Found by the Good Shepherd) London [1880]; Christ and the Scriptures, London, 1884, 25th thousand, 1884 (trans. into Dutch, German, 3d ed. Leipzig, 1882; prefaces by Kogel and Deltitzsch; Italian, Hungarian, Swedish, Norse, Hindi, Slavonian); Lectures on the Lord's Prayer, 1869, 9th ed. 1884; Christ Crucified (lectures on 1 Cor. ii.), 1872, 4th ed. 1872—80;—Christ and the Church, Lectures on the Apostolic Commission, 1874, 2d ed. 1884; Expository Lectures on Ephesians to the Hebrews, 1875—76. 2 vols., several later editions; The Hidden Life, Thoughts on Communion with God, 1877, later editions; Our Life-Day, Thoughts on John xix., 4, 1878, reprinted, New York, 1879; The Compassion of Jesus, 1890, 2d ed. 1882 (trans. into German); Martin Luther, a Witness for Christ and the Scriptures, 1884, 3d ed.; translation of A. B. Daniel and Sayce, The Book of Revelation, Edinburgh, 1856; German tracts for the Jews (Der Weihnachtsbaum, Wer ist der Jude? Wer ist der Apostat?), which have passed through many editions since 1854, and been translated into Italian and into Jewish German. Who graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1869, M.A. 1872; ordained deacon 1870, priest 1871; became fellow of his college 1869, tutor 1870, and later senior tutor, deputy professor of comparative philology 1876, and was public examiner 1877-79. In 1874 he joined the Old-Testament Revision Company. He is an honorary member of the Royal Academy of Spain, the Asiatic Society of Bengal, and the Anthropological Society of Washington. He edited George Smith's History of Babylonia, London, 1877, 2d ed. 1884; Sennacherib, 1878; and Chaldean Genesis, 1880; and has written, Assyrian Grammar for Comparative Purposes, 1872; Principles of Comparative Philology, 1873, 3d ed. 1884 (French trans. 1884); Astronomy and Astrology of the Babylonians, 1874; Elementary Assyrian Grammar, 1875, 2d ed. 1877; Lectures on the Assyrian Syllogism and Grammar, 1877; Babylonian Literature, 1877; Introduction to the Science of Language, 1890, 2d ed. 1883; The Monuments of the Hittites, 1881; The Cuneiform Inscriptions of Western Asia, 2d ed. 1882; The Three Books of Herodatus, edited with Notes and Appendices, 1883; The Ancient Empires of the East, 1884; Fresh Light from the Monuments, 1884; Introduction to the Books of Ezra, Nehemiah, and Esther, 1885.

SCARBOROUGH, Right Rev. John, D.D. (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1872), Episcopalian, bishop of New Jersey; b. in Castle Welling, Ireland, April 25, 1831; graduated at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1854, and at the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1857; became assistant minister of St. Paul's Church, Troy, N.Y., 1857, rector of the Church of the Holy Comforter, Poughkeepsie, N.Y., 1860, and of Trinity Church, Pittsburgh, Penn., 1867; bishop, 1875.

SCAEFFER, Alois, D.D. (Würzburg, 1879), Roman Catholic; b. at Dingelsdorf, Saxony, May 2, 1833; studied theology and philosophy at Prague and Würzburg, 1873-79; became chaplain in the Court Church at Göttingen, 1879; professor in the royal lyceum at Dillingen, Bavaria, 1881; professor-extraordinary of New-Testament exegesis at Munster, 1885. He is the author of Die biblische Chronologie vom A uszug aus Ägypten bis zum Beginn des babylonischen Exils, mit Berücksichtigung der Resultate der Ägyptologie und Assyriologie (prize essay at Würzburg), Münster, 1879; essays on biblico-mariology in the Theol. prakt. Quartalschrift, Linz, 1885 sqq.

SCAEFFER, Charles William, D.D. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1879), Lutheran (General Council); b. at Hagerstown, Md., May 6, 1813; graduated at University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1832; was pastor in Montgomery County, Penn., 1835-41; at Harrisburg, Penn., 1841-49; at Germantown, Penn., 1849-75; has been professor in the theological seminary of the Lutheran Church, Philadelphia, since 1864; and a member of the Board of Trustees in the University of Pennsylvania since 1857. He is the author of Early History of the Lutheran Church in America, Philadelphia, 1857, 2d ed. 1864; Bogatsky's Golden Treasury, translated 1858, several later editions; Family Prayer, a Book of Devotions, 1859, 5th ed. 1865; Halle Reports, translated from the German, with extensive historical, critical, and literary annotations, vol. i., 1860; Wackenroder's Life of Luther, translated 1883; Hans Sachs's Wittenberg Nightingale, translated 1883; numerous articles for reviews, etc.

SCAEFFER, Hermann Moritz, Baptist; b. at Lage, Lippe-Detmold, Germany, Aug. 22, 1839; emigrated in 1854; studied in the German department of Rochester (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1851-54; graduated from the English department, 1857; became pastor of the First German Baptist Church, New York City, 1867; professor of biblical and literary language in the German department, Rochester Baptist Seminary, 1872.

SCAFF, David Schley, Presbyterian; b. at Mercersburg, Penn., Octob. 17, 1852; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1873, and at Union Theol. Seminary, N. Y. City, 1876; pastor at Hastings, Neb., 1877-81; associate editor of Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia, N. Y. City, 1881-83; pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Kansas City, Mo., 1883 to date. He contributed to Schaff's (his father's) Bible Dictionary, Phila., 1886; edited, abridged, and adapted to the Revised Version, Howson and Spence's commentary on Acts (originally published in Schaff's Popular Commentary) for the International Revision Commentary, N. Y., 1882.

SCAFF, Philip, Lio. Theol. (Berlin, 1841), D.D. (hon., Berlin, 1854), L.L.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1870), Presbyterian; b. at Coire, Switzerland, Jan. 1, 1819; studied at Coire, in the gymnasium at Stuttgart, and in the universities of Tubingen, Halle, and Berlin; travelled as tutor of a Prussian nobleman, through Italy and other countries of Europe, 1841; returned to Berlin, and lectured in the university there as privat-docent, on exegesis and church history, 1842-44; was called in 1849 (upon the recommendation of Neander, T choluek, Julius Müller, and others) to a professorship in the theological seminary of the German Reformed Church of the United States, then located at Mercersburg, Penn., and held the position until 1863 (including eleven months spent in Europe, 1845). He was charged with heresy, but acquitted by the synod at York, 1845. He became professor of Old Testament exegesis in the Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1857; became pastor of the First German Baptist Church, New-York City, 1867; became pastor of the First German Baptist Church, Kansas City, Mo., 1883 to date. He contributed to Schaff's (his father's) Bible Dictionary, Phila., 1886; edited, abridged, and adapted to the Revised Version, Howson and Spence's commentary on Acts (originally published in Schaff's Popular Commentary) for the International Revision Commentary, N. Y., 1882.

SCAFF, Philip, Lio. Theol. (Berlin, 1841), D.D. (hon., Berlin, 1854), L.L.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1870), Presbyterian; b. at Coire, Switzerland, Jan. 1, 1819; studied at Coire, in the gymnasium at Stuttgart, and in the universities of Tubingen, Halle, and Berlin; travelled as tutor of a Prussian nobleman, through Italy and other countries of Europe, 1841; returned to Berlin, and lectured in the university there as privat-docent, on exegesis and church history, 1842-44; was called in 1849 (upon the recommendation of Neander, T choluek, Julius Müller, and others) to a professorship in the theological seminary of the German Reformed Church of the United States, then located at Mercersburg, Penn., and held the position until 1863 (including eleven months spent in Europe, 1845). He was charged with heresy, but acquitted by the synod at York, 1845. He became professor of Old Testament exegesis in the Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1857; became pastor of the First German Baptist Church, New-York City, 1867; became pastor of the First German Baptist Church, Kansas City, Mo., 1883 to date. He contributed to Schaff's (his father's) Bible Dictionary, Phila., 1886; edited, abridged, and adapted to the Revised Version, Howson and Spence's commentary on Acts (originally published in Schaff's Popular Commentary) for the International Revision Commentary, N. Y., 1882.
SCHAFF.

pared the official report. He was sent as a delegate to the General Conferences of the Alliance at Basel (1879), and at Copenhagen (1884). He attended, as a delegate, the meeting in London which organized the Alliance of the Reformed Churches in 1879, and its first General Council in Edinburgh, 1879; and he was chairman of the programme committee for its second General Council in Philadelphia, 1880 (in behalf of which he made the arrangements in Europe). He is president of the American Bible-revision Committee, which he organized in 1871 at the request of the British Committee; and he was sent to England in 1875 to negotiate with the British revisers and university presses about the terms of co-operation and publication of the Anglo-American Revision. He attended several meetings of the British Committee in the Jerusalem Chamber, London, the last in July, 1884. In 1877 he made a tour through Bible lands, in 1879 to negotiate with the British revisers and university presses about the terms of co-operation and publication of the Anglo-American Revision. He attended several meetings of the British Committee in the Jerusalem Chamber, London, the last in July, 1884. In 1877 he made a tour through Bible lands, in 1879 to negotiate with the British revisers and university presses about the terms of co-operation and publication of the Anglo-American Revision. He attended several meetings of the British Committee in the Jerusalem Chamber, London, the last in July, 1884. In 1877 he made a tour through Bible lands, in 1879 to negotiate with the British revisers and university presses about the terms of co-operation and publication of the Anglo-American Revision. He attended several meetings of the British Committee in the Jerusalem Chamber, London, the last in July, 1884. In 1877 he made a tour through Bible lands, in 1879 to negotiate with the British revisers and university presses about the terms of co-operation and publication of the Anglo-American Revision. He attended several meetings of the British Committee in the Jerusalem Chamber, London, the last in July, 1884. In 1877 he made a tour through Bible lands, in 1879 to negotiate with the British revisers and university presses about the terms of co-operation and publication of the Anglo-American Revision.

His books are mostly historical and exegetical.

I. His principal works are: History of the Apostolic Church, Mercersburg, 1851, in German (Eng. trans., by Dr. Yeomans, New York, 1853, Edinburgh, 1854, several editions without change; 2d German revised ed., Leipzig, 1854; Dutch trans., Tiel, 1857); History of the Christian Church, New York, 1858 sqq., A.D. 1-600, 3 vols. (German ed., Leipzig, 1867, 2d ed. 1869, 3 vols.); entirely rewritten in English, and more than doubled in size, New York and Edinburgh, 1882-84, 3 vols., vol. iv., A.D. 690—718, 1883-84; 3d ed. revised ed. 1886; 3d revision of the entire set, 1886 (to be continued); Bibliotheca Symbalica Ecclesiae Universalis: The Creeds of Christendom, with a History and Critical Notes, New York and London, 1877, 3 vols., 4th ed. 1884; A Companion to the Greek Testament and the English Version, New York and London, 1883, revised ed. 1885; The Oldest Church Manual, called the Teaching of the Twelve Apostles (an independent supplement to the second volume of his revised Church History) New York, 1885, revised ed. 1886; The Person of Christ, Boston, 1885, 12th ed., New York and London, 1882 (translated into German, Edinburgh, L. Brauns, 1892); Through Bible Lands: Notes of Travel in Egypt, the Desert, and Palestine, New York and London, 1878, several editions; Bible Dictionary, with illustrations, Philadelphia (American Sunday-school Union, 1886, 3d ed. revised, 1885, translated into several languages); Commentaries on Matthew and on Galatians (in his Popular Commentary), and large additions to the American edition of Lange on Matthew, Luke (the first 3 chs.) John, and Romans (especially in the textual and critical department); Christ and Christianity, New York and London, 1885; St. Augustin, Melanchthon, and Neander, N.Y. and Lond., 1886; August Neander, Gotha, 1886.

II. His earliest books were written and published in Germany; viz., Die Sünde wider den heiligen Geist, Halle, 1841; and Das Verkähltnis des Jakobus, Bruders des Herrn, zu Jakobus Alphäi, Berlin, 1842.

SCHANZ.

SCHANZ, Paul, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1867), D.D. (Tübingen, 1876), Roman Catholic; b. at Horb, Wurttemberg, March 4, 1841; studied at Tübingen, 1861-65; in Rottenb Seminary, 1865-66; he leitungen in New T. can Prof. r. Aberle (edited), censor of the demission examinations in the Swedish inspector of the teachers' seminary (1880), and mathematics and apologetics in the same, 1883. He is member of consistory, 1878; professor, 1879, and of church extension in Presbytery of Philadelphia, Penn., 1892; corresponding secretary of the Presbyterian board of publication, Philadelphia, 1894. He was editor of the board of publication, 1892-70; permanent clerk of the General Assembly (Old School), 1892-70; has been trustee of the General Assembly and vice-president of the board of trustees since 1894; director of Princeton Theological Seminary since 1896. He is the author of A Historical Account of the First Presbyterian Church of Princeton, N.J., Princeton, 1851; Aunt Fanny's Home, Philadelphia, 1865; Children in Heaven, 1866; Nearing Home, 1867; General Catalogue of Princeton Theological Seminary, Trenton, 1881; sermons, tracts (God our Guide, 1867; The Fountain for Sin, 1868 [in German], etc.); necrological reports of the Princeton Theological Seminary, 1878-85; minor works.

SCHENKEIL, Daniel, D.D., German Protestant theologian; b. at Dägerlen, Canton Zürich, Switzerland, Dec. 21, 1813; d. at Heidelberg, Germany, May 19, 1885. He studied at Basel and Göttingen; became priv.-docent at Basel, 1838; pastor in the minster at Schaffhausen, in succession to F. E. von Hurter (see Encyclopædia, 1841, and kirchenrath, 1842; ordinary professor of theology at Basel, 1849; professor, seminardirector, and university preacher at Heidelberg, 1851; later also a kirchenrat. At twenty-five he was editor of the Basler Zeitung, in which he vigorously opposed Swiss radicalism. He was at first nearly orthodox, but became the head of the Protestantenverein, and from 1860 to 1872 edited in its interest the Algemeine kirchliche Zeitschrift, published at Elberfeld. He was the author of Johannes Schenkel, Pfarrer zu Unterhallau, Hanburg, 1857; De ecclesia Corinthi primaria factionibus turbata, Basel, 1838; D. Wissenschaft und die Kirche, 1839; Vier und zwanzig Predigten über Grund und Ziel unseres Glaubens, Zürich, 1843, 2 vols.; Die confessionellen Zerwürfnisse in Schaffhausen und Friedrich Hurter's Verteidigung der römisch-katholischen Kirche, Basel, 1844; Die protestantische Geistlichkeit und die Deutsch-Katholiken, Zürich, 1846; Das Wesen des Protestantismus aus den Quellen des Reformationssaltzeitalters beleuchtet, Schaffhausen, 1849-51, 3 vols., 2d ed. 1862; Die religiösen Zeitkämpfe in ihrem Zusammenhange mit dem Wesen der Religion und der religiösen Gesammtentwicklung des Protestantismus, Zürich, 1841; Kommnen des Herrn in unserer Zeit, Schaffhausen, 1849; W. W. de Wetleand die Beteutungseiner Theologie für unsere Zeit, 1849; Predigten, 1850-51, 2 vols.; Das Prinzip des Protestantismus, 1852; SCHERESCHEWSKY, Right Rev. Samuel Isaac, D.D. (Kenyon College, Gambier, 0., 1876), S.T.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1877); b. at Tarnroggen, Russian Lithuania, May 6, 1831; educated at the rabbinical college at Zhitomer (Russia), then at the theological college at Berlin, 1847; Prussian embassy preacher at Constantinople, 1850; ordinary professor of theology at Zürich 1855, at Bonn 1859, and at Halle 1866. He is one of the revisers of the German Bible. Among his writings may be mentioned, Das Buch Hiob verdeutscht und erläutert, Berlin, 1851; De Philippo Melanchthoni reformata litteraria reformata, Bonn, 1860; De reipublica litteraria originibus, 1861; David Strauss als Romaniker des Heidentums, Halle, 1878; Erasmus redeinvis sive de curia hisuaque romana insanabilis, 1883; Wider Klusko je und Luthardt. In Sachen der Luther-Bibel, 1885.

SCHMID, Aloys, D.D. (Munich, 1850), Roman Catholic; b. at Zaumberg, Bavaria, Dec. 22, 1823; studied at Munich, 1844-50; was professor in the Zweibrücken gymnasium, 1852-54; professor of philosophy in the royal lyceum at Dillingen, 1852-68; has been professor of apologetics and dogmatics in the University of Munich since 1868. He is an archiepiscopal ecclesiastical councilor. He is the author of Die Bistumsmysterien, Regensburg, 1850-51, 2 vols.; Entwicklungsgeschichte der Hegelschen Logik, 1868; Thomistische und Scotistische Gewissenslehre, Dillingen, 1859; Wissenschaftliche Richtungen auf dem Gebiete des Katholizismus in neuerer und gegenwärtiger Zeit, Munich, 1862; Wissenschaft und Auctorität, 1868; Untersuchungen über den letzten Grund des Offenbarungsglaubens, 1879.

SCHMID, Andreas, D.D. (Munich, 1860), Roman Catholic; b. at Zaumberg, Bavaria, Jan. 9, 1840; studied theology at Munich, 1860-63; was ordained priest, 1863; became subregens of the Georgianum priests' seminary at Munich, 1863; director of the same, and professor of pastoral theology in the University of Munich, 1877. He is the author of Der christische Altar und sein Schmuck. Regensburg, 1866.

SCHMID, Heinrich, German Lutheran theologian; b. at Harburg, near Nördlingen, July 31, 1811; studied at Halle, Berlin, and Erlangen; became at the latter repetens 1837, privat-docent 1846, professor extraordinary 1848, and ordinary 1854, and retired in 1881. He has written, Die Dogmatik der evangelisch-lutherischen Kirche dargestellt und aus den Quellen belegt, Erlangen, 1843, 6th ed. Frankfurt-am-Main, 1876 (English trans., The Doctrinal Theology of the Lutheran Church, Philadelphia, 1876); Geschichte der synkretistischen Streitigkeiten in der Zeit des Georg Calitz, Erlangen, 1846; Lehrbuch der Kirchengeschichte, Nördlingen, 1851, 2d ed. 1856; Die Theologie Semlers, 1858; Lehrbuch der Dogmengeschichte, 1859, 3d ed. 1877; Geschichte des Pietismus, 1863; Der Kampf der lutherischen Kirche um Luthers Lehre vom Abendmahl vom Abendmahl v. Dähne, 1866, 2d ed. 1873; Geschichte der Kreuzigung in der Zeit des Georg Calitz, Erlangen, 1846.

SCHMIDT, Charles Guillaume Adolphe, Lic. Theol., D.D. (both Strassburg, 1835 and 1836), Lutheran; b. at Strassburg, Alsace. June 20, 1812; studied theology in its university, 1828-33; became privat-docent, 1837; professor of practical theology in its Protestant seminary, 1839; of the same in the university, 1843; of ecclesiastical history, 1863; professor emeritus, 1877. He is the author of Études sur Farel, Strassburg, 1834; Vie de Pierre Martig Vermigli, thesis for his degree of licentiate in theology, 1835; Essai sur les mystiques du XVe siècle (thesis for his degree of D.D.), 1836; Essai sur Jean Gerson, 1839; Meister Eckart (in Theol. Studien u. Kritiken), 1839; Plaintes d'un laïque allemand du XVe siècle sur la décadence de la chrétienté, 1840; Über die Sekten zu Strassbourg im Mittelalter, 1840; Johannes Tauler von Strassburg, Hamburg, 1841; Heinrich Suso (in Theol. Studien u. Kritiken), 1842; Clausius von Turin, 1843; Gérard Rousset éditeur de la reine Marguerite de Navarre, Strassburg, 1845; Étude sur le mysticisme allemand au XVe siècle (in Mémoires de l'académie des sciences morales), 1847; Histoire et doctrine de la secte des Cathares ou Albigois, Paris, 1849, 2 vols.; Essai historique sur la société civile dans le monde romain et sur sa transformation par le christianisme, Strassburg, 1853 (German trans., Leipzig, 1857; Dutch trans., Amsterdam, 1862; English trans., The Social Results of Early Christianity, London, 1859; The Christian and the Pagans in the 16th Century, 1859); Das Verhältniss der christlichen Glaubenslehre zu den lutherischen Lehren (thesis for his degree of licentiate in theology), 1850; Geschichte der Foreign Missions of the General Council since 1867, secretary of Committee for Foreign Missions of the General Council since 1867, secretary of Committee for the Bible, 1870; Halle Reports, Reprinted with Historical and Explanatory Notes (with Drs. W. J. Mann and W. Germain), vol. 1. 1866; pamphlets, etc.

SCHMIDT, Paul (Wilhelm), Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1851), Protestant theologian; b. at Chemnitz, Saxony, July 3, 1852; studied at Leipzig and Göttingen, 1853—57; was "teacher of religion" at Plauen, Zwickau, and St. Afra gymnasia, 1855—66; became professor extraordinary at Leipzig 1866, and ordinary professor 1876. He is the author of Der Lehrgedächtnis des Jakobusbriefes, Leipzig, 1869; Der Bericht der Apostelgeschichte über Stephanus (Program), 1892; articles and pamphlets upon theological and ecclesiastical subjects, e.g., as in F. von Holtzendorff's Zeit u. Streit Fragen.

SCHMIDT, Woldemar Gottlob, D.D. (hon., Göttingen, 1873—77), Protestant theologian; b. at St. Afra in Meissen, Saxony, June 2, 1836; studied at Leipzig and Göttingen, 1854—57; was "teacher of religion" at Plauen, Zwickau, and St. Afra gymnasia, 1855—66; became professor extraordinary at Leipzig 1866, and ordinary professor 1876. He is the author of Der Lehrgedächtnis des Jakobusbriefes, Leipzig, 1869; Der Bericht der Apostelgeschichte über Stephanus (Program), 1892; articles and pamphlets upon theological and ecclesiastical subjects, e.g., as in F. von Holtzendorff's Zeit u. Streit Fragen.

SCHMIDT, Christoph Hermann, D.D. (hon., Halle, 1881), Protestant theologian; b. at Frickenhofen, Württemberg, Feb. 25, 1832; studied at Tübingen, 1850—54; was there repetent, 1856—61; diakonus in Kalw, 1863—69, and at Stuttgart, 1869—81; became ordinary professor of theology at Breslau, 1881. He has written Geschichte der inneren Mission in Württemberg, Hamburg, 1879; Das Verhältniss der christlichen Glaubenslehre zu den anderen Aufgaben akademischer Wissenschaft Gotha, 1881; Die Kirche, ihre biblische Idee und die Formen ihrer Erscheinung, Leipzig, 1884.

SCHMIDT, Paul (Wilhelm), Ph.D. (Halle, 1865), Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1867), D.D. (hon., Strassburg, 1883), Protestant theologian; b. in Berlin, Dec. 26, 1845; educated at Berlin; was privat-docent the theology in its Protestant seminary, 1839; of the same in the university, 1843; of ecclesiastical history, 1863; professor emeritus, 1877. He is the author of Études sur Farel, Strassburg, 1834; Vie de Pierre Martig Vermigli, thesis for his degree of licentiate in theology, 1835; Essai sur les mystiques du XVe siècle (thesis for his degree of D.D.), 1836; Essai sur Jean Gerson, 1839; Meister Eckart (in Theol. Studien u. Kritiken), 1839; Plaintes d'un laïque allemand du XVe siècle sur la décadence de la chrétienté, 1840; Über die Sekten zu Strassbourg im Mittelalter, 1840; Johannes Tauler von Strassburg, Hamburg, 1841; Heinrich Suso (in Theol. Studien u. Kritiken), 1842; Clausius von Turin, 1843; Gérard Rousset éditeur de la reine Marguerite de Navarre, Strassburg, 1845; Étude sur le mysticisme allemand au XVe siècle (in Mémoires de l'académie des sciences morales), 1847; Histoire et doctrine de la secte des Cathares ou Albigois, Paris, 1849, 2 vols.; Essai historique sur la société civile dans le monde romain et sur sa transformation par le christianisme, Strassburg, 1853 (German trans., Leipzig, 1857; Dutch trans., Amsterdam, 1862; English trans., The Social Results of Early Christianity, London, 1859; The Christian and the Pagans in the 16th Century, 1859); Das Verhältniss der christlichen Glaubenslehre zu den lutherischen Lehren (thesis for his degree of licentiate in theology), 1850; Geschichte der Foreign Missions of the General Council since 1867, secretary of Committee for Foreign Missions of the General Council since 1867, secretary of Committee for the Bible, 1870; Halle Reports, Reprinted with Historical and Explanatory Notes (with Drs. W. J. Mann and W. Germain), vol. 1. 1866; pamphlets, etc.

SCHMIDT, Christoph Hermann, D.D. (hon., Halle, 1881), Protestant theologian; b. at Frickenhofen, Württemberg, Feb. 25, 1832; studied at Tübingen, 1850—54; was there repetent, 1856—61; diakonus in Kalw, 1863—69, and at Stuttgart, 1869—81; became ordinary professor of theology at Breslau, 1881. He has written Geschichte der inneren Mission in Württemberg, Hamburg, 1879; Das Verhältniss der christlichen Glaubenslehre zu den anderen Aufgaben akademischer Wissenschaft Gotha, 1881; Die Kirche, ihre biblische Idee und die Formen ihrer Erscheinung, Leipzig, 1884.

SCHMIDT, Paul (Wilhelm), Ph.D. (Halle, 1865), Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1867), D.D. (hon., Strassburg, 1883), Protestant theologian; b. in Berlin, Dec. 26, 1845; educated at Berlin; was privat-docent the theology in its Protestant seminary, 1839; of the same in the university, 1843; of ecclesiastical history, 1863; professor emeritus, 1877. He is the author of Études sur Farel, Strassburg, 1834; Vie de Pierre Martig Vermigli, thesis for his degree of licentiate in theology, 1835; Essai sur les mystiques du XVe siècle (thesis for his degree of D.D.), 1836; Essai sur Jean Gerson, 1839; Meister Eckart (in Theol. Studien u. Kritiken), 1839; Plaintes d'un laïque allemand du XVe siècle sur la décadence de la chrétienté, 1840; Über die Sekten zu Strassbourg im Mittelalter, 1840; Johannes Tauler von Strassburg, Hamburg, 1841; Heinrich Suso (in Theol. Studien u. Kritiken), 1842; Clausius von Turin, 1843; Gérard Rousset éditeur de la reine Marguerite de Navarre, Strassburg, 1845; Étude sur le mysticisme allemand au XVe siècle (in Mémoires de l'académie des sciences morales), 1847; Histoire et doctrine de la secte des Cathares ou Albigois, Paris, 1849, 2 vols.; Essai historique sur la société civile dans le monde romain et sur sa transformation par le christianisme, Strassburg, 1853 (German trans., Leipzig, 1857; Dutch trans., Amsterdam, 1862; English trans., The Social Results of Early Christianity, London, 1859; The Christian and the Pagans in the 16th Century, 1859); Das Verhältniss der christlichen Glaubenslehre zu den lutherischen Lehren (thesis for his degree of licentiate in theology), 1850; Geschichte der Foreign Missions of the General Council since 1867, secretary of Committee for Foreign Missions of the General Council since 1867, secretary of Committee for the Bible, 1870; Halle Reports, Reprinted with Historical and Explanatory Notes (with Drs. W. J. Mann and W. Germain), vol. 1. 1866; pamphlets, etc.

SCHNEDERMANN, Georg Hermann, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1878), Lic. Theol. (Leipzig, 1890), Lutheran theologian; b. in Breslau, July 3, 1852; studied at Leipzig 1872—75, at Erlangen 1874; was teacher in Switzerland and Westphalia, 1875—77; member of the Theological Seminary at Leipzig, 1877—79; became privat-docent of SCHOLZ.

Dutch theologians, and the author of the so-called "modern theology," which arose about 1858, and which he rejects. He emphasizes this dualism as the religion of Jesus, rather than as founded upon Jesus; and God as a transcendent entity, devoid of all anthropomorphic attributes which would limit his infinitude, but the source of all force and all life. Among his numerous writings may be mentioned his doctoral treatises, De Demonsthenis eloquentiae charactere, Utrecht, 1835; and De Dei erga hominem amore, princeps religiosae christianae loco, 1836; his inaugural address at Leiden, De Religione christianae, suae ipse divinitatis in animo humano vindica, Leiden, 1843; his three doctoral addresses, De psynag. theologiam inter ac philosophiam recta uriuque studio tollenda, 1847; De sacris litteris, theologice nostra cateate libere excutia, forntius, 1857; and (in Dutch), "The rôle of Theology in the Dutch Universities as affected by the Law of 1876," 1877. His principal works, in Dutch and Latin, are, "Principles of the Theology of the Reformed Church," Leiden, 1848-50, 2 vols., 4th ed. 1861 (French trans. by C. B. Huët in the Revue de théologie de Strassburg, German trans. by F. Nippold in the Zts. f. hist. Theologie, 1863); Dogmatres christianae initia, 1853-54, 2d ed. 1858; Geschichte des godsdiensten en wysbegeerte, 1853, 3d ed. 1863 (French trans. by A. Réville, Paris, 1861, 2d ed. 1864); German trans. by Redepenning, Elberfeld, 1868; English trans., London, 1870); "Historical and Critical Introduction to the New Testament," 1853, 2d ed. 1856 (German trans., Leipzig, 1856); "The Freedom of the Will," 1856 (French trans. in the Revue de théologie et philosophie, Lausanne, 1876); "The Causes of Contemporary Materialism," 1859 (French trans. by A. Réville in the Revue, Strassburg, 1860); "A Critical Study of the Gospel of John," 1864 (German trans. by Lang, Berlin, 1867); "The Oldest Witnesses to the Writings of the New Testament," 1866 (German trans. by C. Manchot, Bremen, 1867); "Supernaturalism en rapport with the Bible, Christianity, and Protestantism," 1867; "The Oldest Gospel: Critical Examination of the Relations of the Gospe of Matthew and Mark," 1868 (German trans. by Redepenning, Elberfeld, 1869); "The First Part of Bible," 1870 (German trans. by Max Gubalke, Gotha, 1885); "The Pauline Gospel: a Critical Examination of the Gospel of Luke, and its Relation to Mark, Matthew, and the Acts," 1870 (German trans. by Redepenning, Elberfeld, 1881); "The Apostle John in Asia Minor," 1871 (German trans. by B. Spiegel, Berlin, 1872); "Did the Third Evangelist write the Acts?" 1873; Af conductederij bij het neerleggen van het hoogleerameth, 1881 (his address on retiring from his professorship, in which he reviews his theological development); Historisch-critische Bijdragen naar Aanleiding van de nieuwe Hypothese en de aanhangende Jezus en de Paulus van de vier Hoofd—

SCHOLLEN, Josephus Maria, D.D. (Munich, 1840), Roman Catholic; b. at Forchheim, Bavaria, June 15, 1818; educated at Bamberg, Erlangen, and Munich; was sacellarius at Bamberg, 1861-65; professor of theology at Hildesheim, 1866; chorcantor of St. Cajetan in Munich, 1867-71; court preacher at St. Michael's, Munich, 1871-74; privat-docent in the University of Munich, 1868-73; professor extraordinary of theology, 1873-78; since 1878 ordinary professor; since 1886 canon of St. Cajetan's. He is also senator. He is the author of Die Kirchengeschichte des Johannes von Ephesus, Munich, 1863; Salomonis Episcopi Bassorinum Liber Apis, Bamberg, 1868; Onkelos und Peschitto, Munich, 1869; treatises and articles in theological periodicals.

SCHOLTÉN, Jan Hendrik, Ph.D., D. D. (both Utrecht, 1835 and 1838, respectively), Dutch Protestant theologian; b. at Vleuten, near Utrecht, Aug. 17, 1811; d. at Leiden, April 10, 1885. He studied at the University of Utrecht; became pastor at Meerkerk, 1835; professor of theology in the theology at Elberfeld, 1840; the same in the University of Leiden, 1843; retired in 1881. He was rector of the university in 1847, 1857, and 1877. He was the head of the critical school of SCHÖLD, Carl Wilhelm, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1876), Lutheran (General Council); b. at Allegheny City, Penn., April 15, 1854; graduated at Capital University, Columbus, Ohio (at college 1872, theological seminary 1874); studied at Tübingen 1874-75, Leipzig 1876; became pastor at Wheeling, W. Va., 1877; professor of Greek in the college of Capital University, 1881 (also has taught in the Hebrew department of the theological seminary). He is the author of The Book of Enoch, translated from the Ethiopic, Andover, 1882; and of numerous contributions to the Journal of the German Oriental Society, Bibliotheca Sacra, Lutheran Quarterly, Independent, etc.

SCHOENFELDER, Josephus Maria, D.D. (Munich, 1840), Roman Catholic; b. at Forchheim, Bavaria, June 15, 1818; educated at Bamberg, Erlangen, and Munich; was sacellarius at Bamberg, 1861-65; professor of theology at Hildesheim, 1866; chorcantor of St. Cajetan in Munich, 1867-71; court preacher at St. Michael's, Munich, 1871-74; privat-docent in the University of Munich, 1868-73; professor extraordinary of theology, 1873-78; since 1878 ordinary professor; since 1886 canon of St. Cajetan's. He is also senator. He is the author of Die Kirchengeschichte des Johannes von Ephesus, Munich, 1863; Salomonis Episcopi Bassorinum Liber Apis, Bamberg, 1868; Onkelos und Peschitto, Munich, 1869; treatises and articles in theological periodicals.

SCHOLTÉN, Jan Hendrik, Ph.D., D. D. (both Utrecht, 1835 and 1838, respectively), Dutch Protestant theologian; b. at Vleuten, near Utrecht, Aug. 17, 1811; d. at Leiden, April 10, 1885. He studied at the University of Utrecht; became pastor at Meerkerk, 1835; professor of theology in the theology at Elberfeld, 1840; the same in the University of Leiden, 1843; retired in 1881. He was rector of the university in 1847, 1857, and 1877. He was the head of the critical school of SCHÖLD, Carl Wilhelm, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1876), Lutheran (General Council); b. at Allegheny City, Penn., April 15, 1854; graduated at Capital University, Columbus, Ohio (at college 1872, theological seminary 1874); studied at Tübingen 1874-75, Leipzig 1876; became pastor at Wheeling, W. Va., 1877; professor of Greek in the college of Capital University, 1881 (also has taught in the Hebrew department of the theological seminary). He is the author of The Book of Enoch, translated from the Ethiopic, Andover, 1882; and of numerous contributions to the Journal of the German Oriental Society, Bibliotheca Sacra, Lutheran Quarterly, Independent, etc.

in 1870. He is the author of De inquisitione spirital Santae (inaugural dissertation), Würzburg, 1872; Der Masoreth. Text u. d. LXX. Übersetzung d. Buch. Jeremias, Regensburg, 1875; Commentar zu Jeremias, Würzburg, 1880; Die alexandrinische Übersetzung des Buch Ecclesiastes, 1890; Commentar zu Hoseas, 1882; do., Joel, 1884; Das Buch Judith, eine Prophethet, 1885.

SCHOLZ, Paul, Lic. Theol. (Breslau, 1852),

De controverxiispaschalihus (les. 4 Th., Berlin, 1869; Die assyrisch-babylonischen Urkunden zu Hoseas, 1882; do., Joel, 1884; Das Buch Judith, eine Prophethet, 1885.

SCHULZE, Ludwig Theodor, Lic. Theol. (Leipzig, 1852),

D.D. (hon., Münster, 1892). Roman Catholic; b. at Breslau, Germany, June 26, 1828; was educated at Breslau; became priest and chaplain at Gruau, 1832; repentin of theology in the University of Breslau, and teacher of religion in the Matthias gymnasion in the same city, 1853; privatis-docten of theology in the university, 1857; professor extraordinary, 1864; ordinary professor, 1868. He is the author of Handbuch der Theologie des Alten Bundes im Lichte des Neuen, Regensburg, 1861–92, 2 vols.; Commentationes criticae christianae inter familiae civitatis ecclesias fines (4th and last part of Diekhoff's Compend. ethica. christ. cath.), Paderborn, 1864; Die Ehen der Söhne Gottes mit den Töchtern der Menachen, Regensburg, 1885; Die heiligen Altherrthümer des Volkes Israel, 1868–90, 2 vols.; Götzen dämones und zu Zauberey beit, Leben der heidischen und benachbarten Völker, 1877.

SCHRADER, Eberhard, Ph.D. (Göttingen, 1860),

D.D. (hon., Zürich, 1870). German Protestant (critical school of Ewald and De Wette); b. at Brunswick, Jan. 5, 1836; studied at Göttingen; became ordinary professor of theology at Zürich 1866, at Giessen 1870, at Tübingen 1873; professor of Oriental languages at Berlin, 1875. He is a member of the Royal Prussian Academy. He is the author of De linguis Æthiopiis, Göttingen, 1880; Studien zur Kritik u. Erklärung der biblischen Urgeschichte. Gen. 1.-xi.. Zürich, 1863; (edited 8th ed. of De Wette's) Lehrbuch der historick-kritischen Einleitung in die kanonischen u. apokryphischen Bücher des A. T., Berlin, 1889; Die assyrisch-babylonischen Kulturkreisen, Kritische Untersuchung der Grundlagen ihrer Entstehung, Leipzig, 1872; Die Keilinschriften und Geschichtsforschung, 1878.

SCHROER, Johann Heinrich, D.D. (Würzburg, 1880),

Roman Catholic; b. at Krefeld, Prussia, Nov. 26, 1822; studied theology, history, and jurisprudence at Bonn, Würzburg, Innsbruck, and Münster; became privatis-docten of canon law and historical theology at Freiburg, 1883; ordinary professor at Bonn, 1886. Author of Der Streit über die Prädetermination im 9. Jahrhundert, Freiburg-im-Breisgau, 1884; Hinkmar, Erzbischof von Reims, sein Leben und seine Schriften, 1884.

SCHUSTER, Emil, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1898),

D.D. (Tübingen, honoris causa, 1877). Lutheran; b. at Augsburg, May 2, 1844; studied at Erlangen, Berlin, and Heidelberg, 1862–96; became privatis-docten at Leipzig 1896, professor extraordinary 1873; ordinary professor at Giessen, 1878. He has edited Theologische Literaturzeitung from its foundation in 1878 (with Harnack since 1881), and in the Präsidialjournal of the Deutsche theologische Gesellschaft, 1886–90; De controverxiispaschalihus secundo post Chr. nat. seculo exorzis, 1899; Lehrbuch der neuestenlauten. Zeitgeschichte, 1874, 2d edition under title, *Geschichte des jüdischen Volkes, 1880–

SCHULZ, Friedrich Wilhelm, Protestant theologian; b. at Friesack (Mark Brandenburg), Sept. 24, 1828; studied at Berlin, 1847–51; became privatis-docten there, 1853; professor extraordinary, 1856; and ordinary professor, 1864, at Breslau. He has written Das Deuteronomium erklärt, Berlin, 1889; Die Schöpfungsgeschichte nach Naturwissenschaft und Bibel, Gottha, 1895; and the comments on Ezra, Nehemiah, and Esther, in Lange's Commentary, Bielefeld, 1875.

SCHULZE, Augustus, Moravian; b. at Nowaves, near Potsdam, Prussia, Feb. 8, 1840; graduated at Moravian College at Niesky, 1861; became professor at Niesky, 1862; assistant principal, 1869; professor of exegesis and dogmatics in Moravian College and Theological Seminary at Bethlehem, Penn., 1870, president, 1885; also editor of Der Brüder Botschaffer, and a member of the "Provincial Elders' Conference" of the American Moravian Church, 1891. He has published pamphlets, etc.

SCHULZE, Ludwig Theodor, Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1859), Protestant theologian; b. at Brandenburg, 1848; De mysteriis Gentium (demo. Theol. 1874), Professor extraordinary of theology in the University of Berlin, 1870; principal, 1879; professor of theology at Greifswald, 1884. He is the author of Die Katakomben von 8 Genaro dei Poveri in Neapel, Jena, 1879; Archäologische Studien über altchristliche Monumene, Vienna, 1880; Die Katakomben, ihre Geschichte und ihre Monumene, Leipzig, 1882.
SCOTT. 195

SCOTT, Very Rev. Robert, D.D. (Oxford, 1854), Church of England; b. at Bondleigh, Devonshire, Jan. 26, 1811; student of Christ Church, Oxford, 1830; was Craven scholar, 1830; Ireland scholar and B.A. (first class honors), 1833; Lecturer, 1834; M.A. (Balliol College), 1836; Denyer theological essayist, 1838; B.D., 1854. He was fellow and tutor of Balliol College, 1835-40; rector of Duloe, Cornwall, 1840-50; prebendary of Exeter Cathedral, 1845-56; rector of S. Lutwin, 1856-64, and of the Great Council. Besides numerous sermons and essays, he has published Die Glaubenslehre der evangelisch-reformirten Kirche, aus den Quellen, Zürich, 1844-47, 2 vols.; Homilek der evangelisch-protestantischen Kirche, Leipzig, 1849; Die protestant Centralblatts für ihre Entwicklung in der reformirten Kirche, Zürich, 1854-58, 2 parts; Die christliche Glaubenslehre nach protestantischen Grundzügen dargestellt, Leipzig, 1858-72, 2 vols., 2nd ed. 1877; Pastorallheologie, 1875; Nach Rechts und nach Lichts. Besprechungen über Zeichen d. Zeit, 1878; Die Zukunft der Religion, 1879; Zeinit's Belebung nach Luther, Zürich, 1884.

SCOTT, Hugh McDonald, Congregationalist; b. at Guyborough, N.S., March 31, 1848; graduated at Dalhousie College, Halifax, 1870, and B.D. at Edinburgh 1873; Presbyterian pastor at Mergimish, N.S., 1874-78; studied theology in Germany, 1875-81; has been since 1881 professor of ecclesiastical history in Chicago Congregational Theological Seminary. He has contributed to Current Discussions in Theology (department of history), Chicago, vols. i. and ii., 1888 and 1884.

SCOTT, John, D.D. (Washington College, Washington, Penn., 1860), Methodist-Protestant; b. in Washington County, Penn., Oct. 27, 1820; educated in the common schools, and afterwards privately; joined the Pittsburg Conference of the Methodist-Protestant Church in 1842, and was president of it 1858, 1873; has been a member of every General Conference, with perhaps two exceptions, since 1844, and president of the Sunday-school publications of the denomination. He is the author of Pulpit Echoes, or Brief Miscellaneous Discourses, Cincinnati, 1875; The Land of Sojourn, or Sketches of Patriarchal Life and Times, Pittsburg, 1880.

SCOTT, Leonard, D.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1871), Moravian bishop; b. at Halle, Saxony, Dec. 4, 1814; ordained at the Moravian Theological Seminary there, 1844; studied at Berlin, 1845; pastor at Canal Dover, O., 1850; Lebanon, Penn., 1851-53; Philadelphia (First Church), 1853-60; Lititz, Penn., 1850-54; and Bethlehem, Penn., 1854-73; consecrated bishop, 1863; president of the synodical board—i.e., the governing board—of the American Province of the Unitas Fratrum, and of the theological seminary. He belongs to a family that for more than a hundred years has furnished ministers in an unbroken line to the American branch of the Moravian Church, and is a great-grandson of Count Zinzendorf. He is the author of The Moravian Manual, Philadelphia, 1859, 2d ed. Bethlehem, 1869; The Moravian Episcopate, Bethlehem, 1865, 2d ed. London, 1874; The Life and Times of David Zeisberger, Philadelphia, 1870, Some of the Fathers of the Moravian Church, Philadelphia, 1881; The History of the Unitas Fratrum, Bethlehem, 1885.

SCHWEIZER, Alexander, D.D., Reformed theologian; b. at Murten, March 14, 1808; studied at Zürich and Berlin; became professor of practical theology at Zürich 1836, and in 1845 also pastor. He is a member of the church and school council, and of the Great Council. Besides numerous sermons and essays, he has published Die Glaubenslehre der evangelisch-reformirten Kirche, aus den Quellen, Zürich, 1844-47, 2 vols.; Homilek der evangelisch-protestantischen Kirche, Leipzig, 1848; Die protestant Centralblatts für ihre Entwicklung innerhalb der reformirten Kirche, Zürich, 1854-58, 2 parts; Die christliche Glaubenslehre nach protestantischen Grundzügen dargestellt, Leipzig, 1858-72, 2 vols., 2nd ed. 1877; Pastorallheologie, 1875; Nach Rechts und nach Lichts. Besprechungen über Zeichen d. Zeit, 1878; Die Zukunft der Religion, 1879; Zeinit's Belebung nach Luther, Zürich, 1884.

SCHWEIZER, Alexander, D.D., Reformed theologian; b. at Murten, March 14, 1808; studied at Zürich and Berlin; became professor of practical theology at Zürich 1836, and in 1845 also pastor. He is a member of the church and school council, and of the Great Council. Besides numerous sermons and essays, he has published Die Glaubenslehre der evangelisch-reformirten Kirche, aus den Quellen, Zürich, 1844-47, 2 vols.; Homilek der evangelisch-protestantischen Kirche, Leipzig, 1848; Die protestant Centralblatts für ihre Entwicklung innerhalb der reformirten Kirche, Zürich, 1854-58, 2 parts; Die christliche Glaubenslehre nach protestantischen Grundzügen dargestellt, Leipzig, 1858-72, 2 vols., 2nd ed. 1877; Pastorallheologie, 1875; Nach Rechts und nach Lichts. Besprechungen über Zeichen d. Zeit, 1878; Die Zukunft der Religion, 1879; Zeinit's Belebung nach Luther, Zürich, 1884.

SCHWEIZER, Edward, Congregationalist; b. at Berlin, Germany, 1808; at the Moravian Theological Seminary there, 1844; studied at Berlin, 1845; pastor at Canal Dover, O., 1850; Lebanon, Penn., 1851-53; Philadelphia (First Church), 1853-60; Lititz, Penn., 1850-54; and Bethlehem, Penn., 1854-73; consecrated bishop, 1863; president of the synodical board—i.e., the governing board—of the American Province of the Unitas Fratrum, and of the theological seminary. He belongs to a family that for more than a hundred years has furnished ministers in an unbroken line to the American branch of the Moravian Church, and is a great-grandson of Count Zinzendorf. He is the author of The Moravian Manual, Philadelphia, 1859, 2d ed. Bethlehem, 1869; The Moravian Episcopate, Bethlehem, 1865, 2d ed. London, 1874; The Life and Times of David Zeisberger, Philadelphia, 1870, Some of the Fathers of the Moravian Church, Philadelphia, 1881; The History of the Unitas Fratrum, Bethlehem, 1885.
SEEBERG, Reinhold, Lutheran theologian; member of the N.T. Revision Company. Author of _Touloes Sermons_, 1851; _Universiteit Sermons_, 1860; commentary on _Epsis. of St. James_, in Bible (Speaker's Commentary), 1882; and, with Dean Liddell, of _A Greek-English Lexicon_, 1843, 7th ed. 1883.

SCOLLER, James Brown, D.D. (Muskingum College, New Concord, O., 1880), United Presbyterian; b. near Newville, Cumberland County, Penn., July 12, 1820; graduated at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1839, and at the Associate Reformed Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1842; was pastor of United Presbyterian Churches in Philadelphia (fourth), Penn., 1844-46; Cuylerville, N.Y., 1847-52; Argyle, N.Y., 1852-62; R.A. A. the City Academy, Allegany, Penn., 1892-93. He has since 1863 lived as an invalid at Newville. He is the author of _Forty Letters from Abroad, principally Italy and Egypt_, published in _The Christian Instructor_, New-York City, Jan. 25, 1837; _History of the Presbyterian Church of Argyle (U. P.)_, 1830; _A Manual of the United Presbyterian Church, 1861; Calvinism: its History and Influence_, 1885 (pp. 29); a number of pamphlets, lectures, and sermons, and a large amount of miscellaneous matter published in the columns of _The Christian Instructor_, _The United Presbyterian_, and _The Evangelical Repository_, since 1844.

SCRIMGER, John, Canadian Presbyterian; b. at Galt, Ontario, Can., Feb. 10, 1849; graduated at the University of Toronto, B.A. 1869, M.A. 1871, and at Knox College, Toronto, 1873; was pastor of St. Joseph-street Presbyterian Church, Montreal, 1873, and lecturer on exegesis in the Presbyterian College, Montreal, 1874-82; since 1882 he has been professor there of the same. Since 1873 he has been member of the General Assembly's board of French evangelization; is convener of General Assembly's committee on religious instruction in the public schools of the Province of Quebec, and of the General Assembly's committee on co-operation with other Protestant churches in sparsely settled districts.

SCUDDER, Henry Martyn, M.D. (University of the City of New York, 1853), D.D. (Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1859), Congregationalist; b. at Panditeripo, Jaffna District, Island of Ceylon, Feb. 6, 1822; studied at New York University and Williams College; graduated at the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, Ala., 1840, and at Union Theological Seminary 1843; was a foreign missionary under American Board at Madras, India, 1844-51, and at Arcot, India, 1851-63; resigned on account of ill-health; was pastor of the Grand-street Reformed Church, Jersey City, N.J., for six months, 1884-85; of the Howard Presbyterian Church, San Francisco, Cal., 1885-71; pastor of the Church of St. Andrew's, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1871-82; since has been pastor of Plymouth Congregational Church, Chicago, Ill.

SEABURY, William Jones, D.D. (Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1876; General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1885), Episcopalian; b. in New York City, Jan. 26, 1837; graduated there at Columbia College, 1856; admitted to the bar, 1859; graduated from General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1866; rector of the Church of the Annunciation, New York, since 1868; in 1873 became professor of ecclesiastical polity and law in the General Theological Seminary. He edited Dr. Samuel Seabury's _Memoirs_, New York, 1873, and _Discourses on the Nature and Work of the Holy Spirit_, 1874; and, besides occasional pamphlets, has published _Suggestions in Aid of Devotion and Goodliness_, 1878.

SEEBERG, Reinhold, Lutheran theologian; b. at Pernau, Livonia, 1859; studied at Dorpat, 1878-82 and at Erlangen; became privat-dozent of theology at Dorpat, 1884; _atamdisiger-dozent_, 1885; since 1884, second pastor of the University Church. He is the author of _Der Begriff der christlichen Kirche_, vol. 1., Erlangen, 1885; _Vom Lebensideal_ (lecture), Dorpat, 1888.
SEELEY, John Robert, M.A., layman; b. in London, Eng., in 1834; graduated at Cambridge, B.A. (first-class in classical tripos), 1857, and was senior chancellor's medallist; became fellow of Christ's College, 1858; a master in Christ's College, 1863; professor of modern history at Cambridge, 1869. He is the author of Ecclesiastical Survey, 1880, 2d ed., 1885; The Expansion of England, 1883; A Short History of Napoleon the First, 1886.

SEELYE, Julius Hawley, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1862), LL.D. (Columbia College, New York-City, 1870), Congregationalist; b. at Bethel, Conn., Sept. 14, 1824; graduated from Amherst (Mass.) College 1849, and from Auburn Theological Seminary (Presbyterian), N.Y., 1852; became professor of Oriental languages and metaphysics, Amherst College, 1858; member of Congress, 1875; president of Amherst College, 1877. He is the author of a translation of Schweger's History of Philosophy, New York, 1859; The Way, the Truth, and the Life, Lectures to Educated Hindus, Bombay and Boston, 1875; Christian Missions, New York, 1876; and数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数數数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数數数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数数<numerordoiocenononoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoanoano ano professor of history at Munich, 1846; deposed and expelled from the city 1849 for his political opinions; re-instated, 1850; retired, 1867. He has been prominent in politics. He is the author of Das Leben Jesu, Regensburg, 1842—46, 5 vols., 2d ed. 1853—62, 6 vols.; Das Heidenthum und dessen Belebung für das Christenthum, 1853, 3 parts; Jerusalem und das Heilige Land, Schaffhausen, 1862—64; History of the Jews, 2d ed. 1872—74; Geschichte Jesu mit ihrer weltgeschichtlichen Beglaubigung, 1864; Geschichte des Apostel vom Tod Jesu bis zur Zestörung Jerusalem's, 1865, 2d ed. 1869; Kritische Reformationsbeginnend with der Revision des Bibelkanons, Munich, 1870; Das Hebräer Evangelium, 1870; Deutschland und der Vatikan, 1872; Gottes u. seine Zeitgenossen, Nördlingen, 1877; Meerfahrt nach Tyros zur Ausgrabung der Kathedrale mit Barbarostas Grab, 1878.

SERVICE, John, D.D. (Glasgow, 1877), Church of Scotland; b. at Campsie, Feb. 28, 1833; d. in Glasgow, March 15, 1884. He studied at the University of Glasgow irregularly from 1838 to 1862, but did not take a degree; was sub-editor of MacKenzie's Imperial Dictionary of Universal Biography, under P. E. Dow; married in 1859; became minister at Hamilton 1862, and there remained for ten months, when he resigned on account of ill-health, and went to Melbourne, Australia, where he spent two years (1864—66), leaving it for Hobart Town, Tasmania, where he was minister four years (1866—70). In both these colonial charges he exercised a considerable influence. In 1870 he returned home, and in 1872 was appointed to the parish of Inch, Perthshire, which he left in 1879 for Hyndland Established Church, Glasgow, of which he was incumbent when he died. His first literary work of mark was a novel, known as Novantia when it was published in Good Words, and afterwards as Lady Hetty; London, 1875, 3 vols. It is full of interesting pictures of Scotch village and rural life, in vivid contrast with wider colonial experiences. The hero is a Scotch clergyman; and the charm of the book lies, not so much in its plot, as in the fresh views of life under the varied conditions which had fallen to the author's lot. His volume Salvation and Reunion and The Hesperides (1876, 4th ed. 1885) gave him at once a foremost place among the leaders of what is known as the "Broad Church" in Scotland. Occasional magazine articles, journalistic contributions, and sermons appeared from his pen from time to time; but Salvation, here and elsewhere, has only been followed by two posthumous volumes,—Sermons (1884) and Prayers (1885).—In both of which there is the same note of vigorous unconventionalism of opinion, and of deep spiritual life, which has arrested attention in his previous volumes. His personal influence was one element of his power, and the secret of its charm is easily understood from his books.

SEWALL, John Smith, D.D. (Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1878), Congregationalist; b. at Newcastle, Me., March 20, 1830; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1853; was connected with the New York, Boston and Canada railways, and in Commodore Perry's expedition (1853—54), 1850—54; graduated at Bangor (Me.) Theological Seminary, 1858; pastor at Wenham, Mass., 1859—67: professor of rhetoric and oratory at Bowdoin College, 1867—75; and since 1875 has been professor of sacred rhetoric and oratory in Bangor Theological Seminary. He has contributed to various periodicals.

SEYERLEN, Karl Rudolf, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1854), D.D. (h. n., Jena, 1873), Protestant theologian; b. at Stuttgart, Nov. 18, 1831; studied at Tübingen, 1849—53; was curate at Giengen, 1854—55; studied the classics and philosophy at Paris, 1853—56; teacher of religion in Ulm Gymnasium, 1857—59; repetent at Tübingen, 1859—61; diakonus at Crailsheim 1862—69, at Tübingen 1869—72; archdeacon there, 1872—75; became ordinary professor of practical and systematic theology at Jena, 1875. In theology he belongs to the school of Baur, in philosophy to that of Friedrich Rohmer. He is the author of Aevicebron, de materia univcrsali (Fons Virtus), Ein Beiritt zur Geschichte der Philosophie des Mittelalters (in Baur and Zeller's Theologische Jahrbiicher, 1856—57); Entstehung und Nutzen der Inquisitions in Rom, Tübingen, 1874; Ueber Bedeutung und Aufgabe der Predigt der Gegenwart (Antrittrede an Jens), 1870; Der christliche Cultus im apostolischen Zeitalter (in Bassermann's Zeitschrift für praktische Theologie, 1881); Das System der praktischen Theologie in seinen Grundzügen (d. 1883); editor of Johann Caspar Bluntschi (autobiography), Nördlingen, 1881, 3 vols.; Friedrich Rohmer's Wissenschaft vom Menschen, 1885, 2 vols.; author of numerous articles upon church polity and church law in the Protestantische Kirchenzeitung, Berlin, 1880—83.

SEYMOUR, Right Rev. George Franklin, S.T.D. (Racine College, Wis., 1867). L.L.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1878), Episcopal, bishop of Springfield, Ill.; b. in New-York City, Jan. 5, 1829; graduated head of his class at Columbia College, New-York City, 1850; and from the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1854; was founder and first warden of St. Stephen's College, Annandale, N.Y., 1855—61; rector of St. Mary's Church, Manhattanville, 1861—62; of Christ Church, Hudson, N.Y., 1862—63; of St. John's, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1863—67; professor of ecclesiastical history in the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1865—79; dean of the same, 1870—79; consecrated first bishop of Springfield, Ill., June 11, 1875. In 1888 he was chosen by the clergy of Missouri severa times as their bishop, and was elected bishop of Illinois in 1874, and twice bishop of Springfield in 1878 and 1879. He supervised the Greek text, and translated a portion never before rendered into English, of Fulton's Index Canonum, New York, 1871; Introduction to Papal Claims, 1882; many sermons, addresses, essays, and charges.

SHAFTESBURY, the Right Hon. Anthony Ashley-Cooper, Seventh Earl of, K.G., D.C.L. (Oxford, 1841), Church of England, layman; b. in London, April 28, 1801; d. at Folkestone, Oct. 1, 1885. He was educated at Christ Church, Oxford; graduated B.A. (first-class in classics) 1822, M.A. 1822; sat as Lord Ashley in the House of Commons, as member for Woodstock 1822—30, for Dorchester 1832—41, and for Northampton 1841—48. Bath 1847—51, when he succeeded his father in the peerage, and took his seat in the House of Lords. He supported the governments of Liverpool and Canning; was commissioner of the board of control.
under Wellington; was Lord of the Admiralty in Sir Robert Peel's administration of 1834—35, but declined to join it in 1841 because Peel would not support the Ten-hours Bill. It was not, however, as a statesman and politician that Lord Shaftesbury distinguished himself, but as a leader in the movement for the relief and elevation of the working-classes, among whom he was a great favorite; visiting them in their homes, and planning measures for their relief and elevation by reducing their hours of labor, improving their workshops, factories, and lodging-houses, caring for their children, and guarding them against vice. He was a consistent opponent of slavery, and a firm friend of the United States during the late civil war. In religious affairs he was a pronounced Evangelical, and the leader of that party in the Church of England. He was called upon to preside at innumerable meetings in Exeter Hall, and elsewhere, on behalf of all sorts of enterprises. His name was synonymous with every virtue, and a household word in Great Britain. He was president of many religious and philanthropic societies. Among them may be mentioned, The Church Pastoral Aid Society, The Surgical Aid Society, Field Lane Refuge and Ragged Schools for the Destitute and Homeless Poor, Ragged-school Union, The Victoria Institute, Society for the Conversion of the Jews, Society for the Relief of Persecuted Jews, The British and Foreign Bible Society. His funeral was held on Thursday, Oct. 8, in Westminster Abbey, and was attended by enormous crowds. Thousands stood outside in the drenching rain, unable to enter. Delegations came from the different societies which owed to him their prosperity, if not their existence. Noticeable among them was that of the Shoe-black Brigade. Upon his coffin the wreath from the Crown Princess of Germany lay side by side with one from the poor flower-girls of London. He was buried at the family seat of St. Giles, Dorsetshire.

SHAW, William Isaac, Methodist; b. at Kingston, Can., April 6, 1841; graduated at Victoria University, King's College, Toronto, B.A. 1862; at McGill University, Montreal, M.A. 1880; entered the ministry of the Wesleyan Methodist Church of Canada 1884, and after thirteen years' pastoral work became (1877) professor of exegesis and church history in the Wesleyan Theological College, Montreal. He is the author of Discussion on Retribution, Toronto, 1884; and various contributions to reviews.

SHELDON, Henry Clay, Methodist; b. at Martinsburg, N.Y., March 12, 1845; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1867, and at the Theological School of Boston University, Mass., 1871; studied at Leipzig, 1874—75; since 1875 has been professor of historical theology in Boston University. He is anti-Romish, but not anti-Catholic, with a leaning to evangelical Arminianism, as opposed both to strict Calvinism and to Liberalism. He is the author of History of Christian Doctrine, New York, 1888, 2 vols.

SHEPHERD, Thomas James, D.D. (Columbia College, now Columbian University, Washington, D.C., 1863), Presbyterian; b. in the vicinity of Berryville, Clarke County, Va., April 25, 1818; graduated at Columbian College, Washington, D.C., 1839, and at the Union Theological Seminary, New York City, 1843; was pastor of the Harmony Presbyterian Church, Lisbon, Md., 1843—52; of the First Presbyterian Church, Northern Liberties, Philadelphia, Penn., 1852—51, since pastor emeritus. He was associate editor of the American Presbyterian (new school newspaper), Philadelphia, 1856—61. He is the author of History of First Presbyterian Church, Northern Liberties, Philadelphia, Philadelphia, 1894, new ed. (supplemented by an account of his pastorates) 1881; Social Hymn and Tune Book, 1865; Westminster Bible Dictionary, 1880, 2d ed. 1885.

SHERATON, James Paterson, D.D. (Queen's University, Ontario, Can., 1889), Episcopal Church in Canada; b. at St. John, N.B., Nov. 29, 1841; graduated at the University of New Brunswick, Fredericton, 1862; studied theology in the University of King's College, Windsor, N.S., privately with the bishop of Fredericton; was ordained deacon 1864, priest 1865; became rector of Shediac, N.B., 1865; of Pictou, N.S., 1871; principal and professor of exegetical and systematic theology in Wycliffe College, Toronto, 1877. He became a member of the senate of the University of Toronto in 1885. He was editor of The Evangelical Churchman from 1877—82, since 1882 principal editorial contributor. He is the author of numerous essays on education, the church, the ministry, Christian unity, etc.

SHERWOOD, James Manning, Presbyterian; b. at Fishkill, N.Y., Sept. 29, 1845; educated mainly through private tutors; studied theology under Rev. George Armstrong at Fishkill, N.Y.; was pastor at New Windsor on the Hudson, N.Y., 1865—40; Mendon, N.Y., 1840—45; Bloomfield, N.J., 1852—56; editor of National Preacher and Biblical Repository, New York, 1848—51; Eclectic Magazine, 1864—71; founder and editor of Hours at Home (monthly), 1865—69; editor Presbyterian Review, 1863—71; Presbyterian Quarterly and Princeton Review, 1877—78; Homiletic Review, since Sep-SIEFFERT.

200

SHIELDS.

Charles Woodruff, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1861), LL.D. (Columbia University, Washington, D.C., 1877), Presbyterian; b. at New Albany, Ind., April 4, 1825; graduated at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1844, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, New Jersey, 1847; became pastor at Hempstead, Long Island, N.Y., 1849; president of Second Church, Philadelphia, Penn., 1856; professor of harmony and science and revealed religion in the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1860; he projected the first such college professorship. His theological standpoint is Presbyterian, but (1) advocating the restoration of the Presbyterian Prayer Book of 1661 for optional use by any ministers or congregations which desire a liturgy; and (2) also advocating church unity on a liturgical basis, with the hope of an ultimate organic re-union of Presbyterianism with Congregationalism and Episcopacy in the American Protestant Catholic Church of the future. He has published Philosophia ulturna, Philadelphia, 1861; The Book of Common Prayer as amended by the Presbyterian Divines of 1661, 2d ed. New York, 1864; Liturgia expurgata, Philadelphia, 1864, 3d ed. New York, 1884; The Final Philosophy as issuing from the Harmony of Science and Religion, New York, 1877, 2d ed. 1879; Order of the Sciences, 1884.

SHIPP, Albert Micajah, B.D. (Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va., 1859), LL.D. (University of North Carolina, 1865), Southern Methodist; b. in Stanly County, N.C., January 28, 1831; graduated at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, 1850; entered the ministry; became president of Greenborough Female College, N.C., 1847; professor of history and French in University of North Carolina, 1849; president of Wofford College, Spartanburg Court-House, S.C., 1859; professor of exegetical and Biblical theology in Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., 1874; and dean of the theological faculty, and vice-chancellor of the university, 1882. He originated the policy of biblical chairs for teaching the Bible to the whole body of students in all Methodist institutions of learning, and was one of the first advocates of biblical institutes for the proper education of preachers for the Methodist-Episcopal Church South. He wrote The History of Methodism in South Carolina, Nashville, Tenn., 1892, 2d ed. 1894.

SHONE, Right Rev. Samuel, lord bishop of Kilmore, Elphin, and Ardagh, Church of Ireland, b. in Ireland about the year 1822; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; graduated B.A. and divinity testimonium (second-class) 1843, M.A. 1857; ordained deacon 1843, priest 1844; became curate of Rathlin Island, County Antrim, 1849; of St. John's Sligo, County Sligo, 1846; incumbent of Calry, County Sligo, 1856; rector of Urney and Annegelliff, County Cavan, 1866; bishop, 1884.

SHORE, Thomas Teignmouth, F.R.G.S., Church of England; b. in Dublin, Ireland, Dec. 28, 1841; graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, B.A. 1863, M.A. 1864; became curate of Devonport, 1865; became curate at Chelsea 1865, and at Kensingtion 1867; vicar of St. Mildred's, Lee, 1870; incumbent of Berkeley Chapel, Mayfair, London, 1873. He was a train chaplain to the Queen from 1878 to 1881, and since has been chaplain in ordinary. He was the religious instructor of the three daughters of the Prince of Wales, and prepared them for confirmation. [He is a noted preacher to children.] He is a moderate High Churchman. He is the author of Some Difficulties of Belief, London, 1878, 4th ed. 1884; The Life of the World to come, and other Subjects, 1876; On the First Epistle to the Corinthians, London, 1870, 5th ed. 1885 (in Bishop Ellicott's commentary); "St. George for England," and other Sermons preached to Children, 1882, 5th ed. 1885; and Shortened Church Services as used at Children's Services, 1883, 2d ed. 1885; Prayer (a Helpful Manual for Believers), 1886; since 1896 editor of Helps to Belief (a series).

SHUEY, William John, D.D. (Hartsville University, Ind., 1880, but declined), United Brethren in Christ; b. at Miamisburg, O., Feb. 9, 1827; educated in the common schools and at the academy, Springfield, O.; was pastor at Lewisburg, Ohio, 1849-51, Cincinnati 1851-55; missionary to the West Coast of Africa, between Liberia and Sierra Leone, 1855; pastor at Cincinnati, O., 1855-58; Dayton, O., 1860-62; presiding elder, 1862-64; became general manager of the United Brethren in Christ Publishing House at Dayton, O., 1864. He has been a member of the United Brethren Board of Missions since 1861, and member of six General Conferences.

SIEFFERT, Friedrich Anton Emil, Protestant Reformer; b. at Königberg, Prussia, Dec. 24, 1843; studied at Königberg, Halle, and Berlin; became privat-dozent at Bonn 1871, and professor extraordinary 1873; ordinary professor at Erlangen (Reformed theology), 1878. He is the author of Nonnulla ad apocryph. libri Henochi.
SIEGFRIED, Carl (Gustav Adolf), Ph.D. (Halle, 1859), D.D. (h. m. Jena, 1875), Protestant theologian; b. at Magdeburg, Jan. 22, 1830; studied philology and theology at Halle and Bonn, 1849-53; became teacher in gymnasium at Magdeburg 1857, and at Guben 1860; professor and second minister at Pforta, 1863; ordinary professor of theology at Jena, 1875; appointed ecclesiastical councillor, 1885. He is a Knight of the Red Eagle, fourth class. He is the author of De inscriptione Geribitana (Program), Magdeburg, 1863; Die hebraischen Worterklarungen des Philo und die Spuren ihrer Einwirkung auf die Kirchenbriefe, 1863; Spinoza als Kritiker und Ausleger des Alten Testaments, Berlin, 1867; Philo von Alexandrien als Ausleger des A. T., Jena, 1875; (with H. Gezer) Eusebius canonum epist. et chronicer, Leipzig, 1894; (with H. L. Strack) Lehrbuch des juedischen Sprachverstandniss, 1874; Literatur (wrote the grammar of the new Hebrew), Carlsluhr, 1884; since 1881 has furnished the Old Testament division in the Theologischer Jahresbericht (Punjur's, now edited by Lipius), and has written numerous articles upon Old-Testament subjects.

SIMPSON, David Worthington, Ph.D. (Tubingen, 1863), Congregationalist; b. at Hazelgrove, Cheshire, Eng., April 28, 1830; educated in the Lancashire Independent College, Manchester, 1848-54, and at Halle, Germany, 1854-55 and 1857-58; was pastor at Rosyton, Hertfordshire, for nine months of 1856; travelled on the Continent, 1857; was pastor at Rusholme, Manchester, 1858; returned to Germany for study, 1859; was agent of the British and Foreign Bible Society, 1863-69; professor of general theology and philosophy at Springfield College, Birmingham, 1869-84; since 1884 principal and professor of systematic theology and church history in Congregational Theological Hall, Edinburgh. He translated Hengstenberg's Commentary on Ecclesiastes, Edinburgh, 1860; (with W. L. Alexander) Donner's History of the Development of the Doctrine of the Person of Christ, Edinburgh, 1861-63, 3 vols., etc.; and is the author of The Bible an Outgrowth of Theocratic Life, Edinburgh, 1885, and articles in British Quarterly Review, Bibliotheca Sacra, Expositor, and other publications.

SIMPSON, Matthew, D.D., LL.D., bishop of the Methodist-Episcopal Church; b. at Cadiz, O., June 21, 1811; d. in Philadelphia, Penn., June 17, 1894. He was educated at Madison College (subsequently merged into Alleghany College, Meadville, Penn.), where he was tutor in 1829. He then studied medicine, and commenced its practice in 1833, but abandoned it in 1835, when he was ordained deacon by the Pittsburg Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in 1837 elder. He was vice-president and professor of theology, Alleghany College, 1837-47; president of Indiana Asbury University, Greens- castle, Ind., 1839-48; editor of The Western Christian Advocate, Cincinnati, O., 1848-52; bishop, 1852 till death. He was delegate of the General Conference to the Irish and British Conference 1857, and to the Evangelical Alliance Conference, Berlin, the same year; and during this year and next travelled over Europe and the East. He revisited Europe again officially in 1870, 1875, and 1881. He changed his residence in 1859 from Pittsburg, Penn., to Evanston, Ill., and was president of the Garrett Biblical Institute in the latter place. He visited Mexico in 1874. As bishop he held conferences in all the States and in most of the Territories. He was the acknowledged prince of Methodist preachers. By his eloquent addresses he did good service to the Union cause during the Civil War. He enjoyed the personal friendship of President Lincoln. He was the author of Hundred Years of Methodism, New York, 1876; Cyclopedia of Methodism, Philadelphia, 1878, 5th rev. ed. 1892; Lectures on Preaching, New York, 1878; Sermons (posthumous, ed. by Rev. Dr. G. R. Crooks, 1885).

SKINNER, Thomas Harvey, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1867), Presbyterian; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., Oct. 6, 1820; graduated at the University of the City of New York, 1840, and Union Theological Seminary, 1843; was (Presbyterian) pastor at Patterson, N.J., 1843-46; New York City, 1846-55; Honesdale, Penn., 1856-59; (Reformed) Stapleton, Staten Island, N.Y., 1859-68; (Presbyterian) Fort Wayne, Ind., 1868-71; Cincinnati, O., 1871-81; has been professor of didactic and polemic theology, North-western (now McCormick) Theological Seminary, Chicago, Ill., since 1881.

SLOANE, James Renwick Wilson, D.D. (Westminster College, New Wilmington, Penn., 1869), Reformed Presbyterian; b. at Topham, Orange County, Vt., May 29, 1833; d. at Allegheny, Saturday, March 6, 1886. He graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1847; was president of Richmond College, Richmond, Jefferson County, O., 1848-50, of Geneva College, Geneva, O., 1851-56; pastor in New-York City, 1856-68; and since was professor of systematic theology and homiletics in Allegheny Theological Seminary, Penn. He published various sermons, etc.
SMEND, Rudolf, Ph.D. (Bonn, 1874), Lic. Theol. (Halle, 1873), D.D. (Giessen, 1885), Swiss theologian; b. at Lengerich, Westphalia, Germany, Nov. 5, 1851; educated at Göttingen, Berlin, and Bonn; became privat-docent of theology at Halle, 1875; professor extraordinary at Basel, 1880; ordinary professor of theology there, 1881. He is the author of Der Prophet Ezechiel erklärt, Leipzig, 1880.

SMITH, Benjamin Mosby, D.D., LL.D. (Hampton-Sidney College, Prince Edward County, Va., 1854 and 1880, respectively), Presbyterian (Southern Church); b. at Montrose, Powhatan County, Va., June 30, 1811; graduated at Hampton-Sidney College. Prince Edward County, Va., 1829, and at the Union Theological Seminary, Va., 1831; tutor there, 1834—40; pastor at Danville, Va., 1840—45; at Tinkling Spring and Waynesborough, 1840—45; and at Staunton, 1845—54; and ever since has been professor of Oriental and biblical literature in Union Seminary. From 1858 to 1874 he was with Dr. Dabney pastor of the Hampton-Sidney College Church. Since 1842 he has been trustee of Washington College (now Washington and Lee University). He has published A Commentary on the Psalms and Proverbs, Glasgow, Scotland, 1859, 3d ed. Knoxville, Tenn., 1883; Family Religion, the Oberlin Theological Seminary, Oberlin, O., 1863; was tutor in Latin and Greek in Oberlin College, O., 1862—64; instructor in mathematics and metaphysics, Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass. (where he had fitted for college, 1864—65); professor of the Latin language and literature, Oberlin College, 1866—70; professor of ecclesiastical history and positive institutions, and dean of the faculty, Oberlin Theological Seminary, 1870—84; lecturer on modern history, Oberlin College, 1875—84; lecturer on history, Lake Erie Female Seminary, Painesville, O., 1874—84; acting pastor Second Congregational Church, Oberlin, O., 1874—75, 1882—84; editor of Bibliotheca Sacra, Oberlin, O., 1883—84; since associate editor; foreign secretary A.B.C.F.M., Boston, Mass., since 1884. He was president of the board of education, Oberlin, O., 1871—84. His theological standpoint is that of New-England theology; holds fast to the historic faith of Christendom, with hospitality to all, the author of Lectures in Church History and the History of Doctrine, from the beginning of the Christian Era to 1648, Oberlin, O., 1881; Lectures on Modern History, 1881 (both privately printed); articles in Bibliotheca Sacra, New England, and religious journals, etc.

SMITH, Charles, Dr., Methodist; b. in Fayette County, Penn., Jan. 30, 1840; entered the ministry of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, 1859; was pastor until 1888; presiding elder, 1880—84; since May, 1884, has been editor of The Pittsburg Christian Advocate, Penn. In the autumn of 1884 he served one term in the Christian Commission in the Army of the Potomac.

SMITH, George Vance, Ph.D. (Tubingen, 1858), D.D. (Jena, 1873), Unitarian; b. at Portarlington, Ireland, June 13, 1816; educated in Manchester New College, York and Manchester, 1836—41; graduated B.A. at London University, 1841; was minister at Bradford, Yorkshire, 1841—43, Macclesfield, 1843—46; theological tutor in Manchester New College, Manchester and London, 1846—57; minister at York, 1858—65; at the Upper Chaple, Sheffield, 1865—70; at the United Church, Sheffield, 1870—75; at the North Chaple, Sheffield, 1875—77; since 1875 editor. He is the author of an essay, Systematic Benevolence, Montpelier, Vt., 1877.

SMITH, Charles Strong, Congregationalist; b. at Hardwick, Vt., July 24, 1824; graduated at the University of Vermont, at Burlington, 1848; taught academy at Craftsbury, Vt., 1848—50; studied for a year (1851) at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., but completed the course at East Windsor (now Hartford) Theological Institute, Conn., and graduated 1853; was pastor at New Preston, Conn., 1853—55; North Walton, N.Y., 1855—57; out of health five years; represented the town of Hardwick, Vt., in State legislature in 1853; since 1868 has been secretary of the Vermont Domestic Missionary Society, and written the annual reports; was associate editor of Vermont Quarterly, 1855—77; since 1855 editor. He is the author of an essay, Systematic Benevolence, Montpelier, Vt., 1877.

SMITH, Charles William, Methodist; b. in Fayette County, Penn., Jan. 30, 1840; entered the ministry of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, 1859; was pastor until 1888; presiding elder, 1880—84; since May, 1884, has been editor of The Pittsburg Christian Advocate, Penn. In the autumn of 1884 he served one term in the Christian Commission in the Army of the Potomac.

SMITH, George Vance, Ph.D. (Tubingen, 1858), D.D. (Jena, 1873), Unitarian; b. at Portarlington, Ireland, June 13, 1816; educated in Manchester New College, York and Manchester, 1836—41; graduated B.A. at London University, 1841; was minister at Bradford, Yorkshire, 1841—43, Macclesfield, 1843—46; theological tutor in Manchester New College, Manchester and London, 1846—57; minister at York, 1858—65; at the Upper Chaple, Sheffield, 1865—70; at the United Church, Sheffield, 1870—75; at the North Chaple, Sheffield, 1875—77; since 1875 editor. He is the author of an essay, Systematic Benevolence, Montpelier, Vt., 1877.

SMITH, Judson, D.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1877), Congregationalist; b. at TROY, O., Oct. 23, 1847; graduated at Amherst College, Mass., 1860, and at Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O., 1872; was student at Berlin (1873—74) and Leipzig (1874—77); instructor in Lane Theological Seminary, 1874—76; and since 1877 has been professor of Hebrew and Old Testament exegesis there.

SMITH, Justin Almerin, D.D. (Shurtleff College, Upper Alton, Ill., 1858), Baptist; b. at Tioonde-raga, N.Y., Dec. 29, 1819; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1843; became pastor at North Bennington, Vt., 1844; at Rochester, N.Y., 1849; editor of The Christian Times, now The Standard, Chicago, Ill., since 1869. From 1863 to 1868 he was pastor of the Indiana Avenue Baptist Church; was from 1877 to 1885 lecturer in Baptist Union Theological Seminary, Morgan Park, Chicago, of which institution he has been a trustee from its foundation. He was present at the opening of the Vatican Council, Dec. 6, 1869, and for some time afterwards. He is the author of Memoir of Nathaniel Coler, D.D., Chicago, 1873; Palmos, or the Kingdom and the Patience, 1874; Memoir of Rev. John Bates, Toronto, 1877; A Commentary on the Revelation, Philadelphia, 1884; The
SMITH, Samuel Francis, D.D. (Waterville College, New York, 1863), Episcopalian; b. in New York City, April 4, 1826; graduated from Columbia College, 1843, and from Theological Seminary, New York City, 1847; pastor (Congregational) at Brookline, Mass., 1851-58; at Newton Theological Institution, Mass., 1863; and has also been president of the university since 1878. Besides Value of the Study of ecclesiastical history in Andover Theological Seminary, 1863, and has also been president of the faculty since 1878. Besides Value of the Study

SMITH, Lucius Edwin, D.D. (Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1869), Baptist; b. at Williamstown, Mass., Jan. 29, 1822; graduated at Williams College, in his native town, 1843, and at Newton Theological Institution, Mass., 1857; was admitted to the bar, 1845; associate editor Hartford (Conn.) Daily Courant, 1847-48; editor Free-soil Advocate, Hartford, Conn., 1843; associate editor Boston Republican, 1849; was assistant Secretary of the American Baptist Missionary Union, editing the Baptist Missionary Magazine 1819-54; pastor at Groton, Mass., 1853-63; professor of rhetoric and pastoral theology, University of Leipzig, Penn., 1865-68; editor of The Baptist Quarterly, New York, 1867-69; literary editor of the New York Examiner, 1869-70; editor of The Watchman, Boston, Mass., 1871-73, and since associate to the head. He is the author of Heroes and Martyrs of Modern Missionary Enterprise, with an Historical Review of Earlier Missions, Boston, 1852 (some 10,000 copies sold); articles in Baptist Quarterly, Baptist Quarterly Review, Knickerbocker Magazine (1845-49), North American Review (1840), Bibliotheca Sacra (1880), McClintock and Strong's Cyclopedia, Encyclopaedia Americana (Philadelphia, 1886), etc.

SMITH, Matson Meier, S.T.D. (Columbia College, New York City, 1863), Baptist; b. in New York City, April 4, 1826; graduated from Columbia College, 1843, and from Theological Seminary, New York City, 1847; pastor (Congregational) at Brookline, Mass., 1851-58; at Bridgeport, Conn., 1853-63; rector (Episcopal) at Newark, N.J., 1866-71, and at Hartford, Conn., 1872-76, has been since 1876 professor of homiletics and pastoral theology in the divinity school of the Protestant-Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, Penn. He contributed many sermons during our civil war, and articles to the religious journals.

SMITH, Robert Payne. — See PAYNE-SMITH, Robert.

SMITH, Samuel Francis, D.D. (Waterville College, now Colby University, Waterville, Me., 1854), Baptist; b. in Boston, Mass., Oct. 21, 1808; educated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1829, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1832; was pastor of the First Baptist Church, Waterville, Me., 1834-42, and during the same period professor of modern languages in Waterville College; pastor of First Baptist Church, Newton, Mass., January, 1842, to July 1, 1854; editor of The Christian Review, Boston, January, 1842-48, and of the publications of the American Baptist Missionary Union, 1854-69.

He spent a year in Europe, from July, 1875, to July, 1876; also over two years in Europe and Asia, visiting missionary stations of various denominations, from September, 1880, to October, 1882. He resides at Newton Centre, Mass. He is the author of the national hymn, My country, 'tis of thee (written at Andover, Mass., in February, 1832, while a student in the theological seminary), and the missionary hymn, The morning light is breaking (in same year and place), and many others. He also included in Lowell Mason's Juvenile Lyre (Boston, 1832), the first book of children's music, were his transla-

SMITH, Egbert Coffin, D.D. (Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1868), Congregationalist; b. at Brunswick, Me., Aug. 24, 1829; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1848, and Bangor (Me.) Theological Seminary, 1853; became professor of rhetoric at Bowdoin College, 1850; of ecclesiastical history in Andover Theological Seminary, 1863; and has also been president of the faculty since 1878. Besides Value of the Study of Church History in Ministerial Education (lecture), Andover, 1874, pamphlet sermons, etc., he has since its foundation (1884) edited the Andover Review, and with Professor Ropes has published a translation of Uhlhorn's Conflict of Christianity with Heathenism, New York, 1879.

SMYTH, Samuel Phillips
Newman, D.D. (University of the City of New York, 1881); Congregationalist; b. at Brunswick, Me., June 25, 1849; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1863, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1867; was acting pastor of Harrison-street Chapel (now Pilgrim Church), Providence, R.I., 1868; in Europe, 1868-69; pastor of the First Church, Bangor, Me., 1870-75; of the First Presbyterian Church, Quincy, Ill., 1876-82; since of the First Congregational Church, New Haven, Conn. He is the author of The Religious Feeling: a Study for Faith, New York, 1877; Old Faiths in New Light, 1879; The Orthodoxy of To-day, 1881: The Reality of Faith (sermons), 1884.

SOUTHGATE, Right Rev. Horatio, S.T.D.
(Columbia College, New York, 1846); Episcopal priest, 1839; missionary in Constantinople, as delegate to the Oriental churches, 1840-44; consecrated Episcopal missionary bishop for the dominions and dependencies of the Sultan of Turkey, Oct., 1844; at Constantinople, 1844-50; resigned his jurisdiction, 1850; was rector of St. Luke's Church, Portland, Me., 1851-52; of the Church of the Advent, Boston, Mass., 1852-58; and of Zion Church, New-York City, 1859-72; retired, 1872; and has since lived at Ravenswood, Long Island, N.Y. He was elected bishop of California, 1850, and of Hayti 1870, but declined both elections. He is the author of Narrative of a Tour through Armenia, Kurdistan, Persia, and Mesopotamia, 1840-42; (republished in England); Narrative of a Visit to the Syrian (Jacobite) Church of Mesopotamia, 1844; A Treatise on the Antiquity, Doctrine, Ministry, and Worship of the Anglican Church (in Greek), Constantinople, 1849; Practical Directions for the Observance of Lent, New York, 1850; The War in the East, 1855 (republished in England); Parochial Sermons, 1860; The Cross above the Crescent, a Romance of Constantinople, Philadelphia, 1877.

SPAETH, Adolf, D.D. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1875); Lutheran (General Council); b. at ESSLINGEN, WÜrttemberg, Oct. 29, 1839; graduated at the University of Tübingen, 1861; was tutor in the family of the Duke of Argyle, 1863; collegiate pastor of St. Michael's and Zion's German Lutheran congregation, Philadelphia, 1864-67; and since 1867 has been pastor of St. Johannis' Church, Philadelphia; since 1872 professor at the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Philadelphia; and since 1876 president of the General Council of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in North America. He has published Brossamen von des Herrn Tische, Philadelphia, 1889; Die Evangelen des Kirchenjahres, 1870; Americanische Beleuchtung des americanischen Reisebilder des Pfarrers E. S. T. General Council of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in North America, 1885; Phebe, the Deaconess, 1885. He prepared the appendix to the American edition of Buchner's Concordantia, 1871; and edited the General Council's German Sunday-school Book 1875, and Church Book 1877.

SPALDING, Right Rev. John Franklin, D.D.
(Triinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1874); Episcopalian, missionary bishop of Colorado, with jurisdiction in New Mexico and Wyoming; b. at Belgrade, Me., Aug. 25, 1828; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1853, and at the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1857; was missionary at Old Town, Me., 1857-59; rector of St. George's Church, Lee, Mass., 1859-60; assistant minister at Grace Church, Providence, R.I., 1860, to December, 1861; rector of St. Paul's Church, Erie, Penn., April, 1862, to March 1, 1874; elected bishop, October, 1873; consecrated, Dec. 31, 1873. He is the author of Lay Cooperation (in Western Massachusetts), New York, 1860; Christianity and Modern Infidelity, an Essay, Erie, Penn., 1863; Manual of Mothers' Meetings, 1871: Hymns from the Hymnal, with Tunes and Notes, 1872: Congregationalism in the Church, an Essay, New York, 1875; The Cathedral and Cathedral System (a sermon), Denver, Col., 1880: Commemorative Address of Ten Years' Episcopal Work in Colorado, 1885; Episcopal charges, addresses, reports, review articles, tracts, etc.

SPALDING, Right Rev. John Lancaster, Roman Catholic; b. at Lebanon, Ky., June 2, 1840; studied at Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md., and at Cincinnati, O.; became secretary and chancellor of the diocese of Louisville, Ky., 1865; pastor of the congregation for colored Catholics, Louisville, 1869; bishop of Peoria, Ill., 1877. He is president of the Irish Catholic Colonization Society, and of the Roman Catholic State Temperance Union of Illinois. He is the author of Life of Archbishop Spalding of Baltimore, New York, 1872; Essays and Reviews, 1876; Religious Mission of the Irish People, 1880; Lectures and Discourses, 1882.

SPALDING, Right Rev. Martin John, D.D., Roman Catholic; b. in Marion County, Ky., May 23, 1810; d. at Baltimore, Md., Feb. 7, 1872. He graduated at St. Mary's College, Lebanon, Ky., 1828; studied theology, and completed his course in the Propaganda College in Rome, where he was ordained priest Aug. 13, 1834. He was pastor of the cathedral at Bardstown, Ky., 1834-58, 1841-48; president of St. Joseph's Theological Seminary, Bardstown, 1838-40; pastor of St. Peter's Church, Lexington, Ky., 1840-41; coadjutor bishop of Louisville, Ky., 1848-50; bishop, 1850-54; archbishop of Baltimore from 1854 till his death. He founded The Catholic Advocate, Louisville, in February, 1835, and was connected with it until 1858; The Louisville Guardian in 1858; was main promoter of the Catholic Publication Society and Catholic World, both New-York City. While coadjutor bishop, he established a colony of Trappist monks at Gethsemane, near Bardstown, Ky., and a house of Magdalen in connection with the Convent of the Good Shepherd. While bishop of Louisville he built a magnificent cathedral in that city. He was at the First Plenary Council of Baltimore, May, 1852, and successfully advocated the connection of the Church in the United States with the General Council. In November, 1852, he obtained in Belgium Xaverian Brothers for the parochial schools of Louisville, Ky., and...
SPENCER, Henry Donald Maurice, Church of England; b. in London in the year 1836; educated at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge; took Carus undergraduate university prize, 1862; B.A., 1864; first-class in the theological tripus, 1865; Carus and Schoefield university prize, 1865, 1866; M.A., 1868; ordained deacon 1863, priest 1866; became professor of English literature and modern languages, and Hebrew lecturer, at St. David's College, Lampeter, 1865; rector of St. Mary-de-Crypt, with All Saints and St. Owen, Gloucester, 1870; and principal of Gloucester College, 1875; resigned the two latter positions, and became vicar of St. Pancras and rural dean, 1877. In 1870 he was appointed examiner, chaplain to the bishop of Gloucester, and Bristol; in 1875 honorary canon of Gloucester, 1880; and has contributed to Bishop Spalding was the author of D'Aubigny's History of the Reformation reviewed, Baltimore, 1844, 2d ed. London, 1846, Dublin, 1848 (subsequently enlarged and re-issued as History of the Protestant Reformation in Germany and Switzerland, and in England, Ireland, Scotland, the Netherlands, France, and Northern Europe, Louisville, 1860, 2 vols., 5th ed. Baltimore, 1873); Sketches of the Early Catholic Missions in Kentucky, 1877-1887, Louisville, 1816; Lectures on the General Evidence of Catholicity, 1847, 6th ed. Baltimore, 1866; Life, Times, and Character of the Right Rev. B. J. Pieger, Louisville, 1832; Miscellaneous: comprising Reviews, Lectures, and Essays on Historical, Theological, and Miscellaneous Subjects, Louisville, 1855; London, 1855, 6th ed. Baltimore, 1866; Papal Infallibility, Baltimore, 1870; edited, with introduction and notes, Abbé J. E. Dana's, General History of the Catholic Church, New York, 1863-66, 4 vols.; and was a frequent contributor to religious periodicals.

SPENCER, Herbert; b. at Derby, Eng., April 27, 1820; began work as a civil engineer, 1837; but since 1850 has been a literary man, and has won recognition as the author of a system of philosophy, in which the doctrine of evolution is applied to the different departments of thought and life. He began the series with his First Principles, London, 1862; then came Principles of Biology, 1867; Principles of Psychology, 1872; Principles of Sociology, 1877; and since 1883: Principles of Morality, 1885; Ecclesiastical Institutions, 1885.

SPITTA, Friedrich (Adolph Wilhelm), Lic. Theol. (Leipzig, 1879), German theologian; b. at Wittingen, Hanover, Jan. 10, 1852; studied at Göttingen and Erlangen, 1871-75; became teacher in the high school at Hanover, 1876; inspector of the Tholuck convent at Hanle, 1877; assistant preacher at Bonn, 1879; pastor of Obercassal, near Bonn, 1881; and has also been since 1880 private docent of evangelical theology in Bonn University. He is the author of Der Brief des Julius Africannus an Aristides, Kristisch untersucht und hergestellt, Halle, 1877; Die liturgische Andacht am Luther Jubiläum, Halle, 1883; Der Knabe Jesus, eine biblische Geschichte und ihre apokryphischen Entstehungen, 1883; Luther und der evangelische Gottesdienst, 1884; Haendel und Bach, zwei Freigemeinden, Bonn, 1885; Der zweite Brief des Petrus und der Brief des Judas. Eine geschichtliche Untersuchung, Halle, 1885; Die Passionen nach den vier Evangelisten von Heinrich Schütz, 1886; Heinrich Schütz, sein Leben und seine Kunst, 1886; numerous articles, popular and scientific, in various periodicals.

SPRECHER, Samuel, D.D. (Washington College, Penn., 1850), L.L.D. (Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, 1874), Lutheran (General Synod); b. near Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 28, 1810; studied in Pennsylvania College and Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, Penn., 1830-36; was pastor at Harrisburg, Penn., Martinsburg, Va., and Chambersburg, Penn., 1836-49; president of Wittenberg College, Springfield, O., 1849-74; and since 1874 has been professor of systematic theology there. He is the author of Grundwerk of a System of Evangelical Lutheran Theology, Philadelphia, 1879; and various addresses, etc.

SPRINZL, Josef, D.D. (Vienna, 1864), Roman Catholic; b. at Linz, Austria, March 9, 1839; studied in the priests' seminary at Linz, 1857-61; ordained priest, 1861; studied in the priests' institute in Vienna, 1861-64; became professor of theology in the Linz Seminary, 1864; professor of dogmatics at Salzburg University, 1875;ordinary professor of the same at Prague, 1881. He became geistlicher Rat of bishop of Linz, Feb. 23, 1873, and of the prince bishop of Salzburg, Jan. 28, 1880. From 1865 to 1875 he edited the Linz Theolog. praktische Quartalschrift; in 1868, the Linz Kathol. Blätter (a tri-weekly). He is the author of Handbuch der Fundamente, Vienna, 1869; Die Theologie der apostolischen Väter, 1890 (trans. into Hungarian); Compendium summarium theologiae dogmaticae in usum protectionum academiarum concinnum, 1892; several minor theological works.

SPROULL, Thomas, D.D. (Westminster College, New Wilmington, Penn., 1857), Reformed Presbyterian (Old School); b. near Freeport, Penn., Sept. 15, 1803; graduated at the Western University of Pennsylvania, Pittsburg, 1829; pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian Church in Allegheny and Pittsburg, 1834-48; professor in Reformed Presbyterian Western Theological Seminary, 1838-40; in Eastern and Western Seminaries united, 1840-45; again since 1856; professor emeritus since 1875. He edited The Reformed Presbyterian, 1855-62, and The Reformed Presbyterian and Covenanter, 1882-74, both published in Pittsburg, Penn. Besides sermons, etc., he is the author of Prelections on Theology, Pittsburg, 1832.

SPURGEON, Charles Haddon, Baptist; b. at Kelvedon, Essex, Eng., June 19, 1834. He is the grandson of Rev. James Spurgeon, for many years pastor of the Independent Church at Stambourne, Essex, and son of Rev. John Spurgeon, who was also an Independent minister, and who until 1876 was pastor of the same church. As young man he was engaged upon the See of London, Upper Street, Islington, London. When just old enough to leave home, he was removed to his grandfather's, and there remained until 1841, when his father placed him in a school at Colchester, where he acquired a fair acquaintance with Latin, Greek, and French, and led his class at every examination. In 1848 he spent a few months in an agricultural college at Maidstone, conducted by a relative. In 1849 he became usher in a school at Newmarket kept by a Baptist. He then began to attend the Baptist Church. On Dec. 15, 1850, when home for a holiday, he was converted in the Colchester Primitive Methodist Chapel, under the preaching of an individual unknown, who chose for his text Isa. xlv. 22, emphasizing the words "Look . . . and be saved;" which words were exactly suited to relieve the mind of young Spurgeon, who had been for some time under profound conviction of sin, and who looked and was saved.

He was immersed at Isleham, on Friday, May 3, 1851, and thus formally left the Independent connection in which he had been brought up. His works at once attested his faith. He commenced distributing tracts and visiting the poor in Newmarket. He addressed the Sunday-school children in the vestry of the Independent chapel. He wrote Antichrist and her Brood, in competition for a prize for an essay on popery. No prize was awarded, but he received a handsome gift from Samuel Morley as an encouragement. In 1851 he became usher in a school at Cambridge, entered the "Lay-preachers Association" in connection with the Baptist Church meeting in St. Andrew's Street, Cambridge, and the same year preached his first sermon from 1 Pet. ii. 7, at Teversham, a village four miles from Cambridge. He was then a boy of sixteen years, and wore a round jacket and broad turn-down collar. His success was so great that he was encouraged to hold evening services, after his school duties were over, in villages around Cambridge and Waterbeach; and this he did in thirteen stations, preaching sometimes in a chapel, sometimes in a cottage, or in the open air. In 1852 he became pastor at Waterbeach, and during the two years he was there the membership increased from forty to nearly a hundred. His father and others strongly advised him to enter Stepney (now Regent's Park) College, but he did not see in the time for the ministry. A meeting with Dr. Angus, the tutor, was arranged at the house of Mr. Macmillan, the publisher, at Cambridge; but although the two parties were in the house at the same time, through the failure of the servant to announce Mr. Spurgeon, Dr. Angus was not aware of his presence, and returned to London without seeing him. The college scheme was then given up. His address at the anniversary of the Cambridge Union of Sunday Schools, in 1853, greatly impressed a gentleman, who on the strength of it recommended him as a candidate for the then vacant Baptist Church of New Park Street, Southwark, London; and, after preaching for three months on probation, the small opposition to him when he first came had entirely vanished, and he accepted, April 28, 1854, a unanimous call to become their pastor. The church had been very prosperous, but had so dwindled down that only one hundred persons attended Mr. Spurgeon's first sermon in the church building seated twelve hundred. Before three months had passed, the chapel was crowded; within a year, it was necessary to enlarge it, and he preached in Exeter Hall during the progress of the alterations. But the enlarged building could not accommodate the crowds; and in 1856 he preached at the Royal Surrey Gardens Music Hall, which seated seven thousand persons. On Aug. 16, 1859, the cornerstone of the new Metropolitan Tabernacle was laid, and the building opened for service March 25, 1861. It seats about five thousand persons, with standing room for a thousand more; cost thirty-one thousand pounds, and was entirely paid for by the end of the opening five weeks' services. When the church removed from New Park Street, in 1861, it numbered eleven hundred and seventy-eight members; there were in 1853 upwards of fifty-five hundred. Mr. Spurgeon's only children, twin sons, are both preachers,—one in England, the other in New Zealand.

Besides preaching, not only in his own church, but also in connection with the church there are a Colportage Association (started in 1856, which through paid colporteurs sells religious books in neglected villages), and Mrs. Spurgeon's Book Fund (1876), the latter to supply poor ministers with free gifts of valuable books. Mr. Spurgeon's remarkable constitution yielded, at length, to the tremendous strain of his manifold and multifarious duties and burdens, and since 1877 he has had frequent attacks of illness. In order that the interests of the church might not suffer, his brother, the Rev. James Archer Spurgeon, has been since 1868 co-pastor.

Mr. Spurgeon's pen has been very busy. Aside from his private correspondence, and that arising out of his various enterprises, he has each year since 1857 issued Spurgeon's Illustrated Almanac containing short articles by him and others. In 1861 and 1862 was joint editor with Rev. D. Kattens and W. G. Lewis of The Baptist Magazine, which has personally conducted since Jan. 1, 1865, The Sword and the Trowel, a monthly magazine, in which he writes copiously, and which is in the interest of his church and of religion generally; since 1872, John Ploughman's Almanac, and has written the works mentioned below, and done much literary work besides. His first printed sermon, entitled Hardest Time, appeared in the Penny Pulpit, October, 1854; the second, God's Providence, shortly afterwards, and so a dozen before the end of the year. From the first week of 1855 one has been issued every week. Each of these receives his revision. The average sale is twenty-five thousand copies weekly. A few have approached a hundred thousand copies; two have exceeded it; and one on Baptismal Regeneration, preached in the summer of 1864, sold to the extent of a hundred and ninety-eight thousand copies, and was the occasion of a great controversy on the subject. The sermon Pictures of Life, and Birthday Reflections, in relation to his twenty-first birthday, is accompanied by his portrait, the first issued, and shows that he was then pale and thin.

His works embrace a great number of published sermons, more than nineteen hundred; e.g., in The Metropolitan Tabernacle Pulpit (containing his sermons which have been published weekly since the close of 1854), London, 1855 sqq., vol. i. 1855, vol. xxxi. 1885; The Pulpit Library, 1856~58, 3 vols.; Types and Emblems, 1875; Trumpet Callstos the End of the World, London, 1879~83; The Metropolitan Tabernacle: its History and Work (with thirty-two colored plates), Stall, 1880; My Note-Book, 1870, 26th thousand 1885; The Interpreter, or Scripture for Family Worship (with running comments and suitable hymns), 1872; Lectures to my Students (a selection from addresses delivered to the students of the Pastors' College, Metropolitan Tabernacle), 1st series 1875, 30th thousand 1885; 2d series 1877, 10th thousand 1885; Commenting and Commentaries (two lectures to his students, with a catalogue of Bible commentaries and expositions), 1876; The Metropolitan Tabernacle: its History and Work (with thirty-two illustrative extracts from the whole range of literature, a series of homiletical hints running through 150 courses delivered at the Metropolitan Tabernacle), 1884~87, 4 vols. (covering the whole Bible); Storm Signals (sermons), 1886; many minor works, articles, etc.

STADE, Bernhard, Ph.D., Lic. Theol. (Leipzig, 1871 and 1873). D.D. (hon., Giessen, 1875), German Lutheran, critical school; b. at Arnstadt, Thuringia, May 11, 1848; studied at Leipzig (1867~70); became assistant librarian at Leipzig, 1871; privy-docent there, 1873; ordinary professor of theology at Giessen, 1875. Since 1871 he has edited Die Zeit- schrift für A. T. Wissenschaft. He is the author of Ueber die wahre Veranlassung der Ge- zeugnisse der Hebräer, Leipzig, 1871; De Isaiae textus ethiopicis diatrise, 1873; Ueber die alttestamentlichen Vorstellungen vom Zustande nach dem Tote, 1877; Lehrbuch der hebräischen Grammatik (1st part, Schriftd Lehre, Lautlehre, Formenlehre), 1879; De populo Jacob parergon, Giessen, 1880; Geschichte des Volkes Israel, parts 1~4, Berlin, 1881~85; Ueber die Lage des evangelischen Kirchen Deutschlands, Giessen, 1883 (2 eds.).

STAEHELIN, Rudolf, Swiss Protestant; b. at Basel, Sept. 22, 1841; studied at Berlin and Tübingen, 1859~65; became privy-docent at Basel 1873, professor extraordinary 1875, and ordinary professor 1876. He has published Erasmus Stellung zur Reformation hauptsächlich von seinen Beziehungen zu Basel aus beleuchtet, Basel, 1873; W. M. L. de Wette nach seiner theologischen Wirkung und Bedeutung geschildert, 1880; Die ersten Märtyrer des evangelischen Glaubens in der Schweiz, Heidelberg, 1883; Huldreich Zwingli und sein Reformati- onswerk, Halle, 1883.

STALKER, James, Free Church of Scotland; b. at Crieff, Perthshire, Scotland, Feb. 21, 1848; graduated at Edinburgh University and New Col- lege; and since 1874 has been minister of St. Brycedale Free Church, Kirkcaldy. He was Cun- ningham fellow in 1874; declined principalship of Presbyterian College, Melbourne, 1883, and Edinburgh churches, 1883 and 1884. He is the author of The Life of Jesus Christ, Edinburgh, 1879, 3d ed. 1884; The New Song: Sermons for Children, 1883; The Life of St. Paul, 1884, 2d ed. same year.

STALL, Sylvanus, Lutheran (General Synod); b. at Elizaville, Columbia County, N.Y., Oct. 18, 1847; graduated from Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., 1872; studied theology at Union Theological Seminary, New York City, and at Gettysburg, Penn.; became pastor at Cobleskill, N.Y., 1874; Martin's Creek, Penn., 1877; Lancaster, Penn., 1880. He is statistical secretary of the General Synod of the Lutheran Church. He is the author of Pastor's Pocket Record, Albany, N.Y., 1875, 5th thousand Lancaster, Penn., 1883; Ministers' Handbook to Lutheran Hymns in the Book of Worship, Philadelphia, 1879; How to pay Church Debts, and how to keep Churches out of Debt, New York, 1880; since 1884 has published annually, through different Lutheran publishing houses, Stall's Lutheran Year-Book, which represents all branches of the Lutheran Church in the United States and in Europe; circulation fifteen thousand copies.
STEFFEN, Charles, D.D. (Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1878), Baptist; b. at North-ampton, Eng., March 9, 1823; d. in London, March 18, 1886. He studied at Bristol College; became minister at Loughborough, 1845; Devizes, 1847; London (Deu mark-place Church, Camberwell), 1858. He was president of the London Baptist Association in 1892. He is the author of Friendship with God, London, 1850, last ed. 1882; Power in Weakness: Memorial of Rev. William Rhodes, 1858; 2d ed. 1870; Central Truths, 1858, 12th ed. 1870; Joseph Alkene, his Companions and Times, 1861, 2d ed. 1862; Instrumental Strength, 1862; Symbols of Christ, 1865, 3d ed. 1882; Home and Church, 1870; Homilies on Christ, 1878, 2d ed. 1879; Central Truths, 1880. He was president of the London Baptist Association in 1882. He is the author of A Prophecy of the Kingdom of God, 1878; Symbolsof Christ, 1865, 3d ed. 1882; Home and Church, 1870; Homilies on the Lord's Prayer, 1882; and many smaller works.

STARKEY, Right Rev. Thomas Alfred, D.D. (Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1864), Episcopal, bishop of Northern New Jersey; b. at North Bay, Mass., in the year 1824; educated for and practised as a civil engineer, 1839—45; studied theology under Rev. Dr. Ogilby, Bishop of Oxford, 1845—47; ordained deacon 1847, priest 1848; was missionary in Pennsylvania, 1847; London (Denmark-place Church, Camberwell), 1848—50, where he served in the Christian commission, 1849—50; St. Paul's, Albany, N.Y., 1854—58; Studied at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, N.J., 1882; Episcopalian; b. near Newton, Ireland, Nov. 24, 1833; graduated from Shurtleff College, Upper Alton, Ill., 1858; entered the Baptist ministry; but in 1861 became rector of Grace Church, Newton, Mass.; in 1888 professor of Hebrew and Old and New Testament exegesis, in the then newly founded Episcopal Theological School at Cambridge, Mass.; is editor of many works in theological literature, and has been rector of Fourth Reformed Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia. He edited The Reformed Presbyterian Advocate from 1867 to 1877, and has published several discourses.

STEINER, Heinrich, Ph.D. (Heidelberg, 1864), Lic. Theol. (Heidelberg, 1866), D.D. (Heidelberg, 1873), Swiss Protestant; b. at Zürich, Jan. 10, 1841; studied theology there and at Heidelberg, orientalists at Leipzig; became privat-docent at Heidelberg, in the philosophical (1865) and then in the theological (1866) faculties; professor extra-ordinary in the latter, 1869; ordinary professor at Zürich, 1870. In 1882—84 he was rector of the university. He is in theology a free critic. He is the author of Die Mutmassungen oder die Freidenker im Islam, Leipzig, 1865; Uber hebräische Poesie (lecture), Basel, 1873; Ferdinand Hüzing (rector's address), Zürich, 1882; Zur fünfzü-ährigen Stiftungsfest der Hochschule Zürich (address), 1883; editor of 4th ed. Hitzig, Die Zweifel der Propheten, Leipzig, 1881; contributor of many articles in Schenkels Bibel Lexikon, Leipzig, 1869—75.

STELLHORN, Frederick William, Lutheran (Synod of Ohio); b. at Brueninghorstedt, Han-sa-land, Germany, Oct. 9, 1845; graduated at Concordia College, Fort Wayne, Ind., and Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo.; became pastor at St. Louis 1885, Fairfield Centre, Ind., 1887; professor at North-western University, Watertown, Wis.
STEWART.

(1889), at Concordia College, Fort Wayne, Ind. (1874), and at Capital University, Columbus, O. (1881). Since 1881 he has been chief editor of the Luthersche Kirchentzeitung and the Theologische Zeitblitter, Columbus, O. He is the author of numerous essays, reviews, and articles in the religious press.

STEVENS, William Arnold, D.D. (Denison University, 1882), LL.D. (Rochester University, 1882), Baptist; b. at Granville, O., Feb. 5, 1839; graduated at Denison University, Granville, O., 1862; studied philology and theology at Rochester Theological Seminary (N.Y.), Harvard College, Leipzig, and Berlin, 1862-68; became professor of Greek at Denison University, 1868, and of New Testament exegesis in Rochester Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1877. He published Select Orations of Lyricus, Chicago, 1876, 4th ed. 1882.

STEVENS, Right Rev. William Bacon, D.D. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1848), L.L.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1862), Episcopal, bishop of Pennsylvania; b. at Bath, Me., July 18, 1815; educated at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. An uncle of the hero, through the failure of his health, to give up his studies; travelled two years around the world, and on his return graduated M.D. at Dartmouth, Hanover, N.H., 1837; was ordained deacon 1843, priest 1844; was historian of the State of Georgia, 1841; professor of belles-lettres and moral philosophy in the University of Georgia, Athens, Ga., 1844-48; became rector of St. Andrew's, Philadelphia, Penn., 1848; assistant bishop of Pennsylvania, 1862; bishop, 1865. He was in 1868 appointed by the presiding bishop to take charge of the American Episcopal churches on the continent of Europe, and held the position for six years. He edited with prefaces and notes the Georgia Historical Collections, Savannah, vols. i. and ii., 1841, 1842; and is the author of Discourse delivered before the Georgia Historical Society, Savannah, Feb. 12, 1841 (on the history of silk culture in that State), Boston, 1841; A History of Georgia from its First Discovery by Europeans to the Adoption of the Present Constitution in 1797, vol. i., New York, 1847, vol. ii., Philadelphia, 1858; The Parables of the New Testament Practically Unfolded, Philadelphia, 1855; Consolation: the Bow in the Cloud, 1856, 2d ed. 1871; Sunday in the American United Church, New York, 1856; The Lord's Day, its Obligations and Blessings, 1857; The Past and Present of St. Andrew's [Church], 1858; Sabbath of our Lord, 1872; Sermons, New York, 1879; many addresses, charges, essays, sermons, etc.

STEVENS. 209

STEWART.

STEWART, William, D.D. (Glasgow, 1874), Church of Scotland; b. at Annan, Dumfriesshire, Aug. 15, 1835; graduated at Glasgow University, B.A. 1861, M.A. 1862, B.D. 1867; was examiner in the same in mental philosophy for degrees in arts, 1867-70; minister of the parish of St. George's-in-the-Fields, Glasgow, 1808-73; since 1873 has been professor of divinity and biblical criticism in the University of Glasgow; since 1876 has been secretary to the university. He is the author of

STIFLER, James Madison, D.D. (Shurtleff College, 1875), Baptist; b. at Hollidaysburg, Penn., Dec. 8, 1839; graduated at Shurtleff College, Upper Alton, Ill., 1866; completed theological course there, 1869; became pastor at Nokomis, Ill., 1868; professor of biblical exegesis in Shurtleff College, 1871; pastor at Hamilton, N.Y., 1873; at New Haven, Conn., 1879; professor of the New Testament in Crozer Theological Seminary, Penn., 1882.

STOCKMEYER, Immanuel, Swiss Protestant; b. at Basel, July 28, 1814; studied at Erlangen and Berlin, 1832-36; became pastor at Ottingen, Baselland, 1841; at Basel, 1849 (Antistes, 1871); and ordinary professor of theology at Basel, 1876. He published a volume of sermons, Jesus Christus Gestern und Heute und derselbe in Ewigkeit, Basel, 1880; Der Brief des Jacobus, 1874; Die Struktur des ersten Johannesebriefes, 1875; Rede bei der Lutherfeier, 1884.

STODDARD, Charles Augustus, D.D. (Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1871), Presbyterian; b. in Boston, Mass., May 28, 1833; graduated at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., 1854; and at Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1859; was pastor of Washington Presbyterian Church, New-York City, from 1859 to 1883, and since 1873 an editor of the New-York Observer.

STOECKER, Adolf, United Evangelical; b. at Halberstadt, Germany, Dec. 11, 1835; studied at the Halberster gymnasium; at the universities of Halle and Berlin, 1854-57; passed his first clerical examination at Berlin 1858, his second 1859; became pastor at Seggerde and Haunsleben, 1863; chaplain to the division of the German army at Metz, 1871; court and cathedral preacher at Berlin, 1874. He is first assessor in the Brandenburg provincial synod, member of the synodical council of the Prussian Church. He is the author of Hospital in Engeland, 1875; Ein Jahrgang Volkspredigten über freie Texte, Berlin, 1884, 3d ed. 1885; O Land, höre der Herrn Wort, ein Jahrgang Volkspredigten über die Episteln, 1885, 2d ed. 1886; many addresses and minor publications.

STOKES, George Thomas, Church of England and Ireland; b. at Athlone, County Westmeath, Ireland, Dec. 28, 1843; graduated B.A. Trinity College, Dublin, 1864; 2d class divinity testimonium, 1865; M.A., 1871; D.D., 1888; became vicar of All Saints, Blackrock, Dublin, 1869; assistant to the regius professor of divinity, 1880; and professor of ecclesiastical history in the University of Dublin, 1883; besides articles in Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography, and in the Contemporary Review and Expositor, he has published Scriptural Authority for a Liturgy, Dublin, 1868; Work of the Laity in the Church of Ireland, 1869; English Bible, Notes and Science Research, 1883.

STOLZ, Alban, Roman Catholic; b. at Buhl, Baden, Feb. 8, 1808; ordained priest, 1833; was professor of pastoral theology and pedagogik at Freiburg, 1848-80; d. there, Oct. 16, 1883. He was a very popular and prolific writer. His collected works make 15 vols. (Freiburg, 1871-77).

The most widely circulated were his Kalender für Zeit und Ewigkeit, which appeared yearly from 1843 to 1884.

STORRS, Richard Salter, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1853; Harvard College, 1859), LL.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1874), Congregationalist; b. at Braintree, Mass., Aug. 21, 1821; graduated at Amherst College, 1839; entered the law-office of Hon. Rufus Choate, and spent two years in a course of legal study; then studied at Andover Theological Seminary, and graduated there 1843; became pastor of the Harvard Congregational Church, Brookline, Mass., 1845; and of the Church of the Pilgrims, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1846, then recently organized, and in this position has ever since remained. He was one of the editors of The Independent, from 1848 to 1861. Besides numerous occasional discourses and articles in periodicals, he is the author of The Constitution of the Human Soul, New York, 1837; Conditions of Success in Preaching without Notes, 1875; Early American Spirit, and the Genesis of it, 1875; Declaration of Independence, and the Effects of it, 1876; John Wycliffe and the First English Bible, 1880; Recognition of the Supernatural in Letters and in Life, 1881; Mindfulness in the Scholar, 1883; The Divine Origin of Christianity indicated by its Historical Effects, 1884.

STORY, Robert Herbert, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1874), Church of Scotland; b. at Rosneath, Dunbartonshire, Jan. 28, 1835; studied at the universities of Edinburgh (1849-52), and St. Andrew's (1856-57); ordained as pastor of St. Andrew's Church, Montreal, Can., Sept. 20, 1859; induced minister of Rosneath, Scotland, in succession to his father, February, 1860, and so remains. He belongs to the "Broad Church." Since 1865 he has been convenor of the editorial committee of the "Church Service Society" of Scotland; and since its foundation in 1885, editor of The Scottish Church (monthly magazine). He was appointed in 1885 the first lecturer under the trust by which the "Lee lectureship" was founded, in memory of Dr. Robert Lee, and in that capacity delivered the first lecture in Edinburgh, on April 11, 1886. He is the author of Robert Story of Rosneath, a Memoir, London, 1892; Christ the Conso ler, Edinburgh, 1865; Life and Remains of Robert Lee, D.D., London, 1870; William Car stares, 1874; On Fial Days (a pamphlet), Glasgow, 1879; *Creded and Conduct, Sermons preached in Rosneath Church, 1879; Health Haunts of the Riviera, Paisley, 1881; Nuge Ecclesiasticos, Edin burgh, 1884; many sermons, addresses, articles, etc., published in Good Words, Scottish Church, Sunday Talk, Glasgow Herald, Saturday Review, etc.

STOUTON, John, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1869), Congregationalist; b. in Norwich, Eng., Nov. 15, 1807; educated at Highbury College, Islington, and University College, London; pastor at Wind sor 1832-43, at Keisington 1843-75; professor of historical theology and homilies in New College, St. John's, 1875-94; was Congregational lecturer 1855, and chairman of Congregational Union 1856. He edited The Evangelical Magazine for many years; was delegate and speaker in Evangelical Alliance Conferences in New York 1873, and Basel 1879; lectured on missions in Westminster Abbey, 1877; received a testimonial of three thousand pounds on retiring from his pastorate at Kensington, 1875. He is the author of the following works, many of which have passed through several editions:

- Tractarian Theology, London, 1843; Windsor in the Olden Time, 1844; Spiritual Heroes, 1845; Philip Doddridge, 1851; The Lights of the World, 1854; Theology of the Old Testament, 1855; The Remains of the Late Philip Doddridge, 1856; The Palm, and the Pulpit, 1858; The Song of Christ's Flock in the Twenty-third Psalm, 1860; Church and State 200 Years ago, 1862; Shades and Echoes of Old London, 1864; Ecclesiastical History of England, 1867–74, 5 vols.; Religion in England during the Reign of Queen Anne and the Georges, 1875: (the two works revised and republished together, 1881, 6 vols.);
- Haunts and Homes of Martin Luther, 1875; Lights of the World, 1876; Progress of Divine Revelation, 1878; Our English Bible, 1878; Worthies of Science, 1879; Historical Theology, 1880; William Wilberforce, 1880; Footprints of Italian Reformers, 1881; William Penn, 1882; The Spanish Reформers, 1883; Congregationalism in the Court Suburb (Kensington), 1883; John Howard the Philanthropist, 1884; Religion in England 1800–1850, 1881; Golden Legends of the Olden Time, 1885.

STOWE, Calvin Ellis, D.D. (Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind., and Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H., both 1839), Congregationalist; b. at Natick, Mass., April 29, 1802; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1824, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1825; became assistant teacher of sacred literature in the seminary, 1825; professor of Latin and Greek, Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H., 1831; of biblical literature, Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O., 1833; of natural and revealed religion, Bowdoin College, 1850; of sacred literature, Andover Theological Seminary, 1852; retired, 1861; d. Aug. 22, 1868. His wife was Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of Uncle Tom's Cabin. He translated Jahn's History of the Hebrew Commonwealth, Andover, 1828, 2d ed. 1871, Lond. 1829, 2 vols., 3d ed. 1840; and from the Latin, the Lowth's Lectures on Hebrew Poetry, Andover, 1829 (both with additions); Introduction to the Criticism and Interpretation of the Bible, Cincinnati, 1833; professor of Hebrew, Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, 1838, and published by Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, North Carolina, Michigan, etc.; Essay (on the same), Boston, 1839; The Religious Element in Education (lecture at Portland, Me.), 1844; The Right Interpretation of the Sacred Scriptures (inaugural address), Andover, 1853; Origin and History of the Books of the Bible, both Canonical and Apocryphal, Hartford, 1867.

STRACK, Hermann Lebrecht, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1872), Lic. Theol. (do., 1877), B.D. (do., 1884), Protestant theologian; b. in Berlin, May 6, 1848; studied at Berlin and Leipzig, 1865–70; taught in Kaiser Wilhelm Gymnasium, 1872–73; worked in the Imperial Library, St. Petersburg, Russia, 1873–76 (see below); became professor extraordinary of theology at Berlin, 1877; spent six weeks with Abr. Harkavy; on request of the Board of Bible revisers; and acting president of Troy University, 1858–61; and since 1858 has been professor of exegetical theology in Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N.J. In 1874 he travelled in Egypt and Palestine. He is a member of the Old Testament Company of Bible reviewers; and is the author of Harmony and Exposition (in Hebrew, German, and English), comparing Homer and the Old Testament, 1852; and Harmony in Greek, 1854; Scripture History delineated from the Biblical Records and all Other Accessible Sources, Madison, N.J., 1878; Irene, STROSSMAYER, Right Rev. Joseph Georg, D.D., Roman Catholic; b. at Essek, Selavonia, Feb. 4, 1815; studied at Pesth, and was ordained priest in 1838; became professor at the Seminary of Dukovar, and bishop of Bosnia and Sirinia, May 20, 1850. He earnestly opposed the infallibility dogma in the Vatican Council, and quitted Rome without accepting it, but afterwards submitted.

STUART, George Hay, Presbyterian layman; b. at Rose Hall, County Down, Ireland, April 2, 1819; educated at Banbridge, Ireland; took up his residence in Philadelphia, Pa., went into business; is now president of the Merchants' National Bank of that city. He was the president of the United-States Christian Commission during the civil war (see art. Christian Commission), and was retired 1878. He has published The Life of Immanuel Kant, London, 1882; Introduction to the Study of Philosophy (in preparation).

Plea for Time in dealing with the Athanasian Creed (a Letter to the Abp. of Cant., with Postscripts), 1873: The Nicene and Apostles' Creeds, their Literary History, together with an Account of the Growth and Reception of the Sermon on the Faith commonly called the Creed of St. Athanasius, 1875; The Parliamentary History of the Act of Uniformity, with Documents not hitherto published, 1875; The Advertisement of 1666, an Historical Enquiry, 1880; Constitution and History of a Cathedral of the Old Foundation, illustrated by Documents in the Muniment-room at Chichester, Part 1, 1880; Greek Liturgies, chiefly from Original Sources, 1884.

SYDOW, (Karl Leopold) Adolph, Ph.D., German Protestant; b. at Charlottenburg, Nov. 23, 1800; d. in Berlin, Oct. 22, 1882. He studied at Berlin from 1819 to 1823, and became an ardent disciple of Schleiermacher. In 1824 he became rector; in 1828, preacher and ordinary teacher of the cadet corps at Berlin. In 1836 he was called by Frederick William III. to Potsdam as court preacher, and enjoyed also the friendship of Frederick William IV., who sent him in 1841, with others, to Great Britain, to study in London and elsewhere the ecclesiastical arrangements. In consequence he became a defender of the free church system; thus forfeited the king's favor, gave up his position at court, went in 1846 to Berlin as preacher of the New Church, and so remained until he was made emeritus in 1876. In 1872 he was deposed by the Brandenburg consistory, because in a public lecture he declared that Jesus was the legitimate son of Joseph and Mary. He appealed to the upper church council: twenty-six ministers of the province of Brandenburg and twelve of Berlin protested against his deposition; the theological faculty at Jena declared to Dr. Falk, the minister of religious affairs, that his deposition would “endanger the liberty of teaching;” and the council, while sharply rebuking him, ordered his reinstatement on the ground that the objectionable statement was extra-official. See Sydow's Aktenstücke, Berlin, 1873. He made, with F. A. Schulze, a translation of Channing's works, Berlin, 1850-55, 12 vols. His other publications consist of sermons, etc. See M. SYDOW: Dr. A. Sydow: Ein Lebensbild, Berlin, 1886. •
T.

TALCOTT, Daniel Smith, D.D. (Waterville College, Me., 1853; Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., 1858), Congregationalist; b. near Newburyport, Mass., March 7, 1818; graduated at Amherst College, Mass., 1831, and at Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1834; became teacher of Hebrew in Andover Theological Seminary, 1833; pastor at Sherborn, Mass., 1836; professor of sacred literature in Bangor Theological Seminary, Me., 1839; retired in 1891. His name, originally Daniel Talcott Smith, was changed in 1863. He is the author of sundry addresses, etc., and of articles in the American edition of Smith's Dictionary of the Bible.

TALMAGE, Thomas DeWitt, D.D., Presbyterian; b. near Bound Brook, N.J., Jan. 7, 1832; graduated at the University of the City of New York 1853, and at the New Brunswick (Reformed Dutch) Theological Seminary, N.J., 1856; became pastor of the Reformed Dutch Church at Belleville, N.J., 1856; Syracuse, N.Y., 1859; Second Church, Philadelphia, Penn., 1862; Central Presbyterian Church, Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1869. In 1870 the congregation erected, on the same street near the old site, a new and much larger church, known as the "Tabernacle." It was burnt Dec. 22, 1872; rebuilt, 1873; dedicated, Feb. 22, 1874. The old church is now used for the Free Lay College, a training-school for Christian workers, of which Dr. Talmage is president; also for reading-rooms and general purposes. The new tabernacle seats some five thousand persons; the church reported in 1886 thirty-three hundred and eleven communicants. Dr. Talmage edits Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine. His sermons are published every week, either in synopsis or fully, and many of them have appeared in separate volumes. Of the volumes made up of his sermons, lectures, etc., may be mentioned Crumbs swept up, Philadelphia, 1861; Abominations of Modern Society, New York, 1873, new ed. 1878; Sermons, 1872-75, 4 series; Around the Tea-Table, Philadelphia, 1874; Night Sides of City Life, 1878; Marriage, 1879; The Brooklyn Tabernacle: a Collection of 104 Sermons, 1884; The Christian at Work, New York, 1888. (See Appendix.)

TARBOX, Increase Niles, D.D. (Iowa College, Grinnell, Io.); Yale College, New Haven, Conn., both 1869), Congregationalist; b. at East Windsor, Conn., Feb. 11, 1815; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1839, and at Yale Theological Seminary, 1844; was tutor in Yale College, 1842-44; pastor of Plymouth Congregational Church, Framingham, Mass., 1844-51; secretary of the American Educational Society and American College and Educational Society, Boston, 1851-54. He is the author of "Winnie and Walter Stories" (juveniles), Boston, 1860, 4 vols.; When I was a Boy (juveniles), 1862; The Curse, or the Position, Supposed in Hell, by the Race of Ham, 1864; Nineveh, or the Burnt City, 1864; Tyre and Alexandria: Chief Commercial Cities of the Early World, 1865; Missionary Patriots, James H. and Edward M. Schneider, 1867; Uncle George's Stories (juveniles), 1868, 4 vols.; Life of Israel Putnam "Old Put," Major-General in the Continental Army, 1870; Sir Walter Raleigh and his Colony in America, 1874; Songs and Hymns for Common Life, 1885; Diary of Thomas Robbins, D.D., 1886.

TAYLOR, Barnard Cook, A.M., Baptist; b. at Holme del, N.J., May 20, 1850; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1874, and at Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester, Penn., 1877; became in the latter institution assistant instructor of Hebrew (1877), assistant professor of biblical interpretation (1890), and professor of Old-Testament exegesis (1883).

TAYLOR, Charles, D.D. (Cambridge, 1881); Church of England; b. in London, May 27, 1840; educated in King's College School, London, and at St. John's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (ninth wrangler and second-class classical tripos) 1862, M.A. 1865; was first-class in theology, 1863; Crosse scholar and Tyrwhitt scholar, 1864; Kaye prize, 1867; ordained deacon 1866, priest 1867; was fellow of St. John's College, 1861-81; examiner at Lampeter, 1874-77; lecturer in theology, Cambridge, 1873-81; became honorary fellow of King's College, London, 1876; master of St. John's College, Cambridge, 1881. He is the author of Geometrical Conics, London, 1843; The Gospel in the Law: A Critical Examination of the Citations from the Old Testament in the New, 1869; Elementary Geometry of Conics, 1872, 4th ed. 1883; The Dirge of Coheleth (in Eccles. xii.) discussed and literally interpreted, 1874; The Sayings of the Jewish Fathers, including Pirke Abot, etc., in Hebrew and English, with Critical and Illustrative Notes, 1877; An Introduction to the Ancient and Modern Geometry of Conics, with Historical Notes and Prolegomena, 1881; The Teaching of the Twelve Apostles, with Illustrations from the Talmud (two lectures delivered at the Royal Institution of Great Britain, May 29 and June 6, 1883), Cambridge, 1886.

TAYLOR, George Lansing, D.D. (Syracuse University, N.Y., 1870), Methodist; b. at Skaneateles, N.Y., Feb. 13, 1835; was freshman and sophomore at Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, O., and junior and senior at Columbia College, New York City; graduated, 1861; was assistant editor of the Christian Advocate, New York, 1861; entered itinerant ministry of the Methodist-Episcopal Church in New-York East Conference in April, 1862, and has ever since been in its pastorate. Since 1870 a trustee of Syracuse University, N.Y. He served in the Christian Commission during the war, in Maryland and Virginia; has always been an ardent temperance laborer, was for years in the National Society's Board, and delivered on the subject many speeches and lectures. He built the Simpson Methodist-Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., and the Jesse Lee Memorial Church, Ridgefield, Conn.; and preached about a hundred camp-meeting sermons. He is the author of Six Centennial Hymns (for the centenary of 1866, pamphlet).
TAYLOR, William, D.D. (Mount Union College, New Philadelphia, Oh., 1838), Congregationalist; b. at Kilmanock, Scotland, Oct. 23, 1829; graduated at University of Glasgow 1849, and at the United Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Edinburgh, 1852; became pastor (United Presbyterian) at Kilmours, Scotland, 1858; of Derby-road Church, Liverpool, Eng., 1855; and of the Broadway Tabernacle Church (Congregationalist), New York City, 1872. He was Lyman Beecher lecturer in Yale Seminary, 1878 and 1886; L. P. Stone lecturer in Princeton Seminary, 1880; and editor of the Christian at Work, 1876-80. He is the author of Life Truths (sermons), Liverpool, Eng., 1862, 2d ed. 1863; The Miracles: Helps to Faith, not Hindrances, Edinburgh, 1865; The Lost found, and the Wanderer welcomed, 1870, last ed. New York, 1884; Memoir of the Rev. Matthew Dickie, Bristol, 1872; Prayer and Business, New York, 1873; David, King of Israel, 1875; Elijah the Prophet, 1876; The Ministry of the Word (Yale Lectures), 1876; Songs in the Night, 1877, last ed. 1884; Peter the Apostle, 1877; Daniel the Beloved, 1878; Moses the Lawgiver, 1879; The Gospel Miracles in their Relation to Christ and Christianity (Princeton Lectures), 1880; Life and other Sermons, 1880; Paul the Missionary, 1882; Contrary Winds, and other Sermons, 1883; Jesus at the Well, 1884; John Knox, a Biography, 1885; Joseph, the Prime Minister, 1886.

TAYLOR, Right Rev. Frederick, D.D. (Oxford, 1858), lord bishop of Lambeth, author of English J. b. at Santa Maura Nov. 30, 1821; educated at Balliol College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (double first class) 1842, M.A. 1849, B.D. 1858; was elected rod and tutor of his college, 1812; ordained deacon 1846, priest 1847; was principal of Kneller Hall Training College, near Twickenham, 1848–53; head master of Rugby School, 1858–69; chaplain-in-ordinary to the Queen; bishop of Exeter, 1869–83; select preacher at Oxford 1879–74, and Hampton lecturer 1884; translated to London, 1885. He is the author of the essay on The Education of the World, in Essays and Reviews, London, 1890; Sermons preached in the chapel of Rugby School (1858–69), London, 1892–71, 3 series; Relations between Religion and Science (Bampton Lectures), 1884, 2d ed. 1885.

TERRY, Milton Spencer, S.T.D. (Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1879). Methodist: b. at Coeysmans, N.Y., Feb. 22, 1840; graduated at Charlotteville (N.Y.) Seminary 1859, and Yale Theological Seminary, New Haven, Conn., 1862; was pastor, 1863–84; and since professor of Old Testament exegesis in Garrett Biblical Institution, Evanston, Ill., 1862–71, 3 series; Relations between Religion and Science which he used in his catechetical instruction). PHILIP SCHAPP.

THOMAS, David, D.D. (Waynesburg College, Penn., 1882), Congregationalist; b. at Hollivushatson, near Tenby, Pembrokeshire, South Wales, Feb. 1, 1813; educated at Newport Pagnol, now Cheshunt College, Buckingham, under the Rev. T. Bull, the friend and neighbor of Cowper the poet; entered the Independent ministry, 1841; was minister of Stockwell Independent Church, London, 1845–71. He founded in 1856 the National Newspaper League Company, for cheapening and improving the daily press, which numbered ten thousand members, and of which he was chairman; also the Working Men's Club and Institute Unions, 1861; originated the University for Wales in 1862, when the first letters and resolutions were sent out; the University College was opened at Aberystwith, March 11, 1877. He comes of an old family who have resided upon the same property for upwards of three hundred and fifty years. His grandfather lived to a hundred years; great-grandfather to a hundred and twenty years; great-uncle to a hundred and twelve years. He is the most distinguished (ierinan of the Aposlolic Church in the Irvingite community; and, notwithstanding the apparent failure of the movement, he adhered to it till his death.

His chief writings are, Versuch zur Herstellung des historischen Standpunkts für die Kritik der neu-testamentlichen Schriften, Erlangen, 1842 (a very able book against the Tubingine school of Haur, who answered in Der Krilichcr und der Fanatiker, in der Person des Herrn Heinrich W. J. Thiersch. Zur Charakteristik der neuesten Theologie, Stuttgart, 1816); Forstungen über Katholizismus und Protestantismus, Erlangen, 1846, 2 vols. (very able, written in an ironic spirit, and in elegant style); Die Kirche im apostolischen Zeitalter, Frankfort-am-Main, 1852, 3d ed. 1879 (English trans. by Carlyle the Irvingite, London, 1852); Ueber christliches Familienleben, 1854, 7th ed. 1877; Döllinger's Auf- fassung des Urchristenthums beleuchtet, 1861; Die Gleichnisse Christi, Frankfort-am-Main, 1867, 2d ed. 1875; Das Bekenntnis der Kirche, Basel, 1867, 2d ed., Augsburg, 1875; Die Stellung des Herrn zum Schut der Sittlichkeit, 1865; Luther, Gustor, Adolf und Max von Bayern, Nordlingen, 1868; Das Verbot der Ehe innerhalb der nahen Verwandtschaft nach der heiligen Schrift und nach den Grund sätzen der christlichen Kirche, 1869; Die Genesis, Basel, 1869 (English trans., The Book of Genesis, London, 1878); Ueber den christlichen Staat, 1875; Christian Heinrich Zeller's Leben, Basel, 1876, 2 vols.; Die Anfänge der heiligen Geschichte, nach dem 1. Buche Mois betrachtet, 1877; Ueber die Ge fahren und die Hoffnungen der christlichen Kirche, 1877, 2d ed. 1878; Blicke in die Lebensgeschichte des Propheten Daniel, 1884; Inbegriff der christlichen Lehre, 1886 (his last work, which was published after his death, and contains a manual of Christian doctrine and Christian life which he used in his catechetical instruction). PHILIP SCHAPP.

Thiersch, Heinrich Wilhelm Josias, D.D., Irvingite; b. in Munich, Bavaria, Nov. 5, 1817; d. at Basel, Dec. 3, 1885. He studied philosophy at Munich, chiefly with his father, an eminent Greek scholar; and theology at Erlangen and Tubingen; became privat-dozent at Erlangen, 1839; professor of theology at Marburg, 1843; resigned in 1850, in order to labor in the interest of the Catholic Apostolic Church, which then began to be organized in Germany by Evangelists from England. He had charge of a small Irvingite congregation at Augsburg, and afterwards at Basel. He was connected by marriage with the Zeller family of Beuggen, and with Bishop Gobat of Jerusalem, who married a sister of his wife.

Dr. Thiersch was a man of sincere and profound piety, of rare classical, theological, and general culture, an enthusiastic teacher, and might have become the successor of Neander in Berlin; but, in obedience to what he believed to be a divine call, he sacrificed a brilliant academic career to his religious convictions. He lived in poverty and isolation. He was lame; but had a very striking, highly intellectual and spiritual countenance, and an impressive voice and man ner. He was the most distinguished German convert to Irvingism. He sincerely believed that the Lord had restored the offices and gifts of the Apostolic Church in the Irvingite community; and, notwithstanding the apparent failure of the movement, he adhered to it till his death.

His chief writings are, Versuch zur Herstellung des historischen Standpunkts für die Kritik der neu-testamentlichen Schriften, Erlangen, 1842 (a very able book against the Tubingen school of Haur, who answered in Der Krilichcr und der Fanatiker, in der Person des Herrn Heinrich W. J. Thiersch. Zur Charakteristik der neuesten Theologie, Stuttgart, 1816); Forstungen über Katholizismus und Protestantismus, Erlangen, 1846, 2 vols. (very able, written in an ironic spirit, and in elegant style); Die Kirche im apostolischen Zeitalter, Frankfort-am-Main, 1852, 3d ed. 1879 (English trans. by Carlyle the Irvingite, London, 1852); Ueber christliches Familienleben, 1854, 7th ed. 1877; Döllinger's Auf- fassung des Urchristenthums beleuchtet, 1861; Die Gleichnisse Christi, Frankfort-am-Main, 1867, 2d ed. 1875; Das Bekenntnis der Kirche, Basel, 1867, 2d ed., Augsburg, 1875; Die Stellung des Herrn zum Schut der Sittlichkeit, 1865; Luther, Gustor, Adolf und Max von Bayern, Nordlingen, 1868; Das Verbot der Ehe innerhalb der nahen Verwandtschaft nach der heiligen Schrift und nach den Grund sätzen der christlichen Kirche, 1869; Die Genesis, Basel, 1869 (English trans., The Book of Genesis, London, 1878); Ueber den christlichen Staat, 1875; Christian Heinrich Zeller's Leben, Basel, 1876, 2 vols.; Die Anfänge der heiligen Geschichte, nach dem 1. Buche Mois betrachtet, 1877; Ueber die Ge fahren und die Hoffnungen der christlichen Kirche, 1877, 2d ed. 1878; Blicke in die Lebensgeschichte des Propheten Daniel, 1884; Inbegriff der christlichen Lehre, 1886 (his last work, which was published after his death, and contains a manual of Christian doctrine and Christian life which he used in his catechetical instruction). PHILIP SCHAPP.
THOMAS, 217

THOMSON.

writers or by the apostles, but they are all to be interpreted by him. He is the author of The Crisis of Being, London, 1849; The Core of Creeds, 1851; The Progress of Being, 1854; The Biblical Liturgy, 1855; Journalism and the Pulpit, 1857; The Unsoundness of People in Relation to the Pulpit, 1857; Resurrections: Thoughts on Duty and Destiny, 1863; The Genius of the Gospel: a Homiletical Commentary on St. Matthew, 1864; The Augustine Hymn-Book, 1865; The Minister, the Parent, and the Church: Inaugural Addresses, Bristol, 1866; The Philosophy of Happiness (including Crisis and Progress of Being), London, 1889; Homiletic Commentary on Acts of the Apostles, 1889; The Practical Philosopher: a Daily Monitor, 1873; Problematum Mundi, the Book of Job considered, 1878; editor of The Homilist, 1891–92; 50 vols.; and since of The Homiletic Library, in which have appeared his Book of the Psalms, exegetically and practically considered, 1892–83, 3 vols.; The Genius of the Fourth Gospel, 1894.

THOMAS, Jesse Burgess, D.D. (University of Chicago, 1860), Baptist; b. at Edwardsville, Ill., July 29, 1833; graduated at Kenyon College, Gambier, O., 1850; was admitted to the bar in Illinois, 1852; studied in Rochester Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1853–54; obliged to abandon his studies through ill health, he engaged in mercantile pursuits at Chicago, Ill., in 1862; he entered the Baptist ministry, and was pastor at Waukegan, Ill., 1862–64; of the Pierrepoint-street Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1864–68; of the First Church, San Francisco, Cal., 1868–69; of the Michigan-avenue Church, Chicago, 1869–74; has been pastor of the First Baptist Church of Brooklyn, N.Y., since 1874. He is the author of The Old Bible and the New Science, New York, 1877; The Mould of Doctrine, Philadelphia, 1883.

THOMPSON, Augustus Charles, D.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1860), Congregationalist; b. at Goshen, Litchfield County, Conn., April 30, 1812; educated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., with the class of 1835, but did not graduate; graduated from the Theological Seminary, Hartford, Conn., 1838; studied at the University of Berlin, 1838–39; ordained at Eliot Church, Roxbury, Mass., July 27, 1842; now senior pastor. He was associated with Rev. Dr. Rufus Anderson in a deputation to the missions of the A. B. C. F. M. in India, 1844–56; with Rev. Dr. N. G. Clark, as a delegate to the Missionary Conference in London, Eng., 1878; lecturer on foreign missions at Andover Theological Seminary (Mass.), 1877–80; at the Boston University (Mass.), 1882; and at Hartford Theological Seminary (Conn.), 1885–88. He is the author of Songs in the Night, Boston, 1845; Young Martyrs, 2d ed. 1848; Lambs Fed, 1849 (translated into Marathi, Bombay, 1858); Last Hours, 1851; Poor Widow, 1854 (translated into Tamil, Jaffna, Ceylon, 1858); The Better Land, 1854 (republished Edinburgh 1865, new ed. 1869); The Yoke in Youth, 1856; Gathered Lilies, 1858; Lambs Fed, 1859; Handwritten Minutes, 1860; Hours in Patmos, 1860; Lyra Celestia, 1863; The Mercy Seat, 1865 (republished London, 1864); Our Little Ones, 1867; Christus Consolator, 1867; Seeds and Sheaves, 1868; Discourse Commemorative of Rev. Rufus Anderson, D.D., 1880; Moravian Missions, New York, 1882; Happy New Year, 1883; Future Probation and Foreign Missions, 1886; various sermons, addresses, and articles in sundry periodicals.

THOMPSON, Right Rev. Hugh Miller, S.T.D. (Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1863), LL.D. (University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, 1865), Episcopalian, assistant bishop of Mississippi; b. in County Londonderry, Ireland, June 5, 1830; graduated B.D. from Nashotah Theological Seminary, Wis., 1852; was missionary and minister in Wisconsin, Illinois, and Kentucky, 1852–60; professor of church history at Nashotah, 1860–71, and during the same period editor of The American Churchman; rector of Christ Church, New-York City, 1872–76; editor of The Church Journal, 1871–79; rector of Trinity Church, New Orleans, 1876–83; consecrated assistant bishop of Mississippi, 1883. He is the author of Unity and its Restoration, New York, 1860, 15th thousand 1885; Sin and Penalty, 1862, 15th thousand 1885; First Principles, 1865, 20th thousand 1885; Absolution, 1872, last ed. 1885; Copy, 1872, 3d ed. 1873; The Kingdom of God, 1873, 15th thousand 1885; The World and the Logos (Bedell Lectures for 1885), 1886.

THOMPSON, William, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1847), Congregationalist; b. at Goshen, Conn., Feb. 17, 1806; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1827; since 1834 has been professor of Hebrew in Hartford Theological Seminary, Conn.; since 1861 emeritus and dean of the faculty.

THOMSON, Right Hon. and Most Rev. William, D.D. (Oxford, 1856), F.R.S., F.R.G.S., archbishop of York, primate of England, and Metropolitan, Church of England; b. at Whitehaven, Cumberland, Feb. 11, 1819; educated at Queen's College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (third-class classics) 1840, M.A. 1843, B.D. 1856; was ordained deacon 1842, priest 1843; was fellow, dean, bursar, tutor, and provost of his college, 1855–62; preacher to the Honorable Society of Lincoln's Inn, London, 1858–61; rector of All Saints, Marylebone, 1855–61; in 1861 was consecrated bishop of Gloucester and Bristol, and in 1863 translated to York. He was then professor of Church History at Oxford 1844 and 1856, and Bampton lecturer 1853. He is visitor of Queen's College, Oxford; elector of St. Augustine's College, Cambridge, and one of the lords of her Majesty's Most Honorable Privy Council. He is the author of The Atoning Work of Christ (Bampton Lectures), London, 1854; Sermons preached in Lincoln's Inn Chapel, 1860; Life in the Light of God's Word (sermons), 1868; Word, Work, and Will, 1879; Outline of the Laws of Thought, 1883.

THOMSON, William McClure, D.D. (Wabash College, Crawfordsville, Ind., 1858), Presbyterian; b. at Springfield (now Spring Dale), near Cincinnati, O., Dec. 31, 1806; graduated at Miami University, Oxford, O., 1826; studied at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1826–27; ordained an evangelist by Presbytery of Cincinnati, O., Oct. 12, 1831; was missionary in Syria and Palestine under A. B. C. F. M. and Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, 1835–48; 1849–54; 1855–64. He now resides in New-York City. He is the author of The Land and the Book, or Biblical Illustrations Drawn from the Manners and Customs, the Scenes and Scenery, of the Holy Land, New York, 1859, 2 vols. later editions; new ed. thoroughly revised and re-written, with numerous illustrations.
TOORENENBERGEN, Johan Justus van, theologian; b. at Hougham, June 13, 1825; graduated at Randolph Macon College, Ashland, Va., 1877, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1880; became member of Virginia Conference, Methodist-Episcopal, South; and pastor at Danville, Va., 1880; chaplain of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., 1882; adjunct professor of systematic theology in the same 1883, and full professor 1884. He is the author of various review articles.

TITCOMB, Right Rev. Jonathan Holt, D.D. (Cambridge, 1877), Church of England; b. in London, in the year 1819; educated at St. Peter's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (junior optime) 1841, M.A. 1844; ordained deacon 1842, priest 1843; was perpetual curate of St. Andrew the Less, Cambridge, 1845—50; secretary to the Christian Vernacular Education Society for India, 1859—61; vicar of St. Stephen, South Lambeth, London, 1861—76; rural dean of Clapham, 1870—76; vicar of Woking, 1876—77; consecrated first lord bishop of Rangoon, British Burmah, 1877; resigned his bishopric, 1882; became bishop coadjutor to Leiden, 1884; bishop of Southern and Central Europe, 1884. Since 1874 he has been honorary canon of Winchester. He is the author of Bible Studies as to Divine Teaching, London, 1857; Baptism: its Institution, Privileges, and Responsibilities, 1866; Revelation from Adam to Hal-lichten, London, 1878; British Burmah, and its Church Mission Work in 1878—79, 1880; Cautions for Doubters, 1880; Short Chapters on Buddhism Past and Present, 1883.

TOLLIN, Henri Guillaume Nathanael, Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1857), M.D. (Bonn, 1864), Reformed theologian; b. at Berlin, May 5, 1833; educated at Berlin and Bonn; was teacher in the French gymnasium in Berlin, 1859—62; preacher to the Reformed Church at Frankfurt-on-the-Oder, 1862; afterwards at Schulzendorf, near Lindow, 1857; he has been preacher to the French Reformed Church at Magdeburg. He established at Frankfurt-on-the-Oder and at Schulzendorf a fund for poor people, and at Magdeburg an educational union. He is the author of Biographische Beiträge zur Geschichte der Toleranz, Frankfurt-on-the-Oder, 1866; Ein Ahnherr der Hohenzollern, 1866; Geistliche Reden von Hauenstein, nebst Biografie, 1880; Geschichtet der französischen Kolonien in der Frankfurter Region, 1880; Geschichte der französischen Kolonien in Frankfurt a. d. Oder, 1868; H. W. Beecher's Geistliche Reden, nebst Biographie, Berlin, 1870; Luther and Servet, 1875; Melanchthon und Servet, 1876; Characterbild Michael Servet's, 1876 (translated into English, Hungarian, French, Italian, and Danish); Die Entdeckung des Blutkreislaufs, 1875; Das Lehreim Michael Servet's, Guthenhof, vols. i. ii., 1876; Mi. Villanovai Apologetica disceptatio, Berlin, 1880; Mi. Servet und Martin Butzer, 1880; William Harvey, 1880; Mateo Redalio Colombo, 1880; Harvey und seine Vorgänger, Erlangen, 1883; Cassiodore (1e Reina, Paris, 1883; Andreas Caesal, Bonn, 1880; Andreas Cesar, 1880; Andreas Kasal, 1880; Andreas Kassel, 1885; Geschichte der französischen reformierten Gemeinde zu Magdeburg, Itale, 1886—87; numerous articles in the Zeitschriften of Kauhau, Hilgenfeld, Hase, Kötlin, Guericke, Zöckler, Lehmann, von Rammer, Vichrow, von Holtzendorf, etc.; many on Servet.

TOORENENBERGEN, Johan Justus van, theologian; b. at Utrecht, Feb. 12, 1822; studied at TRENCH.

the University of Utrecht; became Reformed pastor at Elaephe 1844, Flessingen 1848; director of studies and secretary of the Mission Institute of Utrecht, 1864; pastor at Rotterdam, 1869; professor of ecclesiastical history in the University of Amsterdam, 1880. He is the author in Dutch of two volumes of sermons, minor works, and "A Page of the History of the Confession of the Reformed Church of the Netherlands," Amsterdam, 1861; "Dogmatic Theses relating to the Doctrine of the Reformed Church," 1852-55; "The Symbolical Books of the Reformed Church of the Netherlands" (critical text), 1869; "The Religious and Ecclesiastical Works of Ph. Marnix de Sainte Aldegond," 1871-78, 3 vols.; editor of the Marnix Society ("Documents relating to the History of the Reformed Church of the Netherlands prior to 1618") 1870-85, 10 vols.; "Monumenta reformationis Belgicae," tom. i., 1882.

TOUSEY, William George, Universalist; b. at Portage, N.Y., Sept. 22, 1842; graduated A.B. at Tufts College, College Hill, Mass., 1869, and divinity school 1871; since 1873 has been professor of history of the church at Mount Holyoke College, South Hadley, Mass.

TOWNSEND, Luther Tracy, D.D. (Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., 1871), Methodist; b. at Orono, Me., Sept. 27, 1838; graduated at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., 1859, and An- dover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1862; was professor of exegetical theology, Boston University, Mass., 1867-89, of historical theology 1889-73, and since of practical theology. He was adjunct of Sixteenth New-Hampshire Volunteers, 1863-64. Of his works may be mentioned, True and Pretended Christianity, Boston, 1869; Sword and Garment, 1871; God-Man, 1872; Credo, 1873; Outline of Theology, New York, 1873; Arena and Throne, Boston, 1874; Lost Forever, 1875; The Chinese Problem, 1876; The Supernatural Factor in Revivals, 1877; The Intermediate World, 1878; Elements of General and Christian Theology, New York, 1879; Fate of Republics, Boston, 1860; Art of Speech, vol. i., Studies in Poetry and Prose (1880), vol. ii., Studies in Eloquence and Logic (1881); Mosaic Record and Modern Science, 1881; Bible Theology and Modern Thought, 1883; Faith Work, Christian Science, and other Cures, 1885; Handbook upon Church Trials, New York, 1885.

TOY, Crawford Howell, A.M., Baptist; b. at Norfolk, Va., March 23, 1838; graduated A.M. at University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va., 1859; studied at Berlin, 1860-68; was professor of Old Testament interpretation in Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Greenville, S.C. (now Louisville, Ky.), 1899-79, and since 1880 of Hebrew in Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass. He is a "liberal conservative." He is the author of History of the Religion of Israel, Boston, 1882, 3d ed. 1884; Quotations in the New Testament, New York, 1884.

TRENCH, Francis Chenevix, Church of England; b. in Dublin, Ireland, July, 1800; d. at Burleigh, Hants, April 3, 1886. He was educated at Harrow and at Oriel College, Oxford (two second-class classics), 1823; B.A. 1834, M.A. 1839; ordained deacon 1835, priest 1836; curate of St. Giles, Reading, 1836; perpetual curate of St. John, Reading, 1837-75; rector of Iffley, Oxford, 1857-75. He was Hulsean lecturer at Cambridge, 1845-46; Portrait of Charity (exposition of 1 Cor. xiii.), 1846; Walk around All. Blanc, 1848; Life and Character of St. John the Evangelist, 1850; Job's Testament to Jesus, and the Resurrection of the Body, 1853; Theological Works (collected edition), 1857, 3 vols.; Few Notes from Past Life, 1862; Notes on the Greek of the New Testament, chiefly for English Readers, 1864; Four Ameze Sermons (preached in York Minster and Leeds's Parish Church), 1865; Ithipaita (miscellanea), 1869-70, 2 series.

TRENCH, Most Rev. Richard Chenevix, D.D. (Cambridge, 1856; Trinity College, Dublin, 1864), lord archbishop of Dublin, Church of Ireland; b. in Dublin, Ireland, Sept. 9, 1807; d. in London, March 28, 1886. He was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. 1829, M.A. 1833, D.D. 1850; was ordained 1832, priest 1833, became curate of Curridge 1835, and Alverstoke 1840; rector of Itchenstoke, Hants, 1845; dean of Westminster, 1856; archbishop of Dublin, Glandelagh, and Kildare, 1864; retired, 1884. He was Hulsean lecturer at Cambridge, 1845-46; chaplain to the bishop of Oxford (Wilberforce), 1847-64; professor of divinity in King's College, London, 1847-58. He was a devout and conservative High Churchman of the best type, but his theological writings are free from sectional bias. He had no special administrative ability, and therefore was only moderately successful as archbishop. He threw the weight of his influence against disestablishment. As a writer, he showed choice biblical, patristic, and modern Anglo-German learning, original thought, and a reverential and truly Christian spirit. He is one of the chief authorities on the English language.

TRECHSEL, Friedrich, D.D., Swiss theologian; b. at Bern, Nov. 30, 1805; d. there Jan. 30, 1885. He studied in the university of his native city, then in Paris, Gottingen, Halle, and Berlin. Of his teachers, Luecke of Gottingen and Neander of Berlin had the most influence upon his intellectual development. In 1829 he became chaplain of the city hospital at Bern, and guest-lecturer in the academy; in 1837 of the Ministry at Bern; in 1859; retired on a pension. He was the author of Uber den Kanon, die Kritik und Exegese, Bern, 1832; Johannes Philoponus (in Theologische Studien und Kriitiken, 1855); Die protestantischen Antitrinitarier vor Faustus Socin., Nach Quellen und geschichtlich durchsetzt (his chief work), Heidelberg, 1839-44, 2 vols. (vol. i., Michael Servet and seine Vorganger; vol. ii., Lelio Sozini und die Antitrinitarier seiner Zeit); Beitrage zur Geschichte der schweizerisch-reformirten Kirche, zunachst derjenigen des Kantons Bern, Bern, 1844; valuable articles in Herzog's Real-Encyclopddie, in the Berner Taschenbuch, etc. Cf. obituary notice by R. Ruetz in Meile's Theologische Zeitschrift aus der Schweiz, vol. ii. (Zurich, 1885), pp. 312-314.

TOUSEY, William George, Universalist; b. at Portage, N.Y., Sept. 22, 1842; graduated A.B. at Tufts College, College Hill, Mass., 1869, and divinity school 1871; since 1873 has been professor of history of the church at Mount Holyoke College, South Hadley, Mass.
TRUMBULL.

Henry Clay Trumbull, D.D. (Oxford, 1817), F.F.A., bishop suffragan of Nottingham, Church of England; b. at Caswick, Eng., April 15, 1817; educated at Christ Church, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1839, M.A. 1863; was ordained deacon 1840, priest 1841; was prebendary of Liddington in Lincoln Cathedral, 1867-74; since 1843 has been rector of Leasingham, with Roxholme, diocese of Lincoln; and bishop suffragan of Nottingham since 1877. He is the author of Illustrations of Ancient Art, London, 1854; Life of Pope Adrian IV., 1856; The captivity of John, King of France, 1857; A Handbook of Lincoln, 1857; Temple Bruer and the Templars, 1857; The introduction of Christianity into Lincolnshire, 1857; Labyrinths, Ancient and Medieval, 1858; Ornithological Memoirs, 1859; Fens and Submarine Forests, 1859; The Dunes in Lincolnshire, 1859; Memorabilia of Grimsby, 1859; The use and abuse of red bricks, 1859; The Roman house at Athorpe, 1859; The history of the Saxon Hereward, 1861; History of Anne Aske, 1862; Battle of Bosworth Field, 1862; Shadows of the past, 1863; The raising of the royal standard at Nottingham, 1864; Spilsby and other churches, 1865; Gainsborough and other churches, 1866; The Norman Sculptures of Lincoln Cathedral, 1869; Grantham and other churches, 1870; The Roman Ermine Street, 1869; The Norman and Early English Styles of Gothic Architecture, 1869; Boston and other churches, 1870; Newark and other churches, 1870; Newark Castle, 1871; The battle of Stoke, 1871; Sleaford and the Wapentakes of Flixfew and Asneratham, 1872; Holbeach and other churches, 1872; South Park Abbey, South and other churches, 1873; Churches in the neighbourhood of Grantham (1875), of Newark (1870), of Southwell (1877), of Grimsby (1878), of Stamford (1879); Church spires, 1875; Little St. Hugh of Lincolns, 1880; various sermons and charges.

TROUTBECK, John, D.D. (by archbishop of Canterbury, 1885), Church of England; b. at Blencowe, Cumberland, Eng., Nov. 12, 1832; educated at University College, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1856, M.A. 1858; was ordained deacon 1855, priest 1857; curate of St. Cuthbert, Wells, Somerset, 1855-58; vicar of Dacre, Cumberland, 1858-64; precentor and minor canon of Manchester, 1864-69; Sunday-evening lecturer of St. Matthew, Westminster, 1870-72; secretary of the New Testament Revision Company, 1870-81; has been since 1869 minor canon of Westminster, and since 1883 honorary chaplain to the Queen. He edited The Manchester Psalter and Chant-Book, London, 1867; Westminster Abbey Hymn-Book, 1883.

TRUE, Benjamin osgood, Baptist; b. at Plainfield, N.H., Dec. 17, 1845; graduated at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., 1866, and at Rochester (N.Y.) Theological Seminary, 1870; was pastor at Baldwinsville, N.Y., 1870-72; in Europe, 1872-73; pastor of First Baptist Church, Meriden, Conn., 1873-79; in Europe and the East, 1879-80; pastor of Central Baptist Church, Providence, R.I., 1880-81; since 1881 has been professor of ecclesiastical history in Rochester (N.Y.) Theological Seminary. He is the author of miscellaneous reviews, articles, etc.
TULLOCH, Very Rev. Principal John, D.D. (St. Andrew's, 1854), LL.D. (Glasgow and Edinburgh, 1844), Church of Scotland; b. near Tibermuir, Perthshire, June 1, 1828; d. at Torquay, Eng., Feb. 19, 1885. He was educated at St. Andrew's and Edinburgh; became parish minister at Dundee 1845, and at Keltins, Forfarshire, 1849; principal and primarius professor of divinity in St. Mary's College, St. Andrew's University, 1854; and senior principal of the university, 1860. His theological standpoint was thus defined by himself: "Broad evangelical. The aim is to see all Christian truth first in its pure historical form,—the mind of Christ, the thought of St. Paul, the teaching of St. James; then its living relation to the Christian consciousness,—what man needs, what God gives. The historic method, rightly applied, is the primary key to all Christian truth; and the renovation of theology is through this method bringing all Christian ideas freshly into the light of consciousness." He studied theology in Germany in 1847-18 and 1863-64. He was "especially attracted by Neander, and much interested by the problems raised by the Tübingen school and the writings of F. C. Baur, and was attracted in later years by Dean Stanley's historical writings and Bishop Lightfoot's critico-historical essays."

He was an ardent student of literature and philosophy, and his writings are very highly prized. He first came into notice when in Dundee, by his frequent contributions in the Dundee Advertiser; but later by his elaborate articles in American periodicals such as the British Review, The British Quarterly, and Kütö's Journal of Sacred Literature. Two of his articles—one on Carlyle's Life of Sterling (North-British Review, vol. iv., 1845), the other on Bussens's Hippolytus (the same, vol. xix., 1853)—attracted wide attention; and the latter pleased Bunsen. Bunsen that he successfully exerted his influence to press the claim of Mr. Tulloch to the then vacant principalship in St. Mary's College. His appointment when barely thirty years old to this position, one of the most dignified and responsible connected with the Established Church of Scotland, was naturally a great surprise and occasion of unfeigned joy. The senatus record their deep sense of the death of its honored and revered head, — the Very Rev. Principal Tulloch, who, for thirty-two years held the offices of principal and primarius professor of divinity in St. Mary's College, and for twenty-six years the office of senior principal in the university. During the whole of this period, Principal Tulloch devoted himself to the interests of the colleges and university with unwearied zeal and energy, and the successful management of university affairs under critical circumstances was largely due to his wisdom and tact, his sound public judgment, commanding influence, and great executive ability. As chairman of the university council, Principal Tulloch's thorough knowledge of academic questions, and capacity for directing their discussion into useful channels, were equally conspicuous. As vice-chancellor, Principal Tulloch represented the university on public occasions with unfailing dignity and distinction. As a permanent member of the university court, his knowledge of official procedure, and scrupulous care and impartiality in dealing with judicial questions, were, in its early years, of the greatest service in helping to define the powers, and develop the functions, of the newly established tribunal; while to the end they constituted an important element in guiding the deliberations of the court, and giving weight to its decisions. As a university reformer, Principal Tulloch combined an enlightened regard for the past with the keenest perception of the newest forces and requirements of social and national life. Having carefully studied the university system of the country, and been familiar with its working for nearly half a century, he was supremely anxious that any changes initiated by the universities, or undertaken by the legislature, should be fully considered in the interest of the public, so as to extend the usefulness, and strengthen the national position, of the universities. While keeping up the standard of attainment, he felt that it was desirable to give greater elasticity to the curriculum, and thus make the whole system more widely fruitful in solid educational results. As a member of the Central Board of Education, Principal Tulloch was engaged for several years in the re-organization and extension of primary schools, and in various efforts for the multiplication of good secondary schools. The removal of so able, earnest, and experienced an adviser and authority is a loss which will ever hold in affectionate regard the memory of his generous nature, his goodness of heart, the warmth and fidelity of his attachments, his loyal and kindly qualities as a colleague and a friend.

Principal Tulloch was the author of "Theism (second Burnett prize essay), Edinburgh, 1855; Leaders of Reformation, 1856, 3d ed. 1858; English Protestants and their Leaders, 1861; Beginning Life, 1862, 15th thousand 1880; The Christ of the Gospels, and the Christ of Modern Criticism (against Renan), 1864; Rational Theology and Christian Philosophy, 1872, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1873; Facts of Religion and Life (sermons preached before the Queen), 1876; Pascal, 1876, 2d ed. 1882; The Christian Doctrine of Sin, 1877; Modern Theories in Philosophy and Religion, 1884; Movements of Religious Thought in Britain during the Nineteenth Century, 1885; numerous contributions to the newspapers and periodicals of the day;

TUTTLE, Right Rev. Daniel Sylvester, D.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1857), Episcopalian, diocesan bishop of Missouri; b. at Windham, Greene County, N.Y., Jan. 26, 1837; fitted for college in Delaware Academy, Delhi, N.Y.; taught in a boys' boarding-school at Scarsdale, N.Y., 1858-54; entered the sophomore class, and graduated at Columbia College, New-York City, 1857; was special private tutor to many boys preparing for Columbia College, 1857-59; entered the General Theological Seminary in the same city 1859, and graduated 1862; was assistant minister of Zion Church, Morris, N.Y., 1862-63; rector of the same, 1863-67; consecrated missionary bishop of Montana, with jurisdiction in Utah and Idaho, May 1, 1867; lived at Virginia City (1867-68) and Helena (1868-69), both in Montana; since September, 1869, has resided in Salt Lake City; in October, 1886, by the setting apart of Montana for a separate diocese, became missionary bishop of Utah with jurisdiction in Idaho. In 1868, was elected bishop of Missouri, but declined; in 1886 re-elected and accepted. He is an "old-fashioned High Churchman, of the Bishop Hobart school."

TYERMAN, Luke, Wesleyan; at Osmotherley, North Riding of Yorkshire, Feb. 26, 1820:
TYLER.

TYLER, William Seymour, D.D. (Harvard College, Cambridge, 1857), LL.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1871), Congregationalist; b. at Harford, Penn., Sept. 2, 1810; graduated (second honor) at Amherst College, Mass., 1830; studied theology at Andover, 1831-32, 1834-35; spent winter of 1835-36 with Rev. Dr. Skinner, in the class out of which Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, was developed; was teacher in Amherst Academy, 1830-31; tutor in Amherst College, 1832-34; licensed to preach by the Third Presbyterian of New York, Jan. 29, 1836; ordained without charge by a Congregational Council held at Amherst, Oct. 6, 1859. He was professor of Latin and Greek in Amherst College, 1836-47; and since has been professor of Greek only. He was never a pastor, but has preached in his turn with the president and other professors in college, and often as supply in churches. He is the author of Germania and Agricola of Tacitus, with Notes for Colleges, New York, 1847, carefully revised 1852, revised and enlarged 1878; Histories of Tacitus, 1848; Prayer for Colleges (premium essay), 1854, revised and enlarged repeatedly; Plato's Apology and Crito, 1858, re-written and reprinted 1896; Memoir of Lobdell, Missionary to Assyria, Boston, 1859; Theology of the Greek Poets, 1867; Plutarch on the Delay of the Deity, etc. (with Prof. Hackett), N. Y., 1867; Address at Semi-Centennial of Amherst College, with other Addresses on that Occasion, 1871; History of Amherst College, 1873; Demosthenes, De Corona, Boston, 1874, numerous editions; Demosthenes, Philippica and Olynthiacs, 1875, numerous editions; Homer's Iliad, books xvi.-xxiv., New York, 1886; many articles, discourses, etc.

TYNG, Stephen Higginson, D.D. (Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1832; Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1851), Episcopalian; b. at Newburyport, Mass., March 1, 1800; d. at Irvington on the Hudson, Sept. 4, 1885. He graduated at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1817; was in business, 1817-19; studied theology from 1819-21; and then was successively rector at Georgetown, D.C., 1821-23; in Queen Anne Parish, Prince George's County, Md., 1823-29; of St. Paul's, Philadelphia, 1829-33; of the Church of the Epiphany, in the same city, 1833-45; of St. George's, New-York City, 1845-78, when he retired as pastor emeritus. He was for years one of the leaders of the Low Church party in his denomination, and was famous for eloquence and Christian zeal. He was prominent in the organization of the Evangelical Knowledge Society, the American Church Missionary Society, and the Evangelical Education Society. His temperance and patriotic addresses were memorable. He was a ready and polished platform-speaker, and much in demand. He edited for several years The Episcopal Recorder and The Protestant Churchman. He was the author of Lectures on the Law and the Gospel, Philadelphia, 1832, 6th thousand New York, 1854; Memoir of Rev. G. T. Biddle, Philadelphia, 1835, 2d ed. 1838; Sermons, 1839, republished as The Israel of God, 6th thousand New York, 1854; Recollections of England, New York, 1847; Christ is All (sermons), 1852, 4th ed. 1864; A Lamb from the Flock, 1852; Christian Titles, a Series of Practical Meditations, 1853; Fellowship with Christ, 1854; The Rich Kineman, or the History of Ruth, 1855; Memoir of Rev. E. P. J. Messenger, 1857; The Captive Orphan, Esther, Queen of Persia, 1859; Forty Years' Experience in Sunday Schools, 1860; The Prayer-Book illustrated by Scripture, 1865-67, 8 vols.; The Child of Prayer: a Father's Memorial of D. A. Tyng, 1869; The Reward of Meekness, 1867; The Feast Enjoyed, 1868; The Spencers, 1870; The Office and Duty of a Christian Pastor, 1874; many minor works, articles in periodicals, etc.
UHLHORN, Johann Gerhard Wilhelm, German Lutheran; b. at Osnabrück, Feb. 17, 1826; became repetend and privat-docent at Göttingen, 1852; consistorial councilor and court-preacher in Hanover, 1855; member of the consistory 1866, and abbot of Lokkum 1878. He is the author of Exponuntur librorum symbolicorum, Göttingen, 1848; Fundamenta chronologiae Tertullianae, 1852; Ein Seudbrief von Antonius Carinus an den Adel von Göttingen ... mit einer biographischen Einleitung, 1853; Die Homilien und Recognitionen des Clemens Romanus, 1854; Das basilidianische System mit besonderer Rücksicht auf die Angaben des Hippolytus, 1855; Urbanus Rhegius, Elberfeld, 1861; Zwei Bücher aus dem kirchlichen Leben der Stadt Hanover, Hanover, 1867; Das Weihnachtsfest, seine Sitten und Bräuche, 1869; Das römische Conceil, 1870; Der Kampf des Christenthums mit dem Heidenthum, Stuttgart, 1874, 3d ed. 1879 (English trans. by Profs. E. Smith and C. J. H. Ropes, The Conflict of Christianity with Heathenism, N.Y., 1879); Vermischte Vorträge über kirchliches Leben der Ver- gangenheit und der Gegenwart, 1875; Gnade und Wahrheit (sermones), 1876, 2 vols.; Die christliche Liebeshäigkeit: 1 Bd. Die alte Kirche, 1881 (Eng. tr., Edinb., 1883); 2 Bd. Das Mittelalter, 1884.

UPHAM, Francis William, LL.D. (Union College, O., 1872); layman; b. at Duxbury, Plymouth County, Mass., May 19, 1834; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1854; pastor of the leading Methodist-Episcopal churches in New England from 1856 to 1881, when he became professor of practical theology in Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N.J.

UPHORN, Anson Judd, D.D. (Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1870), LL.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1880), Presbyterian; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., Nov. 7, 1823; graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1843, where he was tutor 1845-49; professor of rhetoric, 1849-70; from 1870 to 1880 he was pastor of Second Presbyterian Church, Albany, N.Y.; but since has been professor of sacred rhetoric and pastoral theology in Auburn Theological Seminary, N.Y.; since 1874 he has been a regent in the University of the State of New York. He has published many addresses, sermons, and articles.
VAIL, Right Rev. Thomas Hubbard, D.D. (Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1858), LL.D. (University of Kansas, Lawrence, Kan., 1875), Episcopalian; b. in Richmond, Va., Oct. 21, 1812; graduated at Washington (now Trinity) College, Hartford, Conn., 1831, and at the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1835; and after ministerial service in St. James's Church, Philadelphia, and Trinity Church, Boston, he organized All Saints' Church, Worcester, Mass., 1836; became rector of Christ Church, Cambridge, Mass., 1837; of St. John's Church, Essex, Conn., 1839; of Christ Church, Westerly, R.I., 1844; of St. Thomas's Church, Taunton, Mass., 1857; of Trinity Church, Muscatine, Ia., 1863; first bishop of Kansas, 1864. As a Churchman he is evangelical, liberal, conservative. He edited, with memoir, Rev. Augustus Foster Lyte's Buds of Spring (poems, with additional poems of his own), Boston, 1838; and is the author of Plan and Outline, with Selection of Books under Many Heads, of a Public Library in Rhode Island, 1838; Hannah: a Sacred Drama (published anonymously), Boston, 1839; The Comprehensive Church, 1841, 3d ed. New York, 1883; Reports (of school committees in Massachusetts); sermons, charges, addresses, pastoral letters, etc.

VALENTINE, Milton, D.D. (Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., 1866), Lutheran (General Synod); b. near Unintown, Carroll County, Md., Jan. 1, 1825; graduated at Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Penn., 1856; became tutor in the college, 1856; pastoral supply, Winchester, Va., 1852; missionary at Allegheny, Penn., 1853; pastor at Greensburg, Penn., 1854; principal of Emmaus Institute, Middletown, Penn., 1855; pastor of St. Matthew's, Reading, Penn., 1859; professor of ecclesiastical history and church polity in the theological seminary of the Lutheran Church, Gettysburg, Penn., 1866; president of Pennsylvania College, 1868; has been president and professor of systematic theology in the Gettysburg Theological Seminary since 1884. He edited The Lutheran Quarterly, 1871-75, 1880-88. He is the author of Natural Theology, or Rational Theism, Chicago, 1885; numerous pamphlets and addresses; since 1855, frequent contributions in The Evangelical Review and in The Lutheran Quarterly.

VAN DYCK, Cornelius Van Alen, M.D. (Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, 1838), D.D. (Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1869), Reformed (Dutch); b. at Kinderhook, N.Y., Aug. 13, 1818; educated at Kinderhook Academy, and in medicine at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia; appointed missionary of the A. B. C. F. M. for Syria, 1839; sailed from Boston, January, 1840; arrived at Beirut, April 2, 1840; was ordained by Syrian Mission in council, Jan. 14, 1840; principal of Missionary Seminary, 1845-52; then missionary in the Sidon field till 1857; translator of the Bible into Arabic from 1857, and manager of the Mission Press 1857-80; physician to St. John's Hospital, and professor of pathology in the Syrian Protestant College, Beirut, till 1882; since then physician to St. George's Hospital. He is "broad Calvinistic" in his theology. He taught Hebrew in Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, while superintending the printing of his translation of the Arabic Bible at the American Bible Society, 1866-77. He translated into Arabic, the Westminster Assembly's Shorter Catechism, Beirut, 1843, last ed. 1884; Schönberg-Cotta Family, 1886; and is the author in Arabic of School Geography, Beirut, 1850, 3d ed. 1888; Algebra, 1853, 2d ed. 1877; Elements of Euclid, 1857; Treatise on Arabic Versification, 1857; Chemistry, Organic and Inorganic, 1859; Navigation, and Logarithms (with tables), 1873; Mensuration, Surveying and Navigation, 1873; Astronomy, 1874; Physical Diagnosis, 1874; Pathology, 1878; various tracts, etc.

VAN DYKE, Henry Jackson, D.D. (Westminster College, Mo., 1890), Presbyterian; b. at Abington, Montgomery County, Penn., March 2, 1822; graduated at University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 1843; studied at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1843-44; became pastor at Bridgeton, N.J., 1845; at Germantown, Penn., 1852; and in Brooklyn, N.Y., 1853. In 1876 he was moderator of the General Assembly at Brooklyn.

VAN DYKE, Henry Jackson, Jun., D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1884), Presbyterian; b. at Germantown, Penn., Nov. 10, 1852; graduated at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1873, and at Princeton Theological Seminary 1877, of which latter institution, since 1884, he has been a director. He studied in Berlin University; became pastor of the United Congregational Church, Newport, R.I., 1879, and of the Brick Presbyterian Church, New-York City, 1882. Besides contributions to various periodicals, he has published The Reality of Religion, N.Y., 1884, 2d ed. 1886.

VAN VLECK, Henry Jacob, bishop of the Unity (Moravian); b. in Philadelphia, Jan. 29, 1822; graduated at Moravian Theological Seminary, Bethlehem, Penn., 1841; was teacher in Nazareth Hall, Northampton County, Penn., 1841-44; in the Moravian Parochial School, Salem, N.C., 1845-48; in Nazareth Hall, 1849-50; principal of the Moravian Parochial School at Nazareth, Penn., 1850-66; was ordained deacon at Nazareth, Penn., 1863; presbyter at Lititz, Penn., 1867; pastor at South Bethlehem, Penn., 1866-74; at Gnadenhütten, Fry's Valley, and at Ross, O., 1874-82; at Fry's Valley, O., since 1882; consecrated a bishop, Sept. 18, 1881, being appointed by the Provincial Synod of 1881, and the Unity Elders' Conference in Berthelsdorf, Germany, both appointments being sanctioned by "the Lot." Both his grandfather and father were bishops; a fact unprecedented in the Moravian Church.

VAUGHAN, Very Rev. Charles John, D.D. (Cambridge, 1845), dean of Llandaff, Church of England; b. at Leicester, Aug. 6, 1816; became scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge; Craven University scholar; Porson prizeman, 1836-37; Browne's medallist for Greek ode and epigrams.
and Member's prizeman for Latin essay, 1837; chancellor medallist and B.A. (senior classic) 1836, M.A. 1841; was ordained deacon and priest 1841; was fellow of Trinity College, 1839–42; vicar of St. Martin, Leicester, 1841–44; head master of Harrow School, 1844–59; chaplain in ordinary to the Queen, 1851–79; vicar of Doncaster, and rural dean, 1860–69; chancellor of York Cathedral, 1860–71; select preacher at Cambridge 1861–62, and at Oxford 1875 and 1876. Since 1869 he has been master of the Temple, London; since 1878, dean of Llandaff; and since 1892, deputy clerk of the Closet. He was a member of the Cambridge University Commission 1883–92, and of the New Testament Revision Company 1870–81. He is the author of a number of volumes of sermons, parochial, academical, etc., and of St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans, London, 1859, 3d ed. 18–; Memorials of Harrow Sundays, 1859, 4th ed. 1885; Lectures on Philippians, London, 1853–55; The Revolutions of the Day: Lectures upon the Acts of the Apostles, 1868–69, etc. volumes of sermons, parochial, academical, etc., e.g., he Lesson Commentary on the International Sunday-School Lessons. —

VENABLES, Edmund, Church of England; b. in London, July 5, 1819; educated at Merchant Taylors School, July 5, 1830–38, and Pembroke College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. ( wrangler and second-class classical tripos) 1842, M.A. 1845; ordained deacon 1844, priest 1846; was curate to Archdeacon Julius C. Hare, at Herstmonceux, 1844–53; curate of Bonechurch, Isle of Wight, 1853–55; examining chaplain to John Jackson, D.D. (d. 1885), while bishop of Lincoln, and chaplain while bishop of London; since 1867 has been canon residuary and precentor of Lincoln Cathedral; since 1891, diocesan representative in the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. He is an Evangelical High Churchman. From childhood he has been devoted to architectural and archaeological pursuits: was one of the founders of the Cambridge Camden Society; one of the first members of the Archaeological Institute. He edited the Society's translation of Semitic literature, due to the Old Testament, London, 1889, 2 vols.; translated and edited Wieseler's Chronological Synopsis of the Four Gospels, 1876; edited, in the Clarendon Press series of English classics, Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, Grace Abounding, the Improvement of Mr. John Bunyan, Oxford, 1879; contributed articles Luke, Matthew, Mark, etc., to the Oxford Dictionary of the Bible, London, 1883; articles Catacombae, Corona, Ecclesiastical Painting and Sculpture, etc., to Smith and Cheetham's Dictionary of Christian Antiquities, 1875–80, 2 vols.; articles Basil, Chrysostom, Gregorius Nyssenus, Theoret, etc., to Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography, 1877–86, 4 vols.; on the Teaching of the Twelve Apostles, in British Quarterly, 1885;

VENABLES.

VOCCK, Wilhelm, Ph.D., Lic. Theol., D.D.(all Erlangen; 1850, 1861, 1870, respectively), German Lutheran; b. at Nuremberg, Nov. 18, 1835; studied at Erlangen and Leipzig, 1853–58; became pri tedocent at Erlangen, 1861; professor extraordinary of the Semitic languages in the theological faculty at Dorpat, 1862; ordinary professor, 1864. He is the author of Kalendarium syriacum auctore Caszwinio, Leipzig, 1859; Mosis canonicum cuenenum (Deut. xxxii.), Nördlingen, 1861; Im Mülls Lamiyat al afdil. Arabischer Text, Leipzig, 1865; Vatican Daniel, Dorpat, 1866; Der Chaldaer und seine neuesten Bekannt-

VOGEL, (Karl) Albrecht, German Protestant; b. in Dresden, Saxony, March 10, 1822; studied at Leipzig and at Berlin; became pri tedocent at Jena 1850, and later professor extraordinary; ordinary professor at Vienna, 1851. He is the author of Rathereus von Verona und das 10. Jahrhundert, Jena, 1854, 2 parts; Peter Damiani, 1859; Der Kaiser Dichletian, Gotua, 1853; Beiträge zur Herstellung der altgriechischen Bibel-Ubersetzung, 1859. From Vienna, 1871; De schoenen kerkelijke fur Allows, 1874; Der Segen Mosis untersucht und ausgeleyl, Erlangen, VOLKMAR.

1873; In wie weit ist der h. Schrift Irrthumslosigkeit zuzuschreiben? 1884, 2d ed. same year; Festrede, zur Jahresfeier der Stiftung der Universität Dorpat, 1884; Die Bibel als Kanon, 1885. He contributed sections Kanonik und Hermeneutik, to Zöckler's Handbuch, Nördlingen, 1883 sqq.; edited the ninth volume of Hofmann's Die heilige Schrift N. T. (Nördlingen, 1881), and with Mühlau the eighth to tenth editions of Gesenius' Heb. u. chald. Handw., Leipzig, 1878, 1882, 1886.

VOLKMAR, Gustav, Swiss Protestant; b. at Hersfeld, Hessia, Jan. 11, 1809; studied at Marburg, 1829-32; taught in various places; became privat-docent at Zürich 1853, professor extraordinary 1858, and ordinary professor 1863. He is the author of Das Evangelium Marcions, Leipzig, 1852; Über Justin den Märtyrer und Sein Verhältniss zu unsern Evangelien, Zürich, 1853; Die Quellen der Ketzergeschichte bis zum Nicäum, kritisch untersucht, 1855 (1st vol.); Die Religion Jesu und ihre Entwicklung, Leipzig, 1857; Das vierte Buch Ezra und apokalyptische Geheimnisse überhaupt, Zürich, 1858; Handbuch der Einleitung in die Apokryphen, Tübingen, 1860-68 (1st part); Commentar zur Offenbarung Johannes, Zürich, 1862; Der Ursprung unserer Evangelien, 1866; Mose Prophetie und Himmlsfahr, Leipzig, 1867; Die Evangelien des Marcus und die Synopses d. kan. u. ausserkan. Evangelien, mit Com., 1869, 2d ed. 1878; Zwingli, sein Leben und Wirken, Zürich, 1870; Die römische Papstmythe, 1873; Die Herkunft Jesu Christi nach der Bibel selbst, 1874; Die neuesten liturgischen Briefe erklärt, 1. Bd. 1875; Die Kanon. Synoptiker ... u. das Geschichtliche vom Leben Jesu, 1876; Jesus Nazarenus und die erste christliche Zeit, 1882; Die neuen deckte urchristliche Schrift "Lehre der Zwölfe Apostel," 1st and 2d ed. 1885; edited Polycarp Smyrnai epistola genuine, 1885.

VOYSEY, Charles, theist; b. in London, March 18, 1828; educated at St. Edmund Hall, Oxford; graduated B.A., 1851; held various curacies; was vicar of Healaugh, Yorkshire, 1864-71; deprived Feb. 11, 1871, in consequence of rationalistic views upon the Bible; and has since lectured and preached independently in London. His sermons are published weekly, and in several volumes under title, The Sting and the Stone, London, 1868, sqq., vol. viii., 1881; Mystery of Pain, Death, and Sin, 1879; also Fragments from Reimarus, vol. i., 1879.
WACE, Henry, D.D. (Oxford, 1839, Edinburgh, 1882), Church of England; b. in London, Dec. 10, 1836; educated at Brasenose College, Oxford; graduated B.A. (second class in classics and mathematics) 1860, M.A. 1873, B.D. 1882; was ordained deacon 1881, priest 1882; was curate of St. Luke's (1861-63), and of St. James's (1865-69), London; lecturer of Grosvenor Chapel, 1870-72; chaplain of Lincoln's Inn, 1872-80; Boyle lecturer, 1874-75; professor of ecclesiastical history in King's College, 1875-83; select preacher at Cambridge, 1875; Bampton lecturer at Oxford 1876, and select preacher 1876-82. Since 1880 he has been preacher at Lincoln's Inn; since 1881, prebendary in St. Paul's Cathedral; since 1883, chaplain to the archbishop of Canterbury, and principal of King's College; and since 1884, honorary chaplain in ordinary to the Queen. He is the author of Introduction to the Pastoral Epistles, in the Bible Commentary; and of Christianity and Morality (Boyle Lectures), London, 1876, 7th ed. 1886; The Foundations of Faith (Bampton Lectures), 1880, 2d ed. 1881; The Gospel and its Witnesses: some of the Chief Facts in the Life of our Lord, 1883, 2d ed. 1884; The Student's Manual of the Evidences of Christianity, 1889; joint editor with Dr. William Smith of A Dictionary of Christian Biography, Literature, Sects, and Doctrines, from the Time of the Apostles to the Age of Charlemagne, 1880-86, 4 vols.; with Professor Buchheim, of The First Principles of the Reformation, or the Primary Works of Luther, 1884; and alone of The Bible (Speaker's) Commentary on the Apocalypse, 1886, 2 vols.

WADDINGTON, Charles, French Reformed; b. in Paris, June 10, 1819; became doctor of letters in Paris, 1849; taught philosophy in the Sorbonne, 1850-58; at Strasburg, 1858-64; and since in the Paris faculty. Among his works may be mentioned Romas, sa vie, ses écrits, et ses opinions, Paris, 1855; Essais de logique (crowned by) the Acadeny, 1857; De l'âme humaine, 1862; De la philosophie de la Renaissance, 1872; De l'autorité d'Aristote au moyen âge, 1877. He is a founder of the Société de l'histoire du protestantisme français (1852), and a chevalier of the Legion of Honor (1866).

WAGENMANN, Julius August, German Protestant; b. at Berneck, Württemberg, Nov. 23, 1823; studied at Tübingen, 1841-45; was pastor at Blaubeuren 1846-50, and at Tübingen 1856-64; and since in the Paris faculty. Among his works may be mentioned Raman, sa vie, ses écrits, et ses opinions, Paris, 1855; Essais de logique (crowned by) the Acadeny, 1857; De l'âme humaine, 1862; De la philosophie de la Renaissance, 1872; De l'autorité d'Aristote au moyen âge, 1877. He is a founder of the Société de l'histoire du protestantisme français (1852), and a chevalier of the Legion of Honor (1866).

WALDEN, John Morgan, D.D. (Farmers' College, Belmont, O., 1865), L.L.D. (McKendree College, Ill., 1870), Methodist; b. at Lebanon, Warren County, O., Feb. 11, 1851; graduated at Farmers' (now Belmont) College, Hamilton County, O., 1852; was principal of the preparatory department of the same, 1852-54; editor, 1854-58; entered the ministry in the Cincinnati Conference, 1858; was pastor 1858-64 (in Cincinnati, O., 1860-64); corresponding secretary of the Western Freedmen's Aid Committee, 1865-66; corresponding secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Committee of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, 1866-67; presiding elder of the East Cincinnati district, 1867-89; agent of the Western Methodist Book Concern, Cincinnati, O., 1866-54; elected bishop, May 15, 1884. Since 1847 he has been identified with temperance reform. He was a prominent anti-slavery man; established in 1857 at Quindaro, Kan., a paper to promote Free State principles; was a member of the Topeka (Kan.) Legislative, and of the Leavenworth Constitutional Convention, and author of its address to the country; member of the Board of Education, Cincinnati; chairman of the Library Board after re-organization of the Public Library, in which he was active; sent teachers to the contrabands in the Mississippi Valley, early in 1863, and has been ever since officially connected with educational work in the South. He was a delegate to the General (Methodist-Episcopal) Conferences of 1868, 1872, and 1876; and to the Methodist Ecumenical Council, London, Eng., 1881.

WALDENSTRÖM, Paul Petter, Swedish Lutheran Church; b. at Luleå, a town in the northern part of Sweden, July 20, 1838; graduated as Ph.D. at the University of Upsala 1863; ordained 1864; became head master of gymnasium at Umeå 1864, and of that at Grefe 1874. He came into conflict with Lutheran Orthodoxy in 1872, upon the doctrine of the atonement, in regard to which he holds that the reconciliation through Christ is of us to God, not of God to us; not per gratiam proper Christum salviatio, but proper gratiam per Christum. The subject is God, the Father of Christ; the source is the love of God; the object is the whole world; the mediator is Christ, the only begotten God, the Son of God; the end is the restitution of men to God, not the redemption of God to men. His subsequent writings in defence of his position have excited great interest, and stirred up a great controversy. He is also a leader in the Free-Church movement in Sweden, and in consequence frequently prosecuted by the Upsala Consistory. He resigned his clerical position in the State Church in 1880. For baptizing two children in September, 1884, he was prosecuted by the Consistory, but by appeal to the king he was cleared. He is a member of the Swedish Parliament. His eloquence renders him an attractive and powerful preacher, and the Free-Church movement owes much to him. See M. W. Montgomery, A Wind from the Holy Spirit in Sweden and Norway, New York, 1884.] Of his numerous and highly popular writings, all in Swedish, may be mentioned, Sermons over the New Pericopes of the Swedish Church, Stockholm, 1858-60, 4 vols.; The Lord is Holy, 1876 (reprinted in Chicago, Ill.), and translated into German (Leipzig, 1877); The Eternal Decree of Election, 1880 sqq., 3 vols.; The History of Infant-Baptism; The New Testament, newly translated, with Notes, 1883 sqq.
WALKER, Right Rev. William David, S.T.D. (Racine College, Wis., 1883; Columbia College, New-York City, 1884). Episcopal, missionary bishop of North Dakota; b. in the city of New York, June 29, 1839; graduated at Columbia College, New-York City, 1855, and at the General Theological Seminary there 1862; as deacon, took charge of Calvary Chapel, New-York City, October, 1862; ordained priest, June 29, 1863; remained in charge of Calvary Chapel until Feb. 1, 1884, when he resigned to enter upon his episcopate to which he was elected October, 1883; consecrated bishop, Dec. 20, 1888. He is the author of Funeral Address, New York, 1888; Convocation Address, 1884.

WALSH, Right Rev. William Pakenham, D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1873), lord bishop of Ossory, Ferns, and Leighlin; b. in Ireland, about the year 1820; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; graduated B.A. 1841, M.A. 1853, B.D. 1873; ordained deacon 1843, priest 1844; became curate of Avoca, 1843; of Rathdrum, 1845; chaplain of Sandford, 1853; dean of Cashel, 1873; bishop, 1878. He is the author of Christian Missions and Christian Missions in the United States, 1870; Love for Jesus, 1871; The Mobile Stone, 1872, 2d ed. 1873: "Put me in Remembrance:" Prayers, 1872; The Forty Days of Fasting, and their Teachings, 1875; Daily Readings for Holy Seasons, Advent to Epiphany, 1875; Ancient Monuments and Holy Writ, 1875, 2d ed. 1878; Heroes of the Mission-Field, 1878, 2d ed. 1882; The Decalogue of Charity, 1882.

WALTHER, Carl Ferdinand Wilhelm, D.D. (Capital University, Columbus, O., 1877), Lutheran (Missouri Synod); b. at Langenbursdorf, Saxony, Oct. 25, 1811; graduated at the University of Leipzig 1833; emigrated in 1838; and since 1849 has been professor of theology, and president of Concordia Seminary, and pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran joint congregation, St. Louis, Mo. [He is the founder and leader of the Missouri Synod, the most orthodox branch of the Lutheran Church in America, and which has grown very rapidly since its founding, and which has an unbroken connection with the Church in Europe.]

WAVD, Julius Hammond, Episcopal; b. at Lexington, Ky., Nov. 5, 1851; graduated at the University of Washington, Seattle, 1871; has been superintendent of The Modern Church, and The Bible in Modern Thought (both preparing); and numerous articles, etc.

WARD, William Hayes, D.D. (University of New-York City, and College of New Jersey, Princeton, both 1873), L.L.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1885), Congregationalist; b. at Abington, Mass., June 25, 1835; educated at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and at Amherst College, Mass.; graduated B.A., 1856; studied in Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1856—57; in the Sheffield Scientific School, New Haven, Conn., 1857; was tutor in Beloit College, Wis., 1857—58; in Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1858—59 (graduated); was pastor at Oakalossa and Grasshopper Falls, Kan., 1859—60; of the Episcopal Church in Easthampton, Mass., 1861; at Utica, N.Y., 1862—67; professor of Latin, Ripon College, Wis., 1865—67; associate editor New-York Independent, 1868—71; has been superintendent of the World's Missionary Society, 1871—81. He was editor of the World's Exploration to Babylon, 1894—95. He edited (with Mrs. Lanier) Sidney Lanier's Poems, New York, 1894; has contributed to Bibliotheca Sacra, Journal American Oriental Society, Proceedings Palestine Exploration Society, etc.

WARGEL, Benjamin Breckinridge, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1880); Presbyterian; b. at Lexington, Ky., Nov. 5, 1851; graduated at Princeton College 1871, and Theological Seminary 1876; since 1879 has been professor of New Testament language and literature at Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn. He has written several review articles.
WARNER, Israel Perkins, D.D. (Iowa College, Grinnell, Ia., 1868). Congregationalist; b. at Bethany, Conn., April 8, 1814; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1838; principal of Cromwell (Conn.) Academy, 1838-39; studied at Yale Theological Seminary, 1839-40; became pastor at Granby, Conn., 1842; Mt. Carmel, Conn., 1848; Pastoral Missions and Travel, editor of The American Tract Society, Boston, 1859; editor and book publisher in Boston, 1870; editor of The Christian Mirror, of Maine, October, 1875; editor and proprietor of the same, Portland, Me., April 1, 1877. In 1839, when the controversies on slavery, which at length eventuated in the civil war, were at their height, the American Tract Society of Boston withdrew from its connection with the society of the same name at New York, and commenced a distinct publication work of its own. Dr. Warren, who had some editorial experience in connection with his work for seamen, was chosen secretary of the Boston society, in charge of its publication department. In this capacity he served eleven years, until May, 1850, when, the causes which led to the separation of the two societies having disappeared, it was deemed advisable to re-unite them, and transfer the publishing work and material of the Boston society to that of New York. During this period a very large number of tracts, books, and periodicals, were issued under his editorial care. The Tract Journal and Child at Home were published for families, and for several years The Sabbath at Home, an illustrated monthly magazine. The Christian Banner was distributed in great numbers in the army and navy. The Freedman and The Freedman's Journal were small monthly sheets for the use of the emancipated blacks. About five hundred different tracts and pamphlets were issued, and five hundred and twenty-five volumes of various sizes, making an aggregate, including periodicals, of 53,672,276 copies. In addition to the ordinary uses of this class of publications, there was a very wide distribution among the soldiers and sailors in service; and another, more limited and specially provided for them, among the freedmen, to aid in the inceptive stages of their education. The entire cost of these publications, from May 1, 1859 to May 1, 1870, was $1,002,997.06. Dr. Warren is the author of the following publications: Sermons, On Female Education (Hartford, 1852), On the Death of Mrs. Mary Langdon of Plymouth (June, 1853), On Finished Work; Pastoral Valedictory (January, 1856). Tracts and pamphlets, A Corpse in a Ball-dress (Boston, 1859), The Pemberton Mill (1860), How to Begin to be a Christian (1861), A Happy New Year (1864), The Flag of Our Country (1864), The Death of the Soul (1867, pp. 28), How to Repent (1867, pp. 31), How to Be a Christian Baptism, Parkersburg, W. Va., 1864; Rise and Progress of the United Brethren Church, 1865; Life and Times of Rev. Jacob Bachtel, Dayton, O., 1887; The Roman Catholic not a True Christian Church, Parkersburg, W. Va., 1886.

WARNER, Zebedee D.D. (Otterbein University, Westerville, O., 1879), United Brethren in Christ; b. in Pendleton County, Va. (now in West Virginia), Feb. 28, 1833; studied at Clarksburg (Va.) Academy, left in 1852; graduated in Chautauqua Sunday-School Normal Course, 1879; entered on pastoral work, 1854, was presiding elder, 1862-69; in charge of church at Parkersburg, W. Va., 1869-80; presiding elder of the district, 1880-85; elected corresponding secretary of the General Missionary Society, 1885. He has been seven times to the General Conference; was for two years president of the Eastern Sunday-School Assembly; was for eight years teacher of theology in Parkersburg Conference; has been since 1858 a trustee of Otterbein University. He is the author of Christian Baptism, Parkersburg, W. Va., 1884; Rise and Progress of the United Brethren Church, 1865; Life and Times of Rev. Jacob Bachtel, Dayton, O., 1887; The Roman Catholic not a True Christian Church, Parkersburg, W. Va., 1886.

WARNER, Henry White, D.D. (Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1872), bishop of the Methodist-Episcopal Church; b. at Massachusetts, 1811; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1833; taught natural science at Amenia, N.Y., and ancient languages at Wilbraham, Mass.; joined the New-England Conference in 1855, as at Richmond, Va., Westfield, Lynn, Bourne, Worcester, Charlestown, Cambridge, twice in Boston, all Mass.; was transferred to Philadelphia Conference, 1871; to New-York East, 1874; to Philadelphia, 1877; elected bishop, 1880. He was in evangelical work in the South, 1880-84; was delegate to Pan-Methodist Council in London, 1881. He is the author of Sights and Insights (travels in Europe and the East), New York, 1874; Recreations in Astronomy, 1870.

WARREN, William Fairfield, D.D. (Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, 1862), LL.D. (Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1874), Methodist, b. at Westfield, Mass., March 13, 1833; graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1853; entered the Methodist ministry, 1854; studied at Berlin and Halle, and travelled in Europe and the East, 1856-58; was professor of systematic theology in the Methodist Missionary Institute at Bremen, 1861-66; acting president of Boston Theological Seminary, and professor of systematic theology, 1866-71; dean of the School of Theology, Boston University, 1871-73; since 1873 has been president of Boston University, and professor of comparative history of religions, comparative theology, and philosophy of religion. He is the author of Anfangsgriine, 1868; Systematische Theologie, 1 Thel., 1865; Paradise Found; the Cradle of the Human Race at the North Pole: a Study of the Prehistoric World, Boston, 1885, 5th ed. same year; and many reports, pamphlets, articles, etc. See list in Wesleyan University Alumni Record.

WASHBURN, George, D.D. (Amherst College, Mass., 1874), Congregationalist; b. at Middleborough, Mass., March 1, 1838; graduated at Amherst College, Mass., 1855; studied in Andover Theological Seminary, 1855-56; from 1858 to 1868 was missionary of A.B.C.F.M. in Turkey, and since 1869 has been president of Robert College, and professor of philosophy and political economy, Constantinopole. Circumstances brought him into very intimate relations with the political events in Europe connected with the last Russo-Turkish war, and secured him the personal friendship of many English statesmen. The first Bulgarian parliament passed a resolution thanking him for what he had done to secure liberty for Bulgaria and for the elevation of the Bulgarian people. He is a commissioner of the Order of St. Alexander (Bulgaria). He has contributed to American periodicals under his own name, and also much for English reviews under assumed names.

WATSON, Right Rev. Alfred Augustin, D.D. (University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N.C., 1868; University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1884), Episcopalian, bishop of East Carolina; b. in New-York City, Aug. 21, 1818; graduated at the University of the City of New York, 1857; admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, 1841; ordained deacon in the diocese of New York, 1844; ordained priest in the diocese of North Carolina, 1845; in charge of Grace Church, Plymouth, N.C., and St. Luke's, Washington County, N.C., 1844-58; rector of Christ Church, New Berne, N.C., 1858-65; chaplain in the Confederate Army, 1861-62; in charge of St. James's Parish, Wilmington, N.C., 1863-84; consecrated bishop, 1884. He is the author of The Anti-Nicene Apologies, Cambridge, 1870; Defenders of the Faith, 1878; The Law and the Prophets (Hulsean Lectures), 1883.

WATSON, Frederick, Church of England; b. in York, Oct. 13, 1844; educated at St. John's College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (twelfth wrangler) 1868, M.A. 1871, B.D. 1884; was ordained deacon 1871, priest 1872; was first-class theological and Hulsean prizeman, 1869; Carus Greek Testament prizeman and Hulsean scholar, 1870; first Tyrwhitt scholar, 1871; fellow of St. John's College, 1871-78; theological lecturer, 1874-78; Hulsean lecturer, 1882; since 1878 he has been rector of Starston, Norfolk. He is the author of The Ante-Nicene Apologies, Cambridge, 1870; Defenders of the Faith, 1878; The Law and the Prophets (Hulsean Lectures), 1883.

WATTS, Robert, D.D. (Westminster College, Missouri, 1865), Irish Presbyterian; b. at Moneylane, County Down, Ireland, July 10, 1820; graduated at Washington College, Lexington, Va., 1849, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1852; became pastor in Philadelphia, Penn., 1853, and in Dublin, Ireland, 1863; and in 1866, professor of systematic theology, Assembly's College, Belfast, Ireland. He is the author of Calvin and Calvinism, Edinburgh, 1868; Utilitarianism, Belfast, 1868; What is Presbyterianism? 1870; Prelatic Departures from Reformation Principles, Edinburgh, 1871; Arminian Departures from Reformation Principles, 1871; Atomism, Belfast, 1874; Herbert Spencer's Biological Hypothesis, 1875; Atomism, London, 1875; The Doctrine of Eternal Punishment, Belfast, 1877; The New Apologetics, Edinburgh, 1879; The Newer Criticism, 1881; The Rule of Faith and the Doctrine of Inspiration, London, 1885.

WAYLAND, Heman Lincoln, D.D. (Brown University, Providence, R.I., 1869), Baptist; b. (son of President Francis Wayland) at Providence, R.I., April 23, 1830; graduated in Brown University there, 1849; studied at Newton Theological Institution, Mass., 1849-50; taught the academy at Townsend, Vt., 1850-51; was resident grad-WELLES, Jonathan, D.D. (Otterbein University, Westerville, 1873), bishop of the United Brethren in Christ; b. in Carroll County, O., Feb. 29, 1824; raised on a farm; educated in common schools and Hagerston Academy, O.; began preaching when twenty-one; was pastor, 1847–52; presiding elder, 1852–57; general agent for Otterbein University, 1857–65; bishop since 1865; elect in five times; now in Ohio diocese.

He is the author of Discourses on the Resurrection, Dayton, O., 1871, two editions; Ministerial Sobery, 1873, two editions; Der Pilgrimische Lehrbegriff, 1873, three editions; Universal Restoration not sustained by the Word of God, 1878, two editions.

WEIDNER, Revere Franklin, b. at Centre Valley, Lehigh County, Penn., Nov. 22, 1831; graduated at Muhlenberg College, Allentown, Penn., and at the Evangelical Lutheran Theological Seminary at Philadelphia; pastor at Phillipsburg, N.J., 1873–78; also professor of English and history at Muhlenberg College, 1875–77; pastor at Philadelphia, 1878–82; and since 1882 professor of dogmatics and exegesis at Augustana Theological Seminary (Swedish Lutheran), Rock Island, Ill. He is a member of the American Philological Association, of the American Oriental Society, and of the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis; author of a Commentary on Mark (Philadelphia, 1881), and of a Theological Encyclopaedia (Part I., Introduction, and exegetical Theology, Philadelphia, Penn.; 1882, Part II., Historical and Critical Theology of the Old Testament, Chicago, 1886), and a frequent contributor to reviews and the religious press.

WEIFFENBACH, Ernst Wilhelm, German Protestant; b. at Bornheim, Rheinland, May 25, 1842; studied at Giessen, Utrecht, and Heidelberg, 1859–65; became privaat-docent at Giessen, 1866; professor extraordinary, 1871; professor in the Prediger-seminar of Hesse Darmstadt, 1882. He is the author of Exegetisch-theologische Studien über Jakobus ii. 14–26, Giessen, 1871; Der Wiederkunftsgedanke Jesu, Leipzig, 1873; Das Papias-Fragment bei Eusebius, Giessen, 1874; Die Papias-Fragmente über Marcus u. Matthäus, Berlin, 1876; Zur Auslegung der Stelle Phil. ii. 5–11, Carlachu, 1884; *.

WEINGARTEN, Hermann, German Protestant; b. in Berlin, March 12, 1834; studied at Jena and Berlin; became privaat-docent at Berlin, 1862; professor extraordinary, 1863; ordinary professor at Marburg 1873, and at Breslau 1876. He is the author of: Pascals Apologia des Christenthums, Leipzig, 1863; Die Revolutionen Englands, 1868; Zeittafeln zur Kirchengeschichte, Berlin, 1870, 2d ed. Leipzig, 1874; Der Ursprung des Mönchthums im nachconstantinischen Zeitalter, Gotha, 1877; and editor of Richard Rothe's Fortsetzungen über Kirchengeschichte, Tübingen, 1875, 2 parts. *.

WEISS, Bernhard, D.D., German Protestant; b. at Königsberg, June 20, 1827; studied there and at Halle and Berlin; became privaat-docent at Königsberg, 1862; professor extraordmary, 1871; ordinary professor at Kiel 1883, and at Berlin 1877, where, since 1880, he has been superior consistorial councilor, and councilor to the department of spiritual affairs. He is the author of Der petrinsche Lehrbegriff, Berlin, 1855; Der Philippbrief, 1859; Der johanneseiche Lehrbegriff, 1862; Lehrbuch der biblischen Theologie des N. T., 1868, 4th ed. 1884; Das Marcusevangelium und seine synoptischen Parallelen, 1872; Das Mattäuseregelium und seine Lucas-Parallelen, Ilale, 1876; Ueber die Bedeutung der geschichtlichen Betrachtung für die neuere Theologie, Kiel, 1876 (pp. 21); Das Leben Jesu, Berlin, 1882, 2 vols. 2d ed. 1884 (English trans. London, 1885, 2 vols.); Word of God, 1878, two editions.

WEIZSÄCKER, Karl (Heinrich) von, German Protestant; b. at Ohringen, Württemberg, Dec. 11, 1822; became privaat-docent of theology 1847, preacher 1848, and court chaplain 1851, at Stuttgart; superior consistorial councillor, 1857; and in 1861 Baur's successor in the theological faculty at Tübingen. From 1856 to 1876 he edited the Jahrbücher für deutsche Theologie, and in it wrote numerous articles. He is also the author of Zur Kritik des Barnabasbriefes aus dem Codex Sinaiticus, Tübingen, 1863; Untersuchungen über die evangelische Geschichte, Gotha, 1884; Lehrer und Unter richt an der evangelisch-theologischen Facultät der Universität Tübingen von der Reformation bis zur Gegenwart, Tübingen, 1877.

WELCH, Ransom Bethune, D.D. (University of City of N.Y., and Rutgers College, 1883), L.L.D. (Maryville College, Tenn., 1872), Presbyterian; b. at Greenville, N.Y.; graduated from Union College 1846, and from Auburn Theological Seminary 1852; was (Reformed Dutch) pastor at Gilboa 1854–56, and at Catskill, N.Y., 1856–59; professor of rhetoric, logic, and English literature in Union College, New York, 1866–70, and since 1876 of theology in Auburn Theological Seminary. He is the author of Faith and Truth, New York, 1876, 2d ed. 1890; Outlines of Christian Theology, 1881; and numerous articles in periodicals.

WELLES, Right Rev. Edward Randolph, S.T.D. (Racine College, Wis., 1874), Episcopal, bishop of Wisconsin; b. at Waterloo, Seneca County, N.Y., Jan. 10, 1830; graduated at Hobart Col-
WESTCOTT, Brooke Foss, D.D. (Cambridge, 1870; hon., Edinburgh, 1884), D.C.L. (hon., Oxford, 1881), Church of England; b. near Birmingham, Jan. 12, 1825; was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; Battie University scholar, 1846; Browne medallist for Greek ode, 1846—47; Latin essay (Undergraduate Bach.), 1847, 1849; B.A. (equal senior classic, twenty-second wran ler, Latin essay) 1847; M.A. 1851, B.D. 1854; was ordained deacon and priest, 1851; was elected fellow of Trinity College, 1849; was Nor risian prizeman, 1850; assistant master at Harrow School, 1852—59; examining chaplain to the bishop of Peterborough, 1868—69; canon residuary, 1869—83; rector of Somersham with Pidley and Colne, Hunts, 1866; honored by the coronation of Queen, 1875—79; select preacher at Oxford, 1877— 80. Since 1870 he has been regius professor of divinity, Cambridge; since 1879, chaplain in ordinary to the Queen; since 1882, fellow of King's College, Cambridge; since 1883, examining chap lain to the archbishop of Canterbury; and since 1884, canon of Westminster. In May, 1885, he declined the deanship of Lincoln. He was a member of the New-Testament Revision Company (1870—81), is a contributor to the Bible (Speaker's) Commentary (Gospel of John), to Smith's Dictionary of the Bible and of Christian Biography; and is the author of Elements of Gospel Harmony, Cambridge, 1851 (Norrisian essay); A General Survey of the History of the Canon of the New Testament during the first four centuries, Lon don, 1855, 5th ed. 1881; Characteristics of the Gospel Miracles, 1859; Introduction to the Study of the Gospels, 1890, 6th ed. 1892; The Bible in the Church, 1864, 9th ed. 1885; The Gospel of the Resurrection, 1868, 5th ed. 1884; A General View of the History of the English Bible, 1888; Christian Life Manifest and One (sermons), 1872; Some Points in the Religious Office of the Universities, 1873; The Paragraph Psalter, arranged for the use of chairs, Cambridge, 1879, 2d ed. 1881; The Revelation of the Risen Lord, London, 1882; The Gospel according WESTON. 234

WHITTON.

to St. John (from Bible Comm.), 1882, 2d ed. 1884; The Historic Faith (lectures on the Apostles' Creed), 1883, 3d ed. 1885; Epistles of St. John, Greek Text, Notes, and Essays, 1888, 2d ed. 1888; Revelation of the Father: titles of the Lord, 1884. Conjointly with Rev. Prof. Dr. H. S., he edited The New Testament in the Original Greek, 1st and 2d ed. 1881, 2 vols.; school edition of text alone, 1885. [See H. T.]

WESTON, Henry Griggs, D.D. (University of Rochester, N. Y., 1859), Baptist; b. at Lynn, Mass., Sept. 11, 1820; graduated at Brown University, Providence, R. I., 1840, and at Newton Theological Institution, Mass., 1843; after serving as pastor from 1843 to 1868, he became president of Crozer Theological Seminary, Pennsylvania.

WHEDON, Daniel Denison, D.D. (Emory and Henry College, 1847), LL.D. (Wesleyan University, 1868); b. at Onondaga, N.Y., March 20, 1808; d. at Atlantic Highlands, N. J., June 8, 1885. He graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., 1828; studied law at Rochester, N. Y.; became a teacher in Oneida (N. Y.) Conference Seminary; a tutor in Hamilton College, 1831; professor of ancient languages and literature in Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1883; Methodist pastor, 1844; professor of rhetoric, logic, and history, in the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, 1844; again in the pastorate, at Jamaica, L. I., N. Y., 1855; elected by General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, editor of The Methodist Quarterly Review, 1856, and re-elected quadrennially until May, 1884, when his health, which had long been feeble, forbade his continued holding of the position. He was a man of learning, literary ability, and great industry. He was the author of Public Addresses, Collegiate and Popular, Boston, 1856; Commentary on Matthew and Mark, New York, 1860; The Freedom of the Will, as a Basis of Human Responsibility, elucidated and maintained in its issue with the Necessitarian Theories of Hobbes, Edwards, the Princeton Essaysists, and other Leading Advocates, 1864, 3d ed. same year; Commentary on the New Testament: intended for popular use, 1860-75, 5 vols.; and a Comment on a Commentary on the Old Testament, 1880 sqq., of which the seventh vol. (Jeremiah) appeared in 1886; published many single sermons and addresses, contributions in the Bibliotheca Sacra, and other periodicals, etc.

WHEELER, David Hilton, D.D. (Cornell College, Mount Vernon, Ia., 1887), LL.D. (Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., 1881), Methodist; b. at Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 15, 1829; graduated at Rock-River Seminary, Mount Morris, Ill., 1851; tutor in same, 1851-53; professor of ancient languages, Cornell College, Mount Vernon, Ia., 1853-55; editor of Carroll County Republican, 1855-57; superintendent of Carroll County schools, 1855-57; professor of Greek, Cornell College, 1857-61; United-States consul, Genoa, Italy, 1861-66; war correspondent in Austro-Italian war, 1866; commissioner of correspondence of New-York Tribune, 1866-67; professor of English literature, Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., 1867-75; editor of The Methodist, New York, 1875-82; president of Allegheny College, Meadville, Penn., 1883 to date. He has written extensively for the periodical press, etc. He is the author of Age in South Italy, London, 1884, 2 vols.; Celestia's Conspiracy of Fieschi (translation), 1886; By-Ways of Literature, New York, 1883.

WHIPPLE, Right Rev. Henry Benjamin, A.M. (hon., Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., 18—), D.D. (Racine College, Wis., 1859), Episcopal; b. at Adams, Jefferson County, N. Y., Feb. 15, 1822; educated at private schools, but prevented by ill health from entering college; engaged in business; became a candidate for orders, 1847; rector of Zion Church, Rome, N. Y., 1849; of the Church of the Holy Communion, Chicago, Ill., 1857; bishop, 1858. He has written tracts and letters on the Indian policy of the United States.

WHITAKER, Right Rev. Ozi William, D.D. (Kenyon College, Gambier, O., 1866), Episcopal; assistant bishop of Pennsylvania; b. at New Salem, Mass., May 10, 1830; studied in Amherst College, Mass., 1851-52; graduated from Middlebury College, Vt., 1856, and from the General Theological Seminary, New York City, 1863; became missionary in Nevada, 1863; rector of St. Paul's Church, Binglewood, N. J., 1865; of St. Paul's Church, Virginia City, Nev., 1867 to 1886; missionary bishop of Nevada, 1869; assistant bishop of Penn., 1886. Author of Occasional Sermons.

WHITE, Erskine Norman, S.T.D. (University of the City of New York, 1874), Presbyterian; b. in New-York City, May 31, 1839; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1854, and at Union Theological Seminary, N. Y. City, 1857; became bishop at Richmond, Staten Island, N. Y., 1859; New Rochelle, 1862; Buffalo, 1868; New York (W. 23d St.), 1874. In 1886 he became corresponding secretary of the Board of Church Erection of the Presbyterian Church. He has written several review articles, etc., and a history of the West Twenty-third Street Church.

WHITHEAD, Right Rev. Cortlandt, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., 1880), Episcopal; bishop of Pittsburgh; b. in New-York City, Oct. 30, 1842; graduated at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1867; at Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1863; and at Philadelphia Divinity School, 1867; became missionary at Black Hawk and Georgetown, Col., 1867; rector of the Church of the Nativity, South Bethlehem, Penn., 1870; bishop, 1882. He was assistant secretary of Diocesan Convention of Central Pennsylvania, 1872-81; contributed to several articles in the Catholic Encyclopedia, and was a trustee of St. Luke's Hospital, Lehigh University, and Bishophopse Church, South Bethlehem; trustee of Western University, Pittsburgh, Penn.

WHITON, James Morris, Ph.D. (Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1881), Congregationalist; b. in Boston, Mass., April 11, 1833; educated in Boston Latin School, and graduated at Yale College 1853; was rector of Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, Conn., 1854-64; pastor of the First Congregational Church, Lynn, Mass., 1865-69; of the North Congregational Church, Lynn, 1869-75; principal of Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass., 1876-79; of the First Congregational Church, Newark, N. J., 1879-85; acting pastor of the Trinity Congregational Church, Trenton, N. J., 1886. His theological standpoint is that of a Trinitarian Christian evolutionist; regarding the Trinity, interpreted through the principle of the divine immaturity as the fundamental and comprehensive article of faith. Creation, revelation, and judgment are eternal Divine processes, all manifested in the world of the past, present, and future. Redemption is essentially a constructive rather than a reconstructive process. Atonement is the Divine process of the reconcili-ation of man to God, by an expiatory satisfaction—mediated through the historical experience of the Christ, producing an adequate repentance—to that which is of God in conscience. The norm of conscience for faith, duty, and hope, is in the Holy Scriptures, whose authority as a divine revelation centres in the living Word of God, the Christ, speaking therein. The promised advent of the Christ is now being progressively realized in the life of the world that now is, and the resurrection likewise in the life of the world to come. He is the author of Latin Lessons, Boston, 1860; Greek Lessons, New York, 1861; Select Orations of Lytias, Boston, 1865, 2d ed. 1881; "Is Eternal Punishment Endless?" 1876, 2d ed. 1877 (maintaining that endless punishment is not decisively revealed in the New Testament: it raised a question of conscience for the Christian community, a historical process rather than a reconstructive process, which was decided in his favor by a council in Newark, 1879, twenty-eight to three, cf. stenographic report in The Congregationalist, April 12, 1879); Six Weeks' Preparation for Reading Casar, 1877, 3d ed. 1886; Auxilia Vergiliana (pamphlet), 1876, 2d ed. 1885; Essay on the Gospel according to Matthew, 1839; Essay on the Atonement, 1881, reprinted in London, Eng., under title Beyond the Shadow, 1884; Early Pupils of the Spirit (pamphlet), Lond., 1884; Three Months' Preparation for Reading Xenophon (published in conjunction with his daughter Mary B. Whiton), N. Y., 1885; The Evolution of Revelation (pamphlet), 1886; The Divine Satisfaction, London, 1888; frequent contributions to the religious journals, occasional articles in The New-Englander, etc.

WHITSITT, William Heth, D.D. (Mercer University, Macon, Ga., 1874) Baptist; b. near Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 25, 1841; studied at Union University, 1857-60; was first assistant, then chaplain, of the 4th Tennessee Infanry; served in the C.S. Army from 1861-65; studied at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va., 1868; and at the Southern Baptist Seminary (then at Nashville, Tenn., since 1877 at Louisville, Ky.), 1867-78; at Leipzig, 1868-70; and at Berlin, 1870-71; was pastor at Albemarle, Ala., February-July, 1872; professor of biblical introduction and ecclesiastical history in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, 1872 to date. He has published The Relation of Baptists to Culture (his inaugural address, published in The Baptist Quarterly, 1872); History of the Rise of Infant Baptism, Louisville, Ky., 1878; History of Communion among Baptists, 1880. Theological Seminary of Ohio, Gambier, O., 1867), LL.D. (College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va., 1873), Episcopalian, bishop of Virginia; b. in Mecklenburg County, Va., July 7, 1828; graduated at the Theological Seminary of Virginia, near Alexandria, 1847; became rector of Kanawha Parish, Kanawha County, Va., 1847; St. James's, Northern Parish, Goochland County, Va., 1849; Grace, Berryville, 1852; St. Paul's, Louise ville, Ky., 1857; assistant bishop of Virginia, 1869; bishop, 1876.

WIBERG, Andreas, Baptist; b. in the parish of Tuna, province of Helsingland, in the North of Sweden, July 17, 1816; graduated at the University of Upsala, 1843, and received holy orders the same year at the same place; took the S.C. "pastoral degree" at Upsala in 1847; received the degree of M.A. from the University of Lewistown, Penn., U.S.A., in 1854; was minister in the Lutheran State Church of Sweden, 1843-1861; colporteur evangelist in the service of the American Baptist Publication Society among sailors in New York, and immigrants in the West of the U.S.A.; 1852-1858; Baptist missionary in Sweden, 1855 to date. He is the author, in Swedish, of "Who is to be baptized?" Upsala, 1852; "Christian Baptism as set forth in the Holy Scriptures" (published both in English and Swedish), Philadelphia, U.S.A., 1854, 3d ed. Philadelphia, 1873; "Translation of the Gospel according to St. Matthew, with Commentary," Stockholm, 1858; "The Evangelist" (bi-monthly), 1860-68; "The Doctrine of the Holy Scripture on Sanctification," 1868; "The Doctrine of Justification," 1869; "Come to Jesus," London, 1870; Unity of Christians, London, 1873; the second son of Pastor Christian Christoph Wieseler, and younger brother of the well-known Friedrich Wieseler, professor of philology and archaeology at Göttingen. In his seventh year both his parents died; and he was brought up by near relatives, who first thought to make him a forester. He attended the gymnasium at Salzwedel from 1826 to 1831; then the university of Göttingen, where he was especially influenced by Lücke, from 1831 to 1835. In the latter he became repetens, 1830; privat-docent of Old and New Testament exegesis, 1839; professor extraordinary there, 1843; ordinary professor at Kiel, 1851; at Greifswald, 1853. In 1870 he was appointed professor of philology and archaeology at Göttingen. In his seventh year both his parents died; and he was brought up by near relatives, who first thought to make him a forester. He attended the gymnasium at Salzwedel from 1826 to 1831; then the university of Göttingen, where he was especially influenced by Lücke, from 1831 to 1835. In the latter he became repetens, 1830; privat-docent of Old and New Testament exegesis, 1839; professor extraordinary there, 1843; ordinary professor at Kiel, 1851; at Greifswald, 1853. In 1870 he was appointed professor of philology and archaeology at Göttingen. In his seventh year both his parents died; and he was brought up by near relatives, who first thought to make him a forester.
WILKINSON, William Cleaver, D.D. (University of Vermont, Burlington, 1850). L.L.D. (McGill University, Montreal, Can., 1870), Congregationalist; b. at Westford, Vt., Oct. 19, 1833; graduated at the University of Vermont, Burlington, N.Y., 1850; studied at the Wilberforce Missionary College, Winchester, 1878-82; consecrated bishop, 1882.

WILKES, Henry, D.D. (University of Vermont, Burlington, 1850), L.L.D. (McGill University, Montreal, Can., 1870), Congregationalist; b. at Exeter College, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1864, M.A. 1865; ordained deacon 1864, priest 1865; was curate of Cuddesdon, 1864-66; chaplain to late bishop (Wilberforce) of Oxford, 1864-69; curate of Lea, Lincolnshire, 1866; rector of Middleton Stony, Oxford, 1866-68; domestic chaplain to late bishop (Wilberforce) of Winchester, 1868-78; sub-almoner to the Queen, 1871-73; editor of the Christian, 1877-81; Dean of the Wilberforce Missionary College, Winchester, 1878-82; consecrated bishop, 1882.

WILKEN, Carl Pontus, Ph.D. (Upsala, 1883), Lutheran; b. in the parish of Ky, province of Dal, Sweden, May 19, 1837; educated at the University of Upsala; became Lektor in theology and Hebrew at the Elementary School of Upsala, 1873; vice-professor of theoretical philosophy at the University of Upsala, 1879; professor of philosophy at the University of Christians, Norway, 1884. He has received the prize of the Norwegian Church, 1870, for "Christianity and its Ceremonies." He was also the author of The Internal Administration of the Congregational Churches, Montreal, 1868, 3 editions; numerous sermons, college addresses, etc.

WILKINSON, William Cleaver, D.D. (University of Rochester, N.Y., 1873), Baptist; b. at Rochester, N.Y., Oct. 19, 1833; graduated at the University of Rochester, N.Y., 1857, and at the Rochester Theological Seminary, 1859; was pastor of Second Baptist Church, New Haven, Conn., 1859-61; professor ad interim of modern languages in University of Rochester, N.Y., 1863-64; Mt. Auburn Church, Cincinnati, 1866-68; professor of homiletics and pastoral theology, Rochester Theological Seminary, New York, 1872-81. He was offered the chair of the German language and literature in University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, 1871; also of English literature there, 1873. He has been from the beginning (1878) one of the "counselors" of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle, and is head of the department of literature and art in the Chautauqua School of Theology. He is the author of The Dance of Modern Society, 1868, lasted, 1884; A Free Lance in the Field of Life and Letters (essays), 1874, last ed. 1882; Preparatory Greek Course, English and Latin, 1874; Preparatory Latin Course in English, 1883; College Greek Course in English.
WILLCOX. 237  WILLIAMS.

1884: College Latin Course in English, 1885 (the four books constitute "The After-school Series," of which, up to 1886, more than a hundred thousand volumes had been sold); Poems, 1883; Edwin Arnold as Poetizer and as Paganizer, 1885.

WILLCOX, Giles Buckingham, D.D. (University of the City of New York, 1881), Congregationalist; b. in New-York City, Aug. 1, 1826; graduated at Yale College, New London, Conn., 1849; Jersey City, N.J., 1869; Stanford, Conn., 1875; professor of pastoral theology and special studies in Chicago Theological Seminary, 1879. He has contributed frequently to religious periodicals.

WILLIAMS, Right Rev. Channing Moore, S.T.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1867), Episcopal, missionary bishop of Yedo, Japan; b. at Richmond, Va., July 15, 1829; graduated from the College of William and Mary, Virginia, 1853, and from the Theological Seminary of Virginia, near Alexandria, 1855; became missionary bishop of China (with jurisdiction in Japan), 1866; re-elected in 1876, 1884; College Latin Course in English, 1885 (the four books constitute "The After-school Series," of which, up to 1886, more than a hundred thousand volumes had been sold); Poems, 1883; Edwin Arnold as Poetizer and as Paganizer, 1885.

WILLIAMS, George, Church of England, layman, the founder of the Young Men's Christian Association; b. at a farmhouse in the parish of Dulverton, Somersetshire, Eng., Oct. 11, 1821. Having completed his education, he began his business-life at Bridgewater. There he was converted in 1837, and immediately endeavored to lead his associates to Christ. In this he was so successful that a considerable number professed religion. In 1841 he became a junior assistant in the dry-goods establishment of Messrs. Hitchcock & Co., 72 St. Paul's Churchyard, London, during which period the majority of his fellow clerks (there were some 120 in all) were indifferent to religion, while many were licentious, in 1843 he induced a few of the spiritually minded assistants to hold with him, at regular intervals, a prayer-meeting in a bedroom of the establishment,—it being then customary for clerks to occupy rooms in the business houses where they were employed,—for the conversion of their fellow-clerks; and out of that meeting originated the Young Men's Christian Association movement. Mr. George Hitchcock, their principal, who had been converted since Mr. Williams came, having mentioned these meetings to his friend Mr. W. D. Owen, proprietor of a large drapery establishment in the West End, the latter spoke of them to Mr. James Smith, his principal assistant, who immediately commenced similar meetings amongst the young men. In the spring of 1844, Mr. Williams was impressed with the importance of introducing similar meetings in all the large establishments of London. He broached the subject, first of all, to his most intimate friend and fellow-assistant, the late Mr. Edward Beaumont, on a Sunday evening in the latter part of May, 1844. The following week, after the prayer-meeting, three or four of the young men were induced to hold with him a conversation upon the subject; and it was then resolved to call a meeting of all the religious young men of the establishment, to meet on Thursday, June 6, 1844, to consider the importance and practicability of establishing a society for improving the spiritual condition of young men engaged in the drapery and other trades. At this meeting the following persons were present: Messrs. George Williams, C. W. Smith, James Smith (from Mr. Owen's, by invitation of Mr. Williams), Norton Smith, Edward Valentine, Edward Beaumont, J. C. Cockett, Edward Rogers, John Harvey, John C. Symons, William Creese. Mr. James Smith was chosen chairman; Mr. Valentine, treasurer; and Messrs. Symons and Creese, secretaries. It was decided to form the projected society; and Mr. C. W. Smith, being delegated to choose a name for it, suggested among others that of The Young Men's Christian Association, which was afterwards adopted, Thursday, July 4. Mr. Williams being a young man, and merely a draper's assistant, modestly kept himself in the background in the early meetings of the Association, yet in the absence of the first chairman, always asked to preside; but to him, under God, belongs the credit of being the founder of that organization which has spread all over the world, and to it he has freely given his time and his means. He was the treasurer of the parent association from 1863 to 1885, succeeding Mr. Hitchcock; and is now president, succeeding the late Earl of Shaftesbury. He was taken by Mr. Hitchcock into partnership, and now is the head of the firm of Hitchcock, Williams, & Co., in which establishment he was a clerk. Besides the Young Men's Christian Association, Mr. Williams is the president of the Commercial Travellers' Christian Association, the Christian Community, the Young Men's Foreign Missionary, and of several other societies. He takes an active interest in the British and Foreign Bible Society, the London City Mission, the Sunday-school Union, the Bishop of London's Diocesan Council for Young Men, the Young Women's Christian Association, and many others.

The success of the Young Men's Christian Association was assured from the start. Its membership was twelve on June 6; in five months the association numbered seventy, each of whom had been carefully examined as to his Christian zeal before admittance, and religious services had been founded by it in ten drapers' establishments. On March 6, 1845, the membership was 160; on Nov. 5, 1846, the second annual meeting, branch associations in different places in London and in other cities were reported. In 1848, 480 members in London, and 1,000 in all, were reported. In 1849 the Earl of Shaftesbury became president, and so continued until his death, Oct. 1, 1883, when he was succeeded by Mr. Williams. In September, 1886, it was reported that there were 3,376 branch associations throughout the world, with nearly 200,000 members and associates. For an interesting and trustworthy history of the parent association, see George J. Stevenson's Historical Records of the Young Men's Christian Association from 1844 to 1884, London, 1884; for a brief account of the movement in general, see article, Young Men's Christian Association, in the Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge, vol. 4.

WILLIAMS, Right Rev. John, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1847; Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1849; Columbia College, New-York City, 1851; Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1853, LL.D. (Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., 1870), Episcopal, bishop of Connecticut; b. at Deerfield, Mass., Aug. 30, 1817; studied in Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1831-33, and at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1833-35; graduated at the latter, 1835; was tutor in the college, 1837-40; assistant in Christ Church, Middletown, Conn., 1841-42; rector of St. George's, Schenectady, N.Y., 1842-48; president of Trinity College, 1848-53; assistant bishop of Connecticut 1851-65, bishop since 1865. He is the author of Ancient Hymns of Holy Church, Hartford, 1845; Thoughts on the Gospel Miracles, New York, 1848; The English Reformation (Paddock Lectures), 1881; The World's Witness to Jesus Christ (Bedell Lectures), 1882; editor of Bishop Harold Browne's Exposition of the Thirty-nine Articles, 1863; many sermons and review articles.

WILLIAMS, Samuel Wells, LL.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1850), Congregationalist, layman; b. at Utica, September, 1812; d. at New Haven, Conn., Feb. 17, 1884. He studied at the Rensselaer School, Troy, N.Y.; went to China in 1833 as a printer for the A.B.C.F.M. Missionary Board at Canton; published Mead's Hokkien Dictionary (Chinese), 1835; translated Japan, 1837, and translated into Japanese Genesis and Matthew; assisted in editing The Chinese Repository, Canton, 1833-51; was interpreter to Commodore Perry's Japan expedition, 1853-54; became secretary and interpreter of the American Legation, Peking, 1855; assisted Minister Reed in negotiating the treaty with China, 1856. He visited the United States in 1845, where he staid three years, teaching; again in 1860; returned to live there in 1876, and was appointed lecturer in Chinese in Yale College, New Haven, Conn. He was president of the American Bible Society, 1851-53. He was one of the most eminent of sinologists. He was the author of Easy Lessons in Chinese, Macao, 1842; A Chinese Commercial Guide, 1843, 5th ed. Hong-Kong, 1863; An English and Chinese Vocabulary in the Court Dial, Macao, 1844; The Middle Kingdom: a Survey of the Geography, Government, Education, Social Life, Arts, Religion, etc., of the Chinese Empire and its Inhabitants, New York, 1848, 3d ed. 1857, new ed. rev. 1883, 2 vols. (a standard work); Tonic Dictionary of the Chinese Language, Canton, 1856; Syllabic Dictionary of the Chinese Language, Shanghai, 1874 (this was the great work of his life); Chinese Immigration, New York, 1879.
WILSON, John Leighton, D.D. (Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1854), Presbyterian (Southern Church); b. in Sumter County, S.C., March 25, 1809; d. near Marysville, S.C., July 13, 1886; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1829, and at Theological Seminary, Columbia, S.C., where he was pastor at Garnett, S.C., 1834-53; secretary of Foreign Missions for the Presbyterian Church, New-York City, 1853-61; the same for the Southern Presbyterian Church, Columbia, S.C. (now Baltimore, Md.), since 1851. He edited The Foreign (Missionary) Record, New York, 1853-61, and The Missionary, Baltimore, since 1849. He is the author of Western Africa: Its History, Condition, and Prospects, New York, 1857; between thirty and forty articles in reviews of United States and England, notably one on the slave-trade, written about 1852, in which the proposed withdrawal of the British squadron from the coast of Africa under the impression that the slave-trade could not be broken up, was opposed. Of the article, Lord Palmerston had many thousand copies printed and circulated to prevent the withdrawal.

WILSON, Joseph Ruggles, D.D. (Oglethorpe University, Milledgeville, Ga., 1837), Presbyterian; b. at Steubenville, O., Feb. 28, 1828; graduated from Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1845, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J., 1846-48; was pastor at Chartiers, Penn., 1848-51; professor of natural sciences at Hampden-Sidney College, Va., 1851-55; pastor at Staunton, Va., 1855-58; Augusta, Ga., 1858-70; professor of pastoral theology and homiletics in Columbia Theological Seminary, S.C., 1870-74; pastor at Wilmington, N.C., 1874-85; professor of theology in South-western Presbyterian University, Clarkesville, Tenn., 1885 to date. He has been stated clerk of the Southern General Assembly since 1861, and has represented it in other ecclesiastical bodies; was a member of the second general council of the Alliance of the Reformed Churches, Philadelphia, 1880, and read a paper on Evangelism; is a contributor to The South Presbyterian Review, etc.

WILSON, Robert Dick, Presbyterian; b. at Indiana, Penn., Feb. 4, 1856; graduated at College of New Jersey, Princeton, N.J., 1876, and at Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1879; became instructor in the latter institution, 1880; professor of Hebrew, Chaldee, and Old Testament literature in the same, 1886.

WILSON, Right Rev. William Scot, LL.D. (speciali gratia Trinity College, Dublin, 1859), lord bishop of Glasgow and Galloway; b. in Scotland, about the year 1807; graduated at King's College and University of Berneen, M.A., 1827; ordained deacon 1827, priest 1829; was chaplain to the bishop of Ross and Argyle, 1827-32; incumbent of Holy Trinity, Ayr, 1839-84; synodical clerk of the united diocese of Glasgow and Galloway, 1840-45; dean, 1845-59; became bishop, 1866.

WING, Conway Phelps, D.D. (Dickinson College, Carlisle, Penn., 1857), Presbyterian; b. at Marietta, O., Feb. 12, 1809; graduated from Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 1828, and at Auburn Theological Seminary, N.Y., 1831; was pastor at Sodus, N.Y., 1831-38; Odgen, N.Y., 1838-39; Monroeville, Mich., 1839-41; Newport, Tenn., 1841-42; Huntsville, Ala., 1842-48; Carlisle, Penn. (First Church), 1848-76. He was active in the revivals of 1832-35, in the anti-slavery agitation in Western New York, zealous in opposition to slavery in Tennessee and Alabama, a member of the Convocation of Reconstruction for the Presbyterian Church in 1870. He was an adherent of the New-School branch of the Presbyterian Church, but a warm supporter of the re-union in 1869 and 1870. He translated Hase's Manual of Ecclesiastical History (with Professor Blumenthal), New York, 1856; King's Commentary on Second Corinthians (with large additions) in Schaff's edition of Lange's Commentary, 1868; wrote History of the Presbyteries of Donegal and Carlisle, Carlisle, 1876; A History of the First Presbyterian Church of Carlisle, 1877; A History of Cumberland County, Penn., 1879; Historical and Genealogical Register of the Descendants of John Wing of Sandwich, New York, 1885, 2d ed. 1886; eleven elaborate articles in Presbyterian and Methodist Quarterly Reviews; two extensive articles in McClintock and Strong's Cyclopædia, vols. iv., v. (1870 and 1872); many articles in New-York Evangelist and in The Christian Observer, etc.

WINGFIELD, Right Rev. John Henry Ducachet, D.D. (William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va., 1869), LL.D. (do., 1874), Episcopalian, missionary bishop of Northern California; b. at Portsmouth, Va., Sept. 24, 1839; graduated from St. Timothy's College, Md., 1850, and from William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va. (with gold medal for prize essay), 1853; was tutor at former college, 1850-52, 1853-54; at the Church Military Academy, New York, 1854-55; studied at the Theological Seminary of Virginia, Alexandria, 1853-56; was principal of the Ashley Institute, Little Rock, Ark., 1856-58; ordered deacon 1858, priest 1859; assistant minister in Christ Church, Little Rock, 1858; the same in Trinity Church, Portsmouth, Va. (of which his father was rector), 1858-64; rector of Christ Church, Rockspring, Harford County, Md., 1864-66; assistant minister in Trinity Church, Portsmouth, Va., 1866-68; rector of St. Paul's Church, Petersburg, Va., 1868-74; of Trinity Church, San Francisco, Cal., 1874; returned to Petersburg, Va., 1874; consecrated bishop there, Dec. 2, 1874; had charge of his parish until April 1, 1875, when he removed to his jurisdiction, and now resides at Benicia, Cal. He founded St. Paul's School for Young Ladies, Petersburg, Va., and became rector and professor, 1871; became president of the missionary College of St. Augustine, 1875; rector of St. Paul's Church, and rector of St. Mary's of the Pacific girls' school, 1876, - the three at Benicia, Cal.; declined election to the bishopric of Louisiana, 1879, and to the assistant bishopric of Mississippi, and to the rectorship of Grace Church, San Francisco, Cal., both in 1882. He has published sermons, addresses, pastoral letters, articles, etc.
University of Munich 1837–50; became privat-docent of theology at Munich, 1851; professor of theology at Wurzburg, 1857; at Munich, 1874. He is the author of Die Nazazard, Regensburg, 1804; Die Lehre des heiligen Hilarius von Poitiers über die Selbstdieussurz Christi, 1865; Encyclopädie der katholischen Theologie, Landsbath, 1874; Über das Sittengesetz, Würzburg, 1878; Die moralischen Tugend der Religion, Freiburg, 1883; Über das kathol. Priesterthum, Straubing, 1882.

WISE, Daniel, A.M., D.D. (both høn., Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1849, 1859, respectively), Methodist; b. at Portsmouth, Eng., Jan. 10, 1813; educated in Portsmouth Grammar School; removed to the United States, 1853; was pastor of various churches, 1857–95; editor of Zion's Herald, Boston, 1852–55; editor of the Sunday-school publications of the Methodist-Episcopal Church (including editorship of Sunday-school Advocate and Sunday-school Teacher's Journal), and corresponding secretary of the Sunday-school Union 1856–72, and of the Tract Society of said church, and editor of tract publications, including Good News, a tract periodical, New-York City, 1860–72; supernumerary preacher, disabled through disease of the throat from much pulpit work, but engaged in authorship, 1872 to date. He published and edited the first Sunday-school paper ever issued for the Sunday schools of the Methodist-Episcopal Church. It was originally a magazine published by D. S. King in Boston in 1836. He purchased it in 1838, changed it into a paper, and continued his connection with it, either as publisher or editor, until 1844. It was subsequently merged into The Sunday-school Advocate, published in New-York by the book-agents of the Methodist-Episcopal Church. He is the author of Life of Lorenzo Dow, Lowell, Mass., 1840 (one edition of four thousand copies); History of London for Boys and Girls, 1841 (one edition of four thousand copies); Personal Effort, Boston, 1841, last ed. 1869; Questions on Romans, Lowell, 1840, last ed. 1869; Cottage on the Moor, New York, 1845, last ed. 1870; McGregor Family, 1845, last ed. 1864; Infant Teacher's Manual, 1845, last ed. 1880; Benevolent Traveller, 1846, last ed. 1867; Love's Thou Me? Boston, 1846, last ed. 1882; Guide to the Saviour, New York, 1847, last ed. 1886; The Path of Life, Boston, 1847, last ed. 1885; Bridal Greetings, New York, 1850, last ed. 1884; Life of Ultrie Zwingle, 1850, last ed. 1882; Young Man's Counselor, Boston, 1850, last ed. 1883; Young Lady's Counselor, 1851, last ed. 1883; Aunt Effie, New York, 1852, last ed. 1885; My Uncle Toby's Library, 12 vols., nom de plume of Francis Forrester, Boston, 1853; Precious Lessons from the Lips of Jesus, 1854, last ed. 1862; Living Streams from the Fountain of Life, 1854, last ed. 1882; Sacred Echoes from the Harp of David, 1855, last ed. 1862; Popular Objections to Methodism Considered and Answered, 1856, last ed. 1856; Gurney-Morris Stories, 5 vols., nom de plume of Francis Forrester, Boston, 1857, last ed. 1857; Pleasant Pathways, 1859, last ed. 1879; Lindendale Stories, 5 vols., nom de plume of Lawrence Lanewood, Boston, 1865, last ed. 1883; Hollywood Stories, 6 vols., nom de plume of Francis Forrester, Esq., Philadelphia, 1872, last ed. 1885; Little Life in Boston, New-York, 1873, last ed. 1877; The Square of Walton Hall: a Life of Waterton the Naturalist, 1874, last ed. 1885; The Story of a Wonder Life: a Popular Picture from Life of John Wesley, Cincinnati, 1874, last ed. 1883; Sunday Days on the Hudson, New York, 1875, last ed. 1878; Uncrowned Kings, Cincinnati, 1875, last ed. 1886; Our King and Saviour (a Life of Christ for the young), New York, 1875, last ed. 1883; Vanquished Victors, Cincinnati, 1876, last ed. 1885; Winwood Cliff Stories, 4 vols., Boston, 1878, last ed. 1883; Lights and Shadows of Human Life, New York, 1878, last ed. 1882; Sainly and Successful Worker: A Life of William Carroso, Cincinnati, 1879, last ed. 1883; Heroic Methodists, N.Y., 1882, last ed. 1884; Sketches and Anecdotes of American Methodists, 1883; Our Missionary Heroes and Heroines, 1884; Bay Travellers in Arabia, 1885; Men of Renown (for young men), Cincinnati, O., 1888; Some Remarkable Women (for young ladies), in press; aggregate sale of these volumes exceeds a half-million copies; frequent contributions to The Ladies Repository, The National Repository, The Methodist Review, and the weekly periodicals of the Methodist-Episcopal Church.

WITHEROW, Thomas, D.D. (Presbyterian Theological Faculty of Ireland, 1883, LL.D. (Royal University of Ireland, 1885), Irish Presbyterian; b. at Ballycastle, County Londonderry, May 29, 1824; educated at Belfast College 1839–43, and at Free Church College, Edinburgh, under Dr. Chalmers, 1843–44; became pastor at Maghera, 1845; and professor of ecclesiastical history, Magee College, Londonderry, 1865. He was moderator of the Irish General Assembly, 1878; became editor of The Londonderry Standard (tri-weekly), 1878; and senator of the Royal University, 1884. He is the author of Three Prophets of our Own, Belfast, 1855, 2d ed. Derry, 1860; Which is the Apostolic Church? an Inquiry, Belfast, 1856 (reprinted Edinburgh, 1884; London, 1869; and Philadelphia, n.d.); The Scriptural Baptist, Belfast 1854 (reprinted, Edinburgh, 1884; Italian translation, Florence; Derry and Enniskillen in 1869, Belfast, 1873, 3d ed. 1883); The Apology and Aghirn: Story of Famous Battlefields in Ireland, 1879; Historical and Literary Memorials of Irish Presbyterianism, London, 1879, 2 vols.; and various smaller works and review articles.

WITHERSPOON, Thomas Dwight, D.D. (University of Mississippi, Oxford, Miss., 1867, LL.D. (the same, 1885), Presbyterian (Southern Church); b. at Greensborough, Hale County, Ala., Jan. 17, 1836; graduated at University of Mississippi, 1858, and at the Columbia Theological Seminary, S.C., 1859; was post-graduate student in the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, 1871; chaplain in the Confederate Army, 1861–65; pastor of the Second Church, Memphis, Tenn., 1865–70; chaplain in the Confederate Army, 1871–73; pastor at Oxford, Miss., 1875–80; chaplain in the University of Virginia, 1871–73; pastor of Tabb-street Church, Petersburg, Va., 1873–82; of First Church, Louisville, Ky., 1882 to date. He had declined elections to professorships in Columbia Theological Seminary, and in the presidency of William Jewell College, Mecklenburg County, N.C., and of other literary institutions. He is the author of Children of the Covenant, Richmond, Va., 1873, 3d ed. 1874, later editions; Letters on Romanism, 1882.

WITROW, John Lindsay, D.D. (Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., 1872), Congregationalist; b. at Coatesville, Chester County, Penn., March 3, 1826; undergraduate at the University of Virginia, 1871—73; pastor of First Church, Lake City, Iowa, 1873—84; pastor of the First Church, Madison, Wis., 1886; and of the First Congregational Church of Big Bend, Wis., 1886; and of other churches in the state of Wisconsin; president of the College of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis., 1886, and of the New York Conference of Congregational Ministers, 1887; author of Thompson's History of the Kansas Indian War, 1867; a long letter to President Lincoln, 1865; and of many tracts published by the publishing house of the New York Christian Advocate. He is the author of a large number of sermons and addresses, and of religious tracts.
WITHROW.

19, 1837; graduated at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1860, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1863, became pastor of Presbyterian Church, Abington, Penn., 1863; of the Archstreet Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, Penn., 1868; of the Second Presbyterian Church, Indianapolis, Ind., 1873; of the Park-street Congregational Church, Boston, Mass., 1876. He is a consistent Roman Catholic, and thoroughly wanting in sympathy with so-called progressive theology.

WITHROW, William Henry, D.D. (University of Victoria College, Cobourg, Can., 1882), Methodist; b. at Toronto, Can., Aug. 6, 1859; educated at Toronto Academy, Victoria College, Cobourg, and Toronto University; graduated at the last, B.A. 1869, M.A. 1864; was in the Methodist ministry at Montreal, Hamilton, Toronto, and Niagara, 1864—1873; professor of ethics in Wesleyan Ladies' College, 1873—1878; Romance Illusions, 1879; Lawrence Waste, 1880.—

WOOD, John George, Church of England; b. in London, July 21, 1827; educated at Ashbourne Grammar School; entered Merton College, Oxford, 1844; elected Jackson's scholar, 1846; graduated B.A. 1851, M.A. 1851; attached to anatomical museum for two years; ordained deacon 1852, priest 1854; was curate of St. Thomas's, Oxford, 1852—54; assistant chaplain to St. Bartholomew's Hospital, London, 1858—62; reader at Christ Church, Newgate Street, London, 1858—62; elected precentor of the Canterbury Diocesan Choral Union, 1858; resigned, 1876. He was associate commissioner (educational department) International Exhibition, Paris, 1867. In 1880 he began to deliver sketch-lectures on natural history, illustrated by colored pastel drawings, executed before the audience, upon a large sheet of canvas; in October or November, 1883, delivered the opening course of the Lowell Lectures in Boston, Mass.; subsequently delivered many sketch-lectures in America during 1884 and 1885. He is the author of Natural History, London, 1862; Anecdotes of Animal Life, 1854—55, 2 vols.; My Feathered Friends, 1867; Common Objects of the countryside; 1857; Common Objects of the Country, 1858; Illustrated Natural History, 1856—63, 3 vols.; Glimpses into Pet-labd, 1863; Houses without Hands, 1865; Bible Animals, 1869; Insects at Home, 1871; Insects Abroad, 1874; Man and Beast, 1874—75, 2 vols.; Pet-labd Revisited, 1884; Old and New Testament Histories for Schools, 1884; Nature's Teachings, 1876; Graduated Natural-History Readers for Schools, 5 vols.; Man and his Handiwork, —; Horse and Man, 1885, etc. (Most of these works are being continually reprinted, the number of editions not being specified.)

WOODBRIDGE, Samuel Merrill, D.D. (Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N.J., 1857; Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1858), L.L.D. (Rutgers College, 1883), Reformed (Dutch); b. at Greenfield, Mass., April 5, 1819; graduated at the New-York University, 1838, and at the Theological Seminary, New Brunswick, N.J., became pastor at South Brooklyn, N.Y., 1841; Coxsackie, 1850; New Brunswick, N.J., 1852; and professor of ecclesiastical history and church government, and dean of the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church, New Brunswick, 1857. He is the author of Analysis of Theology, New York, 1872, 2d ed. 1882.

WOODFORD, Right Rev. James Russell, D.D. (by Archbishop of Canterbury, 1869), lord bishop of Ely, Church of Scotland; b. at Henley-on-Thames, April 30, 1820; d. at Ely, Oct. 24, 1885. He was late scholar of Pembroke College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. 1843, senior of (Williams and second-class classical tripos) 1842. M.A. 1845; ordained deacon 1845, priest 1845; was second master of Bishop College, Bristol, 1845—45; perpetual curate of St. Saviour's, Coalpit Heath, 1845—48; of St. Mark's, Eaton, Bristol, 1848—55; vicar of Kemptes, Gloucester, 1855—68; examining chaplain to the Bishop of Oxford and Winchester, 1888—73; vicar of Leeds, 1868—73; select preacher at Cambridge, 1864, 1867, 1873, 1875, 1878; honorary chaplain numerous articles in the religious press, and separately issued The Church's Future, Gettysburg, 1872; The Dream of Providence on the Eve of the Reformation, 1884. to the Queen, and honorary canon of Christ Church, 1867; consecrated bishop, 1873. He was the author of The Church Past and Present (four lectures), 1852; Sermons, London, 1873, 3 vols.; Six Lectures on the Creed, 1855; Occasional Sermons, 1858-61, 2 series, 2d ed. 1861-65; Ordination Sermons, 1856, 1860; Christian Sanity (four sermons), Cambridge, 1863; Ordination Sermons, 1872.

WOODROW, James, Ph.D. (Heidelberg, Germany, 1856). M.D. (hon., Medical College, Augusta, Ga., 1861). D.D. (Hampden-Sidney College, Prince Edward County, Va., 1871). LL.D. (Davidson College, twenty miles from Charlotte, S.C., 1888), Presbyterian (Southern Church); b. at Carlisle, Eng., May 30, 1828; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1849; studied at Heidelberg, Germany, 1856-66, and elsewhere in Europe, 1856; was professor of natural sciences, Oglethorpe University and Milledgeville, Ga., 1853-61; in South-Carolina University, whose headquarters are at Columbia, S.C., 1869-72; and in South-Carolina College, Columbia, the chief part of the university, 1880, to the present. In 1851 he became professor of natural science in connection with revelation, in the Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Columbia, S.C.; was removed by board of directors, Dec. 10, 1884, on account of views presented in an address on Evolution, delivered in May, 1884; the act not removed, but was still in office. He then resumed his duties as chairman of the faculty and professor. He was ordained in 1860; since 1861 has edited The Southern Presbyterian Review, and since 1886 The Southern Presbyterian.

WOODRUFF, Frank Edward, Congregationalist; b. at Eden, Vt., March 20, 1855; graduated at the University of Vermont at Burlington, 1875, and at the Union Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1881; was fellow of his class, and as such studied two years in Germany and Greece (Tübingen, Berlin, and Athens); was inaugurated as associate professor of history in Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., 1883.

WOOLEY, Theodore Dwight, D.D. (Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., 1847). LL.D. (Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1845), Congregationalist, son of William W. Woolsey, a prosperous merchant of New-York City, and of Eliza Dwight, sister of President Dwight of Yale College, New Haven, Conn.; b. in New-York City, Oct. 31, 1801; entered Yale College 1816, graduated 1820; for a year (1820-21) studied law in New-York City, without a view to practising it, and then theology at Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J. for nearly two years (1821-23), was a tutor at Yale College for about two years (1823-25); soon afterwards went to Europe, where he spent three years, chiefly in France and Germany. In Germany he studied Greek; at Leipzig under Godfrid Hermann, at Bonn under Weleker, and at Berlin under Boeckh and Bopp. Returning to the United States, he was a tutor at Greek at Yale College in 1831; and held the office actively until 1846, when he was chosen president of Yale College, which position he continued in for twenty-five years, until 1871, when he resigned his connection with the institution, and withdrew from public life. He was a member of the American Company of Revision of the New Testament, and its chairman (1871-81). He is the author of editions of the Greek text, with English notes, for the use of college students, of the Aelcstis of Euripides, Cambridge, 1820; the Antigone of Sophocles, 1835; the Prometheus of Eschylus, 1837; and the Gorgias of Plato, 1843; Introduction to the Study of International Law, designed as an Aid in Teaching and in Historical Studies, Boston, 1880, 5th ed. enlarged, New York 1876, London 1875, 2d ed. 1879; Essays on Divorce and Divorce Legislation, with Special Reference to the United States, New York, 1889, 2d ed. revised 1892; Religion of the Present and of the Future: Sermons preached chiefly at Yale College, 1871; Political Science, or the State, theoretically and practically considered, 1877, 2 vols. (originally Boston, 1858-60, 2 vols.); besides, he is the author of smaller works and of a number of essays and reviews, e.g., in The North American, Princeton Review, The Century, and especially in The New Englander, of which latter for several years after its first appearance (1843) he was one of a committee of publication.

WOODROW, John, New Church (Swedenborgian); b. in Boston, Feb. 13, 1834; became pastor of the New Church Society at Newtonville, Mass., 1869; instructor in theology in the New Church Theological School, Boston, 1878, and president 1881. He is the author of A Year's Lessons from the Psalms, Boston, 1889; Correspondences of the Bible: the Animals, 1875, 2d ed. 1884; A Journey in Palestine, 1884.

WOODROW, Right Rev. Charles, D.C.L. (Oxford, 1853), bishop of St. Andrew's, Dunkeld, and Dunblane, Episcopal Church in Scotland; b. at Bockin, Eng., Aug. 22, 1809; was a student of Christ Church College, Oxford; took the prize for Latin verse 1827, and for the Latin essay 1831; graduated B.A. (first-class classics) 1830, M.A. 1832; was ordained deacon 1834, priest 1840; was a private tutor for several years, and had under his instruction both Mr. Gladstone and Cardinal Manning; from 1836 to 1845, second master of Winchester College; from 1847 to 1854, warden of Trinity College, Glemalmond, Perthshire; and in 1853 consecrated bishop. He was a member of New Testament Company of Bible Revisers. He is the author of Greece gran. rud., London, 1839, 10th ed. 1869; Greek Primer, 1871, 6th ed. 1879; Christian Episcopat at a Public School, 1844, 2 vols.; Two Judicial Opinions on the Doctrine of the Eucharist, 1858-61; Discourse on Scottish Reformation, 1860, 2d ed. 1863; On Shakespeare's Knowledge and Use of the Bible, 1864, 3d ed. 1880; Cata clesis, 1868; Outlines of the Christian Ministry, 1872; Remarks on Dr. Lightfoot's Essay on the Christian Church, 2d ed. 1826; Dissertatio de clerum pertinenti Latiné reddita, 1880; editor of Shakespeare's Historical Plays, Roman and English, 1883, 3 vols.
(Cambridge, 1839), D.C.L. (hon., Oxford, 1870), lord bishop of Lincoln, Church of England; b. in the head master's house, Harrow-on-the-Hill, Middlesex, Eng., Sept. 21, 1865. He was scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge; chancellor's English medallist for the year, The Druids, 1827—28; Person prize-man, 1828; Browne's medallist, 1827—28; Craven scholar, 1829; graduated B.A. (senior classic) 1830, M.A. 1833; travelled in Greece, 1832—33; was ordained deacon 1833, priest 1835; fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, 1830—38; public orator, 1836; head master of Harrow School, 1838—44; canon of Westminster, 1844—69; Hulsean lecturer, Cambridge, 1847—48; vicar of Stanford-in-the-Vale, Berkshire, and rural dean, 1850—69; archdeacon of Westminster, 1865—69; consecrated bishop, 1869. He took part in the Old-Catholic Congress held at Cologne, September, 1872. He was the author of Athens and Attica: Journal of Visits to the Walls of the City of Pompeii, 1837, 2 ed. Inscriptiones Pompeianae: Ancient Writings, 2 ed. 1852; The Apocalypse in Greek, with illus., 1882; Whitehall preacher, 1879; Bampton lecturer, 1880; was at the Old-Catholic Congress at Cologne with the bishop of Lincoln in 1872, busy collating Latin manuscripts in Italy, France, and Spain, for an edition of the Vulgate New Testament, 1878—88. He is the author of Lectures introductory to a study of the Latin language, Literature, Oxford, 1870; Fragments and Specimens of Early Latin, 1874; University Sermons on Gospel Subjects, 1878; The One Religion: Truth, Holiness, and Peace desired by the Nations and revealed by Jesus Christ (Bampton Lectures), 1881; The St. Germain St. Matthew (Lp), being No. 1 of a Series of Old Latin Biblical Texts, 1883; articles on Constantine the Great and his Sons, and on The Emperor Julian, and others in Smith and Wace’s Dictionary of Christian Biography; various pamphlets and sermons, viz. Erasmus; sive Thucydides conditum (chancellor’s Latin prize essay), 1866; Kelvin College and the present University Crisis, 1889; The Church and the Universities: A Letter to C. S. Roundell, M.P., with Postscript, 1880; Prayers for Use in College, 1883; Love and Discipline: A Memorial Sermon preached at Lincoln after the Funeral of Christopher Wordsworth, Bishop of Lincoln, 1855 (March); A Farewell Sermon, on Ps. civ. 25, 26, Rochester, September, 1885.

WRATISLAW, Albert Henry, Church of England; b. at Rugby, Warwickshire, Nov. 5, 1821; educated at Christ’s College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. (twenty-fifth senior optime and third in first class classical tripos) 1844, M.A. 1847; was elected fellow of Christ’s College; became tutor; was twice examiner for classical tripos; head master of Felstead Grammar School, 1852—55, and of Bury St. Edmunds Grammar School, 1855—70, when he retired on a pension of two hundred pounds a year; and, in the same year, became vicar of Manorbier. His theology is “Broad Church.” He is the author of Loci Communes, Common Places (delivered in the chapel of Christ’s College, conjointly with Professor Swainson), London, 1848; Bohemian Poems, Ancient and Modern, translated from the Original Slavonic, London, 1871; Life, Legend, and Canonization of St. John Nepomucen, 1873; The Native Literature of Bohemia in the Fourteenth Century (Ilechester Lectures, 1877, Oxford), 1878; Biography of John Hus, 1882.

WRIGHT, Charles Henry Hamilton, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1875), D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1879), Church of Ireland; b. in Dublin, March 11, 1836; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; won first-class Hebrew prize, 1854, 1855, 1856; Arabic prize, 1859; first-class divinity testimonium, 1858; graduated B.A. (respondent) 1857, M.A. 1858, B.D. 1873 (stipendiis condonato); was incorporated at Exeter College, Oxford, as M.A., 1862; graduated B.A. (twenty-fifth senior optime and third in first class classical tripos) 1844, M.A. 1847; was elected fellow of Christ’s College; became tutor; was twice examiner for classical tripos; head master of Felstead Grammar School, 1852—55, and of Bury St. Edmunds Grammar School, 1855—70, when he retired on a pension of two hundred pounds a year; and, in the same year, became vicar of Manorbier. His theology is “Broad Church.” He is the author of Loci Communes, Common Places (delivered in the chapel of Christ’s College, conjointly with Professor Swainson), London, 1848; Bohemian Poems, Ancient and Modern, translated from the Original Slavonic, London, 1871; Life, Legend, and Canonization of St. John Nepomucen, 1873; The Native Literature of Bohemia in the Fourteenth Century (Ilechester Lectures, 1877, Oxford), 1878; Biography of John Hus, 1882.

WRATISLAW. WRIGHT.

WRIGHT.
tion (the Donnellan Lectures for 1880-81), London, 1883; Biblical Essays; or, Exegetical Studies on the Books of Job and Jonah, Ezekiel's Prophecy of Gog and Magog, St. Peter's "Spirits in Prison," and the Key to the Apocalypse, Edinburgh, 1885; with numerous other pamphlets and articles, for instance, in The Nineteenth Century (for February, 1882), on The Babylonian Account of the Deluge, The Site of Paradise (October, 1882), The Jews and the Malicious Charge of Human Sacrifice (November, 1883).

WRIGHT, George Frederick, F.A.A.S., Congregationalist; b. at Whitehall, N.Y., Jan. 22, 1838; graduated at Oberlin College 1859, and Theological Seminary, Oberlin, O., 1862; was in the Seventh Ohio Volunteer Infantry five months of 1863; became pastor at Bakersfield, Va., 1862; at Andover, Mass., 1872; professor of New Testament language and literature in Oberlin Theological Seminary, 1881; was assistant geologist on Pennsylvania survey 1881, and United-States survey since 1884. He is the author of The Logic of Christian Evidence, Andover, 1860, 4th ed. 1883; Studies in Science and Religion, 1882; The Relation of Science and Religion to the Bible, 1888; The Glacial Boundary in Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky, Cleveland, 1884; The Divine Authority of the Bible, Boston, 1884; is an editor of the Bibliotheca Sacra.

WRIGHT, Milton, D.D. (Westfield College, Ill., 1872), United Brethren in Christ; b. in Rush County, Ind., Oct. 17, 1829; graduated at Hartsville College, Ind., 1853; became a member of the White River Conference, Ind., 1853; ordained, 1856; was pastor at Indianapolis, 1855-56; at Andersonville, Ind., 1856-57; missionary in Oregon, where he was pastor at Sublimity and most of the time president of Sublimity College (a denominational institution), 1857-59; in the itinerancy in the White River Conference, 1859-69, during which he was presiding elder (1861-64, 1866-68), and pastor at Hartsville, Ind., and teacher of theology in Hartsville College (1868-69); was editor of The Religious Telescope (church organ), Dayton, Ohio, 1869-72; editor of Free Church's first term; was elected bishop (assigned to West Mississippi District), 1877-81; presiding elder in White River Conference, 1881-85 (editor and publisher of The Richmond Star, Richmond, Ind., 1883-85); re-elected bishop for the term of four years, and sent to the Pacific Coast District, 1885. His writings are wholly journalistic, except a few tracts.

WRIGHT, Theodore Francis, Swedeborgian; b. at Dorchester (now Boston), Mass., Aug. 3, 1845; graduated at Harvard College 1866, and at New Church Theological School, Boston, 1869; since 1866 has been pastor at Bridgewater, Mass.; since 1870 editor New Jerusalem Magazine (monthly), Boston; and since 1884 instructor in homiletics and pastoral care, New Church Theological School. During 1864-65, he was first lieutenant One Hundred and Eighth Regiment United-States colored troops. He is the author of Life Eternal, Boston, 1885.

WRIGHT, William, M.A., Ph.D. (Phi. Leyden), LL. D. (Aberdeen, Dublin, Edinburgh, St. Andrew's), layman, Church of England; b. in Ireland, Presidency of Bengal, Jan. 17, 1830; educated at St. Andrew's and Halle; was appointed professor of Arabic in University College, London, 1855; in Trinity College, Dublin, 1856; assistant in department of MSS. in British Museum, 1851; assistant keeper of MSS., 1856; professor of Arabic in the University of Cambridge, 1870. He is the fellow of Queens' College, Cambridge. He was an Old-Testament reviser (1870-85), and is a corresponding or honorary member of many learned and royal societies. He is the author, translator, or editor of The Travels of Ibn Jubair (Arabic), Leyden, 1852; Analysest sur l'histoire et la litterature des Arabes d'Espagne, par al-Makkari, livres i.-iv., 1855; The Book of Jonah in Four Oriental Versions, with Glossaries, London, 1857; Opuscula Arabica, Leyden, 1859; A Grammar of the Arabic Language, London, 1859-62, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1874-76; The Kamul el-Mubarrad (Arabic), Leipzig, 1884-85, 11 parts; Contributions to the Apocryphal Literature of the New Testament (Syriac and English), London, 1885; The Homilies of Aphraates (Syriac), vol. i., 1889; An Arabic Reading Book, Part I., 1870; Catalogue of the Syriac MSS. in the British Museum, 1870-72, 3 vols.; Apocryphal Acts of the Apostles (Syriac and English), 1871, 2 vols.; Catalogue of the Ethiopic MSS. in the British Museum, 1877-79; The Church of the East (Syriac and English), Cambridge, 1882; The Book of Kaitlah and Dimnah (Syriac), Oxford, 1883.

WRONG, George McKinnon, Church of England in Canada; b. at Grafton, Ontario, Can., June 25, 1860; graduated concurrently at University College and at Wesley College, Toronto, 1880; became a captain of residence, Wesley College, and lecturer in ecclesiastical history and polity, 1883.

WYLIE, James Aitken, LL.D. (Aberdeen, 1856), Free Church; b. at Kirriemuir, Forfarshire, Scotland, Aug. 9, 1836; educated at Marischall College of the University of Aberdeen 1852-55, at University of St. Andrew's 1856; received his theological training in Original Secession Hall under Rev. Dr. Paxton, Edinburgh, 1827-30; was minister of Original Secession Congregation at Dollar, 1831-46; associated with Hugh Miller in the editorship of The Witness, Edinburgh, 1846-56; editor of Free Church's two terms; was bishop of the Protestant Institute of Scotland, Edinburgh, 1860 to date. The Institute is an extra-mural lecturership, founded by the Protestant churches of Scotland, for the indoctrination of students in the distinctive principles of the Roman-Catholic and Protestant theologies. He wrote The Evangelical Alliance's first prize essay on Popery. He has travelled over nearly all Europe, and also Asia Minor, Palestine, and Egypt. In 1868 he was examined before the House of Lords, on the working of canon law with reference to the establishment of the papal hierarchy in Great Britain. In 1881, on the occasion of his jubilee, he received a public testimonial, portrait with three hundred guineas, etc. He is the author of The Modern Judea compared with Ancient Prophecy, Glasgow, 1841 (sale twenty thousand copies); Scenesthe Bible, 1843 (sale fifteen thousand copies), last ed. 1882; On Unfulfilled Prophecy, 1845; Ruins of Bible Lands: Journeys over the Region of Fulfilled Prophecy, 1845, 14th ed. 1892; The Past and Present of Papal Europe, 1848, 4th ed. 1868; The Papacy: its History, Dogmas, Genius, and Prospects (The Evangelical Alliance prize essay), 1851, 4th ed. 1890, German trans., Elberfeld, 1853, 2d ed. 1854; From the Alps to the Tiber 1856 (sale two thousand copies); The Gospel Ministry: Duty and Privilege of Supporting it (first prize essay), 1857 (sale ten thousand copies); Wanderings and Musings in the Valley of the Waldenses, Travels, etc., 1859; The Great Exodust: or, the Time of the End, 1862, 2d ed. 186-; Rome and Civil Liberty, 1864 (sale fifteen thousand copies); The Awakening of Italy and the Crisis of Rome, 1866 (sale two thousand copies); The Road to Rome via Oxford, or Ritualism Identified with Romanism, 1888; Daybreak in Spain: a Sketch of Spain and its New Reformation, a Tour of Two Months, 1870; Impending Crisis of the Church and the World, Edinburgh, 1871; The History of Protestantism, London, 1875-77, 8 vols. (sale sixty to eighty thousand copies), Dutch trans. 1878-79, German trans. 18—; The Jesuits: their Moral Maxims and Plots against Kings, Edinburgh, 1881; Visit to the Land of the Pharaohs, 1882; Over the Holy Land, 1883; editor of new edition of the Scots Worthies, with supplemental biographies; Dictionary of the Bible, 1870, 2 vols.; besides pamphlets on the Popish controversy.
WYLIE.

YERKES, Stephen, D.D. (La Grange College, Tenn., 1857), Presbyterian; b. in Bucks County, Penn., June 27, 1817; graduated at Yale College, 1837; studied theology privately; was pastor and teacher in Baltimore and Harford Counties, Md., 1843-52; professor of ancient languages, Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky., and pastor of Bethel Church, 1852-57; since 1857, professor in Theological Seminary, Danville, Ky. (of Oriental and biblical literature, 1857-69; of biblical literature and exegetical theology since 1869).

YOUNG, Alexander, D.D. (Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1859), L.L.D. (Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1873), United Presbyterian; b. near Glasgow, Scotland, June 4, 1815; graduated from the Western University of Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh, Penn., 1835; professor of Latin and Greek in the same, 1838-40; pastor of Associate Reformed Church at St. Clairsville, Ohio, 1842-58; co-pastor at Monmouth, Ill., 1859-60; solo pastor, 1860-63; was co-pastor of the Second United Presbyterian Church, Monmouth, 1863-66; was solo pastor, 1866-71; was professor in all departments (except history) of the Associate Reformed Theological Seminary, Oxford, Ohio, 1858-66; transferred, with the seminary, to Monmouth, Ill., in the same relations, September, 1858, and so continued until 1864; during this period also professor of Greek and Latin in Monmouth College; professor of apologetics and all departments of theology in the seminary, 1864-76; and of evidences of Christianity, in Monmouth College, 1864-76; of apologetics and pastoral theology in the United Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1874 to date, changing chairs with other professors as interest or preference required.

YOUNG, Robert, L.L.D., F.E.S.L., layman; b. at Edinburgh, Sept. 10, 1822; received education at private schools, 1827-38; served apprenticeship to the printing-business, 1838-45; became a bookseller and printer in 1846; joined the Free Church, and became a sabbath-school teacher, in 1843; commenced bookselling and printing in 1847; married, and went to India as a literary missionary and superintendent of the Mission Press at Surat, in 1856; returned in 1861; conducted "Missionary Institute," 1864-74; visited New York, Boston, Princeton, Philadelphia, Washington, etc., in 1867; carried the Analytical Concordance through the press in 1876-79; took special interest in the "Aberdeen" attacks on the Bible, 1876-80, and in "Presbyterian Union," 1884-85. A moderate Calvinist, simple Presbyterian, and strict textual critic and theologian. His works, chronologically arranged, are, Book of the Precepts; or, the Six Hundred and Thirteen Affirmative or Prohibitive Precepts, collected by Rabbi Moses Ben Maimon, with a life of Maimonides, edited in the original Hebrew, with a translation; Chaldee Portions of Daniel (ii. 4-vii. 28) and Ezra (iv. 7-vii. 26) in the Original Chaldee, with corresponding Greek, Syriac, and (Rabbinical) Hebrew; Ethics of the Fathers, collected by Nathan the Babylonian, A. D. 200, in the Original Hebrew, with an English translation, and an introduction to the Talmud; Hexaglot Pentateuch; or, the Five Books of Moses in the Original Hebrew, with the corresponding Samaritan text and version, the Chaldee Targum, the Syriac Peshito, and the Arabic of Saadiah Gaon, arranged interlinearly, with comparative tables of alphabets and verb (Gen. i.-v.); Westminster Assembly's Shorter Catechism, translated into Arabic, French, Hebrew, Gaelic, Samaritan, Spanish, Syriac, also Dutch, German, Greek, Italian, Latin, and Portuguese; Christology of the Targums; or, the Doctrine of Messiah, as unfolded in the Ancient Jewish Paraphrases, or Translations of the Sacred Scriptures into the Chaldee Language, in Hebrew, Chaldee, and English; Rubbinical Vocabulary, with List of Abbreviations and an Analysis of the Grammar, adapted expressly for the Mishna and the Targums, with introduction; Obadiah's Prophecy against Edom, in the Original Hebrew, with the corresponding Chaldee, Syriac, and Arabic versions, interlinear; Paradigms (Complete) of the Verbs, Regular and Irregular, in Hebrew, Chaldee, Samaritan, and Syriac; Root-books of the Hebrew, Chaldee, Samaritan, Syriac, Greek, and Latin Languages, containing every root in each, in alphabetical order, with English explanations; Song of a Finnish Country-Girl, in Finnish, with translations into Hebrew, Samaritan (ancient and modern), Chaldee, Syriac, and English; Israelitish Gleaner and Biblical Repository, containing rare and interesting poems, tales, and other compositions into Hebrew and from it, translations from the Targums, etc. (the above were published in Edinburgh, 1849-56); Gujarati Grammar and Exercises; or, a New Mode of Learning to Read, Write, or Speak the Gujarati Language, on the Ollendorffian system, with Key; The First and Second Books of Chronicles, translated into the Gujarati Language, from the Original Hebrew (these two were published in Surat, 1857-60); Bible (The Holy), consisting of the Old and New Covenants, translated according to the Letter and Idioms of the Original Languages (do., 2d ed., revised, larger type); Hebrew Tenses, illustrated from the Biblical Text, the Cognate Languages, and the Chief Biblical Critics; Chronological Index to the Bible, Old and New Testaments; Variations of the Alexandrian, Vatican, and Sinaitic MSS. of the New Testament; Marginal (Ten Thousand) Readings for the English Testament, in Addition to those given by the Editors of King James's Bible, being a series of more literal renderings, derived from an examination of the original Scriptures, when compared with the common version; Concise Critical Commentaries on the Holy Bible, being a companion to the new translation of the Old and New Covenants, specially designed for those teaching the word of God, whether preachers, catechists, scripture-readers, district-visitors, or sabbath-school teachers; Grammatical Analysis of the Hebrew, Chaldee, and Greek Scriptures, consisting of the original texts unabridged, the parsing of every word, with all its prefixes and affixes, and a literal translation: The Twelve Minor Prophets, complete; Biblical Notes and Queries regarding Biblical Criticism and Interpretation, Ecclesiastical History, Antiquities, Biography and Bibliography, Ancient and Modern Versions, Progress in Theology, Reviews of Religious Works, etc.; Hebrew and Chaldee Vocabulary, consisting of every word in the Old-Testament Scriptures, whether noun, verb, or participle; the verbs with their conjugations, and the nouns with their gender, to which is added the number of times in which each word occurs, with the etymological and idiomatic renderings of the new translation; Introduction to the Hebrew Language, in a Way hitherto unexampled; Biblical Tracts for Every Day in the Year, on the Most Important Facts and Doctrines of Scripture, illustrated from itself; Analytical Concordance to the Bible, on a new plan, with every word in alphabetical order, arranged under its own Hebrew or Greek original, with the literal meaning of each and its pronunciation, exhibiting about 311,000 references, or 118,000 beyond Cruden, marking 30,000 various readings in the Greek New Testament, with the latest information on biblical geography and antiquities of the Palestine Exploration Society, etc.,—all designed for the simplest reader of the English Bible;Appendices to the Analytical Concordance: I. For Sabbath-school Teachers (Analytical surveys of [1] all the “Books,” [2] all the “Facts,” [3] all the “Idioms,” of the Bible, [4] Bible Themes, questions, canonicity, rationalism, etc.). II. For Divinity Students (reversed indexes to the Analytical Concordance, forming [1] a Hebrew Lexicon, [2] Hebrew tenses illustrated, [3] a Greek Lexicon); with 23 pictorial views of Palestine, 16 Bible maps, and 25 fac-similes of biblical MSS.; Contributions to a New Revision; or, A Critical Companion to the New Testament, being a series of notes on the original text, with the view of securing greater uniformity in its English rendering, including the chief alterations of the “Revision” of 1881 and of the American Committee; Concordance to Eight Thousand Changes of the Revised New Testament; Dictionary and Concordance of Bible Words and Synonyms, exhibiting the use of above ten thousand Greek and English words occurring in upwards of eighty thousand passages of the New Testament, so as to form a key to the hidden meanings of the Sacred Scripture; Two-fold Concordance to the New Testament, (1) to the Greek New Testament, exhibiting every root and derivative, with their several prefixes and terminations in all their occurrences, with the Hebrew originals of which they are renderings in the Septuagint; (2) a concordance and dictionary of Bible words and synonyms (being a condensation of the New-Testament part of the English Analytical Concordance); also a concise concordance to eight thousand changes of the “Revised” Testament; Grammatical Analysis of the Book of Psalms in Hebrew, the original text unabridged, the parsing of every word, with all its prefixes and affixes, with a literal translation; Paradigms of the Hebrew Verbs, with the Serviles in Large Open-faced Characters.
ZOECKLER, Otto, Ph.D. (Göttingen, 1857); professor extraordinary, 1857; Profungrätschütz und biblischer Sprachgeist, 1859; System der christlich kirchlichen Katechetik, 1 Bd. 1863—72, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1872—74; Die Katechismen der Waldenser und Böhmischen Brüder, kritische Textausgabe, Erlangen, 1863; Über die wesentlichen Verfassungsziele der lutherischen Reformation, Leipzig, 1867 (pp. 64); System der praktischen Theologie, 1876—78, 3 parts; Der Kaisertraum des Mittelalters in seinen religiösen Motiven, 1877 (pp. 31); Das Drama vom Ende des römischen Kaiser- tums und von der Erscheinung des Antichristes. Nach Nachs. d. 12. Jahrh., 1878 (pp. 75); Von römischer Kaiserzeit bis zum heutigen Tage, ein mittelalterl. Drama, 1877; Die Christenlehre im Zusammenhang, 1880—82, 3 parts, 2d ed. 1883—85; Luther's kleiner Katechismus, 1880—81, 2 parts; Lehrbuch der Pädagogik, 1882; Luthers Stellung, Hamburg, 1889 (pp. 26).

ZIMMER, Friedrich Karl, Ph.D. (Halle, 1877), Lic. Theol. (Bonn, 1880), German Protestant; b. at Gardelegen, Prussia, Sept. 22, 1855; educated at Tübingen and Berlin; became privat-docent of theology at Bonn 1880, the same at Königsberg, and pastor at Malmsfelt 1883; professor extraordinary, and pastor of the Deaconesses' hospital, Königsberg, 1884. He edited Halleluja, 1880—85. He is the author of J. G. Fichte's Religionsphilosophie, Berlin, 1878; Der Spruch vom Jonazaichen, Hild burghausen, 1881; Galaterbrief und Apostelgeschichte, 1882; Exegetische Problem des Hebräer und Galaterbriefs, 1882; Concordantia supplementaria omnium vocum N. T., Bonn, 1882; Die deutschen evangelischen Kirchengesangvereine der Gegenwart, Quedlinburg, 1882; Der Verfall des Kantonen- u. Organistenamtes in der evangelischen Landeskirche, Preusens, seine Ursachen u. Vorschläge zur Besserung, 1885; several minor articles on church music and exegesis.

ZOECKLER, Otto, Ph.D. (Giessen, 1854), Lic. Theol. (do., 1856), D.D. (hon., do., 1866), Lutheran; b. at Grünberg, Hesse, May 27, 1833; studied at Giessen, Erlangen, and Berlin, 1851—56; became privat-docent at Giessen, 1857; professor extraordinary, 1863; ordinary professor at Greifswald, 1866. He became consistorialrat at Greifswald, January, 1885. He edited the Allgemeine literarische Anzeiger für das Ev. Deutschland, 1867—74; and since 1892, has edited the Evangelische Kirchenzeitung (founded by Hengstenberg); and since 1890, been principal editor of der Beweis der D.G. He is the author of De vi ac notionem vocabulii iamic N. T. (inaugural dissertation), Giessen, 1857; Theologia naturalis: Entwurf einer systematischen Naturtheologie vom offenbarungsgläubigen Standpunkte, vol. i., Frankfurt-a.-M., 1860; Kritische Geschichte der Askese, 1863; Hieronymus, sein Leben und Wirken aus seinen Schriften dargestellt, Gotha, 1864; commentary on Chronicles, Job, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, Canticles, and Daniel, in Lange's Bibelwerk, Bielefeld, 1866—72 (translated New York, 1870 sqq.); Die Urgeschichte der Erde und des Menschen, Gütersloh, 1888; Das Kreuz Christi, 1870 (English trans., The Cross of Christ,

ZOEPPFEL, Richard Otto, Ph.D., D.D. (both from Göttingen, 1871 and 1878), Protestant theologian (school of Ritschl); b. at Arensburg Livland (Russia), June 14, 1843; studied theology at Dorpat, 1862–68 (with interruptions); history at Göttingen, 1869–70; became repetent of theology at Göttingen, 1870; professor extraordinary of theology at Strassburg, 1872; ordinary professor there, 1877. He is the author of Die Papstwahlen und die mit ihnen im nächsten Zusammenhange stehenden Ceremonien in ihrer Entwicklung vom 11. bis zum 14. Jahrhundert, Göttingen, 1871; (with Holtzmann) Lexikon für Theologie und Kirchenwesen, Leipzig, 1882.

ZUNZ, Leopold, Ph.D., Hebrew; b. at Detmold, Germany, Aug. 10, 1794; d. at Berlin, March 21, 1886. He was educated at the University of Berlin; became rabbi to the new synagogue there, 1829, but retired after two years, and started a society for Jewish culture and science, to which Heinrich Heine belonged. But the society, which was nicknamed "Young Jerusalem," although embracing many men of talent, soon broke up, perhaps because of Zunz's radicalism. Many of its members became Christians. From 1821 to 1832, Zunz was director of the New Jewish Congregational School. From 1825 to 1835 he edited the Spengler'sche Zeitung. From 1835 to 1839, at Prague, he again undertook ministerial functions. From 1839 to 1850 he was director of the Normal Seminary in Berlin. Since 1845 he was a member of the Board of Commissioners for the educational interests of the Jews in Prussia. His long life was one of great literary activity. His works are distinguished by learning and by beauty and clearness of style. Among them may be mentioned, Etwas über die rabbinische Literatur, Berlin, 1818 (which first brought him into notice); Predigten, 1823, 2d ed. 1846; Die gottesdienstlichen Vorträge der Juden, historisch entwickelt, 1832 (his most valuable book); Namen der Juden, Leipzig, 1837; Zeitafel über die gesammte heilige Schrift, Berlin, 1839; Zur Geschichte und Literatur, Bd. 1., 1843; Damaskus, ein Wort zu Abwehr, 2d ed. 1859; Die synagogale Poesie des Mittelalters, 1855–59, 2 parts; Die Vorschriften über Eidesleistung der Juden, 1859; Wahlrede, 1861; 2. Wahlrede, 1861; Politisch und nicht politisch (lecture), 1862; Selbstregierung (lecture), 1864; Sterbeurteile, 1864; Die geistige Gesundheit (lecture), 1864; Die hebräischen Handschriften in Italien, 1864; Literaturgeschichte der synagogalen Poesie, 1865; Nachtrag dazu, 1867; Israel's gottesdienstliche Poesie (lecture), 1870; Deutsche Briefe, Leipzig, 1872.
FIRST APPENDIX:

Mostly additions sent by the writers too late for insertion in the proper place. New book-titles follow directly after the authors' names.

ACHELIS, E. C. Aus dem akademischen Get-teudienst in Marburg, Predigten, Marburg, 1886.

ACQUOY, John Gerard Richard, D.D. (Leiden, 1857), Dutch Protestant theologian; b. at Amdsterdam, Jan. 3, 1829; educated at the University of Amsterdam; became Reformed pastor at Eer-beek 1858, Koog 1861, Bommel 1863; professor of theology at Leiden, 1878; professor of ecclesiastical history, and history of Christian doctrine, in the same, 1881. In 1877 he became a member of the Royal Academy of Sciences. He is the author of Gerardi blagni epistolwXIV. (his D.D. thesis), Amsterdam, 1857; and in Dutch of "Herman de Ruyter, after Published and Unpublished Documents," 1870; Jan van Venray, 1873; "The Cloister of Windesheim and its Influence," 1875,
3 vols.; "The History of the Reformed Church

AHLFELD, J. F. Cf. art. Herzog 2 XVII. 637 sqq.

ALLEN, A. V. O., received the degree of D.D.
at Harvard's 250th anniversary, Nov. 8, 1886.

ALEXANDER, Bishop W. The Divinity of our

ALEXANDER, Henry Carrington, D.D. (Hampden-Sidney College, Va., 1869), Presbyterian; b. at Princeton, N. J., Sept. 27, 1835; graduated at the College of New Jerse, Princeton, N.J., 1854, and at the Theological minary in that place, 1858; was stated supply of the Eighty-fourth streetChurch, New-York City, for six months in 1858; the same in the villagechurch of Charlotte Court-House, Va., from Oct. 1, 1859, to May, 1861, pastor until Jan. 1, 1870; since professor of biblical literature and interpretation of the N. T., Union Theological Seminary, Va. Author of Life of Jo-

ARNOLD, M., resigned his inspectorship, Noember, 1886.

BAIRD, H. M. The Huguenots, and Henry of

BARTLETT, E. C., edited with J. P. Peters,
The Scriptures for Young People, New York, 1886
sqq. 3 vols.

BARING-GOULD is lord of the Manor of Lew Trenchard and Waddilstone; eldest son of Edward Baring-Gould, J. P. and D. L. for County Devon, representative of the ancient family of Gould of Devon, which has occupied estates in the county since the reign of Henry III. Lew Trenchard became the property of the Goulds in 1625, and has continued in the family since. He is J. P.
for County of Devon. To the list of his books add: The Trials of Jesus, London, 1886; Nazareth and Capernaum; Ten Lectures on the Beginning of our Lord's Ministry, 1886; Our Parish Church: Twenty Addresses to Children on the Great Truths of the Christian Faith, 1886.

BAUDISSIN, W. W. F., D.D. (Louv., Giessen, 1880).

BAUR, C. A. L., D.D. (Louv., ——, 18—); was member of commission for revising Luther's Bible. Add to list of books: Sechs Tabellen über die israelitische Geschichte, Giessen, 1848; (edited Andreas Kempf's Selbstbiographie, Leipzig, 1882; (with Dr. Karl A. Schmid), Geschichte der Erzie-hung, Stuttgart, 1884.

BEECHER, H. W., made a brilliant lecturing tour in England in the summer of 1886, and was offered a public reception by the Common Council of Brooklyn, but declined it (November, 1886).

BEETS, Nicolaas, D.D. (Leiden 1839, Edinburgh 1884), Phil. Mag. and Litt. D. (Utrecht, 1865), Dutch Protestant, religious poet; b. at Haarlem, Sept. 13, 1814; studied theology at Leiden; became Reformed pastor at Heemstede 1840, at Utrecht 1854; professor of theology at Utrecht, 1875. He is the author in Dutch of Camera obscura
(under the pseudonyme of Hildebrand), Haarlem, 1839, 16th ed. 1886 (translated into different languages of Europe; the French title is, Scénes de la vie hollandaise, Paris, 1856); "Biography of J. H. van der Palm," 1892 (English trans. New York, 1865); "Hours of Devotion," 1848-75, 8 vols. (German select trans. Bonn, 1858); "St. Paul, at the most Important Times of his Life and Activity,
" 18—, 3d ed. 1859 (German trans. Gotha, 1857, Danish trans. Copenhagen, 1838); "Literary Recreations," 1856, 2d ed. 1873; collected edition of his poems, 1864—53, 4 vols.; "Literary Miscellanies," 1876, 2 vols.; editor of the complete works of Staring and Bogaers (Dutch poets of the nineteenth century), 1862 and 1871 respectively; and of Anna Römer Visscher (seventeenth century), 1881; translator into Dutch of Emblémes chrétiens by Georgette de Montenay, lady of honor to Jeanne d'Albret, Queen of Navarre, 18—.

BEHRENS, A. J.F. Socialism and Christianity,
New York, 1886.

BELL, Frederik Willem Bernard van, D.D.
(Leiden, 1849), Dutch Protestant theologian; b. at Rotterdam in the year 1822; studied at Leiden; became Reformed pastor at Noordwykerbou-1849, at Hoorn 1853, at Amsterdam 1856; professor of theological encyclopedia, interpretation of the Greek Testament, and moral philosophy, at Groningen. He is one of the founders and editors of the Theologisch Tijdschrift, Amsterdam and Lei

BENDER, W., belongs to the left, or radical, wing of the school of Ritschl.

BENRATH, K., D.D. (hon., Jens, 18—).

BENSON, Archbishop. Communings of a Day held with Musters of Public Schools in the Chapel of Winchester College (six short addresses), London, 1886.

BERESFORD, Right Hon. and Most Rev. Marcus Gervais, D.D. (Cambridge, 1840), D.C.L. (Oxford, 1892), Lord Archbishop of Armagh and Clogher, and Primate of All Ireland, Church of Ireland, a nephew of the first Marquis of Waterford; b. at Kilmore, Ireland, in the year 1801; d. at Armagh, Dec. 26, 1885; educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. 1824, M.A. 1828; ordained deacon 1824, priest 1825; became rector of Kildallen, 1825; later vicar of Drungand Lara, and also vicar-general of Kilmore and archdeacon of Ardagh; bishop of Kilmore, 1854; translated to Armagh, 1863.

BERNARD, Hon. and Right Rev. Charles Brodrick, D.D. (Oxford, 1880), lord bishop of Tuam, Killaloe, and A churny, Church of Ireland, son of the second Earl of Bandon; b. at Ban don (?), Ireland, Jan. 4, 1811; educated at Balliol College, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1832, M.A. 1834, B.D. 1866; was ordained deacon 1835, priest 1836; was vicar of Bantry, 1840—42; rector of Kilbrogan, Killaloe, and Achonry, Church of Ireland, son of the second Earl of Bandon; b. at Bandon (?), Ireland, in the year 1801; d. at Armagh, Dec. 26, 1885; educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. 1824, M.A. 1828; ordained deacon 1824, priest 1825; became rector of Kildallen, 1825; later vicar of Drungand Lara, and also vicar-general of Kilmore and archdeacon of Ardagh; bishop of Kilmore, 1854; translated to Armagh, 1863.

BERNARD, Hon. and Right Rev. Charles Brodrick, D.D. (Oxford, 1880), lord bishop of Tuam, Killaloe, and Achonry, Church of Ireland, son of the second Earl of Bandon; b. at Bandon (?), Ireland, Jan. 4, 1811; educated at Balliol College, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1832, M.A. 1834, B.D. 1866; was ordained deacon 1835, priest 1836; was vicar of Bantry, 1840—42; rector of Kilbrogan, Killaloe, and Achonry, Church of Ireland, son of the second Earl of Bandon; b. at Bandon (?), Ireland, in the year 1801; d. at Armagh, Dec. 26, 1885; educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; graduated B.A. 1824, M.A. 1828; ordained deacon 1824, priest 1825; became rector of Kildallen, 1825; later vicar of Drungand Lara, and also vicar-general of Kilmore and archdeacon of Ardagh; bishop of Kilmore, 1854; translated to Armagh, 1863.

BESTMANN, H. J. Die evangelischen missions und das deutsche Reich (lecture), Leipzig, 1886.

BEVAN, L. D., was assistant and co-pastor with Rev. Thomas Binncy, 1865-66; became pastor at Pittsb, 1866; was ordained deacon 1835, priest 1836; was vicar of Bantry, 1840—42; rector of Kilbrogan, Killaloe, and Achonry, Church of Ireland, son of the second Earl of Bandon; b. at Bandon (?), Ireland, Jan. 4, 1811; educated at Balliol College, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1832, M.A. 1834, B.D. 1866; was ordained deacon 1835, priest 1836; was vicar of Bantry, 1840—42; rector of Kilbrogan, BICKERSTETH, E. The Rock of Ages, 1858; and (1m:deutschcReich (lecture), Leipzig, 1886.

BONNET, J., is a professor in the University of France. His Olympia Morata has been translated into several languages, besides the German (Hamburg, 1660); his Aonio Poleario into Ger man (Hamburg, 1833), Italian (Florence, 18—); his Récits, etc., into German (Berlin, 1864). He edited the admirable Mémoires of Louis de Marolles, from the time of the Revocation, Paris, 1882; and a third series of Récits du seizième siècle, 1886.

BORDIER, Henri Léonard, Reformed Church of France, layman; b. in Paris, in the year 1817; educated at the Ecole de droit and the Ecole des Chartes in Paris, and licensed in law, and as paleographic archivist in 1840; but has ever since devoted himself to historical studies. He was successively, for a time, assistant to the historian Augustin Thierry; assistant in the Academy of Inscriptions; secretary by interim of the Ecole des Chartes; a member of the commission on the departmental archives of the minister of the interior (1846), archivist of the national archives (1850), dismissed on the establishment of the Empire. He was, during the siege of Paris, on the commission upon the papers of the Tuileries; and in 1872 was designated honorary director of the Department of manuscripts in the National Library. He has been for many years on the committee, of the "Société d'histoire du protestantisme français." He is the author of numerous works, noted for their great accuracy. Among them may be mentioned: various notices in the Bibliothèque de l'Ecole des Chartes, Paris, 1841-86; Histoire générale de tous les dépôts d'archives existant en France, 1855; Les églises et monastères de Paris, 1856; an edition of Libri miraculorum alicum opera minora of Gregory of Tours, Latin text with French translation, 1857-64, 4 vols.; a French translation of the Historia Francorum of Gregory of Tours, 1859-61, 2 vols.; (with Ed. Charton) Histoire de France, 1859-61; Les inventaires des archives de l'Empire, 1867; Une fabrique de faux autographes, 1869; Chansonier huguenot du seizième siècle, 1869; L'Allemagne aux Tuileries, de 1850 à 1870, 1872; La Saint Barthélemy et la critique moderne, Geneva, 1879; L'Édific historique de l'Érémité Bolois Paris, 1880; Nicolas Castellin de Tournay, refugié à Genève (1564-1576), 1881; is reissuing with enlargements and corrections, the brothers Eugène and Emile Haag's La France protestante (original ed., Paris, 1846-50, 10 vols.); Paris, 1877 sqq.
BREDENKAMP, C. J. Der Prophet Jesaia erläutert. Erlangen, 1886 sq.

BRIGHT, W. was educated at Rugby School; ordained deacon 1848, priest 1850; appointed proctor of the chapter in convocation, 1870.

BROOKE, S. A. The Unity of God and Man, and Second Protest against Dr. Temple's Consecration, 1884; A Pattern for Builders, 1878; The Disestablishment of Religion in Oxford, the Betrayal of a Sacred Trust: Words of Warning to the University, 1880; Prophecy. — not "Forecast," but (in the words of Bishop Butler) "The History of Events before they come to pass," 1880; Divergent Ritual Practice, 1881; Canon Robert Gregory, A Letter of Friendly Remonstrance, 1st and 2d ed. 1881; The Revision Revised: Three Articles from the Quarterly Review, with a Reply to Bishop Ellicott's Pamphlet, and a Vindication of the Traditional Reading of 1 Tim. iii. 16, 1883; To Educate Young Women like Young Men, and with Young Men, a Thing Inconsistent and Immodest, 1884; Poems (1840—78), 1885.

CARROLL, Henry King, LL.D. (Syracuse University, N.Y., 1885), Methodist layman; b. at Dennissville, N.D., Nov. 15, 1847; was self-taught; became editor of The Haare Republican, Maryland, 1868; assistant editor of The Methodist, New York, 1869; of The Independent and Home, New York, 1870; night agent of the New-York Associated Press, 1871; special correspondent of the Boston (Mass.) Traveller, 1873; religious editor of the New-York Independent, 1876. He was a delegate from the Methodist-Episcopal Church to the Ecumenical Methodist Conference in London, 1881; organizing secretary of the Methodist Centennial Conference, 1884. He was the chief editor of the Proceedings of the Centennial Methodist Conference, New York, 1886; is the author of the pamphlets, World of Missions, New York, 1892; Catholic Dogma of Church Authority, New York, 1884; and is a frequent contributor to the Methodist Quarterly Review, New York.

CASSEL, P. Kritisches Sendschreiben über die Probobel. Berlin, 1885 (Heft 1; "Mit e. wissenscht. Anmerkung über Hellenismen in den Psalmen; Heft II.; Messianische Stellen des alten Testaments. Anhängt sind Anmerkungen über Megillah Taanith; Aus dem Lande des Sonnenaufgangs, 1885; Ze rooster, sein Name und seine Zeit, 1886 (pp. 24).

CHESTER, Right Rev. William Bennet, D.D. (Trinity College, Dublin, 1883), lord bishop of Killaloe, Church of Ireland; b. at Ballyclough, County Cork, Ireland, in the year 1820; educated at Trinity College, Dublin; graduated B.A. and divinity testimonium (second-class) 1846, M.A. 1856, B.D. 1883; ordained deacon and priest, 1846; became curate of the Parish of Killakee, Co. Kerry, 1847, of Killkee 1849; rector of Ballymackey and chancellor of Killlaoe, 1855; rector of Nenagh 1859, of Birr 1875 (prebendary of Tipperkevin or canon of St. Patrick's, 1877—54; archdeacon of Killaloe, 1890—94); bishop of Killaloe, Killfenora, Clonfert, and Kilmaclough, 1884.

CHYNE, T. K. The Church and Solomon; or, the Wisdom of the Old Testament (an introduction to the... criticism and exegesis of Job, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and Ecclesiasticus), 1886. He also contributed to the Queen's Printers' Teacher's Bible; and art. Histories in the 9th ed. of the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

CLARKE, J. F. Vezed Questions in Theology, 1886; The Fourth Gospel, 1886.

COMBA, E. Vera Narrazione del Massacro di Vattellina di V. Parravicino, 1886; Parafrai sopra l'Ep. di S. Paolo ai Romani di F. Virgilio, 1886. He is editing the Histoire des Vaudois d'Italie depuis leurs origines jusqu'à nos jours, 2 vols.

CONDER, Eustace Rogers, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1882), Congregationalist; b. near St. Albans (the ancient Verulam), Eng., April 5, 1820; educated for the Christian ministry at Spring Hill College, Birmingham; entered, 1838; graduated M.A. in philosophy, with gold medal, at the University of London, 1844; became Congregational pastor at Toole, Dorset, 1844; at Leeds (East Parade Congregational Church), 1845-71. In 1870 was chairman of the Congregational Union in 1873. He is "distinctly and strongly evangelical, with high views of authority of Scripture; but of broad sympathies, unpledged to any party formula or narrow creed." He is the author of Memoir of Josiah Conder (his father, see Encyclopædia, iii. 2590), London, 1856; Commentary on St. Matthew's Gospel, 1886; Sleepy Forest, and other Tales for Children, 1872; The Basis of Faith, Critical Survey of Christian Theism (Congregational lecture for 1877), 1877, 3d ed. 1886; Outlines of the Life of Christ, 1881; Drops and Rocks, and other Talks with the Children, 1892; a great number of articles in reviews and magazines, lectures, etc.

CORNILL, Carl Heinrich, Lic. Theol. (Marburg, 1880 [?]), D.D. (hon., Heidelberg, 1886), German Protestant theologian; b. in Germany, April 26, 1854; pursued his theological studies at Marburg, and other universities; became privat-docent of theology at Marburg, 1880 [?]; professor extraordinary at Königsberg, 1886. He is the author of Jeremia und seine Zeit, Heidelberg, 1880 (pp. 39); Der Prophet Ezechiel gescildert, 1882 (pp. 53); Das Buch des Propheten Ezechiel (a critical reconstruction of the Hebrew text), Leipzig, 1886 (pp. xii. 513).

COTTRELL, H., d. at Edinburgh, Thursday, April 16, 1886.

COULIN, F. La vocation du chrétien, Paris, 1870.

Cramer, Jacobus, D.D. (Utrecht, 1886), Dutch Protestant theologian; b. at Rotterdam, Dec. 24, 1833; educated at Utrecht; became adjunct to the director of the Missionary Society of Rotterdam, 1858; Reformed pastor at Oude Wetering 1859, at Charloins 1862, and at Amsterdam 1866; professor of the history of the Christian religion, early Christian literature, and history of Christian doctrine, at Groningen, 1876, since 1884 at Utrecht. He is an advocate of the evangelical orthodox theology; as appears, amongst other things, from the "Contributions in the Domain of Theology and Philosophy," which he published with G. H. Lamers (Amsterdam, 1867-85, 5 vols.). He is the author of Specimen historico-dogmaticum de Arianoismo (his D.D. thesis), Utrecht, 1858; and in Dutch of "Christianity and Humanity," Amsterdam, 1871, "Alexander Vines, considered as a Christian Moralist and Apologist," 1883 (crowned by the Hague Society).

CREIGHTON, M., Hon. D.C.L. (Durham, 1885). In 1885 he was appointed by the Crown, canon of Worcester Cathedral; in 1886 sent by Cambridge University to represent John Harvard's college (Emmanuel), at the 250th anniversary of the founding of Harvard University, on which occasion (Monday, Nov. 8, 1886) he received the degree of LL.D.

CROSBY, H. Full title of his N. T. Commentary is, The New Testament in both Authorized and Revised Versions, carefully annotated, Boston, 1885.

Croker, T., d. at Londonderry, Oct. 3, 1886.

Culross, James, D.D. (St. Andrew's, 1867), Baptist; b. near Blairgowrie, Perthshire, Scotland, in November, 1824; graduated M.A. at the University of Edinburgh, 1859, at Charlois 1862, and at Amsterdam 1866; professor of the history of the Christian religion, and other universities; became privat-docent of the Congregational Union in 1873. He is "distinctly and strongly evangelical, with high views of authority of Scripture; but of broad sympathies, unpledged to any party formula or narrow creed." He is the author of Memoir of Josiah Conder (his father, see Encyclopædia, iii. 2590), London, 1856; Commentary on St. Matthew's Gospel, 1886; Sleepy Forest, and other Tales for Children, 1872; The Basis of Faith, Critical Survey of Christian Theism (Congregational lecture for 1877), 1877, 3d ed. 1886; Outlines of the Life of Christ, 1881; Drops and Rocks, and other Talks with the Children, 1892; a great number of articles in reviews and magazines, lectures, etc.

Dale, R. W., in 1885 was appointed by the Crown a member of a commission for inquiring into the working of the English system of elementary education. He has written A Preliminary Essay to a translation of Carl Schmidt's Social Results of Early Christianity, London, 1885.

Dalton, H. Nathanael, St. Petersburg, 3d ed. 1886; Immanuel (trans. into Dutch); Der verlorene Sohn, 2d ed. 1884.

Davidson, R. L., was educated at Harrow.
DAVIES, J. L., contributed Peaks, Passes, and Glaciers, to Tracts for Priests and People.

DEANE, H., was Grinfield lecturer in the University of Oxford, 1884–86. He has also written various sermons and articles.

DEANE, W. J., was educated at Rugby. Catechism, 3d ed., 1886.

DECOPPET, Auguste Louis, Reformed Church of France; b. in Paris, Feb. 4, 1836; studied at the preparatory school of theology of Batignolles; became professor of history and French literature in the Royal College of Noorthey, Holland, where the Prince of Orange studied, 1858; determining on a ministerial career, he entered the theological seminary of Montauban, and graduated B.D. 1863; became pastor at Alais 1863; pastor of the Reformed Church of Paris 1859, and is now at the Oratoire. Among his works may be mentioned, Catechisme elementaire, Paris, 1875; Paris protestant, 1876; Sermons, 1876; Sermons pour les enfants, 3 vols. 1880 (translated into Danish, Hungarian, German [Gütersloh, 1883], and English); Meditations pratiques, 1881.

DENISON, Ven. G. A., is brother of the late Lord Osborn, speaker of the House of Commons, 1857–72; of the Bishop of Salisbury, 1857–54; and of Sir William Denison, K.C.B., Governor of Tasmania, Sydney, Madras, 1846–66. The archdeacon, as member of the Lower House of Convocation from revival of Convocation in 1852, was chairman of committees reporting in condemnation of Essays and Reviews, and of Bishop Colenso’s writings on the Old Testament. The Elementary Education Act conditioned the public grant upon the change of the schools of the Church of England into state schools, and in the attendant controversy he bore a prominent part. In December, 1885, after a general election, he issued a pamphlet, Mr. Gladstone, in its 7th thousand, March, 1886.

DEREBOURGQ, Joseph, Ph.D., (Giessen, 1834); b. at Mayence, Aug. 21, 1811; studied at the Talmudical School and in the gymnasium of Mayence, and at the universities of Giessen and Bonn. He came to Paris in 1859; became a corrector of the press in the National Printing House (1852), especially of Hebrew (1856); professor of rabbinical and Talmudic Hebrew in the University of Paris, 1877. In 1871 he was elected a member of the Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-lettres. He is one of the most frequent contributors to the Journal scientifique de la théologie juive, and to the Revue juive scientifique et pratique, Journal asiatique, Revue critique; editor of Lokmann’s Fables, Paris, 1846; the second edition (with M. Reinaud) of the Séances de Hariri, 1847–53; author of Essai sur l’histoire de la Palestine, 1867, etc.

DIECKHOFF, A. W., was professor extraordinary at Göttingen, 1854, before becoming ordinary professor at Rostock, 1860. He has written Zur Lehre von der Bekehrung und von der Prädestination: Zweite Entgegung auf missourische Ausflüchte, Rostock, 1886; Der Alkoholstreit, Dogmengeschichtlich dargestellt, Gotta, 1896.

DITTRICH, F., was professor of moral theology, 1872; of ecclesiastical history, 1873. He has published Observationes quaedam de ordine naturali et morali, Braunschweig, 1869; Reprint der Briefe des Cardinals Gasparo Contarinii (1483–1528), 1881; Gasparo Contarinii, eine Monographie, 1885. In the Indice Lectionum Leicii Hosiiani Brunsgenensis he wrote the following articles: De Socratis sententia, virtute esse scientiam, 1868; Quid e S. Pauli sententia lex moralis, in moribus spectantium, 1871; De Tertulliano christiana veritatis regulari contra hareticorum licentiam vindice, 1877; Qua partes fuerint Petri Pauli Vergeri in colloquio Wornatensi, 1879; Sitzt IV. Summi Pontificis ad Paulum III. Op. Pontif. Max. compositionum defensio, 1883. He edited the Mittheilungen des ermländischen Kunsts Vereines, Braunsberg, 1870, 1871, 1875; has also contributed to the Zeitschrift für Geschichte und Alterthumskunde Ermlands; to the Historisches Jahrbuch der Göres-Gesellschaft (Die Nuntiaturberichte Giovanni Morone’s vom Reichstage zu Regensburg 1841, 1843); and to the Beiträge zur Geschichte der katholischen Reformation im ersten Drittel des 16 Jahrhunderts, in 1884 and 1886.

DIXON, R. W., is the son of James Dixon, a celebrated Wesleyan preacher. He has written Lyrical Poems, Oxford, 1886.

DOES, M., wrote other articles in the Encyclopædia Britannica, besides those mentioned; Para- bles, 1st series, 3d ed. 1886.

DODEES, J. I., teaches also natural theology and textual criticism. Page 56, l. 14, r. Kerkelijke; l. 19, supply de before Jesu.

DONALDSON, J., rector of the University of St. Andrews, 1889.

DRUMMOND, Henry, has made scientific expeditions in Europe, America, and Central Africa, and is the author of various scientific papers.

Dwiger, L., since 1855 has been "Maître de conférences d'histoire à l'Ecole des Hautes-Etudes de la Sorbonne," Paris.

Draycott, V., received the degree of L.L.D. at the 250th anniversary of Harvard College, Nov. 8, 1886; translated the third edition of Godet on John.

Eaton, Samuel John Mills, D.D. (Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1868). Presbyterian; b. at Fairview, Erie County, Penn., April 15, 1820; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1845; studied at the Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1846-48; was stated supply and pastor at Franklin, Penn., 1848-82; at Mt. Pleasant, Penn., 1848-55. He was permanent clerk, synod of Allegheny, 1850-70; stated clerk, synod of Erie, 1870-81; has been stated clerk, presbytery of Erie, since 1883; trustee of Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., since 1879; director of the Western Theological Seminary since 1880. He was a delegate in the Christian Commission, 1863; travelled in the East, 1871. He is the author of History of Petroleum, Philadelphia, 1864; History of the Presbytery of Erie, New York, 1868; Ecclesiastical History (in Centennial Memorials of Presbyterianism in Western Pennsylvania, Harrisburg, 1869); History of Venango County, Penn., 1876; Lakeside, Pittsburgh, 1880; Memoir of Rev. Cyrus Dickson, D.D., New York, 1883; Jerusalem, Palestine, 1884; Lamberton Memorial, Pittsburg, 1885.

Eddy, Z., removed to Detroit, Mich., in 1886.

Eden, R., d. at Inverness, Thursday, Aug. 26, 1886.

Edersheim, A., was the first Jew to carry petitions in Europe, America, and Central Africa, and is the author of various scientific papers.

Dwiger, L., since 1855 has been "Maître de conférences d'histoire à l'Ecole des Hautes-Etudes de la Sorbonne," Paris.

Draycott, V., received the degree of L.L.D. at the 250th anniversary of Harvard College, Nov. 8, 1886; translated the third edition of Godet on John.

Eaton, Samuel John Mills, D.D. (Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1868). Presbyterian; b. at Fairview, Erie County, Penn., April 15, 1820; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1845; studied at the Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1846-48; was stated supply and pastor at Franklin, Penn., 1848-82; at Mt. Pleasant, Penn., 1848-55. He was permanent clerk, synod of Allegheny, 1850-70; stated clerk, synod of Erie, 1870-81; has been stated clerk, presbytery of Erie, since 1883; trustee of Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., since 1879; director of the Western Theological Seminary since 1880. He was a delegate in the Christian Commission, 1863; travelled in the East, 1871. He is the author of History of Petroleum, Philadelphia, 1864; History of the Presbytery of Erie, New York, 1868; Ecclesiastical History (in Centennial Memorials of Presbyterianism in Western Pennsylvania, Harrisburg, 1869); History of Venango County, Penn., 1876; Lakeside, Pittsburgh, 1880; Memoir of Rev. Cyrus Dickson, D.D., New York, 1883; Jerusalem, Palestine, 1884; Lamberton Memorial, Pittsburg, 1885.

Eddy, Z., removed to Detroit, Mich., in 1886.

Eden, R., d. at Inverness, Thursday, Aug. 26, 1886.

Edersheim, A., was the first Jew to carry off a prize at the gymnasium of Vienna. He was educated in Hungary as well as in Austria (Vienna). He wrote articles Josephus and Philo in Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography; and commentary on Ecclesiastics, in the Bible (Speaker's Commentary on the Apocrypha; Israel and Judah, from the Reign of Ahab to the Decline of the Two Kingdoms, 1886.

Edwards, L., collected works were published in Welsh at Wrexham. The most important are, "The Doctrine of the Atonement," and "The Harmony of the Faith."

Ellisott, Bishop. Are We to Modify Fundamental Doctrine? 2d ed. 1886.

Ellisott, C., is a member of the Victoria Institute of London.

Eyre, C., went to Newcastle-on-Tyne, 1843; was canon theologian and vicar-general; is a member of the Order of the Knights of Malta, and also of the Holy Sepulchre.

Fairchild, J. H., was tutor in languages in Oberlin College, 1839-42.

Farrar, A. S., was select preacher at Oxford, 1885-86; examining chaplain to the Bishop of Westminster since 1883.

Farrar, F. W., travelled in the United States in 1885, and lectured on Dante, Browning, and the Talmud; contributed commentary on Judges in Bishop Elliot's Commentary, and on Book of Wisdom in Bible (Speaker's Commentary on the Apocrypha.

Faussert, A. R., B.D. and D.D. (by special grace of the Board of Trinity College and University, Dublin, 1886), became canon of York Minster, 1885.

Ferguson, Samuel David, D.D. (Theological Seminary, Gambier, O., 1885).

Foulkes, E. S., was examiner in the Honou School of Theology, Oxford, 1873-75; wrote Primitive Consecration of the Eucharistic Oclusion, London, 1886; numerous articles on church history and theology in Smith's Dictionaries of Christian Antiquities and Biography.

Field, H. M. Blood thinner than Water: a few Days among our Southern Brethren, New York, 1886.

Fisher, Q. P., received the degree of D.D. at the 250th anniversary of Harvard College, Nov. 8, 1886. Add: Catholicism (sermon), 1886.

Fliedner, F., edits also Blätter aus Spanien; and the periodicals, Christian Review (fortnightly) and Children's Friend (monthly); has prepared, in Spanish, lives of Livingstone, Luther, Dr. Fittig (his father), John Howard, Elizabeth Fry, Hymnbook for Sunday Schools, and various other books for the Spanish Christian literature.

Flint, R., was appointed in 1859 to the pastorate of the East Parish, Aberdeen, and in 1861 to that of Kileouqhbar, Fife. He is a corresponding member of the Institute of France, and a fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh. Author of Vico, Edinburgh, 1884.

Foster, R. V., was chief editor of the comments on the International Lessons, and other Sunday-school literature of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, from 1880 to 1884; and for three years, since 1877, he was in charge of the belles-lettres department of Cumberland University. at the same time discharging the duties of his theological professorship. — Trinity University is at Tehuacana, Tex.

Freppel, C. E. St. Irénée, 3d ed. 1886.

Fricke, G. A., became Consistorialrat in 1882.

Friedrich, J., died in summer of 1886.

Fritzsche, O. F. Confessio helrlecaposterior, Zürich, 1839; Duplex liber 'Eph'is, textus greco, 1848; Specimen ed.-crit. interpr. veter. lat. N. T., 1867; Epistula Clem. ad Jacob. et Rufini interprete, 1873.

Funk, F. X. Kirchengeschichte, 1886 sqq.

Gams, Bonifaz, Ph.D. (Tübingen, 1888); D.D. (hon., Tübingen, 18—). Roman Catholic; b. at Mittelbuch, Jan. 23, 1816; studied at Tübingen, where he received the prize of the theological faculty, and the first homiletical prize, 1838; became rätor at Aichstetten and Gnünd, 1839; acting preceptor at Horb, 1841; made a scientific journey at the expense of the State, 1842-43; became acting pastor at Wurmlingen, 1844; acting preceptor at Gmünd, 1845; professor of theology at Hildesheim, 1847; in the Benedictine Abbey of St. Boniface in Munich 1855, monk there 1856; rose to be superior, but later resigned. He has published Die sieben Worte Jesu am Kreuze, Rottenburg, 1845; Ausgang und Ziel der Geschichte, Tubingen, 1850; Johannes der Täufer im Gefüngnis, 1853; Die Geschichte der Kirche Jesu Christi im 19. Jahrhundert, Innsbruck, 1858, 3 vols.; Die 11. Säkularfeier des Martyrordes hl. Bonifatius in Pula und Mainz, Mainz, 1855; Margott, die Siege der Kirche im ersten Jahrzehnt des Pontifikats Pius IX., Innsbruck 1860, 2d ed. 1860; Katschetiche Reiten gehalten in der Basilika zu München, Regensburg, 1862, 2 vols.; Organisierung des Peterspfennigs, 1862; Kirchengeschichte von Spanien, 1862-76, 4 vols.; Register zu den historisch-politischen Bändern, Munich, 1865; Der Peterspfennig als Stiftung, Regensburg, 1866; J. A. Möhler, ein Leben und Briefe mit Briefen und kleineren Schriften von Möhlers, 1867; Das Jahr des Martyrordes der hl. Apostel Petrus und Paulus, 1867; Kirchengeschichte von J. A. Möhler, 1867-70, 3 vols.; Series Episcoporum ecclesiae catholicæ quatuor innotuerunt a B. Petro Ap., 1873; 1st supplement to the same, Hierarchia cathol. Pä IX., Munich, 1879; Der Bonifatius-Verein in Süddeutschland 1850-80, Paderborn, 1880; Predigt aus Anlass des Jubiläums, Munich, 1881; 2d supplement to Series episcopii, Regensburg, 1886; numerous reviews and articles in the Tübinger Quartalschrift, etc.
HARRISON.

257

GANDELL, R. His fellowship of Hertford College is unendowed. The edition of Lightfoot's Horæ was published by the Clarendon Press, Oxford.

GERHART, E. V., was editor of Rauch's Inner Life of the Christian, Philadelphia, 1856.

GIBB, John, D.D. (Aberdeen, 1886), Presbyterian; b. at Aberdeen, Scotland, in the year 1835; educated at the University of Aberdeen, at Heidelberg and Berlin, and also at the Divinity Hall of the Free Church in Aberdeen; became colleague of Rev. G. Wisely at Malta, 1866; theological tutor in the College of the Presbyterian Church of England, London, 1868; professor of New Testament exegesis in the same, 1877. He is the author of the translation of Augustine's Lectures on the Gospel according to John, vol. i. (in Clark's series), Edinburgh, 1873; Biblical Studies, and their Influence upon the Church, London, 1877; Guiraud and Other Stories, 1881 (2d ed. Guiraud, Brocuf, and the Song of Roland, 1884); Luther's Table-Talk (selected and edited), 1883; articles on theological and historical subjects, in Contemporary Review, British and Foreign Evangelical Review, British Quarterly Review, etc.

GANDELL, W. Applied Christianity, Boston, 1886.

GLOAG, P. J. Introduction to the Catholic Epistles, Edinburgh, 1886.

GORDON, W. R. Peter Nearer in Rome, New York, 1847; several tracts and sermons on various subjects, 1848-49; The Iniquity of Secession, 1862; The Assassination of President Lincoln, 1865; An Answer to the Romish Tract, "Is It Honest?" 1867; Controversial Letters in Defence of [the same], Youngstown, O., 1868.

GREEN, S. G. What Do I Believe? 1881; Christian Ministry to the Young, 1883.

GRUNDEMAN, P. R., has been, since 1882, president of the Missions-Conferenz in the Province of Brandenburg; has written, Zur Statistik der evangelischen Mission, Gutersloh, 1886.

GUTHÉ, H., new ed. Palstina, 1886.

HAERING, T. Die Theologie und der Vorwurf der "doppelten Wahrheit." Rede zum Antritt des akademischen Lehramts an der Universität Zürich, Zürich, 1886 (pp. 31). He is joint editor of the Theologische Studien aus Württemberg, and belongs to the right or conservative wing of the school of Ritschl.

HALE, E. E. Of Mr. Hale's other works may be mentioned, The Man Without a Country, Boston, 1861; If, Yes, and Perhaps, 1868; Ingham Papers, 1870; How To Do It, 1871; Christmas Eve and Christmas Day, 1872; His Level Best, and other stories, 1872; Workingmen's Homes, 1873; In His Name, 1874; Seven Spanish Cities, and the Way to them, 1883; Sermons and Easter Poems, Boston, 1886; (with Susan Hale) The Story of Spain, N.Y., 1886 (several editions of each).

HALEY, J. W., is translating Eusebius' Preparatio Evangelica from the original Greek, a work which has never yet been accomplished.

HALL, N. His church has a membership of nine hundred, and Sunday school of six thousand children. The Lincoln Tower is a hundred and twenty feet in height; the spire is formed of red and white stone representing the stars and stripes. It has two class-rooms called "Washington" and "Wilberforce." To his list of works add: Family Prayers in the Words of Scripture.

HANNE, J. W., gave public lectures upon history and philosophy, Protestantism, etc., at Brunswick, 1840-50; was pastor in different places of the Kingdom of Hannover, 1851-61.

HARNACK, A. Codex Rossanensis, Leipzig, 1880; Der Ursprung des Lectorats und der anderen niederen Weichen, Giessen, 1886; Die Quellen der sogenannten apostolischen Kirchenordnung, Leipzig, 1886; Die Apostellehre u. die jüdischen beiden Wege (enlarged reprint of art. on the subject in the Appendix to Herzog?), 1886.

HARNACK, T. Luther's Theologie. 2. Abth. Luther's Lehre von dem Erlöser und der Erlösung, Erlangen, 1886.

HARPÉR, W. R., has been since 1885 principal of the schools of the Institute of Hebrew.

HARRISON, Ven. Benjamin, Church of England; b. in England about the year 1810; was a student of Christ Church, Oxford University, graduated B.A., first-class classics (and 2d-class mathematics) 1830; Ellerton theological prize, and Kennicott Hebrew scholar, 1831; English essay, and Pusey and Ellerton Hebrew scholar, 1832; M.A., 1833; was ordained deacon, 1832; priest, 1833; select preacher at Oxford, 1835–37; domestic chaplain to the archbishop of Canterbury, 1838–48; six preacher in Canterbury Cathedral 1848; became canon of Maidstone with canony in Canterbury Cathedral, annexed 1845. He was a member of the Old-Testament Company of the Anglo-Catholic Theological Society from its organization in 1870. He is the author of An Historical Inquiry into the True Interpretation of the Rubrics respecting the Sermon and the Communion Service, London, 1845; Prophetic Outlines of the Christian Church and the Anti-Christian Power, as traced in the Visions of Daniel and St. John (Warburtonian Lectures), 1849; Privileges, Duties, and Perils in the English Branch of the Church of Christ at the Present Time (six sermons preached in Canterbury Cathedral), 1850; and the following charges: Prospects of Peace for the Church, 1875; The Church in its Divine Constitution and Relation with the Civil Power, 1877; The More Excellent Way, 1878; Memories of Departed Brethren, 1878, Church’s Work and Wants, 1881; Diestablishment and Disendowment, 1883; Legacy of Peace, 1883; Address to the Archdeacon of Maidstone, 1885; The Continuity of the Church, and its Present Position in England, 1886.

HATCH, E. Individualism and Ecclesiasticism, Their Common Place in the Church of Christ (sermon), London, 1886.

HAURÉAU, J. B. Hugoide Saint Victor, 2d ed. 1886.

HAWES, H. R., visited America in 1885, and preached at New York and Boston, also before Harvard and Cornell Universities, addressing immense congregations. He also delivered seven lectures at the Lowell Institute, Boston, which drew together the largest audiences ever known to have assembled there. In the same year he visited Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington (where he was received by the President of the United States); and, after lecturing at Montreal and Kingston, Canada, returned to London in the spring of 1886. My Musical Life, 2d ed. 1886.

HEDGE, F. H., received the degree of LL.D. at Harvard’s 250th anniversary, Nov. 8, 1886.

HEIDENHEIM, Moritz, Ph.D. (Giessen, 1851), Anglican theologian; b. at Worms, Sept. 23, 1824; educated at the gymnasium at Worms, and at the universities of Würzburg and Giessen; studied theology subsequently at King’s College, London, and was elected associate of the college 1855. He worked for several years in the library of the British Museum, and in the Vatican and other libraries at Rome and elsewhere. He has been since 1864 “English chaplain” of the Anglican Church at Zürich, and private-docent in the theological faculty of the university there. He has published Deutsche Vierteljahrschrift für deutsche und englische theologische Forschung und Kräfte, 6 vols.; and, after lecturing at Athens, 1893–95, 4 vols.; Bibliotheca Samaritana (text and annotations), Leipzig, 1884 sqq.; 3d part, 1886.

HEINRICI, K. F. G. Wesen und Aufgabe der evangelisch-theologischen Fakultäten, Marburg, 1885.

HELMANN, C. F. Die historische und die religiöse Weltentfaltung des jüdischen Volkes, 1882.

HERVEY, A. C., D.D. (Oxford, 1885), wrote also on the Pastoral Epistles in the Pulpit Commentary.

HETTINGER, F. De theologische speculatie en mystieke connatu in Dantes Trilogia, Würzburg, 1882. He was made honorary member of the Louvain theological faculty in 1884.

HEURTLEY, C. A. Faith and the Creed. Dogmatic teaching of the Church of the Fourth and Fifth Centuries, Oxford, 1886 (a translation of Augustin’s De Fide et Symbolo).

HILGENFELD, A., belongs to the school of Baur.

HITCHCOCK, R. D., received the degree of LL.D. at Harvard’s 250th anniversary, Nov. 8, 1886.

HODGE, Archibald Alexander, died, after a short illness, at Princeton, Nov. 11, 1886, aged sixty-three years. He had a remarkable resemblance to his distinguished father, agreed fully with his system of theology, filled his chair, and was a very popular teacher and preacher. His funeral, Nov. 15, was attended by a large concourse of pupils and friends from near and far.

HOEKSTRA, Sytse, D.D. (Amsterdam, 1857), Dutch Protestant theologian; b. at Wieringerwaard, Aug. 20, 1825; studied at the Mennonite Seminary at Amsterdam; pursued a career of great literary activity, writing many books upon practical theology, and contributing to the principal Dutch reviews,—Jaarboeken voor wetenschappelijke Theologie; Licht, Liefde en Leren; especially to the Theologisch Tijdschrif, Amsterdam, 1867 sqq.; was elected a member of the Royal Academy of Sciences, 1868; had charge of the department of logic in the Amsterdam University, 1876; and has been since 1879 professor of the philosophy of religion in the Municipal University of Amsterdam.

He is the author in Dutch of “The Triumph of Love” (expositions of the Castiles), Amsterdam, 1856; “Liefde tot de wet” (lecturing at Montreal and Kingston, Canada, returned to London in the spring of 1886. My Musical Life, 2d ed. 1886.

HETTINGER, F. De theologische speculatie en mystieke connatu in Dantes Trilogia, Würzburg, 1882. He was made honorary member of the Louvain theological faculty in 1884.

HEURTLEY, C. A. Faith and the Creed. Dogmatic teaching of the Church of the Fourth and Fifth Centuries, Oxford, 1886 (a translation of Augustin’s De Fide et Symbolo).

HILGENFELD, A., belongs to the school of Baur.

HITCHCOCK, R. D., received the degree of LL.D. at Harvard’s 250th anniversary, Nov. 8, 1886.

HODGE, Archibald Alexander, died, after a short illness, at Princeton, Nov. 11, 1886, aged sixty-three years. He had a remarkable resemblance to his distinguished father, agreed fully with his system of theology, filled his chair, and was a very popular teacher and preacher. His funeral, Nov. 15, was attended by a large concourse of pupils and friends from near and far.

HOEKSTRA, Sytse, D.D. (Amsterdam, 1857), Dutch Protestant theologian; b. at Wieringerwaard, Aug. 20, 1825; studied at the Mennonite Seminary at Amsterdam; pursued a career of great literary activity, writing many books upon practical theology, and contributing to the principal Dutch reviews,—Jaarboeken voor wetenschappelijke Theologie; Licht, Liefde en Leren; especially to the Theologisch Tijdschrift, Amsterdam, 1867 sqq.; was elected a member of the Royal Academy of Sciences, 1868; had charge of the department of logic in the Amsterdam University, 1876; and has been since 1879 professor of the philosophy of religion in the Municipal University of Amsterdam. He is the author in Dutch of “The Triumph of Love” (expositions of the Castiles), Amsterdam, 1856; “Liefde tot de wet” (lecturing at Montreal and Kingston, Canada, returned to London in the spring of 1886. My Musical Life, 2d ed. 1886.

HETTINGER, F. De theologische speculatie en mystieke connatu in Dantes Trilogia, Würzburg, 1882. He was made honorary member of the Louvain theological faculty in 1884.

HEURTLEY, C. A. Faith and the Creed. Dogmatic teaching of the Church of the Fourth and Fifth Centuries, Oxford, 1886 (a translation of Augustin’s De Fide et Symbolo).
HOERSCHELMANN, Ferdinand, D.D. (hon., Erlangen, 18—); became pastor adjunctus at Felzin, Livonia, 1855; pastor ordinarius, 1861; ordinary professor of practical theology, and university preacher, at Dorpat, 1875. He received the order of St. Stanislaus (2d class) and St. Anna (2d class). Besides books in the Estonian language, — e.g., Introduction to the New Testament, Dorpat, 1881; Matthias Zell and his Friends, 1874; Lectures, 1875; 3d ed. 1884,—he has published various German addresses, etc.

HOFSDEE DE GROOT, Cornelis Philippus, D.D. (Groningen, 1855), Dutch Protestant theologian, son of the succeeding; b. at Groningen, in the year 1829; educated at Groningen; became Reformed pastor at Rottum 1856, at Dwingeloo 1860, at Purmerend 1861, at Kampen 1869; the appointee of the synod of the National Church to be professor of systematic theology, ecclesiastical history of the Dutch Reformed Church, and canons law, in Groningen, 1878; and died there Aug. 11, 1884. He is the author of Paulus concersio precipua theologiae Paulinic fons (his D.D. thesis, Groningen, 1853), and in Dutch of "Letters upon the Bible," Amsterdam, 1860; (with L. van Cleef) "The Apocryphal Gospels," 1877; the Dutch translation of Wylie's History of Protestantism, Leiden, 1883. He is the translator of the "History of the Reformation in the Netherlands (1518-1619)," 1881, 2d ed. 3d vol. 1885; "The Groningen Theses," Rotterdam, 1860; M ededelingen omtrent Matthias Claudius ("In Face of the Doubts and the Wisdom of the World"), The Hague, 1861; Ary Scheffer, 1862, 2d ed. 1872 (German trans. 1864, 2d ed. 1870); "Baalides considered as the First Witness in Favor of the Authenticity of the Writings of the New Testament and of the Fourth Gospel," 1860 (German trans., Leipzig, 1867); "The Modern Theology" of the Netherlands described according to the Principal Writings of its Most Illustrious Representatives," 1869 (German trans., Bonn, 1870); Johan Wessel Gunzevoort, 1871; "The Course of the Schism in the Reformed Church of the Netherlands," 1874; "The Old-Catholic Movement," 1877.

HOLSTEN, K. L. Die drei ursprünglichen, noch ungeschriebenen Evangelien, Karlsruhe und Leipzig, 1883; Die synoptischen Evangelien nach der Form ihres Inhalts, Heidelberg, 1886; Urspu nden und Wesen der Religion (lecture), Berlin, 1886. He belongs to the Tubingen school, and closely adheres to Dr. Baur's views on the alleged antagonism between Petrinism and Paulinism.

HOOD, E. P. The Vocation of the Preacher, London, 1886.

HOOP-SCHEF FER, J. Q., contributed also to the Dooopsgezinde Bijdragen, and wrote "A History of Baptism by Immersion," Amsterdam, 1882.

HOYIKAAS, L. Proeve eener Geschiedenis der Beoefening van de Wijze onder de Hebreren, Leyden, 1882.

HOPF KINS, M., received the degree of L.L.D. at Harvard's 250th anniversary, Nov. 8, 1886.

HOW, W. W. Commentary on the Four Gospels, 18—; Cambridge Pastoral Lectures, 1894.

HOW ISON, J. S. To the Diocesan of Women in the Anglican Church (with a short biographical sketch by his son), 1886.

HUNTINGTON, W. R. Joint author of the so-called "Book Annotated."

HURST, J. F., made a tour through Egypt, Syria, and Greece, 1871; made an official tour through India, and the Methodist missions in Europe and Turkey, 1884; edited (in connection with Prof. H. C. Whitney) Moral Essays of Seneca, 1877; wrote Christian Union, 1880; The Gospel a Combatte Force, 1884; Short History of the Early Church, 1888.

HURTER, H. Nomenclator, etc., Innsbruck, 1871—86, 3 vols. He is the son of Antistes Hurter, who joined the Roman-Catholic Church. See Encyclopaedia, p. 1043.

IMMER, Heinrich Albert, D.D. (Basel, 1860), Swiss Reformed theologian; b. at Unterseen, Aug. 10, 1804; d. at Bern, March 23, 1884. His father was pastor of Unterseen, Canton Bern. There was a clumsiness about him which his father mistook for stupidity, and severely punished. The effect of such treatment was to retard his mental development. He learned bookbindery at Lausanne and Zurich, and began business at Thun; but the reading, in 1834, of Schleiermacher's Reden über die Religion so powerfully moved him, that he determined to study theology. He entered, after a brilliant examination, the University of Bern in 1835, passed his theological examination in 1838, and continued his studies at Bonn and Berlin 1838–40. He then returned home, became a pastor, and, after ten years' service, became professor of extraneous divinity at Bern 1856, ordinary professor of New-Testament exegesis and of theology there 1856, and so remained until his retirement as professor emeritus in 1881.

He exerted a great and wide influence. He was the author of Schieiermacher als religiöser Character (lecture), Bern, 1858; Der Unsterblichkeitsglaube im Lichte der Geschichte und der gegenwärtigen Wissenschaft (lecture), 1865; Der Konflikt zwischen dem Staatskirchentum und dem methodistischen Dissentertum im Jahr 1829 in Bern, 1870 (pp. 71); Zum Leben Jesu (lecture, p. 29), Leipzig, 1873; Hermeneutik des neuen Testaments, Wittenberg, 1874 (English translation with additional notes, by Prof. A. H. Newman, Hermeneutics of the New Testament, Andover, 1877); Neutestamentliche Theologie, Bern, 1878. Cf. sketch by R. Rietzsch in Meili's Theologische Zeitschrift (see Zeitschrift, vol. 1 (St. Gallen), 1884, pp. 350–362.

JACKSON, Sheldon. L. 6, was missionary to the Choctaws in 1858; l. 8, for Crescent r. La Crescent. He was stated clerk of the Synod of Colorado, 1870–81; became superintendent of missions at Sitka, Alaska, 1884; United-States General Agent of Education in Alaska, 1885. Author of Alaska and Missions on the North Pacific Coast, New York, 1880.

JENNINGS, A. C., became rector of King's Stanley, Gloucestershire, 1886.

JOSTES, F. Die Teiper Bibelübersetzung, eine zweite Kritik, Münster, 1886. L. 14, r. Germania xxxi. 1–41; 164–204.

KAehler, C. M. A. Die Versöhnung durch Christum, Halle, 1885 (pp. 42).

KAFTAN, J. W. M., belongs to the conservative wing of the school of Ritschl, and succeeded Dr. Dörner.

KATTENBUSCH, F. W. F. His Oeconomische Symbole is not yet ready, nor does he now contemplate so extensive a work as the title suggests.

KAULEN, F. P., edited the 12th and succeeding editions of C. H. Voszen's Kurze Anleitung zum Erlernen der hebräischen Sprache (which is not a translation of the Latin work by the same author), Freiburg, 1874 sqq.

KEIL, J. C. F. Die Einleitung in d. kanon. Schriften, etc., 2d ed. 1840; in the third, 2d ed. 1852; and the title was changed to its present form: Einleitung in die kanonischen und apokryphischen Schriften des Alten Testaments.

KELLER, L. Die Waldenser und die deutschen Bibelübersetzungen, Leipzig, 1886 (pp. 189).

KENNEDY, B. H., fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, 1828–30; elected fellow, 1855; edited Vergil's Works, with Commentary, 1876.

KILLEN, W. D., wrote the continuation (vol. iii.) of James Marton's Reid's History of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland, Belfast, vol. i. 1834, vol. ii. 1837, vol. iii. 1853, 3d ed. 1877; The Ignatian Epistles entirely spurious (a reply to Bp. Lightfoot), Edinburgh, 1886.

KIRKPATRICK, A. F., until 1882, was assistant tutor and junior dean of Trinity College, Cambridge.

KOENIG, A., has written recensions, apologetical articles in various Roman-Catholic periodicals, besides editing the Freiburger Diöcesen Archiv.

KOESSING, F. Der reiche Jüngling, 1868.

KOLDE, Th. Der Methodismus und seine Bedeutung (lecture), Erlangen, 1886.

KUENEN, A., is also LL.D. The first chapter (The Hexateuch) of the 2d ed. of his Historisch-kritisches Uebersicht was translated by Philip H. Wicksteed, with his assistance, and published under title: An Historico-Critical Enquiry into the Origin and Composition of the Hexateuch, London, 1886.

KURTZ, J. H. L. 17, after Begründung supply of Einheit u. Ezechiel (d. Pentateuch).

LAMMER, H. Institutiones des katholischen Kirchenrechts, Freiburg-im-Breisgau, 1886.

LANGE, J. P. These additional titles have been kindly furnished by Miss Lange: Sendbriefe der evangelischen Freifrau Athanasia an d. Pater Athanasius, Cologne, 1838; Kritishe Beleuchtung.
LORSIM.

LORIM.

who went half way to Canossa for political considerations, the Christ Order (an order of merit for distinguished services to the Roman Church, established by Pope John XXII. in 1317, and never before given to a Protestant); and came out victor for a time in the "Culturkampf" with Germany (1886). His Latin Poems were published, Rome, 1896; reprinted with English metrical translation by the Jesuits of Woodstock College, Md., Baltimore, 1886.

LIDDON, H. P., declined bishopric of Edinburgh, 1886.

LIGHTFOOT, J. B., D.D. (Durham, 1879; Edinburgh, 1894.

LINCOLN, H. Outline Lectures in History of Doctrine, Boston, 1886.

LINSENMANN, F. X. Add: Lehrbuch der Moraltheologie, Freiburg, 1879; Konrad Summenhart, ein Kulturbaum aus den Anfängen der Universität Tübingen, Tübingen, 1887. Since 1873 he has been joint editor of the Tübingen Theol. Quartalschrift, to which he has been for many years a contributor.

LIPSUS, R. A., since 1886 has been editor of the Theologischer Jahresbericht, founded by Pujner; Die Pilatus-Acten, 2d ed. Kiel, 1886.

LITTLEDALE, R. F. There have been three editions of his commentary on the Psalms.

LOESCHE, G. Bellarmine's Lehre vom Papst und deren actual Bedeutung, Halle, 1885.

LOMAN, Abraham Dirk, Dutch theologian: b. at The Hague, Sept. 16, 1823; studied at the Athenaeum of Amsterdam, the Lutheran Seminary in the same city, and at Heidelberg; became pastor at Maastricht, 1846; then at Deventer, 1849; professor in the Lutheran Seminary, Amsterdam, 1856; of theology in the Municipal University of Amsterdam, 1877. He has written numerous articles in the Gids and in the Theologisch Tijdschrift, Amsterdam and Leiden, 1861 sqq. (of which he was one of the founders). He is the author of De germani Theologi humanitatis (his inaugural address), Amsterdam, 1856; and in Dutch of "Why seek the Living among the Dead?" 1862; "The Testimony of the Muratorian Canon" (upon the Gospel of John), 1865; "Protestantism and the Authority of the Church." 1868; "The Gospel of John: its Origin, First Readers, and its Acceptance in Antiquity." 1873.

LOMMATZSCH, Siegfried Otto Nathanael, Lic. Theol., Ph.D. (Berlin, 1860 and 1863), D.D. (hon., Berlin, 1881), German Protestant theologian; b. at Berlin, Jan. 21, 1833; studied at the University of Berlin, 1853-59; became privat-docent there, 1870; professor extraordinary of theology, 1879. He is a disciple of Carl Immanuel Nitzsch, and Westen, and an adherent of the so-called "Middle Party." Since 1881 he has been a member of the Royal Commission for the examination of upper-class teachers in evangelical theology. He is the author of Schleiermacher's Lehre vom Wunder und vom Uebernaturlichen in dem Zusammenhange seiner Theologie und mit besonderer Berücksichtigung der Reisen über die Religion und der Predigten, Berlin, 1872; Luther's Lehre vom ethisch-religiösen Standpunkte aus mit besonderer Berücksichtigung seiner Theorie vom Geseztes, 1879.

LORIMER, George Cheney, D.D. (Bethel College, Russellville, Ky., 186—). Baptist; b. near Edinbourne, Scotland, in the year 1838; came to the United States in the year 1856; studied at Georgetown College, Ky.; was ordained pastor at Har-rordsburg, Ky., 1859; from there went to Paducah, Ky., and thence to Louisville, Ky., where he remained eight years; then went to Albany, N.Y., and was there two years; thence to Shawsmtavenue Church, Boston; thence to Tremont Temple Church in the same city; thence to the First Church, Chicago, Ill., and is now pastor of the Michigan-avenue Church of that city. He is the author of Under the Evergreens; or, A Night with Discourse concerning Baptists and Religious Belief, why He came, and what He did, 1883; Studies in rowed in Cambridge University boat against Ox-avenue Church, Boston; thence to Tremont Tel-Michigan-avenue Church of that city. He is the
MERRILL.

262

ple Church in the same city; thence to the First Church, Chicago, Ill., and is now pastor of the

LOWE, W. H., was educated at Durham school;
rowed in Cambridge University boat against Oxford, 1868, 1870, 1871; was curate of Fen Ditton, 1873-75; of Milton, 1880-82; in charge of Willingham, 1886; captain of Second Cambridge (University) Rife Volunteers, 1882-86. He edited Tazuki i Jahangiri, 1886.

LUCKOCK, H. M. The Bishops in the Tower,
London, 1886.

LUTHARDT, C. E., became canon of Meissen, 1870.

MACBAIN, W. A. V. V., was in Hudson County, N.J., superintendent of public schools (1848-55), examiner of all the teachers of public schools (1848-65), and commissioner for the equalization of taxes, 1876—81. The New Durham Church under him (1846-81) was not only prosperous, but the parent of several other churches.

MACDUFF, J. R. Brighter than the Sun, 1886; Morning Family Prayers for a Year, 1886; Ripples in the Twilight: Fragments of Sunday Thought and Teaching, 1888.

McCLAYNE, J. H. The Wisdom of the Apoc-lypse, N.Y., 1886.

MACKARNESS, J. F., was educated at Eton.

MACLEAR, G. F., was appointed honorary cannon of Canterbury in 1885.

MACMILLAN, H., F.S.A. Scot. (1883). The

MADISON, Elias Lyman, D.D. (Rochester University, N.Y., 1855), Baptist; b. at Lebanon, N.H., Oct. 20, 1810; d. in Philadelphia, Penn., Nov. 25, 1886. He was educated at New Hampton Academy (1830-32), Waterville College, Me., now Colby University (1832-36), and at the Newton (Mass.) Theological Institution (1836-39); became pastor of the Second Baptist Church, Richmond, Va., 1839; resigned on account of the division in the denomination on the question of slavery, and became pastor of the Ninth-street Baptist Church, Cincinnati, O., 1843; of the Oliver-street Baptist Church, New York, 1849; of the Fifth Baptist Church, Albany, N.Y., 1857;
of the Broad-street Baptist Church, Philadelphia, Penn., 1887. He was apprenticed to the brick-layer's trade in 1826, worked at it until 1830; and by means of it during vacations and at other times supported himself through his academy, college, and seminary life. Because of it he early took interest in ecclesiastical architecture, and gathered in the course of years a large and valuable library upon the subject. He was a man of catholic tastes, wide reading, and great personal charm.
A few years before his death he sold for twenty thousand dollars his art collection to Vassar College, and left the proceeds to the institution; and at the same time presented his Protestant literature collection to Newton (Mass.) Theological Institution, his illustrated art works to Rochester (N.Y.) University, many of his miscellaneous works to Colby University and to Bates College (Maine), a collection of water-colors to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City, and his Roman-Catholic theological works to Cardinal McCloskey. He is the author of Orators of the American Revolution,
New York, 1848; Proverbs for the People, Boston, 1848; Living Orators in America, New York, 1849;
Republican Christianity, Boston, 1849; Westean Empire, the Great Drama of Human Progress,
New York, 1856.

MAHAN, A. Out of Darkness into Light, London and Boston, 1875; Autobiography: Intellectual,

MAIER, A., is commander of the Order of the Zähringen Lion with the Star. He wrote Histor-tisch-kritische Untersuchungen über den Hebräerbrief, Freiburg, 1851; Die Glossolalie des apostolischen Zeitalters, 1855; Exegetisch-kritische Untersuch-ungen über die Christologie, 1871.

MANN, W. J. Life of Melchior Mühlenberg, 1886.

MANNING, H. E. Petri Privilegium, Miscella-

MARQUIS, David Calhoun, D.D. (Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Penn., 1875), Presbyterian; b. in Lawrence County, Penn.,
Nov. 15, 1854; graduated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., 1857; taught, 1857-60; studied in Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn., 1860-62, and in the Theological Seminary of the North-west, Chicago, Ill., 1862-63; became pastor at Decatur, Ill., 1863; of North Church, Chicago, Ill., 1866; of Westminster Church, Baltimore, Md., 1870; of Lafayette-park Church, St.
Louis, Mo., 1878; professor of Hebrew, language, literature and exegesis in the Theological Seminary of the North-west (since 1866, McCormick Theological Seminary), Chicago, Ill., 1883. He was moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church at Minneapolis, Minn., 1886.

MARTI, Karl, Lice Theo!. (Basel, 1879), Swiss Reformed; b. at Bubendorf, Baselland, Switzerland, April 25, 1855; studied at Basel, Göttingen, and Leipzig; became pastor at Buns, Baselland 1878, at Muttenz 1885; has been privat-dozent at Basel since 1881. He belongs, in general, to the school of Ritschli. He is the author of the articles "Die Spuren der sog. Grundschrift des Hexateuchs in den vorexilischen Propheten des Alten Testaments," in Jahrb. für prot. Theol., 1880;
"Die alten Laumen und Kloster in der Wüste Juda"
(on basis of information from Baurath Schick in Jerusalem), in Zeitsch. d. deutsch. Palestinerische Miscellanea, 1881; "Thai Zeboim," in Sam. xii.
18), in same, 1884; and minor articles in the Swiss Kirchenblatt.

MERRILL, S., has visited Palestine three differ-tent times, and has made the largest collection of birds and animals from that country that at pres-OVERTON, John Henry, Church of England; canon of Stow Longa in Lincoln Cathedral; was MORISON, James. The Extent of the Atonement has been often reprinted; Saving Faith, 9th ed. 1886; St. Paul's Teaching on Sacrifical, a Practical Exposition of Rom. vi., 1886.

MOORHOUSE, J., was chaplain in ordinary to the Queen, 1874-76.

MORISON, J. Q., was the first editor of The Lutheran Observer, Philadelphia, Penn.

MOUTLON, W. F., with Milligan, wrote the commentary on John, in Schaff's Popular Commentary.

MYRBERG, O. F. L. 19, add after Notes: and "Die Verbindung der Stellenaus Sohar..."

NIELSEN, N. Selecte disputationes academicae juris ecclesiastic, Innsbruck, 1888 seqq.

ÖSTRINGEN, A. Was heisst christlich-social! Zeitschröcks, Leipzig, 1884.

OLTRAMA E, M. J. H., D.D. (Strassburg, 1869), Lic-Theol. of Old-Testament exegesis, and now of the same at Heidelberg. To listof books add: Grammatica syriaca, vol. i., Halle, 1867; Vocabulary of the Tigré Language written down by Moritz von Beermann, 1888; (with Arnold) the 2d ed. of Tuch's Commentar über die Genesis, 1871; Neusyrisches Lesebuch, Texte im Dialect von Urmiya, Giessen, 1871; Türkische Sprachwörter in Deutsche übersetzt, Venice, 1877; Zu Religion and Rationalism, Philadelphia, 1866, 2d ed. 1886.

MERX, E. O. A., Ph.D. (Breslau, Aug. 9, 1861), Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1864), D.D. (Kon. Jena, 1872); at Tübingen was professor of Semitic languages, at Giessen of Old-Testament exegesis, and now of the same at Heidelberg. To listof books add: De Eusebiana historia ecclesiastica versionibus syriaca et armenica (with Professor Wright of Cambridge), he has undertaken a revision of the Syriac text of Eusebius with a translation); in those of the Fifth Congress, Berlin, 1882, Bemerkungen über die Vocalisation der Targum, mit Anhang über die Teychufalischen Fragmente; in Uhlig, "G. Dionysii Thracis ars grammatica," Leipzig, 1883, De versione armenica Dionysii Thehracis disputatio; in "Deutsche morgenl. Zeitschrift," 1885, Eine mittelalterliche Kritik zum 200 jahrigen Geburtsjubiläum des Erzbisthums Utrecht, Heidelberg, 1872; Die Saarljanische Uebersetzung des Targum der Offenbarung, and Zum 200 jahrigen Geburtsjubiläum des Erzbisthums Utrecht, Heidelberg, 1872; Die Saarljanische Uebersetzung des Targum der Offenbarung, and Zum 200 jahrigen Geburtsjubiläum des Erzbisthums Utrecht, 1877; "Zur Religion and Rationalism, Philadelphia, 1866, 2d ed. 1886.

MERX, E. O. A., Ph.D. (Breslau, Aug. 9, 1861), Lic. Theol. (Berlin, 1864), D.D. (Kon. Jena, 1872); at Tübingen was professor of Semitic languages, at Giessen of Old-Testament exegesis, and now of the same at Heidelberg. To listof books add: Grammatica syriaca, vol. i., Halle, 1867; Vocabulary of the Tigré Language written down by Moritz von Beermann, 1888; (with Arnold) the 2d ed. of Tuch's Commentar über die Genesis, 1871; Neusyrisches Lesebuch, Texte im Dialect von Urmiya, Giessen, 1871; Türkische Sprachwörter in Deutsche übersetzt, Venice, 1877; Zu Religion and Rationalism, Philadelphia, 1866, 2d ed. 1886.

MOFFAT, J. C. Comparative Religions has passed through several editions.

MOELLER, E. W., edited De Wette's commentary on Romans, in Schaff's Popular Commentary.

MORRIS, J. Q., was the first editor of The Lutheran Observer, Philadelphia, Penn.

MOURHOUSE, J., was chaplain in ordinary to the Queen, 1874-76.

MORISON, J. Q., was the first editor of The Lutheran Observer, Philadelphia, Penn.

MOTTLE, A. F., was moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland in 1885.

MUIR, T., edited Dr. T. Opened Declaration of the British and Foreign Bible Society, 1831-41; Lord and Lady, 1831-41; and others.

NIELSEN, N. Selecte disputationes academicae juris ecclesiastic, Innsbruck, 1888 seqq.

ÖSTRINGEN, A. Was heisst christlich-social! Zeitschröcks, Leipzig, 1884.

OLTRAMA E, M. J. H., D.D. (Strassburg, 1869), Lic-Theol. of Old-Testament exegesis, and now of the same at Heidelberg. To listof books add: Grammatica syriaca, vol. i., Halle, 1867; Vocabulary of the Tigré Language written down by Moritz von Beermann, 1888; (with Arnold) the 2d ed. of Tuch's Commentar über die Genesis, 1871; Neusyrisches Lesebuch, Texte im Dialect von Urmiya, Giessen, 1871; Türkische Sprachwörter in Deutsche übersetzt, Venice, 1877; Zu Religion and Rationalism, Philadelphia, 1866, 2d ed. 1886.

MORRIS, J. Q., was the first editor of The Lutheran Observer, Philadelphia, Penn.

MOURHOUSE, J., was chaplain in ordinary to the Queen, 1874-76.

MORISON, J. Q., was the first editor of The Lutheran Observer, Philadelphia, Penn.

MOTTLE, A. F., was moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland in 1885.

MUIR, T., edited Dr. T. Opened Declaration of the British and Foreign Bible Society, 1831-41; Lord and Lady, 1831-41; and others.

NIELSEN, N. Selecte disputationes academicae juris ecclesiastic, Innsbruck, 1888 seqq.
scholar of Lincoln College, Oxford; first class moderation, 1855; B.A., 1858; M.A., 1860; was ordained deacon 1858, priest 1859; was curate of Quedgeley, Gloucestershire, 1858–60; rector of Legbourne, Lincolnshire, 1860–83; since 1879 has been canon of St. Longa in Lincoln Cathedral; and since 1883 rector of Eoworth, Diocese of Lincoln. With Rev. C. J. Abbey he wrote, The English Church in the Eighteenth Century, London, 1873, 2 vols.; and separately, William Law, Nonjuror and Mystic, 1880; Life in the English Church, 1880–1714, 1885; The Evangelical Revival in the Eighteenth Century, 1886; and contributed to the Encyclopaedia Britannica (9th edition) and The Dictionary of National Biography.

PARK, E. A., received the degree of LL.D. at the 250th anniversary of Harvard University, Nov. 8, 1886.

PARRY, E., in 1882 declined election by the Australian bishops, as bishop of Sydney and metropolitan.

PAXTON, John R. 'The "R."' is a mere initial.

PAYNE-SMITH, R., wrote commentary on the books of Samuel, in the Pulpit Commentary.

PEROWNE, J. J. S., was educated at Norwich Grammar School; was Bell's University scholar, 1842; Crosse Divinity scholar, 1843; prebendary of St. David's Cathedral, 1867–72. He is the author of Remarks on Dr. Donaldson's "Jannah; " The Church, the Ministry, the Sacraments (sermons), 1882; The Athenian Acropolis (sermon); Confession in the Church of England (sermon with appendix); articles on the Pentateuch, Zechariah, etc., in Smith's Dictionary of the Bible; articles in the Contemporary Review, Expositor, Good Words, etc.; editor of Rogers on the Thirty-nine Articles appendix; An Eirenicon of the Eighteenth Century, London, 1887.

PORTER, J. L. Jerusalem, Bethany, and Bethlehem, London, 1886. Dr. Porter was missionary in Syria, 1849–59.

PREGER, J. W., Die Entfaltung der Idee des Menschen durch die Weltgeschichte, Munich, 1870; Der kirchenpol. Kampf unter Ludwig d. Bäser u. sein Einfluss auf d. öffentl. Meinung in Deutschland, 1877; Die Verträge Ludwigs d. Bäers und Friedrich dem Schönen 1255 u. 1256, 1883; Die Politik Johannes XXII. in Bezug auf Italien und Deutschland, 1885; Psalmbuchlein, Bibl. Psalmen in deutschen Liederreihen, Rothenburg, 1886; articles on R. Merswin, J. Tauler, Mystische Theologie, in Herzog.

PRESSSENSÉ, E., is a corresponding member of the Lowell Institute, Boston, taking the place of Victor Cousin; takes an active part in the French Senate as a liberal; wrote Variétés morales et politiques, Paris, 1885.

PRIME, Wendell, D.D. (Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., 1860), Presbyterian, son of the late Samuel Ireneus Prime, b. at Matenaw, N.Y., Aug. 3, 1837; graduated at Columbia College, New-York City, 1856; studied theology for one year in Union Theological Seminary, Hampden Sidney, Va., and for two at Princeton (N.J.) Theological Seminary, where he graduated 1861; was pastor of Westminster Church, Detroit, Mich., 1861–77; of Union Church, Newburgh, N.Y., 1869–75; and since 1876 has been an editor of The New-York Observer.

PRINS, J. J., became emeritus professor, 1886; wrote Commentatio de loco difficilii, 1 Pet. iii. 18–22, proemio ornata, 1838; Specimen de loco Luc. ii. 26–29, 1839.

RAEBIGER, J. F. Kritische Untersuchungen, 3d ed. 1886.

RAINY, R., takes a leading part in all the affairs of the Free Church of Scotland.

RAND, W. W. Dictionary of the Bible was upon the basis of Edward Robinson's.

RANKE, E. Specimen codicis Novi Test. Fuldensis, Marburg, 1860.
SCHULTZE, C. P., was first senior moderator of the Classics, 1843.

REICHEL. 265

REICHEL. 265

SCHULTZE, M. W. T. Ein Wort zur Controverse über die Mystik in Theologie, Freiburg, 1886.

REUTER, H. F. Augustinischen Studien, 1887.

REVILLE, A. was pastor at Luneray (Seine Inférieure), 1849-51; the English translation mentioned, l. 11, is of the Manuel d'instruction Protéiformes, 2d ed. 1885; Les Religions des peuples non civilisés, Paris, 1888, 2 vols.; Les Religions du Mexique, de l'Amérique centrale et du Pérou, 1884. In 1886 he was made president of the Section des études religieuses, founded at the École des Hautes Études at the old Sorbonne, by the National Government, and lectures there on the history of doctrines.

RICE, E. W. Pictorial Commentary on St. Matthew, 1886.

ROBERTS, W. C., L.L.D. (College of New Jersey, 1888).

ROBINSON, C. G. Name of present church changed in 1886, from "Memorial" to "Madison Avenue." L. 29, after "thousand" add: copies.

ROBINSON, E. G., received the degree of L.L.D. at the 25th anniversary of Harvard University, Nov. 8, 1886.

ROBINSON, T. H. In Harrisburg, was pastor of Market-square Church.

RÜETSCHI, R., is editor of the Kirchenblatt für die Schweiz-Schule.

RYSBERG, A. V. His "Romantic Stories" and "Freebooter" have been translated into Danish and German; his "Adventures of Little Viggo" and "Freebooter" have been translated into Danish and French; issued "The Sibylline Books and Voluspa," Stockholm, 1881; "Poems," 1892 (Danish, German, and Polish translations); "The Myth of the Sword of Victory," Copenhagen, 1884; "Investigations in German Mythology," Stockholm, 1886.

RYDEBERG, A. V. His "Romantic Stories" and "Freebooter" have been translated into Danish and German; his "Adventures of Little Viggo" into German and French; issued "The Sibylline Books and Voluspa," Stockholm, 1881; "Poems," 1892 (Danish, German, and Polish translations); "The Myth of the Sword of Victory," Copenhagen, 1884; "Investigations in German Mythology," Stockholm, 1886.

RYLE, J. C., was educated at Eton.

SALMON, G., contributed various articles in Smith and Wace's Dictionary of Christian Biography.

SANDAY, W., studied at Balliol College as well as at Corpus Christi College, Oxford.

SAUSSAYE, P. D. C. German translation of Vier Schetsen has not yet appeared.

SAVAGE, M. J. Social Problems, 1886.

SAYCE, A. H. Inscriptions of Mai Amir, etc., 1885; Assyria: its Princes, Priests, and People, 1886.

SCHAFER, D. S., was moderator of the Synod of Missouri, 1886.

SCHANZ, P. Commentar über das Evangelium des Matthäus, Freiburg, 1879; Marous, 1881; Luebeck, 1885; Jena, 1886.

SCHÜELE, K. H. G. German translation of Church Catechising, Gottha, 1886; he is editor of the "Review for Christian Faith and Education."

SCHENCK, W. E., retired from secretaryship in 1886.

SCHERR, E. H. A., since 1849 has been a frequent contributor to the Revue de théologie, and since 1861 on the political and literary staff of Le Temps. He published Melanges de critique religieuse, Geneva, 1860.

SCHICKLER, Fernand de, Baron, French Protestant layman; b. in Paris, Aug. 24, 1835; early distinguished himself, and endeared himself to his co-religionists, by his devotion to the cause of Protestantism in France, which his wealth enabled him materially to aid. He has been since 1865 president of the "Société de l'histoire du protestantisme français;" since 1875, president of the "Société biblique protestante de Paris;" since 1879, member of the Central Council of the Reformed Churches. In 1877 he was president of the liberal delegation of the reformed churches of France. He has contributed to the Bulletin of the "Société de l'histoire du protestantisme français;" to the Journal du protestantisme français; to the history of the Bible Society of Paris (Notices biographiques sur les membres du comité biblique), 1896; to the Histoire de France dans les archives privées de la Grande-Bretagne, 1879; to the Rapport présenté au Jubilé semi-séculaire de la Société pour l'encouragement de l'instruction primaire parmi les protestants de France, 1880; and has separately published En Orient, Paris, 1892; Notice sur la Société de l'histoire du Protestantisme Français 1855-72, 1874.

SCHOLZ, A. Commentar zum Buch Judith, 1887.

SCHUTTE, Conrad Hermann Louis, since 1884 editor of The Columbus (O.) Theological Magazine.

SCHULTZ, H. Zur Lehre vom h. Abendmahl, Gotha, 1886. He belongs to the school of Ritschl.

SCHULZE, L. T., was director of the seminary at Magdeburg, for the training of teachers of religion in the gymnasium. Edited Libri symbolici eccles. Luth., Berlin, 1856; Melanchthon's Loci praecipui, 1856; Luther's Ausführliche Erklärung der Epistel an die Galater, 1856; author of Ueber das Reformatorium von 1494 (in Libri symbolici eccles. Luth., Berlin, 1856; Luther's Ausführliche Erklärung der Epistel an die Galater, 1856; author of Ueber das Reformatorium von 1494 von Jacobus Philipp von Basel in Zschr. f. kirchl. Wiss., 1886.) defeated; but a Government bill enjoining that children's labor in factories to ten 2. day. It was dren under nine were to be employed in the fac

the play at Oberammergau in 1890), 1886.

das Zeitaller der {Viedergeburt der Kilnsle, 1869;

first in the first-class in classical tri s.

semin at Tiibingen, 1859-61.

not more than forty-eight hours a week, and were tories, while those under thirteen were to work

Altbayenlscher Sagenschalz, zur Bereicherung der in—

:ustiindein Suddeutschland, 1878; Ursprung der

Bayernstamm, Her/cunfl und Ausbreitung fiber Oes effort was in 1833, when he intro uced in the House of Commons 9. bill limiting the hours of mines; and, on the stren h of its reVelatious, produced another bill on the subject. This the Gov 1864 he introduced in Parliament measures which done so much for the outcast children there. In dent of the British and Foreign Bible Society from 1851 till his death, as also of the Young Men's Christian Association. He was largely instrumental in reforming the treatment of lunatics. He did much to elevate the costermonger class. But it would be impossible to estimate the good he did in the course of his long and active life. He was conversant with nearly three hundred religious societies, and with many other philanthropic institutions. In 1884 the freedom of the City of London was presented to him.

the success of his humble piety. For a full account of his extraordinary usefulness, see EDWIN HODDER: The Life and Work of the Seventh Earl of Shaftesbury, K.G., London, 1886, 3 vols.

SHORT, C. d. in New-York City, Dec. 24, 1886.

SMYTH, E. O., received the degree of D.D. at the 250th anniversary of Harvard University,

Nov. 5, 1886.

SMYTH, N., edited, with introduction and notes, the eschatological portion of Dr. I. A. Dorner's Theology, separately in an English translation, Dorner on the Future State, New York, 1883.

SPALDING, J. F. For three years his jurisdiction included New Mexico, and for three years more New Mexico and Arizona. He was a member of the House of Deputies of General Convocation in 1885, 1886, and 1871.

SPENCER, Jesse Ames, D.D. (Columbia College, New-York City, 1852), Episcopal; b. at Hyde Park, Dutchess County, N.Y., June 17, 1816; graduated at Columbia College, New-York City, 1837; studied theology at the (Episcopal) General Theological Seminary, New-York City; became rector of St. James, Gothen, N.Y., 1840; resigned on account of ill health 1842; went to Europe; on his return taught, and engaged in literary work; travelled in Europe and the East,

1848-49; became professor of Latin and Oriental languages in Burlington College, N.J., 1849; was editor and secretary of the Episcopal Sunday-school Union and Church Book Society, New-York City,

1851-57; declined election as vice-president of Troy University, 1868; was rector of St. Paul's,

Flatbush, L.I., 1868; carried the liberal standard of Greek College of the City of New York, 1860-79. He is the author of Discourses, New York, 1843; Egypt and the Holy Land, 1849; History of the United States, 1856-69, 4 vols.; Greek Praxis, 1870;

Young Ruiter, and Other Discourses, 1871; edited

The Four Gospels, and Acts of the Apostles, in Greek, with English Notes (together with the Greek text of the rest of the New Testament), 1847; Cazar's

Commentaries (with notes and lexicon), 1848;

Archbishop Trench's Poems, 1856; Xenophon's Anabasis (from MSS. of Prof. A. Crosby), 1875; Arnold's series of Latin and Greek textbook.

SPIRTITUALE, F. A. W. Festpredigten, Bonn, 1886.

STEINER, H. Der Züncher Professor Joh.

Heinrich Hottinger in Heidelberg, 1865-61, Zürich, 1886.

STEVENS, A., hon. A.M. (Brown University).

STEVENS, W. B., practised as a physician in Savannah, Ga., 1838-43.

STEVenson, William Fleming, D.D. (University of Edinburgh, 1881); b. in Strabane,

County Tyrone, Ireland, Sept. 20, 1832; d. at Rathgar, Dublin, Ireland, Sept. 16, 1886. He was that Ulster Presbyterian stock, which has given a special character to the northern province of Ireland. He graduated M.A. at the University of Glasgow, and finished his theological studies in Berlin. It is not a better relation between the Presbyterian Church in Ireland than has existed in the past.

ROBERT W. HALL.

STOCKMEYER, I. Die persönliche Aneignung des in Christo gegebenen Heiltes, 1878.

STOECKER, A., is a member of the Reichstag and of the Prussian Chambers. He combines political with religious activity as a leader of the anti-Semitic movement, and of Christian socialism.

STOKES, Q. T. Ireland and the Celtic Church, a History of Ireland from St. Patrick to the English Conquest in 1172, London, 1868; Synopsis of Medieval History, 1888.

STORY, R. H., was appointed second clerk of the General Assembly, in succession to Professor Milligan, in May, 1886; and one of her Majesty's chaplains in September, 1886.

STRACK, H. L., "while acknowledging the full right of critical investigation, is convinced that such investigation ought to be combined with reverence for the Holy Scriptures and an earnest Christian faith. That Christ died for us, and rose again, is an irrebuttable fact, nay, one inaccessible to criticism." The Kaiser Wilhelm Gymnasium, where he taught in 1873-76, is in Berlin. The title of the monthly Nathanael, which he edits, has been changed, as also its place of publication; it is now called Nathanael. Zeitschrift für die Arbeit der evangelischen Kirche im Ideal, Karlsruhe u. Leipzig. He edits, with Professor Zöckler of Greifswald, the Kurzgefasster Kommentar zu den heiligen Schriften Alten und Neuen Testaments, sowie zu den Apokryphen, Nördlingen, 1886 sqq.

STRONG, Josiah, D.D. (Adelbert College of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, O., 1868), Congregationalist; b. at Naperville, Du Page County, Ill., Jan. 19, 1847; graduated at Western Reserve College, Hudson, O., 1869; studied theology at Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, O., 1869-71, but did not graduate because of failure in health; was pastor of a home-missionary church at Cheyenne, Wyoming Territory, 1871-73; of the Western Reserve College Church, Hudson, O., 1873-78, when the college church, having united with the village church, no longer needed a pastor; of the Congregational Church at Sandusky, O., 1878-81; secretary of the Ohio Home Missionary Society, 1881-84; pastor of the Central Congregational Church, Cincinnati, O., 1884-86, when he became general agent of the Evangelical Alliance for the United States of America. He is the author of Our Country, published by the American Home Missionary Society, New York, 1885, 8th ed. (26,000th) 1886.

STUART, George Hay, Presbyterian layman; b. at Rose Hall, County Down, Ireland, April 2, 1816; educated at Banbridge, Ireland; took up his residence in Philadelphia in 1831; went into business, became president of the Mechanics' National Bank of that city; afterwards the Merchants' National Bank of Philadelphia was organized for him, and he became its president. He was the president of the United-States Christian Commission during the civil war (1863), under the title, "Christian Commission," in Schaff-Herzog Encyc.
TAYLOR, M. W. Life of Amanda Smith, 1886; The Negro in Methodism (preparing).

TAYLOR, W. M. The Parables of Our Saviour Expounded and Illustrated, New York, 1886.

THIERSCH, H. W. J. De Pentaevuchi versione Alexandrina libri iii., Erlangen, 1841; Grammatisches Lehrbuch für die ersten Unterricht in die hebräische Sprache, 1842, 2d ed. under title Hebrew Grammar for Anfänger, 1855; Erinnrungen an die Zeit, die Geschichte der nachentwicklung der Ascheroth, 1846; De Epistolae ad Hebraeos commentatio historicâ, Marburg, 1848; De Stephani protomartyri oratione commentatio exegetica, 1849; Erinnerungen an E. A. von Schaden, Frankfurt-a.-M., 1853; Griechenlands Schicksale, 1853; Ueber vernünftige und christliche Erziehung der Kinder, Basel, 1854; Friedrich Thierers Leben, Leipzig, 1856, 2 vols.; Melanchthon, Augsburg, 1857; John Wesley, 1879; Die Physiognomie des Mondes, Nördlingen, 1879; Uebersetzung und Entwicklung der Colonien in Nordamerika, 1492-1776, Augsburg, 1880; Ueber Johannes von Müller den Geschichteschreiber, und seinem Handakriften, 1881; Lauront, 1881; Edmund Ludlow and seine Unglücksgeschichten als Flüchtlinge an dem gestienten Herde in der Schweiz, Basel, 1881; Samuel Gobat, 1884 (English translation, London, 1884); Abyssinia (English translation by Mrs. Sarah M. S. Pereira, London, 1885).

THOMAS, D., helped to secure the first twenty thousand pounds for the University of Wales; delivered an inaugural address on the opening of the University College, under the presidency of the lord lieutenant of the county, 1877. The first seven volumes of The Homilist were republished 1886. He furnished the homilies, and Dr. Farrar the exegeses, in the commentary on Corinthians, in The Pulpit Commentary.

THOMAS, Owen, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, 1877), Welsh Calvinistic Methodist; b. at Holyhead, Anglesea, North Wales, Dec. 16, 1812; attended the Bala Calvinistic Methodist College from 1838 to October, 1841; then for two sessions the University of Edinburgh, but was unable, owing to circumstances, to finish the curriculum; became minister at Ffwicheli, Caernarvonshire, 1844; (of the English Church) at Newtown, Montgomeryshire, 1846; in London, 1850; of the Welsh Presbyterian Church, Prince's Road, Liverpool, 1865. He was moderator of North Wales Association in 1863 and 1882; moderator of General Assembly, 1888; has been repeatedly sent as a deputation to visit the Scotch (Free), Irish, and English Assemblies, as well as to the Council of the Reformed Churches. His father was a stonecutter by trade, and he worked at this trade from his fourteenth to his twentieth year. He has been for years joint editor of the Traethyrdydd, the oldest and ablest Welsh quarterly, and is the author of a large number of articles on theological, philosophical, critical, and historical subjects; many articles in the Welsh Encyclopaedia; Life of John Jones (Talsarn) (containing a large account of the Welsh preachers, and theological controversies in Wales); Wrexham, 1874, 2 vols.; and a translation of Kitt's Pictorial New Testament into Welsh, with very extensive additions, forming a full comprehensive and practical subject; many articles of Ephesians, Colossians, and Philippians, and especially of Hebrews (Wrexham, 1885, 2 vols.).

TAYLOR, M. W. The Parables of Our Saviour Expounded and Illustrated, New York, 1886.
THOROLD, A. W., was canon residentiary of York, 1874-77.

TIELE, C. P. De godsdienst der liefie (“The Religion of Love”), Amsterdam, 1868; Baby- lonisch-assyrische Geschichte, vol. 1, Gotgh, 1868; 2d ed., much abridged, of French translation of Geschiedenis van den Godsdienst, 1886; Danish translation of same, Copenhagen, 1884.

TITCOMB, J. H., resigned his bishopric in consequence of a terrible mountain accident. He is now vicar of St. Peter's, Brockley, London.

TOLLIN, H. G. N. Die hochzollernsachen Coloni- zationen, 1875; Die magdeburger Wallonen, 1876; Die französischen Coloniën in Oranienburg, Köpe- nick and Rheinsberg, 1876; Albrecht von Mainz und Hans von Schenitz, 1876; Bürgermeister Aug. Wilh. Franke, 1884.

TOORENBERGEN, J. J. van. The first tom of the Monumenta, etc., contains a reprint of the excessively rare Economica Christiana, whenever the Summe of Holy Scripture is drawn.

TOWNSEND, L. T. The Bible and other Ancient Literature in the Nineteenth Century, 1885; Pulpit Rhetoric, 1888.

TRENCH, R. C. Sermons New and Old, Lon- don and New York, 1886.

TROLLOPE, J. E., is the son of the late Sir John Trollope, Bart., and brother of the late Lord Kest- wen, and was archdeacon of Stow in 1867.

TUCKER, Henry William, Church of England; prebendary of Wenlocksabb in St. Paul’s Cathedral; educated at Magdalen Hall, Oxford; graduated B.A. 1854, M.A. 1856; ordained deacon 1854, priest 1855; was curate of Chantry, Somersetshire, 1854-66; West Buckland, 1858-60; Devo- ran, Cornwall, 1860-65; assistant secretary of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, 1865-70; since 1875 has been secretary to the Associates of the late Rev. Dr. Bray; since 1879, secretary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, and also honorary secretary of the Colonial Bishops’ Fund. He is the author of Under his Banner: Papers on Mission Work of Modern Times, London, 1872-73; Memoir of the Life and Episcopate of Edward Feild, D.D. (bishop of Newfoundland), 1878, 4th ed. 1881; The English Church in Other Lands; or, the Spiritual Expansion of England, London and New York, 1886.

TUCKER, W. J. One of the founders and editor of The Andover Review.

TWINING, Kinsley, D.D. (Yale College, New Haven, Conn., 1884). Congregationalist; b. at West Point, N.Y., July 18, 1832; graduated at Yale College 1853, and at Yale Theological Seminary 1856; was resident licentiate at Andover Seminary 1856-59; was the first licentiate of the Congregational Church, Hinsdale, Mich., 1857-63; acting pastor of the First Congregational Church, San Francisco, Cal., 1853-54; and then for nearly two years out of ministerial service in poor health; pastor of Prospect-street Congregational Church, Cambridgeport, Mass., 1867-72; of the Union Congregational Church, Providence, R.I., 1872-73; in Europe, 1876-78; became literary editor of the NewYork Independent, 1880.

TYLER, W. S. Homer’s Iliad, Books xvi-xx. New York, 1886. He received the degree of L.L.D. at Harvard’s 250th anniversary, Nov. 8, 1886.

VALENTINE, M., LL.D. (Wittenberg College, Springfield, O., 1886).

VANDYKE, Joseph Smith, D.D. (College of New Jersey, Princeton, N.J., 1884), Presbyterian; b. at Bound Brook, N.J., Nov. 2, 1832; graduated at the College of New Jersey 1867, and at the theological seminary 1871, both in Princeton, N.J.; was tutor of Greek in the college there, 1858-61; pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Bloomsbury, N.J., 1861-69; and since has been pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Cranbury, N.J.

During 1859 and 1860 he was engaged in lectur- ing upon education, in conjunction with the super- intendent of public schools in New Jersey. He is the author of Popery the Foe of the Church and of the Republic, Philadelphia, 1871, 12th thousand, New York, 1880; The Legal Prohibition of the Liquor Traffic (Tract No. 174 of the National Temperance Society), New York, 1879; Through the Prison to the Throne, Illustrations of Life from the Biography of Bishop Schenck, New York, 1881, 5th ed. 1886; From Gloom to Gladness, Illustrations of Life from the Biography of Estker, 1883, 3d ed. 1886; Giving or Entertainment — Which? (pamphlet recommending giving, in preference to other modes of raising money for church and charitable pur- poses), 1888, 11th thousand, (ten thousand sold); Thesim and Evolution: an Examination of Modern Speculative Theories as related to Theistic Concep- tions of the Universe, 1888 (April), 2d ed. (October) 1888.

VINCENT, M. R. Christ as a Teacher, 1886; Bible Words (in preparation).

VOELTER, Daniel Erhardt Johannes, Ph.D., Lic. Theol. (both Tubingen, 1880 and 1888 respectively), Protestant theologian; b. at Eeslingen, Württem- berg, Sept. 14, 1855; studied at Tubingen (Evangelical Theological Seminary and University); became repeten in the theological seminary there, 1880; privat-dozent of theology in the university 1884; ordinary professor of theology in the Luther- ian Seminary in Amsterdam, 1885; and since February, 1886, has also held the same position in the University of Amsterdam. He is the author of Die Entstehung der Apokalypse, Frei- burg, 1882, 2d ed. 1886; Der Ursprung des Donatismus, 1883.

VOLCK, W., edited not only the ninth but the tenth and eleventh volumes of Hofmann’s Die A. Schriften N. T., Nördlingen, 1883, 1886. In the 10th ed. of Gesenius the title reads: Hebräisches und aramäisches Handwörterbuch.

WACE, Henry, was curate of St. Luke’s, Boswick Street, London, 1861-63. King's College, of which he is principal, is in London.

WADDINGTON, C., discovered the true date of Polycarp's martyrdom (A.D. 155).

WALDENSTRÖM, P. P. "On the Meaning of the Atonement" (On försonings Betydelse, Stockholm, 1873, reprinted Chicago, Ill., U.S.A.). A sermon preached in 1872 first gave impetus to the theological movement with which he is identified, and the book was written to defend and explain his views which had attracted so much attention. He prefers to put his distinctive teaching thus: Non per gratiam proprius Christo propitiatorem, sed propitiat gratiam per Christum mediatorem, redemptionis.

He is commonly accused in Sweden of denying the divinity of Christ; but this is a slander, for just the contrary is the case. In his translation of the New Testament, he accepts and defends the reading διομονεγήθης θεός in John 1: 18.

WANAMAKER, John, Presbyterian layman; b. in Philadelphia, Penn., in the year 1858; received a common-school education, and early went into business. After being a clerk for a while in the year 1801, he started in the clothing business on his own account. He subsequently enlarged and altered his business, until now he is the owner of one of the largest retail stores in the United States, employs some three thousand persons, and is known throughout the country. He has displayed similar energy in Christian work. He started, in 1858, a Sunday school over a shoemaker's shop in the south-western part of Philadelphia, out of which has grown Bethany Presbyterian Church, with a seating capacity of 1,800, and Bethany Sunday School, numbering in 1886 2971 members. He was one of the founders of the Christian Commission; president of the Young Men's Christian Association of Philadelphia from 1870 to 1883; and has been prominent in many other Christian enterprises. He was chairman of the Bureau of Revenue and of the Press Committee, which did such efficient service in starting the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876.

Approved by Mr. Wanamaker.

WATTS, R., established the Westminster Church in Philadelphia 1862, and was ordained pastor of it 1853; was installed in the Gloucester-street Church, Dublin, 1863.

WEED, Edwin Gardner, D.D. (University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1868), S.T.D. (Racine College, Wis., 1888). Episcopal, bishop of Florida; b. at Savannah, Ga., July 23, 1837; graduated from the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1870; became rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Summerville, Ga., 1871; bishop, 1886. He has written Sermons, Andover Review, etc.

WEBSTER, Henry, d. in Montreal, Wednesday, Nov. 17, 1885.

WILKINSON, W. C. The Baptist Principle, 1881; Webster: an Ode, 1882; Classic French Course in English, 1886. He has been several seasons "adjunct lecturer" on English literature in Wellesley College. He is at present (1886) conductor of a department (Pastoral Theology) in The Homiletic Review. He has twice travelled in Europe, attending lectures during one winter at the University of Paris, and spending some months in Germany, as well as visiting the chief centres of art in Italy.

WILLIAMS, G., is on the committee of the British and Foreign Bible Society; is ex-president of the Sunday-school Union.
WILLIAMS, William R. Mr. Mornay Williams, his son, sends this additional information: "Dr. Williams had no middle name; the initial 'R' having been assumed by him, in early life, because of the annoying mistakes constantly arising from the simple appellation William Williams. He was ordained and installed as pastor of the Amity Baptist Church on the same evening on which the church itself was recognized, Dec. 17, 1832, remaining pastor to the time of his death, never having had another charge, nor his people another pastor. He was the first secretary of the American Baptist Home Missionary Society (1832); the first secretary, and one of the draughters, of the constitution of the Baptist Ministers' Conference, in January, 1833; for many years a member of the board of trustees of Rochester Theological Seminary, in the formation of which, as also of the University of Rochester (both established in 1850), he was actively concerned. He was also for many years on the publishing committee of the American Tract Society, and in that position corrected the proofs of their foreign publications (viz., French, German, Italian, and Spanish); he was one of the vice-presidents of that society, as also of the American Bible Society. He wrote the introduction to [the American reprint of John] Harris's Great Commission; or, the Christian Church constituted and charged to convey the Gospel to the World, Boston, 1842; to that of Miss Grigg's Jacqueline Pascal, or Convent Life at Port Royal, New York, 1854; and to [W. W.] Evetts's William Colgate: a Christian Layman, Philadelphia, 1881. His Religious Progress, and Lectures on the Lord's Prayer, were both republished in Scotland [in one volume, Edinburgh and London, 1851]."

WISE, D. Young Knights of the Cross, New York, 1886.

WITHROW, T. Italian translation of Scriptural Baptism, Florence, 1877.

WITHEROW, A. L. preached the opening sermon at the Des Moines meeting of the A. B. C. F. M., in 1886; accepted call to Third Presbyterian Church, Chicago, Ill., 1886.

WOLF, E. J., has published some sermons; is editor of The Lutheran Quarterly.

WOODRUFF, F. E., wrote on the Greek Fragment of the Rainer MSS., and a vindication of the genuineness of the Pastoral Epistles, in The Andover Review, 1886.

WOOLSEY, T. D., received the degree of LL.D. at Harvard's 250th anniversary, Nov. 8, 1886.

Wordsworth, J., was exhibitor of Winchester College. Fortunes of St. Mark and St. Matthew from the Bobbio M.S. (k), and Other Fragments (with Dr. Sanday and H. J. White), being No. 2 of a series of Old Latin biblical texts, 1886; "The Corbey St. James (f.)" in Studia Biblica, Oxford, 1885; A Pastoral Letter to the Clergy and Laity of the Diocese of Salisbury, Salisbury, Nov., 1885; Self-Discipline in Charity (sermon on St. James i. 26, 27, preached in Salisbury Cathedral on May 30, 1886, for the clergy orphan schools), Salisbury, 1886; Bristol Bishopric Endowment Fund (sermon on Heb. xiii. 14, preached in Bristol Cathedral, June 27, 1886), Bristol.

WORTHINGTON, George, D.D., LL.D. (both from Hobart College, 1876 and 1885 respectively), Episcopalian, bishop of Nebraska; b. at Lenox, Mass., Oct. 14, 1838; graduated at Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., 1860, and at the General Theological Seminary, New-York City, 1863; became assistant at St. Paul's Church, Troy, N. Y., 1863; rector of Christ Church, Ballston Spa, N. Y., 1865; rector of St. John's Church, Detroit, Mich., 1868. He was in 1879 twice elected by the clergy bishop of Michigan, but the laity refused to confirm. In 1886 he declined election by the General Convention as missionary bishop of Shanghai. In May, 1884, he was elected bishop of Nebraska, and declined; in November, 1884, was elected a second time, accepted, and was consecrated in St. John's Church, Detroit, Mich., Feb. 24, 1885.

WRIGHT, C. H. H. The Divinity-school Question, Dublin, 1886 (pp. 9); Biblical Essays: or, Exegetical Studies on the Books of Job and Jonah, Ezekiel's Prophecy of Gog and Magog, St. Peter's "Spirits in Prison," and The Key to the Apocalypse, Edinburgh, 1886.

WRIGHT, W., M.A., History of the Scottish Nation, 1886, 2 vols.

Young, R. Materials for Bible Revision (drawn from the Analytical Concordance), 1886.

Zahn, T. Herma Pastor et N. T. illustr., Göttingen, 1867; Missionenmethoden im Zeitalter der Apostel, Erlangen, 1886 (two lectures).

Zebeschwitz, Gerhard von, was pastor at Grossschöner near Leipzig, 1852-56; lived at Neuendettelsau without office, 1861-63; lectured at Frankfurt, Basel, and Darmstadt, 1863-55; out of these lectures came Zur Apologie des Christenthums nach Geschichte und Lehre, Leipzig, 1866.

SECOND APPENDIX

to

ENCYCLOPAEDIA OF LIVING DIVINES.

Containing Additions to Biography and Literature from 1886 to 1890.

The titles of books are those produced by the respective persons since the appearance of the original edition of this Encyclopaedia. As a rule, the place of publication is that last mentioned under the article in the body of the work.

ABBOTT, E. A. The Kernel and the Husk, 1887.

ABBOTT, L., elected pastor of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, as successor of Henry Ward Beecher, 1889; installed Jan. 16, 1890. Commentary on Romans, 1889; Signs of Promise (sermons), 1889.

ADLER, N. M., d. in London, Tuesday, Jan. 31, 1890.

ALEXANDER, W. The Epistles of John, n. c., 1890.

ANDERSON, Q., president Denison University, 1888.

ANDERSON, M. B., L.H.D. (Columbia Centennial, 1887); retired, May, 1888; d. at Lake Helen, Florida, Wed., Feb. 26, 1890.

APPLE, Theodore. Life of John Williamson Nevin, Phila., 1890.

APPLE, Thec. C., retired from the presidency of Franklin and Marshall College, 1889, but retains professorship of Church History in the Theological Seminary at Lancaster. Was delegate of the German Reformed Church to conference with the Dutch Reformed for forming a federative union, at Catskill, N. Y., Aug., 1890.

ARGYLL. Scotland as it Was and as it Is, Edinburgh, 1st and 2d ed. 1887, 2 vols., repr. New York, 1887; New British Constitution and its Master Builders, 1887; What is Truth? 1889; Iona, 3d ed. 1889.

ARNOLD, M., d. at Liverpool, April 15, 1888.

ARTHUR, W. Life of Gideon Ouseley, 1876; God without Religion: Deism and Sir James Stephen, 1887.

ASTIE, J. F. Louis Fourteenth and the Writers of his Age; being a Course of Lectures (delivered in French). Trans. G. N. Kirk, Boston, 1885; La Vinet de la legende et celui de l'histoire, 1882.

BACHMANN, d. at Rostock, April 12, 1888. Left the biography of Hengstenberg unfinished. Letzte Predigten, Gütersloh, 1888; Blätter zu seinem Gedächtniss, nebst einer Auswahl seiner Gedichte, Rostock (by H. Behm), 1889.

BACON, L. W., pastor in Augusta, Ga., 1886; without charge, 1888.

BAIRD, C. W., d. at Rye, N. Y., Thursday, Feb. 10, 1887.

BARMOUR, W. M., became professor of Theology, Congregational College, Montreal, 1887.

BARQUES, J. J. L. Homelie sur saint Marc, apôtre et évangeliste, par Anba Sere. Texte arabe avec traduction et notes, 1877; Recherches archéologiques sur les colonies phéniciennes établies sur le littoral de la Célo-Ligurie, Paris, 1878; notices sur les Antiquités de Belcordene, 1888; Rabbi Yapheth Abou Aly in Canticum Canticorum Commentarius, 1884; Vie du célèbre marabout oldi Abou-Medien, 1884.

BARING-GOULD. The Way of Sorrows, 1887; Death and Resurrection of Jesus, 1888; Our Inheritance on the Eucharist, 1888; Richard Cable, the Lightshipman, 1888, 3 vols.; Arminell: A Social Romance, 1889, 3 vols.; Grettir, the Outlaw: A Story of Ireland, 1889; Historio Oddities and Strange Events, 1st series, 1889, 2d ed. 1890; Old Country Life, 1889; Pennyhome quirks: A Novel, 1889, 3d ed. 1890; Conscience and Sin, 1890; Eve: A Novel, 1890; Joquetta, and Other Stories, 1890 [with H. F. Sheppard]; Songs and Ballads of the West, 1890.

BARNARD, F. A. P., retired, 1888; d. in New York, Sat., April 27, 1889.

BCCOM, resigned, 1887.

BEARD, Chas., LL.D. (St. Andrews, 1887); d. in Liverpool, April 9, 1888. The Universal Christ, and Other Sermons, 1888; Martin Luther and the Reformation in Germany, until the Close of the Sixt of Worms, 1889 (posthumous and unfinished).

BECKX, P. J., d. in Rome, March 4, 1887.

BEECHER, H. W., d. in Brooklyn, March 8, 1887.

BEHRENS, A. J. F. The Philosophy of Preaching, New York, 1890.

BENNETT, C. W. Christian Archaeology, N. Y., 1888.

BERTHEAU, E., d. in Göttingen, May 17, 1889.

BEYERLAQ (J. H. C.), W. Der Friedensschluss zwischen Deutschland u. Rom., Halle, 1887; Gedanken der Erfinder Vor-Conferen des evangelischen Bundes, 1888; Der Brief des Jacobus [in Meyer's Kommentar], 1888; Godofred. Ein Märchen fürs deutsche Haus, 1888; Luther's Haustand in seiner reformatorischen Bedeutung, Bären, 1888; Die Reformation des Italien, 1888; Uber echte u. falsche Toleramce, 1888; Die römisch-katholischen Anspruche an die preussische Volkschule, 1889; Aus dem Leben u. Frühholllauzen, d. evangel. Pfarrers Prans Beyerslag, 6th ed. 1889; Zur Verständigung über den christlichen Vors runs Gleub, Halle, 1889; Erkenntnissfahde zu Christo, 1889; Rede im Wartburggau, 1889; Die evangliche Kirche als Bundesgenossin wider die Sozialdemokratie, Berlin, 1890.

BICKELL, G. Koekelhys Untersuchung über den Wert des Daninun, Innsbruck, 1886.

Bitterner, F. A., d. at Breslau, Jan. 21, 1888.

BOARDMAN, Q. D. The Divine Man from the Nativity to the Temptation, New York, 1887, new ed. 1888; The Ten Commandments, Philadelphia, 1889.

BoeHRINGER, P. Maria und Martha, Lebensbilder christl. Frauen, Basel, 1887; KätHe, die Frau Luthers, 1888.

Boye, J. P., d. at Pau in France, Dec. 29, 1889.

Boyd, A. K. H. What Set him Right, with Other Chapters to Help, 1885, 2d ed. 1888; Our Homely
BRACE, A. B. Parabolic Teaching of Christ, 1887; Best Last, with Other Papers, 1888; East Coast Days and Memories, 1889; To Meet the Day, Through the Christian Year, 1889.

BRACE, C. L., d. at Campfer, in the Engadin, Switzerland, May 2, 1888. The Risen Christ, the King of Nations, 1888.

BRACE, C. L., d. at Campfer, in the Engadin, Switzerland, May 2, 1888. The Kingdom of God; or, Christ's Teaching according to the Synoptical Gospels, New

BRACE, C. L., d. at Campfer, in the Engadin, Switzerland, May 2, 1888. The Kingdom of God; or, Christ's Teaching according to the Synoptical Gospels, New York, 1889; The Miraculous Element in the Gospels, New York, 1887; The Unknown God, 1890. (In preparation: Apologetica.)

BRUSTON, C. A. L' Idee de l'immutabilite de l'ame chez les Pheniciens et chez les Hebreus (Discours), 1879; Les quatre sources des lois de l'Ilide, New York, 1889.

Buchwald, C. A. Böhmische Exzulanten im sächsischen Erzgebirge, zur Zeit des dreisig-jährigen Krieges, 1888; Allerlei aus drei Jahrhunderten, Briefe an den Kirchen-, Schul-, und Sittengeschichte der Epherie Zeulwitz, Auerbach, Bärenwalde, Bocken, Cossen, Culnisch, 1888; Der Evangelische Bund und seine zweite Generalsammlung zu Duisburg im Lichte der ultramontanen Presse, 1888; Eine sächsische Pilgerfahrt nach Palastina vor 400 Jahren, 1890.

Buckley, J. W. The Midnight Sun; The Tzar, and the Nikolait, Boston, 1887.

Budde, K. (F. R.), ordinary professor at Strassburg, 1889.

Buell, M. D., D.D. (University of New York City, 1889).

Burr, E. F. Long Ago; as Interpreted by the Nineteenth Century, New York, 1888.

Burrage, H. S. Baptist Hymn Writers and their Hymns, Boston, 1888.

Burton, E. D. Syntax of the Modes and Tenses in New Testament Greek, Boston, 1889.

Butler, J. G. The Fourfold Gospel; The Four Gospels Consolidated in a Continuous Narrative, 1890.

Calderwood, H. Handbook of Moral Philosophy, 1873, 14th ed. 1888.

Campbell, J. C., resigned, 1890. A Charge to the Clergy of Bangor, London, 1887.

Campbell, W. H., d. at New Brunswick, Sunday, Dec. 7, 1890.

Casset, Paulus. Das Buch der Richter und Ruth, 1885, 2d ed. 1887; Akhaserus, Die Sage vom ewigen Juden, 1883, new ed. 1887; Bekennnisse eines Jägers im Arabelberg, 2d, ed. 1887; Kitum-Chituma. Ein Schenkreis an Prof. A. H. Sayes in Oxford, 1887; Mischla Sindbad, Secundus—Antipas, 1889-90, 3 vols.; Über Stadt—u. Volksmission, 1888; Der Elefantenorden u. seine Symbolik, 1888; Eine Erinnerung an das 900 jährige Jubiläum der russischen Kirche. Mit einer Publication und Erklärung der Briefe von John Smera an den Grossfürsten Wladimir, 1888; Philippus oder über die Bedeutung der Kirchengeschichte, 1888; Aetheia, Periodische Sammlung wissenschaftlicher Abhandlungen und Vorträge, 1—4. 1890; Harmageddon, Apokalyptische Beobachtungen, 1890; Laokoon in...
D'ALVIELLA, Count Qobet. Introduction à l'histoire générale des religions, 1887; Histoire religieuse du feu. Verrines, 1887.

DAVIDSON, R. T., bishop of Rochester, 1890. To the Evening, 1890. He edited Christian BELIEF: A Sermon at St. Paul’s, 1890.

DELITZSCH, Friedrich (son of the former). Assyrisches Wörterbuch zur gesammten bisher veröffentlichten Keilschriftliteratur unter Berück sichtung, schlieren unveröffentlichter Texte. Leip zig, 1. Lieferung, 1887; 2. Lieferung, 1889; 3. Lieferung, 1890; 4. Lieferung, 1891; 5. Lieferung, 1892.

DEMAREST, D. H., 4th ed. History Ref. Ch.,

New York, 1888.

DEMAREST, J. T. Notes on Dort and Westminster (New Brunswick Seminary Publications, No. 3), 1890.

DERENBOURG, J., a contributor to the press in the National Printing House, especially of Oriental languages (1856); professor of rabbinic and Talmudic Hebrew in the School of High Studies, Paris, 1890.

DIX, Morgan. The Seven Deadly Sins: Sermons preached in Trinity Chapel during Lent, 1888.

DOELLINGER, J. J. v., d. in Munich, May 28, 1889. The Book of Genesis, London and New York, 1888; The First Epistle to the Corin thians, 1889; An Introduction to the New Testa ment, 1889.

DORNER, A. J., professor extraordinary at Königsberg, 1889.

DUFIELD, B. (A.) W., d. at Bloomfield, N. J., May 12, 1887. Latin Hymn-writers and their Hymns, edited and completed by Prof. R. E. Thompson, D.D., of Univ. of Pa., 1889.

DUFFIELD, C., d. at Bloomfield, N. J., July 6, 1888.

DUFFIELD, B. (A.) W., d. at Bloomfield, N. J., May 12, 1887. Latin Hymn-writers and their Hymns, edited and completed by Prof. R. E. Thompson, D.D., of Univ. of Pa., 1889.

DULLES, J. W., d. at Philadelphia, Apr. 10, 1888.

DURYEA, J. T., compiled The Presbyterian Hymnal, Philadelphia, 1874; A Vesper Service for the Use of Congregations, Colleges, Schools, and Academies for Sunday Evening Worship, Boston, 1887; A Morning Service (for the same), 1888; Selections from the Psalms and other Scriptures in the Revised Version for Responsive Reading, 1887.

DWINELL, I. E., d. at Oakland, Cal., June 7, 1890.

DYER, H. Records of an Active Life (autobiography), New York, 1888.

DYKES, Jas. O. Gospel according to St. Paul: Studies in the Epistle to the Romans, London, 1888. (He is the chief author of the New Creed which was unanimously adopted by the Presbyterian Church of England in 1890.)

EATON, S. J. M., d. at Franklin, Pa., July 16, 1889.

EDDY, R. The Universalist Register for 1888, 1889, and 1890, Boston, 1888, 1889, 1890.

EDEN, R., d. at Inverness, Aug. 26, 1888.

EDERSHEIM, A., d. at Mentone, France, March 18, 1889. History of Israel and Judah, from the Decline to the Assyrian Captivity, London, 1887; Jesus the Messiah; Abridged ed. of Life and Times of Jesus the Messiah, 1890.

EDWARDS, L., D.D. (Edinburgh, 1865), d. at Bala, Wales, July 19, 1887.

ECLE, E., professor ex. at Zürich, 1889. Alch Rotary Studien. Martyrien und Martyrologien älster Zeit. Mit Textausgaben im Anhang, Zürich, 1887; Die St. Galler Taufzeit, 1887.

ELLIOTT, R. W. B., d. at Sewanee, Tenn., Aug. 26, 1887.

ELLIS, C. E. The Puritan Age and Rule in the Colony of the Massachusetts Bay, 1839-85, Boston, 1888.

EMERTON, E. Introduction to the Study of the Middle Ages (375-814.) Boston, 1888.

ERDMANN (C. F.), D. Luther and seine Beziehungen zu Schlesien, insbesondere zu Breslau, 1887 (in Schriften des Vereins für Reformationgeschichte.

EVERETT, C. C. Poetry, Comedy, and Duty, Boston, 1888.

FALLOWS, S. The Supplemental Dictionary, Boston, 1887; A Complete Dictionary of Synonyms and Analogies; with an Appendix embracing a Dictionary of Britshisms, Americanisms, Colloquial Phrases, etc., in Common Use; the Grammatical Uses of Prepositions and Prepositions Discriminated; a List of Homonyms and Homophones Words, New York, 1888, new issue, 1890.

FARRAR, F. W. Every-Day Christian Life; or, Sermons by the Way, London, 1887, new ed. 1888; Solomon: His Life and Times (in Men of the Bible series), 1887; Africa and the Drink Trade, 1888; Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Hebrews [new ed.], 1889; Lives of the Fathers: Church History, 1888, 1890, Boston, 1888, 1890, London and New York, 1889; The Gospel according to St. Luke, with Introduction and Notes (in Smaller Cambridge GARDINER.

Bible for Schools), 1889; The Passion Play at Ober-Ammergau, 1889; The Minor Prophets, 1890.

FIELD, H. M. Old Spain and New Spain, New York, 1889; Gibraltar, 1889; The Field-Ingersoll Disputes, Faith or Agnosticism? A Series of Articles from the North American Review, 1888; Bright Skies and Dark Shadows, New York, 1890.

FLIEDNER, F. Römische Missionarische und den Karolinen, Heidelberg, 1889.

FLINT, R. Theism, 7th ed. 1889.

FORBES, J. The Servant of the Lord in Isa. xlii.—lxxii. Reclaimed to Isaiah as the Author, from Argument, Structure, and Date, Edinburgh, 1890.

FORBES, F. H. The Servant of the Lord in Isa. xlii.—lxxii. Reclaimed to Isaiah as the Author, from Argument, Structure, and Date, Edinburgh, 1890.

FRASER, D. Seven Promises Expounded, London, 1889.

FRIEDRICH, J. Die Constantinische Schenkung, Nördlingen, 1889; Drei unedlten Controli aus der Merowingerzeit, Bamberg, 1889.

FROTHINGHAM, O. W. H. Channing, Boston, 1888; Boston Unitarianism, 1890—50; A Study of the Life and Work of Nathaniel Longdon Frothingham (his father), 1890.

FRY, B. St. J. An Appeal to Facts, Cincinnati, 1890.

FUNK, F. X. Doctrina duodecim apostolorum, Canones apostolorum ecclesiastici ac rei publicae duodecim vias expositiones veteres, Tübingen, 1887; Lehrbuch der Kirchengeschichte, mehr und mehr bearbeitete Auflage, Rotenburg, a. N., 1890. (The author has in preparation a new critical edition of the Apostolical Constitution and Canons, from Vatican MSS.)

FURMAN, J. C., was pastor at Society Hill, 1894.

FURRER, K., professor extraordinary at Zürich, 1889. Die hebräische Sprache als Sprache der Bibel, Zürich, 1887; Darwinismus und Socialismus im Lichte der christlichen Weltanschauung, 1888; and, in connection with Dr. H. Kesselring, Worte der Ermahnung an Herrn Prof. Dr. Heinr. Steiner von Zürich, Gest. Apr. 18—5, 1890.

GARDINER, F., b. at "Oaklands," his father's place, Gardiner, Me., Sept. 11, 1822; studied at Bowdoin College, 1839—40; graduated at Bowdoin College, 1845; ordained deacon by Bishop Henahaw, of Rhode Island, at Christ Church, Gardiner, July 6, 1845; advanced to priesthood, Sept. 20, 1846; Rector of Trinity Church, Saco, Me., Nov. 1845 to Nov. 1847; Assistant at St. Luke's, Philadelphia, Jan. to July, 1848; Rector Christ Church, Bath, Oct. 1848 to Nov. 1854; in Europe, Nov. 1854 to June, 1856; Rector Trinity Church, Lewiston, Me., July, 1856 to Nov. 1857; in charge of his father's estate, Nov. 1857 to Nov. 1865, during which time he had charge of St. Matthew's Church, Hallowell, and assisted Bishop Burgess at Christ Church, Gardiner, and acted as professor of Hebrew, Greek, Systematic Theology, and Ecclesiastical History in the tentative school of Bishop Burgess; elected to chair of Literature and Interpretation of the New Testament in Theological Seminary, Gambier, O., Nov. 1865; resigned, Sept. 1867; General Missionary in diocese of Mass., 1867; Associate-Rector, Trinity Church, Middletown, Conn., 1867—68; professor of Old Testament and Chris-GASS.

280

GRIFFIS.

GRIFFIS, W. E. Corea, the Hermit Nation, 3d ed. 1890.

GOEBEL, S. A. Neutestamentliche Schriften, Griechisch, mit kurzer Erklickung, Goth, 1889.

GOODWIN, D. R., d. in Philadelphia, Saturday, March 15, 1890.

GOODWIN, H. The Foundations of the Cread: Being a Discussion of the Grounds upon which the Articles of the Apostles' Cread may be held by Earnest and Thoughtful Minds in the Nineteenth Century, London, 1890.

GORDON, A. J. Eee Venit; Behold, He cometh, New York and Chicago, 1889.

GORDON, Andrew, D.D. (Franklin College, New Athens, O., 1878), United Presbyterian; b. at Putnam, Washington Co., N. Y., Sept. 17, 1838; graduated at Franklin College, 1859, and at U. P. Theological Seminary at Cannonsburgh, Pa., 1853; appointed by Synod missionary to Scalcote, North India; sailed, Sept., 1854; returned, 1863, broken in health; went into business, 1863-75; regained his health and resumed mission work at Gurdaspur, 1875; returned, 1885, and devoted himself to history; d. in Philadelphia, Aug. 13, 1889. He published Our Mission in India, Philadelphia, 1887, and translated a version of the Psalms into Urdu.

GOTCH, F. W., b. at Kettering, Aug. 31, 1807; d. at Clifton, May 17, 1890.

GOTTHEIL, G. Edited Hymns and Anthems, New York, 1887.

GOTTSCSICK, J. Luthers Anschauungen vom christlichen Gottesdienst und seine thatesche Revorm desselben, Freiburg, i. Br., 1887; Die Glaubensbenth der Evangelischen gegenuber Rom., Gieson, 1889; Die Bibeln, d. Versmischte Gleichichte, 10th ed. 1890; Trost und Wehre. Reden und Predigten, 1890; Die Psalmen, 1890.

GOW, J. B. Platform Echoes, with Life of the Author, by Dr. Lyman Abbott, Hartford, 1887.

GRAY, Q. Z., d. at Sharon Springs, N. Y., Aug. 4, 1889. The Church's Certain Faith (Baldwin Lectures), New York, 1890; The Scriptural Doctrine of Recognition in the World to Come, New York, 1890.

GREEN, W. M., d. at Sewanee, Tenn., Feb. 13, 1889.

GREEN, W. M., d. at Sewannee, Tenn., Feb. 13, 1887.

GRIFFIS, W. E. Cores, the Hermit Nation, 3d ed.
GRIMM, 281

HESAN. ed., revised throughout, New York, 1888; The Lily among Thorns: A Study of the Biblical Drama, entitled the Song of Songs, Boston, 1889; Matthew Calbraith Perry, 2d ed. 1890; The Mikado's Empire, 6th ed., 1890; Honda, 1890.

HALEY, J. W. Panaceas and Follies of the Middle Ages: A Study in Mediaval History, 1888.

HALL, I. H., LL.D. (Columbia College Centennial, Apr. 13, 1887). In the Church and the Age: An Exposition of the Catholic Church in View of the Needs and Aspirations of the Present Age, New York, 1889.

HARNACK, Th. (father of Adolf), d. at Dorpat, Sept., 23, 1889; 2d Abth. Luther's Lehre von dem Erlöser und der Erlösung, Erlangen, 1886.

HARRIS, S. S., d. in England, Aug. 21, 1888.

HASE, K. A., d. at Jena, Jan. 3, 1890. A complete edition of his works is now in course of publication at Leipzig, 1890, sqq.

HAYGOOD, A. G. The Man of Galilee, New York, 1889; Poems for Progress, 1889.

HERGENROETHER, J., Cardinal, d. in Rom., Oct. 3, 1890.
HERING, H.

gungsgeschichte, No. 22, Halle, 1888; Mitteilungen aus dem Protokoll der Kirchen-Visitation im sächs.
Kurkreise vom Jahre 1555, Wittenberg, 1889. HERMANN (J. Q.), W. Der Verkehr der Christen mit Gott, im Anschluss an Luther dargestellt, Stuttgart, 1886; Die Gerichtigkeit des Glaubens die Freiheit der Theologie, Freiburg i. Br., 1887, 2d ed. 1889; Der Begriff der Offenbarung, Giessen, 1887; Der evangelische Glaube und die Theologie Alberti Ritschis, Marburg, 1890.
HERZOG, E. Synodal Predigten u. Hirtenbriefe, Bern, 1886; Bruder Klaus, 1887; Leo
W. als Rektor der gesellschaftlichen Ordnung, 1888; and in connection with F. W. R. Gegen Rom. Vortrag zur Aufklärung über den Montanis-mus, Zürich, 1889.

HESSEY, J. A. Sunday: Its Origin, History,

HETTINGER, F., d. at Würzburg, Jan. 26,
1889. Apologie des Christenthums, 2 Bd. Die
Dogmen des Christenthums, Freiburg i. Br., 1887;
Die Kirchliche Vollgewalt des apostolischen Stuhles, 2d ed. 1887; Rom gehört dem Papste, Linz, 1887;
Buch der Erziehung der Künder seines Kirche, Past-Bele, Würzburg, 1887; Lehrbuch der Fundamental-Theologien in [Theologische Bibliothek, vol. xvi.], Freiburg i. Br., 1888; Aphorismen über Predigt und Prediger, 1889; Dante's Geistesgang, Koln, 1888; Die Gott-nische Konsolade des Alten Alighieri nach ihrem Usage mit Vorwort eon Dr. O. Nippold, Leipzig, 1886.

HICKOCH, L. P., d. at Amherst, May 6, 1888.

HILGENFELD, A. (B.C.G.), became ordinary president at Jena, 1890. Judentum und Juden-christentum, eine Nachlese zu der Ketzergeschichte des 16. Jahrhunderts, Leipzig, 1888; Libellen de aleatoribus inter Oppriani scripta conservatur, ed.
et commentario ... instruzif, Freiburg i. Br., 1888.

HILL, D. J. The Social Influence of Christianity; with Special Reference to Contemporary Problems: the Newton Lectures for 1887, Boston, 1888;

HIPPEL, Felix von, d. at Tübingen (?), Feb.
18, 1889.

HITCHCOCK, R. D., d. at Fall River, Mass.,
June 16, 1887. Posthumous, Eternal Atonement
(19 sermons), New York, 1888. (4 edd. sold.)

HODGE, A. A., d. at Princeton, N. J., Nov. 11, 1889. Popular Lectures on Theological Themes (posthumous), Philadelphia, 1887; and completed by Dr. J. A. Hodge. The System of Theology Contained in the Westminster Shorter Catechism, New York, 1898.

HOEKSTRA, Sytse. Historical Development of the Moral Ideas, 1892.

HOFFMANN, H. G., d. at Leipzig (?), Sept.
28, 1896.

HOFFMANN, E. A., D.D. (Columbia College Centennial, April 13, 1887).

HOFFMANN, R. H. Rechtfertigung der Schule der Reformation gegen un gerechtfertigte Angriffe, Leipzig, 1890.

HOFSTEDE de GROOT, C. P., at Groningen, Oct. 20, 1899; studied at the gymnasium and University of Groningen, 1846—55.

HOFSTEDE de GROOT, P., b. at Leer, Oct.
8, 1902; studied at the gymnasium and University of Groningen, 1814—26; d. there, Dec. 5, 1886.
With his colleagues, L. G. Pareau, J. F.
Van Vordt, and W. Muurling, he edited from 1887 to 1872 the review Waarheid, in Liege, in which appeared more than 200 articles from his pen.
His Disputatio, qua ep. ad Hydrosum cum Paulinum, epistolae comparatur was a "gold-gekönnte Preisscrift."

HOLE, C. Manual of the Book of Common Prayer: Its History, etc., London, 1887; Early Missions to and within the British Islands, 1888;
Home Missions in the Early Medieval Period, 1889.

HOLLAND, H. S. Christ or Ecclesiastes, Sermons in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, 1887;
Cred and Character, 1887; On Behalf of Belief:
Sermons in St. Paul's Cathedral, 1888.

HOLTZMANN, H. J. Es soll als Welt der Herrnlichkeit der Seele von Gott, Stettin, 1887; Festschrift for F. H. Neubert, Berlin, 1888; Die Synoptiker; die Apostelgeschichte in [Hand-Commentar zum Neuen Testament], Freiburg i. Br., 1889; Johanneseches Evangelium in [Hand-Commentar zum Neuen Testament], 1890; Lexikon für Theologie u. Kirchentecnsehen, 2d ed., Braunschweig, 1889, sqq. (Has in preparation to a third revised edition of his Introduction to the New Testament.)

HOOD, E. P. E. P. Hood, Poet and Preacher.
A Memorial by Geo. H. Giddings, London, 1887.

HOOP-SCHIEFFER, J. G. de. Geschichte der Reformation in den Niederlanden von ihrem Beginn bis zum Jahre 1581. Deutsche Ausgabe von Dr. F.
Gerlich, mit Vorwort von Dr. O. Nippold, Leipzig, 1886.

HOPKINS, J. H. Articles on Romanism, Monsignor Casel, Dr. Littledale, New York, 1890.

HOPKINS, M., d. at Williamstown, Mass., June 17, 1887.

HOVEY, A. Biblical Eeology, Philadelphia, 1888; A Commentary on the Epistle to the Galatians, 1890.

HOW, W. W. Ballad of the Chorister Boy, London, 1887; Letter Booklets, 1888.

HOYT, W. The Brook in the Way, Philadelphia, 1888; Saturday Afternoon; or, Conversations for the Culture of the Christian Life, 1889.

HUGHES, J., d. at St. Asaph, Jan. 21, 1889.
Sabattical Rest of God and Man: Exposition of HUMPHRY, W. G. Commentary on the Revised 1889; Godly Life, Sermons, 1889. The Book of Common Prayer, 1883, 8th ed. 1886.

HUNTINGTON, F. D., D.D. (Columbia College Centennial, April 13, 1887).

HURST, J. F. Short History of the Medival Church, New York, 1887; The Success of the Gospel and the Failure of the New Theologies, 1888;
The Wedding Day: the Service; the Marriage
Certificate; Words of Counsel, Buffalo, 1889; Theological Libraries in America in the American Church History Society's publications, New York,
vol. ii., 1890.

HURTER, H. Catholicism, Innsbruck, 1871—86, vols.; Sancti Bernardi, Abbatis olara: Val-lausianus, sanctorum, opuscula selecta, Tom 0 , Innsbruck, 1871—86.
bruck, 1888; Theologia dogmatica compendium in usum studiorum theologiae, 3 tomi, 6th ed. 1889; Medulla theologiae dogmaticae, 5th ed. 1889.

HYDEN, W. S. At Chicago, III., March 21, 1887.

IGNATIUS, Father. See Lyne, J. L.

JEBB, John, d. at Peterstow, Jan. 8, 1886.

JOHNSON, H. Forms for Special Occasions: Marriage, Burial, Baptism, the Lord's Supper, Ordination, Dedication, etc., Chicago, 1889.

JOSTES, F. Called to a professorship in the Catholic University of Freiburg, Switzerland, 1890, with W. Effmann, published Vorchristliche Altertümmer im Gause Süderberge, Münster, 1888.

JUNGMANN, J. Ästhetik, Freiburg i. Br., 1886; 2 vols.

KAHNIS, K. F. A., d. at Leipzig, June 20, 1888.

KARR, W. B., d. at Hartford, Conn., March 4, 1888.

KATZENBUSCH (F. W.), F. Über religionsbedingte Glauben im Sinne des Christenthums, Giessen, 1887; Lehrbuch der vergleichenden Confessionskunde, Freiburg i. Br., 1890 sq.

KAWEARU, Q. Edited Passional Christi und Antichristi, illustruesto by Lucas Kranach, text by Melanchthon, Berlin, 1888; Über Berechtigung und Bedeutung des landesherrlichen Kirchenregiments, Kiel, 1887; De digamias episcoporum, Ein Beitrag zur Lutherforschung, 1889; Sobald das Geld im Kasten klingt, die Seele aus dem Fegefeuer springet [No. 19 of Freundschafliche Stiltschriften], Barmen, 1890.

KELLOGG, S. H. From Death to Resurrection; or, Scripture Testimony Concerning the Sainted Dead, New York, 1885; The Jesus; or, Prediction and Fulfilment, an Argument for the Times, new ed. with an appendix, New York, 1888.

KENDRICK, A. C. Commentary on the Epistle to the Hebrews, Philadelphia, 1889.

KLEIFOTH, T. F. D. Christliche Eschatologie, Leipzig, 1886.

KOESTLIN, Heinrich Adolf (professor in the KOESTLIN, J. T. Worin hat die evangelische Kirche in der gegenwärtigen kirchen-politischen Lage ihre unentbehrliche Stärke zu suchen? Halle, 1887; Martin Luther, sein Leben und seine Schriften, 4th ed. 1889; Luther's Leben, 2nd ed. 1890.

KRAWUTZKY, A., ordinary professor at Breslau, 1886. Einleitung in das Studium der katholischen Moraltheologie, Breslau, 1890.

LEE, A., d. at Wilmington, Del., Apr. 12, 1887.

LEO XIII. See Life of Leo XIII., by Dr. Bernard O'Reilly, London and New York, 1887. His Encyclicals of 1886 (Immortale Dei), 1887. Libertas prostonianum naturae donum, 1889, treat of liberty, church and state, and the political duties of Catholics. See Acta Leonis Pope XIII., Parisisis (Roger et Chernovitz), an annual.

LICHTENBERGER, F. A. History of German Theology in the Nineteenth Century. Translated by W. Hutie, Edinburgh and New York, 1890.

LINCOLN, H., d. at Newton, Mass., Oct. 19, 1887.

LINK, Adolf, Lie. Theol. (Marburg, 1889), German Protestant theologian; b. at Coblenz, April 20, 1860; studied at Bonn, Göttingen, and Marburg, 1876-82; was rector at Marburg, 1889-88; private-docent of New Testament, 1889; professor extraordinary at Königberg, 1890. He is the author of Christen Person und Werk im Hiren des Hermas, Marburg, 1886, and of several articles in the Allgemeine Deutsche Biographie, vol. xxiii., sq., Leipzig, 1886 sq.

LINSENNANN, P. X. Die sittlichen Grundlagen der akademischen Freiheit, Tübingen, 1888.

LIVERMORE, A. A., retired from presidency of the Virginia Theological Seminary, 1887.

LOBSTEIN, P. La Doctrine de la sainte Cène. Essai dogmatique, Lausanne, 1889; Études chronologiques. Le dogme de la naissance miraculeuse du Christ, Paris, 1890.

Loman, A. D. Has written also "The Sym. bolic Explication of the Evangelical History; Being a Criticism of Dr. J. Cramer's Inaugural Oration," 1884. In the Theologische Tijdschrift for 1882, 1883, 1886, Dr. Loman published a series of "Questiones Paulinae," containing an inquiry into the origin and character of the epistles attributed to the Apostle Paul.

LOY, M. Sermonas on the Gospels for the Sundays and Chief Festivals of the Church Year, Columbus, 1888.

LUCIUS, P. E., ordinary professor at Straussburg, 1889.

LUCKOCK, H. M. Divine Liturgy: Order for Holy Communion in 50 portions, London, 1889; Footprints of the Son of Man as traced by St. Mark, 1889.

LUEDEMAANN, K., d. at Kiel, Prussia, Feb. 18, 1889.

LYNE, Joseph Leycester, Church of England, b. in London, Nov. 23, 1857; educated at Trinity College, Glenalmond, Perth; ordained deacon, 1886; for a while was mission curate to Charles Lowder (see art. in the Schaff-Hervey), but in 1862 began his revival of the monastic Order of St. Benedict, which now has an abbey and priory at Lanthony in Wales. His monastic name is "Ignatius of Jesus," and he is popularly known as Father Ignatius. He is a noted revivalist and the author of many hymns and tunes, besides tales, etc. He wears the old English Benedictine dress. He visited the United States in the winter of 1890-91, and held "missions" or revival services in various cities.

MacARTHUR, R. S. Christ and Him Crucified, New York, 1890.

McCOSH, J., retired from presidency of the MACCRACKEN, H. M., LL.D. (Miami University, 1887.)

McPHERSON, J. B., d. at Nashville, Tenn., May 9, 1887.

MATTOON, S., d. at Marion, O., Aug. 13, 1889.

MILLER, K. F. H., d. in Berlin, Nov. 14, 1886.

MEUSS, E. Unsere Stellung zur Schrift im Angesicht der heutigen Wissenschaft von der Schrift, Vortrag, Breslau, 1887.

MICHAUD, P. E. Le Politique de compromis avec Rome en 1889. Le Pape Alexandre VIII. et le duc de Chaulnes d'après les correspondances diplo-

MAHAN, A., D.D. (Olive College), d. at Eastbourne, Eng., Apr. 4, 1889. Doctrine of the Will, 1844; System of Moral Philosophy, 1849; Philosophy and Spiritualism, 1855; Out of Darkness into Light, 1876.

MAIER, A. d. at Freiburg i. Br., July 24, 1890.

MANGOLD, W. J., d. at Bonn, Mar. 1, 1890; De ech. sec. Matt. c. vi., v. 13b. ἀλλ' ἄλλη διὰ τὸν νομον κοινωνία τοιοταν τοιαύτα, Bonn, 1888; 3d Proletgen (1840–82), Marburg, 1890.

MANLY, B. The Bible Doctrine of Inspiration Explained and Vindicated, New York, 1888.

MANN, W. J. The Life and Times of Henry Melchior Muhlenberg, Philadelphia, 1887.

MARTI, K. Der Prophet Jeremia c. Anatol, Basel, 1889; Der richtige Standpunkt zur Beurtheilung der abweichenden theologischen Anschauungen, 1890.

MacTYRE, H. N., d. at Nashville, Tenn., Feb 15, 1889.
MILLER, John, b. at Princeton, N. J., Apr. 6, 1819; graduated at College of N. J., 1836, and at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1841; pastor of Presbyterian churches at Frederick, Md., Philadelphia, and Petersburg, Va. Author of Commentary on Proverbs, New York, 1873, 2d ed., Princeton, N. J., 1887; Fetiche in Theology, 1874; Metaphysics, or Science of Perception, 1874; Questions Awakened by the Bible, Philadelphia, 1877; Commentary on the Epistle to the Romans, Princeton, 1887; Theology, 1887 (all the above now published at Princeton, N. J.).

MOFFAT, J. C., d. at Princeton, N. J., June 7, 1890; Church History in Brief, Philadelphia, 1888.

MONOD, Th., since 1878 pastor in the Reformed Church of Paris. He has published besides those mentioned supra (p. 146), the following: Denying Self; Le Chretien et sa Croix; De Quoi il s'agit (on the "Holiness" movement of 1874), 1875; Loin du Nil, poesies, 1882; A ceux qui souffrent, Laussanne, 1888; Crucifixus ac Christ, 1883.

MONRAD, D. G., d. at Nykøbing, Falster, Mar. 28, 1887. Et Bidrag til den apostoliske Troebekjendelse Historie, Copenhagen, 1887. See en biografisk Skitser, by T. Graae, Nykøbing, 1887. 10th ed. Ger.-trans. of his World of Prayer (Aus der Welt des Geistes), Gotha, 1890.

MORARIE, J. A. A Charge to the Diocese of Manchester, 1889; A Charge to the Clergy and Churchwardens of the Clergy of Manchester, 1889; Christ and His Surroundings, 1889.

MORRIS, E. D. Scripture Readings for Teachers and Schools, Cincinnati, 1887; Is there Salvation after Death? New York, 1889.

MUNGER, T. T. The Appeal to Life, Boston, 1887.

MUSTON, A. Poésies Compoises, extraits de la "Valdaise." Poésie sur les événements de 1886. Tours, 1886.

NAVILLE, J. L. La Philosophie et la religion, Paris, 1887; Le libre abrité, 1890.

NESTLE (G), E., became professor of Oriental languages at Tübingen, 1890. Vetoria Testamenti graci codices vaticani et sinaicatus cum textu recepto collati, 2d ed., Leipzig, 1887; Syrische Grammatik, 2d ed. 1888; translated into English by Prof. R. S. Kennedy, 1889; Litteratur synec, Berlin, 1888; De sancta cruce: Ein Beitrag zur christl. Legendengeschichte, 1888.

NEVIN, A., d. at Lancaster, Pa., Sept. 2, 1890.

NEWMAN, J. P., elected a bishop of the M. E. Church, 1888; The Supremacy of Law, New York, 1890.

NEWTON, R., d. at Philadelphia, Pa., May 25, 1887. Bible Animals and the Lessons Taught by Them, New York, 1889; The Heath in the Wilderness; or, Sermons to the People; to which is added the Story of His Life and Ministry, by W. W. N., 1888; Illustrated Rambles in Bible Lands, 1890.

NEWTON, R. H. Social Studies, New York, 1887; Heroes of the Early Church, Philadelphia, 1888.

NICOLL, W. R., editor of the British Weekly, which he started in 1887, having been compelled previously to give up preaching, owing to the loss of his voice.

NILLIES, N. Varia pietatis exercitia, Innsbruck, 1889.

ORELLI (H.) C. v. Die Propheten Jonas und Jeremia [in Kurzgefasster Kommentar], Nördlingen, 1886; Das Buch Jeschaj und die Propheten [in Kurzgefasster Kommentar].
ORMISTON. 288

PRGER.

Nördlingen, 1888; Die himmlischen Hearscharen, Basel, 1889; Stelle die heutige Weise der Arbeit für’s Reich Gottes im Einklang mit dem Worte Gottes, 1889; The Prophecies of Jeremiah, translated in “Clark’s Theological Library,” Edinburgh, 1889; Schat, welch’ eine Liebe, 1890.

ORMISTON, W., resigned the pastorate of the Collegiate Reformed Dutch Church, New York City, Feb., 1888; was Presbyterian pastor at Pasadena, Cal., 1888–90; since 1890 has lived in Florida.

OSBORN, H. S. A Class Book of Biblical History and Geography, New York, 1890.

PALMER, B. M. The Formation of Character; Twelve Lectures in the First Presbyterian Church, New Orleans, La., 1890.

PALMER, R., d. at Newark, N. J., Mar. 29, 1887.

PARRY, E., d. at St. Leonards, Apr. 11, 1890.

PASSAQILIA, C., d. at Turin, Mar. 12, 1887.

PATTON, W. W., d. at Westfield, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1889.

PERRIN, L., d. at Hartford, Conn., Feb. 18, 1889.

PERRY, R., president of Griswold College from 1876; Anthon professor of Systematic Divinity, Griswold College, since 1876; unanimously elected Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia, Dominion of Canada, 1887, but declined.

PFLEIDERER, O. Das Urchristenthum, seine Schriften und Lehren, Berlin, 1887; The Philosophy of Religion on the Basis of its History (translation of Die Religionphilosophie, mentioned on p. 167), London, 1889–90, 4 vols.; The Development of Theology in Germany since Kant, and its Progress in Great Britain since 1825, trans. from unpublished ms., 1890.

PELHAM, A. B., d. at Bar Harbor, Me., Oct. 13, 1890; My Note Book, 1890.

PHILPOTT, H., resigned bishopric, Aug., 1890.

PIECK, B. Historical Sketch of the Jews since the Destruction of Jerusalem, New York, 1887; The Life of Jesus according to Extra-Canonical Sours, 1887; The Talmud, What it is, and What it Knows about Jesus and His Followers, 1886.

PIERSON, A. T., became co-editor with J. M. Sherwood of the Missionary Review of the World, Jan., 1888; resigned pastorate of Bethany Church, Philadelphia, Apr., 1888, to go to Europe for a year. Evangelistic Work in Principle and Practice, New York, 1887; Keys to the Word; or, Help to Bible Study, 1887, new and cheaper ed. 1890; The Crisis of Missions, 1888; The Inspired Word, 1888; Many Infallible Proofs, new ed. 1889; The One Gospel; or, the Combination of the Narrative of the Four Evangelists in One Complete Record, 1890.

PITRA, J. B., d. in Rome, Feb. 11, 1889.

PITZER, A. W. Confidence in Christ; or, Faith that Saves, Philadelphia, 1889.

PLUMMER, A. Church of the Early Fathers, London, 1887; Pastoral Epistles [in Expositor’s Bible], 1888.

PORTER, N. Fifteen Years in the Chapel of Yale College [Sermons] 1871—86. New York, 1887.

PORTER, N. Fifteen Years in the Chapel of Yale College [Sermons] 1871—86. New York, 1887.

POTTER, H., d. in New York City, Jan. 2, 1887.

PRATT, L., became pastor of Broadway Church, Norwich, Conn., 1888.

PREGER, J. W., Über die Verfasstung der französischen Waldesier in der älteren Zeit, München, 1890.
PRENTISS, Q. L. History of the Union Theological Seminary (with biographical sketches of its founders and early professors down to F. A. Hitchcock), New York, 1889.

RANKE, E., d. at Marburg, 1888. Stuttgariiuan Versiones Sacrorum Scripturarum Latinae antehieronymiana fragmenta, Wien, 1887.

RAUSCHENBUSCH, A., resigned professorship in Rochester Theological Seminary, May, 1888, to return to Germany.

RAWLINSON Q., resigned Camden professorship at Oxford, 1886. Bible Topography, London, 1889; Ancient Egypt: In Story of the Nations series, 1887; Ancient History, 1887; Moses: His Life and Times [in Men of the Bible series, 1887]; Phaneric [in Story of the Nations series, 1889]; History of Phaneric, 1889; Kings of Israel and Judah [in Men of the Bible series, 1889]; Isaac and Jacob: Their Lives and Times [in the same series, 1890].

REDFORD, R. A. Vor Der: The Doctrine of the Spirit as it is Set Forth in the Scriptures of the Old and New Testament, London, 1890.

REUSCH, F. H. In company with Dr. Doellinger he edited Die Selbstbiographie des Cardinale Bellarmin, Bonn, 1887; and Geschichte der Moralstrittigkeiten in der römisch-katholischen Kirche seit dem 18. Jahrhundert, Nürdlingen, 1888, 2 vols. He also published Die Fehlschungen in dem Tractat des Thomas v. Aquin gegen die Griechen [Opusculum contra errores Graecorum ad Urbanum IV.], München, 1889; Index librorum prohibitorum, gedruckt zu Parma, 1890, nach dem einzigen bekannten Exemplare herausgegeben, Bonn, 1889, and Briefe und Erklärungen von J. von Döllinger über die Vatikanischen Decrete, München, 1890.

REUTER, H. F., D.D. (hon., Kiel, 1853); d. at Göttingen, Sept. 18, 1889; Augustinische Studien, Gota, 1887.

RIQKENHAG, E. Johann Tobias Beck. Ein Schriftgelehrter zum Himmelreich gelebt, Basel, 1897; Unteremman 11n deutsch 11n Universitäten, 1887; "Jesus nimmt die Sünder an." Predigten, 1889; Die Wurzeln der Vergehen und Verbrechen im Familien-und Volksleben, 2d ed. 1890.

RIQKENBACH, Chr. John, d. at Basel, Sept. 5, 1890.

RITSCHL, O., ordinary professor at Kiel, 1889. Schleiermacher's Stellung zum Christentum in seinen Reden über die Religion, Gota, 1889.

SCHLOTTMANN, K., d. at Halle, Nov. 7, 1887. Erasmus redivivus sine cura Romana hucque insanabilis, II., Halle, 1889; Kompendium der biblischen Theologie des Alten und Neuen Testaments, herausgegeben von Prof. Dr. Ernst Kühn, Leipzig, 1889.

SCHMUCKER, B. M., d. at Pottsdam, Pa., Oct. 18, 1888.

SCHNEDERMANN, Q. (H.), prof. extraordinary, Leipzig, 1889. Die Briefe Pauli an die Thessaloniker, in connection with Prof. O. Zöckler and Prof. C. E. Luthardt, Nördlingen, 1887; Die Gengangenschaftsbriefe des Apostels Paulus [also in Kurzgefasster Kommentar], in connection with Prof. O. Zöckler and Prof. C. E. Luthardt], Nördlingen, 1887; Von dem Bestande unserer Gemeinschaft mit Gott durch Jesus Christum, 1888; Ringet darnach, class die Welt durch Jesus Christum, 1888; Das moderne Christentum, sein Recht und sein Unrecht, Leipzig, 1889.

SCHOENFELDER, J. M. Die Klageleder des Jeremia nach rabbinischer Auslegung, München, 1887.

SCHOLZ, A., Kommentar zum Buche Tobias, 1889.

SCHWARZ, K. H. W., studied at Halle, 1830; Bonn, 1831; Berlin, 1832–34; Greifswald, 1834–36; Lect. Theol. (Greifswald, 1841), prent-docent at Halle, 1843, d. at Gottha, Mar. 25, 1855; his body was burned at his request. Grunddriss der christlichen Lehre. Leitfaden für den Religionsunterricht in Schule und Kirche, Gottha, 1886, 6th ed. 1886.

SCHWEINITZ, E. de, d. of apoplexy at S. Bethlehem, Pa., Dec. 18, 1887.

SCHWEIZER, Alex, d. at Zürich, July 3, 1888; see Biographische Aufzeichnungen von ihm selbst entworfen. Herausgegeben von Dr. Paul Schweizer (his son), Zürich, 1889.

SCOTT, R., d. at Rochester, Dec. 2, 1887.

SUCUDDER, H. M., resigned pastorate of Plymouth Congregational Church, Chicago, Ill., in spring of 1887 to be a volunteer missionary in Japan.

SEISS, J. A. The Children of Silence; or, the Story of the Deaf, Philadelphia, 1887.

SHAFTESBURY, A. A. See His Life and Work, by Edwin Hodder, n. e. London, 1889, 1 vol.

SHEDD, W. Q., resigned professorship in Union Theological Seminary, 1890; but fills his chair temporarily till 1891; Domatical Theology, New York, 2 vols., 2d ed. 1889; The Proposed Revision of the Westminster Standards, New York, 1890.

SIEGFRIED, C. (Q.A.). *Die Theologie und die

THOMPSON, William, d. at Hartford, Conn., Feb. 27, 1889.

THOROLD, A. W., translated to Winchester, 1891.

TOWNSEND, L. T. The Bible and other Ancient Literature in the Nineteenth Century, New York, 1890.

TRUE, B. O., D.D. (Rochester, 1888.)

TUCKER, H. H., d. at Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 9, 1890.

TUTTLE, D. S., D.D. (University of the South, 1897.)

TYERMAN, L. d. at Clapham Park, London, Mar. 21, 1889.

VAIL, T. H., d. at Bryn Mawr, Pa., Oct. 6, 1889.
VAN DYKE. 294  WEISS.

VAUGHAN, C. J., University Sermons, New and Old, Oxford and Cambridge, 1861-87, London, 1888; The Epistle to the Hebrews, 1890.

VOLCK, W., Die Rechte Feier des Bibelfestes, Dorpat, 1888; and with Dr. S. Oettli, Die poetischen Hagiographen [in Kurzgefasster Kommentar], Dorpat, 1886; and with Dr. S. Oettli, Die poetischen Hagiographen [in Kurzgefasster Kommentar], Ziirich, 1887.

VOLKMAR, Q., Paulus von Damaszus bis zum Galaterbrief, Zürich, 1887.

WADDELL, H. W., George Leon, D.D. (Yale, 1870). Congregationalist; b. at Rutland, Vt., April 30, 1830; son of Rev. Charles Walker, D.D.; studied law in Boston, Mass., intending to devote himself to legal practice. Led to prefer the ministry, he studied theology with his father, and at Andover Theo. Seminary, 1857-58; was pastor of State Street Church, Portland, Me., 1858-66; First Church, New Haven, Conn., 1866-73; First Church, Hartford, Conn., since 1879. Member of the Commission to prepare the Congregational Creed (1888). Preacher at 75th Anniversary of the A. B. C. F. M., Boston, 1885. Member of Board of Visitors, Andover Seminary, since 1888. Member of Corporation, Yale University, since 1887. Chairman of "Committee of Nine" to examine into the affairs of the A. B. C. F. M., 1889-90; published History of the First Church in Hartford, Hartford, 1884, and numerous sermons and addresses.

WALKER, William, Ph.D. (Leipzig, 1888). Congregationalist; son of preceding; b. at Portland, Me., July 1, 1860; graduated at Amherst College, 1883; at Hartford Theo. Seminary, 1886; studied, 1886-88 at the University of Leipzig; became Associate in History at Bryn Mawr College, 1888; associate professor of Mediaeval and Modern History at Hartford Theo. Seminary, 1899. He has published The Increase of Royal Power in France under Philip Augustus, 1179-1223, Leipzig, 1888.

WAGENMANN, J. A., d. at Göttingen, towards the end of Aug., 1890.

WALSH, W. F., Echoes of Bible History, London, 1888-89; 2d ed. 1889; Heroes of the Mission Field, 3d ed. 1888; The Voices of the Psalms, 1890.

WALTHER, C. F. W., d. at St. Louis, Mo., May 8, 1897. See an appreciative article by C. W. Ernst (one of his pupils) in the Boston Watchman for June 2, 1887. Walther was the founder of strict Lutheran orthodoxy in the United States, and exerted more influence than any other divine of his church since the time of Dr. Henry Melchior Mühlenberg, the Patriarch of the Am. Luth. Church. One of his last enterprises was a revised ed. of Walch's Works of Luther, to be completed in 25 vols., St. Louis.

WARD, J. H., The Church in Modern Society, Boston, 1889.

WARD, W. H., elected president of the American Oriental Society in 1889.

WATTTS, R., A New Apology; or, the Down Grade in Criticism, Theology, and Science, New York, 1890.

WEIFFENBACH (E.) W., Gemeinde-Recht fürgung oder Individual-Recht fürgung. Friedrichsberg, 1887, 3d ed. 1890; Professor of Dogmatics and Exegesis at Augustana Theological Seminary, Rock Island, Ill. Theological Encyclopedia, Based on Hagenbach and Krauth, Philadelphia, 1886, vol. ii., 1889; Introduction to Dogmatic Theology, Based on Luthardt, 1888; Studies in the Book, 1st and 3d series, New York and Chicago, 1890.

295
ZIMMER.

WEISS, H. Einleitung in die christliche Ethik, Freiburg i. Br., 1889.

WELCH, R. B., d. at Healing Springs, Va., June 29, 1890, in his 65th year. His last work was on the revision of the Westminster Standard 1800. He was succeeded in Auburn Seminary by Dr. Darling.

WESTCOTT, B. F., succeeded Dr. Lightfoot as bishop of Durham, April, 1890. Christus Consumentor, 2d ed., London, 1887; Social Aspects of Christianity, 1887; Thoughts on Revelation and Life, Selected by Phillips, 1887; Victory of the Cross: Sermons in Holy Week, 1888, 1889; Epistle to the Hebrews: Greek Text, with Notes, 1889; Gifts for the Ministry: Addresses to Candidates for Ordination, 1889; From Strength to Strength: Three Sermons, 1890.

WHEDON, D. D. Essays, Reviews, and Discourses, with a Biographical Sketch, New York, 1887; Statements, Theological and Critical, 1887.

ZIMMER, F. (K.) Der Römerbrief, überersetzt und kurz erklärt, Quedlinburg, 1887; Der Galaterbrief im altlateinischen Text, und Das Gebev nach den Paulinischen Schriften [Hefte 1 and 3 of The-ZOECKLER. 296 ZOEPPFEL.

ZOECKLER, O. Wider die unfehlbare Wissenschaft, Nördlingen, 1887; Die Briefe Pauli an die Thessaloniker, Galater, Korinther, und Römer, ausgelegt, 1888, and Die Apokryphen des Alten Testaments, 1890 [all in Kurzgefasster Kommentar]; ZOEPFFEL, R. O. Johannes Sturm, der erste Rektor der Strasburger Akademie, Strassburg, 1887; in connection with Dr. H. Holtzmann, Lexicon für Theologie und Kirchenwesen, Braunschweig, 2d ed. 1890, sqq.